PAMPA — The Healthy Choice American Heart Walk in Pampa will be held Saturday, with participants meeting at the stage area in Central Park.

Registration for the two-mile walk begins at 8:30 a.m., with the walk starting at 9 a.m. Walkers, bicyclers, runners, rollerbladers, skaters, skateboarders, wheelchair users and strollers are all welcomed to participate in the fund-raiser for the American Heart Association.

Special recognition will be given for stroke and heart attack survivors.

For pledge forms or for more information, contact Debby Dancel, Healthy Choice American Heart Walk chairman; Dee Barker, Tricounty Division president; or Chrys Smith, Tricounty Division secretary/treasurer, at Shepard's Crook Nursing Agency Inc., 665-0356.

AMARILLO — A Pampa woman and her grandson today were expected to suffer radiation and chemical burns in an explosion at the Pantex Plant outside Amarillo.

Well, not really ... but she says they're going to try.

Janita Stabel and grandson Christopher were expected to participate in a mock disaster drill at the nuclear facility.

Stabel said her role in the scenario was to drive up to several highway patrol checkpoints around the perimeter of the explosion and try to make her way through.

She says she just plans to "talk my way through" by telling the officers she has relatives inside the explosion.

The disaster was expected to run from about 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

PAMPA — Panhandle Criminal Justice Facilities Financing Corp. is to meet at 3 p.m. Thursday in the second floor courtroom of Gray County courthouse.

Agenda items include organization of the committee and consideration and possible approval of facility development.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA today delayed the launch of space shuttle Columbia by one day because of high wind and rain associated with Hurricane Opal on the other side of the state.

Columbia is now scheduled to lift off at 9:40 a.m. Friday. It's the second delay for the 16-day laboratory-research mission. The first launch attempt, last Thursday, was thwarted by a fuel leak.

NASA rarely calls off a shuttle launch the day before because of a gloomy weather forecast. Officials almost always prefer to fuel the shuttle and hope for a break in the clouds or rain.

Clinton vetoes budget plan for Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hitting Congress in its pocketbook, President Clinton vetoed the legislative branch budget Tuesday and told lawmakers he wouldn't budget until they make concessions on a larger spending feud.

Issuing the third veto of his presidency, Clinton rejected a measure that would let Congress spend $2.2 billion this fiscal year — a $200 million reduction from last year's budget. The move opened Clinton to attack from Republicans.

"President Clinton has put politics ahead of cutting government spending," Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and House Speaker Newt Gingrich said in a joint statement.

The White House said Clinton supported the bill and its cuts, but vetoed it as a sign of his frustration over the slow progress of budget deliberations. Though the fiscal year began Sunday, only two of 13 spending bills have passed Congress.

"I don't think Congress should take care of its own business before it takes care of the people's business," Clinton said in his veto message.

In another move aimed at putting Republicans on the defensive, Clinton approved a bill providing money for military construction projects, including family housing. The approval came despite the measure's inclusion of $70 million in projects Clinton said amounted to wasteful GOP spending and pointed out the need for a line-item veto.

Both actions carried political risks for Clinton. In the latest round of political gamesmanship over the budget, the president actually approved one bill he said wasted taxpayers' money and vetoed another that would cut government spending — a bill he said he liked.

Clinton's action and the GOP response were the latest tit-for-tat in a war between the White House and Republicans over spending priorities, especially on Medicare, Medicaid, education and the environment.

Thornberry: Medicare reform offers choices

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

An overhaul proposal for Medicare wending its way through Congress features elements of choice for senior citizens, said Rep. Mac Thornberry (R-Amarillo).

Thornberry, addressing a roomful of senior citizens and Republican activists at Pampa Senior Citizen's Center Tuesday, told the group the Medicare Preservation Act, now the subject of congressional hearings, will allow them unprecedented choice of medical care.

If enacted, the act will allow senior citizens to choose between their current Medicare coverage, private coverage paid for by Medicare, health maintenance organizations or preferred provider networks paid for by Medicare, as long as the private sector choices provide the same level of service as Medicare, the congressman said.

"Rather than one size fits all, you've got a choice," he said.

The $4,800 spent yearly on each Medicare recipient is expected to rise within the next seven years to $6,700 due to increased cost of medical care, he said.

Thornberry denied Medicare is being cut, only revamped.

"We cannot let it go up as fast as it has been going up," Thornberry said.

The proposed plan provides incentives for people to check their hospital bills, provides stricter penalties for abuse of Medicare rules and contains elements of lawsuit reform for Medicare providers, he said.

Rural hospitals will be reimbursed at a higher rate than before under the new plan, Thornberry explained.

There is incentive to choose private insurance providers and if people don't choose private care it will be more difficult for the Medicare trust fund to remain solvent, Thornberry said.

The congressman predicted older senior citizens will opt for the coverage they know, while younger retirees just leaving the work force will be more likely to choose managed care because they became accustomed to it while working.

Team overcomes last place last year to take chuckwagon cookoff honors

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

CLARENDON — The Ericksdahl Cattle Company ended September a lot happier than they were earlier this year.

They won top honors at the Colonel Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff and Camp Gathering in Clarendon. In their previous outing before the Clarendon chuckwagon meet, they finished last.

"We were dead dog last," says Wagon Boss Ed Ekdahl. "The night before the cookoff, the sour dough froze and the biscuits raised that much," he says, pinching his thumb and forefinger together.

The judges got a piece of meat that had been dropped in the fire and had some grit on it. Wilbur forgot the ham back for the beans.

"We were dead dog last in every category," Ekdahl says.

"But we won the Good Old Boy Award," Chub Richards says with a smile.

After a less than illustrious beginning, the four-man team from Stamford made up for it

Sept. 30, in Clarendon.

"I think it was a huge success," Ruth Hancock, vice president of the Saints' Roost Museum in Clarendon, says of the chuckwagon cookoff. "It's the first time we had it, and it was a wonderful day. We're looking forward to having it again."

The gathering and cookoff was a fund raiser for the museum and featured cowboy musician Red Steagall, poet and songwriter Andy Wilkinson (a distant relative of Goodnight's) and the Keen Ridge Riders, a singing group in the tradition of the Sons of the Pioneers, along with 16 chuckwagons, including one from the JA Ranch, the ranch Goodnight established in Palo Duro Canyon in 1876.

Besides the JA and Ericksdahl Cattle Company, other chuckwagon teams came from the RS Ranch at Azle; C Bar C Ranch at Harley; the American Quarter Horse Foundation and Heritage Center in Amarillo; DIM Farm at Stinnett; Hudman's 3 H Ranch in San Angelo; Suzy Q Chuckwagon from Lubbock; Flynn M Chuckwagon from Memphis; the Lewis Ranch in Clarendon; Rogers Chuckwagon from the Brooks Ranch at Sweetwater; Palo Duro Ranch at Spearman; Johannsen Ranches at Meade, Kan.; RO Ranch in Donley County; the Walking F Chuckwagon at Hereford, and the Creekwood Ranch near Amarillo.

Goodnight is credited with inventing the chuckwagon when he bolted a food box and folding table to the rear of a surplus Army wagon in 1866. Since then, the chuckwagon served ranches as a mobile kitchen, post office, parlor, hospital and store room.

The chuckwagon cookoff in Clarendon was held on the museum grounds in front of the Saints' Roost Museum, which was originally a hospital built in 1910 by Cornelia Adair. Her husband, John Adair, was Goodnight's partner in the creation of the JA.

The old hospital has housed the museum since 1982 in this town established in 1878 to promote education, Christian ethics and temperance. Local cowboys gave the community the nickname of Saints' Roost.

Gramm spokesman to speak at TEC

Ed Hodges, state director for U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, will outline details of a Gramm proposal to require recipients to work for their benefits during a visit to the Texas Employment Commission Thursday in Pampa.

The meeting will take place at 4:15 p.m. at the TEC office in the Coronado Shopping Center.

The Senate recently approved a welfare reform bill that includes Gramm's work-for-welfare provision to terminate welfare payments for recipients who refuse to work.

"When we started the welfare debate, we had a bill that had no mandatory work requirement, a bill that continued to give people welfare when they came to America as immigrants and a bill that did not address the illegitimacy crisis," Gramm said.

"We now have a welfare reform bill that asks able-bodied men and women riding in the welfare wagon to get out of the wagon and help the rest of us pull. It says that if they refuse to work, they will lose their welfare," the senator said.

"Our bill says to people who come to America legally that you can come with your sleeves rolled up and ready to go to work, but don't come with your hand out because we're not going to invite people to come to

The Senate also approved a Gramm amendment that reduces the federal workforce by eliminating 75 percent of the federal bureaucrats who are running the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. AFDC would be terminated under the welfare reform bill and the money returned to the states in the form of block grants.

The welfare reform bill is now headed to a House-Senate conference committee that will determine which of the two chambers' different approaches to reforming welfare will become law.

PHS prepares for Homecoming events

Veteran Harvester football players from the 1920s through the 1940s and former Homecoming and Football Queens will be featured in Friday's Homecoming parade.

Grand marshal for this year's parade will be Viola Ingrum, Pampa High School's first football queen, crowned in 1930.

The parade begins at 4:30 p.m. at the high school field house. From there, entrants will travel down Duncan to the Post Office, then to Cuyler and Browning before returning to Duncan Street and the high school.

The route the parade follows forms a "P," high school Student Council advisor Sherry Seabourne said.

This year's Pampa Harvesters will play the Canyon Eagles at 7:30 p.m. Following the game will be a high school dance and an alumni reception.

The top seven candidates for Pampa High School Homecoming Queen included Misty Adams, Laura-Marie Imel, Brandi Lenderman, Julie Noles, Stacy Sandlin, Kimberly Sparkman and Hillary Ybarra. Queen elections were held Monday, but the winner will not be announced until halftime of Friday's game against the Canyon Eagles.

Also this week, high school classes will compete in the annual hall decorating contest.

The Pampa Homecoming pep rally will also host the veteran Harvester football players from the 1920s through the 1940s and former Homecoming and Football Queens.

The football veterans were a success last year, said Seabourne, and were happy to return this year.

Block party

Directors named for area spelling bees

AMARILLO - Directors are being named in the Texas Panhandle, parts of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Kansas to support the Amarillo Globe-News and West Texas A&M University in the National Spelling Bee program.

The date of the regional event in 1996 will be April 13. The educational event is open to any student who will not have gone beyond the eighth grade at the time of the national event (June 1, 1996) or older than 16. Public, private and parochial students are eligible to enter.
Directing the Gray County Bee will be Ron Warren, principal at Austin Elementary in Pampa.
The local spelling bee will be held March 1 at Lovett Library.

All county champions are to be reported to Jeane Bartlett, Spelling Bee editor, Amarillo Globe-News, no later than March 30.

The 1996 regional bee will be held on the campus of WTAMU under the direction of Judy Kelley, bee coordinator for the sponsors. She is instructor of mathematics and associate director of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station Regional Division, WTAMU.

The new champion will be the recipient of an all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C., to represent the area in the 69th annual Scripps Howard National Spelling Bee during the week of May 27.

There will be other prizes although the complete prize list is not yet available.

There are two levels of competition - Junior Bee and Senior Bee.
The Junior Bee is for all elementary students grades five and below. The Senior Bee is open to any student in grades eight and below, including elementary school participants at the director's discretion.

Normally a junior county winner will not compete in regional; if an elementary student should win his/her county title, however, this speller will be allowed to compete.

Each county will have only one representative in the regional competition.
The area sponsors will honor all county winners at a luncheon on the WTAMU campus April 13.

The study booklet "Paideia" will be available by mid-October at a price of 75 cents per copy. The booklets will be available from the personnel department of the Amarillo Globe-News.

Wal-Mart aids school ecological projects

With help from Wal-Mart, students at Pampa Middle School will be learning new ways to save the planet.

Associates at the Pampa Wal-Mart are presenting the school with a $300 check earmarked for ecological improvement projects.

Principal Tim Powers said that the school will give $200 to each of three sixth-grade teams and challenge them to come up with a project that would help beautify the school.

An additional $300 from a Wal-Mart grant last year will be used.

As part of the retailer's commitment to preserving the planet, the Wal-Mart Foundation is supporting environmental education programs in schools across the country. The environmental education grants are funding plant-a-tree programs, recycling efforts, the purchase of educational literature and other "green" school projects.

"We are all concerned about the condition of our planet, but its true future lies in the hands of our younger generation," said Kimberli Williams, environmental coordinator of the Wal-Mart Foundation.
"What better way to address this issue than to support educational programs that help students understand the important role they can play in making our world a safer, healthier and overall better place to live," she continued.

Wal-Mart maintains a strong commitment to the environment, according to a press release from the company. To date, the retailer has contributed over $7 million to outstanding community, non-profit environmental education and recycling programs.

Each Wal-Mart store also has a designated "Green Coordinator" to ensure that the store is doing all it can to fulfill its environmental responsibility.

Clinton

The president has threatened to veto eight of the 13 spending bills.

House Appropriations Committee Chairman Bob Livingston said Clinton had "no substantive grounds for a veto" of the congressional budget.

"The president can't have it both ways," said Livingston, R-La. "He can't lecture the Congress on political reform while vetoing the first real effort in 40 years to reform the Congress."

White House aides said the veto carried out a threat Clinton made weeks ago, hoping that it would make Congress look like the selfish party in the budget debate. Approving the military bill gave the president a chance to push again for the line-item veto.

Clinton said the $70 million in military projects approved by Congress - but not requested by the Pentagon - illustrate why "The taxpayers' deserve protection from this kind of wasteful spending."

Republicans made passage of

the line-item veto a key part of their campaign "Contract With America" last year. While the House and Senate have passed different versions, negotiators have not yet developed a compromise measure.

Democrats contend that the Republicans don't want to give Clinton that power.
White House press secretary Mike McCurry said Clinton did not veto the military construction bill because the $70 million was just a small portion of an otherwise beneficial measure.

Vetoing it would have been troublesome for a president worried about a shaky relationship with the military.

Congress' budget and the military bill amount to a tiny fraction of the overall government budget which is tied up in the 11 spending bills Congress was still debating.

The White House was intentionally vague about what Republicans must do to get approval of their budget bill, which Clinton said he would sign "under different circumstances."
"The people of this country need to know that Congress is working with the president to resolve the overall questions that will lead to an acceptable budget for fiscal year 1996," McCurry said.

The congressional spending bill does not include lawmakers' salaries; their paychecks are tied up in another bill. But staff salaries and the cost of doing business on Capitol Hill are covered by the vetoed measure.

None of the funding was in immediate peril, because Congress approved a Clinton-backed bill to pay the government's expenses for six weeks while the budget debate drags on.

The bill that includes spending for White House operations is still pending in Congress. McCurry said Clinton would have vetoed it, too, if Congress had sent it to the president before acting on other spending legislation.

Clinton's previous two vetoes came on a bill to lift the arms embargo in Bosnia and a measure reducing spending for the fiscal year that ended Oct. 1.

Holbrooke huddles with Bosnian officials

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) - A U.S. envoy plunged back into talks with Bosnian government officials today amid indications that an agreement on a cease-fire may be near.

A rebel Serb official was quoted as saying a cease-fire accord could be signed in two weeks in Washington. The Bosnian government also said a deal was in sight.

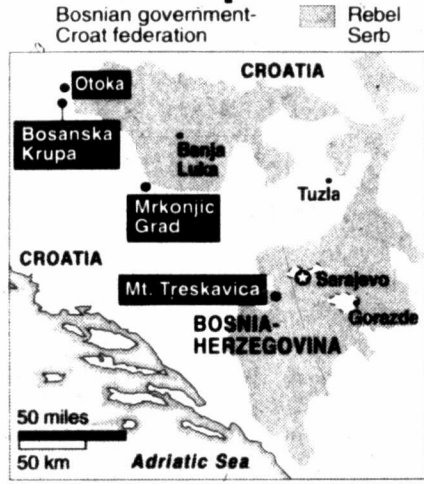

Assistant U.S. Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke returned to Sarajevo and met with Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic. In weeks of shuttle diplomacy, Holbrooke has gained general agreement on a territorial division of the republic and power-sharing in a postwar Bosnia.

He now is trying to win agreement on a cease-fire and the exact maps dividing Bosnia that could end the 3 1/2-year-old war.

Progress has appeared stalled, and fighting flared this week south of Sarajevo and in northwest Bosnia, where government and allied Croat troops have made significant advances.

U.N. officials reported today that the two armies got caught in each other's fire as they advanced against the Serbs, and seven soldiers were killed and a government general was slightly wounded. The U.N. said it was friendly fire, although there has been some tension between the two forces.

Bosnia update

we will have a definitive solution."

The Bosnian Serb news agency SRNA quoted Aleksa Buha, foreign minister in the Serb's self-declared state, as saying that a cease-fire "could be signed on Oct. 20 in Washington." He indicated that U.S. pressure was a key, but did not say why he had singled out Oct. 20.

"If the United States has, for its own internal reasons, decided to end the war, it will do that," he said.

A senior Bosnian government official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the U.S. envoy had won agreement from Serbs to open two routes into Gorazde, the only remaining Muslim enclave in eastern Bosnia.

Secure access to Gorazde was one of the government's condition for agreement on a cease-fire, but so far the Serb offer appeared to fall short of the government demand.

The routes to Gorazde would go from Belgrade, the capital of Serb-led Yugoslavia, and from Sarajevo through Serb-held Rogatica, the official said. Serbs refused a third route, south and then east from Sarajevo. The government opened an offensive in that area Tuesday.

The Bosnian government also has demanded an end to the siege of Sarajevo, including free access for civilians and restoration of utilities, and demilitarization of the northern Serb stronghold Banja Luka.

Pampa Fire Department urges residents to change batteries in smoke detectors

As the fall time change approaches, the Pampa Fire Department reminds residents to make another change that could save their lives - changing the batteries in their smoke detectors.

Although smoke detectors are in 92 percent of American homes, non-working smoke detectors are so common that they are robbing residents of the protective benefits these critical home fire safety devices were designed to provide.

The most commonly cited cause of non-working smoke detectors: worn or missing batteries. Nationally, inoperable smoke detectors contribute to many of the estimated 3,800 deaths and 50,000 to 100,000 injuries caused each year by home fires.

Changing smoke detector batteries once a year is one of the simplest, most effective ways to reduce these tragic deaths and injuries. In fact, a working smoke detector cuts the risk of dying in a home fire by nearly half.

To save lives and prevent needless injuries in Pampa, the Pampa Fire Department has joined forces with the International Association of Fire Chiefs and Energizer brand batteries for the annual "Change Your Clock, Change Your Battery" campaign. The program urges all Americans to adopt a simple, lifesaving habit: changing smoke detector batteries when they change their clocks back from daylight savings time each fall.

"A working smoke detector provides an early warning and critical extra seconds to escape," Fire Marshal Tom Adams said. "This is particularly important for those most at risk of dying in home fires, such as children and seniors," he continued.

Tragically, fire can kill selectively. Those most at risk include:

- Children - An average of three children die each day in home fires. Fire is the number two cause of accidental deaths among children under age five, placing them at double the risk of dying in a home fire. Ninety percent of fire deaths involving children occur in homes without working smoke detectors.

• Seniors - American adults over age 75 are three times more likely to die in home fires than the rest of the population. Firefighters say many seniors have difficulty with mobility and are unable to escape quickly.

• Low-income households - Many low-income families are unable to afford batteries for their smoke detectors. These households sometimes rely on poorly installed, maintained or misused portable or area heating equipment which is a main cause of fatal home fires.

In addition to changing smoke detector batteries, Adams recommends residents use the "extra" hour they save from the time change to test the smoke detector itself by pushing the test button, changing flashlight batteries, planning two ways out and practicing those escape routes with the entire family.

Judge reconsiders Canadian River rights

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

MIAMI - A district judge Tuesday announced he has reconsidered a February 1994 ruling which divides the surface and mineral rights in an ongoing dispute between a group of Panhandle landowners and the state of Texas.

Judge Kent Sims told parties in a court battle commonly known as the Canadian River Land Dispute he reconsidered his ruling in which he divided the surface and mineral estate of disputed Canadian River land.

In the 1994 ruling, Sims ordered the river bed, as it existed before construction of the Sanford Dam, would be used to define the area of ownership of the mineral estate. That is in contrast to a partial summary judgment issued in November 1993 which says the surface estate continues to the edge of the present wash of the river without regard to its past flow.

The judge ruled that in accordance with the laws of public domain, the state Permanent School Fund would be entitled to 1/16 royalty interest in any mineral production derived from the river bed as it existed before the 1965 construction of the Sanford Dam.

Sims' latest ruling assigns all mineral interests to the surface owner of the land down to the present day gradient boundary survey. His 1994 ruling assigned a 15/16 royalty interest to the landowners and a 1/16 royalty interest to the state Permanent School Fund.

These rulings are the result of a 1989 lawsuit filed by landowners along a 37-mile strip of the Canadian River who claim their holdings include land down to where the river runs in its current reduced state. They maintain the 1965 construction of Sanford Dam destroyed the state of Texas' title to the larger river bed which existed before the dam reduced the flow of the river to a small stream.

The landowners group includes E.H. Brainard II, Ruth Wilson, Boone and Bea Pickens, the Morrison Cattle Co., the Catharine C. Whittenberg Trusts, Bonnie Harvey Loopesko, Winifred Wadle, John Ydren and J. Douglas Allen. The stretch of riverbed in dispute straddles the Hutchinson-Roberts County line. The state of Texas argues that the size of the river bed was not altered by the manmade dam and that they still are entitled to use and control the pre-1965 river bed as public land. They maintain the state has a right to use the land for flood control, transmit water to Oklahoma in accordance with the Canadian River Compact and manage the land on behalf of the Permanent School Fund.

Both parties agree that the bed of the Canadian River belongs to the state; they disagree on where the boundary between public and private land should be drawn.

Sims told the parties Monday he will rule within 30 days on a plaintiff's motion for a predetermination of admissibility of the state's expert witnesses. A jury trial on an yet determined fact question is set for Jan. 22 in Hutchinson County.

County commissioners make budget changes

County commissioners Monday made changes totaling $20,972 in the 1996 budget adopted at their last meeting.

The changes stem from FICA changes, a temporary employee that was accidentally left out of budget calculations and the setting of the tax apportionment rate.

One employee was left out of Commissioner Gerald Wright's budget, forcing $10,032 to be added to the budget.

The budget for the state indigent health care program could not have been finalized until the tax apportionment rate had been set, County Judge Richard Peet said. As a result, the IHC program's budget rose from $240,435 to $251,151.

The new 1996 budget figure is $5,636,647, up from the $5,615,675 adopted last month.

Also set by the commissioners' court: the apportionment of the 43.92 cents tax rate.

Funds and apportionments include:

- Jury, 0.10 cent

- Road and Bridge Special, 1.85 cents
- General, 32.08 cents
- Permanent Improvement, 0.85 cent
- FM and LR, 6.19 cents
- State Indigent Care, 2.85 cents.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Jerry Jones: He's just enterprising

It's kind of a real life riddle: What does it take to turn some of America's most free-wheeling, capitalists into socialists? The answer is simple: One person who does something they do not like, in this case, the owner of a rather successful professional football team.

National Football League owners, many among the richest people in the nation, are crying foul because Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones is cutting some blockbuster deals with huge corporate entities and not sharing the wealth.

The first shoe dropped when Jones announced, rather proudly, that Pepsi-Cola had paid $40 million for a 10-year contract to be the official soft drink of Texas Stadium, the home arena for the Cowboys. The lucrative deal circumvents the NFL's share-and-share-alike agreement that requires teams to distribute marketing profits with the other teams in the league. By dealing with Pepsi, Jones thumbed his nose at the NFL's arrangement with Coca-Cola.

The situation eroded even more when Jones announced that he had cut another deal, this time with Nike, that also would not be shared with the other 29 league teams.

The rest of the owners are squealing as if Jones had picked their pockets. And their anguish is understandable. After all, many of the less successful teams are more than happy to sit back and skim profits from the teams that have captured the fancy of legions of fans.

But that sort of arrangement flies directly in the face of good old American free enterprise. In this nation, children are taught that those who work hardest tend to make the most money.

Well, Dallas worked extremely hard to rebound from a desperate season of 1-15 several years ago to win back-to-back Super Bowls. Jones is just practicing what economics teachers would call a prime example of American ingenuity. He is turning his team's success (which can be traced right back to the bankroll he was willing to risk to reach this point) into a money cow. There's nothing wrong with that, contrary to what the sudden socialists are saying with a pitiful whine.

Incidentally, Jones isn't just taking the money and running. He used some of those enormous profits to invest in the most sought-after athlete still on the auction block, Deion Sanders. Jones opened up the coffers to give Sanders, a part-time football player because of his pro baseball commitments, $35 million for a seven year contract. That is what capitalists do. They make money and then turn around and spend it in hopes that it will generate even larger profits. They don't give handouts to people who pose as competitors until it's time to pass the collection plate.

Jones has nothing to be ashamed of, but the other owners do. They're the people waiting around for a unique brand of high-level welfare.

"My dog hit the 'Delete' key on my homework."

If Kennedy's mad, it's not all bad

What's the matter with this picture? Ted Kennedy denounces the Senate welfare reform bill as "legislative child abuse," yet 35 Democrats vote for the bill anyway, and the White House drops hints that the bill - unless toughened by the House - might be blessed with a presidential autograph.

A welfare bill acceptable to Joe Biden, Tom Daschle, the two Barbaras (Boxer and Mikulski), and Chris Dodd - why would conservatives look twice at such a bill? Because it won the votes also of Phil Gramm, Jesse Helms and Strom Thurmond? Could be.

These aren't your conventional lines of division - nor, on an 87-12 vote, can it be said there is division of any obvious kind. What there seems to be is consensus that the time has come to end "welfare as we know it," with the money turned over to the states to spend with varying restrictions.

The House's argument with the Senate is that the restrictions are too tight: For instance, aid to unwed teenage mothers should be cut off. Both houses nonetheless agree that it's time to let the states experiment with ways to reduce the welfare rolls. This qualifies as a remarkable development. Who'da thunk it?

Will the House now insist on its tougher version or acquiesce in the Senate version? Or strike a compromise between the two positions? Durned if I know, said the non-Washington non-insider, cheerfully.

What seems clear, through a provincial periscope, is that events and momentum are headed our way for a change. The pendulum is swinging. When the details of the two bills are weighed, assessed, debated and fussed over, one detail stands out: Hardly anyone but Ted Kennedy and Carol Moseley-Braun believes the top-heavy federal approach on welfare to be other than a snare and a delusion.

Let's try a little historical perspective. Throughout most of American history, private charities, with limited help from local government, handled relief to the afflicted. This ended with the New Deal, when welfare, like so much else, became a federal matter. Supposedly, the idea was that the federal government, with its power and fundraising skills, could do the job better than anyone else.

This view persisted until it became plain to anyone with eyes, and whose name wasn't Kennedy, that the federal government was doing the job worse than it had ever been done before. Government welfare spending soared by 750% from 1960 to 1990. Illegitimacy and dependency proliferated, and the poverty rate hardly budged. What's the answer? Go back, more or less, to a system in which local people, rather than a remote bureaucracy, address the problem. The "mores" and the "leases" are the principal points of division between House and Senate; the general direction, remarkably enough, is not in dispute.

The Senate bill sets a devolutionary course that, if the bill becomes law, would be hard to reverse. The newly empowered states would not lightly surrender their authority to run programs they are better qualified than the national government to run.

On the federal principle, likewise, it is possible to wonder how much it matters whether Congress outlaws payments to unwed teenage mothers. How many states are going to defy resentful taxpayers and go on subsidizing illegitimacy? Equally to the point, why shouldn't the states be allowed to experiment with different approaches to the problem?

There is an awkwardness in decentralization that hasn't been remarked on, to my knowledge. If the states are going to run welfare, why shouldn't they fund it, too, using monies Washington could free up by abolishing its own programs?

We all know the answer: The welfare lobby regards state legislators and officials as heartless morons. But why, please, should anyone believe the welfare lobby, given the hash its favored policies have made of a decentralized system that worked tolerably well for decades?

The federal welfare system should be totally abolished, and the site, like that of ancient Carthage, sowed with salt. One thing at a time, though. Meaning: If Kennedy's mad, it can't be all bad.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, Oct. 4, the 277th day of 1995. There are 88 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: One hundred years ago, on Oct. 4, 1895, silent film comedian Buster Keaton, known as "The Great Stone Face" for his deadpan delivery, was born in Piqua, Kan.

On this date: In 1777, George Washington's troops launched an assault on the British at Germantown, Pa., resulting in heavy American casualties.

In 1895, 100 years ago, the first U.S. Open golf tournament was held, at the Newport Country Club in Rhode Island.

In 1931, the comic strip "Dick Tracy," created by Chester Gould, made its debut.

In 1940, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini conferred at Brenner Pass in the Alps, where the Nazi leader sought Italy's help in fighting the British.

In 1957, the Space Age began as the Soviet Union launched Sputnik, the first manmade satellite, into orbit.

Conservatives' problem with Powell

I recently predicted in this space, on the basis of Colin Powell's utterances to date, that the conservative movement will decline to endorse or accept him as a candidate for president. The conservatives have come too far, and accomplished too much, to turn the White House over voluntarily to a man whose proclaimed views are, by his own implicit admission, those of a "Rockefeller Republican."

But, assuming Powell runs, either for the Republican nomination or as an independent, conservatives are going to have to cope with his candidacy, so they had better make sure they understand its appeal.

What is Colin Powell's attraction (to which all the polls attest)? It is not, I think, his views on political issues. Insofar as we know them, they are designed (or just accidentally turn out) to appeal, at least vaguely, to a wide spectrum of the electorate. This no doubt reassures a lot of voters, it but stops short of setting their pulses to pounding. It disarms them, but doesn't quite add up to a sufficient reason for voting for him.

His record, then? Gen. Powell has had a distinguished military career, and is associated in the public mind with the overwhelmingly successful Gulf War, but his record doesn't come up to the knees of, say, Eisenhower's in 1952.

How about his color? My own guess is that Powell's particular non-threatening racial mixture is, on balance, a distinct advantage. Most Americans would not be afraid to see him in the

William Rusher

Oval Office, and would welcome a chance to prove it by voting for him, all else being equal. But I doubt that many white voters would vote for him (as many voted for black mayoral candidates in various cities in recent years) purely on the theory that his race would somehow, in and of itself, ease the racial tensions that are now tormenting the country.

My personal knowledge of Gen. Powell is based on one lengthy dinner table conversation and his subsequent speech. I reported enthusiastically on the latter in this space, and since then - like everyone else - have watched him carefully on television. My conclusion is that his enormous appeal is based largely on his personality. He comes close to being Ronald Reagan all over again, minus Reagan's conservative beliefs and his Irish wit.

Does that sound like a minor qualification for the presidency? On the contrary, it is absolutely priceless.

I don't want to minimize the qualifications of the other presidential candidates, from Clinton all the way to Dole and Dornan, but it is fair to say that all of them seem, in one way or another, to be "driven men" - or, to borrow a phrase from an earlier time, nervous wrecks: consumed by lust or ambition or intellectual arrogance or some other equally steamy quality. By contrast, Colin Powell - no doubt in part because he has spent his life in the orderly embrace of the military - comes across as a relaxed, knowledgeable, sensible, good-humored, upstanding, well-balanced and patriotic man.

Do you realize how rare that combination of qualities is - not merely among presidential candidates but even among average joes? You could fire a cannon down Broadway and not hit a single person who has all of them. The American people long, quite understandably, for such a leader. That is why they twice elected Eisenhower, and later (perhaps even more than for his beliefs) Ronald Reagan. We must recognize that they are quite capable of doing it again, regardless of their hero's views, unless these are dangerously extreme (and Gen. Powell's, you will note, are not).

Of course, there would still be Speaker Gingrich and that fractious Congress, and there is much to suggest that Congress is gaining a durable ascendancy over the presidency. We conservatives had better pray that this is true.

Could Malcolm Forbes be a Wilkie?

Before you say "It can't be done," remember what Wendell Wilkie did in 1940. He was 48 years old, a businessman who had never run for elected office and was almost unknown to the American public. He won the Republican nomination for president. He also played a vital role in moving the GOP from isolationism to internationalism.

Wilkie showed that when the candidate has a serious idea, the act of running for president can create the world's most powerful pulpit, even if that candidate comes from outside the political ranks. In our age of media, that political pulpit for non-politicians has become more powerful yet. Consider Jesse Jackson, Pat Robertson, Ross Perot, Pat Buchanan and quite possibly, uh, what's-his-name, the fellow on all the magazine covers, who beats Clinton in the polls by 10 points - Powell.

Which leads us to Malcolm "Steve" Forbes Jr., who has recently announced that he will seek the Republican nomination for the presidency. Like Wilkie, he is a 48-year-old businessman who has never run for elected office, and is largely unknown to the public. He is very rich, and since he has announced, he has been casually referred to as "Richie Rich" and a "polo populist." Forget it. Anyone who thinks that this is a quixotic effort by a self-funding rich guy on an ego trip is dead wrong.

I've known Steve Forbes since 1985 when he became chairman of the board of Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty, a mostly unsung but important weapon in America's Cold War arsenal. I was then the vice chairman of that citizen board. At its peak, "the Radios" broadcast honest news and an array of opinions in 18 languages within the Soviet Union and into five satellite nations in Eastern Europe, keeping hope alive behind the Iron Curtain.

During the eight years of Forbes' chairmanship, the Radios were under attack. The first wave came from the Soviets and from feuding anti-communist exiles who sometimes couldn't figure out who they hated more, the Soviets or each other. The second wave came from congressional and executive branch opponents, and from competing government broadcast bureaucracies. Providing direction, funding and morale for such an embattled operation took time and skill. Forbes gave both unstintingly with quiet strength, seeking no personal aggrandizement. "Mr. Forbes is in Washington," was the secretarial response so many of us got so often from his New York office.

During much of this time, he was president and CEO of Forbes, Inc. and editor in chief of Forbes magazine, the flagship publication of a highly profitable and burgeoning publishing empire that carries more advertising pages than any other American magazine, and was (appropriately) ranked in 1994 by Advertising Age as one of "America's five best magazines."

Forbes magazine has a point of view, and it is most apparent in Steve's engaging, award-winning and often prescient column. He was an early proponent of the much-maligned "supply-side economics." So was Jack Kemp. When Kemp decided not to run this year, someone had to carry the banner of conservative economic optimism.

As Forbes uses the running-for-president podium in the months to come, we should hear him say that supply-side deals with more than cutting taxes, and that it wasn't the cause of the Reagan era deficits. Forbes put forth his theme in his announcement statement: "It's time to remove the dead weight of Washington, and let the economy run free." Forbes endorses sound money, which means "a return of the value of the dollar to a fixed measure, such as gold, so that a dollar today will be worth a dollar tomorrow." That, he says, would reduce home mortgage rates to 4-1/2% and free families from being "a slave to their mortgages."

Forbes believes that we can get a monumental non-inflationary economic boom. In turn, that can help resolve the family values issues that plague us because "at their most fundamental, values and economics are not separate issues - they are the same issue."

Forbes is a serious man with a serious idea. So was Wilkie.

Pampa youth attends National Young Leaders Conference

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Ann Carmichael of Pampa has been selected to attend The National Young Leaders Conference Oct. 17 through Oct. 22, in Washington, D.C.

The conference is a unique leadership development program for high school students who have demonstrated leadership potential and scholastic merit. Carmichael, a junior at Pampa High School, will be among 350 National Scholars attending the conference from across America.

The theme of the National Young Leaders Conference is "The Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting the Leaders of Today." Throughout the six-day event, Carmichael will interact with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the diplomatic corps.

Highlights of the program include welcoming remarks from the floor of the United States House of Representatives and a panel discussion with prominent journalists at the National Press Club. Scholars will visit foreign embassies and receive policy briefings from senior government officials. Carmichael may also meet with Sen. Phil Gramm, Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, Rep. William "Mac" Thornberry or an appointed member of their staff to discuss important issues facing Pampa and the nation.

To complement these special meetings and briefings, she will participate in a number of leadership skill building activities. In one such activity, "If I Were President," students role play the President, members of the cabinet and representatives from Capitol Hill who must respond to an international crisis involving North Korea. Culminating the conference is the "Mock Congress," in which Scholars assume the roles of United States Representatives by debating, amending and voting on proposed legislation on crime.

The conference is sponsored by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council, a non-profit, non partisan educational organization. Founded in 1985, the Council is committed to "fostering and inspiring young people to achieve their full leadership potential." Over 300 members of the United States Congress join this commitment as members of the Council's Honorary Congressional Board of Advisors. Each year, only 7,000 outstanding youth nationwide may participate in the 20 sessions of the National Young Leaders Conference.

"The conference provides the opportunity for students, like Ann, to distinguish themselves as tomorrow's leaders," said John Hines, Council Executive Director. "Scholars not only gain knowledge and experience in the nation's capital, they leave with a sense of accomplishment and an increased ability to face the challenges of the future."

Archaeologists find ancient river campsites

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Archaeologists have discovered evidence of ancient campsites dating as far back as 4000 B.C. along the San Antonio River behind a natural history museum.

University of Texas at Austin archaeologists are conducting a dig behind the Witte Museum in advance of a building expansion. "This was just an ideal camping area. ... It appears they kept coming back because the site was so ideal," Frances Meskill, co-director of the excavation, said.

With its plentiful fish and muskels and life-sustaining water, the San Antonio River was a constant draw for hunter-gatherer clans who lived in the area between 4000 B.C. and 2000 B.C., researchers say.

Families apparently lived a nomadic life, surviving on hunted animals and the edible plants, nuts and fruits that abound by the river's banks.

Leslie Shaw, a UT archaeologist also directing the excavation, said the early campers probably visited the river site seasonally, though researchers still aren't sure.

Eight archaeologists and students, working under the auspices of the Texas Archaeological Research Laboratory at the university, painstakingly are excavating soil 3 to 4 feet below the surface not far from the river.

They have uncovered hearthstones and shell and bone fragments that give clues about the human, plant and animal life of the era.

Fifty years ago, the site beside the river was filled and leveled and a parking lot was built. Now the museum plans to use the land for a science-education center. Groundbreaking is Oct. 14.

Preliminary excavations indicated the site contained cultural artifacts, prompting the museum to commission a more extensive study.

Hurricane Opal takes aim at northeast Gulf Coast

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) - Hurricane Opal, packing deadly 135 mph winds and heavy rains, today took aim at the northeast Gulf Coast, a region still mopping up and emotionally weary from Hurricane Erin two months ago.

The storm was upgraded to a Category 4 hurricane early today, proving true the predictions of forecasters who expected it to gain strength as it neared the Gulf Coast.

"This is a large storm, very dangerous," Harold Joyner of the state Emergency Operations Center said this morning.

Early today, Pensacola was the most likely target for Opal's eye.

"Of course, we've had two hurricanes in the Panhandle already this year, but this one is certainly the biggest of them all," Joyner said. "So if people thought they had problems in those storms, multiply that two or three times."

Two months ago today, Hurricane Erin lashed Pensacola, followed weeks later by Tropical Storm Jerry. And the first of this busy season's hurricanes, Allison, doused the area in June.

"By far this is the biggest storm this year for Florida," Joe Myers, state director of the Division of Emergency Management, said late Tuesday. "It's the biggest storm for Florida since Hurricane Andrew."

Andrew, also a Category 4, struck with sustained wind of almost 150 mph, and gusts to 200 mph, on Aug. 24, 1992. It killed 55 people in Florida and elsewhere.

Storms become Category 5, the top rank on the hurricane-measuring Saffir-Simpson scale, when their winds hit 155 mph or above.

At 7 a.m. EDT, Opal's center was about 150 miles south-southeast of the mouth of the Mississippi River, moving north at 18 mph.

The ninth hurricane of the Atlantic-Ocean tropical storm season, Opal threatened to upset plans to send space shuttle Columbia on a long science mission. NASA's forecasters expect only a 30 percent chance of favorable conditions for the 9:40 a.m. Thursday launch because of rain and clouds associated with the hurricane.

Residents already weary of the busy hurricane season embarked on what has become the routine practice of boarding up their homes. At least one resort left until today preparations that would seem to the outsider a bit bizarre.

"Our major preparations will begin at daylight," Teresa Hires, night audit manager at the Marriott Bay Point Resort in Panama City Beach, said early today. "We'll submerge our pool furniture, board up windows."

County officials ordered Pensacola Beach, Perdido Key and low-lying areas of Pensacola evacuated Tuesday night. Other neighboring counties either asked for voluntary evacuation or planned to order residents to leave today. State offices were closed in coastal areas, and Escambia County schools were closed today.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami feared intensive coverage of the O.J. Simpson verdict in Los Angeles had deflected attention from the hurricane.

"We don't even have a reporter here covering this tonight," said James Lewis Free, a research assistant. "And this storm is an imminent threat."

Hurricane specialist Miles Lawrence was concerned about those who may be observing today's Jewish holiday.

Tough neighborhood seeks solace in Pope's visit

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - Gazing up at the cathedral on a hill above his drug-plagued neighborhood, Carlos Zhaghay of Ecuador thought about the last time he saw the pope, in 1985, just before he headed north in pursuit of his American dream.

"Something very beautiful entered into me then that I haven't felt here at all," Zhaghay said.

John Paul II arrives in Newark today for his five-day U.S. visit that will include services at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, Central Park and the Aqueduct Racetrack in New York, and at Camden Yards in Baltimore. He is scheduled to deliver an address on Thursday to the United Nations.

"He'll be preaching for peace, for the homeless and the poor," said Frances Downing, who lives in Zhaghay's neighborhood.

After an address at the airport, the pope will travel to Newark's Sacred Heart church, a magnificent Gothic cathedral that stands taller than Notre Dame in Paris and is larger than St. Patrick's in New York.

Eating lean could mean big difference with cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Eating lean could become a key part of treating prostate cancer if clinical studies confirm laboratory findings that a low-fat diet cuts the rate of tumor growth by at least half.

A study published today in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute showed that human prostate cancer tumors in mice fed low-fat food grew at a markedly slower rate than did tumors in mice fed a diet enriched with the fat levels typically consumed by American men.

"What we found was astonishing to us," said Dr. William R. Fair, a member of a research team at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York. "Tumors didn't disappear, but the decrease in growth was really impressive."

New School but Old Battle For Boy Teased in Class

DEAR ABBY: We really need your help. My son, "Mike," is in sixth grade. Ever since he was a second-grader, he has been the one in class who is teased and ostracized.

We had hoped that starting middle school this year would provide a new beginning for him, but after only a few weeks, the teasing has resumed and become worse. What used to be a struggle every morning to get him to go to school has become almost impossible.

We are searching for a solution. We could put Mike in another new school, but I'm worried that there is something in his behavior that will isolate him again. We've considered private school, where there is better supervision; however, it would create a heavy financial burden.

Our son is miserable. What has helped others in this position? Please tell us what to do.

would please level with you about why their children dislike him. Take that information to a professional counselor who specializes in children his age (your physician can refer you). Explain your concerns and arrange therapy for your son to help him regain his self-esteem.

Readers: If you have faced this problem, what worked for your child?

Well, Janet chose to ignore both requests and invited Shirley anyway, saying, "She's still my friend, and besides, I'm paying for everything."

Earl was mad and attended the church ceremony only, because he didn't want to go to the reception alone. Shirley skipped the reception, too.

Abby, should Shirley have been invited to the wedding? And do most families include ex-spouses in such social events?

THE OTHER BROTHER IN KINGSLAND, GA.

DEAR OTHER BROTHER: Many do. Whether ex-spouses are included would depend on their relationship with the family. However, since the bride requested that Shirley not be included — and it's the bride's special day — Shirley should have been dropped from the guest list.

Since she wasn't, Earl and Shirley could have been invited to bring escorts if they wished; in which case, they should have been seated as far apart as possible.

DEAR WORRIED MOM: Since changing from grammar school to middle school failed to provide relief for your son, don't rush to change to another school. There must be a reason for his continuing problem.

Talk to his teachers. Have they observed anything that might be causing his problem? Then contact the parents of the children who tease and ostracize your son and ask if they

DEAR ABBY: My brother and sister ("Earl" and "Janet") argue about this every time they get together. They have agreed the issue will be put to rest with your answer.

When Janet's daughter, "Lisa," got married, Earl asked that "Shirley," his ex-wife, not be invited to the wedding. Lisa agreed to exclude Shirley because Lisa feels closer to her Uncle Earl.

GOLF

PAMPA — Modern Woodmen of America sponsored a benefit four-man golf scramble last weekend at Hidden Hills.

Proceeds went into the construction fund for the new Clarendon College-Pampa Center campus.

Members of a local steering committee and school administrators announced last April they were starting a building campaign to raise $4.9 million for the new facility, which will be located on the south side of West Kentucky. The current college campus is located at 900 N. Frost.

Results of the four-man scramble are listed below:

First place: 66, Morris Driver, Ralph Wilson, Mark Epperson and Buddy Epperson.

Second place: 67, James White, Travis Taylor, Wayne Jones and Dr. Robert Lyle.

Closest to the pin: James White, No. 6; James White, No. 15.

FOOTBALL

WACO, Texas (AP) — Baylor coach Chuck Reedy knew from the recruiting war over Jerod Douglas that the running back was something special.

But even now that Douglas is wearing green and gold for the Bears, Reedy continues to be amazed.

The latest installment of Douglas highlights came last Saturday in Baylor's 9-7 victory against Texas Tech.

Douglas helped set up three field goals by Jarvis Van Dyke by returning the opening kickoff 76 yards and twisting and turning for 157 yards on 25 carries against a stingy Texas Tech defense.

He had long runs of 38, 32 and 22 yards and repeatedly found daylight when holes appeared closed. A 46-yard touchdown run was nullified by an illegal procedure penalty.

For his effort, Douglas has been named The Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week.

Southern Methodist cornerback Cornell Parker, who had three interceptions in the Mustangs' 35-10 loss to Texas, has been named the AP's SWC Defensive Player of the Week.

PAMPA — Pampa defeated Canyon, 8-0, in a 7th grade football game Tuesday.

Pampa's winning touchdown was a 70-yard run by Terrance Lemons. Tony Beck ran the conversion.

Canyon won the B team game, 22-6. Aaron Childress scored Pampa's touchdown on a 4-yard run.

In the 8th grade division, Canyon won, 14-8. Javier Cruz scored for Pampa on a 12-yard run. The conversion was good on a pass from Justin Barnes to Justin Trollinger.

Gil Solano scored on a 12-yard run in Pampa's 12-6 loss to Canyon in the B game.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — The crowd came ready to cheer, and Don Mattingly, David Cone and the New York Yankees had them letting loose all night long.

In the first year of baseball's expanded playoffs, the Yankees became the first wild-card team to win. They offset two home runs by Ken Griffey Jr. with big hits by Mattingly, Bernie Williams, Wade Boggs and Ruben Sierra, beating the Seattle Mariners 9-6 Tuesday night in their AL playoff opener.

The crowd of 57,178 was the largest at Yankee Stadium since it was remodeled for the 1976 season. Standing and stomping for most every batter, the fans welcomed post-season play back to the ballpark for the first time since 1981.

"I can honestly say it was the most amazing crowd I've ever seen," Cone, the winning pitcher, said. "They were chanting on every pitch. It was very similar to my experience at Shea in 1988."

Rockies run out of players in loss to Braves

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Rockies, in the first postseason game of their three-year existence, fared well against Greg Maddux, then broke a basic rule: Don't run out of players.

Chipper Jones beat the Rockies with his bat and glove, hitting a pair of solo homers — including the tiebreaker in the ninth — and making a key defensive stop to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 5-4 victory Tuesday night.

Game 2 is scheduled tonight, with Tom Glavine going against Lance Painter.

Painter got a premature taste of playoff action Tuesday night when he made a pinch-hitting appearance when the Rockies ran out of position players. With the bases loaded and two outs in the ninth, Painter struck out against the Braves' hard-throwing closer, Mark Wohlers.

Rockies manager Don Baylor, in his third year as manager, said it was the first time he was forced to resort to using a pitcher in such a situation.

"Painter is a fairly decent hitter," Baylor said. "But I know when I pinch-hit for my catcher (in the seventh), I'm asking for trouble later. That wasn't the ballgame, though. Having chances in the seventh, eighth and ninth and not doing it — that was the game." Atlanta manager Bobby Cox said he has been in similar situations himself.

"It happens," he said. "You try to do everything you can to win, and that's what Don did. If you run out of players, you run out. I've run out. It's better to throw it out there if you have a chance to win."

Baylor got in trouble in the seventh, using a pinch-runner and two pinch-hitters in an effort to create a big inning. Instead, with the bases loaded and one out, Maddux got John Vander Wal, who set a major-league record this season with 28 pinch hits, to hit a double-play grounder back to the mound.

Maddux, 19-2 with a 1.63 ERA this season, wasn't at his best. The three-time Cy Young award winner allowed nine hits and three runs in seven innings.

But he was artful in escaping predicaments, thanks to 14 groundouts, including four double plays.

Jones' second solo homer — a two-out shot off Curtis Leskanic — won it for Atlanta. In the eighth, with runners on first and third, Jones made a diving stop of Andres Galarraga's shot down the third-base line and threw out a runner at second. Instead of a big inning, the Rockies managed only one run.

"The play Jones made down the line was probably the game-winner for them," Baylor said. "That's a two-run double if he doesn't make the play. Then he hits the game-winning home run."

Jones said his stop was "just a reaction play. Andres has a tendency to hit some balls down the third-base line for doubles. I saw it was an off-speed pitch and was sort of leaning that way. The only way I'm going to make that play is to lay out. If it sticks, hopefully we get an out. If it doesn't, they probably have a big inning. Luckily, it stuck."

Jones hit an inside fastball for the decisive homer, then hopped around the bases in jubilation.

"I was looking for a certain pitch and got that exact pitch," he said. "It was a tremendous thrill. In a big situation, with the game on the line in the ninth, it was probably my biggest career highlight."

After the game, Jones iced his left knee, which he tweaked on his defensive play.

Asked if he still considered Jones to be a rookie, Cox said, "I think of Chipper Jones as a rookie of the year."

The Braves had to sweat out the victory when the Rockies loaded the bases with one out in the bottom of the ninth.

Wohlers retired the first batter, then gave up singles to Mike Kingery and Dante Bichette. Larry Walker walked to fill the bases, then fanned Galarraga.

With the pitcher due up, Baylor, who had played all five of his substitutes, was forced to pinch-hit Painter, and he struck out as well.

Jones also homered in the sixth, starting a rally that produced a 3-3 tie.

Dwight Smith's two-out, pinch-hit single in the eighth gave the Braves a 4-3 lead, but Colorado countered on Ellis Burks' RBI double in their half.

Colorado's Kevin Ritz nursed a 3-1 lead into the sixth, when the Braves scored twice to tie.

Vinny Castilla, a former Braves prospect, hit a two-run homer for the Rockies, while Marquis Grissom had a solo homer for the Braves.

"That was a nerve-wracking game, a heck of a playoff game," Cox said. "They could have won it as easily as we did. I'd be lying if I said winning the first game is not important."

Both teams turned in superb plays in the fifth. Maddux's grounder to third took a bad hop off Castilla's forearm, but shortstop Walt Weiss grabbed the carom and threw out Maddux. In the Rockies' half, shortstop Jeff Blauser ranged far behind second base, speared Joe Girardi's grounder and flipped to second, starting a double play.

Pampa's Derahian Evans heads down the sideline on an 86-yard kickoff return against Andrews last week. Going into Pampa's district opener Friday night against Canyon, Evans has scored seven touchdowns and rushed for 209 yards.

Pampa has Cowan concerned

PAMPA — Canyon head coach Doug Cowan has been keeping a keen eye on Pampa's progress since the football season first kicked off. From Cowan's perspective, he hasn't liked what he's seen.

"Defensively, Pampa has been extremely strong since the season started. They started off slow on offense, but now they look strong in all phases of the game," Cowan said.

Cowan's Eagles will get a closeup look at the Harvesters when the two teams meet at 7:30 Friday night in a District 1-4A opener in Harvester Stadium. It will also be Pampa's homecoming game.

Pampa at 3-1 has won its last two games. Canyon at 2-2 is coming off a 34-0 loss to Littlefield.

Cowan was right on target about Pampa coming on strong offensively. Pampa's team scoring average has doubled (from 10 points to 20.3 ppg) the last two games after rolling past Plainview, 29-0, and Andrews, 34-6.

"Pampa looks real solid to me," Cowan said. "They've probably got one of the best teams they've had in a long time."

The Harvesters have developed a solid running attack behind senior tailbacks Derahian Evans and Matt Archibald. Evans has rushed for 209 yards and is second among district backs in rushing touchdowns with 6. Archibald is the fourth leading rusher in district with 260 yards.

Pampa blockers opened up big holes all night long in Pampa's rout of Andrews last Friday night while giving quarterback Clint Curtis time to throw for 142 yards and two touchdowns. Senior tackle Josh Starnes, senior guard Jesse Silva and junior end Devin Lemons stood out up front for their blocking.

Pampa's defense leads the district in yards allowed per game at 135. Senior linebacker Floyd White is the district's fourth leading tackler with 47 combined individual-assists. Senior tackle Donnie Middleton is second on the team with 35 tackles while Lemons and senior weakside linebacker Brian Phelps each have 33.

Cowboys preparing for two battles

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer

IRVING (AP) — Two battles, one facing the Dallas Cowboys in the courtroom and another on the field, are keeping owner Jerry Jones and coach Barry Switzer busy in their respective roles.

The coach and his staff Tuesday were trying to determine a way to crack Green Bay's staunch defensive front without star quarterback Troy Aikman, who suffered a strained right calf in Sunday's 27-23 loss at Washington.

Jones left later in the day for a meeting with NFL officials at an undisclosed place and time to continue discussions concerning the league's $300 million lawsuit against the club.

Jones said the league got its first glimpse at the actual deals he has fashioned between Texas Stadium and sponsors such as Nike, Pepsi-Cola and Dr Pepper after meetings last week.

The team owner has maintained communications with other owners and the NFL throughout the week-end.

But Jones said the federal lawsuit has not impeded negotiations between him and other potential sponsors, such as American Express.

"I think there's some potential for positive results (from the meeting) as opposed to going full bore into heavy countersuits and heavy litigation," Jones said as his Nike logo lapel pin glistened in the camera lights.

"I think there's enough to be gained to make me spend the energy and travel time to have the meeting," he said.

Jones said the four-hour session involving him and a group of owners last week was "constructive," but nothing positive came of it.

He also said he believes the $35 million contract of cornerback Deion Sanders, who is recovering from ankle surgery, will be approved by the league without any alterations.

Switzer and his staff, meanwhile, must draw up his game plan for Sunday's matchup against the Packers without Sanders or Aikman against the league's No. 1 defensive unit.

"It's scary to look at them and see how physical and strong and talented they are," he said. "To have dominated them the way we did in the playoff game (35-9) and to look at what they've accomplished this year, statistically it's not the same football team, but it is. It's the same players."

Green Bay is yielding just 230 yards per game, including 84.5 on the ground. The Cowboys will counter with NFL rushing leader Emmitt Smith and his 127.6 yards-per-game average.

"Statistics mean something now," Switzer of the defensive-minded Packers, who will come off of a bye week, said. "We've got a great challenge ahead of us."

Veteran Wade Wilson will start in place of Aikman, who hopes to be ready the following Sunday at San Diego. Backing up Wilson will be Jason Garrett, who started the Cowboys' 42-31 victory over Packers last Thanksgiving.

"You still have to deal with Michael Irvin, their offensive line, Jay Novacek and of course Emmitt Smith. You're playing the same crew all the time," said Green Bay coach Mike Holmgren.

White Deer takes on Class 2A Memphis

WHITE DEER — Class 1A White Deer is getting a heavy dose of 2A competition the first half of the 1995 football season.

Three of the four teams the winless Bucks have played so far have been Class 2A schools.

Last weekend, White Deer dropped a 59-6 decision to 2A Clarendon. This Friday night the Bucks tangle with Memphis, another 2A school. Gametime is 7:30 p.m. at Memphis. The Cyclones are 2-2 after beating Wheeler, 13-3, last Friday night.

"Memphis is younger than they were last year," said White Deer head coach Ralph Samaniego. "They're a lot like us in that they're not as big as they were last year. They do have some quickness on the line."

Against Clarendon, the Bucks got a strong individual performance from Ricky Captain, who rushed for 129 yards on 23 carries. After four games, Captain is averaging 5.8 yards per carry to lead White Deer's ground attack.

Lorenzo Moore led Clarendon with 229 yards on carries and four touchdowns. Ebony Carter added 197 yards and two touchdowns.

White Deer's touchdown came in the fourth quarter on a 12-yard pass from Torey Craig to Nick Knocke.

The Bucks may be just about ready for the District 1-1A opener is Oct. 13 at Shamrock. "The way we've been playing, maybe a change will help," added Samaniego.

The Bucks' district home opener is Oct. 27 with Wheeler. It will also be Parents' Night.

Indians turn back Sox

CLEVELAND (AP) — At exactly 2:08 a.m. local time today, Tony Pena hit one of those home runs that should have been heard 'round the world.

And even if most of the country was sound asleep at the time, Pena will cherish it forever.

"You never know when you'll have a moment like that," Pena said after his home run with two outs in the 13th inning ended the longest game in postseason history, giving the Cleveland Indians a 5-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

It was an incredible finish to the Indians' first postseason game in 41 years, a game that summed up all the drama they'd offered their fans with 27 victories in their last at-bat this year.

Pena, who had entered the game in the 11th inning, raised his arms in triumph when he realized his hit off Zane Smith had cleared the railing of the bleachers in left. He was mobbed by his teammates after he crossed the plate.

"They haven't hugged me like that the whole year," said Pena, a former Boston catcher (1990-93) who homered only five times this season. "Tonight was my time."

The game lasted five hours and one minute, not counting two rain delays that extended it by about an hour. The Mets and Astros played a 16-inning game in the 1986 playoffs, but it didn't take them as long.

The Red Sox added some intrigue by having Albert Belle's bat confiscated after he homered in the 11th inning. Belle, who was suspended for seven games last year for using a corked bat in Chicago, was cleared this time by American League officials who cut his bat in half and found it to be clean.

"We had some suspicions," Boston manager Kevin Kennedy said. "We had some information given to us. It was our right to check it, and we did."

Belle led the majors with 50 home runs this year, and he didn't take the accusation kindly. He pointed to his biceps muscle, indicating that he's plenty strong enough to hit home runs, and shouted angrily toward the Boston dugout.

"It's just a desperate effort to throw a monkey wrench in our season," he said later. "You hit 50 home runs and they think you use a corked bat. I don't need to use corked bats. I take pride in how strong I am, how much power I generate."

All four of Boston's runs came on home runs. John Valentin hit a two-run shot off Dennis Martinez in the third inning, and Luis Alica led off the eighth with a home run off Julian Tavarez, sending the game to extra innings tied at 3.

Tim Lincecum then homered off Jim Poole in the 11th, giving Boston a 4-3 lead that Belle erased with his leadoff blast off Rick Aguilera in the bottom half. Aguilera left the game because of a pulled muscle later in the 11th.

Boston left runners in scoring position in the ninth, 10th, 12th and 13th innings. Cleveland stranded runners in scoring position in the 10th, 11th and 12th.

In the 13th, Smith retired the first two batters before falling behind Pena 3-0.

"When I got behind in the count to Tony, I didn't want to walk him," Smith said. "So I came in with one. In most cases guys will be taking, but give him credit. He was aggressive and hit it out."

Boston starter Roger Clemens was sharp at first, blanking the Indians on two hits until Belle hit a two-run double in the sixth. Eddie Murray drove in Belle with a single.

Clemens lasted seven innings, allowing three runs and five hits. Martinez went six innings, giving up two runs and five hits.

Ken Hill, the last of Cleveland's seven pitchers, got the win. Boston also used seven.

The victory was the Indians' first in a postseason game since Oct. 11, 1948, 47 years ago, when they beat the Boston Braves at Boston in the clinching sixth game of the World Series. They were swept by the New York Giants in the '54 World Series, their last visit to the postseason.

Book offers tips on how to deal with breast cancer

By MELINDA MARTINEZ
Lifestyles Editor

Review

The Race Is Run One Step at a Time is a book which seeks to inform women that the battle against breast cancer starts with knowledge: knowledge about the disease and knowledge about their bodies.

This book, written by Nancy G. Brinker, founder of the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, along with Catherine McEvily Harris, gives a personal account of Brinker's own battle with breast cancer as well as the one her sister, Susan G. Komen, fought and lost.

It was through her sister's ordeal that Brinker began to learn what she could about the disease and what she could to help other women.

Throughout the book, Brinker makes it a point that education and information are the keys to dealing with breast cancer. She also informs women that their bodies belong to them first. They should know their own bodies and should be aware of treatments and options available to them. No one should ever feel guilty about seeking a second opinion.

The Race Is Run One Step at a Time gives a lists of resource guides and the latest in research and technology. The book has been updated from its last printing and will continue to be updated as new information concerning breast cancer is available.

This book also seeks to educate women about medical terms from the layman's point of view.

In letting women understand that they need to know their bodies, this book also offers a step by step chart on how a woman can check her breasts and research a mammography. Brinker also includes lists of questions patients should ask their doctor.

In part, the Susan G. Komen Foundation, named in memorial for Brinker's sister, funds research and educational efforts for women. Proceeds from the book will go towards these efforts.

This Saturday, the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation Race for the Cure will be held nationwide in various cities, including Amarillo.

The book will be available at all race sites. For more information on the race in Amarillo, call Charlotte Rhodes at (806) 359-4670.

The Race Is Run One Step at a Time is a book that can be seen as an asset to any woman of any age. Women in their twenties and thirties should, in particular, take note that breast cancer can strike a woman of any age as it did Susan G. Komen, who was 33 when she was diagnosed and 36 when she died. As Brinker points out in her book, it is never too early to start learning about breast cancer.

'Seven' number one again, 'Showgirls' plummets

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seven finished first at the box office for the second consecutive weekend while ticket sales for Showgirls plummeted in its second week of release.

Seven easily outperformed four new movies in wide release, including the critically acclaimed Devil in a Blue Dress starring Denzel Washington.

The horror sequel Halloween: The Curse of Michael Myers was the most popular of the fresh crop, netting $7.3 million.

Moonlight and Valentino did poorly in limited release while To Die For, shown at just a few theaters, delivered strong returns.

Ticket sales for Showgirls plunged 57 percent to $3.5 million in its second week of release after opening last weekend with sales of $8.1 million.

Most films slip about 35 percent in their second weekends of release. A drop of 20 percent is considered very good, while a drop of more than 50 percent is seen as a disaster.

California wildfire damages buildings, forces evacuations

INVERNESS, Calif. (AP) — One hundred families evacuated their homes and at least 40 buildings were damaged by a fast-moving wildfire at Point Reyes National Seashore.

About 350 firefighters battled the fire, which had burned at least 700 acres as of this morning. No injuries were reported.

Families early today anxiously awaited news about whether their homes were among the buildings damaged.

"I'm happy we are alive," said a teary Anna Maria Ramirez as she received the news that propane gas tanks were exploding on her street.

The blaze started Tuesday afternoon from an unattended campfire near Mount Vision, about 35 miles north of San Francisco, said Marin County fire prevention officer Chris Collins.

Collins said high, erratic winds of up to 30 mph sent the fire quickly through groves of Bishop pines that burned "like Roman candles."

The skies became calmer after dark, but strong winds were expected to return today.

State briefs

Accused killer of music star transferred to Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Yolanda Saldivar, the accused killer of Tejano music star Selena, has been transferred under heavy guard from her jail cell in Corpus Christi to Houston, where she faces trial next week.

Ms. Saldivar, 35, is charged with the March 31 shooting death of Selena Quintanilla-Perez. The shooting occurred at a Days Inn motel in Corpus Christi as Selena tried to pick up business records from Ms. Saldivar, who managed one of the singer's dress boutiques.

Ms. Saldivar came into the singer's life a few years before, when she approached Selena about organizing a fan club for the star.

The trial, expected to last two weeks, begins Monday.

She had been held in the Nueces County Jail since the shooting, but the trial was moved to Houston because a judge decided that she could not receive a fair trial in Nueces County.

County agrees to $100,000 settlement in lawsuit

AUSTIN (AP) — Travis County commissioners are willing to pay $100,000 to settle a federal lawsuit against Sheriff Terry Keel, accused of abusing his power in a high-profile investigation of a 1994 baby murder.

Former Austin attorney Nona Byington sued Keel, claiming he violated her civil rights by arresting her, searching her office and accusing her of being an accomplice in the murder of 3-month-old Brandon Baugh.

The commissioners voted unanimously Monday to accept the settlement to avoid a long, expensive court battle. They must approve a final settlement next week. The terms of the settlement included the $100,000 payout and a written apology to Ms. Byington by Keel.
