Nixon To Review Transcripts Of 36 Tapes Under Subpoena

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transcripts have been completed of tapes of President Nixon's Watergate-related conversations under subpoena by the House Judiciary Committee, and will be intensively reviewed this weekend by the President, officials said today.

The transcripts will be submitted to the impeachment panel by the new Tuesday deadline and are "complete in their integrity," the officials said. But they said profanities, vulgarities and irrelevancies which cropped up in the conversations by Nixon with his top aides had been defeted.

According to the officials, tapes of 36 conversations out of 42 which the committee requested were transcribed by a team under the direction of presidential counsel J. Fred Buzhardt. They said the other conversations were never recorded.

There were strong indications by the officials that Nixon would not turn over to the impeachment panel the actual tapes. Several administration aides have read the transcripts over the past few days. Some said they felt "much better now" and were convinced Nixon could prove his innocence of any participation in the Watergate cover-up.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., Judiciary Committee chairman, and other committee members have made it plain that transcripts alone will not be satisfactory to them. Nixon is to respond to the subpoena by Tuesday at 9 a.m. CDT.

The President planned to go to Camp David later today to contemplate his final decisions on dealing with subpoenas and to review the voluminous records expected to be transmitted to the House committee next week.

Officials said a "white paper" also was being prepared by presidential aides to be made public at the time the documents are sent to Congress.

The Judiciary Committee has been attempting to avoid partisan wrangling, and now has a taste of what it can be like as it weighs the evidence which will either impeach or exonerate the President.

Democrats rejected his demand that the impeachment inquiry legal staff investigate the motives of the 125 House members who cosponsored a bill in 1971 to raise milk price supports.

One of the impeachment allegations against Nixon charges he increased government price supports for milk in 1971 in response to a $2 million campaign chest from milk producers' cooperatives.

The milk charge is one of the 37 serious charges that remain after the committee staff pruned 19 other charges from its original compilation of 56 potential impeachable offenses.

keeping quiet about the new move. The eventual White House position on the bill will play a major part in whether it passes because its chances now are considered no better than even.

The pros and con sides in the Senate cross party lines and ideological lines. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., for example, a liberal, is strongly opposed to a continuation of control authority.

Opposition is mounting from the outside. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Thursday he had received telegrams from both the AFL-CIO and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce opposing controls.

But the majority of Democrats appear ready to push the bill to a quick showdown. "We're aware of the pressure of organized labor and the Chamber of Commerce," Mansfield said. "But we're more aware how this is hitting the pocketbook of the average working man."

Stevenson warned that if all control powers expire permanently, "prices will explode. People will suffer."

The administration asked for power to continue controls on the health industry, but the Banking committees of both the House and Senate decided to allow controls to die as scheduled rather than impose selective controls.

There is no chance that Congress could act before the control power expires, but Democrats hope to shove the new bill under Nixon's nose within a few weeks as an amendment to a minor bill appropriating money for the International Economic Policy Act of 1972.

FOR ELECTIONS

Portugal Junta Gives Promise

LISBON (UPI) — Gen. Antonio de Spinoza, head of the seven-man military junta that seized power in an almost bloodless coup Thursday, promised today to free political prisoners, end press censorship and call elections "in the shortest possible time."

Deposed President Americo Thomaz and Premier Marcelo Caetano were flown today by military plane to exile in the Ritz Hotel on the Atlantic holiday island of Madeira, leaving behind 40 years of right-wing dictatorship. Two other ministers were exiled to the equally luxurious Palace Hotel on the island.

Portugal was returning to near normal, but in Lisbon an angry crowd shouting "murderers! murderers!" pressed forward trying to get at the policemen who were surrendering to the army at the downtown headquarters of security police (DGS). Members of the opposition under the Thomaz-Caetano regime repeatedly accused the dreaded DGS of using torture on political prisoners.

The headquarters surrendered only this morning after the army threatened that the 1st Infantry regiment which had surrounded the building would storm it.

An estimated 500 policemen inside the building were disarmed by the army and hauled off in trucks. Military personnel on the scene said they would be taken to prisons, and that the junta had given orders to round up 1,300 police agents and informers throughout the country.

Dressed in the uniform of a cavalry general, complete with white gloves and wearing a monocle, Spinoza told newsmen: "I am well but a bit tired."

He said that all political prisoners would be released "except those who committed other crimes." A military spokesman later explained this meant that left-wing "subversive prisoners who have used violence will continue to be held."

Within three weeks, Spinoza said, a provisional government will be set up with one of the members of the junta as provisional president until Portugal can pick a chief of state in a free election.

Area Ministers Give Okay To Day Of Prayer

The Pampa Area Ministerial Fellowship Alliance is joining in support of a joint Congressional resolution proclaiming Tuesday, April 30, as a national day of humiliation, fasting and prayer.

Rev. Gene Allen, president of the ministerial group, which includes pastors in Pampa and surrounding towns, said the Alliance met yesterday and adopted a motion endorsing the resolution.

A telegram was sent to Rep. Bob Price of Pampa advising him of the local group's full support of the day of prayer.

The resolution approved by both houses of Congress reads in part:

"Whereas, it is the duty of nations, as well as of men to owe their dependence upon the 'overwhelming power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions, in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon, and to recognize the sublime truth, announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that those nations are blessed whose God is Lord, and

"Whereas, it therefore behooves us to humble ourselves before Almighty God, to confess our national sins, and pray for clemency and forgiveness: Now, therefore be it

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the Congress hereby proclaims that April 30, 1974 be a National Day of Humiliation, Fasting and Prayer; and calls upon the people of our nation to humble ourselves as we see fit, before our Creator to acknowledge our final dependence upon Him and to repent our national sins."

Band Members Compete In Buccaneer Days Event

By CLAY LIVELY
CORPUS CHRISTI — The Pampa High School band competed here this afternoon along with 42 other bands in the Buccaneer Music Festival, held in connection with the annual celebration of Buccaneer Days, a "happening" which recalls the days when pirates plied their trade up and down the coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

Activities began yesterday in the affair, highlighted by the capturing of the city by Pirate Queens at 6 p.m. and the first of three nights of fireworks on the bay.

The "Pride of Pampa" arrived in the city Thursday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock, following a bus trip which took approximately 14 hours of driving time.

Ninety-four members of the band along with over 20 sponsors made the trip in three chartered buses. Thursday's drive to the city on the Gulf was stopped for breakfast in San Antonio, where the band also toured the Alamo and Breckenridge Park's Zoo, the Nation's third largest and fifth largest in the world, respectively.

Leaving Breckenridge Park yesterday at 1:30 p.m., exactly on schedule, the trip to Corpus Christi took less than three hours and the band was checked into the Sheraton Marina Bay-front Hotel before 5 p.m. Following dinner, the band went to Gregory - Portland High School, located across the bay about ten miles to the north of Corpus Christi proper, for the first of two rehearsals conducted before this afternoon's 3 o'clock performance.

After the competition, the band is to have free time today prior to attending a hamburger party at 9 p.m.

Saturday the band will leave Corpus Christi in the morning for a trip to Padre Island and several hours on the beach. Tomorrow night the group will go out for a seafood dinner at a local restaurant and then take a nighttime boat cruise on the Gulf from 8 until 10 p.m.

The band is scheduled to leave on the return trip to Pampa at 9 a.m. Sunday and will arrive back home around 2 a.m. Monday. Yesterday's trip down was almost precision perfect, with no appreciable time loss for breakdowns or other problems. At one time, shortly before arriving in Abilene, where three new drivers were onboard for the rest of the trip, a bus was discovered to be trailing a stream of water. It was nothing serious and entailed only about five minutes of lost time.

Nothing serious illness was reported on the trip either, despite the fact that lunch yesterday at Breckenridge Park consisted of snackbar hamburgers, hot dogs and, in at least one case, a couple of tamales.

A report on how the band did in the festival's band competition will be published in Sunday's edition of the news.

Hey, George! It's Over Here

By ELDON BARRETT

OCEAN SHORES, Wash. (UPI) — At midnight Saturday, Ocean Shores residents will leave their patios and cocktail lounges, trek across the sandy beach to the water's edge and shout, more or less in unison: "Hey, George!"

It is the climax of the annual celebration of "Undiscovery Day."

It was 182 years ago on April 28 that the intrepid British explorer Capt. George Vancouver sailed right past this place without notice.

He went on to discover Puget Sound, which he named for Peter Puge, Mt. Ranier which he named for a British Lord, and Hood Canal, named for a British admiral.

Ocean Shores was just a pile of sand dunes at edge of the Minard dairy farm until a promoter decided it would make a nice place for a town back in the 1950s. He enlisted the aid of singer Ginny Sims and some of her friends and replaced the bootlegging "honkers" and other squatters with expatriots from the cities.

Trouble is, the city folk can't seem to cope without some cause to celebrate. This resulted in the founding of such novenets as the "Fog Festival" featuring February ocean wading, and the "Clam Prix," where the fastest diggers take home the loot.

Last spring someone sitting in "The Inn" sipping grog on the rocks wondered aloud why no one had stopped by this way back when explorers of the 18th Century were prowling the Pacific. Before long a group of citizens found their way to the beach and were shouting "Hey, George!"

Thus "Undiscovery Day" was born. It got mentioned by Walter Cronkite and in some big city newspapers. This led to more ambitious efforts this year.

So, exactly eight hours before midnight Ocean Shores time, the entire crew of HMS Discovery in England has agreed to go to the poopdeck and yell "Hey, George." The entire crew, by the way, is senior shipkeeper Bud Lewis.

If Lewis does his end of the business property, "Undiscovery Day" will become an international event.

Wage, Price Rules Could Be Revived

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wage and price controls, once considered dead as of next Tuesday, may be revived in a new drive by Democrats.

A group of senators led by Sens. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., plan to ask the Senate Wednesday to pass a bill that would give President Nixon power to reimpose controls, to monitor the economy and to enforce the agreements that industry made with the administration under the old wage-price control act.

The much-criticized control program, now almost three years old, was scheduled to expire Tuesday except for oil price controls, which are covered under another act.

The administration asked for power to continue controls on the health industry, but the Banking committees of both the House and Senate decided to allow controls to die as scheduled rather than impose selective controls.

There is no chance that Congress could act before the control power expires, but Democrats hope to shove the new bill under Nixon's nose within a few weeks as an amendment to a minor bill appropriating money for the International Economic Policy Act of 1972.

Celanese Vice President To Talk At C-C Meeting

Current and future operations of the Pampa plant of the Celanese Chemical Co. will be discussed by Harry B. Bartley, the company's executive vice president, at a special membership luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce Monday, May 6, in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

Bartley, who will be making his first visit to Pampa since assuming duties as executive vice president in January, also will speak on Celanese world-wide operations.

All Pampanos are invited to attend this meeting and reservations may be made by calling the Chamber office, 669-3241. A large crowd is expected to be in attendance at this meeting and reservations should be made as early as possible.

Bartley, prior to his appointment, had been the company's vice president of marketing.

In his present assignment, he is responsible for overall guidance and direction of marketing and operations of the company.

Bartley joined Celanese in July, 1950, as a chemical sales trainee. Later that year he went on active duty with the U.S. Army Chemical Corps and remained with that organization for the duration of the Korean conflict.

He returned to Celanese in 1953 and served, successively, as a salesman in the Middle Atlantic States and district sales manager in the Wilmington, Del., regional office.

In April, 1960, he was appointed field sales manager with offices at the company's headquarters in New York City. In 1963, he was promoted to general sales manager and, the following year, moved up to vice president, marketing.

Bartley was graduated from the Salisbury School, Salisbury, Conn., in 1945 and received his BSE degree in chemical engineering from Princeton University in 1949. He also did graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania. He is a native of Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartley, with their five children, live at Wyckoff, N.J.

Medical breakthrough
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The first cross-country combined monitoring of acutely ill patients has begun between Pacific Medical Center here and Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York.

Via a private line, patients in the intensive care unit at Mt. Sinai are being monitored on a 24-hour basis by a computer-based system originated and developed at the San Francisco Medical Center.

The system reports 35 different measurements every 10 minutes, or on request, every 45 seconds, through eight different sensors leading from the patient.

Israel Enters 27th Year Bugged Down With War

United Press International Israel entered its 27th year of independence today bogged down by a costly war of attrition with Syria and fearful of Soviet attempts to increase "spheres of influence" in the Middle East.

Diplomatic sources in Cairo said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would carry a U.S. plan for separation of Syrian and Israeli troops when he leaves on his fifth Middle East tour next week.

Syria reported more fighting on the Golan Heights today, the 46th consecutive day of fighting on the tense northern front. This year's independence ceremonies, celebrated Thursday, were noticeably toned down in Israeli cities and villages. There was no street dancing or big military parade in Jerusalem as in previous festivities.

Solemn Tone
The solemn tone underscored the heavy Israeli losses in the 1973 Middle East war and the current war of attrition with Syria.

In an independence day address, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban, alluding to Russia's backing of Syria, warned that outside forces seek to incite hostilities in the region.

Eban called the Soviets "intriguers" and troublemakers and complained the Russians were "destructive elements which are not interested in the advent of peace."

"They seek to increase their spheres of influence, inciting to hostilities and wars in order to extend their imperialist bases," he said. Eban also called on Egypt to renew peace negotiations with Israel.

During recent weeks, the Soviet Union, apparently angered by the success of Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy, have backed tough policies by Syria, according to diplomatic reports.

Pass Through Dardanelles
In a related development, Turkish authorities reported two Soviet warships passing through the Dardanelles with a large arms shipment, including the latest missiles and warplanes, for Syria.

The Cairo sources said Kissinger's plan was a compromise between Syrian and Israeli proposals. It was reported to include Israeli withdrawal from the all Syrian territory seized in last October's war and the creation of a U.N. buffer zone in the area.

In fighting on the northern front, Damascus radio reported sporadic clashes Thursday on Mt. Hermon.

The Tel Aviv military command reported the death of a young corporal in recent shelling, raising the Israeli war of attrition toll to 16 dead and 59 wounded.

The Tel Aviv command reported no air activity in the skies over the strategic mountain or the rocky plains. It said both sides duelled sporadically with artillery and tank fire.

IGNORES OTHERS Briscoe Maintains Comfortable Lead

United Press International Political strategists have a cardinal rule. When your candidate is not the front runner, you must continuously attack the credibility of the person out front. But, if your candidate is the favorite, then you never mention anyone else in the race.

If that strategy can be applied to the Texas governor's race, then incumbent Dolph Briscoe must have a comfortable lead going into the final days of campaigning before the May 4 primary.

While Democratic opponent Frances Farenthold criticized Briscoe's alleged turnaround on mass transit and Republican Jim Granberry accused the governor of lack of leadership, Briscoe campaigns like he was running unopposed.

Oil Concern
The governor addressed an industrial day luncheon in Rosenberg Thursday and encouraged Texans to continue their energy conservation measures because "I am concerned now with the public reaction with the end of the oil embargo."

His speech urged the federal government to "create more incentives for the exploration of gas and oil" but never once mentioned Mrs. Farenthold, Granberry or anyone else who seeks to be the state's governor for the next four years.

"This is not the time to relax our efforts toward the goal of self-sufficiency—but a time to pursue a balanced program of reducing energy waste, and pushing forward for the sound development of our nation's resources," Briscoe said.

Mrs. Farenthold appeared in El Paso where she said Briscoe has ignored the promises he made in 1972 on mass transportation.

Revisionist Governor
"Evidently the current governor's campaign strategy is 'if history and truth don't support your political claims, then attempt to rewrite history,'" she said.

She said Briscoe strongly believed in incentives for mass transportation during his 1972 campaign.

"Gov. Briscoe has done absolutely nothing, made absolutely no proposals on mass transit since he was elected," she said. "The problem of developing rapid mass transit is one of the greatest challenges to governmental efficiency and responsiveness."

JOHN CARPENTER...banquet entertainer

John Carpenter To Entertain For Fine Arts

John Carpenter, a tenor and regional finalist in Metropolitan Opera Auditions (1965, 1971, and 1974) at Kentucky, Washington D.C., and Texas respectively, will entertain Saturday at 7:30 p.m. for the annual banquet of the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

The event will be held at the Pampa Country Club. Sue Higdon, organist, will provide dinner music.

Carpenter's previous professional engagements were Civic Opera of Washington; Sokol Opera Festival; Friends of the Opera of Washington; Catholic U. of America; National Symphony; and U.S. Air Force Band.

He has appeared on local television programs in Los Angeles and Oklahoma City, including the "Mike Douglas Show" in Philadelphia, Pa.; tenor soloist for a ten day concert series at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto and West Texas State University, Canyon.

His latest appearance was this month with the Amarillo Symphony. Scholarship awards, a brief business meeting to elect new trustees and introductions of the winner of the Artist of the Year and Patron of the Year, will also be announced.

This is the closing event of the 1973-74 year and anyone who is not a member of the association may join at this time and attend the banquet. This membership will run through the 1974-75 year.

Maurice Coats, executive director of the Texas Commission on the Arts and Humanities in Austin, will be special guest speaker for the evening.

Committee Asks Nixon Questions About Returns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee intends to ask President Nixon to answer written questions about his income tax returns, including the deduction he took by donating his vice presidential papers to the National Archives, committee counsel John Doar said.

Doar said the committee also planned to investigate if criminal fraud was involved in the preparation of the returns.

He noted that Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski had been given permission by Attorney General William French to investigate the taxes, but said Jaworski's investigation would not be completed in time for the impeachment inquiry.

The Internal Revenue Service and the Joint Congressional Tax Committee both investigated Nixon's 1969-1972 tax returns and concluded that he owed about $430,000 plus interest. Nixon said he would pay the full amount.

"Because the joint committee did not investigate whether or not there was criminal tax fraud for which the President is responsible, and because the special prosecutor's investigation has just recently begun, it will be necessary for the committee to conduct its own investigation," Doar said.

"In this connection it will be desirable for the committee to submit to the President interrogatories," he said.

VOTE MONTHS AWAY

House Speakers' Race Is Costly

AUSTIN (UPI)—Former Rep. Rayford Price was criticized two years ago for estimating publicly his campaign to be speaker of the House could cost as much as $50,000.

Now two candidates — including one who was most critical of Price in 1972 — have already raised more than $30,000 each in their efforts to be elected to that office, and the vote is still months away.

Rep. Fred Head, D-Athens, who defeated Price in the Democratic primary in 1972 using the high cost of Price's speaker campaign as one of the issues, is the leading fund raiser of the current speaker candidates. But Head says there's no comparison between the campaigns of 1972 and the current speaker's race, which is being run under new campaign finance reporting laws.

"We have a situation now where people know what's going on, and as a result we have a much more open and accessible government," Head said. "It's out in the light of day instead of in some back corner."

Head and Rep. Bill Clayton, D-Springlake, have raised far more money than any of the other speaker hopefuls.

Through the March 1 reporting period, Clayton had recorded $31,132 in contributions for his campaign, and Head reported $32,132.

The third major candidate, Rep. Carl

Parker, D-Port Arthur, reported $13,040 in contributions.

Clayton and Head both say their major fund raising efforts are over however, and they'll try to finish their campaigns without raising

Smokers More Likely To Get Brain Strokes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Middle-aged males who smoke more than 20 cigarettes a day suffer strokes six times more often than non-smokers, the American Academy of Neurology was told Thursday.

The conclusion for men, ages 45 to 54, came from an 18-year study of 5,184 men and women at Framingham, Mass.

The study results, developed by a Boston University Group, said the type of stroke suffered by smokers is a cutoff of blood which causes the death of brain cells.

Dr. Philip A. Wolf explained, however, that the stroke risk among smokers was present only among those with such other risk factors as high blood pressure, high cholesterol and some diabetes. Smokers with low blood pressure seemed to be below the risk of nonsmokers with high blood pressure, he said.

Researchers are still trying to learn how smoking might contribute to strokes, Wolf said. Smoking might somehow augment the plugging of the large blood vessels by fatty deposits, or might otherwise trigger a stroke by some unknown mechanism, he said.

C-C Schedules Annual Banquet

The annual banquet of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce has been scheduled for Thursday evening, Oct. 17, in the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Lt. Gov. George Nigh of Oklahoma City will be the banquet speaker. The governor made such a hit in Pampa two years ago and with the many requests being made by the public to bring him back, the board voted unanimously to invite him back.

An outstanding entertainment program will supplement the Southwest's most entertaining after dinner speaker.

The date is being announced early to minimize conflicts with other functions in the community, according to Rex McAnelly, chamber president.

more than a few thousand more dollars.

The bulk of the expenditures in the race are for travel to seek support from house candidates and members involved in election campaigns, and entertaining house members in Austin for the constitutional convention.

The six active candidates in the race have raised a combined total of $91,754 in contributions—enough to allow them to spend an average of $615.80 per vote in the election involving the other 149 members when the legislature convenes in January.

Clayton thus far has spent only $6,380 of the $31,132 he has raised, and Head has spent $19,947 of his $32,132 in gifts.

Although Head, Clayton and Parker are believed to control the bulk of the vote commitments in the race, other active candidates still raising money for their campaigns are Reps. David Finney, D-Fort Worth, Jim Nugent, D-Kerrville, and George Preston, D-Paris.

Rep. R. B. McAlister, D-Lubbock, is also campaigning to succeed Speaker Price Daniel Jr., but is not accepting any campaign contributions.

Senate Considers New Tax Cut

By DON PHILLIPS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate is likely to pass a general tax cut for all Americans within the next few weeks, but no one should begin counting on bigger pay checks too soon.

Many factors, both economic and political, must come together within the next few months to produce a tax cut, and even if lower taxes are written into law, most taxpayers won't see any significant difference in their income.

Even the pressures of an election year are no guarantee that the more fiscally conservative House will go along with the Senate.

Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, holds the major key to any tax cut. He alone could block consideration of it against all but the most overwhelming odds. But with his approval it would be difficult for other House members to vote against something as popular as a decrease in the taxes of the American voter.

Mills Wants to Wait
Mills isn't saying yet which way he is leaning. "I don't think we can make any decision until June or July when we see which way the economy is going," Mills said.

An upturn in economic activity over the next few months probably would kill any idea of a tax decrease, because the avowed purpose of its sponsors is to stimulate economic activity, which declined during the first three months of this year.

Decreasing taxes — and thereby pumping money into the economic bloodstream — would be inflationary during a time of economic growth. It is the inflation argument that the administration uses in opposing a tax cut.

"We just feel a tax cut at this time would be highly inflationary," William Simon, nominated as the new Treasury secretary, told the Senate Finance Committee Wednesday.

Even if the economy remains sluggish, a tax cut would not help, Simon said. He argued the economic turnaround was brought about by energy shortages and food shortages, something a tax cut would not help.

Some Go Along
Even some Senate liberals go along with this argument, including Sens. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and William Proxmire, D-Wis. Proxmire said a tax cut now "would be a tragic and foolish economic policy."

But Sens. Walter Mondale, D-Minn.; Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.; Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and other Senate liberals apparently have the votes to pass the tax slice in the Senate. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a conservative, conceded Wednesday that the Senate probably would pass the cut because "the Senate passes everything."

On the floor will be a Kennedy-Mondale amendment, combining provisions of separate tax bills proposed by the two men.

They plan to attach the tax cut as a rider to a minor tariff bill which has already been passed by the House. It would then be up to Mills and other House leaders whether they would want to go to conference with the Senate on the minor bill and hammer out some compromise tax decrease. The Ways and Means Committee also is about to go into general tax reform legislation in which the committee could develop its own version of a tax cut.

Exemption Increased
The Kennedy-Mondale amendment would increase the personal income tax exemption from $750 to $825 for the taxpayer and each of his dependents. The taxpayer also could elect to take a tax credit of $190 instead of the personal exemption. This would be a break for lower income taxpayers who would gain as little as $107.50 in actual tax savings from the personal exemption.

Planning On Boat Trip? Leave Information Home

Safe return from a visit to Lake Meredith could depend on safety equipment left at home.

The "equipment" referred to is a "float plan." A member of the family or a close neighbor should be given enough information on your description and location to alert the authorities in case of emergency.

Information left at home should include where you will be, with whom and approximately what time you expect to return. Emergency attempts to locate individuals are hampered if officials do not have a description and tag number of the vehicle driven and a description of the craft and motor of boats.

Additional information such as probable launching ramp used or names and descriptions of the individuals in the party is also helpful.

"We try to respond to each request for assistance," explained Chief Ranger Nielson, "but we must know what to look for and where to start looking."

Nielson stressed discretion in reporting overdue returns.

A female fly can lay its first eggs less than a week after it is born.

For most taxpayers, however, the extra exemption would amount to less than $1 a week in actual extra income for each member of his family.

Liberals are convinced that the extra money pumped into the economy nationwide would "stimulate the economy through consumer demand," as Humphrey put it.

Kenneth R. Cole, Nixon's domestic affairs adviser, replied that a tax cut would not help the economy. He said measures that would help the economy were tied up in a Democratic-controlled Congress.

Humphrey, on the other hand, blamed the administration.

Fishermen who normally leave the area by sunset have been known to stay out until after midnight if the fishing is good. When a storm hits, some boaters pull into sheltered coves and wait out the storm.

He recommended a "reasonable" waiting period before reporting overdue boaters to the National Park Service or sheriff's office. Once a party has been reported overdue, officials should be notified when the missing people return home.

AFTER 10 YEARS Elizabeth, Richard To Seek Divorce

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, who kissed and made up only last December, announced Thursday that their 10-year marriage is finished.

The couple, who frequently exchanged expensive baubles as an expression of their love, made the announcement of pending divorce through a representative shortly after Miss Taylor returned from a vacation in Hawaii. Burton has been hospitalized here for 12 days.

In their joint statement, the couple said: "Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton have requested that their long-time friend and attorney Aaron R. Frosch proceed to legally terminate their 10-year marriage on the grounds of irreconcilable differences.

"Frosch has indicated that the divorce will be obtained in Bern, Switzerland, where the Burtons have been residents for many years."

Miss Taylor arrived in Hollywood Tuesday after several weeks vacation with her mother and some of her children at her brother's home in Hawaii. Burton has been hospitalized at St. John's Hospital in nearby Santa Monica with bronchial problems. The couple, estranged last WASHINGTON (UPI) — A check of serial numbers on the $100,000 that billionaire Howard Hughes gave the Nixon campaign tends to support Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo's testimony that he kept the money untouched in a bank for three years, according to Senate Watergate committee sources.

The sources told UPI that the serial numbers on the $100 bills showed they were all printed before 1970, when Hughes aide Richard G. Danner originally delivered the money to Rebozo.

But the committee has been unable to determine exactly when the bills were put into circulation.

If any of the bills had been printed or put into circulation after 1970, that would refute Rebozo's testimony that he left the money untouched in a safe deposit box in his Florida bank for three years before returning it to another Hughes aide.

Sketchy Records Kept
The Treasury Department, according to sources, keeps only sketchy records of when bills of certain series are put into circulation. Bills are often not put into circulation until years after they are printed.

The committee made a concerted effort to date the bills precisely after Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer, testified that Rebozo told him that some of the money had been given to Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's personal secretary.

the President's two brothers, Edward and F. Donald Nixon, and others.

Spokesmen for Miss Woods and the Nixon brothers have said they never received the money, and Rebozo also has denied giving the Hughes money to anyone.

The $100 bills were turned over to the committee by Chester Davis, a lawyer for Hughes, copied by investigators, then returned to Davis.

The check of the $100 bills is the latest in a long investigation by the committee into the Hughes money and its possible connection to F. Donald Nixon, who at one time was a business associate with a top Hughes aide.

The probe now focuses on the income tax records of Rebozo, Miss Woods, the Nixon brothers and a number of Hughes associates. The committee has asked the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to turn over its "sensitive case reports" relating to the matter.

Lenzner Complains
Terry F. Lenzner, the committee counsel conducting the Hughes probe, has complained of a lack of cooperation from the IRS in the case.

In a memo to Chief Counsel Samuel L. Dash and the seven senators on the committee, Lenzner said the IRS has damaged the committee's work "irreparably" by refusing to turn over the case reports.

Sources said however, that following Lenzner's complaint, the IRS and the committee were working on a compromise agreement that would involve turning over some of the records.

In addition the committee has subpoenaed the bank records and other financial statements of Miss Woods and the Nixon brothers in an effort to determine if they received any of the money.

Tell 'starved' husband to get professional help

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband works out of town three days a week. He takes $80 expense money with him on each trip. Every weekend he comes home complaining that he couldn't afford to eat and went to bed hungry when he was away. I suggested he take more expense money but he refuses, saying he won't need more, but he goes right on complaining.

When we have an argument he goes for days—sometimes weeks—without speaking. I prepare his meals as usual, but he refuses to eat at home. Instead he goes to a restaurant and then complains to anyone who will listen to him that I won't "feed" him. Right now there is a pot roast dinner, homemade bread, cake and cookies drying out in the kitchen while he is eating in a restaurant!

What is wrong with him? He was married before, and according to him, his ex-wives didn't feed him either. He is not underweight, and he doesn't have a tapeworm.

Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. He may not be "fed up"—but I am.

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: For openers it would appear that your husband has a long history of abnormal behavior. He is obsessed with the notion that he is being "starved" by the women in his life whose duty he feels it is to "feed" him. He needs professional help but unless he admits and seeks it, he's destined to go on his paranoid, obsessive way.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote in reply to Rusty who wanted to know if that picture accompanying your column was really you. "That picture is me!"

Are you right? Shouldn't you have written, "That picture is I?" Or is it I who am wrong?

KENNETH L.

DEAR KENNETH: You are right. The picture is I. But it is you who is wrong. [And right now I am so confused, I don't know if you are wrong or I is.]

DEAR ABBY: I'll get right to the point. Should I marry for love or money? I'm a 24-year-old woman and have a choice.

LOVE OR MONEY

DEAR L: Whatever turns you on. Some people are more turned on by money than they are by love. You don't get a lifetime guarantee with either. In one respect, they're alike. They're both wonderful as long as they last.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 89706, L.A., Calif. 90088. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212.

Your vegetable plot

By Peter Tonge

Weymouth, Mass.
 The other day my wife needed some carrots to add to the pot full of soup she had simmering on the fire.

So I went out into the garden, brushed aside a foot of snow and perhaps 18 inches of shredded leaves, and dug up close to a dozen. When they were washed they lay glistening on the counter top crisp and a deep orange-red in color. They were as attractive, I thought, as anything I'd seen on the full-color covers of the seed catalogs.

My daughters ate several then and there (they love freshly dug raw carrots). But we managed to rescue some for the soup, anyway.

That's right, my tiny suburban garden, even in the depths of a New England winter, still is providing for us. As I write (mid-January), a 30-foot row of carrots remains, an equal quantity of winter beets, and enough Jerusalem artichokes to last us right through spring.

Incidentally, a heavy mulch of leaves makes winter harvesting possible here. It keeps the soil soft enough to dig.

This winter harvesting, particularly in this day and age of high prices, has convinced me that anyone, with even a marginally green thumb and a few square feet to spare in the backyard, should go in for vegetable gardening.

A few years ago I reasoned home gardening was worth it just for the freshness of the vegetables, even if producing them were as costly, or even more so, than the store-bought variety. Now, however, this form of recreation pays most handsomely.

Take my own experience last season. I've got something like 600 square feet of yard given over to vegetable production. By intensively cultivating every square inch throughout the season it gave me:

One hundred fifteen pounds of tomatoes, 110 pounds of winter squash, 84 pounds of potatoes, 31 pounds of snap beans, 30 pounds of beets, 30 pounds of summer squash, 23 pounds of onions, 18 pounds of cabbage, 17 pounds of carrots, 17 pounds of eggplant, 15 pounds of green peppers, 6 pounds of shelled green peas, plus 68 cucumbers, and exactly one dozen heads of lettuce of the crisp-hearting variety.

Green thumb can get you a ton of vegetables

These figures are conservative, by the way. They don't include several shopping bags full of Italian plum tomatoes which my wife converted into juice at the end of the season, nor did my wife record every carrot or beet she pulled. They were washed, prepared, and in the pot "before I gave any thought to weighing them," she would say. Nor do those figures include the winter harvests I have just referred to. In fact, nothing dug from the garden since the end of October went into the record.

I haven't begun to calculate the value of this harvest, much of which still remains preserved in the freezer. But I do know a limited food budget went a whole lot further because of it.

My costs? Approximately $20 for seeds, seedlings, a little fertilizer, and the few gallons of gas needed to drive the mulcher which helped turn all the leaves, garden waste, kitchen scraps, prunings, etc., into plant food for the garden.

So much for my garden. Now for yours.

Begin by planning it on paper before ever you take to turning the sod. Design your garden as an architect would a house.

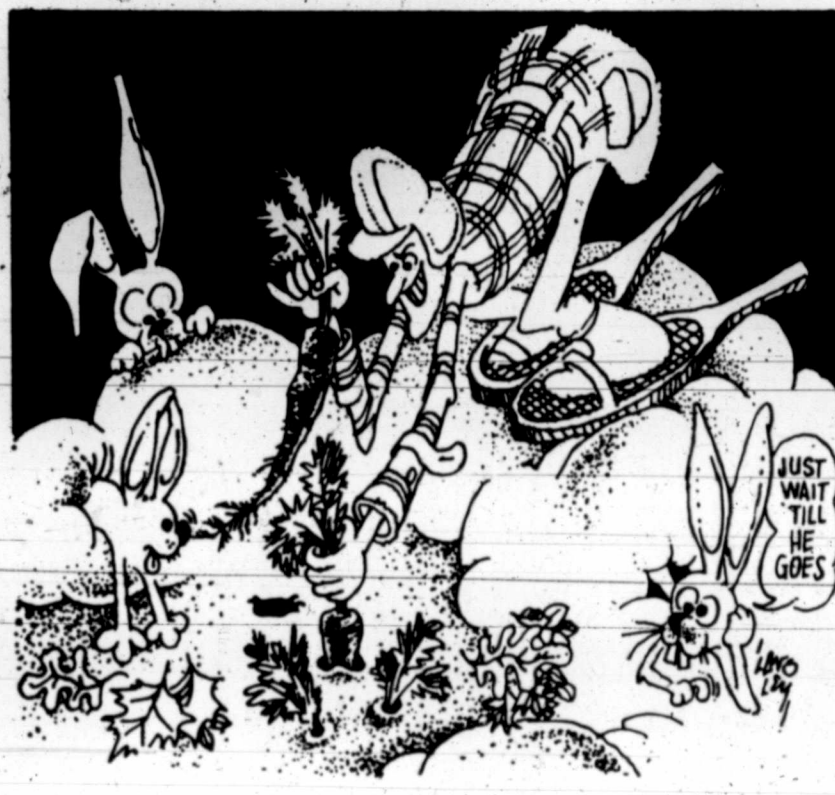

The seed catalogs will tell you how much space the various plants require. (By the way I tend to plant a little more densely than is generally recommended.) This way you will know just what to plant and where. The result will be a tidy, easily managed garden all season long.

You will also be able to gauge pretty effectively how many packets of seeds or seedlings you will need. No sense in buying more than is necessary.

If you have a large garden then go ahead, have a ball, plant everything that will grow in your area. Few town and suburban gardeners enjoy that sort of luxury though. In that case concentrate on a few productive and popular species. Think in terms of meals, not mouthfuls.

I would start with snap beans and tomatoes, two heavy crop producers, and then expand out from there depending on space available.

A regular column running the third Thursday of the month.

Offer Tips For Lawn Watering

Chicago (NFS) - If you're beginning to think about getting your lawn ready for spring, there are a few things you should keep in mind about lawn watering.

The following advice is being given to homeowners by water works utilities in many areas of the country, according to A. Y. McDonald Mfg. Co., makers of water works products:

1. Don't water too early unless you've had an exceptionally dry spring.
2. When you do water, water thoroughly. It takes about an inch of water to get water six inches below the surface. This can sometimes require 2 to 4 hours of watering. Use an empty can placed halfway into the sprinkler stream as a measurement device.

3. Lawns under and near shrubs and trees need more water (and fertilizer) than lawns established in the open. Trees and shrubs compete with the lawn for moisture.

4. It's preferable to water in early morning.

5. Don't apply water too rapidly. If you do, the water may run off rather than penetrate the soil.

6. Don't leave your hose in the sun more than is necessary. When idle leave it full of water. Don't use the first water out of the hose on your plants or garden; it can sometimes be very hot.

Darts dipped in the most potent frog toxins can paralyze and kill small game within minutes, National Geographic says.

SATURDAY, APRIL 27
 Your birthday today: Is a springboard from a relatively limited past to a relatively much freer future. Transition is temporarily somewhat rough but stimulating, and you are much more on your own resources than ever. Relationships of all kinds are quite lively and tend to even out to steady, satisfying fulfillment. Today's natives persist at whatever they pledge themselves to achieve, whether wise to foolish, occasionally rise to fame for so doing.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Now is the time to pick up the pieces, get people and their belongings off your hands if that's what you want. Reconcile any existing differences.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Put the past week behind you, go on from where you now are without regret or recrimination. There's much to do, lost time to make up.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Use your head; you've got a lot going for you now but it needs concentration, consolidation. Teamwork is featured, brings good results.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Be thankful for a small windfall coming your way. Seek technical advice on questions beyond your immediate competence, but make up your own conclusions.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Keep in mind that discretion is very important to success today. You shouldn't spill out your plans in advance among people who are competing.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Get together with those you have been opposing, make some definite move to live and let live, let bygones be bygones. Push yourself a bit as day wears on.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Sorting out relationships is accomplished more easily now, but you needn't assume that because you like various people they will like each other.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Be open for unfamiliar experience, willing to explore possibilities of cooperation. Venturesome enterprises offer much excitement.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Financial moves come readily to you now. Property can be transferred neatly. Spending should be held down to favor adding to your reserves.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: A day for personal politicking to set straight your ties with loved ones, family, your neighbors. Beyond these, all relationships assume lesser importance.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Do whatever will bring progress and emotional reward in your current enterprises. It's a long weekend, so pause occasionally for review and rest.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: In this easier day be alert and ready to make the best of everything. An early burst of energy has to last for the entire day, so don't rush too fast.

'AT WIT'S END'

By ERMA BOMBECK

I just figured out if my husband paid just half the attention to me as he does the lawn, my 70-year-old mailman would never have started to look like Robert Redford.

If ever there was a valid suit for alienation of affection, it's that lousy lawn.

There is something about the ability of a man to grow a few blades of grass that contributes to his masculinity. He is either a grass grower or he is not a grass grower. I have seen virile men move into the neighborhood with tattoos on their lips, but if they have fungus on their dwarf tiff, forget it. They're just not one of the boys.

A lawn enthusiast has two moods: irritable and irritable. These are interchangeable depending on whether the grass is growing or whether the grass is not growing.

When the grass is not growing, my husband goes to the library to see what could be missing, has his soil analyzed, waters, soaks, fertilizes, and has the nurseryman who sold him the seed make a house call.

When the grass is growing, he runs the mower back to the store to make sure the blade is cutting, trims, rakes, rolls and makes an obscene phone call to the dog next door who over-fertilized it in the first place.

There is no pleasing a lawn freak.

Some say it is normal for a man to want a pretty lawn. I don't know what is normal anymore. I sent the kids to Mother's, blew an entire food budget on steaks and wine, put a dab of garlic on the lightbulb and slipped into something that had not been paid for. "What are you thinking?" I teased. "Did you turn the hose off?" he asked.

Is it normal for a man to call the police and report a flock of birds who are eating our grass seed? Is it normal for a grown man to mourn a brown spot for three years?

I was all set to tell the mailman about my infatuation with him when he said, "I see your husband uses a chemical fertilizer of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash. Tell him if he invested in a little sheep dip, he'd do away with that crabgrass. Is there something you wanted?"

"I thought you looked like someone I knew," I said. "But I was mistaken. You all look alike."

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Normally, declarer's attitude in a trump contract is to view his own hand as the supreme one, and the dummy hand as the secondary or supplementary one. When he looks over his losing tricks, he usually does so from the viewpoint of his own hand. And in the great majority of deals, the latter approach is the correct one.

But there are certain types of situations in which declarer's hand should be viewed as the secondary holding of the partnership. If it seems proper to transpose yourself to thinking in terms of the exposed hand as being the declarer, then you must do so. The type of play referred to is known as the "dummy reversal," in which one does his thinking in terms of dummy being the declarer. Normally, declarer trumps his own losers in dummy, but in this case he trumps dummy's losers in his own hand.

Today's deal presents the dummy-reversal play in action.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

In my opinion, both North and South overbid, but the contract was a good one. After winning the opening club lead, West led another club, which South ruffed. All South had were 11 top tricks, but via the dummy-reversal play, he ended up with 12 tricks.

At trick three he led a trump to dummy's ten, after which he ruffed a third club. Next came a trump to the board's queen, and this was followed by the ruffing of dummy's remaining club with South's last trump, the king.

Now a heart was led to dummy's ace, after which the trump ace was cashed.

picking up East's last trump. On the ace of trumps South discarded his five of hearts. He then claimed his contract.

As he played his slam contract, South ruffed three clubs in his own hand, and made three trumps tricks in the North hand. This added up to six winners. The ace and king of hearts, plus four diamonds, brought the total to twelve tricks.

Had the outstanding trumps been divided 4-1, the dummy-reversal play would have been unsuccessful. But then, there was no other way to make the slam except to rely on the normal 3-2 division of the outstanding trumps.

Swans are notorious for their bad temper.

Will 'Altruists' Ever Learn?

There was a time when Americans, with their boundless energy and "Yankee shrewdness," took a back seat to no one when it came to trading.

Under a government that didn't too much get in the way, Yankee traders, in their tall "clipper ships," roamed the oceans and ports of the world carrying and seeking cargo. Loaded to the scuppers with produce of the world, every sail set, often beating into howling gales, unburdened with government restriction, they beat out their scandalized competitors so often that it seemed a game they couldn't lose.

Trade was the name of the game, and "let competition rip" the motto.

Things have changed, of course, but American businessmen are still pretty good traders; when the government stands out of the way. Unfortunately, that does not apply to Americans in government. The magnitude of American wealth given away via government "deals" in efforts to "buy" friendship abroad is a national scandal and a huge joke to the rest of the world.

"Uncle Sam" is now known the world over as "Uncle Sucker."

The recent cancelling of a $3.2 billion debt owed by India is a horrible case in point.

In this respect, Mr. Nixon, his giveaway chief, Kissinger, and U.S. officials in general could learn a much needed lesson from the West Germans.

Whereas U.S. wheat, for example, was shipped to Soviet Russia and Red China on long-term U.S. taxpayer subsidized terms (debts which experience should tell us will never be paid), the West German Government in Bonn is doing a brisk business with the Soviets; terms, cash on the barrelhead!

According to an United Press International report ("Unyielding Germans Win Soviet Cash Deal," Rocky Mountain News, April 11), "Despite protracted Soviet pressure for low interest and subsidized credits, Bonn has stood firm to win one of the largest cash deals ever signed with the Soviet Union."

In the transaction, consummated in late March, Moscow, after at first refusing, agreed to pay $900 million in cash for a steel mill to be built by the Germans near Kursk.

West Germany, UPI noted, is the only non-Communist industrial nation which lacks an institution to provide state-subsidized credits.

The Russians, in a ploy that probably would have worked with U.S. giveaway artists, had wanted the Germans to finance the project with credits bearing a 6.5 percent interest rate and repayable in future Russian iron and steel products. Bonn officials, no doubt with U.S. experience in mind, and with something other than bone between their ears, refused the come-on, demanded cash, and Moscow changed its mind.

"This was believed to be the first time the Soviets had agreed to pay cash for a project of this size," UPI commented.

Commenting wryly, Joachim Jahnke, East European director of trade in Bonn's Ministry of Economics, said: "We do not need an institution to provide subsidized credits to Eastern Europe, as our trade picture is very healthy and growing steadily."

When, oh when, will our D.C. "altruists" with U.S. taxpayers' money ever learn that to "trade" means to exchange, not to pour endless streams of wealth down the rat holes of the world?

"Conservation is out, drive-now-pay-later is in."

INSIDE LABOR

Black Labor Seeking Power

By VICTOR RIESEL
WASHINGTON — Today's black labor leaders are the new breed. They're younger than their white "brothers." They're sophisticated. They're sharp. They're militant. Their two-year-old Coalition of Black Trade Unionists (CBTU), operating inside the labor movement, wants a much bigger piece of the leadership action than they're getting.

They say they've replaced the symbol of Uncle Tom's Cabin with the symbol of the huge Detroit Cobo Arena where they'll soon open their second annual convention to whip their apparatus into shape, to show their solidarity with congressional Black Caucus leaders and political powers such as Detroit's black Mayor Coleman Young.

And they'll demand that the national labor movement launch unionization drives in the inner cities and especially in the South.

Coalition leaders will open that convention of 1,800 delegates from scores of unions on May 3. The next day they plan to fill Detroit's central square with tens of thousands of black demonstrators to call for aid to auto workers and others whose jobs were washed out by the new styles of the energy crunch.

Their leaders are fast to see the new era. It's all around us. It is spurring out of the office of John Powell, chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), and from the Justice Department. The latter's Civil Rights division has upgraded and leaptfrogged blacks over many white workers industry by industry — the utilities and the truck and steel businesses.

Upcoming now for "equal employment" review is the "communications" field, meaning the national broadcasting networks and locals as well. Then banking. Finally the auto industry and public employment.

Industry by industry has been and will be disbursing reparation pay to black workers, remaking seniority lists, cracking the promotion pipelines and ripping apart departments and opening executive suites.

There's no doubt the black worker believes this is his — and her — year. What the government is ramming through, albeit in "consent decrees" in the mills, white-collar offices and "over-the-road" hauling, the blacks now will try to force inside labor.

Few realize there are some 500,000 black workers (out of 1.5 million members) in the United Auto Workers; some 200,000 of 1.2 million in the United Steelworkers; about 200,000 in the 615,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees; 200,000 of 2.1 million

Teamsters, and hundreds of thousands more in the construction and (building) service trades.

The Black Coalition leaders say their followers' collective voice should be heard in labor's highest circles, such as the AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting here May 9. They want no quarrel with the traditional white leadership. But they want action.

"We will get closer to the people in the communities," says the municipal employes national secretary-treasurer, 39-year-old Bill Lucy, an influential member of the CBTU executive committee, "and get a voice for them in the leadership. We aren't needing anyone. But we want to get the community involved. We will go into our national convention to discuss this and political action — how to get results, how to deliver the vote. We will prepare to dig up the human resources of the black communities, to train people for political campaigns. We want organizing where there is no organizing. First we will go in to organize, and then get the new members into the proper unions. We have no special targets. Just organizing."

If Lucy and the rest of the Executive Committee — a broad spectrum group — mean what they say, the unionization and politicization drives will fan through the South. Wherever there are large black coalition unions, they will help the smaller ones. Where there are none, they'll send in organizers. There is Atlanta, for example, which has a new black mayor, Maynard Jackson.

It may all be a dream with a "we shall overcome" euphoria. But the new black leadership may get it off the ground. They may roll. It won't be as easy as the old civil rights drive. Nor will it be as popular with the labor establishment. But the coalition now can turn out 1,800 delegates. And in its executive group are national union vice presidents.

They want their place in the command posts of the building and construction trades, the teachers and other traditional white officialdom.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Strauss 'Task Force' Has Dem Pros Puzzled

By ROBERTS ALLEN
WASHINGTON — Democratic politicians are eyeing suspiciously national chairman Robert Strauss' latest manifestation of his seeming insatiable yen for setting up commissions, committees, councils and the like.

The new creation is titled "Democratic Advisory Task Force on Foreign Policy." It has 36 members, a number of them former high officials, and the chairman is Averell Harriman, 82-year-old wealthy, one-time New York governor, ambassador and State Department handyman for Democratic Presidents from Franklin Roosevelt to Lyndon Johnson.

Reason for the inner party wariness about this "task force" is what it's all about. Unknown is what it's supposed to do, why and when.

Backstage word is that Harriman is the real originator of the idea; that being restless and wanting "something important" to do, he conceived the foreign policy task force plan and sold it to Strauss.

Also attributed to Harriman is the high-flown list of members — which particularly appealed to Strauss. They include former cabinet members, ambassadors, educators, prize-winning authors, prominent lawyers — and belatedly a group of laborites.

They were hastily added after some vehement remonstrations from labor — who indignantly wanted to know how come they were being slighted.

Both Harriman and Strauss hurriedly assured them that was unintentional and asked for recommendations. Three were submitted and promptly named — Gus Tyler, top official of the International Ladies Garment Workers; Joseph Keenan, secretary, Electrical Workers; Seymour Lipset, Harvard sociologist.

Other members of the panel are:

Dean Rusk, former Secretary of State; Arthur Goldberg, former Supreme Court justice; Labor Secretary and ambassador to the United Nations; Sargent Shriver, one-time Peace Corps head and 1972 (second choice) vice presidential candidate; Orville Freeman, ex-Agriculture Secretary; Nicholas Katzenbach, former Attorney General and Undersecretary of State; George Ball, one-time Undersecretary of State.

Also Clark Clifford, former Secretary of Defense; Cyrus Vance, former Secretary of the Army and Deputy Secretary of Defense; Paul Warnke, one-time Assistant Secretary of Defense; Edwin Reischauer, former ambassador to Japan; John Kenneth Galbraith, Harvard economist and one-time head of the leftish Americans for Democratic Action; Barbara Tuchman, prize-winning author and historian.

Baffling Mysteries
Piquing the doubts and curiosity of Democratic politicians are three questions:

(1) What was said and done at an unannounced task force meeting last week in Harriman's ornate home in Georgetown, swank residential section of Washington. There has been no authoritative word on what took place; and why the secrecy surrounding this first session.

(2) Who is putting up the money for the task force — the National Committee, Harriman, or others? One report is that no one is funding it; that the members are well-heeled and paying their own expenses, with Harriman picking up the tab for clerical and other minor costs.

(3) That the real aim of Harriman and Strauss is to use the task force to draft a foreign policy program for submission to the mini-convention in Kansas City in December — and thus hopefully sidestep a divisive brawl over this highly explosive subject between the rancorous anti-war leftists and militant advocates of strong defense forces.

This volatile issue could be extremely disruptive. The viciously acrimonious intra-party brawling over it played a leading role in the Democratic presidential defeats of 1968 and 1972. This deep-seated cleavage is far from resolved, and could erupt with undimmed violence at Kansas City.

Whether the carefully soft-pedaled Harriman-Strauss task force can come up with a "harmony" foreign policy program only time will tell.

There are significant indications that's its real function.

No one in a position to know is denying it. When questioned, they shrug and reply cryptically, "Wait and see. What's being done will become evident soon enough."

Flashing Points

The Wallace camp, unrepresented on the foreign policy task force, is eyeing it distrustfully. The Alabama governor, very touchy about being excluded from National Committee affairs, emphatically does not like the idea of not having a voice on this panel.

Among his lieutenants, that is attributed to Harriman and the "Eastern intelligentsia close to him."

Significantly, the Harriman committee on the other hand is drawing approving comment from Alan Baron, aggressive leftist head of the self-created "Democratic Planning Group." Unknown is to what extent this friendly attitude is due to National Chairman Strauss' recent cordiality to Baron and his radical agitational outfit. Strauss is credited with "suggesting" to wealthy liberal friends that they contribute to Baron as a "practical politician who isn't as irreconcilable as he has been painted." Baron's principal contributor has been Stewart Mott, multi-millionaire GM heir and Electrical Workers' "money-bags" of leftist causes and candidates.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis is finally going to make her first political appearance since leaving the White House in November 1963.

The occasion will be a fund-raising affair being staged by Harriman, and billed as "An Evening with Averell Harriman." Charge is $125 a ticket, the money to go to the Democratic Study Group, the DSG, consisting of liberal Congressmen, extended the invitation and the former First Lady accepted.

Other prominent on the guest list are Mrs. Margaret Truman Daniels, daughter of President Truman; Mrs. Lynda Bird Johnson Robb, daughter of President Lyndon Johnson; and Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., former member of Congress and unsuccessful aspirant for New York governor.

The Democratic Study Group expects to play a major role in the new (94th) Congress next year — which it is anticipated will be militantly liberal if not outright radical.

Politicos consider it virtually certain Mrs. Onassis' decision to break her decade-old absence from the political arena was made after consulting Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. Says Rep. Patricia Schroeder, ultra-liberal Colorado Democrat, breathlessly, "We're still walking on air over this wonderful news. Her appearance will make it a memorable evening."

Real Threat Of Those Tapes

By GARRY WILLS
The current "Playboy" has an excerpt from the book by reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward that tells how they uncovered the Watergate story. There are certain things "Playboy" will print that the two reporters could not get into a family paper like the Washington Post.

One of these was a scatological code word around the White House for the tactics of campaign sabotage that filled the otherwise blank spot behind all those pretty young faces Richard Nixon had assembled in his vicinity. The Southern California beach boys gone bad carried over a slang term from their days of stealing the opposite team's mascot — and that was the word that popped up, again and again, as Woodward and Bernstein zeroed in on "tricksters" like Donald Segretti.

It may seem a small loss that this sneaky kiddie's attempt at obscenity did not enliven the pages of our daily newspapers. But this incident may tell us more about the withholding of Nixon's tapes than do more profound analyses of the political situation.

Science Today

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. space agency soon must decide where it should go next in its expanding effort to explore the planets and search for signs of other life in the solar system.

In the past four months, American and Russian scientists have sent spacecraft to the four nearest planets—Jupiter, Mars, Venus and Mercury. Next year the space agency will launch two robots called Viking to land and search for life on Mars.

A Pioneer spacecraft is scheduled to reach Jupiter next December and fly on to become the first probe to explore Saturn in 1979. NASA also plans to launch two larger Mariner television scouts in 1977 to examine Jupiter and Saturn and in 1978 two spacecraft will be launched to orbit Venus and probe its dense atmosphere.

Court Orders Use Of Dual Ballot Boxes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court has ordered the continued use of dual ballot boxes in Texas bond elections pending disposition of a challenge to the procedure in the high court.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger did not participate in the court's action. Texas had originally asked Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. to stay the effect of a ruling by the U.S. district court for the Northern District of Texas that the procedure is unconstitutional. But Powell turned the matter over to the court itself.

Texas bond elections attempt to meet the requirements of both the Texas and U.S. constitutions by providing separate ballot boxes for property taxpayers.

The Texas Constitution requires that bond issues be approved by a majority of property tax payers. But recent rulings involving other states have held that a majority of all voters, regardless of property status, must approve bond proposals.

those missions are in. NASA has to decide where to place its priorities for missions of the 1980s. Mars has held No. 1 priority in the nation's planetary exploration scheme since 1965 because of the chance it may harbor life.

Space agency administrators cannot wait until the two Vikings land on Mars in the summer of 1976 before deciding if there should be additional Viking missions, and if Mars should continue to hold top priority.

"One year before launch and two years before we land we must face the question of whether there should be follow-on Vikings," said Dr. John E. Naugle, deputy associate NASA administrator and head of the space science projects.

Naugle told the National Space Club last week that the next opportunity for launching additional Vikings will be in 1979. The final decision on proceeding with more Vikings can wait until 1975, but he said, "If we are to have next scientific experiments ready for a 1979 launch we should be working on the right now."

An Expensive Project
The advanced Viking missions under consideration include carrying a remote controlled surface vehicle to roam over broad areas of the Martian surface and bring Mars samples to earth.

But Naugle said Viking is an expensive project and, "if we proceed with Viking it may preclude other exciting planetary missions."

Among those under consideration are flights past Jupiter to Uranus and flights into orbit around Jupiter, Venus and now Mercury as a result of the spectacular pictures returned by the Mariner-10 Mercury probe in March.

"In a sense, we find ourselves asking the same question we did almost a year ago," Naugle said. "Should Mars continue to have first priority in planetary exploration? If so, on what scale?"

"Clearly, if we find evidence of life on Mars there will be tremendous interest in studying that life and there will be no question—Mars will have first priority."

UT Replacing Football Fields With New AstroTurf

By ANDREW A. YEMMA
AUSTIN (UPI) — The University of Texas will spend $300,000 this summer to replace two artificial football fields installed five years ago for $225,000.

Athletic Department officials say they are getting a "good deal" for their new AstroTurf carpets. But their decision to abandon natural grass will—after the Longhorns complete their sixth season on plastic grass next fall—be costing the school an average of $135,833 per season.

"It's a food financial deal," said Richard Goodman, a student member of the Athletic Council which approved the latest expenditure. "About 2,000 people a day use the fields—the ROTC, the band, joggers and others—not just the football team. We needed it."

"It brings into question the priorities of our athletic department, but I wouldn't want to debate the priorities," he said.

Goodman and Athletic Department Business Manager Al Lundstedt contend the university is saving money by replacing the fields this year, even though the surface in Memorial Stadium still has five years to go on its 10-year warranty.

Tim And Rita Best Spitters

MONTICELLO, Ark. (UPI) — Tim and Rita French are Arkansas's first family of tobacco spitters.

Tim won the accuracy division of the "First Annual Arkansas Tobacco Spitting Contest," and Rita, who didn't really start chewing tobacco until 15 minutes before the contest began, won the all-around female division.

"It wasn't too bad," she said, rinsing her mouth out with a cup of water. "It was a little hot and a little sweet. I might try it again next year."

Mrs. French said she learned everything about tobacco chewing and spitting from her husband, a forestry major at the University of Arkansas at Monticello.

"I just got there and said, 'Tim, I don't know what I'm doing.' And he said, 'Just lean way back and give it all you got.' So, that's what I did and it worked. It wasn't very far, but it worked."

Both the Frenches received brass spittoons for winning their divisions. Jim Zornes of Booneville, Ark., won the distance competition with a 192-foot spit before a crowd of 1,000 persons who gathered Tuesday night at the town square to watch the contest.

Mrs. French was back at her job with a discount store Wednesday and people were asking her about how it feels to be a celebrity and how she likes chewing tobacco.

"I don't think I'll make a habit of it," she said. "It wasn't bad, though. I don't like cigarettes either. I'll just stick to chewing gum. I guess. It's a little easier at work that way. They won't let you carry a cup around with you."

The Monsanto Co., manufacturer of AstroTurf, agreed to pay $180,000 of the total cost of the two new fields because the warranty on the Memorial Stadium surface had not expired. The other field, on a lot across the street from the stadium where the freshman team practices, was installed at a no charge in 1969 because Monsanto was experimenting with a new variety of AstroTurf.

"The practice field is in very bad shape," Lundstedt said. "The Memorial Stadium field has lasted longer, but since we were getting a new baseball field installed this summer we felt the best deal financially was to go ahead and replace them both right now."

He referred to the school's new $2.25 million baseball stadium, in which an AstroTurf playing field will be installed this summer.

The athletic department is spending $150,000 on the purchase of the football surfaces. The other $150,000 was appropriated by the board of regents.

The $150,000 Athletics Department expenditure depleted the department's $400,000 reserve fund—used, according to Lundstedt, to cover "major capital improvements"—by 37.5 per cent.

The initial $525,000 investment which the university made in 1969 also included a rubberized "tartan" running track, which will not be replaced this year. Neither will the school have to pay the cost of excavation, drainage and asphalt paving which preceded the installation of the original artificial fields.

The $300,000 bill includes only two foam rubber pads and two carpets of AstroTurf—both the size of football fields.

Lundstedt said the University of Texas is not the only Southwest Conference school which is replacing its AstroTurf.

Arkansas replaced its field last year and they put it in at the same time we did. Rice had to redo the end zones and the edges. Texas Tech had its field reinstalled (but not replaced) because the glue did not adhere properly," Lundstedt said.

"None of them have had the Friday night high school playoff games which we used to have in the pouring rain that ruined the field for the rest of the season."

That point—being able to play on artificial grass in all types of weather—is one of the main advantages which proponents see in AstroTurf. Aeration, fertilization and watering bills are nil since an occasional vacuuming or hot-water scrubbing will take care of the maintenance.

Lundstedt said he couldn't remember what the cost of maintenance of the natural grass was prior to installation of AstroTurf.

US Religious Community Looking To 'Bicentennial'

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American religious community is rapidly organizing itself to make sure it won't be left out of the nation's bicentennial celebration.

Already some major denominations have put together task forces and commissions with the goal of finding ways in which the religious heritage that has been part of American history for 200 years can best be expressed during America's "birthday party."

In addition, several ecumenical and interfaith groups have been formed with the aim of emphasizing the special role that religion and religious values have played in shaping the nation's life.

One of the most prominent of these is FORWARD '76, a project of the Interchurch Center in New York.

Prominent Sponsors
FORWARD, an acronym for "Freedom of Religion Will Advance Real Democracy," has more than 100 prominent religious, education and business leaders among its sponsors.

Among the sponsors are Archbishop Joseph L. Bernadin of Cincinnati; Rabbi Irwin M. Blank, president of the Synagogue Council of America; Rev. W. Sterling Cary, president of the National Council of Churches; Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., widow of the slain civil rights leader; anthropologist Margaret Mead; Mrs. Norman Vincent Peale, and W. Clement Stone, president of Religious Heritage of America.

Dr. R. H. Edwin Espy, recently retired general secretary of the National Council of Churches and chairman of the FORWARD project, said the project would aim at recovering the "basic religiously inspired moral value systems" of America and attempt to restate them in convincing ways.

Another program has the potential for being one of the most exciting and far reaching developments of church reflection on the bicentennial: the National Committee for Religious Communities, the Arts and the American Revolution (RCAAR).

Put together by local, regional and national members of the United Church of Christ and the United Presbyterian Church, RCAAR has held one major consultation bringing together religionists and artists exploring the fragile relationship between art and faith.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration St. Matthews Episcopal Church

C. PHILLIP CRAIG
Pastor

John 20:21-22 "... he breathed on them, and said to them, 'Receive the Holy Spirit.'"

I know my Lord lives, for I have seen Him. This phrase of love to the God of Love has been on the lips of Christians for many hundreds of years. And the world has always scoffed at it as if it were pure nonsense. "Prove it, prove it, prove it!" the world cries.

But prove what... an empty tomb? Impossible. Yet that does not disprove either. If we were to look for the presence of the Risen Lord, where would we look? In an empty tomb? The living will not be found among the dead, but among the living. The Living Christ is to be found in men and women — like you and me.

Does that seem too simple to accept? Well look what happened to Peter. He was the son of Jonas, a fisherman of Capernaum in Galilee:

...a native of Gethsaida, a village near the lake of Tiberius

...given the name Cephas (Petra), the Rock (by Christ)

...the first name on every list of the Twelve

...present on all the occasions of the 'inner group' (the raising of Jarius' daughter — the Transfiguration — the Garden of Gethsemane)

...he was the mouthpiece of the Apostles (he spoke for the others when they declared their readiness to follow Christ at Caesarea Philippi)

...he protests the foot washings

...he boasts that he will never leave the Lord

...he strikes of the ear of the servant of the High Priest

...he goes into the courtyard to spy during the trial

This rock, this Peter, was to deny Christ and flee like a coward.

In fact, all the disciples fled in fear. We have here a picture of a strong leader for the Lord; and he ran like a coward. What happened to Peter?

Four days later Peter was back in the city claiming to have seen Jesus alive.

...he leads in choosing the successor to Judas

...he speaks on the day of Pentecost

...he was the first of the Apostles to perform miracles in the name of Jesus

...he is the speaker when he and John were taken before Sanhedrin

...pronounces the condemnation on Ananias and Sapphira

...leads the Apostles Council at Jerusalem

...visits Antioch and Corinth

...was crucified upside down on a cross

Crucified upside down on a cross? You mean he died for something he ran away from four days before? What happened to him? Why the change in his life? What happened that made him willing to die to say "Jesus lives?"

Now folks — let's be real about this. I do not believe this simple fisherman could ever make-up a story as fantastic as the Resurrection. But even if he did, would he be willing to die for what he knew to be a lie? No, I think not. Peter may have been wrong, but he was no liar. He saw the Risen Christ and his life was changed forever.

Not just Peter, but all of the Apostles were changed, and all but four of them were to die violent deaths preaching the Risen Lord. Why? What had happened to them?

Of course this does not prove anything. Faith is not that kind of gift. None of the gifts of the Holy Spirit are that way. And yet, all down through the ages, men and women and children have had their lives changed. They have become reflectors of the Beautiful Perfection of God. They have felt loved and healed and forgiven, and so they were able to love and heal and forgive in the name of Love.

When all of our theological debate and argument attempt to rest... when tongues fail and prophecy stops... it is in people that we will see the Resurrection. We will see it in men and women whose vision has been sharpened by a willingness to surrender their lives, in trust, to a god whose name is Love.

Oh, He has such great gifts for you. All you have to do is to ask Jesus to come into your life, right now as you read this, and they are yours.

Did You Know This About OUR RELIGIONS?

By Dr. Carlyle Adams

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the "National Radio Pulpit," first broadcast May 6, 1923 over W.E.A.F. (now WNBC), New York City. The late Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of Brooklyn was the first preacher. After several years, Dr. Cadman was succeeded by Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

In the early years, when there were fewer radio sets, people gathered in each other's homes, church halls or other places to hear the weekly sermons. After a half century, it is the oldest radio network religious program in the United States.

The National Council of Churches still receives thousands of letters about it each week. Now the preacher is Dr. David H.C. Read and the summer substitute is Dr. Ernest D. Campbell, a successor of Dr. Fosdick at New York's Riverside Church.

Question: Is there an official directory which lists all of the priests and bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States and Canada?

—Delaware, Ohio

Answer: Yes. It is called "The Official Catholic Directory" and is published yearly by P.J. Kennedy & Sons, 866 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. The first edition appeared in 1817. About 15,000 copies are printed each year.

Question: St. George is venerated in England and also there are Eastern Orthodox Churches named for him. What was his role in history?

—Harrisburg, Pa.

Answer: He was born in Cappadocia in what is now central Turkey. His parents were Christians and he became a soldier when quite young, and served under the Roman Emperor Diocletian.

Later, when Diocletian began his brutal persecution of Christians, George resigned his commission and rebuked the emperor. As a result, he suffered torture and finally was beheaded. The Emperor Constantine honored George with naming a church after

St. George is held in veneration in many parts of the world. He became

Angela Davis Says Watergate 'Nothing New'

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)— Black Marxist Angela Davis says Watergate is nothing new for blacks in the United States.

"Watergate is the inevitable fruit of a system that will resort to any and every means to keep itself in power," she told students at Southern University.

"There are many, many other Watergates that have been inflicted on the black community for decades."

Miss Davis, who was acquitted of charges in connection with a 1970 shootout in which a California judge was killed, spoke at Southern as part of the student government association sponsored symposium on women in the political system.

She drew cheers from the several thousand students gathered in the school's stadium when she said former Louisiana Gov. John McKeithen belonged on blacks' "10 most wanted list" along with California Gov. Ronald Reagan and President Nixon.

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—

What's a pretty girl who used to be a model doing in a funny-face clown costume with the circus?

Having the time of her life making people laugh and laughing at herself, that's what, says Janice Gillespie, 24, one of the few women clowns in the world.

"Clowns are just people laughing at themselves," she said. "As a model, I was very self-conscious. As a clown, nothing bothers me."

Clowning is an unusual career for a girl; there are only six women in the two circus units Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey now has on the road: One unit is at Madison Square Garden.

What further sets Miss Gillespie apart is that she also is a teacher of several of the circus children on the road with their parents, many of whom are foreign-born.

American Customs
The children usually speak English, but their parents want them to learn reading and writing and more about American customs.

"They need help with the transition," she said. "I do a lot of theater for the kids, acting out as Italk."

The clown is not a certified teacher; her help to the children is voluntary

Aussies' Prime Minister Doesn't Lack Confidence

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Self-confidence rather than modesty can be called an outstanding characteristic of Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam, and it has led him into some interesting conflicts, including a brush with President Nixon.

It also is contributory to the fact that on May 18, Australia will go through national elections for both houses of parliament just half way through his three-year term.

In the year and a half since he overturned the 23-year rule of the conservative Liberal Country party coalition Whitlam has brought about a sharp turn in Australian foreign policy.

Own Foreign Minister
Acting as his own foreign minister until last November, he has intentionally loosened Australia's ties with the United States.

"We do not wish to grandstand or thumb our noses at the United States," he said during a visit to the United States last July. "When our interests do not coincide, we shall, as a good friend should, say so firmly and frankly and, usually and preferably in private."

Firmly but somewhat less than privately he criticized Nixon's decision to bomb Hanoi in December of 1972, leading to a chill between Washington and Sydney early in his administration.

Whitlam's independence of Washington has expressed itself in new Australian relations and sympathies with China, with black Africa, with North Vietnam and with anti-colonialism. He supports military ties with the U.S. but does not regard them as an end-all or be-all.

A New Course
In steering Australia on to a new course in foreign policy, Whitlam frankly has enjoyed himself.

"I have been," the tall and handsome prime minister told a press club luncheon in Sydney, "the greatest (foreign minister) we've had."

When the Australian press criticized him for arrogance, his loyal wife came quickly to his side.

"Of course he is," she said. "Arrogance is permitted if you have something to be arrogant about."

Whatever it is, it has served him less well in his domestic policies.

As for his political opposition, he has made no visible effort at conciliation even though it controls the senate and is the cause of much of his legislative difficulties. On one occasion, he accused its members publicly of over-indulging at a cocktail party.

The senate forced him to call for elections by blocking appropriation bills necessary to running the government.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Kay's marriage ended in a divorce. Why? Because her husband believed the malarky that women are just as wildly passionate as men. Instead, they are anatomically frigid, as per male standards! But a smart husband can double his wife's eroticism.

CASE A-617: Kay D., aged 24, has been married only 2 years.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "our marriage turned sour within the first 6 months."

"But we stayed together for 2 years, partly in hopes of a solution."

"For we were sexually incompatible."

"My husband complained that I was too frigid to make anybody a good wife."

"And this made me freeze up even more!"

"Besides, I had been educated in a convent school, so I knew very little about men."

"We finally got a divorce, much to the shock of our parents."

"But neither of us is happy, so we are wondering if it would be O. K. to remarry."

UNNECESSARY DIVORCES

"Dr. Crane," many young women have confessed, "your Worry Clinic has cleared up my wrong notions in our marriage."

"Instead of ending in divorce, we are now ideally happy."

And these young couples were often facing the same sexual misconceptions that sent Kay into the divorce court.

For divorce usually starts in the bedroom!

Yet young couples before or even immediately after their weddings have been left in ignorance or else have absorbed false notions.

For example, even Dr. Kinsey's book and many other articles in modern magazines, state that women are just as passionate as men.

That's absolutely false! Women are NOT as sexually erotic as men, and even your laymen's empirical observation should prove that axiom.

During courtship girls realize that boys are far more aggressive on dates and more addicted to "Roman hands."

And which sex is noted for telling risqué stories? Which patronize the stag movies and pornographic pictures?

Even with the advent of Women's Lib, do women crave to see semi-nude pictures of men on magazine covers?

Anatomically, too, the female has only about 10% of the excitable tactile cells for erotic excitement that men possess.

Women were apparently intended to be relatively frigid, as measured by the male standard.

God created them to be primarily mothers and only mildly erotic.

But Kay's husband had been imbued with the false idea that a wife is just as passionate as a husband.

But Kay is a normal wife, meaning, she is diffident or "frigid" as measured by his standards.

Husbands must realize this essential sex difference and thus not snarl at their wife's failure to match their own boudoir ardor.

Women were created to be but one of a harem, as regards their anatomy, for it takes possibly 4 women to match one man's ardor (See Biblical Jacob).

Monogamy, however, is now legally, morally, economically and even psychologically better especially for the peace of mind of the children.

So a husband must learn all the boudoir techniques for exciting his mate.

And she must serve more boudoir cheesecake so she can function as a one-wife harem.

Send for my booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

It banished the basic cause for feuding in Kay's first marriage and now has made her remarriage secure and happy.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Republic Bldg., Melton, Indiana 47638. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Beef Producers Still Face Crisis

By MICHAEL O. WESTER

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)— The smart grocery shopper may get his best cut of beef at lower prices than he's seen in several months during the coming month, according to one agricultural economist.

"Producers are the heavy losers right now," said Willard F. Williams of Texas Tech University.

"The cattle feeding industry is experiencing its most severe financial crisis in history. But there is certainly a buyers' market at the meat counter."

Williams said smart meat buyers may find the best cuts a better bargain than combination dishes.

Better Cut Specials
"Specials probably will be run on the better cuts of beef and retail prices should be lower now than at any time during the remainder of the spring and summer," he said.

Specials and general prices will not be as attractive as they were in earlier years, but they will represent advantages over prices which may be expected for much of the remainder of the year, Williams said.

Beef cattle supplies brought about by marketing difficulties, shipping problems and reduced demand for beef have created a temporary surplus which favors current prices, he said.

"Lower prices in the face of high feed costs and other costs have led to severe losses for cattle feeders, losses ranging from $50 to as much as $200 per head," he said. "The total loss to the industry ranges between $700 million and $1 billion."

Repercussions Still Felt

Williams said the beef industry was one which operated solely on the laws of supply and demand. He said repercussions from the consumer boycott of beef, a year ago are still being felt throughout the beef industry and will continue to be felt for some time.

"At the time of the boycott, retail prices had been affected by an earlier sharp rise in demand and a winter which had been extremely severe for cattle producers," he said. "A synthetic growth hormone was banned from use, which, combined with the effects of the severe winter, resulted in a temporary shortage of slaughter sized cattle."

Following the boycott, market supplies continued short but wholesale and retail prices were held down by price ceilings. Meat packers were so severely affected that many closed their plants during August.

The slowdown occurred at just the time that cattle began to reach market weight. A huge backlog of cattle on feed developed quickly and met with a decline in consumer demand. Producer prices begin trending lower in September and, except for a brief rise early in the year, have continued almost steadily lower since that time.

Most Severe Crisis
"The cattle feeding industry now is experiencing the most severe financial crisis in history," Williams said.

The economist said marketing problems, higher production prices and inflation in general have been responsible for losses of more than $700 million in the cattle industry in the last six months. These losses, he said, have been felt from the farmer through the meat packer and have been reflected in higher retail prices.

"The consumer usually sees only higher prices in the grocery store and understandably is upset," Williams said. "Inflation is making food take a greater portion of the family budget and consumers are seeking ways to make their food dollar go farther."

America's first county fair reportedly was established at Pittsfield, Mass., in 1811 as the Berkshire County Fair.

Surgery Doesn't Affect Birth

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Recently my wife and I found we would be having our first child...

It seems that one of her friends who has had several children told her that if you ever had any kind of surgery around the area of the child, the child will have to be taken cesarean...

I have tried to persuade her to ask her doctor but she doesn't want to ask him such a dumb question. We read your column. She would believe you.

A cesarean can be necessary at times, but for definite reasons, not just because there happens to have been surgery in the past for something or other.

Most frequent is based on the size of the baby in relation to the mother's pelvis...

because (when good cause exists) it is now being done nearly a quarter of a million times a year with success.

Normal, childbirth of course is preferable, but there should not be any abnormal fear of a cesarean when it is the safer way in any given pregnancy.

Cesarean delivery is not at all new. Legend had it that Julius Caesar was born that way, but apparently that is just a legend.

All the same, it was known in his time and before, but attempted only when a woman died late in pregnancy and the cesarean was an attempt to save the baby.

Should your wife, for any reason, have to have a cesarean section, today she should not be alarmed.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You confuse me by stating that honey has the same effect on diabetes as sugar.

Normal, childbirth of course is preferable, but there should not be any abnormal fear of a cesarean when it is the safer way in any given pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell us something to use for poison ivy? My daughter has it and it spreads more and more. We just cannot seem to find a remedy or even something for relief.

Poison ivy doesn't spread — although it seems to, because not all the exposed spots break out simultaneously.

But if the trouble continues to spread after a few days, it can mean that some secondary infection has started on top of the ivy poisoning.

Your "thoughts" about honey are dangerous — because honey is almost entirely sugar, which is why it is so sweet.

Never take a chance on diabetes! For better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. G.C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120 for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease."

Because of the tremendous volume of mail received daily, Dr. Thosteson regrets that he cannot answer individual letters, but whenever possible he uses readers' questions in his column.

Smuggling Some Rickles Nuggets

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Millions were watching the Tony Awards on ABC-TV, but only a couple of thousand had heard the Friars zinging it to Don Rickles as Entertainer of the Year at their $100 dinner.

The fact that enrollment in most colleges and universities is on the decline means getting into a college will be easier for most students. It also, however, means that college income will be down and many schools will have to increase tuition fees to offset decreasing funds.

Another factor affecting the colleges is diminishing funds from federal and private sources as well as increasing costs to maintain facilities and pay personnel.

If you are planning your college career, be sure to take into account these increased costs. It won't be sufficient to plan only your freshman year, but you can probably expect further increases in subsequent years for which you should be prepared.

Increasing costs are not only limited to tuition. Inflation will affect other areas such as housing, food, transportation and books and supplies needed for your college career.

SPORTS

The Pampa Daily News
Pampa, Texas 68th Year Friday, April 28, 1974

United Press International
Would you believe a 42-homer season in 1974 and a career total of 755 homers for Hank Aaron?
As Tug McGraw of the New York Mets says, believe.

The 40-year old Atlanta Braves' star, who already has surpassed Babe Ruth's former career record of 714 homers, shows no signs of slowing down his home run pace. In fact, if he continues his current pace he'll actually surpass his 40-homer total of 1973.
Aaron hit his fifth homer of the current season to give the Braves a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday night. It came in the Braves' 19th game of the season—a pace which, if projected over the full season, would give him a total of 42 and a career mark of 755.

Aaron's No. 5 of 1974 and

No. 718 of his career was a two-run shot off Jerry Reuss in the seventh inning Thursday night and overcame a 2-1 Pittsburgh lead. It came after Darrell Evans opened the Braves' seventh by drawing a walk and was delivered on Reuss' first pitch to him. Typically, it was a line drive over the left field fence in Atlanta Stadium.

Ron Reed went the distance for the Braves, allowing seven hits and chalking up his fourth victory in five decisions. It was the second straight loss for Reuss, who was acquired from the Houston Astros in a winter trade.

In other NL games, Los Angeles defeated Philadelphia, 1-0; New York beat San Diego, 5-2, and San Francisco downed Montreal, 8-2. Texas whipped Boston, 4-0, and Kansas City topped New York Yankees, 6-1, in the American League games.

Dodgers 1 Phillies 0
Tommy John pitched a fourhitter to become the majors' first five-game winner of the season. John, 5-0, struck out eight and lowered his earned run average to 0.86. Jimmy Wynn drove in the only run of the game in the first inning with a sacrifice fly. Dick Ruthven went seven innings for the Phils and suffered his first loss.

Mets 5 Padres 2
Jerry Koons pitched a sixhitter for his third straight win, striking out 11 and halting a New York nosedive which had seen 10 losses in 11 previous games. John Milner drove in three runs for the Mets with a sacrifice fly and a single. Both runs off Koonsman were unearned.

Giants 8 Expos 2
Dave Kingman drove in four runs with two homers and Mike Caldwell pitched a five-hitter for his fourth victory for the Giants.

Pampa, Borger To Tangle At 4

Although the Pampa-Borger game today is of utmost importance to the Harvesters (naturally), Pampa will still keep close tabs on the Caprock-Tascosa contest, for if Pampa wins and Caprock loses, only one game will separate those two teams.

Pampa, which defeated Borger, 4-3, a month ago, hosts the Bulldogs at 4 p.m. in a do-or-die situation for the Harvesters. Pampa is 4-3 in district play, Caprock is 6-1 and Amarillo High 5-2. So if the Longhorns lose to Tascosa, which they did the last time the two played, and Pampa beats Borger, District 3-AAAA would again be anybody's title.

After today's games, which also pair Amarillo High and Palo Duro, there will be two remaining. Pampa hosts Amarillo High Tuesday and travels to Palo Duro Friday.

David Edwards, 4-1, will probably get the nod as starting pitcher for Ronnie White's Harvesters today while sophomore Rodney Poole is liable to throw for Borger. If Poole doesn't pitch, senior Don Keener, who has not quite lived up to pre-season expectations, will.

Pampa's starting lineup will probably be centerfielder Rick Smith, second baseman Rick Bigham, shortstop Toddy Black, rightfielder Joe Watkins, first baseman Roy Morris, catcher Ron Willett or Bobby Hendricks, leftfielder Tyler Drinnon, third baseman Mike Adair and Edwards.

Borger's top players include a set of triplets—Dean, Dale and Drew Florer, who play leftfield, third base and catcher respectively. Each is batting over 300.

HARVESTER OF THE WEEK — Shortstop Toddy Black, who went three for four at the plate, scored a run and batted in four runners, all four on a grand slam home run, against Caprock in a 17-10 Pampa loss last Friday, was named Harvester of the Week Thursday at the Pampa Noon Lions Club. (Staff Photo)

IN STANLEY CUP New York Lips Philadelphia, 5-3

United Press International
If ever a team looked like it was ready to be counted out, it had to be the New York Rangers.

Already down two games in their Stanley Cup semifinal series against Philadelphia, the Rangers were trailing 3-1 midway through game No. 3 Thursday night and also were taking another physical beating from the pugnacious Flyers.

To further dampen their spirits, Philadelphia's third goal was a gift from Rod Seiling when a centering pass from Gary Dornhoefer went off the Ranger defenseman's stick as he tried to slap it away. It was the third time during the playoffs that Seiling has knocked a puck into his own goal.

darkest moment when New York began to show some life. Forechecking furiously and showing some physical muscle of their own, the Rangers retaliated with four consecutive goals for a 5-3 victory in New York. This still leaves them down 2-1 in the best-of-seven series, with the fourth game to be televised nationally Sunday afternoon from New York.

Severus from New York
"It shows you what this club is made of," said New York Captain Vic Hadfield, who scored the tying goal at 18:44 of the second period on a power play. "When you're down 2-0 in the series and 2-0 in the game, it's easy to say the heck with it all. It takes something to keep on fighting and to come back."

Harvard held its first commencement in 1642.

BETTER WEATHER than last Friday is expected today as Pampa plays the Borger Bulldogs at 4 p.m. at Optimist Park. The Harvesters defeated the Bulldogs, 4-3, when the teams played a month ago. Last week against Caprock in Pampa, the game was delayed five times because of rain before Caprock came away with a 17-10 win. Here, Pampa coach Ronnie White (left) and Caprock coach Bob Andrews rake the pitcher's mound in the first inning with Caprock in front, 5-0.

CHANGES ADOPTED Sudden Death Rule Highlights NFL Action

DALLAS (UPI) — The rules changes adopted by the National Football League might bring about yet another specialist — a psychic who can correctly call the coin flip at the beginning of sudden death.

And if any team can come up with such a person, the computerized-minded Dallas Cowboys might be the one.

"We're working on it," said offensive line coach Jim Myers. "I think we have got that all handled."

The changes adopted Thursday by the NFL rules committee will, indeed, make extra work for the coaches. And, at least in the mind of Cowboy defensive coach Ernie Stautner, defenses are to blame for the new rules.

Offense Behind
"I'm somewhat surprised they put so many rules in at the same time," Stautner said. "But I kind of think what's happened, of course, is that the defenses have really caught up with the offense and they had to do something to promote more scoring."

offense and they had to do something to promote more scoring.
"That's why there was so radical a change."
The NFL Thursday voted to have sudden death overtimes during the regular season, kick off from the 35 yard line, bring missed field goal attempts back to the line of scrimmage and forbid the kicking team from advancing downfield until the ball is kicked.

The most glamorous of the rules changes is the advent of sudden death, but to Myers the most radical change is the one which keeps the kicking team from moving downfield until the punter or place kicker has kicked the ball.

Defense Weakened
"That really gives the advantage to the offensive team," Myers said. "They are going to come up with a lot better field position."

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Rangers erupted for three runs in the fifth inning after two men were out, enroute to a 4-0 win over the Boston Red Sox Thursday night and increased their Western Division lead to 1½ games over idle Oakland.

Jim Bibby had the win, moving his record to 4-2. Bibby allowed just two base runners over the final six innings after pitching out of trouble twice in the early going.

Business Today

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — You'd hardly expect a small town in the Catskills to catch gold fever but it's happened in the village of Sidney, N.Y.

The folks there are excited because the chief factory in their town, owned by Bendix Corp., annually uses $2 million worth of gold — at current prices — to plate the points in the cylindrical electrical connectors it makes. No other metal is nearly as good as gold for that purpose.

So, when the commercial price of gold trebled over a few months to $183 an ounce in February (it later fell to $175) the Bendix officials at Sidney naturally took extra precautions to make sure not a single speck of gold dust was wasted or lost in the plant.

$1,000 an Ounce
The electrical connector business is only one of several that must be seriously concerned about the present world wide speculative fever in gold. The jewelry industry is the biggest consumer of commercial gold, followed in turn by electronic-semiconductors, dental supplies and the electrical connector makers.

When the "goldbugs," those economics writers who insist the world must return to the gold monetary standard or lapse into chaos, talk about gold hitting $500 or even $1,000 an ounce, folks in Sidney shudder.

For many years the electrical connector, jewelry and other industries that use gold paid a steady $37 an ounce for it. They weren't horribly concerned when it went up to around $60, but the present price has them really shaking their heads.

The price went up $20 in a single week not long ago.

Hardly enough gold is kept on hand at the Sidney plant to attract thieves, but at present price it pays the company to use elaborate methods for recovering every bit of gold dust from the water and air filters on the production line. The gold dust is trapped by a resin that also looks like gold dust, then the two are chemically separated and the gold recovered. But first the resin and the trapped gold must be baked into bricks in an oven. Its gold content is determined. Bendix developed this process and not only has saved a lot of gold for itself but has made it available to other firms.

Industrial users of gold also are trying to find ways to use less of the metal these days, such as thinner plating coats and better control of plating processes. There is frantic search on for cheaper metals to substitute for gold but Bendix engineers aren't hopeful about that. "Gold's tough to beat," they explain. "It lasts, it's highly resistant to corrosion and tarnish, is a superb electrical conductor and has other qualities various industries must have."

Since failure of an electrical conductor can result in a breakdown that might cause losses of millions, the electrical and semiconductor people probably will stick to gold no matter how high the price goes.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — News of a Consolidated Edison dividend omission sent the market into a broad decline as sympathetic selling spread from many other utilities to the rest of the list, says E. F. Hutton & Co. "With the utilities at a multiyear low and literally free falling and the Dow Jones Transportation average closing Tuesday exactly on its previous 1974 low, the bulls again have their work cut out for them," the firm adds.

"The harsh facts of even tighter money and even higher interest rates are delaying the correction of the general stock market undervaluation which took place as an aftermath of the Arab oil embargo," says Wright Investors' Service. Until the Federal Reserve Board eases its restrictive monetary policy, a sustained market rally is unlikely, the Bridgeport, Conn. firm continues. It notes that rising inflation and interest rates have depressed the financial markets in Europe and Japan as well as the United States.

— ONE MONTH TO GO
Address and mail invitations. Buy gifts for attendants and bridegroom, and make plans for luncheon for your attendants. Try to have your friends give showers now, and then finish your shopping for lingerie, linens and household furnishings.

Check up on outfits for bridal party, and have fittings on your wedding gown. Arrange for photographer to be present at final fitting. Buy bridegroom's wedding ring and he should get the bride's.

Go with the bridegroom to apply for a marriage license, and have the required premarital medical examinations. Remind bridegroom to order boutonnières and flowers for wedding party and for the two mothers.

Consult your caterer about reception menu and cake. Take up the matter of decorations with the florist. Arrange for accommodations for out-of-town guests.

Send wedding announcement to the local papers, including the formal portrait that was taken at your final bridal gown fitting. Check on arrival of gowns, trousseau items.

Make a beauty shop appointment for the wedding hair-do. Have a bridesmaids' luncheon. Put your gifts on display. Be as prompt with your gift acknowledgments as you can. Pack uncrushables when you have free time. Spend leisure time—if you can find it—with your family.

— THE DAY BEFORE
Tell someone your honeymoon itinerary, and arrange for someone to check your new home while you are gone. Go to the hairdresser's early, and then to the wedding rehearsal and dinner. Check your luggage.
Go to bed early.
