McNary-Haugen Bill Expected to Affect Republican Convention

FARM LEADERS MUCH DIVIDED OVER DISPOSAL

Wisconsin Dairy Men Applaud Action, However

DEMOCRATS TO FLAUNT ISSUE

Hoover's Attitude Is Attacked by Rival Republicans

CHICAGO, May 24.—(P)—Many prominent agricultural leaders throughout the Middle West today expressed disappointment and regret over the presidential veto of the McNary-Haugen bill, while dairy farmers in Wisconsin applauded the president's action.

A number of Republican candidates for state office decried the veto and some Democrats invited the "helpless minority of the republican party to join" with them to obtain "efficient relief."

Claude H. MacKenzie of St. Paul, Republican national committeeman, said: "It is regrettable the president could not have signed the bill."

Frank W. Murphy, Minnesota member of the resolutions committee at the coming national Republican convention, termed the president's action "the most amazing and unwarranted official act of any president in the last half century."

Farmers' Action Urged
Farmers were urged "to arise and assert their rights" by Gov. Adam McMullen of Nebraska. "The time has come for action by the farmers themselves. We can expect no effective farm legislation from the present administration nor from any candidate like Hoover whose only claim for recognition is based on his blind adherence to the anti-agricultural attitude of the chief executive."

Dairy farmers from Wisconsin, however, applauded the veto. J. N. Titterton, former president of the Wisconsin dairy association, said "president Coolidge's veto was wise. So far as Wisconsin is concerned, the bill was absolutely detrimental to the interests of the farmer."

Ben Fuellman, publisher of the agriculturist, said a poll of Wisconsin farmers showed them four to one against the plan.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(P)—Twice turned down at the White House after having passed successive Congresses, the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill leaned on uncertain supports at the capital today as leaders continued to sound out sentiment as to what should be done in view of the few remaining days of the session.

McNary, who is chairman of the Senate agriculture committee, called a meeting of that group today to discuss a plan of action. The House, which passed the bill 26 votes short of the required two-thirds, will not act officially on the veto until the Senate disposes of it. Representative Haugen, Republican, Iowa, who helped frame the measure, declined to comment on the veto.

The farm relief issue, failing of settlement before Congress recesses, will be injected into the maneuvering at the Republican national convention next month is regarded as a certainty by political leaders in and out of Congress.

The Rev. W. L. Evans, pastor of the Presbyterian church, left this morning to attend a meeting of the general assembly in Tulsa. The Rev. W. A. Yell of White Deer, will fill his pulpit Sunday.

WIFE REBUFFS EFFORTS OF HER MODEL HUSBAND

Goes to Movie on Only Night He Is Allowed to Call

CHICAGO, May 24.—(P)—James Johnson, who set a shining example for husbands by his persistence in sending flowers to his wife, Ruth, another rebuff last night in his efforts to rein in her affections.

Wednesday night had been suggested by Judge Sabath as a proper time for Johnson to call upon his wife and present the flowers and candies to which she has expressed objection. It was Judge Sabath's idea that the two of them, talking over their domestic difficulties, might come to a new understanding.

Shortly before he was to call Johnson received a phone message. It advised him that Mrs. Johnson regretted that she would not be home to receive the flowers or listen to the conversation. She had decided she would rather see a show.

Johnson, if he acts upon the court's suggestion, must wait a week before calling upon the wife who seeks to divorce him. Flowers, however, wither. He was considering today the advisability of requesting Judge Sabath to change the visiting day.

Rival Republican Groups Will Carry War to Convention

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(P)—Rival Republican factions in more than half a dozen southern states intended to carry their fight for recognition and supremacy to Kansas City with the outcome likely to have at least some bearing on the national convention's choice three weeks hence of a presidential nominee.

As is usually the case when there is a fight on for the party's nomination, a good-sized crop of contests for delegates' seats has developed. Already the Republican national committee has been notified that the credentials of 41 of the 1089 delegates will be in dispute, and there are indications that before the convention 28 more will be challenged.

The time for notifying the committee of contests expired last midnight, but under the rules states and territories making late delegate selections have a few days grace. All the disputes will be thrashed out before the full committee which has been called to meet at Kansas City, June 4, and those who lose out have the right of appeal to the convention credentials committee.

Of the contests already filed, the entire delegations from two states—Louisiana and Mississippi—are in the disputed column with 12 convention votes at stake from each state. Others involve nine seats from Florida, three from Georgia, two each from Kentucky, and the district of Columbia, and one from Tennessee.

In the group still to be filed are 26 delegate votes from Texas—all the state has—and the two from Porto Rico.

Slays Daughter, Wounds Wife, and Then Kills Self

Philadelphia, May 24.—(P)—An estranged husband shot and killed his daughter as she lay in bed early today, seriously wounded his wife and then killed himself. Another daughter, Jennie, was 27. Mrs. Olscock lying beside her sister, was spared.

The man was John Olscock. His slain 47, had wounds in the stomach and left shoulder. She is not expected to recover.

Olscock, a laborer, had been estranged from his wife for five months, having been ordered from home, police say, when he refused to work. He entered the house today by forcing a kitchen window.

Empress-to-Be as a Grad

Miss Seesu Matsudaira, photographed here as a "sweet girl graduate" of Friends School at Washington, probably will be the next empress of Japan. She is to marry Prince Chichibu, heir apparent to the Japanese throne. She had just received her diploma from Friends School when this striking picture was taken. Miss Matsudaira's father is the Japanese ambassador to the United States.

STATE OFFERS COUNTY AID OF $4,500 ON HEALTH UNIT

Gray Would Pay Only 50 Per Cent of Expense of Four-Person Service, States Austin Official

That the state department of health is in a position to match funds with a few additional counties in establishing county health units is revealed in a letter from the state department to County Attorney John F. Studer, who is gathering facts on the proposed project.

"For the establishment of a minimum budget, the state department of health will appropriate $4,500 to help finance a unit, an equal amount to be appropriated by the county," writes Dr. H. N. Barnett, director of the bureau of child hygiene.

"This budget is sufficient to carry on a unit consisting of four people, as follows: A doctor as county health officer (full time) a public health nurse, a sanitary inspector, and an office assistant. The first three of these would be especially trained in public health work."

Answering inquiries concerning the function of a health unit, the state department furnished the following data:

"A county health unit is an organization consisting of four or more persons, three of whom are especially trained and all of whom devote their entire time to the conservation of health in the area served. The personnel is as follows: One health officer (M. D.), one or more public health nurses (especially trained), one or more specially trained sanitary inspectors, and one clerk.

"The county health unit performs so many functions that it is somewhat difficult to pick out the most important phases of the work. Among the most important, however, and without an attempt to make this answer complete, the following items may be noted:

Manager Briggs Wife and Son, Arrive in City

George W. Briggs, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, accompanied by Mrs. Briggs and son, Burnham, arrived here this morning and will move into their new home in the Country club addition this week. Mrs. Briggs attended the secretary's convention in Corpus Christi last week and returned by way of Eastland, where he attended the graduation of his son from Eastland high school.

Another son is attending Texas A. & M. college. He will arrive here at the close of college.

Aged Hermit Says Hidden Fortune Is Missing From Cache

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(P)—Thomas Barnett, 78-year-old hermit, has reported to police the theft of seven thousand dollars in new $1,000 bills from a hiding place near his home. The thief, or thieves, failed to find $11,000 additional that had been secreted by the old man.

Barnett, who is reputed to be wealthy, withdrew his money from a bank recently when he became involved in litigation. He said he placed the $17,000 in a milk bottle and sunk it in a shaft of terra cotta pipe on the advice of friends. Four friends and acquaintances of the man are being held for investigation by the police.

About five years ago Barnett's home was invaded by a negro. He was living alone then, too, and there was $12,000 in his house but he put up such a battle that the thief was glad to leave empty-handed.

DRYS WIN OUT WITH SUPPORT OF DAN MOODY

To Support Smith Only to Make Selection Unanimous

STATE TO CAST FORTY VOTES

Al's Leaders Declare Texans to Break on Second Ballot

BEAUMONT, May 24.—(P)—Texas' forty votes at the Democratic national convention at Houston will be cast for a dry candidate for the presidential nomination until there is no hope of nominating such a candidate and for a dry plank in the party platform.

This was the outcome of the state convention here which adjourned late last night after one of the stormiest meetings in the history of Texas politics.

The Texas votes will be cast by 36 delegates from 18 congressional districts and 24 delegates-at-large, 12 men and 12 women, and will be bound by the unit rule.

Governor Dan Moody, whose program for a dry plank and a dry candidate was overwhelmingly endorsed despite bitter opposition from factions favoring instructions for and against the candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, will head the delegation.

To Support Nominee
The state platform pledges the party to support the nominee whoever he may be and demands enforcement in "both the letter and the spirit" of the constitution. It asks for a plank in the national platform "unequivocally endorsing prohibition and declaring relentless opposition to any attempt to repeal it or destroy the prohibition laws."

Political observers agree that Gov. Moody accomplished in the convention what many others had thought impossible in that he played both ends against the middle by holding back the ultra-drys from instructing against Gov. Smith and by keeping the Smith forces from instructing for the Governor from New York.

Some "Doubled Crossed"
Although those who wanted a delegation instructed outright for Gov. Smith claimed they were "double crossed" by Gov. Moody in that they were not permitted to choose delegates from Congressional districts one of the heated controversial points in the meeting—they asserted that the delegation ultimately would vote for the New York Governor. They based this prediction on the convention instructions which bound the delegation to support the candidate nominated.

In addresses shortly before the convention adjourned, one speaker claimed the delegation would go to Gov. Smith "on the second ballot," while speakers from Gov. Moody's faction asserted it would vote for Gov. Smith only after he had been nominated by the votes of other delegations. Political leaders said this was a promise to support Gov. Smith only when it became a question of making his nomination unanimous.

Smith Has Supporters
R. L. Henry of Houston, a Smith leader who said he was speaking for Smith supporters throughout the state, asserted that the delegation includes substantially the same slates for more than nine of the 18 Congressional districts as were recommended by the district delegations themselves. If this is true, Gov. Smith will have a number of strong supporters on the delegation, possibly ten or twelve.

The biggest fight in the convention was over the method of choosing the delegates and ended with a victory for the conservative drys who would not instruct against Gov. Smith through the leadership of Gov. Moody.

In the midst of a roll call that seem-

Oil District Menaced by Smallpox Epidemic and Filthy Conditions

AUSTIN, May 24.—(P)—Texas Rangers and the state department of health will join efforts to "clean up" Winkler county, said to be smitten with smallpox, was announced Thursday.

Lieut. Col. Taylor Nichols, assistant adjutant general, revealed that he promised a Winkler county delegation here Wednesday night that the Rangers would aid local authorities which was reported to appear inadequate to deal with the situation.

Saying that a relief staff of sanitation workers would be dispatched to the area, the health department issued a statement painting conditions in Kermit and Wink as grave.

"The towns of Wink and Kermit, tent built overnight because of the oil, are suffering from smallpox because of violation of the sanitary laws. There is no provision for taking care of garbage; neither is there a place properly to care for food stuffs; unthinkably filthy conditions are noted at restaurants, waste accumulates, communicable diseases are rampant," it said.

Winkler county cannot longer stand the financial strain that the indigent camp followers require when laid low with pestilence. It takes $700 a month to pay for quarantine guards alone.

Huge Man Hunt Seeks Bandit Killers of Colorado Bankers

LAMAR, Colo., May 24.—(P)—One of the most intensive man hunts this state has ever known was under way today for the four bandits who invaded the First National bank here yesterday, shot and killed the president and the cashier, kidnaped two tellers and escaped with $7,000 in cash and a reported $195,000 in negotiable securities.

A. M. Parrish, president of the bank a past member of the state legislature and prominent in state Republican circles, was shot and killed by the gunmen when he fired several shots at them in response to their command to "stick 'em up."

John Parrish, his son and cashier of the bank, seeing his father fall before the bandits' fire, drew his own gun and shot and seriously wounded one of the quartet before he, in turn was shot dead.

Apparently undaunted by the shooting, the three unwounded robbers scooped up the money and securities forced two patrons of the bank to stand on tables, and at the point of a gun drove E. A. Kessinger and E. A. Lundgren, tellers, into an automobile and escaped with their wounded companion.

Shortly after the robbery, the four engaged in a running gun battle with Sheriff L. E. Alderman and G. A. Anderson of Lamar, near Sandy Creek 16 miles northeast of here, during which the sheriff's car was disabled by the robbers' fire and they escaped. Lundgren, in the mean time, had been released not far from here. Kessinger's fate was unknown.

Last night the bandits drove in to Trinidad, Colorado, where they stopped at a drug store and forced the owner, Mrs. J. B. Hughes, Brown to dress the wounds of the injured man.

The bandaging completed, the men paid for some medical supplies and some food which they took from a lunch counter in the store and with drew.

PIONEER TELEGRAPHER DEAD

BUTTE, Mont., May 24.—(P)—Levy S. Wild, 82, of Butte, one of the oldest telegraph operators in the United States died here last night from injuries sustained when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver March 18. He was credited with sending out the first wire news on the Custer Massacre when he was an operator in Corinth Utah, in 1876, and also with having been on the receiving end of the first dispatch about the assassination of president Lincoln, April 14, 1865.

General Nobile Places Cross at Exact North Pole

OSLO, Norway, May 24.—(P)—Having viewed the north pole from the air for the second time in his life, General Umberto Nobile was heading back to Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, today in the dirigible Italia.

For almost an hour early today the Italian exploring expedition which he headed cruised back and forth over the pole making the fourth time man has reached the top of the world. From advices received here it was presumed that General Nobile had abandoned his plan to land an exploring party at the pole.

Starting from Kings Bay at 4:40 a. m., yesterday with a crew and a number of scientists aboard, the Italia headed to the north bearing a cross which Pope Pius had presented to Nobile to be placed at the pole. It took the airship more than 20 hours to reach the pole, which is 750 miles from Kings Bay.

Hour at Pole
Arriving there about 1 a. m., today, the dirigible circled around until nearly 2 a. m. when its blunt nose was turned southward and it headed for Kings Bay. There the base forces of the expedition eagerly awaited General Nobile's return hoping that in that hour of cruising he had wrested new secrets from the frozen north.

This latest conquest of the pole was the fourth, including Peary's trek with sleds across the frozen seas of the Arctic. Two years ago Nobile, then a colonel, flew over the pole from Spitzbergen to Alaska with Lincoln Ellsworth and Roald Amundsen in the dirigible Norge. This flight was preceded by a few days by the airplane flight to the pole and return from Spitzbergen made by Commander Richard E. Byrd and the late Floyd Bennett. On his return from the Norge expedition, Nobile immediately began preparations for the present flight of which he was in supreme command.

ROME, May 24.—(P)—The Vatican announced today that the following message had been received from General Umberto Nobile, commander of the dirigible Italia on its successful flight to the pole:

"At 1:20 a. m. today, the twenty-fourth, with profound emotion we have set foot upon the ice of the north pole, the cross which Your Holiness entrusted to us.

"I and my companions express to your holiness our gratitude for the most high mission bestowed upon us and renew the expression of our profoundest devotion.

A Laudable Plan

Physicians' and hospital bills are too high.

Both doctors and hospitals are barely able to exist for lack of volume of business, in average instances.

The average person receives too little medical care, and the comparatively few who have ample attention pay too much for it.

The fault must be in the system. A newly organized physicians' committee is taking a survey to obtain an accurate analysis of the question. Health programs, health unit plans, nursing services, compulsory examination of students, and other activities are causing people to see the need for regular, skilled examination and preventive steps, rather than calling in of physicians to doctor a sick organism.

date. The Mellon machine had to seek a truce quickly. It was able to promise Mr. Vare much help where he needed it worst when it appeared that the Senate doubtless would refuse to feel him in after his election.

Mr. Vare agreed to play ball and Senator David A. Reed, the Mellon senator who had said so many extremely mean things about the uncouth Mr. Vare in the primary campaign, was forced to break his neck trying to get Mr. Vare in.

No senator ever had such a distasteful task, but his heart was in it, for Mr. Vare threatened to run for Reed's seat if the Mellon crowd didn't help him out.

At any rate Mellon obviously had to divide political control of Pennsylvania with Boss Vare with the threat that Boss Vare might squeeze him out entirely almost any old time. Vare, meanwhile, knew that the Mellons would try to unhorse him sooner or later if he didn't beat them to it. When Reed failed to save his Senate seat, he was free to do as he pleased.

Along came the recent Pennsylvania state convention. Politicians all over the country waited breathlessly to see whether Mellon would say anything about the presidential candidates. The fact is he had no idea of doing anything of the sort—his prepared speech mentioned no candidate.

But on the ground he discovered that Boss Vare had managed to rig the convention against him. Perhaps the Vare crowd had a resolution all drawn up, endorsing Hoover, and was prepared to pass it, as one apparently good source has it.

At any rate there is no doubt at all that Mellon found Boss Vare and his pals possessed of a whip hand. They were all set to grab his leadership whether by the simple expedient of coming out to the popular Mr. Hoover or by other means. The old boy having no candidate of his own ready to trot out—since Coolidge and Hughes had failed him—was in no position to fight. He was simply pushed into an endorsement of Hoover. All informed persons seem to agree on that.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, N.E.A. Service Writer

Washington—Probably the funniest thing that has developed in this political campaign is the distinct likelihood that the Hon. William Scott Vare of Philadelphia will be credited in the pages of his history as the president-maker of 1928.

Perhaps it's not so funny after all. Perhaps Mr. Vare is just being made an instrument of Divine Providence for, as everyone knows, the Almighty works in mysterious ways His wonders to perform.

It's the same Mr. Vare, of course, who runs that notorious political machine in Philadelphia and who wasn't considered sweet and clear enough to be allowed to enter the Senate.

Now this is how Mr. Vare enters the picture as a president maker:

Invertebrate readers of these dispatches will recall that many months ago, when people first began to wonder who was Andrew Mellon's presidential choice and to assert that Mellon would hold the balance of nominating power, your correspondent irreverently suggested that Andy couldn't get to first base with a candidate unless he first enlisted the support of Mr. Vare.

Someone, it was suggested, ought to find out what Mr. Vare was thinking, for it seemed very likely that Mr. Vare would be able to tell Mellon just whom Mellon was going to support.

Mr. Vare and his Philadelphia machine had beaten Mellon and his machine when Mr. Vare decided in 1926 that he would be senator instead of George Wharton Pepper, the Mellon incumbent and candi-

IT SHOULD BE CLEAR by now that what Texans wish in regard to Democratic nominees and platform is adherence to a plank for the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment. In fact, who would ask less if he were for prohibition?

That this stand should be carried into the national convention is only logical, for not only could an unfriendly president hamper enforcement, but it is clear that lack of sincerity in enforcement, already has said is endangering the amendment itself.

The president names the cabinet, several of whose members are closely connected with enforcement of the national prohibition act. The secretary of the treasury virtually could break down enforcement if he desired. Several members of the Supreme Court are to be appointed by the next president. It is unnecessary to point out that the deciding majority in that body could be changed through these appointments.

The president dictates or influences hundreds of appointments in prohibition and other departments. The personal example of the chief executive is all important. Prohibition is by no means the only issue in the campaign, but it is so important that the Texas state convention did well to include the dry plank in the platform adopted at Beaumont.

Heroes for Science

To the list of those who have given their lives to the cause of science has been added the name of Dr. Hideyo Noguchi, a Japanese, whose project was the control of yellow fever in the tropics.

He died in Africa while connected with the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research. It was no ordinary call of duty which sent him into the pestiferous tropics. He was a scientist of ability, and might have won fame and wealth within the walls of a New York laboratory. But not so did he. He chose to take himself to one of the unhealthiest spots on the globe, Accra, Africa. There he set up his microscopes to learn the relation between the African and South American yellow fever, and to discover, if possible, means to halt the ravages of the former. Less than two weeks ago he announced his success, and his records may solve the problem. His serum was made with his own infected blood, for he had been ill since December with the disease.

Associates, aided by his notes and his vaccine, will carry on his task. Heroes are not confined to times of war.

Laughter helps a weak heart, according to a story in a medical magazine. Maybe that's why you see so many old people in Washington, D. C.

One of the leading bootleggers of Kansas City was shot the other day. And with a busy season just ahead, too!

Busby Graham Tops Bantam Division in Tilt With Schwartz

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP)—Busby Graham, flaring haired phantom from Utica, N. Y., today perched on the bantamweight throne that had been vacant in this state since Charley (Phil) Rosenberg forfeited the 118-pound championship more than a year ago.

Although he whipped Corporal Izzy Schwartz, little champion of New York flyweights, in a 15-round match at Ebbets field last night to gain the crown, the honor that came of battling out a victory over a worthy opponent on even terms was not his. Instead a goodly share of the honors went to the spunky little corporal, forced to fight as a flyweight and outweighed by a margin of 6 1-2 pounds.

Throughout the first ten rounds, Schwartz, boxing like a little major, won three rounds and held his bigger opponent even in two others. But as the fight wore on, and Busby made every use of his weight advantage, Izzy tired and fell under the gruelling pace.

In the fourteenth round, Busby caught the little fellow with a volley of left and right smashes to the head that dropped Izzy in the clouds of resin dust their flashing feet had stirred. With blood streaming from his nose his lips smashed and right ear twice the normal size, Schwartz barely managed to reach his feet at the count of nine.

Throughout the final session, only the courageous heart of the flyweight kept him erect. Busby caught him time and again with both hands to the head. Izzy's wounds increased, but he summoned all his caginess and lasted till the final gong. He was a badly battered warrior at the close.

BIG TEN TROTS OUT OLYMPIC HOPEFULS

Leading universities of the mid-west trot out their Olympic candidates May 25 and 26 in the Western Conference championships at Chicago. Leaders in each event go to Harvard for the final Olympic trials. Above are three of the Big Ten's best bets—Wilmer Rinehart (left), Indiana's 140-pound javelin star, who recently broke the intercollegiate record; Rut Walter (center), Northwestern's speedy quarter-mile; and George Simpson of Ohio State, spectacular young sprinter.

CHICAGO (AP)—Olympic team potentialities will strive for the chance of competing in the final tryouts at Harvard when Western Conference athletes gather at Northwestern University stadium May 25 and 26 for their annual track and field meet.

The Big Ten championships have been designated as an official Olympic tryout, the winners of first and second place in each event being eligible for the finals.

Illinois, with a well-balanced squad, is the favorite to repeat its triumph of 1927. Iowa and Ohio State also are expected to make strong bids for the championship, as in Northwestern with one of the best teams in its history.

Interest, however, is mainly centered on individual performances, for a score of conference athletes are figured in the running to represent Uncle Sam at Amsterdam this summer.

Heading the field stars in Wilmer Rinehart, 140-pound javelin thrower from Indiana. The Hoosier midget on May 5 tossed the spear 215 feet, 4 inches in a dual meet with Northwestern for a new intercollegiate record. The best previous college performance was 214 feet, 2 1-8 inches, made by John Kuck of Kansas State Teachers' College in 1926. Rinehart's throw was nearly 10 feet farther than that made by Creth Hines of Georgetown University in winning the intercollegiate championship last year.

In William Droegemueller of Northwestern the Conference has one of the leading pole vaulters of the country. Droegemueller holds the national indoor record off a dirt floor at 13 feet, 2 1-2 inches and is co-holder of the Big Ten record of 13 feet, 3 inches. Dan Lyon of Illinois, Pete Rasmus of Ohio State and Justin Dart of Northwestern, with Ketz of Michigan, are the weight men who are considered as having a good chance to break into the Olympic lineup.

The sprints will bring together the pick of the middle west. At least five schools can boast of men of Olympic caliber. George Simpson, the Ohio State flash, and Hester, Michigan veteran, appear to be the class of the field. Simpson won the century at the Ohio and Penn relays being caught at 9.6 seconds on a heavy track at the latter.

The field in the quarter is equally as classy. This race will find Rut Walter, Northwestern sophomore sensation, matched against such stars as Cuhel and Baird of Iowa, Chambers and Orlovick of Illinois and Stephenson of Indiana. Walter was timed at 48.5 running anchor on the relays and has since been clocked at 49.2.

Parelli Comes as Wrestler of Above Average Ability

Best known as the Terrible Wop, Joe Parelli, fresh out of the North, will attempt to throw Jack Vincent, the pride of Oklahoma, twice for a decision at the Fla-Mor tonight. Both wrestlers are in the welterweight class.

Vincent has been seen here before, and local fans believe he can throw the former champion of the world. It is also believed that he can manage Joe Kopecky, as both are about the same weight and class of wrestler, except that Vincent sticks to wrestling tactics.

The Wop is a past master at the game and should be in good shape, coming from several important matches. He is endeavoring to get back where he can have another chance at the crown he lost a few years ago.

Joe Kopecky and Leo Chase will go to one fall or a 30-minute limit in the preliminary and action is the answer to this bout. The Roxana mauler is used to fighting lumberjack style and should make Kopecky show some of his famous faces before the half hour is up.

T. C. U. Horned Frogs Finish Season With an Average of .229

FORT WORTH, May 24.—The T. C. U. Horned Frog baseball team finished the season with a general batting average of .229, five member Frogs clouting the apple 300 or better.

Leo Buckley, Holland, led the sluggers with .423. However, Buckley only participated in about seven of the 20 games and was at bat only 26 times. He was a regular hurler but was unable to get going on account of a bad arm so Coach Leo Myer began using him in the outfield because of his batting ability.

Melbourne "Possum" Moore, Fort Worth, who did most of the catching for the Frogs, was the actual leader in batting with a .329. Jake Williams, Fort Worth, regular pitcher, was next with a .329. Jake Williams, Fort Worth regular pitcher, was next with .313 and Bernard "Blackie" Williams and Horace "Horsie" Wallin came next with .307 each. Williams plays shortstop and Wallin first base. Both hail from Ft. Worth.

The remainder of the squad batted as follows: Captain Jimmy Grant, Ft. Worth, .213; Forrest Grubbs, Kaufman, .207; Oran Steadman, Abilene, .240; Howard Lee, Fort Worth, .077; Hunter Vaughn, Wolf City, .188; Lowell Parrish, Terrell, .233; Floyd Dorsey, Fort Worth, .214; Ralph Walker, Cleburne, .242; Roy Eury, Fort Worth, .125; Rob Ell Cox, Anna, .256; and Raymond Matthews, Fort Worth, .000.

Hornsby Is Manager of Braves—Slattery Tenders Resignation

BOSTON, May 24.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, traded to Boston Braves in a sensational deal early this spring, today was manager of the team by virtue of the resignation of Jack Slattery, who stepped out after little more than a month of road management.

President Emil E. Fuchs in a statement describing the change said: "We shall continue our efforts to build a fighting and winning team for Boston."

Slattery, who came to the Braves from Boston college where he was coach after a long career in big league baseball, will continue with the club in another capacity, but at the same salary. His contract has a year to run.

After managing the St. Louis Cardinals in 1926 when that team captured the world's championship, Hornsby was traded to New York. He was sent to Boston in a deal that left baseball fans gasping and was fraught with rumors

Payne Gains Two Hours on Finn in Lap Yesterday

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., May 24.—(AP)—Another 37-mile lap was in store for C. C. Pyle's transcontinental union derbyists today, bringing them to Suffern, N. Y., only two days' run from the finish in Madison Square Garden. Tomorrow's lap will take them to Passaic, N. J., and Saturday will see them at the end of their long trek from Los Angeles to New York.

Andy Payne, Claremore, Okla., farm boy, who is firmly entrenched in the lead, increased his margin over John Salo of Passaic to 17 hours, 28 minutes, 7 seconds in yesterday's lap from Liberty, N. Y. to Middletown. Taking it easy and saving himself for the final dash, Payne jogged into a tie for tenth place in yesterday's lap with Philip Granville of Hamilton, Ont., holder of third place in the standing, and Roy McMurtry of Indianapolis, twelfth place man. Their time for the 38 miles was 7:44:31. Sale held back by a chafed foot, came in eighteenth for the day in 9:27:03, nearly two hours behind Payne.

Lightweight Title at Stake Tonight in Junior Class

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP)—The third championship battle of the week and the second in four days under direction of Tex Rickard will find Tod Morgan in the Madison Square Garden ring tonight in defense of his junior lightweight title against Eddie (Cannonball) Martin the diminutive Brooklyn Italian who once held the world bantamweight crown.

Ford Is Second in 100-Yard Dash

CHESTER, Pa., May 24.—(AP)—Henry Ford finished second in a foot race recently and although it subtracts some from his glory to report that there was only one other in the race, it is said he finished close to the winner, W. W. Mitchell, general manager of the Ford plant here, a much younger man.

Ford challenged Mitchell after hiking seven miles over the golf course of the Spring Haven club at Wallingford. Mitchell asked if he should run his best and Ford rejoined: "You will have to run your best if you expect to win."

The pair ran over a 100-yard course, and hats off and coat tails flying the employe showed his heels to his famous chief.

Will Walling of White Deer was brought to the Pampa hospital this morning suffering from a broken leg. No particulars of the accident have been learned.

Miss Lucille Mooney and Verde Dickey Are Married at LeFors Wednesday Evening During Picnic Honoring Popular Couple

Beneath the green trees of a valley, and amid the silence created only by nature, the marriage of Miss Lucille Mooney, and Verde Dickey was solemnized at 7:30 o'clock last evening in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. The ceremony came as a complete surprise to the group, who had gathered at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Frank Keehn, and had gone to LeFors to enjoy a picnic honoring the couple.

At the close of a bountiful feast spread beneath the trees at LeFors, the wedding party was called together and with Mrs. Keehn giving her daughter in marriage, the Rev. W. L. Ryan performed a beautiful ring ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Myrtle White, and Oscar Dial as best man and J. T. Roberts completed the group.

Mrs. Dickey was charmingly dressed in an attractive shade of blue, with accessories in harmony, and carried a beautiful bride's bouquet. Miss White's dress was of a becoming shade of rose. Mr. and Mrs. Dickey left immediately for Fort Worth, Dallas, and Sherman and will return to Pampa soon after the first of June.

Mrs. Dickey is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Keehn of this city, and is a popular member of the younger social group. She is a graduate of Central high school, class of '28, and has a large number of friends who wish for her every happiness. Mr. Dickey has been coach the last two years of the Harvester athletic teams, and was a teacher of mathematics in the Central High school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Dickey of Sherman, and is a graduate of Sherman high and of Austin college.

Those present to enjoy the surprise were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thom, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thut, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hefflin, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clements, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keehn, Mrs. B. R. Sultherland, Miss Frances Gowen, Miss Helen Baird, Miss Martha Bradford, Miss Louise Miller, Miss Lottie Schafner, Miss Irma Crowe, Miss Velora Reed, Miss Joan Leath, Miss Leora May, Miss Myrtle White, and Oscar Dial, Russell Kennedy, Tommie Robinson, B. W. Bradley, the Rev. W. L. Evans, J. T. Roberts and Tabby Lovine. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. E. B. Thompson of Borger and Miss Carmen Hawkins of Panhandle.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Strickland have moved to Altus, Okla., where they will open a meat market.

Eugene Lary of Fort Worth was a business visitor in Pampa Wednesday. Mr. Lary is attorney for the Cities Service company.

Mrs. W. Purviance Entertains Members Of Sunday School

Mrs. W. Purviance entertained class number Two of the Junior department of the Methodist church at her home Monday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock. After playing games, story telling was enjoyed. A dainty refreshment course of sandwiches, fruit salad, and punch was served to eleven members and two visitors.

Those present were Odessa Winkler, Eva Mae Moore, Mary Catherine Clark, Christine Manning, Harriet Hunkapillar, Anna Mae Flesher, Myrtle Fay Gilbert, Twila Thomas, Elizabeth Graham, Willis Belle Fogleman, Dorothy Brumley, Jeanne Murphy, and Janice Purviance.

'Little Pitchers' by Isa Glenn is Studied By El Progresso Club

The regular meeting of El Progresso club was held at the home of Mrs. Carson Loftus Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Dave Pope, and after a short business session, the study program was turned over to Mrs. Siler Faulkner.

'Little Pitchers' by Isa Glenn was the study for the afternoon and it was very interestingly and instructively handled by Mrs. Faulkner and her assistants, Mrs. A. Cole, Mrs. C. M. Bryson, Mrs. W. M. Craven, H. L. Ledrick, and Mrs. R. R. House. The story of 'Little Pitchers' is the history of a small boy brought up in an incongruous home in which there is constant discord. His ears or the 'little pitchers' hear much that is not intended for them and his character is formed by what he hears.

At the close of the study hour, the hostess served delicious refreshments to the following: Mrs. John Andrews, Mrs. A. Cole, Mrs. W. Purviance, Mrs. C. M. Bryson, Mrs. H. L. Ledrick, Mrs. Dave Pope, Mrs. G. C. Walstad, Mrs. J. M. McDonald, Mrs. R. R. House, Mrs. W. M. Craven, Mrs. C. T. Hunt, Mrs. T. D. Hobart.

Miss Bernice R. Whiteley left Wednesday afternoon for Bangs, where she will visit in the home of her parents for a week before going to Austin. Miss Whiteley is head of the English department of Central high. She will continue the study of her subject in Texas University during the summer months.

W. H. Joyce left Wednesday for his home in Estland after attending business in Pampa for several days.

Mrs. John Wood Is Hostess to Justamere Bridge

Mrs. John Wood was a charming hostess to the Justamere Bridge club in the home of Mrs. Walter Darlington, Jr., on Tuesday afternoon. A very effective color scheme of pink and green was used in the table appointments and favors.

Mrs. W. F. Clausing was awarded high guest score; Mrs. W. P. Clark high club score and Mrs. Walter Darlington received consolation. At the close of the afternoon a very delicious luncheon was served the following guests and members:

Mrs. I. B. Hughey, Mrs. Ivy Duncan, Mrs. DeLea Vicars, Mrs. C. L. Thomas, Mrs. H. H. Hicks, Mrs. R. A. Webb, Mrs. H. W. Johns, Mrs. Ed Guber, Mrs. G. C. Walters, Mrs. Wrathner, Mrs. W. P. Clark, Mrs. Porter Malone, Mrs. Walter Darlington, Mrs. H. W. Hickman, and Mrs. W. W. Humphries.

Effect of Summer Cooling Systems to Be Determined

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 24—What effects the cooling of houses in summer by the newly-invented fan-systems installed in the same furnaces that keep them warm in winter, will have upon the health and efficiency of members of the household, is to be ascertained by tests which the University of Michigan is undertaking in cooperation with the Holland Furnace company of Holland, Mich., according to an announcement made here today by Prof. C. W. Wood and J. E. Smswiler of the Department of Engineering Research of the university.

Squads of students will be placed at given tasks in a room where the conditions of the ordinary home exist, and their bodily and mental reactions as the atmosphere become increasingly 'stuffy' will be observed and recorded. These tests will be repeated in a room ventilated by the fan-driven air. Head-

Rides to Undertaker Then Kills Self

NEW ORLEANS, May 24.—(AP)—Riding in a taxicab to an undertaking establishment here last night, Hilliard Agregaard, 33, sent a bullet through his brain after writing notes to his wife.

The taxicab driver said while they were passing the funeral home he heard a shot. Looking back he saw Agregaard had killed himself.

One of his notes read: "Don't take me to Biloxi." He is understood to have several brothers and sisters in Biloxi, Miss., and Houston Texas.

The notes gave no reason for the suicide.

Abilene College Denied Judgment on Usury Claim

AUSTIN, May 24.—(P)—Abilene Christian college, claiming its creditor, the United States Home Builders of America, practiced usury in connection with a loan to the institution, was denied relief Wednesday by the Supreme Court.

The College was refused writ of error from lower court decisions awarding C. G. Wright, receiver of the association, judgment for about $14,000 as part of the debt.

Counsel for the institution alleged it received only about $29,000 of the $39,100 it borrowed and that about $9,000 was subtracted as bonus.

Annual Meeting of W. T. C. C. Claiming Chief Interest

STAMFORD, May 24.—District conventions of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce which have been in the foreground of the regional organizations activities for the past several months are now relegated into the background as time for the huge annual meeting looms near.

With the ambition that the gathering for the decade year may be the largest ever held, the entire force of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is directing its efforts toward making the event a record one, not only for the State, but for the Southwest as well.

At the culmination of the annual

Southern Baptists are threatening to bolt the Democratic party unless a "dime dry" is introduced for president. Southern Baptists, although 3,700,000 strong will not desert the Democratic party, the great enemy should first feed or fatten be proclaimed. It is doubtful whether Democrats or Republicans can be induced to make prohibition a paramount issue in the election this year.

Commenting on the development of chain newspapers, Editor and Publisher says, "Provision of many units affords freedom to exercise princonvention, attention of the staff will be devoted to preparation for the momentous annual session of the executive board, personnel of which will be reorganized in line with usual policy of organization. The meet is tentatively scheduled for the middle of July.

Following action of the directorate, the second annual motorcade will be sponsored by the West Texas chamber. The event this year will be held during the month of August and will load a party restricted to 150 members from some centrally located point at Carlsbad, New Mexico, back through the resort sections of West Texas to Brownwood, perhaps, as the termination, with camping, fishing, and out-of-doors activities stressed. Food will be served often from an old chuck wagon, Col. R. L. Penick, pioneer Westerner, having charge of this feature.

Two district meets will be held as part of the motorcade program, one in the picturesque Carlsbad Gaverns, and the other in Fort Dohs, the Mile High town. Five other sectional meets will then occupy attention of the West Texas Chamber. These are: the Panhandle-North Plains District, to meet in Pampa; the Heart of Texas district to meet in Lampasas in September; the Trans-Canadian District to meet in Spearman in October; the Red River District to meet in Decatur in November, and the Central Texas District to meet in Merkel in December.

Hundred Shriners to Go to Amarillo for Annual Ceremonial

Pampa will be well advertised and represented at the Khiva ceremonial in Amarillo. More than 100 Pampa Shriners and their wives plan to attend the gathering wearing uniforms for the huge parade in the afternoon. Caps, arm bands, canes, and banners will be among the paraphernalia worn by the members of the local club.

Al Johnson, popular hoive, is entered in the diamond ring ceremonial and will be backed by the Pampa club and the Berger delegation. He will be well decorated with Pampa advertising and is a heavy favorite for the diamond.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service Fiction by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED
NATHANIEL DANN, struggling artist is engaged to VIRGINIA BREWSTER, whose father is a prominent Wall Street banker. After losing his fortune in speculation, BREWSTER dies suddenly and leaves his daughter penniless.

NIEL urges VIRGINIA to marry him at once, but an old family friend, FREDERICK DEAN, and his daughter CHARISSA persuade her to make her temporary home with them. This urges NIEL, for he suspects DEAN's motives and does not like CHARISSA. He returns to his work and quarrels with his model, CHIRI, who is jealous of VIRGINIA.

Meanwhile, VIRGINIA is puzzled and unhappy in her new home. She resolves to tell NIEL her fears, but when she phones his studio in the evening, CHIRI answers. She tries to fight suspicion but she cannot bring herself to call him again.

That evening, a dinner CLARISSA places VIRGINIA beside her father, at the table to the obvious discomfort of a MISS FARLEY, who apparently resents the presence of VIRGINIA in the DEAN home. After dinner VIRGINIA went to her room, leaving the others to sing songs.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IX.
"I'M afraid you will find me dull company this evening," Frederick Dean remarked to Mrs. Farley when Charissa and Russell had gone.

"On the contrary," she said evenly, "you are going to be very exciting company."

Mr. Dean allowed a flicker of apprehension to appear in the gaze he turned upon her. He had caught something vaguely portentous, even threatening, in her level tone.

"Then you didn't stay for parchments?" he asked blandly.

"When have we ever played parchments?" she countered. "Don't pretend to be stupid, Frederick; you are well aware that the game we have played is not so innocuous as that."

"Were we playing a game, Helen?" His tones dripped innocence, but his eyes evaded her searching scrutiny of his face.

"Yes, Frederick, we were," she answered unemotionally, "and now I think it is time to declare the winner."

Dean reached over to a nearby stand and helped himself to a cigarette from a lacquered box.

"Thank you," Mrs. Farley said and put out a hand. He gave her the cigarette, and understood that she knew he was disturbed to the point of forgetting his manners.

He took another cigarette for himself but he did not neglect to touch a match to hers before lighting his own. This was going to be a game of wits, he realized, and he had lost the first point by letting her see that he was worried.

"Were there any stakes?" he asked, striving to speak lightly.

"Important ones," she declared instantly. "I thought right along that I had more to win than you had, Frederick, but since meeting Miss Brewster I have reached a different conclusion."

"Meaning...?"

"That I am sure you regret the game now. Sweet child, isn't she?" Then with a sudden show of confidence, she added: "You know, I think I can understand how you feel. It must be like drinking at a fountain of youth to possess a girl like Miss Brewster."

"What are you talking about?" he shot at her quickly.

"Don't lose your temper, dear," she warned him sweetly; "though I understand that, too. I felt angry myself earlier in the evening, but I'm wise enough to know that it will do no good. I've decided we can settle the matter whatever you may call it. You haven't a shred of evidence and I doubt if Miss Brewster would listen to your confidences; but I realize as well as you do that it isn't necessary to be proved guilty to be condemned."

"That's sensible, Frederick; plain figures on your check will do the trick, darling."

White with anger, Frederick Dean went to a desk and got out a checkbook. A moment later Mrs. Farley was calmly tearing a slip of paper to bits.

"Double," she said firmly, "and you'll win!"

Trembling, but forcing himself to silence, Dean wrote out a new check. Mrs. Farley folded it into a tiny leveled vanity case she was carrying.

"I'm truly sorry it turned out this way, Frederick. I was thrilled at the thought of marrying you. You're flinty, and there isn't the trace of a heart anywhere in your well-preserved body, but you had the power to strike fire in me. That's a great deal to lose."

She was staring away from him, down the years, and for all the brittleness of her exterior there was a wistful quality in her cultivated voice. But it made no appeal to Frederick Dean. He hated her fiercely at that moment; she had hated him, criminally perhaps, but he did not mind her methods. The mere fact that he was hated enraged him. He was not accustomed to it.

"Well, give me a parting kiss, old sunbeam, and don't forget me too soon."

He drew back as she moved nearer to him and she laughed teasingly. "Come along and see me out, then," she invited and moved toward the door. "You see, I'm determined to please you in some manner, so I'll leave you."

As he opened the outer door for her he caught a glimpse of a familiar figure passing before the house.

He was helping Mrs. Farley into her car when the figure turned and came back, stopping near him. He closed the door of the car and faced about.

"Good evening, Mr. Dann," he said brightly.

"Nice evening," Nathaniel returned pleasantly. "Nice for strolling, nice street, too."

Dean appeared relieved. "Oh, then you weren't thinking of coming in?" he said discouragingly.

"I should like to see Virginia," Nathaniel replied, weakening in his resolve not to call until she summoned him.

"She has retired," Dean informed him curtly. "And there are other streets that are interesting for strolling if you are interested in such exploring about. Good night."

"So you're wise to me?" Nathaniel muttered after him as he mounted the steps and disappeared within the house.

"Confounded him," Dean was saying aloud as he made his way back to the drawing room. "He's shadowing the house, the pig-headed fool!"

The thought of Nathaniel on guard out in the street put him on edge. He began to perceive that Nathaniel was going to be a formidable obstacle to his plans.

"There must be some way of getting rid of him," he said earnestly. "Finally his features relaxed into a cynical smile. "Easy," he decided pleased, "I'll see Barrows tomorrow."

CHARMS OF THE VALLEY OF DEATH

LOADING BORAX ON CARS OF THE DEATH VALLEY RAILROAD

In Winter Time It Is a Delightful Place — Oases Created By Pumping Water From Mountain Springs — The Borax Industry — No Insects, But Reptiles In Plenty.

By RENE BACHE
THE hottest and most terrible of all known deserts has a delightful winter climate from November to March. With everlasting sunshine, the days are cool and pleasant, and the nights in December and January are sometimes chilly enough to make a blanket desirable.

The Furnace Ranch in Death Valley occupies what is said to be the hottest spot on earth, temperatures as high as 134 degrees, in the shade, having been recorded there. It is 170 feet below sea level, and just about 100 miles from Mount Whitney, the loftiest peak in the United States, 14,500 feet high.

An Up-To-Date Oasis
In that place an oasis has been created by bringing water by pipeline from Furnace Creek, which flows from springs on the slope of the Funeral Mountains, gets its name from the fact that, at one point on its course, it drops into a depression where the air is so hot as to suggest a furnace blast. The water that irrigates the ranch is used also for driving electric generators, and for operating the machinery for a great borax-refining plant. One should understand that borax mining is the big industry of Death Valley, and it is to supply the mine workers with food and living quarters that the ranch is maintained. Hence the growing of grain and vegetables, with oats for mules, and there are also cattle raised for meat and flocks of chickens.

Death Valley is in Southern California, northeast from Los Angeles, and close to the Nevada line. It is about 170 miles long and ten to thirty-five miles wide. Anciently it was occupied by a lake, evaporation of which left behind a desolate waste crusted with mineral salts originally derived from rocks and brought down into the lake by rivers from the mountains. These salts are largely calcium borate, from which the borax is separated out by refining processes.

The valley is walled on both sides by lofty mountains. On the east side is the Funeral Range, on the west the Panamint Mountains.

Through the latter runs a narrow canyon, which, formerly offering a difficult passage for men and pack animals, has been converted by explosives and engineering skill into a satisfactory road for automobile traffic.

Wonders Of The Valley
There is water beneath even the driest deserts. Long ago, a prospector in Death Valley came across a spot where there was a small trickling spring, and marked it by thrusting down into it a piece of stove pipe. Many years later, an artesian well was put down there with rig and drill, and brought, from a depth of 850 feet, a flow of 1,000 gallons an hour of pure, cold water. The place is now called Stovepipe Wells.

From Dante's View, on the heights of the Funeral Range, the "rubberneck" tourist's attention is invited to the Devil's Golf Course, in the valley below—an extraordinary confusion of masses of volcanic lava. Death Valley has many wonders. Seventy miles to the west is the Devil's Playground, a vast sheet of black lava; and to the southeast is Dead Mountain, which gets its name from the fact that the Indians of that region believe it to be the abode of their departed warriors. The rocks that cover its slope are much broken, and the sun shining on their white points and angles makes it look, from a distance, as if a convention of ghosts were assembled upon it.

In crossing the valley, a man cannot very well carry with him more than one day's supply of water. The only thing to do is to try to reach the other side before succumbing to want of drink. In some of the gorges that run up into the mountain ranges there are springs, but in former days the location of these was known to few, and, as a result, hundreds perished of thirst. Their bodies did not decay, but simply shriveled into mummies.

Once in a great while there is a tremendous storm in the Amargosa desert, eastward of the Funeral Mountains, and a river a mile wide flows around the south end of the Funeral Range and northward through the Death Valley. But it does not flow out at the other end; it is dried up and lost before it gets that far.

Death Valley occupies only a small part of a region of glassy desert which extends from the Wasatch Mountains to the Sierras, nearly all of its area in California, but, to the eastward, reaching over the boundary line into Nevada. The ill-omened coffin-shaped "sink" is just within the California line, the Amargosa desert, on the east side of the Funeral Mountains, being in Nevada. The whole of the vast desert waste is intersected by a series of high mountain ranges running parallel north and south, with valleys between.

Uncertain Scenes
The surface of the plain that lies between the 10,000 foot walls of Death Valley is composed of salt and alkali—the latter term referring to such mineral salts as calcium borate and magnesium. To travel over it on horseback is impossible, because it is a mere crust, through which a horse is liable to break up to its knees into a thick sort of paste that eats both hair and hide. There are paths, however, which may be safely trodden by a man on foot.

There is something unearthly about the whole appearance of things in the valley. The ranges on either side, irregular in their sky line, look like the backbones of a couple of monstrous beasts. A gray haze that never lifts renders everything indistinct to the view. There is no vegetation to be seen, save a very scanty sagebrush, with here and there a tall cactus which in the night looks like a dead man standing erect with arms extended. There is sometimes a breeze, but instead of being cool, it is scorching hot and blisters the skin.

Plenty Of Reptiles
Death Valley has animal life, of sorts. Mostly it is nocturnal, hiding in the daytime to escape the heat. There are kangaroo rats and kangaroo mice, curious creatures which get their name from their long hind legs and swift jumping locomotion. But the life of the valley is mainly reptilian. There are horned toads and plenty of rattlesnakes, also several species of lizards, one of which, of large size, the "chuckwalla," is very good to eat, its meat tasting like chicken.

When Planes Go Wrong the Occupants Must Jump for Safety — Thrilling Incidents In the Day's Work of Aviators.

By MALCOLM MacDONALD
IN swift flight over Langley Field near the national Capitol, a Marine Corps aviator reacted for his watch to see how long he must wait for the dinner hour. Bracing altitudes sharpened the appetite, and in this instance Lieutenant Rogers was a mile above ground and eager for the noonday meal.

The slight movement required for reaching his timepiece shortened Rogers' flight in a fashion that was not scheduled. In shifting his position the pilot loosened the fastening of the safety belt by means of which he was strapped to his seat. The effort to readjust the buckle caused the flyer to relax his hold on the control-stick of his plane.

At this point the plane took an unfair advantage of its pilot. Released from control, the craft started earthward with abrupt precipitation. The nose-dive into which it plunged was as violent as that which would mark the flight of a grand piano or an office safe tossed from the roof of a skyscraper.

Man Thrown Overboard
Lieutenant Rogers felt his machine plunge downward. At the same instant he realized that he was no longer aboard. The unfastened belt had failed to hold him in his seat. With the machine dropping from beneath him, the pilot followed the law of inertia and shot straight ahead, continuing along the path in which his plane had been moving before the parting of the ways. There was nothing between Rogers and the ground except 5,000 feet of atmosphere, and the parachute which he wore strapped to his back—the parachute which regulations require every military aviator to wear on flight.

It was fortunate for Rogers that the momentum of 90 miles an hour, at which he had been moving, threw him clear of the diving plane and thus eliminated the danger of entanglement. For an anxious moment there existed the inevitable problem of the air as the probable efficiency with which the parachute would operate. Until the moment of the plunge the device had been folded on the aviator's back, after the general fashion of a soldier's marching equipment. Rogers pulled the strap, released the fold parachute, and waited to see whether or not it would unfold and float him to the surface of the earth.

During this interval the aviator was plunging downward at rapidly increasing speed. His life depended on the opening of the parachute and the checking of his drop before it was too late.

The parachute did not fail. Its fabric, fanned by the rushing air, responded to the current and spread its concave surface to the atmosphere, with resultant gradual check of the lieutenant's downward plunge. Within a distance of a few hundred feet Rogers stopped hurtling and began to float. In this orderly manner he reached the ground and landed feet foremost, ready for his noonday meal with his brother officers. His machine had been more precipitate, and awaited him a mass of tangled junk.

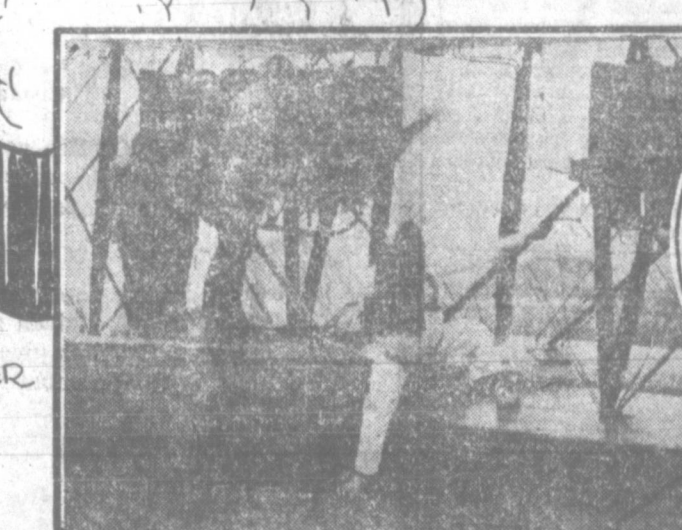

Rogers' experience had much in common with those of other aviators.

Not every user of the parachute has his machine drop from under, but many of them have the thrill of enforced recourse to the apparatus as a means of escape from the perils of the air. The records of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps are filled with terse recitals of the marvelous efficiency of the devices.

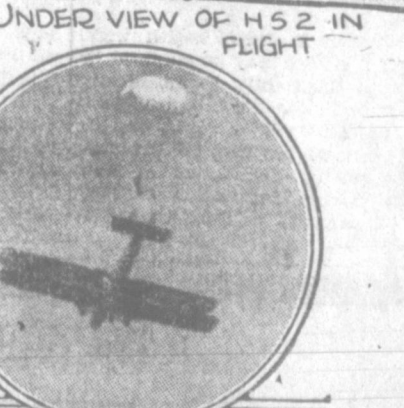

Caught In Blazing Plane
Thrilling experience with a blazing plane was the portion of Lieut. Frank O. D. Hunter, at Selfridge Field, Michigan. Hunter was flying with his fellow pilots in daily practice work when his craft caught fire at an elevation of a quarter of a mile. Noticing that smoke was pouring from beneath the engine cowling, Hunter put his plane into a dive for the surface. The increased speed produced by the dive forced the fire up into the cockpit, burning the pilot's face and clothing, destroying his mustache, and clouding his goggles until he could not see. Thus threatened, Hunter unbuckled his safety belt and plunged head downward over the side, landing in good condition through the perfect behavior of his parachute.

IN THIS WAY OF LEAVING PLANE THE JUMPER IS LITERALLY BLOWN OFF

JUMPER WITH PARACHUTE STRAPPED TO HIS BACK

PARACHUTE LEAVING PLANE

Trial By Fire In Mid-Air
The ordeal of fire was somewhat more thrilling for Lieut. Laurence C. Elliott at the same field a few days after Hunter's experience. Elliott encountered conditions which gave him a chance to learn what a person thinks about in the face of danger. Like Hunter, Elliott became aware of flames when he was at an altitude of a quarter of a mile above ground. With scorching face, and with the fur burned from his flying boots, Elliott found himself struggling to unfasten his flying belt, in order that he might stand up and jump. His fingers refused to bend, and he declares that it seemed hours before he felt the belt loosen to an extent that would enable him to move his head away from the flames.

During this hair-raising period

Elliott found himself thinking of trivial things—the odor of the burned fur on his boots, of the prospect of having his accustomed daily luncheon at the officers' club, and of the boy who stood on the burning deck whence all but him had fled. Relative values were all upset, and he was curiously diverted from his major problems by the shock which came when one eye-brow blazed and flashed like powder touched by a lighted match.

Elliott figures that his machine was moving at a rate of 150 miles an hour, or two and one-half miles to the minute, but to him the craft seemed motionless, as if suspended by invisible threads. Sharp tongues of brilliant flame darted upward past his eyes, and he insists that he counted more than a million such tongues. In spite of this state of affairs the poem of the boy and the burning deck ran through his head until he effected a landing and had extinguished the flames.

Elliott's escape is considered one of the most remarkable in the history of military aviation. Subsequent inspection showed that the fire had been unique for the intensity of its heat, and that the aluminum cowlings of cockpit and engine had been melted by the flames.

Plane BombarDED Him
It is safe to say that no aviator has had experience more spectacular than that of Lieut. James T. Hutchinson, test pilot at Wilbur Wright Field. Through several thousand feet of parachute descent Hutchinson was encircled and bombarded by the bombing plane from which he had jumped. The plane had caught fire a mile and a half above ground. Hutchinson's passenger, Test Observer Paul Stanley, had achieved a perfect getaway in his parachute jump, but the pilot himself was unable to dodge the menace of his disabled machine. During his parachute descent he found that the plane was moving in circles, and that he was the constant center around which it revolved in the course of its spiral travels.

With an ordinary plane the situation would not have been especially thrilling, but with the bomber the case was desperate. The ship carried 320 gallons of gasoline, six bombs, and 2,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition, and Hutchinson was fully conscious that these explosives held deadly menace for a parachute passenger within their sphere of activity.

For much of the downward trip the plane kept even pace with the parachute, circling, dipping, banking and straightening out into an occasional level spiral as if guided by human skill. During all this interval the ammunition was sputtering and exploding like popcorn, and the aviator was aware that the air was filled with flying bullets, any one of which might strike him at any moment. His position was perilous to the last degree, and one in which he was utterly helpless. Hutchinson relates that his central thought was of the man in Poe's tale—strapped down and watching the swinging scimitar as it neared his own head. He knew that there was nothing he could do, and that he must take what might come, be it bomb, bullet or safety. Escape from the bombardment did not come until the flames had burned away enough of the ship's superstructure to cause the dead weight to increase the speed of the craft's descent. Hutchinson's landing was a simple matter, but he still wonders why one of the thousands of bullets failed to hit him while he was a floating target.

327 Years Amassed by Youthful Bandit

AMARILLO, May 24.—To complete sentences assessed against him for bank robberies, 21-year-old Aubrey Ray would serve 327 years in prison.

The latest addition to the total years in prison against him was levied Wednesday at Dalhart. The conviction was for robbery of the Wildorado bank, and the sentence for 99 years. A death penalty had been asked by the state.

Testimony at the Dalhart trial showed that Ray and a companion last fall robbed the Wildorado bank, kidnaped W. E. O'Neal, the president, and, as a result, escaped from a group of armed citizens who had gathered around the bank. O'Neal was left in the highway several miles from town.

General Nobile--

King Victor Emmanuel also received a message from General Nobile, reading:

"From the north pole, the crew of the Italia ends reverent thought to your Majesty."

Note to Mussolini

Another message was received by Premier Mussolini reading: "Today (Thursday) at 1:20 o'clock, the flag of Italy once more was spread to the breeze over the polar ice."

General Umberto Nobile kept in constant communication with the mother ship Citta di Milano here at the dirigible made its way under his command to the pole some 750 miles north of here. At 1:20 a. m., almost 21 hours after the start of the venture he wireless that the airship was over the north pole.

Lions Will Be Rotary Guests at Banquet Tonight

Pampa Lions will be guests of honor at the regular ladies' night banquet of the Rotary club this evening. The banquet will begin at the New Schneider hotel dining room at 8:30 o'clock.

Pampa Lions at their luncheon today heard enthusiastic reports on the recent district convention at Wichita Falls, which was attended by H. O. Studer, P. B. Carlson, Carson Loftus, Wade Duncan, and Ivy E. Duncan. During their talks it was pointed out that Lionism originated at Sar Antonio, and that today Texas has 127 Lions clubs.

Drys Win--

ed to be going against allowing a committee to choose the delegates, Gov. Moody took the rostrum, asserted that he favored committee selection, and apparently stampeded the delegates into giving him a 2 to 1 victory on the poll.

The Smith leaders shouted that the governor was "double crossing" them by permitting committee selection as they had helped him to defeat the ultra-drys and he would not allow them the certainty of placing Smith men on the delegation. Gov. Moody admitted he was "crucifying" himself, but stuck to his guns, and selection was left to a committee.

Four Rodeo Stars Arrive Today For Big Coming Event

This morning four of the most noted men in their profession arrived here and stated that more are on the way. These men were Jim Massey of Fort Worth, winner of the bulldogging contest at the Pat Stock show this year and a noted broncho rider; Chick Hannon of Bozomon, Mont.; Budd Roberts and broncho buster; Rube Roberts and Shorty Ricker of Fort Worth, two of the greatest bulldoggers in the game, of whom will take part in the American Legion rodeo here June 1, 2 and 3.

Three Are Injured in Head-on Crash

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Lyons and daughter and Tom Crawford were severely cut and bruised in an automobile accident near the Hopkins school south of here yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Crawford was driving south behind a car while Mr. and Mrs. Lyons and their daughter were proceeding to Pampa also behind another. As the cars met the dust became so heavy that it was practically impenetrable and neither of the drivers could see how near the center of the road he was until the head on crash occurred.

They were rushed to the Pampa hospital in a passing car for treatment where it was found necessary to take stitches in the cuts suffered by the Lyons child. The others were bruised and cut.

Both cars were badly damaged in the crash.

NATIONALS RETREATING

TOKYO, May 24.—(AP)—Advices from China indicated today that the North-erners who faced with a critical situation which threatened to bring about the fall of both Peking and Tientsin into Nationalist hands, had beaten back the Nationalist troops. They were following up the advantage gained in a terrific offensive by pursuing the retreating Nationalists.

MISSOURI BANK ROBBED

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., May 24.—(AP)—With a handkerchief as a mask, a robber held up the Butler county bank shortly after noon today and escaped with cash estimated between $1,200 and $1,500.

Mrs. Henry Turner, assistant cashier, was alone in the bank at the time.

Players Club to Present One-Act Play on Friday

"Not Quite Such a Goose," the play which won first place in the district interscholastic League contest recently at Canyon when a local cast won second place with "Grandmother Pull the String," will be presented at the Rex theatre Friday afternoon and evening by the Players club of Central high school.

The cast will be seen together for the last times at these performances since most of the members are of the Class of '28. The plot involves a boy who was a "regular" fellow, and disliked to wash his ears and talk to girls. How a girl's praise completely changed his life is cleverly worked out.

The cast includes Lewis Fogleman, Susie Bell Smalling, Mildred Fahy and Frances Campbell and Bob Kahl. It is directed by Miss VeLora Reed.

Tom Rose of the Rose Motor car party returned yesterday from Oklahoma City with two new Ford coupes.

Jack Gattlin of Miami was a business visitor here yesterday.

Oil Fire From Broken Pipeline Halts South Field Travel

Traffic on the oil field road south of here is being directed through the Wilcox pool, as it is impossible to get through to the McGee pool because of a mass of flames beside and across the road.

Early yesterday morning a section of the Gulf pipeline along the road broke and before it could be repaired about 850 barrels of oil had flowed over the ground. One youth, looking for excitement, tried to fire the oil after the line had been repaired and it prevented an accident the company started the oil burning.

Clouds of smoke were seen from the city ascending into the air and many cars were kept over rough roads to near the scene of the fire believing it to be a large well on fire.

Hundred Extremists Under Arrest in Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES, May 24.—(AP)—One hundred known extremists were under arrest today as police sought those responsible for a bomb outrage in which seven persons were known to have been killed and for the planting of a second bomb the explosion of which was prevented. The bombing was attributed by the police to anti-fascists who are part of the radical element of Buenos Aires.

A strong police guard was placed around the Italian consulate where the bomb exploded and about the Italian embassy. The offices of Italian newspapers were also under guard.

Count Martin-Franklin, Italian Ambassador, said the bomb outrages were directly traceable to anti-fascist groups. He asserted they were the same groups as were responsible for the recent bombing in Milan, Italy, which was intended to kill King Emmanuel.

He was certain the bomb had been placed to explode at noon during ceremonies for the dedication of the consulate, which notable persons were to attend. The explosion occurred ten minutes before the time set for the dedication.

The building had only been occupied for a month and the scaffolding was still in place in the passport bureau.
