GOOD FRIDAY — Christians around the world today are noting the crucifixion of Jesus Christ on the Friday before his resurrection on Easter Sunday. In Jerusalem, observances are planned for the weekend in the tense mood that has marked the occasion for several decades. (Photo by Bill Kincaid)

JERUSALEM (UPI) — An elderly woman in a long black coat and a white kerchief binding her hair knelt and withdrew a small blue and white cloth from a plastic bag. She rubbed it ever so gently on the stone of anointment inside the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

Christian tradition marks the Stone of Unction as the site where Jesus Christ received his anointment after his crucifixion.

In the hushed silence of the church, and for the devout woman, it was as if the guns of October never had sounded for the fourth Middle East war in 25 years. For this woman and some like her, the greenbereted Israeli border policemen with their black Uzi submachineguns in the street outside might as well be patrolling on another planet.

"It's only those on the outside who are afraid," said Father Barrett Yeretian, chief of protocol of the Armenian Church in the holy city.

But it appears that only the brave have made the Easter pilgrimage to Jerusalem and its holy sites this year. Tourism is down sharply in the aftermath of the 18-day, 1973 Yom Kippur War, and the ongoing daily bombardments on the Golan Heights front that some think could spark renewed war.

"The mood is very good here," the clergyman said. His neatly trimmed black beard contrasted sharply with his white frock. "Whoever has come here has no fear."

Some think the mood and turnout could be better.

"Last year we had 9,000 pilgrims from Greece and Cyprus for Easter," said a black-haired store owner who depends on the Christmas and Easter trades for much of his souvenir sales.

"But this year the number is down to 2,000 or 3,000," he said.

His shop is on the Via Dolorosa, a narrow street running from what had been the Roman praetorium, where Jesus Christ was sentenced to crucifixion, to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

Along the route are eight stations marking the spots where Jesus is said to have been tormented. "And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, which also bewailed and lamented him" (Luke 23: 27).

The odor of incense and strong, black Arabic coffee is heavy all along the route where Israelis and Christian tourists, cameras swung over their shoulders, haggle with Arab merchants.

About 3,000 Christian pilgrims chanting prayers and singing hymns wound through the old city's narrow Via Dolorosa today, reenacting the crucifixion of Jesus Christ almost 2,000 years ago.

The pilgrims, many of them carrying wooden crosses on their shoulders, stopped at each of the 14 stations along the way where tradition says Christ stopped to rest on his way to Mount Calvary. They sang and prayed in English, French, Arabic and Greek as they moved toward the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, focus of the Good Friday and Easter Sunday services.

As it happens every four years, the western and eastern Christian churches observed Good Friday on the same day. The Eastern churches, including Greek and Armenian Orthodox and Egyptian, Coptic, follow a different calendar and usually celebrate Holy Week services on different dates.

Crowds lining the Via Dolorosa to see the processions were about half the size of those last year. There was a similar drop in attendance at December's Christmas services in nearby Bethlehem and city officials attributed it at the time to tension following the October-Middle East war.

Committee Admits Panel Powerless On Subpoena

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee admits it is legally powerless to compel President Nixon to deliver the 41 Watergate tapes it has subpoenaed from him.

The panel's artillery in this new conflict is limited to the moral authority of the House, the weight of public opinion and the message from Republicans manifested in the bipartisan 33-3 vote by which the historic subpoena was approved Thursday.

The subpoena demands that Nixon deliver 41 tapes by 9 a.m. CDT April 25 for use as potential evidence in impeaching him and putting him on trial in the Senate.

His refusal to comply could itself become an impeachable offense, and the House is likely to treat it as one.

A last-minute effort Thursday by James D. St. Clair, Nixon's Watergate lawyer, to avert a subpoena by promising to surrender some but not all of the requested tapes failed.

St. Clair's offer would have given the committee tapes of conversations between Nixon and his aides recorded in February, March and April, 1973 — the period before and after Nixon said he learned of the White House's deep involvement in Watergate. But it would have excluded conversations over five days in mid-April, 1973, involving Nixon and John D. Ehrlichman, Richard G. Kleindienst and Henry E. Petersen.

Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, a leader among committee Republicans, failed to get St. Clair to put the offer in writing, and then dismissed it as "too equivocal and too conditional." That doomed it.

Staff Sees Problems

But Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., was able to achieve the near unanimity he sought by accepting without a fight a modification sought by Republicans. It made the subpoena far more specific than the first draft had been. Republicans called that draft a "blanket" subpoena.

Normally Congress enforces its subpoenas two ways. One holds the defiant party in contempt of Congress making him subject to jail for the remainder of the term of the Congress that imprisoned him.

The other asks the Justice Department to initiate court proceedings against the defiant person, making him subject to a fine of up to $1,000 and 12 months imprisonment upon conviction.

"Each of these methods presents problems," the committee staff conceded in a legal memo. "If the President refuses to comply, the practical difficulties of enforcing the subpoena may well be insurmountable," it said, adding that "noncompliance may itself be a ground for impeachment."

Legislation to pay campaign expenses of presidential and congressional candidates with taxpayers' money has cleared the Senate. But major roadblocks to enactment are ahead.

The Senate Thursday approved a sweeping package of political reforms which not only includes federal subsidies for political campaigns but limits on candidate spending and an end to "fat cat" contributors.

But the bill faces a hazardous future in the House where there is strong hostility to federal financing of congressional races and opposition to other provisions in the comprehensive package.

Even more threatening to enactment of the bill is President Nixon's adamant opposition to the concept of public financing. His stand almost makes it certain that the bill will be vetoed.

After breaking an 11-day filibuster, the Senate voted 532 to approve the bill. All efforts to kill the federal financing sections of the bill were turned back.

WITH SOVIET UNION Kissinger Foresees No Early SALT Agreement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today ruled out any chance of final agreement with the Soviet Union this year on limiting nuclear strategic arms of the two superpowers.

Kissinger was questioned by reporters as he escorted Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy to his limousine following a breakfast meeting.

Asked about the outlook for a permanent agreement in Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT), Kissinger replied:

"We will not have a permanent agreement this year. Whether there can be an agreement on part of it really is not clear yet."

"We are in the process of discussing it and we have to formulate some proposals now in response to the Soviet proposals and then we will know."

Kissinger had hoped to gain a SALT breakthrough with the Soviets in a recent trip to Moscow. He had gone there to lay plans for President Nixon's expected summit trip to the Soviet capital, at which the President had hoped to conclude another phase of arms accords.

The Kissinger trip was unsuccessful from the standpoint of a breakthrough although White House officials had expressed optimism as recently as last weekend about chances of progress.

The White House optimism followed a meeting between Nixon and Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny while Nixon was in Paris for a memorial service for the late French President Georges Pompidou.

Kissinger had a heavy round of diplomatic activity today, starting with talks with Fahmy in the Mideast situation. Then he switched back to Soviet-American relations by going to the White House to attend a meeting by Nixon with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. Followed by a separate meeting with the secretary with his Russian counterpart.

The main question for all parties is whether the new Israeli government will follow Mrs. Meir's policy of disengagement on the Egyptian and Syrian fronts and subsequent peace negotiations with the Arab countries involved in last October's war.

AFTER RESIGNATION Successor Sought To Replace Golda

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel's two major political groups, the socialist Labor alignment and rightist Likud bloc, began soundings today to pick a successor to outgoing Prime Minister Golda Meir.

The 75-year old premier handed in her formal resignation to President Ephraim Katzir Thursday and told the Knesset (parliament) she favored early national elections instead of trying to maintain a shaky caretaker government.

Acknowledging a gathering wave of national discontent, Mrs. Meir told the legislature, "I came to the conclusion that perhaps the public should be given the opportunity to reassess its political wishes."

Under Israeli law, the resignation automatically brought down her entire, five-week-old Labor government.

Katzir said he would begin immediate consultations with leaders of all parliamentary factions before picking a new prime minister to form a transitional government. He said Mrs. Meir would stay on until replaced.

Political sources said representatives of the opposition Likud bloc would meet Sunday with Katzir. Likud chief Menahem Begin was expected to ask for a chance to form a workable coalition.

Labor party leaders said, however, Katzir would probably pick an interim prime minister from within Mrs. Meir's party, which has ruled Israel since independence in 1948.

Mrs. Meir's badly split Labor alignment lost eight seats Dec. 31 in the last national election, but still enjoys a 51-seat plurality in the 120-member Knesset. Likud, which won seven new seats in the vote, is the second largest bloc in the legislature with 39 members.

Labor party sources said the favorites to succeed Mrs. Meir as prime minister were Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, Justice Minister Haim Zadok and Labor Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

PROBABLY NEXT WEEK Nixon To Name Simon As Treasury Secretary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is expected to nominate shortly his energy chief, William E. Simon, as new Treasury Secretary. A White House spokesman said today an announcement probably will be made next week.

Simon has been widely reported to be the choice to succeed George Shultz in the job and an administration source said he would be replaced as federal energy administrator by his deputy, John Sawhill.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, said in response to questions today that there was "no problem" with respect to the appointment and "I now expect it sometime next week."

Warren did not mention Simon's name.

The White House announced March 14 that Shultz would resign, sometime early in May.

Simon, who kept his title as deputy secretary of treasury while he ran the administration's energy program, was Shultz's personal choice as his successor, sources said.

A former Wall Street investment banker, Simon, 46, set up the fuel allocation program to combat the energy shortage and organized a rationing system for use if the shortage worsened.

Using a highly personalized style, Simon created a national image for himself as the nation's "energy czar."

Like Shultz, Simon takes a classical view of price as an allocator of economic resources.

But the House committee draws its authority to question a president's conduct directly from the Constitution and considers itself in a stronger position than were the investigation senators last summer.

Nixon fired Archibald Cox as special prosecutor rather than comply with a subpoena from him, but subsequently complied as least partially with a subpoena from Leon Jaworski, the current special prosecutor.

Jaycees Plan Egg Hunt For Pampa Youths

The Pampa Jaycees will hold an Easter egg hunt this Sunday at Central Park. The hunt will begin at 2 p.m. with two age groups.

The children will be divided into groups of five years and under, and six to ten. All candy found will be the property of each child who finds it.

Charles Milam, project chairman, suggests that each child bring a paper bag in which to put his or her candy. The Jaycees and Jaycee Eltes will be on hand in their green and gold vests to assist in the hunt.

The children who wish to participate in the hunt should meet with the Jaycees at the picnic shelter before 2 p.m.

Motorists Ignoring New Speed Limit

AUSTIN (UPI) — Figures indicate Texas motorists are ignoring the new 55 mile an hour speed limit.

Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, released figures Thursday which showed the number of persons issued traffic tickets during the month of March increased 103 per cent from the March, 1973, figures.

"An increasing number of Texas drivers are violating the 55 mile per hour maximum speed limit," Speir said.

Last month, DPS patrolmen issued 58,760 speeding citations. In March, 1973, they handed out 28,111 tickets for speeding.

AFTER LONG SIEGE Reds Overrun Saigon Outpost

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops overran a strategic government outpost north of Saigon early today, climaxing a 14-month siege with a massive mortar barrage and infantry attack.

The Saigon military command said there was no word yet on the fate of the 300 government troops and an undetermined number of dependents at the Tong Le Chan ranger camp, 60 miles from Saigon near the Cambodian border.

The command said North Vietnamese forces seized the base shortly after midnight following a 4 1/2-hour, 900-round mortar attack, the most intense shelling in South Vietnam since the Jan. 28, 1973 cease-fire agreement.

The base, which had been under siege since Feb. 26, 1973, was the fifth government position overrun or abandoned in the past 10 days. The defenders had reported 14 wounded before their radio went dead.

The Saigon government responded to the loss by announcing a series of restrictions on the movement of Viet Cong troops and officials in South Vietnam.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the command spokesman, said Saigon would bar Viet Cong delegates from holding weekly news briefings at Tan Son Nhut air base because of the attack against Tong Le Chan.

Hien said the government would also suspend weekly liaison flights between Saigon and the Viet Cong's de facto capital at Loc Ninh near the Cambodian border.

TROUBLE EXPECTED Surfers Arrested At Camping Area

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Tex. (UPI) — Seventeen persons who came to this Gulf Coast resort area to spend their Easter vacation at a surfing festival were arrested Thursday and a festival sponsor is predicting more trouble throughout the weekend.

Two persons were arrested on felony drug charges and the rest in an area barred to campers. These 15 were fined, but only one of them paid the fine and the others were forced to serve time in the county jail at Brownsville.

"There's going to be trouble all weekend, I'm afraid," said Tito Amaya, employed by the Port Isabel surf shop that is sponsoring this year's surfing contest.

Another new candidate, Jean Royer, joined the race for the presidency Thursday as the third Gaullist candidate.

His entry was expected to further weaken the divided conservative opposition to Mitterrand.

Royer, champion of the Lone Star Square Dancers will meet for lessons at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the Optimist Building, followed by the regular dance at 8 p.m. Sammy Parsley will be calling and visitors are welcome.

Government spokesmen said about 4,000 North Vietnamese infantry, commando, artillery and tank troops had taken part in the long siege of the camp.

It was not known, however, how many participated in the final assault that crumbled the base's defenses.

A government spokesman said the key camp "has been a thorn that the Communists tried to pick off in the past year."

"The 300 brave defenders of the base have courageously stopped the Communist infiltration into South Vietnam from Cambodia," he said.

In other fighting, military sources reported 125 Communists killed Thursday night during an attack against a government armored unit 15 miles southwest of Pleiku, the major city in the Central Highlands.

The sources said four government soldiers were killed, eight wounded and eight missing in the fighting 220 miles north of Saigon.

In Cambodia, government warplanes stepped up air strikes against insurgent forces north of Phnom Penh, sinking two large boats carrying reinforcements to Oudong, a former royal capital seized by rebels March 28.

Field reports said government fighter-bombers hit the boats on the Tonle Sap River near Kompong Luong, the beachhead for the government's drive to recapture Oudong, 18 miles north of Phnom Penh.

Candidates Split Support In French Election Race

PARIS (UPI) — Leftist presidential candidate Francois Mitterrand said today France must adopt a wider world role and end its boycott of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in Vienna and the Geneva disarmament conference.

Mitterrand is the sole representative of the Communist-Socialist bloc for the May 5 elections to choose a successor to President Georges Pompidou, who died April 2.

Criticizing the Gaullist government boycott of the disarmament conferences, Mitterrand said he wanted France's world role to be "more universal."

"France is absent, morally or physically, from some places where it ought to be—morally from Helsinki where it should debate collective security and stability of the European conference, and Brussels, where serious propositions for the building of Europe are still awaited."

"Physically, France is absent from Vienna, where the reduction of world forces is discussed, and from Geneva, where disarmament talks are held from which we have been absent these past years."

Mitterrand also said France had a responsibility of the first order to third and fourth world nations now starting a new period in their history.

Another new candidate, Jean Royer, joined the race for the presidency Thursday as the third Gaullist candidate.

His entry was expected to further weaken the divided conservative opposition to Mitterrand.

LEBANON FEARS ATTACK

Israelis Bury Their Dead After Massacre In Town

International
The townspeople of the northern Israeli town of Qiryat Shemona buried their dead today in anger and in sorrow and with vows of revenge against Lebanon for harboring the three Arab guerrillas who massacred 18 persons Thursday.

In Beirut, Lebanese Premier Takiyeddin Solh met with envoys of the five major world powers to try to prevent any attempt by the Israeli army to strike into Lebanon against Palestinian guerrilla bases.

An Israeli punitive attack appeared probable. Caretaker Prime Minister Golda Meir said in a solemn statement Thursday: "The Lebanese government must know that we regard it and its citizens who are aiding the terrorists responsible for the massacre."

Despite the angry Israeli reaction to the attack a spokesman for the maverick guerrilla organized promised today in Beirut there would be more such attacks in the future to keep alive the struggle for the liberation of Palestine.

There were these other major Middle East developments today: —Israeli and Syrian artillery and tanks exchanged fire on the Golan Heights for the 32nd consecutive day after Syrian troops tried to advance up Israeli-held Mount Hermon. An Israeli spokesman said two soldiers were wounded.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was focusing on the Mideast with a morning meeting in Washington with Egyptian Foreign Minister Fahmy and an afternoon session with a Syrian delegation in Washington to discuss troop disengagement with Israel. He also was meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

In Moscow, Soviet leaders wound up their talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad and both sides condemned "Israel's ruling circles and the external forces backing it." The Assad trip had been expected to last for three days and there was no explanation of its early windup.

A crowd of perhaps 20,000 persons, some wailing in sorrow and some shouting in anger, attended the funeral services for 16 of the victims in the upper Galilee town of Qiryat Shemona and heard Police Minister Shlomo Hillel, representing the government, promise revenge.

An Israeli soldier and a border patrolman also killed in the attack in which the three-man guerrilla suicide squad was blown up by its own explosives, were buried in their hometowns of Ramat Hasharon and Tarshiha.

"Our hand will reach them wherever they are," Hillel said. "We won't lay down our swords until everyone is brought to justice."

As the plain pine coffins were lowered into the ground, one relative of the town's victims tried to break through police lines to reach the gravesites. To reach the scuffle his left eye was bloodied.

Before the funerals began, about 150 of the town's residents marched through the streets toward the cemetery carrying signs decrying the attack.

One of the signs said: "Dayan, why don't you live here?" an apparent reference to Defense Minister Moshe Dayan's role of overall responsibility for defense of the town.

Police set up roadblocks surrounding the town in an effort to avert further terrorism. The national radio said the barricades were also intended to keep out Israeli Arabs who might meet a hostile reception.

A three-man guerrilla squad, which Israel said came from Lebanon, ran through two apartment buildings in the northern

Blind Man Claims He Smells Robber

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Curtis Florey, 35, black and blind from birth, was befriended by a stranger who later beat and robbed him of all his money — $2 in change — his Braille watch, coat and keys.

Lorenzo Long Jr., 23, also black, but not blind, is on trial charged with the crime.

Florey testified that he could identify his assailant by his voice, by the texture of his skin and by "a distinctive odor."

He said the stranger first approached him early in January in a restaurant. The stranger said nothing that time, but Florey detected the person's odor.

He next "saw" this person on Jan. 13. Florey said that on the 15th, the person met him while he was crossing a street. The stranger accompanied him across the street, promising to protect him from dogs in the neighborhood.

Florey said that as they walked towards his home, his new companion boasted about his strength, and had Florey feel his biceps.

As they approached his house, the man began asking for money. He let Florey feel his jacket to see there was no money in it and how ragged it was.

When Florey refused to part with his few coins, he testified, the man punched him in the head and stomach, snatched his keys, Braille watch and money.

Florey said he grappled with his assailant, running his hands over the attacker's body, "because I wanted to know every detail about him."

He testified that he could tell from touch that the attacker was a black man because of the skin texture. He knew he was young because he had thin muscles. He said he could recognize the assailant's distinctive odor.

In court he identified Long's jacket by the smell. Judge Alan A. Lindsay asked the defendant to speak, and when he did Florey said, "That's his voice."

When asked how he could delineate a man's distinctive odor, Florey replied: "It's like you describing colors to me."

The trial of Lorenzo Long Jr. continues today.

NOT EXACTLY A CONFORMIST

Nancy Leaves Farm For Dogs

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Nancy Kulp, the acerbic philanthropist on "The Brian Keith Show," became a Pennsylvania farmer for a year then returned to California to breed greyhound dogs.

Nancy, a divorcee of many years, is not exactly a conformist — not even as far as actresses go.

She co-starred on "The Beverly Hillbillies" for nine years as the frustrated old maid, secretary to the banker. And when the series succumbed Nancy decided to return to her native Harrisburg, Pa., to become a country gentlewoman. She bought a 200-acre farm near Harrisburg and discovered that even with a bumper crop she could earn only $4,000 a year from the soil. She had been making nearly that much a week as a television regular.

Nancy turned to politics, hoping to run for Congress in Pennsylvania only to learn she would have to raise $150,000 for her campaign. No dice.

Forgot Penn. Winters

On top of all that Nancy had forgotten the rigors of a Pennsylvania winter and came down with three separate cases of pneumonia — all in a 12-month period.

Nancy sang a few bars of "California Here I Come," sold the farm and dusted off her makeup kit.

From the chill of Pennsylvania Nancy moved to the sun-washed island of Oahu and her role in "The Brian Keith Show" which is filmed entirely on location in Hawaii.

En route, Nancy bought a 30-year-old California colonial home in Santa Barbara, 80 miles up the coast from Hollywood. There she breeds greyhounds and Doberman pinschers.

ble chaise reading books. But Santa Barbara is only a part-time residence.

When she's at work in the NBC-TV series Nancy calls a rented condominium near Diamond Head, on Oahu, home.

A Hotel Next Time

Five months a year she lives there, close to the complex of condominiums which house James MacArthur who co-stars with Jack Lord in the "Hawaii Five-O" series.

Because she has been robbed several times while in the islands, Nancy plans to rent quarters in a hotel next season.

Representative Criticizes Staff For Speeches

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, Thursday sharply criticized the staff of the Constitutional Convention for sending each delegate two "sample speeches" which Mengden said strongly praise the new charter.

"I do not believe that taxpayers' funds should be used to try to sell a new constitution to the people when the deliberations have not even been completed yet," Mengden said.

He said the speeches do not give the negative side of the story regarding many of the controversial provisions.

The speeches, Mengden said, praise creation of a new higher education assistance fund for state universities.

"What this propaganda doesn't say is that locking in such dedicated funds will cause the state to have to spend millions upon millions of dollars more than we are spending now," Mengden said.

He said the speech also praises, wording guaranteeing "equal educational opportunity" for each child, "without mentioning the Pandora's Box of problems that even defining the term will cause, much less implementing it."

"This canned recess speech is concluded in the last paragraph by claiming the new constitution will be, above all, a people's document — written for Texans of today, yet adaptable to future needs."

VOICE OF BUSINESS

Public Employe Unions Not Above Law, Either

By ARCH BOOTH
Executive Vice President U.S. Chamber of Commerce WASHINGTON — Now that we have firmly established that even the President of the United States is not above the law, I wish we could go one step farther and make the same point about public employe unions.

It can be done, but it takes public officials with guts enough to resist the calculated extortion of the taxpayers by these powerful special interests. When public officials won't act, an outraged citizenry can do the job, with a little leadership. A strike against the people of San Francisco, not long ago, is a good case in point.

About 15,000 employes of the City and County of San Francisco struck on Thursday, March 7, closing down municipal transportation facilities, city offices and the city's three sewage treatment plants.

When the Board of Supervisors proved reluctant to deal with the problem, the Greater San Francisco Chamber of Commerce stepped in — at its own expense — on behalf of the citizenry. Briefly, here's what happened, in the words of the executive vice president of the San Francisco Chamber, William E. Dauer:

"The chamber immediately went to court... The presiding judge of the Superior Court in San Francisco heard the case personally early Tuesday morning and ruled in our favor, agreeing... that public employes have no right to strike. The judge put teeth into his declaration that the strike was illegal by ordering the Police Department to begin immediate enforcement..."

Court Orders Ignored

"Mayor Alioto responded by — in effect — directing the chief of police to ignore the order, saying, 'Our Police Department is not going to be turned into a squad of strike-breakers.'"

"The judge, incensed, issued specific orders for the police to disperse picket lines at sewage treatment plants, the Municipal Railway facilities, and the city hospitals."

"The police responded in a clumsy manner during the remaining three days of the strike, with no pickets actually being arrested. (A sergeant explained that they were under department orders to arrest no pickets unless they began causing 'trouble'.) The unions agreed, under the crush of massive public indignation and pressure, to cease picketing the sewage treatment plants, which allowed their reopening.

"One of the most interesting — and disturbing — aspects of the shutdown of the sewage treatment plants was that the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth and all the other self-appointed protectors of the public interest, were totally mute."

"I would have thought that a total of more than one-half billion gallons of untreated sewage being pumped into the Bay would have elicited some response from them."

Let 'Em Walk

"The union shutdown of the Muni transit facilities — and the subsequent 'secondary boycotts' that closed the San Francisco portion of the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) system and an East Bay commuter bus line (AC Transit) — were unconscionable acts of extortion against the public. Literally thousands of commuters were unable to get to work, inasmuch as the public transit shutdown came at a time when gasoline for private automobiles was scarce, to say the least..."

"The news media were kept abreast of every new legal move. Throughout the effort, we maintained a totally factual, unemotional stance, dealing only with issues without criticizing individuals. Our only concern was seeing to it that the laws of the State and the provisions of the city charter were carried out."

"The media were most supportive of our position, and just as importantly, members of the working press knew that they could come to us for factual clarification of issues as they arose."

"The result was overwhelming public support..."

"The strike of the miscellaneous employes was settled after nine days."

11 Rooms

The house has 11 rooms and is more than large enough to accommodate an old friend and her son who live with Nancy.

Comfortable English country furniture, some antiques, give a lived-in look to Nancy's home. And there is a sprinkling of country pine and a few French antiques to keep the decor interesting. Mostly, there is a feeling of simplicity and comfort, especially with the dogs running around.

Nancy likes the outdoors more than she does being surrounded by walls. She eats most of her evening meals in the patio and enjoys spending lazy afternoons in a comforta-

This past season Nancy managed to return to the mainland only once during the course of production. She has friends stay at her Santa Barbara headquarters while she's away to look after the dogs and to care for the garden and lawns.

Nancy admits she gets somewhat "island happy," a feeling of confinement during her long stretch in Hawaii. But she overcomes this to a degree by driving her rented car from one end of Oahu to the other.

So far she hasn't explored the other islands in the group, but she has vowed to visit Maui, Hawaii and Molokai when she returns this year.

Briscoe Orders Gasoline Operation For Migrants

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has ordered a plan put into operation that should guarantee migrant farm workers can buy the gasoline they need to get them from fields in Texas to harvest in other states.

The governor said such a plan is necessary to avoid crops rotting in the fields, overcrowded Texas schools and a drastic drop in the Gross National Product.

Under the program, gas stations along seven major routes from Texas into other states will receive additional gasoline allocations to provide fuel for migrant farm workers.

Briscoe said the 51 stations involved in the program will record every gallon of gas sold to migrant farm workers and will receive additional gas to compensate for these sales.

The governor said such a program is necessary to protect agricultural production throughout the nation and avoid the loss of more than $500 million in the Gross National Product that would result if migrant workers could not travel because of fuel shortages.

Officials said last week unless fuel supplies for migrants are made available, crops might have to be left rotting in the fields in other states and Texas schools would become overcrowded with children of migrant workers who were unable to go to their jobs in other states.

Briscoe also announced the formation of a Migrant Affairs Office to monitor federal and state programs for migrants, and to coordinate delivery of services in health, education and social services.

Briscoe said the 300,000 migrant farm workers in Texas bring $100 million in income back into the state each year after traveling to other states to harvest crops.

The Modern Day 'WPA'

The WPA (Works Progress Administration), with its digging and filling of holes in the ground, "leaf-raking" and other forms of made-work, became a standing joke back in the thirties. Loafing on WPA projects became a highly developed art. Will Rogers, the leading humorist of the time, poked fun at the federal boondoggle unmercifully. With the coming of World War II, the WPA, in name, faded from the national scene. But, in spirit and in essence, it is still with us today...

ALL THAT GLITTERS Close-Hauling With Mr. Baker

By VIC GOLD What are we to make of Sen. Howard Baker's effort to tie the Central Intelligence Agency to Watergate? Frankly, I don't know, and the gentleman from Tennessee hasn't done much to enlighten me in recent days. To be sure, I've been a fascinated student of political double-talk going on 30 years now, since first hearing "Cousain Dudley" LeBlanc, the Hadacol man, explain his senior citizens' welfare program to the bilingual voters of south Louisiana. And during these three decades, I've been privileged to hear the best in the business. Let's see now: there was Baker's late father-in-law, Ev Dirksen, discoursing on the subject of marigolds as the national flower; and then there was Robert McNamara explaining why we weren't out of Vietnam at the end of 1966, as he had predicted; and, of course, Mayor John Lindsay on the subject of snow and garbage removal in Fun City. Then, too, there've been the institutional jargons, from the arcane trade talk of the Pentagon ("maximize our options") to the crisp murkiness of the Nixon White House staff ("bring it up to speed"). But Howard Baker seems to break new ground in obscure political talk every time he appears on one of those Sunday question-and-answer shows. For several months now, the Tennessean has been on a fishing expedition relative to possible CIA involvement in the Watergate break-in. As vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, he pushed for release of a special report on the subject. But for the life of me, I haven't been able to figure out where he's fishing or what he's fishing for, and neither has anybody I've talked to. Which dilemma, if I understand Baker correctly, is exactly as things should be. You see, the way he explains it, most of what he's fishing for is classified material that can't be made public. Although, Baker further elucidates, the material ought to be declassified since, in his opinion, it concerns a "matter of great national importance" about which the public has a right to know. Sounds clear enough. Except that whenever Baker himself discusses the subject, he has a personal style of classifying his own meaning beyond public understanding. For example, will some expert on political animal husbandry please explain what Baker was talking about on that program a few Sundays ago when he urged the White House to release the full CIA-Watergate story? "There are animals crashing around in the forest," Baker told the TV panel. "I can hear them, but I can't see them." That statement, while tantalizing, was somehow unclear to one reporter. He later pressed the Senator on a specific aspect of his CIA investigation, only to be rewarded with another patented Bakerism: "You're way off base," the Senator told him. "That's a different sheet of music." Still unsatisfied with this veiled allusion covering a hidden meaning, the newsman persisted. He asked Baker to spell-out, sing or otherwise tell the public what he was up to—a request that elicited the following: "I am not," bristled the Senator, "trying to develop a theory. I am not trying to bail out the President. I am not trying to lynch the CIA. I am not trying to lynch the President. I am not trying to bail out the CIA." Twenty questions, and we're now down five, with only 15 to go on what Howard Baker's not trying to do about a "matter of great importance" he feels the public should know about. Or am I being unfair? Is it that by trying to pin Baker down to specifics about an alleged CIA-Watergate connection, newsmen are indulging in another of the Tennessean's favorite words—"legalisms"? "You know," he told another TV panel recently, "we can close-haul the legal questions (about Watergate) very satisfactorily. We in the Congress and we lawyers tend to do that on occasion. But the country doesn't want legalisms." Well now, that much we can understand and agree with. But one more thing. Senator. The country is up to here with obscurandism as well. I for one eagerly look forward to that report you claim will identify the crashing animals, play the right sheet of music and at least loose-haul any outstanding questions about a possible CIA role in Watergate. But in the meantime, could we ask only that you (1) sing a simpler tune; (2) untangle your verbal mooring ropes; and (3) otherwise keep your virtuosity at political double-talk from crashing around in the media forest? We can hear them, you see—but we can't always understand them. (Copyright 1974)

INSIDE LABOR Jewish Community Angered

By VICTOR RIESEL WASHINGTON — Certainly Atty. Gen. William Saxbe isn't guilty of anti-Semitism regardless of what he has just said about "the Jewish intellectual" being "enamored of the Communist party" in the past. As the nation's top government attorney and law enforcement executive, he's guilty of another provocative crime—he just didn't do his homework. This, neither President Nixon nor the country itself can afford. Bill Saxbe used the stereotype totalitarian description of Jewish intellectuals on Wednesday. The anguish in leading Jewish communities was deep. The wires hummed. The Deputy Attorney General Larry Silberman, Jewish, the 34th American to hold this post, hit the phones. Brilliantly he made his points. The compounding and confounding it all, Saxbe shifted mental gears. By way of apology he said what he meant was Jewish intellectuals now are anti-Communist because the Soviet Union has shifted its position. Further, said he in effect, the battle against the Communists in the late '40s and early '50s were witch hunts and anti-Semitic at that. Does this mean that those who fought the Communists because they were the allies of Nazi Germany and the hangmen of all decency were witch hunters and anti-Semites? Well, for Bill Saxbe's information, it was the Jewish community which first swung into the fight against American Bolshevism—and I mean that in the full intellectual sense. It was the Jewish Daily Forward, edited by the late, great bilingual, muckraking journalist Abraham Cahan, which fought first and hardest and still is in the battle. Let anyone go into closed archives and they will find that it was the Dave Dubinsky and Lou Stulbergs of the International Ladies' Garment Workers union which fought the Stalinists before the big war and actually saved Europe from Communism—after the conflict. It was the garment workers union which swung the ponderous AFL into the battle in the late '30s. And after World War II it was the needle workers who created the political weaponry for the fight inside Europe, in West Berlin, in West Germany, in a decrepit France and in splintered Italy, and so beat back the Communist underworld goons and waterfront squads. And it is the team of AFL-CIO president George Meany and Jay Lovestone, his devoted and dedicated director of the International Affairs Dept. of the AFL-CIO, who have done more damage to world communism in general and the Soviet Union in particular than any other global force. Jay Lovestone probably is the nation's most experienced and sophisticated anti-Communist, though it must be understood that Meany makes policy. And Jay Lovestone is Jewish. He's worth 50 of U.S.S.R. Defense Minister Grechko's Red Army divisions. Jay is an uncompromising intellectual, a pragmatist who doesn't agitate himself over pseudo-detentes. He knows what happened to the detente with V.I. Lenin of the early '20s, called by the burgeoning Soviets the "NEP"—New Economic Policy. War came from that. Death came from that. The Stalinist support of Adolf Hitler came from that. Gas chambers came from that. And from that came what some called "Cold War" but what actually is the steady, the contiguous development of Secretary Brezhnev's stalag slave-labor encroachment on much of the world. And from that may yet come the earth's first thermonuclear war—a Soviet invasion of mainland China. As for Jewish intellectuals—they were the earliest to fight and are among the few who still battle world Communist and the American Communist international. These intellectuals were—and are—the sophisticates of this ideological war. Some spring swiftly to mind: the delightful Morrie Ryskind, Pulitzer Prize winner for "Of Thee I Sing"; author Isaac Don Levine. The late George Sokolsky, a columnist, who advised the late J. Edgar Hoover and many of his colleagues. And younger men—fabulous Irving Kristol, Danny Bell (then of Fortune magazine), Leo Cherne of the Research Institute, dramatist Sidney Kingsley, Mel Lasky who edited two amazingly effective anti-Communist intellectual magazines, one in Germany and the other in London, after the war. I could list a hundred. They were and are the fighters. And what of Alger Hiss, charged with betraying our nation as a spy? He was not Jewish. The man who exposed him was—the late Ben Mandel, of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Today's political history would be quite different if not for Ben. Further, Communist party leaders were not Jewish. Nor are they. Bill Saxbe is confused or uninformed. Those he has just hurt need no more wounds. They have suffered enough at the hands of the Soviet propaganda and "disinformation" apparatus. Jewish Labor Committee president Jack Sheinkman, suggests that Saxbe resign. For the moment that's a bit drastic. Perhaps a correspondence course in elementary tolerance, political history and rap sessions with the old delicatessen crown could straighten out all this. And with a Cabinet member like Saxbe, Dick Nixon needs no enemies. (All Rights Reserved)

Will the 'Grass Roots' Support Nixon Again?

By PAUL HARVEY You know, people are funny. When President Nixon was getting pummeled by the tax man, the ringside hollered, "Sic'em!" When the President's right eye began to swell and his nose began to bleed, the ringside cried, "Clobber that tax cheater good!" And then when the President was backed into the ropes, with no more fight in him, congressmen climbed into the ring and started throwing punches at him: newsmen left the press box to join the free-for-all, ringside seats were almost empty as everybody climbed into the ring and piled on. And then the President went down for the count. And just lay there bleeding. And then a strange thing happened. The chairman of the congressional committee which did him in, Democrat Russell Long, said, "Maybe our staff was too rough on him." And the people who hours before had been hollering for blood were on the telephone to me offering to bandage his hurts with contributions of their own money to help pay his taxes. In the days since the April 3 announcement that President Nixon owes half a million dollars in back taxes, the chorus of his defenders has almost drowned out his accusers. Will the "grass roots" support Mr. Nixon again? Usually there is little empathy for a millionaire with tax problems, even when half his million is suddenly wiped out. But in most of us, according to what history indicates and psychologists say, there is a Lilliputian longing to fetter the giant. I don't know for certain whether our beleaguered President is the beneficiary of pity, sympathy or the guilt of those who so recently were casting lots for his garments. But on April 4 I began receiving telephone calls and letters from all directions—offers of money to help the President back to his financial feet—and I'm still receiving them. I have advised that this President probably will return any such money if there is a return address on it. Otherwise what it amounts to is a sort of secret ballot. (Copyright 1974)

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE Kind Word Is Spoken For Smokers' Freedom

By WILLIAM RUSHER New York City is seriously considering a municipal ordinance that would require restaurants, sports arenas and other public facilities to segregate smokers, as they have long been segregated in theaters and on trains and recently on planes as well. I gave up smoking twenty years ago, but I had been an enthusiastic smoker for a number of years before that; so I have been on both sides of this question. I can still remember the resentment I used to feel on trains—not because we smokers were restricted to particular coaches, but because they were usually the tattiest, most run-down coaches on the train. I didn't see, and still don't, why smokers should be subjected to that sort of penalty. Nowadays, on the other hand, I share the annoyance of other non-smokers when we find ourselves trapped in some enclosed and comparatively airless space with a bunch of smokers puffing blissfully away. They don't realize, they truly don't, just how offensive their habit can be to others under such circumstances. Maybe New York is right in thinking that further segregation is the answer. But as a libertarian of the moderate or non-hydrophobic sort, I would like to sound a warning: We non-smokers must be careful not to abuse our power. There is, I suspect, a growing movement to make smoking, if not wholly illegal, then at least as difficult and joyless as possible. I have commented before on the liberal tendency to compel people to do what Big Brother has decided is best for them, and that tendency may be observed in its fullest flower in this matter of smoking. Once medical science had found what it believed (rightly or wrongly) to be a causal connection between tobacco and lung cancer, the legions of social compulsion were promptly up and on the march. First it was thought that the mere warning of the Surgeon General, if required by law on every pack of cigarettes and in every ad, would constitute a sufficient deterrent. When this hope proved unfounded, cigarette advertising was barred from the airwaves altogether. But consumption of cigarettes stubbornly continues to increase, and more drastic measures are now being considered: barring cigarette ads from newspapers and magazines as well as radio and TV, reducing by law the tar and nicotine content (and thereby tampering with the taste) of cigarettes, etc. That is why I find myself wondering whether these latest proposals for the segregation of smokers in restaurants, etc., spring wholly from a solicitude for the unaddicted or in part from an impulse to harass smokers into quitting. After all, if a person knows (and who doesn't, these days?) what medical science thinks it has established about the dangers of smoking, yet chooses to smoke anyway, that decision deserves our respect, if not necessarily our approval, right up to the point (if any) at which its implementation materially affects the interests of others. I would agree that suicide (by pistol, say, or strychnine) is inherently wrong, and is properly prescribed by law—largely because it so often has clear-cut social consequences which society is properly concerned to prevent. But a decision to smoke isn't, by a long shot, a decision to commit suicide. It simply reflects a judgment that the pleasure derived from smoking is worth the (perhaps) somewhat larger risk of certain illness later on in life. That strikes me as a decision that each of us is entitled to make for himself, and I am very wary of these busybodies who may be trying to make it for us. I suspect that, if they dared, they would snatch the cigarette out of the mouth of every smoker—not merely for the sake of others, but because they're so smugly sure they know what's best for the smoker's themselves. # There's Talk About Towing Icebergs Again

PARIS (UPI) — They're talking about towing icebergs to the hot countries again.

And hanging windmills in the sky.

Not to mention filtering water through burnt rice husks.

What was once taken for scientific whimsy is now getting serious consideration by scientists pondering problems of dwindling energy and growing pollution.

The idea of hauling icebergs north from Antarctica was suggested 25 years ago by John Isaacs, an America oceanographer, and vastly ridiculed.

At least two scientists believe it's not a laughing matter any more.

Dr. Gerrit H. Toebes and

R. A. Ramachandra Rao said in a paper presented at a recent U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) meeting here:

"Given an economical solution to some major engineering problems, it will be possible to supply coastal sites in arid parts of Australia and western South America with iceberg water."

"Towing icebergs from the Antarctic may provide water at one cent per 2,640 gallons. The engineering problems are locating icebergs of appropriate size and shape, the construction of super tugboats and prevention of excessive melting."

"The potential for using icebergs is great. A super tug might supply irrigation water for 5,700 square miles of land."

The meeting on environmental engineering also heard theories from two Soviet professors, N.S. Lidorenko and G.F. Muchnik, about how to produce energy without polluting the environment.

In their paper, which Lidorenko presented, they pointed out the trouble with windmills is that the wind does not blow all the time on the earth's surface. But if they were hanging from balloons up where it never stops blowing...

"Wind-powered generators operating in the tropopause (just below the stratosphere) are likely to be developed in the future," the Russians said.

"These are devices placed at heights of from five to 7.5 miles where the jet streams are to be found, air currents of constant speed and direction moving three to seven times faster than those close to earth."

Conceding many problems of aerodynamics are yet to be solved the scientists asserted "the widespread introduction of wind-powered generators and their mass production in thousands... is planned for the end of the seventies."

As for the filtering of water, Prof. Ray Curnow of Britain's University of Sussex believes there are solutions at hand to cope with disease threatening slum shanty-towns in the developing countries.

Juvenile Justice Is Described in Forum Talks

The Twentieth Century Forum Study Club met recently at the home of Mrs. John Warner for a Guest Day. Mrs. Larry Cross presided over the business meeting, and Mrs. Homer D. Johnson read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. John Young moderated a panel featuring Mrs. Lois Still, Executive Director of Genesis House, and John Warner, County Attorney. Their topic concerned Juvenile Justice.

In her opening remarks, Mrs. Young stated that one million children will be arrested this year, suffer their way through our juvenile justice system, and a great proportion of them will never be heard from again. They will virtually disappear into the maw of overcrowded court calendars, too few juvenile court judges, overworked and disillusioned jail and detention home staff workers, and lack of adequate funds.

Many attorneys and jurists now believe their major task is to save youngsters from correctional institutions and place them, instead, in homes in the community, she told.

Massachusetts and California are two states where outstanding work is being done by placing youngsters in group homes, professionally staffed.

Two years ago, the president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Haugan, brought "Justice for Juveniles" to the attention of the clubs of the Texas Federation. Citizens should become aware of the problems — and do something, she urged.

The Juvenile Court, as it stands today, is not serving the true purpose it was established to perform. Youngsters are railroaded to detention facilities without the most fundamental protection of their rights. What this means is that for every youngster from a family able to provide legal counsel for him, 20 other children are not so lucky, she concluded.

John Warner's talk, entitled "Time is the Key," traced a case from arrest through the various procedures of Juvenile Court. "Most juvenile matters are handled without formal proceedings in the juvenile court," he stated.

"The juvenile officer and other law enforcement officers try to determine the real solution to the problems that caused the juvenile to be arrested. Normally, commitment to the Texas Youth Council is used as a last resort or when there is no other feasible alternative.

"It takes more time on behalf of those who work with juvenile matters to try to find the correct solution to a particular problem than it would to simply try the case and sentence the people involved to a correctional institution," he told.

Mrs. Lois Still, Executive Administrator of Genesis House, told the club about the start of Genesis House, how it was supported for one year by the Presbyterian Church, and how today it is 70 percent supported by the community of Pampa.

Genesis House can accommodate seven girls; these girls are usually abandoned or neglected. "It is not a home for unwed mothers," she stated.

Guests present were Mrs. Jerry Wilson, James Everett, David Gantz, Billy Moore, Jane Hill, Lynell Melancon, Margaret Williams, Bunny Nichols and Carl Brugger.

Dance Students Place Second In Tulsa Contest

Six students, under the direction of Madeline Graves of Pampa, won second place honors for their performance of a group free-style ballet at the annual Dance Masters of American regional "Groups

The girls, Sherry Whiteley, Dana Kent, Kris Richardson, Anne Kadingo, Polly Gowdy and Kim Chisum, danced to the music of "Song of Joy," performing an original, choreographed routine of Mrs. Graves.

The number will be presented as a special selection at the 1974 Madeline Graves School of Dance recital.

Sheryl Anne Whiteley, 17, won the "Miss Dance, 1974" competition of Chapter 27, Dance Master of America and Dana Kent won the title

"Junior Miss Dance 1974." Miss Whiteley will compete in August at Miami Beach, Fla., for the title of "Miss Dance of America, 1974."

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

The "hold-up" play consists of the refusal to win a trick in order to maintain control of the suit which the opponent has led until such time as the control can be relinquished with comparative safety. Usually the hold-up play is employed when declarer has just one stopper in the adversely led suit.

There is a specialized type of situation where the hold-up play is employed in notrump contracts despite the fact that you hold two sure stoppers in the suit led. The principle upon which it is based is this:

Whenever you have two key cards to drive out of the defenders' hands, and you have a double stopper in the suit they have led, "hold up" on the first lead of their suit. In so doing, you will break the communication between their hands, and prevent the leader from cashing his suit. This hold-up play is the theme of today's deal.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

If declarer plays the hand incorrectly, he wins the opening lead with his ace of hearts and then leads the diamond queen. East takes the trick with his ace and returns the nine of hearts. West overtaking with the ten. If dummy declines to win the trick, West continues with a heart, driving out dummy's King and simultaneously establishing two winning hearts. When declarer then continues his attack on the diamond suit, West takes his ace and cashes two more hearts.

Declarer has two stoppers in hearts and he has two key cards to drive out, the ace and king of diamonds. So when East puts up the heart jack on the opening lead, declarer allows the jack to win. East continues with his remaining heart, and South takes his ace.

The queen of diamonds is led next. If East wins the lead with his ace, he has no heart to return. It now becomes a simple matter for declarer, when he regains the lead, to drive out West's diamond king, and establish dummy's diamond suit.

If West wins the queen of diamonds with his king (on South's initial diamond lead), he leads a heart, driving out dummy's king. A second diamond lead is now taken by East's ace — establishing dummy's diamonds — and, once again, East has no heart to return.

EYE BURNS

Chemical eye burns from caustics, acids or poisons should be washed immediately with plain water at room temperature — preferably under a faucet. Continue washing for at least 15 minutes before going to a doctor and don't use eye drops of any kind. This procedure may mean the difference between vision and blindness, emphasizes Dr. Barbara Sears, health education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 13
Your birthday today: Favorable adjustment characterizes all of your actions this coming year. Personal economy becomes natural, leaves better resources for important ventures still in their earlier stages of development. Social movement is fluent, subject to either whim or plan: it's up to you. Today's natives often suffer wanderlust, tend to pursue independent courses whatever the price, wherever they lead.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Business is minimal but easily negotiated within special limits. Be alert and busy to improve your public image. Reconcile differences.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Today you can balance out any conflicts, settle things peacefully without taking sides. Serious ideas encounter a meeting of the minds.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Full consultations yield rewards beyond expectations where you have reasonable prospects to begin with. Trim family and personal budgets.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Make amends wherever appropriate; exert yourself to get your show on the road. It's a lengthy day offering a variety of activity. Handle personal affairs.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Attend any health care problems promptly. The course of least resistance once you're through your normal Saturday chores is likely the best.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Leaving all material considerations aside, turn your attention to the quality of your relationships, what you share. Quiet, somewhat formal gatherings are good to arrange, offer subtle benefits.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Be consistent, go on through to finish what you started some time ago. Neglected matters become more urgent — get them over with.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Family reunions are the favored sort of social action today. Take the time to tidy up correspondence and left-over details of weekend routines.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Postpone financial moves. Concentrate on the exchanges going on near you; be a part of your local or family group in spirit as well as technically.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Continue with old plans and their further elaboration rather than plunge ahead into new ventures. Cater to the hopes of those you love.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]:

For once, let all activity flow at minimum. There are many angles to think about, much to learn by watching and listening while remaining quiet.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Make this a personal holiday, keeping routines simple while leaving nothing to chance. It's just as well you grant others the freedom to pursue their own paths.

BEHAVIOR
Parents help young children learn appropriate behavior through personal example and positive directions, says Ilene Carrington, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Sex is no way to keep a boyfriend

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 21, considered attractive with a good personality. My problem is rather embarrassing, but I think there is something wrong with me. When I meet a guy I like, right away I get sexually involved with him. In fact, going to bed with him is the only thing on my mind. Naturally, no guy is going to turn anything down, but my sexual involvement never seems to accomplish what I hope it will. The longest a guy has ever gone with me is two months. They all give me a big rush at first and then they quit calling. Is it possible they get tired of sex? I know I'm too forward, but I just can't help it. I don't think I'm a nymphomaniac because I don't get all that much out of sex. Could I be oversexed? How can I keep from falling head over heels in love with guys I barely know? I can't seem to help myself. I'm always getting hurt. Do I have a problem? And how do I solve it! PUSHOVER

DEAR PUSHOVER: You have a problem, and you can solve it by getting to know yourself and understanding why you behave as you do. You're insecure and searching for a lasting relationship, and you believe that the way to keep a guy coming back is by giving him sex. Wrong! [Obviously.] A good therapist is the answer. Ask your family doctor to recommend one. Or call your Family Service Association.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I stopped at a gasoline station. She told the attendant she wanted $2 worth of gas and she held up two fingers.

The attendant left, and for some reason another man came out and put the gas in my mother's tank. He said: "That will be $3."

My mother said she asked for only $2 worth so the second man said: "Look, lady, what's another dollar? Besides with this gas shortage, you're lucky."

My mother said all she had was $2, but she lived only a few blocks away [which was true] so she would go home and get another dollar.

My mother didn't have any more money at home so she never went back because what could she have given him? What should she have done? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: She should have told the man she would bring him the dollar as soon as she had it. And then she should have kept her word.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both dieting. We were invited to spend the weekend with some close relatives of mine. When I accepted, I expressly asked my aunt to please keep the food simple, and not to bake because we were dieting. She agreed.

When we got there she had pumpkin bread, fudge brownies, cheesecake and all the things we love and couldn't resist.

Because we are good friends, I spoke up and said I wished she hadn't done all that, especially since I had asked her not to. It caused hurt feelings.

Now the family says that it's up to the dieters to resist temptation because others should not have to go without. We say when houseguests ask the hostess not to serve high calorie foods she should comply. What do you think? CALORIE COUNTER

DEAR COUNTER: Your aunt agreed to comply with your wishes, and she broke her promise. Shame on auntie. If she felt you were being unfair to the other guests by requesting she limit her menu to low-calorie food, she should have said so.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

'Women's Liberation' Presented To ESA Group

Kappa Alpha Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha met Thursday, April 4, in the home of Mrs. Joel Plunk.

Mrs. Glenn McConnell presented a program on "The Women's Liberation Movement." The problem of Women's Liberation, said Mrs. McConnell "is that you hear mostly of the extreme activities." Quoting from Dr. Rebecca Liswood, a practicing marriage counselor: "Speakers and writers for the rapidly growing organization of this movement are repeatedly guilty of two major offenses in my book - degrading men and suggesting that homemaking is slavery and that housewives are slob."

In my opinion, anything that tends to lessen friendship between the sexes is inevitably sad and impoverishing to the human race." Mrs. Irvin Hungerford reported that proceeds from the annual Muscular Dystrophy Benefit Dance were $1,489.07. Mrs. Lewis Hackley was named "Most Outstanding First Year Member" and Mrs. Irvin Hungerford "Most Outstanding ESA Member."

Pallas Athene Awards for Achievement were presented to Mmes. Fern Berry, Irvin Hungerford and Glenn McConnell.

Members attending were Mmes. King Dodd, Norman Sublett, Ray Woodridge, Mark Russell, Bob Warnock, Glenn McConnell, Irvin Hungerford, Lewis Hackley, Bob Yost, Gerald Vaughn, John McBride, Maxine Dunham, Fern Berry, Joe Miller, Tommy Sells, Joel Plunk, Bill Bennett, Ken Shearer, Milton Jones, Roy Floyd and Ed Bailey.

Raffle gift was won by Mrs. Irvin Hungerford.

Why Grow Old?
By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

One of the loveliest things about spring is the delightful fragrance which flowers contribute to the atmosphere. This is the kind of pollution we love, and often turns feminine thoughts to perfume as well as to romance.

The fad once was to become identified with one particular scent. You could tell whether your mother or grandmother or Aunt Sue was at home or had recently left a room by the aroma in it. I think today women who use perfume prefer more variety. They use it either to create different moods or to match them.

If you have not been a perfume user, this would be a pleasant addition to your life. It can be refreshing and lift your spirits and make you feel more attractive. However, many women do not use the proper techniques when purchasing fragrance.

You should try perfume on just as you do the dresses you buy. It does not smell the same in the bottle as it does on your skin, and the aroma will be different on different women because of varying body chemistry.

After applying it you should wait 15 minutes if possible before making a decision. Perfumes are most effective when applied to pulse spots, since this skin is warmer in such areas. Some of these are the wrists, the insides of the elbows and the neck.

There are many types of perfume to choose from. For instance, there are the floral scents, which are light, feminine and seem especially appropriate for spring. Then there are perfumes which are heavier and sultry. The woody ones are nice for spring also. There are also the spicy or fruity ones. There are newer ones, too, such as musk oils, which have been very popular.

The lighter scents should be used for daytime and office; the heavier, sultry ones sparingly for special evening occasions. One newer one is supposed to be very provocative, but I used some and nobody chased me. Remember, too, that there is a great difference in the strength of perfume, toilet water and cologne.

Perfume is strongest and should be applied with a light hand and repeated if necessary. Toilet water is next in strength and cologne is the weakest. This latter can be used with a lavish hand, usually after a bath.

Diets high in vitamins and mineral content are listed in the leaflet, "Diets for Youth and Health." To get your copy, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Josephine Lowman in care of Des Moines, Iowa, 50304.

Did You Know This About OUR RELIGIONS?

By Dr. Carlyle Adams

First Church (Reformed) To Try Easter Experiment

For more than a decade there have been "drive-in" Protestant church services using motion picture lots in summertime or providing facilities adjacent to modern churches in such winter resort places as California and Florida.

But a new experiment will begin on Easter Sunday in a 332-year-old church in Albany, N.Y. The First Church (Reformed), with the oldest pulpit in America, (built in Amsterdam in 1656) has recently acquired new parking facilities and will provide, in addition to its traditional services within the historic church in the heart of downtown Albany, facilities for people to worship sitting in their cars outside the church. Many months have gone into the planning led by the pastors Bert McCormick and William Cameron.

Question: Has the Roman Catholic Church done away with private confession to a priest as one of the church sacraments?

Answer: No, but there have been changes in what is officially known as the Sacrament of Penance. First, confession of sin is now becoming a "community" act, as has been practiced in other Christian churches since the day of the Reformation. There is more emphasis on a congregation together making confession and offering pardon.

On the other hand, in the Sacrament of Penance one who is conscious of sin against God and fellow humans may still express the confession privately to the priest.

The new emphasis is on reconciliation, a word becoming more frequently used in all Christian theology. It is common, now, for the priest in private confession to read brief passages from the Bible emphasizing God's mercy and God's call to repentance.

This is followed by the confession on the part of the penitent and a prayer which he or she may offer either spontaneously or in a form supplied by the priest. Then the priest may offer a blessing and absolution in the name of God.

Question: Do you believe that beings on other planets worship the same God and Creator as we do? What evidence, other than the Bible, do you have that God is the one and only deity of the entire universe?

Answer: Yes, I believe that wherever there are intelligent creatures similar to humans on other planets they are aware of the existence of their Divine Creator. We have no evidence, other than the Bible, that one God rules the whole universe, but it is a logical assumption in view of the complexity and orderliness of the universe.

Question: Who is the highest officer of the Salvation Army on the west coast and what is his address?

Answer: The commanding officer for the western Territory of the Salvation Army in the United States is Commissioner Paul S. Kaiser, 101 Valencia Street, San Francisco, Calif. 94103.

The Army in the United States is divided into four territories — eastern, central, western and southern. There is also a Canadian territory, headed by Commissioner Clarence D. Wiseman with headquarters in Toronto.

Pentecostals Continue Study

Rev. H.M. Veach and the congregation invite all interested persons to come out and attend Sunday School and church services this Easter Sunday, as they continue their studies in 1st and 11nd Corinthians of "The Saints Way." This Sunday's lesson title will be "The Resurrection Message."

Brother Veach will be speaking on "The Triumphant Church." If you are a shut-in and it is impossible for you to attend our church services, let me call your attention to our new radio broadcast, conducted each and every Sunday morning.

"The Voice of Pentecost," is brought to you over radio station KGRO from 9 to 9:15 a.m. each Sunday. We pray that God will richly bless and use this broadcast to reach people, so that they might turn to God before it's too late. Tune in; we believe you will receive a blessing for your effort.

Kenneth Rogers Will Address Pampa Nazarene

Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Rogers, missionaries to South Africa, are now on furlough and holding services in Nazarene Churches. This is their second furlough since being appointed to the field in February, 1964.

Rev. Rogers will be at the Pampa Church of the Nazarene, 500 N. West, this Sunday at 7 p.m.

Rev. Rogers served as a printer, builder, hospital administrator, head of the mission; and he now serves as head of the zone.

Rev. Rogers received his A.B. degree in religion at Bethany Nazarene College. Prior to being appointed to South Africa, he served as a pastor in Texas.

The missionary service will capture your interest with the work of pastor and evangelist in South Africa.

Rev. and Mrs. Rogers have two boys, Michael and Danny, and one daughter, Regina. They plan to make their home in Kansas City during this furlough year in order that Rev. Rogers may attend Nazarene Theological Seminary.

REV. KENNETH ROGERS

REV. JOHN HANSARD

Most of the nations of the world have somewhere within their boundaries at least one tomb which holds the remains of a fallen hero who gave honor to the existence and principle of the nation. These tombs proclaim the deeds and sacrifices of past leaders in the insistence of the cause for triumph. They grant no deed to future triumph because they signify terminality, undisputable death.

The triumph which each tomb commemorates was not often achieved without sacrifice. And the hour of achieved triumph is one of rejoicing and tribute to the memory of those who may have achieved a present existence as the fruit of their past sacrifice.

Those honors, and rejoicings, however, fade in the refuse of time as new purposes and aims are born through new needs. These needs are spawned by what man calls progress. When the end result of progress emerges without the testimony of technology, the conclusion surfaces that man is undoubtedly lost and traveling in circles. His story (history) emerges, graphically, as a circle of repetition.

The Cross provides the straight line of purpose in God dealing with man. Man in the acceptance of the cross becomes a portion of the heritage of God's intent since the beginning of time. Redeemed man stands beyond the open tomb and sees the cross and the intent of the creator through the open door of the tomb. In the growth of his Christian life he can stand nowhere else. It is man's terminal preconceptions which make him halt before the cross and there only memorialize as if he were before a monument to the fallen.

Through the cross the redeemed knows that he is no longer fallen, but an accepted child of God. Through the unsealed doorway to the tomb, one can see the event which gave him salvation. He can see that this salvation event spans the tenses to qualify the grant of God which was, which is, and which will be beyond the end of time.

The open tomb is not a sealed staleness; the forgotten answer of one distraught moment. It is the present living fullness of God's presence unhidden and unsealed. The power which was, remains present to comfort and strengthen. That which was confined is not shut off from man, but is seeking man that man might be changed.

From that tomb, which lies open, came that which could not be held. The in-dwelling presence that assures the only triumph to God's prime earthly creation possible both on the earth and after death.

From The Living Bible

The next day as he was out visiting among the Hebrews again, he saw two of them fighting. "What are you doing, hitting your own Hebrew brother like that?" he said to the one in the wrong. "And who are you?" the man demanded. "I suppose you think you are our prince and judge! And do you plan to kill me as you did that Egyptian yesterday?" When Moses realized that his deed was known, he was frightened. And sure enough, when Pharaoh heard about it he ordered Moses arrested and executed. But Moses ran away. Exodus 2:13-15

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

A week ago today, Pampa High's girls volleyball team completed its season. The season ended on a losing note, but the members of the team will always remember the year as the best part of their high school days.

Those who played on the 1974 Harvester team, which lost in three games to defending state champion Irving in the regional finals, were Debbie Gray, Debbie Fortin, Lynn Richardson, Debbie Harris, Annette Keeton, Kathy Ellis, Terri Cox and Jean Harvey. Edith Sayles was the manager, and Lynn Wolfe, whose teams have either shared or won the district title for the past three seasons, was the coach.

Miss Gray, a senior and third-year player, claims she will never forget the season. "I wouldn't trade it for anything. It was an experience none of us are ever gonna forget."

The most satisfying aspect of the past three years? "Just being able to work together and then to go as far as the regionals," she said. "We learned a lot, we learned how to play together."

Miss Gray, along with Miss Harris, also a senior, is hoping to play for West Texas State's volleyball team. Debbie Harris not quite as outspoken as her roommate-to-be.

Concerning the three years, Miss Harris said, "We improved immensely. We were good when we were sophomores." Concerning the best game Pampa played this year, she said, "I guess when we played Amarillo High." Concerning her future, she said, "I really don't know."

Debbie Harris and Miss Richardson were named to the all-district team recently by 1-AAAA coaches, and were the only two off the Pampa squad named to the team.

"I was upset about that," said Lynn, a 5-7 senior spiker. "I think it (the all-district team) is a big farce sometimes. It didn't seem fair. You can tell yourselves when you're out there playing who's the best."

"I felt like Fortin and Gray were better than some of those on the second and first teams."

Miss Richardson agrees that learning to work and play together as a team was an important part of Pampa's success last season. She says the other reason for the good year was Mrs. Wolfe. "She's a good coach; that's why we went so far."

Miss Fortin, another senior, said, "She's a very good coach. We became attached to her."

Annette Keeton, a spiker, has another year to go at Pampa High School. "I played on the B-team as a sophomore."

Irving was the best team we played this year. In district, it was Amarillo High. They (the Sandies) were good at spiking, at everything. Our best game was when we played Amarillo High in our first district game with them."

Pampa won that match, 11-15, 15-6, 13-11. The Sandies defeated Pampa a few days earlier in the West Texas State Volleyball Tournament at Canyon for the Harvesters' only loss of the season prior to the Irving match last Friday.

Pampa finished the season with an 18-2 record and a 12-0 mark in district games.

Prior to Friday morning's trip to Wichita Falls for the match with Irving, Pampa High School gave the volleyball team a pep rally, the first of its kind in Pampa history.

Miss Fortin lists three things as the most enjoyable events of her volleyball career — "winning district, winning bi-district and that pep rally."

Debbie Fortin doesn't really regret not being able to play in the state tournament, which starts April 19 at Austin. "The senior banquet's the same night."

She added, "It would have been nice to have gone, though."

Astros Win 3rd Straight Over SD

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Even the San Diego opponents are beginning to feel sorry for the Padres.

"They're just in an awful slump and I hate to see this happen," Houston pitcher Tom Griffin said Thursday night after the Astros belted the Padres 9-1. "This is my favorite town. It's too bad it had to happen at the beginning of the season."

The loss was the sixth of the year for the winless Padres, who now have been outscored 52-9.

"When things are going for us like they are now, it's all right," said Astros' Manager Preston Gomez. "But tomorrow it could start going like it is for the Padres."

Only 6,618 fans were in the stands to see San Diego's third home game of the season. For the Astros, the win evened their record at 3-3.

They collected 14 hits off five Padre pitchers with Bob Watson leading the way with a bases-empty home run and a two-run double. Griffin went the first seven innings and posted his first victory of the season.

Houston jumped on San Diego starter and loser Randy Jones for six runs in the second inning. In the first six games, Padre

Lefors Qualifiers Going To Goodwell

LEFORS — The Lefors regional qualifiers will travel to Goodwell, Okla., Saturday for the Panhandle State Regional Qualifiers Meet.

Those making the trip for Lefors will be both relay teams (sprint and mile), Larry Wallis in shot put and discus, Carl Cady in the shot put and discus, Randy Klein in the pole vault, Robert Gifford in the 220 and long jump, Barney Sawyer in the long jump and Dwight Keith in both hurdles (330 intermediate and 120 high).

On the spring-relay team are Mike Crain, Sawyer, Gifford and Greg Beck. The mile-relay team consists of Keith, Sawyer, Crain and Gifford.

Colbert Leads Masters After 1st Day

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The Masters leaders read more like who's that than who's who, but Jack Nicklaus is right where you'd expect him to be—close at hand.

The pacesetter, going into today's second round, is a stumpy Kansan named Jim Colbert who is relatively unknown despite having won three tournaments in nine years on the PGA tour.

The three runners—Hubert Green, Hale Irwin and Don Iverson—are pretty much in the same boat. Green still has trouble getting people to spell his name correctly. Even though he won the Bob Hope Classic and at Jacksonville earlier this year, people kept mistaking him for Bert Greene, also in this tournament.

Colbert, who has won less than $14,000 so far this year, closed strong in Thursday's opening round to post a 5-under-par 67, the first time he had broken par in three Masters appearances. Green, Irwin and Iverson all had 68s, with Irwin getting his by running off a string-of-five-straight birdies on the back nine of the sun-swept Augusta National Course.

But all four had to be uneasy. Nicklaus, four-time champion and pre-tournament favorite, was only two strokes off the pace—and that's because he missed a number of the sort of putts he usually makes with ease.

Nicklaus Optimistic "Early in the round, I wasn't aggressive enough with my putting," said Nicklaus. "I missed some silly little putts. But, I would have been satisfied with my round if I hadn't bogeyed 18 (where he missed a 12-footer)."

Nicklaus made it clear he expects conditions to favor him over those ahead of him the next three days.

"If the greens speed up, as expected, it will favor the better, more experienced players," said Nicklaus. And, who fits that bill more than he?

Colbert, delighted last year to make the cut here, said he felt playing in two previous Masters helps his chances this time.

"When I came here this year, I felt I had served my apprenticeship," he said.

The 32-year-old Colbert had six birdies and only one bogey in Thursday's round. But he felt the birdies at Nos. 12 and 13 were the key to his round.

The Pampa Daily News SPORTS

"I could very easily have thrown the entire round away on those two holes," sighed Colbert with relief. "Getting out of trouble like I did made the round."

At the par three 12th, Colbert overshot the green and thought he might be in water. But the ball halted on the crest and a 25-foot chip shot went in the hole. He had to come through a clump of trees at the par five 13th after nearly going into water again.

"I made one terrible shot and three super shots at 13," said Colbert, who added that he considered it a thrill whenever he shot a 67 "even in practice."

Ray Floyd, Gene Littler, Dan Sikes and Frank Beard—all better known than the leaders—were tied with Nicklaus at 3 under par. Billy Casper and Art Wall, a pair of veteran former champions, were in a group at 70 and Gary Player, only foreigner ever to win the Masters (1961), and Tom Weiskopf were in another group at 71 as 21 out of 78 starters broke par.

The 50-year-old Wall, who won here back in 1959, picked up four strokes in three holes with a birdie-eagle-birdie streak, becoming the first man ever to put three deuces back to back in Masters' play.

Sam Snead, who admits he'll be 62 next month, shot an even par 72 and was furious at himself for missing five putts under eight feet.

Arnold Palmer, still the darling of the Masters' gallery even though his game is fading at 44, shot a 4-over-par 76 and defending champion Tommy Aaron, who has not played well since winning here last year, was another stroke back at 77.

PHS Regional Qualifiers To Compete At Hereford

The Pampa Harvester track team's regional qualifiers will travel to Hereford Saturday for preliminary competition to the Regional Meet, which will be held a week from today.

Pampa's mile-relay team, Steve Mathis in the open quarter, Howie Lewis in the 330 intermediate hurdles and Noel Hansen in the 880 will compete in the Hereford Regional Qualifiers Meet.

Competition, which includes several schools in the area (4A, 3A, 2A, A and B), starts at 4 p.m. Saturday and winds up at approximately 8 p.m. There will be no preliminaries. Although the number of AAAA schools in the field is not known, it is believed there will be approximately 22 mile-relay teams.

Of the 22, Pampa's has the second-fastest qualifying time — 3:25.8. Only Palo Duro is faster. The Dons own a 3:24.8 but Pampa has beaten them twice since that time was run. The Harvesters won in the preliminaries of the Amarillo Relays and in last Saturday's District Track Meet at Pampa.

Hansen, Lewis, Chuck Quarles and Mathis make up the mile-relay team.

"I might not run Mathis in the open quarter," said Pampa coach Scott Dunnam. "just in the mile relay over there (Hereford)." Mathis pulled a hamstring in the Amarillo Relays and has not been at full speed since then. Dunnam does not want to risk a recurrence of the injury.

"The meet doesn't have a whole lot of significance but I feel like we need to compete well over there," the coach added.

Trophies will be awarded to the top teams and medals to the top finishers.

Clots Dangerous With Phlebitis

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently came down with phlebitis in my right leg and was told by my doctor to stay off my feet, which I did for a week. It seems that as soon as I am back on my feet the condition recurs. I am aware of the danger involved concerning clots. But I am 30 and a working mother (secretary). I would like to know what can be done to alleviate the pain other than staying off my feet. Is it a chronic condition? Isn't 30 a relatively young age for this?

—Mrs. B.Y.
Phlebitis (inflammation of a vein) can occur at any age, can be recurrent, can become chronic, especially if not cared for adequately in the early stages. So a physician is not surprised to find it in a person your age, although it is more frequent among older ones. The disease also is quite variable, meaning that each case has to be treated on the basis of how it behaves, some fairly easy, some not. It may be that a week off your feet was not enough for you. Did you then, or have you discussed with your doctor whether you still ought to stay off your feet somewhat longer? There are various ins and outs of treatment. Butazolidin, for short periods, is an effective anti-inflammatory agent, and you might ask your doctor about it. It requires a prescription, so you will, naturally, have to have a scrip from him. If you are on birth control pills, stop them — although I suppose you have already been told that. Have you tried support hose? That very often can ease the pain. Surgical correction of varicose veins may be in order. It is a condition that in a good many cases is significant in phlebitis. Be sure of one thing: your physician is not striving to keep you off your feet. He wants you back on your feet, as ordinarily (barring unusual circumstances) activity is encouraged as soon as the pain permits, since activity helps prevent clotting, and you know the danger of clots.

several months I have been having pain in the calf of my right leg. There is no redness or swelling but the calf is extremely sore even to the slightest touch. The leg also burns at times and seems on fire. I've been having many cramps in the calf and ankle. I had one blood clot in this leg several years ago but it did not start this way and fortunately was dissolved. Since my doctor has passed away, I was wondering if there could be cause for alarm.

—Mrs. J.C.
Pain such as you describe in the leg, particularly when associated with the tenderness, should not be ignored. Even though the symptoms are not the same as in your previous experience with a clot, that possibility cannot be written off. I could be a recurrence of thrombophlebitis. I cannot, of course, say that IS the case because there are other possible causes, even including defects in the foot. If you are taking birth control pills (which can be harmful if phlebitis exists) stop taking them until you see a physician. And don't postpone it. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a shot for prevention of births? I heard there was one given every six months. Where would I get one? —C.F.
There is experimental work aimed at developing a long-lasting birth control medication, but it is not available now. High blood pressure can be controlled. IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Danny Thomas Leaves His House

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — Harry Hershfield, the 88-year-old "Mr. New York" who's been confined indoors for weeks, persuaded his nurse to let him leave his apartment and go out for some New York air. I found Harry out on the streets, deeply inhaling, and chucking. "I had to get out of the house — I missed the pollution." "Jake," meaning Danny Thomas, was our total host at Sardi's for the after-opening party of Herb Gardner's show, "Thieves," starring Jake's daughter Marlo Thomas. It had many brittle laughs and one that I fear will be taken up by the moochers of America. A handout guy says, "I'm in the going-away business. You give me $1 and I go away." You decide that's cheap to get rid of him, and he then says as he pockets the buck, "I'm also in the stay-away business. You give me $1 and I stay away." The enormous possibilities of this business are inescapable. Marlo Thomas's mother Rosemary Thomas, that is, Mrs. Danny Thomas, conceded that her husband had tears in his eyes as his daughter Marlo took a curtain call and when I saw Danny, he said, "Don't we have talented children?" Mrs. Thomas said "Jake" had to leave town, as he has dental surgery appointments.

Fonda and his wife Shirlee were applauding Marlo and the rest of the cast. Elizabeth Taylor's attorney Aaron R. Frosch, who also represents Richard Burton, states that he has seen the couple and they have not changed their husband- and wife status nor do they indicate to him that they have any plans to change it. They are still husband- and wife as far as he can see, even though they may not be together at all times due to the crazy business they're in. O.K.? Harry Truman's desk sign "the buck stops here" was changed by somebody on Nixon's staff to "The bucks stop here," claims Si Seadler's nephew, Colby College student David Pimansky in Waterville, Me. Engelbert Humperdinck's fan club, which claims the biggest membership, adopted the slogan "Think Humperdinck." Edmund Zacchini, whose family keeps getting shot from cannons, starting with his niece and nephew Carol & Wayne in Circus America, says, "My career is still booming." TV writers who streak have violated a morals clause and can be fired. Phil Harris mailed out scores of "I am almost fully recovered" messages to get well wishers after his accident. Toots Shor missed his first opening ball game in almost 40 years. Dean Blatt reports Henry Youngman streaked through a nudist camp in suit, overcoat and muffler. A transvestite show wants to rent a fancy hotel showroom; the hotel execs are divided. Bob Goldstein, the witty former production chief of 20th Century-Fox, died of a stroke and heart attack in London. Bob and identical twin brother Leonard Goldstein, also a busy Hollywood producer, used to play jokes on friends on both coasts who didn't know they were twins. Bob discovered Tony Curtis, Buddy Hackett and others, and is survived

Under Twenty

By TOM WILLIAMS
Everyone seems to be going some place or other these days. Probably those who hit the road with their gear packed in a single knapsack have the right idea. It was Thoreau (or maybe Emerson) who said that a man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can do without — and that little gem of wisdom certainly applies to traveling. The wise traveler travels light. Actually, one suitcase should do for all but the longest trips or the most dressie ones, since it is likely that you will find yourself, sooner or later, lugging your own luggage about crowded airports and depots and in and out of taxis. Keep tabs on the number of items you're carrying — such as (1) suitcase (2) cosmetic bag (3) umbrella (4) camera. Every time you move from one place to another, check to see that you have the same number of items you started out with. Plastic bags, the kind commonly used for wrapping foodstuffs, are handy for wrapping cosmetics that might spill. shoes, jewelry — or almost anything. These bags also can be used to carry your camera in, protecting it against water damage in case you're going to be near the sea or in a rainy climate. Name tags can fall off your suitcase, so put your name and address on the inside of your luggage as well as on the outside. It's also a good idea to affix a band of colored tape or perhaps a mod flower sticker on your suitcase so you can quickly pick it out from others of a similar style. When packing your suitcase, put your shoes in the back of the bottom of your suitcase, with lingerie, jerseys, bathing suits and the like scattered over the rest of the bottom. Keep it level. Cut a large piece of cardboard to the exact measurement of your suitcase and separate items that require careful folding — such as dresses and suits — with this from other apparel. This will facilitate reaching things on the bottom. All you have to do is lift the cardboard separator. (Distributed by Columbia Features, Inc.)

by two sisters. Burial will be in Hollywood. Show Biz Quiz: When Baron Munchausen (Jack Pearl) said, "Was you dere, Charlie?" to whom was he speaking? Ans. to yesterday's Pola Negri's real name was Appolonia Chalupek. Producer Adela Holzer, who just folded her expensive musical "Brainchild" in Philadelphia, is bringing her off-B'way hit "Bad Habits" to B'way April 24. One of the best-known former screen sexpots has a much younger boy friend who calls her "Mama." Drummer Buddy Rich, a black-belt karate expert, will appear June 2 at the Oriental World of Self-Defense matches at Madison Sq. Garden. A well-known entertainer walked away from rehearsals for a show without telling anyone (and at last reports hadn't returned).

I'D RATHER BELIGHT
Today's Best Laugh: Totie Fields entered Sardi's where caricatures of B'way stars are permanently displayed — and cracked, "Business must be bad — they haven't sold a picture since my last visit." Wish I'd Said That: A fellow admitted he lied on his tax returns — he listed himself as head of his household. Remembered Quote: "There are times when silence is the best way to shout at the top of your voice." — O.A. Battista. Earl's Pearls: The late Leonard L. Levinson belonged to the Society For the Classical Guitar, though he couldn't play one. He explained, "Well, SO-ME-BODY has to listen." Nixon's tax problems point up (says Lou Brecker of Roseland) that this is a country where a poor boy can rise to become President — and still end up poor again. That's earl, brother. Texas Industry Shows Decrease In Expansion

AUSTIN, Tex. (PI) — Texas industries slumped 23 per cent in the first three months of this year, a University of Texas researcher said Thursday. Christine Fox, managing editor of Texas Industrial Expansion, a publication of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, said Texas industrial expansion decreased 13 per cent from the number of expanding plants reported in the first quarter of 1973. Mrs. Fox said the number of new manufacturing plants in Texas dropped 23 per cent in the last three months compared to the first quarter of last year. "The most drastic decline in manufacturing activity has occurred in the state's nonmetropolitan areas," Mrs. Fox said. "These communities reported 82 new and expanding facilities during the first quarter of 1973 and only 42 new and expanding plants during the same period of 1974 — an approximate 49 per cent decrease this year." Mrs. Fox said most of the state's manufacturing activity has occurred in the 24 standard metropolitan statistical areas. She said metropolitan communities drew 76 per cent of the manufacturing activity during the first three months of this year. Salt Lake City, Utah, has been called the "Center of the Mormon world," the "Crossroads of the West," and the "Center of Scenic America."

The Soldier Comes Back Home

By ROBERT CAREY
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Braniff Flight 171 was due for a stop at 10:11 p.m. from Oklahoma City on the last flight of the night to Memphis.

The airport was nearly deserted, except for a cluster of people at Gate 12. They fidgeted a bit when word came that the flight would be half an hour late because of a schedule mess-up in Oklahoma City.

So there I was with more than a half hour and not so much as a newspaper to look at. Concession stand closed. So was the bar — Sunday night.

What to do? In the arrival area at Gate 12 there were a couple of tired salesmen, heading home to Memphis one supposed. And then there was another group, different somehow.

There were several older women, grandmothers maybe, bouncing infants on their knees. Two tall men in jeans and long sleeved dress shirts, booted and angular, with narrow hawklike faces, peered out at the runways and the night.

Over by the window stood three younger women, hair beehived up and back combed like they fix it in country beauty shops.

Children At Play
And through and about them all ran about a half dozen children, aged 4 to 6, having a big time, scooting up and down the empty corridors, playing hide-and-seek.

As we waited a girl in white walked into Gate 12, honey blonde hair, pretty face, turned up nose and a handful of freckles.

She walked up to the younger women. There was some hugging and kissing and, "how pretty you look." Must be old friends. Or maybe relatives. Were they all going somewhere or meeting someone?

As flight 171 landed and the passengers began to deplane, the group at Gate 12 was strangely quiet, men and women alike, pressing up to the glass and looking down at the field. They watched as passengers came out of the plane.

"There he is," one breathed.

"My God, he's lost weight," said one of the younger women.

Soldier Weeps
Yes, but he looks good," said another, a little uncertainly.

Then a flutter of children, and cries of "Uncle Larry," filled the area. The young man, who entered from the flight line carrying a suitcase, knelt down and caught them up.

"Uncle Larry, Uncle Larry," they cried. The boy's face was sun brown and he was thin, maybe a hint of a limp there too. Hard to say.

An older woman who had held a baby came forward and grabbed him around the neck and pulled him hard against her.

"Mom," he said. It was all he could say, because the tears in spite of himself were beginning to come.

Greeted By Father
He pushed on, one arm still around his mother, and toward two tall men. "Bill," he said to one and shook his hand and then he called the other's name. Brothers maybe.

The girl in white held back shyly as the boy walked to a table and now stood. He was a big man, over 6-foot-4 in cowboy boots, a John Wayne with grey hair. He reached out and pulled the boy to him, out of his mother's arms.

The big man's eyes were red, but he held on. He released the boy and shoved him gently toward the girl in white, who smiled and hugged him too.

Then, they all began to walk away, the girl in white talking animatedly to the boy, who nodded his head and smiled, still near tears. He did not speak but held on to her as they walked. His father silently took the suitcase, which said "Thailand" on it, and followed them out. The others left too.

The soldier was home at last.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return for the year ending January 1-December 31, 1974, or other taxable year.
Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. I earned only about $1,500 from a summer job between school semesters. Does this mean I won't have to file a tax return?

A. In general, if you are single, you don't have to file a Federal income tax return unless you made more than $2,050. However, if income tax was withheld from your pay, you should file a return to have the tax refunded to you.

Q. Will the IRS compute your tax regardless of whether you use the short form or the long one?

A. It depends. If you use Form 1040, the IRS will compute your tax if your adjusted gross income was $20,000 or less and consisted only of wages or salaries, tips, dividends, interest, pensions and annuities, you take the standard deduction and file by the deadline. The IRS will also compute the tax for Form 1040A-users, regardless of how much income they had. See your tax form instructions for details.

Q. My tax return was audited last year and I had to pay additional tax plus penalty and interest. Are the interest and penalty payments deductible?

A. The interest charged on tax payments is deductible; tax penalties are not.

Q. Which payments for medicines and drugs are tax deductible?

A. Deductible payments include: legally obtained and generally recognized medicines and drugs, even if they do not require a prescription (but not expenditures for toothpaste, toiletries, cosmetics, etc.); birth control pills prescribed by a doctor; and vitamins, iron supplements and certain special food or beverages prescribed by a doctor. See your tax form instructions for further information.

Remember, payments for medicines and drugs are deductible only to the extent they exceed one percent of your adjusted gross income. This excess is included in your other medical expenses, which can be deducted only to the extent they exceed three percent of your adjusted gross income.

Q. I have a number of stocks and bonds. What kinds of investment expenses are deductible?

A. Fees you pay a broker or similar agent to collect your bond interest or dividends on shares of stock are deductible. A fee paid to a broker to acquire stocks or bonds is not deductible, but is added to the cost of the property.

Other deductible investment expenses include: interest on margin accounts, state transfer tax on securities, the cost of subscriptions to financial publications purchased to keep an eye on investments, clerical help and office rent in caring for investments, safe deposit box rental (if the box is used to keep investment-related papers and documents) and custodial fees in connection with property held for production of income. Transportation and other expenses you pay to attend stockholders' meetings are generally not deductible.

Q. Where can I get a copy of your "Tax Guide" for Small Business?

A. "Tax Guide for Small Business," IRS Publication 334, is available over-the-counter at your Internal Revenue office for $1.00. It can also be obtained by mail for $1.25, postpaid, from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, and the Public Documents Distribution Center, Pueblo Industrial Park, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

WE PUT MORE INTO OUR IRRIGATION SYSTEMS SO YOU GET MORE OUT.

When you buy Gifford-Hill irrigation equipment, you get a lot more than just equipment. You get a quality product. One that's proven itself superior to anything in the field.

You see, Gifford-Hill is one of the nation's leading suppliers of irrigation equipment, and has been for over 20 years. And one of the reasons we have remained a leader is our concern for quality. That along with our understanding of the problems you face.

Take our 360 pivotal sprinkler for example. It's a classic. The 360 is recognized throughout the industry as the most sophisticated, yet the simplest to operate, pivotal system on the market.

But it's the little things, the care in designing and engineering, that really set the 360 apart from all the others.

For example, the water pattern is unique. By placing the sprinkler heads further apart near the pivot point and closer together at the end, the 360 applies water uniformly along the entire length of the system.

We also make the best surface irrigation pipe around. Each joint of our aluminum pipe is manufactured under stringent quality controls. And it's roll-welded to insure uniform wall thickness. Gifford-Hill makes the most dependable and economical pipe available for underground installation, too. Vanguard PVC Plastic Pipe.

Aside from durability and flexibility, Vanguard features an exclusive rubber gasket joint. Thousands of feet can be installed in one day. In practically any kind of weather.

Of course these are only a few of the outstanding features of our products. The point is that we know and understand the problems you face everyday. And we have the expertise and equipment to help you solve them.

But more important, we stand behind our products. We make them. And we guarantee them.

So, if you have an irrigation problem, call the irrigation experts. Call Gifford-Hill.

For more information on these and other Gifford-Hill products, contact your nearest Gifford-Hill representative.

Carr Wants To Support Family

DALLAS (UPI) — Former attorney General Waggoner Carr, acquitted this week of federal stock fraud charges, said his three years of legal fighting left him with a future of merely finding ways "to support my family."

Carr told how the Texas stock fraud scandal shrank his legal practice to zero and forced his wife and son to find jobs. He spoke during an interview with Dave Chester of WFAA radio news in Dallas.

"My wife went to work," Carr said. "She had not done that in many years. My son was going to college and I was financing him, but suddenly I found I couldn't. So he started to earn his way through school.

"I don't complain about that. I think perhaps my wife is happier today working than she was not working. My son... this is going to make a better man out of him. I think that except for the despair and the adverse things that happened to me personally in all this, the scandal and the shame... that the experience has made me a stronger man than I was before."

At the time the Texas stock fraud scandals broke, Carr and several advisors had tentatively decided that Carr should make a statewide race for lieutenant governor. On that afternoon of that date, Jan. 18, 1971, the Securities and Exchange Commission filed the civil suits which made public the stock fraud manipulations, and named Carr a defendant.

"We had made the temporary decision that we were getting into a statewide race that year," Carr said. "Of course, as one of them said three hours later, when all this stuff broke, he said, 'That's the shortest campaign I ever saw any man run.'"

Carr, former state banking commissioner John Osorio and Dallas businessman David Hoover were acquitted in federal court Monday of stock fraud charges. Carr said the decision removed all guilt from over him, but perhaps not in the eyes of some people.

"People being people, there are a lot of people who read the charges and never read the innocent verdict," he said. "For example, it's hard to undue in one headline that I was declared innocent the damage that was done over three years of headlines, saying I'd done something wrong."

Carr said it was for that reason, and financial reasons, that he would have difficulty entering another political race.

"I've just got to find ways to support my family," he said. "That's number one. Because if you're honest in politics, it's awfully difficult to lay aside any money for the future or building an estate. Unless you have something to start on before you get in, which I don't have now."

"As for the future, I have no idea. I don't know whether I could ever afford the luxury or the enjoyment of public service again, and I did enjoy it very much."

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Zoe said she had a hateful, egotistical boss. Yet she felt attracted to him. So she challenged me to show her how she could have him eating out of her hand. Note the magic of mutual "horn tooting duets." Men think girls who praise them are far more beautiful!

CASE A-605: Zoe B., aged 27, is attracted to her school principal, where she teaches chemistry.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I've heard you say that any two people of reasonable physical charm can be caused to fall in love."

"Well, how do you do it?"

"For I would like to marry my school principal, but he seems to find fault with me and criticize my reports."

"I challenge you to prove your theory and thus make him fall in love with me!"

LOVE STRATEGY

Zoe was pretty and vivacious, so my task was simple.

"Zoe," I said, "the fact that he goes out of his way to criticize you, is in your favor."

"That means he is basically attracted to you."

She shook her head dubiously.

"Then why does he pick on me?" she demanded.

"Oh, that's to try to show off his superiority," I replied.

"All men wish to appear important, especially in the eyes of the woman they want for a wife."

"But he merely fails to realize that in trying to intimate his superiority, he is deflating your pride."

"So start by paying him honest compliments instead of feeling resentful at his faultfinding."

"Instead, smile sweetly and tell him you appreciate working with a man who can teach you how to improve."

"Zoe seemed doubtful of my advice, but promised faithfully that she would pay him at least one sincere compliment every day."

"Praise his tie or new suit," I urged, "or his auto or his military posture and erect shoulders."

"Or even personalize your compliments by mentioning his even, white teeth."

Zoe wondered how that would wake him up to her own charms.

"Zoe," I added, "when a man meets a woman who keeps making him feel prouder of himself, he soon begins to think she is intelligent, and even more beautiful."

"For it is a truism of psychology that whenever we feel more delighted with ourselves, some of that self-adulation then spills over upon the other person who inflated our ego, making her seem actually beautiful."

"That's why thousands of men marry girls who may not be even average in good looks."

"But to their husbands, they are beautiful!"

Zoe gleefully telephoned the next week that the principal had begun to return her compliments!

And he even invited her to attend a school principals' dinner party with him in the next county.

A mutual admiration society of two then developed, which is the precursor of romance.

For by her deft compliments, she merely reached over and tooted his horn until finally, maybe awkwardly, he also tooted her horn.

For a marriage is merely a duet of horn tooters, each of whom toots the other's horn.

So send for my "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

These mutual "horn tooting duets" should be stressed far more in high school and college for they produce far more happiness than marching bands!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Mellett, Indiana 47668. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Inflation and concern about future trends in living costs has eroded investor confidence, according to Goldman, Sachs & Co. "This low confidence is reflected in lower price-earnings multiples for the broad averages and many stocks than we have witnessed in two decades," it continues.

With food the biggest contributor to the ten percent year-to-year bulge in the February Consumer Price Index, "we strongly believe that the future course of inflation is the key to the future course of equity prices," the firm adds.

maintained in cash and equivalents and the ratio of odd-lot short sales to all odd-lot transactions suggest the second market bottom should occur in the near future, it adds.

"The stock market will find it difficult to regain any upward momentum until the current surge of interest rates has run its course," says Wright Investors' Service, a Bridgeport, Conn. firm. The sharp easing of volume since mid-March and the trend toward a second market bottom both indicate the birth of a new bull market is yet to come, the firm continues. On the other hand, the percentage of mutual fund net assets

MELBOURNE (UPI) — The Austin Hospital here has decided that sometimes old ways of doing things are better than new. After trying various new materials and methods it has gone back to using sheepskins to reduce the incidence of bedsores in patients.
