PANHANDLE PRESS NOTES

The advisability of employing a full time secretary will be discussed by members of the McLean Chamber of Commerce tonight.

At this time it seems that there is not the interest in the Chamber of Commerce work that there should be, writes L. G. McMillen in the McLean News.

Many of the smaller towns have operated a Chamber of Commerce without a secretary successfully for a time, but have found that it is difficult to carry through a program without one.

The Ochiltree County Herald announced that the insurance key rate of Perryton has been reduced from 56 cents to 47 cents.

"Shun the peddler," says the Herald editorially. "The summer season, now at hand, brings with it an economic ill that annually takes a toll of thousands of ill gained dollars.

"Plant Plenty Feed" shouts the Scurry County Times of Snyder in lines throughout the paper.

Old Fort Elliott, where nearly everything started in this territory, will be honored again June 6 and 7 at the annual picnic near Mobeetie.

Watch that town of Morse, advises Oran Kelly in the Spearman Reporter. Morse is the newest Hansford county townsite, and Gruber is another one.

Nearly every town is preparing some kind of observance for Memorial Day. Over at Canadian Oscar Studer, Earl Scadden, and Fred Hobart are working, as a Legion committee, with the Chamber of Commerce and have issued a proclamation announcing plans for the day. Business houses will close, there will be speaking, and graves of veterans will be decorated.

The Panhandle Chamber of Commerce will meet Wednesday evening to go further into the question of hiring a full time secretary. In the meantime, a stenographer will be employed to assist President George P. Grout.

After declaring the cooking school a success, editor J. Claude Wells of Memphis speaks as follows regarding the daily paper he published very creditably during the school:

"It is felt that The Democrat as a daily has blazed a new trail—one that may lead far into the future. At the present time, the city of Memphis has too small a population for a paper to be published regularly as a daily, but the time may not be far off when such an event will be a reality.

"A daily paper for Memphis would help materially in the development not only of the city and county but the entire section as well.

"The newspaper business requires an immense amount of money to keep it functioning properly. Especially is this true where the business is conducted on a daily basis. Paper is high; overhead expenses are many; editorial and composing room help must be paid adequately or in keeping with the abilities displayed; type must be purchased; new machinery installed, and, in fact, a well equipped daily newspaper must receive a consistent amount of support from its subscribers and advertisers if it is to exist for any length of time.

A town isn't quite a city in this modern age without a daily newspaper, and no city is judged quite so much by its daily as a small one.

Good brick business buildings are keenly desired by Panhandle towns. The Tulia Herald proudly presents a picture of a row of bricks costing $50,000.

The commissioners court of Donley county has been petitioned by citizens of Precincts 3 and 4 to call a $250,000 bond issue to authorize funds for building and maintaining lateral roads.

Editor Clyde Warwick of Canyon, playing chef editorially, suggests the following as food for thought:

"We were told recently that a large per cent of the pastors in all churches are under fire, and not satisfying their congregations. Is the fault with the pulpit or with the pew? Has the pulpit degenerated or has the pew become too particular? Has the pew progressed in thought more rapidly than the pulpit? We are not answering the question; we don't know, but for the good of the church, laymen and preachers should study the problem religiously.

Whether he states it intentionally or not, we agree that the question should be studied RELIGIOUSLY.

Warwick also suggests the need for a sign pointing to the skies. Air pilots should be greeted with name plates easily read, and who knows that that roofs of the future and that very immediate, will have your favorite brand of cigarettes painted in colors on the flat roofs?

Says the Plainview Herald: Fort Worth and Denver South "The track laying crew of the Plains railroad laid rails and ties through the city Thursday. Plainview will enjoy the distinction of being the only town on the new line with separate passenger and freight depots. The passenger depot will be located just east of Broadway and freight depot just east of Ash street. Several miles of track will be required for the yards in Plainview.

TWINKLES

Tales of a burning oil well caused smoke from a Santa Fe engine to be pointed out as "it" yesterday. Fortunate is the city where such mistakes may occur, but the incident is reminiscent of the origin of Milwaukee.

Airplanes are being used in bandit chases, but the exciting point will not be reached until the bandits too use planes. We do not wish to encourage the innovation, but it is sure to come.

Lots of towns are flaunting their reputations to the skies, but the time has come to flaunt the names of the cities—and aviators. What town is that? Let the house tops shout the reply.

A singer ascended 1,358 steps in 13 minutes. Let some of the radio sopranos work for fame that way, instead of trying to climb the do-re-mi's through the roof.

It's an odd thing, but those backing Hoover believe Coolidge can keep cool without being taken in a draft.

We haven't heard much yet, but are expecting to hear from the forces backing Al Smith—something about dry rot.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—So enormous is the scope of the activities of public utilities that the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of them may go on for nearly a year.

It is still concerned with the astonishing propaganda methods of these utilities, which pose as mere public servants and are so regarded by law. It can never make a really thorough investigation of the industry, for Congress limited the scope of the inquiry it asked the commission to make.

Meanwhile, the "little fellows" in business who assert that they are being crushed by unfair competition of the "electric trust" are beginning to take heart, emboldened by the vigor with which the commission has tackled its job, and a few of them are actually beginning to protest against the relentless inroads of the $21,000,000,000 utilities industry.

The representative of this insurgency in Washington is A. B. Walton of Lorain, O., business manager of the Association of Certified Electricians, an organization of electrical supply dealers and electrical contractors. In a modest way, Walton is here to see what can be done to save the small electrical merchants in smaller cities.

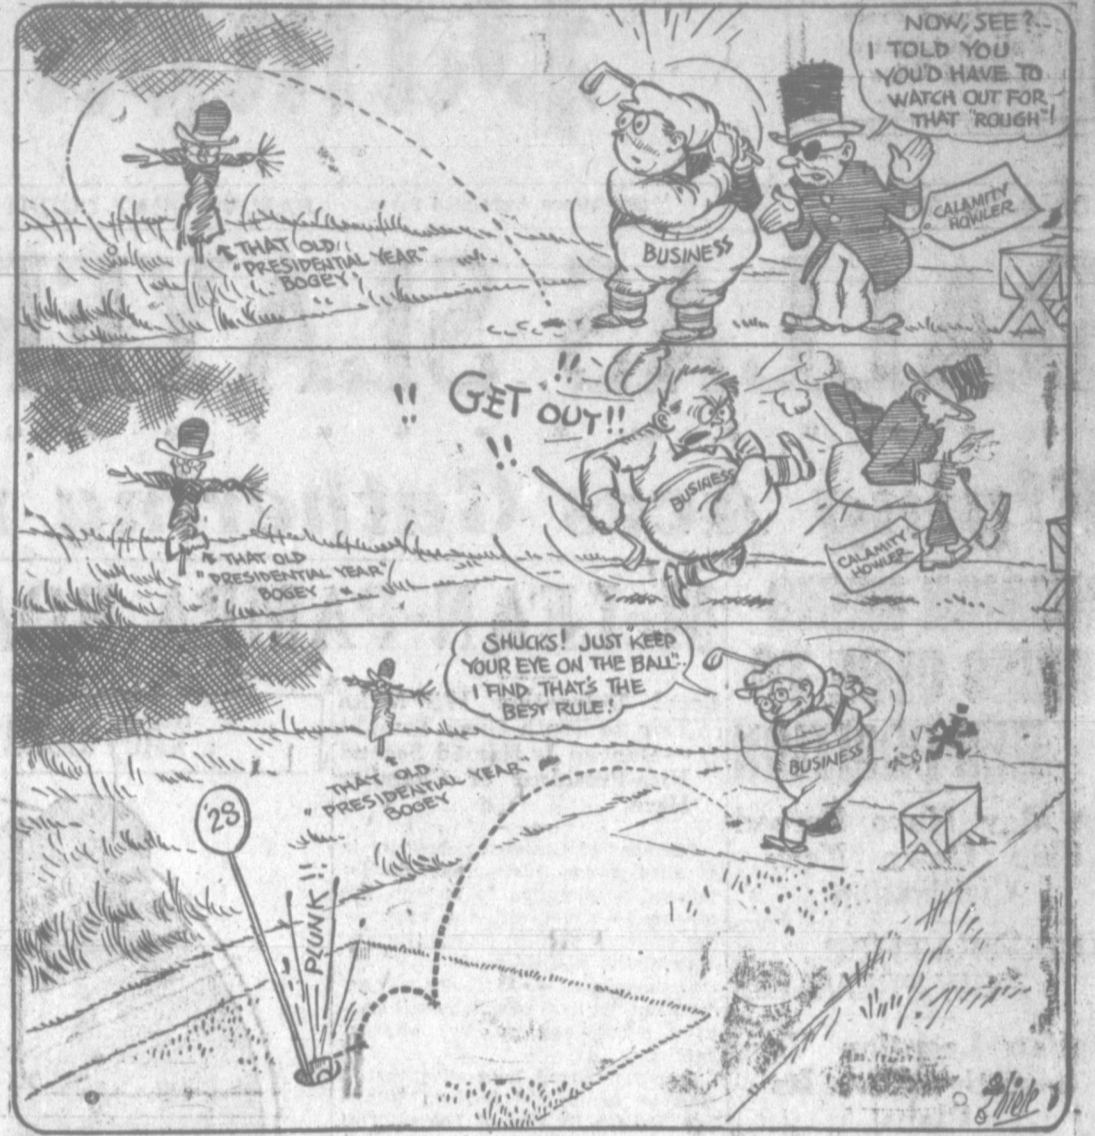

"The power companies," Walton explains, "have gone into the retail business and prostituted the retail channels. They can retail without regard for merchandising profits because, first, they can charge any loss up to investment in forming their rate-making structure for electric current and, second, because their main aim in selling electric devices is to increase the use of current.

"Here's a typical example of how it works out on the small contractor-dealer in a comparatively small city: Suppose I operate a store, selling electrical equipment and installing wiring facilities.

"The power and light company has a competing store in the main part of the city, with 12 or 13 salesmen employed on a commission basis. The utility presumably is owned by one of the big power trusts in the east or middle west.

"Then suppose a housewife wants a small job done—a few outlets made. Well, the contractor has to go and ask the utility company where it will run its wires into the house. Thus he has to list his jobs with his main competitor. The power company may promptly underbid him for his job; it is almost certain to get right on the job to sell the new appliances needed by the housewife.

TEXAS BEAUTIES ANNOUNCED

AUSTIN, May 28—Students in the University of Texas selected the beauties for the Gactus, University yearbook, this year for the first time. In past years, the choice has been made from photographs by the celebrated New York artists, but this year the girls were chosen by popular election.

Announcing in the Gactus for the first time when the book appeared last week, the 1927-28 Beauties were: Mary Louise Love of DeLeon, Elizabeth Russell of Fort Worth, Mable West of Uvalde, Marjory Neely of Amarillo, Elizabeth Cowper of Wichita Falls and Lucille Tucker of Dallas.

Theme of the 1928 Gactus was Texas, cowboy lore. The book was dedicated to Clyde Littlefield, Longhorn football coach.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED NATHANIEL DANN, an artist in career, to VIRGINIA BREWSTER, whose father dies after losing his fortune in speculation. NIEL, the son of DANIEL, inherits his father's estate and his friend, FREDERICK DEAN, and his daughter CLARISSA persuade her to make her temporary home with them. This angers NIEL, as he suspects DEAN'S motives. He returns to his work and grieves with his model, CHIRI, who is a student of VIRGINIA. CLARISSA openly courts NIEL. FARLEY, who is studying for the DEAN millions, by giving VIRGINIA the seat of honor next her father at a dinner party. Later NIEL, FARLEY tells DEAN he cannot throw her over for the younger girl without losing her for a wounded heart. Deane then faces a dilemma which he knows would spell his chance of winning VIRGINIA, he insists her demands. To remove the other obstacle, he has the president of a company which he controls offer NIEL a big-salaried position provided he will go to San Francisco at once. NIEL is overjoyed at the offer and goes to San VIRGINIA to marry him so they can be together. But DEAN intervenes the lovers' tryst.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XI

NATHANIEL rose and greeted his host politely but distantly. "Have you had tea?" Mr. Deane asked Virginia.

"No, we were just talking," she answered.

"About something important," Nathaniel supplied as a direct hint. Deane smiled with mock geniality.

"Then will you order it, my dear? Let us make a little occasion of the afternoon," he said smoothly. He ignored Nathaniel completely.

When a servant responded to her ring Virginia gave the necessary instructions. "And rum," Deane added.

They talked desultorily of commonplace matters, each occupied with personal thoughts, until tea was brought.

Nathaniel was furious at the interruption, and Virginia's offer disturbed. She was wondering if Deane had overheard her wild words as he entered the room. He was anxious to learn if Nathaniel had told Virginia of the offer he had received to go to the Pacific Coast. He knew he had intruded upon a tête-à-tête between the lovers, but that was his purpose, and he had no intention of withdrawing.

None of the trio wanted tea. Each simply went through the motions of taking it. Deane adding rum to his cup. Nathaniel curtly refused it.

As the afternoon dragged on Nathaniel was about to despair of an opportunity to tell Virginia of his splendid offer and beg her to consent to go west with him. He began to plan some way of getting rid of Deane. He could not order the man out of his own drawing room. He was sure if Virginia had been her natural self she would have found a solution for their problem. But observing her closely he felt a stab of pity at the sight of her violet-shadowed eyes and weary, drooping mouth. It gave him an idea.

"Virginia, you look as if a brisk walk in the fresh air would do you a lot of good. How about going out for a while?"

Virginia turned to him eagerly. "I'm sure you're much too tired to think of it." Deane put in hurriedly.

"No, I'm not; I think it would be fine. I'll be down in just a moment." Virginia's mind brightening perceptibly.

Deane glowered at Nathaniel when she was gone.

"I trust you realize she has had little time to recover from her great ordeal," he said accusingly,

BUILDERS OF PAMPA

The progress and development of any city is the result of the energy and effort of the business men and firms who make it up. The businesses listed on this page are permanent institutions and have contributed in many ways to the upbuilding of Pampa.

This page will appear in the Daily News once each week and will contain something new and interesting each day. A study of its stories will give a new knowledge of the reasons for the individual successes.

City Drug Enjoys Steady Business Increase

Follows the Policy of "Customer Must Be Satisfied" With Service

HAS BEEN UNDER PRESENT MANAGEMENT ONE YEAR—COMPANY OWNS SIX OTHER STORES

The City Drug Stores, Inc., formerly the Mahan Drug, has had a steady increase in business since its purchase a year ago, May 25. At that time Arthur L. Mahan, present manager, came to Pampa bringing his years of experience and a thorough knowledge of the policies and methods of the City Drug company.

The company owns seven stores in Wyoming, Amarillo and Pampa giving a combined buying power for drugs and sundries by which each of the stores profits.

It is a policy of the store to give prompt, careful and individual attention to every customer who comes into the store. "All our employes are taught that the customer owns their time while waiting on them," said Mr. Mahan in discussing his policies.

The new fountain recently installed is the latest in refrigeration and convenience keeping fruits, syrups, and cream cold or frozen at all times. The whole interior of the store was recently re-arranged, the ceiling repainted and a new battleship linoleum put on the floor.

More than 3000 people visited the store at its formal spring opening Saturday. One thousand Dixie Cups, furnished by the Gray County Creamery, were given away to the children at the opening.

The store has six employes, two of whom are registered pharmacists. Mr. Mahan and V. S. Keahey are both registered, one of which is at the store at all hours while it is open.

The new "Jumbo" soda, which has gained such popularity within the last month, was introduced at the City Drug store. Its food and thirst quenching qualities has made it a popular drink according to the boys who mix them behind the fountain.

Every employe is proud of the reputation the store has for service and all are working to uphold that reputation. It is hard to get into the store without finding a courteous clerk ready to satisfy your wants.
