Radio Distress Call Is Reported Received from Missing Dirigible

ITALIA LIKELY FORCED DOWN ON ARCTIC ICE

Meagre Reports Badly Garbled—Location Unknown

ARCTIC HEROES OFFERING HELP

Hope of Rescue Very Small Veterans of Arctic Say

BERLIN, May 27.—(Sunday)—A report to the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung from Oslo, Norway, said that the meteorological station there had received a message from the Italia at 11:30 p. m. Saturday night via the North Norwegian radio station. The message was badly garbled, but seemed to disclose that the Italia had landed and that Nobile was asking for help. The place or the time of landing could not be deciphered.

OSLO, Norway, May 27.—(Sunday)—At 2:00 a. m. today the Oslo Aftenposten reported receipt of a dispatch from Vadsoe, saying that the Italia had called the Citta di Milano, using an improvised radio transmitter. The call was said to have come at 10:05 p. m. Saturday night, Spitzbergen time.

(By The Associated Press.)

Conquerors of the Arctic Saturday rallied to the rescue of General Umberto Nobile, and the crew of fifteen on the Italia, which has disappeared in a polar fog. More than 100 hour have elapsed since the big dirigible took the air for a round trip flight to the north pole. Her wireless gave frequent reports of the homeward flight up to early Tuesday morning. It had not been heard since.

Ronald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth, companions of General Nobile on the 1926 voyage of the dirigible Norge across the pole, volunteered their services as soon as the need for rescue work became apparent. Amundsen accepted a suggestion from the Norwegian government that he lead a searching party. In this he will have as associate, Captain Otto Sverdrup, a man deeply versed in the ways of the Arctic.

Ellsworth Offers Aid

Ellsworth cabled from New York an offer to join his former comrade in the search.

Captain George H. Wilkins, and Lieutenant Carl B. Eielson, who drove an airplane from Alaska to Spitzbergen a few weeks ago, offered to again survey the northern wastes from the air.

Captain Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen, Norwegian ace, and pend in command on the Norge, accepted a commission from his government to examine the possibilities of airplane rescue work with all possible dispatch.

The Norwegian government itself acting on an urgent appeal for aid from the Italian minister at Oslo, ordered a noted icebreaking ship to sail tomorrow for the north.

Russian soviet agencies along the Arctic from the Norwegian border to the eastern reaches of Siberia have been told by their government to be on the lookout.

Rescue Held Doubtful

The possibility that the big airship may have been wind driven toward the Siberian coast, called for this Russian activity, but that possibility also was viewed by General Nobile's fellow explorers as almost a doom. They doubted if any rescue ship or airplane could ever reach the Italia in those regions.

The framers of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which was presented to President Coolidge for the second time in two years, are shown here as they left the White House after answering the presidential summons to talk about the measure. Left is Sen. Charles L. McNary, of Oregon; right is Rep. Gilbert N. Haugen.

CIVIL DOCKET OF 84TH HAS 157 CASES AWAITING TRIAL

Of 78 New Suits, One Is County Seat Removal Election Contest Filed by McLean Interests.

Seventy-eight civil cases have been filed in the 84th district court since the last term. Counting suits continued at the last term of court, a total of 157 civil cases are on the docket of the court to convene here June 11 with Judge Newton P. Willis presiding.

There also are 25 criminal cases or the docket. Included in the cases filed is a petition from McLean declaring the recent court house removal election illegal. The case will probably be the first tried in the temporary court house since the removal to Pampa March 9. McLean men are contesting the election, though the majority for removal was more than 900 votes.

Night Rodeo to Be Unique Part of Big Program

Flooded with powerful search lights, the rodeo grounds will be the scene of two night performances during the American Legion rodeo here June 1, 2, and 3. The Southwestern Public Service company has strung light to the grounds and a white way will lead out to the Miami road to the location.

The night performances will be Friday and Saturday and will feature bronc riding, roping, bulldogging and everything that could be seen in an arena. A large grand stand has been completed and parking spaces for more than 200 automobiles overlooking the arena have been made. These can be reserved with George Shuffield at the Quaker Drug store.

Earl Mundy of Springfield, Colo., is the latest arrival, and more will be here tomorrow. Mr. Shuffield had a telephone call from Laramie, Wyo., Thursday stating that 25 of the state's best would be in Pampa for the rodeo. Two well known cowgirls are in the city ready for the event, but prefer not to divulge their names yet.

The contestants here are practicing every afternoon. Yesterday afternoon one of the ropers dropped a goat in 9 seconds.

Efforts are being made to have a horse race as an added attraction. George Shuffield has a mare, Betty from Mary Malone, the fastest mare ever sent out of the state to be one of the entries. Tommie Douglass and his trick mules will be here early this week and accommodations have been made for a party of fifty.

The bucking Ford and Mr. Shuffield's dog and monkey jockey will make trips to Amarillo, Borger, Canadian, Wheeler, and all the nearby towns this week advertising the first rodeo.

Miss Rowen Upham of Panhandle is spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johns.

Gray County Suffers Heavy Production Loss as Decline Continues

Carson and Hutchinson Follow Closely—Panhandle Total for the Week Is Only 64,347 Barrels.

Gray county lead the continued to-boggan of oil production in the six Panhandle counties this week but was closely followed by Carson and Hutchinson counties. The reason for the continued slump cannot be discovered as completions are reported each week. During the last two months the daily average production slump of the Panhandle has been more than 8,000 barrels.

The decrease this week was 1,987 barrels over that of last week. The total production for the week was 64,347 barrels.

Production by counties this week: Carson, 167 wells, 6,538 barrels. Gray, 222 wells, 17,625 barrels. Hutchinson, 1,017 wells, 38,727 barrels. Moore, 3 wells, 201 barrels. Potter, 1 well, 25 barrels. Wheeler, 39 wells, 1,028 barrels. Total production 64,347 barrels or a loss of 1,980 barrels over last week.

Sun Oil Has 800-Barrel Well in McGee Pool

Swabbing 800 barrels a day from granite wash and unable to lower pay below 300 feet, a Sun Oil company's test has the makings of a big well in the McGee Pool. The well is in section 94, block B-2, on the Mrs. A. Davidson lease and is an offset to the Phillips wells in section 88 and 87 in the same block.

Pay is coming from 3,170 to 3,175 feet in granite wash, with not enough gas to flow the well. This pay is 100 feet below sea level.

In the central part of the county the Tobias Oil company's No. 1 Kealey in section 10, block B-2, a rank wildcat, has a show of oil at 2,800 feet and is drilling ahead in granite wash. Between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000,000 feet of gas was encountered between 2,480 and 2,505 feet.

A late report from LeFors states that the Texas company's No. 1, Mel. E. Davis in section 8, block 1, is flowing 100 barrels a day from granite wash at 2,818 feet. The well sprayed 150 barrels a day from top pay at 2,720 feet.

Oklahoma Whiskey Found by Officers Who Stopped Car

Officers of the sheriff's department late Friday night, for the second time this month, captured a car load of Oklahoma whiskey coming into Pampa. The capture Friday night netted the officers 53 half-gallon fruit jars of fresh made red whiskey, said to have been shipped in from Oklahoma for consumption in Pampa.

Two men were captured with the load of whiskey and placed in jail. They were driving a Ford touring car with the rear seat loaded to capacity with the car carried an Oklahoma license. The capture was made southeast of here.

Engineers Working on Kell Railroad Route

New developments are expected momentarily concerning the construction of the proposed Kell railroad pending the granting of a permit from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

According to W. H. Rochester, an assistant engineer of the Santa Fe, the Santa Fe has charge of the engineering and is continuing with that part of the work. Four camps have been established along the line.

Trail of Stolen Money Orders Ends In Arrests Here

Following cashing of express money orders and travelers cheques which, it is alleged, were obtained three years ago in a bank and express office robbery at Cornwell, Okla., a woman was arrested early Friday morning by members of the local sheriff's department and American Express company officers after a hectic race from LeFors, during which she attempted to escape.

An order for the arrest of a man in Fort Worth, who is alleged to have taken part in the Oklahoma bank and express office robbery, was sent to that place last night and his arrest is expected momentarily, according to local officers.

Relentless Search For Bandit Killers Still Under Way

OAKLEY, Kans., May 26.—(P)—Undaunted by the prospect of having lost their quarry, at least temporarily, hundreds of possemen, aided by airplanes surveying miles of hills and prairies of western Kans., continued a relentless search tonight for the desperadoes who raided the First National bank at Lamar, Colo., Wednesday and who have left three dead in their dash for freedom.

While more than 1,000 men were in the field in quest of the robbers, a 36-hour search over an area of more than 50 square miles tonight had failed to reveal any trace of the missing gunmen.

The fate of A. E. Kessinger, kidnaped assistant cashier of the Lamar bank, who was carried away as a hostage after the bank robbery in which the men obtained $20,000 still was as much a mystery as the whereabouts of the bandits themselves. Hope faded that he would be found alive, and the search went on under the theory that he had been slain and his body thrown out of the speeding bandit car.

Doctor Was Beaten

Indications were that Dr. W. W. Wineinger, Dighton, Kans., physician, had been severely beaten before he was slain by the robbers yesterday morning near Scott City, Kas. His body was found near his wrecked automobile. The captive's face had been battered in and he had been shot twice. Dr. Wineinger had been added to the list of the wounded of one of the robbers—shot before he and his accomplice had slain A. N. Parrish, president of the Lamar bank, and his son, John Parrish, cashier.

Various rumors bobbed up as the location of the bandits while the search continued with unabated intensity. One report was that the men were hiding in a cave on the smoky river in the Kansas bad lands; another was that they had taken possession of a farmhouse in western Kansas and were awaiting their besiegers.

Four robbers were in the band that robbed the Lamar bank, but their number was believed reduced to three through the death of their wounded comrade. One report said he had died and had been buried in a crude grave near Modoc, Kas.

Authorities discontinued the theory that the Lamar robbers were responsible for the looting of the Farmers and Merchants bank of Wynore, Neb., today where loot of $5,000 was obtained.

Rewards for the men tonight totaled more than $10,000.

The Princess

This is Miss Bonnie Jo Pool, Pampa princess to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention of June 18, 19, and 20. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Pool. Her escort will be Dr. J. C. McKean.

FORT WORTH, May 26.—Withholding the identity of the young lady whom he has chosen to be "Miss West Texas" at the Tenth Annual convention President R. W. Haynie of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce announces that the coronation ceremony for the 1928 queen will be the most spectacular yet staged in this section and in the State.

Attended by Miss East Texas, Miss South Texas, Miss New Mexico and others and surrounded by a coterie of beautiful sponsors from towns all over West Texas, Miss West Texas will be crowned by the president of the regional organization who will be garbed in his picturesque Indian robes and headdress, as Chief White Eagle of the West.

A blaze of brilliant fireworks will glow, and 150 West Texas musicians play strains of entrancing melodies as West Texas womanhood is honored. The event will be staged in the huge T. C. U. stadium on the evening of June 18, and all registered delegates to the convention will be admitted or presentation of their courtesy books others paying an admission fee.

A large number of princesses from various West Texas towns have already been selected by various chambers of commerce committees, and every mail brings announcement of additional sponsors. Fully one hundred attractive young women are expected to take part in the pageant and in the round of social events planned for their pleasure and entertainment.

Al Johnson Gets Diamond Ring at Shrine Ceremonial

Among the 1,500 Shriners representing nearly every section of the United States at the Khiva ceremonial in Amarillo Friday Pampa had the honor of drawing first place in the huge parade in the morning. The Pampa delegation, more than 100 strong, was the largest single delegation at the convention.

To Pampa also went the honor of having a candidate carry off the $500 diamond ring, emblematic of the most popular novice crossing the desert. Noble Al Johnson, manager of the Wilcox Oil and Gas company here, was presented the Khiva ring with appropriate ceremonies.

Dressed in fezzes, blue coats, white pants and carrying novelty canes and banners, the Pampa delegation put its city in front of the eyes of the thousands that lined the streets. The local shrine club is a new organization, but is recognized as the best in the Panhandle.

Fifteen Pampa novices crossed the sands. They are: V. L. Hudson, Bill Lang, Walter Davidson, J. E. Abbott, D. J. Hoover, Leon Williams, L. H. Woodruff, Mr. A. F. Johnson, P. E. Shelby, J. H. Lutz, W. E. Smith, John King, C. M. Whitmore and L. C. Bradford.

Kelso Interests Merge Public Service Properties

HAVE THREE BIG COMPANIES

Texas Utilities and New Mexico Branch Are Included

Sale of the Southwestern Public Service company was announced last night by L. L. Ferree, general manager of the firm at Amarillo, and I. R. Kelso, president of the Texas Utilities company.

The purchasers are the interests that now own the Texas Utilities company and the New Mexico Utilities company. Actual transfer of the properties will take place July 1.

This merger of the Southwestern Public Service company and the Texas Utilities company and the New Mexico Utilities company had long been anticipated by the people of this territory, who had regarded it as a logical step for these companies to take.

Experienced Utility Man Judge Kelso, whose home is in St. Louis, has been connected with the public utility industry of the Panhandle for a long time, having organized the Texas Utilities company in 1915. He has been in continuous direction of its affairs since that time. The service of Mr. Kelso and associates in the development of the South Plains is well known, and Southwestern Public Service company patrons are assured of a continuation of efficient public utility management.

Judge Kelso announced that no changes in the local management or operating personnel was contemplated as a result of the purchase, but that in due course operations of the Texas situations would be brought into harmony with those of the Texas Utilities company and the Peños Valley group of the New Mexico Utilities company, all with a view to improved service at the lowest possible rates.

To Connect Plants

He called attention to a recent announcement that plans are being made for connecting the power system of the Amarillo division of the Southwestern Public Service company and the Texas Utilities company by a high tension line extending from the new power station by way of the Amarillo lake to Canyon, thus providing for an interchange of power between the two plants. He said that these plans will be carried out, and that the properties of the Southwestern Public Service company, Texas Utilities company, and the New Mexico Utilities company will shortly be inter-connected.

MOST IMPORTANT of public questions of the week is the school bond election to be held Thursday, May 31.

There are several important facts to be kept in mind. One of these is that the bond election of more than a year ago was purposely made small, and the coming one was contemplated at that time, with the belief that instead of voting a large issue at one time it would be better to build as needs arise.

It should be kept in mind that voting the bonds would not raise taxes. Of course the schools must be paid for, but THE INDEPENDANT SCHOOL DISTRICT RANKS SEVENTH IN TEXAS IN PER CAPITA WEALTH and can afford to make this additional expenditure.

The exact sites for the building have not been determined in the election call for business reasons, and bids for good locations will be advisable to obtain good prices.

As to the gymnasium-auditorium for which it is proposed to spend $25,000 at the Central campus, that is one of the most needed structures in any school system.

Chapel exercises. Forensic productions. Indoor baseball. Gymnastics.

Drills and practices of all kinds of entertainments. Girl's athletics. Club meetings. Music studios. Public mass meetings. Sectional or group meetings. Class room use, if necessary. Indoor practice room for boy's athletics during bad weather.

By using portable seats for placing on the basketball court a very serviceable auditorium for large gatherings may be provided. Churches and schools all over the country are using this plan in connection with their gymnasiums.

Shower baths in connection with the gymnasium will be highly necessary facilities. Showers are indispensable in connection with athletics, and it is positively dangerous to do without them.

Vote for Pampa's school needs Thursday. And tell all your friends to do the same.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—More than 13 years ago the German embassy here advertised in the newspapers a warning to Americans against sailing through the war zone on British ships.

That was the beginning of the story of the Lusitania which was torpedoed six days later near Ireland with loss of 124 Americans, whose deaths proved the greatest single factor in pushing us into war with Germany.

The incident is now being closed. It was within a week or two of May 7, the thirteenth anniversary of the Lusitania catastrophe, that the airs and survivors of the American victims began to receive the $2,500,000 damages awarded them by the Mixed Claims Commission against Germany.

Most of the money has been paid and the rest will be doled out as fast as the remaining successful claimants file their applications with the treasury under provision of the War Claims Act. That act provides for immediate payment of all death and personal injury claims under $100,000.

The Mixed Claims Commission, under the umpireship of Judge Edwin B. Parker of Texas, started out with nearly 12,500 claims for an aggregate of nearly $1,500,000,000. It scaled them down to awards of about $200,000,000. With one American and one German member, plus Parker, it handled both American claims, and those of Germany for war-seized property of her nationals.

Four millions were awarded for 384 American death and personal injury claims, the greater part of this involving the Lusitania fatalities.

These Lusitania awards were made strictly on the basis of what the death of a passenger meant in financial loss to the heir.

For the death of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Hubbard the heirs received $57,500—$25,000 to Elbert Hubbard II, $7500 to Katherine Hubbard and $25,000 to Miriam Hubbard. Elbert and Katherine were children by Hubbard's first marriage; Miriam by his second. Elbert and Miriam were heirs to Hubbard's $400,000 estate. Two sons of the first marriage, Ralph and Sanford, were awarded nothing by the commission because their father had not contributed to their support for a long time before his death.

It begins by stressing the high purposes of public utilities, the need of a large income and investment and the necessity that public utilities commissions see that the utilities charge enough for their service "in the interest of the public".

Granite-Doss Fights Always in Great Demand

One of the battles like the fight fans Pampa enjoy will be the main event of the Pampa Athletic club tomorrow night. Kid Granite, favorite of the Pampa ring, is matched to meet Jack Doss, another local sensation, in the second main event. These two lightweights step into one another from the start.

The fighters met here a month ago and Doss won a decision from the sitting Granite. Since that time the kid has won a decision over Dough, who was in the right to meet him in a main event in Wichita last week.

Doss is a fast, tough boxer with a ring of victories to his credit. He recently defeated Billie Springfield in a local ring.

The second main event, also a ten-round battle, will be between Rusty Hill and Billie Springfield, and by the way Hill has been going lately like a boy from the Pacific coast in a hard fight. The Pampa maudlin won two victories lately in his old style. He knocked Jack Osborne, middleweight, here last week.

Jack Morris, the fastest little boy in the game, is matched with Frankie Carroll, the Pampa flash. These youngsters always put up the fastest fights of the card. They fight for the enjoyment they get out of the battle in the squared circle.

The card will be opened with a six-round battle between Young Granite, brother of the fighting Kid Granite, and Kilo Ritchie of Borger. Granite fought six fast rounds here with Frankie Farrel last week to show that he is a comer in the game.

Speed Record Is Broken by Duray At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, May 26.—(P)—Leon Duray broke the track record at the motor speedway here this afternoon when he drove his racing car around the two and one-half mile brick oval four times in 4 minutes 54.14 seconds for an average speed of 123.391 mile an hour, in a qualifying trial for the 500-mile race to be held here next Wednesday. Former Sickly Boy Wins Golf Title

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 26.—(P)—A new name was today placed at the top of British amateur golf. T. P. The champion will be seen in the United States this summer for he is a certain Walker cup team selection.

Record Smashed as Illinois Wins Meet

EVANSTON, Ill., May 26.—(P)—Two records were smashed and another was tied as Illinois, 1927 champions, retained its honors in the Western conference outdoor championships this afternoon at Northwestern university.

The Illini scoring in eleven of the sixteen events, piled up 58 1-2 points with Iowa furnishing the challenge with 45 1-2. Ohio State trailed in third place with 29 1-2 points, with Michigan fourth with 26.

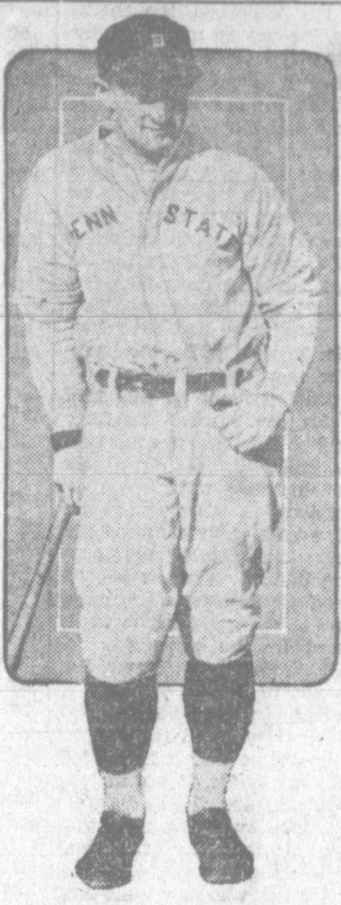

David Abbott, the lanky blonde distance runner of Illinois, raced to a new record in the two mile run, winning in 9:23 7-10.

Wilfred H. Ketz of Michigan bettered the record in the hammer throw for the second time in two days. Ketz threw the weight 161 feet 7 7-8 inches.

William Droege, runner of Northwestern university, closing his intercollegiate competition, tied the record in the pole vault jointly held by himself and "Chuek" McGinnis of Wisconsin by clearing the bar at 13 feet 3 inches.

Mrs. G. A. Holloway is leaving tomorrow for several weeks visit in Wichita, and Hutchinson, Kans.

Won 9 Letters

Few athletes are good enough to win nine varsity letters in three years of intercollegiate sport, but Penn State has had several such athletes in recent years. Two singles matches were divided yesterday, leaving the score 2 to 1 in favor of Japan.

Eleven Stanford athletes, led by the stalwart sophomore, Eric Krenz, piled up a total of 43 points to spread-eagle the field and win by the biggest margin any victorious team has had in thirteen years. Yale, carrying the forlorn hopes of the east, finished second with 25 1-3 points while Cornell and Penn state tied for third with 16 points apiece.

The Zone of Kelvination

Kelvinator maintains a condition of dry frosty cold that is constantly under fifty degrees. This is the Zone of Kelvination. It is much colder than the average ice-cooled refrigerator.

In this intensely cold and dry air, foods not only keep fresh and sweet for days, but actually improve. Meats become mel-low and acquire a delicious tenderness and flavor. Green salads and vegetables "crisp up" in a marvelous way. All perishable foods stay sweet, wholesome and inviting.

Electricity Keeps It Cold

Imagine an unending supply of cold coming from an electric plug to chill your refrigerator. That's Kelvinator Electric Refrigeration.

The cold regulates itself. It requires no attention. Once the electric connection is made, you simply forget refrigeration. Your refrigerator will actually keep itself cold. You can go visiting whenever you like, knowing that your food will keep perfectly while you are gone.

Call or phone and learn how easily Kelvinator can be installed in your present refrigerator.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

GENERAL TOPIC: The Wicked Husbandmen.

SCRIPTURE LESSON: Mark 12: 1-12.

1. And he began to speak unto them in parables. A man planted a vineyard and set a hedge about it, and digged a pit for the winpress, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into another country.

2. And at the season he sent to the husbandmen a servant, that he might receive from the husbandmen of the fruits of the vineyard.

3. And they took him, and beat him and sent him away empty.

4. And again he sent unto them another servant; and they wounded him in the head, and handled shamefully.

5. And he sent another; and him they killed: and many others; beating some, and killing some.

6. He had yet one, a beloved son: he sent him unto them, saying, They will reverence my son.

7. But those husbandmen said among themselves, this is the heir: come let us kill him, and the inheritance shall be ours.

8. And they took him, and killed him, and cast him forth out of the vineyard.

9. What therefore will the lord of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the husbandmen, and will give the vineyard unto others.

10. Have ye not read even this scripture: The stone which the builders rejected, the same was made the head of the corner;

11. This same was from the Lord, and it is marvellous in our eyes.

12. And they sought to lay hold on him; and they feared the multitude; for they perceived that he spoke the parable against them: and they left him, and went away.

TIME: Tuesday, April 4, A. D. 30, Christ's last day of public teaching.

PLACE: The temple in Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives.

GOLDEN TEXT: Jehovah knoweth the way of righteousness; But the way of the wicked shall perish.—Ps. 1:6.

INTRODUCTION

"Man's basic needs are food, shelter, and companionship. To three objects he devotes the greater part, if not at all, of his energies and talents. His interest in these may become so great that he finds himself narrowing his activities to such a degree that he ignores the welfare of others and the source of his life and the things he possesses."

It is natural and right for one to work diligently for his own welfare, and thus provide himself with food, shelter, and companionship—but there is great danger of forgetting the source of materials we use. Therefore Jesus gave us the parable of today's lesson.

Parables, v. 1

"And he began to speak unto them in parables." "Parables" is in the plural, though Mark gives only one; two others are given in Matt. 21:28-32; 22:1-14—"the two Sons" and "the Marriage of the King's Son." The stories are different, but the main point of all three is the same. "Parable" means literally "beside-thrown." It is a comparison of one thing with another, usually of some material thing or secular happening with a spiritual truth. The use of illustrative and influential in the West. Our Lord was the greatest of all tellers of stories with a purpose. He used this method because he wished to reach all classes and fix his truths in the memory. These little stories were not to be forgotten. Much of their point could be grasped by the poorest intellect, while the deeper meanings furnished food for thought to the most profound minds.

The Owner of the Vineyard, v. 1. "A man planted a vineyard." The maker of the vineyard in the parable told by Jesus got everything ready for work. He planted the vineyard, enclosed it, and did all things necessary for operating it profitably. But he did not operate it. He ceased his efforts at this time, rented his property to husbandmen, and took his journey into a distant land. He had prepared the way for work, but left that work for others.

We are But Tenants, v. 1. "And let it out to husbandmen, and went into another country." The owner let his property out. He did not give away that which was his but let others use it, expecting to receive his share of the profits. The Builder of the Universe may be thought of as working in the same manner as the maker of the vineyard. He made the world and all that in it is. The precious metals and the less precious but more usable minerals in the hills were placed there by Him. The fields and life-sustaining qualities of water and light are his provisions for us. Even our physical and mental powers are due to his providence. He made all these things and gave them to us.

The Owner Entitled to Share of Proceeds, v. 2.

"And at the season he sent to the husbandmen a servant, that he might receive from the husbandmen of the fruits of the vineyard." The husbandmen were entitled to certain returns for their labors. Had they not cultivated the vineyard? Had they not pruned the vines, gathered the grapes, made the wine and protected their products against invaders? The owner had been away and had done no work. How could he rightfully claim any share of the proceeds? So when his servants came to collect the rent they were shamefully treated and either sent away empty-handed or slain.

Tenants Claim Ownership, vs. 6-8. The son comes to collect. The builder of the vineyard had in vain sent servants to collect his rightful share of the proceeds. Finally he decided to send his son. Surely the husbandmen would honor his son and heir. But they reasoned among themselves that the property would be theirs, if the heir were disposed of. So they put him to death.

Shameless conduct. If it were done in that fashion in our land treat God the source of all, in a way in which we would not treat our nearest neighbor. We buy a piece of land and say it is ours. We build a house and call it our home. We raise a crop and use or sell it, as our produce. We not only claim all our nerally all of the profits, but we come finally to think that the farm, the raw materials, the energy the talents, we use in making a living are ours because we have them. But do we own them? Are they not given in trust for our use?

Seedtime and Harvest, vs. 9, 10. "He will come and destroy the husbandmen, and will give the vineyard to others. Seedtime and harvest are as sure in human lives as in plant life. The seed planted will determine the kind of harvest, if not the amount. The wicked husbandmen richness of character and genuine worth. They chose the wrong seed and their harvest was in keeping with the seed. Such is the inevitable outcome.

Christ's final thought in this final discourse (for the Paschal teachings were more like familiar conversation with his friends) insisted upon the necessity of unceasing vigilance on the part of his disciples. His warnings had to do with events easily confused, the fall of Jerusalem, which would happen in the lifetime of many of his hearers, and Christ's second coming and the end of the world, which would be witnessed by the generation or race of Christ's faithful followers. But they were not to inquire curiously as to the exact time when these momentous events would come to pass, for man knew, nor the angels in heaven and Christ was frank to say that he himself while in the flesh did not know it; no one knew the exact time but the Omniscient Father. Christians are to be like the servants of a man on a long journey who may come back to his home at any moment. Let not the Master, when he comes, find his servants sleeping! Christ's word to all Christians of today is the same as to his disciples of old:

With self-conceit and keen discerning eye. He viewed the painting of a plate of fruit. On which were seen some hornets and a fly. "The picture does not altogether suit," said he, with self-opinionated air. "The pears and plums are good—the colors right. The oranges and peaches very fair. The grapes are fine! Well-cluster'd not too bright. "The hornets are well done—extremely so. But what a botch, that fly! He's far too gray. His legs too stiff and straight, his eyes too low." The fly, disgusted, rose and flew away! —James Courtney Challiss.

Family Menus

BREAKFAST—Fruit juice, cereal, cream, breakfast spinach, whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Onion rarebit, head lettuce, butterscotch cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Pot roast of veal, mashed potatoes, buttered asparagus, tomato and cabbage salad, coconut custard pie, milk, coffee.

A combination of fruit juices with a dash of lemon is extremely palatable for breakfast. Often fresh fruits are sprinkled with sugar and then drained before using. These juices can be kept two days on ice without scalding or can be scalded and kept several days. While this juice is usually over-sweet the "dash" of lemon juice corrects this fault.

Onion Rarebit

One cup finely minced onion, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 pound cheese, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauc, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup strained canned tomatoes, 2 eggs, six or eight pieces of toast.

Melt butter and add onion. Cook until a golden brown. Add cheese cut in thin slices salt, mustard, Worcestershire sauce and pepper. Stir as cheese melts and gradually stir in tomatoes. When cheese is melted stir in eggs well beaten. Cook and stir just long enough to "set" the eggs and pour over toast arranged on a hot platter. Garnish with sprigs of parsley and serve.

Douglas Declares Grand Jury Report Was Political Move

Curtis Douglas, district attorney and candidate for re-election, told The News this week that he believed the action of the Hutchinson county grand jury in recommending his resignation was based upon the enmity that members of that body hold for him, due to his activities of law enforcement.

He issued the following statement: "I have seen press dispatches where it is reported that the grand jury Hutchinson county has complained that I have failed to cooperate with support them during their recent deliberations, and that by reason thereof they thought that I should resign. I am at a loss and unable to explain their action for each and every member of the grand jury was informed and knew that on the twentieth day of April I was placed under the care of a physician in an effort to save my right hand. They knew of the injuries I sustained with J. W. McCormack, deputy sheriff of Carson county, in an automobile accident near Electra, Texas.

"When the grand jury convened in April, Judge Newton P. Willis, realizing my condition, appointed Attorney Joseph Y. Arnesworth of Stinson and Attorney J. C. Cussen of Canadian to represent the State. With the above in mind, it is hard to understand how that a body of men would seek to discredit a public officer. They had no other complaint, otherwise the same would have been explained and embraced in their report.

"It looks to me like work of supporters of my opponents in the race for re-election.

"It is hard for me to believe that my failure to attend the session of the grand jury warranted such criticism. I have announced for re-election for this office and will continue to hold the office and let the people of this district decide the matter at the polls. If my political enemies feel they cannot defeat me at the polls but have resort to underhanded and sneaking methods, then I challenge them to substantiate their claim.

"Since the grand jury has failed to indict and by reason thereof I cannot receive exoneration at the hands of the jury, the only thing left for me to do is to place my cause before the jury composed of the voters of the eighty-fourth judicial district of Texas. I do not desire to enter into a newspaper controversy with any person but feel that this is an unjust accusation and coming thus, just before election, justifies my making this statement."

VISITS OLD HOME

The Rev. James Todd, Jr., and Mr. Todd have returned from attending the state convention of Christian churches at Greenville.

While away, they visited Denison. Mr. Todd's old home, and found it much changed. The local minister declared that he never leaves the Panhandle without returning better satisfied to live in this section.

Briggs Named on W. T. C. C. Committee

George W. Briggs, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, received word this week that he had been appointed a member of the credentials committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for the tenth annual convention at Fort Worth, June 18, 19 and 20. A large delegation will attend the convention and Pampa will be represented by a princess and a decorated float.

For the fifth time El Progreso is asking for the convention to meet in that city, and will probably be lucky as sentiment seems to favor the border city for the 1929 convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Brant of Amarillo will spend a few days in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Mahan, Mr. Brant general manager of the City Drug Stores, Inc.

New Post Office Addition Will Be Ready on June 1

The work on the post office addition was completed last night, but finishing is being delayed because of the non-arrival of interior fittings, J. N. Duncan, owner of the building, hopes to have the addition open by June 1.

Because of the increase in business the old office proved inadequate to meet demands and a 25 by 30-foot addition was ordered. More sorting racks extra windows, and 285 additional mail boxes, will be installed to meet the demand of a growing city.

Garbage Wagon Catches on Fire

The fire department answered a call to the rear of the Liberty hotel late Friday afternoon where a garbage wagon and contents, from some unknown cause, had caught fire. No damage was done as a chemical soon had the blaze out and the garbage man resumed his drive to the new city dump grounds.

Dr. W. C. Mitchell and Howard Myers left Saturday morning for Vernon, where they will enjoy fishing at Lake Kemp this week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Walters went to Amarillo, where they will visit relatives for a few days before moving to their new home in West Texas.

Used Buildings May Be Purchased for Fair Exhibit Use

George W. Briggs, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and J. G. Christy spent Friday in Borger looking at buildings that would be suitable for housing exhibits at the Pampa Fair to be held here October 11, 12 and 13.

The buildings are long and narrow and could be moved to Pampa cheaper than tents could be rented and the fair association would own them and have them for other years. There are also places in Kingmill that might be suitable for housing exhibits.

The advisability of purchasing the buildings will be discussed at the next meeting of the fair committee.

Hearing on Coltaco Carbon Black Plant Permit Is Postponed

The application of the Coltaco corporation to erect and operate a carbon black plant near LeFors, to be heard before the Texas railway commission May 30, has been postponed until June 1. The same company has a large gasoline plant under construction at the present time and the residue gas will be used in the making of the carbon black.

This industry is becoming one of the most important in the Panhandle and especially in Gray county where one plant is in operation and three under construction.

Canyon Student Wins Prize in Chemistry

CANYON, May 26—Mrs. T. H. McDonald, a member of the graduating class of the West Texas State Teachers college, has recently won a prize in the nation-wide Spanish essay contest which is sponsored by La Prensa, a newspaper published in New York, and the National Association of Spanish Teachers.

This contest has the purpose of arousing greater interest in the Spanish language in the United States. Seven prizes are offered, one first prize, one second, and five third prizes. There are six districts and the one in which Canyon is situated is comprised of New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

Mrs. McDonald won one of the regional third prizes, with an essay on the Spanish novel, "Maria". She was the only representative of the Teachers College in Texas who won a prize.

Within a few days, Mrs. McDonald will receive her Bachelor's degree from the Teachers College at Canyon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Stowell are visiting with friends in Spearman.

When A Girl Loves
© 1928 by NEA S. e. by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NATHANIEL DANN, struggling artist, is engaged to VIRGINIA BUEWSTER, whose father is a Wall Street financier. After losing his fortune in speculation, BUEWSTER dies suddenly and leaves his daughter penniless.

NIEL urges VIRGINIA to marry him at once, but an old family friend, FREDERICK DEAN, and his daughter, CLARISSA, persuade her to make her temporary home with them. This angers NIEL, for he suspects DEAN's motives and does not like CLARISSA. He returns to his work and quarrels with his model, CHIRL, who is jealous of VIRGINIA.

Meanwhile, VIRGINIA is unhappy in her new home. She resolves to tell NIEL her fears, but when she shows his studio in the evening CHIRL answers. She tries to fight suspicion but she cannot bring herself to call his name.

That evening CLARISSA invites VIRGINIA to her father at the dinner table—the obvious discomfort of a MISS FARLEY, who apparently resents the presence of VIRGINIA in the DEAN home. After dinner CLARISSA and her fiancé go out to a night club and VIRGINIA goes to her room, leaving the others to sleep. Mrs. FARLEY tells DEAN that he cannot throw her over for the younger girl without making him for a wounded honor. Rather than face a scandal which he knew would ruin his chance of winning VIRGINIA, he swears her demand. His next problem is to dispose of NIEL.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

ANDREW BARROWS was head of a big advertising agency. An important man, but not so important that he was not ready to see Frederick Dean, a club crony, at any time.

They had a friendly little chat, a perfectly clear and to-the-point chat, in Andrew's sumptuous office, and then Dean took his departure. Before he closed the door behind him, however, he was careful to repeat one specific injunction:

"Don't let my name slip out!"

Later that day Nathaniel Dann received a telephone call to make an appointment with Andrew Barrows. Nathaniel wished to turn away from commercial work to devote himself to the serious side of art, but the thought that this interview might lead to something that would be a means of hastening the establishment of a home for Virginia helped him decide to see Barrows at three o'clock.

He had hoped all that morning to hear from Virginia. At the same time she was trying to summon courage to call him while drooping and reviving alternately under despair and hope.

After luncheon she could no longer bear the agony of uncertainty, and she sought her room to put in the call. Nathaniel answered instantly.

"Virginia," he cried when he heard her voice; and Virginia's heart throbbed with joy.

"Can you come up?" she responded. "Right away!"

"I'll hop the sub. It's quickest. Oh, wait a minute; it's nearly two o'clock, sweetheart, and I've got an appointment downtown at three. I'm afraid I can't make it. Will you wait for me until four? I'll be there before I can see you."

"His voice took on a tone of anxiety. Everything all right?"

"Not quite... no; there's something wrong, Niel. But I feel better, just talking to you. You'll hurry, won't you?"

"I'd fly if I could. But whatever's wrong, we'll fix it up. Don't you worry. I think something good is afoot for me downtown. The crowd people, they telephoned they wanted to see me. It means a lot of work. Wish me luck—"

Virginia wished him luck and Niel certainly thought when

"Niel, it's you. I've found out that that girl, Chirl, was in your studio yesterday morning."

he talked with Andrew Barrows later that it was working like a charm. Until he was told that the work was to be done in San Francisco. He was too disappointed to speak at once.

"Are you prepared to leave immediately?" Mr. Barrows inquired. Nathaniel shook his head. "I can't leave New York," he said regretfully. "It's impossible."

Barrows scowled. "But we are of feeling you a wonderful opportunity," he pointed out, unnecessarily. Nathaniel thought, "He realized it well enough. In fact he had been swept off his feet when he heard the amount of money he was promised for his services."

"I'm much obliged to you," he assured Barrows; "but I can't consider the offer. I have other engagements that will keep me in New York for a while at least."

"Well, think it over. We will all low you until the day after tomorrow to give us an answer. We are in the meantime, you know, one of the other matters."

Nathaniel took the offer of the Virginia. He decided to go up town that he had straight out rows after it. He had straight out rows after it. He had straight out rows after it. He had straight out rows after it.

"I'm much obliged to you," he assured Barrows; "but I can't consider the offer. I have other engagements that will keep me in New York for a while at least."

paid of it.

"She's a bohemian, you know," he said lamely.

"Is that why she told me I had the wrong number?"

"I don't know why she did that, Virginia; I couldn't reach the phone in time to stop her. But, look here, sweetheart, you don't mean that I should think you worried on that account?"

"Perhaps you artists are different from other people," Virginia said a trifle tartly; "but even if I could believe it were proper for her to be there why should you deceive me about it, Niel?"

"Virginia, please don't say that I've never deliberately deceived you about anything. I confess I might have let you know you had the right number in the first place, but I realized it is difficult for anyone who doesn't know her to understand Chirl. She's as irresponsible as a child; I didn't see how I could tell you then and make you understand. She was right there."

"That's partly what hurts, Niel—to have her know that you let her interfere pass."

"It didn't pass unrebuked, Virginia. I gave her the devil."

"You haven't explained what she was doing there."

"She was there when I got home. Had cleaned up the place, scrubbed it inside and out, and when I found her she was dead to the world. I hadn't the heart to disturb her, Virginia, so I read myself to sleep in a chair and the next thing I knew she was answering your ring."

Virginia felt a little ashamed to let her know that she didn't have secrets, she said defensively. "You see what it leads to, Niel. I've agonized over the whole thing so terribly. It did look bad for you, you'll admit that, won't you?"

"I don't blame you, sweetheart, but I'm sorry you didn't have more faith in me. I'd trust you blindly, Virginia."

"Wait until your pride is wounded and see if you will."

"All the time, first lady of my land. There isn't anything or anyone that can make me doubt you until you yourself tell me you don't love me."

"You make me feel very small and mean, Niel."

"That's good," he assured her. "You ought to feel like a worm."

"Oh, Niel, I do, but it's sweet to feel that way. I'd rather be a happy worm than an offended goose."

"That's right, but while we're on this subject, I'd like to ask you how you found out all my sins?"

"I recognized Miss Mond's voice when I telephoned you again yesterday afternoon."

"And I was only gone 10 minutes," Nathaniel mourned. "I was so upset because I didn't hear from you, I imagined all kinds of things. I imagined that Old Highball was keeping you locked up in a closet, and feeding you on gold, or taking you around to show you how the wives of poor husbands stare in the kitchens. So I came up here last night and patrolled the place until Chirl and her boy friend came in."

"Didn't Miss Mond tell you called? I asked her to."

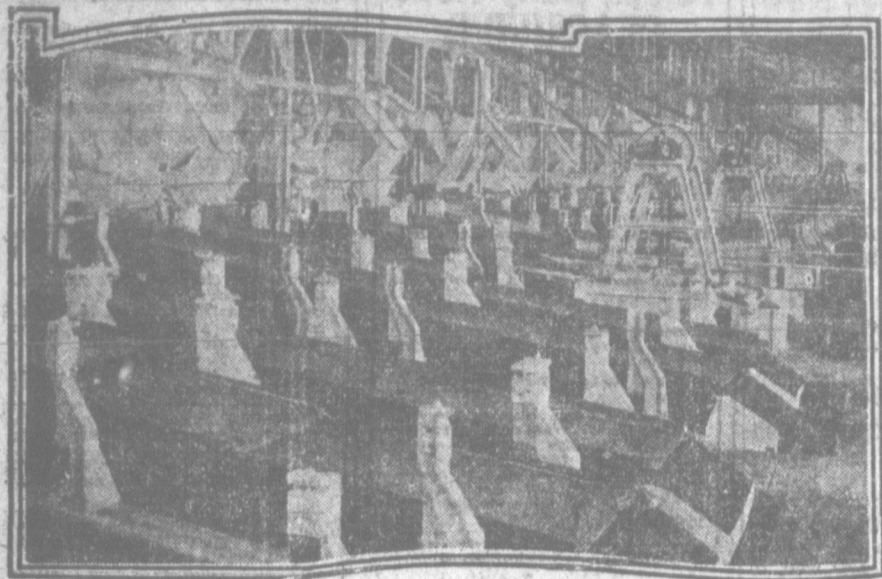

"I suppose she forgot it, Virginia. She would."

"Yes, I think she would," Virginia said slowly. "Oh, Niel," she cried suddenly, her eyes widening with fear; "Niel, I'm afraid of—and of—"

"Ah, good afternoon, Mr. Dann. Nathaniel and Virginia turn quickly, the latter a little embarrassed. Frederick Dean was leaning toward them from the

STAKING A DIAMOND CLAIM

ROUGH DIAMONDS FROM CAPE PROVINCE

South Africa Has New Field—Mining for Gems is An Up-to-date Process—Old Traditions of Diamonds' Power.

By NORMAN C. McLOUD

A DIAMOND rush of the old school is in progress in South Africa, bringing repetition of the excitement which attended the discovery of the Kimberley fields in 1871. The new fields promise quantity production with extensive possibilities, and have bestowed pronounced interest among established producers.

In rough condition the diamond is not without adamantine lustre, but its outer surface has the greasy appearance of a drop of hardened gum, which robs it of striking individuality. The work of cleaning the precious stones from their native environment calls for close watchfulness against possible rejection of gems of great value. Careless handling may cause a worker to permit a fortune to slip through his fingers unrecognized.

The treatment of diamond-carrying gravel is closely akin to that employed in placer mining for gold, in which the entire mass is washed by sluices of running water. Several washings are given at weekly intervals and the primitive method requires that each bath shall be followed by a process of turning the material with hoes to permit drying. The final washing takes place in wooden bowls, accompanied by hand picking of the diamonds from the residue left by the washings.

Earlier Times Brought Stampede

This was the method applied in the South African fields at the time of the great diamond rush of 1871.

The stampede followed closely on the heels of a discovery made by a child on an Orange River farm—the finding of a pebble soon identified as a genuine diamond. This forerunner of tremendous wealth brought the startling price of $2,500, and set the world aflame with tales of the diamond fields in South Africa. Ten thousand fortune hunters stamped to the Orange River country and applied placer mining methods to the gravel of the extensive valley.

With the discovery of the famous Kimberley mines in 1874, explorers found that the dry gravels covered a 50-foot layer of yellowish clay thickly imbedded with diamonds. Further digging revealed the existence, beneath this, of a bluish-green rock which was supposed to be barren and worthless until persistent research proved it to be studded with diamonds in fabulous abundance. This rock formation is now famous as the "blue ground" of South Africa, the matrix of the world's greatest deposit of diamonds. The yellowish clay is merely blue-grass which has undergone decomposition.

New Methods Introduced In the face of these discoveries, the primitive methods of earlier days were gradually replaced by new forms of treatment. Holes were dug deep pits, the blue ground came to be carted to open spaces where exposure to the air was found to pulverize the hard rock with marked efficiency. Attempts at crushing the rock with wooden mallets were tried and abandoned in favor of the "air-curing" process.

With the expansion of the larger companies there came the introduction of labor-saving machinery in a gigantic scale. The workings are now half a mile or more beneath the surface. Several truckloads of blue ground are brought to the surface in a single mine, dumped into trucks and hauled by endless cables to the distributing floors, the great open tracts upon which the material is spread out to be disintegrated by sun and wind. The crumbling process is hastened by frequent harrowing, but it occupies from three months to a full year.

After the necessary period of weathering, the disintegrated ground is trucked to the mills, where it is fed through perforated cylinders into the washing pans. Any lumps that may have resisted disintegration are crushed to facilitate handling. A newer method discards "flooring" in favor of direct treatment by crushing the entire mass of blue ground.

The pans are shallow, cylindrical troughs containing water, in which the diamonds and other heavy minerals are swept to the rim by revolving teeth, while the lighter stuff escapes near the center of the pan. The concentrated minerals, including the precious stones, are then passed over sloping tables known as pulsators, and shaken to and fro under a heavy stream of water, for further concentration of the heaviest materials.

Grease Catches 'Em

At this stage there is introduced an ingenious arrangement made possible by the discovery that diamonds have a special affinity for grease. To such extent does this exist that a greased surface will hold a diamond while allowing other heavy minerals to pass along. In making use of this characteristic the workers cause the entire mass of concentrated materials to be washed down a sloping table of corrugated iron smeared with petroleum jelly. Under this treatment it is found that practically all the diamonds stick to the grease and the other minerals are washed away.

As found in the South African mines the diamonds range in size from crystals weighing a fraction of a carat apiece to those having individual weight as great as 150 carats. The carat is an arbitrary unit, equivalent to 3.17 grains, so that 151 1/2 carats equal one ounce avoirdupois. Along with the crystals the blue ground yields tiny fragments useful for abrasive purposes.

Recovery of the rough diamond is but the initial step toward the production of the dazzling jewel which reaches the world's markets. In its natural state the crystal may be in any one of several shapes. The problem of the lapidary is to do the cutting in such way as will produce a finished stone of the greatest possible size and to remove possible defects and flaws. The first task is that of cleaving the stone, or causing it to split along certain natural planes of structural weakness. The process calls for keen judgment and skill, and the expert cleaver is highly paid. The actual splitting of the stone is achieved by striking a sharp blow upon a steel or iron wedge placed against the line of cleavage. In recent years cleaving has been abandoned by some cutters in favor of a sawing process in which diamond dust and oil are utilized.

After the cleaving or sawing there is need for a rough blocking-out of the stone into a shape approximating its final form. This is accomplished by grinding.

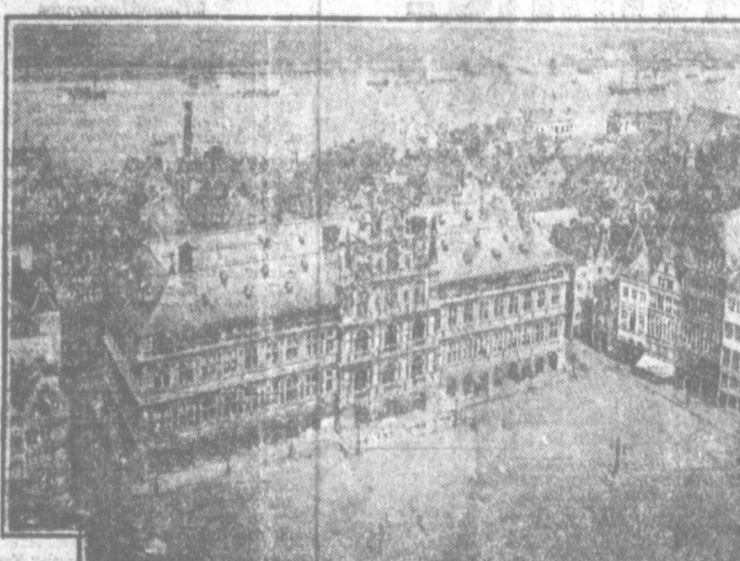

Cutting The Stones

For the actual cutting the stone is imbedded in a metal handle, with exposure of the portion on which the first cutting is to be applied. Two diamonds thus mounted are then rubbed against each other until a face is produced on one of them. When one face has been created the diamond is reset for the grinding of another surface. The process is repeated for every face that is cut. The normal cutting calls for 54 faces. When these have been completed the surfaces are polished with diamond dust.

Some of the great diamonds of the world came from the ancient field of Golconda, in India. This region produced the stone known as "The Great Mogul," said to have weighed 787 carats in the rough and 250 carats after cutting. Another gem from this region was the "Orloff," stolen by a French soldier from the eye of an idol in a Brahmin temple, and sold to Prince Orloff for close to half a million dollars. The Kohinoor, presented to Queen Victoria, had a weight of 186 carats reduced by re-cutting to 106. The "Regent" or "Pitt" diamond came from India or Borneo and was bought by the Duke of Orleans, regent of France in 1717, for a sum said to have been $775,000.

The Brazilian diamond known as "The Star of the South," was brought by the golkwar of Baroga, an Indian potentate, for $400,000.

All previous records were surpassed by the "Cullinan" diamond, discovered in the Transvaal, with rough weight of 3025 carats, or approximately twenty ounces. This stone was presented to King Edward, of Great Britain, and divided into nine large stones and a number of small brilliants. The largest jewel obtained from the cutting weighed 516 carats, or close to 2 1/2 ounces. The next in size was a stone of 303 carats. These are said to be the largest brilliants in existence. The Cullinan was all the more remarkable for the fact that all its stones were flawless and of the finest quality.

BEAUTIFUL CARVED FIREPLACE IN THE MAYORS OFFICE CITY HALL

THE "CALVARY" AT THE CHURCH OF ST. PAUL

INTERIOR OF THE BOURSE (STOCK EXCHANGE)

When Napoleon the First conquered Europe he strongly fortified Antwerp. He said that city was the pistol which he held, loaded and cocked, at the throat of England. Through many hundred years Antwerp has been of very great commercial and strategic importance. It is on the bank of a deep river, not far from the sea. Its miles of docks are as fine as any in the world. The mightiest ships can rest securely in its harbor. It is in direct communication with the East by means of the Alpine tunnels and Brindisi. It has been through ages the patron of art, the encourager of science, the saviour of the oppressed.

By LILIAN HAYDEN HIESTON

In the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries Antwerp was the richest city in Europe and its commerce the most important. The night wonderer at and envied its magnificence of living, the wealth and splendor of its merchants. There is a tale that one of its merchant princes lent to a king of England an immense sum of money, and that king came to see about the possibility of extending the loan. The merchant, entered the debt out of his wife's pocket and she with it saying: "Forget it—the sun means little to me." A French king and queen visited the city and were amazed at the richness of apparel of the ladies of Antwerp, their jewels the marvelous lace they wore.

As Venice laid down her prominence, and trade Antwerp took it up, as the harbor of Bruges filled up with sand and her commerce died, Antwerp more than took her place.

Misfortunes she met with but overcame them all and flourished. In 1576 Spanish soldiers plundered the town and killed six thousand citizens and stole over ten millions of money. Eight hundred houses were burned.

Home Of Art In 1525 Parma captured the city and sent all the Protestant citizens into exile. The city recovered from all its troubles and the seventeenth century saw a marvelous blossoming of art—Rubens, Van Dyck, the two Teniers, Quentin Matsys and many other world famous painters flourished and made their city famous.

away to make room for the growing city. Eight large detached forts were built beyond the walls and the north country arranged so that dikes could be opened and the country flooded in case of danger from foes.

It was a very great blow when by the treaty of Westphalia Holland was given the right to exact toll of boats coming up the river but later on Antwerp bought this right from Holland and progress and growth were resumed.

Name Has Gruesome Origin

There was in olden times a robber chieftain who also exacted toll from all passing boats up or down the river and he is said to have cut off the hands of people who did not pay and to have thrown them into the river. The name Antwerp is derived from this—Hant-werpen—throwing of hands. The story is questioned and many other sources of the name are suggested but recent historians have gone back to the old legend, chiefly because the ancient heralds displayed such scrupulous care in looking up and proving all claims for armorial bearings. The arms of the city are two hands and a castle. It was a common custom in old times to cut off hands for certain offenses. There is a large and very fine cathedral which was built in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries and which contains some of the finest paintings of Rubens—his Descent from the Cross, The Elevation of the Cross, and The Assumption. In this cathedral there are six aisles. Rubens' tomb is in another very picturesque church, that of St. Jacques, where most of the very distinguished men were buried. In this church too are paintings by Rubens—most famous being The Virgin and Child. There is a Rubens Chapel, filled with works of art.

Near the cathedral is the beautiful wrought-iron grillwork around an ancient well, designed by Quentin Matsys. Peter Paul Rubens, the famous artist died in 1680. There is a relic of the old original castle of Antwerp in the building known as the Steen.

The Wonderful Docks

A stranger in Antwerp is taken at once to see the docks. One of the chief drives is along the city just above the docks, whence one can look down at the miles of superb basins or docks for ships. I recall the first time I was in Antwerp being taken there as a matter of course. I was greatly impressed and yet I wondered if there were another and less practical side to the city. I found there was and a very beautiful one. There are miles of lovely boulevards with magnificent homes, and gardens, museums, zoological gardens, parks.

One finds many canals through the city for boat freight. These are extremely picturesque and are shaded by great trees. Very often there is also a paved street along side of the canal. Sometimes the canals go directly under large warehouses for the convenience of handling freight. There were sections of the city devoted to various trades and to handling various kinds of freight and for the residence of merchants and agents from different lands.

The beautiful Bourse of Antwerp has the distinction of being the first building in Europe to which the title of Bourse was given. There is a great deal of business done there—countless securities are dealt in. The city has always been important as a great banking center.

Of Modern Origin

Antwerp is essentially a modern city. It is one of the few great cities of Europe with whose founding the Romans had nothing to do. History tells us that the devastating Normans came and destroyed the settlement in 835, but we know little or nothing about the place before that time. In 1093 one of the emperors gave the town some privileges and in the eleventh century we find the place assuming prominence and being made a "March" of the Holy Roman Empire and being ruled by a Marquis. In 1094 we find the famous crusader, Godfrey, of Bouillon, ruling Antwerp. After his death the city became the property of the Dukes of Brabant. A decree was now promulgated declaring all men free and equal and freeing all who had been in bondage.

In recent times, since 1863, the city has made amazing progress and regained much of its former prestige and wealth. It was in that year that the "oll-right" was purchased from Holland and the Scheldt re-opened for free traffic.

Ten years after the Yanks launched their first big attack by capturing Cantigny on May 28, 1918, and turned the tide of the war, Herr Wilhelm Hohenzollern, the former Kaiser, continues to live in quiet seclusion at his estate near Doorn, Holland, as these recent and newest pictures of him show. On the right is the former German emperor enjoying a quiet smoke after tea with friends on his vast and beautiful estate. The police dog's name is Harro a pet of Princess Hermine.
