AT SPECIAL MEETING

School Board's Agenda Challenged On Legality

By CLAY LIVELY
Former member John Gikas this morning challenged the changing of the agenda of a special meeting of the Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees.

Gikas questioned the item listed second on the agenda given to the board this morning, citing a change from the one posted in the Gray County Courthouse Monday evening.

The agenda this morning had as item number two — consideration: typewriter proposal, budget. On the agenda posted Monday at the courthouse, item number two said simply: budget.

The News was provided with a copy of the first agenda, not the second amended one.

Gikas said he asked the board why the typewriter proposal was to be discussed since it was not a part of the original agenda. He also objected to the item being placed on the agenda of, as he read it, the executive session convened after the special meeting was opened.

The former board member said he told the current members of the board that an item listed as a budget item was not supposed to be discussed in anything but an open meeting.

He said later he was assured by the board that the typewriter proposal listed as a budget item was not discussed during the closed executive session.

Gikas said his reason for going to the meeting this morning was to ask the board why the budget item was listed as being a matter to be discussed during executive session.

It was only upon his arrival at the meeting, held at the Coronado Inn, that he discovered that the budget item was in fact the typewriter proposal.

"It makes no difference if you have discussed an item at 15 previous meetings," Gikas said. "If it is not specifically listed on the agenda placed at the courthouse, then any action on it is illegal."

His remarks were in response to a statement from board president Bob Carmichael that the typewriter proposal had been on four previous agendas and that bids for the typewriters had been solicited in September, 1973. Carmichael said he is convinced the board did nothing illegal.

The board voted unanimously to buy 30 IBM Selectric typewriters on the recommendation of Pampa High School principal Don Walker.

Walker said the machine was "unanimously recommended" to him for approval by the business department at the high school.

The unit price for the typewriters is $385, a total of $11,550. Terms call for the payment of 40 percent of the total cost on delivery of the machines (in four to six months), 30 percent 13 months later and the balance 25 months after delivery.

The unit price for the IBM typewriter is well above the cost-of machines in bids submitted by Tri-City Office Supply and Pampa Office Supply.

Tri-City offered a bid of $295 per machine for the Olivetti Praxis 48 and Pampa Office Supply submitted a bid of $348.75 for the Royal 590 Electric.

Walker said he recommended the purchase of the IBM machines because, "We've had less maintenance problems with the IBM machine than others and we've been happy the way IBM has backed up its product with service."

In first action after reconvening the meeting in open session this morning, the board voted to hire a new teacher-coach, to rehire two teachers and to hire one auxiliary staff member, a secretary.

Hired were William E. Balcom, Shawnee, Okla., as assistant football coach; Bill Reader and Jan Clark Reader as instructors; and Mrs. Elizabeth Burns as secretary.

School board member Paul Simmons voted against the rehiring of Mr. and Mrs. Reader. The votes on all other items was unanimous.

WITH KISSINGER

Dayan Beginning Washington Talks

United Press International
Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan arrived in Washington to begin talks today with U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for the disengagement of Israeli and Syrian troops in the Golan Heights where artillery battles thundered for the 18th straight day.

Syrian artillery shells arched over the 1967 cease-fire line there to hit near Israeli civilian settlements. Israeli forces returned fire, an Israeli spokesman said, in the daily shelling designed to exert pressure at the conference table.

A Syrian communique claimed "a number of enemy troops" were killed and wounded.

TIC Representative Sets Local Meeting

A member of the Texas Industrial Commission will be in Pampa Wednesday, April 10, to meet with members of the Pampa Industrial Foundation and other community leaders to find out what rural area Texans need and want.

The meeting will be conducted by James Hunt of Sonora, one of three commissioners added to the Texas Industrial Commission by the State Legislature to represent rural areas of the state.

The public session will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Co. April 10.

Harris Brinson, director of economic development for the Chamber of Commerce, said today the meeting will provide an opportunity to discuss problems of economic development in the Pampa area.

Brinson urged interested persons to attend the informal hearing and take part in the discussion. He also asked that those planning to attend notify the chamber office.

Similar meetings will be conducted in other parts of the state by William Porter

Mural Design Being Sought For Lot Wall

Can you visualize an oil well, a wooden windmill, or another western scene of the walls of the parking lot at 107 S. Cuyler?

A group of interested Pampa citizens can, and they have organized a contest open to any resident, adult or youth, to enter a design for a mural to be painted on the parking lot walls.

The drawings should be in ink or dark pencil on standard sized white paper, 8 1/2 by 11 inches. They may be submitted to Mrs. Thelma Bray, Pampa Garden Club, 1305 Hamilton. Deadline is April 20.

A committee of artists and citizens will select the winning designs, and winners will be announced May 1.

Designs may be of any subject. One wall will be designated for drawings pertaining to history, and the other will be open to any subject.

The contest is being sponsored by the Pampa Garden Club in an effort to make this area on Cuyler more attractive. The downtown merchants have contributed to hire the walls sandblasted and cleaned. Other donations are being accepted to prepare the walls for painting, and to pay for the paint and sealers. They can be mailed to Mrs. Bray.

Earl Wilson

Bill Copeland reports his friend's new car has a 25-gallon tank, "but he hasn't been able to prove it yet." Things are happening so fast nowadays, notes Wes Izzard, that yesterday's "Gee whiz!" is tomorrow's "Ho-hum." Lou Brecker of Roseland was asked if he'd admit customers wearing turtle necks. "Certainly," he said, "if they're turtles." The way prices are soaring, sighs the cynic, a can of soup in the supermarket may soon cost as much as one of those oil paintings of a can of soup. ## AS FOOD HANDOUT READIED

Randolph Hearst Fearful About Daughter's Safety

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Working on another $4 million food handout, Randolph A. Hearst said he expects to hear from his daughter's kidnappers as soon as the plan is set or "I would then be very fearful that Patty is dead."

"If I didn't hear from them at that point, or if somebody didn't hear from them or have some kind of a negotiation taking place, I would then be very fearful that Patty is dead," Hearst told reporters at his suburban Hillsborough home Thursday.

But, he said, "I really think Patricia is well, she is okay and is unharmed."

While Hearst was speaking, a letter from two imprisoned members of the Symbionese Liberation Army which abducted the University of California coed was received by a radio station. A part addressed to Patricia, said

Confident of Release
"We feel confident that the SLA will release you unharmed."

Patricia Hearst, 20-year-old granddaughter of William Randolph Hearst, founder of the Hearst publishing empire, was kidnapped from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4 by three members of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

For the ensuing five weeks, a series of letters and tape recordings making ransom demands were received from the SLA. But in the past 20 days there has been only silence while Hearst tried to meet the demands.

Hearst said he thought the long silence was because the SLA was waiting for the $2 million food program previously established to be completed and for assurances the future $4 million already pledged "is not going to be snatched back the minute they release Patricia."

The letter from two imprisoned SLA members was received and read over Berkeley radio station KPFA, which had received the first SLA communications.

The SLA had demanded that the two, Russell Little and Joseph Remiro, be allowed to make a televised statement. But Little and Remiro, held on murder charges, said they were tired of waiting for permission from authorities and decided to write the letter instead.

In part of the letter, Remiro and Little spoke directly to Patricia and said they sent her their "warmest regards."

"We feel confident that the SLA will release you unharmed," the letter said.

Looking Toward Visit
"We look forward to receiving a visit from you, Patty, after you are released."

The two also urged the SLA not to "waste your time or risk your lives-worrying about us."

The additional $4 million ransom was put up by the Hearst Corp., which said it could be used for another food giveaway only after Patricia is released.

Unharmed Hearst said the money would be put in escrow and three trustees, "acceptable to any liberal group in the country," would be chosen to oversee it.

1ST ANNIVERSARY

Veterans Observing Return Of Soldiers From Vietnam

Members of VFW Post 1657 are joining with other Veterans of Foreign Wars today in observing Vietnam Veterans Day as proclaimed by President Nixon.

Locally, Mayor R.D. Wilkerson issued a proclamation designating today as Vietnam Veterans Day for the City of Pampa.

In his proclamation, the mayor noted that "WHEREAS, March 29, 1974, is the First Anniversary of the day the last American Combat Soldier left Vietnam, and WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House announced today President Nixon is prepared to surrender—without a court battle—additional evidence demanded by a Watergate grand jury.

The President's decision came just hours before a late afternoon deadline that Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski had set for Nixon to respond to a grand jury subpoena for additional White House evidence.

Nixon's decision to honor the subpoena was telephoned to Jaworski's office at noon by James D. St. Clair, the President's chief Watergate lawyer.

Spokesmen for Jaworski had no comment other than to say "we have not yet received the materials, we'll look at them when they are received."

Jaworski's office had indicated the grand jury probably would go to court next week, if the subpoena was not honored.

"The attorney general has violated his solemn agreement that he made before his confirmation that he would leave all matters related to Watergate to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski," the Post quoted Ervin.

The committee's suit to obtain several White House Watergate tapes was rejected recently by a federal district court. The committee has appealed, and oral arguments are set for Tuesday before the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

Held Brief Meetings
St. Clair and lawyers on Jaworski's staff held brief meetings Wednesday and Thursday, sessions described by one source as "negotiations" on the release of the tapes.

White House press spokesmen refused to comment, other than to say St. Clair was engaged in "private and confidential conversations" with Jaworski's office.

Though it was not known specifically what Jaworski is seeking in his first subpoena to the White House, the materials sought were believed to center on questionable contributions to Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

It was not known whether the subpoena originated with the second or third of the three Watergate grand juries. The first recently returned major indictments against seven former top

White House and Nixon campaign aides in the Watergate cover-up and its work is virtually concluded.

In a related matter, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today he has been told "the votes are there" to impeach President Nixon in the House, but he does not think there now is the necessary two-thirds majority in the Senate to convict and remove Nixon from office.

Mansfield, at his regular morning briefing for reporters, also said he expects the Senate would move promptly with a trial if the House votes to impeach, and would not delay even if Nixon requested it.

PRPC Sends Official Okay On Application

Official approval of Pampa's application for $751,500 in federal aid and assistance from the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission to update the city's sewage treatment plant was received today from the PRPC in Amarillo.

City Manager Mack Wofford said a letter in the mail today from Ernest R. Clark, PRPC executive director, stated:

"After a thorough review and comment process, the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission finds your application to be consistent with area wide goals and policies and not inconsistent with comprehensive regional plans now being developed. The commission requests that you notify them should your final application be amended in any way."

In the application reviewed by the PRPC Wednesday in Amarillo, the total cost of rebuilding the local sewage treatment plant is set at $1,002,000.

Pampa's share of the project cost is listed at $250,500 based on the assumption the $750,500 federal grant gets final approval.

The sewage treatment modification project became necessary when the Texas Water Quality Board and the federal Environmental Protection Agency informed local city officials the plant was not meeting requirements of state, federal and other regulatory agencies

Wife, Family Join Solzhenitsyn Again

ZURICH (UPI) — Shouting "we will be back", the wife of Nobel prize author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn bade farewell to Russia today and flew here with their children to join her husband in a life of exile in Switzerland.

Solzhenitsyn, 55, exiled by the Kremlin Feb. 13, bounded up the 10 gangway stairs as soon as Swissair Flight 491 landed here at 10:35 a.m. (4:35 a.m. CDT) to greet his wife Natalya, 34, with a huge bunch of red and white carnations.

The reunion with Mrs. Solzhenitsyn, the couple's three children, her son by her first marriage and her mother, took place inside the plane and could not be seen by the waiting newsmen and spectators.

After five minutes, the author emerged from the aircraft carrying his sons Yermolai, 3, and Ignat, 17 months, in his arms.

He was followed by Natalya, wearing black slacks and a beige imitation leather jacket, carrying six-month-old Stepan in a blue carrycot.

Mrs. Ekaterina Svetlova, Natalya's mother, came last with 12-year-old Dimitri, Mrs. Solzhenitsyn's son by her first marriage.

During customs formalities and the unloading of the family's baggage the couple hugged and kissed each other but refused to make any statement.

Solzhenitsyn, alternately smiling at his family and scowling at photographers trying to attract their attention, led the way to a waiting automobile supplied by the city of Zurich.

The author has been granted asylum as a political refugee. The government said that like any other foreigner living in the country he may write what he pleases but cannot make any public political statements.

Before the family took off this morning from Sheremetyevo airport in Moscow at 8:27 a.m. (12:27 a.m. CDT), Mrs. Solzhenitsyn looked down from the second floor terminal balcony and shouted to her friends below: "We will be back."

Friends lined the airport fence, waving and cheering as her plane took off. Earlier, they hugged and kissed her and said their farewells quietly in the departure lounge, but emotionally, the scene was subdued.

Mrs. Solzhenitsyn appeared to be fighting to keep her emotions under control as she took leave of her friends and her homeland, and she remained dry-eyed.

Soviet authorities had asked Mrs. Solzhenitsyn to be at the airport three hours before departure time so they could make a thorough search of her luggage. She actually arrived only at 5:45 a.m. (9:45 p.m. Thursday CDT), just before dawn.

ANNUAL ANTIQUE SHOW — The Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium will resemble an era of yesteryear when Twentieth Century Cotillion stages its annual Spring Antique Show, March 29, 30 and 31 for the benefit of the Opportunity Plan Inc. at West Texas State University. Club members making final plans for the event are from left, seated in a 200 year old French Revival Love Seat, Mrs. Sue Maglaughlin and Mrs. Ann Hanks. Standing are from left, Mrs. Diane Simmons, Mrs. Marge Boettner, and Mrs. Dolores Cox. The show has attracted antique dealers from all over Texas, Kansas, and Oklahoma, who will show a collection covering a wide range of antiques including jewelry, china, cutglass, pewter, brass, copper, art objects, furniture and dolls. # Houston Using Computer For Car Pool Programs

HOUSTON (UPI) — The South's largest city has a choking traffic problem and has decided to try a computerized car pool program to solve it.

The Chamber of Commerce and city sponsored the plan to help 1,000 participants in the pilot program find other downtown office workers in their neighborhoods who would be willing to form a car pool.

Using a computer, a list of seven names and accompanying telephone numbers are sent to each participant and it is up to him or her to contact the seven persons listed to form the car pool.

Roger Knox of the Chamber said finding a solution to its transportation problem is a primary goal of the city.

Knox said an estimated 75,000 employees commute to downtown office jobs each day.

"We conducted a survey last year to determine if freeway traffic was increasing and we determined that it is increasing," Knox said.

"Unlike other cities, downtown Houston still is growing. It is a healthy business climate, but it results in additional cars being driven to the downtown district."

"If we continue to grow, we must solve this problem to provide free flow into and out of the downtown district."

Knox said the reaction was good to the survey of commuters on the car pool proposal. He said 41 per cent of the workers surveyed said they would consider forming car pools if others interested in the idea lived nearby.

When the program was put into action, 18 per cent of the eligible downtown workers decided to participate in the program.

Knox said the next phase of the program — after deciding if the car pool idea will work — is to decide if an express bus running from the suburbs into the downtown district would be feasible.

On the initial poll made by the city and the Chamber of Commerce, 27 per cent of the 9,000 persons who responded said they favored a mass transportation system.

However, mass transportation proposals seem to have a difficult time getting started. A referendum was defeated last year by Houston voters to provide a mass transit system.

"We are working to come up with a program that would be acceptable to the voters," Knox said. "We also would probably have to get authority from the state legislature."

The question of where the money would come from to finance the mass transit program remains to be resolved, Knox said. The Constitutional Convention in Austin last week defeated several attempts by urban delegates to divert money collected from state gasoline tax revenues to a mass transportation fund.

Aggies Stage Streak Festival

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Texas A&M students Thursday night staged their long-awaited "Streaking Festival" that featured nudes cavorting on motorcycles and bicycles, standing on ledges and romping through lines of cheering youths.

Crowds estimated more than 1,000 showed up with flashlights on the darkened mall at the academic building about 10 p.m. in anticipation of the nude festivities that had been talked about by students for days.

It started with a single girl streaker, who dashed from one side of the crowd to the other in the warm night, followed by the beams of hundreds of flashlights.

Within minutes, two male streakers rushed across the mall in the other direction. "Then streakers came from everywhere," a witness said.

They rode motorcycles and bicycles, and ran on foot in the more traditional manner. Students formed a two-line "human alley" 100 yards long and streakers dashed through it. Students made blockades for some of the smaller streakers to run behind, to get them through the crowds.

On a fourth floor ledge of the Academic building, a student climbed from a window and began to strip. The flashlights spotlighted him against the building.

When he finished, he climbed back inside and two more came out. The three and at one time four students "performed" on the ledge.

Eventually, one of the streakers took a wrong turn toward the campus security station and was taken into custody by campus police. Students massed outside the station, clamoring unsuccessfully for his release.

Then, they marched to the home of President Jack K. Williams, about a mile from the campus, and woke him up to demand the release.

Williams told the students there was nothing he could do, and went back to bed. The students finally dispersed about midnight.

Campus police said early today some students were taken into custody but later released and no charges were filed.

Miss Rawlins, 36, married Damone in October, 1963. They had three daughters and were divorced in June, 1971. She was found dead in bed by her youngest daughter.

Damone's first wife was actress Pier Angeli, who died of an overdose of drugs in 1971. Only Tuesday, Damone announced his engagement to marry Becky Jones, 26, reportedly a Houston oil heiress. A spokesman for Damone, who is singing in Las Vegas, said he was "crushed" by Miss Rawlins' death and the wedding, scheduled for April 12, may be postponed.

Funeral services were held Monday at 4 p.m. in the Grandview Church of God in Odessa, and burial was in Odessa Cemetery.

Officiating were the Rev. Watwood of Odessa and the Rev. W.R. Collins of Grapevine.

Rev. Morgan was born in Foss, Okla., April 11, 1897 and moved to Mobeetie in 1902 with his parents, the late E.J. and Rachel Morgan.

He was married to Mae Goforth in Wellington on May 8, 1921.

He united with the Church of God in Mobeetie April 1, 1928, where he served as Sunday school superintendent and other offices in the church until he entered the ministry in 1932.

Rev. Morgan was ordained in 1939 while pastoring at Pampa. He had pastored churches at Wheeler, Mobeetie, Celina, Ladonia, Shamrock, Sweetwater, Olney, Slaton, Vernon, Seagraves, Kermit and several communities in New Mexico.

He is survived by his wife, Mae, of the home; a daughter, Madine Emmert, Odessa; a son, Frank Ellis Morgan, Midland; three brothers, Vada, Billy and Andrew, all of Pampa; and two sisters, Eula Meade, Tulsa, Okla., and Chloe Lawler, Amarillo; six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Convention Decides To Take 'Vacation'

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Delegates to the Constitutional Convention have decided to take a 30-day vacation next month and extend the life of the convention for another 60 days until the end of July.

The action will permit the lawmaker-delegates to return to their home districts April 5 and catch up on their campaigns for re-election in the May 4 primary elections.

Debate on a local government article that could give counties ordinance-making power for the first time and give voters a chance to set up county home rule charters began Thursday afternoon, and delegates hope to finish that article before adjourning for the weekend.

That would leave next week for consideration of a legislative article that includes such touchy issues as legislator pay, seizure of the House and Senate and redistricting.

The recess approved by the convention would begin either on April 5, or as soon as work on local government and legislative articles is finished, which ever comes earliest.

Seven days of often-heated debate on the Finance Article ended Thursday, and delegates tentatively approved the section 93-60 after turning down a proposal by Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, that would have knocked the highway fund and a series of tax exemptions out of the proposed new charter.

The Finance Article also includes a separate issue to be submitted to voters to determine if revenue from increases above the present 5-cent per gallon rate on the state gasoline tax should be used exclusively for highway maintenance and construction, or if legislators should be permitted to spend it for mass transit and other purposes.

In the opening round of debate on the local government article, delegates defeated a proposal by Rep. Gene Bynum, D-Amarillo, that would have allowed counties to merge or move county seats by a simple majority vote.

The article recommended by the local Government Committee requires a two-thirds majority vote of each county involved in such a change.

The move to extend the life of the convention 60 days beyond the May 31 adjournment date passed 123-47—just two votes more than the two-thirds majority required.

When they can eat again, they get gelatin and fruit juice," he said.

"As a matter of fact, if we looked at hospital patients, their rate of malnutrition would not be much less than that in the underdeveloped countries," Blackburn said.

"Use of sugars for patients is based on a belief that sugar will cut down protein loss from the body. The sugar water protects protein of the muscle which is expendable during times when no food can be eaten," Blackburn said.

When the muscle protein is retained, it stands in the way of the body's building more essential proteins to fight infection, heal wounds and make new cells, he said.

Blackburn said 187 patients had been given standard post-operative nourishment with dextrose solutions in the veins.

He said those patients showed a greater loss of the essential proteins than did a comparison group of patients undergoing total fast or fast with intravenous amino acids, the building blocks of protein.

"Oral protein works just the same," he said. "Whereas the average patient on dextrose and water may lose about a third of a pound of lean body mass a day the loss giving amino acids alone may be negligible."

Blackburn said more studies were needed before recommending all patients follow such a diet procedure. But he said about 90 per cent of post-surgical patients go on regular diets soon enough that the starvation effects are not significant.

Starvation Occurs In Hospitals?

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Harvard Medical School surgeon says the highest rate of starvation in the United States occurs in hospitals.

Dr. G. L. Blackburn told the final spring meeting of the American College of Surgeons Thursday that the starvation occurs because post-surgical diets lack body-building proteins.

He said protein calorie malnutrition occurs because standard diets of surgery patients or those who are critically ill is sugar and water.

"When they can eat again, they get gelatin and fruit juice," he said.

"As a matter of fact, if we looked at hospital patients, their rate of malnutrition would not be much less than that in the underdeveloped countries," Blackburn said.

Mariner Sends Mercury Photos

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A robot space explorer launched last November was sending back "clear, exciting" pictures today as it sped toward the surface of Mercury, televising the first good look at the little known planet hidden in the glare of the sun.

Mariner 10 was scheduled to come within 450 miles of the planet's surface, its closest approach point, at 3:46 p.m. CDT, beaming information back across 91.5 million miles to earth.

At Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, controllers said this morning that at a distance of 250,000 miles, the 1,100-pound spacecraft was sending back "extremely clear, exciting pictures of the surface, showing many details."

"There are many craters of different sizes and shapes," a spokesman said. "Some have central peaks, and ray patterns are now visible, but a number of bright spots are still a puzzle."

At that distance, half the planet filled the cameras' lenses, he said. But, he said, there was still no indication of what the surface of Mercury consists of.

Grant To Get Paid For Ride

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Ben Grant will get paid for his saddle sores.

Rep. Grant, a Democrat from Marshall and a delegate to the Texas Constitutional Convention, rode a horse 286 miles to get to the convention in January. Until Thursday he wasn't allowed to get state pay for the trip.

Delegates in a jovial session authorized Grant to receive 10 cents a mile for his travel, the same amount paid delegates who drove.

Grant also received a tall visibility flag like bicycle riders use, plus a certificate making him a colonel.

Rep. Billy Williamson, D-Tyler, gave Grant the flag "as a matter of safety not only for him but for his horse."

"I'm not exactly sure how it would be attached," Williamson said, holding up a metal bracket suitable for a bicycle.

Grant asked his colleagues to support the resolution authorizing his pay but he declined to vote for it. The count was 160-1.

"I guess you'd say this is sort of a Gallop Poll," Grant said. "I know it's emotional issue with the delegates, because I heard Billy Williamson say only horses would vote nay."

Mail Sense Saves Time and Cents

By Virginia Knauer

Special Assistant to the President and Director

Office of Consumer Affairs
Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Even though postal rates have gone up we can all find ways to save money at the post office.

You can, for instance, take advantage of a special rate whenever you mail a book. Parcel post regulations allow you to send a book for 18 cents for the first pound, plus 8 cents for each additional pound. Be sure to write "BOOK" on the parcel.

Save on overseas airmail by using an "aerogramme." This is a special pre-stamped sheet that folds to form its own envelope. Since it costs only 18 cents, it's a bargain: regular airmail is 21 cents to Latin American countries and 26 cents to other countries for each half ounce up to two ounces (the old rates apply for each half ounce over two ounces). New rate for domestic airmail, incidentally, is 13 cents an ounce.

And don't forget post cards. These cost 8 cents, while first class letters cost 10 cents an ounce. Think how often a card would do the job of a letter. Keep a supply on hand.

You can save time as well as money with special postal services. Air parcel post speeds your packages just as airmail speeds your letters. A newer service, called "mailgram," is available in many cities; it uses Western Union telegrams to help speed your message. Look into "Special Handling," which offers fast delivery on parcel post packages.

Other new services: Heavy padded mailing bags are available at your post office, and they solve many packing problems.

These bags are ideal for sending small items, odd-shaped parcels and books.

The "Stamps by Mail" program makes it easy for housebound people to buy stamps and stamped envelopes. Call your post office and ask to be sent an order form. Return the form with your check, and your stamps will be mailed to you.

When you want special protection for your mail, old services are still available. Registered mail is the safest way to mail valuable items. You can insure a registered letter or package up to $10,000. But registered mail is not fast. In fact, it is usually slower than first class mail because it must be carefully checked in and out at every point along its journey.

Certified mail should be used when you need proof that you have mailed an important letter or document. Certified gives you a receipt when you mail something. You can also ask for a receipt when the item is delivered. But certified does not offer special security, insurance or speed.

You can buy insurance—up to $200 valuation—for a package going by parcel post or air parcel post.

For details on these services, ask your postmaster. Ask for a free copy of both A Consumer's Guide to Postal Services and Products and Packaging for Mailing.

If you have any questions about postal service or problems that can't be handled locally, write to Consumer Advocate, U.S. Postal Service, Washington, D.C. 20260.

'Nice Little Lady' Milks Investors Of $1.5 Million

MARSHALL, Ill. (UPI) — State bank investigators say Mrs. Sylvia Ritter Millhouse of the Marshall Loan Co. knew what she was doing when she bilked her investors of $1.5 million.

Described throughout this eastern Illinois community of 3,500 as the "nice little lady," Mrs. Millhouse ran the loan company her way and kept her own books for 20 years.

Mrs. Millhouse died of cancer in December and it soon became evident a lot of money had disappeared.

After completing an investigation, state agents had to revise their opinion of the friendly, robust woman many thought was just a bumbling bookkeeper.

"It looks like she used the funds for herself and then adjusted the books to hide what she was doing," said Gerald Gordy of the Illinois Banks and Trusts Commission Wednesday.

"Before, we didn't think she was covering up—that it may have been poor bookkeeping. Now we think differently."

"The records show a definite pattern. She had been taking steps to cover up or hide the deficit position she had gotten into. There is no doubt she was aware of what she was doing."

Overstating the firm's income while understating payouts and subtracting interest from investors instead of adding them were some of Mrs. Millhouse's methods, Grady said.

Employees said bookkeeping often brought Mrs. Millhouse to tears. One of her former employees at the storefront office said she would often work on her books "and just bawl over them."

Investigators have yet to determine what happened to the money. Mrs. Millhouse lived in middle class life in a modest home and showed little sign of wealth.

A discovery hearing was scheduled for April 2 in an attempt to find hidden assets, Grady said.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 30

Your birthday today: This will be a year of change from your past patterns of daily living to something new, much simpler but more stimulating. Long-standing illusions are tested and exchanged for experienced reality. Relationships are subject to development, require earnest attention. Today's natives have strong talents for social order and its maintenance. This year's natives will share an idealistic streak as well, and many of them will be leaders.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Personal life should not be allowed to upset business and career arrangements. People faraway await word from you on matters of long-range importance.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Remember that those asking you may not understand what their request involves. Save yourself difficulties by getting it straight beforehand.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: There's nothing for it but to pitch in and do just about what is expected of you today—much routine, little praise. Try to catch errors.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: You are at a peak of your persuasive capabilities but this time your business or career ideas are beyond ready reach, very hard to sell.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Today you can't hope for anybody to pull your chestnuts out of the fire. It's clearly your responsibility, and delicately balanced at that.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: This morning is a turning point and, once past it, life goes on evolving into plainer expressions. It is only much later that the change of direction seems obvious.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]:

Small personal plans and various business deals are subject to displacement in favor of social activities, more than you are ready for, but fun.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Collect what is due you wherever you can get hold of it, wasting no time palavering. Tact and patience with those who seem to be in your way.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: There is a natural limit beyond which a friend shouldn't intrude in your affairs. Today it's your turn to find that line and mark it gently.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Whatever flaws you and your recent work may have tend to come to attention. Be alert to mend matters rather than argue about what you've done.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Even if you aren't asked to do more than you should, you're probably tempted to take on too much anyway. Let well enough alone.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Financial resources and their set-up are best left as they were, with no extras of expense or credit added. Other creative ventures thrive.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

What About Eggs?

Egg production in the U.S. declined from 70 billion eggs in 1971 to 68 billion eggs in 1972; those are the latest figures we could find from the Department of Agriculture.

It occurred to us that that might have been considered a potential problem for American consumers, but apparently it escaped the surveillance of the Federal bureaucrats so we can breathe easier.

If the discovery had been made, we well might have had a Federal Egg Office (FEO) to regulate the distribution. The establishment of the FEO (egg) would create some confusion with the alphabet agencies because we have the Federal Energy Office (FEO). They could have gotten around that by calling it the National Egg Office (NEO) and then get on with the regulating activities.

Motor fuel is a vital element for the American economy. Therefore when the possibility of a crisis was recognized, the politicians justified their entry into the business to make certain everyone got his "fair share" and that prices were controlled. There is also the matter of profits.

So the FEO (energy) set up its vast bureaucracy to determine when and where Oil Company A could distribute its product and when and how much it could increase prices. Under penalty of prosecution, the oil companies had to toe the line on allocations.

By some magic formula it was determined that a percentage of total fuel sold at a particular time in the past would be allocated to the same distribution point for 1974.

The fuzzy thinking of the bureaucrats failed to take into consideration that

What Is Business?

(Nation's Business)

The energy problem has brought attacks not just on oil companies but on business as a whole. Critics demand that business somehow be punished.

We wonder what they mean by "business."

All the businesses we know are owned by people — whether by one guy, a few partners, or thousands of stockholders.

Businesses buy from people, too — some big ones buy from thousands of suppliers.

Businesses give people jobs — a total of 99.5 million.

And businesses serve people — providing the goods and services all 212 million of us need and want.

Whom would it hurt to punish business?

ALL THAT GLITTERS
The Proud Tower Revisited

By VIC GOLD

What the hell is the world coming to?

—Scotland Yard official on the attempted kidnaping of Princess Anne.

WASHINGTON — His name was Ravachol, and had he lived eight decades later he might have been a member of the Symbionese Liberation Army. It was a name, said Barbara Tuchman in her history of the fin de siècle, that seemed to "breathe revolt and hatred." His act of terror, she wrote, "like nearly all that followed it, was a gesture of revenge for comrades who had suffered at the hands of the state."

"My object was to terrorize," said this bearded French Anarchist still in his 30s, "so as to force society to look attentively at those who suffer."

Ravachol bombed the homes of the Paris judge and prosecuting attorney responsible for the imprisonment of two Anarchist leaders involved in a May Day 1891 riot. Following his arrest it was learned he had previously murdered five nonpolitical innocents — including a 92-year-old miser and two old women who kept a hardware store — on behalf of what he called "the Anarchist idea."

Ravachol went to the guillotine "calm and unrepentant," and in turn was "avenged" by other terrorists who followed in his bloody trail.

I reopened the Tuchman history, "The Proud Tower," (originally published in 1966) after last week's aborted attempt to kidnap Princess Anne. For the symbolism of that criminal act stirred memories of bygone kings, czars and archdukes assaulted in royal carriages by the ideological progenitors of the SLA and their comrades — violence throughout the world.

During the pre-World War I period covered in the Tuchman history, there were hundreds of men and women like Ravachol, not only in France but Spain, England, Germany, the United States and Czarist Russia. Though fanatics who professed undiluted hatred for organization of any kind, these creatures of "the idea and the deed" nevertheless came together under such names as "The Avengers and the F a m i l i e s h e d," "Indomitables" and "Anti-Patriots."

Twisted political idealists, they were dedicated to a creed espoused by the Anarchist patriarch, Prince Kropotkin: "A single deed is better propaganda than a thousand pamphlets." By "deed" he meant an act of violence "to excite hatred for the exploiters, to ridicule the rulers, to show up their weakness and above all to awaken the spirit of revolt."

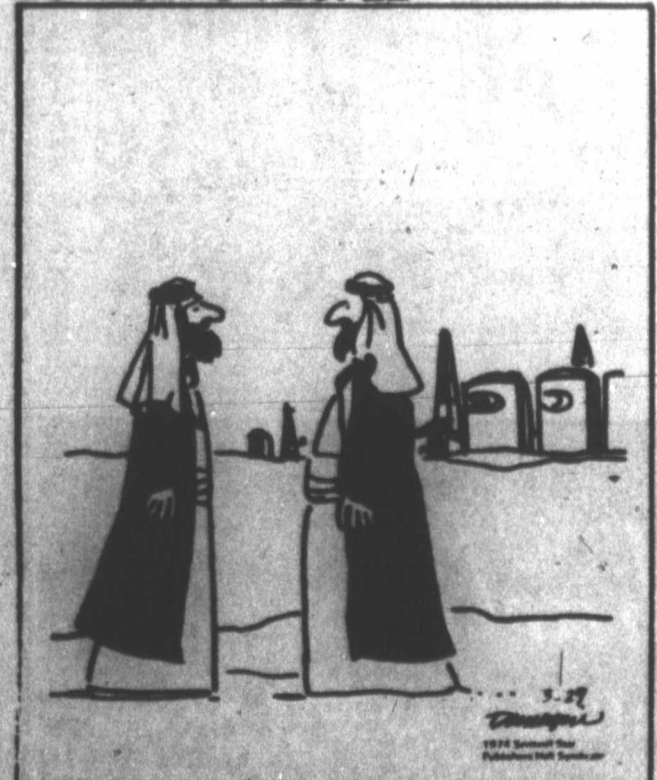

Eight decades ago such deeds were carried out by the bomb, the gun and the knife. Ravachol's heirs practice not only outright violence but a more subtle form of tactical assault against the system they despise: "to force society to look attentively" at their "idea."

Now, as then, however, the targets are the same: whoever symbolizes the existing social mechanism, whether keys to or cogs in the machine.

And then as now, there were those fatuous apologists capable of finding some rationale, however slight, for any and all acts of terror.

So what the hell is the world coming to? For what pale solace it offers, we can reflect that it is really coming to nothing new. What is frightening is not that things are getting worse. It is that they are not better.

Americans Exaggerate Political Obituaries

By ARCH BOOTH
Executive Vice President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce
WASHINGTON — Will we still have the Republican party to kick around after the 1974 elections? A lot of people are speculating that we might not, and the preliminary evidence is hardly reassuring.

Still, Americans have a habit of greatly exaggerating political obituaries. After the McGovern debacle — which many commentators ascribed to a "takeover" of the Democratic Party by its extremist left wing — there were predictions aplenty that the Democrats were "committing suicide."

Same predictions about the Republicans, following Goldwater's race against Johnson.

And how's this for a chronicle of political failure: Failed in business in '31 ... defeated for legislature in '32 ... again failed in business '33 ... elected to legislature '34 ... had nervous breakdown '36 ... defeated for speaker '38 ... defeated for elector '40 ... defeated for Congress '43 ... defeated for Congress '48 ... defeated for vice president '56 ... defeated for Senate '58.

What kind of political future would you give a man like that? Well, in 1860 Abraham Lincoln finally won one. The big one. So I don't think there is much danger of the Republicans becoming extinct, even if they have a terrible year at the polls.

There is another danger that concerns me more.

Historically, when either party has been overwhelmingly dominant the result has been much bad legislation. Indeed, it is usually public reaction against the excesses of the dominant party that ultimately breathes life back into its moribund opposition.

Our tendency to react against political excess is one of the greatest bulwarks of our liberty. But rapid swings between political extremes exact a price we would be better off avoiding.

The man with one foot on hot coals and other on a block of ice may feel fine "on the average," but he's suffering burns at one extreme and frostbite at the other.

Whether or not these simplistic assumptions about the orientation of the executives that more businessmen should join his party. His audience usually responds with the observation that the Republicans are supposed to be more "pro business."

"If that's true," he answers, "then the Democrats NEED more members from the business community so they will have the benefit of their views, too."

Whether or not these simplistic assumptions about the orientation of the executives that more businessmen should join his party. His audience usually responds with the observation that the Republicans are supposed to be more "pro business."

two parties is true, it is undeniably true that both encompass within themselves a wide diversity of political philosophy. That fact sometimes makes choices frustrating, but it also has a stabilizing influence that has served the country well.

"Year Without Summer" Eruption of Tomboro in the East Indies in 1816 spread so much dust and volcanic ash in the atmosphere that it shaded out sunshine, producing "the year without a summer."

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Flora wanted to win back her husband's love. And banish his infatuation for his former college sweetheart. So I gave her the 10-point recipe for "Boudoir Cheesecake" as outlined below. It beats Betty Crocker's cakes!

CASE Z-589: Flora J., aged 40, is the wife whose husband confessed that he had recently started writing to his college sweetheart of 20 years ago.

"Dr. Crane," she wailed, "what can I do to break up this secret fascination that she holds for Howard?"

"I love him and don't want to lose him to his ex-sweetheart."

BOUDOIR RECIPES

Maybe I should write a "Boudoir Cheesecake" recipe booklet, not only for you wives of men past 40, but also for new brides.

Women are usually superb mothers, excellent cooks and very good bargain hunters regarding department store merchandise.

But most women wouldn't rate a "D" grade if I were to return to teaching marital psychology at Northwestern University.

And the tragedy is that many fat, stodgy suburban wives claim this column has no value to them, yet their own husbands are meanwhile straying.

And frequently writing to me for advice about their paramours!

The zooming divorce rate in America attests to the fact that most wives are ignoramuses about boudoir cheesecake!

Men, alas, often have a mistaken notion about the erotic verve of women, and thus imagine that the female is as wildly passionate as is the male.

That's malarky. Women are naturally frigid, with just enough libido to get pregnant, after which they revert to their main function of nestbuilding and maternalism.

Nymphomaniacs do occur among women, if they suffer from a basic inferiority complex due to amputation of a breast or of the womb, or flat busts, crippled or withered arms or legs, etc.

Then they may goad themselves into promiscuous sexuality, not because of any localized pruritic desire but as a sop to their deflated ego.

Sex-mad women are not passionate but are merely whipping themselves into an erotic frenzy to banish their terror that they are NOT NORMAL.

Women want to join the herd, at all costs, so when they feel sexually below par, they prod themselves to prove their normalcy.

Or lapse into hypochondria, so they can constantly call on medicines for solace, surgery and tranquilizers!

When I explained that Flora's mate was afraid of her, since he felt he couldn't function erotically in their boudoir, she agreed to use the following boudoir cheesecake recipe:

- (1) Diet till you have a sylphlike figure.
- (2) Use exotic perfume, especially at bedtime.
- (3) Disrobe seductively, like the burlesque queens of the stage.

The Goodwill Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Lee Jackson, 1436 N. Russell recently.

Mrs. Paul Johnson, president, conducted the brief business session during which she thanked members for their help at the Livestock Show Food Sale.

Members are urged to attend the District THDA Meeting in Borger, April 18 at First Christian Church. Reservations must be in by April 6 for the luncheon.

Mrs. Robert Eubanks gave a demonstration of the proper use of cosmetics with Mrs. G.B. Hogan as her model. She used latest style trends in applying make-up, and stressed to "always cleanse your face thoroughly and use moisturizer before applying your make-up."

She further stated, "learn how to play-up good features, minimize imperfections and achieve a natural look. The cosmetic colors depend upon the complexion of the individual, as the contouring depends upon the shape of each face." In concluding, "A pleasant smile compliments your face," she told.

The hostess served sausage - cheese balls, banana nut cake and coffee to two guests from the Jane Long H.D. Club, Mrs. Larry Holmes and Mrs. Willard Taylor, and to Mes. A.P. Coombes, Paul Johnson, G.B. Hogan, Robert Eubanks, and guests: Mes. Ben Riley, Dick Brown and Jimmy Harper.

Twentieth Century Culture Club Reviews Lives of Buck, Caldwell

The Twentieth Century Culture Club met recently with Mrs. Paul Turner, 125 N. Faulkner, with Mrs. Myron Marx, Jr. as co-hostess. Mrs. Ross Buzzard, president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. J.M. Stallings presented the speakers for the day, Mrs. L.J. Zachry and Mrs. Doyle Osborne.

Mrs. Zachry gave the biography of Pearl S. Buck, as written by Theodore F. Harris in consultation with Pearl S. Buck. She began by saying that Pearl Buck was born in her mother's childhood home in Hillsboro, W. Va., to Andrew and Caroline Sydenstricker, on June 24, 1892. Andrew was a missionary and they lived in China until two years before Pearl's birth, when Caroline and the 4-year-old daughter fell ill with cholera, and the daughter died. Caroline's health was so impaired that the doctor ordered them to return to the U.S.

When Pearl, was three months old, the family, including her parents, her brother Edwin and herself, went to China, her father returning to his missionary work there. Though her early memories are of China, she was an alien in the land and a stranger to the land of her birth. She has said "I'm not quite at home anywhere and somewhat at home everywhere."

She was reared among the Chinese, her first language was Chinese, her playmates were Chinese, and she was tended by a Chinese nurse. But she lived as an American girl, studying America lesson books, with lessons assigned by her mother daily, to be tackled as soon as the morning hymns, scripture reading and her father's prayer was finished.

Mrs. Buck has said "I must have had a happy childhood, for I have no memories of a moment of boredom or tedium of any kind. Why limit it to my childhood? I have not had such a moment in my life."

She visited the United States for the first time when she was nine years old, and not again until she began her college years; the years between went very fast, as they were filled with learning. Her mother taught her to cook, sew, and to keep house, saying to her, "How can you know if a servant is doing things properly unless you can do them yourself?"

In her college years she left China and plunged into the American world. Her first year was one of drastic adjustment, but she determined to become as American as possible. Self-contained and detached, she nevertheless took part in all the life about her, and by her junior year was elected president of her class; by the end of her senior year she had won prizes in both fiction and poetry.

She met John Lossing Buck that summer in the mountains of China, and they were married against her parents' wishes, as they had little in common, so far as intellectual and educational background was concerned. They moved to northern China, and she became head of a girls' school, and settled down to making her own life. Their daughter Carol was born in 1921, an apparently normal child, beautiful and intelligent. When Carol was four years old, they spent the summer at a seashore in North China.

The child was healthy and active, but had still not developed speech and comprehension. Mrs. Buck attended a lecture on child development by an American psychologist, and realized how far behind her own child was. In 1925 she began the rounds of visits to specialists, and finally, a doctor at Mayo Clinic told her the child was hopelessly retarded. This was the hardest blow she ever had to face.

Her first adopted child was born in 1925, and she eventually adopted a total of nine. In coming to the U.S. in 1925, she had arranged to study at Cornell for her Master's degree, and the highlight of the year at Cornell was the writing of her prize-winning essay entitled "China and the West," which brought high honors and a purse of $200, which was more money than she could imagine at the time.

She found the place for Carol to live, where she could be cared for and happy, and in 1929 brought her to the Training School at Vineland, N.J. She was to set up two lifetime trusts for her care, for by now her book sales had soared, and money was no problem for her. She visited Carol often, always alone.

She finally divorced her husband, in 1935, and soon afterward married her publisher, Richard Walsh, who had earlier published her book "East Wind: West Wind" and her Pulitzer prize-winning book, "The Good Earth." They lived in the house she had bought earlier in Bucks County, Penn. Then in 1938 came her most exciting experience to date - the winning of the Nobel Prize. The Award was simply worded: "For rich and genuine epic portrayals of Chinese peasant life, and for masterpieces of biography."

At the beginning of 1940 she had published 11 books, and during the next 10 years she published 26 additional volumes as Pearl Buck. Since she simply had too much material to sell she took the name of John Sedges as a pen name, and retained it until the early 1950's.

She became quite a public servant, and during World War II she worked diligently for China War Relief. She and her husband established the East & West Association, a fore-runner of the present People-to-People program. She became an active member of the Vineland Training School, and later was Chairman for the Governor's Committee for the Mentally Retarded in Pennsylvania.

In 1947 she, together with friends, established Welcome House, Inc., dedicated to finding homes for the so-called hard-to-place child of mixed Asian-American parentage.

In the late 1940's she and her husband built a home in Vermont near Mt. Stratton, and enjoyed three happy summers there before his death. She later became interested in making motion pictures, calling her company Stratton Productions.

On March 6, 1973, the life of one of this century's most remarkable women came to an end; she was nearly 81 years of age. She wore more than 85 books and hundreds of magazine articles. Her last appeared in Good Housekeeping magazine in December, 1973. Through her rich legacy of writing, Pearl Buck will remain immortal.

Mrs. Osborne reviewed the life of Taylor Caldwell. She began by saying that Taylor Caldwell was born in England in 1900 and was christened Janet Miriam Taylor Holland Caldwell; she was called "Janet," but when she started writing, she was told that editors would give more attention to a man's work than a woman's, so she dropped the "Janet" and took the "Taylor" part of her name for her writings.

Her father was a commercial artist in England, but moved to America when Janet was six. Her parents believed that children were "tough little animals" instead of "tender blossoms," so she was given household chores to do, including caring for baby brother, and by the age of seven was earning spending money, so self-reliance came to her early in life. By the age of ten, she was working at the local market, filling bags and helping wait on customers.

This probably accounts for her conservative thinking, politically. She has no sympathy for people who refuse to work and expect a hand-out. On the other hand, she has only contempt for the wealthy who appear to have a deep passion for the poor, from whom they are very careful to keep far away.

When Janet was 15, her mother decided that she was old enough to go to work, so she took her out of school and sent her job-hunting. She found work in a factory, six days a week, twelve hours a day. If her family had been hard-pressed for money, Janet would not have minded this; but she resented having to work as hard as the boys worked, though her mother felt that she should. She believes her mother must have invented the Women's Lib movement.

Janet had one aunt that she dearly loved, and visited her often. Aunt Pollie was a gracious lady with a charming manner, always calm and pleasant. Her home was a place of refuge for Janet, who was used to a bawling household. She encouraged Janet to get more education and then break away on her own, so Janet went to high school at night until she graduated. She took her literary efforts to Aunt Pollie, who encouraged her further. At age 19 she married William Fairfax Combs, a young Virginian who wanted to get rich quick, so they moved to the oilfields of Kentucky, giving up his job as a construction engineer. They spent five years in the mountains of Kentucky, living a very primitive life, and learning much about life from the mountain people.

Janet says they taught her how to survive in the wilderness, as they knew goodness and virtue and the protection of the weak, and did not know they were "underprivileged, disadvantaged or culturally deprived." This is a cherished part of her knowledge.

Her husband never discovered the oil for which he was drilling, and she worked as a stenographer long enough to save money to take herself and their four-year-old daughter to Buffalo, N.Y., and her husband planned to come later. She found a job, lived in a home where her daughter could be cared for during her working hours, and she soon took and passed an examination for court reporter and began working for the New York Dept. of Labor. She was able then to buy clothes for herself and her child, and to send money to her husband to come to Buffalo.

She got her A.B. degree from the University of Buffalo by going to night school. Her husband could not find steady work, and her comment was that "poverty is a state of mind - the really poor are those without ambition and pride and determination." She divorced her husband in 1931 and married Marcus Reback, an officer in the Dept. of Justice in Buffalo, who acted as her business agent and did a lot of research for her novels. Many of her books have been on the best-seller list, and some of them have been published in paper-back. Taylor Caldwell will be 74 years old this year, and apparently is writing as much as ever, Mrs. Osborne said.

Members present besides Mes. Turner, Marx, Buzzard, Stallings, Zachry and Osborne were Mes. A.E. Berry, Fred Brook, Milo Carlson, J.L. Chase, R.L. Cooke, J.R. Donaldson, E.W. He really enjoys a good spanking

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are an average young couple, except for one thing. My husband sometimes likes to have me spank him. And I enjoy spanking him, too. It's like the good, old-fashioned spanking kids used to get. He lies across my lap and I spank him quite hard on his bare bottom. This is sort of a part of our sexual relations.

It seems harmless enough since we both enjoy these spankings, but I have begun to wonder does this mean that there is something wrong with us? Have you ever heard of this before?
 NAMELESS IN OHIO

DEAR NAMELESS: Yes, but as long as it remains within harmless bounds and takes place by mutual consent, and in private, it doesn't necessarily constitute a problem. However, should it ever seem to be getting out of control, then you and your husband should seek psychiatric counseling without delay.

DEAR ABBY: Our cat, Don Gato, is our problem. You see, we have two dogs and they are rather mean. One of them licked Don Gato's head till he was bald, and the other played so rough with him that Don Gato nearly lost an eye and ended up ruptured.

It's really not the fault of the dogs. They are chained up outside and Don Gato teases them.

Don't tell me to keep Don Gato in the house. We can't because he won't use the litter box.
 NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: If Don Gato, presumably running free, can't stay away from two mean dogs, Don Gato is a dumb cat. If you've penned Don Gato in with the dogs, Don Gato has a dumb owner. In this case, it's the dogs, two to one, so unless Don Gato really has nine lives, keep him locked up—away from the dogs.

DEAR ABBY: A lady friend of mine just got out of the hospital [nothing serious] so I stopped by her home at noon to see if there was anything I could do for her, and I must say I have never been so hurt in all my life!

She opened the door just a crack and when she saw me she said, "You've got a nerve to come over without phoning first—I'm still in my nightgown!" Then she slammed the door in my face!

Heck, I have seen her in her nightgown before. A friendship of many years has been broken.

Please answer soon and tell me what I should do.
 VICTORIA, B. C.

DEAR VIC: The lady obviously overreacted. Having just come out of the hospital she could have been highly nervous and very touchy. Don't write off the friendship now. Give her a little more time to get back to normal.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Many duplicate bridge players — at the non-expert level — try to play contracts at notrump because notrump counts more than do the major suits. They are wrong in adopting this preconceived approach as a part of their philosophy, for on many occasions a game or a slam in a major suit will produce a better result than with a game or slam at notrump. Here is an example. Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

North's two club response was the initiation of the Stayman Convention, commanding partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards if the latter possessed one. When South then rebid two spades, North promptly contracted for the slam in North's suit.

After capturing the opening diamond lead with

NORTH

 ♦ A 3
 ♣ A 7 4

WEST

dummy's ace, declarer cashed three top trumps, gathering in the adversely-held pieces. Then came four rounds of hearts, South discarding his losing five of clubs on the fourth heart lead. Next came a diamond to South's king, after which South's remaining diamond was ruffed with the board's last trump.

Thus declarer ended up making all 13 tricks: five spades, four hearts, two diamonds, and two clubs. For this North-South secured a score of 1010 (300 for a non-vulnerable game, 500 for the slam, a trick score of 180, and an overtrick worth 30 points).

At virtually all of the other tables, South opened the bidding with one notrump, and North, with his 17 high-card points, counted to a guaranteed minimum of 33 points in high cards. Since 33 points spell a small slam, the various North players promptly bid six notrump. As can be observed, exactly 12 tricks — no more and no less — were there for the taking. The score for bidding and making six notrump was 990 (300 for a game, 500 for the small slam, and a trick score of 190).

And so our South six-spade bidder, by making the overtrick, outscored the six notrump bidders by a score of 1010 to 990. For this he secured a well-deserved "top of the board."

Did You Know This About OUR RELIGIONS?

By Dr. Carlyle Adams

Savings Bank Was Idea Of A Scottish Clergyman

In an effort to teach thrift as an antidote to pauperism, a clergyman of the Church of Scotland started the world's first savings bank in 1810, in a little stone cottage in the village of Ruthwell near Scotland's southern border. He was the Rev. Henry Duncan.

The cottage in which he began the "Savings and Friendly Society" is still standing. He was a pioneer in the belief that the church could minister to the spiritual needs of the people by assisting them also with their material and practical needs.

Question: What is the origin of the use of a circle as a symbol for God? — Burlington, N.C.

Answer: I do not know the origin, but this symbol has been expressed through theological literature, especially by St. Augustine of Hippo (354-430) and by the London preacher, John Donne (1571-1631).

Augustine said that the circle best describes the nature of God whose "center is everywhere" and whose "circumference is nowhere." Donne, who for the last 10 years of the life was dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, pointed out that a circle has no end and that "whom God loves, He loves to the end; and not for their own end, to their death but to His end; and His end is that He might love them still."

Question: Is it true that Archbishop Iakovos, primate of the Greek Orthodox Church in the Western Hemisphere, has also assumed the presidency of the Hellenic University in Brookline, Mass.? — Schenectady, N.Y.

Answer: No, it is not true, but the real situation is a bit confusing. Archbishop Iakovos appointed Bishop Iakovos of Apameia as president of the Hellenic University and the Holy Cross Theological Seminary. As titular Bishop of Apameia, he was also in charge of the Detroit Diocese of the Greek Orthodox Church. Near the end of 1973, the Archbishop reassigned two of his bishops.

In order to administer the New England Diocese along with his presidency of the university, Bishop Iakovos of Apameia was transferred from Detroit to Boston, while Bishop Demetrios of Olympus was transferred from the New England Diocese to the one in Detroit.

The Detroit Diocese includes all of Michigan, Kentucky, Indianapolis, and Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Buffalo, Rochester and Watertown, N.Y.; and Dayton, Cincinnati, Lorraine, Mansfield, Middletown and Springfield, Ohio. The headquarters offices are at 19405 Renfrew Ave., Detroit.

Question: Is there an organization in the United States which is promoting the idea of having women ordained as priests in the Roman Catholic Church? — Silver Spring, Md.

Answer: Yes. It is known as St. Joan's Alliance. Its purposes are broader than securing priestly ordination for women. It grew out of the Catholic Woman's Suffrage Society (founded in London in 1911) to secure legal equality between men and women in the church.

In 1965, Miss Frances McGillicuddy founded the U.S. section of St. Joan's Alliance and she is now its president. The headquarters are 435 West 119th Street, New York, N.Y. 10027.

The Society has sought to bring about revisions in the marriage liturgy and in codes of canon law affecting women. One of its objectives also is admission of women to ordination as deacons and priests.

(Editor's Note: Questions on religion and the Bible may be addressed to Dr. Adams in care of The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. All questions must be signed.)

The Star Spangled Banner was designated by Congress as the National Anthem March 3, 1931.

Pampa Jay Losher To Minister Sunday

Filling the pulpit this Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, 525 N. Gray Street, will be Jay Losher. He has chosen for the title of his sermon, "Looking Forward." Scripture readings will be Isaiah 43:16-21, Phil. 3:8-14 and Luke 22:14-30. Assisting in the pulpit will be Elder Don Losher. Mr. Losher is a graduating Senior in Religion and Philosophy, University of Tulsa. He will enter Princeton Theological Seminary next fall.

The First Presbyterian Church of Pampa is having an "Event" Sunday afternoon. Specifically, the church is conducting a Congregational Goal Setting Event in order to formulate goals, determine objectives, select an organizational structure, make work assignments and develop positive information to identify our needs for a prospective new pastor.

This event is for all communicant members (seventh grade and up) of the Presbyterian Church. It will begin at 4:30 p.m. and will be completed promptly at 8 o'clock. Every church member is invited to express his ideas, concerns and thoughts about the future of the church in Pampa.

After all the input data is categorized, the congregation will be asked to rank all of the goals by priorities. A steering committee will then develop objectives to implement the goals.

The church members will never have a better chance to present their views on the church's future than at this "Event." We prayerfully urge all Pampa Presbyterians to attend and participate.

Next Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock in the West Room, the elders of the church will have their monthly meeting. Moderator will be Dr. Robert Presnall from Borger.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible
I walked by the fief of a certain lazy fellow and saw that it was overgrown with thorns, and covered with weeds; and its walls were broken down. Then, as I looked, I learned this lesson: "A little extra sleep, A little more slumber, A little folding of the hands to rest" means that poverty will break in upon you suddenly like a robber, and violently like a bandit.

Moslems are expected to attend noon prayers at a mosque on Fridays, a sacred day resembling the Jewish Sabbath and Christian Sunday.

CHRISTIAN MATURITY

The mature Christian is blind to man-made divisions within the body of Christ, which is the true church. The mature Christian rightly discerns the body of Christ as consisting of all who have experienced the spiritual rebirth through faith in Jesus Christ and repentance toward God.

The Corinthians were not mature: 1 Cor. 1:11-12. "For it had been declared unto me of you, my brethren, — that there are contentions among you. Now this I say, that everyone of you saith, I am of Paul, and of Apollos; and I of Cephas; and I of Christ." A careful study of this Scripture will reveal that Paul is not teaching against Christians being associated with a name — but he is teaching that for Christians to be contentious about a name, so as to bring division among believers, is the wrong spirit and is harmful to the whole cause of Christ. Notice in the text, there were some who boasted about being followers of Paul or Apollos or Cephas — and some even boasted "We are of Christ." Those who claimed to be of Christ in a boastful, contentious spirit were just as much in the wrong as the others.

A sectarian spirit is that bigotry by which some feel that they, by virtue of the group they belong to, are saved while others outside their group are not. Jesus dealt with this very spirit in his own disciples: "And John answered him, saying, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us; and we forbade him, because he followeth not us. But Jesus said, Forbid him not; for there is no man which shall do a miracle in my name, that can lightly speak evil of me. For he that is not against us is on our part. Mk. 9:38-40.

Paul is dealing with this same subject (recognition of all believers in Christ) said (1 Cor. 11:18 and 29) that if a man allow a divisive spirit to prevail and he fails to discern the Lord's body (all true believers) while taking the Lord's Supper he "eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation (condemnation) to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. (1 Cor. 11:29-30) and "For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep (are dead)."

On the first Pentecost the Holy Spirit from heaven filled every Christian resulting in a Mass Revival in which about 10,000 people were saved in a few days. The secret of that revival is found in Acts 3:1. "They (the believers) were all in one accord..."

May it happen again!

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Athletic directors, coaches, stadiums, cheerleaders, basketballs, money. Those are only a few of the things making up an athletic program, whether it be in high school or at the college level.

And even the pros have their own special programs, which include recruiting, money, more money and owners.

But there is an area almost always overlooked as a cog in the wheel of the athletic program, and it is overlooked at all three major levels. It is, and I say it without vanity, the press.

The press. Where would the athletic hierarchy be without it? What would the athlete do and how would he feel if there were no press? The questions were asked of two Southwest Conference athletic directors — Jim Schofner of Texas Christian and Grant Teaff of Baylor.

"It would affect us greatly," answered Schofner. "There would not be near the enthusiasm, the interest. The point is, it would affect us greatly."

Shofner added, "By the same token, though, we contribute an awful lot to the press."

Teaff thought for a minute, then replied, "That's a very provocative question, it's very interesting."

"Without it (the media), things would revert back to the purest form. Only those with a real interest in us (Baylor) would go to games."

He added, "The crowds would not be as good. For instance, we had a sellout against Oklahoma (the game was played in Baylor). If Oklahoma University hadn't been highly publicized, it wouldn't have been a sellout."

Both coaches also stated the media plays an important part in lifting a team's morale.

So the press, according to a couple of the top coaches in the country, is something athletics, at any level, cannot do without.

Then why is it that so many coaches avoid the press as much as possible? And why do coaches not try to improve their relations with the press by making everything available that the media needs to do its job?

And then there are coaches who "misuse" the press by "using" it as an instrument of free publicity — advertisement.

Some others mislead writers and broadcasters, feeding them lies and hedges.

Most coaches do not fall into any of the aforementioned categories because more mentors than ever before are realizing the press has its own job to do and getting poof from coaches is a crucial part of that job.

But there are some, particularly on the high school scene, who have no more relations with the press than they do with their opponents.

What makes a good public relations man? "To be open, and honest," says Dave Campbell, editor of Texas Football magazine and sports editor at the Waco Tribune-Herald.

"The worst thing a coach can do is mislead you. Sooner or later you find out about it and then there's a credibility gap. The credibility gap is going to hurt coaches as much as it's going to hurt the President of the United States," said the Waco scribe.

Campbell is well known to all Southwest Conference coaches and athletic directors and is closely associated with those men. He also knows who are the good PR coaches.

"Darrell Royal is real good. Darrell's good copy (a good source); he has a way of saying things that give it a special flavor. He's been in the business and in situations long enough that he knows what to say and what not to say."

But Campbell says Royal has not always been so good. "He's improved an awful lot since he arrived at the University of Texas. As any new coach in the conference is likely to be, he was a little cautious."

At six conference head coaches, in fact, are good. They have to be, as do coaches at all large institutions in the country since they are on a pedestal.

Both Teaff and Shofner, for example, make themselves available to the press and to the public.

"I talk to the press," said Shofner, who was an assistant with the San Francisco 49ers before taking the helm at TCU. "A good press relationship is going to help."

Teaff relates, "I try to educate the press as much as possible. The worst thing for me to see is for somebody to expound on a theory when they don't know much about it."

So Teaff "tells it like it is"; he gives both press and people the facts, all the facts, and that is what public relations are all about.

"I don't draw X's and O's," he said, "but I do have a conference every Monday morning with all the media. I'll take an hour, two hours, whatever it takes. I go over the film and every aspect of the preceding game."

Teaff added, "The public needs the facts."

Public relations works both ways. The media can have a poor relationship with a coach without it being the coach's fault at all.

"Sometimes things can be better left unsaid," claims Campbell.

For example, high school kids are not professionals. This past basketball season, a high school team here was very limited in talent and it was winning very few games.

"We had an inexperienced writer severely criticize the team in print. I regretted it very badly."

Teaff also remembers an unpleasant situation created by the media. "I was coaching at Angelo State and we were to open our conference schedule against Southwest Texas State."

"A local sportswriter in San Angelo had really blown our team up good; he made some remark like Southwest couldn't stand up to us — that type of thing. We lost the ball game."

He added, "One of my assistant coaches was told by one of the players on the opposing team that the article fired them up."

Yes, it works both ways. But the good thing about the whole situation is that it is getting better. Coaches are finding out they have a responsibility not just to their team, but to press and public also. And the press is learning it takes good PR men to be journalists.

Shofner sums it up by relating how San Francisco 49er head coach Dick Nolan works with the press.

Powell, Cantrell, Robbins Hilite 1974 Cage Banquet

By PAUL SIMS
Ray Powell, who has been described by Caprock cage coach Bill Bolk as "lightning quick," was presented the 1974 Hustling Harvester award, highlighting the Hustling Harvester Basketball Banquet Thursday night in the Pampa Junior High Cafeteria.

Other highlights of the annual banquet were the crowning of Basketball Queen Lee Ann Cantrell and a speech by Gene Robbins, head basketball coach of North Texas State.

The naming of the 25th Hustling Harvester brought a standing ovation from the crowd of approximately 200.

Past winners include Marvin Bond in 1951 and '52, Sam Condo in 1957, Randy Matson in 1963, George Bailey in 1968 and A.J. Brewer a year ago.

Powell did not score many points last season, averaging 10.3 (that still ranked second on the team). But the 5-10 senior, who is being looked at by college coaches, was notorious for his quick play, defensive pressure and ability to run the offense.

Powell's high-point game came against Amarillo Tascosa on the Rebels' home court where he scored 25.

Powell started along with Ricky Beesley, Howie Lewis, Randy Warner and Billy Wilbon. Powell and Warner will graduate in May, the other three are juniors.

Other members of Robert McPherson's Harvesters, who finished 23-8 last season, were Matiga Bunton, Darrell Carey, Steve Edwards, Mike Fraser, Kory Gamblin, Dwight Rice, Keith Samples and Robert Young.

Managers were Brent Lewis and Nick Nichols. Student trainers were Randy Craig and Billy Hagerman.

Beesley received the free-throw shooting award for canning 74 percent last season. Lewis was awarded a plaque for rebounding as he led the team with 250 caroms.

Mickey Wilson's Shockers were Edd Drew, Noel Hansen, Jewel Landers, Richard Lane, Mike Lee, Robey Mallard, Dicky McGahan, Charles Pearce, Nick Slaymaker, Tony Stafford, Jon Trimble, and Keith Waterbury.

The Shockers wound up with a 23-7 record.

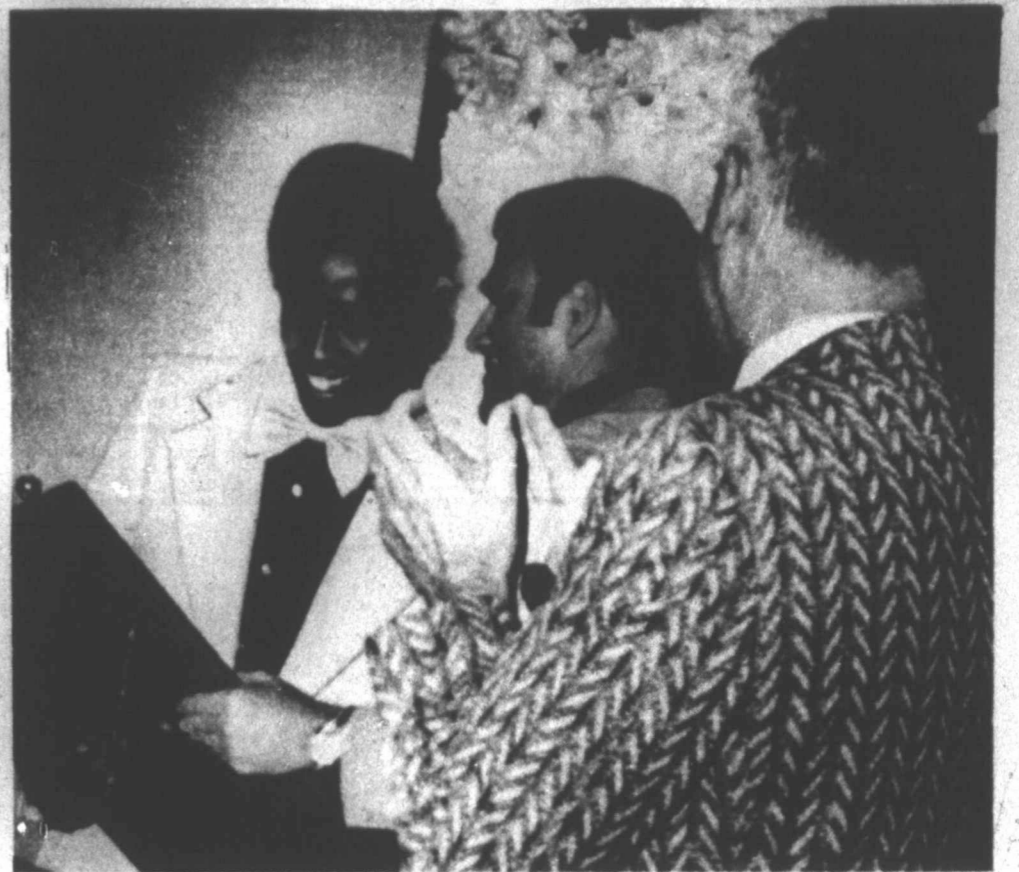

Miss Cantrell was crowned Basketball Queen and runners-up were Gayle McKinley and Lynn Hoyer.

Robbins, who coached the North Texas State Mean Green to a 13-13 record last season, was the banquet's speaker.

He started his 20-minute talk by saying, "Athletics will do more to help solve the problem of races than any other thing. Athletics brings people together."

Robbins, a product of poverty in his youth in a small Oklahoma community, spoke about how he became a major-college coach.

"My dream to become a major-college coach has become a reality. Athletics is a means to an end. If I have accomplished anything in my lifetime, so can you."

Pampa Hosts Tascosa Rebels In Crucial 3-4A Clash Today

Pampa will try to stay in the race for the district title as the Harvesters meet Tascosa at 4 p.m. today at Optimist Park.

A loss would make things tough for the Harvesters because it will set them back two games. Pampa lost to Caprock, 6-5, in the Harvesters' first district game Tuesday, while Tascosa downed Palo Duro, 9-7.

Pitchers in today's district game will be David Edwards (2-0) for Pampa and either Larry House (1-3) or Danny Ross (2-2) for Kenneth Brinkley's Rebels.

Both teams have individuals with impressive hitting statistics. Pampa is led by second baseman Rick Bigham who has a sparkling .469 average which leads the district. Toddy Black, Pampa's shortstop, owns a 342 mark. For Tascosa, second baseman Craig Kelly has an eight-game hitting streak and is averaging .371. Catcher Rick Perry is hitting .394 and Blake Box is batting .500. Box has only batted 16 times, however. Against Caprock Tuesday in Amarillo, Pampa fought back from a 5-1 deficit and tied the score, 5-5, before the Longhorns won it in the bottom of the seventh.

The Harvesters were led in the game by Roy Morris, who went two for four at the plate with two runs batted in. The RBI's came on a seventh-inning home run to left-centerfielder Dennis Edmondson who was tagged with the loss for Pampa.

It's Playoff Time In NBA, 4 Teams Start Play Tonight

International
"Nothing that happened before means anything now. Everything starts from scratch." So spoke Walt Frazier, signifying it's playoff time again in the National Basketball Association.

In tonight's openers, New York hosts Capital at Madison Square Garden in the Eastern Conference, while the Bucks host the Lakers in Milwaukee in the Western Conference to start the best-of-seven series.

Last year the Lakers and Knicks went all the way, the Knicks taking the title away from their California opponents in the seventh game. But the finals are still a long way off and today's matchups are about as even as one could wish.

The Knicks and Capital meet for the sixth straight year, with the score 5-1 in favor of New York, although this year's Knickerbockers aren't a vintage crowd, despite the familiar faces. The teams split a six-game series during the regular season.

The Knicks won two more games than Capital against the league's other 15 teams, thus gaining home court advantage. But in the end the battle could come down to one between a pair of centers playing of suspect knees — Willis Reed for the Knicks and Capital's Wes Unseld. Reed missed four months of the season while Unseld was out of uniform for 26, but Unseld appeared unconcerned on the eve of the game before a sellout crowd of 19,694 Garden fans.

The Bucks start with the best record, 59-23, in the NBA, but they'll be minus Lucius Allen and face a Laker team which came on like gangbusters in the last couple of weeks to clinch a playoff berth.

Buck coach Larry Costello, after studying films of the Lakers, said, "we've got to run and we've got to get back on defense."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH V.D. Tests Not Always Routine

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read your statement that a blood test for syphilis is routine as part of a prenatal test. Is this test routine anytime you enter the hospital for a test — G.I. series, etc.?

You also stated that a test for gonorrhea must be made from a smear taken from the cervix. Is this done when you have a Pap smear?

It is risky — for the baby — if a mother has the disease and is not tested for syphilis before the baby is born. And I mean a considerable time before the baby is born, and not just when the mother enters the hospital.

As to routine tests of patients in general, many hospitals do make a blood test for syphilis when the patient is admitted, but I want you to understand that "admitted" means the patient has been taken into the hospital as a bed-patient.

The syphilis test is not performed routinely when you go to a hospital just to have X-rays, whether a G.I. (gastro-intestinal) series, or others.

As for the gonorrhea test, a simplified method has been developed for identifying that germ, and quite often is done at the time of a Pap smear, although not always, by any means.

I have no doubt it would be a good thing to do it a good deal oftener than is now the case, simply because a fairly high percentage of women are found to have gonorrhea although they are totally unaware of it.

That's one of the vicious things about gonorrhea: women (but seldom men) can have it without any apparent sign of it. They can spread the disease without knowing it, and they also can, in time, suffer very serious harm themselves, not discovering it until it is too late to prevent or undo the damage.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently had a blood test for syphilis which showed positive. But a later, complete test was negative. My doctor assured me I don't have syphilis and never did, but I don't understand why. Could you explain?

It is easily explained. There are various tests for syphilis, some quicker and simpler than others, and what you had first was doubtless a "screening test" which is fine for detecting the great mass of cases but also will give a positive reading in the presence of a variety of virus infections including infectious mononucleosis, malaria, viral pneumonia, liver disease and even certain types of arthritis.

When such false positives appear, a more sensitive and more specific test is used to distinguish the false from the true positives.

No reason to avoid the examination. Ordinarily there is an opening in the hymen that is sufficiently large to permit an examination without instruments (except for a simple swab to gather up the necessary matter) and without discomfort. Occasionally instruments may be used if the hymenal opening is smaller than usual, but that is done routinely if needed.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you approve dancing for a patient who had apparently recovered from a heart attack?

I might, yes, but it would depend on the patient. And also depend on whether he could dance without experiencing such symptoms as chest pain, shortness of breath, fatigue.

How does VD start? Why are teenagers among its most frequent victims? Will it cure itself? Dr. Thosteson has the answers in his convenient, layman's language booklet, "Venereal Disease: How to Avoid It; How to Cure It." For a copy, write him: Dr. George C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed (use zip code) envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Copyright 1974 Field Enterprises, Inc.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT Somebody Stole His Overcoat

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — Somebody recently stole my overcoat from Rodney Dangerfield's checkroom.

The hatcheck girl wasn't at fault. For some obscure reason, saloon editors are not given hat or coat checks. They are supposed to have special hooks.

On a very cold Sunday night, as I was about to leave Dangerfield's club, the hatcheck girl turned to the special hook — and my coat was gone.

The mystery was why anybody would steal it because it was old and almost a disgrace. It had once been cashmere. I suspected members of my family of stealing it or having it stolen so I would get a new one.

However, when Rodney Dangerfield said, "I want to make good on the coat. I want to get you a new one, what would you think the coat was worth?" — well, my coat became very, very valuable.

"Well," I said, knowing I had him over a barrel, and very few people ever get Rodney Dangerfield over a barrel. "The coat didn't look like much but it had great sentimental value."

"Sentimental value? In a coat?" Rodney said. He was very patient, I must say.

"You see I wore that coat to Inaugurals and to weddings, divorces, to heavyweight championship fights, to Rose Bowl games." Rodney gave me one of those "So you just about wore it out" looks.

"I even wore it once when I interviewed Marilyn Monroe," I said.

"But she's been dead 11 years," Rodney mentioned, in a continuing gentle manner.

"Sentiment is not just an overnight thing," I said.

"There was a lot of sentiment in that coat."

sediment?" my B.W. piped up.

"And the mental anguish, think of the mental anguish," I said.

"I'm thinking of mine," said Rodney. He sent me a check for $125 which I thought was about twice what I figured to hold him up for. Rodney is a prince. He sent me a note: "If this isn't enough, then I'll start losing MY coat."

The Midnight Earl... On the set of "The Klansman" in Oroville, Calif., Richard Burton was being good — naturally twitted because Lee Marvin and Liz Taylor had won Oscars and he hadn't.

Burton said, "But just wait until I find a horse that stands cross-legged."

Jimmy Cagney prepared his own cue cards for his recent dinner. Knowing Pat O'Brien would be represented by his wife Eloise, Cagney wrote in large letters: "ELOISE IS HERE." He wrote it too close together, and in reading it he said "Eloise is here." People asked him later, "Who is Eloise is here?" He said, "How do I know?" When shown the card, he grinned, "Oh, I meant Eloise is here."

Danny Thomas was so inordinately happy about his daughter Mario's show "Thieves" coming to B'way — after producers took down a closing notice in Boston — that he said, "Let's talk about her, not me. I've been there." Danny said, "She went into it for Herb Gardner because she loves him and that's it. She's so electric, so magnetic, she's a female Sinatra."

Elizabeth Taylor flew to Honolulu for a few days, laughing off the idea there'd been any squabble with Richard Burton over him buying some gifts for other girls... Bernie Styles lectured at Lee Strasberg Institute... Sven Swenson of "Ulysses in Nighttown" gave a party for dir. Burgess Meredith who said he'd like to film the B'way show with the same cast... Manhattan boro pres. Percy Sutton has a niece in a night club — Damita Jo at Rainbow Grill.

Show Biz Quiz: What now-famous comedian appeared in small roles on the Lone Ranger radio shows? Ans. yesterday's Mary Pickford and Freddie Bartholomew played Little Lord Fauntleroy.

I'd Rather Be Light Today's Best Laugh: "He lied so much that when he played golf and made a hole-in-one, he wrote down on his scorecard, 'Zero.'" — Rich Little at the Waldorf. Wish I'd Said That: "There's a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow — and also the Internal Revenue." — Max Morath. Remembered Quote: "See how the mass of men worry themselves into names on graves, while here and there a great unselfish soul forgets himself into immortality." — attributed to Ralph Waldo Emerson. # Under Twenty

By BRUCE BAILEY
With the spring and summer months approaching, the increasingly popular recreation of bicycling will be back on its own. Energy crisis or no energy crisis, those who enjoy pedaling a bike on trips will be taking to the road.

If you are planning to take in the scenery on some longer trips, here are some tips for you to keep in mind.

If you've been neglecting exercise through the winter months don't start off on an extensive trip until you are in condition. Begin cycling each day, going a bit farther each time you go out. First, ride on flat surfaces and gradually work towards the hills, tackling small ones at first and higher ones as your condition improves.

You can save a lot of money on your trips by packing food in a saddle bag or knapsack, say, for a picnic. You aren't limited to sandwiches; you can take along food to cook at roadside areas which are available to you. Beverages are usually heavy, so you can plan to buy those as you go along.

Clothing on a long trip should be flexible. For warm days you will want light, loose clothing and shorts. Be prepared for cooler weather with a sweater and long, tighter fitting trousers.

A raincoat or rain jacket will also be helpful for those spring and summer showers. Concentrate, however, on lightweight clothing as everything you carry adds to the energy you'll use in carrying and pedaling.

On long trips you may run into trouble at great distances between help. A simple tool kit, tire repair kit and a pump should be on your list. A first-aid kit to take care of minor cuts and bruises may also be helpful.

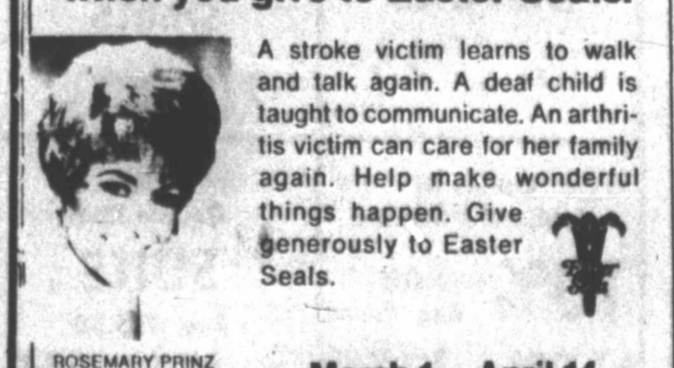

If you plan to travel by night, be sure you have lights on your bike and that they are working. Carry spare bulbs as well as a flashlight, helpful when you stop at night in a strange area.

A map of the area you are going to travel can be obtained from a gasoline station. If you are really going out in the country, bring along a compass and learn beforehand how to use it. On the road you will also find that a canteen can help "slake your thirst" between watering holes.

You can, if you choose, travel alone. But you'll find it much more fun to share the experience with a friend. Together you can plan your route, where you'll stop for food and rest, and what side trips you may make to spots of interest. There's joy in the planning and the trip can be a wonderful highlight.

Happy and safe cycling. (Distributed by Columbia Features, Inc.)

Pari-Mutuel Gambling Opposed

HOUSTON (UPI) — When it comes to legalized betting on horses, losers outnumber winners and that's why Baptist attorney Phil Strickland is opposed to Texas benefiting from one of the oldest human frailties.

"What you do with legalized gambling is make it the vested interest of the state to get people to gamble. The state has to have more losers than winners to make it possible," he said.

The pari-mutuel is a betting pool in which those who bet on the winners of the first three places share the total amount of the purse minus a percentage fee for the state.

immorality of the state, but a question of ripping off its citizens and creating in that state a system that utters the growth of criminal activity."

Strickland, 31, works for the Baptist General Convention of Texas as a lobbyist. Since the pari-mutuel issue was put on the ballot for the May 4 primaries in both parties, Strickland's job has been to get the word out on the dangers associated with legalized gambling.

"I have a strong personal feeling that allowing pari-mutuel gambling is bad for the people of the state. The place I feel the strongest is the point of gambling being a redistribution of wealth. Gambling is primarily the exploitation of the people who have the least and it is regressive tax. It doesn't create new money. It simply redistributes the money of many to the benefit of a few."

Strickland said Baptists and other denominations were not opposed to horse racing, already legal in Texas, but rather the state's involvement in it.

"Even though some states have tried to prevent criminal activity by legalizing nearly every kind of gambling, they have consistently failed," he said.

"Gambling activities have consistently tended to corrupt government because legalized gambling cannot compete with illegal operations. Legalized gambling cannot give credit, bookies do.

"And you don't have to pay income tax from winnings on underworld betting."

Texas has consistently voted down pari-mutuel gambling — three times in the last 10 years — and Strickland thinks it will happen again May 4 in the nonbinding referendum.

"I think there's more opposition today than the last time we took a vote (1968)," he said. "The liberal community is beginning to be substantially opposed to the pari-mutuel because of the growing understanding that it is a regressive form of taxation and exploitation of the poor people."

"Law enforcement has had the chance to see the experience of other states and on that basis are more opposed than they have ever been."

"Gambling just has not provided the kind of tax income that has been claimed for it. Businessmen tend to be very deeply concerned about the issue because of the credit problems which inevitably occur."

IN CAMPAIGN

Sissy Says Dolph Has 'No Policies'

United Press International
Despite his campaign speeches about saving money, Gov. Dolph Briscoe is the all-time big spender in Texas Politics, challenger Frances Farenthold says.

Mrs. Farenthold, competing with Briscoe for the Democratic nomination for governor in the May 4 party primary, said state spending has been higher since Briscoe took office than at any other time in history.

Speaking to a crowd of about 450 at East Texas State University in Commerce, she said "that man has increased the state budget by $1.4 billion. His $9.6 billion overall budget is the largest of any Texas governor in the history of our state."

Mrs. Farenthold told the audience, "You can make a new era in politics where trivia and political lies and all that has blurred our vision of decency can be stripped away."

She said Briscoe has contended there are no issues in their race, but she said schools, food and fuel are major issues.

"Dolph Briscoe has no water policy, no energy policy, no school policy and no tax policy," she said. "We don't have to have this headless government in Texas, where 'no policy' is actually a policy that consciously favors the big interests."

Briscoe, campaigning in Dallas, criticized persons who he said make blatant political charges without foundation in fact. He mentioned no names. "There are always those who believe, really, in class indictment — no matter how much that smacks of Nazi Germany. There are always those who want to divide and polarize the people for the sake of political gain."

Briscoe said elected officials currently are under closer scrutiny than ever before. "This puts a special burden on all of us in government to conduct ourselves in a manner that earns the confidence of the public," he said, "to conduct our affairs as the public's business, and to maintain the highest level of ethical standards by thought, word and deed."

The governor also announced plans for a two-day, 13-city campaign tour through East Texas April 3-4.

The tour will begin in Bryan and end in Texarkana, and will feature primarily airport rallies.

AMERICA'S FUTURE IS STILL ON SOLID GROUND
Real estate, like many other segments of American business, has been through some trying times lately.

First there was tight money. And now there's the energy crisis, which has caused a lot of people to be hesitant about making changes. Especially major ones, like buying homes.

But frankly, real estate is still the best all-round investment you can make. One thing's for sure. It's a much sounder situation to be putting your money into a personal investment every month than to be putting it into someone else's pocket.

Texas REALTORS are working hard these days to make the purchase of Real Estate easier because we have faith in the ability of our country to flourish for a long time to come.

We think America is still on solid ground. Shouldn't you be, too? We'd like to talk to you about home ownership. Give us a call today.
