Tammera Powers, substance abuse department head at the Jordan Unit, says that the unit will probably be affected in some way by the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse's pulling of funding from several grants earlier this month.

The unit had been a beneficiary of TCADA's funding of the "Sobriety Is an Option" program through the Texans' War on Drugs, but a letter from the program to Powers said that all of its programs will be canceled effective Sept. 15 until it finds a new avenue of funding.

A mismatch between the stated charge and the charging language on a pair of indictments resulted in a guilty plea to lower charges for a Pampa man today.

Brown also pleaded guilty to shooting at or near Albert Young III, also deadly conduct. Brown stood charged with attempted murder of Young. The punishment phase of Brown's trial is expected to continue today or tomorrow in 31st District Court.

The charges stemmed from a May 31 shooting in Prairie Village Park, which left Sanford LaCraig Kelley dead and James Wilbon III charged with his mur-

Defense attorney David Holt told District Judge Kent Sims the charging language of the indictments is deadly conduct, not attempted murder, a second degree felony.

The indictment was drawn erroneously, said District

Attorney John Mann. "I take full responsibility for that," he said.

Attorneys agreed to amend the language of the indictments to match Brown's testimony and plea. The two charges were consolidated for trial into a single

"I did not see Audrey Wilbon. She was not present," he said. Miss Wilbon was inside her home when the shooting occurred. "In discharging the firearm, did you do that in the direction of Albert Young?' asked Holt.

"No, sir," answered Brown. "But you did it so that it struck the Wilbon home?" asked Holt.

Attorneys agreed to amend the indictments to reflect an accusation of discharging a firearm into a habitation without regard to whether the habitation is occupied and an accusation of dis-tion of Albert Young. After the hearing, Holt said the state must prove the accused's intent to kill in order to support a charge of attempted murder. In this case, both sides agreed to a guilty plea on the third degree charge rather than face trial on the second degree charge of attempted murder.

Rodeo queen candidates

From left, Kembra Malberg and Kaysi Douglas, both Pampa High School juniors, and Leslie Hendricks and Nickie Leggett, both PHS sophomores, are candidates for the Tri-State High School Rodeo that will be held this weekend in Pampa. The queen will be crowned Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena.

Lefors ISD board to set tax rate, adopt budget budget and tax rate will top a long list of action items at tonight's Lefors Independent School District Board of Education meeting.

The board will consider adoption of a budget with a deficit of $53,000 - approximately $70,000 less than first feared by Superintendent Norman Baxter. At last month's meeting, Baxter told the board that the school may face a $122,000 deficit.

Baxter said Monday that he will recommend that the board maintain last year's tax rate of $1.50 for the 1995-96 year.

The board will also consider changing the dress code to prohibit the wearing of any garment shorter than five inches above the knee, salaries of auxiliary employees, accepting bids on milk for the current school year, approving a depository bid, setting lunch

LEFORS — Adoption of a charges for inmate lunches, changing insurance on school vehicle, approving a substitute teacher list, approving transfer students, revising the school calendar, appointing a textbook coordinator and approving a resolution of thanks to the Rufe Jordan Unit.

Inmates from the unit have been involved in several projects at the school.

Other items on the lengthy agenda include readings of two local policies and the addition of Baxter's name to the Lone Star Investment Pool list. Baxter was recently hired to replace Joe Roper.

Also on the agenda are Superintendent Baxter's report and an executive session dealing with personnel.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the Lefors Elementary School Library, 209 E. 5th.

Trade deficit hits $43.62 billion WASHINGTON (AP) - The that the deficit in investment U.S. trade deficit shot up to income rose to $2.87 billion, $43.62 billion in the April-June quarter, the worst performance in history, as the dollar's weak-investment flows and a category that includes America's foreign aid payments. The deterioration reflected weakness in all of the major categories with the deficit in merchandise hitting a record $49.04 billion. While exports grew during this period, this strength was swamped by a big rise in imports, reflecting in part higher prices caused by the decline in the dollar, analysts said. A weaker dollar makes imports cost more.

The Commerce Department net debtor to the rest of the world that foreigners are now earning more on the assets they hold in the United States than we earn abroad. This deficit is feeding on itself," said Eugene Sherman, at M.A. Schapiro & Co. in New York.

The Labor Department said today that wholesale prices declined by 0.1 percent in August as the third straight drop in energy prices continued to hold inflation in check.

Wholesale prices also fell 0.1 percent in June and were unchanged in July. Analysts said the sharp slowdown in the economy in the spring was helping to ease inflationary pressures at both the wholesale and retail lev-

The good inflation news gave a boost to the bond market which spilled over into stocks. The Dow Jones industrial average was up more than 14 points in late morning trading.

Through the first six months of this year, the current account deficit is running at an annual rate of $165.24 billion, well above last year's deficit of $151.25 bil-

The bad news on the current account confirms the trend that has been apparent in the government's monthly trade statistics, which measure trade in merchandise and services but not the other categories. America's worsening trade performance this year has come as something of a surprise to economists who believed that the slowing U.S. economy would cut into demand for foreign goods.

Some analysts blamed the problem on the fact that the value of the dollar weakened considerably during the first half of the year.

While a weaker dollar normally acts to narrow the trade deficit over time by making U.S. goods cheaper and thus more competitive on overseas markets, the immediate impact often is to widen the deficit as foreign goods go up in price more quickly than demand for the products

Weed cutting program has residents upset

Recovered tools

HOUSTON (AP) - A new plan to clear Houston of unwanted weeds has some landowners up in arms over the issue of property

The city's "Mow and Go" program would permit city contractors to cut down growth more than 48 inches high on private property without notifying the cowner - and at the owners' expense:.

City officials say overgrown lots are a haven for rats, crime and other nuisances.

"Property rights come with property responsibilities," said Dan Jones, deputy director of the Public Works & Engineering Department. "The best way to preserve those rights is to live up to your responsibilities.'

Currently, weeds and grass more than nine inches high constitute a violation, and property owners found in violation are notified of the problem before any action is taken.

The city recovers mowing expenses by billing the owner and, if necessary, placing a lien on the property. City Council is currently considering toughening the existing ordinance, including making it easier to assess penalties of up to $1,000 at day.

But some property owners found in violation of the existing ordinance said Mon day the city's program is already out of bounds.

"I was just gone for the day," said Evelyn Lancas ter, who said she returned home June 9 to find her Easter lilies mowed down along with all the grass on her near-acre lot.

"I keep it mow'ed about 25 yards back behind the house, but didn't want it all mowed because it's a buffer," Ms. Lancaster said.

DAR prepares for annual Constitution Week

The Las Pampas Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution is encouraging area residents to study the U.S. Constitution this month in conjunction with the annual Constitution Week observance, which begins Sunday, Sept. 17.

Las Pampas Chapter DAR members encourage individuals, school classes, clubs and other groups to take time this month to discuss and develop programs concerning the Constitution, its governmental standards and its guaranteed freedoms.

The chapter began its observance last week with a chapter meeting devoted to the Constitution and suggests other groups also find time to include the Constitution for its programs this month to study and reflect on the principles contained in the docu-

The Constitution of the United States of America was signed on Sept. 17, 1787. Two hundred years later, the Constitution is still the law of the land, and "We the People" are still active participants in the governing of the nation.

In 1952, Congress authorized the president to issue an annual proclamation designating Sept. 17 of every year as Citizenship Day in commemoration of the signing of the Constitution.

In 1955, the Daughters of the American Revolution proposed devoting an entire week to the Constitution by extending the period of observation beyond Sept. 17. A congressional resolution, approved Aug. 2, 1955, authorized the designation of the week beginning Sept. 17 of each year as Constitution Week.

The Constitution of the United States is classified as "rigid," because it has superior sanction to ordinary laws of the land, and it is subject to a gradual process of amendment. Its brevity and general statement by principles have made it possible to extend meaning and to foster growth of governing principles.

There are seven articles, a Preamble and 27 amendments.

Opinion

An 'honest broker' in Bosnian conflict

Since the United States, which furnished about half of the aircraft used in the United Nations air strikes against Serb positions in Bosnia, is involved militarily/now, Americans should hope that the operation will be run competently and decisively. (The downing of a French plane recently highlights the fact that bombing strikes cannot be undertaken without risk.) But we should be under no illusions that these attacks will enhance the ability of the United Nations or the United States to act as an impartial arbiter or "honest broker" in the former Yugoslavia.

The United States is a combatant now. It might eventually be able to impose the kind of settlement a victor can impose by dint of successful warfare, or it might have to accept the kind of settlement a military loser sometimes has to accept. But it can't pretend any longer to be an objective or disinterested outside party offering constructive ideas to combatants who might or might not be ready for peace. President Clinton's "peace process" is over, and it's time for a new strategy.

Some Americans will not mind this. Although there's plenty of blame to go around, they will say, the worst actors in this conflict have been the Serbs, so let's just beat them up and force them to end their aggression and terrorism through military might. It's the only thing they understand, and if some American lives have to be lost in the process, so be it.

As we're making the best of a changed situation, however, it shouldn't be out of line to reflect on how we got into a situation where military action in a country whose fate has little if any impact on the core interests of the United States seemed like the only option left. Can we learn from the mistakes that brought us to this pass and avoid needless involvement in the future?

. In a paper written for the Cato Institute, former U.S. Army officer John Hillen III, a doctoral candidate at Oxford, contends that the extensive and expensive - $2 billion per year (of which the United States pays a third) U.N. "peacekeeping" operation in Bosnia has prolonged the war.

"That well-intentioned international effort," he wrote, "keeps Bosnian society functioning at a level that is just tolerable enough to keep any of the belligerents from negotiating seriously for

Before Bosnia, U.N. peacekeeping troops were deployed after a beace settlement had been reached. The attempt to force a settlement by inserting troops before any semblance of peace - or even serious negotiation - was on the horizon has been a failure.

That failure has now embroiled the United States in a way that could, sadly, lead to a wider war rather than a prompt peace. As we make the best of a bad situation, we should vow to avoid such unrealistic plans - whether formulated by the United Nations, NATO or the U.S. State Department - in the future.

That means defining the real interests of the United States carefully, and letting the world know that this country in the future will avoid conflicts that don't affect those interests. It means resisting the seductive notion that because U.S. diplomats are so wise and good and superior, they can come into local conflicts and tell the participants how to settle their differences.

If this is a war, the administration should get a formal declaration from Congress and win it. In the future, however, it should move toward a more modest policy of non-intervention in small scale European conflicts.

WHEN WE USED TO HAVE TO GET UP TO CHANGE CHANNELS?

cameras hold court in court

On page one of the Chicago Daily Tribune of Dec. 21, 1926, was a cartoon depicting a man on a commuter train reading a newspaper story about the arrest of a murderer and commenting sourly, "Now for a lot of alienists, pro and con, a lot of sickening sob stuff, a lot of legal trickery and finally another miscarriage of justice. It's getting to be an old story." The caption read, "The cynicism that countless thousands feel."

Americans are reputed to be appalled by the O.J. Simpson trial, but popular discontent with the inadequacies of the criminal justice system is not exactly a late breaking development. The 1920s lingers in the memory of conservative hardliners as a blessed era before weepy social reformers and liberal judges crippled law enforcement, but even then, people were not satisfied that criminals were getting what they deserved. Probably there were Texans back in the 1800s who thought Judge Roy Bean was far too slow with a noose.

What has stirred special disgust this time is the presence of TV cameras in the courtroom, which have given us all the chance to see every procedural motion, every evidentiary hearing, every sidebar conference and every "rephrase the question" in all their splendor and glory. None of these has served to elevate public esteem for lawyers and judges. When my peerless colleague Mike Royko invited his readers who didn't want the proceedings on TV to write Judge Lance Ito, 15,000 of them did so and that was before the trial began.

Many who were in favor of cameras beforehand had second thoughts after suffering prolonged exposure to Kato Kaelin, Mark Fuhrman, Dennis Fung and various insufferable law school alumni. Don Hewitt, executive producer of CBS's 60 that putting it on the air had turned "the courtroom into a movie set." The spectacle no doubt had an effect on the Judicial Conference of the United States, which abruptly ended an experiexperience of seeing preliminary hearings in the Simpson trial on the tube.

A spokesman said the judges who made the decision worried about "any negative impact on jurors, on witnesses, potential distraction of witnesses and whether jurors were made nervous by any fear of possible harm." One anonymous judge complained that "the public-education benefit is very low."

But the objections don't bear up well under scrutiny. The federal judges said they worried about the effect on witnesses, but judges can let nervous ones testify off-camera. And they banned cameras not only from trial courts but from appeals courts, where witnesses do not appear.

The public education benefit may look low to Minutes, announced a few months into the trial how our courts operate as actually seeing them in n't mean we'd be better off not seeing it.

operation. A poll by the Times-Mirror Center for People and the Press found that 66% of Court TV viewers said watching trials had given them a better understanding of the courts.

True, most people catch only snippets of televised testimony on the nightly news, which can be misleading. But are they more misleading than hearing those same snippets of testimony recounted by a TV reporter as the viewer looks at an artist's rendering of the courtroom scene? Or reading about them in the newspaper? Viewers would learn a lot if they sat through the entirety of each day's proceedings. But they can learn something even if they tune in only once in a while.

Most of the concerns evoked by televised trials should have been put to rest by now. All but three ment with cameras last year, after the terrifying states now allow cameras in the courtroom, and no state that has admitted them has ever seen the need to change its policy. A report by Court TV cites survey after survey of state judges showing they overwhelmingly agree that cameras pose no problem.

Attitudes among federal judges who had cameras on an experimental basis, a government study found, "were initially neutral and became more favorable after experience with electronic media coverage." Members of the American Bar Association have also been reassured by firsthand contact. Earlier this year, they urged the Judicial Conference to rescind the current ban.

The lesson we should have learned from the Simpson proceedings is that even the most sensational criminal trials are tedious affairs, which people who already know everything about the makes them poor vehicles for entertainment, criminal justice system from the inside. # Good kids, bad public programs

Charley Reese

A sudden insight zonked me side the head the other day: It's a miracle I survived childhood because the whole time I was deprived of government-sponsored recreation and counseling.

No midnight basketball or daytime basketball for that matter. No after school programs. No counselors. No clubs. No social workers. No organized sports activities.

In the words of today's special pleaders for social welfare programs, I was one of the kids "left to the streets." It's so strange that I, without any help from social workers, had a full, exciting and happy childhood. Not only was I deprived of government supervision, I didn't even have a TV set or a computer. Looking back, I just don't know how I managed to play marbles, backyard tackle football and softball; lie in a bed of daffodils; feed chickens; chop wood; climb trees; explore woods; build dams across creeks; pester people to let me pick cotton or try to plow; hitch rides on the backs of wagons; play on the cotton bales at the train depot; hitch rides on boxcars; make model airplanes; shoot off fireworks (powerful ones and unsupervised, by golly); take books; play on rope swings and in tree houses; dig foxholes; play "guns"; haul in the coal; jump off roofs; explore abandoned buildings; go fishing and hunting; race my bicycle down steep hills; build traps; skin moles; shoot a bow and arrow; make slingshots; pick plums and blackberries; socialize with family and friends; and go to the movies.

It's just a mystery that I managed to do all those things and more without some government bureaucrat or welfare busybody supervising my every step. It's true my pals and I would get into fistfights, shoot out a street light or two and toss firecrackers at cars. And I never saw a fence I wouldn't climb if something on the other side looked interesting.

It's also true I did a lot of Gene Kelly dance steps while my mom whacked me with a peach tree switch, and I shed my share of blood with various cuts, bumps, bruises and smashed fingers. I even was hit by a car. My teeth were drilled and pulled with no anesthetics.

But if, as the welfare do-gooders say when they beg for money, kids on the street will turn to crime target practice with my BB gun and later my .22; go when you take away government programs, why to the movies; talk to the watchmaker; read a lot of didn't I? It could be because we never passed a chain gang that my father didn't say, "That's where you'll end up if you grow up to be a hell raiser."

winging the grass cutters and at the cold-eved guard with his .12 gauge. Even to a six-year-old, it didn't look like an appealing place to be.

Or it could be all those sermons I was forced to hear, all those Bible stories I was read, impressed on even my hard head a simple message that there are some things you do, and some things you don't.

And it could be that the message sunk in because I was hearing the same essential message from the preacher, my parents, the school and believe it or not - the movies? In those days, the movie industry censored itself, and no bad guy ever survived to the final credits.

Robert Preston, that talented actor, made a career of being the good guy who goes bad but redeems himself at the cost of his life at the end of the film. No wonder Preston played The Music Man with such zest. It was one of the few roles he ever got which didn't require him to die at the end.

The bigger-budget beggars and the politicians do today's kids a great injustice. The overwhelming majority of kids today employ the same ingenuity to amuse themselves, study just as hard and are just as unlikely to become criminals as my gang of barefoot rascals.

Generations are libeled to justify bigger budgets and cushier jobs. Some public and private bureaucrats relish the minority of kids who go bad. To I would look at those sweating, miserable men them, a bad kid is money in their pockets.

Moderate conservatism bugs liberals

A segment on CNN's Capitol Gang dealt with the recent announcement of presidential candidacy by California Gov. Pete Wilson, which was delivered in front of the Statue of Liberty. The video clips showed the candidate criticizing a welfare system that offers extra money to recipients who have additional chil-dren while on welfare, decrying the fact that law abiding Americans fear to go outside because of street crime, deploring an affirmative action process that has evolved into de facto quotas and condemning the porous border control that allows a steady stream of illegal immigrants into America.

The CNN commentators were less than happy with Wilson. To Mark Shields, the Wilson announcement seemed like a "recruitment drive for the Montana Militia." Al Hunt announced that "Pete Wilson declaring his candidacy in front of the Statue of Liberty is like David Duke declaring in front of the Martin Luther King Center." (Isn't it nice to have moderate commentators around to condemn the extremists?) Shields and Hunt are not alone; liberals and conservatives alike have shown a reflexive distaste for Wilson's campaign.

I am not now, nor have I ever been, a member of the Montana Militia. I have found David Duke's policies repugnant. But after reading Wilson's speeches from his cross-country "Liberty Tour," I think his campaign is right on target. He is accentuating the social issues and the values issues. "American optimism is being undermined by the federal government ...," he says. "It gives lip service to our values, but doesn't seem to problems, and that we ought to be tougher on both. The current level of crime is subverting the essence of civil society. Welfare, arguably, is pushing up illegitimate birth rates to an all time high. That is a clear recipe for social tragedy and turbulence.

Wilson is also right about affirmative action. It started out as a good idea for "outreach," and then led to goals, timetables, sanctions and compliance - that is, to preference, proportionalism and quotas. That corrodes the idea of merit, which is central to American values. These days affirmative action is harmful to both whites, blacks and the American way of life. Wilson recently changed the University of California's quota policies.

Wilson's stand on immigration is more comolex. He endorsed California's Proposition 187, which stipulated that the state would no longer pay most social service expenditures for illegal immigrants. That's not a bad idea in principle, share them, and clearly doesn't fight for them."

Not many Americans would disagree that crime and welfare are two of America's most important productive. Most everyone is against illegal immigration. Wilson, however, is not anti-legal-immigration. Pat Buchanan has endorsed cutting out legal immigration. President Clinton, who appears in California to criticize Wilson on immigration, has already signed on to a proposal to reduce legal immigration. Wilson, the alleged nativist, has come out for no such thing.

What is it about Wilson that raises hackles across the political spectrum? He has the political background of a moderate; he once raised taxes, he once favored affirmative action and he's now pro choice (like about 70% of Americans, including about half of registered Republicans).

How dare a moderate run on popular conservative social themes? That threatens everyone on the hustings and on the television shows. Liberals fear that a moderate's tough endorsement of tough themes might legitimize such themes. Conservatives fear that their ideological monopoly is now subject to a hostile takeover by a candidate who also has the popular side of issues where conservatives fall short. So both sides say Wilson is an insincere, pandering demagogue, who, goodness, has changed some of his Politics is a pastime that never ceases to amaze. If a candidate sticks by his beliefs he is condemned as a dogmatic, inflexible relic. If he changes over time, as circumstances change, and agrees with voters who have changed their minds for similar reasons, he is called a panderer. My sense is that most Americans have another view: If a candidate gets 'em all angry he may be doing something right.

Negotiator sent to Belgrade as diplomatic pace quickens Clinton administration accelerates its drive for a peace conference to end the war in Bosnia. Holbrooke's schedule was scrambled Monday following a White House meeting with President Clinton in order to get him back to Europe faster, and to start his new round of shuttle diplomacy in Belgrade with Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic.

By the weekend, Holbrooke intends to have met twice with Milosevic, once with Croatian President Franjo Tudjman and with Russian, French, German and British officials in Geneva, where a proposal was approved last Friday to partition Bosnia into two ethnic republics - one Serbian and the other jointly run by Muslims and Croatians. Milosevic's approval of the plan was considered essential. Now the question is whether he can prod the Bosnian Serbs into peace talks to end a 40-month-old war in the former Yugoslav republic.

Holbrooke had planned to leave for Geneva on Wednesday in the peacemaking operation, then to go on to the Balkans.

But the allies suggested he see for all its people."

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. Milosevic first, and Secretary of negotiator Richard Holbrooke is State Warren Christopher conreturning to the Balkans as the curred, administration officials said.

Among Holbrooke's problems is Russian opposition to the sustained NATO bombardment of Bosnian Serb military installations. The administration has vowed to keep at it unless the Serbs withdraw their heavy weapons from around Sarajevo.

The assistant secretary of state needs Russia's cooperation on the diplomatic front. Of the five nations involved in peacemaking Russia may have the most influence with the Serbs, who are historic allies of Moscow.

Holbrooke will meet with Milosevic on Wednesday, be in Geneva on Thursday, and then, separately, meet in the Balkans on Friday and Saturday with Tudjman and Milosevic.

Holbrooke's assignment was announced after he met with Clinton at the White House. "The president welcomed the progress that has been made to date toward a comprehensive political settlement," White House spokesman Mike McCurry said.

Last week's accord did not end or Thursday and meet there with the fighting in Bosnia, but the allied governments involved McCurry said it would preserve Bosnia-Herzegovina as a single state and provide "a viable future

NATO said the attacks on Bosnian Serb positions would continue. Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic denounced the use of U.S. cruise missiles as an "unprovoked and barbaric other military capability. action," but State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns said bridges and other installations would be targeted with the aim of destroying the Serbs' will to fight.

Clinton's senior foreign policy advisers also met at the White House, but "There were no earthshattering decisions," said a senior U.S. official who attended the meeting, speaking only on condition of anonymity. "But there was a good discussion of how to move this along. Holbrooke told them it's very difficult."

Earlier, Burns told reporters at the State Department: "It's clear very clear - what the Bosnian Serbs have to do to turn this process around and turn it towards peace. They have got to NATO air and artillery strikes and comply with the very strongly felt desires of the international community that the terrorism that they have inflicted upon Sarajevo stop."

The bombing seeks to force the withdrawal of Serb heavy weapons to at least 12 1/2 miles beyond the Bosnian capital while weakening Serb anti-aircraft and

The sustained NATO bombardment, however, has put pressure on Russian President Boris Yeltsin from his political opponents. Parliament urged him over the weekend to consider ending Russia's cooperation with NATO and to lift U.N. sanctions against Serbia unilaterally.

At NATO headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, Vitaly Churkin, the Russian envoy, said his government was "very worried that this will get out of hand" and that "what is going is very risky."

Russian Defense Minister Pavel Grachev telephoned Defense Secretary William Perry on Monday and "emphasized the unacceptability of resuming military operations against the Bosnian Serbs," Yelena Agapova, a spokeswoman for the Russian Defense Ministry, said in Moscow.

GM settles cases alleging pickups prone to explode

ATLÂNTA (AP) — A couple whose $105.2 million judgment against General Motors Corp. was reversed on appeal has settled for an undisclosed sum, still claiming some GM pickups are prone to explode.

"The trucks are dangerous ... they are killers," said Elaine Moseley, a Georgia woman whose 17-year-old son was killed in 1989 when the truck he was driving was struck by a drunken driver and burst into flames.

Her husband Thomas, weeping, told a news conference Monday: "The job's not done. People in this country didn't know my son. The fight's not over." The settlement was one of four reached with GM on Friday in suits alleging that pickup trucks made from 1973 to 1989 with side-mounted gasoline tanks were prone to explode. Terms of the settlements - including two in Oklahoma and one in Kansas were not disclosed.

Friend of Ronald Goldman fatally shot by thieves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 26year-old friend of murder victim Ronald Goldman when both worked at Mezzaluna restaurant was shot to death after resisting two money-demanding thieves. Aspiring actor Michael Nigg was killed late Friday in a Hollywood parking lot after he withdrew $40 from an automated teller machine to take his girlfriend to a Hollywood restaurant, said police spokeswoman Cherie Clair. Detectives were looking for three men, two who attacked Nigg and a third who was their driver, Clair said. There were no arrests late Monday. Nigg's friends, including actor Mickey Rourke, held a candlelight vigil at the lot Saturday night. "If anyone knows anything about the shooting that took place ... just give the cops a call," Rourke said in a televised plea.

Nigg, from Colorado, worked as a waiter at Sanctuary, a Beverly Hills restaurant. He recently appeared on the syndicated TV show Liars.

PAMPA — Defense could be the name of the game when Pampa and Amarillo High clash at 7:30 Friday night in Harvester Stadium.

Both teams did an outstanding job of slowing the opposition in winning their season openers. Pampa downed Garden City, 14-8, while AHS rolled past Clovis, N.M.

Pampa's defense, led by Brian Phelps and J.J. Mathis, held the Buffaloes to 129 yards and forced four turnovers. Phelps made 13 tackles, including a quarterback sack and a touchdown-saving stop. Mathis finished with 10 tack-

Clovis was undefeated at 2-0 before meeting up the Sandies last Friday night. AHS limited Clovis to just 86 yards in rolling to a 35-7 win. Lineman Josh Mann paced the Sandies' defense with 12 tackles, including a quarterback sack.

Canadian finished the night with 216 total yards, compared to 170 for Sanford-Fritch.

The Wildcats are on the road again this Friday night, traveling to Stinnett to take on West Texas High.

RODEO

The recent mid-season separation of seven-time world champions Jake Barnes and Clay O'Brien Cooper is apparently just temporary.

The duo is preparing to turn the world of rodeo on its collective ear next year, according to the team's agent Larry Simmons.

"They're going to win more money than they've ever won in their lives," Simmons said.

According to Simmons, O'Brien Cooper bought a house in Idaho, and also owns property in Texas Barnes, meanwhile, will cont... ue to live in Arizona. Headquarters for the team will be located in Albuquerque, N.M. No major rodeo in the country, Simmons said, is more than a four-hour drive from one of those four points, and Barnes and O'Brien Cooper plan to keep team roping horses at each of those locations, thus keeping their mounts It'll keep Barnes and O'Brien Cooper a little less road-weary, as well.

"It's going to revolutionize the sport," Simmons said.

Barnes and O'Brien Cooper still plan to compete as a team at the National Finals Rodeo. And Barnes said the team's temporary split is pretty self-explanatory.

"I just decided to come home," Barnes said. "We've got the Finals already."

Notebook Sanders sees Super Bowl rings in his future

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) - Blame Deion Sanders' mother for his settling on a mere $35 million to play for the Dallas Cowboys.

Loaded down with gold jewelry and wearing a blue pin-striped suit, Cowboys cap and a shirt collar with "Prime Time" on it, Sanders joked Monday that he could have squeezed more money out of owner Jerry be rushed into action before he was ready. Jones if his mother, Connie Knight, had quit saying she wanted her son in Dallas.

about the cornerback's ankle.

Jones said his doctors told him there were 15 players on the Cowboys who had worse ankle problems than Sanders.

But he quickly added, "I want Deion to have his physical condition in the best shape. This is not a big deal. The ankle is a non-issue for me. His tolerance for pain is well known.'

Sanders attacked any thought he should "When I step on the field, I want to be 110 percent," he said. "I'm not at full speed. I "I kept telling her, 'Mom, cool it, you're can't cut. If I'm limping on the baseball field I know what it will be in football. I know what I can't do."

Sanders, who hurt the ankle in the spring training with the Cincinnati Reds, said he will undergo arthroscopic surgery as soon as the San Francisco Giants are eliminated "My financial situation could have been from the playoff picture.

> for the Nov. 12 meeting with the defending Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers. I want the ankle to be the best it can be,

At his Monday press conference, Jones he added. "I want to give my best when I "Hopefully more than a few Super Bowls. I and Sanders addressed persisting concerns represent the Dallas Cowboys. If I score after know that."

a touchdown, I want to be able to dance and have the ankle hold up."

Cowboys players want Sanders as quick-" ly. Wide receiver Michael Irvin said, "He hurt it during baseball season, let him get it fixed during baseball season."

Sanders said he knew he wanted to be a Cowboy three weeks ago, when he saw Jones on his hotel-room television.

"That was the first time I saw in his eyes that he was really sincere," Sanders said. "That was when I made my decision. I told (agent Eugene Parker), 'Get it done. I want to be a Dallas Cowboy."

The decision was cemented last week by a three-hour phone talk with longtime friend

"That was a key conversation," Sanders said. "I can't say I've had that kind of conversation with Steve Young or Jerry Rice.'

Sanders sees Super Bowl rings in his Dallas particularly wants him on the field future. He likes the idea of having Irvin, Emmitt Smith, Troy Aikman as his teammates. The Cowboys are 2-0 already.

"I'm going to win here," Sanders said.

Sanders backed down on his previous statements that he demanded to play

"From what I saw last Monday night, they don't need me," Sanders said. "I do want to play offense. I'll do anything I can to help the Cowboys win."

Sanders said he would make Dallas his permanent home and will try to keep playng baseball with the Giants.

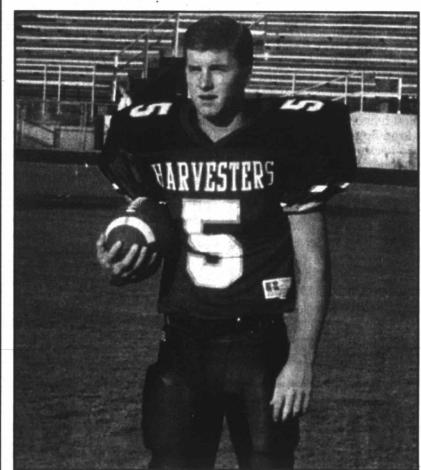

However, he admitted it could be tough going back to San Francisco.

"It will be like playing on the road again," he said. "I'll have to be certain my family will be safe and secure. I love (manager) Dusty Baker and my teammates.

There also is the matter of whether the NFL will find a cap-buster in the contract. If so, Jones gets a $2 million fine.

The deal is above reproach," Jones said. The deal will cost Dallas about $2 million a year against the cap for the next three years. Teams like the Cowboys and 49ers have gotten around this year's $37.1 million salary cap by extending contracts and deferring payments, often until 1999 when there will

Packers hang on to beat Bears

CHICAGO (AP) - The Green Bay Packers sensed another runaway victory over the Chicago Bears. Everything was working. Brett Favre was hitting his receivers, and the Packers converted their first nine third downs.

Ahead 24-7 after a first half that included a 99-yard touchdown pass from Favre to Robert Brooks, the Packers suddenly began to unravel.

They had one punt of 11 yards, Favre threw his first interception to set up a Bears TD, and a blocked punt put Chicago on the 2-yard line with a chance to go ahead.

"It was an real intense moment. We didn't let them move the ball," said Packers defensive end Reggie White, whose team held on for a 27-24 victory Monday night. "We knew they would give the ball to Rashaan Salaam, and we made the plays to stop them. That was the key to the win."

The Packers, leading 27-21 at the time, stuffed Salaam twice on the 2, watched as Erik Kramer flipped a pass out of bounds to Jeff Graham and then forced the Bears into a 20-yard field goal by Kevin Butler with nine minutes left.

"We had just scored on the series before. They stopped us a couple of times. We tried the same play twice and they stopped it and on the next play I didn't keep the ball in bounds," Kramer said.

"That was a bad series all the way around."

Green Bay then began moving the ball again on its next possession, all the way to the Chicago 12 behind two completions and a 21yard run by Dorsey Levens.

The Packers (1-1) were ready to put the victory away, but this time they fumbled the snap on a fieldgoal attempt.

Chicago had one last chance, and this time White sacked Kramer, forcing him to fumble. Packers linebacker Wayne Simmons recovered at the Bears 22 with two minutes

"Mr Reggie White. Every time we need him, he's there making a big play for us," Simmons said.

Favre, who finished with 21 completions in 37 attempts for 312 yards, made all the big plays in the first half. He hit Brooks with a 4varder and threw 15 yards to Anthony Morgan, and the Packers led 14-0.

Then he stunned the Bears with the 99-yarder to Brooks, who completely faked out Donnell Woolford, Chicago's best corner.

Spielberg, Winfrey top best-paid entertainers list; Beatles also join

By RACHEL BECK AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The Beatles may not care too much for money - but they've managed to earn enough to land a top spot on the list of highest paid entertainers

A new documentary and the first of three new music releases, including a song taped by John Lennon in 1974 that Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr added their voices to this year, will bring the band an estimated $130 million in gross income for 1994-1995, Forbes magazine

Only director Steven Spielberg and talk-show host Oprah Winfrey surpassed the Beatles in Forbes' ninth annual ranking of best-paid entertainers.

The TV deal alone should bring McCartney,

Harrison and Starr about $75 million, on top of income from the first of three new music releases by the band, the magazine says in its Sept. 25 issue.

Lennon was shot to death in 1980. The other three reunited last year to oversee their first new record in decades, The Beatles Live at the BBC, and again this year to complete Lennon's song "Free As a Bird.

It's the Beatles first time on the Forbes Top 40 highest-paid entertainers list, a survey that combines entertainers' two-year estimated gross earnings to get a more accurate assessment of overall income.

For the second consecutive year, Spielberg reigns as the highest-paid entertainer.

The 47-year-old director, who still is raking in the dough from his box-office megahit Jurassic Park, will make an estimated $285 million in 1994-95.

But Spielberg's earnings may slow down a bit in the upcoming years. He recently gave up a lucrative profit-sharing deal with Universal Studios to form DreamWorks SKG, a new Hollywood studio with partners David Geffen and Jeffrey Katzenberg.

Winfrey, who in 1993 became the first woman to ever top the list, ranked a distant second behind Spielberg, with a combined two-year take of $146

A number of other other pop-music relics who recently went back on tour also made it into the Top

The Rolling Stones came in at No. 4, with a estimated income of $121 million, while the Eagles were fifth with $95 million and Pink Floyd was seventh with $70 million. Barbra Streisand, who last year went on the tour for the first time in nearly three decades, was No. 9, at $63 million.

Filling out the Top 10: - No. 6 magician David Copperfield at $81 mil-

- No. 8 Michael Jackson, whose new HIStory album has sold about 7 million copies worldwide this year, had 1994-1995 earnings of $67 million.

— No. 10 is the highest-paid actor on the list, ing up $60 million for three of his upcoming action

Gun battle ensues at Indian occupation camp

100 MILE HOUSE, British Columbia (AP) — Another ended in gunfire, and this time it the British Privy Council.

apparently drew blood. The shootout began Monday when a pickup truck carrying at least two Indians hit an explosive device on a road near the camp on Gustafsen Lake where the Royal Canadian Mounted Police has forbidden passage, police.

Sgt. Peter Montague said. The people in the truck bailed out and opened fire on Mounties in an armored personnel carrier. Police returned the gunfire, Montague said.

The shootout lasted about two hours and several hundred rounds of ammunition were fired, he said.

A man in the camp was reported missing and may have been hit by rifle fire of unknown origin, Montague said. A woman who reportedly was hit in the arm refused to leave the camp and was treated there, he said.

Afterward, a Shuswap Nation elder was allowed to enter the camp alone and brought out two tribesmen who were arrested.

No one was reported injured in six previous shooting incidents at the camp.
