LONDON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew here on his way home from Moscow today for talks with leaders of the new British Labor government on improving the strained relations between the United States and Europe.

government since they took office. British officials said the aim was to improve the frayed Atlantic alliance. British officials said the closer consultation between the United States and members of the European Community ranked high on the agenda of Kissinger's talks here.

making where American interests are involved. At the same time, British officials expected Kissinger to drop his earlier proposal for broad declarations setting out the military and political commitments of the allies in the next decade.

Both sides are determined to continue the course of improving the relationship between the Soviet Union and the United States as a major contribution toward world peace.

Executives, Senators Discuss Oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The oil company executives came to tell the senators about their problems in the Middle East.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the subcommittee, noted Aramco's profits rose 350 per cent between 1969 and 1973 — from $700 million to $3.2 billion — while the Saudi Arabian government was raising the price of oil from $3.01 to $11.65 per barrel.

"The greater price, the higher the profits, the greater the dividends," Johnston acknowledged. "Yes, sir. There's no way to avoid that."

"What incentive is there to keep the price down and thus keep your profit down?" Johnston said such a question would have to be directed to executives of the companies that market oil in the United States.

Former SEC Chairman Relates Hidden Evidence

NEW YORK (UPI) — A former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission testified Wednesday that ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, President Nixon's chief re-election campaign money-raiser, sought to conceal evidence that might have disclosed a secret contribution.

Stans and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell are being tried in U.S. District Court on charges of conspiracy, perjury and obstruction of justice for trying to impede an SEC investigation of financier Robert L. Vesco's dealings in exchange for a $250,000 donation to Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Stans as saying after Cook had mentioned that he had heard Vesco had given Stans a contribution for the President's re-election campaign.

Wage Package Okay Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Final congressional action was expected today on legislation to boost the minimum wage for millions of American workers to $2.00 an hour and beyond for the first time in history.

The trial resumed Thursday afternoon, after Stans' lawyers had had a chance to review the testimony of G. Bradford Cook, who was SEC chairman from February, 1973 to May, 1973.

Stans' response, Cook said, was: "Uh-oh, that gives me a problem. Do you need that in your case? Do you need all that detail?"

FOR $1 MILLION

Hearst Finalizing New Food Plans

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Amidst growing concern over the fate of Patricia Hearst, the father of the kidnaped girl is finalizing a plan on how to give away another $4 million worth of food when his daughter is released.

the University of California coed.

A $2 million giveaway financed by Hearst and the Hearst Corp., holding company for many of the assets built by the late William Randolph Hearst, all but wound up earlier this week.

The Senate was scheduled to vote on the package — agreed upon by a House-Senate conference committee — at 11:30 a.m. Its approval was certain, and the House was expected to concur shortly thereafter, thereby sending the legislation to the White House for President Nixon's signature.

Concern has been voiced by Patricia's finance, Steven Weed, that the SIA might fear Hearst would not honor the $4 million commitment once his daughter was released.

McBrayer also said he favors tax reform, streamlining the welfare structure and placing the right-to-work law in the new constitution.

Sewage Plant Proposal Gains PRPC Approval

The proposed improvement of Pampa's sewage treatment plant to bring it up to state and federal standards was approved yesterday by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission in session at Amarillo.

Senators Facing Filibuster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today takes up additional amendments to proposed campaign reform legislation, but faces the possibility of a filibuster to delay a final vote on the measure.

McBrayer Makes Local Appearance

Odell L. McBrayer, Republican candidate for governor running a campaign based on a religious theme, addressed a group of area supporters last night at a meeting at Pampa's Lovett Memorial Library.

Communications Radio Network Contract Signed

A $1,188,000 contract to provide Texas Panhandle law enforcement agencies with up-to-date radio communications equipment was signed Wednesday in Amarillo by officials of Motorola Corp. and the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

Senators Facing Filibuster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conceding the prospect of President Nixon's impeachment is "much greater today" than a month or two ago, a leading Republican senator today urged the House Judiciary Committee to speed its inquiry in the interest of fairness.

Prospects Better For Impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Aside from what he said were "legal precedents" to permit White House counsel access to the impeachment process, Griffin said in a floor speech, "it seems to me that it is in the national interest and in the interest of fairness to get to the truth, to get to the facts as quickly as possible."

You can tell that Easter is almost here — most stores have begun taking down their Christmas displays. The mortality rate for smokers and non-smokers alike is 100 per cent. The only difference, points out the cynic, is in the timing. The best place for a woman to hide her age (claims Debbie White) is in the nearest beauty parlor. If prices continue to rise, there'll be more marriages ending in bankruptcy than in divorce. (For more laughs see Earl Wilson on Page 14.)

Officials Impose Blackout On Vice Consul's Kidnap

HERMSOLIO, Mexico (UPI) — Mexican and American authorities imposed a tight news blackout today on the kidnaping last Friday of John Patterson, 31, an American vice consul here, by Mexican guerrillas. Secrecy was so tight that the kidnaping was only disclosed Wednesday, five days after it took place, when U.S. Attorney General William Saxbe inadvertently mentioned it in Washington. The tight news blackout led to speculation that both nations were caught in a dilemma by their previously announced flat "no negotiation" policies with kidnapers. Unconfirmed reports in Latin American diplomatic circles said the terrorists were asking a record $500,000 cash ransom for Patterson's safe return. One press version said Mrs. Patterson had received a note from the kidnapers asking only $50,000 ransom but authorities refused to confirm either ransom figure. Streakers Back Again! They hit again last night folks! Beautiful, mild spring weather brought the streakers out once more — again at a favorite local entry. Around 9:30 p.m., two male (observers thought) runners clad only in ski masks and foot gear jumped from a car and raced through the parking lot at the Pak - A - Burger No. 1 at 1606 N. Hobart. Nobody was really clear on the details of the incident, including the police officer who answered the call. The police report had "just now" written in the space marked "what time?" Investigation is reportedly continuing.

Patterson, 31, the second American diplomat abducted by Mexican terrorists in less than 11 months, has been in Mexico only since January. He has a wife and five-year old daughter. If confirmed, the half million dollar ransom would be the highest ever asked in Mexico. Last May extremists collected $80,000—plus the release of 30 political prisoners—for the life of U.S. Consul General Terrance G. Leonhardy in Guadalajara. Leonhardy was freed by kidnappers four days after his abduction. The released "political prisoners" were flown to Cuba with government consent. The highest ransom ever paid to Mexican kidnapers is believed to be the $400,000 turned over to kidnapers of Mexican millionaire Carlos Felton in 1972.

Mrs. LORRAINE PAYNE ...retires from Bell

Mrs. Payne Retires From Bell Telephone

Mrs. Loraine (Honey) Payne, employe of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., was honored with a retirement party Thursday, March 21, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., ending 28 years, 9 months and 8 days of service. Mrs. Payne joined the company as an operator, later transferring to the plant department, where she held the position of repair clerk for 21 years. She is the wife of H.C. (Red) Payne, and they have one son, Ronnie, and three grandchildren who live in Oklahoma City.

Convention Gives Taxpayers Decision On Gasoline Taxes

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — If Texans want to divert future gasoline taxes from the highway fund to other uses, they'll have to make the decision themselves rather than having it made by Constitutional Convention delegates. The convention voted Wednesday to submit the question of how future increases in the gasoline tax should be used to voters as a side issue when the proposed new constitution is voted on. But they refused to give voters the same opportunity to vote on proposals to completely ban a state income tax, or at least require a two-thirds vote of the legislature to enact such a tax. Another proposal putting a ceiling on all state taxes also was defeated Wednesday. Rep. Neil Caldwell, D-Alvin, said he had not found any sentiment among voters for the tax ceiling similar to one proposed in California by Gov. Ronald Reagan. "I haven't heard any great hue and cry from anyone on this except from that great taxpayer Ronald Reagan, who paid no income tax the last two years even though he had income of over $1 million a year," Caldwell said. The ceiling amendment by Rep. David Finney, D-Fort Worth, would have let voters limit state taxes to 6.75 per cent of the total personal income in the state.

Government Gives Prime Hamburger TO STUDENTS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's school children may be eating tuna casserole at home because of inflation, but at school they'll be getting hamburger ground from prime and choice beef under a new administration farm relief plan. The Agriculture Department in the current school year spent about 85 cents a pound for 45.4 million pounds of hamburger. While it contained only 24 per cent fat, it was made under specifications allowing use of cattle as low as utility grade. The Agriculture Department says the new program is trying to help cattlemen through the current period of depressed prices for high grade fattened cattle by purchasing $45 million worth of beef for school lunches. The administration plans to drop the donation of commodity food to school lunchrooms and switch completely to a program of cash grants. The beef purchase was described by officials as a one-time move to help out the beef industry.

Heeeeeeeere's...A Streaker?

By United Press International "And now, Heeeeeeeeee...a streaker?" That's right. Those who watch the Johnny Carson show tonight should see, shortly after Carson launches into his opening monologue, the bottom half of their screens go blank. Don't touch that dial. There's nothing wrong with the set.

The blackout prevents Carson from getting an X rating, as a nude man flashes out of the wings past the astonished Carson and out a side door. "It was all over in about 10 seconds," a spokesman for NBC said after the incident during the show's taping at Burbank, Calif., Wednesday night. "He was about 6 feet tall, looked to be maybe 30 or 40 years old—he was no kid—and was wearing only a big floppy hat."

"We either had to cut the whole segment or indulge in a little tasteful electronic editing...so the producer blacked out the lower half of the image. It's too bad. Johnny's been predicting we'd get hit by a streaker, but we were hoping for a girl."

In Seattle, Wash., a couple of semi-streakers—a man and woman nude from the waist down—zipped in and out of the public safety building shortly after noon Wednesday.

As the pair drove off after their appearance in the building, which houses police headquarters, they waved and grinned at two plainclothes officers who could see only the clothed upper parts of their bodies. But when the officers heard the description of the streakers a few moments later, they pursued and arrested Linda J. Burrell and Dean A. Snyder, both 24. The two were charged with indecent exposure.

Ziegler Says Several Tapes May Not Exist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler says there is a possibility that tapes of some conversations sought by the House Judiciary Committee do not exist. He said it all depends on where in the White House the conversations occurred. The committee is seeking tapes of 42 conversations which it says are necessary in its inquiry into grounds for impeaching President Nixon. The White House has not yet agreed to turn them over and some committee members are ready to subpoena Wednesday. Asked Wednesday if it is certain all the conversations "do in fact exist on tape recordings?" Ziegler told reporters: "It would depend upon exactly where the conversation took place." He explained only the President's office, his office in the Executive Office Building and one telephone in the President's living quarters were equipped to record conversations. Ziegler said he had not "evaluated the entire request" for taped conversations, "so I can't answer your question. It would depend on where those conversations took place."

Therefore, he said he was unable to talk about an evaluation of the tapes "in terms of what exists."

"I would assume that a good deal of the material does exist, but that is only an assumption on my part."

Later, Ziegler said he did not know how much or how many of the conversations had been recorded and repeated "because it would depend on where the conversations took place."

But, he added, "I don't want to leave any of you with the thought that a good deal of this material does not exist. It is my understanding that it does, but I have not had a detailed discussion in terms of any evaluation that has taken place."

As to the possibility that some of the tapes might have been tampered with, Ziegler said: "I am certain there has been no tampering with the tapes."

The White House already is faced with a subpoena from the special prosecutor's office for Watergate-related materials.

Police Chief Has Surgery

Pampa police chief Jim Conner was still in Highland General Hospital today following surgery last Saturday. Chief Conner was admitted to the hospital March 17 for tests, hospital spokesmen said. The necessity for the minor surgery was discovered when the tests were run. Conner is expected to be back on duty within a few days.

'CRATER-POCKETED' Mariner Heading Towards Mercury

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Mariner 10 entered its most productive phase today, speeding to within less than a million miles of Mercury, close enough to indicate the hidden planet may be as crater-pocked as the moon. With five months of space travel and more than 84 million miles behind it, the robot explorer was beaming back to scientists at Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory their first look at the surface of Mercury, hidden from eyes on Earth by the glare of the sun. "At first there was one very bright spot, then two and now there are dozens" that came into view of Mariner's television cameras as the spacecraft drew nearer the planet, a JPL spokesman said.

Funeral Held For Runaway

PRAIRIE HILL, Tex. (UPI) — Patrick O'Brien, 15, an orphaned runaway from a state home, killed by a stranger, was buried Wednesday in a donated grave in a windswept cemetery. The chaplain of Waco State School, home for Patrick since his father's death in 1970, read the eulogy. The State of Texas paid for the funeral. His mother, located in Houston, was the only relative present. Brown-haired, poor, plainly dressed and ill, she was helped from a car at the graveside by Amy Schmidt, a case worker at Waco State School. Prairie Hill Cemetery is a neatly trimmed community burial ground, 20 miles east of Waco. A few trees grow at the cemetery. Lorene Lewis of Belmead, donated the lot for Patrick's grave. Adult friends of Waco State School were pallbearers. There were flowers, at the cemetery and earlier at Harper-Talasek Funeral Home in Temple. The school furnished a brown suit, gold shirt and gold necktie. Patrick ran away from the school March 16. His body was discovered by a railroad brakeman in a boxcar at Temple last Saturday. Temple police chief Leonard Hancock said he had been strangled. Besides him, apparently gripping with a cord from a sleeping bag, lay James Carlisle, also 15, of Belmead. Patrick had met an older brother of James Carlisle at the Waco school and become acquainted with James then. The boys were last seen together in the railroad yards at Belmead March 21. One of them had been sexually assaulted, Hancock said when the killings were reported. "We have a lot of evidence in the (state crime) laboratory at Austin for analysis," Hancock said. "We have many people to be contacted and interviewed, in Waco and Temple and Belmead. This is a difficult one. At this point we have little to work with. It's going to be a matter of patience, perseverance and hopefully some break that might steer us in some direction." James Carlisle was buried Tuesday in Rosewood Cemetery at Waco. Schoolmates from Lavega Intermediate School in Belmead were pallbearers.

Science Today

HONOLULU (UPI) — Scientists hope to turn Hawaii into a world leader in natural energy systems by harnessing her volcanoes, sunlight, ocean and wind.

University of Hawaii faculty members concerned with the energy crisis are convinced there is no other place that has such a variety and abundance of natural energy resources, all of which are potential non-polluting power sources.

Dr. John Shupe, dean of the university's engineering department, said "There is no better spot on earth than here" for the development, simultaneously, of solar, geothermal, oceanic and wind energy resources.

With this in mind, Shupe and his colleagues have proposed to the Hawaii Legislature and federal agencies the establishment of a Hawaii Natural Energy Institute which would focus on the state's unique combination of natural assets and how to turn them into nonpolluting power sources.

Shupe said that technology should be directed to proceed as rapidly as possible through the fossil fuel and nuclear fission era into what he calls a renewable natural energy systems and nuclear fusion era.

Worry Clinic

Mary's abject slavery to her nighttime bugaboo can be corrected by the methods below. An ordinary doorbell buzzer, operating on dry cell batteries, can give her a modest little shock that will teach her bladder to behave!

CASE Z-588: Mary T., aged 9, is terrified by a bugaboo at night that demoralizes millions of kiddies.

"Dr. Crane," her worried mother began, "Mary still wets the bed occasionally."

"We thought she might have kidney trouble, but nothing is medically wrong. And she cried pathetically for us to help her get free from this bugaboo."

"But we are at our wits end. So what else can we do to help her?"

ENURESIS CURES
Bed wetting (enuresis) troubles all children till they themselves finally break themselves of this nuisance habit.

At the age of 4 years, almost 25% of kiddies are still its victim. And many unhappy folks remain occasional victims not only in the teens, but even in adulthood.

It caused many men to be "washed out" of military service, too!

But it is merely a nuisance urinary bladder habit that the victim has allowed to dominate him long after most children have declared a revolution.

At the outlet of the urinary bladder is a small circular muscle (sphincter) that shuts off the flow of urine.

In babyhood, this muscle relaxes whenever the bladder gets full and thus lets the urine flow into the diaper, day or night.

So the cure of bed wetting requires that the victim become pugnacious and visualize the contest between himself and that shut-off muscle at the outlet of the bladder.

Mary must thus go to bed with the firm resolve to waken and go to the bathroom under her own power (not propelled by Mama).

identified and exploited, both on and off-shore; as coal liquification and gasification processes are developed; as improved methods for utilizing oil shale and tar sands are discovered; and as breeder reactors increase the power generating capacity of uranium, the incentive for developing new energy systems may be lost," Shupe said.

"But even if there were unlimited quantities of fossils, fuels and uranium," Shupe said, "it would be impossible to fulfill the expanding global energy requirements with these resources alone without serious environmental degradation due to the negative effects of combustion byproducts, heat and long-lived radioactive wastes."

Abundant Supply
Shupe noted that "Hawaii, of all 50 states, is blessed with the greatest variety and abundance of natural energy resources — geothermal, solar radiation, ocean thermal, wind and water."

"Since Hawaii is in a good latitude for direct sunlight," Shupe said, "there are ways of possibly converting solar energy into a usable form."

He cited photosynthesis and that alcohol formed in sugar cane production can be used as an additive to gas or as the basis of a total energy system.

Hawaii, the first state to earmark money for planning in geothermal research before the energy crisis came on, has been conducting extensive geothermal energy experiments in the volcano area.

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

She should keep resolving that at its first sound, she'll hop out of bed and void her urine.

Many such victims cure themselves quickly by this alarm clock device.

(2) Another surefire method is to teach that sphincter muscle not to relax while its owner is asleep.

Do this by seeing that she gets an electrical shock when the first drops of urine complete the circuit in the following doorbell buzzer scheme.

Buy a buzzer doorbell, operated on dry cells, and hook it to a couple of strips of wire door screening. Fasten them to the sheet crosswise and about 6 inches apart, so her bare legs will cross them.

Meanwhile, place a couple of large squares of the screening under the sheet so her hips will lie upon them. They are to be separated by strips of cloth so they don't set off the buzzer till the first few drops of urine complete the circuit.

Then she'll get a little electric shock that will sting her legs and soon "condition" that little shut-off muscle of the bladder to stay closed until she is wide awake and consciously releases it!

With dry cells, this shock is not harmful but stings enough to waken the enuresis victim.

So send for my booklet on the "N-Uroclast," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Any mechanically minded teen-ager can easily construct this buzzer shocking device, aided with a little wire door screening.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Blvd., Mellet, Indiana 47688. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Broadway

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — A forthcoming syndicated television special, "Broadway! My Street," deals with songs of the stage and turns up some information that will surprise many persons.

For example, there is the well known "As Time Goes By," which almost everyone links with the "Casablanca" movie with Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman.

The film did give the song circulation, but Broadway had it before then in a scarcely remembered musical flop, "Everybody's Welcome." That was 12 years before the motion picture.

Richard Lewine, executive producer of the television show and himself a Broadway and video veteran as composer and producer, has turned up more interesting items about other show songs which will be projected by such stage personalities as Florence Henderson, Jerry Orbach, John Rubinstein of the current "Pippin," Virginia Capers of "Raisin," the cast of "Grease" and songwriters John Kander and Fred Ebb.

Miss Henderson and Orbach sing a sequence of songs that came from shows that failed.

Flops Into Hits
"We thought the segment would offer a wry comment on the hazards of show business and the fickle tastes of theatergoers," Lewine said.

"Also, on the judgment of some otherwise talented and knowledgeable theater people who dropped some songs from their shows."

"Time on My Hands" was dropped from a Ziegfeld musical because star Marilyn Miller didn't like it. Cole Porter's "From This Moment On" was erased from "Out of This World" while the show was still on its pre-Broadway tryout tour.

"One of the loveliest songs ever written for a musical," Lewine said, "is 'The Man I Love,' yet it was dropped from three different shows and never made it to Broadway."

Fickle Show Biz
George and Ira Gershwin first wrote that one for "Lady Be Good." Then they tried to put it in "Rosalia" and it was dropped again. Later, it failed to make the grade in "Strike-Up the Band."

Porpoise Has Sonar
Scientists believe the porpoise uses a form of sonar, sending out clicking sounds by forcing air from the sacs near the blowholes, and from echoes, knows direction, distance and size of objects.

Court Upholds GM Judgment

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The State Supreme Court has upheld a $238,150 judgment against General Motors Corporation in the death of a Houston woman killed when the steering mechanism in a new Chevrolet failed.

Mrs. Dorothy Hebert was killed July 13, 1969, as she was driving a new 1969 Impala from Houston to St. Louis to deliver it to a purchaser.

The car went out of control near Madisonville, Tex., and overturned, throwing Mrs. Hebert out and killing her.

Her husband filed suit against General Motors and dealer Boyd Mullen Chevrolet.

A trial jury found that the steering shaft coupling in the car was defective, that the design of the steering shaft was defective, and that the steering column assembly was defectively installed by General Motors.

French Press Reporting On Pompidou Resignation

By GERARD LOUGHRAN

PARIS (UPI) — For the first time, the normally discreet French Press is openly speculating President Georges Pompidou might resign before expiration of his seven-year term in June 1976.

Pompidou, 62, gave fuel to the gossip last week by dropping out of a diplomatic dinner party because of what his doctors say was a painful and possibly recurrent vascular lesion — apparently hemorrhoids.

Sources close to the Elysee Palace said he has canceled another dinner party March 29 and put off a planned visit to Japan in April.

Politicians believe a real clue to the president's true state of health will be whether or not he keeps an important April 3 date to meet West German Chancellor Willy Brandt in Bonn.

Speculation about Pompidou's health has been rampant for more than a year when his face became bloated and he seemed unsteady on his feet and breathless.

Foreign news reports have said Pompidou has an incurable disease of the bone marrow and the puffy face is a result of cobalt treatment.

Officially, all that has been said is the president occasionally is fatigued or suffering from influenza.

Pompidou, himself, has reacted with macabre humor, reportedly telling U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger: "Whenever somebody shakes my hand, I wonder if he is taking my pulse."

If Pompidou goes early, a presidential election campaign in the present climate of unrest and economic crisis could be vicious.

The candidate of the Communists and Socialists would likely be Francois Mitterrand opposing whoever the Gaullist coalition finally names, perhaps ex-Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas, Finance Minister Giscard D'Estaing or Interior Minister Jacques Chirac.

"The Gaullist nomination could be tougher than the presidential battle," a rightwing politician said, though the majority of political analysts believe Chaban-Delmas probably would win both battles.

Whatever the political course, the French leadership faces daunting problems. Giscard D'Estaing seemed to be understating it when he said last week: "1974 is not going to be an easy year."

Inflation is soaring. Industrial unrest is spreading. Opinion polls show little support for the government.

Last week gas, electricity, banks, the Giro, Air France, coal mines and students were all either striking or protesting, mostly for higher wages to beat inflation.

Dairy Funds Used As Bank Assets

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Dairy industry funds were used to inflate the assets of an Austin, Tex., bank after officials of the Associated Milk Producers, Inc., became stockholders in the bank, a legal report on AMPI activities said Wednesday.

The report, drafted by former American Bar Association President Edward Wright of Little Rock for the AMPI, said the dairy cooperative and its political committees made heavy deposits in Austin's Citizens National Bank, often leaving from $2 million to $5 million in interest-free checking accounts.

The Wright report said the funds were withdrawn from other institutions close to the end of the year and deposited in the Austin bank for a few days to make the bank's financial status "look good."

Bank Board Chairman Jake Jacobsen, an Austin and Washington attorney with AMPI connections, was the moving force in the activity, the report said.

Jacobsen was indicted by a Watergate grand jury Feb. 21 for allegedly giving false testimony to the jury panel. He was being questioned about his alleged role in helping arrange for illegal corporate contributions to President Nixon's reelection campaign.

Jacobsen offered 10,000 shares of bank stock in 1969 to David L. Parr of Little Rock, general manager of the Arkansas division of Associated Milk Producers, Inc.; Bob A. Lilly of San Antonio, assistant to the general manager of AMPI; and Joe Nigrelle of San Antonio, the report said.

Lilly and Nigrelle were reported to have said later that they were holding half their stock for AMPI general manager Harold S. Nelson of San Antonio.

Hydrogen Fuel Studied As Agriculture Aid

By PATRICK A. MALONE, MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Imagine the nation's wheat and corn fields at harvest time a few years from now, the stalks meant to feed the world swaying in the breeze. Imagine then a deadly silence.

The tractors and combines have sputtered to a stop, out of fuel and unable to reap the most bountiful food-producing fields in the world.

This grim prospect has inspired Kansas State University engineers to join in research on several fronts to adapt hydrogen, the lightest of all elements, as the logical replacement for petroleum fuels on farms.

The engineers, coordinated by electrical engineering professor Dr. Floyd Harris, envision making hydrogen from water by a process called electrolysis, then storing the hydrogen to be used for tractors, grain dryers, combines and other implements.

By passing an electric current through water, it can be split into its two components hydrogen and oxygen. When the highly combustible hydrogen is then burned as a fuel, it recombines with oxygen in the air to form water vapor.

Therein lies the advantages of hydrogen fuel, but the disadvantages too. Since its only exhaust is water vapor, it is nonpolluting and does not use up a valuable natural resource.

But to get hydrogen you have to use up another fuel, electric power, and once obtained the gas is so volatile—the smallest spark will set off a roomful—that it is extremely difficult to handle.

"That's an engineering problem," Harris replied to the question of the safety of using hydrogen. "Substantial strides have been made in that direction the past 10 years by NASA, which uses large quantities of hydrogen fuel in rockets."

He said Kansas State engineers are attacking the hydrogen problem on the safety front and two others: where to obtain the electricity to make the hydrogen, and how to use it in diesel tractors and other farm equipment.

A colleague in electrical engineering is collecting weather data on sun and wind from reporting stations around Kansas to see what each area's capacity could be for producing electricity by solar cells or windmills. Dr. Gary Johnson is also investigating one step further into the use of this electricity for electrolysis.

Dr. Stan Clark of agriculture engineering and Dr. Ralph Turnquist of mechanical engineering are equipping stationary internal combustion engines to burn hydrogen.

Next step in the related projects is obtaining funds to build working models.

Hotels Try To Cater To Special Whims Of Guests

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor
As most people who have traveled know, there's more to running a hotel than providing clean, comfortable accommodations and efficient services.

There's the problem of catering to the special demands and-or whims of some of the guests.

Like the one who asked the Hilton in Williamsburg, Va., for a coffin to sleep in, for instance. Or the girl who had Loews Hotels in New York deliver 10 gallons of milk a day for her four pet lion cubs.

And then there was Charley Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, who wanted to reserve a room at the Americana in New York for Charlie O, the teams mule mascot.

Hilton said it was sorry but it could not provide the coffin. On the other hand, it said the Atlanta Hilton Inn had no problem fulfilling another guest's request for a crib for his pet monkey.

Hilton's "spirit of service" also prevailed in other cases, a recent release said, and:

—A guest was provided with a room on an odd-numbered floor with the room number ending in 2, facing the street.

—A female guest was given a room close to the ice machine as she was having her face lifted and afterwards would need frequent icepacks.

—A crib was placed, by request, in the bridal suite.

—A man with his left foot in a cast got a bathroom with a tub on which he could rest his leg on the ledge and still face the faucets.

—And, for the guest who wanted everything, the Las Vegas Hilton provided a double mattress, mirrors in the ceiling, a cold room with a round bed and private swimming pool plus a sunken tub...everything but the requested French maid. Loews said the girl guest got her 10 gallons of milk daily, and room service at New York's Warwick Hotel also was able to provide 50 bananas a day for a guest with a pet chimp.

The Warwick made another guest happy with four television sets and 10 pounds of popcorn. A movie buff, the guest locked himself in his suite over the weekend to see how many films he could watch in 60 hours, a spokesman said. The results were not disclosed.

Finley did not get the room for his mule. But by the time the Oakland baseball team arrived, a spokesman for Americana Hotels said a "suite" had been constructed for Charlie O in the garage, complete with a picture of Finley on a dresser.

A New York City couple, who said they were looking for a "memorable" site for their wedding, decided on the indoor pool of the Americana City Squire, the spokesman said. Their request was granted and they were married by a minister while all three floated on a raft in mid-pool. Less successful was the group of liquor distributors meeting at the Inn of the Six Flags, near the new Dallas-Ft. Worth airport, who asked to have one of the five pools drained to allow them to mix a Texas-sized martini. The spokesman said the request "was regrettably turned down since the manager said he could not come up with a local source for the necessary barrel of olives."

The word "geometry" is derived from the Greek geo (earth) and metron (to measure).

S. Korea To Import U.S. Coal

SEOUL, S. Korea (UPI) — South Korea will import about three million tons of hard coal from the United States this year to meet an increasing demand for local consumption, the Seoul newspaper Dong-A Ilbo said Wednesday.

The newspaper said the increased demand for coal was due to the high price of oil supplied by Arab countries. The government prefers the coal produced in Pennsylvania.

Officials of the Korean Commerce-Industry ministry will soon visit the United States to discuss the issue with U.S. officials, the newspaper quoted a government source as saying.

For the first time, South Korea has imported a petrochemical product made in the Soviet Union, Dong-A Ilbo said.

The newspaper said Korea Nylon Company recently imported 550 tons of Soviet Union produced caprolactam, a chemical used in the manufacture of nylon. The $860,000 (U.S.) purchase was made through Japan.

South Korea and the Soviet Union do not have diplomatic relations.

Vitamins Aren't Pep Pills

COLLEGE STATION — Contrary to popular opinion, vitamins aren't pep pills, one nutritionist emphasizes. She's Sally Springer, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"According to a recent Food and Drug Administration study, most people believe that extra vitamins provide pep and energy — a false impression."

Instead, vitamins "make things happen," the specialist explained.

"They don't become energy or structure for the body.

"Necessary in only very small amounts, vitamins work mainly as enzymes — and sometimes like enzyme helpers or coenzymes."

"Without enzymes, certain chemical reactions — like breaking protein into amino acids during digestion — wouldn't take place."

Vitamins are usually combined with other nutrients — especially protein, carbohydrates and fat — in foods that supply calories. But alone, in pill form, they don't furnish calories, Miss Springer said.

There are two types — fat-soluble ones — such as vitamins A, D, E and K. However, excesses can present problems. For example, excessive vitamin A can cause increased pressure inside the skull," she continued.

"Excess water-soluble vitamins, in contrast, are excreted in urine. These vitamins — including the B-vitamins and vitamin C — aren't stored to any large extent in the body."

"Vitamins appear in a wide variety of foods. As a result, the average healthy person can get all he needs from foods in a balanced diet."

"Supplemental vitamins should be taken only under a physician's directions, when there's increased body needs," she added.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

One of the established conventions in defensive play is that when your partner opens a king against a suit contract, and you play the queen, you are guaranteeing possession of the jack (unless, of course, the queen is a singleton).

The application of this type of signal was put to practical use in today's deal, which came up in a duplicate game.

Both sides vulnerable.

South deals.
♠ 7 6 4
♥ K Q 8 2
♦ Q 7 5
♣ J 9 3

WEST
♠ A K 2
♥ A 10 5
♦ J 10 9 8 3
♣ A 10

EAST
♠ Q J 9 3
♥ 7
♦ 6 4 2
♣ 8 7 5 4 2

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ INT 2♥ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

At the tale where the above bidding sequence took place, East played the spade queen on West's opening lead of the king. To trick two West led the ace of clubs, and followed up by leading the club ten to trick three. South won this trick with his queen.

Declarer then cashed the ace and king of diamonds, after which he led the three of trumps. West climbed right up with his ace and returned the two of spades to East's marked jack. East played back a club, which West ruffed. West now took his ace of spades, to hand declarer a one-trick set, for a loss of 100 points.

When this deal was replayed at another table, West once again made the standard overcall of one notrump. North guessed to double this contract, for penalties. At the conclusion of play, West had made only six tricks. Thus North-South secured a score of 200 points, which turned out to be the best North-South score on the deal.

When this deal was replayed a third time, West chose to make a two-diamond overcall over South's one heart opening bid. North then bid two hearts and East went out on a limb with a three-diamond call, which became the final contract.

Upon winning North's opening lead of the heart King with his ace, West led a second heart and ruffed it. Returning to his hand via the spade ace, West then ruffed his remaining heart. Next came a spade to West's king, after which a spade was led to dummy's queen. The jack of spades was played next, South discarding a heart as West discarded the club ten. North trumped this trick with the five.

North now led a heart, West ruffing, after which a trump was led and taken by South's king. A club lead by South was won by West's ace, and another trump lead was made. North's queen and South's ace falling on this lead. Thus West made 10 tricks, a "top-of-the-board" for East-West.

make all the difference to those you cherish. Your "luck" with the institutions of society is good.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Older friends have bigger problems than you, but all endeavor to be helpful. Try to complete end-of-the-week routines as early as possible.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Although the going is smoother, it subtly takes more stress and strain than would be imaginable. Cut down the size and volume of what you attempt.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Housecleaning is appropriate; put everything that has lost its usefulness out and into hands that can use it. Professional or technical advice is favored.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Seek family unity today; set long-range plans, budgets, goals. A search for the lost or hidden turns up results, including beneficial side effects.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Remember what belongs to whom and you're okay; give something away that isn't yours and you've asked for trouble. It's a great day and evening.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Be up and on the go early to get a full day in on your chosen work, concentrating on important items first. Pace yourself to last longer.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Original ideas turn out to be interesting, helpful, or exciting, although you must continue with conventional methods for most of what you do now.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Working around the various stipulations imposed by individual needs and goals is not easy but worth doing so everybody prospers.

Billy's Mother Wants To Fight Out School's Hair Issue In Courts

HOUSTON (UPI) — The mother of a 5-year-old boy kicked out of kindergarten because he wears his hair long to cover a birth defect wants the courts — not the school district — to decide if her son's rights have been abused.

dress codes and everything with our teen-aged daughters," Mrs. William F. Epperson said. "There's no reason to disagree with it. But we never had a problem like this. Just because they are letting Billy stay in the rest of the year, we are not going to let it drop." School officials at suburban Pasadena told Mrs. Epperson her adopted son could finish the year and that they had decided not to appeal a federal restraining order forcing them to readmit the youth they expelled last month for nearly four weeks. A hearing is set for May 15 and attorneys said the trial on the merits of the case — whether the school wrongfully expelled Billy and violated his First Amendment rights — is expected this summer. Billy wears his hair in a

"Buster Brown" cut to cover a birth defect that gave him an elongated head. His parents have said if he wears his hair short, it will display the defect and other children might ridicule him. "He's got 12 years to go and we are not letting it drop," Mrs. Epperson said.

"As long as long hair is in style he will wear it and by that time he will be old enough to fight it himself. "We have got to help him while we can." The Eppersons and the American Civil Liberties Union took the case to federal court after the principal of the Golden Acres Elementary School and the Pasadena School Board refused to allow Billy to attend class. U. S. District Judge Woodrow Seals last week admitted he once wore his hair the same way, except longer, and ordered the school to let Billy back in. "To keep this child out of classes would cause irreparable damage to the child," Seals said in his ruling. "When I was about 5 or 6 I had one (a "Buster Brown" cut) and it came down completely over my ears."

There's an awful lot of old bedsteads being scrapped in this country at the same time that bicycling is enjoying a greatly increased popularity. Wonderful! An ideal recycling situation has been set up.

What you do, see, is you take the headpiece off one of those antiquated iron bedframes and you remove the casters and embed the legs of the assembly in cement and... Presto! You've got yourself a bicycle rack that's every bit as good as an expensive store-bought model.

Bicycle weather is just around the corner! Perhaps, with gasoline as tight as it is this year, you'll want to take the family on a summer "cycle-camping" vacation. Dear Consumer

U.S. Helps Insure On Floods, Crime

By Virginia Knauer
Special Assistant to the President and Director
Office of Consumer Affairs
Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Right now is an especially useful time for you to learn about the National Flood Insurance Program.

When rivers become swollen with springtime's melting ice or by spring and summer storms, we all worry about flooding—whether the flood waters rise less than a foot or become disasters, such as along the Mississippi last year.

Flood insurance, subsidized by the Federal Government, is available to homeowners and to businesses at moderate rates. You can buy it from any insurance agent if your community participates in the program. Your agent can tell you whether your community is already covered.

If your community is not yet participating—and if you live in a "flood-prone" area—you should urge your local government officials to join the program. They can get full information from Federal Insurance Administration, Washington, D.C. 20410. The procedure for participating is simple. And the protection for citizens is extremely valuable.

My office was involved in helping the people of Wilkes-Barre after that city in my home state of Pennsylvania was flooded in 1972. I was shocked to learn that only two families in that area were covered by flood insurance. Now that the Federal Government's program is more well-known, I hope that everyone who faces the risk of floods there—and everywhere—is buying this insurance.

Crime insurance is equally valuable. Under the Federal Crime Insurance Program, property can be insured against burglary and robbery in states designated as "critical areas."

The key facts about this crime insurance are that it cannot be cancelled because of claims against it, and the insurer cannot refuse to renew the policy. Also important: Rates are reasonable. You can buy this federally subsidized insurance from any insurance agent if you live in an eligible state.

There are now 14 eligible states in addition to the District of Columbia: Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Tennessee.

Newspapers Offer Proposal To Union

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Management negotiators for the Washington Post and the Star-News have submitted new contract proposals to the Typographical union they hope will go before a membership vote Sunday. It was reported Wednesday.

The latest offer to members of Columbia Typographical Union No. 101 would give lifetime job security to 696 printers at the Post and to 325 at the Star-News. In addition, the proposal would guarantee work for up to 115 "substitute" workers at the Post and 50 at the Star-News.

A member of the three-man bargaining committee, Cecil Watts, said he and his fellow committeemen were urging membership rejection of the offer because it did not compensate members adequately for surrendering work protection language in their present contract, including the right to reset advertising received from other shops.

Management and union negotiators have been meeting since last August over contract changes which would permit the use of new automated typesetting and other equipment and substantially reduce composing room manpower.

The current management offer would include payment of $5,000 severance pay to any fulltime printer taking early retirement and payment of $3,000 to substitute printers who give up their jobs.

It also proposes a 5.5 percent basic wage increase annually during the term of the new pact plus cost-of-living benefits which would increase the wage package in the second year if inflation exceeded 4.75 percent in the first year.

Public Awareness Spurs Charges In Police Corruption

By DAVID ANABLE
Christian Science Monitor
NEW YORK — Police corruption charges and convictions are bubbling to the surface in a number of U.S. cities, from New York and Philadelphia to Houston, Indianapolis and Chicago.

Public awareness and increased vigilance on the part of the police themselves, some officials believe, have spurred the current spate of charges.

Recent or ongoing examples:
New York City: 16 police detectives have been indicted on corruption charges within the past two weeks. Two grand juries are continuing investigations into narcotics-related corruption in cooperation with the state's special prosecutor Maurice Nadjari, who is especially concerned with clearing up the theft of heroin from the police department itself.

Philadelphia: A report just released by the Pennsylvania Crime Commission asserts that corruption in the city's police force is "ongoing," widespread, systematic, and occurring at all levels of the police department.

State Attorney General Israel Packel, chairman of the commission, is appointing a special prosecutor to follow up the charges.

Jail Sentence
Houston: This year one police officer has been sentenced to jail and several others indicted for narcotics-related corruption charges.

Indianapolis: Mayor Richard Lugar last week dismissed both the chief and assistant chief of the city's police department in what he described as an effort to restore public confidence and police morale following allegations of widespread corruption in the force.

A series of articles in the Indianapolis Star detailing alleged police graft has prompted an FBI investigation.

Chicago: The new police superintendent, James Rochford, is setting up an Office of Professional Standards to investigate charges of police corruption and brutality.

He also is planning major staff changes in the wake of a series of lie detector tests carried out on members of the department and is taking other actions to produce a "complete turnabout" in the department. Last year more than 50 Chicago policemen

Door Blamed For Crash Of Turkish Plane

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The former head of the Federal Aviation Administration says the person who improperly closed the rear cargo door was at fault in the March 3 crash of a Turkish Airlines DC-10 in Paris that killed 346.

John A. Shaffer, answering reporters' questions Tuesday after an appearance before the Senate Commerce subcommittee on Aviation studying the crash, defended his decision in 1972 not to issue an FAA order that the DC-10 cargo door be fixed.

Shaffer said the voluntary service bulletins issued by the manufacturer, McDonnell-Douglas, had the same effect an FAA order would have had.

C.O. Miller, director of the National Transportation Safety Board's Aviation Safety Bureau, told the subcommittee there was "multiple evidence" the cargo door on the Turkish airliner was not modified despite records from McDonnell-Douglas that a required safety plate had been installed prior to delivery.

Miller told the subcommittee that he had received reports from the French government that the person checking to see if the door had been closed properly was illiterate.

McDonnell-Douglas has acknowledged that three DC-10s, including the one involved in the Paris crash, did not have a fully modified cargo door latching mechanisms — despite the bulletins the company put out.

Iceland's parliament is the oldest in the world, dating to 930.

were indicted and more than 30 convicted on graft-related charges.

The ferment in New York and Philadelphia is in each case the result of long investigations: in New York, the Knapp Commission report of 1972 followed by the setting up of grand juries and of the New York special prosecutor's office; in Philadelphia, the crime commission took 18 months to prepare its just-released report.

A Swift Reaction
On the other hand, the changes in police command in Indianapolis, Ind., are a swift reaction (some allege political overtones) to the Indianapolis Star's investigative series, which started only in February after six months of reporters' digging.

Nonetheless, few observers doubt the impetus provided by public dismay at the snowballing disclosures. And police organizations and police chiefs are starting to take note.

"There is no question but that the public are concerned," says a spokesman for the Washington-based police foundation, adding that this could well be part of today's apparent public mistrust for government as a whole.

Beginning Steps
Furthermore, he sees police professionals now at last "taking the very beginning steps" to deal with the problem — although they have yet to take an active enough role.

Some police sources add a cautionary note. "What seems to be surfacing as a widespread corrupt activity among police departments can be an increased reporting of corrupt activities," says a spokesman for the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP). But, he adds, "we are certainly happy that it is surfacing."

Perhaps for the first time in its history, the IACP at its 80th annual conference last fall held seminars on police corruption. IACP spokesmen say it "aroused much interest" and stimulated many inquiries about what could be done to "maintain the integrity of law enforcement functions."

Others Due
Further, such seminars are due in New Orleans in June and San Diego in November.

Meanwhile, the police foundation has put together an advisory group of police chiefs to look into the subject. It also is sponsoring a paper by a University of Wisconsin professor on the nature and extent of police corruption, what can be done to combat it, and what obstacles probably will be faced.

Tech Scientist To Study Leaf-Nosed Bats In Ecosystem On Islands

LUBBOCK — From countless centuries enshrouded in folklore, sorcery, mystery and superstition, bats are coming into the light of scientific investigation and proving to be valuable animals for study.

Leaf-nosed bats are the most abundant and most diversified family of bats in the New World tropics. As such they play a major role in New World tropical ecology.

As world population increases, ecological systems in the New World tropics are becoming increasingly important. Bats can play an important part in understanding these ecosystems and can offer scientists much information applicable to humans and other mammals, according to Dr. Robert J. Baker, associate professor of biology at Texas Tech University.

Baker and Dr. Hugh H. Genoways, curator of mammals at The Museum of Texas Tech University, have been awarded a grant of continued support for the study of bats by the National Science Foundation.

This summer, Baker and Genoways and two Texas Tech graduate students will collect bats and initiate a multi-faceted series of studies on the islands of Jamaica, Hispaniola, Guadeloupe and Trinidad.

The study has been planned to gain maximum information in several areas with a minimum of specimens collected, ecological disturbance and expense.

The researchers will look into the evolutionary development of bats and the relationships of island bats to bats from the mainland. Chromosomal studies from cell nuclei will be used extensively to provide an accurate picture of species relationships.

In these groups of bats, physical characteristics have developed to meet the needs of the animals in their particular environment, said Baker. While bats from the mainland may look different from some bats from the island, they actually come from a common ancestor.

Chromosomal studies will give a clearer picture of their relationships and the likelihood of their having had a common beginning than would simple physical comparisons. One theory indicates that mainland bats have advanced more rapidly than their island counterparts, he said.

In their study, the researchers will also study physical characteristics, brain anatomy, gastric anatomy, sperm characteristics and external parasites found on different species of bats.

"Studying island isolated, less advanced forms of bats will provide much useful information which is now missing," said Genoways.

"Mainland bats have been studied more extensively than the island bats and much data are needed for comparison." The study of bat parasites should be especially productive, according to Genoways. Some parasites exist solely on particular species of bats, while others live on more than one kind of mammal.

The study of the relationships of parasites to their hosts and their transmission from host to host could provide information which could be productive in parasite control. Learning to control disease carrying parasites and their transmission by bats could be especially helpful in the New World tropics, he said.

After the field trip and collection of specimens between July 1 and the end of August is completed, the scientists will return to Texas Tech with their specimens and materials for further detailed study.

Collaborating in the detailed studies will be Dr. J. Knox Jones, The Museum and Department of Biological Sciences, Texas Tech University; Dr. T.C. Hsu, M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, Houston; C. Stanley Rouk, assistant professor of biology at Baylor University; V. Rick McDaniel, assistant professor of biology, Arkansas State University; and Texas Tech doctoral student, James P. Webb Jr.

Graduate students accompanying Baker and Genoways on the field trip are John Bickham, a doctoral candidate, and John Patton, a senior who will enter a master's degree program at Texas Tech this summer.

Thoughts Turn To Elephants In The Spring

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the spring many a fancy turns toward the circus—and maybe to its elephants.

So Axel Gautier, trainer of elephants for Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, thought it might be a good time to make up a list of "some of the things you always thought about elephants which aren't true."

—Elephants do forget. They can remember anything they've ever heard, but their visual retention is no better than anyone else's.

—Elephants never get sick. They do.

—Elephants live hundreds of years. They don't live any longer than humans.

—Elephants love peanuts. They will accept them, but they much prefer cigar butts, a loaf of bread, doughnuts, coffee and watermelon rind.

—Elephants are terrified of mice. Nonsense.

—In the jungle elephants are no match for lions and tigers. Not so. Elephants are well aware of their own strength and reluctant to use it. However, once threatened, they attack with full force and no animal can stand up to the devastating power of an angry elephant's trunk.

Garnishes Dress Up The Plainest Dish

AUSTIN — Any cook will tell you — eye appeal is as important as taste in serving fine food. The right garnish adds zip to the homeliest dish while a standing rib roast, alone on its platter, is a "plain Jane."

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White recommends that consumers take advantage of the abundance of fresh Texas vegetables and citrus currently on the market. Many make suitable garnishes. Hard-cooked egg also adds color and taste to certain dishes.

Choice is up to the individual and this is one area where imagination is an asset. No need for waste either. Most garnishes are full of vitamins and low in calories. They make great nibbles.

Garnishes can be as simple as a dusting of paprika or as frilly as a daisy made of hard-cooked egg. Fresh onion rings atop a dark green spinach salad or little cherry or Saladette tomatoes encircling a roast take only minutes to prepare. Sliced hard-cooked egg adds color and protein to potato salad.

The cook who is willing to spend more time on garnishes will find the special effect worth the trouble. She will need a sharp knife and a little patience, just in case first efforts are not perfect.

Texas Department of Agriculture home economists suggest the following possibilities.

Orange or lemon twists — Slice fruit crosswise into extra-thin slices. Just to the center of each slice cut a slit. Twist the cut edges in opposite directions.

Carrot curls — Scrape carrots. Then, using a vegetable parer, cut lengthwise into paper-thin slices. Roll the slice and fasten with toothpicks. Chill in a bowl of ice and water. Before serving, remove picks. Try dressing up hors d'oeuvre platters with carrot curls. A black olive in the center of each curl is an appetizer in itself.

Radish roses — Use large, fresh radishes. Remove the stem and root ends. Cut thin petals around the radishes, making sure not to cut too deeply into the base. Place them in ice and water and watch the petals open.

Egg daisies — Cut the whites of hard-cooked eggs lengthwise into five or more petals, using the tip of a knife and cutting from the larger end to within a half inch of the smaller end. Open the petals and remove yolk. Sieve the yolk and return it to the center of the petals. An excellent garnish for cooked green vegetables.

Pepper Rings — Cut a slice from a green or red pepper and remove the seeds and partitions. Slice peppers crosswise, make rings as wide as desired. Rings may be used to hold stacks of asparagus or whole green beans. Whole peppers are attractive containers for mayonnaise or cooked vegetables of a contrasting color. Cut a thin slice from the stem end of a sweet pepper and remove the seeds. Fill as desired.

USE GARNISH FOR COLOR — Sprigs of parsley, cherry tomato halves and circles of green pepper add color to onions stuffed with egg salad. According to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, this spring's Texas onion harvest is expected to be the third largest on record.

Special Bread Is Easy To Prepare

Here's a refreshing Springtime idea that can be served with your morning coffee or as a special dessert.

Honey-Orange Baba is an easy-to-prepare cake that begins with a package of hot roll mix. This sweet-eating bread features the fresh flavor of orange peel and juice and an interesting flavor — texture addition of raisins, nuts and coconut.

The preparation of this no-knead yeast coffee cake is very simple. The mixer method is used to combine the initial bread ingredients; the raisins, nuts, coconut and part of the flour are stirred in later by hand. No kneading required!

Bake this attractive Baba in a fluted or regular tube pan. As soon as it comes from the oven, top with the Baba syrup made from orange juice, honey and butter.

To serve, garnish with mandarin oranges and coconut for a special Springtime touch.

HONEY-ORANGE BABA
1 package Pillsbury Hot Roll Mix

1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 eggs
¼ cup orange juice or apricot nectar
¼ cup butter or margarine

One-third cup raisins or chopped dates
One-third cup chopped nuts
One-third cup coconut SYRUP

½ cup orange juice or apricot nectar
½ cup honey
¼ cup butter or margarine

In large bowl, combine half of the mixture, yeast and orange rind. Heat orange juice and butter until very warm (105-115 degrees Fahrenheit). (Butter does not need to melt.) Add warm liquid and eggs to flour-yeast mixture. Blend at low speed until moistened. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Stir in raisins, nuts and coconut and remaining flour mixture. Cover; let rise until light and doubled in size: 40 to 50 minutes.

Grease 12 cup fluted tube or 10-inch tube pan. Stir down batter. Spoon into prepared pan. Cover; let rise until

If you have a new baby in the family, you will need baking soda about. It cleans baby, the nursery and deodorizes as it works. It is pure, safe and natural.

The many uses of baking soda in homes with infants include:

Bath: Add a handful of baking soda to baby's warm tub of water for effective washing with a minimum amount of soap.

Dentifrice: Make a paste of one tablespoon of baking soda and a few drops of water, and gently cleanse teeth and gums with dampened gauze.

Diapers: Three tablespoons of baking soda in a diaper pail full of water makes an effective pre-treatment prior to laundering. It neutralizes acid.

Cigars Or Pipes? No Smoking Still Better

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you give up cigarettes and switch to cigars or a pipe, will you be protecting your health?

Better give up smoking altogether, advises the American Lung Association (ALA). A report in the ALA's Bulletin makes this point:

"People who smoke pipes and instead of cigarettes reduce some hazards to their health but increase others."

Because most regular pipe and cigar smokers don't inhale, their chances of developing coronary heart disease or severe lung diseases such as chronic bronchitis, emphysema and lung cancer are smaller than those of cigarette smokers.

When they do inhale, their chances of developing serious heart and lung diseases are even higher than those of cigarette smokers, says the ALA.

The Christmas Seal-supported association cautions about a special danger for cigarette smokers who switch. Since they have usually established patterns of inhaling, some studies show they are more likely to inhale cigar and pipe smoke than are smokers who have used these right along.

"Even tobacco smoke that is not inhaled still affects the sites it touches," says the Lung Association.

"Hot smoke lingers inside the mouth and can travel into the throat and windpipe, even into the upper breathing passages."

"Smoke — which may be dissolved in the saliva and absorbed by the mucous membranes of the mouth — can be swallowed and enter the digestive tract. Inhaling is not necessary to expose all of these sites to the harmful effects of hot smoke."

The design for the White House was a contest sponsored by the federal government and won by James Hoben, who was awarded a $500 prize.

FAA Wants To Reduce Jet Noise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government wants to reduce jet noise by modifying airliners and changing the way they approach instrument landings.

FAA Administrator Alexander P. Butterfield of the Federal Aviation Administration said Tuesday one modification proposal would apply to all civilian jets weighing 75,000 pounds or more, including the Boeing 707, 727 and 737 and the McDonnell Douglas DC8 and DC9.

This proposal "attacks one of aviation's most persistent and troublesome problems" in noise pollution from the big jets.

Butterfield said. Jet modifications to produce less noise are now being flight tested for most of the affected airplanes.

Butterfield said. He said older jets for which no modification kits had been developed were rapidly being retired from service and few would be in operation when the rule would become effective.

Airlines would be expected to comply by July 1, 1978.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT They Said Raquel Wouldn't Last

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — They said Raquel Welch wouldn't last but she's even bigger. "I've survived all the smirks and sneers and barbs of people who thought I was an expendable sexpot, and now I'm enjoying the fruits of my labors," she said, sipping some white wine with her man of the last couple of years, costume designer Ron Talasky, in their hotel suite at the Carlyle.

They were leaving for London to be presented to Queen Elizabeth at a Command Performance of "The Three Musketeers." Raquel, well covered in an Indian sweater and pants, said, "Ron and I bought a very beautiful elegant black dress which will not have any over - display of cantilever cleavage."

Raquel, probably the shapeliest movie star, has made 24 films without taking her clothes off once. "Lauren Bacall, Joan Crawford and Bette Davis were able to be considered very romantic without going naked," she said. "I think hard - core pictures are dying; people are rejecting them."

Jack Albertson, formerly of "Sunshine Boys," will do a TV pilot film. Joe Kipness of Joe's Pier 52 has two of John Gavin's suitcases and doesn't know where to send 'em. An airline phoned Joe, said they'd found the Gavin luggage, opened 'em and found letters from Joe — so would Kipness mind holding them till Gavin's located? Joe said sure — and then had to pay an $8 delivery charge when they arrived.

It was clear that Raquel Welch now feels she's at the top: "I've made my peace with the world." She's a comedienne in "Musketeers"; she had a success in Las Vegas, she felt her TV special was a success (though a couple of critics disagreed); she next wants to do an album.

Her daughter Tahnee, 12, attends an exclusive school where some youth streaked for the edification of the girls. "The head of the school got the boy's clothes and ran them up on the flagpole," Raquel added. "I came in when all the nudity in pictures was starting and I believe Candice Bergen and I were the only ladies who didn't do it."

show Biz Quiz: What film role was played by both Mary Pickford and Freddie Bartholomew? Ans. to yesterday's: Joan Crawford, Joan Fontaine, Ginger Rogers and Audrey Hepburn — all Fred Astaire dance partners — won Oscars in other roles. Al Lettieri, who was in "The Godfather," isn't in the sequel, "Godfather II"; I promised Marlon Brando I wouldn't pull any jobs for anybody but him... Dining daintily at Danny's Hideaway: Totie Fields, who's taken off 27 pounds...

I'D RATHER BELIGHT Today's Best Laugh: Every year (says Alex Thien) postal officials promise they'll do something about junk mail: "But every year those income tax forms show up just the same." Wish I'd Said That: "The way prices and taxes are going," a man sighed, "I need a raise just to be able to stay broke." Remembered Quote: "Middle age is when the things you no longer do are in the majority." Earl's Pearls: A famed bandleader explained why he won't hire female musicians: "If they're pretty, they distract my men. And if they're not pretty, they distract ME." Comic Mickey Freeman saw a woman at ringside wearing a big glittery diamond and exclaimed, "Goodness, what a lovely ring! Where do you get batteries for it?" That's earl, brother. Under Twenty

By TOM WILLIAMS
During the past few years the crunch at college has eased considerably as college enrollment has fallen off. In virtually all but a few highly select colleges there are this year, and will be for the foreseeable future, empty seats in the classroom. In many cases admission standards have been somewhat lowered to attract more students.

excellent college education in almost any field you select. In considering your college future don't forget to look into the two - year or Junior College situation. Depending on what you choose for your career, these institutions offer excellent courses of study to prepare you for your future. Two-year colleges, however, have not shown as marked a drop in enrollment as have the traditional colleges. These colleges have shown a very high employment rate because of their concentration on specific skills and are therefore popular with high school graduates. In addition to skills, most of them offer a sound basic curriculum which means that a graduate can usually enter a traditional college after graduation to expand learning, skills and to obtain a degree. As you plan college, keep in mind that the changing scene on the campus has not favorably affected tuition. As a matter of fact, most tuition costs are up over a few years ago and you should plan to spend more on your education. Saving early and carefully budgeting your money should occupy a good bit of your attention as you begin planning your college career. (Distributed By Columbia Features, Inc.)

The Pampa Daily News
A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

The Information Business

There is a feeling in some circles that the news media are somewhat irresponsible when they report on criminal activity and-or "undestable" conduct of human beings.

The suggestion is that by publicizing such things as kidnapping, skyjackings, streakings, hippie congregations and similar activities, the media encourage others to do likewise.

There is some truth to the idea that once someone reads about a wild act, he might be encouraged to try it himself. It may be something he had never thought of independently.

We in the information business are mindful of that possibility. The question is, what to do about it?

Shall we not tell the world that Patricia Hearst was kidnaped? Had we not, there is a possibility that others would not have been "turned on" to the idea of committing similar crimes.

On the other hand, there is no guarantee of that. Suppose the Hearst kidnaping had never made headlines. Her family would still have received the ransom demand in secret and would still be suffering the agony of not knowing about her fate.

The kidnapers might well spread the word that kidnaping is a workable crime. The victims won't tip off the police, and the news media won't tell anyone else. So go out and do your thing.

Another aspect is that the other potential kidnap victims would not be alerted so that special efforts could be made to protect themselves.

We believe it is better to have the information than not to have it. What the reader does with what information we provide is up to the individual.

Knowledge is not necessarily pleasant. It is simply another tool for individuals to use.

The challenge to the news media of course is to present information fairly and as accurately as possible and to keep it in its proper perspective.

We must all plead guilty to errors in judgment from time to time. We have been guilty of "overplaying" others.

We have been in error in presenting the facts from time to time. A reporter or editor sometimes lets his individual bias color his work. These instances are regrettable, and all of our cliches about working under trying circumstances, in haste and with limited space are not good enough for the reading public. We understand that.

But we believe that if these errors are mistakes in commission rather than in omission, there is less disservice to the public.

Our job is to provide you with information, not withhold it from you. We believe our readers will have greater confidence in the news media if we continue to operate that way.

Ford Foundation Riddle

Ford Motor Co. President Lee Iacocca gave the right recipe for ending the gasoline pinch.

"Let the people of this country decide what value they place on a gallon of gas," he told newsmen. At the same time he advocated abolition of price regulations and the burning of rationing coupons which are such a temptation to bureaucrats.

The problem with any statement from Ford Motor Co., however, is to disassociate it from the activities of the Ford Foundation which, having fallen into the hands of the leftwing, helps to finance so many movements calculated to bring on governmental intervention.

We understand, of course, that the motor company and the foundation are not directly responsible to one another. But there is a relationship between the two that is puzzling to the public at large. How can two organizations with a close connection to one another come out with such antagonistic points of view? We, for one, would like to see the matter clarified.

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Democrats And Watergate

By WILLIAM RUSHER

As a vote on the impeachment of President Nixon draws slowly nearer, first in the House Judiciary Committee and then in the House of Representatives itself, advocates of impeachment are going to work on the Republican members of Congress. The argument is being pressed, in some ways quite plausibly, that Nixon's impeachment is in the best interests of the Republicans themselves. It does not seem to have occurred to anybody that, if so, then — by the iron rules of political polarity — it is not in the best interests of the Democrats.

All politics is conflict. There never has been, and never will be, a democratic society in which all issues of policy are settled and everybody is working happily toward the same goals. Since the struggle is perpetual and no victory ever really settles very much, the shrewd political strategist will usually direct his attention, not to the question "Who's winning?" but rather to the question, "Where's the battlefield?"

At present, and for almost a year, the central political question before the country has been whether Richard Nixon should be impeached.

It is difficult to imagine any issue more agreeable, purely as an issue, to the leaders of the Democratic party. As long as that question looms before us unresolved, they simply cannot lose. Take any side you choose — yes, he should be impeached; no, there isn't enough evidence; or merely wait and see — and you are automatically doing the Democratic party a favor. It's like a football game played solely between the 50-yard line and your opponent's goalpost.

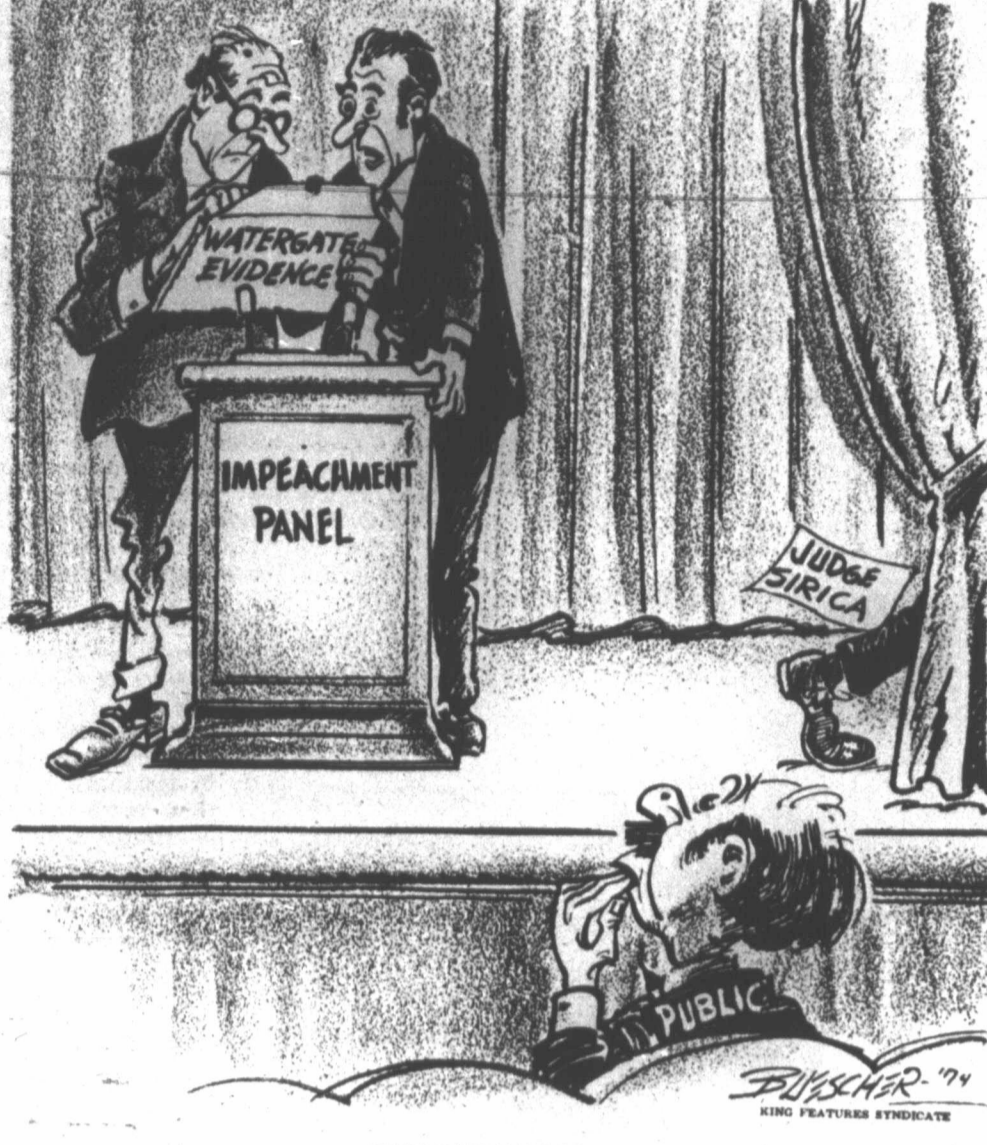

To be sure, there are plenty of Americans for whom the impeachment and removal of Richard Nixon, as promptly as possible is a far higher goal than merely accommodating the Democratic party. But I doubt that many Democratic Congressional leaders look at it that way. After all, if Nixon were removed from office Gerald Ford would automatically become President, and there would be an obligatory "honeymoon," probably at least several months long, before his Congressional opposition could decently start opposing him. Meanwhile the present Republican members of Congress, who must fight for reelection this November, could put Nixon and the whole Watergate nightmare behind them and pose instead as good soldiers of the new President.

Does that strike you as something sensible Democratic leaders of Congress would prefer to the present state of affairs? Every time they pick up a newspaper there's a headline telling of some fresh indictment of a high presidential aide, or reporting some new refusal by the White House to turn over allegedly crucial documents or tapes, or hinting at still further scandals soon to be exposed. And over in the editorial pages everybody — including columnists like myself — is crooning that old refrain: Ought Nixon to be impeached, or not?

It would take a statesman indeed to hand his political foes an easy way out of a mess like that. And, incidentally, don't suppose for a moment that the Republicans would be any more magnanimous if the positions were reversed. Politics is a tough business, and there isn't one politician in a hundred, in either party, who wouldn't, in John Ehrlichman's unimprovable phrase, let his adversaries "hand there," twisting "slowly, slowly in the wind."

Sooner or later, of course, the Democratic leaders must bring the whole grand flap to a climax and close, lest the American people tire of this particular bit of bearbaiting and start feeling sorry for the bear. Even then, it would probably be in the best interests of the Democratic party to fall one or two votes short of the two-thirds needed for Nixon's removal by the Senate, rather than give the Republicans and the nation a fresh start under President Ford. Meanwhile, don't count on the Democrats' sheer kindness to shorten the agony. There will still be a number of them around, with long lists of "Unanswered Questions About Watergate," when Gabriel blows his trumpet.

McGovern Repeat In 1976?

By VICTOR RIESEL

NEW YORK — Several times the man repeated: "No question about it." About what? About the efforts of the strategy and objective of the Democratic party's new politics organization, the very same one which controlled the '72 convention, steadily planning to recapture the '76 convention and renominate George McGovern for President.

The man I quote is the synthesis of traditional Democratic politics. He is the precinct blend of the Democratic-elected public officials, old-line professionals, Richard Daley-ism, George Meany-AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education and Lyndon Johnson policies and politics. Until recently he headed one of the world's most famous political organizations.

We talked shortly after some 75 leaders of just such men and women met quietly in the Gramercy Park Hotel's Tiffany Room here. What they said, what they "strategized," what they organized, proved the Democratic party is ripped as wide open now as it was back there in the uptight days of the Miami nominating convention.

Nominally it was the New York state organizational launching session of the Coalition for a Democratic Majority which gathered its angry forces here. In the quiet, off-the-mainstream hotel, they created a "core" of a board of governors. They will fight the "new politics reform" Jean Westwood - McGovern organization for control of the delegates to the party's December mini-convention in Kansas City. Thus the past will be prelude. Who wins this one in the fall primaries will control the '76 delegation.

And it is a significant coalition. Since what happened here the other night will be repeated in scores of other states, an analysis is swiftly in order.

In the "core" here are such staunch Meany banner carriers as the United Federation of Teachers, president Al Shanker, now also national AFL-CIO vice president, Bayard Rustin, in effect, black leader of COPE's drives in America's black communities; some members of New York City Mayor Abe Beame's administration and centrist intellectuals as well as one or two who are best described as old-fashioned political bosses.

In common they have a distaste for McGovernism, a sophisticated awareness that their loss of the mini-convention and the '76 nominating session will create two feuding Democratic parties, and they quietly distrust the 55-year-old Robert Strauss, Democratic National Committee chairman.

It's all spelled out in the dramatic call-to-action distributed by the Coalition for a Democratic Majority organizing session here March 20.

"In 1972," it said, "a

An Iowa Candidate-- Working To Get Votes

By ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — There is a new twist to that electioneering ploy of "hiking for votes."

Michael Feld, Republican congressional candidate in Iowa's second district, is literally "working for votes."

In vigorous campaigning throughout the 11 counties of the district, the enterprising 39-year-old aspirant is spending a day or more as an unpaid worker in a wide range of business establishments — groceries, service stations, meat processing plants, hardware stores, farm implement dealers, etc.

Also on Feld's list is Iowa's only brewery — in Dubuque.

He calls his novel technique "learning by working" — explaining, "This practical experience, coupled with my government work both in Iowa and Washington, is providing me with a deep insight into the problems that confront people as they go about their daily lives. I am trying to make it clear to the voters that I will work for them in Congress as diligently as I am trying to get to know them and their needs by working here among them at home."

A native of the district, Feld has had experience in local, state and federal levels.

He was an administrative assistant to Gov. Robert Ray and the Republican state central committee. In Washington, he was legislative assistant to Reps. William Scherle, R-Iowa, and Gene Snyder, R-Ky. In these capacities, the specialized in agriculture, rural living, labor, business and urban affairs.

Feld's imaginative "learning by working" campaign is proving very productive in favorable publicity.

Illustrative is the big front-page play he got in the Clayton County Register on his working as a clerk in a hardware store. Under a two-column picture of Feld making a sale, the article read:

"Congressional candidate Mike Feld became a hardware store clerk Saturday until closing time, and according to his 'boss' Howard Hessemann, he did all right. The Manchester native has adopted a unique campaign style — he travels from town to town and pumps gas, sacks, sacks groceries, serves hardware store customers and engages in other volunteer work in order to listen to the views of the voters.

"No advance publicity preceded Feld's presence in the hardware store. He took his place behind the counter, Hessemann said, and explained intricacies about plumbing supplies to surprised customers. There is no question Feld's campaign has been helped by his helping small business, agriculture and the young and the elderly."

Ambitious Plan

Feld's aim is to wage his "learning by working" campaign in one or more business establishments in every town in the second district.

So far, he has been an unpaid volunteer worker in 24 places of business.

Everywhere he makes a point of carefully listening to what people are saying and thinking. In one town where he was pumping gas, he was invited to address a noonday luncheon of local businessmen. Feld appeared before them in his working clothes — and got a big hand.

He also was resoundingly applauded when he told them that in his "learning by working" method of campaigning he has found — "The people's faith in government is at an all-time low due to the soaring cost of living, the bungling of the energy crisis, and the general failure of elected officials to accept and perform the responsibilities of their jobs. It seems very clear to me that unless elected officials and the bureaucrats begin to listen to the people, there will be as one outraged voter exclaimed to me, 'a wholesale wipeout of these big shots from top to bottom; the day of leading people down the primrose path has come to a screeching halt.'"

Attorney St. Clair insists he's protecting the Presidency and not Nixon. That's like saying Al Capone fought for our right to drink alcoholic beverages.

Former Army Secretary Froehke told Congress he now favors amnesty for draft evaders. But he didn't include the White House.

They've Got To Get Rid Of Him Now If They Can

By PAUL HARVEY

Abraham Lincoln is not remembered for the several times he was rejected by the voters nor for the many times he was called ugly names by the newspapers. He's remembered for having held our country together against formidable forces which were trying to tear it apart.

Mr. Nixon would like to be remembered for having held the world together against formidable forces tending to tear it apart.

But he has done something else altogether as important which has gone almost unnoticed by his friends, and that something else is what has evoked such unreasonable anger, hatred and vindictiveness from his enemies.

He's turning the Court around; they can't wait three more years!

This right-now term of the United States Supreme Court is altering history for the next hundred years.

Many Presidents will come and go. Many Congresses will come and go.

But all of them will be limited in their prerogatives by the judgment of the Justices.

As surely as any excess is its own undoing, the news media which tends contemporarily to unbalance our tripartite government will have its wings clipped.

But the Supreme Court of the United States will perpetuate our representative republic if it is to be perpetuated.

After a generation of preoccupation with the rights of the accused, the most significant decisions of the High Court in 1973 and so far in 1974 reasserted the rights of the victim.

Even corporation lawyers won a succession of favorable rulings.

Its decisions sound like those of a conservative court, mostly because we have been accustomed to such a consistent pattern of liberal decrees.

Four of the nine justices usually can be counted on to reflect the majority: Stewart, White, Rehnquist, Powell.

Significantly, Stewart, White and Rehnquist are the youngest of the nine. They will be around for a while. While on the left, aged Bill Douglas and aging Brennan and Marshall may not be.

Burger and Blackmun generally vote "on the right," though not consistently.

Though none with a strong preference would agree, the High Court as presently constituted is as nearly balanced as any Court most adult Americans can remember.

Yet attrition these next three years could tilt the Court as far to the right as it has been to the left. That is why those philosophically opposed to President Nixon's preponderant conservatism figure they must now evict him and intimidate his successor.

President Nixon must feel that he, personally, is the sole target of their desperation, he's not.

It's the White House they attack but it's not the Court they fear.

Under no circumstances could the President not have known what was going on because he was talking to John Mitchell all the time. He was aware. He knew everything that was going on in Watergate.

—Martha Mitchell, wife of former Attorney General John Mitchell.

The institution of Little League is as American as the hot dog and apple pie. There is no reason why that part of Americana should be withheld from girls.

—Sylvia Presser of the New Jersey Civil Rights Division, ruling that the league must let girls play.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

The prestigious Amarillo Relays will be held for the 29th year Friday and Saturday and for Pampa, particularly in track, it will definitely be a challenge.

"It'll be a test," said track coach Scott Dunnam. "The competition will be real tough. It should be a good test for (Noel) Hansen in the half-mile, a severe test for Howie Lewis in the intermediate hurdles and for Mathis in the 440."

"Maybe it will bring out the best in our mile-relay team," added Dunnam.

The Relays will be especially important for Pampa since the people Dunnam mentioned all have a good shot at winning in the district meet a week from Saturday.

It (Amarillo Relays) will be the first time Pampa has faced all five of the other 3-AAA teams in one meet. So the Harvesters, if nothing else, may see how well they will fare in district.

Besides Pampa, Borger and the four Amarillo schools, entrants in the large school division include Guymon, Okla., El Paso's Irvin and Jefferson, Midland Lee, Lubbock's Dunbar and Monterey, Perryton, Plainview, Canyon, Dumas, Hereford and Vernon.

The favorites are Midland Lee, Vernon, Lubbock Dunbar and Amarillo High, the winner a year ago.

Sunray, the defending champion in the small school division, is the favorite in a field which includes Boys Ranch, Channing, Dalhart, Hale Center, Kress, Memphis, Panhandle, Silverton, Spearman, Stratford, Texoma, Alamo Catholic of Amarillo, Clarendon, Happy, Hart, Phillips, Sanford-Fritch, Tulla, Stinnett and Booker, Okla.

There is also a B-team division and it includes junior varsities from Amarillo's four schools, Borger, Lubbock's Coronado and Monterey, Hereford, Denver City, Tulla, McLean, Pampa and Dalhart.

In the large school division last year, Pampa placed 12th in the meet, which was held in cold weather. In fact, for the last two years the weather has kept several records from being broken.

Pampa garnered 24 points last year while Amarillo scored 68, Hereford 56 and Tascosa 44.

Pampa has a good chance to acquire at least 50 points this year, that is if Hansen, Lewis, Mathis and the mile-relay team of Chuck Quarles, Hansen, Lewis and Mathis win their respective events.

Dunnam has said throughout the season that the aforementioned individuals need to be pushed in a meet, something which has not happened yet. And with the competition as it is for this meet, the Harvesters will be pushed.

Preliminaries in the running events and finals in the field events will start at 12:05 p.m. Friday. The finals in the running events begin at 1 p.m. Saturday.

The B-teams will compete at Caprock High School's track for the preliminaries and will join the varsities at Dick Bivins Stadium for the finals.

Meet records are:

- 440 relay — Lubbock Dunbar, 1967, 41.8.
- 880 — Chuck Frawley, Tascosa, 1962, 1:54.8.
- 120 high hurdles — Randy Lightfoot, Plainview, 13.5.
- 100 — Robert Medlock, Lubbock Dunbar, 1967, 9.4.
- 440 — Mark Yarborough, Tascosa, 1963, 48.5.
- 330 intermediate hurdles — Randy Lightfoot, Plainview, 1971, 38.1.
- 220 — Frank Daugherty, Olton, 1953, and Wardell Gilbreath, Amarillo High, 1972, 21.4 (tie).
- Mile — Flavio Pifuentes, El Paso Irvin, 1968, 4:28.9.
- Mile relay — Amarillo High, 1969, 3:30.5.
- Pole vault — Scott Emerson, Midland Lee, 1971, 14-5.
- High jump — Elroy Williams, Palo Duro, 1972, and Dennis DeLoach, El Paso Irvin, 1973, 6-6 (tie).
- Shot put — Randy Matison, Pampa, 1963, 65-04.
- Long jump — Gus Tortello, El Paso Austin, 1968, 23-34.
- Discus — Jerry Brewer, Yaleta, 1965, 181-10.

Champ Visiting Mother In United States Today

CARACAS (UPI) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman returns to the United States today to visit his ailing mother in Houston, a rest and then another training session, this time for his title defense against ex-titleholder Muhammad Ali in Kinshasa, Zaire, in September.

MRS. DALE PROUSE of Pampa receives a hand-engraved belt buckle from Dick Lindsay for winning the Dick Lindsay Handicap trap shoot at the Haskell, Tex. Trap Club. Lindsay is president of the Texas Trapshooter Association. Mrs. Prouse beat 28 men and one woman in the handicap event. One of those beaten was Robert Ward of Floydada (middle), who finished second.

Golf, Net Teams Entered In Relays

AMARILLO — Pampa High's tennis and boys golf team will join the track squad in an attempt to bring back trophies from one of the largest sporting events in West Texas as the three teams compete in the Amarillo Relays Friday and Saturday here.

Alton Setliff's netters will not be one of the team favorites based on spring performances and the stiff competition, but there are six people who have a good chance to make Saturday's finals.

Those include Martha Plunk and Cassandra Mangold in girls singles and Mike Branham and Eugene Laycock in boys singles. Pampa's boys doubles team of Jerry Allen and E. B. Ellis will also be hard to beat.

Other members of the tennis team are Paul Skoog, Jack Scott, Steve Knox, Dixie Douglass, Cindy Burns, Jo Ann McCausland, Donna Coufal and Stacy Douglass.

Teams entered in the large school (AAAA and AAA) division of the meet are Amarillo High, Caprock, Palo Duro and Tascosa, Canyon, Hereford, Lubbock High, Estacado and Monterey, Perryton, Plainview, Snyder, Borger, Dumas and Pampa.

Competition will be held at the Amarillo Tennis Center, next to Austin

Junior High School. Play starts at 9 a.m. on both days.

Schools entered in the golf competition are Amarillo High, Caprock, Palo Duro and Tascosa, Lubbock High, Coronado and Monterey, Borger, Pampa, Clovis, N.M., Hereford, Levelland, Perryton, Plainview, Canyon, Dumas and Snyder.

To make the cut Friday, a school must be among the six low teams, including ties.

Tascosa and Lubbock Monterey are co-favorites in the golf.

Linksters play 18 holes on both days. Play starts at 9 a.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday, and will be held at Amarillo Country Club.

Pampa's A-team golfers are Wiley McIntire, Randy Watson, Joel Hickey, Mickey Lowe and Scott White.

Perry Throws Cleveland By California Angels, 4-1

By United Press International — Maybe nobody else is, but Gaylord Perry is ready. Has been all winter, in fact.

You've heard of those fellows you can rouse out of bed at 5 in the morning and they'll get a base hit, haven't you? Well, in Gaylord Perry's case, you can put a phone call into him on New Year's Day and he'll come get the side out for you.

That's exactly what the veteran 35-year-old righthander did for the Cleveland Indians Wednesday in a 4-1 victory over the California Angels at Tucson, Ariz.

Perry pitched seven innings and retired 21 of the 22 batters he faced. He struck out seven, didn't walk a batter and the only hit he allowed was Denny Doyle's fourth-inning triple, which the Angels turned into their only run with the aid of Charlie Spikes' sacrifice fly.

The Indians nicked Nolan Ryan for a run in the first and then picked up the only other one they needed in the second on Ted Ford's single and John Lowenstein's single.

Athletics 4 Cubs 2

Jim "Catfish" Hunter hurled six scoreless innings in the Oakland Athletics' 4-2 decision over the Chicago Cubs. Burt Hooton also went six and was the loser. Bill Madlock, whom the Cubs got from the Texas Rangers in the Ferguson Jenkins deal, clipped Hunter for three hits. Madlock has hit safely in all 14 games he has played this spring and is batting .556.

Miller Claims Pressure Play Helps Him Win

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Only four golfers ever have won six or more tournaments in one year. But Johnny Miller has four victories behind him in 1974 — and it's not even April yet.

The slender Californian credits his phenomenal season to one thing: Being able to play under pressure. "I started playing real good a year ago about this time," Miller said on the eve of today's first round of the Greater New Orleans Open.

Miller captured the U.S. Open last June in Oakmont, Pa., his first major victory and went on to win $127,833, ranking him No. 9 on the 1973 money-winning list.

But he started 1974 as if he didn't know how to lose, winning the Crosby, Phoenix Open and Tucson Open, on successive weekends.

"What I'm doing better is playing better under pressure," Miller said. "Now, if I get a stroke lead, I can hang onto it. I might not birdie every hole down the stretch, but I don't gag terribly."

"Before, I was getting into position to win. But I wasn't able to get it done when I had to."

"Everybody has to go through it. Until you do it a number of times, you don't know if you can. It's a matter of knowing you can. All nervousness is, anyway, is a lack of confidence."

Miller won his fourth tournament of the year last weekend, notching the Heritage Classic, a tournament he also won in 1972.

The 26-year-old blond now has won $149,105 this season and is the tour's leading money winner.

The 72-hole tournament is being played at Lakewood Country Club, a par 72, 7,080-yard course.

Reds 7 White Sox 3

Darrel Chaney, the Reds' backup shortstop behind Dave Concepcion, was behind nobody in Tampa, Fla., Wednesday, ripping a double and a homer in a 7-3 triumph over the White Sox. Don Gullett worked the first six innings for Cincinnati and Mike McQueen and Tom Hall finished in a combined seven-hit effort.

Astros 3 Tigers 2

Lerrin LaGrew worked seven strong innings and left with a 21 lead, but the Astros tied the score with an unearned run off Jim Ray in the eighth and then pulled out a 3-2 victory over the Tigers in the ninth when rookie Greg Gross singled home Dave Campbell.

Red Sox 7 Cardinals 2

Luis Aparicio said 24-year-old shortstop Mario Guerrero would help the Red Sox and sure enough he did Wednesday when he and second baseman Doug Griffin clicked off a pair of double plays that helped down the Cardinals, 7-2. Left-handed Bill Lee and Lance Clemons limited the Cards to seven hits.

Yankees 4 Braves 1

After going 14 scoreless innings the day before, the Yankees and Braves went at it again at St. Petersburg, Fla., Wednesday and this time New York scored three times in the eighth inning for a 4-1 victory. Loser Danny Frisella walked Ron Blomberg with the bases full to break a 1-all tie. Mel Stottlemyre and Fred Beene scattered eight hits, with Beene coming on in the eighth and picking up the win.

Mets 4 Pirates 3

Tom Seaver and Tug McGraw, who helped the Mets win last year, did it again by scattering nine hits in a 4-3 verdict over the Pirates. The Mets ended a string of 21 consecutive scoreless innings with a run in the second inning off loser Bob Moose and then broke a 3-all tie in the seventh on Wayne Garrett's double, Felix Milan's bunt single and Rusty Staub's double play ball.

DAYTONA, Fla. (UPI) — Cale Yarborough holds the qualifying record at the Daytona International Speedway.

TO PITCH FRIDAY — Dennis Edwards will be the starting pitcher at 4 p.m. Friday at Optimist Park as Pampa hosts the Tascosa Rebels in a District 3-AAA baseball clash. Pampa is 0-1 in district while Tascosa is 1-0. Edmondson is 2-1 for the season and has a 1.00 earned run average. He has yielded seven runs, three earned runs and five walks while striking out 18 in his 21 innings.

Eddie Sutton Chosen As Razorback Cage Mentor

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — University of Arkansas looked today to Creighton's Eddie Sutton, a protégé of famed Hank Iba, to restore the Razorbacks as a national basketball power.

To show they meant business, the Razorbacks gave Sutton, 38, a five-year contract at $25,000 annually to make him the highest paid basketball coach in the Southwest Conference.

Athletic Director Frank Broyles spelled it out Wednesday night on statewide television from Little Rock, saying Sutton would have a "free hand" and an "adequate budget" to recruit extensively.

Broyles vowed that Sutton would make the Razorbacks a basketball power "not only in the conference but nationally."

Back in the 30s and 40s Arkansas fielded powerful teams and won several conference titles. But for the past 15 years the Razorbacks seldom threatened and Lanny Van Eman resigned last month after four dismal years.

Sutton, who played college ball at Oklahoma State under IBA, resigned as Creighton athletic director and coach a few hours before joining Broyles, who also is Arkansas football coach, for the telecast.

Asked if he was already aware of certain high school prospects in Arkansas, Sutton said, "Yes, I am and if they're listening, I can tell them I'll be around to see them within a week."

Broyles said he thought turning Arkansas into a basketball power "will help our football program 100 per cent."

"We want to give our Razorback fans something to cheer about after the football season is over," Broyles said. "And I am calling on all of our fans to support our basketball program in the same manner they have backed football."

Eddie Sutton is considered the top young coaching prospect in America and I am honored to present him to you at this time as an official member of the Razorback family."

Billy To Stay As Manager If Rangers Purchased

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Manager Billy Martin will stay but the front office will go if a group of businessmen buy the Texas Rangers from Bob Short for $10 million.

The group of Fort Worth and Dallas men say they will own the team with the worst record in major league baseball the past two years by the season opener in a week.

The group, headed by Fort Worth industrialist Brad Corbett, said it has a firm "letter of intent" signed by Short. Under the agreement, Short would retain 10 per cent of the club.

Bill Harvey, a real estate man and associate of Corbett, said the only remaining work is on the legal end of the agreement.

"Once that is completed, I think we'll be able to walk this thing through the American League office and the commissioner's office and they have assured us there will be no problem involved," Harvey said.

"Short, at the Rangers' spring training camp at Pompano Beach, Fla., wasn't talking. But his manager was, and candidly, 'I came to this club last September and one of the main reasons I did so was Bob Short. I wanted to help Bob Short out,'" Billy Martin said.

"He stuck out his neck for major league baseball in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and I wanted to make him successful in that venture.

"I guess I already have. I imagine my presence in some way has stimulated interest in the club. The public must like or believe in what I'm doing because now he's gone from no takers to two serious bidders in a very short time," Martin said.

Short bought the Washington Senators franchise in 1968 and moved the team to Arlington, between Dallas and Fort Worth, three years ago.

A group of Houston

businessmen also claim they have made Short an offer for the team.

"What he has from the Houston group is a firm offer for the club," Harvey said. "What he has with us is an agreement to buy the club. I guarantee if you ask him point blank if he had the same agreement with the Houston group as he does with us, he would have to tell you they are different."

Harvey said the Dallas-Fort Worth group would own the Rangers before the season opener April 4 at home against the world champion Oakland Athletics.

The group indicated it would clean out the front office, after their contracts have expired at the end of the year. Harvey said Short's role but the new owners would have their own man on the scene.

Longhorns To Hold Orange-White Game

By United Press International

The Texas Longhorns highlight the Southwest Conference spring football drills tonight in Austin with their annual Orange-White game.

Quarterback Marty Akin will lead the Whites while the Orange squad, composed of the bulk of the Longhorns' returning defensive starters, will be quarterbacked by Larry Miller.

Texas A&M opened drills Wednesday in College Station with a turnout of nearly 100 prospective gridders. Coach Emory Bellard said he was pleased with the turnout, which included 21 of last year's 22 starters.

"We'll work on fundamentals this first week," Bellard said, "and then we'll have four more Saturdays for scrimmages, including the Maroon-White game on April 27."

SMU Mustangs concentrated on kicking their second day of spring drills in Dallas. The punters included John Blackburn, last year's kicker, sophomore Alan Davis and fullback Darrell McCullough.

"We're going to put a lot of emphasis on kicking this spring," coach Dave Smith said. "We're hopeful we can improve our coverage on punts and build consistency that we have not had."

"For the first day's session," Johnson said, "I think we were way ahead of progress made during the last three or four years because of the carryover of personnel."

Arkansas plans its first scrimmage Saturday, with two Red-White games set for April 20 in Fayetteville and April 27 at Little Rock.

Army Engaged In All-Out Drive To Recruit High School Youths

BY ANA A. SCHMIDT

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Army is engaged in an all-out drive to recruit more high school youths — boys and girls — to bolster its sagging education level.

Edwards' job is to take his company's national advertising campaign and apply it locally. He always has display ads in two-thirds of the high school newspapers, and on sports programs. And he places classified "wanted" ads in local newspapers.

Books

The Fall of the House of Borgia, E. R. Chamberlin. (Dial, $10)

The bare bones of the saga of the Borgias provides one of history's best blood-and-sex narratives.

In the late 15th Century a deadlocked College of Cardinals compromised on an obscure cardinal from Spain to be the new pope.

The Pope did die promptly but not before his son, Rodrigo Borgia of Valencia, had secured a power base that eventually led to his election as Pope Alexander VI.

Cesare, with his ceaseless warring and assassinations, appalled the Italians and sometimes even his father, the Pope. Alexander doted on Lucrezia, despite her penchant for shedding husbands, sometimes by lethal means.

Her first marriage was declared invalid on grounds of impotency, and she was ruled "virgo intacta," although she was six months pregnant at the time.

Lucrezia shared a strange, apparently deep affection with Cesare. They also shared debaucheries—the public coupling of 50 Roman prostitutes with 50 Vatican servants for prizes.

The author, a British historian, has delved deeply into this murky period and recreates it in jolting detail. Here is a sometimes horrifying, always juicy story.

Joan Hanauer (UPI)

Watership Down, By Richard Adams. (Macmillan, $7.95)

Adams lands with wonderful precision on the right side of the line between gentle warmth and nauseating cuteness in this lovely tale of a group of anthropomorphic rabbits who set out to find a new home in the English countryside. Physically Adams stanchly keeps his rabbits as rabbits, but in personality, spiritually if you will, these rabbits are something else. And it's wonderful.

The American People, by E.J. Kahn Jr. (Weybright and Talley, $8.95)

America's favorite recreation is picnicking. Four-fifths of the permanent shift of our population between 1960 and 1970 was from rural to urban. Such are two of the tens of thousands of facts collected by the Bureau of Census and interpreted by Kahn. The factual onslaught is often overpowering but nonetheless this is an intriguing compendium of today's American way of life.

Napoleon, by David Chandler. (Saturday Review Press $12.50)

The author, a military historian, concentrates on the wartime activities of Napoleon in this flowing, well-organized narrative. The pace is lively and the complex events described with fluency. As always, Napoleon is a commanding figure whose genius and audacity are breathtaking.

The Greatest Men's Party on Earth: Inside the Bohemian Grove, by John van der Zee. (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, $5.95)

The author posed as a waiter to get into this exclusive, all-male club's Redwood Grove 200 miles north of San Francisco, where the elite meet to do whatever they feel like. Van der Zee combines anecdote and history to provide an inside look at a place from which most of us are otherwise excluded.

In Connection with Kiltshaw, by Peter Driscoll. (Lippincott, $6.95)

The scene is Northern Ireland, where a British intelligence agent and the Irish Catholic girl he falls in love with discover in a tough, grim, fast-moving tale that there just aren't any good guys any more as the British and the two brands of Irish double and triple cross each other. This is the age of dirty tricks and there are plenty here leading up to a snappy and cynical ending.

Editor's Note: The Best-seller List is not available this week.

The Massachusetts ship "Bedford" was the first American ship to carry the flag into a British port.

Expert Advises Breast Feeding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A World Health Organization nutritionist has warned that it would be a catastrophe if the female breast becomes a mere sex symbol.

"If no concerted action is taken the time will soon come when the female breast will lose its function of feeding the young and become only a sex symbol," Dr. Adewale Omololu, Professor of Nutrition at the University of Ibadan in Nigeria said. He warned that many babies were dying because they were fed substitutes for mothers' milk.

In an article to commemorate World Health Day, April 7, he urged a widespread return to breast feeding or populations will suffer grave effects.

To avert this catastrophe, Omololu said, "governments all over the world, but especially in developing countries, must ensure that the people are given every opportunity to know the facts."

He gave them: "Breast milk is food for infants; cow's milk is food for calves. If we use cow's milk to feed human infants, we are using a substitute."

'HONKY TONK' Crenna Saddles Up For Series

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Crenna, unmistakably one of Hollywood's best dramatic actors, is saddling up to star in a new western television series, "Honky Tonk," a preview of which will be aired April 1.

Taken from the old MGM movie, the story bears no resemblance to the original, but NBC hopes the title will draw in viewers.

Crenna has a large saddle to fill—Clark Gable's. He will play Candy Johnson, the selfsame con man Gable portrayed in the movie, made shortly after "Gone With the Wind" when Gable was still in his Rhett Butler period.

He will not be compared with Gable, Crenna thinks. The span of years and change in tastes has been too great.

"I don't recall seeing the picture when it first came out," Crenna said. "But when I was committed to the series I saw the film and went into shock."

"It was so dated I couldn't believe it. People remember it as a great classic. But it doesn't hold up. If we were to do it exactly the same today we'd be laughed off the tube."

Crenna is a wryly funny man whose humor often masks his bright intelligence. He mimicked Gable perfectly and grinned.

"The original cast of 'Honky Tonk' was hard to beat—Gable, Lana Turner and Clair Trevor," he said. "But if the series goes on next fall I'll be the only regular member of the cast."

"We're keeping the story lines as fluid as possible. I'm playing a con man when the West was still being tamed. The occupation of the character and the rich background of the setting are appealing right now."

The fact that "Dirty Sally" and "The Cowboys," two new horse operas which galloped onto television screens in midseason, are doing well did not escape the actor's notice.

"They might be an indication that the networks and viewers are showing some interest in westerns," he said. "Personally, I think there's no question that the resurgence of westerns is on the horizon. I've thought so for a year now, and NBC agrees."

As a television format I don't think westerns have been played out. Certainly not as much as detective shows. It depends on how well the show is done. There's plenty of room for any good show.

There comes a time, though, when there can only be so many of one format. When that happens, and I think it has with cops and robbers, the talent of the writers, producers and directors are exhausted."

Crenna has directed more than 60 television shows himself. His was an important voice in the final shaping of "Honky Tonk," including major surgery on the script.

"The only thing that has remained the same since the movie was made is the opening scenes which start with a tar and feather party," he said.

Neither Crenna nor MGM will know whether the pilot will become a network regular for a couple of weeks. But there's one good sign. The go-ahead has been given for additional scripts.

Blind Girl Enjoying Her Bowling Class

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Bonnie Owens, 19, recently bowled a high game of 106, up from an average of 65. It may not seem like much to brag about to most people, but to Bonnie, who has been blind since birth, it's quite an achievement.

Bonnie, 19, relies on her hearing to let her know approximately how well she is bowling.

"I can tell when the ball goes in the gutter, or if I only hit one pin, but after that it gets more difficult. When I hit eight or more pins, I can't tell at all," she said.

The excitement of those around her lets her know when she's made a strike though, she said.

Bonnie is enrolled in a regular bowling class at Brigham Young University.

65. Bonnie feels she's made progress since class began in January.

"I had some really bad days, when I'd only make 30, and those were kind of discouraging," said Bonnie, a family relations major from Blythe, Calif. "My real problem now though is the tendency for my ball to go left."

To help correct this problem, Bonnie uses a special railing placed along the lane. "All this does is keep me straight. If I even turn my foot, I'd go crooked. I just keep my hand on the rail for the first-couple of steps," she said.

Bonnie's instructor, Hank Kloefer, is pleased with her progress. "She would be an average bowler for a normal individual, for her size and lack of sight. I would say she is an exceptional bowler," he said.

He's not hoping for a college education...

he's banking on it!

Most newspaperboys are banking part of their savings for higher education.

Even if you can easily afford to send your boy to college, you might consider this—the boy who works and saves for part of his education is the boy who will get the most out of college.

He'll appreciate Pop and the checks from home more if he's already had a taste of earning money by working himself.

And while his route profits are important, this is only one of a number of reasons why so many of today's successful men encourage their boys to get the benefit of Newspaper Route experience—including service, salesmanship, collections and record keeping.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Producer-director Francis Ford Coppola signed Italian-born Francesca De Sappio to play a top featured role in "The Godfather, Part II."

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Robert Young, star of "Marcus Welby, M.D.," was notified his series has been renewed for a sixth year by ABC-TV.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Universal will film "The Other Side of the Mountain," a love story based on the life of skier Jill Kinmont who was seriously injured 18 years ago on the slopes just before the Olympic Games.

'Texas' Ready For 9th Season

CANYON — At 8:30 p.m. on June 19, a bugle call will come floating down through the canyons, surrounding every seat with its haunting sound, and the ninth season of the musical production, "Texas" will begin.

It is a story of the early settlers in the Texas Panhandle written by Paul Green, and will unfold each summer evening except Sundays, from June 19 through Aug. 24, 1974.

This is dramatic conflict, heightened by spirited dancing and sweeping pageantry. For many people, however, the strongest memories to carry away are the sounds.

A great abyss, a place of spectacular beauty, cradles the amphitheatre — the Palo Duro Canyon. It lies a few miles from Amarillo and Canyon, Texas.

Among the curving slopes of the canyon, sound moves in strange and beautiful ways bringing every word whispered on the stage, carrying the vitality and beauty of the songs of the late 1880's which underline the action and stirring each listener, wrapping him in waves of beauty and force.

The sound flows from all sides, bounces from the cliffs, reverberates from the near and the distant walls.

Five airlines, three bus lines, six interstate highways bring travelers to Amarillo, and there is bus service from any point in Amarillo or Canyon, Texas to every performance.

arriving in time for the barbecue dinner on the theatre grounds for those who wish it.

"Texas" is one of Paul Green's great affirmations of faith in America, one of eight great regional dramas he has written which will be playing this summer from Ohio to Florida.

"Texas" will play for the ninth season in 1974 — after intriguing more than half a million people in its first eight years.

"Texas" has a cast of eighty singers, actors and dancers, and almost as many other members of the company to work backstage, to man the box office and to serve in the hospitality and concession areas.

"Texas" amphitheatre may be reached from Amarillo or Canyon over fine paved roads. It lies 25 miles from the first city, twelve from the second.

All seats are reserved. If possible, it is better to make reservations in advance by writing "Texas," P.O. Box 388, Canyon, Texas 79015, or by calling 806-655-2182. Prepaid tickets will be held indefinitely. Tickets ordered but not prepaid will be held at the box office until 7:30 p.m. CDST on the night they are reserved for.

Brochures and additional information are available by writing "Texas," P.O. Box 388, Canyon, Texas 79015.

Santa Fe Profits Set New High

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Santa Fe Railway had 1973 revenues of $1.2 billion, with net income of $102.8 million, worth $4.01.

In his annual report to stockholders, John S. Reed, chairman and chief executive officer, said Santa Fe revenues exceeded the billion dollar mark for the first time and the net income was its highest in history.

The 1973 figures compared with $973 million in revenues, $81 million in net income and $3.23 per share in 1972.

"The increase in 1973 earnings was particularly gratifying because of the unsettled state of the general economy. Price controls, the restrictive federal monetary policy, the continuing high rate of inflation, shortages of basic raw materials and the energy crisis are all factors which made 1973 a difficult year for American business and which complicate the task of planning for the future," the railroad chairman said.

Reed told stockholders that despite a difficult 1973, "the experience of the past year and the best available projections for 1974 indicate a stable base for continued earnings growth even if the general economy remains unsettled."

He predicted that, inasmuch as the railway remained the largest contributor to the company's overall revenue picture, "we are anticipating that 1974 will bring a continuation of the growth in railway business. It now appears that any loss of traffic resulting from a cooling economy will be more than compensated for by new volume flowing to the railroads and away from transportation forms which are less efficient users of energy."

Reed said his company's natural resource subsidiaries also contributed to the past year's record revenues. He said "oil production increased in 1973 to approximately 46,000 barrels per day at year's end. This increased production was a result of our exploration program and the continuing development of our petroleum reserves."

As far as the company's outlook on the energy crisis, the board chairman noted that Santa Fe plans to spend $37 million this year on "an expanded petroleum exploration and development program compared with $15 million in 1973. The exploration will be primarily in the continental and offshore areas of the United States and Alaska."

Santa Fe also investigated new energy sources by completing preliminary evaluation work on approximately 370 million tons of low sulphur coal owned by the railway in New Mexico.

"This deposit is located in the San Juan Basin," Reed said, "which reportedly contains several billion tons of coal in public or private ownership." The company is now mining the area in anticipation of further development.

The Douglas Fir, Washington State's most popular conifer, was named after David Douglas, English botanist.
