Balkan leaders talk tough lines at negotiations

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — All three Balkan presidents are talking "very tough" at the outset of tense negotiations to end four years of bloodshed in Bosnia, but they are still insisting they want peace, the U.S. mediator said today.

Richard C. Holbrooke, in an interview with The Associated Press, also said "friction" within the Bosnia delegation was "a major concern."

Upon his arrival at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base where the talks are being held, Secretary of State Warren Christopher said the conference "may well be the last best chance for peace in Bosnia-Herzegovina."

"I hope that someday Dayton, Ohio, will be remembered as the site ... where the killing was finally brought to a halt and we started building a better future for all the people of the former Yugoslavia," said Christopher who was meeting separately with each of the Balkan presidents before the formal opening of the negotiations.

Holbrooke said all three Balkan presidents "have come here saying they want peace."

The U.S. mediator also met with presidents Slobodan Milosevic of Serbia, Alija Izetbegovic of Bosnia and Franjo Tudjman of Croatia in advance of the formal opening.

He said Tudjman will break away from the negotiations at Wright-Patterson to return to Zagreb, leaving senior officials to continue the discussions.

Holbrooke, who shuttled to the Balkans four times during 10 weeks to lay the groundwork for the conference, said that after the ceremony "a curtain of silence" would descend, shielding the negotiations from the public and the news media.

Chuckling, he said, "the AP interview is my final one."

The three Balkan leaders arrived separately Tuesday night at the air base.

"I'm an optimist. I believe the talks will succeed," declared Milosevic, the principal power broker in the region and the first to arrive.

On the eve of the talks, President Clinton warned the warring parties that their negotiations may be "the last chance we have for a very long time" to end the war.

"So much is riding on the success in Dayton, and the whole world is watching," Clinton said Tuesday at the White House.

The three presidents already have agreed on a constitutional blueprint — hammered out during a series of shuttle missions to the Balkans by Holbrooke — that would create two entities within a united Bosnian state.

But a number of critical issues remain unresolved. They include an armistice and the separation of forces, maps of the exact territorial division of Bosnia, the status of Sarajevo and the fate of Eastern Slavonia, the last slice of Croatia still occupied by rebel Serbs.

Croatia has threatened to go to war if an agreement is not reached by the end of November. A tenuous cease-fire now in force in Bosnia would almost certainly collapse in that event.

The American delegation has drafted a general peace accord, consisting of several separate agreements, that address each of the unresolved issues.

"We attach great importance to the peace initiative of the U.S. and we are here to join the efforts to bring peace to the Balkans," said Milosevic, whom top U.S. officials once accused of starting the conflict. They now concede, however, that without Milosevic, who will also be negotiating on behalf of Bosnia's Serb rebels, they have no chance of achieving a lasting peace.

School settles retaliation suit

AMARILLO (AP) — The Clarendon Independent School District owes a former teacher $75,000 to settle claims of retaliation related to her husband's job as sheriff.

A federal jury in Amarillo on Monday awarded $131,750 to Aleta Thompson, wife of Donley County Sheriff Jimmy Thompson.

Moments before the jury's verdict was announced, the sides agreed to a settlement of $75,000 plus court costs for the wife.

Her lawsuit alleged that she was denied a chance for a third appraisal during the 1991-92 school year because the superintendent politically opposed her husband. Appraisals figure into salary bonuses and renewed contracts for teachers.

Mrs. Thompson claimed denial of due process, emotional distress and retaliation that forced her to resign. She now works as a special education teacher at an Amarillo prison.

School bus accident in Dallas kills man, injures students

DALLAS (AP) - One man was killed, another was injured and 12 students were treated for minor injuries after two cars slammed into a school bus at a fog-shrouded intersection Wednesday.

The vehicles appeared to have hit the bus at approximately the same time from two separate lanes, said Detective Chris Gilliam. "Visibility may have played a huge role in this accident," Gilliam said. "At 7:35 this morning, at that intersection, there was a particularly thick fog."

The bus was sitting at a southeast Dallas intersection waiting to turn left when the car and a van slammed into the driver's side of the bus.

The driver of the car was killed by the impact, while the man at the wheel of the van suffered a broken leg and was in fair condition.

Teens collect 'gawking fee' after fire damages home

PLANO (AP) - A group of teenagers led by a 13-year-old girl have turned curiosity into generosity.

The beneficiary was a west Plano couple whose home had been damaged by fire last Saturday.

Seychelle Van Poole, 13, said she got the idea after listening to neighbors complain about the heavy traffic on their street following the fire.

"I decided since they didn't want people to come by, why not ask people for contributions if they're going to be nosy?" she said. "I was expecting to raise about $100 at most."

The teenagers started their collection efforts on Sunday, asking passing motorists for donations when they drove by to look at the damaged home.

A group of 11 youngsters took turns stopping passing cars, asking for donations. The donations ranged from $1 to $40 from motorists in 150 cars they stopped.

In a little more than 6 hours, they raised $610.25. They gave the money to owners of the home, Sam and Judith Frenkil.

"I was astounded," said Mrs. Frenkil, 44. "How they got this idea, I have no idea. We're very grateful."

Damage to the home was estimated at $220,000.

"I've never heard of something like this," said Russ Mower, fire marshal for the Dallas suburb. "I sort of admire people who come up with ingenious ways to raise money for good causes."

Mrs. Frenkil says they're looking for a temporary home and plan to rebuild their home, which was insured. She said she intends to put the money raised by the youngsters in the bank.

"When we move back in, we're going to throw the biggest neighborhood party you've ever seen," she said.

Pampa United Way agency profile

This article is one in a series of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 1995 "Paint A Brighter Tomorrow" fund-raising campaign.

The Pampa Center of the Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority offers mental health services to adults who suffer from severe mental health illness and to children and adolescents in need of mental health interventions.

In addition to outpatient psychiatric care, the center provides counseling, case management, psychosocial rehabilitation and supported housing. These services are available without regard to income.

The Pampa Center provides mental health services to residents of Gray, Roberts and Wheeler counties. The primary service population is the chronically mentally ill who might otherwise not receive psychiatric consultation, medications, intensive support and community rehabilitation, and whose out-patient care is far less costly than on an in-patient basis. Services are available on a sliding fee scale.

Pampa is one of only six TPMHA regional centers in 19 counties of the Texas Panhandle.

Support from the Pampa United Way helps maintain a center in Pampa for residents of this area.

also allows TPMHA to provide to any individuals or families crisis intervention, short-term counseling, family education and other mental health services that likewise might not be available in the community.

Last year, the Pampa Center of TPMHA served approximately 300 residents of the Pampa United Way area.

FBI grilled on changes after Waco

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI was expected to explain to senators today changes the agency made in response to the disastrous 1993 Waco siege, ending yet another round of contentious hearings on FBI conduct.

William Esposito, assistant director of the FBI's criminal investigation division, was set to testify in the second and final day of hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee. Witnesses who are experts on hostage negotiations, cults and child abuse also were to testify.

The FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms — still stinging from recent Senate criticism of their conduct in the deadly Ruby Ridge, Idaho, standoff in 1992 — faced renewed criticism in this latest hearing about their actions against the Branch Davidians near Waco, Texas.

Cult leader David Koresh and 80 followers died as their compound burned on April 19, 1993, after FBI agents used a tank to punch holes in the building and insert tear gas.

The tear gas assault followed a 51-day siege by federal agents. The siege began after four ATF agents were killed and more than a dozen others wounded Feb. 28 when they tried to serve a search warrant as part of a firearms investigation. Six Branch Davidians also died in the initial shootout.

Esposito planned today to explain the revamping and expansion of the FBI's crisis management teams since Waco, according to a Justice Department official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Many of those changes were outlined recently by FBI Director Louis Freeh in testimony at a Senate Judiciary subcommittee hearing on the Ruby Ridge standoff against white separatist Randy Weaver.

Freeh, who acknowledged that the FBI made serious mistakes at Ruby Ridge, said the bureau's shooting rules of engagement were being replaced by a tighter, uniform policy for use of deadly force by all federal law enforcement agencies that requires officers to use alternatives if possible.

In addition, the FBI was expanding its hostage rescue team so that it could handle more than one crisis at a time, according to Freeh.

The rescue team, which originally operated only abroad, is a particular sore point for FBI critics, who assert it's too militarized and it duplicates functions of the FBI's regional SWAT teams.

During Tuesday's hearings, Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, a leading critic, called the rescue team members "swashbucklers."

"The militarization of domestic law enforcement is a problem and we have to deal with that," Grassley said. "I'm talking about an attitude that puts tactical over lifesaving" considerations.

Group wants information on Carson cemeteries

PANHANDLE — The Carson County Historical Commission is continuing its research on cemeteries in Carson County.

In 1995, several county cemeteries have been surveyed or updated. The Panhandle Cemetery and the Sacred Heart Cemetery in White Deer have been updated. A survey of the White Deer Cemetery was received by the Carson County Historical Commission from an interested individual. The two cemeteries in Groom are being surveyed. A survey of the Liberty Cemetery was made in 1992. These are the only known cemeteries in Carson County.

Although the surveys are being made, a great deal of history can be found in cemeteries. The historical commission would welcome any information, family history or interesting stories concerning the county cemeteries.

Cemeteries give a directory of early residents and show varying family patterns. They reveal information about historic events, religions, lifestyles, epidemics and genealogy.

Cemeteries are protected under Texas Law (Vernon's Texas Civil Statutes, Title 26-Article 912a-10 and 912a-11), which states that property dedicated as a cemetery cannot be disturbed unless the District Court for the area has formally removed its purpose of dedication. An enclosed tract and evidence of burials are two criteria that constitute dedication of land for a cemetery.

Intentional desecration of a burial site is punished as a Class A misdemeanor, to be administered by local law officials, city or county.

The cemeteries of Carson County are well maintained by local associations. Some work has been done on older stones which have been damaged by age and weather. Some vandalism has occurred in the past.

If you have information on any Carson County cemeteries, please contact Mogie McCray, Carson County Historical Commission Chairman, P.O. Box 310, Panhandle, Texas 79068-0310 or call (806)537-5237.

Groom Ambulance Service gets new ambulance

GROOM — A long-awaited goal has been achieved by the Groom Ambulance Service with the purchase of a 1996 Type 7 Moduvan ambulance from Wheeled Coach of Dallas.

The recurring mechanical problems with the 1985 Ford Type III Ambulance caused the volunteer service to seek funding to purchase a new ambulance.

Groom Ambulance Service volunteers set out to raise matching funds to obtain a grant from the Meadows Foundation. Their goal of $25,000 was a graspable reality with $8,736 raised at a barbecue dinner prepared and served by volunteers and supporters.

The City of Groom donated $10,000 to encourage and show their support. Raffle tickets for a beef were sold to net their total income of $33,178.12.

Two grant requests were then filed to help finance the remaining $21,725 for a new ambulance.

The Meadows Foundation notified the Groom Ambulance Service of their grant approval in the amount of $21,725 for a new ambulance on Sept. 22.

The ambulance service also applied for a Texas Department of Health grant for supplies and equipment. The grant was approved on Oct. 24 in the amount of $5,681. Specifics of the grant are not yet known.

A defibrillator, radios and a gurney remain to be purchased.

Children's newsletter accused of spreading tobacco views

SAN DIEGO (AP) — School children who read the Weekly Reader between 1989 and 1994 were treated to an unhealthy dose of tobacco industry views on smoking in articles that were often illustrated with Joe Camel, researchers say.

At the time the articles appeared, the Weekly Reader was owned by the largest shareholder in RJR Nabisco, Joe Camel's creator.

Joe Camel, a promotional cartoon character for Camel cigarettes, has been widely criticized for appealing to children.

Scholastic News, a competing newsletter, was much more likely to include health warnings and to give health advocates the last word, said the authors of a study presented Monday at the annual meeting of the American Public Health Association.

In October 1994, health advocates attacked the Weekly Reader over an article for youngsters that discussed smokers' rights and the harm to the industry from smoking restrictions. The article said nothing about smoking as a cause of lung cancer and heart disease.

Following that uproar, researchers at the University of California, San Francisco analyzed 34 articles from the Weekly Reader dealing with smoking. For comparison, they analyzed 28 from another school newsletter, Scholastic News, which is published by a family-owned company.

In the Weekly Reader, distributed to school children nationwide, 68 percent of the articles included tobacco industry views and only 38 percent carried a clear message against smoking. In Scholastic News, only 32 percent of articles included industry views and 79 percent carried anti-smoking warnings.

"Weekly Reader needs to change its editorial policy," said the principal researcher, Edith Balbach of the University of California, San Francisco. "They're certainly not helping kids not to smoke."

The Weekly Reader is owned by K-III Communications, a unit of Kohlberg Kravis Roberts, which was the largest shareholder of RJR Nabisco until March, when it sold its interest in RJR.

Sandra Maccarone, Weekly Reader's editor in chief, was traveling and could not be reached for comment and no one else at the company could comment on the study, Maccarone's office said.

Balbach expressed particular concern over an article for sixth-graders on whether Joe Camel is encouraging kids to smoke. Research has shown that Joe Camel is as familiar to children as Mickey Mouse, and that Camel cigarettes have increased in popularity among teenagers since the campaign began.

Link between sluggish nervous system and behavior

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some youngsters may be just a few steady heartbeats away from a life of crime, according to a study that links lower physical arousal traits with future lawlessness.

The study of juvenile delinquents found that if it takes more to make them sweat or speed their heartbeat, they are more inclined to a life of crime than juvenile delinquents with normal arousal rates.

"We think if you have low levels of arousal, you're seeking out levels of stimulation to bring levels to normal. Some kids join a gang, burgle a house," said University of Southern California psychologist Adrian Raine.

Man pays nothing for rare Rockwell prints

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — Frank Cobb didn't expect anything when he sent in his dime, this month, in response to a 1940 Life magazine ad for a Norman Rockwell print.

Last week, he got back his dime and three 1930s mint-condition prints.

"I don't think I have a gold mine," he said. "I think I have some pretty cool items."

The advertisement had been collecting dust for 55 years. Cobb came across it about two weeks ago, while he was cleaning house. Featuring Green Giant Nibbles corn, the Life magazine ad showed a Rockwell painting of a boy and girl eating corn-on-the-cob. For a dime, readers could get a copy of the 16-by-17-inch print.

Cobb wrote to the long-defunct Minnesota Valley Canning Co., now a part of Pillsbury Co. On Friday, he received the prints that have not been offered to the public in 55 years.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Gathering gives mixed message

Perhaps the medium isn't always the essence of the message, but the medium through which it is transmitted can and does affect and distort any message. If the more constructive aspects of the "Million Man March" break through and influence American culture, perhaps it will at least have fulfilled the admonition to physicians to "first, do no harm." But it will have trouble overcoming the medium.

An assembly on the Washington Mall, however large, of black Americans paying heed to a message calling for acknowledgment of wrongdoing, repentance, atonement and a firm resolve to take more seriously the aims of personal responsibility, family togetherness and community cohesiveness could be one of the more heartening developments of our time. But the message as Louis Farrakhan himself pointed out - cannot in this instance be divorced from the messenger. And when the message itself is so mixed, it is unlikely that a constructive result will emerge.

The first problem, of course, is Mr. Farrakhan himself, the main organizer of the event. The leader of the Nation of Islam refused to apologize for his use of the term "bloodsuckers" to describe Jews, Koreans, and others who run businesses in black neighborhoods. He has not backed away from his previous description of Judaism as a "gutter religion."

Imagine, if you can, the response if Mark Furhman or David Duke were somehow to organize a rally of "a million white men" and then was careful at the rally itself to talk about family values, reconciliation, the fatherhood of God, and the need to accept personal responsibility. Most people would discount the constructive aspect of the message words that anybody capable of putting two words together can speak and that many people, in their own way, sincerely believe - because it came from a known bigot.

For many years in this country, most people have displayed disinterest in the other aspects of messages from known bigots, and rightly so. Yet one goal of the Million Man March was the elevation of Louis Farrakhan to a position of greater prominence than ever as a spokesman for black people in this country. It is troubling that this could happen without Mr. Farrakhan himself accepting criticism, acknowledging the wrongness of some of his past statements, confessing, repenting, atoning and seeking forgiveness.

Then there's the nature of the rally itself. Is the acceptance of personal responsibility best demonstrated by taking a day away from those responsibilities, traveling to a political capital, urging others not to go to work that day and gathering to hear speeches? The message will have a hard time breaking through the medium created by those actions.

And while Mr. Farrakhan said the gathering was not to petition the government but to declare independence, he proclaimed solidarity with his "brother," Jesse Jackson, who recited the standard litany of complaints against anyone who would even dream about cutting the power or scope of the great Leviathan State that has done so much to undermine personal responsibility. So the message was more than mixed.

It was also tainted by the emphasis on race - a secondary characteristic, especially compared to the content of one's character or the condition of one's soul - as a primary aspect of personal and social awareness. It is not easy to move beyond race to an enlightened brand of individualism. But such a move is essential to social peace and human dignity and freedom.

Perhaps the message of reconciliation can overcome the frailty of the messengers, who are imperfect human beings after all. But it will be an uphill battle.

Powell stirs a storm on the right

Is Colin Powell splitting the right? Tucked away in McLean, Va., considering his options, Colin Powell has already touched off several tornadoes within conservative ranks.

Bill Bennett has been at the center of the maelstrom. Since his appearance on This Week with David Brinkley several weeks ago, where he had pleasant (though still noncommittal) words for the general, faxes and angry letters have been flying among some members of the party's right wing.

Because Bennett allowed as how he could support a candidate who was pro-choice, citing Sens. Paul Coverdell (R-Ga.) and Kay Bailey Hutchison (R-Texas) as examples, James Dobson, host of a popular conservative radio program, denounced Bennett publicly as having surrendered to the "pro-abortion" position - which is a little like calling Winston Churchill "pro-Stalin" for having welcomed the Soviet Union's entry into World War II. Even Bennett's old friend Paul Weyrich, head of the Free Congress Foundation and chairman of National Empowerment Television, expressed outrage that Bennett seemed to be flirting with a Powell candidacy.

Ideological movements have always overreacted to schisms - the left was famous for demonizing "deviationism." The dispute between Bennett and Weyrich is evidence of just how divisive Colin Powell has the potential to be among conservatives. Weyrich is a seasoned political activist of strong and consistent views who has long argued that the cultural and social decay of the United States is the most urgent item on the political agenda. It was for this reason that Weyrich implored Bill Bennett to seek the Republican presidential nomination. Even today, Weyrich believes that if Bennett had chosen to run, he would be the clear favorite.

But Weyrich's views about Powell are equally strong - and that's why he was dismayed to see Bennett entertaining the idea of a Powell presidency with seeming equanimity. Powell, as Weyrich sees it, is the perfect embodiment of the American establishment - the very last man to preside over the kind of change the American people seem to want out of Washington.

No one disputes that Gen. Powell is an impressive human being - a man of character and integrity. But his political views are hardly in harmony with the majority of the Republican Party. Powell's self-description as a "Rockefeller Republican" was sufficient to convince many conservatives that he is not the man to preside over the next phase of the conservative revolution. Nelson Rockefeller was a liberal.

In some respects, so is Powell. He favors affirmative action. He is pro-choice. And he has described the Contract With America as "a little too harsh." Paul Weyrich argues strenuously (which is the only way Weyrich argues) that Powell is the only candidate who, if elected, would have the moral authority to stymie the conservative Congress. The Republican majority on Capitol Hill is not large. If Powell were to forge alliances between moderate Republicans and the Democrats, he could be a far more formidable adversary for Gingrich and Co. than the sifting Democratic president.

I agree. Conservatives who hope to hear more palatable rhetoric from the general than they have so far are asking to be deceived and ultimately disappointed. Haven't we had enough of candidates polishing their conservative rhetoric during campaigns, later to revert to business as usual? How can a man who last month wasn't even sure he was a Republican lead the Republican revolution?

For his part, Bill Bennett (who says he is totally uninterested in being Powell's running mate) maintains that he hasn't endorsed Gen. Powell and won't unless he is satisfied that Powell is the kind of leader who could accomplish through moral persuasion the kind of renewal for which the country thirsts. He is enthusiastic about the possibility of a President Powell who would push teenage abstinence, adoption, crisis pregnancy centers, individual responsibility and the importance of a civilization's moral code.

It's a nice dream. But Gen. Powell, for all his virtues, is the guy who has said, "I'm troubled by the political passion of those on the extreme right who seem to claim divine wisdom on political as well as spiritual matters. I'm disturbed by the class and racial undertones of their rhetoric." That is not conservatism's leader.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 1, the 305th day of 1995. There are 60 days left in the year. This is All Saints Day.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 1, 1952, the United States exploded the first hydrogen bomb, in a test at Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands.

On this date:

In 1512, Michelangelo's paintings on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel were first exhibited to the public.

In 1604, William Shakespeare's tragedy Othello was first presented at Whitehall Palace in London.

In 1765, the Stamp Act went into effect, prompting stiff resistance from American colonists.

In 1861, Gen. George B. McClellan was made General-in-Chief of the Union armies.

In 1936, in a speech in Milan, Italy, Benito Mussolini described the alliance between his country and Nazi Germany as an "axis" running between Rome and Berlin.

In 1944, Harvey, a comedy by Mary Chase about a man and his friend, an invisible 6-foot rabbit, opened on Broadway.

Meaning of the 'Million Man March'

When a million (or 800,000, or even just 400,000) people show up anywhere for a single purpose, the event indisputably deserves notice. When the demonstrators are all black, and practically all men, you can be sure that some important point is being made.

Analyses of the huge crowd that showed up for Louis Farrakhan's "Million Man March" in Washington recently indicate that it consisted primarily of middle-class blacks, and this undoubtedly accounts for the blessed fact that it didn't get out of hand - no brawls, no riots, no undisciplined behavior.

What point were the marchers making? The answer is necessarily a little vague, because no definitive manifesto, endorsed by them, was issued either before or after the event. But the major sentiments of the crowd are not in doubt: They were eager to acknowledge their own huge share of responsibility for their fate, and for that of their women and children, and to proclaim their determination to do better in the future. Their mood was not unlike that of the male Christian "Promise Keepers" who have been holding huge rallies all over the country recently.

As thus defined, the march was both a success and a positive good. Beyond that, however, it had important implications for the future of the country, in ways both good and bad.

For one thing, it unquestionably increases the prominence and clout of the march's organizer and leader, Louis Farrakhan. Now, there is simply no blinking at the fact that Farrakhan is a racist and a virulent anti-Semite, whose long range goal is to separate the white and black races altogether. The marchers obviously knew this, and decided to ignore it. Apparently they regarded the march itself as a good enough idea to warrant their participation, irrespective of Farrakhan's views.

Understanding this, a lot of ink and hot air has been wasted since the march trying to "separate the messenger from the message." This is sound enough, if by that expression all one means is that the marchers didn't understand themselves to be endorsing Farrakhan's repellent views. But, while not endorsing those views, they were perfectly willing to join hands with the man who holds them - and thereby hangs the single most important political point of the entire event.

For over 60 years the Democratic Party has regarded America's black vote as its wholly owned subsidary. Black support for Democratic candidates, from City Hall to the White House, routinely runs above 90%. Observers at the 1988 Democratic national convention in Atlanta noted that approximately a third of all the Democratic officials - from delegates and candidates to staff and clerical workers - visible on the floor and on television screens were black. Not since 1964 has a Democratic presidential candidate carried a majority of the white vote.

Yet where were the liberal Democrats at the "Million Man March"? Jesse Jackson, of course, showed up and proclaimed his solidarity with the crowd. A few individual Democratic office-holders, practically all black, did likewise. But the stunning fact is that this largest political demonstration in the history of America's blacks was conceived and carried out without either the initiative, the input, or the permission of the liberals who dominate the Democratic Party. (Their titular leader, President Clinton, fled Washington altogether, pleading a prior engagement.) What does that suggest about America's political future? It doesn't bode well for liberals.

And there is one other conclusion to be drawn. If any white public figure in America had uttered even half of the attacks on the Jewish people and Jewish institutions that Louis Farrakhan has uttered in the last year, he or she would have been, quite simply, extinguished as a significant factor in American public life. Yet Louis Farrakhan marches on, apparently immune. Black anti-Semitism is evidently a separate phenomenon.

Of renewal, politics and the ancient truth

Sen. Dan Coats of Indiana rang up some journalists the other day to talk about his Project for American Renewal. He sent along some press clippings. By gosh. This thing is getting attention.

And why not? The project speaks forcefully to our No. 1 problem, which is cultural degeneration. It does so, moreover, in the context of government. Coats, the conservative Republican who succeeded Vice President Dan Quayle in the Senate, wants the federal government to "offer a vision of healing for broken communities."

This is not libertarian stuff. The Coats proposal, which has the full backing of our best-known moral doctor, Bill Bennett, consists of 19 bills that put the federal government on the side of "fathering, mentoring and family," "community empowerment," and "effective compassion."

Thus, the Kinship Care Act would "promote turning over parentless children to adult relatives. The Family Reconciliation Act would beef up funding for pre-divorce counseling where young children are involved.

The Responsible Parent Act would match federal money spent on family planning with money spent on abstinence education and adoption services.

The Assets for Independence Act would create a demonstration program for individual development accounts that could be matched by public or private funds and used, say, to buy a home.

The Comprehensive Charity Reform Act would offer a $500 "poverty tax credit," available to non-itemizing taxpayers, for donations to charity.

William Murchison

Coats calls this measure the heart of his program.

You can see readily enough what kind of debate this stuff will engender. It flies defiantly in the face of present trends. Here is the new Republican Congress, trying to undermine federal power; here is one of that Congress' members, proposing not so much to abolish as to rechannel that power.

"This is not a government plan to rebuild civil society," Coats and Bennett protest in the Wall Street Journal. "It is an attempt to take the side of people and institutions that are rebuilding their own communities and often feel isolated and poorly equipped."

What to say about the Coats program? First, it beats the living daylight out of government policy as presently construed and practiced. Second, it raises, ah, problems. I can quickly think of two:

(1) The lack of guarantees respecting how long a good government program would stay good. The tendency of government is to grow in size and cost and power. Coats' programs might work as intended so long as Coats-like Republicans ran things, but that wouldn't be forever. I can foresee, in the event the renewal project is enacted, a steady accretion of power at the bureaucratic level - power just waiting for some specialist in coercion and manipulation to grab and wield.

(2) The basic incompetence of government to address moral questions - the kind that, in today's society, most need addressing. Government isn't concerned primarily with dignity and honor and moral responsibility; government is concerned chiefly with the allocation and balancing of power.

There are three institutions that shape character and transmit historic norms - family, church and school. Through the public schools, government used to participate in this endeavor. No more. You can't convincingly teach, in a government setting, that one "value" (as we nowadays, pathetically, call truth), is better than another one. Not unless you want to antagonize an interest group that says otherwise.

Should we, therefore, forget the Coats initiative? Hard to do in any case. The problem is real, and there are some nuggets here, like a bill requiring Washington to turn over unoccupied single-family housing units to local government for sale to the poor. As we talk, let's remember one thing: The best-intentioned government program is no substitute for that ages-old moral vision that alone nurtures and supports civilization. We need government programs a lot less than we need a religious revival.

Biologists puzzled by rare sighting

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The unusual sighting of a manatee off the Texas Gulf coast has left marine scientists puzzled in its wake.

The endangered, walrus-like creature — rarely seen in Texas waters — surfaced off Naval Station Ingleside for at least two hours Tuesday, drawing military personnel and scientists to watch.

"We wonder why it's here," Tony Amos, a researcher who watched the manatee at Naval Station Ingleside, told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times. "But there probably was a time when manatees did range here regularly — before man came on."

There is no resident population of manatees in Texas. But populations exist off Florida and off Mexico's Yucatan peninsula.

Some wildlife officials have theorized that tropical storm activity off Mexico this year could have prompted some manatees to swim north to Texas.

Cholesterol lowering drug could delay heart disease

DALLAS (AP) — A cholesterol-lowering drug could delay a form of heart disease in women at the same rate it slows the disease in men, according to a new study.

Connecticut researchers studied the effects cholesterol-lowering drugs have on women. Even though heart diseases are among the leading causes of death for women in the U.S., studies of cholesterol-lowering drugs have rarely included them, the researchers said. Poor cholesterol levels have been cited as factors in heart diseases.

The results of the study were released today in Circulation, the Dallas-based American Heart Association's scientific journal. Researchers showed that the drug lovastatin slowed the hardening of the heart's arteries in 18 of 25 treated women.

Researchers for 16 weeks gave lovastatin to 25 women suffering from coronary arteriosclerosis, and gave a neutral treatment to 29 women in a control group. They tested the diameter of coronary arteries after two years, reasoning that the hardening got worse if the arteries' diameter had shrunk by 0.4 millimeters or more.

Detective tracks tombstone mysteries

AUSTIN (AP) — Over 100 years after Hugh K. Holt and Walter A. Moore died, a police detective is still on the case.

From Clarence Wood's office in the basement evidence room at Austin Police headquarters, Wood has waged a five-year investigative campaign to return stolen headstones to cemeteries from which they were taken by vandals.

"Tombstones are for posterity, so that people know that an individual once lived," he said. "When one is stolen, there's nothing left to show that they were here."

The detective and amateur genealogist has returned 18 headstones to their proper places since 1990 in cemeteries and small, rural graveyards. Most were taken by young people, he said.

After defeat and gaffe, Quebec's separatist premier calls it quits

MONTREAL (AP) — Quebec's separatist government begins the search for a new leader today after the dramatic resignation of Premier Jacques Parizeau, who appalled even supporters by blaming immigrants for an aching close loss in the independence referendum.

Parizeau, a key player in the French-Canadian separatist movement for two decades, expressed hope that his departure would help, not hinder, the crusade for independence of Canada's largest province.

Lucien Bouchard, head of the Bloc Quebecois separatist party in Parliament, distanced himself from Parizeau's remarks, in which he blamed Monday's defeat on "money and the ethnic vote."

"His declaration does not reflect what sovereigntists feel," said Bouchard, who was the separatists' most passionate orator during the referendum campaign.

Bouchard, who lost a leg to a near-fatal flesh-eating disease last year, refused to say if he wanted Parizeau's job. His future, and that of his party, were on the agenda of a party leadership meeting today.

Parizeau, 65, was elected premier last year after promising to hold a referendum on secession. His side lost Monday, but only narrowly — 50.6 percent to 49.4 percent — just 53,000 votes out of 4.6 million cast.

Fifteen years ago, Quebec's first secession referendum lost much more handily, 60-40.

Instead of savoring the separatists' strong showing this time, Parizeau shocked even his colleagues with a vitriolic speech Monday night, blaming immigrants for the narrow defeat.

Prime Minister Jean Chretien and other politicians, as well as numerous minority leaders and anti-racism groups, denounced Parizeau's remarks.

At an emotional news conference Tuesday, Parizeau said he would step down as premier before Christmas. He denied he was resigning because of the previous night's diatribe, but it was clear that his even closest allies had repudiated him.

Parizeau said he used terms "that could have been much better chosen." But he reiterated his view that Quebec's French-speaking majority had, in effect, been thwarted by non-francophones.

About 90 percent of English-speaking, Cree Indians and immigrant Quebecers opposed secession; French Quebecers — who make up 82 percent of the population — voted for independence by a 60-40 margin.

Chretien, a Quebecer himself, said he understood Parizeau's decision to resign and offered to work with whoever replaced him.

Chretien also proposed talks with provincial premiers on recognizing Quebec as a distinct society — it has one-sixth of the territory and one-fourth of Canada's population — and transferring certain federal powers to the 10 Canadian provinces.

But Bouchard made clear Quebec considered these to be inadequate half-measures.

"Nobody's going to get us sovereignists involved in another 30 years of sterile discussions," he said. "Never again will sovereignists be begging for anything from the rest of Canada."

Bouchard reiterated the separatists' promise to mount another independence drive. Quebec law bars another referendum until after new legislative elections, but separatists control the legislature and could change the law or call early elections.

Parizeau blamed himself for failing to rally more English-speakers and immigrants to the separatist cause, but said he was hopeful the goal of independence would be reached.

"How should that step be taken that will lead to that inevitable rendezvous with sovereignty?" he asked. "It is not up to me to say... Now others will have to take it forward to its final conclusion."

Clinton, Republican leaders discussing budget impasse

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton and congressional Republicans seem willing to postpone the government's looming borrowing crisis by a few weeks. But it remains ensnared in a budget fight that's far from resolved.

Clinton and GOP leaders plan to meet today at the White House for their first face-to-face talks about their fiscal differences in nearly two months.

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said the discussion would be limited to the government's borrowing authority, which could run out this month, but Republicans said they want to consider all budget disputes.

"I don't think you can talk about the debt limit in isolation," House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said Tuesday. "You have to include reconciliation, spending bills, the whole thing."

Reconciliation is the technical name for the huge package Republicans have assembled that promises to balance the budget by 2002. It relies heavily on reductions in Medicare, Medicaid and other social programs, and contains tax cuts for families and businesses.

The House and Senate approved similar budget-balancing bills last week. Behind the scenes, lawmakers and aides have begun trying to work out differences between the two chambers.

In a closed-door meeting Tuesday, Gingrich, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and other leaders agreed that the final package would contain $245 billion in tax cuts over seven years, participants said — the same amount the House and Senate initially agreed to. Moderates have been hoping to shrink the tax-cut package so some spending reductions could be erased, but conservatives have insisted on retaining the full amount.

GOP leaders hope to send a final budget-balancing bill to Clinton by Nov. 16. Clinton has said he will veto it, citing excessive spending cuts and tax reductions.

Even before today's White House meeting, GOP leaders said they would probably send Clinton a bill extending federal borrowing authority until about Nov. 29. Treasury officials say the current $4.9 trillion debt limit will probably be reached early this month.

The administration had been insisting that the extension run until mid-January, when this year's budget fight may be over. But Clinton signaled some flexibility Tuesday, saying, "I think any responsible extension is a move forward."

Republicans hope to build pressure on Clinton by halting the government's ability to borrow money unless the president signs their budget-balancing measure. Extending borrowing authority until Nov. 29 would give Clinton a few days to decide whether to sign the big budget bill, which will also include a long-term extension of borrowing power.

Should the borrowing authority lapse and a default be triggered, most economists say interest rates would shoot upward and the financial markets would be rocked.

Aiming to pressure Republicans, the administration sent a letter to Gingrich Tuesday warning that failure to extend the debt limit by today would disrupt an announcement of a Treasury auction scheduled for next week.

Klein releases provocative ad

NEW YORK (AP) — Just months after pulling a campaign featuring teens in provocative poses, Calvin Klein has released an underwear ad showing a well-muscle young man in briefs, his legs spread wide to show off his crotch.

Once again, critics want it pulled.

"This is nothing more than pornography," said Donald Wildmon, head of the American Family Association. He said Tuesday that his organization would ask consumers to boycott Klein products.

In August, criticism from Wildmon and others forced Klein to cancel a jeans ad campaign that featured models, some as young as 15, in provocative poses and settings.

The U.S. Justice Department is investigating whether the ads broke child pornography laws. The department will decide within a few weeks whether to continue the investigation, spokesman John Russell said.

The new underwear ads appear on the back of November's Esquire and December's Playboy. The ad features the gel-haired, chest-ripped model Joel West, 20.

Families demand DNA testing of remains

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Bone and teeth fragments unearthed two years ago at the crash site of an Air Force gunship shot down over Laos in 1970 left some relatives unconvinced that their loved ones died.

Now, the families of the 10 servicemen that the government presumes were killed are demanding more tests of the remains. The government, however, says there is nothing more that can be done and plans a burial for next week.

"These men and our families deserve a better fate than a declaration of death by association," said Patti Hallman, whose father, Col. Charles S. Rowley, was aboard the AC-130 gunship.

Relatives argue that even government experts concluded the remains — more than 1,400 bone fragments and a half-dozen teeth — could have come from only one person. They want DNA testing done on the fragments to try to make a positive identification.

"They have not proved beyond a doubt that my father was on that plane," said Karen Brooks

Folger of Abilene, Texas, whose father, Col. William Brooks, was listed among the victims. "We can't see the remains. We can't have any testing done. To me, this is not closure."

The Pentagon plans to bury the remains with full military honors on Nov. 8 at Arlington National Cemetery. The bones will be placed in a single coffin under a marker bearing the names of nine of the 10 men. One family asked that the name of their loved one be left off.

"I don't really think we'll be able to stop it," said Ms. Folger, who plans to attend the burial despite her objections. "I'm going because I feel that this is a way to honor my father. This, to me, is a memorial ceremony — and that's all."

Ms. Hallman said she will travel to the service from her home in nearby Middlesex County "out of respect."

Only one person who parachuted to safety was able to survive the April 22, 1970 crash. And though relatives acknowledge the remaining 10 were on the plane, they believe they may have survived and ended up in prisoner of war camps. Hallman, for example, says another POW reported seeing her father after the crash.

The families said they have been told that the bones, after a quarter-century of exposure to the elements, aren't in good enough condition for DNA testing.

"We tried to pay to have our own forensics," said Ginger Davis, a Virginia Beach woman whose husband, Col. Charlie Davis, was on the flight. "All we got was no, no, no... That plane could have landed on a Laotian peasant."

Johnny Webb, deputy director of the Army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii where the remains from the crash were examined, said the recovered bone fragments were small and showed evidence of burning.

"That would, in most cases, destroy the DNA," he said.

But the families hope the burial won't end the matter and are looking to Congress. Rep. Robert K. Dornan, a California Republican, has co-sponsored a bill that would require the government to review such cases under certain circumstances.

Kids Caught in Middle When Divorced Parents Push and Pull

DEAR ABBY: I must disagree with your flip answer to "Ticked Off in Texas." It is clear that neither you nor any of your staff has ever been in the position of being a second wife where there are children from a prior marriage.

I agree, it is very important for the divorced parents to be able to discuss matters pertaining to their child (or children), but that is as far as it should go.

Buying items from the drug (or grocery) store for his former wife should not be his responsibility. As an adult, she should assume responsibility for her own shopping.

If this couple is such good friends, why did they get divorced in the first place? He has remarried, and his main responsibility is to his present wife. For you to mock the second wife for having the courage to express her feelings shows an unusual lack of understanding on your part.

ALSO TICKED OFF

DEAR ALSO: I stand by my reply. In no way did I mock the second wife for expressing her feelings.

Hostility between former spouses hurts everyone — especially the children. It is much better when former spouses can be friendly and interact with their children.

Doing occasional favors and maintaining a reasonably friendly relationship does not mean that the second wife is loved less. In fact, a husband who does not have to contend with his former wife's anger is freer to pursue the good life with wife No. 2.

DEAR ABBY: When someone dies and the family requests that in lieu of sending flowers a donation be made to a fund established by the family, is it not unreasonable to expect an acknowledgment or a thank-you note?

In this particular case, only contributions in excess of $100 were acknowledged. Since when does the amount of the gift dictate whether or not someone's kindness is to be acknowledged?

We, and many others, feel slighted and bitter over the appalling behavior of the family of the deceased. Nearly five months have passed since "Mr. X's" death, and hundreds of people who lovingly made their donations in his honor will never be thanked because the dollar amounts did not meet the family's criteria.

What do you think, Abby? We think the family could use a course in human decency and manners. SLAPPED IN THE FACE IN LONG ISLAND

DEAR SLAPPED: The deceased's family should have thanked everyone who made a contribution in honor of their loved one. Their failure to do so is inexcusable.

DEAR ABBY: I just read about the woman who was invited to a friend's bridal shower, but not the wedding.

I am the bride's grandmother. I have never met the groom. We live six states apart.

I received an invitation to the reception — but not the wedding. I was told the wedding was going to be "a small one," so I was not invited.

Needless to say, I was not going to travel hundreds of miles just for a reception, so I declined the invitation and did not send a gift.

I haven't heard from my granddaughter since.

FOOTBALL

PAMPA — Pampa hosts Dumas in a junior varsity game Thursday night in Harvester Stadium.

The Pampa JV's are now 4-1 on the season after defeating Randall JV, 40-24, last week.

Kevin Jernigan scored twice for Pampa, once on a 10-yard run and the other on a 30-yard pass from Josh Blackmon. Ryan Schumacher caught a 22-yard touchdown pass from Blackmon.

Blackmon kicked two field goals of 33 and 37 yards. Also scoring for Pampa were Jeremy Knutson (63-yard run) and Ronnie Proby (76-yard kickoff return).

Aaron Hayden and Knutson each had fumble recoveries and Blackmon intercepted a pass.

BOXING

NEW YORK (AP) — A handwriting expert testified a boxer's signature on two copies of a contract with promoter Don King were identical, supporting a government theory that King faked a contract to collect insurance money.

Gus Lesnevich's testimony came as federal prosecutors considered whether to rest after a month of testimony meant to prove King collected $350,000 illegally from Lloyd's of London. The trial will resume Thursday.

King is charged with nine counts of mail fraud in an indictment that alleged he faked a contract with Julio Cesar Chavez for a canceled 1991 fight so he could collect training fees that he had never paid to the boxer.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — First basemen Frank Thomas of the Chicago White Sox and Jeff Bagwell of Houston became only the third and fourth players to achieve perfect scores in statistical rankings by the Elias Sports Bureau.

The only previous players with 100s were New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly in 1987 and Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken in 1991.

Cleveland outfielder Albert Belle was third at 97.143, followed by Atlanta pitcher Greg Maddux at 95.883. Rankings are based on statistics over two seasons.

NEW YORK (AP) — World Series ratings increased 13 percent this year over 1993, the first time they've gone up in four years.

Atlanta's six-game victory over Cleveland averaged a 19.5 rating and 33 share, Nielsen Media Research said. The rating was well above the 17.3 rating and 30 share for Toronto's victory over Philadelphia two years ago, but 3 percent below the 20.2 for Toronto's victory over Atlanta in 1991.

Cowboys' Jones expects Super Bowl title

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) — Perfection. Jerry Jones will settle for nothing less.

He says there can be no excuse short of catastrophic injury for not winning the Super Bowl.

"There can't be one acceptable excuse except for losing one of the triplets (Michael Irvin, Emmitt Smith or Troy Aikman)," said the owner of the Dallas Cowboys. "I still haven't been able to accept the fact we didn't win last year even with the injuries that we had. I wanted to win three Super Bowls in a row."

The Cowboys lost 38-28 to the eventual champion San Francisco 49ers in the NFC championship game.

"I know what three turnovers in the first five minutes can do," Jones said.

Jones said coach Barry Switzer's job will be safe even if the Cowboys fail to win the Super Bowl this year.

"No one gets fired if we don't win," Jones said. "The pain is enough. It was enough for me last year. Pain is all the penance I need. We've just got to figure out a way to do it this year. All we have to remember is how we're going to feel if we don't win."

Switzer was asked if the Cowboys should win the Super Bowl now that the 49ers have been hit with heavy injuries.

"I like our odds if we play like we did last week (a 28-13 win over Atlanta)," Switzer said. "But it's a big trap."

Jones has been battling the NFL on two legal fronts and there are reports of a third problem swirling about the franchise.

The NFL has sued Jones for $300 million over a property rights hassle and Jones has sued back. The NFL has ruled Deion Sanders' $35 million contract invalid and the issue is before a special master in New York City.

Now, reports have surfaced that defensive lineman Leon Lett and cornerback Clayton Holmes have run afoul of the league's drug abuse policy.

Jones refused comment on the matter Tuesday, saying the NFL has yet to contact the club. Under NFL rules, a club can be fined $500,000 for comment on the drug issue.

"The area of drug abuse needs to be confidential and I can live with that," Jones said. "I do think the leak for the (broadcast and published) reports had to come from a league source. I have yet to be contacted by the league."

On the Sanders matter, Jones said he didn't think anything would happen that would hurt the Cowboys for the 1995 season.

"Nothing is imminent and I have no concerns anything will affect this year," Jones said.

NFL owners will meet in Grapevine, Texas, next Tuesday and Wednesday. Club vice president Stephen Jones said he didn't believe his dad would be on the agenda.

"I know the schedule includes realignment and the issues with (Raiders owner) Al Davis," the younger Jones said.

Someone quipped: "Well, Jerry you have a week to work on it to get on the schedule."

The Cowboys play the Philadelphia Eagles Monday night at Texas Stadium. The last time the Cowboys were on national television was the season opener, when Jerry Jones paraded Nike president Phil Knight about the sidelines heralding a deal with the company. It angered numerous owners and led to the lawsuit.

Pampa running back Matt Archibald gains some big yardage against Randall last week while middle linebacker Floyd White (left) looks for somebody to block. Archibald leads the team in rushing with 575 yards on 85 carries. White is the Harvesters' leading tackler with 73 tackles.

Harvesters have been dominant over Dumas

PAMPA — Ever since 1992, Pampa has been about as dominating against Dumas as any team the Harvesters have faced.

Pampa has outscored Dumas, 118-33, the past three years, including last season's 62-8 romp.

However, the Harvesters were enroute to the state quarterfinals in 1991 when Dumas pulled off one its biggest upsets ever. On a snow-covered field in Dumas, the Demons shut down the Harvesters' potent offense, 18-0. The Harvesters won their next four games and finished the season with an 11-3 overall record.

Friday night, starting at 7:30, Pampa and Dumas hook it up again in a District 1-4A contest in Dumas.

Pampa is rolling along with a 6-1 record for the season while Dumas is struggling at 2-5. The Harvesters are perfect at 3-0 while Dumas is still looking for its first district win after three setbacks.

"Dumas is a very young team with mostly sophomores and juniors," said PHS head coach Dennis Cavalier. "It looks like their winning seasons are in front of them, but I know they'll play us hard Friday night."

Pampa features a solid offense to go along with the district's top-ranked defense.

Alternating tailbacks Matt Archibald and Derahian Evans, both seniors, lead Pampa's rushing attack. Evans has scored 14 touchdowns and leads the district in scoring with 84 points. Archibald has scored three touchdowns and leads the Harvesters in rushing with 575 yards on 85 attempts.

Pampa has the district's No. 2 offense behind Borger, averaging 307.7 yards per game. Borger is averaging 372.6 yards.

Pampa is No. 1 defensively, allowing just 127.4 yards per game. Middle linebacker Floyd White leads the Harvesters in tackles with 73, followed by tackle Donnie Middleton with 68. It was weakside linebacker Brian Phelps, however, who had a team-high 12 tackles in Pampa's 40-3 win over Randall last week.

"Brian is consistently good each and every week for us. I'm just glad he plays for Pampa," said Cavalier.

Nebraska standout expected to play against Iowa State

By DAVE ZELIO
Associated Press Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) —

Top-ranked Nebraska, which has had four different starters at tailback this season, is getting Lawrence Phillips back this week if he can recover from a sprained ankle.

Phillips, who injured the ankle Tuesday, still is expected to play Saturday against Iowa State. Among those who can't wait to see how he performs is quarterback Tommie Frazier.

"It's nice to have him back around," Frazier said.

"We missed him. We know we'll probably be a better team with him." Nebraska (8-0, 4-0 Big Eight) has rolled without Phillips, a junior from West Covina, Calif. His return has pleased teammates, but coach Tom Osborne cut short a news conference Tuesday because of a question about Phillips.

The question came from a CBS television reporter: "If one of your players had roughed up a member of your family and had dragged her down a flight of steps, would you have reinstated that player on the team?"

Osborne declined to answer on camera. He told the reporter in the hall outside the interview room the answer would have been yes.

The story is expected to air Friday, a day before Phillips is expected to play for the first time in two months.

Osborne said there was no definite plan for Phillips' return against Iowa State (3-5, 1-3 Big Eight), though he is not expected to start.

Freshman tailback Ahman Green has started the last three games and leads the team with 821 yards and 10 touchdowns. Nebraska also has Clinton Childs, Damon Benning and James Sims available.

But the focus Saturday will be on Phillips, who hasn't played since the Sept. 9 game at Michigan State. In two games, he rushed for 359 yards and seven touchdowns and was being tabbed a Heisman Trophy contender.

That ended Sept. 10 when Phillips climbed into the third-floor apartment of transfer quarterback Scott Frost and attacked Katherine McEwen, a 20-year-old Nebraska basketball player.

Police said McEwen, who has received 24-hour protection paid for by the university since the attack, cut her head when she was knocked down by Phillips and was struck several times. She then was dragged down stairs into the building's foyer before she was pulled away from Phillips by Frost and other neighbors.

Osborne, who said he asked Phillips and McEwen to stay away from each other, dismissed his star tailback the same day of the attack.

Osborne later said Phillips could come back if he received counseling, cleared an NCAA investigation into his background and was approved by university officials and his teammates for breaking the student conduct code and team rules.

All of that has been done. Phillips awaits sentencing Dec. 1 for misdemeanor assault and trespassing convictions.

Osborne was criticized last month when he said Phillips would suit up for the Iowa State game. Some women's groups and fans said Phillips should have been kicked off the team for good, or at least suspended for the season.

They also pointed to two other run-ins Phillips has had with police in the last 1 1/2 years. Phillips was fined $50 for disturbing the peace following a party and avoided misdemeanor charges by agreeing to pay a Doane College student $400 for a necklace the student said was damaged in a scuffle with Phillips.

Osborne has said football provides an essential structure for Phillips. Osborne and school officials also say psychological profiles of the 20-year-old player indicate he is not a threat.

"I'm glad he's getting a second chance," Huskers receiver Clester Johnson said. "I think he deserves it. He did the crime, he's done the time."

Except for an Oct. 18 radio interview, Phillips has been silent about the issue. In written statements issued through the university and on Omaha radio station KFAB, he said he was sorry for making a mistake and for reacting "without thinking."

Texas high school backs putting up big numbers

By JAIME ARON
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Forget trying to figure out which high school football players are going to have big impacts in college or which ones may wind up playing on Sundays.

However, if you're arguing over which players are the best compared with their high school peers this season, here's two names that belong on that list, yet you've likely never heard of: Pety Salaiz of six-man power Mullin and Chris Edwards of Northwest Academy, a Houston-area private school.

Edwards is coming off a six-touchdown, 417-yard game that was only one yard short of second-most ever in a game for a Texas private school player. He has 1,926 yards and 178 points in eight games with an average of about 13 yards per carry.

Salaiz (pronounced SUH-lease) has even more eye-popping numbers. He's approaching the unheard-of figure of 10,000 career rushing yards, making him one of the all-time greats in six-man history.

His coach, Leonard Buffe, compares Salaiz to one of the greatest players ever to carry a football: Walter Payton.

"I'm not trying to say he's as good as (Payton) was, but he kind of runs like that," Buffe said. "He's got this little deal where he slows down and, about the time they're ready to tackle him, he's gone. In two steps, he's full speed. That's natural instinct."

At 5-foot-8 and 175 yards, Salaiz is a bit smaller than Payton was, although they both have thick, powerful legs characteristic of all great running backs.

Salaiz also isn't likely to be nicknamed "Sweetness" like Payton was. For Salaiz, "Toughness" would be more accurate.

Salaiz was one of many foster children who found homes in Mullin. The small West Texas community provided the structure and stability every teen-ager needs.

Salaiz also found football, and he was as good for the game as it was for him. He picked it up quickly, along with his teammates. Their eighth-grade team was so good that in an entire season they allowed one first down and "minus 200-something offense," Buffe said.

Statistics vary, but Buffe's numbers show that Salaiz has 9,646 yards. He's likely to get the remaining 354 yards to 10,000 against May, this weekend.

Things have been clicking ever since. Salaiz has been a starter since he was a freshman and he's improved every year.

Although good six-man teams tend to produce basketball-like statistics, what Salaiz has done is still remarkable.

Consider just his last two games, when he ran 39 times for 527 yards against Zephyr, and against Blanket, which stacked the defense to stop Salaiz yet he managed 221 yards and three touchdowns on eight carries.

Buffe laughed as he described Blanket's vain attempt to stuff Salaiz on Mullin's first play. The play itself is no secret — Buffe uses the same one every game "to see if anybody can stop him."

"They had the whole team waiting for him and he went right through the middle of them for 61 yards," Buffe said.

"Against Zephyr the week before they did stop him but he was already 40 yards downfield."

Statistics vary, but Buffe's numbers show that Salaiz has 9,646 yards. He's likely to get the remaining 354 yards to 10,000 against May, this weekend.

Baylor's Robinson, A&M's Clay honored as players of the week

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
 AP Sports Writer

WACO (AP) — Adrian Robinson, Baylor's senior safety, proves you have to have brains to match your brawn to succeed at his position.

In Saturday's 27-24 victory over Texas Christian, quarterback Max Knake tried to throw a touchdown pass over cornerback Joe Manor.

Luckily for Baylor, Robinson noticed that his man, tight end Brian Collins, was blocking on the play and not trying to be a receiver. Robinson left Collins and intercepted the pass, his second of the day.

For such alertness, Robinson was named The Associated Press SWC Defensive Player of the Week.

Week.

A Texas A&M tight end, Hayward Clay, did go out for passes and caught two of them for touchdowns in the Aggies' 30-7 victory over Houston. It earned Clay the AP SWC Offensive Player of the Week citation.

But back to Robinson, called by TCU coach Pat Sullivan "one of the premier safeties in the country."

"His play certainly did nothing to diminish that," Sullivan said. "I thought that his interception may have been the key play of the game. He came from way out in centerfield to make the interception. It was a tremendous athletic play on his part. Jason Tucker got by the cornerback and I'm sure Max just didn't see Robinson."

Said Baylor coach Chuck Reedy: "Adrian is an All-American player and he played like it."

Robinson also had six tackles and broke up another pass in the Baylor victory.

Robinson is the leader among SWC active players with 10 career interceptions. He is now tied for ninth in Baylor history.

Clay caught three passes for 36 yards including the two touchdowns in the most productive day by an A&M tight end since James McKeahan caught four passes against the Sooners for 40 yards.

"They were overplaying our wide receivers so it left me open over the middle," said Clay. "Corey Pullig was right on target, too."

Broken thumb puts Tyson out of action

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
 AP Boxing Writer

LAS VEGAS (AP) — For $39.95, Mike Tyson can watch the telecast of the Riddick Bowe-Evander Holyfield fight Saturday night. Or he can attend in person.

Whatever he does, a spectator is all he can be. A broken right thumb has knocked him out of his fight against Buster Mathis Jr. on free television at the MGM Grand, a short cab drive from Caesars Palace, the site of the Bowe-Holyfield match.

The injury will keep the former undisputed heavyweight champion out of action for from four to six weeks.

"This is a really serious setback," Tyson said. "I was really anticipating this fight."

Actually it was a reinjury of the thumb that forced the fight to be postponed.

Tyson broke the thumb approximately two weeks ago, but hoped he would heal in time. Then he broke it while sparring either Monday or Tuesday.

"I'm very upset because this was a great opportunity for me," said Mathis, who was to get $800,000, by far his biggest paycheck. Tyson was to get $10 million.

"Hopefully, this opportunity will rise up again and there will be a Buster Mathis-Mike Tyson fight."

John Horne's Tyson's co-manager, said the contract would be honored and that Tyson would fight on Fox Network, which was to telecast Saturday night's match.

At a news conference earlier in the day, Mathis said he thought Tyson was bluffing when he said his hand was sore. But Tuesday night, at the announcement of the postponement, he was no longer skeptical.

"I think this is real and I hope everything will be all right with this man," Mathis said.

Tyson's doctors, Gerald Higgins and Gary Marrone of Las Vegas notified the MGM Grand at 4:10 p.m. PST that Tyson would not be able to fight.

"In all morality, we can't let him participate in this fight," Higgins said.

"The break is in the thumb between the main joint and the tip of the thumb," Marrone said.

Marrone said Tyson injured the thumb about three weeks ago and saw Marrone and Higgins about two weeks ago. Marrone said he and Higgins thought the injury possibly could heal in time for the fight, but X-rays Tuesday "showed that the fracture had begun to heal but refractured."

"I had seen Mike eight days ago, and it showed signs of healing," Higgins said. "He said he wanted to fight, no matter what."

"I thought I could sneak through," Tyson said when asked why he didn't call off the fight when he first hurt the thumb. "I get paid to fight."

Perry issues public apology to Japanese

TOKYO (AP) — Defense Secretary William Perry today issued an extraordinary public apology to Japan for the recent rape of a 12-year-old girl on Okinawa, allegedly by three U.S. servicemen whom Perry all but declared guilty.

In a speech to the Japan National Press Club, Perry said he was speaking for all members of the U.S. armed forces in expressing "my deep sorrow and anger for this terrible act" which triggered an enormous outcry against the U.S. military.

President Clinton and other U.S. officials have expressed regret for the Sept. 4 rape, but Perry's remarks went further — reflecting a deep concern of the Clinton administration that the incident could rupture relations with Japan.

Perry also announced that, in response to Okinawan protests against the intrusive American military presence on their island, Washington and Tokyo will establish a "special action committee" to recommend new measures that can be taken to consolidate or possibly reduce the U.S. troop population on Okinawa.

Mexicans seek solace on Day of the Dead

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A powerful earthquake shakes the capital. Hurricanes lash both coasts. Another quake kills two dozen people at a resort hotel. And those are only the natural disasters.

As this country of 90 million residents prepared for today's Day of the Dead celebrations, many were wondering if Mexico's recent string of misfortunes weren't a sign from beyond.

"I'm not superstitious but there are things going on you just can't explain," said Jeronimo Millan, a 58-year-old bricklayer. "In all my years I've never seen so many things happening at once."

Fueling the sense of trepidation is a 10-month-old economic crisis that shows few signs of ending.

Mexico has seen more than 1 million jobs vanish since December, when the peso lost 40 percent of its value. Prices have climbed by 40 percent this year, and the economy has so far shrunk 5.7 percent.

History: Low on totem pole

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half of American high school seniors lack basic knowledge of U.S. history, a national report card released today shows.

And they are unable to use their spotty knowledge to reason, analyze or back up opinions, the National Assessment of Educational Progress found.

"The strikingly poor performance ... indicates a major problem in how history is taught and learned — or not learned — in American schools," said William T. Randall, Colorado's education commissioner and chairman of the board that oversees NAEP.

The scores — coming just two months after Education Secretary Richard Riley pointed to improvements in other test results and declared that U.S. education was "on the right track" — are certain to intensify political debates over the quality of America's schools.

Riley noted the history test's difficulty and tough grading scale, both set by the independent NAEP citizens' board established by Congress.

"It's a tough test — much more rigorous than what most students are used to seeing in school," Riley said in a prepared statement.

The test used a 0-500 point scale with achievement ranges denoted as either basic, proficient or advanced. A high school senior had to score 294 to reach a rating of basic in history. But in the 1994 geography test, a score of 270 was enough for basic, Riley noted.

Stage set for major abortion battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House bill to ban an obscure abortion procedure is shaping up as a major battleground in the attempt to legislate an end to abortion rights.

"This will be the beginning of the end" of the right to abortion, said Rep. Bob Dornan, R-Calif. He supports the bill, sponsored by Rep. Charles Canady, R-Fla., to ban a late-term procedure that backers call "partial-birth" abortion.

The House takes up the bill today. It would make the procedure a felony and subject doctors who perform it to fines, prison terms of up to two years and civil lawsuits.

As described by those seeking to ban the procedure, it involves a doctor pulling the fetus by the legs through the birth canal, inserting a scissors into the skull, the only portion of the body remaining in the mother, and sucking out the brains. It is thought to take place anywhere from 100 to 400 times a year.

Opponents of the bill say the procedure is used only in circumstances where the life of the mother is in danger or severe fetal abnormalities are found. They also argue that the fetus dies from the anesthesia given to the mother before the procedure begins.

Supporters dispute that, with Rep. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., an obstetrician, calling it "a timesaving, malicious procedure."

The bill faces a tougher road in the Senate, where it has been introduced by Sen. Bob Smith, R-N.H. President Clinton is likely to veto the measure if it is passed.

But the bigger issue on both sides of the debate was that this is the first time since the Supreme Court's 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision that Congress will try to prohibit any kind of abortion.

Anti-abortion lawmakers "are afraid to take a sledgehammer to Roe v. Wade, so they want to chisel, chisel away," said Rep. Nita Lowey, D-N.Y.

The bill would allow doctors to use the method when a mother's life is in danger, but the language is written so a doctor could use that defense only "after the handcuffs have snapped around his or her wrists," said Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo.

Canady said that won't happen because doctors will stop performing such abortions after his bill is passed.

Anti-abortion lawmakers are also pressing their cause in a number of spending bills, in some cases blocking efforts by the Republican leadership to complete action on the 1996 budget. For example:

—A $243 billion defense spending bill is on hold because House members rejected a House-Senate compromise that eased new restrictions on abortions at military bases overseas.

—The bill funding the Labor and Health and Human Services departments contains language that would allow states to deny Medicaid payments for abortions and would bar federal funding for embryo research.

After time in jail, Mom still not talking about son

BALTIMORE (AP) — After seven years in jail for refusing to disclose her son's whereabouts, Jacqueline Bouknight walked free and revealed nothing more than a smile.

Her attorneys call her a hero of civil disobedience. The judge who held her in contempt fears the child may be dead. And the advocate for the boy, who would be 9, pleaded with the 29-year-old mother to start talking.

"Jackie, it's a tragedy you have let this go on so long," court-appointed lawyer Mitchell Mirviss said during a hearing Tuesday in which a judge allowed her release.

Known in court records only as "Maurice M.," the boy was barely 6 months old when he was taken from his mother and placed in temporary foster care after doctors found fractures on his right arm and shoulder. He also wore a body cast to heal a broken leg.

When Ms. Bouknight won her son back several months later by taking parenting classes, the baby disappeared and Ms. Bouknight ended up in the Baltimore City Detention Center for refusing to say where he had been taken.

Her attorneys argued that Ms.

Bouknight was just trying to protect her son from the physical abuse she experienced in foster care when she was a child.

One of Ms. Bouknight's attorneys, Cristina Gutierrez, said the mother promises to find her son and fight a court order that prohibits her from contacting him.

She noted her client has "no family, no life, no money."

The boy's father was killed in a 1988 drug-related shooting.

Over the years, Ms. Bouknight volunteered several leads to investigators, but none led to the boy. They were always followed by her defiant silence.
