Explosion Damages Buildings

NEW YORK (UPI) — An explosion and fire, apparently caused by a gas leak, ripped through a commercial building today and severely damaged an adjacent apartment building one block from the United Nations.

The blast shortly before 7 a.m. EDT, about an hour before the morning rush hour, severely damaged the two buildings and blew out windows in the east midtown area between Second and First avenues.

A check showed 82 persons were hospitalized, at least eight in serious or critical condition. Twenty-three others were treated at the scene.

Most of the injured came from the Envoy Towers, a residential building adjoining the commercial structure where the blast occurred.

Forty-fifth and 46th Streets, just east of Second Avenue, were strewn with glass and debris. Most of the injured suffered cuts from flying glass and the toll would have been much higher had it occurred during the rush hour.

Several of the injured were treated for burns.

Many of the residents of the apartment building fled to the street in their nightclothes. The building later was completely evacuated of its 250 families as a precautionary measure.

Two men who had been working in a garage under the apartment building and were reported missing were located later unharmed.

One of the buildings, a 25-story blocklong office building at 305 E. 45th St., had almost the entire ground floor on the north side blown out and a stubborn fire broke out which later was brought under control.

There were no reports of damage to the huge United Nations complex, which is located east of Second Avenue along the East River and runs from 42nd Street to 48th Street.

The U.S. mission said it had had no reports of damage from foreign missions, although two missions are housed in the building where the blast occurred and two other foreign missions are housed in neighboring buildings.

Fire Commissioner John T. O'Hagan said the explosion occurred in the basement on the northwest side of the commercial building and traveled up an elevator shaft, blowing a 40-foot-wide hole through the brick wall on the Second Avenue side.

"I would say there is a high probability it was a natural gas explosion," O'Hagan said. He also said "it was a miracle no one was killed."

At the time of the blast shortly before 7 a.m. EDT, at least two custodial employees were in the 25-story commercial building.

Sai Desposito, a porter, told reporters: "I was sitting down in the back (on the first floor) and the whole thing went up. Nothing hit me and I ran out."

FOR STUDY GRANTS

School Board Approves Drug Project Application

By CLAY LIVELY

Unanimous consent was given today by the Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees at a 7 a.m. meeting at the Coronado Inn for the school administration to submit an application for a federally funded grant for Drug Abuse Prevention and Early Intervention projects for the 1974-75 school year.

The grants, which do not exceed $10,000 each, will be awarded by the U.S. Office of Education (USOE), Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to approximately 275 local education agencies throughout the country.

The purpose of the program is to provide leadership training and follow-up assistance to help local education agencies deal with drug abuse and related problems in grades 7 through 12.

It was pointed out by Mrs. Marjorie Gault, director of educational services for the system, that if the grant is approved for Pampa, it must be for school sponsored projects. However, she said, the projects can be broad based and deal with drug related problems in the community at large.

Proposals for use of the funding must be sent with the application for the grant by registered or certified mail on or before April 26 and must be received by the USOE at its Washington offices on or before May 1.

The special meeting was called for today because of the approaching deadline for submitting the application. Superintendent James F. Malone said.

Approval for submitting the application was given following discussion concerning how the grant could be used in the district.

Several members of the Pampa Drug Task Force, including chairman Reed Echols, D.W. Bond and school board member Bill Arrington, discussed both the task force's work and the grant with the board. Mrs. Echols urged the board to approve submitting the application.

Approval was given with the understanding that the program would be an open-ended one — broad, general proposals would be contained in the application and specific applications of the money from the grant should be awarded to the district, would be determined as a particular problem or problems present themselves.

Arrington said Pampa was apparently considered for the grant because of the concern about drug abuse evidenced by various groups in the community, including the school board, the drug task force and the Gray County grand jury. Only one school district in this region will receive the grant.

Board member Sam Anderson was assured by school administrators that the application could be withdrawn should the board for some reason deem it necessary.

It is not anticipated that additional school personnel will have to be employed to implement the program if the PISD receives the grant.

Part of the grant will be used to train a team of five school people at the USOE Regional Training Center in San Antonio. The cost of that, paid for under the grant, would be approximately $2,200. One team member would be designated project coordinator and could be compensated up to $6,000 under the terms of the grant.

Given that Pampa receives the grant and that the award is for the maximum $10,000, that would leave around $1,800 for materials for the project.

The Pampa Drug Task Force will meet at 7:30 p.m. today at the Pampa High School Vocational Building and is expected to approve a resolution supporting the district's application for the grant.

New Energy Chief Advises Oil Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Taxing oil industry profits, and not regulating its prices, is the way out of the nation's energy problem, new energy chief John C. Sawhill said today.

The head of the Federal Energy Office testified before the Senate Commerce Committee on a bill to control oil and gas prices and establish a federal corporation in competition with energy firms.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., said the law is needed because "only one industrialized country in the world leaves itself to the mercies of a few big international oil companies and that is the United States."

Sawhill testified, "where price elicits new supply, it serves a useful economic function and benefits consumers with increased supply, which ultimately results in lower prices... thus where income redistribution from producer to consumer is still desired, we favor the use of taxation rather than regulation, as do most economists."

Sawhill said the Stevenson proposal for a federal drilling corporation would bring "an unfair competitor into an industry that is already vigorously competitive."

At a news conference Sunday in Orlando, Fla., his first since succeeding William E. Simon last week as energy chief, Sawhill predicted gasoline prices may climb as much as five cents a gallon next month.

Price controls on most items under the government's economic stabilization program are scheduled to expire April 30. An exception is controls on petroleum, which will remain in effect.

But Sawhill said once the controls on other goods and services are lifted, "we will move back into a free market mode. There will be a tendency for prices to go up."

Under the present system, domestically produced oil is controlled, but dealers are allowed to "pass-through" price increases on imported oil.

Here to address a meeting of the National Oil Jobbers Council at Walt Disney World, Sawhill also announced the formation of a 14-member wholesale petroleum advisory board to his agency. It will aid the government in finding ways "that will lead the country to greater self-sufficiency of its petroleum," Sawhill said.

He said that when price controls were removed within a month or so, gasoline pump prices will increase from three to five cents a gallon.

Sawhill told the oil jobbers he would call utilities industry officials to a conference within 45 days "to review the whole system of rates structures and to urge them to encourage efficient energy use."

"We are all concerned about using our fuel efficiently, and I am just as worried as you are about the trend among home owners to switch from heating oil to natural gas or electricity," Sawhill said.

Ireland Records '1000th'

BELFAST (UPI) — Inspector Herbert Norris reached for a piece of chalk to change the official death toll on the blackboard at police headquarters.

"It has reached four figures now," he said. "I wonder how many more."

Shortly after 3 p.m. Saturday, James Corbett, a 20-year-old Roman Catholic, became the 1000th person to die in nearly five years of Northern Irish violence.

His body was found dumped in a ditch on the outskirts of Belfast after being shot twice in the face.

Two men had called at his modest home in the new Barnsley housing project and driven him away in a blue minivan. A British army patrol was only 150 yards away when he was shot and thrown from the vehicle.

Police had no record of Corbett in their files, but said he appeared to be the victim of an Irish Republican Army (IRA) "execution squad" used to keep members in line.

At police headquarters, Corbett's death was recorded on a giant blackboard that keeps the grim tally of Northern Ireland's daily violence. The stark figures on the board showed a total of 693 civilians, 214 soldiers, 43 militiamen and 50 police killed in Northern Ireland violence since August, 1969.

In addition, a total of 3,957 bombs have smashed homes, offices, factories, bars and shopping centers, destroying jobs sorely needed in a land where unemployment has hit 47 per cent in some areas.

The statistics, however, did not show the suffering in the small, back-to-back homes of ghetto areas, the squalid battle-ground in the three-cornered struggle among the outlawed IRA, the British Army and Protestant extremists.

There was no mention of Marjory Jenkins, the little girl who sat at home staring out of sightless eyes at a world that robbed her of her dreams.

The physical scars may mend in time, but what of the mental strains of a country living in a virtual state of war?

Congressmen To Debate Changes In Health Care

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hearings will begin on Capitol Hill Wednesday on an issue affecting the well-being and the pocketbooks of all Americans — how to finance the nation's health care.

There is a complex array of proposals, but there are signs that chances for passage of ground-breaking legislation never have been better.

For the 25 million persons without any insurance at all and for millions of insured persons whose coverage is woefully inadequate, the stakes are high. These and other shortcomings of the present $94.1-billion-a-year health care financing system are acknowledged so widely that, whatever their differences, the twenty or so bills now before Congress all call for some change.

Even the health insurance industry, whose role in a new system will be a major issue at the hearings, supports legislation setting federal standards for a minimum level of insurance benefits.

"We feel that the (health insurance) business has demonstrated the capacity for full partnership with government in a national health insurance program," Leslie P. Henry, president of the Health Insurance Association of America, said in an April 5 letter to each member of Congress.

The Nixon administration, eager to accomplish something in the domestic legislation area, will present the leadoff testimony Wednesday before the House Ways and Means Committee.

A tentative schedule calls for testimony Thursday on a bill sponsored by Sens. Russell B. Long, D-La., and Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., and from major medical and hospital groups.

The battle to shape a bill will center around the administration's Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan (CHIP), substantially increased in its extent of coverage from a 1971 proposal, and a compromise bill submitted April 2 by Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who chairs a Senate health subcommittee.

Kennedy earlier had pushed a far more extensive so-called "health security" plan, and organized labor supported it.

"We are willing and eager to testify on our proposal... Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said. "As a significant move toward the administration proposal, the Kennedy-Mills health insurance bill is a welcome development... an encouraging step forward."

Nixon Considers Subpoena Reply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has made no decision yet on the content or form of his reply to a House Judiciary Committee subpoena for 42 taped Watergate conversations, a White House spokesman said today.

Nixon has until Thursday to reply to the subpoena from the impeachment panel.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy press secretary, indicated to reporters that Nixon has been devoting the major portion of his time over the past several days to reaching a decision on what tapes or transcripts he will turn over to the committee.

"The President told me no decisions have been made in terms of the content or form of the reply," Warren said.

The committee's subpoena for recordings of 42 meetings may be unenforceable, since both Congress and the President are constitutionally equal branches of government. But now there is another subpoena from Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, returnable May 2.

The subpoenas cover the range of Watergate events, many overlapping and

ON KEEP AMERICA BEAUTIFUL DAY

Girl Scouts Planning Clean-Ups

Pampa Girl Scouts will be armed with rakes, shovels and paint brushes Saturday, April 27, in observance of Keep America Beautiful Day.

This year troops will be working primarily at the newly created Girl Scout Park, the former Santa Fe Park on South Cuyler just north of the railroad.

Work is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. and to continue until 3 p.m. Scouts will be creating a rock garden in the southwest corner of the park, planting annuals and perennials in a specially designed flower bed in the northwest corner, painting benches and a swing set, and setting up a bird feeder.

Anyone who wishes to donate rock garden plants as ground cover, succulents and hardy cacti or flowering perennials may take the plants to the park Saturday morning or bring them by the Girl Scout office in City Hall during the week, or call Mrs. W. Birkes, 665-2913, for pickup.

Any contributions of shrubs and shade trees are also welcomed. Residents having rocks they wish to donate should leave them at the southwest corner of the park.

While the main concentration will be at the park, one troop is scheduled to work on the Austin School planters and in Aspen Park and another will be picking up litter along the Hike and Bike trail and aluminum cans for recycling. Scouts attending the junior camporee at Mel

Davis on Saturday will be doing their part to beautify Pampa during this week and next.

Future plans for the park, designed for youth, include planting windbreaks on the south and north sides with evergreen and flowering shrubs. The park department has already erected a sand pile and benches using railroad ties in keeping with the location. The railroad hand cart in the center of the park will be refurbished.

Cain To Seek Presidency Of National DECA

Randy Cain, who has served as state president of the Texas Distributive Education Clubs of America in the past year, will seek the presidency of the national DECA organization during its convention starting this weekend in Chicago.

The Pampa High School senior will also be competing for the title of outstanding DE student on the national level. He won the state title earlier this year at the state convention in Dallas.

The son of Judge and Mrs. Don Cain, 1826 Williston, Cain will leave for Dallas Friday, then fly to Chicago for the national convention. He and his sponsor, Mrs. Dona Cornutt, will return to Pampa Thursday, May 2, after attending the awards banquet Wednesday night.

Using the slogan, "Raise Cain to National President," Cain has a three-fold aim in his campaign: increasing the membership of DECA, communication between national and state officers and an emphasis on public relations.

If elected, Cain will serve as national president during his freshman year in college.

CAIN FOR PRESIDENT — Randy Cain, son of Judge and Mrs. Don Cain, 1826 Williston, will leave later this week to attend the national convention of Distributive Education Clubs of America in Chicago, where he will run for president of the national organization. Serving as state DECA president the past year, Cain will also compete for national outstanding DE student.

Pythians Slate Speech Contest

Pampa Lodge No. 480 Knights of Pythias will hold its annual public speaking contest on April 30 at 8 p.m. at the Pythian Hall, 315 N. Nelson.

Students from Pampa, White Deer and Panhandle have been invited to the contest. Also ending at the same date is the highway courtesy and safety poster and the essay contests. Winners in the above contests will be entered in the district and state contests.

Knights John W. Carson, Jr. 1804 N. Dwight, David Harrah, White Deer, and "A" Neel, 319 S. Cuyler, are committee men for the contests.

Pampa Lodge has also entered a rank team in the Grand Lodge ritualistic contest and has been notified by the state director, W.C. Frasier, Waco, that an elimination contest with Childress Lodge will have to be held by May 15, with the winner going to the state contest.

Grand Lodge will meet in Longview June 9-12.

Pampa Lodge will meet in regular session Tuesday at 8 p.m. with Lonnie Parsley, chancellor commander, presiding.

Liberal Candidate Wins Presidency In Colombia

BOGOTA (UPI) — Liberal party candidate Alfonso Lopez Michelsen piled up a landslide lead today to win Colombia's first "open-to-all" presidential election since 1946.

Lopez, 60, a law professor campaigning for moderate social and economic reforms, issued a victory statement shortly before midnight. Minutes later, the Conservative party said candidate Alvaro Gomez Hurtado, Lopez' leading rival, was drawing up a formal concession statement.

In his victory statement, Lopez offered to collaborate with Gomez and guaranteed the defeated Conservatives "the right to criticize the new government."

Lopez' victory became clear with only 40 per cent of the vote counted, giving him 1,197,019 ballots to Gomez' 647,950.

Latin America's first serious woman presidential candidate, Maria Eugenia Rojas, received only 228,765 votes on the populist ANAPO ticket. Communist-backed candidate Hernando Echeverri-Mejia received 73,631 and Christian Democrat Hermes Duarte tallied only 1,332.

Israeli, Syrian Army Troops Strive To Build New Roads

United Press International Israeli and Syrian army engineer units worked under artillery fire today to build supply roads up the 9,000-foot slopes of snowy Mt. Hermon, the battleground for control of the Golan Heights.

The Tel Aviv military command said Israeli work crews struggled under constant Syrian artillery fire to widen a road to the peak.

Israeli planes, mortars and field guns bombarded Syrian engineering units building their own road on the northeast slopes, the command said.

Arab newsmen in southern Lebanon said Israel beefed up its positions on Mt. Hermon by occupying Tel El Chahar, part of the mountain in Lebanese territory. Lebanese soldiers fired mortars at the Israelis, but failed to dislodge them, the reports said.

An Israeli military spokesman, however, said, "We don't have any information" about the Lebanese news reports.

Syrian military command units said "several" Israeli soldiers were killed and tanks destroyed in day and night artillery duels over the mountain. Syria said two raiding Israeli fighter-bombers were driven off by ground fire.

The Israeli command said there were no Israeli casualties in Sunday's fighting. There were no

Spearman Man Dies In Wreck

A 25-year-old Spearman man was killed instantly Sunday about 6:10 p.m. when the car he was driving collided head-on with another vehicle 4.5 miles west of Pampa.

Dead at the scene was Albert Jerry Ring. The driver of the other car, John Erick Curnett, 21, of Borger was taken to Amarillo's Northwest Texas Hospital for treatment of injuries received in the wreck.

Curnett was listed in critical condition today at Northwest. A passenger in the Ring vehicle, John Wayne Hughes, 28, also of Spearman, was only slightly injured in the collision.

Grass in the barrow ditch on the south side of Texas 152, on which the collision occurred, was burned following the wreck.

Texas Highway Patrol officers have not determined which car had crossed the highway's center line.

In 1889, some 20,000 homesteaders massed along the border of the Oklahoma Territory awaiting the signal to start the Oklahoma Land Rush.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Ethel is heart broken at losing the man she loves because of a "triangle." But her fiancé gave her a choice! She claims she has tried to break away from her former love, but can't. But that's because her resolution is only 75% instead of 100%.

CASE A-613: Ethel C., aged 20, is a college senior. Dr. Crane, she moaned, "I'm in terrible trouble."

"For I love a senior boy and we expected to get married when we graduate in June."

"But he says he will not marry me unless I quit my cigarettes."

"Dr. Crane, I simply can't quit!"

"For I have been smoking 3 packs a day ever since I came to the university."

"Oh, I have tried several times to break the habit, for I have often dated football players and other athletes on campus."

"But they don't smoke and some of them have been bold enough to tell me they can't enjoy kissing a human smoke stack!"

75% VS. 100%

When tobacco, liquor or drug addicts say they have tried to kick the habit, they are talking about 75% resolution vs. 100%.

They are like the announcer who was ballyhooing a tightwire performer at Niagara Falls.

The announcer told the awed crowd that the death defying feat involved walking clear across the Falls with nothing but a balancing rod to prevent his dropping to his death.

Next, the tightwire artist even rode a bicycle across the taut wire, while everybody held his breath in suspense.

"Do you want to see him ride the bike across the Falls a second time?" boomed the announcer, and the crowd roared approval.

Meanwhile the tightwire artist listened to the glowing praise of the announcer.

"Do you really think I can make a second trip safely?" he asked.

"Certainly you can!" the announcer affirmed.

"You really believe that?" asked the tightwire expert.

"Yes, I am positive!" added the announcer.

"All right," replied the performer, "just climb on behind me and we'll make this next trip together!"

But the announcer reneged, for his belief was not 100%, despite his previous POSITIVE protest. And so it is with dieters, tobacco addicts and other slaves of nuisance habits.

We claim we are going on a diet or will quit drugs, tobacco or liquor.

But subconsciously we quality and hamstring our supposed 100% resolution with many subconscious amendments and codicils that reduce our actual will power from 100% to 75% or less.

Everybody can quit drugs, liquor, tobacco or overeating in an instant if he really wants to do so enough to make his resolution 100%.

Ethel should thus quit entirely: not taper off.

To do so, she can substitute use of the same hand and arm, as by carrying candy coated gum in the same pocket or purse.

Then she can go through the same hand-arm

Nuclear Power Plant Planned

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—The City Public Service Board has disclosed plans to construct a nuclear power plant between San Antonio and Austin that would serve those two cities plus Houston and the Lower Colorado River Authority.

The plant would be located on the Guadalupe or Colorado river basins and involves two 1,000-megawatt generators to be completed by 1983 and 1985, the board said.

San Antonio, Houston and Corpus Christi's power companies have already agreed to build a nuclear generating plant at Bay City on the Gulf Coast.

Another such plant is proposed for the Dallas-Fort Worth area and is scheduled to be constructed near Gen Rose.

Lawyers Seeking To Move Jacobsen's Trial

DALLAS (UPI)—Attorneys for Jake Jacobsen, facing a separate charge of lying to the Watergate grand jury, want his trial on misuse of $825,000 moved out of west Texas to Dallas or Austin.

Jacobsen, former legislative counsel to President Lyndon B. Johnson and onetime attorney for the Associated Milk Producers, Inc., is scheduled for trial May 6 at San Angelo, Tex.

"As the saying goes, 'Any place but San Angelo,'" Jacobsen attorney Art Mitchell said Thursday in making the request before U. S. District Judge Robert Hill. He said Dallas or Austin were more accessible for trial participants.

Judge Hill said he would rule on the request by Monday.

Jacobsen and former partner Ray Cowan are charged with misuse of an $825,000 loan from the First Savings and Loan Association of San Angelo. The indictment said the loan was improperly secured and diverted for the defendant's personal use.

A Washington grand jury indicted Jacobsen Feb. 22 for alleged perjury before the Watergate grand jury.

The panel said Jacobsen gave false testimony about a $10,000 milk association contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign. It has been alleged Jacobsen gave the funds to former Treasurer Secretary John B. Connally, who later returned the money. Connally denied the allegation.

Dear Abby

Season's closed on Alaska husband hunt

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A 45-year-old woman, looking for a husband, asked you where all the men were, and you told her to go to Alaska.

Please, Abby! We don't need any more women up here. The average age for a woman here is 27, and, except for the military, there aren't any spare men around. We have plenty of drifters, but they're very poor husband material.

Also, you said, "... and if you should get lucky, the nights are six months long." A lot of people didn't know you were kidding. You would have to go way up into the arctic circle to find darkness during the daytime.

Please, do us a favor and set the record straight, and don't send us any more women! Not to Anchorage anyway.

LIVES HERE

DEAR LIVES: For another discouraging word, read this letter from Fairbanks, Alaska:

DEAR ABBY: Please don't start another gold rush in Alaska. We have enough trouble with men (and even whole families) who come here looking for jobs on the Alaskan pipeline which hasn't even been started yet.

In the first place, nobody should come to Alaska unless he has a job assured him because unemployment in this state is 10.4 per cent—the highest in the nation. And furthermore, there's an Alaskan law giving job preference to Alaskans.

Another thing people don't know: The cost of living is high in Alaska. A bacon and egg breakfast in a good restaurant costs from $3 to $5, and a good steak dinner costs anywhere from $8 to $15. And if you're looking for cheap housing, forget it.

Abby, do a lot of people a big favor and print this.

YOUR FRIEND IN FAIRBANKS

DEAR FRIEND: That settles it. Don't any of you women go to Alaska in search of a husband, and don't any of you men go there unless you have a job in your pocket!

DEAR ABBY: Le Roy and I have been married for only a year, and already we're having problems. The biggest one is that he is crazy about country and western dancing and I've never even tried it. You have to have the right kind of clothes to dance country and western, and the boots alone cost $65. I don't want to spend that much money on something I might not like.

Le Roy says if I won't go with him, he'll go without me. And he, does. I don't like the idea of him dancing and drinking with other girls while I sit home. I don't mind his going out with a bunch of guys, but not for doing things that involve other girls. He thinks I'm being unreasonable.

Do you think I should put my foot down on Le Roy for going dancing without me? And if so, how hard?

JUNE BUG

DEAR JUNE BUG: The place for your foot is not on Le Roy. It's in a Western boot all set to learn how to dance Country and Western. And if you're smart, you'll love it.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a cashier at a well-known chain grocery store, and my problem is the way people treat me. They act like it's my fault that prices are so high. They yell at me when I ring up items, and ask me how come canned corn went up four cents in one week. When they pay their money, they say: "Look at that! I used to be able to get three bags of groceries with a $20 bill!"

They don't realize that I only work there, and I have to buy groceries just like they do.

And while I'm griping, I may as well mention those customers who wait till their order is totaled, and then ask to get a check cashed while customers are waiting in line behind them. Meanwhile the cashier gets the dirty looks from the other customers.

I used to love my work, but no longer! Please print this. I got it off my chest, and believe it or not, I feel better.

"SUNNY"

DEAR SUNNY: Consider it printed. Now... smile!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69706, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

VERSATILE BOOKCASE

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, APRIL 23
Your birthday today: Even trivial incidents this year have a touch of glamor. Sound improvements come easier but require special self-discipline against many temptations to take the handy way out. Relationships of all sorts tend to drift; no harm done so long as you're candid about what's happening. Today's natives have high organizational ability which is unlikely to be challenged seriously this year, so they are apt to scheme for lack of anything else to do.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Make financial plans, commitments, settle bills and budgets. It's easy to put things off, particularly if they shouldn't be. Share a good mood.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: An early start and much self-stirring of will power seem essential today if you are to get the benefit of a strange subtle turn of events.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Stick to routine, clear off all you can manage. If you find you are not concentrating, give yourself a break as insurance against needless error.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Taking pleasure in the sort of day it is doesn't necessarily get all your proper work done. Push a bit to see where your own limits are.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Laziness may set in—it's up to you to stay on your toes. Make use of cooperation available on all sides, offer assistance to those who need it.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Your scholarship increases; pursuit of interesting new information is the most desirable course to follow. Share favorite pastimes; see the humorous side.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Whatever else you do, begin early and stay on top of the job you're supposed to do. Review your resources and the way they are arranged.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: People are more open to unusual ideas, a well-organized campaign, but you have to supply the energy. Something you've been seeking a long time is available.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Home and household details could stand some marked changes, improvements. Progress on your vocation is slow but positive now.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Make the most of this relatively pleasant day from the minute you arise, pursuing every nuance of experience of here-and-now circumstances.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Febr. 18]: A good day for serious thought, study of your current situation, the path by which you got into it; but not a day for drastic action to change anything.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Being on time is important. Call in all those who have promised to cooperate, find out who will and who won't, and go ahead with what you have.

Last Week Was Busy One For News Of Economic Importance

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation was hit this week by some of the worst economic news in 16 years — and accordingly the Nixon administration began to brace itself to meet a full-scale recession.

The Commerce Department revealed that the Gross National Product fell 5.8 per cent in the first quarter, the biggest drop since the 9.2 per cent first quarter decline that ushered in the sharp 1958 recession. Unless there is a marked improvement in the second quarter, the country will be in full-scale recession by definition.

But the drop in the GNP was only half and possibly the less serious part of the story. The Commerce Department also said the annual inflation rate hit a 23-year high of 10.8 per cent in the quarter. Cutbacks in the automobile and construction industries were the biggest factors in the fall of GNP, the energy crisis was the main cause of the spurt in inflation.

Market Up
Most expert opinion appeared to be that, even if the nation is in full recession, it will not be prolonged. Stock market traders appeared to take that view for the market went up right in the face of the Commerce Department's double barreled blast of gloomy news.

The fact that industrial output dropped only 0.5 per cent in March, the smallest decline in four months, lent some support to this cautious optimism. So did a veritable flood of reports of sharply increased first quarter earnings of major corporations. Very few companies reported declining earnings but those that did were big. Trans World Airlines, for example, saw its first quarter deficit widen to $47.3 million from $14.8 million a year ago.

Chrysler said it expects to report lower earnings. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, the nation's biggest investment and securities house, had a 33 per cent drop in earnings. And some of the firms that had big gains said cautiously that much of the rises were due only to price inflation.

Retail sales were up 4.6 per cent over the previous week and 12 per cent over a year ago, barely as much as the inflation of money. But sales of new domestic automobiles continued to be very soft. They were down 15 per cent in the first third of April from a year ago.

Tornado Losses
Disaster losses continued to have a depressing effect. On top of the March tornado losses in the Midwest and South, the damage caused last week by flash floods in south Mississippi was estimated at $50 million. Insurance companies said the tornado loss claims are running higher than originally expected.

An Atlanta bank, Citizens and Southern, raised the prime interest rate for new business loans of bigger firms to an all time high of 10 1/2 per cent. Many other banks also broke the old 10 per cent record by going to 10 1/4 per cent. Still Wall Street opinion remained that interest rates are bound to go down before the end of the year. The advance in the prime rate was attributed to emergency borrowing by the auto industry to finance dealer inventories and by all industry to finance purchases of scarce materials at premium prices.

The railroads decided to follow the example of the airlines and seek government permission to add a fuel surcharge to freight rates. They will ask for 3 per cent.

Housing starts fell 22 per cent in March from the February level and 36 per cent below a year earlier. But personal income rose 0.5

per cent in March to an annual rate of $1.1 trillion.

Major steel makers said they expect their costs to go up an average of 13.6 per cent in the next six months because of inflation and the recently negotiated steel labor pact. The industry said it might need 17 per cent in price boosts.

A showdown between the printers union and New York's newspapers seemed nearer after a judge dissolved an injunction restraining the union from job action at the Daily News. The printers staged a slowdown that forced cancellation of one edition of the Friday News. The issue in the dispute is automation.

COUNTRY MUSIC

By PATRICK CARR

It's all over now. The Ryman Auditorium stands deserted and partially gutted already amid the honky tonks and massage parlors and tourist traps of downtown Nashville.

The new Opry House is in business almost nightly, with Opryland being readied for the summer tourist trade and all manner of rather un-"country" activities planned. And Richard Nixon is back in Washington, back to politics after leaving his Man Of The People yo-yo at the Opry.

That weekend was certainly something nobody in country music circles is going to forget in a hurry. It started very calmly on Friday night with a curiously low-key final performance at the Ryman, nothing dramatic but the Rev. Jimmie Snow's eulogy to Capt. Ryman and his build.

It was, after all, not the big Opry Saturday night show, and after Johnny Cash and June Carter led a regular Gospel Opry cast through "Will The Circle Be Unbroken" for the last time at the Ryman, the old Tabernacle simply emptied out slowly into a torrential downpour.

There were no tears, no obviously strong emotion, it was rather like a close-of-business sale a week after the big office party.

By morning, trucks had already taken sections of the old curved oak pews to serve as lobby furniture in the magnificent new Opry House, and that was that. The fate of the Ryman still remains undecided.

As for the President, well you have to give him credit. His was the first visit of an American President to the Opry, and as if that weren't enough, he got down and performed with a style that would have turned Bob Hope green.

Nixon charmed the crowd, which wasn't as favorably inclined towards him as most commentators would have had us think, and spoke some characteristically vague but nonetheless complimentary words about country music.

There remain, however, some folks who wonder whether the President's interest in country music might not be more political than natural, and his speedy departure (along with most of the other political visitors, excepting George Wallace who really is a country fan), did nothing to allay those suspicions.

Whatever it was all fine publicity for the new Opry House, and it would be unkind, even if justified, to complain that Nixon and not the Opry was the star of the particular evening. The Opry will be around long after Richard Nixon is laid to rest.

For all the ballyhoo, country music fans could be excused for getting the impression that the Opry House itself is some palatial source of media happenings. That is, in fact, true — with its very sophisticated television, broadcasting, and recording facilities, you're going to be hearing an awful lot from the new Opry, country and otherwise — but there is another side to it that seems to have gotten lost.

The fact is that despite all the shouting, the new Opry House manages to provide the same kind of feeling that you used to get in the Ryman.

The sense of closeness is gone, of course, but that's the price of comfort. You may have to go uptown to hear your country music in Nashville now, but at least it's nice up there.

For a start, the shape of the auditorium is very like that of the Ryman, only much bigger. The seats are bench-style, like always. Then there's the sound system, a description of which reads like it was dreamed up by PHD's moonlighting from NASA, white coats and all. It may look terrifying on paper, but the amazing thing is that it works like a dream. The Ryman's acoustics were great, and the new Opry House's 21st century electronics have done one heck of a job to match them. You hear every note, everywhere in the auditorium. That is some achievement.

There are other things too. You can still get down to the front of the stage to take pictures; nobody will stop you like they do at Carnegie Hall.

The concession stands are right up against the sides of the stage, and that makes for a constantly relaxed atmosphere as people mill around when they want to. Backstage it's the same — the same easy-going lack of formality and showbiz ego. The new Opry may be a technological showpiece, but it's also an easy place to spend an evening.

While it's certainly not true to say that nothing has changed but the building — downtown Nashville may not survive the move, and things out at Opryland are bound to be a little stiffer, if only because the thirsty customer will not find any booze within anything like striking distance of the premises — the good news is that most of the down-home virtues of a funky night at the Ryman have survived the move to Opryland.

The Opry people have obviously designed things that way, at least in the Opry House itself, so it might not offend them too much to suggest that the customers shouldn't be too impressed by their surroundings to act natural and when they listen to country music.

That's how it's supposed to be, and let's hope it will be that way.

Professional Politicians Against 'CREEP'

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Vice President Gerald R. Ford lashed out at the late Committee to Reelect the President recently, he was speaking for a lot of professional politicians and about a lot more than CREEP and its child of shame, the Watergate scandals.

Ford said publicly what many pros have long been muttering about campaign committees that operate outside the control of established party organizations.

CREEP, the derisive tag given President Nixon's re-election committee by its critics and adopted by Ford in his Chicago attack on it, may be the last such one-shot campaign operation for some time.

The campaign reform bill passed this spring by the Senate would require that all presidential campaign expenditures of $1,000 or more be approved by the chairman of the candidate's national party committee.

One Committee
It would require all candidates for federal offices to designate one central campaign committee to collect and disburse funds and to report on their finances.

Those provisions were part of a larger campaign reform bill whose prospects in Congress are not bright. But the restrictions on campaign committees, generally supported by politicians of all persuasions, may find life in other legislation if the Senate bill goes down.

In addition, it would be a brave candidate who would set up a CREEP-type independent campaign committee in the near future.

It seems very likely that political candidates of both parties, while probably using personal committees, will make sure that party organizations are fully plugged into their campaigns, unlike the virtually complete separation that existed between the Committee to Re-elect the President and the Republican National Committee.

Citizens For Eisenhower
The independent presidential campaign committee became a fixture in American politics four presidents ago, when Citizens for Eisenhower was established to spearhead the first successful Republican campaign for the White House since 1928.

Citizens for Eisenhower was created for several reasons.

First, the candidate was essentially nonpolitical, and separating his campaign from the partisanship of the Republican National Committee emphasized that. Moreover, Republican strategists knew they had to lure non-GOP voters and contributors, both Democrats and independents, for their candidate to win.

Population growth in Brazil is about 3 per cent yearly.

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Oil Company Fights Back

Mobil Oil Corp. is fighting a federal government attempt to regulate "idea advertising." The Federal Trade Commission has been asked by six senators and representatives to institute controls over what the oil industry can say in the way of philosophic comment in its environment and energy related advertisements.

The idea essentially is to have the government bureau determine what ideas private business can express in the advertisements placed with the media.

It seems strange that Mobil feels it must conduct such a campaign. We should think the media would be leading that fight.

But Mobil believes the news media have blamed the energy shortages largely on the oil companies. "As a corporation, Mobil is deeply concerned that the avalanche of news on the energy crisis, emanating from the television networks is simplistic and therefore inaccurate," the corporation wrote.

The company also said the basic structure of television news precludes adequate in-depth coverage of major issues with national impact. So what Mobil is attempting to do is to counter what it considers unfair reporting with paid ads.

"Mobil's advertising," it wrote "the type of ads which are referenced, is but one effort on our part to express another viewpoint which should be considered."

Newspapers have received letters from readers who seem persuaded that the big oil companies deserve the attacks they are receiving. But we believe the readers are fair-minded, and would not agree that another viewpoint should not at least have the opportunity to be expressed.

But Mobil claims it already is faced with severe resistance on its free expression. "Mobil's efforts to counter its critics have been frustrated by the networks' policy of refusing paid advertising dealing in any respect with Mobil's opinion on issues related to the energy crisis."

To further its objective, Mobil renewed its offer to pay for television time for its critics, provided Mobil is allowed to express its views without network censorship.

It seems incredible to us that anyone in the business of providing information to the public would refuse to let opposing points of view be expressed. We must wonder what happened to the "fairness doctrine" the television people make such a fuss over.

We have expressed the opinion here repeatedly that there is a concerted effort to destroy what remains of private enterprise in America, and this effort to stifle the oil companies' viewpoint is one of the more overt acts in that direction.

When elected officials, sworn to uphold and defend the Constitution, openly call for the denial of freedom of expression, the tax payers should be getting the message.

Even if the tax payer doesn't like the oil companies, we can't believe he will accept this effort to deny them the basic guarantees the Constitution is supposed to provide for all.

Mobil is attempting to fight back by sending out letters to its stockholders, employees, dealers and customers. That's a lot of people. According to a current stock guide, there are 10.5 million shares of stock held. According to the World Almanac it is the seventh-largest corporation in the country in terms of sales, and it has 75,400 employees.

Hopefully, there will be a large number of people who will get the message despite the efforts of politicians, bureaucrats and misguided news media who would deny freedom of expression.

INSIDE LABOR

Labor Fund For $40 Million

By VICTOR-RIESEL WASHINGTON — Labor leaders, by their own estimates, have launched drives to raise at least $40 million for a political action war chest this congressional year.

After recent visits to some 10 cross-section cities, long discussions and intensive studies of big stacks of the unions' own literature, local and national, I estimate this sum is a conservative projection. No doubt this $40 million is a target. But even by their own theory that they can collect more than half their goal, this would give them over $20 million—in cash.

There always is knee-jerk reaction by labor's strategists to such estimates. But that's because they don't read and analyze their own literature.

They have a horror of being told what the total is because it certainly proves they spend considerably more than virtually all other political action committees in the nation.

Certainly such sums negate the impression of an oppressed-class fight for political and economic survival. But they do spend it—in cash.

There is the newly militant 1.1 million member independent teachers' National Education Assn. (NEA) now competing aggressively with Al Shanker's (and Dave Selenski's) American Federation of Teachers (AFT). The NEA swung early behind the Democratic candidate in the last of the special elections, Michigan's Eighth District.

It's overlooked that the AFT is pushing for contributions of $10 a member. So is the AFL-CIO's Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

A year or so ago, COPE drove for a $1 a member national contribution, then $2, now the vogue is for $10 among locals of some unions as well as the railway and teachers members. This sure piles up.

Further, the special elections, such as in the Ford district, or in Cincinnati's "First" or Johnstown's "Twelfth" (Pa.) or in Michigan's "Eighth," have overshadowed labor's money thrown into primary elections.

Outside of Ohio, for example, there still is little coverage of the Sen. Howard Metzenbaum vs. ex-astronaut John Glenn Democratic primary election fight which goes to the polls May 7. If ever the phrase "darling of labor" can be used, it applies to the militant, left-of-center Metzenbaum. One high union official said recently, "He's our man in every sense of the word, he's never even represented an employe against any union in all his legal practice."

He's the closest one can actually come to being a British Labor Party-type nominee. Certainly labor is putting its manpower and money muscles behind him—in a primary.

This is true in a score of primary fights—though the official labor position is "never" to interfere in intraparty battles. This is true in the upcoming New York State Democratic primary gubernatorial nomination competition where there are three liberal candidates. Blocs of unions have their own favorite.

There are, for example, hundreds of politicalized labor meetings run across the nation—all the way from the Mayflower here to such smaller communities as Fort Dodge, Iowa. There recently "the butcher workers ran a combined civil rights and women's conference. But it was political and they raised $1,100 in cash contributions on the floor for their favorite candidate in an upcoming Democratic primary fight.

There was the March 25-27 Sheraton Park Hotel United Auto Workers International Assn. of Machinists "Winning in Seventy-Four" legislative conference. Over 1,000 delegates attended. It was actually a political rally. Costs money.

There are other political mechanisms wrapped in socio-economic machinery. These include such pulsating shrewdly directed AFL-CIO-sponsored organizations as the black A. Philip Randolph Institute, the newly organized Labor Council for Latin American Advancement (for Chicano and other Spanish-surnamed American workers inside the U.S.), the youth unit, Frontlash, and the all-too-overlooked, influential Concerned Seniors for Better Government, for the older citizens.

The other services such as labor telephone "hot-lines" in Michigan's Eighth, the films, the phone banks, computer work, carefully selected labor leaders campaigning full time while "on special leave" are the obvious.

The big money is spent in many ways by scores of national unions and over 50,000 local unions. They know what and whom they want in Congress—and they spend for it. It totals high, indeed.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

INSIDE WASHINGTON Running Congress Gets To Be Costly Business

By ROBERT ALLEN WASHINGTON — You are not aware of it because it was done so smoothly and unobtrusively, but it's costing taxpayers plenty.

Just before shutting down for a 10-day Easter holiday, the House of Representatives, late in the afternoon, with only a smattering of members present and in less than an hour, voted itself a $173.799 million budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

That is $11.287 million more than the current budget. Two biggest increases are: (1) "Members' clerical hire" — up $5.2 million to $80 million. (2) "Rent for members' offices in their home districts" — up $3.875 million to $12.375 million.

The $173.799 million House budget is by no means all of the cost of Congress. Far from it. In fact, it's just the beginning. First — likely next month, there is the Senate's budget, probably around $100 million. This year it's some $90 million, and with the costly Watergate investigation and other "supplemental" outlays, a $10 million increase is virtually certain.

Then there are a number of various so-called congressional agencies, foremost among them:

Government Printing Office $136.214 million; General Accounting Office ("watchdog" of Congress) $121.834 million; Library of Congress $96.478 million; $9.168 million; "Joint House and Senate Activities and Items" $44.889 million; $8.547 million; Architect of the Capitol $23.938 million.

To sum up, combined grand total of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Bill, 1975, that zipped through the House so quietly and quickly is $603.366 million.

That is $66.355 million more than was voted in a similar budget bill for the current fiscal year.

Huge as this grand total is, there is still more to come. Maintaining Congress in the style it's become accustomed to runs into very big money.

By the time the Seante has finished with this budget, the grand total will probably be upwards of $750 million. That is three-fourths of $1 billion for the legislative branch of the government consisting of 109 Senators and 435 Congressmen — plus an extensive array of agencies and activities functioning directly under their jurisdiction.

During the brief and largely desultory House discussion of this budget, only protesting voice was raised.

Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, invulnerable economy advocate, glumly observed, "Increasingly the House's budget by $11.287 million doesn't seem to me to be practicing very much austerity. We are not going to whip inflation by increasing appropriations as is being done in this instance."

No one bothered to reply to this doleful reproof. The veteran legislator, who is voluntarily retiring this year, then zeroed in on a specific complaint. He wanted to know why the Capitol architect "was employing French consultants."

Explained Rep. Bob Casey, D-Tex., chairman of the Legislative Appropriations Subcommittee, "The architect said these consultants have a particular expertise that we don't have in this country."

"You mean we don't have experts on sound and light in this country?" demanded Gross.

"Well, I'm inclined to follow the recommendations of the architect," argued Casey, "rather than seek someone myself."

Still unsatisfied, Gross wanted to know about "the proposal for installing recorded message devices, slide projectors and things like that in various places in the Capitol."

This time the Iowa scored a direct hit. "I told the architect," firmly averred Casey, "that as long as I was in Congress I would absolutely oppose any attempts to make a penny arcade out of the U.S.

Capitol. They can have all the films and slides needed or wanted in the visitors center, but not in the Capitol. There isn't a cent for anything like that in this budget."

Futile Effort One specific economy idea was propounded — but it obviously fell on deaf ears.

Rep. Louis Wyman, N.H., ranking Republican committee member, suggested that curbing the free-wheeling franking privilege might be productive in saving taxpayers' money.

He noted that the budget contains a $38.756 million item "to reimburse the Postal Service for the official mail costs of Congress as currently estimated for fiscal 1975."

Proposed Wyman: "Congress should come up with an allocation system which would allow X number of thousands of franking units to each member to be used as and when he or she wishes, but not the unrestricted use of the frank as at present, which is frequently abused."

Wyman's concept is very sound, but as far as the House was concerned it was ignored. It was potent his colleagues had no intention of clipping their wings that way.

Unlimited franking is an electromotive valuable electioneering asset, and never in the history of Congress has that been tampered with — or likely to be.

Carefully not mentioned in the cursory discussion of the budget are the following interesting items:

Cost of the "office" of Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and those of the four top party leaders is sizeably increased — Albert staff $216,000, up $44,000; Appropriation floor leader Thomas O'Neill, Mass., $228,000 up $68,000; Democratic whip John McFall, Calif., $188,000, up $73,000; Republican floor leader John Rhodes, Ariz., $174,000, up $32,000; Republican whip Leslie Arends, Ill., $188,000, up $73,000.

Also in this budget is $61,095 for three chauffeured limousines — at $20,365 each for the Speaker and Republican and Democratic floor leaders.

Needless to say, there was no reference to this item in the House discussion.

Total number of immediate congressional employes is around 14,000 — 10,000 in the House, 4,000 in the Senate.

Good Riddance Rep. John Hunt, R-N.J., has an excellent suggestion for Jane Fonda — now in North Vietnam making a film with the Vietcong.

Says the decorated World War II air veteran and member of the Armed Services Committee: "It would be very helpful if Miss Fonda would renounce her citizenship in this country and go to live in North Vietnam, where she seems to be so welcome and so much at home."

Next: A New National Anthem?

By VIC GOLD

WASHINGTON — Oh say can you hear, by the dawn's early light? Listen closely, superpatriots and music-lovers. What you'll pick up are the distant strains of a renewed debate over whether "The Star-Spangled Banner" is the best Americans can do by way of inspiring ourselves with a national anthem.

Let me add my own superpatriotic voice then, in B-flat sour, to critics who through the years have argued we can and should do better. Critics, say like that old defender of traditional things, Westbrook Pegler.

Ah, I see some among you have forgotten that Pegler wanted the anthem replaced. Let me jar your memory. Not only was that hard-nosed conservative columnist of the 1930s down on "The Star-Spangled Banner," but he even went so far as to recommend a replacement, "The Maine Stein Song" — with new lyrics, to be sure.

Moreover, as I recall, Pegler's logic was impeccably superpatriotic. If the American people want a barroom ditty for a national anthem, he argued, let it at least be a spirited barroom ditty instead of an 18th Century English groan.

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

"I'M SENDING YOU TO THE SHOWERS, ANN. THERE'S JUST ENOUGH TIME FOR YOU TO FINISH BEFORE THE BOYS GET THERE."

Which, as any eighth-grade music scholar can tell you, is what "To Anacreon in Heaven" was before Francis Scott Key watch'd o'er the ramparts of suburban Baltimore and wrote new words to it 160 years ago this September.

Nevertheless, while joining Pegler and other critics of past years, let me dissociate myself from a more recent claque which wants to do away with the anthem because of its "militaristic" tone. According to one of these new critics, Key's "rocket's red glare, bombs bursting in air" lines remind him of nothing so much as "the administration's bombing of Vietnam and Cambodia."

Well, now. Considering the Middle American reaction to such hat-lipped New Left rhetoric, I would hope that gentleman and others inclined to tie the anthem question to their own anti-Vietnam posture will, whenever the subject comes up, simply do what most of their fellow countrymen do on hearing "The Star-Spangled Banner": played in public.

That is, just stand around and keep their mouths shut. Because dragging Vietnam and the bombing of Cambodia into the discussion is almost certain to repel vast numbers of Americans from coming over to an anti-anthem cause which in their hearts, they know is right.

Indeed, put Vietnam, Cambodia, Inchon, Iwo, the Argonne, San Juan Hill, Tripoli and Fort McHenry aside for the moment. Let's just ask ourselves this question: if "The Star-Spangled Banner" weren't the national anthem, how often would it be sung — as, for example, "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "America the Beautiful" and "God Bless America" are sung — by Americans gathered together on July 4 or any other national occasion?

My personal opinion is, not at all — except, possibly, by the Baltimore Historical Society, and then only once a year. For with due respect to the inspired feelings of its author, "The Star-Spangled Banner" has to rank, behind only the Soviet Union's national dirge, as the world's worst among anthems.

In fact, it is a testament to the law of political and cultural inertia that the American people, who pride themselves on striving to be No. 1 in every area of human endeavor, should abide as their national "fight song," so to speak, a humanly unsingable alehouse loser totally out of tune with our native musical tradition.

My suggestion for a Bicentennial gift to ourselves: that Congress, which sanctified this musical atrocity as our anthem in a loser's year, 1931, poll its constituents on the subject. I predict that, outside the environs of suburban Baltimore, the returns will run 5-to-1 against Key's off-key contribution — and for the native "Battle Hymn" to be America's official anthem as we move into our third century of national life.

Did someone move for a vote? All right, then. All in favor, so signify by standing mute while Robert Goulet mangles "To Anacreon in Heaven." (Copyright 1974)

Elder Victorious At Monsanto

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — Now that the shoe is on the other foot, Lee Elder says he doesn't know if he'll accept the invitation to become the Masters' first black golfer.

Elder, upset in the past because no black has had such an invitation, earned one Sunday when he won the Monsanto Open with a sudden-death playoff victory over Peter Oosterhuis of England.

Cliff Roberts, chairman of the Masters, didn't waste any time.

"We are pleased that Mr. Elder won at Pensacola and we are looking forward to seeing him in Augusta next spring," said Roberts, who has insisted that the Masters would welcome its first black "as soon as he earns a place in our tournament."

But Elder, "in ninth heaven" after gaining his first victory in seven years on the PGA tour, wasn't so quick to accept. "I'll have to weigh that somewhat," he said. "I'll be happy to play the Masters, but I want to wait and see. There are a lot more tournaments in between. Right now, I'm happier about the Tournament of Champions than the Masters."

Elder's victory Sunday was worth $30,045, more than double what he had won previously this year, and a berth in the T of C which begins Thursday at La Costa, Calif. Since he's the first black to win a "major" PGA event since Charles Sifford won the Los Angeles open in 1969, he also will be the first black to play in that tournament in five years.

Elder, 39, a Texas native who now lives in Washington, D. C., was two strokes behind Oosterhuis with two holes to play Sunday but came through with two last-ditch birdies for a 10-under-par 274 that forced the playoff. Lee had a five-under, par 67 for the regulation 18 holes Sunday, while the Englishman had a 69.

Brew Edges Midland Cubs

United Press International. Gary Cleverly drove in the tying run in the bottom of the sixth inning and scored the winning run later in the inning Sunday taking the San Antonio Brewers to a 4-2 victory over the Midland Cubs in Texas League action.

Midland scored one run off San Antonio starter Jim Moyer in the first inning and another in the third taking a 2-0 lead into the bottom of the sixth.

But Rob Belloir opened the inning with a walk and scored on a triple by Wilmer Aaron, a cousin of home king Henry Aaron. Cleverly's single scored Aaron to tie the game.

Cleverly was sacrificed to second and went to third on a ground out. He scored the go-ahead run on a wild pitch.

Reliever John Conover got credit for the win and Dennis Kidney picked up a save.

Elsewhere in the league Sunday, Amarillo and El Paso split a doubleheader. Amarillo took the opener 10-7, but dropped the nightcap 6-3. In Sunday's only other contest, Shreveport edged Alexandria, 5-3.

start of the final round, was tied for the lead after two holes Sunday, but wound up in third with his 70-276. Miller Barber and Ray Floyd, both with 68-278, were tied for fourth and Gibby Gilbert took sixth with 69-280.

The Monsanto Open got almost as good a deal out of Elder's victory as the winner. Bracketed by the Masters and the Tournament of Champions, it drew only three of this year's top 21 money winners — and none of the "big names."

Detroit Stops Brewers

United Press International. John Hiller asked no favors after he underwent heart surgery in 1971 and he's asking none now.

He has an 0.53 earned run average and a 3.0 record that are keeping the Detroit Tigers from falling through the floor of the American League's Eastern Division. "One season doesn't make a good ballplayer," says Hiller, referring to his record 38-save and 10-victory performance as a reliever in 1973. "If I have another year this year like I did last, then we'll see."

Considering his achievements since returning to active duty with the Tigers in 1972, the 31-year old Canadian-born left-hander has modest goals.

"I would like to be in the running for the Fireman of the Year Award again," he said after allowing one run and six hits in 72-3 innings of relief in the Tigers' 6-5 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Sunday. "And I would like to be in the All-Star game. That would definitely be a thrill."

Brilliant Effort

Hiller's brilliant effort was rewarded when Designated Hitter Al Kaline's 14th inning single scored Jim Northrup from second base to break a 5-5 tie which had existed since the ninth. Northrup doubled with two out and scored on Kaline's dribbler through the middle. Mickey Stanley's run-scoring double had tied the score in the bottom of the ninth.

In other AL games, California defeated Oakland, 9-5; Boston edged Cleveland, 6-5, in 10 innings; Minnesota downed Texas, 8-2; Chicago out-slugged Kansas City, 11-7; and New York beat Baltimore, 3-0, after a 6-5 loss in 13 innings.

In the National League, it was San Diego over Cincinnati, 7-2, after a 10-1 loss; Philadelphia 7 Chicago 3; Pittsburgh 7 New York 0; Montreal 9 St. Louis 5; Houston 4 Atlanta 3; and San Francisco 6 Los Angeles 4.

Angels 9 A's 5

The Angels staged a six-run rally in the eighth inning with the key hits a double by Joe Lahoud, a triple by Bobby Valentine and Lee Stanton's homer. Skip Lockwood held the A's to one run over the final three innings to gain his first victory of the year while Rollie Fingers, appearing in his eighth game of the season, suffered the loss.

Red Sox 6 Indians 5

Dick McAuliffe scored the winning run on Milt Wilcox' wild attempted pick-off throw. Jim Perry carried a 5-1 lead into the ninth but the Red Sox tied the score with four runs. Diego Segui was the winner and Cecil Upshaw the loser.

Prentice Snares Top Prize In Ladies Golf Tournament

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Slender Jo Ann Prentice, a 41-year-old golf course owner from Alabama, is $32,000 richer today after picking up the LPGA's richest payoff in history.

But her sudden-death victory in four extra holes of the $200,000 Dinah Shore-Colgate Winners Circle golf tournament Sunday came about four holes later than it might have.

Coming down to the par three, 157-yard 17th green in Sunday's final round, the 122-pound brunette three-putted the hole for a bogey that allowed Sandra Haynie and Jane Blalock to catch her.

After the regulation 72 holes at the tough, sun-baked Mission Hills Golf and Country Club's 6,382-yard course, the three women were knotted at 289, one over par.

But Miss Prentice didn't let the hole fool her a second time.

"I was so nervous on the last putt, I wasn't even thinking about the money," she said after sinking a three-foot putt on No. 17 to edge Miss Blalock and win the top prize of $32,000 and a new car on the fourth sudden-death hole.

"When I walked up to 17, I was determined to win it or lose it on the hole," she said. "I went to the pin."

Miss Haynie was eliminated on the second sudden-death hole. After Miss Blalock missed a 12-footer for her birdie by stroking her putt one foot past the hole, Miss Prentice calmly rolled in the clinching putt.

It was only bespectacled Miss Prentice's fifth tour victory ever and easily overshadowed her biggest previous winning-purse of $6,500.

Today's Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — He was the last one left in the dressing room. All the others had gone.

Slowly, meticulously, he began putting all his personal belongings into the small brown canvas bag.

His kelly green Boston Celtics uniform went first. John Havlicek folded the jersey neatly and did the same thing with his pants.

"C'mon, John, c'mon," one of the Celtics' couriers called out to him, popping his head into the dressing room. "Arnold is sending messages from the bus."

Arnold is Red Auerbach, president, general manager and Mr. Boston Celtic himself. Few people ever call him Arnold, although everybody knows that's his given name. Right now he and all the other Celtics were in a bus which already was running its motor preparatory to leaving Madison Square Garden for LaGuardia Airport. Arnold was anxious to get going. He has been known to tell the bus driver to move on when some of his people take too long.

John Havlicek may have heard the courier's message, then again he might've not. There was no indication at all from his expression. It never changed.

Celtics' Heart And Soul. More than an hour had passed since Boston had beaten the New York Knicks, 98-91, Sunday and made it three games to one over the losers in the NBA's Eastern Conference final. Now John Havlicek, who had been the very heart and soul of the Celtics' offense, scoring 36 points, including the basket which really finished off the Knicks 27 seconds from the end, was patiently answering newsmen, a number of whom were asking him whether he felt the Celtics were home free. John Havlicek said no, he didn't think that at all.

Havlicek was asked whether he had any particular philosophy out on the court and he answered the question this way: "One of the things I'm constantly aware of is that we have to keep moving. If we keep moving, something is bound to happen. Even if you run without a purpose, when you keep moving, you're liable to free yourself. I know the toughest person in the world to watch is one on the move."

When Havlicek originally came to the Celtics from Ohio State 12 years ago, he was primarily a defensive player. Somewhere along the line he changed his style and became the Celtics' chief shooter, and now he was being asked specifically when did he change.

"I can't say exactly," he said. "I know Sam Jones used to, have that role, of leading our offense. I mean. When he started to slow up, you know what I mean, not feel as confident as he should, they started breaking me in. Shooting and playing defense are two entirely different things. If the ball goes in, you're a hero; if it doesn't, well, you're not doing the job."

Now "Senior Citizen" "I was a defensive player. I was part of the youth of the Celtics. I went from there to an old man and at this point I'm the senior citizen."

John Havlicek said all this without any trace of a smile.

"You consider yourself old?" someone wanted to know.

"I just turned 34," said Havlicek. "I'm not nearly as fast or strong as I was a few years ago. I think I play more with a purpose now. I know when to break and when to turn it on."

When he got through with all the questions, Havlicek walked out of the dressing room and stopped momentarily in the corridor to sign an autograph for a Garden employee.

"We better get a move on, John," urged the same worried member of the Celtics' traveling party. "Arnold is sending messages, and the bus may have left already without us."

It did no such thing. Nobody would even think of leaving John Havlicek behind Sunday.

Not even Arnold.

Aggies, Longhorns Playing For Crown

United Press International. It is fitting in a way that the last games to be played at historic Clark Field will be between Texas and Texas A&M. It is also fitting that these games will decide the Southwest Conference baseball champion of 1974.

Much of the folklore surrounding Clark Field has come from the games between the Longhorns and the Aggies. These two teams always seem to meet at the end of the year and they always seem to be playing for the championship.

The Longhorns swept their crucial three-game series last week in Texas Christian, coming from behind to win two of the games, and takes an 18-3 league mark into the final three game affair with the Aggies.

Texas A&M, meanwhile, could only manage two victories out of three games with the Rice Owls at College Station and have a 16-5 mark.

The Aggies, therefore, must whip Texas in all three games to wrest the league crown from the Longhorns.

Texas had its share of trouble with TCU before pulling out its first win Friday. The Horned Frogs, with their top hurler Frank Johnstone in fine form, held a 2-0 lead going into the ninth. But the Longhorns rallied for five runs, including a three-run homer by Terry Pyka.

The Longhorns also found themselves behind by three runs in the first game of a Saturday double header before putting on a typical potent power display and winning 10-4.

PJHS Golfers In 4th Position

HEREFORD — Scott Barrett and Dusty Hudson both broke 100, carding 92 and 93 respectively, to lead Pampa Junior High to fourth place in the team standings in the first round of district golf play Saturday here.

The standings are: Perryton, 370; Hereford, 383; Canyon, 385; Pampa, 394; Dumas, 410; Perryton B-team, 436; Pampa B-team, 460.

Medalist thus far is Randy Cooper of Perryton with 87. Pampa's A-team scores included Kevin Kirby, 105; Mark Epperson, 104; and Randy Lamberson, 106, which was dropped since four scores compile a team's score.

The next round will be played Saturday at Dumas.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Fingers Splitting At The Ends

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 70 and having trouble with my finger splitting at the ends. Just like they were cut with a razor blade. This is very painful.

I have been using a couple of creams that seem to help temporarily. Would you have any suggestions?

—O.J.G. Such splitting usually stems from a combination of three factors: when the skin is dry, taut and irritated. The first two are not especially unusual at your age, but you must do some searching to find the source of the third factor — the irritation.

Trying to give a complete list of the possibilities would take from now till Sunday, but a few typical examples are lacquer, oil, nickel, carbon paper, paint or other materials.

The ointments you mention both contain cortisone - like ingredients and would be expected to be helpful - temporarily - if you are sensitive to some such material as in the list above.

But it would be more helpful if you can track down just what material is bothering you. so analyze the things you touch with your fingers in your work-or hobbies.

In addition soaking your hands in warm water will soften the skin, and follow with any ordinary hand lotion several times a day to keep the skin soft. But by all means start thinking about the things you touch, because the trouble can recur until you find it and avoid it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you comment on the possibility of reconstructive surgery of the breast following a simple mastectomy?

—C.M. It can be done in some cases, not in others. Preservation of muscles and sufficient skin would be a necessity. But the possibility of adhesions to the chest wall could prevent success in some instances.

In short, the best and only answer I can give you is that it would depend on the individual case, and careful evaluation of the prospects would be necessary.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 3 1/2 months, loves to play with and chew paper, namely the television guide.

I noticed that the print was rubbing off on her so I switched to waxed paper. I would be interested to know, just-out-of-curiosity, if news print can be harmful to a baby?

—L.B.H. There are various chemicals in newsprint that could be toxic in large amounts, but I have no special knowledge about the television guides. Why not give her plain white paper until she gets over the habit - if she insists on such a paper diet?

used to be an anecdote in my family about an old fellow who used to like ketchup on his ice cream and salt and pepper on apple pie. When folks asked him why, he said, "Why not? All goes in same stummick, don't it?"

If you add milk to your coffee IN ADDITION to your glass of milk a day, then you are adding calories. But if you use some of that glass of milk in your coffee instead of drinking it as plain milk, you are staying on target.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how - naturally and without gimmicks - to the level that best suits your individual needs. For a copy, write to him - care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, enclosing 35 cents in coin and a zip, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Phyllis--A National Monument?

By EARL WILSON NEW YORK - "Next year will be my 20th in the business and San Francisco is going to declare me a national monument," said Phyllis Diller, who added that though she had her face lifted, it might have been cheaper to have had her brain lowered.

"I started at the Purple Onion in San Francisco May 7, 1955," Phyllis continued. "Every place I lived or went to school has been torn down and is now a parking lot. Does that tell you anything about me?"

Phyllis dropped these remarks at the Waldorf while on the way to Naunet to appear for a week - then I'm going to the Kentucky Derby? Princess Margaret will be there so I have to dress."

Phyllis came from one of my home towns, Lima, O., where Hugh Downs also started. She was town tennis champ and piano wizard. She went with her first husband to Ypsilanti, Mich., and then to San Francisco.

"My husband insisted that I become a comic. I don't think he ever thought I'd leave home but maybe that was his plan all the time," she said.

"In the beginning I used a lot of props - beads, hats, old lady things, a pince-nez. The only thing I kept is the long cigarette holder. In real life I would never use a cigarette holder - even if I smoked. But it's an excuse for holding out my hand."

She used the cigarette holder as chopsticks in a sukiyaki sketch. She developed a stuffing - a turkey routine and one about a thrill flight on an airplane. "The thrill flight didn't have any of the costly extras like landing gears."

The Phyllis Diller laugh? "It's my own. Yes, it is. It's whenever I left a job they used to say, 'Thank God, now we can get some work done.' Do you know what my father called me back in Ohio? 'The Laughing Hyena.'"

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Jackie Mason's one of the funniest men in America at Jimmy's 52nd St. Room where he kids Proprietors Sid Davidoff and Dick Aurelio who ran John Lindsay's try at the presidency. "These guys can't even run a restaurant and they try to elect a President!"

Jackie said John Lindsay as Mayor put 500 police in the subways "and everybody got killed in the streets." But police "have dangerous jobs because they never know when they're going to get caught."

His fiercest diatribe was at wives who are uncooperative love partners from "being tired." "Ever hear of a $100 girl say, 'I'm tired'?" Jackie was preceded by talented Josh White Jr. who sang "Mr. Bojangles" effectively, explaining it was not about Bill Robinson.

The Riverboat is making an offer to Betty Hutton to make a Broadway comeback - part of her pay to go to her Catholic rectory in Rhode Island. The Riverboat just gave Marilyn Chambers 2 more weeks. Oscar stalker Bob Opel's here looking for comedian jobs. He's a language teacher who lost his job from streaking. The "Jumpers" show sold about $20,000 worth of tickets in one day via "Instant Charge," which enables theater - goes to place phone orders on credit cards.

Joe Peppone took a crowd to hear Janice Harper at the Rainbow Grill. The Embers reopened, site of the old Embers, with singer - pianist Bobby Gosh. Nat'l Secretaries Ass'n. holds its annual dinner at the Regency Wed. April 24. The strictly NY bosses - secretary Luncheon will be at Pippin's.

Show Biz Quiz: What Tony Award - winning B'way shows later became Oscar winning films? (from David Powers). Ans. to Friday's: Marion and Jim Jordan were "Fibber McGee & Molly."

The Russian Embassy asked Avco Embassy Films

for a print of "Day of the Dolphin;" it was sent, Embassy to Embassy ... Paul McCartney talked to "Pippin" producer Stu Ostrow about writing a B'way musical. Liza Minnelli, at Harrah's Tahoe, introduced Linda Blair of "The Exorcist" and sang for her: "The Old Black Magic."

A mid-Manhattan restaurant plans a dinner - hour innovation - live boxing matches. The Times Sq. stores that print gag headlines for tourists are doing a big business with such lines as "Arrested Streaking Down Broadway!"

I'D RATHER BE LIGHT Today's Best Laugh: The President got some bad news and some good news. Reports Marv Manheimer of Nixels: "The bad news is that he owes $465,000 in back taxes. The good news is that it'll help balance the budget." Wish I'd Said That: Keep in mind that what we think of now as "the good old days" were once known as "these trying times."

Remembered Quote: "People ask you for criticism, but they only want praise."

—Somerset Maugham Earl's Pearls: Bob Orben's sure that streaking will never become a college team sport: "Where would you sew your letter?"

Lyricist Sammy Cahn, opening on B'way in "Words & Music," looked at his first pay check and told producer Alex Cohen with a sigh, "I just spent ten weeks' salary on my wife's birthday present."

Under Twenty

By KURT LASSEN

"When I'm playing and singing I feel as if I'm really in the music, completely surrounded by it and by what it says. And when I sing I try to sing in such a way that it is aimed at each person individually in my audience."

So says lovely, petite Mary Stuart, star of "Search for Tomorrow," who has embarked on a whole new career.

"Music, like acting, is a very personal thing for me. It goes back to my childhood when I was a little girl singing Blue Ridge Mountain songs with my father while my uncle picked on a banjo. What I really wanted to do when I left home was to sing with a band," Mary admits.

Her career, however, was to take a long, long bend in a different direction, a direction that followed another childhood desire: acting. Mary is the undisputed queen of television - serials, having played Joanne Tate on "Search for Tomorrow" since the show started in 1951.

Now Mary is realizing fulfillment of her music wishes with the advent of her album, "Mary Stuart," which uses her talents as a composer, lyricist and singer.

"I wrote the lyrics and some of the music for seven of the 12 songs on the album," she told us. "Some just started as poems and just seemed natural to be set to music as lyrics."

Comfortable and relaxed, Mary picked up one of two guitars in her home and began to play, to play poems set to music or lyrics strung together to sing to her audiences. There's a folk-ballad feeling to her songs and as she plays, one knows she is not only "in" the music, but "in" the meaning of each word of the lyrics.

Has the vast audience of her daytime serial helped? "Yes," Mary replies,

"because it has brought me a great many friends. My mother spends almost all her time helping me with the huge amount of mail we get. Every letter gets answered and what is amazing to me is that more than 25 percent are from young people."

"That's what made me anxious to go out on concerts. I find the college audience very rewarding for me and what I do seems to get across to them. The other night there was a full audience. Afterwards, some two hundred came up to talk to me. Then there were about twenty-five left and finally, very late, there were about ten of us talking until late into the night."

Mary's wistful seriousness is reflected in her lyrics which speak of loneliness, love and a haunting, searching wanderlust.

"The road is narrow, love, All alone. Too long and narrow, love. On my own; Don't look back. Just look ahead. Leaving all the sorry things unsaid. Walk a road that's wide enough for two."

"I wrote those for 'Don't Look Back,'" Mary told us. "They're part of my experience, my real experience, and yet I guess you could say they are part of my professional experience, too."

"If there is one thing in life that seems more important to me than any other, it is what happens between people - the reaching out, understanding at least a little. It's what I do when I act and it's what I do when I sing."

Mary Stuart is a creator of moods in those she meets whether it be on the television screen, in a concert, on records, or in person. It's a warm, outgoing mood and one can feel the "reaching out" and the "understanding at least a little."

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

...it tells you how

Ever have the knobs of a stuck drawer come off in your hands... leaving you no way to open the contrary rascal? Try smacking a plumber's helper (you know, the suction cup on a stick that you usually keep hidden under the bathroom sink) onto the front of the drawer and then pulling straight out. The soft cup on the tool won't harm the surface of the wood (if it leaves any marks at all, they can be wiped off with a damp cloth) and you'll find it "sticks" tightly enough—especially if you wet its rim first—to allow you to give a pretty good tug. That's handy to know on these damp spring days when everything seems to swell up and bind.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal our South declarer availed himself of a book safety - play to fulfill his slam contract. In the post-mortem analysis of the hand, it was the consensus of opinion that our East defender, by falsecarding, could probably have talked declarer out of employing the safety play.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

SOUTH

♦ A J 9

The bidding:
North East South West
1♠ Pass 1♠ Pass
4♠ Pass 6♠ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

West's ten of clubs opening lead was taken by dummy's ace. East signaling for a continuation of the suit by playing his eight - spot. The four of trumps was then led off the board, and when East followed with the deuce, South played his three.

As is evident, the four-spot won the trick. It now became a routine matter to lead another trump, East's jack falling to South's ace. The only trick that the defenders made was East's king of trumps.

It should be noted that declarer's play of the trump suit was guaranteed to restrict his losses in this suit to just one trick. If, in theory, West had captured the initial trump lead with the (hypothetical) singleton jack, then East would have started with the doubleton K-2 initially. On regaining on lead, South's ace would then fell East's remaining singleton king.

As was stated, East could probably have defeated the contract if he had indulged in a bit of chicanery. On West's opening club lead, instead of playing the eight-spot, suppose he had dropped the queen?

Surely declarer would now have concluded that the queen was a singleton. And if such were the case, South could not afford to "safety-play" the trump suit, since if he lost the first trump lead to West's hypothetical singleton jack or king, West (who would also assume that East's queen to clubs was a singleton) would return a club for East to ruff.

Thus declarer would in all probability have played the trump suit on the mathematically sound assumption that the adversely held trumps were divided 2-1. At trick two he would probably have led a trump to his ace - and West would fail to follow suit. East's remaining doubleton K-J behind dummy's queen would now produce two trump tricks for the defenders.

Business Today

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) -

When one university business school invites a company to explain a successful marketing campaign - that's flattering. When three of them ask that company to lecture on the success of a campaign, that's downright unusual.

But so is the marketing takeoff of the Chicago-based Quaker Oats Company's new ready-to-eat (RTE) cereal, Quaker 100 per cent Natural Cereal. Even though it is just now attaining full national distribution, it ranks among the first five RTE's, something unheard of in the cereal business for a quarter of a century. It's big news in marketing circles since RTE cereal touches just about every family in the United States. The 1.7 billion pounds eaten annually brings in about $1.1 billion at retail.

Marketing Coup
It was natural, then, that business school officials at the Universities of Chicago, Harvard and Stanford, the men who train future business executives, wanted to know how Quaker pulled off this marketing coup. Statistics show just how big a coup it was. Fifty-one RTE brands have been introduced since 1969. Only 22 of them have achieved national distribution. Only four have market shares currently higher than 1 per cent. None, except the new Quaker RTE, is higher than 2.5 per cent.

Latest industry figures show that Quaker's new natural cereal has 2.9 per cent of the entire RTE market in 45 per cent of the country even though it is going against such giants as Rice Krispies, Wheaties, Corn Flakes, Cheerios, Raisin Bran and Sugar Frosted Flakes. It has 46 per cent of the total natural cereal market which brings, in about $120 million at retail annually and is growing every week.

Natural Foods
In 1971, Quaker noticed that granola—a crunchy, not-too-tasty cereal made of natural foods—had come out of hippy communes to take over 30 per cent of all cereal sales at health food stores.

"We went to our product developers and told them to give us the best tasting granola possible and not to worry about expense," explained William D. Smithburg, vice president and general manager of Quaker's Cereals and Mixes division.

Ninety days later they came back with a combination that caught fire—a blend of rolled oats, brown sugar, whole wheat, almonds, coconut and honey. The fruited variety also contains raisins and chopped dates.

Production wheels started turning in October, 1972—15 months and $200,000 in consumer testing later—Quaker introduced 100 per cent Natural into 30 per cent of the U.S. market. And the boxes just laid on the shelves for two months.

"Word of Mouth"
"I thought we had bombed," said Smithburg. "But then word of mouth promotion started the boom. It got so big we had to put the cereal on allocation and turn off all advertising for nine months to allow supply to catch up with demand."

Now the whole industry is in the natural cereal sweepstakes. Kellogg, General Mills, Pet, Inc., and Colgate-Palmolive have brands in the marketplace. Advertising budgets give an indication of the stakes. Quaker has slotted $5 million in an attempt to maintain its early dominance.

Bank Chairman Reports High Energy Costs

HOUSTON (UPI) - The chairman of a major bank holding company estimates $800 billion must be spent in the next 15 years to finance energy requirements.

"This suggests that John Q. Public may expect to pay from 55 cents to 60 cents per gallon for gasoline," Ben Love said.

Love, chairman of Texas Commerce Bancshares, said $450 billion will be required to fund exploration and development of petroleum and $350 billion to build refineries, pipelines and related facilities.

Some of Love's examples of the requirements and costs of supplying energy:

— Up to 60 new refineries must be built during the next 10 years at an average cost of $250 million each.

— It costs an average $100,000 alone for drilling a land well. An offshore well costs upward of $1 million to drill and up to $6 million for a drilling platform and lease.

— A pipeline to the refinery costs an average $35,000 a mile. The Alaskan pipeline is expected to cost $4.5 billion. A supertanker costs $65 million and requires 2 1/2 years to build. A superport for supertankers will likely cost $200 million.
