Israelis, Syrians Resume Attacks

By United Press International
Syrian and Israeli troops clashed with tanks and artillery on the Golan Heights front today and the Israeli air force took to the skies. Syrian and Israeli military spokesmen reported. It was the first clash since Israel went on a high state of alert two days ago.
A Syrian military communique said the clash started at 10:15 a.m. (3:15 a.m. CDT) and continued for seven hours. Then at 12:20 p.m. (5:20 a.m. CDT) Israeli artillery opened up on Syrian positions and concentrated exchange of artillery fire continued for 25 minutes, Syria reported.
The Syrians said the Syrian fire silenced three Israeli artillery batteries, destroyed two other artillery batteries, hit a concentration of Israeli vehicles and destroyed an engineering unit.
Israel said Syrian gunners today fired several antitank rockets and artillery shells at Israeli forces on the tense Golan Heights frontline. Israel's warplanes scrambled into the skies over Israel and the frontline areas, military correspondents reported over the national radio.

Neither the Israeli nor the Syrian army has demobilized from the October war and both were in a high state of readiness. Israeli troops and border settlements were alerted Wednesday of the possibility of a Syrian attack to try to regain territory lost in October.
The Syrians opened initially with antitank fire and 45 minutes later pounded three other sectors of the Israeli frontline with artillery shells within the space of an hour, an Israeli military spokesman said.
The military command said the antitank fire caused no casualties. The spokesman said the Israelis returned the artillery fire. He said there were no further details on the sporadic shelling that following the initial outburst directed at the Tel Mare sector.
"It's warming up," an Israeli military source told UPI Correspondent Richard C. Gross in Tel Aviv. "More shells were fired after the initial outburst, but at this point it's too soon to tell just whose they were or what exactly happened."
Israel has been in a state of alert since Wednesday following reports of a Syrian military buildup and speculation Syria might try to retake territory it lost in October to bolster its position in the forthcoming Israeli-Syrian troop disengagement talks.
The newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth, quoting Western sources, said the United States has been in urgent contact for the past two days with the Soviet Union, Egypt and Syria in efforts to head off a clash on the Syrian front, saying the situation must be taken seriously. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko visited Syria and Egypt last week, apparently trying to get Syria to attend the Middle East peace conference in Geneva. However, Israeli sources said a joint Syrian-Soviet statement issued after Gromyko's departure Thursday appeared to reflect a hardening of the Syrian line and said Gromyko might be trying to torpedo U.S. peace efforts.

Food Giveaway Continues, But Kidnapers Silent

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Directors of the food giveaway program to win freedom for kidnaped Patricia Hearst intensified security today for the fourth distribution which brought to more than $1 million the amount spent for the poor.
A Ludlow Kramer, director of People in Need, said the number of guards at the central warehouse was increased from four to eight and all trucks were equipped with communications devices.
Kramer said the action was taken because of the hijacking of a truck with 12,500 pounds of meat and poultry and the theft of goods from another truck. He added there has also been food pilfering but this amounted to "less than 1 per cent."
Kramer told reporters that $750,000 had been spent for the first three giveaways and $300,000 was used for today's, bringing the total to over the $1 million mark.
The Hearst family put up $2 million for the program with the Hearst Foundation pledging another $4 million when Miss Hearst, 20, is freed.
Randolph A. Hearst, Patty's father, and editor and president of The San Francisco Examiner, said he hoped the food program would elicit another communique from the Symbionese Liberation Army which abducted his daughter Feb. 4 from her Berkeley apartment.
The last communique was received Feb. 20.
Kramer told reporters that the $2 million would run out in about four to six weeks at its "present level."
In a related development, a California State Department of Corrections spokesman said two suspected SLA assassins—held in San Quentin Prison—would not be allowed to appear on nationwide television to present a proposal they said could result in Miss Hearst's freedom.
Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 26, awaiting trial for the Nov. 6 slaying of Oakland School Superintendent Marcus A. Foster, said in a letter released Wednesday night that they would not give details unless they are given an opportunity to have "a live press conference." Remiro and Little said they had been beaten by guards and refused opportunities to talk with their attorneys. They also said they were harassed by FBI agents. They also said the FBI wanted Patty killed "to discredit the SLA." The FBI denied the charges.

Congress Asked To Enact Broad Election Reforms

BEANIE DAYS — Students at Wilson Elementary School have been selling beanie hats during the week in observance of Texas Public Schools Week which ends today. Wearing their beanies are, from left, Lisa Harden, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harden, 608 Red Deer;

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon asked Congress today to enact broad election reforms, including limiting single cash contributions to $50 and an individual's overall donation to a presidential candidate's campaign to $15,000.
The President's proposals called for no limit on the amount a candidate could spend and he stressed anew his objection to financing the campaigns with tax money. He said he did not think Americans wanted to divert "hundreds of millions from pressing national needs."
There is sharp disagreement between the House and Senate and among members of each body on campaign reform, although there is general agreement that reforms are needed following widespread excesses disclosed in the 1972 campaign.
Two top Republican leaders who conferred with the President prior to submission of his message disagreed with his opposition to public financing and a citizens' lobby promptly attacked his position.
While banning cash contributions of more than $50 per person, and $15,000 overall, for any presidential campaign, Nixon called for shortening the campaigns and outlawing "dirty tricks."
He also recommended a study of a proposal, long advocated by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, to limit a President to a single six-year term and said he had instructed the Justice Department to explore possible legislation to make it easier for candidates and public officials to sue for libel and slander.
The Senate has passed a bill to put limitations on contributions and campaign spending and is scheduled to debate next week a measure on public financing of both presidential and congressional campaigns.
The bill already approved by a House committee and congressional observers said there is no chance for enactment of a compromise reform law anytime soon.
Nixon's opposition to public financing was condemned by the citizen group called the Center for Public Financing of Elections, which said, "No responsible official would suggest that the costs of finding a cure for cancer be left strictly to voluntary contributions."
Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott and Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., told reporters following a two-hour 15 minute meeting with Nixon that they disagreed with the President on prohibi-

ing the use federal funds in political campaigns. Both are on record as favoring laws which would provide federal matching funds for campaign contributions.
To combat political "dirty tricks" of the kind some persons admitted conducting in his 1972 campaign, Nixon suggested that various disruptive activities be banned.
He included such things as misleading advertisements, misrepresentation of voting records of opponents, organizing slander campaigns and using demonstrators to disrupt political rallies be outlawed.

Thunderstorms Sweep Across Panhandle Area

Thunderstorms swept across parts of the Texas Panhandle region Thursday night accompanied by rain, hail and high winds, but Pampa received only a trace of moisture from intermittent showers that barely wet the surface of the ground.
After a high of 86, clouds began to cover the area during the afternoon, with a shower of very short duration occurring about 4 p.m. with small sprinkles appearing during the night.
Low this morning was 53 as clouds still covered the region, with only 20 percent chance of additional moisture existing this morning, increasing to 30 percent tonight and Saturday.
High Saturday is expected to be in the low 70s, after an overnight low in the upper 40s.
Two funnel clouds were reported in the area — both near Skellytown — but neither one touched the ground.
The two funnels were reported at 3:58 p.m. and 7:21 p.m.
Hail fell across the South Plains to the Northeast Panhandle into Oklahoma, but no damage reports were made.
Borger received a thunderstorm which dropped temperatures from 76 degrees to 48 in 14 minutes about 5:15 p.m., accompanied by hail stones and 48 to 60 inch of rain in that same 14-minute period.
The National Weather Service issued severe thunderstorm and tornado watches for several areas of the Panhandle but no severe weather developed to any great intensity.
Hail also fell 12 miles north of Pampa, two miles north of Sanford, four miles north of the Canadian River Bridge on U.S. 287, at Tulia, near Gage, Okla. and at Lipscomb, which also received 67 inch of rain.

FROM INVESTIGATORS

Vesco Wanted To Protect Nixon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Financier Robert L. Vesco declined to "blow the lid" on his contribution to the 1972 Nixon campaign because he did not want investigators to "nail me and the President to the wall together," a witness in the Mitchell-Stans trial testified today.
The witness, Harry L. Sears, was the star of the government case against former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans. They are accused of trying to impede a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) investigation of Vesco in exchange for his $200,000 secret cash contribution.

Sears said that when Vesco declined to testify in mid-October, 1972, before an SEC hearing, Mitchell had said "Please tell Bob I'm grateful."
Sears said that Vesco had told him he was not going to testify and that Vesco added "I hope the hell that'll make them happy—because that's just like another contribution."
Sears did not make clear who Vesco meant by "them."
Sears, a Vesco lawyer at the time, said that the subpoena from the SEC staff arrived September 29, 1972, and called for his appearance Oct. 1. He said Mitchell was greatly concerned because it was so close to election time.
"Mr. Vesco said he was absolutely positive that the SEC staff was making a concerted effort to zero in on the $250,000 transaction," Sears testified.
Vesco had arranged a loan in the Bahamas from which he deposited $250,000 in Barkley's bank in New York. Sears said $200,000 was given secretly to Stans, the Nixon Finance Committee chief, and $50,000 was donated publicly.
Sears quoted Vesco about the subpoena as follows:
"I'm sure they're going to try to make a connection between that (bank) transaction and the contribution."
"Those bastards would like nothing better than to nail me and the President to the wall together."
"There's no way that I'm going to testify and blow the lid because the interpretation by

TO PROVIDE TAPES

Committee Giving Nixon More Time

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the chance the White House may have "misunderstood" the request, the House Judiciary Committee is giving President Nixon another week or two to provide six tapes for its impeachment inquiry.
Republicans on the committee acknowledged that the day may come when they must choose between supporting the President and supporting the committee.
So Nixon appeared to have gained some time—but no friends—in rejecting the committee's request and laying down terms which implied he would limit his cooperation with the investigation into his culpability.
Democratic Walter Flowers, Ala., said pressure for Nixon to cooperate was coming "from the Republican side of the aisle."
Two middle-of-the-road Republicans from Illinois on the committee, Reps. Tom Hailsback and Robert L. McClory, praised Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., for his handling of the issue.
Rodino talked Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., who is ready to vote now to impeach Nixon, out of forcing an immediate vote on the subpoena issue Thursday.
Drinan offered his motion after John M. Doar, special impeachment lawyer for the panel, reported Nixon had offered to give the committee only materials which he has already furnished special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. The committee wants other evidence, too—including six unidentified tapes which Nixon refused to surrender.
Doar wanted to avoid a committee vote on the drastic step of subpoenaing Nixon. He said he wanted time to explore Nixon's cooperation with James D. St. Clair, the President's lawyer. He said it would take a week or two. The committee is to meet again Tuesday.

3 County Commissioners Attend Association Meet

Three Gray County Commissioners are in Amarillo today for the spring meeting of the Panhandle County Judges and Commissioners Association at the Quality Inn Motel.
Attending from Gray County are commissioners Mary Dwyer, Don Hinton and Jimmie McCracken. County Judge Don Cain was not able to attend because he is in Dallas this weekend.
The Gray County representatives, along with other association members, were to be asked to adopt a resolution urging the Texas Legislature to declare regional governance unconstitutional and illegal.
Dr. Donald C. Todd, a West Texas State University music professor and president of the Randall County Chapter of the Texas Committee for the Constitution, has asked Panhandle citizens to urge their county officials to support the resolution.
Todd has charged that regional governance, such as the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, has removed local control from cities and counties and is part of an overall plan to establish a dictatorship in the United States.

You can tell who handles the money in families nowadays — they're making women's handbags bigger and men's wallets smaller. Taffy Tuttle suspects her boyfriend is accident-prone. "He broke his arm reaching for a first-aid kit."
Says the cynic: Women will be the weaker sex as long as they are strong enough to get away with it. Someone mentioned Ethel Merman's loud voice: "Once she had laryngitis for a week — and she was the only one who knew it." (For more laughs see Earl Wilson on Page 12.)

Energy Conservation To Continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite new supplies of gasoline and an end expected soon to the Arab oil embargo, the government says Americans will have to conserve energy for a long time.
Deputy energy administrator John C. Sowell issues a report on the government's energy conservation program today. He's expected to say that even if the Arab embargo ends, Americans will still be short of gasoline for most of this year.
Arab government sources have predicted that a conference of oil ministers in the next few days will discuss lifting the embargo and restoring full production. Some of the Arab nations, including Egypt, are believed to be pressing for resumption of oil trade with the West.
Energy chief William E. Simon announced Thursday he is allocating more gasoline to all the states in March. He said lowered requirements for heating oil have allowed more crude oil to be made into gasoline.
Simon said he is considering an end to voluntary prohibition of Sunday gasoline sales, in view of spring and summer vacations coming up. "Under the new allocation, every state will receive a greater supply of gasoline in March than in February," he told a meeting of the National Governors Conference.
The new allocations were adjusted to guarantee that no state gets less than 85 per cent of the motor fuel sold during the 1972 base period. Under the March formula, allocations of 100 per cent or more of the 1972 base will go to Alaska, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Texas and Wyoming.
"What we have done today," Simon said, "will take care of gasoline problems." But it was clear he referred to the immediate recent problem of long gasoline lines and that the government intends general energy conservation to continue. Simon said the national average allocation for March would be 89 per cent of base period.

use. The February average was 83 per cent. He said he would continue to make emergency "injections" of gasoline to the hardest-hit states, as he did last month, if necessary.
In other developments:
—The House reversed itself Thursday, voting to kill a proposed mandatory rollback in domestic crude oil prices. The House had voted for such a rollback Wednesday after President Nixon vetoed the emergency energy bill, containing a similar proposal. The Ways and Means Committee approved in principle a temporary five-year windfall profits tax on crude oil.
—The status of the oil ministers conference was in doubt. Egyptian sources said it would take place in Cairo Sunday. But the Kuwaiti oil minister said it would be in Tripoli Wednesday.
—The Senate Thursday, on a 48-43 vote tabled efforts to repeal year-round daylight saving time.

unharmedly by kidnapers early today, 2 1/2 hours after the child's father paid $50,000 in ransom, the FBI said.

The boy, John Calzadilla, was abducted Wednesday by three persons as he walked home from school in this New York suburb. He was released in New Jersey shortly after 1 a.m. today. The kidnapers escaped with the money.

The boy's father, Michial Calzadilla, 38, put the money in a bag as instructed by the kidnapers and tossed it from his car just outside the Lincoln Tunnel, which runs underneath the Hudson River between New York and New Jersey.

The child was released from a dark-colored sedan at a service area in Secaucus, N.J., according to the FBI. Authorities said the boy appeared to be dazed, after having apparently been drugged, but was otherwise unharmed.

Eugene Kelley, police commissioner of Suffolk County,

N.Y., where the Calzadillas live, said the boy told police his abductors put "a white cloth around his mouth and nose that made him sleep."

Calzadilla and his son were taken to the FBI's offices in New York City and then flown home by helicopter.

Kidnapers Phoned
Kelley said the boy's family raised the ransom "through a number of loans and advances." The police commissioner would not say how much ransom was paid, but an FBI spokesman in New York City gave the amount as $50,000.

The kidnapers made six telephone calls to the Calzadilla family Thursday night, giving instructions on how to deliver the money.

Kelley said the boy's father was told to put the money in a bag, drive through the Lincoln Tunnel into Weehauken, N.J., head north and then toss the bag out the car window.

LIMITED POWERS
Convention Okays Rights Of Felons

AUSTIN (UPI) — Despite warnings, their constituents might wind up standing next to rapists and murderers in voting lines. Constitutional Convention delegates have decided to let exconvicts vote in Texas as soon as they finish their prison terms.

But in case the plan doesn't work out, the delegates gave the legislature power to restrict — or even withdraw — the voting rights of persons convicted of a felony.

The felon voting right proposal was the primary point of contention in two days of debate over the voter qualifications section of the proposed new constitution. Delegates finally approved it 112-50 late Thursday.

The convention is being asked today to go along with a recommended new executive article increasing the power of the governor, permitting him to remove from office any of his appointees who failed to do their jobs.

The executive article is the fourth of the 11 articles proposed in the new constitution to be considered by the convention.

The voter qualification article permits future legislators to make property ownership a qualification for voting in bond elections, and retains the legislature's prerogative to require voters to sign ballot stubs in all elections. Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, said he philosophically opposed any restrictions on voting rights of ex-convicts, but said the convention should approve limitations that are "least onerous to the person who has to meet the test."

"If we don't give them that right back, then we're going to be telling them you can go around the rest of your life with an 'x' on your back and you are not as good as me," Washington said.

Cain Attending DECA Meeting

Randy Cain, state president of the Distributive Education Clubs of America, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Cain, and school officials who work with the local DECA chapter are in Dallas today for the annual Texas DECA meeting.

Both Randy Cain and Dr. James F. Malone, superintendent of Pampa schools, will be seated at the head table at the DECA banquet at the Dallas Merchandise Mart tomorrow night. Malone is being honored by the state DECA for his work in Distributive Education.

Others attending from Pampa are Mrs. Dona Cornutt, DECA teacher, and Don Nelson, vocational coordinator for Pampa schools.

FOR STUDENTS
Pythians To Hold Speaking Contest

Pampa Lodge No. 480, Knights of Pythias, announced the 29th annual Knights of Pythias public speaking contest will be held at the Pythian Hall, 315 N. Nelson, on April 23.

Subject for this year is "What Is the Future of the Taxpayer?"

The contest is open to all boys and girls in the United States and Canada who are regularly enrolled students in public high school and parochial or preparatory schools of high school rank.

The National Association of Secondary School Principals has placed the contest on the approved list of national contests and activities for 1973-74 programs.

Wingers in each of the sectional contests, which will be held in July, will win a $1,000 scholarship to the college or university of their choice. Second place winner will receive a $500 scholarship. A total of $9,000 in scholarships will be awarded.

Knights John W. Carson, Jr., Wm. B. "A" Neel and David Harrah will visit speech teachers of Pampa High School.

Colorado River To Be Seen By 3 Million Visitors In '74

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. — When Lt. Joseph C. Ives led a U.S. Army expedition through the Grand Canyon region of Arizona in 1858 he reported to the War Department: "Ours has been the first, and will doubtless be the last, party of white to visit this profitless locality. It seems intended by Nature that the Colorado River, along the greater portion of its lonely and majestic way, shall be forever unvisited and undisturbed."

The natural splendor of the Grand Canyon — carved out over the past 10 million years by the swift-running river on its floor — is still much the same as viewed by Lt. Ives and his men, but this year it will be visited by more than three million visitors.

Although the South Rim of the Canyon is open all year, with the North Rim open only in the summer, most of those coming here do so between Memorial Day and Labor Day, according to airline travel experts. "Actually one of the best times of the year to visit this popular National Park is in the fall."

The obvious advantage, of course, is that the crowds are fewer, allowing September and October visitors to enjoy the view rather than jostle with other sightseers. There is less competition for accommodations, too.

What's more, the weather in this section of Arizona, just a few hours' drive or less than an hour's flying time north of Phoenix, is wonderful for the most part in the fall, with mild warm days and nice nights.

The Grand Canyon, a gigantic 217-mile long chasm, four to 18-miles wide and a mile deep, was touted by President Theodore Roosevelt as "the one sight which every American should see."

And one tale the Park Rangers delight in spinning is about the two early cowboys who came unexpectedly upon the rim of the Canyon one day. Looking down into the canyon in awe one of the laconic riders allowed: "You know, I think something happened here!"

Indeed it did. Six of the seven climatic belts of the world are represented in the region, as are all five of the major chapters of Earth's geological history.

In the Grand Canyon National Park there are 319 species of mammals, birds, reptiles and amphibians, and more than 700 prehistoric sites have been recorded there. Five Indian tribes — Hopi, Havasupai, Hualpai and Paiute — still live in the area.

Most of the summertime Grand Canyon activities, including the adventurous mule trips down to the bottom of the gorge, continue throughout the fall. The 33-mile long drive from Hermit's Rest to Desert View, along the South Rim, remains open.

Spur roads lead to other viewpoints and there are many picnic spots beneath towering ponderosa pines that are especially appealing at this time of year. The foliage is filled with color, skies are blue and the sunsets vivid.

"All who have been to the Grand Canyon realize how impossible it is to describe it," says Continental Airlines. "Even the most expert color photographs fail to capture its immeasurable vastness, its ever-changing colors, its awesome depths and size. You just have to see it for yourself."

Research reveals that freckles are often hereditary. Only the soles of the feet are used for footprinting because the toes seldom make a clear impression.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Friday, March 8, the 67th day of 1974 with 298 to follow.

The moon is in its full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Pisces.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes Jr., was born March 8, 1841.

On this day in history:

In 1894, New York became the first state to pass a law requiring dogs to be licensed.

In 1917, strikes and riots in St. Petersburg marked the start of the Russian Bolshevik Revolution.

In 1944, French authorities adopted an ordinance giving French Moslems in Algeria the same rights as French non-Moslems.

In 1962, the U.S. House of Representatives defeated a bill which would have increased its membership from 435 to 438.

Danbury, Conn., called the "Hat City" has more than 30 hat-making establishments; its hat industry was launched in 1780 with a factory making three beaver hats a day.

Howard Hughes Leads Race To Ocean Bottom As 'Black Gold' Becomes Million-Dollar Exploit

WASHINGTON — There's a new "black gold" at the bottom of the sea. It has touched off a multimillion dollar race to exploit it — with Howard Hughes presently the leading contender.

And it promises to become a flashpoint of confrontation between the industrialized and non-industrialized worlds — a dramatic as that provided by the traditional "black gold" — oil — in the present energy crisis.

The prize is an undistinguished dirty black lump about as big as a baseball. In some areas of the deep ocean — such as a patch between Hawaii and California — they lie packed on the seabed like eggs in an eggbox.

Called manganese nodules, they contain the metals manganese, nickel, copper and cobalt. In 1970, the U.S. imported some $600 million worth of these four metals. Demand is soaring toward an estimated $1.7 billion — at least — by 1985.

At present, manganese nodules are up for grabs — if you can afford to grab them. Picking up the nodules from 12,000 to 20,000 feet in quantities big enough to make mining worthwhile — say 10,000 tons a day — isn't like collecting pebbles from the beach. Then they have to be processed to obtain the metals. The estimated cost of a nodule mining industry is $250 million.

Howard Hughes can afford that kind of money, and he has a ship — the Glomar Explorer — currently testing the giant vacuum cleaner which scours the ocean bed for nodules in the Pacific.

Shrouded in Hughes-style mystery, the ship is accompanied by a barge, built by a missile company, which acts as a "launch platform" for the scouring device.

Other U.S. companies such as Kennecott Copper (which recently signed a $50 million research deal with four foreign firms to investigate nodule mining and processing) are also interested. But they need to raise money; and the banks are wary while the question "Who owns the nodules?" remains unanswered.

There is no law of the deep ocean floor. By August there may be, for by then the international Law of the Sea conference will have met in Caracas, Venezuela.

The question of the nodules' ownership is likely to be resolved with the answer "everybody." The hope is for an "International Regime," to license the nodule mines, and to pay royalties to a fund to aid the developing nations.

But who will control the Regime? Here the industrialized and non-industrialized nations are divided.

VICKI AND THE ROYALHEIRS will be in Pampa Sunday singing at the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly at the 10:45 a.m. worship service. Vicki Autry Patterson, the group leader, is formerly of Pampa. The church will dedicate its new pews at the morning services.

First Baptist Church In Revival Next Week

Pampa's First Baptist Church will be in revival next week, March 10-17. The theme of the revival is "Meet Jesus." Daytime services will be at noon from 11:45 to 12:45. Lunch will be served for $1. The night services will begin at 7:15. These services will be in Fellowship Hall and the Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday night services will be televised from Channel 9, Cable TV.

Dr. George E. Worrell, Associate for Youth, Academic, and Renewal Evangelism for the State Missions Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, will be the preacher. His ministry through the years has been characterized by its outreach to youth, but is also effective with all ages according to Dr. C. Wade Freeman, Director of Evangelism Division. "God has blessed Dr. Worrell with the gift of communicating the gospel clearly to all age groups," Dr. Freeman said.

Dr. Worrell is a native Texan; he received his education from Texas Tech University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He is married to the former Betty Joy Haberer of Dimmitt and they have five children: Edith, Ed, Melody, Dawn, and Stephanie.

The revival music will be under the direction of Al Jordan, Minister of Music from the First Baptist Church, Vernon. He invites members of the youth and adult choirs to be a part of the revival choir.

"Meet Jesus" activities have been planned for the week. Miss Judy Mallett, the reigning "Miss Texas," will be a guest for Youth Night, Monday, March 11. A hamburger supper will be held at Central Baptist Church dining hall, at 5:30. She will share her testimony and talent at this time. She will also play the violin in the evening service.

All fourth, fifth, and sixth graders will be involved in Tuesday night "Meet Jesus" activity. They will have hot dogs, a sing time, and Dr. Worrell will talk to them. The activity begins at 5:45 at the church.

"His Children," a folk group from Dumas First Baptist Church, will present special music in the Friday evening service.

The citizenry of Pampa is cordially invited to attend any or all of the services.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

When God began creating the heavens and the earth, the earth was at first a shapeless, chaotic mass, with the Spirit of God brooding over the dark vapors. Then God said, "Let there be light." And light appeared. And God was pleased with it, and divided the light from the darkness. So he let it shine for awhile, and then there was darkness again. He called the light "daytime," and the darkness "nighttime." Together they formed the first day.

College Vibrations Coming To Pampa

The College Vibrations, a singing group from the Apostolic Faith Bible College, Baxter Springs, Kan., will present a Gospel singing concert, Sunday at 6 p.m. at Pampa Chapel, 711 E. Harvester.

The Vibrations include Jay Arniel, Granby, Mo.; Gerald Oaks, Joplin, Mo.; Marlin Sparks, Gause, Tex. and Jimmy Botter, Alvin, Tex. These four young men make up the boy's quartet.

Also included is a girl's trio consisting of Tebor Stanberry, Katy, Tex.; Janice Randolph, Perryton, and Karen Krouse, Wichita, Kan.

The Vibrations have just completed a tour to Alaska and the west coast.

Pastor Edwin Waterbury invites everyone to attend.

The 470 miles of the Pennsylvania Turnpike carried 60 million vehicles in 1973, an increase of 2.6 million over 1972. Fatalities totaled 48, compared with 53 in the previous year.

United Pentecostal Continues Study

The United Pentecostal Church, 608 Naida, will continue its study in 1st and 2nd Corinthians of "The Saints Way" this week. The week's lesson title is "That They May Be One."

Pastor H.M. Veach and the congregation invite all interested persons to worship with them in true Pentecostal style. The church is currently having a Sunday School drive.

Sunday School begins at 10 a.m., followed by the morning worship service at 11 o'clock. Sunday night services begin at 7:30 p.m. and the midweek services are at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Church Page Full Gospel Meeting Tomorrow

The Pampa chapter of Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship will have a meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at Stephen F. Austin School.

The speakers will be two former convicts and drug addicts who have been healed by the power of Jesus Christ. They are Ed Schmidt and Bernie Ruffino, operators of a drug treatment center in Oklahoma City which recommends Jesus Christ as the only permanent cure for drug addiction.

Both parents and young people will be thrilled by the inspirational testimony of these spirit-filled men. This is a non-denominational meeting. Special music will be provided by Elmo Hudgins. Everyone is invited. No admission charge.

Witnesses Plan '74 Assembly

Eddie Ripley, minister of the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, announced that approximately 40 area residents were in attendance at an organizational meeting in Pampa last Monday evening in connection with their upcoming circuit assembly to be held in Amarillo, April 13 and 14.

Some 20 service departments will be set up to care for the needs of the delegates to be assembled in the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium, Kenneth E. Casper, the new circuit supervisor, was on hand to emphasize the carrying out of the assembly theme, "Love One Another Intensely from the Heart."

Ripley said that the local congregation along with 21 other area congregations in Texas Circuit No. 10 will attend the convention. Convention officials expect over 1,600 to be present to hear the public discourse Sunday, April 14, entitled "Be Confident of Divine Victory," to be delivered by Harold J. Weidner, District Overseer and traveling representative of the Watchtower Society of New York.

Ripley serves on the convention administrative body and is responsible for news services. Richard Fetter and Douglas Cullins, both of Pampa, also have appointments to that body.

Jordans To Sing

"The Jordans," a singing group, will sing at services of The Church of God, 1123 Gwendolyn, Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m.

Pastor John B. Waller and the congregation welcome everyone to the service.

Mrs. Golda Meir, the Israeli prime minister, worked as a schoolteacher in Milwaukee before emigrating to Israel.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Bethel Assembly Of God

REV. D.T. MARTIN
Pastor

...On the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his way past finding out! (Rom. 11:33)

To us as mere human beings it may seem almost spooky that most of the depth of knowledge concerning God is limited to us because we are still in our fleshly, physical form. The world looks on with utter amazement as we live our lives according, as they put it, "to something that was written almost 2,000 years ago, by someone we don't even know, or are able, to see." We look sometimes at ourselves and maybe even ask ourselves the question, "Why are we following something that is mostly hidden unto the eyes of man?" A verse in Romans, Chapter 8 declares, "The Spirit beareth witness with our Spirit that we are the children of God." We follow these teachings, not because we have been goaded into them by parents, loved ones, or anyone, but if we are true servants of God, we follow them because we love the author of those teachings. The Scriptures declare, "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent His son to be the propitiation (substitution) for our sins" (1 John 4:10). If any follow Christ because of merely the wealth and riches untold that He will shower upon us, we greatly fear that when their faith and works are tried by the fire of God's justice at the mercy seat of Christ, (1 Cor. 3:11-15), they will have nothing save their gift of eternal life.

Christ promised us the glories of Heaven and all that God has, if we remain true to our faith in Christ. We have yet to see anyone that really and truly got earnest with God, but what some way their lives were transformed by the power of God and they became a new creature in Christ Jesus. (II Cor. 5:17).

We are said to have in our world, those that believe that once God has saved an individual that they can go about their lives as usual, and not worry about the consequences of returning and indulging in the sin that God had led them out of. We give, for your examination, two Scriptures that will bear us out when we say, this is teaching from only one, known as the enemy of our souls, Satan. (I Cor. 9:24-27, II Pet. 2:20-22).

In all that God has given us, (health, the breath of life, shelter, food, and so on), is He asking too much for us to repay in a very small way His love: to give Him back a portion of what is His to begin with? If we think that it is, consider, can He not at any time take back what is rightfully His?

Yet God in His love for us has prepared a place of beauty, where sin will never dwell and we may find the joys of serving completely in His fullness.

God has written in I Cor. 2:9-10: "But eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him... But God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit; for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, THE DEEP THINGS OF GOD..."

The deep things of God are not found in any book save that of the Bible. They are not found in any worship, save that worship which is in spirit and truth. If our lives are in accord with the movings of the Spirit of God, then we will not only know the deep things of God, that He desires us to know, but we will also know of the deep joy and satisfaction there is in serving such a great God. There is a depth of riches untold in the deep moving of the Spirit, that can only be known by experiencing those movings. These experiences will not be found by seeking the experience, but only as we seek the fullness of the Spirit and God's leading into His love, will we ever find the deep things of God.

God has not at any time hidden His knowledge from the servant of His, that will come in humbleness unto Him and merely ask, seeking only to know that he may better serve Him.

Tiny Island Of Salt Cay Offers Private Tourism

By BYRON B. BALFOUR
MORTEGO BAY, Jamaica (UPI) — An $18 million hotel, in which the private jet fare from Miami will be included in the room rate and in which guests will be offered a share of the ownership, is planned for the tiny island of Salt Cay, southeast of the Bahamas.

Jack Gold, whose Sign Great House Hotel here has been one of the major success stories in Jamaican tourism, is the moving spirit behind the project to be developed by hoteliers from six Caribbean islands.

In a recent interview, Gold said the luxury hotel will be designed deliberately to emphasize its isolation. With no regular transportation to the little island in the Turks and Caicos group, guests will have to be flown in by special jet from Miami to Salt Cay's landing strip, he said.

Salt Cay, with a population of about 400, had a booming salt industry until recent years. The island, about eight miles south of the British colonial capital on Grand Turk Island, was the center of salt production which began in the days of exploration and continued until a few years ago, supplying a large part of the salt used by Canadian east coast fishermen.

It was a major port of call, too, for Atlantic fishing fleets.

With the salt industry dead, Salt Cay has only a tiny fishing community left. Gold said his agreement with the Turks and Caicos government included establishment of a fishing cooperative on the island to boost the local industry. He said he has guaranteed to invest $50,000 in the cooperative.

The island, with its ancient salt-producing and harbor facilities, is almost unknown to tourists. At present, it has only one four-room guest house.

Gold said the new hotel, which will consist of a 50-room cottage group, will be constructed on a 100-acre beachfront site bought from the government. The agreement permits the company to prohibit construction of any other hotels on government-owned lands for the next 10 years, he said.

Gold said ground-breaking is expected to take place this spring. He said hotel guests will be invited to buy stock in the project.

Gold said the hotel, which has not yet been named, will feature water sports. But he said it will also offer tennis courts and horseback riding.

Gold, 53, converted an old sugar estate mansion near Montego Bay into a 30-room hotel when he retired to Jamaica about eight years ago. A native of London, he moved to the United States in 1948.

His Sign Great House has been so successful that two years ago he was appointed head of a small hotels advisory committee created by the Caribbean Hotel Association to travel through the islands to consult with owners of other small hotels on how to improve their business.

Complaints Mount
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board's Office of Consumer Affairs processed 14,760 complaints against U.S. airlines from passengers and shippers in 1973, it was reported. The figure is 4,240 higher than in 1972. Chief causes of complaint continue to be flight irregularities and reservations and baggage problems.

Business Today

By JACK BRANNAN
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — The name-change game has become a popular, although sometimes confusing form of image building in corporate America.

Take the big meat packer, Swift and Co., for instance. That is no longer its name. For almost a year, the company has been Esmark, Inc.

Or consider the General Resources Corp. That vague corporate title has been changed to Pizza Corp. of America.

Texas Gulf Sulphur, Inc., a corporate name that had stood for decades, was shortened to Texas Gulf, Inc., in 1972 because the word "sulphur" implied a limitation of interest in what actually is a broadly diversified chemical and industrial company.

"Its Proper Image"

But the following year the company changed the form of its name again, removing a blank space to shorten it to Texasgulf, Inc.

"Changing its name is one way a company has of reflecting what it thinks is its proper image," said a psychologist interested in the meaning of names but who himself wished not to be identified.

"With name changing a company seeks to increase not only the acceptance but also the expectations of those it serves," he said. "And like all of us, companies want recognition."

A total of 179 American companies changed their names in 1973, a 45 per cent increase over the 122 that changed names the previous year, said Lippincott and Margulies, Inc., consultants in international marketing.

Lack of Recognition

Of those that changed names last year, 32 were listed on the New York Stock Exchange and 18 on the American Stock Exchange. And therein lies an element of confusion, or even lack of recognition, among investors searching stock lists for companies under their old names.

Companies advise their stockholders of name changes usually far in advance of the effective date, but sometimes the word does not reach others until much later.

Possibly the most expensive such advisory was undertaken by Standard Oil (New Jersey), which spent $100 million in general advertising campaign in 1972 to make known that it was changing its name to Exxon Corp.

Most corporate name changes are the result of mergers in which the participating companies' original names as well as businesses are combined, or they signify diversification or geographical expansion.

Such was the case, for example, when North American Aviation and Rockwell-Standard Corp. merged in 1967 and became the North American Rockwell Corp. Then last year that company became simply Rockwell International Corp. because its aerospace and other lines of interest had spread beyond the North American continent.

ROCK MUSIC

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International
 For a while I thought the powerful theatrical music David Bowie carried to near perfection in his "Ziggy Stardust" album of two years ago was doomed to remain just another isolated sub-cult of rock. What I forgot was that it takes time to get a movement going.

There are signs now that we may be seeing the beginnings of a major new trend—a term I hate to use, but there it is. And it's a good sign for music, coming just at the right time to save us all from an avalanche of meaningless diddling around that sounds less and less than rock 'n' roll.

There are lots of examples I could name, but two of my favorite news people are Leo Sayer and David Werner.

Sayer is one of England's latest rages. His "Silverbird" album (Warner Bros. BS-2738) hit the top of the British charts before it was released here. Werner is originally from Pittsburgh and is one of the few Americans to plug into this emerging, English-based movement. His first album is called "Whizz Kid" (RCA APL 10350).

Of the two, Sayer's music is more extravagantly (sometimes self-consciously) theatrical. A kind of circus theme runs through "Silverbird" and Sayer appears on the cover in clown drag. His voice is frequently reminiscent of Elton John's and if you think about it, that ties the whole "trend" package together quite neatly. "Silverbird" is a beautiful, artistic—sometimes almost elegant—album.

Werner's "Whizz Kid" is tougher, meaner, tighter than Sayer's—a fine blend of all-out rock and diamond-tough, delicately honed ballads. He has put together a superb band that (here we go again) reminds me a lot of Bowie's Spiders from Mars in its machine-like tightness and lyrical guitar leads.

"Whizz Kid" is a good debut album as we're likely to get in 1974—and it contains one legitimately brilliant song—"The Death of Me Yet." It's a hard rocker that captures better than anything I've heard the strong sort of psychological anarchy that has taken over from the crusading spirit of the late 60's.

Pick up on David Werner and Leo Sayer. They'll make you feel better about where your music is headed.

—Unlikely but interesting rumor department: After surviving a series of personal disasters that would have destroyed a lesser group, and after becoming one of the most popular bands in the U.S. of A., the Allman Brothers Band may be losing their last Allman Brother. Zoo World magazine says Greg Allman may be leaving the fold for a permanent solo gig and that the band may be changing its name.

—Like everything else, the recording industry has been hit hard by the oil shortage. The stuff they make records out of—polyvinyl chloride—is a petroleum distillate. But compared with the situation in England, U.S. record companies have it good. British albums and singles releases for January and February have been cut by from one-half to two-thirds compared with last year.

Dear Abby

Get off the hook, both of you will feel better

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I was really surprised when Joyce asked me to be maid of honor for her wedding. We've been classmates for years, but go with different kids. I can't understand why she chose me. She has many much closer friends. I accepted because I didn't know how to refuse, but now I'm sorry, and I'd like to get out of it.

I've already paid Joyce's mom for the dress, but it hasn't been altered. My mom and I gave a shower for Joyce. We invited her mom, sisters, aunts and friends, and they all acted like they were slumming. They openly snubbed my mom. I had a lump in my throat the whole time.

My family says if I am in the wedding party they will go to the church only to see me, but not to the reception. My dad says he won't go at all. They didn't invite my steady boy friend to be my escort, so I won't have anybody to talk to at the reception. At the last minute, should I say I have an illness in the family, and can't go? Or just tell them the truth?

DILEMMA D.

DEAR DILEMMA: Don't lie. Tell your friend that you have reconsidered and would like out. From what you say, she'll be as glad to get off the hook as you will.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow in my 70s and I need some advice. I have four daughters, and if I asked them, I'd get four different answers.

A few months ago I saw in the obituary column where the wife of an old boy friend of mine died, so I waited for what I thought was a reasonable length of time and then I wrote him a note and gave him my phone number and said it would be nice to talk to him some time.

He called me up and we talked for a long time. In the conversation he said he'd like to see me again, but he hoped I wouldn't expect any "kid stuff" in the love-making department. I rather got the idea that he was trying to tell me that he was too old for that sort of thing. Well, I'm not, and if that is what he meant I don't want to waste my time with him as I don't have a whole lot of time left. How can I find out without being too blunt?

OLD BUT NOT TOO OLD

DEAR OLD: I think he was trying to tell you that as far as he was concerned, his love-making days were behind him. Whether they are is anybody's guess, but if he thinks they are, they are.

DEAR ABBY: With regard to your reference to the "law" requiring the presence of a nurse during a gynecological examination: An Irish doctor attributed it to the concept of American women: I am a gynecologist who has practiced for 40 years, and I have always had a nurse present during examinations, but to my knowledge no law exists which requires it.

Physicians in other countries, not being fair game for any and all "suit happy" patients, may have a hard time understanding this necessary precaution. My colleagues in the U. S. A. do. And they had better!

H. H. S. (M. D.)

DEAR M.D.: As I understand it, there is no such "law"—it's just a common practice among physicians. And a wise one, for obvious reasons.

Fashionettes

United Press International Jewelry is moving to the large size for spring. Chunky bracelets, earrings, metal belts and pendants will jingle and jangle all over the place for those under 30.

Gold-looking will be especially good-looking among jewelry items for spring. It will shine up the fun times with just-for-fun pendants and convertible pins. Sample: a miniature piggy bank pendant for spare cash.

Pearls are natural partners for the femininity that flows through spring clothes.

Watch cases go every which way for spring. These include one that looks like a gold cage made of a network of textured bars. Perched on this is a bee—made of semi-precious stones.

Rings bound to start conversations are on the assembly line for spring. These include one that looks like a gold cage made of a network of textured bars. Perched on this is a bee—made of semi-precious stones.

Gold notions for fingers are going to be "in" for spring. To wit: a ring that looks like a spool of thread; a ring that looks like a zipper.

Since 1906, Walton has been gathering sassafras roots, chipping and bagging them and selling the finished product as Red Boiling Brand Sassafras. Customers boil the roots and drink the liquid, known as "sassafras tea."

Last One Into The Shower!

NEW YORK (ED)—Most of us can't spend hours relaxing in a hot tub, but we do have ten minutes to spare for a quick cleaning ritual. And, you needn't apologize for being a shower fan. The shower has its own mystique... why not hop under the faucet and find out for yourself?

First, the essential rules: A bathmat or runners should line the tub floor. Keep your beauty equipment within easy reach, so you don't have to grope for soap with water in your eyes.

To make a shower terrific, trade in your old washcloth and invest in a natural sponge—they're much nicer than the supermarket variety. After the shower, treat yourself to a 60-second beauty softening with Sardoettes—the towelettes saturated with bath oil. Your skin needs lubricating—and this is the fastest way to replace essential oils.

Experiment! It's easy to add atmosphere to that brisk rubdown. Place a big plastic pillow in the tub, turn on the shower and let the rain pour down. You'll feel like an Indian maiden sitting under a waterfall... and the rushing water will help unkink tense muscles. Another alternative: The Turkish Delight. Start with a pore-opening hot bath, move to a warm shower, then let the water turn iceberg cold. This shower routine is an instant eye opener. The final touch: Spend a few minutes with a manicure and pedicure kit followed by a splash of berry-colored nail-polish. Now, you have that just-home-from-the-spa-glow... who says a shower is dull?

to be a drudgery, one observer points out.

"To make it an easier, happier time, get organized for the job," Lillian Cochran with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, suggested.

The home management specialist offered several suggestions to reduce cleaning work.

For example, she advised vacuuming rugs or carpets before dusting furniture — vacuuming stirs up dust, which eventually settles on lamps, tables and other furniture.

The soft-bristled brush attachment of a vacuum cleaner offers the most effective way to dust furniture, according to the specialist.

"Although it takes a bit longer, this method gives longer-lasting results since dust goes into the vacuum cleaner — not into the air to settle elsewhere.

"This attachment also picks up litter and larger pieces of gritty soil without scratching furniture surface — and is acceptable for dusting upholstered furniture, lamp shades and draperies."

To dust acrylic plastic furniture, use a damp cloth. Miss Cochran said.

"A damp cloth cuts down friction of rubbing and helps reduce static electricity — which attracts and holds dust on many plastics."

"For further cleaning of acrylic plastics, use a solution of mild soap or detergent and lukewarm water — or a regular cleaning concentration of ammonia and water."

Rinse thoroughly and blot dry with a soft, clean cloth — such as cotton flannel.

To remove minor scratches and protect surface, wax periodically with car paste wax," the specialist added.

AFRICAN VIOLET SOCIETY
The Pampa African Violet Society met recently in the home of Mrs. Dan Glaxner. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lee Moore. A prayer was given by Mrs. Glaxner.

Members answered roll call by giving a favorite quotation. Following the business meeting a program of questions and answers was conducted by Mrs. Norman Walberg. Household Hints

By United Press International
Hints for the gardeners who want to get a headstart by sowing garden seeds indoors now:

—All during March is the time to sow seeds indoors for vegetables and flowers that need a head start. Tomatoes, for example. Doing this you'll get hundreds of plants for less cost than when buying seedlings from a nursery. Other crops for early start: broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, eggplant, head lettuce, peppers.

—If you don't have a greenhouse (few people do), look around the house for a nursery. A sunny window sill is great. If you don't have any, create sunshine at the flick of a switch with fluorescent light tubes hung about four to eight inches above the tops of plants on a table or bench. With these lights turned on 12 to 16 hours a day, a dark corner or even an airy basement can double as a greenhouse or hotbed during spring. An automatic timer will turn your "sun" on and off. —Seed starting kits, Fert-Cubes, and Jiffy-7 Pellets, Peat Pots, Plant lights and other things needed for headstart gardens are listed in the Burpee Catalog, free upon request from the W. Atlee Burpee Co., nearest you — Philadelphia, Pa., 19132; Clinton, Iowa, 52732; Riverside, Calif. 92502.

March 3-9 is National Nutrition Week—a good time to remember that eating a balanced diet helps a person feel his best, notes Mrs. Karen Walker, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Your Horoscope

By Joane Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 9
Your birthday today: "All systems go" is the slogan of your year. There's no major problem, no drastic shift of direction or personal orientation required or probable. Relationships tend to level into sensible mutual cooperation. Today's natives have good potential abilities, often some hindrance to their fluent expression of original thought. It is seldom that anything bothers their enduring enthusiasm for whatever they are involved in doing.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You have exceptional opportunity for your own experiments, ventures into new fields. Just avoid trying to push anybody else into anything.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Plan your time to best advantage. Group finances come to rather favorable disposition if the whole story is given out to all concerned.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Now the sense of recent history dawns, a bit late for you to have caught the interesting beginnings, plenty of time to catch the final action.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Keep moving, catch as many little adventures as circumstances permit. Sentimental concerns take up more time and space than usual.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Regular routines should be finished off promptly, the earlier the better, as other things will be there to do. Romantic ideas are encouraged.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: It is time to gather outstanding accounts, reestablish neglected ties, and bring home whatever belongings may have been lent to neighbors.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Ride along with the tide. Creative work is intriguing but apt to be a bit complicated by the personal needs of others associated with you.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Just get your quota of responsibility covered, or at least well started. Action counts for much more than promises or discussion.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Being as tactful as you can may not be enough for some people, but friends will understand your intentions. Accept invitations for further social contact.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Pursue business planning. Make a survey of immediate resources and give some thought to the way you are using them. Changes will suggest themselves.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You may make quite a number of promises by nightfall. See that you keep them, as most have strong emotional satisfaction involved in their fulfillment.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Line up your accounts and budgets. Since certain moves are not really urgent, give thought to the probable reasons for their being suggested.

Mr. and Mrs. James Britton of Fayetteville, N.C., are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Cindy, to Sgt. David Hagen of Cornallis, N.C. The Britton's are former Pampa residents and the bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. E.M. Crouse, 725 Frederic. Nuptial vows were solemnized Feb. 5 in the First Assembly of God Church in Fayetteville. The couple will reside in Fayetteville where the bridegroom is stationed at Fort Bragg. Both are graduates of Central High School of Fayetteville.

Fertilizer Cost Up
COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Fertilizer costs may be up as much as 25 per cent over 1973, but it still will be profitable for farmers to fertilize, according to agronomist John Box.

Karpin On Bridge

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played in a rubber-bridge game, our South declarer went down a trick at his game contract. It was his belief that his defeat was due to circumstances beyond his control. But when the post-mortem analysis took place, it was discovered that declarer had misplayed a tough hand.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

1♣ Pass 1♠ Pass

Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.
North made a good decision when he elected not to rebid spades, for a four-spade contract would have been defeated automatically.

After winning the opening club lead with his ace, declarer led a low spade, putting up dummy's king. When East permitted the king to win, the deuce of spades was led. Once again East played low, as South's queen won the trick. South's remaining spade was led next, the board's nine being taken by East's ten.

Declarer was now lost, for while he could get to dummy via the heart king to establish the board's last spade as a winner, he couldn't ever return to dummy to cash it. And so he ended up with eight tricks, two in each suit.

Had the adversely-held spades been divided 3-2, declarer, as he played the hand, would have made 10 tricks. But his chosen line of play did not take into consideration the possibility of a 4-1 division. Had he been a better player, he would have given some thought to the latter possibility — and in all probability would then have brought home the three spade tricks needed to fulfill his contract.

At trick two, the spade queen should have been led, East declining to take his ace (if East took the ace, declarer would have made three spade tricks by later surrendering dummy's nine to East's ten). A second spade lead would come next, dummy's nine-spot being inserted. East would capture this lead with his ten.

East's club return would be taken by South's king, after which South would lead his remaining spade, putting up the board's jack. Whether East took this trick with his ace or didn't, declarer would now make three spade tricks, with the heart king serving as an entry to cash them.

And so, by playing correctly, declarer would have lost just two spade tricks and two clubs.

Fabrics 'Polish Up' For Spring 1974

COLLEGE STATION — Spring '74 fabrics shine and sparkle, according to one observer.

She's Marilyn Brown, consumer education - clothing and textiles specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "This season's refined look leans toward new, cleaner fashion."

"Shiny fabrics are a natural for spring since fall's sequins and metallic fibers proved important," she said.

"Spring's fabrics shine two different ways. True sparklers feature fabrics with metallic yarns threaded through them — or knitted with shimmering fibers, or topped with sequins."

"Not-so-true sparklers, on the other hand, get shine from a mixture of rayon or nylon with flat acrylics or polyesters."

"Spring patterns — stripes, prints and flowers — also are polished. Miss Brown continued."

"Watch for diagonal stripes — the brightest light in spring patterns."

"Since the interest generated by the bias swirl skirt, designers can't get enough of the diagonal stripe."

"It's best when very narrow — or medium width. Some fabrics add dots and dashes — or break them up with flowers — for interest."

"Cream remains the major background for bright, bold stripes."

"Geometric prints also flaunt polished looks, the specialist said."

"at lines, spruced-up circles, squares and zig-zags strike out in bold colors. Never plain, they form more patterns by their placement."

"Geometrics appear best on dark grounds, surrounded by lots of space," she added.

"Spring flowers also 'pop up' with a fresh new look. When mixed with stripes, they're Art Deco in feeling — or Art Nouveau when flower designs contain flourishing swirls and curves."

"The newest floral idea involves printing its name — in French — beside the flower."

"Texture also plays an important role this spring. 'Crunchy' or 'light and frothy as spun sugar' describes the best fabrics, Miss Brown said."

"The linen look also has undergone some changes. For one it's been polished up."

"Although no longer nubby, nubs remain to five fabric a degree of dimension."

"As for single-knit fabrics, they're getting lighter."

"In fact, some lacy acrylics practically float. They're sheer, slightly nubby and knitted to resemble gauze."

Youth Conservation Corps Coming To The Panhandle

The Youth Conservation Corps is coming to the Panhandle. This summer 30 teenagers will converge on Lake Meredith Recreation Area for eight weeks of work, study and fun at one of the nation's newest YCC camps.

Originally a federal pilot program, the Youth Conservation Corps this year has become a joint federal-state effort to directly involve young people in conservation work projects. Each YCC camp in Texas will represent a cross section of the young people of the state.

The Lake Meredith YCC camp will be a residential, co-educational camp run by a cooperative agreement between the National Park Service and Sanford Independent School District.

The school will provide the camp director, environmental education specialist, work leaders and cooks. The National Park Service will provide housing, tools and work projects.

Young people will work on projects such as picnic area cleanup and improvement, wildlife habitat improvement and research projects. They will also receive environmental education instruction. They will earn nominal wages for completion of the project.

Federal agencies having YCC camps in Texas include the National Park Service and Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, of the U.S. Department of the Interior; and the National Forest, Department of Agriculture. The State of Texas will also sponsor three YCC camps.

Selection of young people for camps will be statewide. Students wishing further information on Youth Conservation Corps camps in Texas should contact the Office of Youth Opportunities, Texas Department of Community Affairs, P.O. Box 13186, Capitol Station, Austin, Tex. 78711. Phone 512-475-6335.

'Politics Makes Strange Bedfellows'--Ask Them

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI)—The wag who said, "politics makes strange bedfellows," must have had William and Shirley Brown in mind.

William, a Republican, and Shirley, a Democrat, are running for seats on the Central Committees of their respective parties in the June 4 election.

Brown, an attorney whose office is in nearby Westlake Village, has never been politically active before, while his wife has "walked a lot of precincts" for Democratic candidates.

"I was active wherever we've lived," said Shirley, 39. "But I never ran for office."

"I just think getting on the Central Committee is a good way to get new ideas into the party and polish up the product. You have to have a good product that people will buy. Your party is your product. I'm really going to work hard." The Browns have three small children under the age of 7, but that doesn't hamper their political activities.

Share Babysitting

"I stay home on nights he has meetings," Shirley said, "and he does the babysitting when I have an appointment. If both of us must attend functions on the same night we get a babysitter."

Shirley said he has always backed her political involvement.

"My husband has always been one to encourage me," she said. "He may not agree with me, but he thinks it is important that I stand up for my principles. He feels you should stand up and speak out. You may be wrong, but at least you have expressed your opinion."

Brown, 40, who moved his family down to Ventura County from Visalia when he switched law firms, said Watergate was the conclusive event in the Browns' decision to run for office.

Watergate The Spur

"The Watergate situation heightened our consciousness," he said. "We had been talking about it, griping and complaining."

"We decided that the best thing to do was to take out nomination papers and get involved."

Though one is a Republican and the other is a Democrat, the Browns agree that resolution of the Watergate scandal is long overdue.

"We pretty well agree like a lot of people no matter what party," he said, "that he (President Nixon) should have done something a long time ago. If he's got proof he should have revealed it long before now."

Shirley is anxious to see the return of the thousands of Democrats who have bolted the party and she would like to see the party's state Central Committee get away from "way out issues."

"The Democratic leadership is not addressing the issues. They're discussing the legalization of incest and prostitution while old people need medical aid and children are starving," she said.

Construction Is Planned On Ocean Science Lab

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI)—Martin Goland, president of Southwest Research Institute, announced today plans for building an ocean science and engineering laboratory in Corpus Christi.

Goland told the Rotary Club construction would begin immediately on a 200 by 85 foot wave tank facility for simulating ocean wave action. The 10-foot deep tank will be capable of creating waves four to five feet tall, he said.

Model offshore structures will be tested in the wave tank for structural integrity under constant wave action, he said, and it will be used to evaluate various methods of preventing and controlling seas caused by oil spillage.

In the future an 11,000-square foot laboratory-office building will be constructed adjacent to the wave tank facility. The building will provide expanded laboratory and office space for the ocean science activities of the institute's department of structural research and ocean engineering which already has quarters in downtown Corpus Christi.

The new facility will be constructed in the Rincon Industrial Park near Corpus Christi beach and will provide mooring facilities for the 60-foot vessel Research I, the 35-foot Research II, and a fleet of auxiliary vessels.

Southwest Research Institute is a nonprofit applied research organization headquartered in San Antonio.

Classical records

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
NEW YORK (UPI)—The prediction by Hans Pfitzner that his musical drama "Palestrina" could in our century rank in popularity with Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" has not yet been fulfilled but it is at last available on records.

Little known and seldom performed outside of German-speaking countries, this "musical legend in three acts" has been recorded by Deutsche Grammophon with a stellar cast of singers and the Bavarian Radio symphony orchestra and chorus (2711 013). It is directed by Rafael Kubelik, who as a boy knew the composer and first saw the score.

Boxed in the usual rich fashion of DG, this three-record album is one of the most interesting first recordings to appear in some time.

Pfitzner (1869-1949) based his drama on the great 16th century Italian composer of church music, Giovanni Pierluigi da Palestrina.

Pfitzner's text, which he composed himself, is regarded as literature. It has Palestrina inspired by angels and the spirit of his dead wife, Lucrezia, to write a mass based on the life of the saintly Pope Marcellus VI, the mass literally saves music.

The forms of worship music were then under discussion in the Counter-Reformation, and until Palestrina's mass purified what was good in polyphonic church music, there was a possibility that because of the secularities which had crept in, Pope Gregory XII might order its destruction and a return to the Gregorian chant.

So much for the story. Some of Pfitzner's followers treat the performances of "Palestrina," completed in 1915, with the same reverence as "Paristal." Deutsche Grammophon is betting that the time has come for it to move on to the international stage.

Perhaps it is right. The stellar cast of this recording includes Nicolai Gedda, Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau, Bernd Weikl, Herbert Steinbach, Karl Ridigerbusch, Helen Donath, Brigitte Fassbender and Hermann Prey.

RCA has joined others up by announcing that it, too, will import a line of foreign records—the French Erato classical line—and it has just issued the first six albums in this country.

The artists in this first release are flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal, trumpeter Maurice Andre, Jean-Francois Paillard and his chamber orchestra, organist Marie-Claire Alain and the I Solisti Veneti group under the direction of Claudio Schmony.

The music is Baroque. The packaging, in which European imports easily outdistance their American counterparts, is splendid, but not all the program notes are translated into English.

I found the selections excellent and obviously selected to take advantage of the Baroque fashion of recent years.

Vivaldi—Six concertos. These are the world premier recording of three flute and three oboe concertos (STU 70623).

Vivaldi—The Mandolin Concertos (STU 70645).

Albioni—A selection of works including the adagio, two concertos, a symphony and a sonata (STU 70231).

Pachelbel—The Canon and two suites for strings, and on side 2, the trumpet concerto and other works by Fasch (STU 70468).

Works for the Trumpet and Organ, Bach, Gervaise, Albioni and Viviani (STU 70299).

State-Owned Versus Free

Paul Poirot, Editor of Freeman magazine (Foundation for Economic Education, Irvington - in - Hudson, New York), once wrote that it is a contradiction in terms to argue that slaves can out-produce free men.

The truth of that assertion can be demonstrated in thousands of different ways and instances. The best illustrations, however, are those where the two systems — the slave on the one hand, the free on the other — operate side - by - side, thus making it possible for their relative merits to be easily compared.

Coming readily to mind are: Hong Kong and Red China next door. Hong Kong is a booming industrial and trade center which, although still with its quota of poverty, enjoys an amazingly high standard of living for that part of the world and continues to improve in this respect. Red China, on the other hand, even after its government had killed off millions of its inhabitants, and for all its vast farm lands, is still unable to feed its people and must, performance, come begging to the more capitalistic west.

East and West Berlin; both behind the Soviet "iron curtain." The one under the iron heel of Kremlin - dominated socialist rule; the other relatively free. In East Berlin, life is hard, necessities, much less luxuries, difficult to obtain. The rubble of World War II is still much in evidence, being merely pushed to the sides of the streets. Just across the communist - built "Berlin Wall," just the reverse. The rubble has long since disappeared, giving way to new buildings and clear asphalted streets. The shops are overflowing with all manner of goodies and the people, most important of all, have learned again how to smile and enjoy life.

But, perhaps, the best comparison of all exists within the borders of the Soviet Union, itself in the two systems of farming the Soviet political leaders allow to operate side - by - side. Forced by economic necessity and to stave off starvation, the Soviet rulers permit the Russian farmers to have small plots of their own and to keep the profits from what they produce on these tiny parcels of land. And the results? Why, and not surprising to individuals who have studied both systems, the small plots, worked by hand, out - produce all the vast, tractor - worked, state - owned collectivized farms put together.

There is still another example, right here in our own country, which has not received the attention it deserves. This comparison, relating to our forest lands, was made in the article, "Exploitation Often Laid at Door of Industry," in our February 24 issue.

Private enterprise industry has long suffered the classic charge of exploitation — exploitation for profit of people and resources — the article pointed out. Yet, paradoxically, measured by the maxim of Gifford Pinchot, a pioneer figure in America's conservation movement, that "Conservation Means the Wise Use of Earth and Its Resources," industry today is frequently the very personification of the conservation principle. The forest products industry, constituting only 13 percent of

INSIDE LABOR Labor Leaders Out To Put Union Label On Congress

WASHINGTON — White House strategists predict that America's union leaders, determined to build a veto-proof political labor movement, will spend some $20 million in cash and millions more in "soft money" (services) to put a union label on Congress in this fall's elections.

These funds will provide a political oil for some of the most lubricated campaign machinery in history. The machinery, made up of the Committee on Political Education (COPE), personally "strategized" by AFL-CIO chief George Meany, the United Auto Workers' Community Action Program (CAP) and a string of other "non-partisan" committees, is gung-ho this year. They're teaching the nation's politicians what a political drive really is — and their goal is to elect 23 more friends to the House and seven more to the Senate.

This would give them the breakthrough they've always sought when added to the already loyal 240 Representatives and 56 Senators — full labor control of the Congress, not just a Democratic party majority. It would be the equivalent of a British Labor Party victory. In effect, an American labor party in all but name.

Labor expects few money-raising difficulties. During COPE's operating committee session and quiet hotel suite conferences between sessions of the AFL-CIO high command Executive Council midwinter meeting last month, it was estimated that some seven million dollars will be raised during the rest of this year by COPE alone.

Some of this money will be spent by the national COPE headquarters operating under Al Barkan's direction in the international AFL-CIO building on 16th Street here. Half the funds will go to the state and local COPE committees such as those which have had practice runs in Jerry Ford's former arena, Michigan's 8th, and in the 12th Congressional in the Johnstown, Pa., area.

Add to these funds the expensive services such as the movement's computerized list of some 9 million union members — replete with memory box recall of addresses, precincts, registration, etc. One of the nation's top computer specialists estimates the cost of installing such a list at about a million dollars. Maintenance would come to about 11 cents a name change. This would add tens of thousands of dollars annually.

And there is Leonard Woodcock's United Auto Workers' Community Action Program (CAP). This, too, is one of the most skilled political operations in history. It moved like a Roman legion into the "Jerry Ford district." Phone banks were set up. Retirees made the rounds in this heavy General Motors plant area. The Detroit headquarters' Voters Identification (VID) round-the-year political education operation paid off among the 15,000 to 20,000 auto unionists. Obviously this is only part of this dramatic picture. But the pattern tells the story of the

OUTRIDER Maybe Town Meetings Could Straighten Out Washington

By GARRY WILLS

"I felt the foundations of the government shaken under my feet." The words are Jefferson's, written (a long time after) about his Embargo. Little New England towns, at their annual meetings, had taken on the President's action — and their pressure on Congress helped to reverse that action.

Jefferson thought, at the time, that the town meetings backed the wrong policy; but he always admired the means they used — local obstreperousness, the salt without which democracy has no savor. That salt had burnt and scarified him, but he still tried to move it south out of New England into his Virginia.

The town meetings are still held each spring, and sometimes a President's doings are reviewed. What right has a little town to second-guess the President of the United States?

The same right it had when Jefferson praised the villages for undoing his own work. The town meetings have specialized, since the days of Samuel Adams, in playing David to executive Goliaths. From George III on down.

They are still the oldest functioning legal bodies in the country. They have been celebrating the values we want to concentrate on at Bicentennial time since before the nation's birth. And not merely as an exercise in nostalgia. As an exercise in government.

We tend to think of them as cranky anachronisms, and perhaps they are. But now and then the sleeping giant threatens to wake, and to shake the government's foundations as in Jefferson's day — or George III's.

This might be such a time. Already on the "warrant" (accepted agenda) for town

NATION'S PRESS Why The Oil Shortage?

(The Economic Facts of Life)

Everybody "knows" that the oil shortage, which could be the biggest economic kick-in-the-pants in the history of our long uninterrupted forward march to better living, is the fault of the "vindictive" Arab embargo, the "unpardonable" delays in the Alaskan pipeline, and the ecological roadblocks that have been thrown in the way of developing new domestic reserves.

These have their importance, but for the immediate problem of operating our automobiles, heating our homes, and keeping the factory wheels turning, they are secondary. The little-known truth is that even if we had more crude oil today, we don't have the refinery capacity to make it into gasoline and fuel oil.

Every 24 hours America needs 17 million barrels of refined petroleum products. Our present refining capacity is about 13 million barrels. The difference must be imported.

Every crisis needs a whipping boy — someone who can be made to appear guilty — and in this case it is the oil companies which might have, but did not, step up their capacity.

No other industry is more easily attacked than oil. But no other industry is so beset and harassed by regulations, price controls, punitive taxation and arbitrary restrictions. Also, no other industry is faced with billion dollar uncertainties as to costs and earnings.

To quote the Wall Street Journal: "The reasons (for not expanding) were... import controls as well as the U.S. product prices which weren't considered high enough to justify the large capital expenditure needed for new refineries."

INSIDE WASHINGTON New Panama Covenant Violates US Treaties

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Two new grave charges are being forcefully raised against the fanfare "agreement in principle" recently signed by Secretary Kissinger with the Communist - infiltrated military dictatorship of Panama:

(1) U.S. surrender of control and operation of the Panama Canal would be in direct violation of two decades - old treaties — the 1901 Hay - Pauncefote Treaty with Britain, and the 1914-22 Thomson - Urrutia Treaty with the Republic of Colombia, of which the Panama area originally was a part.

(2) Russia has long had designs on the Panama Canal, and if the U.S. relinquishes sovereignty to the weak and unstable Republic of Panama, domination by the Soviet Union is inevitable.

These bombshell accusations are being made by three high-placed members of Congress who are in the forefront of the storm of opposition against the administration's negotiations, whose admitted objective is the eventual giving up of U.S. rule over the Canal and Canal Zone.

The powerful challengers are — Reps. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., Appropriations subcommittee chairman; John Murphy, D-N.Y., senior member of the Panama Canal subcommittee for 12 years; and Jack Edwards, R-Ala., Appropriations committee man.

Significantly, these congressional leaders indignantly cite Secretary Kissinger's complete silence on these important treaties.

Neither he nor Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, who is conducting the negotiations with the leftist dictatorial regime of strongman Omar Torrijos, has said one word about these long-standing pacts with Britain and Colombia — although they directly affect any change in the control and operation of the Canal and Zone.

From the inexplicable manner in which Bunker and Kissinger are blandly ignoring these key treaties, they apparently consider them of no moment or even nonexistent.

Says Rep. Murphy caustically, "Perhaps they don't even know about the Thomson - Urrutia Treaty. But I suspect they do and don't care."

What They Do

Under the Thomson-Urrutia Treaty, Colombia recognized that title to the Panama Canal and railroad is vested "entirely and absolutely in the United States," and in turn was granted major rights to the use of the Canal and railroad.

Foremost among them is permanent free passage through the Canal and free transport on the railroad.

Colombia authorities vigorously maintain their country will not be "judicially or morally" bound by any treaty that in any way abrogates their guaranteed permanent rights regarding the Canal and railroad.

Declares Diego Uribe Vargas, leading Colombian international law professor, "The United States cannot give away what does not belong to it."

That stand is equally emphatically echoed by Carlos Holguin, former Colombian ambassador to the Organization of American states, as follows: "The position of my country is perfectly clear because it has a perfect treaty with the United States, ratified by both countries, which is an obligatory norm under international law and gives Colombia rights that are not limited by time. Colombia has repeatedly expressed its contention that Colombian rights must be taken into account in any negotiations between the United States and Panama."

To which Rep. Murphy adds vehemently:

"If members of the conspiracy trying to steamroller Congress into giving the Panama Canal and Canal Zone away are so concerned about 'justice' as relates to U.S. - Latin American relations, why are they not equally concerned about justice being done to Colombia? The answer is obvious.

"The real concern of these people is not justice for Panamanians, but wresting control of the Panama Canal from the United States, and law and justice be damned."

Rep. Flood warns Colombia is preparing to formally protest the disregarding and apparent contemplated scuttling of its rights and interests in the Canal.

"The Colombia government has been following the Bunker negotiations closely," declares Flood, along a leading opponent of granting any concessions to Torrijos and the leftist cabal surrounding him. "Colombia's interests have so far been ignored, but this administration cannot get away with that. It is asking for the direct trouble both in the U.S. and internationally."

In the 1901 Hay - Pauncefote Treaty between the U.S. and Britain, this country pledged itself to operate and maintain the Panama Canal as an international waterway for all the nations of the world.

Great men speak to us only so far as we have ears and souls to hear them; only so far as we have in us the roots, at least, of that which flowers out in them.—Will Durant, American historian.

U.S., France Confrontation Could Wreck Alliance

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
UPI Foreign Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — In the view of senior American officials, a confrontation may be approaching between the United States and France that could wreck both European unity and the Atlantic alliance.
It could even lead the United States to reconsider whether in the long run of five or six years American ground troops should be kept in Europe.
A senior American official said this week that the United States hoped to avoid a split that would force European nations to choose between Washington and Paris because some victories were just not worth winning. But he said the United States may have no other choice.

At the heart of the dispute is what American officials see as the French desire to organize Europe on a basis of hostility or at least differentiation from everything American, leaving France with the dominant voice in a group that automatically opposes the United States.
At the same time, France is held to expect, illogically, that 250,000 American troops remain in Europe as a protective umbrella.
A senior American official considered some of the possibilities and dangers out loud this week on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's plane as it winged home from Brussels.
EEC Seeking Oil
The European Economic Community nations had just officially informed Kissinger, on his way to the airport, that they would seek direct long term and technical agreements with the Arabs. In other words, they were going after oil.

Depending on how it develops, that could cut across Kissinger's own efforts, approved by the same countries with the exception of France at the Washington energy conference last month, to create a joint approach of all major oil consumers to the oil producers.
The official on Kissinger's plane reserved judgment about that but since then, the State Department has publicly complained about lack of advance consultation. That is usually a European complaint against the United States.
The confrontation with France has been growing closer since Kissinger called last April for a new Atlantic charter, expecting that it would be welcomed as a chance to rejuvenate the Atlantic alliance. Instead and unexpectedly, the official said, it brought French "nit picking" and opposition.

One declaration of Atlantic aims by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) is now nearly ready. Another by the European Common Market nations is further off with the French opposing any mention of "partnership." Some American officials think it has all hardly been worth while.
French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert is seen as systematically opposing American policies, as at the Washington energy conference, not on their merits but because they are American.
Says U.S. Favors Unity
Anxious to preserve European unity, the other

Common Market nations usually go part way with Jobert while rejecting his most extreme positions. But the American official said the general direction away from the United States is clear.
The official said the United States favors European unity as strongly as ever and in no way insists that its European allies agree with all its policies. What it does not accept, however, is that the principle on which Europe is organized is opposition to the United States because it is the United States.
The official said that the United States would win any competition with France or even the Common Market for markets and resources of the Middle East but did not want the confrontation.

Streaking--An Act Of Defiance?

United Press International
Sociologists say the new collegiate fad of "streaking"—running nude in public—is an act of defiance against conventional society with little sexual involvement.
And they predict the craze sweeping the nation's college campuses will fizzle when the novelty wears off.
"I predict it will die out, absolutely," said Dr. Frederick Koening, professor of sociology at Tulane University. "There is some initial gratification from seeking release from social restrictions, but you reach a point where it's not done any more."
Koening said streaking was not exhibitionism, which in its technical sense has a sexual motivation, and "I do not think streakers are streaking for sexual gratification."
Caroline E. Preston, associate professor of psychology and behavioral science at the University of Washington, agreed.
Sees No Importance
"I think it probably has nothing to do with sexuality at all," she said. "It may be almost in opposition to it. If anything, it's a kind of denial of sexuality."

Dr. Lawrence Z. Freedman, a noted behavioral researcher and professor of psychiatry at the University of Chicago, said streaking was significant in terms of community standards and acceptance of nudity.
"It obviously says something about changing mores in which nudity is sort of semi-taboo," he said.
Dr. Arthur Yehle, a Memphis State University psychology professor, saw no deep social significance in streaking, although he said, "there's a fairly good amount of thumbing your nose at society involved."
Koening said some coeds are taking part in the naked scampers because they feel women should have equal rights. "If this is a fad, they say, it shouldn't be just for boys to get in on."
Gals Get In The Act
This view was supported by a coed at Glassboro State College in New Jersey who streaked with 25 males. "Why not women? Men are doing it. Men should not be the only ones to do this."
The fad showed no signs of diminishing Wednesday night. A crowd, estimated at 895 by the campus newspaper, the Daily Tar Heel, ran naked at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill while another 1,500-2,000 students cheered them on.

The streakers included 75 girls, the Daily Tar Heel said.
About 25 streakers, including two coeds, ran past the Memphis State University center mall Wednesday night. About 300 streakers, some wearing ties and top hats, marched with a band on the Holy Cross campus in Worcester, Mass., while 80 girls and five boys ran nude around the campus of Hood College, a girls' school in Frederick, Md. There were 150 streakers at Georgia Southern College Wednesday night and two arrested.
Streakers interrupted several college baseball games Wednesday, so shaking up Jacksonville (Ala.) State pitcher Kerry Thompson that he served up a double that ruined his no-hitter.

Child Abuse Cases Must Be Reported

AUSTIN (UPI) — Eighteen children died and 1,683 were injured at the hands of their parents or guardians in Texas during 1973, state welfare authorities reported Thursday.
Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell announced the statistics with a warning that a new state law makes it a crime not to report child abuse cases to authorities.
"Citizens have a responsibility to the child and his parents to report a suspected case of child abuse or serious neglect to the local office of the state department of welfare," Vowell said.
"This will help not only the child but also his parents. Most parents want to be good parents. Some do not know how or can't seem to be good parents because of immaturity or personal problems."
Vowell said the new law authorizes a fine of $100 to $500 and jail sentence of 10 days to six months for anyone who knowingly fails to report "when he has cause to believe that a child's physical or mental health or welfare has been or may be further adversely affected by abuse or neglect."

Imbelling the Cat
Once upon a time in a faraway land the mice of a certain village were being sorely harassed by a particularly pugacious cat.
"That darn cat has got to go," the mice told each other, but they might as well have been squeaking to the wind.
The fact is that the village had acquired the cat for the very reason that he intimidated mice. Every public opinion poll showed the cat's popularity at an all-time high.
Not only were the villagers unlikely to get rid of him; they had, at the last town meeting, voted to keep him around for four more years.
Such were the conditions that prevailed when the mice discovered that the cat had bugged the rathole.
What the cat did was hire four cockroaches to infiltrate the rathole and let him know when the mice were about to venture out into the alley.
Thus alerted, the cat would be waiting in the alley ready to pounce.
The mice were incensed over the bugging. Dirty tricks of that type exceeded the bounds of traditional cat-and-mouse games, they charged.
And since the villagers had voted to keep the cat around for four more years, they resolved to deal with him in their own way.
With the typical boldness for which mice are noted, they demanded that the cat retire.
This the cat refused to do, pointing out that the villagers had given him a mandate to chase mice and vowing that the furor over the rathole bugging would not deter him from doing his duty as he saw it.
In that situation, the mice had no choice but to consider imbellment.

(For anyone not familiar with the term, imbellment involves tying a bell around a cat's neck so that it tinkles as he moves, thus warning the mice of his presence.)
Some argued that chasing mice was part of a cat's inherent powers and therefore not grounds for imbellment. Others charged that the cat was guilty of un-feline activity in bugging the rathole.
If we drag this out long enough, the mice said, the cat may become too feeble to chase us. That way we avoid the question of who bells the cat.
Moral: There is more than one way to skin a cat, especially in an election year.

More Time Off For Carson?

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — Johnny Carson and NBC are negotiating a new TV contract for two years beyond the year that Johnny still has on his existing contract, and I've just learned — seriously now — that one of Johnny's requests is for: Some more time off.

Of course Johnny'll get more time off. Because the slave labor conditions he's got now with something like 80 days off a year are intolerable. Congratulations, Johnny, I can't wait to see your new non-work schedule. Don't let 'em overexpose you!

Mrs. Abe Beame and Jane ("Irene") Powell have become close friends. Mrs. B. told Jane she wants to travel, hasn't been to Europe, usually eats alone ("Abe's off at some meeting"), doesn't know many people, and wants Abe to have a deserved vacation.

Jane suggested they form their own "lunch bunch" because Jane's husband Jim Fitzgerald is often away. Jane told about it at a soiree. Arlene Dahl and husband Rounseville W. Schaum gave for Jane & Debbie Reynolds, two chums from MGM days. Jane, a compulsive baker, took an applecake to the Beames at the Inner Circle salute to the Mayor. They're both 5-2 and Jane asked, "Aren't you glad short people are back in style?" Arnold Weisberger, hearing Jan exclaim about the Mayor, said, "There's a Beame in your eye" ... Debbie was on the arm of Ardeshr Zahed, Iranian Ambassador, and according to Arlene, "No. 2 bachelor in America next to Henry Kissinger." Debbie whispered, "First thing I do is learn to pronounce his name."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...
Buddy Greco, on his night off from the Rainbow Grill, dropped into Corky's, sang a little, and announced he's getting married in late May to Toronto model Maggi Kinley ... Sarah Miles and young Bruce Davidson of "Willard," the movie about rats, developed an instant friendship ... Pat Cooper in his hilarious act at Jimmy's (preceded by talented singer Cathy Carlton) apologizes for using one 3-letter word 11 times. "But," he says, "it's the filet mignon."

Jackie Gleason's got a problem. Lucille Ball wants him to play "Diamond Jim" Brady in a film "but he goes and loses 65 pounds on me," she says. "I want Jack to fatten up. I've got a good script for both him and me as Lillian Russell." Jackie didn't even have a drink on his 58th birthday, but friends say,

"Some day when he's in the mood, he'll get fat again. It never takes him long."

Comedian George DeWitt has worn a hairpiece for years, thinking it would help him to be a movie star. It didn't. In Miami Beach recently, he went without his toupee and applied for a role. He got it — second lead in the picture "Lenny" starring Dustin Hoffman. "My hairpiece," laments DeWitt, "has been holding me back."

Harry Hershfield, 88, recovered from several weeks' illness, is returning to his story-telling and says, "I'll soon be back to normal!" ... Playwright Terence McNally was called in to doctor a show heading for B'way ... Joe Levine returns to his desk next week, recovered from surgery and slimmed to under 200 lbs. ... Young Tovah Feldshuh, who was in the chorus of "Cyrano" last year, will star in the big Michel LeGrand - Hal David musical "Brand Child."

Dean Martin's daughter Deana and Bob Hantz, one of the real-life "Super Cops," are seeing each other again ... Producer Marty Roll has a yen — a LOT of yen — for his next film; he said at LaScala it's being bankrolled by a Tokyo combine ... Lee McPhail says the American League's moving its offices to 280 Park Av.

Show Biz Quiz: What are the first names of Count Basie and Duke Ellington? Ans. to yesterday's: Walter Huston and Edward Arnold played the title roles in "Devil & Daniel Webster."

I'D RATHER BELIGHT TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Comedienne Fannie Flagg admits she wears contact lenses: "I have to — I'm so nearsighted that I didn't know if I was a boy or girl until I was 10."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Gypsies deserve a lot of credit. Who else, nowadays, would have the nerve to look into the future?

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The greatest pleasure I know is to do a good action by stealth, and to have it found out by accident."

—Charles Lamb

EARL'S PEARLS: Bob Melvin hears that inflation's hit Las Vegas: "If you get three lemons on the slot machine you win $4 — just enough to buy three lemons."

A comic, noted for his thriftiness, was described at Sid Allen's: "He wouldn't offer to buy a round of drinks at an AA meeting."

What Causes Muscle Spasms?

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes muscle spasm?

—G.R.M.
Muscle spasm is the direct result of a complex chemical process that takes place when the muscles are used. Normally, the body is able to complete the process without any problem or we would be nothing but a mass of aches and pains all our lives.

When we use the muscles, we are converting chemical energy into physical energy, in this case chemicals such as starch and glycogen and carbohydrates. In any exchange such as this, there is a waste product left over. With the muscles, it is lactic acid. It is a case of producing the acid faster than it can be taken away by the body's waste removal systems.

When this happens, minerals, particularly sodium and potassium, are thrown out of balance. The result of this is that certain impulses are touched off, causing the muscle to contract and give the aching feeling — the spasm.

Sometimes the cause can be more subtle. For example, a pair of muscles used excessively during the day may continue to contract at rest and the result can be the spasm.

It is not difficult to correct the problem. If a spasm occurs in the foot while lying down, simply stand on the foot. For some reason, utilizing the opposing muscle (muscles are always in pairs) seems to counteract such a spasm.

Often a firm massage will help, and aspirin or an equivalent will cause the ache to subside. If spasms occur frequently, a small dose of quinine sulfate (about three grams) will be effective. Your physician should advise you in this.

Usually a hot tub bath will also stimulate the circulation, and the process of removing the so-called waste product I referred to will take place.

I suspect there will be a number of complaints about muscle spasms in the legs with the advent of the new platform shoes which put muscles in positions no one ever intended them to be put in.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a Pap smear and the doctor's nurse called and told me the results came back and I was Class 2 and I should have another Pap test in three months.

From what I understand this means I have cancer cells in my body and they want to recheck and see if these are dormant or are growing. Am I correct?

—B.L.C.

No, you're not. Class 2 means that some abnormal cells were found in the smear but not cancerous. But since they were abnormal, the sensible thing is to wait a few months, then test again and see whether the abnormality has corrected itself, or is getting worse.

Class 1 means normal cells. Class 3 means highly suspicious. Class 4 means definitely cancerous. But Class 2 is an in-between which may mean something or may mean nothing, so another look is in order.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a man has a vasectomy, does he have to be cut on the outside? Would there be a scar?

—Mrs. P.M.
There's a very small incision in the scrotum, and I doubt if you would even be able to see it.

Note to Mrs. J.A.P.: Psoriasis may be influenced by nervous tension but is not "caused by nerves." While there is no specific cure, various medical treatments can limit the severity and discomfort.

High blood pressure can be controlled. To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, get "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)" by Dr. Thosteson. To obtain a copy of this helpful booklet, write to him in care of Dr. George C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, enclosing 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

Under Twenty

By PAULA PRENTICE
There is a common saying which goes, "Birds of a feather flock together."

It is the process of like seeking out like and is quite typical of how most of us select our friends. Take a look at your friends. Don't they seem to be very much like you in their personality and interests?

The chances are that if you are quiet and, perhaps, shy your friends will tend to be very much the same. If you are outgoing and more active you'll probably find that those you spend the most time with share this outlook on life.

It is a very natural approach to the selection of friends, but you may be limiting yourself and be missing the friendship of people you can enjoy and who can complement your attributes.

If, for example, you are the quiet type, you should seek out those who are more outgoing and active. The friendship of this kind of person will help you open up, overcome your shyness and broaden your outlook.

If, on the other hand, you are one of those active, outgoing people, you will find that a quiet friend will help you find the much-needed time to be less active and perhaps more thoughtful.

The outdoor, athletic type rarely seeks out friends who are more studious and whose interests are more oriented to indoor activities. If these two different types get together, each can help to expand the interests of the other. This approach may not be perfect matching, but to be interesting friends need not be carbon copies of yourself.

This doesn't mean, of course, that you should throw over your old friends and not seek out those who closely share your interests and way of life. Mutual pursuits are vitally important in friendship. However, limited types of friends will feed your current interests rather than helping you to develop new ones.

By seeking out friends who are different you can broaden your personality and a good mixture of friends and acquaintances can add a great deal of spice to your way of life. Give it a try.

Broadway

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whatever the financial fate of Brian Friel's "The Freedom of the City" may be — at this writing it is too early to tell — it should go on the record that here is a fine play, the best new one of this season, which doesn't have much more time to come up with something better.

It isn't the first time Friel has brought an admirable play to New York. His first was a quite successful comedy of Irish life, "Philadelphia, Here I Come," in 1965. Four others that followed in eight years did not do as well, but it was recognized that there was some quality writing in all of them.

In short, this native of Northern Ireland, Catholic-raised, a wiry, medium-sized fellow of middle age and with piercing eyes and gentle speech, is a quality playwright, one of the few around, here or abroad.

I think that something of that merit comes through in the new play, not because of the writing alone, but because of Friel's handling of his material.

Here is a play set in Londonderry, Northern Ireland in 1970 that deals ostensibly with the political-religious turmoil current then and now. It is based on the killing by British troops, following a forbidden demonstration, of three innocent persons — a middle-aged charwoman with 11 children, a stalwart young man keen on the civil rights movement and another young man who lives by his wits, just one jump ahead of the law, who couldn't care less about the big issue.

And Friel's play is not really about the Northern Ireland issue. He has given it a universal appeal by making it a drama about the poor, the "dispossessed" of the world, who have little chance of improving their lot and of whom the people in Northern Ireland are only one faction.

Yet, it is not too preachy a play, although there is one element along this line that I would like to see removed. It involves occasional side comments by an American sociologist about the downtrodden of the world. However, this is not too distracting.

The flow of the drama is free-wheeling, starting with the three dead on stage and then flashing back to show how they got there, interspersed with little scenes of a judge conducting an investigation of the tragedy.

There is much sardonic humor in the play, which has a strong ironic trend. Kate Reid, Canada's gift to the American theater, is tremendous as the charwomen. I would say that it lies between her and Colleen Dewhurst of O'Neill's "A Moon for the Misbegotten" for the season's best female performance. It will be close.

Her two fellow martyrs are played admirably by Lenny Baker and Allan Carlsen.

Harold Prince's Broadway-successful "A Little Night Music," which recently passed its 400th New York performance at the Majestic Theater, now has a duplicate touring company headed by Jean Simmons and Margaret Hamilton. William Daniels of "1776" fame, has replaced Len Cariou as leading man in the New York company.

Harvesters Going To Sunray For 6th Annual Bobcat Meet

SUNRAY — Sunray track coach Buddy Sharp anticipates several records will be broken due to the strong field in Saturday's sixth annual Bobcat Relays, which begins with the field events and preliminaries at 10 a.m. here.

"We didn't have any records set here last year because we had a driving rain. If we have a pretty day this year, several records are in jeopardy," said Sharp, whose Bobcats, hosts for the meet, will compete in Division 2 Saturday.

There will be two divisions in the meet. In Division 1 will be defending champion Caprock, Borger, Pampa, Canyon, Clovis, N.M., Tucumcari, N.M., Guymon, Okla., Woodward, Okla., Dumas and Perryton.

Sunray, Gruver, Dalhart, Spearman, Stratford and Oklahoma schools Boise City, Booker, Hooker, Laverne, Texhoma and Texline will participate in Division 2. Sunray won last year.

"Clovis has a real fine team. I'd say they will be favored. Borger and Woodward are strong too. We have a real strong field," said the Bobcat coach, who was a football quarterback and trackster for Pampa in the 1950's.

Field Event Records
Field event records for the Sunray meet are:
Shot put — Lewis Davis, Pampa, 1970, 52-8 1/4.
Discus — Davis, Pampa, 1970, 142-6.
Long jump — Mike Lozano, Caprock, 1971, 22-4 1/2.
Pole vault — Rudy McElroy, Borger, 1972, 13-0.
High jump — Walter Hines, Tucumcari, N.M., 1971, and Jimmy George, Dumas, 1972, 6-2.
Running event records are:
440 relay — Borger, 1972, 42.8.
880 — Royce Chancellor, Guymon, Okla., 1972, 1:59.1.
120 high hurdles — Glenn Gray, Borger, 1972, 15.0.
330 intermediate hurdles — David Graham, Perryton, 1970, 41.2.
100 — Weldon Edwards, Caprock, 1971, and Milton Brooks, Borger, 1972, 9.7.
440 — Willie Johnson, Borger, 1972, 48.3.
220 — Edwards, Caprock, 1971, and Brooks, Borger, 1972, 21.8.
1 mile run — Joe Bostick, Caprock, 1971, 4:44.0.

Mile relay — Borger, 1972, 3:26.7.

Pampa's Strongest
Pampa's strongest entries should be the mile-relay team, 440-relay team, Steve Mathis in the 440, Noel Hansen in the 880 and Willis Price in the high jump.

Hansen has a good shot at the record in the half mile. The long-winded junior won the event in last weekend's Top O' Texas Invitational in 2:03.2, beating second place by five seconds. Hansen's career best is 1:59.0, which he ran in the West Texas Relays a year ago in Odessa.

Pampa's mile-relay team of Chuck Quarles, Hansen, Howie Lewis and Mathis placed first last week with 3:32.4 and the sprint-relay team consisting of Quarles, Mathis, Rick Leverich and Lewis won third place with 44.6.

Mathis won the open quarter with 53.5, nine-tenths of a second better than Greg Welch of Borger.

Price placed third in the high jump with a 5-11.

Overall, the Harvesters, who are coached by Scott Dunnam, placed fourth behind Borger, Hereford and Tascosa.

Look Earns Letter Jacket With Mustangs

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Southern Methodist broke two records and the Mustangs' Christine Look became the first female to ever score points in conference competition as SMU moved into a commanding lead after opening night competition Thursday in the Southwest Conference swimming and diving championships.

Miss Look, a national AAU champion, won ninth place and four points in the one-meter diving competition. She also will dive in the three-meter board event.

SMU won all but one of the five events held Thursday night as the Mustangs sought their 18th straight conference championship.

The Mustangs amassed 223 points, outdistancing second-place Arkansas, which had 88 points.

SMU swept the first five places in the one-meter diving competition for a total of 73 points in that event. The Mustangs also collected 59 points in the 200-yard individual medley and 45 points in the 500-yard freestyle.

SMU set SWC records in the 400-yard medley relay with a time of 3:30.128, eclipsing the old mark of 3:31.28 set by Texas last year, and in the 500-yard freestyle where Paul Hove's time of 4:38.34 bettered the time of 4:25.57 set by Dick Worrel of Texas in 1973.

BACKHAND VOLLEY — Cassandra Mangold demonstrates good backhand form against Caprock's Pam Dried during the Harvesters' 24-2 loss to the Longhorns in dual tennis play Thursday in Pampa. Miss Mangold lost the match, 8-5, in a pro set. Pro sets were played throughout the afternoon due to the threatening weather.

Henry Aaron To Miss Braves' Exhibition Tilt

By United Press International
Guess who's not starting in the Braves' exhibition opener?
Those of you who guessed Henry Aaron can move to the head of the class.

Eddie Mathews, the Braves' manager, announced Thursday that Aaron will not play in the team's home exhibition opener Saturday in West Palm Beach.

Mathews said Aaron is "just not ready to play."

Of course, Aaron's absence from the home exhibition opener normally wouldn't even be worth noting. Veterans, especially 40-year-old veterans, usually sit out several of the first few exhibition games.

But this season there's so much attention centered on when Aaron plays because the Braves have announced he won't start the team's first three regular season games in Cincinnati. That's because they want him to break Babe Ruth's home run record in Atlanta where they can sell a few more tickets.

That announcement has caused a real stir because baseball officials have long claimed the integrity of the pennant race is more important than any record—even Ruth's. And if Aaron sits out all three games, Atlanta obviously isn't putting its best lineup on the field.

MUST BEAT TROJANS

UCLA Going Down To Wire

By United Press International
The NCAA's major college tournament begins this weekend, while top-ranked North Carolina State and defending champion UCLA are still struggling for a berth in the post-season national championship chase.

N.C. State is confronted by the Tobacco Road's March madness known as the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament.

In order to survive the ACC tourney, the Wolfpack will have to beat either No. 4 North Carolina or No. 5 Maryland in the final game.

Meanwhile, UCLA's iron-fisted grip on the national championship will disappear if the Bruins are unable to win at Southern California. The No. 7 Trojans are tied with UCLA atop the Pacific-8 Conference and the winner of Saturday's game will move into the NCAA Western regionals next weekend.

Another key piece in the NCAA tournament puzzle, the Big Ten representative, might be resolved Saturday. Then again, it might not. No. 10 Indiana is tied with No. 19 for the league lead. Depending on the outcome of Indiana's home game with Purdue, only a game behind the Hoosiers, and Michigan's contest at Michigan State, a champ will be crowned Saturday or a playoff will be necessary Monday.

However, there are 18 teams already in NCAA tournament action Saturday with the schedule overloaded with Eastern teams.

Pitt A Big Surprise
In the East, Providence (23-3) meets Ivy League champ Pennsylvania. South Carolina (21-4) faces Southern Conference titlist Furman (18-7) and Pittsburgh (22-3) plays St. Joseph's (19-10), the Middle Atlantic Conference champion.

Providence made the final four of the tournament last season and has high-scoring All-America Marvin Barnes and Kevin Stacom back from that team. Penn defeated Brown in a tough battle for the Ivy title, but has trouble with nonconference opponents this season.

South Carolina walloped Pitt in the Gamecock Roost two weeks ago and closed its season with a victory at Creighton

Monday to show the Gamecocks are coming into the NCAA tourney at their peak. Furman is making its third NCAA appearance in four years under Coach Joe Williams, but has been a first-round victim in its two previous tries.

Pitt has been a major surprise this season, but the Panthers' top player, Billy Knight, has been troubled with a shoulder injury recently and Pitt lost two of its last three games.

In the Midwest, No. 2 Notre Dame (24-2) will attempt from a 15-point shellacking by Dayton Monday against Austin Peay (17-9) and Marquette (22-4) plays Ohio University (16-10).

Syracuse's Offense
The Irish should be wary after the upset by Dayton and the No. 9 Warriors have also being stunned recently, getting caught napping Cincinnati and paying for it with a sound beating. The pair of upsets will do nothing to aid the Austin Peay and Ohio causes.

Interloper Syracuse (19-6) has moved to the Midwest to tackle Oral Roberts (21-5), while Creighton (21-6) plays Texas (12-14) in the second game.

Syracuse has a guard-oriented offense built around Dennis "Sweet DV" DuVal and the Orange are favored over Oral Roberts, while Creighton is a top-sided choice over the Longhorns, who have the negative distinction of being the only team with a losing record in the NCAA tourney.

In the West, transplanted Dayton (19-7), which silenced a lot of criticism over its selection for the tournament with its win over Notre Dame, plays Los Angeles State (7-9). L.A. State is representing the Pacific Coast Athletic Association in place of league champ Long Beach State, which is on NCAA probation.

In the other Western Conference, Western Athletic Conference champ New Mexico (20-6) meets Big Sky Conference king Idaho State (20-7).

Longhorns Rip Harvester Nets In Tennis Play

Jack Scott won in boys' singles and then teamed with Steve Knox to win in doubles, which were Pampa's only victories in a 26-match bout with the Caprock Longhorns in tennis action Thursday at the Pampa High School courts.

"We didn't play very well and Caprock did play well. Mostly we were inconsistent," said Harvester coach Alton Settiff.

Pampa will host the Hereford Whitefaces starting at 11 a.m. Saturday in another dual match.

Pampa Golfers In Action Today

Both Pampa golf teams are seeing tournament action today as the boys team competes in the third round of 3-AAAA competition at Huber Country Club in Borger, and the girls team is involved in the 13-school Amarillo High School Girls Golf Tournament at Ross Rogers Golf Course in Amarillo.

The boys are currently in fifth place in the district tourney after the first two rounds, which were held at Amarillo golf courses. The girls tied for third with Brownfield and Amarillo Palo Duro last week in the Pampa High School Invitational Girls Golf Tournament.

Deck Woldt's boys team has a two-round score of 649, which is 49 shots behind leader Tascosa. Following the Rebels are Amarillo High, 621; Borger, 626; Caprock, 644; Pampa, 649; Amarillo "B", 666; Tascosa "B", 810.

Medalist thus far is the Rebels' Dan Bentley, who has a 144.

Pampa scores going into today's round are Wiley McIntire, 159; Randy Watson, 161; Scott White, 164; Mickey Lowe, 165 and Joel Hickey, 165.

Among those entered in the girls' tournament are defending state champion Midland Lee, which also won the Amarillo tourney last year, and Tascosa, another favorite to win this year's event.

"I'll be disappointed if we don't finish in the top five," said Pampa coach Tommy Lindsey.

Lindsey said his A-team will consist of the golfers with the best scores last week. Those are Debbie Thompson, 48; Serena Shearer, 49; Linda Howard, 55; Gail Simon, 57 and Sharon White, 61.

Pampa's B-team will be made up of Paula Simpson, GERALYN HILLS, Jeffie Suttle and Gisele Hudson.

Last week's Pampa tourney was nine holes; this one is 18.

DORAL COUNTRY CLUB Monster Turns Meek For Pros

MIAMI (UPI) — The Doral Country Club golf course is known as the "Blue Monster" and has a reputation as one of the toughest layouts on the PGA tour.

On Thursday the monster turned meek. Eighty-six of 147 golfers shot par 72 or better and 64 were under par.

Two golfers—Jerry Heard and Masters champion Tommy Aaron—shot 65s, one off the course record, and another—Buddy Allin—shot a 66.

Nobody had an explanation for the unusually hot scoring over the 7,028-yard course except that it was a beautiful day for golf and the usually bothersome Florida wind was a little tamer than usual.

Heard is looking for his second win in a row, after taking the Citrus Open at Orlando, Fla., last weekend, but he doesn't expect any great pressure.

He cast an image of strolling along, talking hunting and fishing with Tom Weiskopf, who was in his threesome, and hitting a golf shot once in a while.

It didn't start out that way. "On the first hole, I hit a duck hook off the tee, hit a wood into a trap and then I skulled it over the green," he said.

He birdied the third, seventh, ninth and 11th holes. His birdie putts included one from 35 feet and two 20-footers.

The real charge to the lead started on the 16th. He hit a wedge a foot from the pin on 16 for a bird, sank a 10-foot putt for a three on the par 4 17th and scored his third straight birdie with a 12-footer on the 18th.

Hoffman Skates To Crown

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Six years ago Jan Hoffmann finished last at the winter Olympic in Grenoble. Today the 17-year-old East German ruled as figure skating world champion although Canada's Toller Cranston stole a leaf of his book with an artistic free-style performance run that nearly brought down Munich's Olympic Hall.

But Hoffmann looked every inch a champion presenting a near-perfect free style Wednesday night to climax a 12-year career and become East Germany's first male world champion.

The championships continued today with the women's short program and the final in the ice dancing event, where Ludmilla Pakhoma and Alexander Gorshkov of the Soviet Union were favored to win their fifth straight title.

Barry Paces Warriors Over Milwaukee Bucks

By United Press International
First the Golden State Warriors lost Nate Thurmond early in the second period then Cazzie Russell twisted his ankle early in the third. With two of their top five men out, the Warriors might've been in trouble against the Milwaukee Bucks.

"But we dug down for that something extra," Rick Barry said. "And we came up with it. We had it when we needed it."

Barry, capping a 31-point performance, hit a 20-foot jump shot at the buzzer that gave the Warriors a 97-95 win over the Bucks Thursday night.

"You know everybody probably figured it would be easy for the Bucks after Nate and Cazzie were hurt," Barry said. "But there's something about this team that makes us play with emotion."

"It looked dark for awhile with Nate and Cazzie out. When that last shot left my hand I knew it was in. And I was mighty happy. I sure didn't feel like overtime. I was very tired by then."

In the only other NBA game Boston edged Phoenix 99-97. In the ABA, New York ripped Denver 114-100. San Antonio kayped Carolina 98-90 and Kentucky beat Virginia 103-89.

Nation Angered At Antics Of Seven Sisters—The Oil Companies

By ROBERT F. BUCKHORN WASHINGTON (UPI) — A school bus runs out of gas at a busy Washington intersection. Ed O'Malley, 14, sticks his head out the window and shouts to passersby: "You see what happens when a couple of monopolistic oil companies take over?"

In New York City, a cab driver tells it like he thinks it is: "You know those seven sisters (the major oil firms)? They ain't sisters—they're whores who are ripping off the public."

The student, the cabbie, the midnight sticker-paster have two things in common. They are angry about the energy crisis, and they don't understand how the United States—the land of plenty—could run short of such basics as oil to heat homes and gasoline to run cars.

Tough Questions
How did it happen? Where did the energy crisis come from, and how did it sneak up without us knowing? When will it end? Where will it lead? Is it real or is it a phony?

Americans are asking questions like these—tough, probing questions.

They apparently aren't getting answers that satisfy them. That's why millions of people doubt that the shortage is real and why so many of them—and many of their representatives in Washington—believe the oil companies have contrived the crisis to maximize profits.

Sen. Joseph S. Biden, D-Del., makes it clear where he thinks the blame lies.

"I'm concerned that basically the oil companies are ripping us off," he said. "They are the seven sisters that own the world."

Skepticism has been fueled by the fact that figures are hard to get, and those that are available came from the oil companies and can be interpreted in myriad ways.

But whether you accept the fact that the crisis is real or contend that it's a scheme by the seven sisters, one thing cannot be argued.

Curtail Summer Vacations
It is harder to get gasoline than it has been at any time since World War II. The lines at the service stations seem endless. Americans may be forced to curtail or cancel their summer vacations.

Changes in family lifestyles are evident. People think twice about driving 20 miles round trip when invited to a friend's for Saturday dinner—and many of them wind up staying home.

To the man in the street, the energy crisis seemed almost to appear full blown when the Arab nations boycotted oil shipments to the United States in October in retaliation for American arms support for Israel.

But if energy experts agree on one thing, it is that the root of the crisis goes back decades.

Into the bag marked "energy crisis," they put items like this: —A total lack of government policy on energy.

—A tax system that made it highly profitable for the oil industry to produce and refine oil overseas.

—A quota system which prevented importing cheap foreign oil.

—The decline of the coal industry and the corresponding rise in demand for oil.

—The failure of atomic power to live up to predictions it would become an "energy panacea."

Added to this list is the long prized "American way of life."

Needless Lights
In terms of energy, the "American way of life" translates into 100 million cars and trucks—almost one for every two persons.

American homes are overflowing with air conditioners, washers, dryers, television sets, electric toothbrushes and can openers, hair dryers, space heaters, needless lights—all of which drain energy.

According to the Federal Energy Office, energy consumption in the United States has more than doubled in 20 years. By 1972, the nation, which has only 6 per cent of the world's population, was using one third of the world's total energy production.

Or, to use a phrase favored by Energy Chief William E. Simon, "this is a nation of energy wastrels."

Such a charge hard to deny when you learn that New York City's skyscraper, the World Trade Center, consumes enough electricity every day to light Syracuse, N.Y.

Simon gives this capsule story on how the United States finds itself energy-poor.

Domestic oil exploration peaked in 1956, and production in 1970. But demand has been rising at a rate of 5 per cent a year. To make up the difference, the United States has increased its dependency on foreign oil—mainly from the Arab states. When the Arab boycott began, oil became short in the United States.

The important thing to understand is that the energy crisis was not contrived," Simon says. "The very fact that even with the embargo we are importing about 5 million barrels of oil a day, and post-embargo we will import some 7 million barrels a day shows that domestic demand is greater than supply."

Nor, he says, will this fact disappear: "If the present trend of consumption continues, U.S. energy needs by 1990 will be twice what they were last year—and that's just 17 years from now!"

U.S. Tax Law
Critics generally do not dispute Simon's statistical argument. Yes, they say, there is a gap between production and demand.

But the question is why is there a gap? What happened to oil production in the United States? Why did the major American oil firms center production in foreign oil fields instead of at home?

The reason is simple: oil companies realized dramatically higher profits through foreign production.

One reason for that was the U.S. tax laws, which—starting as early as 1950—permitted American oil firms to treat as a tax part of the royalties they paid Arab sheiks. In turn, this tax could be credited against U.S. income taxes on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

This helped produce huge earnings for the oil industry, including such 1973 profits as Exxon up 59 per cent and Gulf up 60 per cent over 1972.

Obviously, with such tax policies, the major oil firms had no incentive to explore and develop domestically, critics argue.

Make Maximum Profits
But industry spokesmen contend that the oil companies are in business to make maximum possible profits for their stockholders, and that under the free enterprise system this means going where the profits are.

Frank Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, the trade organization representing the major oil firms, contends the oil industry is taking a bad rap on its profits.

He says comparing 1973 and 1972 profits is unfair. The oil industry had a good year in 1973, he said, but 1972 was an unusually bad year.

A better financial yardstick, Ikard says, is rate of return on investment for the oil industry. The rate of return is about 10 per cent, compared with 12 per cent for manufacturing industries generally, he says.

Ikard said that in the nation wants to boost its oil production, environmental restrictions must be eased. Large scale drilling must be permitted on the U.S. continental shelf. Restrictions must be lifted on drilling in the Santa Barbara, Calif. channel—the site of a massive oil spill.

The oil industry's arguments are greeted with outright disdain by some Consumer advocate Ralph Nader, for one, believes the crisis is "contrived."

The information on oil production and profits supplied the government by the industry is misleading and distorted, he contends. To bolster his argument, Nader argues that until January the government accepted all the oil industry's figures without making an attempt to validate them.

Even the Shah of Iran suggested recently that the oil industry may have engineered the shortage as a way of boost profits.

And within the administration, there are those who believe the energy crisis is a short term affair. The leader of this group is Budget Director Roy Ash.

A Crash Program
In a speech in February, Ash—in direct conflict with Simon's statements—said the energy crisis was "manageable and short-term."

What Ash was hinting at, some observers say, is the possibility that a crash program could produce enough oil to solve the crisis quickly.

Once the embargo is lifted, the Arab states can increase production. The United States also imports large oil supplies from Canada and Venezuela.

Added to this, in about three years, more than 2 million barrels a day will be available from the North Slope of Alaska, and the continental shelf can be tapped of up to 190 billion barrels a day.

Still more oil will flow into the market from the North Sea fields, which are expected to provide up to 4 million barrels daily, the argument runs.

But with all the acrimony over the oil shortage and who is responsible for it, scant attention has been paid to the fact that oil is a finite resource and someday supplies will be exhausted.

In these terms, then, the real answer to the energy crisis is the limitless power supplies—solar and atomic.

But these will not become an overnight replacement for oil. For example, it has been 20 years President Eisenhower announced an "Atoms for Peace" Program. Today the United States still only gets 5 per cent of its energy from atomic power plants—only slightly more than double what it gets from burning firewood.

However, there is one source of power scheduled for immediate crash development—coal. Declining in importance since World War II, the government is intent on giving coal a new importance.

Production will be tripled by 1985, environmental restrictions against strip mining and air pollution are being lifted, and coal will again become, if not "King Coal," certainly a major part of the bridge designed to close the energy gap.

Market Catches Up With Alaska

By ROBERT C. MILLER JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — As it often does to individuals, the stock market has caught up with Alaska and Gov. William Egan today faces the agonizing dilemma: ride it out, or unload and take the financial lumps.

The financial lumps in Alaska's case amount to more than $4 million. Had Alaska been poor and mortgaged to the hilt like other state governments, the governor wouldn't be in the jam he's in today. But the Alaska government is so rich it paid to hire a jet to fly $900 million profits from a 1969 oil lease sale to the Bank of America so as not to lose the weekend's interest.

Since then it has been one of the largest holders of commercial paper, bonds, certificates of deposits and mortgages in the country. Then two years ago the Department of Revenue decided to play the stock market "as a hedge against inflation." Since then the Department of Revenue, the governor, the legislature and all the Alaskan kibitzers have watched their $18 million shrink to $13.7 as of Jan. 31.

It was all perfectly legal, for the Alaskan statutes give the Department of Revenue under section 37.10.070 the right to invest any surplus from the treasury in any of seven categories. Category six was the revenue commissioner's downfall. It allows the state's surplus to be invested in "other securities, including corporate securities, bonds, notes and common stocks."

"We Took a Bath"
Senate Republican Speaker Terry Miller of Anchorage summed up the state's foray into the market in one sentence: "We took a bath."

Andy Warwick, R-Fairbanks, the House's only accountant graduate, defended the idea of investing in the stock market as an inflation hedge, but said "the timing was bad, and besides, we knew these were short term investments which would have to be withdrawn in a short time to meet current obligations. The only way they could serve as a hedge against inflation would be as long term investments."

Last week the state's investment experts, the firm of Loomis and Kennedy, explained to the Investment Advisory Committee how things were going. The $45,000-a-year counselors told about "the severe political shocks ... high rates of inflation ... the very volatile investment environment that requires considerable flexibility and a great deal of anticipation ... the international turmoil on the domestic scene."

"These," said the Loomis and Kennedy spokesmen, "have been only a few of the factors providing a challenging atmosphere for money managers to work in." Following this prelude the state got the bad news. Their $18 million was now only worth $13.7 million.

"Bail Out"
Republican House Speaker Tom Fink of Anchorage had a two-word suggestion: "Bail out."

"The state, as of now," Fink said, "has lost $4.3 million on this investment in common stock. At the same time had the money been left in the bank, it would have earned about $2 million, so there really has been a loss of $6 million."

The Treasury Division told the committee it believes Loomis and Kennedy should be kept on and the market investment continued as L & K had "demonstrated the ability to perform reasonably well in a rapidly declining market."

Decision Soon
The investment counselors also forecast better times and urged the state to stay in the market instead of getting out with a loss.

And it's all been tossed onto Egan's already cluttered desk. He promised a decision "soon."

"I don't know yet what we're going to do," he admitted. "I'm certainly going to talk with the people who feel"—and he emphasized "feel"—"they know what it's all about and then make my decision."

Then with a sad nod of his head the governor concluded. "But for the advice of these investment experts we wouldn't be in the stock market today."

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.
Esther later got 2 boy babies in a row by following the advice below. Sex determination occurs at the moment of conception. If you have a series of girl babies, use the baking soda technique. Vice versa, if you have an all-boy family and want girl babies!

CASE Z-571: Esther D., aged 29, has 3 little girls. "Dr. Crane," she began, "we'd like to have a boy, too, not only to help balance our family."

"But my father-in-law is eager to have a grandson to carry on the family name. So he has even offered us $10,000 if and when we get a boy!"

"Is there any scientific way to influence the sex of one's babies?"

SEX PROBLEMS
The sex of a baby is determined at the very moment the male sperm unites with the female egg (ovum).

The normal male sperm contains both "X" and "Y" chromosomes while the female has only "X" chromosomes.

If the male "X" happens to unite with the female "X," then the baby will be a girl. If, however, the male "Y" attaches itself to the female "X," then the resulting baby will be a boy.

So the answer to Esther's question lies in trying to increase the chances that the "Y" chromosome will reach the female ovum first. The "Y" is regarded as faster moving, but also smaller.

And it seems to have a greater chance of winning the race to the ovum, if it is swimming in a slightly alkaline (not acid) vaginal secretion.

For the actual meeting of the sperm and ovum probably occur in the outer one-third of the Fallopian tube.

Dairy farmers have experimented to see how they can load the dice in favor of heifer (female) calves vs. bull calves, for they usually want milk producers.

So they have used a mild lactic acid douche (3%) just before mating the cow with the bull.

This has produced a greater likelihood of female calves.

On the other hand, if they desire male calves, a baking soda douche has reversed the sex ratio of offspring and given more bull calves.

There is some logic to support these findings, too, for acids retard or stop the sperm's swimming movement.

"But, Dr. Crane," you may wonder, "why wouldn't an alkaline vagina favor the 'X' male chromosome just as readily as the 'Y'?"

"And why wouldn't the acidic vaginal secretions favor the 'Y' male chromosome as often as the 'X'?"

Well, here are the suggested explanations:

(1) The "Y" is smaller than the "X" and thus may be hampered more readily by acid.

Indeed contraceptive jelly is merely an acid preparation to stop sperm activity entirely.

(2) In a baking soda medium, both the male "X" and "Y" are helped, but the "Y" is a faster swimmer, which is why more male offspring seem to result from a baking soda douche.

Many formerly sterile wives, with no organic defects to explain their lack of pregnancy, have reported to me that the baking soda douche gave them their first baby in about 15 or 20 years of futile previous trying.

And many mothers of an all-girl family, have likewise reported finally getting boy babies by the baking soda douche.

So send for my booklet "Facts About Pregnancy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
