80s. See Page 2 for weather details.

PAMPA - Goldwing Road Riders Association will display their motorcycles and give away candy 6 to 8 p.m.
Halloween at Pampa Mall.

Anyone who wishes to display any type motorcycle may do so, according to association member B.J. Perez.

AMARILLO - Project Celebration funds are available from the Texas Department of Transportation to help offset the cost of an alcohol and drug free graduation or prom night party for high schools. The mini grants are an incentive for students, parents and schools to plan safe, fun graduation parties without using alcohol or other drugs.
Project Celebration participants should begin planning the parties now.

The Amarillo District of TxDOT awarded 14 Project Celebration mini-grants for the 1994-1995 school year.
Communities like Panhandle, Miami and Channing pitched in to provide their seniors a night with movies, food, games, contests and door prizes.

The intent of Project Celebration is to keep it as simple and rewarding as possible for all schools to participate in conducting alcohol/drug free graduation celebrations. The deadline for requests of information is Jan. 1. The grant application deadline is March 1. For more information on how to apply for the mini grants, contact Tracy Tellman at TxDOT's Amarillo District
Office at (806) 356-3244.

CHICAGO (AP) - Talk about economic genius worthy of a Nobel.

When Rita Lucas got divorced seven years ago, she asked her lawyer to add one tiny clause to the property settlement: "Wife shall receive 50 percent of any Nobel Prize."
The clause even had an expiration date: Oct. 31, 1995.

Her prescience paid off:
Her ex-husband, University of Chicago economist Robert E. Lucas, won the Nobel in economics this month, with only weeks to go before the clause would have expired.
The prize is worth $1 million.

Ms. Lucas' request for the settlement clause wasn't entirely fanciful. Eight University of Chicago professors have been awarded the Nobel in economics and Lucas was the fifth to be honored in the last six years.

Ms. Lucas, 55, declined comment on Thursday but did say she had calculated the federal income tax rate at 39.6 percent, plus 3 percent for the state income tax.

"A deal is a deal," Lucas said. "It's hard to be unpleasant after winning a prize like that."

Defense hopes to prove Selena shooting an accident

By TERRI LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The state rested its case today as the eighth day of testimony began in the murder trial of Yolanda Saldivar, accused of killing Tejano singing star Selena in March.

The defense started its direct efforts to show the shooting was an accident after state District Judge Mike Westergren denied defense motions that he issue a directed verdict of acquittal, that he lessen the charge against her and that the state showed insufficient evidence.

"For the record, the state rests," Nueces County District Attorney Carlos Valdez said at 8:36 a.m. CDT.

The first defense witness was Ruben Deleon, sales director for the Days Inn where the shooting occurred. Deleon testified last week for the state and told of the chaos in the moments when the singer staggered into the motel lobby.

One witness told of the fatally wounded Selena telling motel employees to lock the door because she feared Ms. Saldivar would shoot again. Deleon said he did not hear those comments.

"I don't know what anyone else saw," he said. "I wasn't paying attention to people around me."

A motel housekeeper, Gloria Magana, said she "heard a lady screaming by the pool" but did not see Trinidad Espinoza, a motel maintenance worker who testified he saw Ms. Saldivar chasing Selena with a gun.

But under cross examination, she said Espinoza could have been there and she just didn't see him.

Defense attorneys also questioned Paul Rivera, the lead Corpus Christi police detective handling the case, and the officer who has come under scrutiny because Ms. Saldivar's confession made no mention that the shooting may have been accidental.

"I never heard that," he said,
when asked by lawyer Douglas Tinker about Ms. Saldivar's claims the shooting was unintentional.

Prosecutors on Thursday

wound up their testimony by calling a firearms expert who told jurors a gun cannot misfire, but people can misfire a gun.

"The only way to fire it would be to pull the trigger," said
Edward McKinstry, a Corpus Christi police firearms examiner.

McKinstry said his inspection of the Brazilian-made Taurus .38-caliber revolver proved the new pistol fired the fatal shot into Selena Quintanilla Perez last March 31.

Asked by Mark Skurka, the assistant county prosecutor, if the gun could discharge accidentally, McKinstry replied: "No, I don't think so."

Prosecutors contend Ms.
Saldivar deliberately killed Selena when they met to discuss missing documents that would have supported family suspicions Ms. Saldivar had embezzled some $30,000 from the singer's boutiques.

Ms. Saldivar's attorneys do not deny their client fired the gun, but claim she did so unintentionally.

Association, stands amid the displays of the second floor of the jail-turned-museum at Old Mobeetie.

Mobeetie woman trying to solve deaths of 46 people

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

Dodge City, Kan., then shipped by train to the national cemetery at Fort Scott.

The cause of death of several of those now buried at Fort Scott was easily established. For instance, Melvin King, a Fort Sill soldier, died following a gun-fight with Bat Masterson at Mobeetie, a gunfight which also took the life of Molly Brennan, the girl over whom the fight was apparently about.

"She's buried in the Old Mobeetie Cemetery," Lester said,
"but I don't know where."

Lester said Brennan was one of the first to be buried in the cemetery, but the use of wooden headstones, which deteriorated over the years, rather than stone markers makes it difficult to know just who is buried where.

While Bat Masterson went on to gain a reputation as a gun-fighter and gambler before dying of old age following a career as a sportswriter for a New York City newspaper, and Melody Brennan was buried in Mobeetie near the site of Fort Elliott, King was moved from where he was initially buried to the national cemetery in Kansas. The notation in Army ledgers simply state that he died on Jan. 25, 1875, of a pistol wound suffered the day before.
In curt military fashion, the Army noted he did not die in the line of duty.

The cause of death for the others in the 46 moved from Wheeler County to Kansas is not so clear, but with a little sleuthing and a lot of time researching official government records, Lester expects to gain some insight into life and death in the Texas Panhandle of the 1870s.

Louise Hogan of the Old Mobeetie Association put up the money to buy micro-filmed surgeon general records that should give a clue to the reasons for the deaths of the 15 military personnel and 31 civilians buried at the old fort. First State Bank of Happy donated a micro-film reader they no longer used to the Old Mobeetie Association.

Now the work begins. Lester and her band of historical detectives will begin cross-checking the list of those moved from the Fort Elliott cemetery to Fort Scott against the surgeon general records.

Knowing that the bodies were disinterred from the fort's cemetery shortly after Fort Elliott was abandoned in 1890, the historian speculated that they were taken by wagon to

Student Assistance Counselor Lesley Koetting, PHS D-
Fy-It member Misti Adams, PMS Counselor Herman Vinson and PMS CAST member Cory Bigham watch as Pampa Mayor Bob Neslage signs a document proclaiming next week "Drug Awareness Week" in Pampa. The proclamation will be read at a rally Saturday at City Hall.

Red Ribbon Week kicks off Saturday with City Hall rally

Red Ribbon Week kicks off with a rally sponsored by the high school Drug Free Youth in Texas (D-Fy-IT) and the middle school Concerned About
Students in Trouble (CAST) tomorrow on the north steps of City Hall at 10 a.m.

The rally begins with the reciting of a drug-free pledge by CAST members, followed by the reading of a proclamation by Mayor Bob Neslage proclaiming the week "Drug Awareness Week" in Pampa.

Also speaking at the rally are Officer Rob Goodin, Pampa
Police Department DARE officer,
Katie McKandles, PHS student
D-Fy-IT member; and Officer
Fred Courtney, PISD school resource officer.

A PHS senior will read a letter from a second grader telling why it is unwise to use drugs.
The letter is also expected to say why the second grader won't start using drugs.

The purpose of the Red Ribbon campaign is to present a unified and visible commitment toward the creation of a drug-free community, state and country, according to a press release.

Elementary schools and PMS will participate in a number of special days next week in celebration of the campaign.

Monday - Elementary schools will celebrate
"Decoration Day" and decoratithe school with red ribbons and posters. Middle school students will participate in
"Pledge Day" and sign drug-

free pledges in second period/homerooms and give out red ribbons to teachers and students.

Tuesday - Elementary schools will celebrate "Twin Day," having students dress alike for a unified front against drugs. Middle schoolers will participate in "Stomp Out Drugs Day," wearing boots or heavy shoes.

Wednesday - Both elemen-
taries and middle schools will participate in "Wear Red Day."

Thursday - Both elemen-
taries and middle schools will participate in "Put a Lid on Drugs Day," wearing hats or caps.

Friday - Both elementaries and middle schools will participate in "Too Cool for Drugs Day," wearing sunglasses to "block out drugs."

PHS will also participate in daily drug awareness activities. Second graders will be writing letters to seniors telling them why they don't want the seniors to do drugs and why they don't want to do drugs.

The Red Ribbon campaign began as a grassroots expression of concern in 1985 by a group of parents in Illinois and Virginia following the murder of DEA agent Enrique Camarena by drug traffickers.

By urging citizens to wear the symbolic red ribbon, they created the backbone of support for the Red Ribbon campaign.

United Way hits 60% toward goal

Pampa United Way has reached $184,949.45 in its current fund raising campaign, or 60 percent of its goal of $306,000.

The new total was announced
after Thursday's check-in luncheon at Danny's Market.

Hoechst-Celanese employees gave $50,000, which will be matched by the corporation with another $50,000, according to United Way executive director
Katrina Bigham.

Donations made by Hoechst-Celanese retirees will also be matched, she said.

"They have done exceedingly well," Bigham said.

A portion of Coronado Hospital's employees contribution was announced at $2,485, she said.

United Parcel Service employees donated $5,330, Bigham said.

The next meeting is set for 5 to 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26 in the M.K. Brown Room of the Pampa Community Building.

It will be hosted by Red Cross,
Big Brothers/Big Sisters,
Latchkey and High Plains
Epilepsy and the public is invited.

Priest sentenced for sex abuse

UPPER MARLBORO, Md.
(AP) - A Roman Catholic priest began serving a 16-year prison sentence today after pleading guilty to sexually abusing five young men during a 17-year period.

The Rev. Thomas Schaefer,
69, showed no emotion
Thursday as Circuit Court Judge William Spellbring Jr.
sentenced him to four consecutive four-year terms on child-abuse charges and to four years on a single count of sodomy. He will be eligible for parole in 5 1/2 years.

Three of the five victims spoke in court. All said they have had difficulties adjusting to normal relationships, and one spoke of having problems with alcohol and drug abuse. Prosecutors said the abuse occurred between 1966 and 1982.

Pampa ISD trustee Jim Baker, far right, helps moderate a session at the September Texas Association of School Boards convention in Houston. Baker was named a master trustee at the convention.

Baker named TASB master trustee

HOUSTON - Pampa ISD trustee Jim Baker was among 38 school board members named master trustee by the Texas Association of School Boards at a ceremony in Houston Sept. 29.

The trustees, who represent districts from across the state, were also among June graduates of Leadership TASB, a development program designed by school board members for school board members.

The program is open to all Texas trustees who have fulfilled 30 hours of certified school board member training credit and have demonstrated leadership ability on their board and in their community. The five-part Leadership TASB curriculum covered areas such as educational reform, school governance, communication and valuing diversity.

From the beginning of a program year in September, as part of their Leadership TASB training, the board members completed a variety of projects with statewide impact involving writing, public speaking, decision making and providing new board member orientation. The 38 master trustees completed additional projects, beyond what is required of the Leadership TASB curriculum, to earn the extra credits that lead to the master school board member designation.

TASB is a voluntary, nonprofit association established 50 years ago to serve local Texas school districts. It includes 1,049 local school districts and county school boards, 42 junior colleges, 52 tax appraisal districts, 59 cooperatives and 20 education service centers.

School board members are the largest group of publicly elected officials in the state. The districts they represent have a combined annual budget of $18 billion and employ more than 400,000 people.

Jordan inmates begin alley cleanup Monday

Beginning Monday, the city of Pampa in cooperation with inmates and officials of the Rufe Jordan Prison Unit will begin a project to clean city alleys.

Wards will be cleaned in numerical order and inmate and city workers will remain in the area until the alleys are clean, said sanitation superintendent Rick Stone. The clean up effort is scheduled to last three to four weeks, he said.

The project is an effort to eliminate the back log of work orders for alley clean up.

Stone asks that city residents who have something in the alley now which they wish to save to move the item the inside of the property by Monday.

The city, he said, will not be responsible for items removed that were left in the alley after Monday.

Refrigerators and tires are the residents responsibility, he said.

Ward boundaries are: Ward 1 - Area north of Kentucky Street, north to city limits just north of the hospital; area west of Hamilton and Perryton Parkway, west to city limits.

Also area south of Harvester to Georgia.

Ward 2 - Area east of Hamilton and Perryton Parkway, east to city limits; area north of Georgia and north of Harvester to city limits.

Ward 3 - Area south of Harvester and east of Cuyler and Barnes streets, south and east to city limits.

Ward 4 - Area south of Kentucky, west of Cuyler and Barnes streets and north of McCullough Street to city limits on west side of town.

State briefs Report: Reno will seek death penalty in bomb case

Testimony opens in San Angelo murder trial

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Marine Sgt. Thomas Peebles says he was buying snacks from a vending machine, at about 9 p.m. on a Saturday in February, when a female voice caught his ear.

"Can someone please come here?" Peebles quoted the woman. The marine says he walked the corner to see a man exit Goodfellow Air Force Base's laundry building with his hand clinged around Army Pvt. Tracie Joy McBride. Authorities found her body north of San Angelo 12 days later.

Testimony began Thursday in the trial of Louis Jones, a former Army Ranger accused of kidnapping and killing Ms. McBride on Feb. 18.

The trial was moved from San Angelo after more than 7,500 area residents signed a petition favoring the death penalty for Jones. Federal prosecutors agreed to seek capital punishment.

Advocacy group: never got money from former Cowboys

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — A Tyler advocacy agency says it has not been paid money it was guaranteed for a benefit basketball game featuring former Dallas Cowboys football players.

Joann Powell, executive director of the East Texas Court Appointed Special Advocates, said a contract between Legends Sports Promotions Inc. and East Texas CASA guaranteed that the agency would receive a minimum of $1,500 for the Aug. 26 event.

The names of the former Cowboys who played in the game were not immediately available.

Repeated attempts by the Longview News-Journal to contact LSPI President Steve Guttman at the organization's Richardson office failed.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Attorney General Janet Reno has given formal approval to seek the death penalty against the two men charged in the federal building bombing, the Daily Oklahoman reported today.

The newspaper quoted Patrick Ryan, the U.S. Attorney in Oklahoma City, as saying Reno told him of the decision Thursday and that he informed attorneys for suspects Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols.

"The news hardly comes as a surprise," said McVeigh's lawyer Stephen Jones. "The attorney general and the president announced they would seek the death penalty before they even knew who the defendants were. ... We will mount our attack on the obvious prejudgment of the case."

The formal decision came on the six-month anniversary of the April 19 explosion at the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building that killed 169 people and injured more than 500.

McVeigh and Nichols face federal murder and conspiracy charges in a trial set for May 17 in Lawton, about 90 miles southwest of Oklahoma City.

Meantime, an attorney for a grand juror who illegally discussed the bombing case said he believes federal agents are investigating his client.

Justice Department officials in Washington declined Thursday to say whether the juror was being investigated.

An interview with the grand juror was published last week in Media Bypass, a monthly magazine with ties to right-wing militia groups. The unidentified juror was reportedly angry that prosecutors did not present evidence of a larger conspiracy and accused them of misconduct.

"I've instructed him from this point on to speak to nobody without calling me," said John DeCamp, the lawyer who is representing the grand juror.

The grand jury that heard the bombing case is due to disband soon and the judge in the case could act to hold the juror in contempt of court.

Perry applauds court ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry is applauding a federal appeals court ruling that says a judge may not proceed toward federal control of the Edwards Aquifer.

"As we have maintained all along, the answer to managing the Edwards Aquifer will be found by Texans — and not by a federal judge or federal agency. Fortunately, the court of appeals agrees with us," Perry said.

"It is time for differences at the state level to be worked out and for practical solutions to be found for managing this crucial water resource," Perry said Thursday.

The state filed a request last week with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that addressed several issues, including a bid to stop U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton from going forward with a plan to impose pumping limits on the aquifer on Jan. 1. The appeals court ruled Wednesday.

The aquifer, a huge underground river, is the sole source of drinking water for San Antonio.

It also provides irrigation for farmers and ranchers in six counties. The underground river runs from just south of Austin to Kinney County, 100 miles west of San Antonio.

Increased municipal and agricultural pumping is draining more water from the aquifer than can be replaced. The gradual decline threatens Comal and San Marcos springs, Bunton has said in earlier rulings.

Bunton presides over a 4-year-old lawsuit filed by the Sierra Club that seeks protection of five endangered species that depend on the aquifer. The Sierra Club, citing the federal Endangered Species Act, argues that if the aquifer is over-pumped, the species could become extinct.

GOP lawmakers cheer Medicare overhaul, shrug off veto threat

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ignoring a veto threat and Democratic predictions of their political demise, Republicans cheered as they passed a Medicare overhaul bill, their latest triumph in the conservative revolution launched last winter.

"This is a very, very great victory," exulted Speaker Newt Gingrich, architect of the measure that squeezes $270 billion from the program over seven years while offering senior citizens a menu of health care choices.

"It's a great victory of courage over fear," Gingrich said shortly after the 231-201 vote Thursday in a politically polarized House.

"It's a great victory for fact over fiction, it's a great victory for being positive over very nasty, dishonest and demagogic attack ads and it's a great victory for believing you can tell the truth to the American people."

Democrats, who spent the day charging Republicans were cutting Medicare to pay for tax cuts for the rich, thought it might be something else — mass political suicide by the conservative GOP majority that took power in January.

As Republican lawmakers cheered their handiwork, mocking Democrats stood on their side of the chamber, waving farewell and mouthing the word "bye." "Unfortunately, it's another day of infamy for 40 million Americans who depend on Medicare for their health care," charged Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla. They will be "herded into managed care," he said, and the "money saved will be used for an unconscionable tax cut."

The measure now heads for the GOP-controlled Senate, where it is expected to reach the floor next week as part of broader legislation to balance the budget over seven years while providing a hefty tax cut.

Even as Republicans were muscling the measure through the House, President Clinton issued a stern veto threat.

The measure "will eviscerate the health care system for our older Americans," he told reporters at the White House. He sent this message to Republicans: "I will not let you destroy Medicare, and I will veto this bill."

In the House, just four Democrats joined 227 Republicans in favor and only six Republicans sided with 194 Democrats and an independent in opposition.

Republicans said their measure was designed to save Medicare from bankruptcy, while opening the way for senior citizens to choose alternatives, such as health maintenance organizations.

Such plans might offer expanded benefits, such as eyeglasses or prescription drug coverage, that aren't available under the current program, sponsors said.

At the same time, the measure would raise premiums for Part B coverage of doctors' bill higher than current law anticipates, and squeeze tens of billions of dollars in payments from physicians and hospitals to help achieve the GOP goal of a balanced budget by 2002. Republican leaders said their changes would buy nine years of life for the Medicare hospital fund, now in danger of drying up by 2002. They acknowledged that more will need to be done to keep Medicare going beyond 2011 when the huge baby boom generation begins reaching retirement age.

Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, called the measure "lifesaving legislative surgery," and hailed passage as a "great and historic occasion."

Gingrich, who began work on the measure last spring, labored to build support to the end. He signed off Wednesday night on a change in the bill to provide more funds to rural regions, firming up votes in a bloc of about 30 Republicans.

On Thursday, hours before the final vote, he agreed to seek several changes sought by New Jersey Republicans, including additional funding under Medicaid in legislation due on the House floor next week.

In the end, though, four of New Jersey's eight GOP representatives — Frank LoBiondo, Jim Saxton, Christopher Smith and Richard A. Zimmer — voted against the measure. The other Republicans who opposed it were Reps. Peter G. Torkildsen of Massachusetts and Jim Lightfoot of Iowa.

The Democrats who voted for the measure were Reps. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery and Mike Parker of Mississippi and Pete Geren and Ralph M. Hall of Texas.

34 at prison suffer from mystery illness

MAYO, Fla. (AP) — Thirty-three guards and an inmate came down with a mysterious ailment at a state prison for serious offenders, and investigators focused on the mail room.

Most of those who first became ill Thursday at the 1,400-inmate Mayo Correctional Institution in north Florida work in the mail room, said Ron Sachs, a spokesman for Gov. Lawton Chiles. They complained of nausea, burning eyes, dizziness and tightening of the chest.

All were treated at a hospital and released.

"Our understanding is that there was a parcel in the mail room that had a leak. There was a concern it could be very serious," Dr. Tom Logue said.

Others who later came in contact with the sick people also became ill, including some of the emergency medical technicians and doctors. After that, the patients were told to remove their clothes and were bathed, Logue said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveyng commandment.

The Dallas Morning News on the Million Man March:

Change human lives one day at a time, and the differences should soon show up. That ethic appears to be the driving force behind today's Million Man March in Washington, D.C. The march's aim is to recommit African-American men to family life, personal responsibility and building up a sense of community.

Of course, the conference's primary organizer, Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan, is a mixed bag. His presence at the march gives a new meaning to the term "Faustian bargain."

On the positive side, the Farrakhan-led conference could yield positive results for many black families. Dallas, in particular, could witness the effects, since 700 Dallas men are planning to attend the march. The Dallas Morning News' Linda Jones reports that some local fathers also are taking young sons who already have flirted with the law.

A lasting effect could flow from the communal experience. A sense of personal renewal could emerge from marching with so many other men dedicating themselves to personal and family responsibilities.

To the extent that real changes result, white families will also benefit. When one part of the body is strengthened, so too is the whole.

But let's also be direct. Mr. Farrakhan has not proved himself to be a Martin Luther King Jr.

His anti-Semitic comments and separatist remarks aimed at white people are more than bothersome. They diminish the ability of Americans to further a true and profound discussion about race.

That conversation is one that Americans must continue to have. We cannot afford to ignore it. The aftermath of O.J. Simpson's trial reveals a wide, lingering racial divide. But the emergency of minority leaders like Colin Powell nationally and Ron Kirk locally points out real progress. The advancements must now reach other corners of American life.

For example, which part of society gains when one-third of all black men between the ages of 20-29 are either in jail, on parole or probation? Who wins with those numbers. Not blacks. Not whites. Not anyone.

Despite Mr. Farrakhan's own views, the Million Man March could redirect the lives that turn into horrible statistics. Ideally, the march could be part of America's conversation about race. One hopes Mr. Farrakhan will overcome his separatism to make sure the conversation is a positive one for all.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on managed health care rules:

State Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer has proposed a series of regulations for health maintenance organizations in Texas that represent a substantial first step toward protecting consumers, doctors and dentists under managed-care contracts.

A number of troubling questions have arisen about the quality of care and the equitable treatment of patients and providers under HMOs.

The proposed regulations would address many of those questions. For instance, in emergencies, the HMO would be required to pay for all services until the patient is stabilized. Retaliation by an HMO against a doctor or patient filing a complaint would be prohibited. Due-process hearing procedures would be available to a physician terminated by an HMO. Employers could cancel an HMO contract for significant changes in a hospital or physician network.

Another crucial factor crying out for regulation: financial incentives offered by HMOs for member doctors to prescribe less testing and treatment merely to save money. Such incentives "might impair medical judgment," Bomer said, and he is considering a rule to limit them.

Bomer can regulate the insurance aspects of HMOs, but assurance of quality care is the responsibility of the Texas Department of Health. Only one person has been assigned this awesome duty, a deficiency that should be corrected by the agency immediately.

The state bears responsibility for safeguarding the public interest by requiring full disclosure on HMO contracts, coverage, costs, procedures and accountability for quality of care so that the public can make informed judgments about purchasing health insurance.

Viewpoints

The TV season: They're off!

L. Brent Bozell III

The Washington Post Deskbook on Style (second edition) tells us that it "respects taste and decency, understanding that society's concepts of taste and decency are constantly changing. A word offensive to the last generation can be part of the next generation's common vocabulary. ...[But] we shall avoid profanities and obscenities unless their use is so essential to a story of significance that its meaning is lost without them." The "Principals" for the paper as established by owner Eugene Meyer in 1933 included this: "What it prints shall be fit reading for the young as well as the old."

These rules surely are embraced, at least in principle, by most any news media outlet, print or electronic. It says something about our current cultural morass that the news media, constrained by the duty to report, have a sense for community standards while the entertainment media are using their artistic freedom to tear them down.

Anyone watching this season's offerings of prime-time network television's "entertainment" fare cannot help but notice that obscenities and sexual innuendo are now the rage. Its defenders will maintain that entertainment television simply reflects reality. Ask yourself if the following reflects language used and topics discussed around your family's dinner table.

Two seasons ago, ABC's 10 p.m. police drama, NYPD Blue, became the first prime-time series on which "a-hole" was used. This fall, that word was heard three times on the premiere of CBS's 10 p.m. drama Courthouse — the same episode used "screwing" as a synonym for sexual intercourse. The Monroes broke ground on its 10 p.m. premiere when a character, the matriarch of a prominent family, gave the middle-finger salute on camera.

"Piss" and its variations, as well as "son of a bitch" and "bastard," are acceptable on prime time; "ass" is now common. The debut of ABC's 10 p.m. courtroom drama Murder One included "Kiss my ass, pal!" and a reference to a defendant's "ass-kissing cronies." One episode of the 9 p.m. WB comedy The Wayans Bros. used the word several times, including, "Shawn, that's a painting of your ass."

Closely related to relaxed language standards is envelope-pushing sexual material. Amidst the talk of decreased prime-time violence, sexual commentary and actual depictions of sex are way up. Not only is formerly 9 p.m.- and 10 p.m.-style content now on the air between 8 and 9 p.m. — what we used to call the Family Hour — but the 9 to 11 p.m. hours are much more graphic than ever.

Dorsal nudity, not long ago almost exclusively identified with NYPD Blue turned up on two 9 p.m. programs, CBS's prime-time soap Central Park West and UPN's drama Live Shot. The latter series also featured a rear view of a naked female corpse, as did an installment of Murder One.

Premarital and extramarital sex are frequently depicted or referenced. On The Monroes, now airing in its regular 9 p.m. time slot, a wealthy businessman, his son (a congressman) and the president have all had adulterous affairs. Fox's Beverly Hills, 90210, an 8 p.m. soap aimed at the teen audience, has featured a college student and her new boyfriend attempting to have sex in an airplane lavatory. Meanwhile, on CBS 8:30 p.m. comedy Can't Hurry Love, the female protagonist abstained for a politically correct reason: She found out that the man she had wanted to go to bed with was a hunter.

Phallic references are permitted, even in early prime time. On ABC's 8 p.m. sitcom The Jeff Foxworthy Show, a woman ended a relationship because her lover was insufficiently endowed. On CBS's 8:30 p.m. comedy Dave's World, a man considered having a penis-enlargement operation.

There are exceptions to the ethic of looseness. On CBS's 8:30 p.m. The Bonnie Hunt Show, a friend of the title character slept with a date. Bonnie asked her if she felt guilty about what she'd done, whereupon the friend called Bonnie old-fashioned. Bonnie's reply: "Old-fashioned in life is common sense."

But it's not just the 10 p.m. hour, nor even the so-called Family Hour, that is polluted. The Sunday before last, I was watching a nationally televised football game on the Fox network with my children. During the commercial break, there was a promo for that evening's Misery Loves Company. The 10-second spot showed a girl entering a men's room, approaching a urinal, and lifting her skirt.

To canned laughter, the voice-over informed us that so-and-so discovers during a date that so-and-so is a transvestite. (Ha, ha!) The second scene featured several fellows discussing the aftermath. "Did you get to third base?" (Ha, ha!) "And when you got to third base, was there a man on third?" (Ha, ha, ha!) That's entertainment?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Oct. 20, the 293rd day of 1995. There are 72 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On Oct. 20, 1944, during World War II, Gen. Douglas MacArthur stepped ashore at Leyte in the Philippines, 2 1/2 years after he'd said, "I shall return." Said MacArthur: "I have returned."

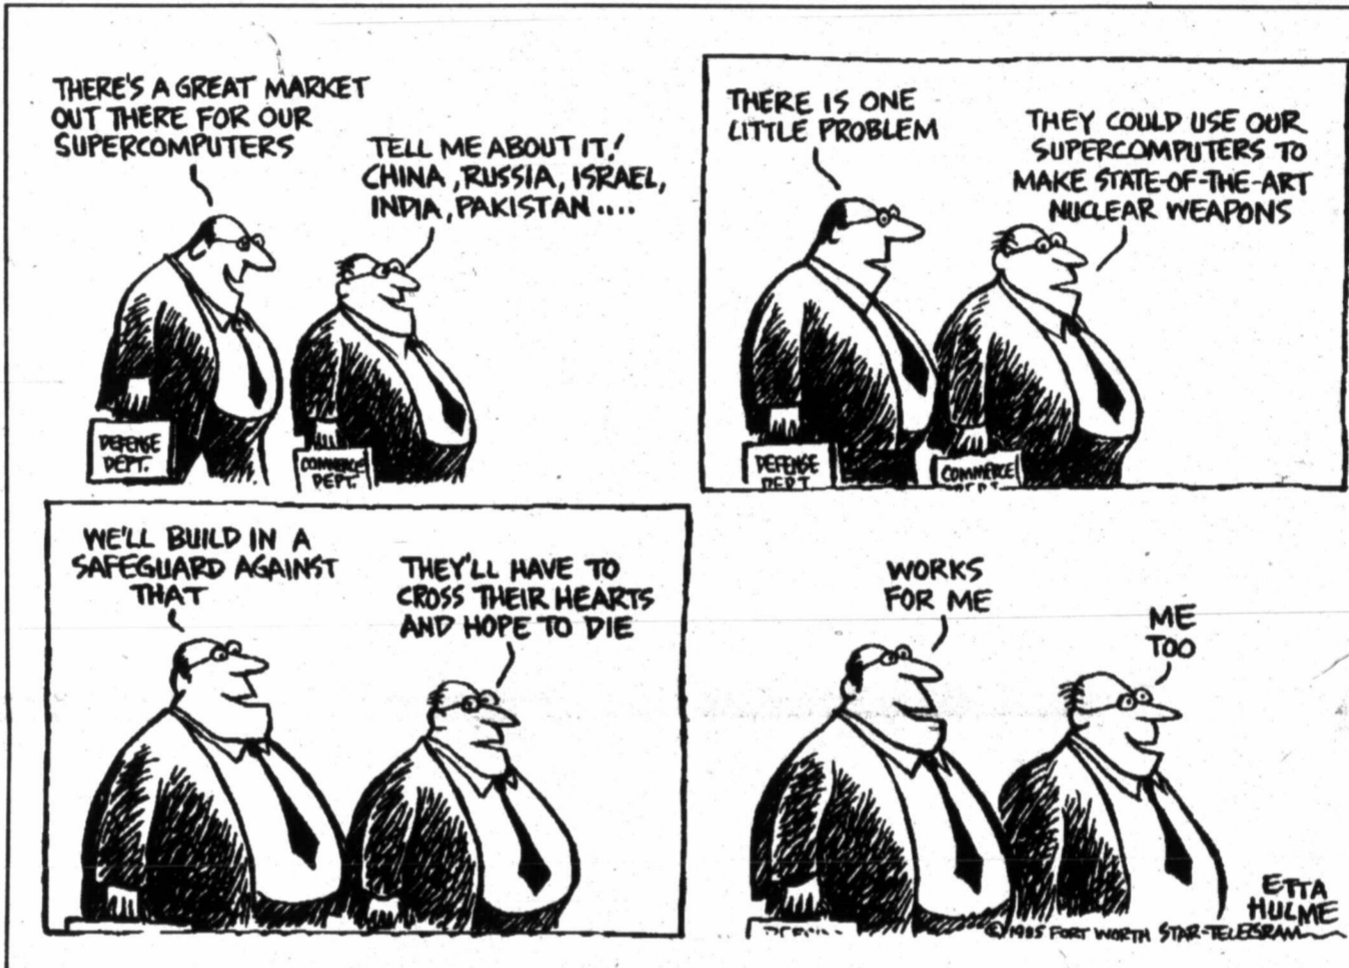

On this date: In 1740, Maria Theresa became ruler of Austria, Hungary and Bohemia upon the death of her father, Holy Roman Emperor Charles VI.

In 1803, the U.S. Senate ratified the Louisiana Purchase.

In 1892, the city of Chicago dedicated the World's Columbian Exposition.

In 1903, a joint commission ruled in favor of the United States in a dispute concerning the boundary between the District of Alaska and Canada.

In 1944, the Yugoslav cities of Belgrade and Dubrovnik were liberated during World War II.

Clinton deceptively leftist in policies

Charley Reese

President Clinton is by far the most leftist president since Jimmy Carter. His rhetoric, naturally, is not leftist, but his policies and appointments are.

And he's deceptive. He talks one game and plays another. He talks about tightening the embargo against Fidel Castro while, in fact, he is loosening it. Allowing American news organizations to open bureaus and allowing professors and students to travel to Cuba just means the Castro government will have an opportunity to inundate Americans with propaganda.

Thus, the effect of Clinton's Cuba policy will be to strengthen Castro by giving him a propaganda outlet in the United States and by getting more hard currency. It used to be a joke in conservative circles that Castro got his job through The New York Times. That was a reference to Times' correspondent Herbert Mathews, who wrote glowing articles about Castro's great commitment to democratic principles. Mathews was presenting Castro the American people as the "George Washington of the Caribbean."

I don't expect any better performance by American journalists in the 1990s. For one thing, they will be under Cuban government restrictions; for another, they will be under pressure by their bosses not to get kicked out of the country; and for a third, most of them will likely be sympathetic to Castro anyway. Castro has always been a favorite of American journalists.

It is interesting to contrast Clinton's conciliatory attitude toward Castro, one of the last of the Stalinist dictators, and his uncompromising attitude toward the rightist dictator in Iraq.

It is in Cuba, however, that the Soviet Union once put thousands of combat troops and nuclear missiles. It is in Cuba where Russia maintains one of its largest intelligence gathering facilities in the world. It is in Cuba where Russia is finishing a nuclear reactor. And it is Cuba that is ruled by a criminal psychopath with a pathological hatred of the United States.

It is interesting to contrast Clinton's unwillingness to oppose Russia when it provides nuclear reactors to Cuba with his complaints about Russia when it supplies nuclear reactors to Iran — about 8,000 miles away from the United States. Cuba is only 90 miles from the United States. Even a nuclear accident could have disastrous consequences for Americans.

Castro will not go peacefully into the sunset. Even if the bearded one died of natural causes tomorrow, his younger brother, Raul, just as fanatic and totalitarian, would take over the reins. Castro today rules by brute force and his secret police. After 30 years of failed policy in which he has taken an island nation that once had the second highest, if not the highest, standard of living in Latin America, into abject poverty, the old man's charisma exists only in the minds of American leftists.

An American president, interested in American interests and human liberty, would tighten the screws. Clinton, of course, is loosening them, no matter what he says. In simple Georgia language, Clinton's word is no good. He will say anything, but he acts consistently to pursue a leftist, internationalist agenda.

The United States should be sending messages to the Cuban military, the only force that can topple Castro, that the United States would applaud and reward a coup that led to democratic elections. In the meantime, the United States should be pressuring other countries to cut off economic relations.

Such actions are justified in Castro's case because he has, over and over, declared himself an enemy of the United States. Castro's hostility is not, as some liberals claim, a reaction to American actions. Heck, the United States government practically put Castro in power by giving him free rein to raise money and run guns while jerking support out from under the Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista. Castro has always hated the United States.

That's what he has in common with many American leftists.

Civil rights mission unfulfilled

Walter Mears AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson once challenged Americans "to transform the commands of our laws into the customs of our land." Thirty years later, President Clinton is urging that same mission against racism.

Clinton's summons speaks to the unfulfilled promise of the 1960s, when civil rights laws were enacted to ban discrimination in housing and public accommodations, insure equal job opportunities, guarantee voting rights.

"The great divides of the past called for and were addressed by legal and legislative changes," Clinton recalled at the University of Texas on Monday. "But today, we are really dealing — and we know it — with problems that grow in large measure out of the way all of us look at the world with our minds and the way we feel about the world with our hearts."

"And therefore, while leaders and legislation may be important, this is work that has to be done by every single one of you," he said.

His sermon was delivered to a largely white audience of 10,000 people in Austin, while an estimated 400,000 black men rallied at the U.S. Capitol on Monday as a show of both self-reliance and protest. The messages and the march were testament to the complexity and the persistence of racial divisions.

While Clinton and other political leaders embraced the themes of personal and community responsibility the "Million Man March" was meant to convey, they renounced the man who led it as a racial extremist. Colin Powell, who declined to join the demonstration, said he wished the idea had come from someone other than Louis Farrakhan of the Nation of Islam. But he also said in a CBS-TV interview the march would begin to "uplift African Americans to be part of an inclusive America."

Marchers and demonstrators have sought that goal for generations, as when more than 200,000 people, black and white, stood before the Lincoln Memorial in August 1963 and heard the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. speak of the dream of racial equality. Monday's march was the greatest such gathering since; it was almost entirely of black men, and the crowd estimates exceeded those of 1963.

In the controversy over the sponsoring role of Farrakhan, dismissed by some mainstream black leaders as irrelevant to the purpose, there could be another symptom of what Clinton called a simple truth:

"White Americans and black Americans often see the same world in drastically different ways, ways that go beyond and beneath the Simpson trial and its aftermath, which brought these perceptions so starkly into the open."

"The rift that we see before us is tearing at the heart of America ... in spite of the remarkable progress black Americans have made in the last generation." The civil rights marches of the 1960s, in the South and in Washington, were demands for action by government. Now some steps the federal government took to redress those grievances are under challenge.

Congressional districts shaped to create black majorities under the 1965 Voting Rights Act are being contested in five Southern states, based on a 1993 Supreme Court ruling that they may violate the rights of white voters. Affirmative action to redress prior discrimination is under political siege.

"I want to mend affirmative action but I do not think America is at a place today where we can end it," Clinton said. "The evidence of the last several weeks shows that."

Federal social programs are in dispute. Clinton said he is fighting against Republican efforts "to roll back family security, aid to distressed communities and support for education."

Beyond those government issues, though, his message and, indeed, the lesson of recent history, suggest that racial divisions won't be ended by laws, but rather by individual choices and attitudes.

Johnson said in 1965 that "despite the court orders and the laws, the victories and the speeches" for blacks, the gulf in real opportunity was widening.

"And there is still unacceptable economic disparity between blacks and whites," Clinton said, as if completing the sentence, three decades later.

Principal testifies he didn't set fire

By JESSICA SAUNDERS
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A white principal who condemned mixed-race dating tearfully testified that he had nothing to do with the blaze that burned down his high school.

"I loved that school; I still love that school," Hulond Humphries, the day's star witness, testified Thursday. "I would not be a part of destroying something I worked so hard for."

Humphries took the stand at the federal arson trial of Christopher Lynn Johnson, whose lawyer has tried to shift the blame onto the principal.

Johnson, 25, a black activist's son, is accused of setting the fire in anger over Humphries' threat to cancel the high school prom if mixed-race couples attended. He faces up to 30 years in prison and $500,000 in fines if convicted.

The defense rested Thursday, and jurors were expected to get the case today after closing arguments.

Johnson did not testify and defense lawyer Ron Wise would not say why. One defense witness, a police officer, testified Thursday that Humphries seemed unusually calm as the school burned on Aug. 6, 1994.

Prosecutors have said Humphries was a suspect until evidence surfaced against Johnson.

Johnson's ex-wife, whom he was married to at the time of the fire, testified that she found a bag soaked with lighter fluid at their home the night before the blaze and that the bag was gone the next night.

But Wise pointed to two statements in which Humphries seemed to tell FBI agents he started the fire.

In the statements, prosecutors said, Humphries used a phrase similar to "when I started the fire."

Humphries was describing the scene when he first walked up and saw the blaze, according to prosecutors, and the agents said they dismissed his remarks as slips of the tongue.

Under cross-examination Thursday, the agents said they did not remember Humphries' exact phrasing, did not consider the comments admissions of guilt and did not record them.

Humphries testified he bought 5 gallons of gasoline two or three days before the fire for use in his lawn mower and chain saw. He said FBI agents came to his home after the fire and found "pretty close" to 5 gallons.

At the time of the blaze, the U.S. Justice Department was seeking to remove Humphries as principal, a post he had held for 25 years.

He testified that he was working late on the Friday night of the fire, trying to make sure the school year would open without problems.

"I had dedicated my life to that school. I didn't want chaos," he said.

When he left, he took some records, an act the defense has said is consistent with someone planning to destroy the school. But Humphries said that the disciplinary files he took were his personal records.

He said he took the files because of the Justice Department action.

"I was preparing myself for the possibility I would not return as principal," he said.

CIA keeping eye on disasters

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Hurricane Opal bore down on Okaloosa County, Fla., the CIA was watching.

Using the same techniques it applies to assessing the situation on the battlefields of Bosnia or the Persian Gulf, the CIA is helping federal disaster relief officials get an accurate picture of the impact of natural calamities.

At a time when the agency is eager to improve its image, the CIA was delighted to talk Thursday about this kind of spying — to a point.

"I really can't get into a lot of detail about how collection works," said Connie Miller, head of the CIA's disaster response team.

Entering for prime rib, man exits with $11 million

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Hungry for prime rib, a history student went to a hotel for dinner and emerged $10.9 million richer after winning the largest ever slot-machine jackpot.

The 29-year-old University of Nevada-Las Vegas student, who hit the Megabucks jackpot at the Gold Coast Hotel, refused to give his name and declined to show up at a Thursday news conference.

Michael Gaughan, president of the Gold Coast, said the winner was "very shaken and scared." The student told Gaughan he had gone to the hotel for prime rib.

He spent $15 playing the machine for about five minutes Wednesday night while waiting for a table.

The previous slot-machine jackpot record was $9.3 million, won in May 1992 in Reno.

Megabucks operates a network of 726 machines in 137 Nevada casinos. The machines are connected and each time someone plays, the jackpot goes up.

The jackpot surpassed $10 million earlier this month, and casinos reported lines of people waiting to play. The winner's money will be paid out over 25 years.

'Waterworld' ride opens

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. (AP) — The Jet Skiing marauders, fiery sea battles and scrap-metal atolls of "Waterworld" have come to life for amusement park landlubbers.

Universal Studios Hollywood has created its largest stunt show ever with "WaterWorld — A Live Sea War Spectacular," a $15 million production based on the futuristic film starring Kevin Costner.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

WHEN KINGS DIFFER!
AS KING JOASH HAS VOWED, HE WILL NOT DIMINISH HIS PURSUIT OF KING AMAZIAH'S ARMY UNTIL HIS OWN SOLDIER'S FEET ARE TREADING ON THE PAVEMENT OF JERUSALEM!!..

ALTHOUGH HE PLUNDERED JERUSALEM, EVEN TO DESECRATING THE SACRED INSTRUMENTS OF THE TEMPLE, AND BROKE DOWN FOUR HUNDRED CUBITS OF THE CITY WALL, JOASH RESTORED AMAZIAH TO HIS THRONE. HOWEVER, AMAZIAH'S DAYS AS A RULER WERE NUMBERED. INDUCED BY THE DISGRACE WHICH HE HAD BROUGHT UPON JUDAH, HE WAS SLAIN BY CONSPIRATORS SHORTLY THEREAFTER!

Games: A religious experience

By RACHEL ZOLL
Associated Press Writer

The object of the game is to be the first to greet Christ.

You get the chance by rolling the dice, answering questions about Scripture and doing good deeds like confessing to the Lord.

Watch out for temptation: if you mistreated your neighbor you have to move back three spaces and your opponents will meet Jesus before you do.

It's "Resurrection: The Life of Christ" — one of about 300 religious games distributed by the Bible Games Co. of Ohio, and one of about 1 million religious board games sold annually nationwide, industry analysts say.

The games have become part of a growing arsenal that religious educators are using to draw non-believers into the fold. And although no one thinks games alone will refill the pews, educators say such amusements provide the spoonful of sugar needed to make old lessons palatable.

"We need a new, reviving angle to teaching Judaism that keeps up with the 20th century," says Judy Avnery, director of media and technology at the Bureau of Jewish Education in Newton, Mass.

"It's subconscious," she says. "They don't think they're learning. They think they're playing. It becomes second nature."

Christian board games gained popularity in the early 1980s, when religious bookstores began carrying a Christian version of Trivial Pursuit, says Ray Vozar, marketing director at Bible Games Co.

"The stores went nuts with trivia games, but when the fad died, Christian games died too," he said.

In 1991, Late for the Sky Productions Co., also in Ohio, created "Bibleopoly," the Christian answer to "Monopoly."

"The goal is to build a church, not build hotels," says Robin Wilson, president of Late for the Sky, which consulted with professors at the Cincinnati Bible College when developing the game.

"Instead of going to jail, you go meditate," she said. "Instead of using money to barter, you trade offerings."

"Bibleopoly" sparked a renaissance in the industry, as demand for that and other games skyrocketed.

"It's been a good product category for us. 'Bibleopoly' is one of our best sellers," says Steve Hendrickson, president of Christian Book Distributors in Peabody, Mass., one of the largest Christian booksellers in the country.

Jewish Educational Toys (JET) in the New York City borough of Brooklyn, got its start about nine years ago, when two brothers — Abe and Jacob Blumberger — began manufacturing puzzles from their dorm room at New Jersey's Rabbinical College of America.

JET's "Let My People Go" is one of the most popular of the 14 games the company now manufactures. It's a "journey with the children of Israel as they emerge a free nation," which tries to distill the Old Testament onto cards that measure 2 inches by 4 inches.

"This bread is flat. It has no leaven. We call it matza. Move up seven," reads one card.

"We're slaves in Egypt. There's so much to do. You get tired. Move up two," reads another.

When manufacturers apply that same light touch to other sensitive religious issues, some worry that "Holocaust Chutes and Ladders" may be around the corner.

A Jewish game called "Expulsion," produced by the now-defunct Lucky Educational Publications and sold at the Israel Bookstore in Brookline, Mass., challenges players to complete a trip around the board without being forced to convert.

Information cards contain instructions like, "Jews must wear special badges. You forget yours. Go back one space," or "All Jewish property has been taken over by the state treasury. You lose everything you own, but you still don't convert. Get two tokens."

"Some people think these games can create nightmares. I'm somewhere in the middle," Avnery says. "If it would have been done in a classroom and the issue had already been studied, then maybe I'd feel comfortable with it."

The Christian game "Missionary Conquest" seems similarly bold. Players "travel" to different countries to conquer land for Christ. They select cards with instructions to move ahead or behind depending on how many people they convert.

A run-in with heretics can thwart their efforts. Players deported from a "historically anti-Christian" country like Iraq or Iran, Vozar says, are martyred and out of the game.

"It can be really hilarious," says Vozar.

"The Christian response is, it may be politically incorrect, but it's our commission to share the good news of the Gospel. We need to give people the opportunity to make intelligent decisions about what Christ gives us," he says.

"I don't think people would generally purchase the games for deep theological reflection," Hendrickson says. "Games are played basically for entertainment."

Ozarks preacher slowed by blindness

By JERRY NACHTIGAL
Associated Press Writer

ROCKY COMFORT, Mo. (AP) — When Dale Keel gazes out from the pulpit each Sunday, his congregation is a blur.

The 48-year-old Southern Baptist preacher suffers from a degenerative eye disease that left him legally blind at age 15. The disease may have stolen most of his eyesight, but not his sense of humor.

"Most of the people could take a nap while I'm preaching and I'd never know if they were awake or asleep," he says with a grin.

Since 1984, Keel has served as pastor of Prosperity Baptist Church, a stately white temple on a hill whose soaring steeple has been a beacon for folks living near this Ozarks burg since 1843.

Despite limited vision, Keel performs weddings, funerals, baptisms and all the other functions of a typical minister.

"I try to memorize as much as I can, especially with weddings," he says. "At funerals, when at all possible I'll have someone else read the obituary because they are lengthy."

Using magnified glasses, Keel can read large print held close to his face. A device that enlarges print on a computer-like screen allows him to study religious materials. For sermons, he writes notes in large letters on index cards, but says he rarely uses them.

"I have a supergiant-print Bible," he says. "I have to have three volumes to make one Bible, it's so big."

Although Keel can't make out faces, he recognizes many of his parishioners by their voices.

"I've also learned to recognize shapes of people and the way they walk and hold themselves. You use what you have to get by, and that's what I've learned to do," he says.

Keel's congregation in this remote section of southwestern Missouri is small. Thirty-nine members were present for a recent Sunday school session, and another 25 or so attended the worship service.

"People know I can't see to drive at a moment's notice, so they'll call me," he says.

"I've been known to spend an hour or two or three on the phone just trying to help someone."

Keel isn't limited when it comes to visiting members of his congregation. With his wife, Judy, at the wheel, the Keels logged 20,000 miles last year calling on Prosperity Baptist members who were in area hospitals.

"Nobody knows how difficult it is for him," says Mrs. Keel, an Avon representative who varies her schedule to help her husband with church duties.

"Even I don't know." Keel's dedication hasn't gone unnoticed: The 622,000-member Missouri Baptist Convention named him its small-church pastor of the year.

"Dale's unique in that he's legally blind and yet with his wife's help he doesn't turn down anything in his ministry," says Keith Huffman of Neosho, missions director for the Shoal Creek Baptist Association.

"He's very caring. He has a humble spirit and attitude. He's just a real person."

Keel was an accomplished carpenter and cabinet-maker until, at age 31, his vision deteriorated to the point he nearly sliced off a thumb because he couldn't see a table saw blade.

That is when God called him to be a preacher, Keel says. He has served two churches — one in his hometown of Rosepine, La., and his Rocky Comfort congregation.

The Keels are partners with her parents in a small cattle business that helps supplement the minister's modest salary. Keel is up early each day to help his father-in-law with feeding and other chores.

"Last year, we quit cutting hay and started buying hay. But before that, I'd cut hay and rake hay," he says. "I enjoy being able to do something."

Although his eyesight is worsening, Keel says he feels fortunate it's the only health worry he has. He says he gained inspiration from an Arkansas preacher he heard speak at a conference who suffered from a debilitating muscular disease.

"God always seems to send someone to lift us up and inspire us and to recognize that our disabilities, our handicaps, are not overpowering to the point we can't overcome them in some way if we want to," he says.

Religion briefs

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Before 1839, visual documentation of life was the work of artists. The camera changed all that, and the Mormon Church, founded in 1830, grew up with the science of photography.

From the earliest daguerreotypes to images snapped by the auto-everything cameras of today, it is easy to tell the story of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in pictures.

With hundreds of thousands to choose from, try doing it in one book with just 260 black-and-white images. That was the discriminating task William W. Slaughter set for himself.

And the result, "Life in Zion: An Intimate Look at the Latter-day Saints, 1820-1995," is a candid portrait of a peculiar and pioneering people.

Slaughter, a photo archivist who has worked for the church nearly 20 years, stuck with pictures that offered a "window to the past" that "humanizes the Mormons."

In one image, a young missionary pictured with others in Echo Canyon is thumbing his nose at the camera.

Still another shows two missionaries in London posing by an advertisement for the motion picture "Trapped by the Mormons" in 1922.

Slaughter consciously sought to show the flip side of early Mormonism, one different from the countless formal portraits of ancestors with unsmiling faces and blank stares.

"We tend to put our ancestors up on this pedestal," he said. "But these people are full of life. These are real people, with real stories."

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) — Pope John Paul II has accepted the resignation of Archbishop Daniel Kucera of Dubuque, the Vatican said.

At 72, Kucera had three years to go before reaching the normal retirement age for bishops. He is not sick, but with Coadjutor Archbishop Jerome Hanus already doing much of the archdiocese's administrative work, Kucera decided now is the time to retire. He will be succeeded by Hanus.

"One always has mixed emotions at a time like this," Kucera said. "My adult life as a monk, priest and bishop have been spent in administration. It will feel strange indeed not to have to respond each day to a fixed schedule planned months and years in advance."

Kucera will remain in Dubuque for a while and then move to Aurora, Colo., where he has a brother, who is a priest, and several cousins.

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Retired Episcopal Bishop Walter Righter, charged with heresy for ordaining a gay man, faces a church trial early next year.

The trial is set for Jan. 3-5 at the Diocese of Chicago office, Bishop

Edward Jones of Indianapolis said recently. Jones is president of the nine-bishop Court for the Trial of a Bishop.

In January, 10 bishops charged Righter with violating a canon law by "teaching a doctrine contrary to that held by the church."

The charge was put to a vote by the nation's bishops, and it received the 25 percent backing needed to press a trial.

Righter, 71, was Iowa's bishop from 1972 to 1988. After he retired, he moved to New Jersey, where he served as an assistant bishop. In 1990, Righter ordained Barry Stopfel, a homosexual, as a deacon.

Righter has denied the charges, saying church doctrine in this case does not limit a bishop's right to ordain a "canonically qualified candidate."

Wife Can't Laugh Off Widow's Continued Calls to Husband

DEAR ABBY: About six months ago, my husband received a telephone call from a recently widowed woman. It seems they had a brief affair 30 years ago when he was 20 years old and living in another state.

I was present when he received this call. We both thought it was funny and laughed about it.

Well, last night, he received a second call from this woman, and again he carried on a friendly conversation with her. (She started out by asking if I was home.)

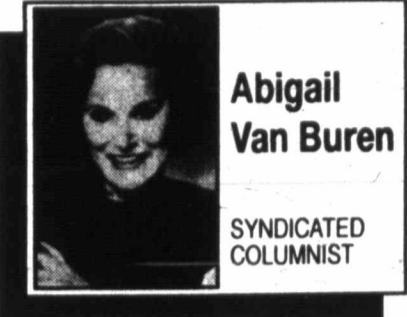

I no longer think that this is funny. I think my husband should have stressed that he was a married man, and advised her to get on with her life.

Abby, I was widowed five years ago and I went through much pain and loneliness, but never did I call a married man in an effort to resume an old relationship. Never!

I expect there will be future calls from this woman, and I am hurt my husband didn't nip this in the bud. It is probably just an ego trip for him, but I feel a little less trust in him now than I did before. If the situation were reversed and I was getting the calls, I doubt if he would approve. Am I wrong to feel hurt?

DISILLUSIONED

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: No, obviously, you feel more than just "hurt." You feel threatened — perhaps without cause. Let your husband know that the phone calls concern you, and ask that he discourage this woman from phoning again. If he refuses, you have reason to be upset.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Loves to Move" caught my eye because I could have written it. Her words are a carbon copy of my feelings.

Since I was 12 years old, I've found an unnatural delight in changing residences. At the time, my father's job required many moves — sometimes to another state. I considered each move a challenge.

After I married, my moving slowed down, because my husband didn't go along with my "gypsy" inclinations. Twenty-one years later, I divorced my husband and moved three times a year for the next six years.

Then, I married a man who was just like me, and during our 24-year marriage, we moved approximately 60 times.

Two years ago, I was left a widow. Abby, I am almost 75 years old, and I'm still moving.

I wanted to write this letter to show "Loves to Move" that there is someone else like her. I would have written sooner, but I was in the middle of moving. You may use my name.

SIGNE CAGLE IN ST. LOUIS
DEAR SIGNE CAGLE: I've heard from many readers who have written to say they hate to move, but you are one of the few to say you love to move.

When I telephoned you to ask permission to use your name, you assured me that everything you wrote is true. Thank you for an unbelievable — but authentic — letter.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years, you have done many columns on the conduct of guests. I think my mother summed it up best when she said, "Guests can do anything and act any way they please in my home, but I decide who is invited back."

I've been reading your column and your sister's forever. You should both be on the bench.

BASKETBALL

PAMPA — The annual Harvester Midnight Madness basketball event is scheduled for Oct. 27, starting at 11:30 p.m. in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Besides the intrasquad scrimmage for the Pampa boys basketball team, some mystery entertainment has been planned.

The public is invited to attend.

FOOTBALL

CANADIAN — The Harris Rating System has the Canadian-Clarendon clash tonight picked as a tossup. That could be the best guess considering how equal these two teams seem to be.

Canadian has a 4-1 record while Clarendon is 5-1. In reality, Clarendon should have a slight edge since the District 2-2A tilt will be played on the Broncos' field.

In the Harris Class 2A poll, Canadian is at the No. 45 spot while Clarendon is at No. 48.

GOLF

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The new course being used for the Texas Open was defenseless against its first wave of touring pros.

Loren Roberts' 8-under-par 64 led 11 players who shot 67 or better on the La Cantera Golf Club course Thursday. Chris Perry and 1989 Texas Open champion Donnie Hammond were just one stroke off the lead.

The course was a big topic of conversation as this was the first year since 1977 the Texas Open was played somewhere other than Oak Hills Country Club.

"I was really happy to be able to shoot this low round," Roberts said. "Putting is my game, so I just wanted to get myself in position to get in on the green and go for a birdie putt."

Duffy Waldorf shot a first-round 66 and eight players were at 67. Fifteen players — among them Paul Azinger, former Texas Open winner Jay Haas and Blaine McCallister and defending champion Bob Estes — were at 68.

Carved from an old limestone quarry at the edge of the Texas Hill Country, the 6,899-yard La Cantera course has steep slopes and requires a lot of walking.

"It's definitely a workout," Waldorf said. "I took a hot tub last night and my legs were enjoying the bubbles. They were enjoying floating."

Several golfers said they didn't mind La Cantera but missed the old-fashioned style of smaller Oak Hills.

"Oak Hills is a great little golf course," said Hal Sutton, who had a 67 and added that most of the golfers in this year's Texas Open miss the place. "That's not downplaying this golf course. That's up-playing Oak Hills."

However, Waldorf said, La Cantera's design makes for exciting golf.

"There are a lot of hills. There are a lot of birdie holes," he said. "There are a lot of places you can get into trouble."

Roberts birdied two of the first three holes, then bogeyed the par-4 5th before getting two more birdies on the front nine. He birdied the first three holes on the back nine and moved into the lead at eight under with a 10-foot birdie putt on 16.

"The greens, especially where the flags are, are pretty flat," he said. "I had an awful lot of straight putts."

Sutton is 30th on the PGA Tour money list, $12,211 ahead of Roberts, who is 31st with $540,135. The top 30 qualify for next week's $3 million Tour Championship at Southern Hills Country Club in Tulsa, Okla.

The $1.1 million Texas Open pays $180,000 to the winner.

Indians, Braves both have power and pitching

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Even before there was a Greg Maddux, there was a certain truth about baseball.

"Good pitching has stopped good hitting. That has always been the rule," Maddux reiterated recently.

Certainly Maddux and his Atlanta Braves have a strong staff, perhaps the best in the majors. But will it be enough to shut down the best-hitting team baseball has seen in years in the World Series?

"Their staff, they say, is the best staff in baseball," Cleveland Indians hitting coach Charlie Manuel said Thursday. "At the same time, both teams have a lot of power. The Colorado Rockies scored some runs against Atlanta, and I'm kind of hoping we will, too."

The Indians led the majors in hitting, scoring and home runs. Albert Belle was the main reason as he hit 50 homers and became the only player in the majors to reach 30 or more for the last four years.

The Braves, meanwhile, were next-to-last in batting, but second in the NL in home runs. Fred McGriff homered 27 times, though the shortened season ended his streak of seven straight years with at least 30.

"All season long, we just missed clicking together at one time," McGriff said. "We've got a lot of power hitters, and you ain't going to go up there bunting."

Both sluggers get their chances starting Saturday night with Game 1 in Atlanta. Maddux, certain to win his fourth consecutive Cy Young Award, will start against AL playoff MVP Orel Hershiser, whose 7-0 record is the best in postseason history.

Maddux heads a staff that led the majors in ERA. Hershiser leads a staff that had the best ERA in the AL.

McGriff has faced Hershiser before, hitting only .188 against him during the four years they both were in the NL.

McGriff hit .382 with four doubles and two homers, drove in six runs and scored nine in eight playoff games against Colorado and Cincinnati.

Known for being patient at the plate, a rare quality that only Frank Thomas and a few other power hitters possess, McGriff is willing to walk. That's important against Hershiser, who often retires batters by getting them to chase pitches outside the strike zone.

"It's great having him hitting behind me because teams want to deal with me, not Fred," said rookie Chipper Jones, who had 23 homers and 86 RBIs. "I see a lot of pitches over the plate because of him."

Belle is considered an aggressive hitter, although he had a better walk-strikeout ratio than his cleanup counterpart in the World Series. Belle drew 73 walks and fanned 80 times; McGriff drew 65 walks and struck out 100 times.

Belle batted .317, tied for the AL lead with 126 RBIs and became the first player since Stan Musial in 1948 to get 100 extra-base hits in a season. He dipped to .241 in nine playoff games with two homers, two doubles and seven walks.

A strained right ankle slowed Belle late in the playoff series against Seattle. He still loves to hit fastballs, especially if he's guessing one is coming on the first pitch.

Exactly what Belle anticipates, however, is not known because he's not commenting.

"He looks like the kind of right-handed hitter that plays right into my changeup. Down and away," Braves lefty Tom Glavine said.

Maddux is known for being the best in baseball at hitting his spots. Belle is known for a fearsome scowl at the plate, and for hitting baseballs. Just the kind of matchup fans like to see this late in the season.

"They move it around in and out, trying to expand the zone," Manuel said. "It's important that you swing at strikes and not get caught up in their pitching."

PHS volleyball team gets ready for last home match

PAMPA — Three seniors will be playing their final home match when the Pampa Lady Harvesters take on Amarillo Caprock Saturday in McNeely Fieldhouse.

The threesome — Jane Brown, daughter of Paul and Marilyn Brown; Serenity King, daughter of Dennis and Doris King, and Amanda Kludt, daughter of Francis and Eileen Kludt — all started their playing careers in the 7th grade under current PHS coach Sandra Thornton.

"I've watched them grow into outstanding young adults, athletes and students. I want to commend them for their leadership this year. They've really pulled the team together," said Thornton.

Brown, King and Kludt have compiled some impressive statistics this season, especially against District 1-4A's top two teams — Hereford and Dumas. Hereford is ranked No. 1 in Class 4A.

Against Hereford, King had 21 of 24 attacks and 8 kills; 15 of 15 in setting and 2 assists; Brown, 100 percent serving and Kludt, serves received, 14 of 16.

Against Dumas, Brown had 6 of 7 attacks and 3 kills; King, 13 of 16 attacks and 1 kill and Kludt, 5 of 6 attacks and 1 kill. In blocking, Kludt had 4 solos and — 3 assists in 8 attempts.

Brown had 7 of 8 digs and was 6 of 6 in serving. Kludt was 10 of 12 in setting while King was 21 of 21 in setting with 5 assists.

Hereford has a perfect 9-0 record in district and is 22-3 for the season. Dumas is 8-1 and 14-8.

Saturday will also be Parents Day for Lady Harvester team members. The junior varsity match starts at 2 p.m., followed by the varsity.

Pampa has a 3-7 district mark and is 9-13 for the season. Caprock is 2-7 and 8-15.

Pampa's final match will be Tuesday at Randall. The two teams are tied for fourth in district play.

Snyder turning Kansas State program around

By The Associated Press

There are people with long memories who can remember when Nebraska was akin to Kansas State in the Big Eight Conference.

Think the Cornhuskers have always been world beaters? Think again. From 1955 through 1961, Nebraska had zero seasons with a winning record. And during that stretch, Nebraska lost three times to Kansas State, the losingest program in major-college football.

What saved Nebraska was Bob Devaney, who coached Nebraska to a 9-2 record his first season and produced consecutive national champions in 1970 and 1971.

There's another Devaney-like turnaround being authored in the Big Eight these days, by Bill Snyder at Kansas State. He takes his Wildcats into Lincoln on Saturday with a 6-0 record, a No. 8 national ranking and a legitimate shot at ending a 26-game losing streak in this series. And that's taking into account that Nebraska is 6-0, the defending national champion and the second-ranked team in the country.

"We try to approach every game the same. There's not a ball game that is going to take us any one direction or the other," Snyder insists. "I certainly think that everyone walks a little faster and heart rates maybe get a little higher during the course of a week like this. But I don't think it's any different than it has been each and every year we've played them."

There is still resistance to Kansas State's success in some quarters: Las Vegas oddsmakers favor Nebraska by a whopping 23 points.

"Personally, that has probably had as little significance as you could possibly imagine," Snyder said. "I don't know what the numbers are, and really that's very unimportant to me. I don't pay attention to it because I know they really don't mean a great deal. It's certainly not going to affect our preparation."

What has Snyder wrought? Kansas State is riding consecutive nine-victory seasons and is already assured of a third straight winning season, its best such run in 70 years. With 4 1/2 seasons remaining in the decade, K-State has won 41 games, only eight shy of the best decade in school history, from 1910 to 1919.

Making it all the more remarkable is that Snyder came on board in the last season of what might arguably have been the low point in Kansas State history. In a four-year stretch from 1986 to 1989, Kansas State won exactly one game over a major-college opponent — that against Kansas, also one of the poorest teams in the country at the time.

Kansas, by the way, is enjoying a renaissance under Glen Mason. The Jayhawks are 6-0 and ranked seventh heading into a date Saturday at No. 15 Oklahoma.

Victories by both Kansas schools this weekend would set the stage for probably the biggest game ever played in the state — Kansas at Kansas State on Oct. 28 with, yes, national championship implications.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 5 Southern California (6-0) puts its national championship aspirations on the line at No. 17 Notre Dame (5-2), No. 24 Wisconsin (2-2-1) is at No. 11 Northwestern (5-1) in a game with Rose Bowl implications, No. 14 Virginia (6-2) is at No. 16 Texas (4-1-1) and, in another Big Ten showdown, No. 19 Penn State (4-2) is at No. 18 Iowa (5-0).

In other games involving the Top Ten, Georgia Tech (4-2) is at No. 1 Florida State (6-0), Purdue (2-3-1) is at No. 4 Ohio State (6-0), No. 9 Colorado (5-1) is at Iowa State (2-4) and No. 10 Michigan (5-1) is at Indiana (2-4).

Longhorns' coach concerned about Pampa's team speed

PAMPA — Coach Preston Smith has mixed feelings about his Caprock Longhorns going up against the potent Pampa Harvesters.

"Pampa has a really good football team and it's kinda scary having to play them," Smith said. "But it's also fun to see a team perform like they do."

Caprock hosts Pampa at 7:30 tonight in Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium.

The Harvesters are rolling along with a 5-1 record and are currently ranked No. 9 in the Harris Class 4A poll.

"Pampa has a lot of team speed, especially on defense. That's the kind of thing that carries a team in the playoffs. Pampa not only has a real good chance of getting to the playoffs, but being very successful once they get there," Smith said.

Caprock fields a more experienced team than last season when the Longhorns posted a 1-9 record. However, Caprock just hasn't been able to pull out the close ones. Four losses have been by nine points or less.

"We've been competitive, but we just haven't been able to turn the corner and get that win. We're also bigger than we have been up front," Smith added.

Caprock's offense is led by workhorse fullback Scott Anderson, a 190-pound junior who is averaging 4.1 yards per carry.

"I've been impressed with him," says Pampa coach Dennis Cavalier. "They run him a lot of times out of a fullback trap."

Center A. J. Moore (225-pound senior) and defensive tackle Justin Adams (225-pound junior) have been the Longhorns' most consistent players up front.

"Both of these players are real good, Adams started last year," Cavalier added. "Caprock is pretty much of a junior team. They're on their way to being competitive if they can get over that hump."

In other 1-4A games tonight, 12th-ranked Borger hosts Dumas and Randall welcomes Canyon. Hereford has an open date.

Red Raiders meet Rice

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The No. 25 Red Raiders hadn't seen so many points all season as what lit the scoreboard when they finished their 63-25 smear of Arkansas State.

And so the news was mixed Saturday.

Texas Tech hadn't scored 63 points since 1985. But the defense allowed the highest rally an opponent has managed all season.

"We're a little bit disappointed that we gave up so many points," Tech coach Spike Dykes said. "We're really pleased with our offensive production and really concerned with all the penalties we got."

The Red Raiders (3-2 overall, 1-1 Southwest Conference) return to league play against Rice at 2 p.m. Saturday.

The Owls (1-4-1, 0-2) are coming off a 33-28 loss to Texas Christian.

"Rice is an extremely difficult football team to figure out," Dykes said. "They have really really played a lot of good football."

1 Public Notice

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR MUNICIPAL SOLID WASTE MANAGEMENT FACILITY PERMIT
 THE CITY OF PAMPA, P.O. Box 2499, Pampa, Texas 79066 has applied for a municipal solid waste permit (Proposed Permit No. MSW 2238) to authorize a Type I Landfill solid waste management facility. The site covers approximately 146.778 acres of land and is proposed to receive approximately 300 tons of municipal solid waste per day for disposal and other processing. The facility is to be located on Loop 171, adjacent to an existing site (MSW589-B) approximately 0.5 miles northeast of the City of Pampa, in Gray County, Texas, (latitude: 35 degrees 34 ft. 30 in. N Longitude: 100 degrees 66 ft. 00 in. W). The Executive Director of the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission (Commission) has prepared a draft permit which, if approved, will authorize the commercial operation of this facility. A copy of the draft permit is available for inspection in the Office of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, Park 35, 12015 N. Interstate Highway 35, at Yager Lane, Building F, Room 1201, Austin, Texas. The Executive Director has also prepared a summary of the applicant's compliance history at the facility, copies of which are available upon request. Legal Authority: Section 5.103 of the Texas Water Code, as amended, Texas Health Safety Code, Chapter 361, (Version 1992), 30 TAC Chapters 305, 330 and 335 of the Rules of the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission. If you wish to request a public hearing, you must submit your request in writing. You must state (1) your name, mailing address and daytime phone number; (2) the permit number or other recognizable references to this application; (3) the statement "I request a public hearing;" (4) a brief description of how you, or the persons you represent, would be adversely affected by the granting of the application; (5) a description of the location of your property relative to the applicant's operations; and (6) your proposed adjustment to the application/permit which would satisfy your concerns and cause you to withdraw your request for hearing. If one or more protests are filed, the Executive Director will withhold issuance of the permit. The Commission will review the adequacy of the hearing request (5) and may forward the application to an Administrative Law Judge of the State Office of Administrative Hearings where a hearing may be held. Commission public hearings are evidentiary legal proceedings similar to civil court non-jury trials. Although general comments from the public may be submitted either in writing prior to the hearing, or orally at the start of the hearing, the law requires that the Commission's decision about whether to approve or deny the application be based on evidence and testimony submitted during the hearing, presented under oath and subject to cross-examination by the other parties. Public comments are not evidence and cannot be the basis for the Commission's ultimate decision. In the event a hearing is held, the Administrative Law Judge of the State Office of Administrative Hearings will submit a recommendation to the Commission for final decision. If no protests or requests for hearings are filed, the Executive Director will sign the permit 30 days after publication of this notice or thereafter, if you wish to appeal a permit issued by the Executive Director, you may do so by filing a written Motion for Reconsideration with the Chief Clerk of the Commission no later than 20 days after the date the Executive Director signs the permit. Requests for a public hearing on this application should be submitted in writing to Chief Clerk's Office, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, Mail Code 105, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711. Telephone: (512)239-3300. Information regarding hearing procedures may be obtained by contacting the Office of Public Interest Counsel at the same address or by telephone at (512) 239-6363. Information concerning any technical aspect of this application can be obtained by writing Teresa Calkins of the Municipal Solid Waste Permits Section, at the same address or by telephone at (512) 239-6229. Issued this 16th day of October, 1995

Fatal fall by mother, two sons leaves many questions

By THOMAS P. WYMAN
Associated Press Writer

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — The roof of the Wood Street parking garage offers a panoramic vista across the Wabash River valley.

The view stretches past the dome of the Tippecanoe County courthouse and onto the wooded hillside beyond, blazing with fall color.

The picturesque scene was the last ever seen by 11-year-old Sean Kent, his brother, Kyle, 8, and their mother, Kathy Kent, before the three plunged to their deaths in an alley eight stories below.

The tragedy Wednesday afternoon on Purdue University's campus left many unanswered questions, including whether the boys had been pushed. They fell first, followed seconds later by their mother.

Sean was an articulate child who smoothly emceed a school talent show. Kyle was a gifted student and soccer enthusiast. Mrs. Kent, 44, was closely involved in their schooling in this city about 50 miles northwest of Indianapolis.

At Murdoch Elementary School, former classmates of the boys wrote letters of condolence that were displayed in the school library. "We are sorry," one read. "I am still just absolutely shocked," said Dianna Chalk, principal at Murdoch, where both boys were students last school year.

"I talked to a school counselor today ... and one of the things he said that made sense to me was, you can't explain the illogical with logic," she said.

Officials initially suspected it was a murder-suicide, but later said they were unsure what happened.

"There just aren't enough pieces of information together yet," said Purdue spokeswoman Jeanne V. Norberg.

Although witnesses saw the three fall from the top floor of the garage, investigators said no one had been found who saw what happened in the moments before their deaths.

The Kents' minivan was found parked on the top floor of the garage, near the 3 1/2-foot-high wall over which the three plunged. The sliding door was open and Mrs. Kent's purse was inside.

Robert Tyree, a construction worker taking a break from a job next to the garage, said he pushed around the corner after hearing a thudding sound.

"At first I thought it was a joke, somebody threw dummies or something," he said.

But as bystanders rushed to the alley, reality fast became clear. "It was horrible," Tyree said.

The boys' father, Thomas Kent, a delivery truck driver, was in seclusion, "having a tough time," said a next door neighbor, who refused to give his name. "They were really close to their kids."

Chalk recalled Sean, a slight, sandy-haired boy with freckles and intense brown eyes, as having the "gift of gab" and perhaps a future in television. He had left Murdoch for middle school.

"He could talk to a wall. Language was his forte — excellent writer," she said.

Kyle, a stocky red-haired boy with a ruddy complexion, was an avid soccer player who transferred into the school system's program for gifted children.

Mrs. Kent worked as a teacher's aide while her sons attended Murdoch and found extra time for parent activities and service on a school policy committee.

"Whenever there was anything to be done with the PTA, she was always there," Chalk said. "She was the last to leave."

Riot quelled at federal prison; eight injured

By EDDIE DOMINGUEZ
Associated Press Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Inmates, some with baseball bats, fought with guards, broke windows and set fire to three prison buildings in a riot that started as a quarrel in a prison yard.

Six staffers at the Talladega Federal Correctional Institution were injured, along with two inmates, said Rich Phillips, a Justice Department spokesman.

Authorities regained control of the prison several hours after the riot began out about 6:15 p.m. Thursday.

The disturbance started with a group of inmates quarreling in a yard in a maximum-security area, Phillips said. After scuffling with guards who tried to stop the fight, the inmates scattered throughout the prison, breaking windows and setting fires, he said.

Five of the injured prison staffers were treated at a hospital and released; one was hospitalized, officials said. The two inmates were also hospitalized. The injuries were not life-threatening, Phillips said. Talladega Fire Chief Roy Johnson said it took up to 45 minutes before firefighters could enter the prison to battle flames because inmates had controlled areas of the complex.

Ronald Jemison, a firefighter who entered the prison complex, said 50 to 60 armed guards with flack jackets helped control the riot. He said three buildings had burned, but that sprinkler systems had prevented any from burning to the ground.

State Trooper William Brasher said fires knocked out power in part of the prison, and buses moved some inmates to the county jail.

Sheila Anderson, who was working in the prison, told CNN she and others took refuge in the prison chapel after they heard a loud noise and saw a gang of inmates with baseball bats. Some inmates protected them in the chapel, where they stayed for 30 to 45 minutes before being rescued, she said.

The prison houses more than 1,500 federal convicts just outside the city, about 40 miles east of Birmingham.

The prison was the site of a 10-day siege by Cuban detainees in 1991, also in the maximum-security unit. Phillips said Cubans were not involved in Thursday's melee.

Man executed for crowbar slayings of family

JARRATT, Va. (AP) — A man who killed his wife and two stepdaughters with a crowbar went quietly to his death, staring at the ceiling as he was executed by injection.

"I'll say my last words to the Lord. I guess that's all that really needs to be said," Mickey Wayne Davidson said after he was strapped to a gurney Thursday night at Greensville Correctional Center.

A small man with shoulder-length hair, beard and mustache, Davidson was dwarfed by eight guards who led him to the death chamber minutes after the U.S. Supreme Court rejected a final appeal.

He had sent a note earlier in the day to the governor, saying, "I do want the execution to proceed as scheduled."

Davidson, 38, pleaded guilty to the 1990 crowbar slayings of his 36-year-old wife, Doris Jane Davidson, and stepdaughters. He said he killed because Mrs. Davidson had decided to return to her former husband with the girls, Mamie Darnell Clatterbuck, 14, and Tammy Lynn Clatterbuck, 13.

Davidson had changed his position frequently on whether to fight his execution, finally saying this summer that he deserved to die and would abandon efforts to escape the death penalty.

Gligorov recovering from injuries, leaves hospital

SKOPJE, Macedonia (AP) — President Kiro Gligorov has been released from the hospital after treatment for severe injuries in a car bombing earlier this month.

Gligorov, 78, who suffered serious head injuries and lost his right eye in the Oct. 3 assassination attempt, was released late Wednesday.

The doctors said Gligorov had made good progress and was starting to walk.

Authorities have reported no progress in their investigation of the assassination attempt, which appeared intended to destabilize the government.

Gligorov is widely credited for taking Macedonia out of the old Yugoslav federation without the warfare that beset other break-away republics.

Century-old fire in coal reserve extinguished

BEIJING (AP) — After a three-year effort, firefighters in far western China have put out a huge fire that burned for more than 100 years in an untapped coal deposit.

Their achievement saved 5.5 million tons of coal reserves in the Baiyanghe mine in the Xinjiang Uygur Autonomous Region, the official Wen Hui Daily newspaper reported Thursday.

Fires covering about one-fifth of the 12 square miles of reserves consumed about 300,000 tons of coal annually. The fires were ignited naturally when top layers of the coal reserves became exposed to air.
