President Defends Position

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House strategists say President Nixon has embarked on a two-pronged Watergate defense by taking his case to the American people and toughening his stand against congressional impeachment proceedings.

The President and his surrogates are "going public" in a big way to promote Nixon's point of view that complete cooperation with the House Judiciary Committee's demands for tapes and documents would lead to "destruction of the presidency."

Nixon tomorrow will carry his campaign to Houston, Tex., where he will appear before the National Association of Broadcasters in a nationally televised question and answer session at 8 p.m. CDT.

In pursuit of public support, he appeared before business leaders in Chicago and Southerners in Nashville, Tenn., last week.

His advisers also have fanned out to blast what they see as the committee's "fishing expedition" for White House files and to prod the panel into stating its definition of an impeachable offense. The White House has declined to give the committee 42 tapes it is seeking, although it has made available to the committee material it previously gave the Watergate prosecutors.

White House advisers have expressed satisfaction with the results of their public relations campaign in its early stages. The goal is to persuade the public of Nixon's innocence of any participation in Watergate-related allegations and to build pressure on Congress to win a rapid resolution of the problem, according to aides.

One adviser said "we're looking into several possibilities" for still more public appearances by the President.

The President's advisers realize they are taking the risk of alienating some Republican congressional supporters in the committee and the House by challenging the impeachment inquiry step by step. Some observers believe the White House would prefer to refuse a subpoena for presidential documents and incur a possible contempt citation rather than to comply with the committee's request.

A White House aide indicated that he expected federal Judge John J. Sirica to rule today in favor of turning over a Watergate grand jury's sealed report on Nixon's possible involvement in the scandal to the Judiciary Committee.

"He always has ruled against us," said one aide.

Correction

The Pampa News wishes to correct an error in a story in Sunday's paper concerning the request of two school board members for an open meeting.

Board president Bob Carmichael was quoted as stating it was his personal feeling that requests in a letter from Mrs. Judy Dennis of the Pampa Classroom Teachers Association "are out of line and can be met easily by the trustees."

The important word "not" was unintentionally omitted from the quotation. The quotation should have read, "are NOT out of line and can be met easily by the trustees."

The News wishes to correct the error and regrets that it happened.

SADAT SAYS PEACE NEAR

Israeli, Syrian Fighting Erupts On Front Again

By United Press International

For the seventh straight day today, fighting erupted on the front between Israel and Syria.

At the same time, Israeli newspapers reported that the United States and Israel are in disagreement about the amount of captured Syrian territory Israel should retain in the Golan Heights, where the fighting is taking place.

The United States is trying to arrange a disengagement of forces there similar to that between Israeli and Egyptian forces along the Suez canal.

A Syrian military spokesman said that Syrian artillery opened fire on Israeli forces "trying to strengthen their front positions" in the central and northern sectors of the Golan Heights today.

The Syrian communique, issued at 2:15 p.m. (7:15 a.m. CDT), said fighting had begun at 11:10 a.m. (4:10 a.m. edt) and was continuing.

Israel insists on retaining all of the territory captured in the 1967 Six Day War, and the United States opposes this, the newspaper Ma'ariv said. It appeared this would be among the topics discussed Tuesday in Washington by Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Despite the current U.S.-Israeli differences, and the slowness in getting Israeli-Syrian talks started, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said in interviews with the news magazines Time and Newsweek that he believes peace is near in the Middle East.

"Peace is now on the way, a peace based on justice under which all states in the area can thrive and prosper," Sadat said in Newsweek. He said a permanent settlement still depended on Israeli withdrawal from all territory captured in 1967 and a solution of the problem of the Palestinian refugees.

The newspaper Ha'aretz said Prime Minister Golda Meir and her cabinet colleagues are unanimously opposed to any withdrawal in an initial stage troop disengagement from the "purple line." Israel's ceasefire frontier with Syria until last October's fighting.

Ma'ariv said "the principle that Kissinger is aware of — but does not agree with — is that Israel is unwilling to go back behind the purple line. That, in effect, is the point on which Jerusalem and Washington do not see eye to eye."

Government sources said the scope of Israeli disengagement proposals will be on the agenda in Washington talks between Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and Kissinger, to be set following the secretary's meeting Tuesday with Foreign Minister Abba Eban.

On the battlefield, Israel and Syria stepped up artillery barrages along the northern cease-fire lines Sunday, with each side claiming to have inflicted casualties on the other.

Most Concentrated Exchanges

The Israeli national radio said "the exchanges were among the most concentrated along the entire length of the northern front" since last October's 17-day Middle East war.

Convention Plans Recess During Primary Elections

A U S T I N (UPI)—Recessing for 30 days during the peak of primary election campaigns is going to present constitutional convention delegates with a whole new series of headaches, convention President Price Daniel Jr. says.

Daniel, who had hoped to complete the convention's business by early April, now concedes that is an impossibility. He now has the convention staff trying to work out a solution to the problems that accompany a break of at least 30 days in the state's first such convention in 99 years.

The delegates must first decide when they want to recess, when they want to return, and what to do with the convention staff during the break.

The current convention budget expires April 8, leaving the staff members with no way to be paid during a recess unless the delegates adopt a new budget—and appropriate additional funds—before the recess begins.

Daniel said he hopes the convention can at least take tentative votes on each of the articles of the new charter before the recess.

leaving the final vote until summer.

"If we can get through second reading before the recess, we can trim some of the staff, and we can more intelligently conserve tax dollars," Daniel said.

Daniel hoped the convention could begin debate today on the finance article, but so many delegates left Austin on Friday that the convention had to adjourn before completing debate on the executive section.

The president warned the delegates they may face weekend sessions this week in an effort to get as much business as possible completed before the recess.

"I'm going to have my staff call every delegate and urge them to make plans to work all day Friday and Saturday," he said. "If we're going to pass all the articles on second reading by the first week in April, it's absolutely necessary that we work Friday afternoon and Saturday."

Daniel said he personally favors a recess of 30 days, although there is sentiment through the June 1 primary runoff elections.

FIRST IN ITS HISTORY

UPI Editorial Employees Striking

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Wire Service Guild struck United Press International today, the first strike by editorial employees in the 67-year history of the news service. Management personnel maintained news, newspaper and broadcast coverage to UPI's clients.

Promptly at 8 a.m. EDT domestic Guild-covered reporters and editors left newsrooms in UPI's World Headquarters in New York City and in other bureaus across the country. Pickets were posted at many bureaus.

Foreign operations were not affected. Issues unresolved in negotiations included salaries, demands for restrictions on the use of UPI's new computerized editing system, and a basic demand by the Guild for an agency shop—that non-members be required to pay dues to the Guild.

UPI and the Guild broke off negotiations at 7:30 a.m. after a nightlong session failed to secure a new contract to replace one that expired Friday night.

The two sides agreed to another bargaining session at 9 a.m. Tuesday. Two hours after the strike began a UPI spokesman said that the main news desks were staffed in New York, Washington and major bureaus. The spokesman said reporters were covering major news-producing centers, such as the White House, State Department and Pentagon in Washington. News from Europe, Latin America, Asia and other overseas points continued to flow into UPI's general news desks in New York.

The Guild and the Associated Press signed a contract effective Jan. 1, 1974 calling for pay increases of 5.67 per cent.

UPI had offered to match this figure in the negotiations Monday morning.

UPI President Roderick W. Beaton issued the following statement: "The Wire Service Guild earlier this year concluded a two-year agreement with

Sirica Wants Report Given To Committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Judge John J. Sirica today ordered that a secret grand jury report on President Nixon's handling of Watergate be given to the House Judiciary Committee studying Nixon's impeachment.

Sirica stayed the order for two days for appeal by lawyers representing seven former Nixon aides indicted earlier this month for conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up.

In agreeing with the grand jury that the committee must have the information, Sirica said it was "incredible" to suggest that grand jury matters could be used in police inquiries "and yet be unavailable to the House of Representatives in a proceeding of so great import as an impeachment investigation."

The secret report, according to sources close to the investigation, contains material amassed by the grand jury which bears on Nixon's handling of the scandal.

It has been reported that the special Watergate prosecutor's office believes the Constitution does not permit a sitting president to be indicted, and that this belief was reflected in the grand jury decision to issue its secret report.

Having carefully examined the contents of the grand jury report, the court is satisfied that there can be no question regarding their materiality to the House Judiciary Committee's investigation, Sirica said.

"Beyond materiality, of course, it is the committee's responsibility to determine the significance of the evidence, and the court offers no opinion as to relevance."

The committee had requested the secret report so it can use whatever evidence the grand jury had uncovered in its inquiry into whether Nixon has been involved in impeachable offenses. The White House did not contest Sirica's right to turn the material over to the committee.

Sirica's 22-page ruling said that the two questions he had considered were: "Whether the grand jury has power to make reports and recommendations," and "whether the court has power to disclose such reports, and if so, to what extent."

Sirica, who reaches mandatory retirement age on his 70th birthday Tuesday, will be replaced as Chief Judge of U.S. District Court by Judge George L. Hart, Jr. Wednesday.

Hart, 68, is expected to divide the crush of expected Watergate cases equally among the 15 judges remaining on the court. Hart will have to step down as chief judge when he reaches age 70 in 15 months.

A Watergate grand jury gave the report to Sirica March 1 as it indicted seven former close associates of President Nixon on charges of conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up.

Sources have said the report deals with the President and that the grand jury asked that it be given to the Judiciary Committee, which is studying possible impeachment of the President.

In other developments: —Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., chairman of the House Republican Conference, sided with the Judiciary Committee, against the President Sunday, saying the White House should give the committee 42 tapes it has requested.

"I think the committee should be given that information," he said in a broadcast interview (NBC Meet the Press). He rejected the White House view that the committee request is a "fishing expedition."

—Anderson also said the President has become a Republican "liability" in many parts of the country. "A majority of candidates will concentrate on conducting independent campaigns," he said.

—Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., a member of the Judiciary Committee, said he believes the President may deliberately seek a contempt fight with the House over his refusal to produce the 42 tapes rather than a showdown on the issues of the case. "He can't confront the issue on facts because the facts are incriminating," said Waldie.

—Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., said Sunday (CBS "Face the Nation") that Nixon will be out of office either by impeachment or resignation by November.

He said he is willing to sponsor legislation giving Nixon complete immunity from prosecution once he resigns.

—The Senate Watergate committee questions the President's private secretary, Rose Mary Woods, in private session Wednesday about an alleged $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes to the President's friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Miss Woods said in earlier testimony to the committee, released Saturday, she had two or three conversations with Rebozo about the money but never discussed it with Nixon. The committee questions Rebozo Friday.

Arab Nations Considering Ending U.S. Oil Embargo

By United Press International

Arab oil nations have agreed in principle to lift their five-month-old oil embargo against the United States, Arab oil sources said today.

The sources said an announcement of the boycott's end has been held up so far while the oil ministers argued over details of the move.

(In Tunis, the official Algerian press service also announced the boycott's end, saying the Arab ministers "decided purely and simply to lift the embargo measures.")

(In Beirut, the newspaper An Nahar suggested Arab oil ministers might delay a decision on lifting the embargo until an Arab foreign ministers meeting scheduled for Tunis March 25.

"Informed sources said the meeting of Arab oil ministers may go on for two days before an agreement is reached," An Nahar said. "At worst, the decision might be delayed until the Arab foreign ministers meet in Tunisia March 25 to prepare for the Arab summit conference.")

An aide to Saudi Arabian Oil Minister, Ahmed Zaki Yamani said the Arabs would hold a new round of talks this afternoon. Arab oil sources said a final decision was expected then.

Syrian Oil Minister Jabr El Kefri was awaiting new instructions from Damascus following Sunday's indecisive meeting of Arab oil ministers on lifting the embargo, the sources said.

Egypt and Saudi Arabia had proposed the ban be scrapped in repayment of the U.S. role in negotiating an Israeli troop withdrawal from the Suez Canal, the sources said.

Syria wanted the ban lifted only temporarily in order to keep up pressure on the United States to get Israel to also withdraw from occupied Syrian territory, the sources said.

Many observers had expected the embargo to be lifted following a meeting of Arab oil ministers in Tripoli, Libya, last week but sources there indicated a formal decision ending the embargo would be announced in Vienna Sunday.

PCTA Head, Principal Hold Letter Meeting

Dr. James F. Malone, superintendent of schools, told the News shortly before presstime today a meeting between Judy Dennis, president of the Pampa Classroom Teachers Association, and Pampa High School Principal Don Walker had been called for the lunch hour supposedly to discuss the situation which arose last week concerning the making available of teacher evaluation documents to unauthorized persons.

The matter flared into the open late last week following the receipt of a letter by school board president Bob Carmichael from Mrs. Dennis.

The letter protested the release of the evaluation documents and listed five requests of school board members concerning the release of the documents.

Board members Paul Simmons and Curt Beck said they would not comply with the request from the PCTA president but instead wanted an open meeting of the board to be called on the subject or the matter dropped.

Exactly what was to be discussed at the meeting today was not available at presstime. Simmons said earlier today if candidates who are campaigning for school board office are allowed to conduct peaceful, non-political campaigns, he will be satisfied if the matter is dropped, at least until the regular April school board meeting.

Absentee Voting Starting Today

Absentee balloting for both the city election April 2 and the school board election April 6 began today in Pampa.

Those who will not be in town on those dates may vote absentee for the city election in the city secretary's office in City Hall and in the school board election at the school district business office, 119 N. Frost, across from City Hall.

Two city commissioners are to be elected. Incumbents Joe Curtis of Ward 2 and Arthur Rohde of Ward 4 are running unopposed.

Five candidates are in the running for the two seats to be filled on the school board.

They appear on the ballot in the following order: Don Carpenter, Dorothy Stowers, Sam Anderson, Calvin Lacy and Bill Arrington.

The seat to which Mrs. Stowers was appointed in January, to fill the unexpired term of resigned school board member Ben Sturgeon, and that of current board member Warren Hasse are those which will be filled on the school board.

Also on the school ballot will be the proposition to increase the number of school board members from five to seven.

Adult Education Registration Set

Registration for the third session of Pampa's adult basic education classes will be Tuesday, at 6:30 p.m. in the Baker Elementary School Gym. Classes will begin at 7 o'clock tomorrow.

Adult basic education classes are for those persons over 16 years of age who have not received a high school diploma. These classes have been beneficial to Pampa residents as some 75 people have received their Certificate of Equivalency or high school diploma since September, 1973.

Classes will be held Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 until 9:30 p.m. from March 19 until May 16. The subjects offered are reading, English, arithmetic, science, history and English as a second language.

There is no charge for these classes and all materials will be furnished free of charge. A free nursery will be provided for children 8 years of age and younger.

Any person who is interested in attending these classes should plan to enroll Tuesday, March 19. If further information is needed or desired, interested persons may call Floyd Sackett, principal of Baker Elementary School, at 669-3792, or Don Nelson, area vocational coordinator, at 665-3756.

Police Arrest Man On Assault Charge

Steve Glen Young, 21, 1144 Varnon Dr., was arrested by a Pampa police officer Saturday evening following an attack upon a man sitting in a police patrol car.

According to the police incident report, Robert Bradshaw, Jr., 536 Oklahoma, was sitting in the patrol car talking to Officer Roger Scott when Young approached the vehicle.

After being told by Scott to stay away from the police car, reports said Young began slashing Bradshaw on the face and chest with a razor.

Scott reported he jumped from the patrol car, ran to the other side of the patrol unit and, after disarming the subject, Young placed him under arrest for aggravated assault and took him to city jail.

Bradshaw reportedly refused advice that he go to the hospital for treatment, saying he would take care of the wounds himself.

After being in jail for approximately 30 minutes, reports said, Young was found beating another prisoner in his cell. The man who was being beaten was removed to another cell, refusing treatment.

Young was later transferred to Gray County Jail, where he remained this morning in lieu of $500 bond on the aggravated assault charge.

DETROIT (UPI) — There are more than 29,000 new car dealerships in this country and more than just a few are in serious trouble, because the energy crisis knocked the bottom out of the standard-size car market.

An official of the National Automobile Dealers Association estimates as many as 48,000 of the 800,000 employees of these imported and domestic dealerships have already lost their jobs. As many as 1,000 dealers could be bankrupt by the end of the year, he said.

The reason, says Reed T. Draper, chairman of the NADA's government relations committee, is the government itself.

"Frightened Consumer" Draper said the federal government and members of Congress has "frightened the consumer into purchasing smaller-sized vehicles" with the threat of gasoline rationing.

"What really has me upset is the fact that if the energy situation had been managed correctly, we wouldn't have this mess," said Draper, co-owner of auto dealerships in Bay City and Saginaw, Mich. "The way the government has handled the situation borders on stupidity."

The number of dealers selling new cars has been declining since 1949. But so has the number of manufacturers like Hudson, Packard, Studebaker and others still in business after World War II. The number peaked in late 1948 with 49,173 dealers in business on Jan. 1, 1949, according to the trade paper Automotive News.

The four major U.S. automakers now say they have 26,057 dealers, down 150 from this time a year ago with only Ford showing an increase.

Ford Shows Increase
General Motors said it has 12,012 dealers, down 50 from a year ago; Ford has 6,773, up 39; Chrysler has 5,466, down 106; and American Motors now has 1,912, a drop of 33 from last year.

In the Detroit metropolitan area, there are 262 franchised dealers, down two from a year ago. There hasn't been any sign yet that dealers who sell big cars are in trouble, says Boyce M. Tope, executive vice president of the Detroit Auto Dealers Association.

"So far nothing has materialized, but that is not to say it won't," says Tope. "Admittedly, sales are down, but our dealers, generally speaking, have well-financed operations."

"However, certainly no business can continue indefinitely if sales decline sharply," he said.

The dealers who have been hardest hit so far this year are those most closely identified with large cars.

American Motors dealers in the first two months of 1974 sold 67,491 cars, up almost 19 per cent from last year's pace. Oldsmobile dealers, on the other hand, have seen their sales slip to 64,241 cars, a drop of almost 48 per cent from last year.

The Cadillac Division of General Motors has seen sales slip 48.5 per cent in the first two months. Buick is down 43.1 per cent, Pontiac off 48.5 per cent while Chevrolet, with its compact and subcompact models, has slipped 20.5 per cent.

At the Ford Motor Co., Ford dealers have seen sales slip 19.6 per cent while Lincoln-Mercury dealers, with their larger cars, have suffered a 29.8 per cent decline in the January-February period.

Chrysler-Plymouth dealers recorded a 20.1 per cent drop while the Dodge Division dealers sold 15 per cent fewer cars than in the first two months of 1973.

Antismoking Crusaders Aim At Advertising On Billboards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The antismoking crusaders are now taking aim at those bigger-than-life cowboys and bathing beauties who, cigarette in hand, smile down on the nation's motorists from billboards across the country.

Action on Smoking and Health (ASH), a nonprofit group which played a big role in driving cigarette commercials off television and radio, has now asked the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) to ban tobacco advertising on billboards.

One of their primary arguments is that children, even before they can read, are exposed to super-sized authority figures, happy, healthy — and smoking. The billboards force themselves on the occupants of a passing car, the group contends, and may have an uncontrolled subliminal impact, especially on the young.

In addition the organization's petition to the FTC contends that the present health warning, required by law on all outdoor tobacco advertising, is "too small to read from more than 120 feet" in a passing car. It is not "clear and conspicuous" as the law mandates, ASH says.

A passenger in a car traveling 30 miles an hour passing within 20 feet of a cigarette billboard would have about 2.6 seconds to read the warning, the group contends.

"The warning required on the cigarette billboards is 14 words in length. An average reading speed for adult, educated, literate Americans is approximately 250 words per minute. Thus, even assuming that the motorist instantly located the warning, and looked directly at it during the entire period that he was within viewing range, he would not be able to read the 14 words of the warning in 2.6 seconds."

Both the Outdoor Advertising Association of America and the Tobacco Institute think the whole thing is a lot of nonsense.

Quite apart from the merits or non-merits of ASH's case, they don't believe the FTC has the authority to ban an entire form of advertising. It was Congress, they point out, and not the FTC that forced an end to broadcast cigarette commercials, although the FTC's persistence in the matter had a lot to do with it.

ASH contends the FTC has authority to act under its power to stop "unfair and deceptive" trade practices and advertising. There is precedent, it adds, in the fact that the state of Utah banned tobacco ads from billboards, posters and the like nearly 50 years ago.

Bike Crashes Up 70 Percent

Noting that traffic accidents involving bicycles increased by some 70 percent in Texas last year, the Texas Safety Association urges cyclists to begin bike season this spring with safety in mind.

Riders should be aware that bicycles are subject to all traffic rules, signs and signals on Texas thoroughfares.

TSA recommends the following bike safety rules:

- Keep to the right side of the road and ride single file. Don't weave.
- Never carry passengers.
- Use arm signals when turning or stopping.
- Slow down and use extra caution at intersections and driveways. Ride slowly in busy sections and near parking areas. Dismount and walk across especially heavily travelled streets.
- Keep both hands on the handlebars.
- The law requires reflectors visible from 300 feet and a head lamp emitting a white light visible from a distance of at least 500 feet for night riding.

—Equip your bike with a warning device (a bell or horn) and use it.

—Yield right-of-way to pedestrians and motor vehicles.

—Do not hitch rides on the back of another vehicle. Keep a safe distance between yourself and the vehicle ahead.

—Do not ride into the street from between parked cars, and do not ride between two lanes of cars stopped in traffic.

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — What this country needs is more "social space," says Ellen Peck. She's leading a movement that would help provide it through a "none is fun" approach to parenthood.

"Social space is a combination of physical space and emotional freedom ... not being crowded into molds, into masses," said the lovely Baltimore homemaker, writer and co-founder with her husband, William, of the National Organization for Non-Parents (NON).

The blonde Mrs. Peck knows that NON is bucking deep tradition in a country where having children is expected of couples, where the family is revered, where Mother's and Father's Day were established.

"Inevitably all young people hear is the fulfillment of parenthood," she said. "Motherhood is given such adoration. I believe it should be respected, and that's not the same as adulation."

Met Some Opposition Mrs. Peck said that NON, in its second year, had met some opposition, but not any formal group protests. "The opposition comes at a personal level," she said.

"But there are not very many people who, when you get right down to it, will tell you to have children. Our system of universal parenthood simply won't work. There's more than one way to lose weight

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that every time a person has sexual relations he burns up 300 calories. I would like to lose 10 pounds, and my husband would like to lose 20 pounds.

Do you recommend this method of losing weight? And how many calories would a person have to burn to lose one pound? NO PUT ON

DEAR NO: I'm advised that one must burn 3,500 calories to lose one pound of body fat. The number of calories burned per hour for several types of measured physical activity reads as follows:

Slow walking—115 to 200.
Dancing—275 to 350.
Skating or swimming—350 to 600.
Tennis—350 to 700.
Golfing—250 to 300.
Golfing (18 holes)—150 to 225.

There can be no reliable figure on the number of calories burned during sexual relations because the amount of physical exertion varies with the individual. While losing weight, however, I think you'd be wise to supplement mattress acrobatics with more (or less?) strenuous physical exercise, using the above as a guide.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the seven-year-old Lutheran boy who wanted to turn Jewish because his 10-year-old sister, who was being raised Jewish, got seven presents (one for each day of Hanukkah) and he got only one present for Christmas.

His parents should give him seven presents for Christmas and let him decide later whether he wants to go the Protestant route or the Jewish route.

He might even decide to be a Roman Catholic and go to Notre Dame and beat U.C.L.A. again some day! BILL K.

DEAR BILL: Judging from some of the names of those fellows on Notre Dame's teams, you don't have to be a Roman Catholic to play for Notre Dame.

CONFIDENTIAL TO O.B. IN ROME: I'm an investment counselor, but the advice from Herbert R. Mayes, publisher of The Overseas American, a new and brilliant fortnightly newsletter for United States citizens abroad, is: "The old story about Swiss banks is still valid: If you see a Swiss banker jumping from an office building, follow him out. There's 15 per cent to be made on the way down."

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

TUESDAY, MARCH 19

Your birthday today: You're off and floating free on your own natural resources. [more of them than you had realized] this coming year. Strive to assert and maintain this trend toward independence while it is still relatively simple to organize. Relationships are apt to drift along pleasantly enough, no great stress indicated. Today's natives are a bit slow to speak up, tend to be very sharp observers, good students.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Get clear of the job as soon as circumstances permit and catch up on outside interests, perhaps an excursion with old friends to unusual places.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Leaving the schemes of friends aside, it is a rather good day for both investigating and investing. Home and social life bring extra benefits.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Be up and on the move early, the news is too good to miss. Temptation is to get careless and neglect worthwhile people who wait for your attention.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Money acts as a magnet for ideas; you have a chance to use your talents to improve your economic situation. Nearby personal contacts are very helpful.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: The more authority or influence people carry, the less likely they are to cooperate. Marriage and partnership negotiations, rearrangements thrive.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: A fine day in all respects—except that you aren't likely to relax enough to let yourself enjoy it. Perhaps the problem is that you really have no problem.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Creative experiments work better than expected, but watch out that you break no rules. Those people who enforce regulations are prepared to be harsh. Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Financial affairs are a bit difficult. Home life should include some definite expression of your feelings, a search for agreement on a touchy subject. Sagittarius [Nov. 22 - Dec. 21]: Get as much done on routine matters as possible rather than give in to an appetite for the bizarre. Favors, are hard to find, all have strings attached. Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Financial improvement follows diligence, plus a definite claim for the earned reward. New responsibilities are almost certainly coming your way. Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Personal ambitions are advanced, romance springs alive. Special favors are neither to be promised nor sought, because of the extra obligations they generate. Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Today you succeed in coping with waves made by other peoples' problems. Singly, however, important or powerful individuals are beyond your reach or uncooperative.

Annual Flowers Brighten Landscapes

COLLEGE STATION — Flowering annuals can serve as accents and color coordinators in home landscapes. "Careful planning will help you achieve success with these plants," reminds Everett Janna, landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Use annual beds as borders along fences, sides of the house or around the patio where they will not detract during the off-season. These beds should be well drained. Use an edging to raise the bed level if necessary," suggests the specialist. Improve tight clay soils by adding two to three inches of sharp builders sand and the same amount of organic matter, such as peat moss. Then work this material into the soil to a depth of 8 to 10 inches. Be sure the soil is fertile in the beds. Apply two to three pounds of a complete fertilizer such as 12-12-12 or its equivalent per 100 square feet and work it into the top six inches of soil. Fertilize the flower bed every three or four weeks at one to two pounds per 100 square feet. Water regularly but do not keep the soil saturated, cautions the horticulturist.

ABWA Tours Museum Following Meeting

The American Business Women's Association met at the Coronado Inn for their monthly dinner meeting Tuesday, March 12 at 6:30 p.m. with Mrs. Homer McNeil, president, presiding. The vocational talk was given by Mrs. McNeil. The McNeils were the owners of a grocery store when they first came to Pampa. They opened the McNeil Produce in 1950 as a specialty store distributing bananas and tomatoes. She and her husband now handle tomatoes on a retail basis. Mary Dell does whatever is necessary, and also does the bookkeeping for the business. She is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and also works with the Cancer Drive. She is a member of the Rebekah's which is a fraternal organization. She bowls for recreation. The McNeil's have two children and five grandchildren. The following captains were selected for the attendance event: Mmes. James Quay, Ted Mastin, Ken Plotner and Shirley Nichols. The contest will run for a three-month period. Three new members were installed by the president in a candlelight ceremony. Mrs. Linda Clark was sponsored by Betty Mounce; Mrs. W.S. West sponsored by Mrs. James Quay; and Mrs. J.L. Mulanax sponsored by Mrs. John King. Maudie Voyles' name was drawn from the Rocket Fund. After the business meeting adjourned the group went to the White Deer Land Museum for a tour by Mrs. Fred Thompson, Curator. Mrs. Thompson gave the history of M.K. Brown who purchased the White Deer Land Building in 1957. Complying with a request made by Brown before his death in 1964, the M.K. Brown Foundation developed the museum and deeded it to Gray County in 1971. The White Deer Land Building served at one time as Pampa's Bank, and on another occasion one side was used as the post office for a time. Mrs. Thompson told the history of many of the exhibits on display. She explained the privately owned antiques and relics of the past are accepted on loan, and are carefully catalogued and indexed. This summer the museum will be open on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of each week. Guests attending were Mmes. Aliene Childers, Linda Bowers and Patricia Selman. Members attending were Mmes. Homer McNeil, Don Elledge, Eugene Franklin, John King, Danny Malone, Ted Mastin, Shirley Nichols, Ken Plotner, James Quay, Fred Richmond, Doyce Shelton, E.E. Willis, Glynda Schickedanz, Linda Clark, W.S. West, J.L. Mulanax and Miss Betty Mounce.

Delegate Named To Attend Boryer District Convention

The Twentieth Century Club met recently in the home of Mrs. Rex Rose. Mrs. Steele, president, opened the meeting by appointing Mrs. Ed Myatt to lead members in the Pledges of Allegiance to the American Flag and the Texas Flag. She also led in the Club Collect. Mrs. Tom Wilkinson, secretary, read the minutes and the roll call. She also told members of the Antique Show and Sale that is sponsored by the Twentieth Century Cotillion. The proceeds go to the Opportunity Plan at West Texas State University. This show will be held March 29, 30 and 31. Mrs. Fred Neslage announced that the National Foundation for the Prevention of Birth Defects would sponsor a Walk-A-Thon March 23. Mrs. Jerry Bond, chairman of American Heritage Committee, announced that "We the Women," a historical special, will be seen Sunday, over CBS.

Mrs. Steele announced the District Convention, will be held in Boryer April 2-3. Mrs. Stowers is a delegate and Mrs. Jerry Bond is alternate. Mrs. Rex Rose, gave a program on the "Growth of Music." She stated that the genesis of music is unexplained. Music is universal. It is influenced by social, scientific, religious and aesthetic facets of life. The Chinese are responsible for the basic scale, that is: C, D, E, F, G. They also used the string instruments. The Egyptians, Hebrews and the Greeks also contributed to the music of all ages. The Romans imitated the Greeks and they developed the brass instruments. In the 15th century, Marchant developed Polyphonic sound. The seventh century saw the "Golden age of Polyphonic" and the German Choral. This century brought recognition of the harmonic system, the creation of new musical forms and the entrance of Germany as a musical power. The 20th century ushered in the classical period of music that will stand for all times. It is objective, polished and refined. Two World Wars, scientific discoveries, the space age and the modern spirit of man have all effected the arts and music. More music has been composed this century than in any other. Multi-media makes music very accessible. "We are too close at this point in time to gain perspective of the current trends of music in this era — plus its impact on the emotions of man. Truly it is well said, "Music is the speech of Angels," she concluded. Refreshments were served to Mmes. Jerry Bond, Roy Bmeswell, W.R. Campbell, Lloyd Hamilton, David McGahey, Ed Myatt, Fred Neslage, John Rankin, Luther Robinson, R.H. Sanford, R.W. Stowers, Tom Wilkinson, J.W. Gordon, Charles Fagan and Miss Elsie Cunningham.

ESA Welcomes New Members

Citizens Bank and Trust Hospitality Room was the scene of an impressive ceremony March 19, as Kappa Alpha Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha welcomed six new members into its sisterhood. Mmes. Mark Russell, Ken Shearer, King Dodd, Bill Bennett, Bob Eastham and John McBride repeated their final vows before a table of white adorned with the Holy Bible surrounded by golden candlelight. Members present were Mmes. Gerald Vaughn, Roy Floyd, Joel Plunk, Joe Miller, Norman Sublett, Bob Yost, Irvin Hungerford, Maxine Dunham, Fern Berry, Tommy Sells and Bob Warnock. Following the ceremony members enjoyed coffee and cake.

April 21 is when comedian Alan King will do his annual thing of looking back at a year with acid comments. This time he'll not only take on 1973 but throw in the first quarter of 1974 in a show titled "Alan King's Energy Crisis. Rising Prices, Assorted Vices Comedy Hour."

The Hughes Television Network will broadcast the annual East-West all-star college basketball game in Dayton, Ohio on March 30.

"If I had my way, I would have children taught bridge as a matter of course, just as they are taught dancing. In the end it will be more useful to them... In fact, when all else fails — sports, love, ambition — bridge remains a solace and an entertainment."

Such was the stated conviction of the late British novelist, W. Somerset Maugham. Mr. Maugham, who died in 1965 at the age of 91, was not an expert player, but he was a good one. In his declining years, failing eyesight forced him to give up not only reading, but also his favorite pastime, bridge. Here is a deal that Maugham played many years ago. He was sitting South.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

...it tells you how

We've all been told often enough—by radio, TV and the magazine ads—What To Do When Headache Strikes. Almost always, the remedy we're urged to reach for turns out to be aspirin, or one of its many variations. Now, aspirin really is a very effective pain reliever and most of us have been happy to use it at some time or other. There's no doubt, though, that aspirin is hard on the stomach... and there's even some reason to suspect that—taken in large amounts—it may do the body more harm than good. If we can get rid of headache with nontoxic methods, then, it's probably preferable to do so.

Here's a headache remedy (described in The Last Whole Earth Catalog) that you can try out on the next friend or relation who complains of the ailment: Have the patient sit down. If you're right-handed, place your right hand at the base of the person's skull and your left on his forehead. (Southpaws reverse the hand position.) Now leave your hands there quietly for thirty seconds to three minutes.

It helps if you and the sufferer close your eyes and imagine a weak electric current passing through the head and sorting out the messed-up circuitry in there. The theory is that—because the hands are very slightly polarized—something of the kind really does happen. Could be. All we know is that the cure does seem to work more often than not, even if neither patient nor healer thinks it will. Tension headaches will stay healed... migraine may return after being relieved for a while.

We have a growing stack of testimonials that say this treatment really works about 60% of the time!

Dear Consumer To Learn More About Energy

By Virginia Knauer
Special Assistant to the President and Director

Department of Health, Education & Welfare

Much has been written—and is still being written—about the nation's energy problem. So much, in fact, it's hard to keep up.

But, if you have the time, you may be interested reading more than the day-to-day news. Here are two lists of publications. If you cannot find them in your local library, you and your friends may want to go together to buy them.

First, my list of "light" reading (all are available from Consumer Information, Pueblo, CO 81009):

- Gasoline: More Miles Per Gallon, 35 cents.
 - Miles Per Gallon Ratings for 1973 Cars, free.
 - Miles Per Gallon Ratings for 1974 Cars, free.

 - Recycle to Conserve Energy and Protect Your Environment, free.
 - Energy, America and You, free.
 - "Close the Door" and Other Energy Savings Tips for Children, free.
 - Home Energy Savers, free.
 - Fireplaces and Chimneys, 40 cents.
- The following is available from Supt. of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402; make check or money order payable to Supt. of Documents for $1.75; Citizen Action Guide To Energy Conservation.
- Now, the heavy reading list. I cannot vouch for every book, but I suggest you try to find these in a library before deciding to buy.
- Energy: A Crisis in Power, by Holdren and Herrera, published by Sierra Club Books, 597 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017; $2.75.

- For those who want more, there is Energy 1974, a listing of standard, recent and forthcoming books on energy and related topics, including nuclear, solar and electrical energy and fossil fuels. It is available from Sidney Kramer Books, 1722 H St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006; 10¢ for postage.

NO SECRETS, NO GIMMICKS

Kissinger Has Incredible Energy, Associates Say

By JOHN BARTON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anyone hoping to make a fortune by discovering and marketing the source of the incredible energy of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may as well forget it. There are no secrets and no gimmicks, according to the people who know him best.

"There are no special foods or diets or exercises," said a high-ranking confidant of the Secretary. "The only physical exercise he does that I know of is coming to work."

"He is simply a man of extraordinary energy. He has the greatest built-in energy system I have ever seen. He's a dynamo."

Air Force base, the usual practice, and rushed to meet the arriving Arab diplomats and inform them he had planned a working dinner within the hour.

Fahmi and Sakka thanked him for his hospitality but told him it was the equivalent of 2 a.m. EDT when they began their day. They said they were exhausted from their transatlantic flight and would see him the following morning.

Kissinger, who is not used to being stood up, took it well. Instead, he invited several senior State Department officials to join him at dinner, which was just being removed from the ovens in the department's kitchen. The result was an unceremonious exodus.

"I mean no disrespect, sir," said one of the departing foreign service officers, "but this is the first night in several months I will be able to spend at home with my wife and in time to see my children."

No Rancor
While Kissinger's seven-day work week has inconvenienced top aides, it has produced surprisingly little rancor.

"You can't criticize a man who is more demanding of himself than he is of others," one official said. "He is hard on us, but he is harder on himself."

Some critics contend Kissinger works so fast he is disorganized. "That simply is not true," a confidant said. "He is well organized and he knows how to tell people what to do."

Occasionally as he zips across the time zones trying to solve a rainbow of the world's problems on an itinerary that would be a travel agent's nightmare, Kissinger will catnap in the bed on his big jet.

But only after instructing his staff what reports he wants when he awakens," the official said. "He might sleep then, but rarely. His staff never does. And he has instantaneous pickup. He will wake up and ask immediately for the reports, digest them and bound out of the plane ready for fullscale negotiations wherever he is."

Watches Weight
Kissinger does have to watch his weight. "When I get into difficult negotiations, I tend to overeat," the Secretary told reporters on a recent Middle East trip, patting a rotund stomach to underscore his remark. He said he also consumes a lot of soft drinks under such circumstances.

When he is not traveling, Kissinger's normal day begins with breakfast at the State Department, never later than 8 a.m. An official said it invariably is "a working breakfast, either with some visiting official or with some senior staff members."

Then he is off to the White House, where Kissinger says he has daily meetings with the President. Later he returns to the State Department where he either has lunch on a tray in his office or presides over a working lunch for visiting dignitaries. Dinner is held in late evening under similar circumstances.

"Most of us eat our meals in order to refuel our bodies and give us time to ponder over the events of the day and our lives," an aide said. "Not him. Henry doesn't need a diversionary meal."

Union Boss Has A 'Solution'

The president of the United Auto Workers wants to have restrictions put on foreign car imports to avoid, as he put it, "an all-too-likely economic disaster."

Leonard Woodcock is the man who apparently has finally recognized the possibility of economic disaster for the U.S. auto industry, and his "solution" is typical of the kind of thinking that had led his industry to its brink of economic disaster.

His answer to the problem is to restrict action in the marketplace. That is precisely what his union has been doing for decades. The restrictions had to do with the use of human labor in the manufacture of American automobiles.

They gave it high sounding phrases such as fringe benefits, guaranteed wages, production quotas etc. but what they all amounted to was added costs for the manufacture of the automobile.

It chased some automobile manufacturing companies right out of the business, sent others to foreign countries for plants and sent a sizeable portion of the auto buyers to dealers offering lower priced imports.

Even with the import tax, many foreign cars were available to the buying public for less money than American cars.

The costly strikes and continued demands of the unions for more compensation for less production has taken its toll. But Woodcock apparently rejects any suggestion that his demands have been a factor in the coming economic disaster he envisions.

We are not opposed to the working man earning as much as he possibly can for his labor. The problem is how to accomplish that goal and to better insure job security and improve living conditions.

We have discovered no better way to accomplish this than through productivity and a free exchange of goods and services without interference from political government such as labor unions.

We recognize the difficulty of getting this point across to working people who believe their union contract has increased their real wages. To be sure they may enjoy a temporary increase in productivity, the cost of products and services also increases.

There is no doubt that the automobile industry in the U.S. is in deep trouble today. The immediate cause may be the fuel situation and the general uncertainty about the economy, but a more basic cause was the irresponsible demands the unions placed upon the companies which provided the jobs.

When the product doesn't sell and the jobs are no longer available, this ceases to be a theoretical argument. It is a cold hard fact.

Foreign auto makers apparently have done a better job staying in business and selling their cars over the world. Now Woodcock wants to punish someone for doing a better job and to punish the American consumer for the UAW mistakes.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON
Analysis Nixon's Situation
With Showdown In The Offing

By CLARK MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON — Despite President Nixon's studied effort to appear in control of both the government and his own future, a close analysis of his situation indicates he is, in fact, grasping at weak straws as he is pushed toward resignation or impeachment.

Understandably, the President proclaims, just as former Vice President Spiro Agnew did, he will never resign. As long as Mr. Nixon holds the Presidency, the Republican party and many House and Senate members must at least pay lip service to his contention that he has committed no crime and is thus not impeachable.

A realistic Mr. Nixon knows the office of the President commands a certain respect regardless of any lies and deceptions by any particular occupant of the Oval office.

However, if he leaves the Presidency, he knows he will be an out-and-out liability to his own political appointees, to business interests, and to the pragmatic politicians who still find some advantage in pointing to accomplishments of the Nixon years.

It is unlikely that many of his present friends in either business or politics would consider making contributions to a "Richard Nixon Defense Fund" if he left office.

Despite a recently reported net worth of slightly less than $1,000,000, Mr. Nixon is not a wealthy man. In his present plight, he must be concerned about legal costs, back taxes, mortgage payments and other mundane money problems. These problems would magnify greatly if he were out of office.

Latest rumblings from the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation indicate that Mr. Nixon would owe at least $300,000 in back taxes if the complicated negotiations dealing with donation of his vice-presidential papers to the National Archives were found faulty.

From Mr. Nixon's comments at his March 6 press conference, he indicated he would find it necessary to borrow money to pay any attorney fees associated with any criminal trial if he were impeached by the House of Representatives and formally charged. Legal fees associated with Nixon's Watergate defense so far have been at taxpayers' expense and are estimated at more than $250,000 so far.

At this point, the President seems in agreement with Attorney General William Saxbe that, if formally charged with crime, it would be inappropriate and even illegal to use tax money to carry out his defense.

Mr. Nixon also may have thought of the housing problem he will face the moment he leaves the White House. Camp David will no longer be available and heavy mortgage payments are due periodically on his homes at Key Biscayne and San Clemente.

By contrast, House Republicans have a difficult course to steer in impeachment waters. They must avoid being too quick to condemn the President or they will be in serious trouble with the hard-core Nixon supporters who control local GOP organizations in many areas.

But, on the other hand, if they are too slow to speak out critically on the impeachment issue, they are risking major defections among moderate Republicans and independents.

Even such Republican leaders as Vice President Gerald Ford, Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., and House Minority Leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., have been urging the President to make the tapes and documents available to the Senate Watergate Committee and Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. These GOP leaders' positions have been clearly in support of the authority of the House Judiciary Committee when sitting in an impeachment investigation.

H. L. Hunt
Writes
PEOPLE-CONTROLLERS
NEVER LEARN

A couple of years ago seasoned campaigners for freedom saw the specter of price controls looming behind the demagogic bleatings of network commentators, Ralph Nader and ambitious politicians. For years, farmers and ranchers and livestock feeders had been taking a beating because of their inefficiency in meeting rising demand for their meat and other food products at low prices in a free market.

Then a combination of circumstances, such as sending millions of bushels of grain to communist countries subsidized by U.S. taxpayers, plus skyrocketing demand, sent prices up at last to where more beef growers could stay in business.

Many wise voices congratulated the good sense of the people and the government in resisting rash demands for food price controls. Then the President caved into the leftwing people - controllers. Price controls went on at retail. Farmers, unable to afford the rising price of feed, had to curtail meat and poultry production.

Instead of having meat at price at which producers could stay in business, we had lower prices — and no meat. We did the same foolish thing after World War II. We never seem to learn. Now the Naders and the Jacksons are demanding that oil producers be driven out of business and that the little fuel then produced be allocated politically, rather than in the marketplace. The people's voices must be heard soon if we are not to do without fuel.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

House Is Buzzing Over
India Debt Write-Off

By ROBERTS ALLEN

WASHINGTON — That soft-pedaled $2.2 billion write-off of a $3.3 billion debt India has long owed the U.S. is triggering a hornet's nest of vehement congressional condemnation.

So pronounced is the bipartisan outrage that drastic crack-down legislation is virtually assured.

In fact, one forceful restriction already has been approved.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has amended the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 specifically requiring "congressional surveillance over all currency settlements that come under this act."

Express purpose of this legislation is to prevent a repetition of the huge giveaway to India.

With this measure as a starter, its three influential sponsors — Reps. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., Edward Derwinski, R-Ill., and William Broomfield, R-Mich. — are pressing another resolution applying the same safeguard to "all similar settlements involving American foreign aid."

Strikingly indicative of the widespread bipartisan support for the imposition of such a curb on the State Department and other agencies is that it has 56 co-sponsors. Foremost among them are: Reps. John Anderson, R-Ill.; William Cohen, R-Maine; James Collins, R-Tex.; Robert Daniel, R-Va.; W.C. (Dan) Daniel, D-Va.; H.R. Gross, R-Iowa; Craig Hosmer, R-Calif.; William Hungate, D-Mo.; Richard Ichord, D-Mo.; Jack Kemp, R-N.Y.; James Mann, D-S.C.; G.V. (Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss.; Charles Sandman, R-N.J.; B.F. Sisk, D-Calif.; Roy Taylor, D-N.C.; Larry Winn, R-Kan.; C.W. (Bill) Young, R-Fla.

Noting this extensive backing, Rep. Wolff, member of the Foreign Affairs Committee spearheading the drive for this corrective legislation, declared it graphically underscored the strong opposition in Congress against any more huge cancellations by bureaucratic fiat of foreign debts owed the U.S.

"On the basis of this widespread bipartisan endorsement," said Wolff, "I have every confidence this legislation will be enacted by Congress. It's a long overdue safeguard, and the shocking $2.2 billion giveaway to India emphatically illustrated the urgent need for it."

'Santa Claus' Moynihan

The $2.2 billion Indian write-off was "negotiated" by Ambassador Daniel Moynihan — without prior notice to Congress or the U.S. public.

It was strictly a unilateral and unpublicized decision by the State Department.

It is now clear the principal mission of the former Harvard professor, when he took up his post in New Delhi last year, was to arrange this huge giveaway — despite the undisguised animus toward the U.S. by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and her Soviet-leaning regime.

Last month, Moynihan, following an unannounced arrival in Washington, spent several weeks lobbying Congress about the multibillion-dollar write-off deal.

As reported at the time in this column, he ran into a storm of irate censure at a Foreign Affairs subcommittee meeting — where Rep. Wolff served notice he was sponsoring a "sense of Congress" resolution urging President Nixon to reject the huge write-off.

Subsequently, Wolff and Reps. Derwinski and Broomfield sponsored the bill designed to give Congress a direct voice in such transactions. It is this measure that now has 56 bipartisan co-sponsors.

In offering it, Wolff pointed out it is Congress that "votes to loan taxpayers' money to foreign countries, and Congress must retain the right to any change in the repayment or write-off of those funds."

This is particularly essential, he stressed, because:

"There still remain vast amounts of foreign currencies, by conservative estimates running into the billions, owed by foreign nations: At a time when our domestic economy is under such tremendous strains, the executive branch must not be allowed to engage in giant giveaways involving these debts without answering first to Congress.

"Our bill represents a long overdue move by Congress to establish a role in the making of executive agreements, which have become a major instrument of foreign policy completely circumventing the congressional role in implementing important international policies. The purpose of this bill is to assure congressional control over settlements, cancellations, renegotiations and rescheduling of debts of foreign countries to the United States."

Foreign Affairs chairman Thomas Morgan, D-Pa., has assured Wolff of full consideration of his landmark bill. Says Wolff: "I haven't any doubt that it will be overwhelmingly approved by the committee and subsequently by the full House. That is clearly indicated by colleagues from all sections of the country and both parties joining in co-sponsoring this measure."

Bitting The Hand

For Ambassador Moynihan there has been an ironic aftermath to his successful labors in arranging the $2.2 billion write-off of India's debt.

In recent days, the tall envoy has been the target of caustic Indian blasts.

In an anonymous, prominently featured article in the National Herald, leading organ of the Congress Party headed by Prime Minister Gandhi, Moynihan was carpishly berated for, of all things, endeavoring to improve the long-strained relations between the U.S. and India.

Particularly he was rebuked for indulging in "platitudes" about closer ties between the two countries.

This startling and unexpected attack was followed a few days later by a testy reproof by Foreign Minister Swaran Singh — whose ire was stirred by remarks made by Moynihan at an off-the-record meeting with Indian newsmen of Diego Garcia, more than 1,000 miles south of the tip of India.

Purpose of this military installation is to offset the rapidly growing armed strength of Russia in the Indian Ocean.

India, under unmistakable Moscow prodding, has been fulminating against the U.S. project. In engaging in this anti-U.S. carping, the Gandhi regime has been completely silent about the Soviets' expanding military might in the Indian Ocean.

Foreign Minister Singh said nothing about that in criticizing Moynihan's private comments.

Also, it goes without saying that neither the Indian official nor the National Herald made the slightest reference to the $2.2 billion debt cancellation that Moynihan "negotiated."

Under the rule of peevish and carping Madame Gandhi, India has never been noted for evincing any appreciation of the billions in loans, food and other aid lavishly extended by the U.S. in the past 15 years, that aid, which has repeatedly saved tens of millions of Indians from starvation, totals more than $10 billion.

Virtually all the U.S. has gotten in return has been incessant whining and complaining about our foreign policy — with never a word of disapproval of anything Moscow does, which has largely armed India for cash on the barrelhead.

For Ambassador Moynihan the surprising Indian attacks must be doubly galling because in the past several weeks top officials of the Gandhi regime have been secretly talking to him about possible new U.S. aid.

Privately, they've got the tin cup out again while publicly they are kicking his shins.

Crime One Of Hottest Selling Items On Television Market

By VIGGOLD

WASHINGTON — A Middle American morality riddle: political opinion polls tell us that crime remains high on the list of issues troubling the American people. But mass surveys regularly conducted by Neilsen and Arbitron say that, far from inspiring fear and loathing in the land, crime is one of the hottest-selling items on today's television market.

For further amplification of that point, take your own survey. Consult your local television listings. Check for yourself the amount of programming time given to "entertainment" involving murder, burglary, robbery, larceny, rape, extortion, kidnapping, you name it.

I began doing just a few weeks ago, following a particularly brutal and explicit murder scene shown on an NBC Sunday night program called "McCloud."

Now, for those few elitists in every community who disdain trashy television melodrama, "McCloud" is one of NBC's four alternating network offerings on Sunday evening, generally considered family-night viewing time. The other three NBC prime-time Sunday programs are "Hec Ramsey," "McMillan & Wife," and "Columbo."

These entries compete for family attention during the course of a typical Middle American Sunday evening with such competition as ABC's "FBI" and CBS's "Mannix" and "Barnaby Rudge."

At other prime times, Monday through Saturday, sizable segments are devoted by all three major networks to crime-oriented pop video centered around the exploits of, to name a few, "The Rookies," "Police Surgeon," "Banacek," "Cannon," "Kojak," "Ironside" — and on non-network stations, reruns of old lawlessness and disorder favorites such as "The Untouchables" and "Mod Squad."

All these family-hour shows dangle crime — virtually always violent crime — as their audience lure. Conceivably, of course, the producers could argue that their shows aren't about crime, but law and order. After all, aren't the heroes law-enforcement officials, and doesn't the criminal always get his just reward before the concluding commercial?

Well, you can buy that argument if you want, along with another one that says "Last Tango in Paris" and "Deep Throat" are really clinical cathartics for dirty little sex-ridden minds. But call me a cynic, I happen to think those wonderful folks who five us TV crime shows — no less than the makers of X-rated films — really have a less noble objective in mind.

Nevertheless, sponsors and television producers insist that they're only giving us what we want. And the ratings seem to bear them out.

Thus, our Middle American morality riddle: how can law and order-demanding citizens, who wouldn't consider letting their kids see an "X" or "R" rated film because of sexual or verbal obscenity, welcome massive doses of "X" and "R" rated crime shows into their homes every evening?

Wolfpack, Bruins To Vie In Semis

By United Press International
North Carolina State star David Thompson will return and so will UCLA for another "Dream Game" between the top-ranked Wolfpack and the Bruins—this time in the NCAA semifinals March 23.

Three All-Americans—Thompson and UCLA's Bill Walton and Keith Wilkes—will battle for the right to move into the finals at Greensboro, N.C. March 25 against the winner of the Marquette-Kansas game, which follows the Bruin-Wolfpack tilt.

Thompson, a 6-foot 4 junior whose brilliant leaping ability and cat-like quickness also earned him All-America status as a sophomore, stunned a national television audience and hushed a capacity crowd of 12,400 in Raleigh, N.C. Saturday afternoon when he somersaulted high in the air and crashed head-first to the court after trying to block a shot by a Pittsburgh player. He lay motionless and unconscious until he was wheeled out to an ambulance. X-rays at a nearby hospital revealed no apparent damage and he was released after having a 1 1/2-inch gash on the back of his neck stitched up. He returned to the bench with seven minutes left in the game.

Wolfpack Coasts to Win
Then the Wolfpack went back to work and coasted to a 100-72 victory in the East Regional championship game on the shooting of 7-foot 4 Tommy Burleson and 5-foot 7 Monte Towe.

"Unless something unforeseen happens," said Dr. James Manly, a Raleigh surgeon, Thompson will play against UCLA.

Bill Knight scored 19 points for Pittsburgh, which never led in the game.

UCLA had an easy time beating San Francisco, 83-60, in the West Regional championship behind Wilkes' 27 points. Bill Walton, three-time college Player of the Year, added 17 points in the second half, and played with an enthusiasm that was definitely lacking in the Bruins' triple overtime victory over Dayton Thursday night.

"I'm looking forward to a tough game next week," said Wilkes, who will likely line up against Thompson.

The Marquette Warriors, advancing to the NCAA finals for the first time in nine attempts, ended underdog Michigan's dream by nipping the Wolverines, 72-70, in the NCAA Midwest Regional Championship game.

The game went down to the final two seconds when Michigan star Campy Russell missed a jumper from the corner and Marquette got the rebound to end it. Russell also missed one other jumper in the dying seconds.

Warriors Move to Final
The fifth-ranked Warriors, now 25-1, move into the final at Greensboro, N.C., where they will take on Midwest Regional Champion Kansas, which upset Oral Roberts, 93-90, in overtime.

Junior guard Tom Smith, who started a Kansas rally that tied the game at the end of regulation, broke free for a layup with eight seconds left for the bucket that clinched the Jayhawks' victory.

The Big Eight champion Jayhawks broke in front by 15 points early in the finals of the Midwest Regional, but Oral Roberts—with Coach Ken Trickey on the bench despite a run-in with police early Friday—outlasted Kansas until the final moments.

Kansas made up a seven-point deficit by scoring the final seven points of regulation on a free throw by Smith, jump shots by Roger Morningstar and Dale Greenlee and a layup by Norman Cook.

OVER BULLS

Jabbar Belted, Bucks Still Win

By United Press International
You've got to be either very angry or a little crazy to throw a punch at someone 7-feet-2 and 235 pounds.

Chicago's Dennis Awtry claims he was very angry when he let loose a right hook at the left eye of Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar before a national television audience Sunday.

"He was giving me the elbow on every free throw," said Awtry, not exactly a pushover at 6-10, 235-pounds. "And it finally got to the point where I thought he wanted to fight. So after the rebound, I grabbed his shirt, spun him around and gave him one. It was worth it."

Awtry, stuck with an automatic $50 fine for the technical foul, was ejected, but he said, "He knows I will retaliate if it happens again. I feel I was protecting myself."

Jabbar, who scored 38 points and grabbed 22 rebounds in Milwaukee's 108-82 victory over the Bulls, had "no comment" as he sat in the Milwaukee dressing room with his left eye swelling swiftly.

But Bucks Coach Larry Costello had a few words. "I like the Bulls and the aggressive way they play, but I think it went too far. I don't like dirty ball."

Howard Porter led Chicago with 22 points. Jabbar wasn't sidelined long. He came back in the last period to score 11 points.

CCA Finals Today

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Indiana and Southern California meet tonight for the championship of the first Collegiate Commissioners Association basketball tournament after overcoming spunky opponents in semifinal games Sunday.

"It could be a real good game or it could be a mess," Southern California Coach Bob Boyd says of tonight's showdown.

Both semifinals followed a similar pattern, with Indiana rushing to an early lead against Toledo before being forced into overtime. Jim Caruthers led Bradley back from an 18-point deficit into overtime against Southern Cal.

In both games, the winning coaches said their taller squads, favored by most observers to meet in the finals, lost their cool and were forced into miscues by the underdogs. But superior height prevailed in the end. Indiana won, 73-72, over Toledo and USC scored a 78-73 victory over Bradley.

Boyd gave Joe Stowell's Bradley Braves much of the credit for the Trojans' momentary collapse and Knight had high praise for Toledo.

"I honestly think we got outstuffed in the ball game," Indiana's Coach Bobby Knight said. "I look back and over nine years of coaching that hasn't happened too often. I wasn't too happy about it."

Larry Cole tied Toledo with Indiana at 65-65 with 22

seconds left in regulation time to bring the Rockets back from a deficit that had been as much as 10 in the opening half. Toledo made only four of its first 19 field goals in a horrible first 10 minutes.

The second game was like an instant replay. USC was up by 18 points in the first half, but the Braves kept chopping away, outscoring USC, 21-8, in the last 11 minutes to tie it on Caruthers' final shot.

Elmore Smith and Gail Goodrich added 22 points for the Lakers while center John Gianelli scored a career-high 25 points for the Knicks.

Celtics 129, Bulls 103: Paul Westphal came off the bench to score 10 points in the key second period and Artie Williams added eight as the Celtics increased a 34-29 first period lead to a 62-44 lead at halftime before clinching their 11th division crown. John Havlicek was the game's high scorer with 29 points.

Pistons 116, Braves 109: Bob Lanier and Dave Bing, with 23 points each, led Detroit to its 50th victory.

PITCHER-INFIELDER Roy Morris, a junior, will be in action with the rest of his Harvester teammates at Pampa's Optimist Park Tuesday in a doubleheader against Liberal, Kan. The twinbill starts at 2:30 p.m. Pampa defeated the Redskins, 12-0, 9-5, last Tuesday in Liberal. Other spring sports this week will also be in action. The girls volleyball team, on the verge of the district title, hosts Borger Tuesday starting at 6:30 p.m. The tennis team also hosts Borger Tuesday (at 2:45 p.m.). Thursday, the volleyball team travels to Amarillo Palo Duro.

Friday and Saturday, the baseball team hosts Altus, Okla., and the tennis team travels to the Borger Invitational tournament. Both golf teams are involved in district competition Friday, the boys in Amarillo and the girls in Borger. Saturday, the boys and girls track teams compete in the Borger Invitational, while the eighth and ninth-grade track teams participate in the Dumas Relays.

Eastern Schools Aren't Dominating NIT

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Invitation Tournament often has been criticized as too Eastern-oriented but not this year, at least after the conclusion of the first round.

The only Eastern schools to advance into the quarterfinals were Connecticut and Boston College with victories Sunday, while local favorite St. John's was a 82-70 victim of Connecticut.

An unheralded guard, Jimmy Foster, did in St. John's with a superlative 27-point performance Sunday afternoon, which caught everyone but the Redmen's Coach Lou Carnesecca off-guard. Carnesecca was ready but helpless.

Dick McGuire (New York Knicks' scout),

Carnesecca said, "I told me to be ready for another Tiny (Nate) Archibald, but no one could stop him."

In other Sunday games, Utah devastated Rutgers, 102-89. Boston College squeezed by Cincinnati, 63-62, and Memphis State edged Seton Hall, 73-72.

In Saturday's action,

Eastern squads Manhattan, Fairfield and Massachusetts joined pre-tournament favorite North Carolina on the sidelines as Maryland-Eastern Shore, Hawaii, Jacksonville and Purdue advanced into the quarterfinals.

Foster, however, clearly was the star of first-round play, performing brilliantly for the Huskies. He scored a trio of three-point plays within the last 11 minutes of the game in leading UConn past St. John's, whose top player, Ed Searcy, was severely hampered by an ankle injury and spent half the game on the bench.

But, if Foster was Sunday's outstanding individual performer, Utah certainly was the most impressive team, humiliating Rutgers with a 61-point first half which saw the Redskins shoot a tremendous 68 per cent from the floor.

Ticky Burden, Tyrone Medley and Mike Sojourner combined for 84 points in embarrassing the Scarlet Knights. Burden had 34 points, the tournament's individual high so far, while Medley added 27 and Sojourner 23.

Utah Contains Sellers
"We wanted to contain Phil Sellers (Rutgers' top point-producer)," the Utes' coach said after the game. Utah's 1-31 zone in the first half did just that as Sellers went 0-for-12 from the floor and the Redskins grabbed a 61-36 lead.

Jere Nolan sank the winning free throw for Boston College with 26 seconds left to play, but narrowly escaped goat horns after failing to get off an inbound pass within the five-second limit, giving Cincinnati the ball with nine seconds left and trailing by a point.

PAMPA WIN STREAK SNAPPED

Levelland Blasts Harvesters To Take Hereford Tourney

HEREFORD — Levelland collected 20 hits off four Pampa pitchers and beat the Harvesters, 16-6, to win the championship of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Baseball Tournament Friday here.

It was the second year in a row Pampa has been runnerup. Last year, the Harvesters fell, 17-7, to Big Spring in the championship game.

The Levelland win also snapped a Harvester six-game winning streak, which began March 5 against Canyon.

Gary Davis was tagged with the loss against Levelland. Alvin Stokes, Tommy Washington and David Edwards also pitched for Pampa in the game.

"We had a bad day all the way around," said Harvester coach Ronnie White. "We were due for one. I'm glad we had it now instead of putting it off for district."

"They hit the ball where we weren't. We didn't look real good, but they were doing everything right. Our pitching looked real bad in that particular game," White added. "But I'm not really upset. We won six straight and you can't expect to win forever."

Roy Morris knocked in two runs for Pampa in the bottom of the first with a double. That knotted the score at 2-2 but after the first inning it was all Levelland.

The Lobos got two runs in the second, seven in the fourth, two in the fifth and five in the sixth.

Pampa got one more in the sixth and three in the seventh.

The Harvesters reached the finals by disposing of Canyon, 9-3, and Borger, 9-1. "That (Borger) was our best game of the tournament," said White.

The Harvesters scattered eight hits in that contest and pitcher Dennis Edmondson gave up only two in getting the win.

The Harvesters, 6-4 for the season, will host Liberal, Kan. in a doubleheader Tuesday Action starts at 2:30 p.m. at Optimist Park.

Pampa defeated the Redskins, 12-0, 9-5, in two games at Liberal last Tuesday. "I'm sure they (the Redskins) are a better team. That was their first game. I'm sure they're improved," said White.

Cards Nip Boston Behind Smith Clout

By United Press International

Fisk was highly critical of Smith last year when they were teammates and the new St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder gained revenge for the bad mouthing in an exhibition game Sunday when he slugged a game-tying homer in a 4-3 defeat of the Red Sox.

Smith tied the game at 3-3 in the last of the ninth inning and the Cards won in that frame when third baseman Mario Guerrero committed a two-base error and Ken Reitz came through with a two-out single.

Boston split its squad for another game against Philadelphia and this time managed to win, 10-7, as Rick Wise pitched a 2-3 innings of perfect ball. Bernie Carbo had four hits and three RBIs, while Jim Rice sent in five runs with a homer and two singles.

Ron Cey drove in four runs with a single, a sacrifice and a homer as the Los Angeles Dodgers routed the New York Mets, 9-2. John Milner's home run was the Mets' big blow of the game.

The Chicago Cubs beat the world champion Oakland A's, 6-2, in a Cactus League game on extra base hits by Bill Madlock, Vic Harris and Jerry Morales. Harris and Morales homered. Oakland MVP Reggie Jackson was hit in the right ankle by a pitch but was not injured seriously.

Minnesota won its first exhibition game after 10 straight losses when Eric Soderholm, Bob Darwin and Steve Braun homered in a 9-5 victory over Houston. The Astros now are 3-6 in exhibition competition.

Jorge Orta drove in four runs with a homer and two singles in leading the Chicago White Sox to an 8-5 win over Kansas City. Ron Santo of Chicago and Cookie Rojas of the Royals led the game after they were hit by pitches.

In other action, Barry Foote's single drove in the go-ahead run as Montreal defeated Texas, 5-1. Bobby Murcer's two-run double helped the New York Yankees beat Detroit, 5-1.

WFL Conducting Draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-six NFL players who have played out their option, including New York Jets lineman John Elliott, will be the target of the new World Football League when it conducts a draft of National Football League players today.

The two-day draft includes 20 rounds of selections daily. The clubs apparently have decided upon their choices since all agreed to take just one minute to make their selections.

The 12-team WFL also is anxious to negotiate with disenfranchised NFL players who haven't played out their options but are willing to sign "future" contracts with the new league. Safetyman Richmond Flowers, running back Charley Evans and linebacker John Douglas of the New York Giants have committed themselves to that course.

Many of the 400 NFL players who will be drafted have no intentions of ever leaving the senior circuit. The WFL, however, wants many of the name National Football League players assigned to a team in case they want to jump leagues in the future. The move is designed to prevent several WFL teams from trying to sign the same player.

Elliott's contract with the Jets officially expires May 1 and there are reports the big defensive tackle is ready to sign a $100,000 pact with the New York Stars.

The Stars also hold the rights to Joe Namath, who has indicated he may play out his option next season.

The WFL, starting out with only 10 head coaches and a franchise to be named later.

Hubert Captures Jacksonville Golf

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Hubert Green played the final three holes of the Greater Jacksonville Open golf tournament with extreme confidence.

"When I got to the 16th hole, I didn't see how I could lose unless I broke a leg," Green said Sunday after his three-shot victory that gave him $30,000 in prize money.

Green, a 27-year-old Florida State graduate, fired a oneunder-par 71 which included four straight birdies on holes seven through 10 on the final round to give him a tourney total of 276, 12 under par.

John Mahaffey was second at 279 and Jerry Heard was third with 280.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH Still No Cure For Common Cold

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: How long after exposure does it take to get a cold, and after getting one, at what point is there no longer danger of giving it to someone else? My husband started a cold 2 1/2 weeks ago and is seemingly over it, but now I am starting one. I realize I may have gotten it from someone else. What do you recommend for treatment? I am 71. —Mrs. R.W.B.

In most cases a cold develops from 12 to 48 hours after exposure, and as long as the patient sneezes, coughs or has nasal drainage, it is possible to pass it along to someone else. Recent studies indicate that the hands are a common means of transmitting cold germs, so if you have a cold, wash your hands frequently. If you are around a person with a cold, do likewise. It isn't a guarantee, of course, but every little precaution helps. When you have a cold, the bare fact is that you just have to wait to get over it. ordinarily a week or thereabouts. But you can do a few things to make yourself more comfortable. If you have a fever, go to bed. Fever or not, aspirin or similar medication will lessen the misery. And here's a simple trick that it seems not very many people know about. Hot compresses on the face — a folded washcloth soaked in water as hot as you can tolerate — held against the face (across the nose and sinuses) affords quite a bit of comfort. Try it. Among other things, it will provide some steamy moisture which soothes the inflamed areas of the nose. There's still plenty of dispute about vitamin C, but studies at the University of Toronto support the idea that it helps. Anyway it can't hurt you when you have a cold, and if you take it in the form of orange or tomato juice, the added liquids do their part. Do NOT start penicillin or antibiotics at the onset of a cold, because these drugs do not affect viruses, and colds are caused by viruses, not bacteria. If fever persists, or a thick nasal discharge occurs, that indicates the presence of bacteria in addition to the viruses (a "secondary infection") and that is the time to see your doctor about antibiotics.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I used to weigh 230 pounds but reduced to 135 in eight months. Of course at my top weight I had several chins. I have now been left with surplus skin hanging below my chin. What could be done to correct this short of plastic surgery? If plastic surgery is the only answer, what do you think of it and is it costly? —J.M.R.

Plastic surgery is the only solution. Massage, creams and such efforts cannot help because the skin has been stretched too much. However, plastic surgery by competent surgeons produces excellent results. Cost varies, but discuss that with your doctor. Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have glaucoma and use drops four times a day. I have been told that drinking tea and coffee is bad for my eyes as it causes eye pressure to build up. Does it really do so and should I leave coffee alone altogether? I love it at meals. —Mrs. D.M.

Both tea and coffee contain caffeine which is a stimulant, and this can raise eye pressure, especially if you happen to be sensitive to caffeine. However I see no harm in a cup of either coffee or tea with your meals if you limit it to no more than three cups a day. More than that might affect eye pressure. (There are also decaffeinated coffee preparations.) You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level that best suits your individual needs. For a copy, write to him, Dr. G.C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope. Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Copyright 1974 Field Enterprises, Inc.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT Trying To Explain Streaking

By EARL WILSON NEW YORK — Have you ever tried to explain streaking to a foreign visitor? Pretty English actress Charlotte Rampling, who is not exactly backward, as she once said she loved two men, was puzzled at this new American sport and asked me, "What does it entail?" "That's what it does, all right," I replied. "If it's just nudity, we've had that in a theatrical sense in England for years," Miss Rampling said. "I've gone nude in a film, but I look upon it as a matter of costume. The scene may require beautiful clothing or no clothing at all. I don't separate the body from the gown." "Well," I said, "you see the streakers DO separate the gown from the body. That seems to be the whole thing. Do you remember when American college boys used to swallow goldfish?" "Swallowed goldfish? In God's name, what for?" Miss Rampling was at the Russian Tea Room, on tour promoting a Sean Connery film, "Zardoz," which concerns the 23rd century when everybody is 300 years old. "Miss Rampling, who looks like Lauren Bacall or Katharine Hepburn, had her husband Bryan Southome, a producer, with her in town and also her year — and a half — old son Barnaby. "There are so many misunderstandings in life," she said. "I once caused sort of a scandal by saying I lived with two men and loved them both. I didn't mean it in a sexual sense. I was naive to say it but I meant that here were two men that cared about me as an individual. "We were just like any people sharing an apartment. Well, I fell in love with one of them, Bryan, and wanted to have his baby and dedicate my life to the baby and him, and we got married. The other man, Randy Lawrence, a commercial artist and photographer, got his own apartment, but we're all very close. In fact, he's in America now and we hope to see him." Miss Rampling, who made a picture called "Corky" in Dallas and "Ski Bum" in Colorado, has noticed that in America as well as England there is a lot of apartment-sharing by people "who can't afford to have a nice flat on their own." "Everybody is doing it," she said. "I would be out-of-date now living with two men. I should be living with at least four." THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Under Twenty

By KURT LASSEN When George Creegan wrote a book on puppetry he called it "Sir George's Book of Hand Puppetry." One expects to meet a rather regal individual, based on such a title. Instead one meets a cheerful, rotund, friendly man who doesn't take himself seriously at all, but lavishes great seriousness on such "characters" as Raggedy Ann, Raggedy Andy, the cast of "Sesame Street" and a host of other "people" he deals with in his life's work. "I did a stint in the Army in Germany and because I had studied to be a singer I was put into television for the Armed Services. We didn't have any kind of a budget so I hit on the idea of using the least expensive cast we could find — puppets. I didn't know much about them," George told. "So I began to study and I was fascinated by what is one of the oldest approaches to show business. "It is probably one of the best methods of communication ever developed. In order to teach people how to teach in the Peace Corps, the government decided to use puppets as a tool. "I taught puppetry to the young people going over to strange lands and as a result developed the book, which is a simple primer on how to make puppets and use them in getting a message across to people," George said. To George Creegan the art of puppetry was a kind of hobby, something secondary to his singing and to writing which he majored in at Columbia University after his time in the service. His sideline, however, turned out to be a career. "You never know," he says, "when something you're doing just for the fun of it can turn into your career." George now heads Creegan Productions and has combined his sense of showmanship with business. His company specializes in display-concepts, animated displays for department stores, shopping centers, expositions and amusement parks. There is hardly a city in the country where George isn't represented by displays, particularly during the Christmas season. "For someone who had decided on a career in opera I've gone pretty far afield. On the other hand," George said thoughtfully, "it is still a question of showmanship, communication and getting people's attention. "While I was in college after the service I worked on a children's program on television. I kept suggesting that they use puppets to get their message across, but they wouldn't listen. I guess they felt it wasn't right for television. Now, just take a look at what's happened to Sesame Street! "Then I began to think that if television wasn't interested I could use puppets, actually animated figures, to entertain and attract people to various kinds of events and to stores. I'd put the ideas together and we'd work on animation of puppets that made them come alive. It worked and became a business, but a business that somehow fulfills what I've always wanted to do." George doesn't believe in keeping anything to himself, so he branched out to teach puppetry to students in college. "They're so imaginative in the use of this old craft that many times I feel I'm learning much more from them than they are learning from me!" George talks about his creations as if they were real people. They take on a lifelike meaning for him, whether they are the Timid Lion, Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy or one of the cuddly members of the Muppet family. (Distributed by Columbia Features, Inc.)

Paint In Safety

If spring cleaning plans include a painting project, take time to observe some simple fire prevention rules, urges the Texas Safety Association.

Solvents labeled "nonflammable" are safest for removing paint and cleaning brushes. If flammable solvents must be used, work outdoors in areas where there are no open flames and no one is smoking nearby.

Paint or solvent should be stored in capped metal containers well away from any source of heat. Never save empty paint or solvent containers.

Tags used for painting projects should be disposed of immediately, outside the house. If drop cloths and other combustible items must be kept for re-use, store them in metal containers with tight fitting lids.

THE GARDEN-Part 3

Advance Gardening Plans Can Be Helpful

By FAT McCORMACK
UPI Family Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — At planting time, get out the garden blueprint or plan you worked up indoors during cold weather.

You will have at your fingertips: packets of seeds, tiny plants from the garden center or grown indoors by you. You also may have some of the newer seeding things—like Burpee's seed tape, available in 20-foot lengths. These have seeds scientifically spaced to insure vigorous emergence and eliminates a lot of the thinning chores later. The tapes can be cut in quarters or halves.

Another seeding thing is a seed stick. This looks like an icecream bar stick with a pointy end—to make it easier to poke it into the ground. The stick contains seed.

Ahead of time you will have marked off the garden according to your blueprint, using little stakes and the cord or twine.

Follow Directions
Lay out straight rows, using the string between two stakes. Make shallow furrows with a hoe or by pressing a board or rake handle into the ground. Or you can use a trowel tip.

When using seed packets, simply follow packet directions.

Horticulturists say both flowers and vegetables do best if they are sown inside from six to 10 weeks ahead of outdoor planting time. If interested in this approach, start seeds inside around mid-March in most cold parts of the country.

More and more gardeners get a headstart with seedlings. The seedlings often are put in shallow wooden boxes, called flats, when they have one or two pairs of leaves.

Some Tips
Some gardeners put them in individual peat pots which can later be planted directly in the garden. As peat pots deteriorate they help condition the garden soil.

In its helpful guide, Gardening for Pleasure, the Burpee people give these additional tips:

—About a week before putting seedlings in the garden, toughen them by gradually exposing them to more air and a lower temperature. They should also be watered less from then on.

—If you have a cold frame—a rectangular wooden box frame with glass on top outdoors—use that. If not, move the seedling to a warm, sunny and protected place outside. If heavy frost is predicted at night, you may need to bring seedlings in at night. Or—shelter them with newspapers, burlap or baskets placed upside down over them.

—A child's wagon or a wheelbarrow also is handy for holding flats and pots of seedling. Wheel them out into the sun in daytime.

back into a garage or shed at night.
—An hour or more before you transplant into your garden, water the flats or containers well, letting them drain. This reduces wilt and shock.

—With a trowel or knife, carefully lift seedlings and reset them about the same depth they grew before. If the stems seem too long and spindly, set them a bit deeper. Press the soil around roots carefully and water well.

Falsely advertising a product as being endorsed or approved by the Coast Guard is illegal and carries a penalty upon conviction of a $1,000 fine or one year in prison.

HELP PIGGLY WIGGLY SAVE ENERGY

Piggly Wiggly has taken many steps to help save energy including lowering our thermostats, reducing operating hours, using re-cycleable egg cartons and many more. We want you to help us with one more. Will you please bring back all your re-usable large grocery bags when you shop so we can use them again to bag your new order. Thank you for helping us.
