weather details.

PAMPA — Officials of Texas Department of Criminal Justice will visit a proposed prison expansion site east of town Monday, said City Manager Bob Eskridge today.

City and county officials will host Bill Barry, site planning and special projects director for TDCJ, and his staff, said Eskridge.

Pampa is among 20 cities contending for one of eight proposed prison expansions in 1996.

Prison officials will arrive at Perry-Lefors Field about 11:30 a.m. then travel to possible site locations adjacent to the Rufe Jordan Unit, Eskridge said.

He encouraged the public to go to the airport to greet the visitors.

Barry and his staff will be in Pampa about two hours, Eskridge said.

PAMPA — The Pampa Chamber of Commerce will have its monthly luncheon on Tuesday, Oct. 17, at 11:45 a.m. in the M.K. Brown Room of the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard.

Bill Helton, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Southwestern Public Service Co., will be the guest speaker. He will talk about the electric utility industry in general and the announced merger of SPS and Denver-based Public Service Co. of Colorado.

The luncheon will be catered by Dos Cabbaleros.

Reservations should be made by calling the Chamber office, 669-3241, no later than 10 a.m. Tuesday.

McLEAN — The McLean Chamber of Commerce Banquet is set for Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in the Devil's Rope Museum, says organizer Mary Dwyer.

"We're trying to encourage local businesses and keep business at home," she said.

Door prizes are offered, and the high school choir will entertain. A pizza dinner will be catered by a local restaurant.

Tickets are $10.

PAMPA — Gray County commissioners will meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the second floor courtroom of Gray County Courthouse.

Besides routine items, the court will consider the 1996 budget of the Gray County Appraisal District and hear a presentation by County Judge Richard Peet on Senate Bill 10.

PAMPA — Pampa Learning Center will host an open house Monday from 5-6 p.m. at 212 W. Cook.

School officials invite family, friends and the community to attend.

The open house was originally scheduled for Oct. 3.

CRMWA officials plan salinity control talks

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

SANFORD - Officials of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority plan to travel to the regional office of the Bureau of Reclamation in Billings, Mont., next week to decide how to proceed with negotiations on a salinity control project which hit a snag when cost estimates exceeded expectations.

Financing of the project, touted as a way to decrease salt in Lake Meredith, was sold to CRMWA's 11-member cities with an estimated price tag of $9.5 million.

The cities' portion of the project was expected to be about $3.6 million with a ceiling set by contract at $4 million. Instead, when bids were opened in September with low bid of $11 million, the cities' portion rose to $6.5 million. The state and federal government have committed to $3 million each for the project.

CRMWA board members Wednesday unanimously passed a resolution to ask the bureau to renegotiate the cost of the project with the three qualified bidders, said the authority's general manager, John Williams.

The project aims to lower salt levels in the lake, which has suffered from less than full status and increasing salinity levels through the years.

Representing Pampa on the board are Dr. Bill Hallerberg and Jerry Carlson.

Pampa city commissioners Tuesday held the line on the city's participation in the project - an estimated $286,000 to be financed by bonds and repaid through increased water bills - when they voted four to one to spend no more than their earlier project commitment.

Williams said if the design and construction price cannot be negotiated down nearer the $9.5 million figure, CRMWA will have to see if another member city will pick up the difference in what Pampa has committed to pay and what it would owe at its usual percentage participation in CRMWA projects.

Besides the problem with the job cost, there remains the question of whether salt disposal wells will work in this area, Williams said.

The project aims to lower salt levels in the lake, which has suffered from less than full status and increasing salinity levels through the years. The project would pump salty water from a brine aquifer into disposal wells near Logan, N.M., to keep it out of the lake.

Should engineers designing the project determine the disposal wells won't work, CRMWA leaders will have to make major decisions on how to proceed with the project, Williams said.

Prospective bidders told CRMWA leaders geologic strata near Logan might not be capable of accepting salt water at the rates needed to dispose of the necessary flow, according to information provided city commissioners.

Federal and CRMWA geologists believe adequate injection rates can be achieved, but a well must be drilled and tested to the tune of $1 million to resolve the question, documents say.

United Way hits 17.4% toward goal

Pampa United Way has reached $53,111.58 in its current fund-raising campaign, or 17.4 percent of its goal of $306,000.

The new total was announced after Thursday's check-in meeting at the Pampa Community Building.

United Way Executive Director Katrina Bigham said the staff of Tralee Crisis Center "really did excell" in their drive this year.

The agency turned in $817.71 in pledges Thursday, up from the $380 collected last year.

Bigham said a lot of the major firms still haven't turned in their collections yet. She encouraged volunteers to continue to work their cards toward reaching the campaign goal.

Next week's check-in meeting will be held at noon Thursday, Oct. 19, at Danny's Market.

L.H. Webb, left, and Tony Smitherman review a map of the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District's zones after Webb was elected Zone 3 director Thursday night, replacing Smitherman, who is stepping down after 14 years on the board.

L.H. Webb elected director for Gray County SWCD

L.H. Webb joins the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors today after being elected the Zone 3 director Thursday.

Webb was elected unanimously during balloting Thursday night at the Gray County SWCD offices in Pampa. He will replace Tony Smitherman as Zone 3 director. Smitherman is stepping down after 14 years as a director.

The county SWCD promotes soil and water conservation programs on agricultural lands within the district, according to Lee McDonald, district conservationist with the Natural Resources Conservation Service who serves as the technical arm of the district.

The district also serves as a voice for farmers, ranchers and local community entities on conservation matters, McDonald said.

The board coordinates efforts of various local, state and federal agencies and other organizations and has authority to enter into working agreements with these agencies and private concerns to carry out conservation practices, McDonald said. The directors are responsible for district policies and procedures in carrying out the district program within the framework of the Texas soil conservation district law.

There are 214 soil and water conservation districts in the state, each being a legal subdivision of state government organized by local agricultural landowners with the assistance of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board. Unlike most other government agencies, SWCDs do not have the powers of taxation or eminent domain. Conservation programs managed by the district are voluntary.

Gray County SWCD is divided into five zones with one director from each zone. Each director serves a four-year term with one director being elected every fourth year. Directors from Zones 2 and 3 are elected in the same year, McDonald said.

All land owners in the county are eligible to vote in the SWCD election. Land owners can vote for anyone in any of the district's zones, but directors must live in the zone which they represent.

Other directors are David Bowers, chairman and director from Zone 4; Troy Retter, director, Zone 1; James Shaw, director, Zone 2, and Terry O'Neal, director, Zone 5.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Gray County SWCD board will be Nov. 16.

The original acrylic painting of "Diligence and Determination" by Liz Shipp hangs in the lobby of the Wheeler Banking Center where she works when she not taking care of her family or painting at home.

Wheeler woman brings her diligent art works to arts and crafts festival

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

WHEELER - Liz Shipp is bringing "Diligence and Determination" to the Pampa Fine Arts Association Arts and Crafts Festival this weekend.

(The Top O' Texas Fine Arts and Crafts Festival will be held Saturday and Sunday at the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium. The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and 12 noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.)

"Diligence and Determination" is the name of her painting of a team of mules in acrylic on water color paper which won first place at the Tri-State Fair last month in Amarillo.

"Diligence and Determination" is also one of three pieces of artwork which the Wheeler County native has reproduced in limited edition prints. The other two, both graphite pencil drawings, are "Hindsight," a sketch of a team of horses peering over their shoulders to the rear, and "The Cavalryman," a drawing of a cavalry trooper on a charging horse.

The two mules in "Diligence and Determination" belong to a woman, Marie Little, in Cheyenne, Okla., Shipp said. She first saw them in the Saint Patrick's Day parade in Shamrock.

"I don't know the woman," Shipp said. "I just met her one time. People say if I worked with mules, I wouldn't like them."

Having been reared on a ranch west of Wheeler, Shipp said she grew up around cattle and horses, but, she admitted, they didn't have any mules. Horses continue to be her favorite subject, she said.

"I'm not a flower and fruit person," she said.

Her sketch "Hindsight" is of a team of horses belonging to Joe Weatherly, who has Heritage Beef Cattle, a feedyard west of Wheeler. "The Cavalryman" is based on a man from Abilene who is a member of the 4th Cavalry re-enactment group.

She works mostly in graphite pencil, colored pencil or acrylics. "I'd like to work toward oils," she said.

Shipp said she's always been interested in art, and she's always loved horses.

The 1976 Wheeler High School graduate said she has not had a lot of formal training in the art world. After high school, she attended Frank Phillips College in Borger, where she studied to be a veterinarian's assistant. She transferred to West Texas A&M University in Canyon, where she took some art classes, but she still did not declare a major.

She credits David Rindlischbacher of the WTAMU art department with teaching her the basics.

"What he told me, stuck," Shipp said.

Shipp still lives on the ranch where she grew up, now with her two daughters, Katie and Savanna, and her husband, Andy. She said her family is supportive of her passion for painting.

"They like it as long as I'm making money," she laughed.

She admitted that being a housewife and mother along with holding down a full-time job at the Wheeler Banking Center, the bank which exhibits the "Diligence and Determination" original in its lobby, make finding time for her painting difficult.

She said she paints at home in the living room or the kitchen, wherever she can find room and whenever she can find time.

"If you want it bad enough, you will do it," she said with diligence and determination.

McLean OKs recycling contract

McLEAN - The McLean City Council passed a resolution to enroll in a Panhandle Regional Planning Commission contract for recycling services during their brief regular session meeting Thursday night.

City Superintendent Fred Smith said that the city takes glass to Borger and papers to Panhandle, as well as a portion of the tin and aluminum. A plastic site has not yet been set, he said.

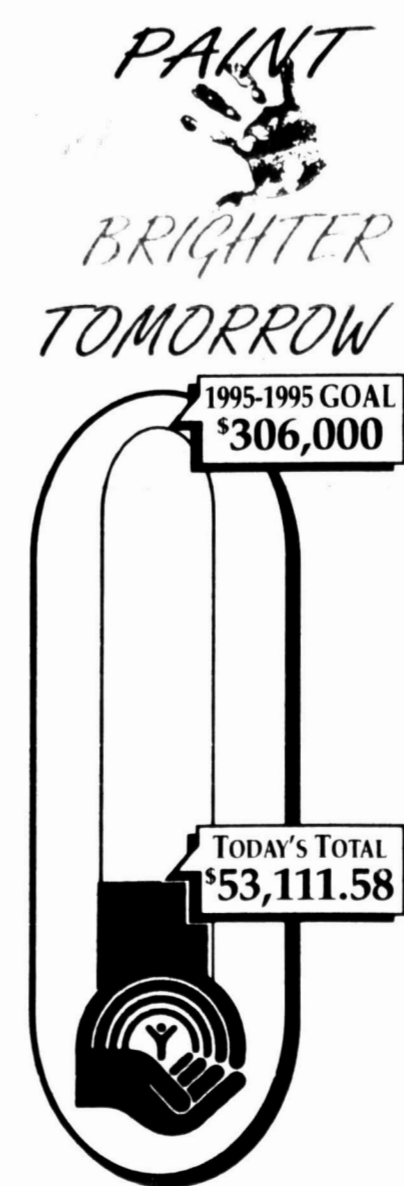

In other business, the council discussed estimates for roofing repairs on city buildings damaged by hail storms this summer. Specifications won't be ready until the council's November meeting. City Secretary Stella Lee told the council. Action was tabled until that meeting.

Action was also tabled on extending a water line and a sewer line to the old Dairy Queen building. The council hopes that by adding those lines they can attract potential businesses to that site.

In other action, Smith informed the council about new state regulations that require cities to adopt plumbing codes by Jan. 1. The council agreed to contact PRPC for a sample code.

Also, the city agreed to act as Gray County Tax Assessor/Collector Sammie Morris' agent in the sale of tax title property within the city limits.

Other choices include evaporation ponds and distillation of the brine, both of which are more costly than disposal wells, Williams said.
 Exotic approaches to solving the salt problem include installation of a shrimp operations such as on the Pecos River, using the salt water to generate electricity such as in Israel and transporting the brine to the Permian Basin for secondary oil and gas recovery.

 "The only real alternatives are evaporation ponds or reverse osmosis elimination plans," Williams said.
 Nine of the member cities -

Pampa, Borger, Plainview, Slaton, Tahoka, O'Donnell, Lamesa, Brownfield and Levelland - have signed contracts to participate in the project. Amarillo and Lubbock, because of questions raised by their attorneys, have not, according to Williams.
 The project was authorized by Congress in 1992.

Education board members seek leeway in textbook rules

AUSTIN (AP) — After testimony raising concerns about communist writings and the potential for "giant genitalia puzzles" in classrooms, a state education panel Thursday put off action on proposed textbook rules.

The State Board of Education's Committee on School Finance wants to look at whether a new education law still allows the board some leeway to regulate textbook content, said board member Will Davis of Austin.

The law is meant to give local school districts more power, including more authority to decide what textbooks they buy with state funds.

"We're trying to decide whether or not there is more room in Senate Bill 1 for us to have discretion in making rules than might appear from just reading it as it is," Davis said, citing a desire to foster such concepts as patriotism and to keep out "a lot of offensive language."

He said board members would look at the law's legislative history, including testimony when it was being drafted.

State Sen. Bill Ratliff, author of the new education law, previously said the Education Board is limited to ensuring books are error-free, meet physical specifications and contain essential elements that Texas children are to be taught.

But Thursday, he said he was willing to meet with board members to discuss a way to keep out obscene or vulgar language.

"I think surely we can come up with a mechanism. In talking to the commissioner (Education Commissioner Mike Moses), it appears he has some review capability now with regard to that kind of problem," said Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant.

Some Republican board members elected with support from religious conservatives said last month they believe they have authority to review textbooks for content they consider objectionable.

Davis, a Democrat, is co-chairman of the School Finance Committee, which heard testimony from people including Stephanie Cecil of the conservative Texas Eagle Forum.

She said proposed rules aren't strong enough and that she believes the law allows the Education Board to continue regulating content.

"If rules being proposed ... had been in effect last year, Texas students would be calling homosexual hotlines, looking at pornographic pictures, reading Dr. Kervorkian's book on assisted suicide, writing their own obituaries and assembling giant genitalia puzzles on the classroom floor," Ms. Cecil said.

Davis said of her comments, "I'm not the least bit apprehensive about that occurring or the board permitting it to occur. She's obviously looking for the most inflammatory thing she can to attract your attention and the public's, but I don't believe this board would tolerate that for an instant."

Among others commenting on textbook rules was Eleanor Hutcheson of the Texas Society of Daughters of the American Revolution.

She suggested the board consider adding a section saying, "Since proven Communist writers, artists, singers etc. have proclaimed to overthrow this country, the United States of America, by any means possible, their material shall not be permitted to indoctrinate the school children of Texas by being acceptable in the instructional resources from K-12 unless so indicated."

United Way introduces its 1995 Loaned Executives

As part of its 1995 fund-raising campaign, Pampa United Way is once again implementing the Loaned Executives Program as a highly effective way to enlist local businesses and their employees in support of United Way. This year's program includes eight executives, each of whom The Pampa News will introduce during the course of the campaign.

Duane Harp

Duane Harp, Major Firms chairman of the Pampa United Way Loaned Executives Program, is a senior vice president of FirstBank Southwest. 1995 marks his 17th year as a United Way volunteer and his sixth year as a Loaned Executive. Harp also served as campaign chairman in 1987.

"The United Way is an amazingly efficient method for our community to show our concern for our neighbors," Duane says, "and this year we are especially mindful of how valuable the many United Way agencies are to the well-being of this area." Harp considers his primary responsibility as a Loaned Executive to be that of ensuring that large local businesses have ample opportunity to offer their employees a chance to contribute to the campaign.

Harp is dedicated to community service, serving as an elder and Sunday School teacher at the First Presbyterian Church, director of the Rotary Club, president of the Clarendon College Foundation Board and a member of the Pampa Advisory Council of the Children's Advocacy Center's "The Bridge." He is a past president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and has served with many United Way and community agencies.

Harp earned degrees in business and accounting at West Texas A&M University. He and his wife, Anita, have two sons: Joe Bob, age 11, and Matt, age 15.

Hospice to offer grief seminar

Many people who have encountered loss may feel overwhelmed by the changes and emotions they are experiencing and may wonder if they can ever live normally again.

In recognition of these feelings, Hospice of the Panhandle is sponsoring "Putting the Pieces Back Together," a free grief seminar offered on Thursdays, Oct. 19 through Nov. 9.

"People experiencing grief sometimes compare it to a jigsaw puzzle," says Ellen Corcoran, Hospice bereavement coordinator and seminar facilitator.

"Seminars like this one can be helpful to persons who are trying to put the pieces of their life back together after a loss by teaching them about the grief process and by helping them better understand what they are going through. They will also see that they are not alone in what they are experiencing," Corcoran said.

The seminar sessions are scheduled from 7-8 p.m. at the new Hospice of the Panhandle office conference room at 800 N. Sumner in Pampa Oct. 19, 26, and Nov. 2 and 9. Presentations, videos and handouts will be used in the discussions.

Handling grief during the holidays is one of the topics to be discussed in the sessions. Corcoran said, commenting that people in grief often experience added stress during the holidays. She added that this session offers suggestions for specific ways of dealing with holiday-time pressures.

"Putting the Pieces Back Together" is free and open to the public. Corcoran recommends that participants have not experienced a death of someone close to them within the past three months.

For more information, or to sign up for the seminar, call Hospice of the Panhandle at (806) 665-6677. Participants may also enroll at the first session.

Witness: Woman with a gun chased Selena

HOUSTON (AP) — A loud boom echoed through a motel, and then a calm-looking woman with a gun chased a screaming Selena through the courtyard, a maintenance man testified Thursday.

The witness, Trinidad Espinoza, identified the woman with the gun as Yolanda Saldivar, the former Selena fan club president on trial on charges of murdering the Grammy-winning Tejano singing star March 31.

Ms. Saldivar "was pointing it at her," Espinoza said. Then, "she just walked up, stopped. She walked back to the room." Asked if she looked sad, angry or excited, he replied, "No, just normal."

Two housekeepers also testified Saldivar chased Selena with a gun.

"She was running back of Selena and pointing the gun at her," Norma Martinez testified. "She just yelled and called her 'Bitch!'"

The testimony contradicted defense claims that a hysterical Saldivar shot the 23-year-old Selena by accident while waving the .38-caliber revolver.

Prosecutors contend the slaying was deliberate and took place after Selena went to the motel to fire Saldivar, 35, for allegedly embezzling $30,000 from Selena's boutiques. Selena was shot in a motel room, ran outside and collapsed in the lobby of the office.

Saldivar, who rose from president of the singer's fan club to manager of Selena's two boutiques in Texas, could get up to life in prison.

Espinoza, who worked at the Days Inn motel in Corpus Christi where the slaying occurred, described to jurors in a Houston courtroom what he saw about noon that day. The trial was moved because of publicity and the singer's popularity in her hometown of Corpus Christi.

Espinoza said he was repairing a clothes dryer when "I heard a loud boom. At first I thought it was like a flat tire." He saw a young woman in a jogging suit with loose hair running and screaming, he testified.

"I saw another woman chasing her. She had a gun," he said.

Asked if he could identify the woman with the gun, he pointed across the courtroom to Saldivar. He later learned the victim was the singing star, whose full name is Selena Quintanilla Perez.

Selena's mother and Saldivar's mother left the courtroom as he gave the testimony, the first to describe the shooting scene.

Ms. Martinez told of a calm Saldivar carrying "a cowboy gun" and Selena falling to the floor as a desk clerk tried to find out from her what had happened. "She said the lady in 158 — Yolanda — had shot her," Martinez said. "She was just screaming 'Help! Help!'"

Martinez said she spotted a police officer and told him that Saldivar had climbed into a red pickup truck and was driving in the parking lot. "I told the policeman, 'Hurry, hurry!'" she said. "I didn't want for her to escape."

"When the officer got in his car, Yolanda parked. He parked right in back of her. He wanted to get close to her truck. Yolanda was screaming that she didn't do nothing." That was the start of a nine-hour standoff during which Saldivar threatened to kill herself.

Sandra Avalos, another housekeeper, said she saw Selena in the motel courtyard, bleeding from the back, "running and screaming, 'Somebody help me.'" She also said Saldivar seemed calm.

Earlier Thursday, manicurist Celia Soliz testified that the day before the slaying, Selena had expressed concern while getting her nails done about Saldivar's shoddy record-keeping and said she planned to fire her.

Ms. Soliz works at Selena Etc. in Corpus Christi, one of two stores owned by the singer.

"She was very upset," Soliz said, adding that she even followed the singer home that night because "I was worried about her."

The same evening, Saldivar, who lives in San Antonio, checked into the Days Inn where Selena was fatally shot.

Selena was shot as she met with Saldivar to retrieve business records. Police said Saldivar admitted to the shooting after the standoff.

Nation briefs

Lab spill prompts evacuation, TB tests

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Several employees of the Texas Center for Infectious Disease will be tested next week for tuberculosis after a lab spill at the hospital Thursday.

Lab technicians dropped two vials of tuberculosis cultures, which broke and forced the evacuation of 70 to 100 employees, according to KISA radio.

Hospital spokesman Dr. Robert Longfield said Thursday night that the building was sealed off and the lab was cleaned according to Centers for Disease Control regulations.

The hospital will resume normal operations Friday, he said.

Longfield stressed the accident posed no threat to surrounding areas.

"We think the alarm was turned in promptly and the evacuation took place smoothly," Longfield said. "The testing of the employees is merely a precaution."

Report: Turner may cut pay from Time Warner merger

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ted Turner said he may reduce the more than $125 million, five-year salary he arranged as part of his company's $7.4 billion merger with Time Warner Inc., the Los Angeles Times reported Thursday.

The compensation would make Turner, who is to become vice chairman of Time Warner, one of America's highest-paid executives.

His new boss, Time Warner Chairman Gerald Levin, earned $5.3 million in 1994.

Trying to blunt criticism that his deal was too sweet, Turner made the pay cut suggestion Wednesday during a speech for entertainment executives at a private conference in New York held by Goldman Sachs, the Times reported.

No one at Turner Broadcasting Systems or Time Warner could confirm the comments, though an unidentified Time Warner source told the Times such an adjustment was being discussed.

Firefighters killed in line of duty to be honored

EMMITSBURG, Md. (AP) — Flags will be flown at half-staff and sirens will be sounded across the nation Sunday as 107 fallen firefighters from 35 states, including Texas, are remembered.

About 350 relatives of career and volunteer firefighters who lost their lives in the line of duty last year will join hundreds of officials from across the United States at the 14th annual National Fallen Firefighters Memorial Service.

The 11 a.m. ceremony will be held on the campus of the National Emergency Training Center in Emmitsburg, 50 miles northwest of Baltimore.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveeting commandment.

Texas Editorials

Killeen Daily Herald on congressional cuts involving police:

Zorro, the famed swordsman, slashed a "Z" on his foes; Bill Clinton's mark seems destined to be a "V," signifying his veto of GOP funding bills that target his favorite programs. Consider, for example, COPS.

Part of the 1994 Crime Law, COPS - Community Oriented Policing Services - aspires to put 100,000 more police officers on America's streets by 1999. So far, boasts Attorney General Janet Reno, the Justice Department has issued grants to fund about 25,000 new officers, and about 10,000, having completed training, actually walk the beat.

However, the Senate may follow the House in zero-budgeting COPS, instead giving the states $10 billion in block grants to fund law-enforcement needs of their choice. Clinton, unheeding his Papermate, has promised to veto any bill that threatens his 100,000-cops strategy.

Congress is right to zero-out many Big Government programs. But putting more police shoe leather on America's mean streets isn't exactly liberal falderal. If Republicans cross swords with Clinton over this, they may wind up with a "V" on their backsides - and some tall explaining to do to crime-plagued voters.

The Victoria Advocate on OSHA:

Three years ago, officials of the Occupational Safety and Hazard Administration (OSHA) in Maine used the same tactics as their counterparts across the nation - surprise inspections, insistence on voluminous paperwork, punitive fines and protracted litigation. And, like the rest of the nation, Maine showed no improvement in worker safety as a result.

Unlike their counterparts elsewhere, however, OSHA's Maine operatives decided that a new approach was needed. So it was that in 1993, they targeted the 200 businesses in Maine that had the most worker compensation claims, and offered not to fine them if they created an agreement to improve safety and let employees police the workplace.

All but two of the businesses agreed, and they have since shown a 35 percent drop in injury claims. Moreover, 60 percent of the businesses now report lower injury and illness rates. Such success strongly suggests that the Maine project should be adopted as a model for the entire nation. What OSHA has done since it was created has accomplished little of value. It's time to make OSHA work, or kill it off.

Last month's UCLA study of television violence confirms what has become increasingly apparent to viewers: Small screen brutality is down. Some would attribute this change to pressure from Washington, others to heightened moral awareness among producers. To me, the answer seems obvious: Once again, the market has spoken.

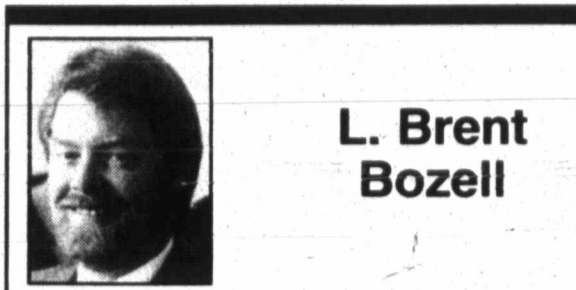

This is not the first time Hollywood has altered the content of its product in response to public demand. Well over a decade ago, movies and television stopped glamorizing substance abuse. Cocaine was in vogue, pot good for a few laughs and comedian Foster Brooks based a career on playing an inebriate, but that's all in the distant past where prime-time television is concerned.

There remains a part of the entertainment industry in which drugs aren't marginal - the record business. Given that rock and rap recordings are at least as influential a medium for the young as films and television, this state of affairs is worrisome. What sort of examples are drug-using musicians setting?

The issue crystallized with the August death of Grateful Dead leader Jerry Garcia, who had a long-standing heroin addiction and spoke glowingly regarding the benefits of psychedelic drugs. Garcia stated recently that if given absolute power over federal narcotics policy, he'd have made "everything legal immediately... Humans love to change their consciousness and so there will always be drugs." Officially, Garcia died of a heart attack, but clearly, his drug habit was the catalyst for his permanent change of consciousness.

Garcia refused to condemn even hard drugs and may be considered an extreme case, but he wasn't unique. Porno for Pyros front man and Lollapalooza founder Perry Farrell told Rolling Stone that his "prescription for personal happiness" was "(doing) drugs."

Marijuana has many friends in the music world.

L. Brent Bozell

The Black Crowes have long been in the forefront of pop music's pot praisers. In an interview last year with Rolling Stone, singer Chris Robinson characterized his band's drug stance as: "Just say no to lying... I got into rock 'n' roll... and saw people doing anti-drunk-driving commercials and don't-do-drugs commercials, and they (were) wasted... I would never tell you to do (drugs) - but, Robinson said as far as his own use of them is concerned, "Leave me alone."

Other rockers favoring pot include Spin Doctors singer Chris Barron, who has asserted, "The whole premise of marijuana being illegal is utterly ridiculous," and Sinead O'Connor, who has stated, "Selling marijuana is one of the most respectable things anyone could do," adding, "I think everyone should smoke it." (O'Connor has since gone through a drug-rehabilitation program.)

For marijuana advocacy, the group Cypress Hill is the rap equivalent of the Crowes. Several tracks on Cypress Hill's 1993 LP, Black Sunday, advocate marijuana use. Titles include "Legalize It," "Hits From the Bong" and "I Wanna Get High," which says in part:

Yes, I smoke...
Straight off the roach clip
The herb is more than a powerful potion What's the commotion?

Moreover, the Black Sunday liner notes include a history of pot, and group members are spokesmen for the pro-legalization National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws. On this past summer's Lollapalooza tour, on stage with Cypress Hill was a giant inflatable Buddha holding a pot leaf.

Rap wizard Dr. Dre named his album The Chronic after a type of marijuana, and pot imagery is prevalent in the videos of tracks from that LP. Other rappers endorsing marijuana include the Goats and Total Devastation, whose songs include "Hemp Hemp Hurrah," "Hemp Rally" and "Many Clouds of Smoke."

Not all follow this line. Bruce Springsteen and Ted Nugent are widely known as drug-free. Aerosmith, which dissolved in the 1980s because of its members' drug use, has been clean and sober for many years. Aerosmith guitarist Brad Whitford has commented, "The kids today (say), 'Hey, marijuana, that doesn't hurt.' That's what we used to think." Last year, drummer Kramer said that leaving drugs behind "feels good because we have more of an ability to be appreciative of what we have now."

Statistics suggest that musicians' drug advocacy may be having an effect. One survey found that in 1994, 13% of eighth-graders reported using marijuana, more than double the 1991 figure of 6.2%.

Another study released in January showed that 31% of high-school seniors admitted they'd used pot - the figure from two years before was 22%. A third survey found that 19% of high-school seniors in 1994 said they'd smoked marijuana in the previous month - up from 12% in '92. These last results reflect more than just casual use and indicate that some young music fans may be inhaling the pro-pot message of some of their favorite performers.

O.J. verdict represents a watershed

I may well be the only columnist in America who hasn't (until now) written a piece about the Simpson case. My beat is politics, and the larger social context in which politics takes place, and until Oct. 3 the Simpson case, riveting as it was, was essentially just a criminal trial whose outcome no one could foresee.

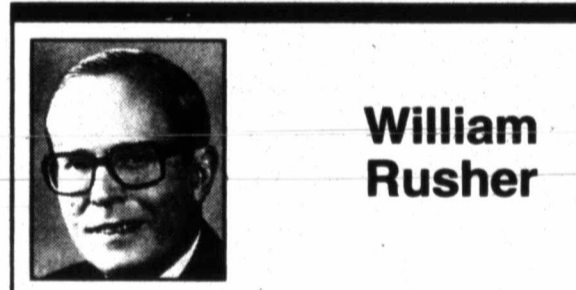

Now, however, with the acquittal of Simpson on all counts, we are in a position to judge the case's impact on the body politic, which seems likely to be enormous.

First, however, it is surely appropriate to award a few laurel wreaths and issue a warning or two. For one thing, I simply cannot imagine the prosecution's overwhelming case against Simpson being presented better than it was presented by Marcia Clark and Christopher Darden. They lost (as I shall discuss below) for reasons that were certainly no fault of theirs.

And let no one, convinced of Simpson's guilt and frustrated by his acquittal, condemn Johnnie Cochran, Robert Shapiro, F. Lee Bailey and the other members of the defense team. They were dealt a miserable hand, played it brilliantly, and won. That's what lawyering is all about.

I am even pretty mellow about Judge Lance Ito. At times he seemed on the verge of losing control of the case; but in the long run he managed to conduct it fairly and bring it to a definitive conclusion. Those are big pluses.

As for the Los Angeles Police Department, and by extension many other police departments around the country, they are on notice that they must redouble their efforts to rid their ranks of officers like Mark Fuhrman, whose combination of bigotry and folly may well have been the key factor in Simpson's acquittal.

But now, what about the larger impact of the verdict? Polls uniformly indicated that the great majority of Americans believed Simpson was guilty. On closer analysis, this turned out to be true because America is still predominantly white, and whites were overwhelmingly convinced of Simpson's guilt. A solid majority of America's black minority, however, believed him innocent.

And so we come to the jury: nine blacks and three whites. One must always remember the admonition so popular among those who defended the first verdict (not guilty) in the Rodney King beating case: The jury is almost invariably better informed than its critics, because it listened attentively to the entire case.

But the Simpson case almost represents an exception to that rule, because of the extraordinary coverage the trial received. The "time line," the blood (Nicole's, Goldman's, and O.J.'s) almost everywhere and often intermixed, the defendant's long history of wife abuse - these deadly testimonies to Simpson's guilt are known to the nation at large, and the defense did little or nothing to diminish their impact.

It is impossible, therefore, to avoid concluding that the jury bought Johnnie Cochran's theory that there was a racist conspiracy against Simpson. And with that conclusion there comes another: We have reached a point in our national life where the hostility between the races has rendered the normal functioning of our multiracial polity undependable. For if there was a white conspiracy against Simpson, then our black citizens cannot count on justice. And if there wasn't, the same is true of our whites.

Interestingly enough, one major casualty of the Simpson case is likely, in the long run, to be the presidential prospects of Colin Powell. If any significant number of whites takes the Simpson verdict as a signal to circle the wagons, Gen. Powell will be left standing outside the laager.

At a time like this, one longs to join hands with the many sensible people of both races who live in America. On them will depend our future.

It's Clinton's turn to cite foreign policy

Now President Clinton wants to erase the boundary between foreign and domestic policy. Not very long ago, he was trying to draw a line between the two.

That was when the Democrats figured they could put George Bush on the wrong side of it and win votes by accusing the Republican president of ignoring problems at home because he was preoccupied with matters abroad.

The perspective is different from the White House.

In a foreign policy appraisal with a built-in warning that "isolationist backlash" could undermine American leadership abroad to America's detriment at home, Clinton said that problems such as drugs, immigration, trade and the like can't be pigeonholed as foreign or domestic because they are both.

"We must learn to speak about it in different ways," he said at a conference sponsored by Freedom House last Friday.

Bush should have thought of that. As a matter of fact, he did, and tried to argue a similar case in his losing campaign against Clinton and Ross Perot. The Republican president concentrated on foreign policy, said he preferred that side of the job, and suffered for it in a 1992 campaign that was dominated by domestic economic concerns.

Clinton used to tell his campaign rallies that Bush had no domestic program, and was more concerned with overseas problems than with those faced by everyday America. When Clinton won, he said he would keep a laser-like focus on economic issues, but wouldn't ignore foreign affairs because untended, world problems might worsen and demand full-time attention.

Walter Mears

He also said his administration would be forced to spend a lot of time on foreign policy, "whether we want to or not." Foreign policy was not his strength, and there was no mistaking his preference.

Acknowledging that there were early missteps in foreign policy, Clinton now can cite success, at least progress, in Bosnia, with U.S. peace talks planned late this month; in the Middle East; in Haiti; in nuclear arms control. He has said he thinks the administration is doing better than it did at first in handling foreign problems.

"All I can say is we should be judged by the results," Clinton said in an interview with USA Today.

But the results aren't in, and progress toward them is in dispute. The administration helped arrange terms for another Bosnia cease-fire, delayed past the Monday night deadline. U.S.-sponsored peace talks are scheduled to begin Oct. 25.

It is tenuous, but it points to a next step that could become the central issue of Clinton, and American, foreign policy - the possible use of U.S. troops as part of a NATO peace force, should there be a settlement.

"In Bosnia as elsewhere, if the United States does not lead, the job will not be done," Clinton said.

But it is a disputed course. Congress passed legislation to end American observance of the U.N. embargo on arms shipments to the Bosnians in their war with Serb forces, and Clinton vetoed it. Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican leader and presidential candidate, said that still should be the first option, "and then there would be no need to send American troops."

He also said Clinton has not made a case to the American people for the use of U.S. forces in Bosnian peace enforcement. Clinton said he will consult Congress "before authorizing our participation in such an action." Dole said he should get congressional approval in advance. The White House argues that he doesn't need it, although he hopes Congress would support the operation.

It is a reprise of disputes between Democratic congresses and Republican presidents over earlier military missions. And if there is such an operation, it surely will become a major issue in the coming presidential campaign.

Buckner Children's Services appoints new administrator

AMARILLO - Penny Lemons has been named administrator of Buckner Children's Services. Lemons was the clinical director and is replacing Moe Dozier, who has been promoted to Regional Director for the West Texas Region of Buckner Children and Family Services Inc.

As administrator, Lemons will supervise 60 employees and will oversee the daily operations of three residential treatment units, the Buckner Education Unit, Buckner Brown Plaza and Buckner Family Based Services.

Lemons began working at Buckner Children's Services in 1993. She has previously worked as a therapist with Family Support Services, the children's program director at a psychiatric hospital and a supervisor for the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services. She has also been a private practice therapist.

"I am excited to be a part of a quality program and staff that has been providing residential treatment for ten years and look forward to expanding our preventative services to families in Amarillo and the Panhandle area," Lemons said.

Lemons received her master's degree in education from West Texas A&M University in 1992 and her bachelor's degree in elementary education from West Texas

Penny Lemons

A&M in 1981. She is a graduate of Tascosa High School in Amarillo. She is also a licensed master social worker with recognition as an advanced clinical practitioner.

She is a past president of the board of directors for the Panhandle Plains Council of Campfire.

Buckner Children's Services provides care to at-risk families and children from Amarillo and other communities in Texas and is part of the statewide services of Buckner Baptist Benevolences, a Christian, non-profit ministry serving the needs of children, families and senior adults since 1879.

House panel OKs Endangered Species Act overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Resources Committee, after a day of verbal sparring, voted late Thursday to overhaul the Endangered Species Act and give increased financial protection to landowners.

The legislation cleared the Republican-run committee, 27-17, in a largely party-line vote. Earlier, the committee had rejected more modest changes to the law by a 28-17 vote. The measure now awaits action on the House floor.

The action represented the first step by GOP conservatives and property rights advocates to dramatically rewrite the federal law that protects endangered and threatened plants, fish and animals. A Senate bill still awaits hearings.

The committee bill, pushed by many Western lawmakers, would require the government to compensate landowners for lost property values as a result of restrictions caused by species protection. No one could provide an estimate of how much such payments might cost taxpayers.

The measure also would:

- Eliminate a requirement that a species habitat, as well as the species itself, be protected.
- Give states a greater say in listing and protecting endangered species.
- Eliminate protection for endangered marine mammals such as sea turtles or sea lions, leaving such protection to other laws. It also would permit the killing of sea lions that prey on protected salmon on the Columbia River.
- No longer require that an imperiled species be fully recovered before lifting special protection.

Supporters of the legislation argued that it represents long-overdue changes in a federal law that for 22 years often has protected rare plants, animals, bugs and fish at the expense of humans and their livelihood.

Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, chairman of the Resources Committee, rejected Democratic criticism that the species protection law was being gutted. He said the bill is aimed at making it work and be "beneficial to both the species and humans."

The legislation represents "a fundamentally new approach" in dealing with threatened species by providing incentives for landowners to participate, said Rep. Richard Pombo, R-Calif., who headed a task force that crafted the bill.

"It pits rancher against salmon fisherman, religious leaders against the timber industry and scientists against farmers," countered Rep. George Miller, D-Calif. "Its provisions gutting the habitat protection requirements and redefining species assures a presidential veto."

When supporters said the bill would promote the use of good science in determining when and what species should be protected, Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn., shot back: "Science to some of you is what the Inquisition was to religion."

Oklahoma teacher reprimanded for operating on live cat

BRAGGS, Okla. (AP) - A high school teacher who operated on a live cat during class made a mistake but never intended to be cruel, the police chief said Thursday.

Science teacher Mickey Duncan knocked the black male stray unconscious with chloroform before the Oct. 3 operation. But the cat awoke after the incision was made and started meowing loud enough to be heard in other classes, said Matha Richardson, a senior in Duncan's zoology class.

The operation stopped and the cat was sewn up by students, she said, adding she did not participate in the operation.

Superintendent Jerry Allen reprimanded Duncan, who has taught at Braggs High School for three years.

Some animal activists, however, think criminal charges should be filed.

"Personally, I'm horrified," said Belinda Burgess, supervisor of a local animal shelter. "For someone who is supposed to be a role model to go out of his way to torture or maim an animal in front of school kids is as bad as it gets."

Police Chief Duane Morgan said he found no evidence of criminal wrongdoing.

"They didn't set out intentionally to harm this cat," Morgan said.

Richardson said the operation was to remove the cat's kidney, although Morgan said that wasn't true. He said he didn't know why Duncan operated.

County prosecutors may charge Duncan even if police don't. They were awaiting Morgan's report late Thursday.

Can Luis Palau be the next Billy Graham?

By MARTHA IRVINE
Associated Press Writer

BEAVERTON, Ore. (AP) — The photograph is from Fresno, Calif., in 1962, the same year that Luis Palau became a U.S. citizen.

It is a fuzzy black-and-white shot, taken as Palau stood on the side of a platform as Billy Graham preached to the masses. Palau, then a young missionary, was translating Graham's words into Spanish. The moment may not stick out in Graham's mind but Palau has hung on to the photograph all these years.

"I kept it like a sacred relic," says Palau, now 61.

He also remembers what he told Graham that night: "I said, 'I want to be an evangelist like you.'"

Now Graham, 76, is suffering from Parkinson's disease, and his recent collapse in Toronto has heightened speculation about who might succeed him as the leading evangelist in the United States.

Some say Palau could be that person. Already well-known in Latin America, Palau has fashioned his ministry after Graham's. Those who know him use many of the same words used to describe him — decent, honest, diplomatic.

Unlike Graham, Palau also is fluent in English and Spanish. And many who know the evangelism scene say that makes him a natural to unify an increasingly diverse United States.

A native of Argentina, Palau came to Oregon in 1960 to study at the Multnomah School of the Bible in Portland, now the Multnomah Biblical Seminary.

Over the years, Palau has become Graham's peer and friend. Graham even gave him money to help him start the Luis Palau Evangelistic Association in 1978.

With Graham's health deteriorating, Palau said, "I've got to really accelerate now."

Palau's ministry is still the David compared with Graham's Goliath operation, based in Minneapolis. Palau has an annual budget of $4 million — less than 5 percent of Graham's budget.

Palau has recently moved his 60 employees into a $1.3 million complex in Beaverton, a Portland suburb. And he even went as far as to ask Graham's blessing when he made his decision to shift his focus from Latin America and other countries to the United States.

"He told me I didn't need his blessing, but he gave it to me anyway," Palau said. "America is, so to speak, his back yard."

While Palau is flattered by comparisons to Graham, he said he learned long ago that he's "no Billy Graham."

As a young man, Palau said he even had tried to copy Graham's mannerisms, but he gave up on that.

"Nobody can ever be like him, nor should they try," he said. "I want to be myself."

The sheer magnitude of Graham's worldwide network would be difficult to match. Graham's global ministries, including a recent broadcast from Puerto Rico, have shown the capacity to reach billions of people worldwide.

Evangelists who travel from city to city also have to contend with a new breed of religious leaders, such as James Dobson and Pat Robertson, who have made their names almost exclusively via electronic media.

Palau's radio programs long have been distributed worldwide in English and Spanish, and are now broadcast on 200 U.S. radio stations. He also often purchases television time in cities where he plans stadium crusades, airing a live call-in program called "Night Talk with Luis Palau."

He and his staff agree that increased electronic exposure is key.

The new building in Beaverton includes a television studio, in addition to radio rooms. Palau's eyes sparkle when he talks about dreams of becoming a Christian-based alternative to "Geraldo" and "Oprah."

"I want to go nose to nose with the talk shows," he said.

The difficulty with television is that air time is extremely expensive.

And, unlike just about every other televangelist, Palau has resisted asking for money.

"I hate asking for money on television and even on radio," Palau said.

In his stadium crusades, Palau secures financial backing much like Graham does. The responsibility for fund raising falls upon local churches who then invite the evangelist as a guest to the crusade.

This March, Palau drew 75,000 people to Miami's Orange Bowl during a five-day crusade in that city. And, next spring, he will be the featured speaker at an unprecedented eight-week crusade in Chicago.

"The real person I'm trying to reach is the person who's dropped out of church or, perhaps, was never there," said Palau.

Lebiedz to lead parish mission at St. Vincent's

St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church is to host a parish mission with morning and evening services Sunday through Thursday.

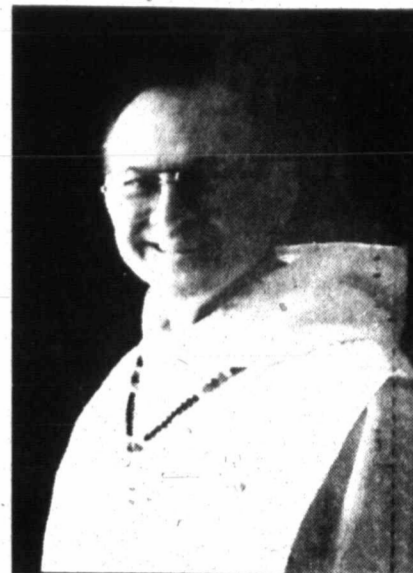

The mission will be led by the Rev. Bernard V. Lebiedz, coordinator of the School for Spiritual Directors at the Benedictine Abbey, Pecos, N.M.

Morning sessions Monday through Wednesday will begin with 9 a.m. Eucharist, coffee break and teaching session which will end at 11:30 a.m. There will be no mass on Thursday morning. There will be two teachings instead.

Morning topics differ from evening topics and focus on Christian life, prayer, meditation, scripture and relationships. A nursery will be provided at all services.

Evening services start at 7:30 p.m. Themes for each night are: Sunday - God's Love; Monday - commitment and baptism; Tuesday - Life in the Spirit and confirmation; Wednesday - healing and sacrament of anointing; and Thursday - celebration, Eucharist and communion.

The regular schedule of masses will be canceled until Friday morning.

The Rev. Bernard Lebiedz

Lebiedz was ordained to the priesthood in May 1959 in the diocese of Paterson, New Jersey. He holds a bachelor's degree in classical languages and a master of divinity degree in pastoral ministry. He has been involved in the charismatic renewal movement since 1977 and a member of the Benedictine Abbey since 1980.

His ministry consists of teaching, conducting parish missions, retreats, counseling and spiritual direction.

Revival begins Sunday at New Life

New Life Assembly of God, Randy Matson and North Sumner, is to host revival services with meetings at 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

The Rev. Randy and Sandy Coggins, Cornelia, Ga., will lead the services.

Coggins has preached cross country over 14 years and appeared on various Christian television stations. He has traveled with singer/evangelist Nancy Harmon and appeared on the "The Love Special" with Harmon on Trinity Broadcasting Network.

Mrs. Coggins has a singing ministry.

The Coggins are also active in missionary work in Mexico.

The Rev. and Mrs. Randy Coggins

A nursery is provided for all services. For more information or a ride call 665-0804.

Religion briefs

ATLANTA (AP) — Thousands of members of a Baptist congregation have voted to allow their longtime pastor, whose wife is suing for divorce, to remain in the pulpit.

About 5,000 members of First Baptist Church of Atlanta voted recently on a motion to force the Rev. Charles Stanley, a past president of the Southern Baptist Convention, to step down. About 86 percent of the congregation voted to reject the proposal.

"People who are quick to judge him on the basis of his marriage are the ones who should not be throwing stones," church member Jeff Day said.

Stanley, whose "In Touch" television ministry is broadcast all over the world, and his wife of 40 years, Anna, have been separated for three years.

First Baptist has traditionally refused to allow divorced men to serve as pastor. Stanley, who is trying to reconcile with his wife, has promised to step down if he becomes divorced.

Macedonia barbecue dinner set for Saturday

PASTOR APPRECIATION

Albert & Mary Maggard came to Pampa, Tx. in March of 1966. They took the Pastorate of the First Pentecostal Holiness Church at 1700 Alcock St. They have been here for 30 years now and blessed many a folk.

Brother Maggard has been in the ministry since he was 12 years old.

They came with 2 small children, Adrain and Susan, who are no longer small, they have families of their own.

Brother Maggard has been true & faithful to God and his parish, not always having it easy, but always putting his trust in God. If you don't know this man of God, we invite you to come and hear his ministry. If you don't have a church of your own, we would like to invite you to come and join ours.

Mom's Years of Smoking End With Agonizing Days of Dying

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to "Gail H. in Georgia," the woman who is now paying the price for being a smoker. She now breathes with the help of a respirator.

When I read her sad letter, I cried. My mother also tried to quit smoking. She tried hypnosis three times at $60 a pop. Her resolve lasted only 45 minutes after each session.

For as long as I can remember, my two brothers and I pleaded with Mom to quit — not only for her health but ours as well. My brother, Brett, had constant earaches, and I had constant throat problems due to her smoking.

I was afraid I would lose not only my mother, but my best friend. Although I hounded her about her smoking for years, I failed. She was diagnosed with lung cancer on Sept. 7, 1993. After two weeks of testing, cancer was found all through her body.

Even though she was on oxygen at the hospital and could barely breathe without it, she was sent home with only "pump" treatments. As soon as she finished her treatments, she'd ask someone to light a cigarette for her. She was furious with me because I refused. She could no longer sit up in a chair without support, yet I continued to argue with her about smoking. Everyone said, "Give it up, Tara. Let her do what she wants — let her be happy."

They say that she was dying.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

How could she be dying? She was only 49 years old. I was her youngest — her 16-year-old daughter. Besides, the doctor told us she had six months to two years — not 37 days! She stopped smoking when she died of cancer on Oct. 11, 1993.

Two years ago, I was crying out to my mother and to God! Now I'm crying out to every smoker. Mother started smoking when she was 16, but she never intended to smoke her entire life. Many teens have the same idea. They think they'll smoke "for now" — then quit without a problem. My mother's death is proof that it's not that easy. If teen smokers could have seen what my mother went through, they wouldn't even start.

I think Mother's history should be included in the health education classes offered to students. Also, in order to pass the class, students should have to spend at least one week with a dying cancer patient and his or her family. It's a living hell. Once they saw that smoking eventually makes one incapable of moving, breathing and living, they would feel the heartbreak that I felt.

Another thing I don't understand is my father. He was there every day, watching Mother die. He has now remarried — and would you believe to a smoker! She's not allowed to smoke in our house, so she smokes outdoors. I may not be breathing her toxic fumes, but my father is. I thought he'd have known better after seeing one wife die from cancer. Dad has a bad heart condition, and breathing in smoke is bad for him. I love Dad with all my heart, and can't bear the thought of losing him — especially to second-hand smoke.

Abby, your column reaches millions. I hope my letter will make a difference. If it prevents just one person from smoking, it will be well worth it. You may use my name.

TARA ESTHER LIBBENS

DEAR TARA: Thank you for a powerful letter. It's unfortunate that we will never know how many lives will be saved because you took the time to write.

Abby shares more of her favorite, easy-to-prepare recipes. To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, More Favorite Recipes, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Horoscope

Your Birthday

Sunday Oct 15 1995

You might feel exciting, fresh hopes awakened in you in the year ahead. They will be unrelated to your past interests and new friends might help bring them into being.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Family members or relatives might present you with opportunities of a maternal nature today. Listen attentively when a relative starts talking about his big ideas. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10150. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Some good news you've been hoping for is trying to break through to you at this time. There is a strong possibility you might even hear it today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Take time today to analyze your circumstances from every angle. There is a possibility you've overlooked two significant opportunities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your leadership qualities might be very pronounced today. Your authority will seem obvious and you're not apt to be challenged if you step in and take charge of situations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today will be a good day to reclaim something of value that you loaned a friend. Asking for what is justifiably yours won't offend your pal.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unique benefits could come to you today through two contacts in distant places. If your sources don't get in touch with you, get in touch with them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not lower your sights for your goals and objectives today. Anything realistic that you desire strongly enough will be achievable.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Get in sync with your mate today if he or she has something enterprising in mind. It is doable, but will require equal efforts from both to pull it off successfully.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A new channel might suddenly open up today to provide you with increased income. You might have to work harder, however, to garner rewards from this source.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Even if it requires adjustments in your social plans today, try to include a friend in your activities who recently did you a special favor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Personally supervise any work or repairs done on or around your house today. Even if you called in professionals, make sure they're doing it properly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In fun, competitive activities with friends today, all eyes might be on you. If you win, do so graciously. If you lose, be equally gracious. Either scenario will help your image.

FOOTBALL

DETROIT (AP) — George Perles, who was fired as Michigan State football coach last November, is suing the university and its president, The Detroit News reported today.

University spokesman Terry Denbow said he was not familiar with details of the lawsuit, but said he believes Perles is charging age discrimination, the News said. Perles is 61.

Perles' attorney, Monte R. Story, asked to have details of the lawsuit, filed last month, not be made public.

An Ingham Circuit judge granted Story's request but, in response to a motion from university attorney Michael J. Kiley, the order was overturned by Judge Tom Brown, according to the News.

Perles and Story were unavailable for comment. McPherson told the News Thursday he would have no comment.

Perles was fired by the university's new president, Peter McPherson, following a 73-62-4 record in more than a decade as coach.

At the time, Perles and McPherson said they anticipated no difficulty in negotiating a fair settlement for three years remaining on Perles' 10-year contract.

Perles' contract called for the university to pay him $211,179 annual salary to coach football. Perles made another $276,000 per year from broadcasting and endorsement contracts.

PAMPA — Pampa defeated Wheeler, 33-0, Thursday in a junior varsity football game.

Five different players figured in the scoring for the Pampa JVs.

Josh Blackmon kicked two field goals of 20 and 47 yards and also threw a 43-yard touchdown pass to Ryan Schumacher. Blackmon kicked three extra points.

Ronnie Proby, Kevin Jernigan and Christian Bruce each had touchdown runs.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rich Brooks never met a trick play he didn't like.

The St. Louis rookie coach's gambling approach paid off again Thursday night in the Rams' 21-19 win over Atlanta.

After the Falcons' Kevin Ross ran 83 yards with a blocked field goal to turn a would-be rout into a close game, Brooks called for a risky trick play on a punt return. It worked, setting up a touchdown and giving the momentum back to St. Louis.

Todd Kinchen fielded a punt near the left sideline at mid-field with just over a minute to go in the first half, took a step forward and then threw the ball the width of the field to Isaac Bruce.

Bruce, standing near the baseball infield, snatched a short hop that skidded off the AstroTurf, then ran 51 yards to the Falcons' 9 to set up his 9-yard touchdown catch that put St. Louis ahead 21-7.

"I had to make an Ozzie Smith move and just go with it," he said.

The play was one of many highlights for Bruce, who caught 10 passes for 191 yards and two touchdowns. It was his third 100-yard game in the past four, and had teammates comparing him to another NFC West receiver.

"He's just as good as Jerry Rice, that's for sure," Kinchen said, "if not better. He's faster than Jerry Rice, he runs just as good routes, has just as good hands, and he's in his second year."

Bruce and Rice will be on the same field when the Rams play host to San Francisco on Oct. 22. For now, the Rams (5-1) are alone in first place in the NFC West after an unlikely battle for the lead with the Falcons (4-2).

Brooks' derring-do has played a big role in the Rams' turnaround from a 4-12 record in their final season in Anaheim, Calif.

In the opener against Green Bay, Brooks called for a late-game reverse that clinched the win. Against New Orleans, a fake punt near midfield in the waning moments allowed the Rams to keep the ball and preserve the win.

Schnellenberger feels intensity of OU-Texas rivalry

By The Associated Press

Howard Schnellenberger, who knows something about intense college football rivalries, gets his first taste of Texas-Oklahoma on Saturday.

Schnellenberger played at Kentucky, whose big foe is Tennessee, then coached at Miami, which annually stages a game of the century against Florida State. After that came Louisville, which has lately entered into a blood feud with Kentucky.

Now he's the coach at Oklahoma, which carries a No. 13 ranking into Saturday's game at Dallas against No. 18 Texas. He knows the importance of this game without yet witnessing a single play.

"I may be a better expert than you all because I've gotten it from my secretary, I've gotten it from the students, I've gotten it from the president of the university, legislators," Schnellenberger said.

Having taken sides in other emotional games, Schnellenberger is able, at least for now, to step back from all the hoopla.

"It's a very, very important game,"

Schnellenberger said, "but if by some strange happenstance we happen to be behind when the final whistle goes off, we will continue to strive to be the best team in the Big Eight and to be the best football team we can be, and life will go on."

Schnellenberger's attitude that this is, after all, just a game has been adopted by Dallas police, who are keeping the week-long pregame party at manageable proportions.

"We've tried to change the direction into a festive kind of rally instead of a drunken brawl kind of rally," said Sgt. Jim Chandler, Dallas police spokesman. "Any time you get 40,000 or 50,000 people in an area, you're never going to eliminate the arrests."

Dallas police made 35 arrests downtown on the Friday before last year's game, a far cry from the 563 who received alternative lodging the night before the 1968 game.

Chandler said police average about six arrests downtown on a normal Friday night.

The Longhorns have a 52-33-4 lead in the series, which this year for just the 13th time doesn't feature at least one unbeaten team. Each is 4-1.

Texas-Oklahoma is only one of five games matching ranked teams, including two in football-mad Alabama. At Auburn, the seventh-ranked Tigers are at home to No. 3 Florida while, at Birmingham, No. 6 Tennessee calls on No. 12 Alabama.

Also, No. 4 Ohio State is at No. 21 Wisconsin in a Big Ten showdown and No. 24 Washington at No. 16 Stanford in the Pac-10. Winners of these two games will take a big step toward meeting in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

In other games involving the Top Ten, No. 1 Florida State is at home against Wake Forest, Missouri calls on No. 2 Nebraska, Washington State is at No. 5 Southern California, No. 8 Kansas State visits Oklahoma State and Iowa State calls on No. 10 Kansas.

Kansas State (5-0) and Kansas (5-0) are unbeaten and ranked in the Top Ten at the same time for the time ever.

In the Second Ten, No. 14 Northwestern is at Minnesota, No. 15 Oregon is at California, No. 17 Notre Dame and Army meet at East Rutherford, N.J., Duke is at No. 19 Virginia and No. 20 Penn State is at Purdue.

Rounding out the top 25, SMU is at No. 22 Texas A&M, Indiana is at No. 23 Iowa and Arkansas State is at No. 25 Texas Tech. No. 9 Colorado and No. 11 Michigan, coming off losses to Kansas and Northwestern, respectively, are idle.

Florida's hopes for a national title depend on how the Gators handle the Tigers in this match of two of the game's top young coaches. Auburn's Terry Bowden is 24-2-1 in 2 1/2 marvelous seasons, including 4-1 this season. Florida's Steve Spurrier is 74-25-2 in 8 1/2 years.

One of Florida's shining moments this season was a 62-37 thrashing of Tennessee. But the Vols came back to win three in a row and head into Birmingham on a roll.

Alabama (4-1), meanwhile, is barred from postseason play this year due to NCAA probation and is playing strictly for pride and a high national ranking.

Top-seeded player

Senior Brooks Gentry, the top-seeded player on the Pampa boys' tennis team, takes a 9-3 singles record into Saturday's match with Hereford at the PHS courts. Hereford has clinched the District 1-4A team title this fall.

Harvesters ranked No 9 in Harris 4A football poll

PAMPA — Along with boosting their record to 4-1, the Pampa Harvesters continue to climb in the Harris Football Rating System.

In the latest Harris rankings, the Harvesters have climbed from No. 18 to No. 9 in the Class 4A rankings. The Harvesters have won their last three games, including a 63-14 rout of Caprock last week.

Pampa, which has an open date this week, is ahead of District 1-4A rival Borger, which is in the No. 16 spot. Other 1-4A teams and their rankings are Randall, No. 66; Hereford, No. 106; Canyon, No. 147; Amarillo Caprock, 162, and Dumas, No. 167.

Pampa, Borger and Randall all have 4-1 records and are tied for the district lead at 1-0. That threeway tie will be broke tonight when Randall and Borger meet. Borger has the homefield advantage and is favored by 11 points. Canyon is a 12-point favorite over Caprock and Hereford is picked by 24 points over Dumas in other 1-4A contests.

Just ahead of Pampa in the 4A poll is Cedar Hill at No. 8. Ranked No. 1 is La Marque.

Canadian kicks off the District 2-AA season tonight and the Harris poll picks the Wildcats to win big, by 22 points over Highland Park. Both teams enter the game at Canadian with 4-1 records. Canadian is currently ranked No. 41 in Class 2A poll while Highland Park is No. 133.

For the last three years, the Wildcats have advanced to the state playoffs, winning the district championship two of those years.

The state's top-ranked Class AA team is Celina.

Harris looks for White Deer to have a long night against Shamrock in a District 1-1A opener. Unbeaten Shamrock (4-0) is favored by 39 points over winless White Deer (0-5). Shamrock has a No. 9 ranking in the state Class A poll. White Deer is ranked No. 89 among the state's 125 Class A teams.

In what figures to be a closer 1-1A contest, Groom is an 8-point underdog to Booker. Groom is ranked No. 96 and Booker No. 77.

The 1-1A Wheeler-Sunray tilt was not picked. Wheeler is ranked No. 25 and Sunray No. 12.

Thorndale is ranked at the top of Class 1A.

St. Louis tops Stars in NHL action

DALLAS (AP) — St. Louis goalie Grant Fuhr gave up a goal on the first shot he faced. Unfortunately for the Dallas Stars, he allowed none on the next 35.

Fuhr shut down the Stars for his 292nd career victory in St. Louis' 3-1 win Thursday night.

Fuhr, signed this summer after a poor season with Buffalo and Los Angeles last year, has won two of his three starts and impressed his new teammates.

"He was awesome, great, whatever adjectives you want to use," St. Louis' Brett Hull said. "He won the game for us."

Fuhr struggled with the Sabres and Kings last season, going 1-7-3 with a 4.04 goals-against average. He became an unrestricted free agent after the season, and Los Angeles, who traded promising young defenseman Alexei Zhitnik for him, did not make an attempt to retain him.

Pampa of Gymnastics students participate in district qualifying meet

ODESSA — Gymnastics of Pampa students are taking aim at the District Championships later this month.

For the second time this season, Abby Cavalier took top honors at a gymnastics meet.

At a District 1 qualifying meet held recently in Odessa, Abby, a first-year, Level 6 gymnast, improved her personal best all-around score by 1 1/2 points to win the 10-year-old division.

"Abby had a great meet and is right on track for the District Championships to be held in a few weeks in Big Spring," said coach Fred Hughes, of his star pupil.

"This has been an exciting season for us. We have only three gymnasts who are all new to their competitive levels. We expect lots of improvement over the season, but we never realized we would be winning everything. The girls' success at the meets has just added to the fun that they have while doing gymnastics."

Abby took first place in Level 6 All Around with a 35.60 score. She also placed first on vault, 9.1; first on balance beam, 9.05; third on bars, 8.65, and eighth on floor exercise, 8.8.

Competing with Abby in Level 6, Brittney Culp placed eighth on vault, 8.5; eighth on balance beam, 8.0; ninth on floor exercise, 8.75, and ninth All Around, 33.0.

In Level 5 competition, Erin Coffey managed to pull off a second place finish even after having a fall in each of her first two events.

A fall from a piece of apparatus costs a competitor up to half of a point. The one point Coffey lost on falls would have easily put her in first place All Around.

Erin placed first on floor exercise, 9.35; third on bars, 8.65; fifth on balance beam, 8.8; sixth on vault, 7.95, and second All Around, 34.75.

The Pampa gymnasts will travel to Midland on Saturday for the Judges' Cup Competition and then they will compete in the District Championships in Big Spring on Oct. 28. The top gymnasts at the Championships will qualify for the state semi-finals meet to be held in November.

Texans outlast Rough Riders

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Quarterback David Archer tossed four touchdown passes and running back Mike Saunders scored three times Thursday to lead the San Antonio Texans to a 43-30 Canadian Football League victory over the Ottawa Rough Riders.

Archer, who completed 18 of 29 passes for 288 yards, tied a club record with his scoring passes of 36, 4, 5 and 13 yards. Two of those went to Saunders, who also scored on an 8-yard run in the opening quarter.

Archer completed 10 of 14 passes for 181 yards in the second quarter as the Texans (10-6) scored 23 points and grabbed a 33-0 halftime lead. The Rough Riders (2-14) lost their eighth road game in as many starts.

After building a 33-0 halftime lead, the Texans were up by as much as 43-7 before a late fourth-quarter Ottawa scoring surge of 23 points.

Strong aftershock rattles part of Mexico struck by earthquake

MANZANILLO, Mexico (AP) — A strong aftershock rattled this Pacific resort town Thursday just as rescue workers clearing the rubble of a flattened hotel neared a lobby where 20 earthquake victims are believed buried.

Thursday's quake lasted for more than five seconds, causing panic but no reports of serious injuries or deaths.

At least 55 are known to have died in a stronger quake Monday, and that number is expected to rise as rescue workers pry through the wreckage to reach the lobby of the fallen hotel.

On Thursday, workers recovered two more bodies including that of a boy, age undetermined, from what had been the third floor. They said the boy had been dead only a few hours because rigor mortis had not set in.

Mexico's National Seismological Institute reported that Thursday's quake measured 6.1. The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo., gave it a preliminary reading of 5.5.

"Since Monday, the ground hasn't stopped shaking," said housewife Maria Morelos, one of hundreds of people camping out in dozens of makeshift shelters after their homes were damaged or destroyed in the Monday quake.

"My God," she said. "When is it going to stop?"

At least 26 aftershocks have rattled this town of 60,000 since the 7.6-magnitude earthquake struck along some 200 miles of the western Mexican coastline Monday morning.

With cranes, drills and pickaxes, rescue workers continued their day-and-night quest to dig through the rubble of the flattened Costa Real hotel, where at least 20 bodies have been recovered.

Workers briefly stopped their labors to wait out the morning aftershock.

National Protection engineer Arturo Lopez, one of hundreds of workers trying to pull bodies from the hotel's ruins, said about 20 people were believed buried in the lobby.

Officials doubted any survivors would be found.

On Wednesday night, two passports discovered under mounds of crushed cement led officials to identify two Vancouver, Canada, tourists, whose bodies had been found earlier and were being kept in a refrigerated trailer morgue beside the hotel.

The families of Dirk Jan Boswyk, 58, and Judy Jang, 68, were notified and expected to take the bodies home, Public Ministry officials said.

At a news conference Wednesday night, the governor of Colima, Carlos de la Madrid Virgen, said the earthquake destroyed 17 schools, three health clinics in nearby communities and hundreds of homes.

The economy of Manzanillo, a tourist resort and port town that exports fish and fruit, has been hurt badly by the quake. De la Madrid said most activities at the commercial port have stopped because of damage to loading docks.

Some tourist hotels also suffered damage, but the region's best-known resort, Las Hadas, where the movie "10" was filmed, escaped serious harm.

Relief efforts are under way to aid hundreds of people who have left their damaged houses and are sleeping in makeshift shelters, including a soccer field where about 100 families are camped out.

Three U.S. servicemen accused of raping girl

TOKYO (AP) — The trial of three U.S. servicemen accused of gang-raping a 12-year-old girl on the southern island of Okinawa will begin on Nov. 7, court officials said Friday.

Facing possible life sentences are Navy Seaman Marcus Gill, 22, of Woodville, Texas; Marine Pfc. Rodrico Harp, 21, of Griffin, Ga.; and Marine Pfc. Kendrick Ledet, 20, of Waycross, Ga.

The three are accused of abducting and repeatedly raping the girl Sept. 4 near the U.S. Marine base Camp Hansen on northern Okinawa.

Outrage over the rape and other crimes allegedly committed by U.S. service personnel, including the murder of an Okinawan woman last May, has grown into a major political issue in Japan.

Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama earlier this week said he will take up the matter and the possibility of scaling back the U.S. military presence on Okinawa when he meets President Clinton in Japan next month.

Clinton is to visit for a summit meeting of the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation forum, which begins Nov. 16.

Boutros-Ghali: UN faces heavy financial woes

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Boutros-Ghali drew a line in the ledgers Thursday, saying if member states don't soon pay the $3.7 billion they owe, the United Nations will begin shutting down.

The biggest U.N. debtor is the United States, which owes about $1.4 billion. Seventy countries in all have not paid their regular budget assessment.

The United Nations is prohibited by its own rules from commercial borrowing and relies on contributions from its 185 member states to run its operations.

"There is not enough cash to pay for what we have to do," Boutros-Ghali said in a speech to a Rotary International conference in New York.

"The world's governments spent about $150 per human being on military expenditures in 1992," he said. "Total spending by the United Nations, by comparison, was less than $2 per human being. And now, even that very small amount cannot be maintained."

Austrian government coalition falls apart

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Austria's governing coalition fell apart Thursday, paving the way for December elections that could bring to power a right-wing populist who campaigns heavily on anti-foreigner sentiment.

After six days of late-night negotiations and mudslinging over the 1996 budget, the conservative People's Party of Vice Chancellor Wolfgang Schuessel ended its partnership with the Social Democrats of Chancellor Franz Vranitzky.

The two parties had governed Austria for nine years. Parliament was to dissolve Friday, with new elections expected Dec. 17.
