Bosnian forces agree to Serb state

GENEVA (AP) — In an "important milestone" toward peace in the Balkans, the former Yugoslav republics agreed today to create a state within Bosnia for the rebel Serbs while maintaining the country's unity.

The deal, reached after a day of U.S.-sponsored talks, was a major concession to the Bosnian Serbs, while also meeting the Muslim-led Bosnian government's demand that Bosnia remain a single country.

There was no mention of a cease-fire in the 3 1/2-year-old war, and it was unknown whether the agreement would mean an end to NATO's 9-day-old bombing campaign against Bosnian Serbs.

U.S. mediator Richard Holbrooke earlier had disavowed any connection between the talks and the bombings.

At a news conference today, he called the agreement for recognition of Bosnia's international borders "an important milestone in the search for peace." He stressed that "significant differences remain," especially regarding how to divvy up the country and what kind of ties the Bosnian Serb state would be able to forge with Serbia.

"Clearly much remains to be done," Holbrooke said.

The agreement was reached after talks among the foreign ministers of Bosnia, Croatia and Serb-led Yugoslavia, who were to report back to their capitals tonight. Negotiations between the parties and the major powers trying to end the war were to resume next week in Geneva. Yugoslavia was negotiating on behalf of the Bosnian Serbs.

The Bosnian Serbs rebelled against the republic's 1992 decision to secede from Yugoslavia and have captured some two-thirds of the country since then. The goal of Serbian nationalists has been to create a "Greater Serbia" by joining Serb-held lands in Bosnia and Croatia with Serbia.

European Union negotiator Carl Bildt said that, under the deal, Bosnia will include "two democratic entities," with the Muslim-led Bosnian government controlling 51 percent and the Bosnian Serbs 49 percent.

"This territorial proposal is open for adjustment by mutual agreement," according to a joint statement agreed to by the foreign ministers and distributed after the talks.

"Both entities will have the right to establish parallel special relationships with neighboring countries, consistent with the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Bosnia-Herzegovina," the statement added.

Bosnia's ambassador to Washington, Sven Alkalaj, said that meant "Bosnia stays within its internationally recognized borders, and Bosnian Serbs cannot join their territory with Serbia."

"It is a concession to the Serbs but it leads toward peace," he told The Associated Press.

Asked what kind of "special relationship" would be allowed, Holbrooke said that would have to be worked out at future talks.

He said: "There is nothing in this plan that would suggest in anyway shape or form that Bosnia-Herzegovina would be divided into two countries. On the contrary ... it is now accepted that Bosnia-Herzegovina is one country within its borders."

PAMPA — Pampa High School counselor Leslie Koetting says she feels "lucky" that the school's Student Assistance Program hadn't received any funding from the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse for the past year.

TCADA pulled grants funding from grants last week from a dozen statewide programs working to prevent alcohol and drug abuse in Texas.

One of those programs — the Workers Assistance Program — helped the school get their drug and alcohol program off the ground with a four-year grant.

WAP also provided further assistance in the past, but Koetting said since she came to the school in 1992, WAP has been used only minimally.

TCADA has been accused of mismanaging funds and had its budget cut from $112 million to $95 million by the state Legislature.

PAMPA — The DEW Line Squadron of the Confederate Air Force will host an open house and static aircraft display Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Perry Lefors Field.

There also will be militia for sale.

The event is open to the general public. There will be no admission charged.

The Confederate Air Force is a patriotic, non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of World War II aircraft. Members of other aviation groups are also expected to participate.

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The 127,000 inmates who call the Texas prison system home will be joining all other Texas residents in paying state sales taxes on snacks.

Signs are going up at prison commissaries warning of the tax burden beginning Oct. 1.

The new tax is expected to raise more than $500,000 for the state's general revenue fund.

The tax on snack food like candy, chips and soft drinks has been absent since 1961 for state prisoners and state hospital patients. The Legislature, however, now has changed that to include the prison commissary sales which totalled $38.5 million last year.

"I'm sure it sets well with the people of Texas to see inmates paying the same taxes as the rest of us," James A. Collins, executive director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, said today. "Besides, doing away with the exemption simplifies our bookkeeping."

Baker Star Readers

Jeanne Mitchell, in photo at left, of Altrusa International Inc. of Pampa, hands out balloons to first and second grade students at Baker Elementary School. Altrusa kicked off its Baker Star Reading program by announcing to the children the awards they will receive when they improve their reading scores. The top prizes will be T-shirts. Students who improve their reading skills on their first try will get to ride on the Altrusa float in the Christmas parade. Among other Altrusans attending were Vernell Houska, Glydene Shelton, Dorla McAndrew, Mary Wilson, Brenda Tucker and guest Jo Ann Shackelford.

Loralee Cooley, Pampa's own professional story spinner, provided entertainment by reading the students a story about a frog who fell in love with a mouse. In photo below, Isset Solis and Eliza Mungia, both first graders and students of Dannie Prock, enjoy the story told to them by Cooley.

Hispanic Caucus wants Amarillo judge ousted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus are seeking the ouster of a Texas district judge who ordered an Amarillo woman of Mexican descent to speak English to her 5-year-old daughter.

In a letter Thursday to the executive director of the Texas State Commission on Judicial Conduct, the 11 lawmakers expressed "outrage" over the Aug. 16 ruling of State District Judge Samuel Kiser.

"We request that the Texas State Commission on Judicial Conduct authorize formal proceedings for removal of Judge Kiser," they wrote.

"Denying a mother's right to speak to her daughter in whatever language she chooses raises serious constitutional questions," they added. "We are concerned that Judge Kiser has taken excessive liberty in his interpretation of the law. It appears that he has allowed his personal prejudices to influence his judgment."

Also Thursday, Mary Helen Berlanga, a member of the State Board of Education denounced Kiser's ruling, saying, "This action condemns both parents and children for speaking and hearing the native language of a proud and respected segment of our society."

"If any language is perpetuated as inferior, the culture which is represented by that language will also suffer the stigma of inferiority," Ms. Berlanga said.

Kiser didn't immediately return a telephone message left at his Amarillo office. Nor did a spokesman for the Texas

Commission on Judicial Conduct.

But he issued a statement on Thursday in which he apologized for his "poor choice of words." He said he would relay the apology to the Amarillo Hispanic community at a news conference this morning in Amarillo.

"After prayerful consideration, I realize my choice of words has hurt the feelings of the Hispanic community," Kiser said in the statement.

"The order signed by me was an attempt to explain the important duty of parents in teaching their children English as well as their own native language so they can be truly bilingual," the judge said in the statement.

An Amarillo attorney said the mother, Marta Laureano, welcomes attempts to have Kiser taken off the bench. "She does feel that the judge should be removed," said Mark Laboada, who will represent Ms. Laureano in her upcoming appeal of Kiser's ruling.

The controversy comes amid heightened interest by a growing number of members of Congress and Republican presidential candidates to designate English the nation's official language.

Next month, a House committee will hold hearings on the official English drive, which is being criticized as immigrant-bashing by Hispanic-rights groups and others. Monday, Republican presidential frontrunner Bob Dole announced his support for making English the country's official language, joining several other GOP candidates.

Stephanopoulos faces charges for leaving accident scene

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House senior adviser George Stephanopoulos faces charges of leaving the scene of an accident and driving with an expired permit after allegedly crunching the fender of a parked car outside a Georgetown restaurant.

Stephanopoulos, 34, was arrested at 11:45 p.m. Thursday, according to Police Lt. Peter Wyskoczka.

He was taken to the Second District Police Headquarters where he was booked and then released a couple of hours later.

Police spokesman Joe Gentile said today that Stephanopoulos struck another vehicle as he was leaving his parking space, "causing minor damage."

He described the accident as a "fender-bender" and said Stephanopoulos was scheduled to appear in court on Sept. 18.

Gentile added that there was "no evidence of alcohol."

In an interview outside the police station, Stephanopoulos said he was at dinner in Georgetown and was parallel parked when he brushed the car in front of him as he tried to leave the parking space. He would not elaborate.

Stephanopoulos did say: "I'll never let my driver's license expire again."

President Clinton's press secretary, Mike McCurry, told reporters he had talked to Stephanopoulos earlier today and, "It was not the best way to begin Friday."

The mishap happened in front of the Saloun restaurant in Georgetown.

Stephanopoulos, who lives in the Dupont Circle area of Washington, had recently returned from a trip to Greece.

Michael Lewis, the owner of the other car, was quoted in today's editions of The Washington Post as saying, "The police said when he hit my car, he was about to take off."

Clinton's former press secretary, Dee Dee Myers, co-host of the CNBC show "Equal Time," was arrested in the city's Adams-Morgan neighborhood on June 27 after driving on the wrong side of the street after police ordered her to move her vehicle, which was pointed in the wrong direction.

Anti-abortion group evicted from its office

RICHARDSON (AP) — The national office of Operation Rescue must abandon the headquarters it set up next to a north Dallas abortion clinic.

However, the abortion protest group will not have to pay $3,300 in unpaid rent, a jury has ruled.

According to the lease, Operation Rescue was to pay $600 per month, beginning in March. But the Rev. Flip Benham, who heads Operation Rescue, said landlord Warren A. Gilbert Jr. promised that the anti-abortion group could use the space for free until the abortion clinic's lease expired.

Gilbert said no such offer was made. There is no mention of such an arrangement in the lease.

"We got evicted, and yet they required us to pay no rent. In other words, they knew the contract Mr. Gilbert signed was valid and that he had to live by it," Benham told The Associated Press.

The jury returned the verdict Thursday night after two hours of deliberation in the court of Justice of the Peace Martha Ritter of Richardson.

"They evicted us for the bigger issue of us being next to the abortion mill. They felt this was too much," Benham said.

Little lost girl found

A little lost girl was reunited with her mother Thursday after searchers combed a southside neighborhood for two hours looking for her.

Nina Heird, 3, reappeared in the 1000 block of South Faulkner and told searchers, which included police officers, deputies, neighbors, animal control officers and investigators, she followed a neighborhood dog into his doggie door and didn't know how to get out until she saw the dog crawl back through his door.

Nina's mom called police about 11:25 a.m. Thursday to report the child's disappearance, said Connie Lockridge of Pampa Police Department.

The girl was found at 1:22 p.m.

She was reported to be a friendly, outgoing child wearing pink shorts, a blue, pink and white stripe blouse. Her black, curly hair was in a pony tail.

Officers set up a command post on South Faulkner and called for a department tracking dog to look for the child, Lockridge said.

Also contacted for assistance were utility company and roofing company employees working in the area.

House upholds base closing list

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House rejected a bid today to throw out a base closure list, effectively making the list law and setting in motion the closing of 79 military bases nationwide.

In a 343-75 vote, the House rejected a proposal by Rep. Frank Tejeda, D-Texas, to overturn the recommendations of the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission. Because both the House and Senate would have to vote against the list to keep it from taking effect, today's action means the list becomes law, said commission spokesman Wade Nelson.

"That was it. It's over now," said Tejeda.

The outcome of the vote, he said, "was a foregone conclusion."

With today's action, the military has two years from July 13 - the date President Clinton approved the list - to begin closing bases and six years to complete the closures.

Members from districts hard hit by the closure recommendations accused the commission of succumbing to political pressure in compiling its list. But districts helped or not affected by the recommendations outnumber those hit by closures, so Tejeda's proposal had little chance of passage.

Kelly Air Force Base, a major aircraft repair base adjacent to Tejeda's district, is among the facilities slated for closure. "I do not believe that closure of Kelly Air Force Base is in the best interest of our national security," he said.

Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, whose district includes Kelly in San Antonio, called the closure process "a sham."

Others criticizing the closure list represent districts around McClellan Air Force Base in California, another maintenance base.

"I know that what I am engaging in here today is probably under the rubric of a primal scream," said Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif.

The list's defenders said the Pentagon must trim overhead to pay for weapons modernization and readiness in the next century.

"Reluctantly, I realize with the growing pressures on defense resources we simply cannot afford to keep all the installations and facilities open that I believe our military may need again," said Rep. Floyd Spence, R-S.C., chairman of the National Security Committee.

Clinton approved the list only after angrily criticizing the commission's recommendation to close Kelly and McClellan over the Pentagon's objections. At Clinton's direction, the Air Force has put together a privatization plan designed to enable Sacramento, Calif., and San Antonio to preserve most of the jobs that otherwise would have been lost.

Replicans accused Clinton of a blatant political move to secure votes in Texas and California, two states considered critical to his re-election chances.

"What really outrages me ... is to see this president play partisan politics with the lives of people in the military," said Rep. Curt Weldon, R-Pa.

In all, the commission recommended closing 79 bases and realigning 26 others, for anticipated savings of $19.3 billion over 20 years. The commission said its closure plan will save $323 million more than Clinton's original closure proposal.

California stands to lose 19,372 military and civilian jobs, the commission said. Another 22,898 "indirect" jobs would be lost at dry cleaners, fast food restaurants and other business that depend on bases for customers. Texas would lose 13,381 civilian and military jobs from the closures, plus 19,476 indirect jobs.

Nationwide, this fourth round of closures would result in a net loss of 43,742 military and civilian jobs and 49,823 indirect jobs for a total loss of 93,565, the commission estimated. The nationwide impact appears mild in comparison with the Texas and California losses because some base closures will move jobs from one state to another. Oklahoma, Utah and Georgia, for example, stand to gain jobs.

Education board members divided on textbooks

AUSTIN (AP) - Some members of the State Board of Education, saying they aren't bound by the Legislature's intent in the new education law, want to continue screening school textbook content.

"What (legislators) did was put some things in the law," said Donna Ballard of The Woodlands.

"If their intent was not transcribed into law, then I can do with that law whatever I please as long as I am in the confines of the law, even if it doesn't always meet their intent. If they weren't able to transcribe into law their intent, then I don't have to follow their intent," she said.

The new state education law, passed this year, changes the textbook selection process. Lawmakers sharply curtailed the board's authority to select books. Under the new law's local-control philosophy, local districts would determine what constitutes objectionable material.

But Ms. Ballard and some other board members elected with the support of religious conservatives said they believe they still have authority to review textbooks for content they consider objectionable.

Board member Randy Stevenson of Tyler took issue Thursday with state Sen. Bill

Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, the law's author, who wrote Education Commissioner Mike Moses that the Legislature intended to limit the board's role in textbook selection.

Ratliff said the board is limited to ensuring books are free from factual errors, meet physical specifications and contain essential elements that Texas children are to be taught.

"He's just one man among many men," Stevenson said of Ratliff. "I don't see where Senate Bill 1 (the reform law) prohibits us from adding to our rules for textbook selection. We are not restricted from doing this."

PROPS to have annual 'Fun Fly' this weekend

Radio-controlled model plane flyers and builders from Texas, New Mexico, Kansas, Oklahoma and Colorado are expected in Pampa this weekend for the 15th Annual "Fun Fly" sponsored by the Pampa Radio Operated Plane Society (PROPS).

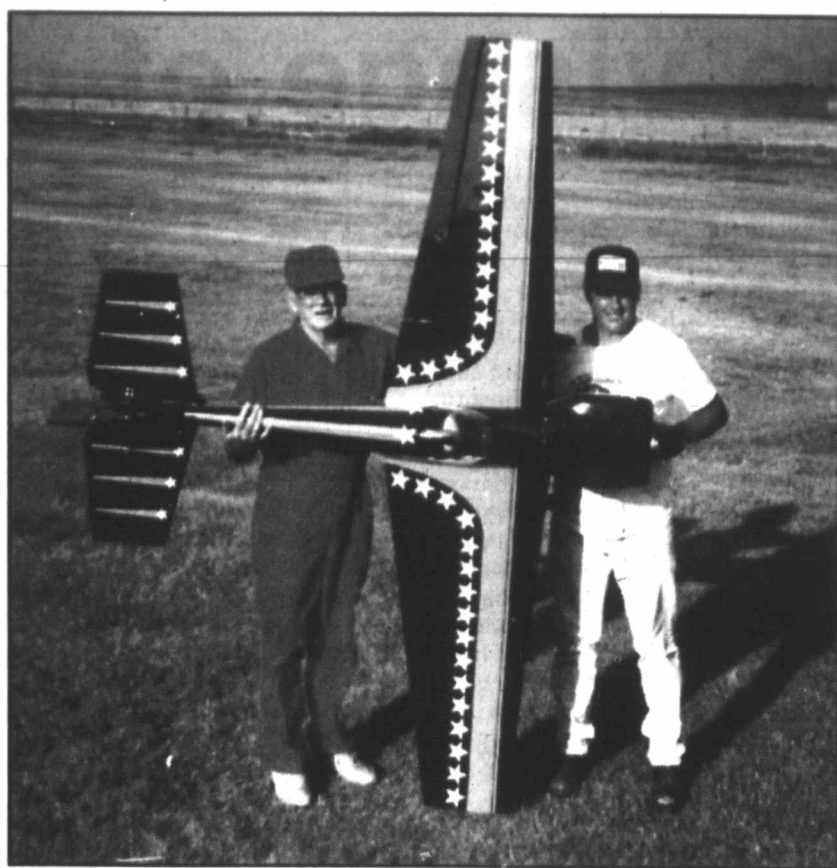

The "Fun Fly" will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Sunday at the PROPS Air Field, located approximately 1 1/2 miles east of Loop 171. Direction signs will be posted instructing spectators and participants how to get to the field.

Six events are scheduled during the two-day program, including a Pony Express Relay Race, Bomb Drop, Props Twist, Musical Pylons, Timed Flight and Show Boat. Trophies will be awarded to the top three flyers in each event.

Those participating in the event also will have items to sell or trade.

Admission is free, and the public is invited to bring their families out to enjoy two days of action-packed model airplane competition and aerobatics.

A concession stand will be at the field. For more information, call Robbye Dildy at (806) 665-1311, evenings.

State briefs

Judge allows confession in body parts case

EL PASO (AP) — Police acted properly in obtaining a confession from a man facing trial in the slaying of his wife, whose severed body parts were found scattered across the city, a judge has ruled.

Following a hearing Thursday morning, state District Judge David Guaderrama denied a request by defense attorneys to suppress James Patrick Bradley's confession, which the lawyers claimed had been coerced.

The judge also denied a defense request to disallow evidence gathered during a Feb. 21 search of Bradley's home, a probe Bradley had authorized.

"I find that the consent given by Mr. Bradley was freely and voluntarily given," said Guaderrama.

Lead defense attorney Gary Hill said he wasn't surprised by the outcome. District Attorney Jaime Esparza left the courtroom without commenting on the judge's decision.

Lotto Texas winners seeking rule clarification

AUSTIN (AP) — Edgar "Bubba" Groce says with a straight face that he is in worse financial shape than he was before winning $19.4 million playing Lotto Texas.

That may sound a little drastic, but if Groce and his wife were to die, he wouldn't be kidding.

Groce, who is 59 and has been hospitalized for ailments related to high blood pressure, said Thursday that he failed to set up a trust or partnership before claiming his winnings.

By taking such action he would have protected his children and grandchildren from the possibility of having to pay more than $4 million in estate taxes that would be due immediately if he and his wife were to die.

Now, Groce, who claimed his jackpot in August 1994, says he wants the Texas Lottery Commission to clarify a rule that he says would allow him to redo his financial planning.

O.J. jury sent back to hotel for another long weekend

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson's defense lawyers wanted to rest, deciding his testimony was unnecessary to answer a state case in "shambles." The prosecution would not let them.

Keeping jurors waiting in a hotel they want desperately to leave, prosecutors derailed the defense's last day in Simpson's murder trial. They promised to file an emergency appeal today of a ruling that jurors would be told that Detective Mark Fuhrman would be "unavailable" to testify.

When the judge summoned jurors into the courtroom Thursday after they spent the day in a holding room, he broke the news that they probably wouldn't be back until Monday. Some clenched their jaws. Some frowned or were grim-faced.

Today's agenda called for a no-frills procedural hearing.

The last time the 12 jurors and two alternates heard testimony was just after lunch Wednesday. After eight months of being sequestered, they have repeatedly sent notes to Judge

Lance Ito to tell him they aren't to use Ito's words — "happy campers." While the jurors sat and stewed, lawyers dedicated large portions of the day to standing and stewing. And the judge was stewing back. Attorneys retired to Ito's chambers for the second day in a row to exchange heated words.

Meanwhile, a whole host of developments unfolded. The most significant was the defense's decision not to call Simpson to the stand.

The defense believes Simpson's testimony is not needed given the damage to the prosecution's case from Fuhrman's taped comments about racism and police misconduct. Fuhrman on Wednesday invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

"With the (prosecution) case in shambles, this just wasn't necessary," defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey told The Associated Press. "I didn't see what was left to be gained, when you have the chief witness, a law enforcement officer, refusing to testify because he might incriminate himself."

Department hears testimony on homeowners exemption

AUSTIN (AP) — A state insurance regulator is considering whether family members should be able to sue each other and collect damages under homeowners insurance policies.

Don Switzer, special assistant to State Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer, heard testimony Thursday on a petition calling for the repeal of an insurance rule that prohibits injured family members from being covered under homeowners policies. The petition was filed by Tyler attorney Blake Bailey, who says the state's current insurance rules penalize family members who are injured through the negligence of another family member.

Under current rules, a homeowner can buy a policy to cover property damage and unintentional bodily harm that occurs on his property, but family members are excluded from the policy.

Insurance companies say the rule is necessary to keep premiums down and protect them from those who would conspire to defraud companies.

"It is bad public policy for insurers to be the source of funds for intra-family lawsuits, which were never intended to be covered by the insurance contract," said Jerry Johns, president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service Inc.

"Insurers have never charged premiums sufficient to cover intra-family lawsuits because the true intent of insurance is not to provide protection for this kind of loss," Johns said.

The Texas Department of Insurance staff agreed with the companies.

The staff recommended the "intra-family tort exclusion," which was adopted in 1990, be maintained in part because rates would rise if it were repealed and because the rule does not prevent family members from suing each other, it just keeps them from collecting from insurance companies.

Bailey, however, said the rule was unnecessary. He said companies wrongly envision being forced to pay claims on cases of child abuse or domestic violence. But those cases are not covered under homeowners policies as a matter of state law.

"A homeowners policy does not cover intentional infliction of bodily harm," he said, adding that claims of emotional distress were also off limits because only property damage or bodily injury are covered by the policies.

He and his supporters also rejected the idea rates would change significantly.

And with about 4.5 percent of insurance costs going to personal injury claims, he said he doubted that even a large movement to defraud the insurance industry "would be so rampant that it would cause any significant percentage change in the costs of homeowners insurance."

Faulkner speaks on out on 'Oprah'

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Shannon Faulkner says the stress, media attention and death threats that came with becoming The Citadel's first woman cadet nearly drove her to a nervous breakdown, and her weight up to 200 pounds.

All the while, she told Oprah Winfrey on Thursday, some of her lawyers and supporters seemed more interested in getting her into the all-male, state-supported military school than in her well-being.

"I am becoming aware of a lot of things I was disillusioned about," she said on the nationally syndicated talk show. "I'm starting to realize that a lot of people didn't care specifically what was best for me."

One of her lawyers, Suzanne Coe, told The Greenville News that there is no friction between her and Ms. Faulkner. "With litigation in itself there's going to be emotional difficulty between all members of the team at times," she said.

She dropped out of The Citadel Aug. 18 after less than a week, citing the stress of her 2 1/2-year court fight and her isolation as the only woman cadet. Twenty-three other cadets also dropped out of the freshman class that week.

She was taken to the infirmary with heat exhaustion the first day of the rigorous drills and marching called "hell week" and never returned to duty.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Austin American-Statesman on concealed handgun ruling: Whether it's the state's new concealed handgun law or the legal interpretation of it that is the more stupid, it amounts to the same thing: an absurd situation.

Attorney General Dan Morales has ruled that under the law, which goes into effect Jan. 1, guns may be banned from certain buses, posted private property and county parks. However, cities do not have the authority to ban concealed handguns from their parks.

The law, or at least its interpretation, sets up a wonderfully ridiculous tableau wherein the family preparing for a weekend picnic has to decide whether to include the concealed handgun depending on the park location.

Inflicting reality on that scenario, it isn't likely to happen. But it points up the silliness that often goes on under the guise of making law.

Counties may ban concealed handguns from their parks, but cities are specifically prohibited from doing the same.

Why the law was so drawn, or so interpreted, is anybody's guess. Maybe it shouldn't be surprising that this law is a mess, considering all the emotion expended on it.

Midland Reporter-Telegram on school discipline:

For years Texans have complained that the biggest problem in the public schools is a lack of discipline. Now legislators have handed teachers a state law giving them authority to help maintain discipline in classrooms and on school campuses.

No doubt some people will think the rewritten Texas Education Code goes too far in requiring a one-year expulsion for students who bring a gun to school or those who assault other students or bring other weapons, drugs or alcohol to school. There is no question that the rewritten code takes a "get-tough" approach to student crime and violence.

But that approach was needed. One only has to look at the number of incidences of students carrying guns or knives to school or the number of assaults of students or teachers to realize that a school campus is a microcosm of society in general, and as such, violence there is increasing dramatically.

Of course, schools are not intended to be violent places. That's where teachers are supposed to educate and students to learn. When criminals or violent students unleash their vengeance on teachers or other students, the process of education breaks down. Regaining that control is imperative.

The visage of pure, cold evil

An out-of-town friend expressed a desire to see Washington, D.C.'s Holocaust Memorial, and so, despite some reluctance to subject myself to the emotional stomach punch such a visit would entail, I agreed.

When the memorial was still in the planning stages several years ago, I was skeptical about it. Does a memorial to a European nightmare belong alongside the monuments to American history and institutions? I wasn't sure. And I was concerned lest non-Jews see the memorial as some sort of special pleading about Jewish victimization - in an era when we have a belly full of this and that group claiming victim status.

But the finished memorial transcends such concerns and establishes beyond doubt that Washington is a proper site for recording, forever, what human beings are capable of at their most cruel and depraved. It is fitting to have the Holocaust Memorial here because one's overwhelming emotion upon emerging into the Washington sunshine after experiencing several hours of that horror is humble gratitude for having been born at this time in this place.

As for special pleading, after viewing the mind-numbing evidence of the genocide against Europe's Jews, it's hard to imagine anyone arguing that the Holocaust isn't so special and everybody's got troubles. Besides, the memorial chronicles the genocide against all of Nazism's victims: Jews, political dissenters, the Polish elite, the handicapped (there is a photo of a beautiful, mentally retarded 8-year-old boy taken just moments before he was shot), homosexuals, Gypsies and prisoners of war.

Mona Charen

It staggers the mind to think that most of the world declined to believe Hitler's genocidal intentions - though he had spelled them out clearly in Mein Kampf. Look at the photos from 1933 of German women being paraded through the streets wearing signs saying "I am the biggest pig in town and have defiled myself with a Jew." Or consider Hitler's remark, before the Final Solution began, "Who now speaks of the fate of the Armenians?" But more shattering than the actual box car visitors walk through, more shattering than the model of the gas chambers showing hundreds of men, women and children herded naked into a room and then gassed for 20 minutes until dead, and more shattering than the photos of mounds of corpses 30 feet high are the personal stories.

The memorial contains videotaped testimony from thousands of Holocaust survivors. Near the end of the tour, you can sit and watch them tell their tales.

One woman spoke of how she, her mother and her sister were hidden by a devout Polish Catholic woman. In deference to the mother's religious sensibilities, the Polish rescuer bought a special pot and spoon in which to cook all of her charges food, so that it would be kosher. All three women survived the war. But when they returned to the village to thank their benefactress, she hushed them away, saying, "Don't come here. Don't let my neighbors see you. My Polish neighbors would never forgive me for saving Jews." Indeed, in 1946, there was an anti-Jewish pogrom in Poland, sparked by fear that Jews who survived the Holocaust would attempt to return to their homes and reclaim the property that had been stolen from them.

Another woman told her story of arriving at Auschwitz. Jammed into a cattle car with a hundred other people for several days with no food, no water and no sanitation, they arrived at the camp and were hurried out of the car by Jewish prisoners. This woman was traveling with her mother, her sister and her sister's young baby, Danny. One of the prisoners in a striped uniform whispered to the mother in Yiddish that women with children would die today. Without hesitation, the mother made her way to her daughter and told her, "Listen, they say women with children will be given easier treatment. Let me take Danny because I don't think I could stand hard labor." Without waiting for her daughter to comprehend or protest, she took her grandchild in her arms and made her way to the line headed for the gas chambers. She turned only to call out to her other daughter, "Take care of your sister."

Carlin and the politically obscene

In the early 1970s, comedian George Carlin performed a routine concerning seven off-color words you couldn't say on television. It was fitting, then, that the almost-anything-goes cable network HBO had Carlin host its "20 Years of Comedy" retrospective.

At times during the 90-minute program, which featured clips from such comics as Robin Williams, the obscenities flew thick and fast. That must have brought a certain satisfaction to Carlin, who deems himself not just an eclectic comedian but a polemicist of sorts. I say that with certain trepidation because his beliefs are so loony as not to be taken seriously. But he is serious, and he's using his comedic star power to promote them before an entertainment media that can't seem to get enough of his viciousness.

Carlin was raised Catholic, but he has long been contemptuous of his boyhood faith. On Tom Snyder's recent CBS show, he said, "(I) got away from (religion) as fast as I could. ... I feel very comfortable in the universe. I know exactly what's going on, and I don't need mysteries and superstitions."

Lenin wrote that "we must combat religion - that is the ABC of all materialism." Even he might be embarrassed by Carlin's anti-religious fervor. In a 1990 interview with E!, the entertainment cable channel, Carlin asserted that "Christians, especially fundamentalist Christians and fundamentalist Catholics... are afraid of sex, they are afraid of... new approaches and new ideas, so they want to tell other people what to think." The next year, Carlin resumed the attack, telling The Boston Globe that Christianity was "abominable" and adding, "Christians and Jews believe that religion is indispensable to morality. That's a falsehood. That's what drives these people to try and change everyone else."

Carlin is no fan of the free market, either. To Snyder, Carlin remarked that "besides religion, I think the belief in private property is also a very crippling thing." On Whoopi Goldberg's talk show in 1992, he opined, "I think property is theft. I don't think anybody owns anything 'cause when you die, it's still there. ... All this property stuff is a way of keeping power."

Perhaps Carlin's most memorable rant on the topic had to do with - no kidding - country clubs and golf. In the early '90s, he performed a monologue that declared, in part, "I got an idea where we can put some low-cost housing - golf courses. (Golf is a) meaningless, mindless, arrogant, elitist, racist game. ... I say it's time to reclaim that valuable land from the wealthy and turn it over to the homeless."

Discussing the golf course monologue in 1992 with Goldberg, Carlin expounded, "I like to think in symbols, (and) I see golf courses as an arrogant symbol. ... Look at all (that) land. The ball is (very small). What do these pinheads need with all that land to play with a little ball? ... The monologue was a screed against the arrogance of the wealthy, that they think they have the right to appropriate all of (that) land, use all that water..."

If you're as cranky as Carlin is, there's just about nothing right with the world. In 1991, he told The Washington Post, "People talk about a breach of public civility. What public civility? We electute retarded people in this country. We execute minors. We just bombed and killed 100,000 people for nothing (in the Gulf War). Oh, well. This country is doomed eventually; I'm just glad I don't have an emotional stake in it."

The next year, he opined on Sonya Friedman's CNN show that Ross Perot "could be... a wonderful dress rehearsal for our fascist leader who comes from the wings on a white horse, about whom we know little, who has all the answers - because there's a deterioration of people's lives in this country... and we want a fixer."

Some defend Carlin as the mellow guy whose musings deal with such whimsical matters as the non-existence of blue food. But Carlin demands to be taken seriously. Four years ago, he declared to The Boston Globe, "The sociopolitical humor in my work is stronger now than it has ever been. ... I work on things that will always be true - a woman's right to do what she wants with her body, the right of oppressed people to have more of the pie and be free of harassment, the warlike quality of American business and the falsehoods behind America in general."

How far does that kind of ugliness, coupled with anti-Christian bigotry, get you in the entertainment world? It gets Carlin endless celebrity interviews where no one dares challenge him - and his own recently canceled sitcom on Fox.

Government shutdown showdown

By now, the bluster and bravado have drawn the lines for Congress and President Clinton: Before they're finished struggling over the budget there's bound to be some sort of shutdown in the government.

How much of it, how long - and who, if anyone, really suffers are answers to come in the next month or so. It's happened before, when Republicans were in the White House and Democrats controlled Congress. Those shutdowns were partial, brief and pointless.

They didn't save money; they cost money. In the current situation, the opening phase of the 1996 presidential campaign hardens both the rhetoric and the positions. Clinton is running, Sen. Bob Dole is challenging, and Speaker Newt Gingrich hasn't precluded a run, so the leaders who will decide what happens all have political points to score, and perhaps underscore.

As when Dole, the Senate majority leader, said Republicans will fight, not settle. "This will not be an autumn of compromise," he said, declaring that the Republicans will win revolutionary change vote by vote, bill by bill.

They may also have to do it veto by veto, since at least six of the 13 bills that will appropriate funds to run the government in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 are on the White House list to be rejected unless they are changed to meet Clinton's objections.

And that phase comes only after Congress settles on final versions and sends them to the White House; only one is near that point now.

Walter Mears
AP Special Correspondent

Eleven appropriations bills have passed the House, seven the Senate; one is about ready to go to the White House. Given that, and the veto warnings, the chance that the government will be fully financed by the end of the month is nonexistent. The way out is to adopt a resolution that keeps finances going at prior levels, or at some point acceptable to both political sides.

Continuing resolutions have financed at least part of the government in all but two of the past 15 years. Those stirred trouble too. President Bush vetoed one in 1990 because he said Congress was trying to spend too much money, and that led to a federal shutdown that ran over a holiday weekend, closing national parks and monuments, but without a real impact on federal operations.

A compromise produced a settlement, and everybody went back to work, with back pay for federal employees who had lost any. Similar shutdowns occurred three times during the Reagan years, none protracted, none saving money.

But to get there this time, there will have to be at least a measure of accord between the Republicans, bent on sharp cuts in federal social spending, and the White House, determined to protect those programs, particularly in fields like education.

Clinton said he is sticking to his position, at the same time dismissing "some who say that there should be no compromise this autumn," meaning Dole, as obstructionist.

"We can do all this in a balanced way if we'll work for common ground with common sense," he said during a campaign-style swing in California.

Back at the White House, his spokesman said it's up to the Republicans in Congress to decide which it will be, "whether or not there is going to be a train wreck, a series of vetoes, a period of uncertainty for the American people."

While the administration has been making well-advertised standby plans for a partial shutdown of government, Clinton said there's no reason to have it happen. "There just needs to be... a little more common sense, a little more working together," he said Wednesday.

Republicans counter that the outcome is up to Clinton. "I think the key at this point is to get a clear signal as to what they expect to do with the appropriations bills," said Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Actually, the signals are clear on both sides. Clear and conflicting. They will, in the end, have to be settled. And this phase of budget maneuvering prefaces one in which the stakes, and risk, will be far greater. Unless Congress raises the $4.9 trillion federal debt ceiling by mid-November, the government would run out of borrowing power and effectively go broke.

Packwood bows to pressure, resigns from Senate

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bob Packwood said after he announced he would resign that "an immense weight has been lifted." He might have been speaking for the entire Senate, spared the agony of an expulsion vote and now free to concentrate on the crush of legislative business at hand.

The grave sexual and official misconduct allegations against the Oregon Republican, festering for nearly three years, came to resolution within 24 hours. Packwood delivered his tearful resignation address less than a day after vowing to fight a unanimous ethics panel recommendation that he be expelled.

Just when Packwood would actually leave, however, was uncertain.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., interviewed Thursday night on CNN's Larry King Live program, estimated Packwood would remain 30 to 60 days. During that time Packwood might tie up loose ends, stay on as nominal chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and "certainly vote to represent his state."

Glum, red-eyed colleagues praised Packwood on Thursday for his loyalty, integrity and legislative skills, and some questioned the severity of the judgment against him.

"This is a moment for grieving," said Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz.

The warm floor tributes from Packwood intimates, including Dole, contrasted dramatically with the Senate Ethics Committee' blistering assessment of the senator's behavior.

The committee concluded that he made unwelcome advances toward 17 women; tried to reduce his alimony obligations by improperly asking people with legislative interests to hire his estranged wife; and obstructed the committee probe by altering his diaries.

The diaries matter was forwarded to the Justice Department. Committee Chairman Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said the changes Packwood made as he anticipated a subpoena were "clearly illegal" and could carry a prison sentence.

Packwood had denied that he altered his original taped diaries. He acknowledged he altered copies of his diary tapes after he gave the originals to his lawyers. He said the tapes contained "personally or politically embarrassing information" and he feared they would be leaked.

Packwood, 62, chose in his resignation speech to ignore the recent unpleasantness and discuss the highlights of his 27-year career. He talked of "friendships beyond count," legislative battles lost and won, "the lonely years" championing abortion rights.

"I leave this institution not with malice but with love," he said, struggling to maintain his composure. "Good luck. Godspeed."

As Finance chairman, Packwood was to have overseen his party's autumn drive for fundamental changes in social and tax policy. Now that job will fall to someone else, possibly Sen. William Roth, R-Del.

"I'd love to be here for the Medicare, Medicaid, welfare and tax battles, but no one is indispensable in this process. Some may think they are, but no one is," Packwood said in an interview after announcing his decision.

In Oregon, candidates were lining up to run in a special election to be called by Democratic Gov. John Kitzhaber. Minority Senate Democrats, demoralized by seven retirement announcements, saw a rare political opportunity.

The sentimental floor accolades for Packwood coincided with the release of the 10,000-page record on which the committee based its recommendation, and a lengthy report concluding the allegations in all three areas were true.

The women who were targets of Packwood's aggressive physical advances — ranging from staff aides and campaign workers to an elevator operator, a restaurant hostess and an aspiring speech writer — told the panel similar tales of intimidation.

McConnell said Packwood in at least 18 cases "used physical coercion against his victims, frightening them and causing them severe emotional distress. This cannot be tolerated."

He said he personally offered the expulsion motion because Packwood's moves to impede the probe displayed "utter contempt and disregard for the Senate's constitutional self-disciplinary process."

McConnell and Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev., the senior Democrat on the panel, rejected Packwood's attempt to depict himself as a persecuted victim who had been denied due process.

Bryan said panel members "became increasingly appalled and shocked by the overwhelming evidence that began to pile up." McConnell said the press and public failed to recognize the gravity of the charges.

Only 15 senators have ever been expelled — one in 1797 and 14 during the Civil War for supporting the Confederacy.

This week's denouement was bittersweet for feminists, who had worked with Packwood on abortion rights and other causes for decades. The only female senator to speak on the floor Thursday gave him a generous sendoff.

"We are complete with moles and warts and our own problems," said Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif. She said she hoped the Senate would abide by advice her father once gave her: "Don't let a man be known for the last thing he does. Let him be known for the best thing he does."

Kiwanians aid firefighters

Administration works to head off oil drilling in Alaska's National Arctic Wildlife Refuge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expecting a confrontation within weeks, the Clinton administration is scrambling to head off a Republican push in Congress to open Alaska's National Arctic Wildlife Refuge to oil drilling.

Called by environmentalists "America's Serengeti" because of its wildlife, the refuge also has been long sought by oil companies because of what are believed to be large petroleum deposits under its northern coastal plain.

Now the refuge's fate could be determined in the coming weeks as Congress finishes a complicated process of crafting the government's budget for the next fiscal year, congressional and administration sources said in interviews Thursday.

Senior Clinton administration officials are mapping a strategy aimed at blocking what they believe will be concerted efforts in both the House and Senate to lift the ban on drilling in the refuge as part of the budget process.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry said the prospect of drilling in the arctic refuge, known as ANWR, "is a source of very real concern" to the administration. President Clinton has pledged to protect the refuge, he told reporters.

McCurry acknowledged that one proposal under discussion would be for Clinton to declare the refuge a national monument, but other administration officials acknowledged that probably would have little impact since Congress has the clear authority to override such an executive order. It might be hoped such a declaration would sway some senators away from going along with drilling, one official suggested.

Environmentalists and their allies in Congress have successfully thwarted efforts to open the arctic refuge to oil companies several times in recent years. But with the Republican takeover of both the Senate and the House, two Alaskans — Sen. Frank Murkowski and Rep. Don Young — assumed the leadership of the committees that have jurisdiction over energy and natural resource issues.

Both Murkowski and Young are determined to open the refuge, contending that to drill along the 40-mile long coastal plain would not dramatically disturb the much larger refuge that stretches well beyond where oil is believed to be.

Earlier this year the two lawmakers persuaded Republican budget planners to include an expected $1.4 billion in revenue from refuge oil lease sales as part of the seven-year blueprint for cutting the deficit.

As a result, lawmakers must now either authorize drilling as part of what's known as the budget "reconciliation" process, or find $1.4 billion elsewhere. In the next few weeks, Murkowski and Young are expected to craft language for the budget plan that would open the arctic refuge to drilling.

The strategy sessions, which have included representatives from the White House, Vice President Al Gore's office and the Interior Department, have focused on stopping the juggernaut during floor debate, probably in the Senate. But that won't be easy since the budget reconciliation bill is not subject to a filibuster and changes may be approved or rejected by simple majority votes.

FBI launches pornography probe of Calvin Klein ads

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI has begun a child pornography investigation into a short-lived Calvin Klein ad campaign that used scantily clad young people in provocative poses, The Wall Street Journal reported today.

"The first thing we have to find out is if the models in the photographs were minors," Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern told the paper.

The ads, which appeared in magazines, on television and on buses, were pulled Aug. 28 amid a furor from parents and child-welfare groups. Some critics charged at least two of the models were underage.

Even before the protests began, Stern said, the FBI had raised questions about the ads and alerted the bureau's child exploitation and obscenity section. The ads first appeared in early July.

JFK Jr. unveils new magazine 'George'

NEW YORK (AP) — If you can't beat 'em, join 'em.

John F. Kennedy Jr., who has spent a lifetime dodging the media's glare, officially became one of them by unveiling his new magazine — George.

It's billed as a kind of Rolling Stone of politics, a smart-alecky take on the subject for the 18-to-45 set. Kennedy is a co-founder and the editor in chief.

A news conference for more than 100 invited reporters was held Thursday at Federal Hall, where George Washington, the magazine's namesake, became president.

Facing no fewer than three dozen TV cameras, the 34-year-old Kennedy told the crowd, "I don't think I've seen as many of you in one place since they announced the results of my first bar exam." (That time, the headline was "The Hunk Flunks.")

George will not endorse candidates, run scathing editorials or delve into the seamy side of politics. It will also be nonpartisan, said the very Democratic Kennedy, although he confessed: "I realize a Kennedy talking about nonpartisan is like Mark Fuhrman addressing an NAACP convention."

The first issue features Madonna in a regular celebrity feature, "If I Were President"; Julia Roberts talking about her trip to Haiti; Kennedy's interview with former Alabama Gov. George Wallace; and a piece on stumping in New Hampshire with GOP presidential candidate Richard Lugar.

Rodriguez to sing at St. Vincent's

Manuel Antonio Rodriguez, founder and director of the Spanish-language musical group Tres Con Fe, will be presenting a free concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 10, at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, 810 W. 23rd, in Pampa.

The public, including members of all area churches, is invited to attend the concert.

Rodriguez, who composes nearly all his material, will be performing a selection of songs he has written, including those he sings with the musical ministry group Tres Con Fe, a group of young men who have devoted their musical talents to the ministry of God.

The group has visited various churches in the South Plains and performed before Pope John Paul II at World Youth Day in Denver, Colo., in 1993.

Tres Con Fe (Three in Faith) has performed on radio programs

Manuel Antonio Rodriguez

broadcasting their music through radio signals from central Mexico to western California. They participated in a Christian music competition in Mexico City called Alabanza '94.

A native of San Luis Potosi, Mexico, Rodriguez moved with his family to Lubbock in 1975. He attended South Plains College to pursue a degree in law enforcement.

His love for music led him to the secular music industry, until he found himself exhausted by a rugged lifestyle and spiritually lost.

He remembers saying, "The last thing I will ever do is play Christian music!"

Rodriguez completely withdrew from music for two years, ignoring God's call. When he finally returned to song writing, the only lyrics that came to him were about a living God. Since then, he has decided to work as a musical "instrument" of God, leading to the founding of Tres Con Fe.

Rodriguez feels the message and music of Tres Con Fe is extremely important, conveying hope, love and concern for a world that only God could love.

"Its innovative use of instruments and vocals create an inviting sound that is hard to refuse," he says. "Our music is unique, emotional and heart-felt contemporary Spanish."

Rodriguez says some spectators have had an initial response that the group's music could be very successful in a secular market, but that is not the direction the group wants for their music.

"We believe that our music only has a place in Christian service," he says. "It transcends the secular barriers because of its vibrant rhythms and strong spiritual message. This music is our medium through which we touch the hearts of others who have yet to learn that God is a living, loving, exciting God."

The Steve Woodward Family

Missionary to speak at First Assembly

The Rev. Steve Woodward, Assemblies of God missionary to Mexico is to speak at First Assembly of God, 500 S. Cuyler, at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, according to the Rev. Charles Shugart, pastor.

The Woodwards completed their first term in Mexico after studying Spanish a year in Costa Rica. Much of their ministry has centered around the establishment of the Chiapas Bible Institute. Chiapas is a rural, heavily forested state in southern Mexico.

"Education has been severely lacking in the Chiapas area," said Woodward, "The number of Assemblies of God preaching points in Chiapas has doubled to 300 in the past three years. The Bible school and general leadership training are of the utmost importance if these churches are to thrive."

Woodward will continue directing the Bible Institute upon their return as well as develop other ministries he and his wife, Sheri, have started. Among those outreaches have been Royal Rangers and Missionettes children's ministries in Chiapas churches.

Woodward was an associate pastor at First Assembly in Amarillo, where he and his wife were involved in various ministries.

Steel guitars, country tunes at home in Missouri

By AMANDA DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

PLATTE WOODS, Mo. (AP) — Don't look for a hymnbook, listen for a choir or lower your voice inside the North Heartland Community Church.

Pastor Rick McGinnis would prefer you laugh at the skits, applaud the country-western band and sing along with the lyrics as they pop up on a movie screen.

"This is a church for people who think they don't like church. For people who think church is boring," McGinnis said.

Services at North Heartland are anything but boring. Rousing country and Christian songs are pounded out by a band that would do well in any honky-tonk. Congregation members act out comedy skits with serious messages.

At one service, church member Terry Lamberth spoofed comedian Jeff Foxworthy's well-known bit, "You might be a redneck if..." The day's theme asked why science contradicted the Bible, so Lamberth took a scientific tack.

"You might be a high-tech redneck if you have a remote control to flush your toilet," he said. "You might be a high-tech redneck if your computer cost more than your house."

No pews, no ministerial vestments, no organ, no hymns, no Scripture readings and no chance this would be mistaken for a traditional Sunday service.

The New Mark Middle School theater is perfect for the congregation's needs, McGinnis said.

"For some people, an actual church is a barrier. It's like, 'This is where God lives.' But we're not on our own special turf here," he said.

North Heartland is one of maybe a dozen country music churches in the United States. One of the originals, the Main Place Christian Fellowship in Santa Ana, Calif., began more traditionally but drifted toward a country approach about seven years ago, Pastor Rich Mathisrud said.

"It wasn't something we set out to do. It just sort of evolved this way," he said. "Anybody who likes country music. That's the segment of the population that's coming to church here."

Like North Heartland, people are drawn to Mathisrud's church because of the warm feeling.

"We make them feel comfortable. We know their names, they get a real warm welcome and we don't even taken an offering. If they want to give, they can give at the back of the church," he said.

Both pastors agree they try to break down barriers that keep some people away from church.

"When we began, we listed six values on how we would run the show," said McGinnis, 37. "The No. 1 value is erasing artificial barriers."

Membership at North Heartland is at about 80, but 200 or so attend Sunday services, and many of those are considering membership.

"I think a lot of the attraction is that you feel more relaxed," said Pam Seymour, who has been driving from Kansas City, Kan., to attend services at North Heartland for more than a month.

Seymour visited the first time at the urging of friend Judy Henderson of Platte Woods.

"I'd been going to a more traditional church, but my son told me about this," Henderson said.

"She hadn't been going to church regularly, and I thought I could get her to go to this one. And I did."

McGinnis delivered a recent Sunday message in blue jeans, a plaid button-down shirt and hiking boots.

McGinnis has a bachelor's degree in math and a master's in computer science, but after working for Bell Labs as a software engineer for five years, he left to enroll in the Midwest Baptist Theological Seminary. He graduated from the seminary in 1990 and served as an associate pastor at Park Hill Baptist Church.

He took an approach "like any entrepreneur going into business" to the new church. He and a few associates defined a market and looked for customers, partly by advertising on country music station KBEQ.

"If we're talking to people who like country music, we play that up. But we're careful how we promote that, because it could turn some people off," McGinnis said.

"Right now, we are living above our means," he said. "And we have to consider if the congregation will meet the needs."

Long-term, he wants the church to grow to about 800 members and build a permanent facility.

"We'd like to build a facility. But if we did, it wouldn't look like a church," he said. "It would look more like a college campus."

UMC celebrates teaching ministry

United Methodist Churches throughout the West Texas and Panhandle areas are joining together to celebrate "The Teaching Ministry of the Church" on Sept. 10. The event is being promoted as a Rally Day and a time to invite members and visitors to church.

"In designating a special day to rally in celebration of 'The Teaching Ministry of the Church,'" says David Cameron, chairperson of the Northwest Texas Conference Vision 2000 Teaching Ministry Task Force,

"we are urging all local churches to celebrate not only the people teaching in the church, but people growing in faith, people making new commitments and people growing as disciples of Jesus Christ."

"We would like to urge all members of the United Methodist churches to attend your church September 10 and to bring visitors and newcomers to the area to Sunday school and worship services," adds Betsey Heavner, conference director of leader development and youth.

Older Widows Long to Share Much More Than Just a Bed

DEAR ABBY: You were right on target when you advised "Gentleman" to tell his women friends that he is impotent.

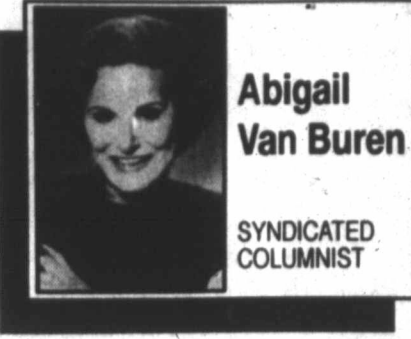

I am a 68-year-old widow who would dearly love to know such a gentleman. Unfortunately, all the men I've met in the four years I've been a widow seem obsessed with proving they're still as good as they were (or thought they were) at 25.

They fail to realize that many women in our age group don't really care that much about sex. Not that we have anything against it; it's just that many of us have lived without it — often for years before the death of our husbands — and have learned, contrary to popular opinion, that it can be done.

I have many widowed friends. Every one of them has said that sex is the thing she misses least. Having someone to share meals, thoughts, plans, to go places with, to cuddle, talk, laugh and joke with — that is what we really miss.

To be told, "You're a desirable woman," may give us a momentary thrill, but, "I love the way you laugh," or "You make the best apple pie in the county," or "Even my dog likes you, and he's never wrong about people," would be more meaningful.

"Gentleman's" lady friends probably would be relieved to know he's not going to be making passes at them, and once they know, they (and he) can relax and just enjoy being together.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

Just as men don't want to admit they're impotent, women don't want to admit their own physical problems that detract from their enjoyment of sex. We don't want to be thought of as whiners, or as using the old, "Not tonight, dear, I have a headache" bit.

Abby, there is so much in life that is better shared (other than a bed!). How sad that many older people are doomed to live out their lives alone, because they've been led to believe that everyone must have an active sex life. If, for whatever reason, we're unable, or simply don't want to have sex, we are made to feel practically worthless.

There was a time when people had sex because they wanted to, and not because they were expected to. Now, those were the days!

MISSOURI WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: You would be amazed to know the number of women who have written to me over the years to echo your sentiments. The price that's been paid for the sexual revolution is an unfortunate decline in romance.

DEAR ABBY: I thought washing machines were to be used for washing clothing.

I observed the following when I went to the laundry room in my apartment building: A woman who works at a beauty shop came in and dumped a large bag of hair rollers into the washing machine as if they were clothes!

Aren't beauty shops supposed to use a sanitary procedure to clean rollers and other items used in their profession? There can be all kinds of bugs and transferable diseases on some human heads that can be given to unsuspecting individuals, who may have to spend hundreds of dollars to obtain a cure for scalp problems — even hair loss.

I think it's disgusting and irresponsible. What is the answer? AMAZED IN BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR AMAZED: Calm down, dear. Disinfectant can be added to the water to kill every living creature.

FOOTBALL

BORGER — Pampa won over Borger, 9-3, Thursday night in a junior varsity football opener.

Josh Blacknton accounted for Pampa's points with a 43-yard field goal and a 1-yard touchdown run. Blacknton's field goal, which came in the second quarter, is believed to be the longest ever kicked by a Pampa junior varsity player.

Pampa's final score was set up on a busted play in the fourth quarter while lining up for another field goal attempt. Chris Welch was forced to throw a pass, which was caught by Damian Nickelberry on the Borger one. Blacknton scored to make the score, 9-3.

Pampa's defense forced the Borger quarterback to throw three interceptions. Kevin Jernigan pulled down two interceptions while Jeremy Knutson had the other one.

"Our defense put great pressure on the quarterback," said Pampa coach Tad Smith.

Ronnie Proby, Christian Bruce and Jason McQueen did an outstanding job of carrying the ball, said Tad Smith.

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn's Patrick Sullivan has transferred to Texas Christian to play for his father, former Tigers' Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan.

The younger Sullivan was Auburn's placekicking holder last season. His departure has caused some problems so far for the Tigers. With Hicks Poor holding last week against Ole Miss, kicker Matt Hawkins missed two extra points. Hawkins only missed three in 43 attempts last season.

Arizona slips by Georgia Tech, 20-19

By MEL REISNER
AP Sports Writer

Arizona's offense was supposed to have caught up to the defense, which has carried the Wildcats to bowl games three straight years.

But it was the defense saved the day against Georgia Tech.

"The defense played great. The offense couldn't get it going until the end," wide receiver Richard Dice said Thursday night after the 17th-ranked Wildcats scored 13 points in the final six minutes to defeat Georgia Tech 20-19.

Dan White and Dice got Arizona (2-0) within a touchdown when they hooked up on a 60-yard pass-run play. Then the defense, torn up most of the game by Georgia Tech tailback C.J. Williams, came through.

Arizona held the Yellow Jackets to three plays and forced a punt. Armon Williams, a reserve linebacker, charged up the middle to block it and recovered at the 4. White scored on a 1-yard sneak three plays later for the final points of the game with 2:21 left.

In the other game Thursday night involving a ranked team, Boston College shaded No. 20 Virginia Tech 20-14.

In Saturday's action, it's No. 1 Florida State at Clemson; No. 2 Nebraska (1-0) at Michigan State; No. 4 Penn State vs. Texas Tech; No. 5 Florida at Kentucky; No. 6 Auburn vs. Tennessee-Chattanooga; No. 7 Southern Cal vs. San Jose State; No. 8 Tennessee vs. Georgia and No. 10 Colorado vs. Colorado.

Also, No. 11 Michigan vs. Memphis; No. 12 UCLA (1-0) at Brigham Young; No. 13 Alabama vs. Southern Mississippi; No. 14 Oklahoma vs. San Diego State; No. 16 Virginia at No. 23 North Carolina State. No. 19 Miami (0-1) vs. Florida A&M; No. 21 Kansas State at Cincinnati; No. 22 Syracuse vs. East Carolina; No. 24 Oregon vs. Illinois, and No. 25 Notre Dame at Purdue.

Arizona appeared in over its head

Thursday night, down by 12 points with about 8 minutes to play. But Arizona made such a comeback last year in beating Tech 19-14.

"We still had a lot of confidence. We knew there was a lot of work to do, but we thought we could do it," said Dice, who is averaging more than 29 yards per reception.

"Dice made a great catch and a great run, and that's sometimes how you win ball-games," White said.

Stunned by the news, the players stopped interviews and left the stadium.

Tech's last chance ended when Rashee Johnson intercepted Donnie Davis' pass with 1:10 to play.

The luster came off the victory minutes afterward when the players were told that tight end Damon Terrell had died of complications from a ruptured spleen. He was hurt Aug. 10 after a conditioning drill.

Arizona's comeback took the joy out of Georgia Tech's C.J. Williams, who became the first player in three years to run for more than 100 yards against the Wildcats.

A sophomore who switched to offense midway of last season when injuries decimated the running backs, Williams had 154 of the Yellow Jackets' 187 yards rushing in his 30 carries and scored a 2-yard touchdown.

As it turned out, a holding call that nullified his 9-yard scoring run in the first quarter was the difference between winning and losing. Set back to first-and-goal at the 20, Georgia Tech settled for Dave Frakes' 43-yard field goal.

"We're going to play hard-nosed football, just going to run it down your throat until you stop us," Williams said. "The fact that their defense is so good, that didn't really bother us. We just said, 'We'll take what they give us,' and early on there were some holes there."

The Jackets (1-1) dominated the line of scrimmage while running up a 9-0 first-half lead and holding Arizona to 13 rushing yards — their fewest since 1969.

Young wranglers ride away with junior rodeo awards

WOODWARD, Okla. — Trenton Todd Packard of White Deer and the Longo sisters of Pampa were among 550 cowgirls and cowboys from Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas competing in the Northwest Oklahoma Junior Rodeo Finals.

The youngsters, ranging in age from 5 to 19, competed all summer preparing for the Finals. There was $35,000 in prizes presented to the year-end winners and to the Finals rodeo winners. The Finals were held over the Labor Day weekend.

Trenton was awarded the trophy saddle for the year-end All-Around Cowboy 5 and Under. He competed for points in approximately 12 NWOJR sanctioned rodeos throughout the summer. Trenton participated in all four of the 5 and under events: the stick horse barrel race, goat ribbon, horseback barrels, and pole bending.

Trenton was presented the year-end champion buckles for the stick horse barrels and the goat ribbon. Trenton, riding his quarterhorse "Rocky," was awarded buckles for the reserve year-end champion for the horseback barrels and poles.

The Finals Rodeo was just as profitable for the young cowboys as he was declared the "All-Around Cowboy 5 & Under" for the finals rodeo, winning the average buckles in the stick horse barrels and the horseback barrels and poles, plus a $50 gift certificate and a savings bond.

Trenton is the son of Tim and Kelly Packard of White Deer, the grandson of Betty Packard of Amarillo and Charles and Jackie Rennie of Groom. Trenton has a 4-year-old brother, Tanner, who also competes in all NWOJR rodeos and is riding and practicing hard for next year.

Keeley Longo was presented the Reserve Year-End All-Around trophy buckle. Keeley won second for the year in the stick horse barrels and received a silversmith bracelet, a silver pendant for third in horseback barrels and a hat keeper for fourth place in the poles for the year. She calls her horse "Shorty."

During the Finals Rodeo, Keeley won the average buckles for the stick horse barrels and the goat ribbon. She also won third in the average in horseback barrels and received a lead rope.

Karra Longo competes in the 6-8 age group and participates in the barrels, poles, goat tying and flags.

In the Finals Rodeo, Karra won third in the average in the poles. Karra also worked very hard and was second-highest in the NWOJR ticket sales, which won a trip to Las Vegas for two. Karra received a hat keeper and a $50 savings bond.

Karra and Keeley are the daughters of Mike and Sonja Longo of Pampa, and the granddaughters of Kenneth and Shirley Pitman of Pampa.

All Northwest Oklahoma Junior Rodeo cowboys and cowgirls were presented with NWOJR-monogrammed rodeo jackets and finalist T-shirts, and a $10 gift certificate at the rodeo finals banquet, sponsored by the Woodward Elks Riding Club.

Pavlik pitches three-hitter as Texas downs White Sox

ARLINGTON (AP) — The offense-poor Texas Rangers need some help if they want to stay in the AL wild-card race. Enter Roger Pavlik.

Pavlik pitched a three-hitter for his first major league shut out as Texas blanked the Chicago White Sox 2-0 Thursday night.

"We had twice what we needed tonight," manager Johnny Oates said. "We're still not swinging the bats well. We're hitting too many balls in the air. But sooner or later, they'll start to fall in."

Texas was aided by seven walks and Mark McLemore's key seventh inning RBI single as the Rangers ended a four-game losing streak and stopped the White Sox's eight-game winning streak.

The Rangers were hitting .203 with 27 runs scored in their previous 10 games, nine of which were losses. McLemore had two of Texas' five hits.

Pavlik turned in one of his strongest performances, matching the low-hit game of his career. It was the 27-year-old right-hander's first complete game of the season and fourth of his career.

"Roger has never pitched better than that," Oates said. "He had one of his lowest pitch totals, and pitched ahead in the count all night."

Pavlik (8-9) lost three of his previous four decisions, but he was in command against a hot-hitting White Sox lineup. Chicago was batting .342 with a .558 slugging percentage during the eight-game streak, its longest since 1991.

Pavlik struck out five and walked four in out dueling Wilson Alvarez (7-8), who's 0-7 on the road this season.

Rangers catcher Ivan

Rodriguez said the key to Pavlik's night was throwing strikes early in the count.

"He got ahead and his split-finger pitch was very good tonight," Rodriguez said. "If he gets ahead in the count, he's one of the toughest pitchers in the league. It's not easy to throw a three-hit shutout in the major leagues."

Pavlik refused to talk to reporters, his policy for the past six weeks.

Alvarez went 6 1-3 innings, allowing two runs and five hits, while striking out two. Seven walks, two of which led to runs, was his undoing.

Luis Ortiz gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead with a fourth-inning sacrifice fly. Texas added an insurance run in the seventh. Ortiz led off with a walk, went to second on Benji Gil's sacrifice, and scored on McLemore's single to make it 2-0.

Pavlik worked out of a seventh-inning jam after allowing lead off singles to Tim Lincecum and Dave Martinez. Pavlik got Frank Thomas, who has 34 home runs, to ground into a double play. After an intentional walk to Robin Ventura, Pavlik retired Lyle Mouton on a ground out.

Thomas said Pavlik's split-finger pitch and refusal to throw him pitches over the plate were the keys to the shutout.

"He didn't give in," Thomas said. "He got a lot of ground balls. On the double play, I got myself out. I was too aggressive. I should have taken the walk."

Nevertheless, the White Sox took three of four from Texas to pull into the wild-card chase.

"We won three games, and we're happy," Thomas said.

Sampras, Courier step up their power games at Open

NEW YORK (AP) — They fought this one with bludgeons shaped like tennis rackets. Toe to toe. Mano a mano.

And when the men's quarterfinals were finally completed, when Thursday had disappeared just as had so many players in the U.S. Open, two of the biggest sluggers in the game were left standing, ready to rumble for another round.

Pete Sampras and Jim Courier revved up their power games, solved the gusty wind sweeping through Louis Armstrong Stadium and blasted their opponents off the court in straight sets.

It was far from easy. Sampras, seeking to add this crown to his Wimbledon title, knocked off unseeded Byron Black of Zimbabwe 7-6 (7-3), 6-4, 6-0. Courier, showing the form that took him to three Grand Slam titles earlier in his career, out-fought fifth-seeded Michael Chang 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (7-3), 7-5.

Today, the women's semifinals pit top-seeded Steffi Graf against No. 9 Gabriela Sabatini, followed by No. 2 Monica Seles against No. 4 Conchita Martinez.

New England fans see Dolphins-Pats matchup as mini-Super Bowl

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Fans in New England look at this week's invasion by Miami as a mini-Super Bowl.

It's not, but it's the biggest game between the teams since they met in the 1985 AFC title game. That was the high point for the Patriots, who won 31-14 then got clobbered 46-10 by the Bears in the Super Bowl.

Miami, which signed up every loose star it could find in the off-season, comes into Foxboro as a 1-point favorite in the latest installment of the old (Dan Marino) vs. the new (Drew Bledsoe). The two staged a classic shootout in the first week of last season, the Dolphins winning 39-35 in Miami.

In fact, the Dolphins have won 11 of the last 12 meetings, and are 3-1 against the Pats since Bill

PRO PICKS

Parcells took over.

But ... Is Miami a team or a collection of guys trying to give Marino and Don Shula a trip to Arizona as a farewell present? Parcells teams are never collection and they usually start fast — a win here and the trip to San Francisco next week becomes a no-lose proposition.

PATRIOTS, 31-28

Denver (plus 10) at Dallas
What the nation saw Monday night was not a mirage. Without Michael Dean Perry in Denver's defensive line, Emmitt gets another ... oh, make it 150 or so.

COWBOYS, 27-7

People keep forgetting that Sterling Sharpe doesn't play for the Packers anymore.

BEARS, 17-9

Atlanta (plus 13) at San Francisco

Let's see ... Frank Reich, Pete Metzelaars, Don Beebe.

They all play for the Panthers and would like nothing better than to make this homecoming their first victory.

Close.
BILLS, 23-20 (OT).

Tampa Bay (plus 8) at Cleveland
The Bucs' bandwagon is rolling. But the only way it rolls on Sunday is if Vinny Testaverde throws to the right guys.

This is the Saints at the Rams, a

A trap game? As the adage goes, you're never as good as you look or as bad as you look (particularly on Monday night). Dan Reeves always beats Marty Schottenheimer.

Dole bashed during MTV video awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Politics. Foul language. Loud music. Yes, the always entertaining MTV Video Music Awards were back for the 12th time — and Madonna used the occasion to lash out at Sen. Bob Dole for his condemnation of rap music.

Madonna's verbal assault, complete with the f-word, was the highlight of Thursday night's show. Host Dennis Miller was bleeped twice in his monologue; Red Hot Chili Peppers bassist Flea cavorted in black bikini briefs; Michael Jackson sang, danced and grabbed his crotch during the opening number.

In between, awards were handed out. Pop-rap trio TLC won four, including video of the year, for its cautionary AIDS tune "Waterfalls"; alternative rockers Weezer matched that total with "Buddy Holly," their video homage to television's Happy Days.

Madonna, in a green silk shirt unbuttoned below her bra, minced no words in presenting the best rap video award to Dr. Dre.

"Bob Dole is sorry he couldn't be here tonight to give out the award for best rap video. ... Rap has proven itself a force to be reckoned with. Either listen up, or get the f— out of the way," she said to cheers from the sold-out Radio City Music Hall crowd.

Three months ago, the Kansas Republican and presidential candidate criticized the violent and sexist lyrics of several rappers.

Madonna and Miller weren't alone in using four-letter words. Green Day, performing from Sweden via satellite, was bleeped, as was Courtney Love when she sang with her band Hole.

Love raged through the song "Violet" after dedicating it to her late husband, Kurt Cobain, and to drug overdose victim River Phoenix.

The show also featured Bon Jovi playing live in Times Square before a huge crowd and R.E.M. playing before winning the Michael Jackson Video Vanguard Award for lifetime achievement.

Other bizarre non-award tableaux abounded during the three-hour live show. Basketball bad boy Dennis Rodman proclaimed himself "the baddest, craziest son of a b— in this building," and no one disagreed.

World briefs

French schools put on maximum security alert

PARIS (AP) — The French government today ordered all schools on maximum-security alert, a day after a car bomb outside a Jewish school near Lyon wounded 13 people.

Police will prevent cars from parking in front of schools and make sure students do not create targets by gathering in groups, said Francois Bayrou, the minister of national education.

Bayrou urged parents "above all not to give in to psychosis" after Thursday's bloody attack, the sixth in a series of bombings or attempted bombings in France since late July.

"Calm and vigilance are two indispensable elements of the response we have to muster," he said on French television.

The car bomb exploded Thursday afternoon just before 700 students were about to pour out of the Jewish academy in Villeurbanne, a suburb of Lyon, the nation's third-largest city.

Two children and 11 adults were hurt, but lives were saved when a faulty school bell kept most children inside a few minutes longer than usual.

Japan cuts discount rate to record-low 0.5 percent

TOKYO (AP) — As economic planners warned of a slip back into recession, Japan's central bank today sliced its key interest rate in half to a record-low 0.5 percent.

The move, combined with more than $2 billion in dollar-buying intervention by the Bank of Japan, sent the U.S. currency and stocks surging.

The Nikkei Stock Average jumped 3.7 percent on four times the previous day's volume, while the dollar hit the 100-yen level for the first time in eight months.

The cut puts Japan's official discount rate far below those in other leading industrialized nations.

The rate currently stands at 5.25 percent in the United States and 3.5 percent in Germany.
