Jacobsen Gives Innocent Plea For Milk Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jake Jacobsen, the first person indicted in a federal investigation of milk producers' contributions to President Nixon's reelection, pleaded innocent today to a charge of lying to the Watergate grand jury.

U.S. District Judge George L. Hart postponed the trial until the completion of a Texas case involving Jacobsen and misapplication of funds and perjury.

Jacobsen, a lawyer for the milk producers and a White House legislative assistant in the Johnson administration, was released in the custody of his lawyer. He refused to answer reporters' questions as he left the court.

The grand jury indicted Jacobsen, 54, of Austin, Tex., Feb. 21 on one count of lying a month earlier when it questioned him about $10,000 he had solicited from the Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI), a dairy co-operative.

The maximum penalty would be a $10,000 fine and five years in prison.

First Indictment
The indictment was the first handed down in the investigation of whether the administration increased the price support of raw milk in 1971 in exchange for AMPI's promise of $2 million for President Nixon's re-election campaign.

In other developments: —The Washington Post reported today that some of those who have heard the tape of a March 21, 1973, meeting between Nixon and former counsel John W. Dean III have a different interpretation of what Nixon meant.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will go to Moscow March 25 for discussions with Soviet leaders in preparation for a later visit by President Nixon, it was announced today.

The announcement, made jointly by a White House spokesman and in Moscow, was distributed to newsmen traveling with Nixon.

It said Kissinger's Moscow talks would include a review of bilateral relations and international matters of mutual concern as will preparations for Nixon's second trip to the Soviet Union since he's been President, expected some time in June.

The announcement did not say how long Kissinger would stay in Moscow.

The President was in Chicago today for brief remarks— followed by a question-and-answer period—at a luncheon of the Business Executives' Club.

Embargo Decision Awaited

Nixon was expected to spend the morning hours with his top aides and speechwriters, priming himself for the news conference.

A telephone threat early today that a bomb had been placed inside the Conrad Hilton was proved to be false after a thorough search by Chicago police and the Secret Service, authorities said.

By United Press International
If the Arab oil embargo is lifted during the weekend, U.S. economic and energy experts don't expect any radical changes immediately—and only slight improvements in gasoline supplies by late spring.

Nixon's appearance in Chicago was the first in a series of out-of-town jaunts planned over the next few days to carry his defense against Watergate and impeachment to the public.

Even the New York Stock Exchange won't be greatly affected if the Arab nations announce a resumed shipments of oil to America, according to the exchange chairman.

The Chief Executive spent the night in the Imperial Suite on the 26th floor of the Conrad Hilton after a mixed reception.

What a lifting of the embargo would mean—and sources in the Midwest expect it might be lifted Sunday for a two-month trial period—is Americans probably will find gasoline more plentiful, prices may stop going up, and some restrictions such as the Sunday ban on gasoline sales may be eased.

Some 300 persons boomed when his 19-car motorcade pulled up in front of the hotel Thursday night. Ignoring shouts of "Impeach Nixon," the President strode into the hotel smiling and was greeted in the lobby by several hundred more spectators—who cheered him and held signs reading: "Three more years," "America needs Nixon," and "Nixon, You're the Greatest."

At the President's special request, the Shannon Rovers Irish band, including several bagpipers, struck up "Bonnie Lassie," and "Wearing of the Green," in

Couple Found Dead In Home
An apparent murder-suicide in the city yesterday has left a Pampa man and his wife dead of gunshot wounds.

Found dead at their residence at 1007 N. Wells shortly before 7 p.m. yesterday were Frank Alexander Gyles, Jr., 50, and Mrs. Lucille Davenport Gyles, 52.

Pampa police answered a call from Mrs. Raymond Blodgett, 1009 N. Wells, at 8:51 p.m. Mrs. Blodgett called officers after Cathy Klaus, 20, of Berger told her she had seen two bodies lying on the floor in the front room of the Gyles residence when she went to the residence to ask directions.

A 38-caliber pistol was found in Gyles' right hand, police reports said. Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford ruled Gyles' death occurred by self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Mrs. Gyles died from a gunshot wound in the abdomen, according to the coroner's report.

Reports indicated both victims had been dead for approximately two hours when they were found. Both Gyles and his wife had been seen alive early in the afternoon by I.W. Tinney, manager of the duplex they had rented, reports said.

No motive was apparent in the deaths, police said. Funeral arrangements were pending at Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

IN SAN FRANCISCO

Municipal Strike Agreement Made

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A tentative settlement was reached early today in the nine-day strike by 15,000 city workers that halted municipal transit, poured millions of gallons of raw sewage into the bay and shut down the port of San Francisco.

Terms were not disclosed pending ratification.

Union spokesmen said picket lines would remain up until a membership ratification meeting this afternoon. The full 11-member city Board of Supervisors will meet at the same time to consider the pact agreed to by its negotiating team, S-I.

international vice president of the Service Employees International, praised Alioto for his efforts as a mediator in the dispute.

"This is a historic occasion," a tired but beaming Mayor Joseph L. Alioto announced after 11 hours of straight bargaining.

Twomey, however, was critical of the supervisors. "This strike would have been settled three days ago if it happened in private industry," he said.

"It is the first time members of the Board of Supervisors have met with city employees and their representatives to talk about terms and conditions of employees."

Superior Judge Clayton Horn had ordered police to remove the pickets before 7 a.m. The agreement came about three hours before that deadline.

"The picket lines will remain up but we will allow mechanics and others to cross in order to get the buses and streetcars rolling if ratification comes," said union Treasurer Kathy Burns.

Police Captain Jeremiah Taylor said he talked to Horn after the agreement was announced.

Stans and Mitchell, former attorney general in the Nixon administration, are charged in federal court with trying to impede and massive government investigation of the international financial manipulations of Vesco in exchange for his secret cash campaign donation of $200,000—and of lying to the grand jury about it.

The witness, 15th in the government's attempt to send the former powerful administration figures to prison for 50 years each, now is a New York investment banker. He had volunteered to help with the campaign financing in both 1968 and 1972 and after the 1972 election had been appointed deputy assistant to the President and worked in the White House.

The government called him to support one of the counts of lying against Mitchell.

Hofgren testified that he met Mitchell that night in the hallway prior to a campaign dinner for Senate and congressional candidates, which was attended by about 3,000 persons.

He said he had been present earlier in the day at a meeting between Vesco and Stans at which Vesco offered to contribute a large sum of money and then told Stans that he had a business problem, was being harassed by government investigators and would like to get an appointment with the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, whose staff was probing Vesco's affairs.

THROUGH FUND RAISER

Witness Claims Mitchell Gave Warning To Stans

NEW YORK (UPI) — A fund raiser for the 1972 Nixon campaign today testified in the Mitchell-Stans trial that on March 8, 1972, he asked John N. Mitchell if he had met with financier Robert L. Vesco and Mitchell replied, "you stay away from that."

The next day, Daniel Hofgren testified, he saw Maurice H. Stans, former Nixon administration commerce secretary who had resigned to become re-election finance chairman.

"I told him I had run into Mr. Mitchell and that Mitchell said: 'Stay away from the Vesco matter.'"

Stans replied: "Okay, we'll take care of it in another way."

Pat Nixon Attends Brazil Ceremonies

BRASILIA (UPI) — With First Lady Pat Nixon looking on, Ernesto Geisel was sworn in today as the 28th president of Brazil during a solemn ceremony attended by the presidents of Bolivia, Chile and Uruguay and dignitaries from 84 other nations.

Mrs. Nixon's first visit to Brasilia was marred Thursday by an airport scuffle between American reporters accompanying the First Lady and helmeted Brazilian soldiers guarding her.

Geisel, 65, a retired army general, took the oath of office at the national congress building and then received the sash of office from outgoing President Emilio G. Medici.

Mrs. Nixon usually encourages reporters in her party to follow her closely, but a line of troops locked arms and pushed them back when they tried to stay with her.

Several thousand guests filled the cup-and-saucer shaped national congress to see Geisel swear to "maintain, defend and comply" with the Brazilian constitution during his five-year term.

Mrs. Nixon, who attended the Caracas inauguration of Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez Tuesday, joined representatives from 88 nations at the swearing-in ceremonies for Geisel, a 65-year-old retired army general.

Geisel is the fourth military officer since 1964 to occupy the Brazilian presidency. The last freely elected president, Joao Goulart, was toppled by a military coup d'etat in that year.

Palmer Wins Spelling Bee

Ron Palmer, eighth grade student at Pampa Junior High, won the Gray County Spelling Bee competition at Houston Middle School this morning.

Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Palmer, spelled "heathen" correctly to win the county contest. Kelli Snider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Snider, was the runner-up in the spelling bee. Miss Snider, a 7th grader, missed "harmonica" to finish second.

In all, 19 contestants in the spelling bee went through 39 rounds and 163 words.

Winner of the junior spelling bee was Pam Homer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hub Homer, and a sixth grade student at St. Vincent's. Runner-up in the junior competition was Austin 6th grader Tim Hartin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Hartin.

Syrian, Israeli Forces Fight More Battles

Syrian and Israeli forces fought artillery and mortar battles along the central sector of the Golan Heights cease-fire line for the fourth consecutive day today and the Israeli chief of staff warned that Syria may start a new war if there is no agreement on separation of their forces.

The border situation remained tense because of the fighting, some of it heavy. The Israeli-Syrian situation was worsened by Syria's reported persecution of 500 Jews living in Syria and charges the Damascus government "inspired" the slaying of four Jewish women.

In an effort to defuse the situation, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger called a meeting in Washington today to get indirect troop separation talks with Syria underway. An Israeli official said that after the meeting "it may be that the situation will change. But so far there's no date yet for the start of the Washington talks."

Today's clashes began when "the enemy started engineering work aimed at fortifying its frontline positions," a Syrian communique said. It said artillery and mortars were used in the fighting. It made no mention of Syrian losses, but said a number of Israeli armored cars, engineering equipment and an ammunition depot were destroyed by Syrian fire.

In similar clashes Thursday, the Israelis suffered direct hits on their military concentrations, an ammunition depot and a machine gun emplacement, the Syrians said. Two Israeli tanks also were destroyed and a number of Israelis injured.

The Israeli military command said that in the Thursday fighting three of its soldiers were wounded, the first casualties reported since Israel put its troops on alert 11 days ago for a possible Syrian offensive aimed at recapturing territory lost to Israel in the October war.

Lt. Gen. David Elazar, the Israeli chief of staff, said Israel must consider that Syria might start a war so long as the two sides do not reach a separation of forces agreement.

Jaycees Provide Varied Community Service Aims

By BENNY HORTON
Jaycee Secretary
Jaycees are active. Have you ever watched an athletic contest and realized after it was over that you had not noticed the officials at any time during the game?

This happens quite often because the officials are well trained and do their job so efficiently that you may not even notice that they are there. Without these men no contest could be held with any degree of success or organization. They are the silent backbone of an organized sport.

The Pampa Jaycees have been much like the referee in the past several years. The work has been going on, but it has not always been recognized or publicized.

Many people have recently asked about the Jaycees and what they have been doing, mainly because little publicity has been released by the club.

The year's activities have been varied with many projects aimed at community involvement.

One project which has been carried on for several years by the Pampa Jaycees is the Blue Star Home Program.

A city-wide project, it places Blue Stars in the windows of homes throughout the city. If a child needs help of any kind, he may go to any house with a Blue Star displayed in the window and receive a helping hand. The project is sponsored by the Jaycees, local PTA's and the Pampa School District.

Several charities were assisted by the Jaycees this year with money and manpower. The recent March of Dimes drive saw many Jaycees spending Saturday morning and afternoon swinging buckets at two locations in Pampa.

The club also sponsored a bike rider in the Cancer Bike-A-Thon and provided refreshments at one of the rest stops during the race. Many hours were also spent addressing and folding literature for the last United Fund charity drive.

The Jaycees also worked with other Pampa clubs in the recent Model Legislature held at the Pampa High School. This is a project started several years ago by the Jaycees to give the students of Pampa a better insight into the workings of the state government.

Other recent Jaycee activities include sponsoring the Freddie Hart show at M.K. Brown auditorium, helping to organize a flea market for the Coronado Merchants Association, and supplying trophies for the Chamber of Commerce Livestock show.

In December, the Jaycees sponsored a Christmas Shopping Tour to give underprivileged children an opportunity to purchase presents for their family that otherwise they could not afford. Many other clubs and individuals help the Jaycees with the financing of projects such as this.

Jaycees are interested in those less fortunate than themselves. The club sponsored with the Jaycees a picnic for retarded children. The kids were also treated to their first airplane ride by one of the club pilots. Many underprivileged children are treated to rides and hamburgers and drinks at the annual Jaycee Fair.

Your Jaycees are here and are active. If you are between the ages of 18 and 36 there is a place for you in the Pampa Jaycees. President Paul Peoples and Secretary Benny Horton invite you to look into your community and serve it as a Pampa Jaycee.

For more information call Paul at 665-3076 or Benny at 669-2981, or any other Pampa Jaycee.

Hearing Center Planning Benefit Show Of Movie

The date for the seventh annual benefit movie for the Amarillo Speech and Hearing Center is being announced by the Parent's Organization.

At 8 p.m. on March 28 at the Esquire Theater in Amarillo, the G-rated movie "Where The Lilies Bloom" will be screened for a one-time preview performance.

The movie is set in North Carolina where 14-year-old Mary Call has taken over the responsibility of keeping the Luther family together upon the death of the widowed father. The struggle to keep the family intact rather than allow themselves to be shipped off to an orphanage involves a number of strategies, including the matter of keeping a neighbor away from the older sister Devola, who is far less practical than Mary Call. The family lives amid poverty in a cabin wallpapered with newspaper, but surrounded by glorious mountain scenery.

The script is by Earl Hamner, Jr., creator of TV's hit series "The Waltons." Proceeds from the movie are given to the Center to purchase audiological testing equipment and electronic amplification systems for the classrooms.

In prior years this fund-raising project has enabled the Center to buy individual amplification units for pre-school students and audiometric test equipment. Patron tickets are $8, contributor tickets are $4 and children's tickets are $2. Tickets for the movie are available from any member of the Parent's Organization, or may be obtained by contacting the Amarillo Speech and Hearing Center at 3108 S. Fillmore in Amarillo. The phone number is 374-0121.

Tech Planetarium Slates Special Velikovsky Show

LUBBOCK — Remember when the sun used to rise in the west? According to psychoanalyst Dr. Immanuel Velikovsky, in the ancient past, the earth stood still, tilted and literally turned upside down.

Historic records and legends from all over the world speak of a great natural catastrophe occurring about the second millennium B.C. Before this event, the sun rose in the west and what now are the north and south poles were reversed, according to Velikovsky.

"Cosmic Chaos: Velikovsky's World," is the topic of exploration currently at the Moody Planetarium of The Museum of Texas Tech University. The presentation will be made Saturdays and Sundays at 3 p.m. in the Planetarium through April 28. Admission to the showing is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children. Members of the West Texas Museum Association are admitted without charge.

Venus was long thought to be very similar to Earth. Until Mariner II, an unmanned spacecraft, provided more accurate information, most speculations about Venus were unchallenged.

Years before the voyage of the Mariner II, Velikovsky published a book entitled "World in Collision." In the book he predicted temperatures and characteristics of Venus which opposed any previous theories about the planet. The Mariner voyage proved many of his theories to be accurate.

Velikovsky based his theories on research he had done in Egyptian history which led him to further explore ancient legends and historical records.

He proposed that Venus is the offshoot of an explosion on Jupiter. The beginnings of Venus rushed outward from Jupiter into an orbit around the sun which was to upset the orbits of other planets and to wreak havoc upon the Earth.

As the Earth passed through the rush of Venus' journey across space, nearly colliding with it, the seas of the earth emptied onto the continents in great convulsions. The planet's crust folded and volcanoes erupted into mountain chains. Climates changed suddenly with ice settling over lush vegetation while green meadows and forests were transformed into deserts.

Dear Abby

Changing your name is not way to play the game

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very successful and highly respected businessman. We have two sons who are planning to follow in their father's footsteps. The problem: Our name.

It has been in the newspapers often over the years because someone with the same name as ours has been involved in some terrible scandals. In fact he was found guilty of a crime and served time in a federal penitentiary. Wherever we go we are asked if we are related to this infamous character, because he has a brother who is in the same business as my husband.

We say no, which is true, but it still bothers us. At this stage of my husband's life, he doesn't want to change his name. But what do you think about our sons changing theirs? They love their father and wouldn't want to hurt him, but their lives would be much less complicated if they didn't have to explain that they are NOT related to "so-and-so." [And how about people who think we are—but never ask?]

VICTIMIZED IN N.Y.

DEAR VICTIMIZED: The unfortunate coincidence of having the same name as one who has sinned is a widely shared experience. However, it carries no real stigma, because intelligent, fair-minded people judge a man by his own performance. And those who don't, deserve to be ignored.

DEAR ABBY: I am 26, not bad looking, have a college degree, and a very good job. However, I have a serious problem. Due to an accident, I have trouble controlling my bladder. During the daytime I control it by going to the restroom often, but I cannot control it at night.

Because of my bed-wetting, I probably never will marry unless I find a girl who has the same problem. It isn't easy to find such a girl because she probably would be too embarrassed to admit it.

How can I meet girls about my age who also wet the bed? If they wrote to you, we could correspond. I promise not to rush into marriage; I would be very cautious and be sure we loved each other first. Thank you.

WANTS TO MARRY

DEAR WANTS: Instead of looking for a girl with the same problem, look for a girl who qualifies in every other way, then deal with the problem later. A possible solution is the "wet alarm," which awakens you during the night and helps you to keep dry. Another, twin beds.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who is considered quite popular. [I am not bragging, but people tell me I am very pretty, and I know I have a good figure.]

My problem is that I don't want to damage my reputation which is okay, but it's getting tougher to keep it that way. You see, when a fellow takes me to a show or some place nice and spends his hard-earned money on me, I feel that I can't turn him down when he wants to park and make out.

I don't go too far, Abby, but afterwards I feel so cheap. Is this wrong when I know when to stop?

CANDY

DEAR CANDY: When a fellow asks you out, all he is entitled to is your company. And unless you want to risk your hard-earned reputation, don't feel obligated to give a fellow his hard-earned money's worth. YOU may know when to stop, but he may insist on calling the signals.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69704, L.A., Calif. 90009. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Through this method the ABWA Educational Program was presented to prospective members.

Mrs. Willis explained that ABWA is a national association designed to meet the needs of women who are in business keeping them informed of new and improved business techniques and increasing their self confidence and efficiency.

Mrs. Schickendanz told of the membership dues and explained that the cost was nominal for the amount of information received. Membership also includes an accident policy along with discounts at certain resorts.

Mrs. Seawright told of the monthly dinner meeting, held in nice restaurants; the education, social, and cultural activities of the chapter, the development of many friendships along with the improvement in poise and self expression.

Mrs. Elledge told of the Boss Night Banquet in honor of the bosses. She explained that May is Scholarship Month when ABWA honors scholarship recipients at a special dinner. There's Anniversary Month and Special Enrollment Events, also there are Regional and National Conventions to attend.

Homemakers can help in the energy crisis by planning their cooking procedures to get the most efficient use of each appliance, such as preparing several dishes at once with a single heating of the oven.

Your Horoscope

By Jean Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 16

Your birthday today: In the future, this coming year will be remembered as one of extremes, of busy searches for the best of everything, with mixed results. Unusual contacts build into strong relationships unexpectedly, while some seemingly excellent introductions lead nowhere. Generally speaking, this promises to be a rather happy year for you. Today's natives tend to plunge headlong into whatever interests them, are sometimes called "erratic" for doing so.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: If you can be discreet and considerate in your manner, you have it made despite quite an agenda of things to do and in a very short time.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: While not a difficult day, there are a few ill-considered situations to stay out of, a few sensible habits to follow. Deal with people you can see face-to-face.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Do what is clearly your responsibility to take care of, in as quiet a fashion as you can. Watch how you spend your money—where it goes and for what.

Cancer [June 21-July

22]: Your tact makes the difference in this day of complex personal encounter. Even the simplest meeting carries subtle implications for the future.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Working conditions are subject to improvement, but it's your initiative that does it. Take on no more than you are sure you can finish.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Enough of anything is plenty for the moment. Prudence is natural for you but does not quite help your current need for exploration of nearby potentials.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Your own daydreams blend with the needs and program of the organization or group, although not all of what you had hoped for can happen.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: A great deal can be brought to fulfillment by persistent endeavor. Travel and communications over distances tend to encounter heavy going at every turn.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Caution today seems very difficult for you to achieve, but make a good stab at it. Social activities invite possible conflicts.

A Path To Energy Independence--What Supplies Can Be Tapped?

By AL ROSSITER JR., UPI Science Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The quickest route to energy independence is the road to the coal mines.

Once the cornerstone of the American economy, the coal industry today is a sleeping giant that must be awakened to fill the burgeoning gap between oil and gas production and the nation's thirst for fuel, say federal energy officials.

Coal is a major part of President Nixon's energy plan because it is domestically abundant and can be converted to clean-burning synthetic gas and oil.

But to ease the energy burden on fossil fuels, the energy research effort is spending more time and money developing nuclear power—a sometimes overpromised resource that still offers the greatest hope for long-term energy independence. All other conceivable energy sources also are being explored, including the one with the greatest ultimate potential of all—the sun.

"Project Independence," Nixon, launching "Project Independence," has called on the nation's scientists and engineers to lead the United States by 1980 to where it no longer needs to import oil and gas.

Government officials have acknowledged the goal is overoptimistic, so the five-year, $11 billion energy research plan, according to deputy director John C. Sawhill of the Federal Energy Office, will demonstrate that by 1980 "we're well on the way to self-sufficiency."

Here are the resources from which the nation can draw:

—Fossil fuels: The United States has enough coal to last hundreds of years, and there are hundreds of billions of barrels of oil locked in shale in Colorado, Wyoming and Utah. Vast amounts of untapped oil and gas may lie in the sediments off the nation's coasts.

—Nuclear power: Its development has lagged, but the atom nevertheless is generating about 5 per cent of the nation's electricity and its long-term future appears bright.

—The sun: An endless source of energy, and progress is being made in harnessing it on a small scale. There is hope it, too, will have a major role someday in power production.

—Geothermal: Heat from the Earth's crust is another energy source. It now is being utilized in some parts of the world and in California, and interest in its use is increasing in the Western states.

—Others: The sun is indirectly responsible for other natural sources of energy: winds which have driven windmills for centuries, and rivers which harnessed to hydroelectric plants generate more electricity now than nuclear energy.

Environmental Drawbacks

The use of fossil fuels and nuclear power have environmental drawbacks, which in many cases have hindered their development.

It would be nice if a neat solar package, or geothermal, or wind or tide or whatever would solve all of our energy problems and leave our environment inviolate, but this is not going to happen," said Dixy Lee Ray, a biologist who is chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) and author of the nation's basic energy development plan.

So the idea is to proceed along different routes, drawing on the resources of several government agencies and private industry.

The first step is to conserve what already is being used, and Nixon has asked Congress for $164 million in the next fiscal year to finance research on saving energy and making better use of it.

But in the drive for quicker self-sufficiency, coal is at the forefront. It represents 89 per cent of all of the nation's fossil fuel reserves.

One reason the United States is not using more coal now is because of environmental problems, including pollution produced by burning coal. To counter this, the government is embarking on a crash program to convert coal into clean-burning synthetic gas and oil.

Nixon asked Congress to appropriate more than half a billion dollars on coal research in fiscal 1975. The government's investment in coal is expected to be well over $2 billion within five years, with private industry contributing $3 billion more.

Synthetic Gas

Turning coal into high grade pipeline gas as a substitute for natural gas is the most promising avenue for quickest results, scientists say. The chemistry is simple—coal is heated, and hydrogen obtained from water is added to produce a burnable gas.

Synthetic gas now can be made from coal, but there are no commercial gasification plants. The government plans to support private construction of several commercial-sized plants to lay the groundwork for additional gasification plants. The government estimates the first plants could start producing gas by 1977.

The technology is not as advanced for converting coal into oil on a large scale, although pilot plants are working. Coal-derived oil from one plant already has fired the steam generating boilers of a Navy destroyer.

The government hopes to support the construction of a commercialized plant to check out the coal-to-oil process.

Triple Coal Production Dr. D. William Gouse, acting director of the rapidly expanding federal Office of Coal Research, predicts the nation will have to triple its coal production by 1985 to meet the demand.

There were 593 million tons of coal mined in 1973. Gouse sees a need to double that to 1.2 billion tons by 1985 but said he didn't know whether it could be done.

The coal is there for the taking. The U.S. Geological Survey estimates 1.1 trillion tons of commercial quality coal lies within 3,000 feet of the surface. The National Coal Association calculates 800 billion tons could be mined with present know-how.

In addition to coal, the nation's rocks hold immense amounts of energy in the form of oil shale. The government estimates there are 600 billion tons of rock in Colorado, Wyoming and Utah that can produce an estimated 600 billion barrels of oil—nearly 100 times the national consumption of petroleum in 1973.

There are techniques for extracting oil from rock, but the process was not considered economical. It is now.

Highest Bid

Standard Oil of Indiana and Shell bid an astounding $10 million in January to lease 5,000 acres of oil shale land in northwest Colorado. That figures to $1,319 an acre—highest ever bid on government land. A four-company combine later bid $117 million for a nearby 5,000-acre tract.

Oil is extracted from shale when the rock is crushed and baked at temperatures over 800 degrees to produce vapors which can be converted into petroleum products. The Standard-Shell consortium expects to start producing 100,000 barrels of oil a day by 1979.

The environment will suffer from oil shale mining because of the deposits of sterile, leftover rock. But promising research is underway to recover oil from shale without having to dig the rock.

In addition to converting coal and shale into oil and gas, a study completed in September concluded that vast offshore oil and gas reserves can be developed in the 1980s with low risk to the environment.

One Million Barrels A Day About 1 million barrels of oil a day are pumped out of offshore areas, primarily in the Gulf of Mexico and off Southern California. The study also said the coastal shelf off New England, New Jersey, the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida and Alaska has potential of producing 2.6 million barrels daily.

But the supply of fossil gas will not last forever and America's supply of natural gas is almost exhausted. If consumption continues at its present rate and new sources are not found, the nation will run out of natural gas in 20 years.

There are 40 nuclear power plants in operation, 56 are under construction and more than 100 are on order. Although it takes almost 10 years to get a nuclear plant operating, the AEC expects nuclear power by 1980 to quadruple and produce 20 per cent of the country's electrical output—replacing 2.5 million barrels of oil a day or 224 million tons of coal annually.

The current nuclear reactors operate by splitting atoms of uranium, releasing about 20,000 times as much heat as can be obtained from an equivalent weight of coal. The heat turns water into steam, which drives a turbine, which drives a generator.

Less than 1 per cent of the naturally occurring uranium appears in fissionable form and if the nation continues to build reactors which use only this rare element, another shortage is likely.

To avoid this, the AEC is accelerating its effort to develop an advanced reactor called a breeder, which would produce more nuclear fuel than it consumes. It will convert the abundant nonfissionable uranium into fissionable plutonium, making a breeder 100 times more fuel-efficient than current reactors.

The AEC expects to have a $700 million demonstration breeder plant in operation in Oak Ridge, Tenn., by 1980. Dr. Ray said the breeder "is the only presently proven feasible way to assure an adequate energy resource for uncounted years in the future."

The AEC expects nuclear reactors to be generating 60 per cent of the nation's electricity by 1980.

Atomic power, however, also has problems. Some scientists worry that an accident could spew radioactive material into the environment, endangering human life.

The AEC says that chance is one in a million. In 16 years, not one member of the public has been harmed by a nuclear power plant mishap.

Scientists hope in the next century to control the thermonuclear fusion reactions which give hydrogen bombs their awesome destructive power.

The sun creates its vast energy by such fusing of hydrogen atoms to release enormous amounts of energy. If man can imitate the sun and manage fusion, it would produce a safe power generation source using a virtually unlimited fuel resource—seawater.

Several government agencies already have started projects to use sun rays to heat and cool buildings. Solar radiation has been used for years in some areas to heat water.

But the major potential of the sun is converting its radiation into electricity. Skylab space station supported nine men for a total of 171 days in orbit with power generated from sunlight.

The Confusion Crisis

The Rev. Mr. Billy Graham invariably makes interesting remarks because — whether you think he is right or wrong — you don't mistake what he is saying. He is always clear. A case in point was his declaration in Manhattan, Kan. in which he listed four internal crises that confront the inhabitants of this country.

confidence in government (because of Watergate), potentially disastrous economic problems in inflation and shortages of energy and food, and a wave of political terrorism.

"But the supreme crisis that confronts us is neither political nor economic. It is moral and spiritual," he said.

Our list of crisis coincides in part and disagrees in part with that of Mr. Graham.

We would say that the supreme crisis is moral, spiritual, and intellectual. The intellectual aspect is that moral and spiritual men do not understand how moral and spiritual standards gear into economic decisions. We have "good and godly" men in this country who believe that taking the property of other against their consent is not stealing provided the deed is done legally.

As to the secondary crisis, in our view, the evil is not lack of confidence in government, but rather too much confidence in misgovernment. Actually lack of confidence in rulers is a healthy sign. When individuals stop worshipping Washington, D.C. — and looking toward Potomac institutions to supply their needs — then they at least have the inclination to worship God and to seek His help. That's what we believe Mr. Graham would be for, if he thought the matter through.

Inflation, energy and food dislocations occur because people generally put so much confidence in government that politicians begin to intervene in the orderly working of the marketplace. Such shortages are primarily a symptom, not a cause. They rarely occur unless preceded by governmental intervention.

Terrorism comes about for two reasons. One of these is that foreign enemies send in agents to do the enemies' work. The second is that the domestic government is so busy policing its own citizens that it doesn't have enough executive talent left over to deal with foreign terrorists.

Where Enterprise Begins

"The problem with us enterprisers," a businessman remarked, "is that we are Marxists at heart."

He went on to explain that he had been doing a bit of self-examination.

Marx and followers taught that environment shapes the destiny of man, that man has a role in his own destiny because he is part of the environment. The businessman asserted that he had fallen heir to the "it" syndrome. That is, he had become accustomed to blaming prevailing conditions upon society, upon the government, upon economic trends. He said that he had been continually hoping things would get better if the social setting improved, if the government would change policy, or if economic trends improved. In short, he confessed, "I was speaking out for enterprise with my lips, but in basic conviction I was an environmental determinist and too dumb to know it."

Of course, no one denies that environment has an influence upon our behavior. We react differently to different colors. We tend to feel serene in beautiful surroundings. Music of one kind or another changes our bodily reactions. But which comes first, a beneficial environment or strong men who adapt the environment to their visions of what they see within it?

True, at times and places nature is lavish. Men find it difficult, on the one hand, to take dominion over nature and, at the same time, to live within the rules that the physical laws of nature impose. They can err in two directions. They can worship nature and become subservient to it. That is called fatalism. Or they can master nature and despoil the landscape. That is called humanism. The secret, in our associate's view, is to work in harmony with nature, much as the skilled artisan works in harmony with his tools. A craftsman does not downgrade the importance of adequate tools. Neither does he waste a great deal of time in attributing workmanship, good or bad, to the instruments that he uses or to the material that he is working on. He takes that responsibility on himself and that — the businessman stated — is his notion of true enterprise. It begins with the individual.

If Haldeman Was Lying--- Was President Lying Too?

To some, the debate over what is an impeachable offense seems a futile exercise. Even if the legal scholarship indicates that political offenses were envisaged by the framers of the Constitution, it is widely assumed that it would not be feasible for the House to impeach or the Senate to convict President Nixon on any count less than a criminal one.

Well, even if that were so, the legal argument must be made on as sound a basis as possible, and the precedents, both British and American, indicate that the impeachment clause has a definite meaning, one not confined to statutory offenses. And if the legal argument is scrupulous, it will prepare the basis for proceeding on grounds more realistic than proof under the particulars of the criminal code. For instance, H.R. Haldeman has been indicted for perjury because of his contention that President Nixon rejected as wrong the Dean proposal to pay hush money up to a million dollars to the Watergate defendants.

Everyone was quick to notice that President Nixon repeated this allegedly perjurious statement in a press conference. If Haldeman is proved to be lying, then obviously the President was lying too. Does this expose him to impeachment? Many would think so.

But remember this. If Haldeman was lying, he did it before the Ervin committee, under oath. This makes his lie an act of perjury. President Nixon was not under oath in his press conference. Where is his crime, in the strict sense?

Did it occur in the taped conversation? But it is not a lie to say something like "there is no problem in raising a million dollars" — omitting any reference to the fact that this would be wrong. Some assume that the whole conversation will indicate a will to obstruct justice on President Nixon's part — but that is not necessarily the case. Haldeman claims the President was just drawing Dean out, asking hypothetical questions, etc. The conversation may be equivocal under the rules of purely criminal evidence.

Perhaps Nixon was obstructing justice in his press conference, if he repeated Haldeman's alleged lie to cover up the cover-up. But it might be difficult to prove this one statement fit all the standards of felonious obstruction.

Still, we have a President of the United States now suspected of lying to the nation about the facts of Watergate, in a press conference that made the solemn pretense of openness, revelation, and cooperation with the courts. Even before it could be decided which (if any) specific part of the criminal code such conduct violates, it is evident that such an exercise in nonaccountability is behavior that unfits an man for democratically held office under a Constitution that includes the impeachment clause.

Labor Chiefs Reject Boycott In Showdown With Chavez

By VICTOR RIESEL
WASHINGTON — They did not come to bury Cesar Chavez — but neither did they come to raise him millions of dollars such as he already has poured into his farm workers organizing campaign in California's fruit, lettuce and citrus valleys.

They did come to president George Meany's tightly closed eighth-floor office in labor's expanded national headquarters here to talk candidly with the sad-eyed little Chicano who is more of a universalist than a unionist. That was on the morning of Thursday, March 7. For almost an hour the big labor federation's top leaders, meeting as a small special farm workers problem committee, told off Chavez.

Bluntly, according to some of those inside the big room, they told Chavez to start running a union, discipline his people — and stop harassing other unions' members.

In effect, one AFL-CIO vice president told Chavez to be a man if he wants to be a leader. Get a plan. Stop picketing whole chains of food stores and supermarkets. Stop cutting down the jobs of other unionists in the grape and wine bottling fields.

And that the AFL-CIO was not endorsing his boycott.

Cesar Chavez, now leading a dwindling United Farm Workers (UFW), left the gathering with more charisma than fraternity. He never did relate to the sturdy professionals in labor's national hierarchy. Nor they to him. True, he is the symbol of most of their younger, knock 'em down militant years. They had tried to help.

For years they had supplied $10,000 monthly so Chavez could run the Farm Workers Organizing Committee. This was in cash. There was other assistance. Some of it in muscle. Last year they rushed in $1.6 million so he could pay a healthy $90 weekly to his people in strike relief during the violent spring strike.

"That money has been spent," says one of the federation's top-side policymakers. "And we're expecting him to pull another stoppage this April or May at harvest time. This can affect our people in several manufacturing and retail trades. And it will whip up the cost of living — which hits our people hardest."

"We believe he has a great cause, helping the farm workers, but he just can't run a union. And every time we criticize him his champions, especially in the church, forget this."

They forget the aberrations of some of his followers, the support of the Black Panthers, the parading with the picture of Egypt's late dictator Abdel Nasser or the misuse of fast cars on some mighty strange missions in the East. His brand of radicalism just isn't our type of unionism. Well, he's not immune to criticism. We know how his church friends feel. We don't subscribe to Filtz's (Teamsters president) crack about letting the clergy care for the Ten Commandments while we care for unionism. But we do think he'd better start running a union before he gets any more of our money, or blood for that matter.

Chavez's farm workers have never paid their per capita dues to the AFL-CIO. They haven't carried their weight inside labor as have smaller unions such as the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. And the UFW leaders have broken their word not to picket "the whole store." They have gone after large chains in St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit and New York. They tried to crush all purchasing and not just the buying of lettuce or grapes.

So Meany will not raise more money for them unless they discipline themselves. He just doesn't believe the UFW has much of a future. He is disturbed by the fact that Chavez's own people went behind his picket lines and worked in the fields last year while the AFL-CIO handed over huge sums to keep the strike going.

Now the 46-year-old Chavez plans another strike.

The Teamsters, who have signed up most of the growers, say they won't bring in their own guards — but this time let the sheriffs and deputies handle the Chavez picket lines. This throws the UFW against the official law enforcement agencies if there's violence.

But Cesar Chavez hardly is without friends. The clergy is with him, especially the Catholic Bishops' Msgr. George Higgins, a most dedicated man of considerable culture and charisma himself. And easily the church's most knowledgeable labor specialist — long a friend of the late urban activist Saul Alinsky as well as of other world intellectuals.

The church is everywhere with Chavez. In Brooklyn recently nuns led the farm workers' boycott picket line at a big store. One sister was arrested. Special delegations have come from around the world.

So this is a universal issue now. Almost a theocratic one.

So the national union chiefs may yet give unto Cesar Chavez what he — and the clergy and academe — believe is due him. If he develops a disciplined strategy. They told him to return in a few weeks. But no date was set.

New Substance May Keep You Young Hundred Years

Okay, so getting old is less fun than staying young. Let's stay young.

What's the prospect for stopping the aging process?

If researchers in the clinic can counteract a mysterious protein they've found in the laboratory, you may stay young for 100 years.

The American Aging Assn. is a private, lay scientific organization.

Until now it's been just another of several associations seeking ways and means of improving prospects for retirement-age Americans. It lobbies for legislation, sponsors geriatric medical research and otherwise seeks to be of what help it can to our elderly.

But the other day it summoned a national meeting to hear details of a mysterious substance — a protein called amyloid — which appears to influence the aging process.

Life expectancy for early Americans was 26. For each subsequent generation until 1955, life expectancy was extended.

ages of ancient times.

Harvard's Dr. Alexander Leaf has studied centenarians in remote areas of Ecuador, Russia and Kashmir, seeking some common denominator among the very old.

This protein, amyloid, more than another factor appears to be associated with the aging process everywhere.

Dr. Edgar Cathcart of Boston University says this protein is also found by veterinarians in aged horses, cats, dogs and rodents.

It is a vicious protein which so complicates certain chronic infections as to render some cases of leprosy, tuberculosis and rheumatoid arthritis untreatable, "fatal."

And the more that we are learning from autopsies and other studies indicates amyloid is an important factor in producing senility.

Amyloid is common in old people, extremely common in the very old.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

McGovern's Boondoggle Gets $288,000 Refresher

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON — You haven't read or heard a word about it, but Sen. George McGovern has just wangled another hefty "refresher" for that ingenious boondoggle he has been operating since 1968 — the sonorously titled "Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs."

In the six years of generating publicity puffery for the South Dakota radical, it has cost taxpayers around $1.5 million.

Latest fund infusion is $288,000 — swished through the Senate with only a few members present, no record vote, and no media attention. This speedy appropriating of more than a quarter of a million dollars of public money to keep alive a longstanding special committee of decidedly questionable value was simply ignored by the media.

Actually, McGovern demanded $399,000. But the Senate Rules Committee balked and much to his annoyance cut it to $111,000.

Last year, the South Dakotan managed to get only $255,000, after seeking $291,000. And he got the reduced amount with a pointed warning from Senate Republican whip Robert Griffin (Mich.) that "a number of Senators believe this special committee is not to go on forever, in fact, the budget was cut to expressly make it evident that this temporary committee is to be phased out."

Obviously, McGovern didn't take that emphatic hint. And neither did his pals on the Democratic-controlled Rules Committee who dished out the $288,000 "refresher" — although they didn't give him the other $111,000 he wanted.

Petulantly, McGovern served notice he isn't giving up on that. He insisted the money is necessary to finance a so-called "national nutrition policy conference" — he is sponsoring with the backing of Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., to be held in Washington July 19-21.

Designated "coordinator" of this pow-wow, to be attended by some 250 "experts" and "specialists" with all expenses paid by the government, is Dr. Jean Mayer, long-time McGovern favorite who has repeatedly testified before his select committee.

Publicity Gimmick
It is of more than passing interest that both McGovern and Percy are active candidates this year. McGovern is uneasily running for reelection against admittedly tough opposition. To help him, the South Dakota militant has collected a campaign chest of some $500,000 for use in a state with around 300,000 voters. He is "running scared" — and with good reason.

Percy is already in the field for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination. To "explore" his prospects, the Illinois "progressive," as he characterizes himself, has accumulated a fund of $90,000.

Curiously, Percy took no part in McGovern's peevish pitch on the Senate floor for the full $399,000 "refresher" he was demanding.

McGovern repeatedly invoked Percy's name as approving the amount and as being co-sponsor of the proclaimed grandiose "national nutrition policy conference." But the Illinoisan remarkably said nothing. He is ranking Republican member on the select committee but is not noted for doing much, if anything, on it.

Neither are the other 12 members (7 Democrats, 5 Republicans). The only one busying himself at all about it is McGovern.

In 1972, when the South Dakotan ran for President, only 12 committee hearings were held — none of which he attended. He was out on the hustings noisily stumping for votes. That year the committee's appropriation was $255,000 — of which $212,000 went for staff salaries; $20,000 for "consultants"; $15,000 for "investigative travel."

Still Hope
While the Rules Committee balked at the $111,000 for the "nutrition policy conference," it didn't wholly slam the door on that.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., chairman, explained the rejection was because the committee felt it would establish an undesirable precedent. Said Cannon: "This request would establish an entirely new precedent of permitting committees of Congress to sponsor seminars in Washington or elsewhere in the country at government expense, and bring in large numbers of people to participate at government expense."

Irritably, McGovern wrangled and argued — but all he got was advice to try some other stratagem. Beyond that, Cannon politely but firmly wouldn't go.

One In 6 Texans Is A Baptist

DALLAS (UPI) — About one person in every six in Texas — 2,001,022 to be exact — is a Baptist, statistics showed recently.

The statistics were prepared by the Baptist General Convention of Texas. By "Baptists," the convention means members of Southern Baptist affiliated churches.

Texas has a total population of about 12 million persons. The present membership of Baptist churches compares with 1,965,723 in 1972.

Grows 2 Per Cent

According to the Baptist General Convention of Texas, the growth of Baptist congregations in the state reflects the growth rate of the SBC — about 2 per cent.

The Baptists contributed record amounts in Texas in 1973. They gave a total of $16,971,392 through their Cooperative Program and $6,966,404 to designated purposes.

The Cooperative Program is the pipeline through which SBC churches contribute to a variety of efforts, like missions at home and abroad, administrative services and institutions such as hospitals, child care facilities and homes for the aging.

Designated funds go to such special efforts. A year ago, Texas Baptists contributed $15,294,087 through the Cooperative Program and $6,254,288 in special funds.

The new statistics showed 3,855 churches and 350 missions in Texas. During the past year, 46 churches were formed and 54 were disbanded, or otherwise became inactive.

The statistics also showed that statewide about 2,000 more Baptists attended Sunday School than the previous year, about 10,000 more were in choirs and about 800 more belong to men's groups.

TRY A LITTLE GRATITUDE (Luke 17:11-19)
Last Sunday was a very beautiful day. The clouds were thick, and all morning the much-needed moisture fell from the sky. It should have been a day of rejoicing and thanking God for answering our prayers for rain. However, instead of God's people making their way to God's house to thank Him for answering their prayers, many stayed home and said, "it is too miserable a day to go to church."

In the gospel of Luke we have the story of the ten lepers who were cleansed by Jesus. In this story, ten men who were suffering from the most dreaded disease of their time came to Jesus and called out to Him, "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us." He answered their request and cleansed them. One realized it and turned back praising God. When he reached Jesus he fell on his face at Jesus' feet, giving Him thanks. Then said Jesus, "where are the other nine?"

The nine had gone on, cleansed of leprosy but now suffering from the disease called ingratitude. A young boy was handed a prize he had won at a church party and he responded not with a "thank you," but rather with "is that all?" An elderly lady was very hard pressed to make a living. Her house needed painting in the worst way, but she had no means with which to do it or have it done. One weekend while she was away the young people of a local church came to her home and painted it. When the lady arrived home she replied not with "I appreciate this," but instead complained because she did not like the color. Ingratitude, a disease most common to men of all ages.

Though the nine went on their merry way, one did return to give thanks. He expressed an attitude that brings a smile to God's face for it pleases Him very much. It is God's desire that His children give thanks unto Him, for all things, at all times.

When we express gratitude to God, not only does it please Him, but it enriches our lives. Jesus came, it says in John 10:10, that we might have life and have it more abundantly. Many there are who have received life from Him but find themselves lacking in the abundant part. The disease of ingratitude is part of the reason for this lack of full joy in the Christian life. If things have not gone so well lately and there seems to be a void in your life, TRY A LITTLE GRATITUDE.

Did You Know This About OUR RELIGIONS?

By Dr. Carlyle Adams

Catholics Now Advocate Evening Funeral Masses

Some Roman Catholic churches, under diocesan counsel, now are advocating that funeral Masses be offered at evening hours instead of morning. The argument for the practice is that it places less strain on the families of the deceased and eliminates the traditional "wake." In the past quarter-century this has been a common Protestant practice in larger American cities — especially New York. The funeral is at night and the burial ceremony follows the next morning.

Question: What is the Biblical meaning of the word "sin?"

Answer: It comes from a Hebrew word which means "miss," as in failing to strike the target in the sport of archery. What is implied is the failure to properly aim at the target. The Hebrew religion taught that it was the obligation of humans to seek to be reconciled with God and that it was a sin to deliberately fail in aiming at that goal.

A central teaching of the Bible is that humans can do what they wish to do, but cannot escape the consequences of their acts. When a chemist mixes certain elements in a given formula, the formula must be followed or else the desired effects will not be achieved. A person may leap from the top of a high building, but cannot escape the fatal impact on the ground below.

Question: Is there an official publication of the United Church of Canada?

Answer: The official organ is the United Church Observer, published at 85 St. Clair Ave. E., Toronto 7, Ont.

The church was formed in 1925 by a union of the Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian churches in Canada. However, a large portion of the Presbyterian church declined to join the union and there is still a Presbyterian Church in Canada with headquarters at 50 Wynford Drive, Don Mills, Ont.

Question: In the Eastern Orthodox Church, a priest cannot be married after ordination. Roman Catholic priests, except in the Eastern Rites, must remain celibate. Are there any marriage restrictions among Rabbis?

Answer: No. The only problem is that an unmarried Rabbi finds himself handicapped in fully expressing his religious leadership. There is an old tradition that a man who is unmarried is limited in his total manhood.

Churchmen Talk Revisionism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After two years of pretty much marking time, American churchmen are once again talking about a renewed social activist role for the nation's churches and synagogues.

The reason: Watergate. "Watergate has put an end to confrontation politics among the branches of government," according to Albert Vorspan, director of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations' social action program.

As a first step to revitalized domestic social action coalition, Vorspan and 17 other religious leaders — many of them active in the now dormant religious antiwar and civil rights efforts — have joined to form what they call the "Religious Committee for Integrity in Government."

Many Sponsors
Among the sponsors of the committee are such mainline churchmen as Sterling Cary, president of the National Council of Churches, Robert Campbell, general secretary of the American Baptist Churches in the U.S.A., Bishop Carroll T. Dozier of the Roman Catholic Church's Memphis diocese, Robert V. Moss, president of the United Church of Christ, and Clarie Collins Harvey, president of Church Women United.

"The times call for citizen affirmation of political responsibility, not cynicism," the committee said in announcing itself.

The committee, which will work through Washington-based staff people of the various agencies and groups, makes no bones about describing Watergate as a moral as well as constitutional crisis.

It lists as its immediate goals "clarification" of moral issues involved; "Justice for the President and the American people;" election campaign reform, including public financing of campaigns, and "restoration of constitutional checks and balances," including a challenge of President Nixon's use of impeachment of appropriated funds "and the abuse and improper assumption of the functions of law enforcement agencies."

Providing Wider Opportunities

Bishop James Armstrong of United Methodist Church, a sponsor of the committee, said it would work to "resensitize the conscience of the land."

"We have been dead to and have worn blinders in the presence of criminality, tax evasion, dirty tricks, gross violations of civil liberties and blatant invasions of privacy."

Vorspan sees the Watergate crisis as providing even wider opportunities for securing "significant federal legislative solutions to neglected social problems in American life."

Unlikely Allies

There are some indications such a coalition might be joined by some heretofore unlikely allies — evangelicals.

In the past, evangelicals have been noted more for their support of the political and social status quo than for activism in the worldly realm of politics and power.

But there are increasing signs that evangelicals are rediscovering an awakened social consciousness, a consciousness that from a political stand point often places them in the same camp as their theological foes in mainstream churches.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible
When is all this going to happen? I really don't need to say anything about that, dear brothers, for you know perfectly well that no one knows. That day of the Lord will come unexpectedly like a thief in the night. When people are saying, "All is well, everything is quiet and peaceful" — then, all of a sudden, disaster will fall upon them as suddenly as a woman's birth pains begin when her child is born. And these people will not be able to get away anywhere — there will be no place to hide.

Hernias Usually Need Surgery

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Last fall I was told by my doctor that I have an incipient inguinal hernia (rupture or hernia in the groin). The hernia has not improved but it has not gotten much worse either. He said I would probably need an operation some time.

How will I know when the hernia is bad enough to require the operation? I am 33 and lead a physically active life.

Any hernia is "bad enough" to warrant surgery, although in the majority of cases it is a matter of choosing a time that is convenient for the patient.

A hernia — a gap or weak place in the abdominal wall — does not get better by itself. The only thing it can do is get worse. This occurs at variable rates in different people. It may stay small and not be troublesome for quite some time. Or it may enlarge rather rapidly.

Worst of all, a loop of intestine may be pushed through the gap and become trapped. This is a "strangulated hernia," and not only is very painful but is extremely perilous, since the trapped tissue is unable to get blood circulation and becomes gangrenous.

When that happens, it's an emergency which has to be taken care of immediately to save the patient's life. Some folks, of course, bumble along with a hernia (or a double hernia, one on each side) for years, usually resorting sooner or later to trusses.

Whether or how soon the hernia becomes strangulated, or becomes painful, or too much nuisance, is problematical. That is a gamble that some patients take — but I wouldn't take that gamble myself.

So my answer to you is just this: the sooner the hernia is repaired surgically, the simpler it will be, and you avoid the risk of a possible emergency.

Choose a time that suits you, and preferably a time when hospitals aren't overcrowded. It's what is called "elective surgery." Do it at your convenience but don't put it off indefinitely.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Last night I heard about a doctor in Mexico who has helped arthritis patients and was wondering if you would tell me something about it. It is some kind of medicine that cannot be purchased in the United States.

Can't imagine if his treatment is so wonderful why it isn't used by the medical profession in this country. The doctor's name is.....

—Mrs. C.H.
There are not, to the best of my knowledge, any such medications being used in Mexico that are not known here; but what is also known here is that the medications (powerful hormones, largely) bring such dramatic results only by using them in such quantities that, in a given length of time, they begin to have intolerable side effects.

The advantage of the Mexican "wonder workers" is that the patients feel better and go home and tell everybody else about what a wonderful treatment it is.

But when the consequences develop, it's the doctor back home who is saddled with taking over treatment. By that time the patient is in no condition to go back to Mexico — and wouldn't be welcomed at that stage of the game anyway.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son at age 11 fell out of a tree and broke his jaw. They did not have to do any surgery but they took at least 20 x-rays in one evening. I became upset and refused to let them take any more.

That was five years ago and his jaw hasn't given him any trouble, but every time I read an article about excessive x-ray being harmful, I wonder if he could suffer any ill effects now or at later times and what would be the symptoms?

—Mrs. D.S.
The 20 x-rays might have totalled an exposure of about two seconds, all told, and I wouldn't expect any harm or any symptoms now or in the future.

To learn of the many factors that can be involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia, which concerns the esophagus, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of Dr. George C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope, and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

What's So New About Streaking?

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — "What's so new about streaking?" demanded the playwright and author Howard Teichmann. "My wife Evelyn's been streaking around our bedroom for years!"

Evelyn spoke up, unblushingly. "And my parents who lived in Wisconsin, Illinois and Ohio, streaked before me. And still do."

Streaking has captured the imagination of the Seventies. The suave maitre d' of El Morocco glanced up the Stairway of the Stars about 2 p.m. and a young man from a famous family was dropping his trousers and getting out of his shorts.

Instead of rushing him some covering, the maitre d' applauded. The streaker took a couple of bows, using his hands as a fig leaf.

Aristotle Onassis' aide Johnny Meyer witnessed the unveiling. It's a private club and he's a member, and there's nothing in the bylaws that says you can't take your clothes off," declared Johnny, logically enough.

On virtually any subject you will find whole sections devoted to books. You may want something relating to a school subject or a book on a hobby or pursuit that is of particular interest to you. Spend some time just browsing around the library just to get some idea of the vast selection waiting for you.

If you are looking for a special book or one on a special subject, you will find an indexed card file where you can find what is available. If the process is strange for you, you will find the librarian or assistant librarian anxious to help you locate a book or special books you may be looking for.

Many libraries have brochures telling you about the service available to you. Take one with you for future reference.

If you haven't become acquainted with your library, now is a good time to do so.
(Distributed by Columbia Features, Inc.)

A girl dancer of the cast of "Irene" phoned me excitedly that male dancer Tony Mendez had just streaked through the "hair room" at the Minskoff Theater — the room where the girls get their hair done. He streaked so fast they didn't get a good look. They wondered if he'd do an encore.

"What was the response?" I asked. "Total pandemonium," she said. Jane Powell, star of the show, off in another part of the theater, missed the streaking.

But everybody was streaking. Marilyn Chambers, the former Ivory Snow Girl, starring at the Riverboat, is managed by Chuck Traynor, ex-husband of Linda Lovelace. He wanted her to go nude — to streak. Lou Perry, the entrepreneur who booked her, vetoed the streaking.

"Streaking," declared Lou Perry, "lacks class."

They didn't call it streaking — they called it nudity — at the spectacular opening of the James Joyce sexodrama "Ulysses in Nighttown" starring Zero Mostel at the Winter Garden.

"Streaking? People just take their clothes off for no reason!" exclaimed luscious Fionnuala Flanagan after playing a most erotic scene. She was a star guest at producer Alex Cohen's huge supper party at Pub Theatrical, languishing in a Tommy De Maio gown, admired by her director Burgess Meredith and her husband Dr. Garrett O'Connor.

Cohen got the idea of having somebody streak at his party but gave it up. Not that nobody wanted to. EVERYBODY wanted to — including Mr. and Mrs. Cohen.

"It's very clear to me," Fionnuala's husband said, "why the streakers are streaking in protest. They wish somebody would REVEAL ALL in this country."

Baseballers Win In 1st Round

SHORTSTOP TODDY BLACK, a whiz with the glove, showed his prowess at the plate in Pampa's 9-3 win over Canyon in the first round of the Hereford baseball tournament Thursday. Black knocked in two runs in the seventh inning with a single. The Harvesters played at 1:45 p.m. today in the second round against the winner of Thursday's Borger-Dumas game.

HEREFORD — Tyler Drinnon knocked in three runs with a bases-loaded triple to spark a seven-run sixth inning and lead the Harvesters to a 9-3 win over the Canyon Eagles in the first round of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Baseball Tournament Thursday here.

The win gives the Harvesters a 5-3 record and was their fifth in a row. The loss eliminated Canyon from a chance at the championship and gives the Eagles a 3-2 season record.

Pampa played the winner of Thursday's Borger-Dumas contest at 1:45 p.m. today.

Pampa, down 2-1 going into the sixth inning, sent 12 men to the plate in the inning and scored seven runs to take an 8-2 lead.

Drinnon knocked in three with his triple, and Toddy Black and Rick Bigham each batted in two with singles with men on second and third.

The Harvesters were helped by two errors and four bases on balls in the inning by pitcher Ed Lair, who went the distance for Canyon and was tagged with the loss.

Canyon got one run back in the bottom of the sixth and Pampa scored one in the seventh to end the scoring.

The Eagles' Doug Day tripled to knock in two runs in the first inning.

Roy Morris (1-1) was Pampa's winning pitcher, giving up eight hits while walking three and striking out eight. Lair gave up four hits and walked seven while striking out nine Harvesters.

Pampa had one error.

"We're making fewer mistakes now and its paying off," said Pampa coach Ronnie White.

"Morris pitched good after he settled down. He had a shaky first inning. Lair pitched good too," added White.

Should the Harvesters win today, they will play for the championship at 4:30 p.m.

Other games Saturday will be the consolation final at 11 a.m. and the third-place game at 1:45 p.m.

The Harvesters made it to the finals last year but lost to Big Spring, 17-7.

9th-Grade Track Season Starts With Pampa Meet

Pampa Junior High's ninth-grade track season opens at 9:30 a.m. Saturday with the preliminaries of the Pampa Ninth-Grade Invitational track meet, involving nine Amarillo schools, Pampa, Dumas, Perryton and Canyon.

The meet was postponed last year because of a snow-covered Randy Matson Track, which will be the site of this year's event.

Pampa's chances for this year? "I don't know," said head track coach Harold Moore, "because it's a little early. We'll be stronger further down. I think we'll have a good track season."

While Moore's team has not competed, Amarillo schools have and those teams (Austin, Bonham, Bowie, Caprock, Crockett, Fannin, Houston, Mann and Travis) will be the favorites to win the Pampa meet.

Prelims and field events will start at 9:30 a.m. and last until 12 noon. Running event finals will begin at 3 p.m. and last until approximately 4:15 p.m.

Pampa's tracksters (listed by event) are:

440-yard relay team — Brian Bailey, Eddie Brown, Ricky Moore and David Caldwell.

100-yard dash — Caldwell, Bailey and Ken Dougherty.

440-yard dash — Moore, Doug Wallin and Hal Davis.

120-yard high hurdles — Mike Lancaster, Jim Beard and David Wortham.

330-yard intermediate hurdles — Lancaster, Beard and Ben Fallon.

220-yard dash — Caldwell, Bailey and Steve Harwood.

880-yard run — Rick Van

Hooser, Claude Steele, Harold Price, Curtis Dalton, Greg Ellis and Mark Keys.

Mile run — same as 880.

Shot put and discus — Caldwell, Matt Hudson, Jerry Franklin, Ben Wilson, Vance Bruce, Pat Bailey, Hank Jordan, Darrell Mitchell and Dusty Neef.

High jump — B. Bailey, Phil George and Don Hughes.

Long jump — Brian Bailey, Moore and Dougherty.

Pole vault — Hudson, George and Dalton.

Competing in running events will also be Henry Williams, Lorenzo Griggs and Terry Chumbley.

Coaches besides Moore are Floyd Hood, Dick Crockett, Joe Holland and Pete Erwin.

IN NCAA TOURNEY Sluggish Bruins Edge By Dayton

By United Press International

What's wrong with the UCLA Bruins, for seven years synonymous with cool precision and awesome power in college basketball, that they must go three overtimes to beat Dayton?

"Have they got weaker, complacent, tired of winning or is it that other schools have suddenly got much better?"

"I certainly never imagined we'd play three overtimes," said UCLA Coach John Wooden, who didn't imagine his team would lose to Oregon or Oregon State last month. "I can't even remember the last time a Bruin team played three overtimes. I think it was sometime in the 1950's against California and I think we won it."

UCLA barely survived its worst scare in eight years Thursday night when Dayton rallied from a 17-point deficit late in the first half to move ahead 80-77 with 1:58 left in regulation time. The Flyers, 207 during the regular season and playing in their first NCAA playoffs in four years, seemed on the verge of upsetting the 21-point favorite Bruins.

But Dave Meyers saved the Bruins by scoring on a rebound with 1:10 left and then canning a foul shot with 43 seconds to go to tie the score 80-80 at the end of regulation.

Through two tense overtime periods Dayton kept up with UCLA, tying the score at 88-88 after the first and 98-98 after the second.

Meyers' 28 Points

Finally Dayton's bubble burst and UCLA's superiority came pouring out in a 13-2 surge that gave the Bruins a 111-100 victory, a berth in the West Regionals semifinals and their 37th straight NCAA tournament triumph.

Meyers, who averaged only 10.8 points per game in the regular season, led UCLA with 28 points.

Mike Sylvester, a relatively unknown 6-foot-5 senior forward from Cincinnati, outplayed both three-time Player of the Year Bill Walton and All-America forward Keith Wilkes. Sylvester's 36-point performance led both teams while the Flyers' regular season scoring leader, Don Smith, had 28.

Walton scored 27 points and had 19 rebounds. Wilkes had 14 points.

"There were plenty of times in the first half when we had big leads that Dayton could have rolled over and let us break it open," Wooden said. "But they refused and deserve great credit for their showing."

Dayton Coach Don Donaher called his team "the greatest group I've ever coached. We made some key turnovers, missed some easy shots in the overtimes and that was the difference," Donaher said. "I had thought all along we had a chance against UCLA because we're a good outside shooting team."

UCLA now plays San Francisco, which beat New Mexico 64-61, in Tucson, Ariz., Saturday afternoon for the right to meet either North Carolina State or Pittsburgh in Greensboro, N.C. for the semifinals March 23.

Thompson's 40 Points

N.C. State gained its quarterfinal berth in the East by beating Providence 92-78 after Pittsburgh edged Furman 81-78. The Wolfpack will meet Pitt Saturday afternoon.

Michigan stunned Notre Dame 77-68 and Marquette downed Vanderbilt 69-61 in the Midwest Regionals while Oral Roberts beat Louisville 96-93 and Kansas edged Creighton 55-54 in the Midwest Regionals.

Harvesters Stop AHS In Big One

AMARILLO — Lynn Wolfe can rest a little easier today.

Her Harvester volleyball team took sole possession of first place in the second half of district play with a 3-0 record after beating the Amarillo Sandies, 15-12, 15-10 Thursday night here.

The Harvesters won the first half outright and in the second half, Amarillo High was their main worry. The Sandies had a 2-0 mark going into Thursday's match.

Now Pampa must play Borger (Tuesday night in Pampa), Palo Duro and Caprock — three teams the Harvesters have already beaten handily.

"The girls played fantastic last night," said Mrs. Wolfe. "They had to beat that team. The Sandies played pretty good, not as good as I've seen them play. They played better over here (in Pampa in the first half).

"Our serving was really good; nobody missed a serve in our second game. Debbie Gray served the most in the game. We played a good defensive game last night; we usually play good offense and we've been weak on defense," said the coach.

"Our blocking was real good."

Concerning Borger, Mrs. Wolfe said, "They're unpredictable. They'll get it together one of these days. They can come at you strong."

McGuire Sidelined For Meet

CANYON — West Texas State University's track squad, which suffered through a third-place finish last week in a three-way meet at Portales, N.M., will tackle an even tougher field Saturday in Arlington.

Coach Bob Kitchens' Buffaloes won only a pair of first places in taking third place behind host Eastern New Mexico University and the University of Wyoming.

The third-place finish at Portales came as a trio of excellent Buffalo athletes were left at home.

Weightman Dennis Briggs, the high-point man in last year's Missouri Valley Conference outdoor meet, stayed at home to take a Civil Service test.

Briggs' fellow weightman, Marvin Self, was suffering from mono and high jumper Gary Six had an injured toe on his jumping foot.

While Self will probably not be ready this week to compete, Briggs and Six will go with the team to Arlington to face a rugged seven-team field.

Other teams entered at the University of Texas at Arlington Relays are University of Oklahoma, Oklahoma State University, Louisiana Tech, North Texas State, Northwest Louisiana and Texas Tech.

Preliminaries start at 9:45 a.m. and finals at 1:30 p.m.

Briggs, who has a best shot effort of 53-8 out of doors, threw 54-10 to win the Missouri Valley Conference Indoor Championships recently. He has tossed the discus 183-10 and has a 198-0 effort in the javelin.

Six has a 6-7 high jump to his credit. Self put the shot 52-10 last spring and had a 181-0 toss in the discus.

The Buffalo sprint relay team of Wayne Cure, Bert Carter, Rick McGuire and Alvin Wright won first place at Portales with a 42.4 clocking. McGuire injured his right leg during the running of the 100-yard dash and will not run on the sprint relay this week. The Pampa freshman may run on the mile-relay team at Arlington.

Carter will also miss the Arlington meet with an injured leg. McGuire and Carter will be replaced on the 440-yard relay by quarter-miler Steve Nieman, a freshman from Hereford, and jumper George Fuller, a Hereford Senior.

Wright captured the other Buffalo first place Saturday. The Paducah freshman ran a wind-aided 9.4 time in the 100-yard dash. Cure was fourth with a 9.6 time.

High School Sports Have Full Schedule

By PAUL SIMS

In what is going to be the busiest weekend for Pampa High School's spring sports this year, Harvesters teams will compete at five West Texas locations — Sunray, Lubbock, Amarillo, Perryton and Hereford.

Both (girls and boys) track squads are in Sunray today for the Sunray Girls Invitational meet and the Bobcat Relays. Saturday, the two Pampa teams will compete, along with the boys golf team, in the Perryton Sports Festival.

The golf teams are involved in district competition today — the boys in Amarillo (Amarillo Public Golf Course) for the fourth 3-AAAA round and the girls in Amarillo (Ross Rogers Golf Course) for their first district round.

The tennis team is in Lubbock for the Lubbock Invitational Tennis Tournament, which concludes Saturday.

Finally, the baseball team is involved in Hereford's Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational tournament, which also winds up on Saturday.

Ed Lehnick, Pampa athletic director, is perhaps the busiest man in Pampa right now.

"In connection with the fact that we've got the biggest volleyball game of the season in Amarillo tonight (Thursday) and all the rest of these things, we've got more going on right now than any other time this year," said Lehnick.

"We've got a ninth-grade track meet here Saturday involving 13 teams. And we're making arrangements for the rest of these — tennis in Lubbock, baseball in Hereford, golf and track in Sunray and Perryton," added the athletic director.

The Perryton Sports Festival will be one of the largest sporting affairs in West Texas Saturday, primarily since it involves girls and boys track, golf and tennis, although Pampa will not compete in the latter.

A year ago, the West Texas Relays in Odessa were held on the same weekend as the Sports Festival and Pampa sent tracksters to both meets. Those who did not go to Odessa competed at Perryton and brought a third-place team trophy back to Pampa.

Three teams participated in the AAAA Division last year, but there will be a larger field this year due to the energy crisis. Several Panhandle teams simply cannot afford to make the trip to Odessa.

The girls track team will vie in the Sports Festival for the first time ever since this is the first year Pampa has had a girls team.

The golf teams, both of which are involved in district rounds today, did not go to Perryton last year.

As far as district play goes, Pampa's boys team is currently in fifth place, 53 shots behind leader Tascosa. Should Pampa (971 after three rounds) shoot a good round today, it could possibly catch fourth-place Caprock (968).

Pampa's B-team is in ninth place in the 2-team field with 1,004.

A-team golfers are Wiley McIntire, who is number 10 in the running for medalist honors, Randy Watson, Mickey Lowe, Scott White and Joel Hickey.

The girls team, coached by Tommy Lindsey, should be a contender in 3-AAAA competition although Tascosa of Amarillo is the favorite going into today's play.

Pampa golfers are Debbie Thompson, Serena Shearer, Gail Simon, Linda Howard and Sharon White. B-team players are Gisele Hudson, Paula Simpson, Gerylyn Hills and Jeffie Suttle.

Alton Setliff's netters began tournament play in Lubbock this morning and will wind up here Saturday. The strongest Harvesters should be Mike Branham, Eugene Laycock, Cassandra Mangold and Martha Plunk.

Other players are Jerry Allen, E. B. Ellis, Paul Skoog, Jack Scott, Steve Knox, Dixie Douglas, Cindy Burns, JoAnn McCausland, Donna Coufal and Stacy Douglas.

Pampa's baseballers are in the seven-team Hereford tournament, which began Thursday.

Leaks To Probably Miss Next Season

AUSTIN (UPI)—Doctors successfully repaired the badly injured knee of Texas fullback Roosevelt Leaks in a two-hour operation Thursday and team physician Paul Trickett said the Longhorn all-American would probably not be able to play next season.

"It looks like that pretty well eliminates him for 1974," Texas coach Darrell Royal said. "I feel really sorry for Roosevelt. If our team could have done well he would have had an excellent run at the Heisman Trophy."

Leaks, however, has two years left in which to use his final season of eligibility, so he could still play for the Longhorns in the 1974 season if his knee prevents him from playing next autumn.

Leaks, who set Southwest Conference single game and season rushing records last year and who was one of only two underclassmen on UPI's first team all-American offensive unit, injured his right knee Wednesday during spring drills.

He was hit from the side while carrying the ball during a scrimmage at Texas' Memorial Stadium and he twisted the knee as he fell.

In medical terms, Trickett explained Leaks tore the medial collateral ligament, tore the anterior cruciate ligament and tore the posterior capsule of the knee.

"It was a good repair," Trickett said. "It was a complete knee tear. The ligaments were completely separated and repaired with a transplant operation. We feel good about the repair and have high hopes that he will have a good knee. But it will take some time for the rehabilitation and we are not expecting him to play this fall."

Knicks Stage Comeback To Belt Warriors

By United Press International

If the Golden State Warriors don't wind up in the NBA playoffs, Rick Barry says they have only themselves to blame.

The Warriors led New York 70-63 in the third period of Thursday night's key clash at Oakland, only to fall victim to a 16-2 blitz that put them behind to stay as the Knicks wound up with the 107-95 win.

The nationally televised clash was the lone NBA game on the schedule and it resulted in Golden State falling one full game back of the Los Angeles Lakers. The two California rivals go at it tonight at the Inglewood Forum and Saturday again at Oakland.

The Warriors again went without pivot man Nate Thurmond, who still can't shake his arch injury and probably will miss tonight's clash at Los Angeles, too. His replacement, George Johnson, was superb, however, blocking six shots and hauling down 22 rebounds. But Golden State might be able to hold those late leads with two big pivot men in top health.

Two Knicks killed the Warriors.

Dave DeBusschere, playing his last game at the Coliseum Arena unless there's a playoff meeting, hit 30 points and held Barry to 22.

"He's good," said Barry afterward. "But he gets away with a lot under there."

TV In Review

By RICK DU BROW HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Five of the top 10 programs in the latest national television ratings are fiction series about crime. So despite all the complaints about the deluge of detective-type video shows, there's no question there is a public appetite for such stories. Movie and television audiences have always liked crime tales, and all the dogooders who try to change that mass taste are bound to fail. Crime stories, after all, are hardly an invention of television, or movies. Such tales are also a staple of book publisher and the theater. And radio has had countless programs about crime. The five crime series that made the "Top 10" in the latest national video ratings are: "Barnaby Rudge," "Hawaii Five-O," "Ironside" and "Cannon."

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ability of the Dow Jones Industrial Average to move above its early January peak of 890 is "viewed as another nail in the bears' coffin," says E.F. Hutton. "The major market trend is now clearly pointed upward," the firm continues, but the Transportation Average still must move beyond its early January high. The market over the past week has had three rallies based on expectations of an end to the oil embargo, so "some discounting of the oil embargo has already occurred," it adds. "Despite the stubborn neutrality of the Dow industrials, which gyrate in a narrow range, an army of stocks is slowly evolving into more favorable classifications," according to Harris, Upham & Co. Inc. The firm says because of the shift in group activity, most stocks will outperform the Dow Jones Industrial Average in the next two months. "There is a strong possibility that the Dow could test the low 900's once again, but the vulnerability of many other issues appears limited," it adds. French munition production is lagging and France imported 32,000 tons during 1973 to meet demand, officials said.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now in its 4th big printing, according to the publisher, is a book called "The Secret Life of Plants." Subtitled "A fascinating account of the physical, emotional, and spiritual relations between plants and man," it sells for $9.95. Which should be a bargain for anyone seeking a new kind of thrill. The plubs alone are enough to start my pulse racing. Here are a few excerpts quoted from selected reviews: "...Wait until you read about the sex life of plants — x-rated!" "...Real knockout stuff even for those who've never sweet-talked an African violet." "...I began a skeptic, ended by crooning a lullaby to my philodendron." "Who! Somehow I have trouble thinking of petunias as pornographic, but obviously I have been missing something. And maybe what I have been missing explains the recent mysterious behavior of Farley Dagnab. Dagnab was a swinger from the top of his floppy-brimmed leather hat to the tip of his stacked heel, three-toned shoes. A fortnight or so ago, however, he started quiet evenings at home. "What's the matter with Farley?" the girls around the office began asking. "He hasn't been to a party in two weeks." When I broached the subject with the object of their concern, inquiring as to whether a health problem might have dampened his ardor for socializing, Dagnab turned vague, muttering something to the effect that "Aspidistra doesn't like big parties." The immediate deduction was that Dagnab had taken up with a new chick who grooved on intimate twosomes. But then Bert and Sue Clanker returned from a Caribbean vacation and the plot thickened. Before departing, the Clankers confided, they had taken to Dagnab's bachelor apartment a potted Aspidistra which he had promised to water during their absence. But when they dropped by to retrieve the plant, Dagnab in an emotion-charged scene refused to surrender custody. Clanking the plant protectively in his arms, he blurted out "she belongs to me now." "What do you mean 'belongs to you'?" Bert Clanker demanded. "We've had that Aspidistra since it was a tiny sprig." Whereupon, the Clankers swear, the plant snuggled closer to Dagnab and made an obscene gesture in their direction.

The theme of today's deal is of a recurring type, as all bridge players will attest: the taking of a needless finesse. The deal came up in a rubber-bridge game. North-South vulnerable. South deals. As declarer viewed the situation at hand, his prospects were excellent: if West possessed either the ace or queen of clubs, then a club winner could be developed out of dummy's king or jack. And if this were accomplished, declarer's only losers would be two clubs and one diamond. After drawing trumps, South led the deuce of clubs and inserted dummy's jack when West played the seven-spot. Upon winning with the queen, East returned a low spade to dummy's ace. Dummy's remaining spade was then ruffed by South. Next came another club, dummy's king being put up. East took this one with his ace, cashed the club ten, and then exited with a diamond. Declarer eventually had to lose a diamond trick, to incur a one-trick set. In a sense, declarer was unlucky, for West rated to have either the queen or ace of clubs. But declarer's demise was strictly his own fault. After drawing trumps, declarer should have led a spade to the board's ace, after which dummy's remaining spade would be eliminated from both the North and South hands. Next would come a diamond to dummy's king, and this would be followed by a diamond to South's ace. Now a third diamond lead would be made, eliminating diamonds from both the North and South hands. Assuming that West won the third diamond lead (if East did, the end result would be the same), he would play back the nine of clubs. This would be covered by dummy's jack and taken by East's queen. East would now be the victim of an end play. A club return would make a winner out of the board's king, while either a spade or a diamond (in theory) would enable declarer to discard a club from his own hand as he ruffed the trick in dummy. WORRY CLINIC

Hester's comment shows how "Horse Sense" defeats braintrusters. That's also why the U.S. Navy asked to use 100 of the 4-answer questions like the 10 outlined below. Employers now use them, too, to select workers with gumption.

CASE Z-577: Hester D., aged 42, shows that culture and education are not limited to college graduates.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "my mother died when I was a junior in high school. I had 6 younger brothers and sisters and we lived on a farm."

"So I dropped out of school to run the house and try to see that the rest of the children got fed and clothed on schedule."

"Later, I married a neighboring farmer. But I always had a yearning to go to college and get an education."

"So I have been an avid follower of your daily quiz column, which our editor heads, 'Test Your Horse Sense.'"

"And what delights me most about it, is the fact I can usually outscore my daughter, who just graduated from the state university."

"Although she was an honor student and won Phi Beta Kappa, she still doesn't have the practical experience that I have."

"So the daily newspaper has been a boon to my hunger for education."

HORSE SENSE

In pioneer days, gumption or practical experience was called "Horse Sense."

After pioneering this advice column on practical psychology to help prevent divorce, delinquency and other human foibles, I was asked to create a test for practical parents like Hester.

For much of the progress of America, plus our inventions and discoveries, have been produced by non-college people!

Yet they have not been given the proper credit, for it has been customary to kowtow to college degrees, even though such brilliant doctors can't earn a living or even stop a dripping kitchen faucet!

In Roosevelt's administration, the term "Braintruster" evolved, which is the opposite of "Horse Sense."

So I developed a one-hour "Test of Horse Sense," that has been widely used in industry in weeding out braintruster college graduates.

Our U. S. Navy asked to employ 500 of its practical questions to sort out the officer candidates in its Navy Air Corps during World War II.

And here are a few of the newspaper's typical 4-answer (Multiple choice) queries that have let Hester defeat her Phi Beta Kappa daughter:

(1) A veal chop made which typical sound while afoot: OINK - MOO - BAA - COO?

(2) Ferdinand would be the name of a PERCHERON - ORPINGTON - GUERNSEY - POLAND CHINA.

(3) The tigers are a baseball team in BOSTON - CINCINNATI - HOUSTON - DETROIT.

(4) A gore is employed by a CARPENTER - MASON - BUTCHER - TAILOR.

(5) Creatures lacking legs travel in a SWARM - SCHOOL - HERD - PACK.

(6) The Bible character who lost his life because he got a haircut was: SAUL - JOSHUA - LUKE - SAMSON.

(7) The one who was killed because he didn't get a haircut was: NOAH - AB-SALOM - JACOB - ELISHA.

(8) Which athlete was made famous by the gopher ball - RYAN - FARMER - TREVINO - AARON?

(9) Which creature bears her young by a process called "Kindling" - DOE - COW - EWE - MARE?

(10) Which nicknamed creature has but two legs - ELSIE - NANNY - BIDDY - TABBY?

If you wish to entertain guests or whet your children's wits, then send for my "Vocational Guidance" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

It contains the original one-hour "Test of Horse Sense" that led to the daily Quiz Column of that name.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, English Bldg., Station, Indiana Univ., Easton, a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Modern People Could Use Pre-Shortage Gadgets

With everyone feeling shortaged by all the shortages today - gas, fuel, power - it seems the right time to ponder how folks lived B.C. (before conveniences).

A look at Montgomery Ward's 1895 catalog reveals that the only "energy" crisis people suffered way back then was the human sort, resulting in an occasional epidemic of housemaid's knee.

Modern science and technology have made life easier in this age of appliances. Almost everything we do is either AC, DC or E-Z. We curl, wash, dry, sweep, de-wrinkle, cut, grind, chop and a host of other household chores by plugging-in or switching-on gadget after gadget.

No one's been asked to abandon their blender - yet! But if we could choose from Ward's 1895 catalog, we'd soon learn to cope with hard times simply by using our ingenuity.

What was a necessity in 1895 could prove to be just the vehicle for those short hops to the corner store: all-red, leather goat harness and sulky capable of carrying up to 125 lbs! Of course, the goat was another matter - you had to supply your own. But he came in handy at lawn-mowing time, and required no gasoline to operate. A double bargain by any year's standards.

With indoor temperatures restricted, "bundling-up" appears to be a new indoor pastime. As long as we're trading life styles, why not a trade-in on that polyester knit sweater for an "American Buffalo robe."

Not only was it "handsome, durable, warm and waterproof," but a boon to wildlife preservation.

As the 1895 catalog stated: "We do not present these goods to our customers as genuine hides, but as the best substitute... they are a woven fabric which much resembles the hide." The copywriting may have lacked luster, but Wards truth in advertising was definitely meritorious.

Substituting a little elbow grease for her familiar can of 3-in-1 oil, today's housewife can get a number of energy-saving ideas from Wards 1895 catalog. Among them, "woven cane carpet beaters... strong, durable... will last a lifetime..." Imagine - a repair-free appliance that did a giant cleaning job for only 18 cents!

Slightly more expensive, but every energy conservationist's dream was the "Old Reliable Wringer" which had "white rubber rolls, best steel springs, a mealable iron the clothes over the edge of the tub..."

Together with Wards Western Star Washer, which had "no nails or iron of any kind to come in contact with the clothes causing iron rust on the linen" ($2.75) and a charcoal, self-heating iron with one flue, washday electrical output would easily go down the drain.

Not long ago, environmentalists encouraged what turned out to be a bike craze to cut down on air pollution. Soon it may be the only way to travel. But for those who can't remember what life was like before the automobile, here's what Wards 1895 catalog had to say:

"Bicycle prophets state that in a few years everybody will be riders. Indications certainly point that way, if we may judge from the tremendous demand. More than half a million were sold last year in the United States. Get in line!"

Speaking of foot-power - there was plenty of that in demand back in great grandpa's day. He didn't "putter" around the house, he "treadled" his way around.

The catalog offered treadle-operated lathes, grinding machines, bracket saws and band saws, which made it difficult to get around great grandma's nagging. According to the catalog, "... the treadle is made of wood and will not allow the foot to slip off."

As always, human nature is capable of generating only so much energy. Often, man has had to rely a little on Mother Nature. Wards offered their own brand windmill in 1895 that was so simple anyone could put it together, and "guaranteed to stand the test of all kinds of weather..."
