Carson County hears requests on roads, trash

By DAVID BOWSER Staff Writer

PANHANDLE - The Carson County Commissioners Court today renewed the county's liability and auto insurance, joined a Texas Panhandle drug treatment consortium and heard complaints about road maintenance near Fritch.

"We would like our roads maintained more proficiently," Mary Cox told the commissioners court today.

Cox and Robert Cannefax, who live on Sunset Lane in an unincorporated area near Fritch, appeared before the commission to complain about road maintenance and trash disposal.

"Sometimes, we feel like stepchildren," she said.

She said that the caliche roads near her home were full of holes. Commissioner Jerry Strawn told the two that more heavily populated areas took priority concerning road maintenance, and that the maintenance was scheduled for the residential area next year.

"I've heard this old step child story for years," Strawn said. "I spend 15 to 20 percent more on the residents of that area than anybody else in the county."

Strawn said the region hadn't had any rain since September and that dry weather was particularly hard on caliche roads.

"I try to see all those roads once a week," Strawn said, noting that he was aware of the potholes.

Cox also asked about trash pickup, but County Judge Jay Roselius explained that the county did not have a landfill and, that under federal government guidelines, couldn't afford to consider creating one.

"That's the reason that all these landfills are closing," he explained.

Clothing for Christmas

Roselius said county residents could take their trash to a certified landfill and pay the fees involved. If they live outside the city limits of an incorporated community, they could burn their trash under certain restrictions. The third option would be to contract with a private company to provide trash pickup. "Those are the only choices we have," Roselius said. "It presents a problem for all of us."

Because of the restrictions on landfills, he said, the county has had an increase of trash being dumped in bar ditches along county roads.

Roselius offered to call Borger officials following the meeting to see if something could be worked out with them for the benefit of the Carson County residents in the area where Cox lives.

In other business, the commission approved renewal of the county's liability insurance for $12,430 and commercial auto insurance for $8,190 with A.J. Weisner and Co. of Panhandle.

They also voted to join the Panhandle Substance Abuse Consortium being organized by Amarillo's Northwest Texas Hospital's Pavilion. The annual dues are $20.

Judge Roselius also told the commission to expect requests from Amarillo Natural Gas for pipelines crossing county roads. He said the company had inquired about laying pipelines along county road right-of-ways and had explained the county's policy, with certain exceptions, of not putting gas pipelines on county property. The company had asked about the area north and west of Panhandle, he said.

He also told the commission the county would be updating it's emergency preparedness maps in January and February. See CARSON, Page 2

Wenona Goodwin stands in front of the series of her paintings on display at the White Deer Land Museum concerning the Battle of Adobe Walls.

Woman's paintings of Adobe Walls battle displayed in museum gallery

By DAVID BOWSER Staff Writer

Wenona Goodwin's paintings in the atrium gallery of the White Deer Land Museum reflect the lore of the Texas Panhandle that she was reared with.

"I grew up seven or eight miles—years before. north of Stinnett," she said, "about 15 miles from Adobe Walls.'

The Battle of Adobe Walls is the oil painting that anchors her exhibit at the museum. Hanging, along the brick walls of the gallery are also portraits of Billy Dixon, the hero of Adobe Walls, and Comanche Chief Quanah Parker, who led Comanche, Chevenne and Kiowa warriors against the trading settlement on the Canadian River in 1874. There is also a painting depicting Dixon's shot that ended the siege at Adobe Walls. Wenona Williams Goodwin grew up on the farm her grandfather settled around the turn of the century near the Adobe Walls battle site. She said she can remember watching the cars go down the road to the site for the 50th anniversary of the battle.

"My sister and I wanted to go," she said. But they didn't get to. It would be the 1970s, after Goodwin was grown and married and her older children had moved off, before she would walk the land where a combined force of several hundred Indians launched the opening salvo of the Red River Indian War against a trading post, saloon and blacksmith shop known as Adobe Walls.

In the summer of 1874, the lack of buffalo on the western Panhandle of Indians. plains of Kansas brought hunters to the Texas Panhandle. Traders and merchants from Dodge City, Kan., set up shop and built several sod-walled buildings near an adobe ruin where frontier scout Kit Carson had battled a tribe of Kiowas only half a dozen

In June, a dozen buffalo hunters including Dixon and Bat Masterson, who would go on to earn fame as a gunfighter and frontier lawman, gathered at Adobe Walls on their way to hunt the shaggy bison that roamed the plains. According to a report by Olive Dixon, Billy Dixon's wife, the hunters were awakened early in the morning when a center support pole in the saloon snapped. After spending the wee hours of the morning replacing the pole, the hunters began packing up to begin their hunt when Parker led his warriors out of the dawning sun to attack the settle-

Two hunters sleeping in a wagon were killed in the initial onslaught as the other hunters and merchants sought shelter in the sod buildings. The attacks subsided as the Indians lav siege to the compound. The siege lasted until Billy Dixon took his .50 caliber Sharps buffalo rifle and shot the medicine man who had guaranteed the Native American warriors that his magic would protect them from the white man's

The Indians retreated. The buffalo hunters and merchants pulled back to Dodge City. The army moved in to clear the Texas

Dixon's widow took Goodwin's brother, Alson Williams, who still lives on the homeplace, under her wing and would tell him stories when he was a child, the tales of Adobe Walls passed along from her husband.

It was almost a hundred years later when Goodwin accompanied her brother to the site of the battle. Her interest led her to paint a picture of how she imagined Dixon looked as he shot the Comanche medicine man from his mount. She also started a larger painting showing Parker leading the charge out of the sunrise on what is now the Turkey Track Ranch in Hutchinson County.

"I started that painting 20 years ago," she said.

When she read that the White Deer Land Museum was mounting an exhibit on Fort Elliott, an army fort established in Wheeler County as a result of the battle at Adobe Walls and the cavalry expedition that led to it, Goodwin told Anne Davidson, the museum curator, about her paintings.

Goodwin finished the painting she'd started in 1974 and brought it and the oil painting of Dixon making his famous shot to the museum along with the portraits of Dixon and Parker. The latter two oils she painted during November in about a week, she said.

Goodwin, who has been paint ing since 1962, has lived in Pampa for 48 years. She and her husband live on Comanche Street.

"That wasn't planned," she laughed. "It just happened."

Cadillac Ranch owner faces kidnap charge

AMARILLO (AP) - Flamboyant millionaire Stanley Marsh 3 has been indicted on charges of felony kidnapping and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, according to Potter County Jail records.

Marsh, creator of the "Cadillac Ranch" display of half-buried classic automobiles, posted a $1,000 bond on each count and was released from jail Thursday, records showed. Marsh, 57, could not be reached for comment today. "Mr. Marsh will not be taking calls today," said a man who answered the phone at his Amarillo home. The indictments were sealed, officials with the district clerk's office said, and District Attorney Rebecca King declined today to confirm or deny the indictments.

However, one of Marsh's attorneys said he believes the charges relate to allegations made in a civil lawsuit filed against Marsh by a member of a prominent Amarillo family.

Kelly Utsinger, an attorney representing Marsh in the related civil lawsuit, said he had not seen the indictments but he believes they are related to the

The lawsuit alleged that Ben

Whittenburg was asleep in a van on Whittenburg land after a camping trip on Oct. 22, 1994, when Marsh approached and accused him of stealing one of Marsh's signs, which appear around Amarillo and resemble traffic signs.

The lawsuit alleged that Marsh threatened Ben Whittenburg with a hammer and locked him in a chicken pen in October 1994.

The lawsuit was filed against Marsh on Aug. 31 by Wittenburg's father, Amarillo attorney George Whittenburg. The lawsuit alleged that Marsh threatened the son, then 18, with a double-headed hammer, locked him in a chicken pen, photographed the scene and distributed copies of the pictures to Ben Whittenburg's friends.

Aggravated assault with a deadly weapon is a seconddegree felony punishable by two to 20 years in prison upon conviction. Kidnapping is a thirddegree felony, punishable by two to 10 years in prison upon con-

John Montford, a Lubbock state senator and Marsh's attorney in the criminal case, said Marsh would plead innocent in court papers filed today.

"Of course, its our position that he went on there to reclaim stolen property," he said.

He also said that the indictment is only another chapter in a lengthy feud between the Marsh and Whittenburg families.

"This feud's been going on for 30 years," said Montford.

The commission discussed drug and alcohol abuse testing required by the Texas Department of Transportation that will become a requirement of all counties in Texas on Jan. 1. The random testing will be required of employees that drive county vehicles. The policy has previously applied only to more populated counties.

Roselius said he had talked to a certified lab in Perryton concerning the testing and was told that it would cost a $250 annual fee plus $65 per person for each county employee tested. The commission tabled action on the item until their first meeting in January so Commissioner Mike Britten of Groom could check with labs in Amarillo.

DPS Trooper Chad Estes said the accident is still under investigation, but Coombes apparently lost control of the tractor and rolled over into the bar ditch. Commission takes action on speed limits

AUSTIN (AP) — The speed limit on about 1,400 miles of undivided, multilane Texas highways, primarily in East Texas, soon will rise to 70 mph following action by the Texas Transportation Commission.

The commission authorized a speed limit lower than 70 mph on 350 miles of rural undivided highway, meaning the remaining 1,400 miles considered Thursday will be subject to higher speeds.

Motorists should observe whatever speed is posted on highway signs, said Bill Burnett, executive director of the Texas Department of Transportation.

The agency is in the process of replacing the old speed limit signs with new ones.

The Baytown Sun on rising number of prisoners:

Americans, tired of drugs and violence, asked for a crackdown on crime. They got it.

According to statistics released by the U.S. Justice Department the United States has set another record for its rate of incarceration. It locks up a greater share of its residents than any other

The U.S. rate tops the latest figures from Russia of 558 per 100,000 and is eight to 10 times higher than other industrialized nations in Western Europe, according to officials.

The statistics released show that a record wave of new inmates flowed into state and federal prisons during the 12 months that ended last June – enough to require 1,725 new beds each week.

During the 12 months covered by the study, inmate population grew by 89,707. The previous record annual increase in calendar 1989, when 84,764 inmates were added.

Justice official Allen Beck told The Associated Press that, despite some popular misconceptions, "There's been no change in the level of overcrowding. Since 1990, new prison capacity has been keeping pace with inmate growth." Average time served has declined slightly, he said.

The bureau said the overall incarceration rate as of Dec. 31, 1994, reached 565 inmates per 100,000 U.S. residents. That counts prison inmates, mostly sentenced to more than one year, and jail inmates, mostly sentenced to less than one year. There were 483,717 adults in jails at last count in 1994.

Much of the inmate growth is related to drug offenses.

According to the Justice study, the number of black inmates has grown at a faster pace that the number of white inmates. As a results, 6.8 percent of all black male adults were in prison or jail compared with less than 1 percent of white male adults. As of June 30, there were more than a million state prison inmates and almost 100,000 federal inmates. The report shows the largest prison inmate growth, up 27 percent to 127,092, was in Texas, where even more prison cells are currently under construction.

Someday soon, Americans will start asking why so many young men – and, increasingly, young women – cannot function productively in this society

When that happens, citizens will begin to talk openly and constructively about educational opportunities and fatherless households, and the destructive influence of a bankrupt popular culture and some of the other root causes of crime in this coun-

Until then, the building will continue. And the cells will be full.

Whoopi and the welfare state

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), who has never met a domestic federal program he would not double, hit upon what seemed like a great idea for advertising the virtues of federal welfare programs. He invited Whoopi Goldberg - one of America's most famous former welfare mothers to the Capitol to make a pitch for Aid to Families With Dependent Children.

Not for Kennedy and Goldberg the usual staid style of congressional testimony. Instead, Whoopi put on a Phil Donahue-style show complete with cordless mike and invited guests. A baby on her hip, Whoopi told reporters, "The welfare system at that time," she wrote. "It was the late '60s; me enough time to do what I had to do the way I could do it and keep some self-esteem."

Sen. Kennedy must have been beaming. There, in a few sentences, is the perfect distillation of liberal hopes about welfare. It serves as a safety net for those who fall upon bad times - not a hammock for the lazy. Moreover, it offers freedom and opportunity ("time to do what I had to do the way I could do it"). Only a ghoul or a Republican could contemplate tampering with such a successful system!

But how, exactly, did Whoopi wind up on welfare? We can read all about it in The Choices We hardly destitute. She became pregnant for the first pregnant again. "I hadn't been using birth control thing is wrong with this picture.

works. I know it works because I'm here. It gave everybody was having sex. You had sex in Central Park; it was that free." Planned Parenthood performed her second abortion and supplied her with birth control pills. She claims that birth control pills are not "strong" enough for her. "Three times I got pregnant with birth control." It apparently never occurred to her to try self-control.

At age 18, married, Whoopi had a daughter. But she was soon single again and somehow finding herself pregnant again. It's difficult to count, based on Whoopi's narrative, but the grand total of abortions she admits to having is six or seven by the age of 25.

As for Whoopi's daughter, she became pregnant Made, by Angela Bonavoglia. Whoopi Goldberg and bore her first child at age 15. "My daughter was the daughter of a nurse, not wealthy but knew about birth control; she knew about safe sex; she knew about all that stuff. She didn't want time at age 14 and by her own account, self-abort- to marry the man. But she wanted to have this ed with a coat hanger. The following year, she got baby." Even Whoopi dimly perceives that some-

She doesn't dwell on it because Whoopi Goldberg is equipped with a liberal theology to accompany her liberal politics. "I talk about God because God and I are very close. God gives you freedom of choice. That's in the Bible. God says, 'Here are 10 rules: Don't lie - you'll never remember what you said before. Don't cheat, because you're going to be mad if you're cheated on. Honor your parents, because they brought you into the world, and you're going to need child care. If you choose to live by them, your life will be better, and even if you don't, I will forgive you."

Goldberg could be writing the scripts for many mainstream churches. God's laws are not moral absolutes or even injunctions but rather ancient self-help texts. Do this not because it is right but because it will benefit you. Honor your parents not for the sacrifices they make on your behalf but because one day you'll need them as baby sitters. Don't lie because you'll get confused and then get caught. And since this is a self-help manual and nothing more, you get love and forgiveness no matter what.

In Whoopi's world, there is no God of judgment, but there are Republicans and they must be resisted to the bitter end.

But this passionate advocate for the welfare system illustrates, by her own story, the corrosive influence of a welfare system that says essentially what Whoopi's God says: "God understands whatever dilemma you're in and will forgive it if you make a choice that He or She doesn't think is right."

It's time to end fruitcake bashing

What this country needs is a fruitcake libel law. I mean, they've got laws now to protect the reputations of apples and vegetables, right? But what about the lowly fruitcake, butt of countless jokes at this time of year?

edStein 95

ROCKY MINL NEWS - NEW

Who, I ask, stands up for the fruitcake? Outside of the people who sell them and the people who make them and the people who write about them, very, very few, that's who.

Down in Corsicana, Texas, for example, where the world-famous Collin Street Bakery produces 4 million pounds of pecan-stuffed fruitcakes a year, they say folks won't even associate with fruitcake bashers. People probably feel the same way in Claxton, Ga., where the equally famous Claxton Bakery sells 4-1/2 million pounds of fruitcake every year.

I have a friend, a fellow columnist no less, who is such a fruitcake freak that he bakes his own. He is a consummate purist who candies his own fruit, which means he must begin the process shortly after his desk. It collapsed. Labor Day each year, and he soaks his cakes in only the finest brandies and rums. I cannot reveal his identity, for fear he would be ridiculed by his peers, and because he might be hounded for his recipes.

The food columnist for my syndicate, Marialisa Calta, has summed it up succinctly: "Fruitcake - the Rodney Dangerfield of holiday treats - has become a kind of national joke; a culinary anachronism, an old-centuries past took fruitcake on their voyages fogey of a dessert."

Alas, it is sadly true. Humorist Calvin Trillin is humanity that could be used in an emergency as often given credit for the most tired fruitcake joke deck planking? I mean, fruitcake gives new meanof all that there is only one of them on the whole ing to the word ageless; it is, after all, the only

How utterly boorish. Do these people not realize that the noble fruitcake was invented by the ancient Egyptians? Indeed, archaeologists are certain that one of these days they will find a perfectly edible fruitcake in a pharaoh's tomb.

There is - I hereby swear/affirm this is not a joke - there is a piece of wedding fruitcake on display at the Grover Cleveland Birthplace in Caldwell, N.J., that is now 107 years old. These fruitcake wisecracks have become so abhorrent that I have decided to form yet another subsidiary of the Spear Foundation, which I will call the Fruitcake Defense League. The FDL's main task will be to collect and disseminate suggestions for ways in which fruitcake may be used to serve mankind. The ideas I have solicited from family and friends are fairly obvious. Fruitcakes can be used as bricks and blocks; for building foundations, walls, patios and walkways; as doorstops and centerpieces. A few, however, show real imagination: For blocking up cars in the driveway.

Adult leadership' needed in Congress

Ronald Reagan once said that the way the government sets its budgets was a Mickey Mouse system. At this point, Mickey could call that slander. Cartoons make more sense than what's going on now.

A venerable senator who wants to become president said he thinks it's time for adult leadership. the observation is as applicable to Republicans in the budget war.

Both sides look silly as Congress and the Democratic White House rehash their arguments in the balanced budget stalemate that produced the second selective shutdown of the federal government this budget season.

This one is not quite so extensive as the first, since seven of the appropriations bills that were supposed to have been enacted by Oct. 1 have now been completed. There are six left, and they involve policy and spending disputes prompting two Clinton vetoes so far this week. "We keep getting measures that the Congress already knows and has known for weeks are unacceptable," said Mike McCurry, the White House press secretary. Republicans in Congress are no less insistent that they will accept nothing short of a seven-year balanced budget plan premised on congressional economic projections, and that Clinton has known that for months. The White House wants to factor in its more optimistic forecasts on the economy, making the balancing act easier. fare, with each side blaming the other for the gov- Christmas," Clinton said, making a political point.

Walter Mears AP Special Correspondent

Sen. Bob Dole was aiming at President Clinton, ernment shutdowns, and lobbing rival accusations of inflexibility, and of politicking with the budget. They're both right.

But with the government divided between the varties, as it has been for most of the past three decades, there has to be a way to settle on a budget without shutting down agencies for lack of funds. The siege has been coming for months; Republican leaders were talking about the autumn train wreck last spring when Congress was voting on its budget resolutions.

There was time to find shared ground and compromise, but that didn't mesh with the political agenda on either side. Republicans, especially the new wave in the House, had promised revolutionary change. Clinton vowed to defend the basic commitments he said the government has made to the American people for generations.

So they made speeches while time ran out, extended it temporarily, then went into the longest of five partial government shutdowns since 1981, six days, until another temporary spending extension on Nov. 19, which ran out after Friday and led to the shutdown show Monday morning. "It is wrong for the Congress to shut the government So it has settled into a sort of political trench war- down just to make a political point a week before

About 260,000 federal workers were sent home for lack of funds to run their agencies. It will almost certainly wind up being a paid holiday break - time off for Christmas shopping. Federal employees furloughed in prior shutdowns have received back pay, and while there's no guarantee, both Clinton and Dole have said they should be paid this time too. The Office of Management and Budget figures that amounts to about $40 million a day. Back pay and lost fees cost an estimated $750 million during the shutdown a month ago.

Even the feelings of the furloughed are being spared; the White House said they are not deemed "nonessential" employees, only "nonexcepted" from the law that keeps emergency, health and safety personnel on the job.

The budget and appropriations system was overhauled in 1974 in what was billed then as a reform that would make it all work sensibly. It set up a series of deadlines to equate spending and revenues, and made Oct. 1 the budget new year, so there would be plenty of time to get things done.

But the deadlines usually are missed, and there's no penalty, only the sanction of shutdowns. President Reagan's angry appraisal dates from 1982, when he could not get a Democratic House to deal with his budget.

"The United States government's program for arriving at a budget is about the most irresponsible, Mickey Mouse arrangement that any governmental body has ever practiced," he said then.

. They're still practicing.

Actor to be released today after bumping head

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - James Stewart will probably go home today after spending the night at a hospital for a minor head injury, a spokesman for the actor said.

"He fell down and hit his head against the chair," longtime publicist John Strauss said early today. "There might have been a tiny bit of blood from a gash, and everyone got scared. It turned out to be a trivial matter."

The actor was held overnight for observation, Strauss said. Stewart, 87, was rushed by ambulance from his Beverly Hills home to a hospital Thursday night with his head bandaged, a witness said. Strauss said he did not know which hospital Stewart had gone to.

Occidental settles federal lawsuit over Love Canal

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — In a pact that all but closes the most notorious toxic dumping case of the 1970s, Occidental Chemical Corp. has agreed to pay $129 million in cleanup costs for Love Canal.

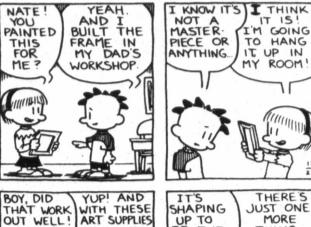

The three-year settlement announced Thursday ends 16 years of legal battles with the federal government over who would pay for the cleanup.

Former residents say nothing can restore the old neighbor-

"It's like putting a price on a kid's head - how can you do it?" said Joann Hale. "This is a piece of money that's going back to the taxpayers, and that is good, but they ruined a piece of land for eternity. You can't put a price on a piece of land."

The settlement was submitted to a federal judge. There will be a 30-day waiting period before it becomes official.

"This is an auspicious occasion," said U.S. District Judge John Curtin, who has presided over the case since it began. "It's not the end of the road, but almost." BIG NATE'S SECRET SANTA by Lincoln Peirce

Christmas dinner tradition based on service

The membership of Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ is to host a Christmas Day dinner 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the church.

The 12th annual dinner will feature turkey, dressing, ham, and all the trimmings, according to chairman David Smith.

Members will deliver about 150 dinners and serve another 200 to 250 in the church, Smith said.

"We basically take over for Meals on Wheels that day," Smith explained.

It takes about 60 volunteers, which includes the stalwart families of Jack Mitchell, Bob Adcock and Darryl Hughes, to prepare, serve and clean up after the dinner, he said.

"This is not any big, formal religious deal. It's our way of serving the community," Smith said.

Cooks will prepare the food on Sunday, then on Christmas Day, volunteers will arrive about 6 a.m. to prepare it for delivery and serving.

"At approximately 3 p.m., we'll clean up and go home and have our Christmas," Smith said.

"This is one way to get back to the meaning of Christmas - serving - celebration of Christ's birth," he said.

Red Raiders leave for Copper Bowl

By JEAN PAGEL Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK (AP) — Early losses to Penn State and Baylor led some people to doubt that Texas Tech would amount to much this season, coach Spike Dykes

"Even though those losses were to really good football teams, there was a little bit of a thought this team didn't have it," Dykes said. "I really appreciate the way they rebounded after those losses and hung in

The Red Raiders (8-3) leave today to play Air Force (8-4) at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Copper Bowl in Tucson, Ariz.

In some respects, the path Tech took to its third straight bowl appearance looks paved with potholes.

The Red Raiders lost two of their first three games. Fans threw so many tortillas onto the field one game that the team got penalized. Six players at a party

Thursday that they were suspended for the Copper Bowl. Nonetheless, Dykes sounds like a happy coach. "It's fun. But it is a little hectic, thank goodness," Dykes said of a holiday season so busy he hasn't written any Christmas cards yet. Tech lost 41-10 to Oklahoma in the 1993 Hancock Bowl. And last season Tech was wiped out 55-14

by Southern Cal in the Cotton

Dykes said his players have a greater desire to win this time thanks to strong leadership by the seniors.

"They're a pretty neat bunch," he said. "This team has developed into a pretty solid group statistically and record-wise."

mores helped Tech attain its best regular-season record since 1976. Zebbie Lethridge completed 136 of 281 passes for 1,885 yards and 13 touchdowns. Byron Hanspard, a 6-0, 190-pound tail- come out with a win.

were charged with felonies and back, averaged 5.5 yards per misdemeanors; two learned carry and caught a team-best 35 catches for 474 yards.

Defensive power came from Butkus Award finalist Zach Thomas, a senior who has made 390 career tackles and the best Red Raider play this season: a last-minute interception and touchdown to upset No. 8 Texas A&M 14-7.

tackle Corey Defensive Chandler, a 6-4, 252-pound sophomore, said two-a-day practices this week have focused on ways to stop Air Force quarterback Beau Morgan, who rushed for 1,285 yards.

"There's a real threat from the quarterback running," Chandler said. "Our tackles and ends are getting used to the option."

Offensive guard Ed Hendrix, a 6-4, 278-pound senior, said Tech An offense led by two sophohas gained experience and confidence since last year's fiasco at the Cotton Bowl. The players are prepared and excited, he said.

Sonics take over first place in Pacific

By The Associated Press

There's a new first-place team in the NBA's Western Division.

The Seattle SuperSonics took over the top spot by beating the Vancouver Grizzlies 92-68, while the Sacramento Kings were getting upset 103-96 by the Los Angeles Clippers on Thursday

"We knocked them out of first place? That's all right. If you looked at their forlorn faces after the game, just magnify that by 16 times what we've looked like over the course of the season," Brian Williams of the Clippers said.

The loss ended a season-long run at the top of the standings for the Kings, a perennial Western Division doormat that has managed to turn its fortunes around this season.

In other NBA games, Utah topped Portland 91-86, San Antonio defeated Denver 114-96 and Charlotte downed Boston

1951-52 Rochester Royals, an earlier incarnation of the Kings, won 16 of their first 23 and finished

"I don't know if we talked about challenging for first place, but I think we're going to be competitive for a playoff spot. I never set it as a goal to win first place. It's about taking care of business, and by and large we've done a good job. I think this is our first loss against a team under .500," coach Gary St. Jean

The Clippers put this one away with a run early in the fourth quarter. Loy Vaught's four field goals in the first four minutes of the final period helped Los Angeles open an 86-82 lead, then a dunk and a 3-pointer by Lamond Murray and a jumper by Pooh Richardson made it 95-85 with 2:27 remaining. The Kings got no closer than five points the rest of the way.

"In the fourth quarter, we responded," said Richardson, who scored five of his 21 points on free throws in the final minute. "We didn't turn the ball over, we converted on our opportunities, we made our free throws.

Vaught had 22 points, 15 rebounds and four assists.

Mitch Richmond had 23 points before fouling out with 5:08 left, and Sarunas Marciulionis scored 16 for Sacramento, which plays the Los Angeles Lakers tonight. SuperSonics 92, Grizzlies 68

Seattle held the Grizzlies to the lowest point total ever recorded by a Sonics opponent.

With 7-foot, 292-pound rookie Bryant Reeves out with back spasms, Vancouver didn't have edged Cleveland 89-87, Houston much of an inside game for the Sonics to worry about, and Seattle was able to pressure the Grizzlies' outside shooters.

Vancouver shot just 40 percent Sacramento to match the fran- season-high 32 turnovers. Houston was 22 of 27. decent game, paused for a minute and replied, "Anthony Avent was our bright spot (16 with a league-high 41 wins with points). Other than that, there weren't any others.'

Gary Payton scored 22 points and Shawn Kemp had 15 points and 12 rebounds to lead the Sonics, who lost in Vancouver 94-93 Tuesday night in a game in which Reeves hurt his back. Jazz 89, Cavaliers 87

At Cleveland, Utah almost let one slip away in the final halfminute, but John Stockton won it with a 3-pointer at the final buzzer.

Utah led 85-79 when Adam Keefe tipped in a basket with 24 seconds to go. In the closing seconds, however, Stockton missed one of two foul shots, and Jeff Hornacek missed a pair. A 3pointer and a put-back by Chris Mills got the Cavs to 86-84, and Dan Majerle sank a go-ahead 3-pointer with 3.6 seconds to go. After a timeout, Stockton caught David Benoit's inbounds pass, dribbled to the top of the 3-point arc and made the winning shot. Stockton got a good look at the basket because Terrell Brandon, who was guarding him, slipped as the inbounds play from midcourt began to develop. "I recovered, and then Karl Malone got me (with a pick). Michael Cage and I both jumped at Stockton. He kind of hit an offbalance shot. It was kind of sideways," Brandon said. Rockets 91, Trail Blazers 86

At Houston, Clyde Drexler wasn't around to face his former teammates. Houston's All-Star shooting guard missed his first full game since suffering a severely bruised leg against Phoenix on Tuesday. He is expected to be out at least two weeks. The difference in this game came at the free throw stripe as the Blazers, who average a league low 62.8 percent from the A victory would have allowed from the field and committed a line, converted just 16 of 31. chise's 44-year-old record for its Winters, asked if he thought any Hakeem Olajuwon led the best start after 23 games. The of the visiting Grizzlies played a Rockets with 30 points and 15 rebounds. Rod Strickland scored 30 for Portland.

Spurs 114, Nuggets 96

At San Antonio, David Robinson had 25 points, 14 in the first half, and Vinny Del Negro added 21 as the Spurs eased to the victory.

Dale Ellis led Denver with 21 points, and Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf added 18.

"That 51-41 rebound advantage was definitely a plus," Spurs coach Bob Hill said. "We outrebounded them, but they got more shots than us, which tells you a little about rebounding." Hornets 107, Celtics 97

At Charlotte, Glen Rice scored 27 of his 31 points in the second half and the Hornets used a 16-0 spurt at the start of the fourth quarter to pull away.

Larry Johnson scored 24 points for the Hornets. Dino Radja led the Celtics with 22.
