GWCD ponders possible appeal of judge's ruling

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS News Editor

AMARILLO - A groundwater conservation district is to meet Wednesday to decide whether to appeal a judge's ruling concerning its authority to regulate water transported out of the dis-

District Judge Patrick Pirtle ruled Oct. 24 Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District No. 3 may not regulate the transportation of water out of the district. However, the court affirmed the district's production regulatory authority in a lawsuit filed against the district by Quixx Corp., a subsidiary of Southwestern Public Service in Amarillo.

Quixx filed suit against Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District No. 3 in 251st District Court, Amarillo, asking for summary judgment in their efforts to obtain a satisfactory water production permit from the agency.

Quixx was granted a permit by the district on Aug. 2 which allows it to pump 37,800 acre-feet per year and up to 45,000 acrefeet per year during drought. It is that permit which will be transferred with the water rights when and if a sale of water rights to Canadian River Municipal Water Authority sale is consummated.

CRMWA is attempting to purchase from Quixx 35,813 acres of water rights in Roberts County (plus another 6,952 outside Roberts County and the water district) for use by its 11-member cities, which include Amarillo and Pampa.

Pirtle ruled Quixx has the right to transport, sell or use its water outside the district for any beneficial and non-wasteful purpose authorized by the Texas Water Code.

Pirtle's ruling defined the role of the water district over its ter-

• The agency has the authority to make and enforce rules to conserve, preserve and prevent waste of underground water.

 The district has the authority to require permits for drilling, equipping, completing or substantially altering the size of underground water wells. It may regulate spacing, production, consider means and methods of transportation of water produced within the district.

 The district does not have the authority to regulate or prevent by permit or otherwise the transportation or water outside the district.

 The district does not have the authority to impose or apply more onerous standards or restrictions for water use outside the district than inside the district. The district is without authority to discriminate based upon purpose or location of water use.

In other declarations about the law. Pirtle said:

• Groundwater owners have absolute right of ownership of the water and may transport any lawfully produced water for any useful and non-wasteful purpose inside or outside the water basin from which it came.

• It is not wasteful, per se, to transport water outside the district and such a right is incidental to ownership of the water.

• Any rule attempting to regulate or prevent the transportation of water out of the district is invalid.

 The conservation district's Rule 26 is not a "production" rule, nor is there a reasonable relationship between the rule and the authority of the district.

• Rule 26 is a rule which attempts to regulate transportation of water out of the district and is invalid.

Pirtle further ordered Quixx attorney's to draw up an order for consideration by the district. C.E. Williams, district manager of the conservation district, said the conservation district board members have not seen the proposed order.

"(Pirtle) ruled our Rule 26 invalid but he reaffirmed the district has authority to regulate production. On the Roberts County deal, if we don't appeal, (Quixx) will have to come in and get a Rule 30 (high impact) permit," C.E. Williams said.

The district's Rule 30 addresses situations in which more than 350,000 gallons per year pumpage is proposed.

John Williams, general manager of CRMWA, which is not party to the lawsuit, agreed with that assessment.

The judge's ruling probably means the Aug. 2 permit is no longer required; however, it probably also means Quixx will have to apply for a permit under Rule 30 instead of Rule 26, John Williams explained.

"What it probably means, we or Quixx - will have to get a Rule 30 permit," he said.

He said the judge's ruling is good news for Quixx and subsequently CRMWA in their efforts to buy the water rights.

"Although it does muddy the water as to where we go from here Quixx in their suit and we our discussions felt it was a form of discrimination," John Williams said. "Believe it or not, we're on the cutting edge with this stuff," said C.E. Williams. The groundwater conservation district is to meet at 7 p.m. Wedneday at 300 Omohundro, White Deer.

switching parties. Hall, who was named Monday by the GOP leadership to the House budget reconciliation conference committee, said he would be traveling Friday.

Republican National Committee Chairman Haley Barbour is scheduled to attend a news conference at 10 a.m. Friday in Austin, where the switches are to be announced.

GOP officials expect that bigname Democrats will be among county and local officials in the group.

Barbara Jackson, state Republican executive director, declined to identify Democratic officials scheduled to change parties.

"Texas has far surpassed other states in party switchers. There have been 39 in Texas since President Clinton was elected and this is adding to our numbers," she said.

Rapstine and over a dozen other volunteers made dressing, shredded cabbage, chopped onions and mixed slaw in large garbage barrels this morning in preparation for the 57th annual White Deer Polish Sausage Dinner on Sunday. Over 750 pounds of cabbage were cored Wednesday, and organizers expect to make over 120 gallons of slaw. Tickets are $6 for adults and $3.50 for children. The dinner will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church's Parish Hall in White Deer.

AG says road in county must remain open

An attorney general's opinion close the road in 1994; however, there's nothing this guy can do sought in the spring of 1994 has been answered, according to County Attorney Todd Alvey.

A point of law Gray County commissioners asked Alvey to have clarified concerning erection of a gate by a property owner who owns land on both sides of a Class 3 road was answered Monday.

A landowner in southeast Gray County whose land was marred by illegal trash dumpers asked the court for permission to some neighboring property owners and oil field workers protested the closure because of inconvenience to them.

Alvey said the opinion says a property owner who owns both sides of the land around a Class 3 road may erect a fence unless the county had previously installed a cattleguard.

That is the case here, he said, because a county-installed cattleguard is in place.

"That means in this case, and he's gotta take his gate down," Alvey said.

The gate has been open since the time the opinion was sought, Alvey said.

Alvey agreed illegal trash dumping is a problem for rural property owners.

"It's just a matter of catching them," he said.

Alvey also told the court he plans to close his private office Dec. 1 and work primarily in the courthouse.

Activists dig their trenches in battle over divorce

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The fight to legalize divorce in this predominantly Roman Catholic nation is pitting Ireland against itself: church and state, young versus old, tradition against today's changing world.

"Our opponents suggest that legalizing divorce somehow threatens happy marriages," said Niamh O'Connor of the Right to Remarry Campaign. "That's a pretty sad commentary on their view of marriage that couples are trapped in them."

Anti-divorce campaigner Jeremy Hennessy, married and father of four, says divorce is for "people who haven't the guts to get married - for people who want the state to call their relationships of convenience marriages."

The government, struggling to take a neutral line, says divorce should be available for more than 75,000 people legally separated but married "till death us do part."

The issue has divided families, and for weeks it has filled church divorce lost by nearly 2 to 1.

 A technician with the U.N. peacekeeping force in Haiti was killed during a robbery attempt, Radio Metropole reported.

The technician's nationality was not known. People from about 20 countries including Haitians work in the U.N. force.

Radio Metropole said the victim was killed Tuesday night in a holdup while inside a taxi on Portau-Prince's Delmas Boulevard. The driver of the taxi, whose name wasn't available, was arrested for investigation of the slaying.

A spokesman for the U.N. peacekeeping force in Haiti couldn't be reached for comment Wednesday.

About 6,000 peacekeeping troops and other U.N. personnel are in Haiti, having taken over security functions in May from the U.S.-led multinational force that restored President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power in October. Aristide was deposed in a September 1991 military coup.

Campaign reform: A current hot topic

Campaign reform seems to be this month's - issue du jour. The administration and other Democrats excoriate Newt Gingrich and other Republicans for not exerting themselves to pass something this year that can be labeled campaign reform.

Sensing an opening, Ross Perot and his minions have leaped into the breach, dropping substantive issues, such as NAFTA and making six of the nine planks in the still-aborning Reform Party related to gifts from lobbyists and other money-in-politics issues. The trouble is that the debate about campaign reform has not matured since 1974 when attempts to reform a corrupt and uncompetitive political system only made it more corrupt and less competitive - predictably shifting the playing field even more decisively in favor of incumbents and special interests. One wonder is that anyone would have expected legislative bodies filled with incumbents beholden to special interests to have done anything else. A bigger wonder is the curious conviction that more of the same will get the job done this time.

Unfortunately, the doctors of democracy at Common Cause, Perot headquarters in Dallas, and in well meaning "good government" organizations around the country have noticed symptoms without probing to discover the real cause of the sneezes and hiccups. The preponderant and often corrupt role of big money in politics is deplorable. But the disease isn't money or selfishness per se. It is the dominant role government has come to play in so many aspects of our lives, particularly in economic decisions.

Government at all levels takes almost half the national income directly and heavily influences other economic decisions. The regadatory / administrative state can make or break companies - espe-Gally small businesses - and entire industries through obscure rulings, hidden subsidies, special exceptions, amendments added in back rooms, and in a hundred other ways.

James Bovard, author of the current book Shakedown: How the vernment Screws You from A to Z, has done a study for the Cato Institute that calls the Archer Daniels Midland Company ("supermarket to the world") America's biggest welfare recipient. At teast 43% of ADM's profits are from markets that wouldn't exist without government subsidies or protection, and every $1 of profits from ADM's sale of ethanol costs taxpayers $30.

When decisions in Washington - or Sacramento or the local City Hall - become more important to corporate well being than the preferences of customers, executives will find ways to influence the political and bureaucratic processes. ADM and its chairman, Dwayne Andreas, have been big political players, donating heav-The to top leaders in both parties and sponsoring - er, "underwrit-- key media outlets such as the PBS McNeil-Lehrer news

When elections become, as the late H.L. Mencken once put it, an "advance auction of stolen goods," you can expect bidders to appear - especially when the rewards for relatively modest contributions and bribes can be in the millions.

If we really want to reduce corruption in government and the role of money in politics, we must reduce the size and scope of government enough that political decisions no longer have such an outsized impact on economic results. Unless we do, businesses will find a way around whatever new rules and restrictions on political gifts are imposed. Their stake is simply too enormous for them to do otherwise.

Instead of acknowledging this fundamental fact, however, most campaign reform" proposals simply try to Band-aid the symptoms - and in some cases actually increase the role and influence of government over private economic decisions. The McCain-Feingold proposal in the Senate, endorsed by Common Cause, not only sets up the government to dictate how political speech can be financed. It seeks to reward candidates who abide by spending limitations with "free" television time i.e., resources seized from private owners by the government to be redistributed.

Can anyone believe such political decisions about how to redistribute other peoples' money will not be influenced by the political process, or that the process won't be influenced yet again by

• Reforms that ignore the real problem - that in fact make it worse -are worse than no reforms at all. If the American people aren't prepared to reduce the size and scope of government, they will just have to learn to live with the sleaze and corruption that inevitably accompany a government that seeks to control or influence every aspect of our lives.

Law enforcement's ruthless weapon

A California husband and wife lose a house on which they hold a mortgage because the occupant was running a prostitution ring. Motorists in New Jersey are relieved of their cash by police without being charged with any crime. An Iowa man has his $6,000 boat confiscated for illegally catching three fish. An Ohio woman separated from her husband is stripped of her share of a 64-acre farm after he pleads guilty to growing marijuana there without her knowledge.

This is the new direction of American law, enforcement - punishing people by taking away their property. It's an especially popular tool in drug cases. Since 1985, federal agents have seized $2.4 billion in private assets. State and local authorities have joined in with great enthusiasm, partly because they generally get to use the proceeds to finance their operations.

This may seem like giving criminals their just deserts. But in many instances, the people harmed have never been charged with a crime - or even suspected of one. For many victims who have been convicted, the financial loss wildly exceeds what could be seen as fair punishment.

Recently, the Supreme Court issued a verdict that will curb some of the worst excesses of asset forfeiture, though only some. A New Jersey woman bought a home in 1982 with $240,000 given to her by the man she was living with. The romance ended, and he moved out in 1987, but in 1989, the federal government seized the house, claiming it had been bought with money made from drug trafficking.

The owner denied knowing that her former boyfriend was a drug dealer, but the government said it didn't matter whether she knew or not: Anything bought with ill-gotten gains belongs to the government, no matter how many hands it may pass through before the authorities take possession. The Supreme Court disagreed, reaching the startling conclusion that the woman's guilt and innocence actually do matter. Under the law, it said, she has the right to try to prove she was unaware of the money's tainted source, however implausible that may sound.

This verdict may prove helpful to people who have property taken by the government even though they have never been suspected of a crime. Currently, if a teenager uses his parents' car to deliver drugs to a buyer, the parents can lose the car. If a woman uses her apartment for drug transactions, the unwitting landlord can have his building expropriated. The Supreme Court decision gives some hope to people held responsible for the crimes of others.

But innocence provides only limited protection, since the government can treat you as guilty without proving you did anything wrong. In civil forfeiture actions, it can seize your property on the pretext of having "probable cause" to think you committed a crime. If you want your cash, house or car back, you then have to go to court and assume the burden of convincing a judge that you never violated the law.

file criminal charges. In a criminal case, the prosecutor has to prove the suspect's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. In a civil case, the accused has to demonstrate his innocence. In a criminal case, the government also has to provide the suspect with a free lawyer. In a civil case, he has to find and pay for his own. Small wonder so many prosecutors prefer the latter. Sometimes, the government doesn't seize prop-

assets from supposed drug traffickers but never erty until it has gotten a criminal conviction. The problem is that there is almost no limit to what it can grab. A single minor offense can mean major deprivations - a house, a car or a farm, for example. A Kentucky man who grew the marijuana he smoked to relieve glaucoma was convicted of mere possession, his first trouble with the law. He lost a 90-acre farm worth some $70,000.

Two big changes are in order. The first is to abolish civil forfeiture - or at least restrict it, by giving the government the burden of proving some wrongdoing and by ending the practice of letting law enforcement agencies keep what they take.

The second, in criminal cases, is to insist that the punishment fit the crime. No one would propose a $70,000 fine for a first conviction of marijuana possession, but if the "fine" is imposed by a confiscation of property supposedly connected to the offense, it can be $70,000 or $700,000. This is excessive punishment, poorly disguised.

A system that encourages the government to deprive citizens of their property without troubling itself to show they've done anything wrong, and to inflict immense penalties after proving small crimes, is at war with the American traditions of liberty and law. Asset forfeiture needs curbing Law enforcement officials often will confiscate before it damages those traditions beyond repair.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Nov. 2, the 306th day of 1995. There are 59 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On Nov. 2, 1783, Gen. George Washington issued his "Farewell Address to the Army" near Princeton, N.J.

On this date: In 1795, the 11th president of the United States, James Knox Polk, was born in Mecklenburg County, N.C.

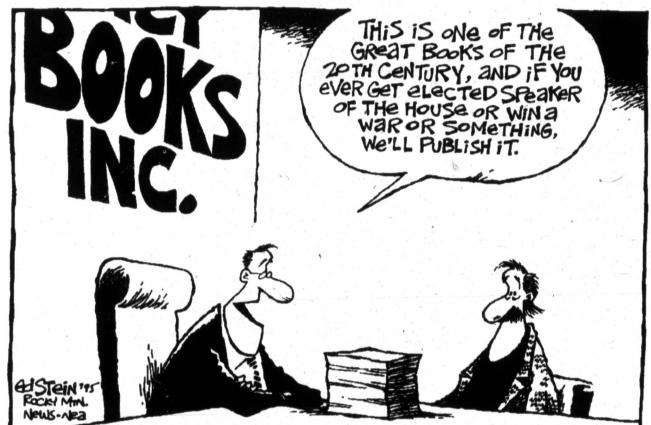

In 1865, the 29th president of the United States, Warren Gamaliel Harding, was born near Corsica,

In 1889, North Dakota and South Dakota became the 39th and 40th

In 1917, British Foreign Secretary Arthur Balfour expressed support for a "national home" for the Jews of Palestine in what came to be known as the Balfour Declaration. In 1920, 75 years ago, radio station KDKA in Pittsburgh broadcast returns from the Harding-Cox presidential election.

In 1930, Haile Selassie was crowned emperor of Ethiopia.

U.S. doesn't belong in the Balkans

The real question about President Clinton's desire to send 25,000 Americans to the Balkans is this: Is this plan crazy or stupid?

The blarney version is that Americans must contribute to a NATO peace-keeping force. Why should we? "Peace-keeping" is a euphemism designed to hide reality. If the three ethnic groups wish to live in peace, you don't need peace keepers. If they don't, there's no peace to keep.

You can see how crazy-stupid this idea is when you try to answer the following questions: What, precisely, is the mission? How will we know when it's been accomplished? How long will it take? What will be the cost? What will be the benefits to the American people?

I know that last question strikes a jarring note among internationalists, but after all, these troops belong to the U.S. government. The only source of authority for the U.S. government is the Constitution. The Constitution does not say one syllable about forming a more perfect union, ensuring domestic tranquility, promoting the general welfare and securing the blessings of liberty - in Bosnia. In fact, that famous preamble says quite specifically, "We, the people of the United States" seek all those things, including the blessings of liberty"... to ourselves and our posterity." The sole purpose and reason for the existence of the U.S. Army is to provide for the common defense of the American people. President Clinton and other internationalists propose to use the American Army as international errand boys and leg-breakers for the United Nations, for the European Union and for miscellaneous multinational corporations.

Charley Reese

The American people should insist that Congress call a halt to this abuse. Perhaps we need a constitutional amendment limiting the powers of the commander in chief so that under no circumstances will Americans ever have to wear an international uniform, serve under any but American command or go in harm's way for any purpose other than defending the United States.

One reason Switzerland is such a happy little country is that it has wisely maintained a policy of armed neutrality. The people support their government's military preparations (they have universal military training for all men) because they know their sons' lives will not be thrown away in some two-bit international scheme or foreign adventure.

As usual, the Clinton administration has been deceptive. It was U.S. Army officers who trained and probably directed the Croat invasion, which, by the way, resulted in ethnic cleansing and atrocities. Because the victims are Serbs, neither the United States nor the news media has shown

The United States has been supplying the Muslims with intelligence and has schemed with the Muslim government to instigate NATO planes to heavily bomb Serb military positions. That is not the role of a broker of peace; that is the role of covert intervention in another country's affairs.

All of this, I suppose, was designed to get Clinton a photo opportunity as the man who brought peace to the Balkans. Nonsense. The tentative agreement involves partition of Bosnia, and that agreement could have been signed three years and several thousand lives ago. There is no peace in the Balkans.

As for putting U.S. forces on the ground in the Balkans, that will prove to be a disaster. What will they do? Disarm the Serbs? We couldn't disarm the Somalis, and the Serbs are 100 times tougher than they were.

And does Clinton think that the Serbs don't read or watch television? They know all they have to do is start killing Americans. In Lebanon, it took about 241 dead Americans to force us out; in Somalia, about 18. How many American lives is Clinton willing to sacrifice for his photo opportunity as a phony peacemaker before he ignominiously retreats? His plan will waste American lives and further damage America's standing among nations. The Balkans are none of our business. It's stupid and crazy to go there. Congress, please, spare us the inanity!

Wanting to do my part to help balance the budget, I have come up with an idea to reduce spending.

Article I of the Constitution requires that a member of Congress be at least 25 years old and a citizen of the United States for seven years. What we should do is amend the document to require that they also have balanced personalities.

Do you realize how much we would save if oddballs, blockheads and buffoons were eliminated from the public payroll and forbidden to run for office? The marble halls would be half empty, and we'd save millions in salaries and benefits. Heck, we'd save that much with Jesse Helms

Think about it: Should a Foreign Relations Committee chairman who introduces the prime minister of Pakistan as the prime minister of India be rewarded with a big pension?

No way. Bye-bye, Jesse. Should a senator who serenades us from the floor with "Old McDonald Had a Farm" be taking money from the taxpayers?

Absolutely not. Goodbye, Al D'Amato. Should a House majority leader who calls the president's wife a Marxist and refers to a fellow legislator as a "fag" be blessed with high-paid inside work, courtesy of you and me?

No way. Sayonara, Dick Armey. You get the idea, I'm sure; but you would be surprised, I am equally sure, at how deep the former fighter pilot and an instructor at the Navy's Top Gun" school. But his primary opponent in the 1990 elections noticed something bizarre about him. "Get this guy out of the pilot seat," the opponent said, "he can't find his way down the hall." Last May, Cunningham took the floor to condemn "homos in the military," then said he did not realize it was a derogatory term. Recently, he described the pregnancy rate in Chicago public housing projects as being more than 100%. How so? he was asked. Well, he said, some women got pregnant more than once.

• Rep. Dick Chrysler, R-Mich., (no relation to the auto company) wants to legislate the Commerce Department out of existence, including the National Weather Service. Cable TV's Weather Channel could do the job, he said. Commerce Secretary Ron Brown was constrained to point out to him that the Weather Channel gets its information from the Weather Service.

• Rep. Barbara-Rose Collins, D-Mich., has an annual staff turnover rate of 100%. According to The Weekly Standard magazine, she has demanded that staffers do her laundry, pick up her dog, wash her car, clean her apartment, pack her luggage, take off her shoes, put on her slippers. She has the third worst attendance record on the Hill, behind a lawmaker who had a liver transplant and another who was being tried for statutory rape.

· Rep. Helen Chenoweth, R-Idaho, is openly supportive of the militia movement, "black helicopter" paranoids, anti-U.N. fanatics, and the John Birch Society - which, you may recall, once branded Dwight Éisenhower a communist. She is joined in the House by another militia defender, Rep. Steve Stockman, R-Texas, who received a fax from a militia activist last April warning that a federal building in Oklahoma would be bombed and sent a courtesy copy to the National Rifle Association.

 Rep. Mark Edward Souder, R-Ind., was distressed by the federal government's 1993 assault on the Branch Davidian compound in Waco and declared last August that the only law cult leader David Koresh broke is "he had sex with consenting minors." Demanded Souder: "Do you send tanks and government troops into the large sections of Kentucky and Tennessee and other places where such things occur?" Souder later apologized to the two states and said he didn't realize when he made his statement that Koresh had molested a 10-yearold, only that he had had sex with 14-year-olds.

Minister flashes badge after arrest in park HOUSTON (AP) — A minister, during his arrest in a city park on a charge of lewdness with a woman, flashed a badge identifying him as the "chief adviser" to a constable in neighboring Fort Bend County, officials said.

Johnnie Washington Jr., 44, of Missouri City, posted a $1,000 bond on the Class C misdemeanor.

Houston police said they arrested him at 8:40 p.m. Sunday with Sheila Marie Williams, 34, of Houston, who was also charged with public lewdness and possession of a small amount of cocaine.

Washington's attorney, William Rice of Houston, said his client will not comment on the arrest but will plead innocent.

As he was arrested, police said, Washington flashed a badge and said: "I'm Fort Bend County Constable Ray Breeding's head adviser."

The arrest surprised Breeding, of Precinct 2, who confirmed Washington's role as chief of his community advisory board. The group consists of seven community leaders in that east Fort Bend County precinct.

Jailed teenager's suicide

stuns judge SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A state district judge admitted that he was shocked at hearing the report of a 15-year-old boy hanging himself, one day after he had been ordered into the custody of the Texas Youth Commission.

The youth was found hanging in a cell at the Wackenhut Corrections Corp. facility on Tuesday. State District Judge Andy Mireles, who heard the boy's case, said it's the first time a juvenile has taken his own life while in custody in San Antonio.

The boy had appeared before Mireles on Monday in an aggravated robbery case and was committed to TYC. Informed of the death Wednesday, Mireles said he felt immediate shock.

"He stipulated to criminal activity but he was a child. There's no telling what he could've become," Mireles said.

The youth had no parents and his only local relative is an 80-yearold grandmother, the judge said.

We have had a few arguments about this because I feel that at/his ige (38) he shouldn't be so closely tied to his parents. His parents are in reasonably good health and live less than a two-hour drive from us.

Once, when we were vacationing out of town, he failed to call his parents for three days, and when we got home, they laid a guilt trip on him for having "neglected" them.

Abby, I feel that adults need some boundaries from their parents, especially, after they are married.

"We have not had a chance to see the written details and how detailed the total agreement is," Jones said. "One thing is clear. It will have no impact on our 1995 cap or our roster. We do not have to concern ourselves with 1995. We are pleased about that. There is no sense of urgency to respond now."

The Cowboys could still appeal, but Jones said "we're taking this thing in real good faith. We may not have to appeal. I don't want anyone to think we have agreed to this."

The agreement prohibits the Cowboys from cutting any player on $411,000 — the exact figure — in cap their active roster to make cap room room this year, they will be charged That was the gist of an agreement this season. It also increases the min- an additional $822,000 against the reached Wednesday between the imum salary for five-year players cap in 1996. Sanders played his first game for

Dallas last Sunday, with one-week permission from the league while the dispute was settled. He signed with Dallas last month for $35 million But the NFL told the Cowboys the contract would have to be renegotiated because of the heavy emphasis on signing bonus over salary — Sanders got a $13 million bonus, but his salary for this year and the next two is only the minimum $178,000 per

The union, which originally sided with Jones, insisted the deal contain the clause prohibiting the Cowboys to cut a player to make room for more money be counted against the cap. There had been speculation one of the players in jeopardy might be in bonus money for the next three starting defensive tackle Russell years and the $411,000 from the Maryland because of his high salary. current settlement.

If the Cowboys do not have from $178,000 to at least $250,000 ed increase in revenue, the cap it went up about $2.5 million after last season.

The new agreement sets a specific ratio of signing bonus to base salary that will be used in all new contracts sented by Sanders' deal.

Doug Allen, the union's assistant executive director, said only one other player besides Sanders is affected — kicker Pete Stoyanovich of Miami. But Allen said the discrepancy in that contract is only about Allen noted quarterback Drew Bledsoe's new $42 million, seven: year deal with New England is not affected.

The major problem for the Cowboys could come in the later years of the deal. In 1998, the last capped year, Sanders, who will be 31 then, is scheduled to be paid $5.25 million.

Under the new agreement, if he is cut by the Cowboys, Dallas Sanders if the league insisted that would still be charged under the cap for $1.86 million in signing bonus that season, plus $3.9 million

A crowd of 16,288 roared when Modano's slap shot from the left circle made the net ripple while Blackhawks goaltender Jeff Hackett was sprawled on the ice. But the shot clearly never entered the net and each team had to be content with one point.

Modano said he didn't hit the shot squarely and knew it wasn't a goal long before referee Rob Shick waved it off.

"It came off the blade of my stick funny," Modano said. "At least it gave the people something to cheer about. I wasn't going to tell the referee. I thought I'd make him work. But it wasn't a

Spurs set sights on another playoff run

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Spurs have dumped Dennis Rodman, but they're clinging to memories of the Western Conference finals.

ing Friday against the Dallas Mavericks in the Alamodome, some San Antonio players already have their sights set on improving on last season's playoff run.

"This is a different team. We're a more professional team, and I higher," said center David Robinson, last season's Most Valuable Player.

The Spurs' season ended in early June with a loss to the NBA champion Houston Rockets in the conference finals.

"I think we're going to be better, I think we're going to be deeper," Robinson said. "Our expectations are obviously a lot higher."

One ingredient in the Spurs' newfound "professionalism" is the absence of the unpredictable Rodman.

"There's no question that has some effect," Robinson said. "Houston showed you last year it wasn't that important to necessarily be the most talented team With the regular season start- but to be the best team team."

Rodman, known for his tattoos, bright hair colors and defiant behavior, had been a distraction for the Spurs all last season. It started with suspensions and a leave of absence for Rodman. Later he missed games because he injured his shoulder in a think our goals will definitely be motorcycle accident. And in the playoffs, Rodman got into an oncourt dispute with coach Bob

> The Spurs dealt Rodman, the league's leading rebounder for four straight seasons, to Chicago for backup center Will Perdue. So far the Spurs seem pleased and relieved - about the trade.

Perdue can score, said Hill, who expects to play him alongside Robinson at times. "Most centers, he can guard them. He has in the past. He started 78 games in Chicago last year," Hill
