LEFORS — Seven candidates will vie for two city council seats in tomorrow's special election at Lefors.

Polls open at 7 a.m. at the City Hall/Civic Center.

Candidates include Molly Turpen, Kris Brown, Van Criswell, Benny Watson, Kenneth Purvis, Clarence Hess and Velda Chadwick.

The positions were vacated in July when former council member Derl Boyd stepped into the mayor's position and Leonard Cain resigned for health reasons.

The city council was expected to meet today at 4 p.m. in special session to discuss office hours. Their regular meeting will be Monday at 7 p.m.

PAMPA - A 29-year old Pampa man has reported assault for the second time in a week. Russell Owen, 804 N. Christy, suffered a six-inch slash to his right hand at the El Capri Motel, 321 E. Brown, about 8:49 p.m. Thursday.

Owen was taken by American Medical Transport to Coronado Hospital, where he was treated and transferred to High Plains Baptist Hospital.

The incident continues under investigation by Pampa police.

Owen told Gray County deputies Tuesday his car was shot at one mile south of Pampa on US 70.

Roy Waters, 27, Loop 171 and US 60, was arrested Tuesday on a charge of aggravated assault and is free on $10,000 bond.

FRITCH — The contractor will begin work at the Stilling Basin (Spring Canyon) at Lake Meredith on Aug. 17, closing the area to public access.

National Park Service officials at the lake earlier had said some public access would be permitted during the construction phase, but now state they feel there is an extreme problem with visitor safety during construction.

To protect visitors and their children, the Spring Canyon area will be closed to public use from Aug. 17 through the end of the construction period in December.

The construction project will add new roadways, parking areas, picnic areas, tables, cookers and foot paths.

SANFORD — The Sanford Community Hall board of directors will be frying fish Labor Day weekend to raise money for their building fund. The Sanford Community Hall fourth annual fish fry will start at 11 a.m. Monday, Sept. 4, at the town's community hall on Main Street.

"We'll fry fish until people quit coming, or we run out of fish," and Liz Reno, board secretary.

Lawsuit filed over vehicle tax collection

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS News Editor

Collection of a vehicle inventory tax by adding it to the sales price of a new car or truck leads consumers to believe they owe the tax, when in fact it is a cost of doing business, said an Amarillo attorney.

Templeton, whose Amarillo firm is representing four people in a lawsuit against 639 new car dealers in Texas, hopes to turn the dispute over inventory tax collection into a class action suit with upwards of 500,000 members suing for damages because their purchase orders list the tax as an add-on to the purchase price.

In documents filed May 10 in the 223rd District Court, Ora Wayne Barker and J.A. Martindale of Pampa, and Amarilloans Tony Roys and Danelle Morgan filed suit against Pampa Ford-Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. (d/b/a West Texas Ford-Lincoln-Mercury), Street Toyota, Inc. (d/b/a Street Mazda), Bob Johnson Motor new vehicle buyers as a class Company, Plains Chevrolet, Inc., after discovery by both sides is Westgate Chevrolet Inc., Gene completed, Templeton said. Messer Cadillac, Inc., Gene Messer Imports, Inc., Gene Messer Ford, Inc., and Gene Messer Ford of Amarillo, Inc. On June 5, 630 more car dealers were added to the lawsuit.

An order form for a new vehicle which lists a "Texas vehicle inventory tax" or "inventory tax" along with trade allowance, document fee, license fees and sales tax in addition to the purchase price is incorrect, Templeton said.

Instead, Templeton maintains the vehicle inventory tax, which typically runs $30 to $60 depending on the price of the new vehicle, is a cost of doing business like the electric bill or sales commission.

"It is wrong. You don't misrepresent to the consuming public that they've got to pay a tax when you are the one who owes it," said Templeton.

However, Gene Fondren, president of the 1,300 member Texas Automobile Dealers Association in Austin, says dealers must fully disclose collection of the inventory tax, whether it is noted to be part of the sales price or a separate line item on the purchase order.

Phonics instruction

He cites an interpretation of Senate Bill 878, passed by the 73rd Legislature and published by the consumer credit commissioner saying the "unit property tax value" as established by the bill can be included in the cash price or shown as an itemized charge, but in either approach the amount should bear a clear and meaningful caption such as "dealers inventory tax."

"In any event, it must be fully disclosed," Fondren said.

"It is a cost of doing business and if you are going to stay in business, ultimately, all costs are passed on to the consumer," he Fondren declined to specifically comment on the lawsuit.

"I can say, safely, the lawsuit is based on allegations of individual conduct of dealers and that that conduct, the pleading is that conduct has occurred universally and all of the defendant dealers are guilty of the same conduct," Fondren said.

William Ikard of Austin is defending the car dealers.

A district judge must certify

There will be a lot of skirmishes by defendants in this lawsuit," Templeton said.

The suit asks for treble damages in keeping with the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices, act for each defendant, costs of the lawsuit, interest, attorneys' fees, court costs and additional dam-

In the latest court filings, attornevs for the car dealers have filed motions to transfer the case to other counties where the dealerships are headquartered.

Car dealers sued are from cities all over Texas, including Houston, Bryan, San Antonio, Austin, Bay City, Killeen, Big Stephenville, Spring, Midland, Harlingen, Wichita Falls, Corpus Christi, Odessa, Bel Air, Gainesville, Robstown, Conroe, Waxahachie, Port Arthur, El Paso, McAllen, Fort Worth, Clarendón, Texarkana, Kingwood, Beaumont, Palestine and Angleton.

"I don't think they can legally collect the tax," said plaintiff Pampa attorney Martindale. "I don't think they can charge their inventory tax to me. They can raise the purchase price of the vehicle."

Band practice for parents

You can teach them new tricks as Jason Ellen, a senior at Pampa High School, proved Thursday night when he and other members of the Pride of Pampa Band taught their parents the drills and marches the band do at a social held last night for parents and students in the parking lot of the El Norma Football Field. John and Darla Ellen, along with other parents, later demonstrated to their students and the rest of the crowd what they learned. "Parents get a chance to see what their kids are doing," said Bruce Collins, PHS band director, about the social.

McLean city librarian plans to retire

"You've done an awful good iob," said council member Wayne Bybee.

In other action, the council agreed to sign an agreement with Southwestern Public Service to allow new industrial electricity rates. The agreement was essentially a formality, since there are no customers within the city limits who meet the five megawatt minimum requirement for the rate.

SPS spokesman Monte Joiner told the council that their signature would help provide blanket coverage for the service's region. He added that the new industrial rates wouldn't affect other rates in the city. The board asked City Secretary Stella Lee to provide calculators for the city office

"The [calculators] we have now are beginning to add numbers or drop numbers depending on how they feel that day," Lee

Also at the meeting, Haynes issued a warning to city residents that if the recycling center is not properly used, the city would close the center. The council was told that currently people are not properly separating their recyclable goods.

In other action, City Engineer Dwight Brandt will be asked to draw up specifications to re-roof all city building so the city can submit the project for bids.

Several roofs, including the fire station, were damaged earlier this summer. Lee told the council that holes have developed in the fire station roof, prices for new typewriters and causing some water damage.

Dick Cheney named CEO for Halliburton

DALLAS (AP) - Former Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has turned from the White House to the oil patch with his decision to become the new leader of oil services company Halliburton Co.

Cheney faces different kinds of challenges at Dallas-based Halliburton, which has suffered along with others in the energy industry.

The company has chopped employment from 77,000 workers worldwide in 1990 to 57,000 today, as well as sold its geophysical and natural gas compression businesses and restructured its oil services

Halliburton's businesses now Cruikshank said.

Cheney announced in January include Halliburton Energy Services, Brown & Root Inc. engineering and construction and Highlands Insurance Co.

> After losing money in 1992 and 1993, Halliburton made a profit of $177.8 million last year on revenue of $5.7 billion. So far this year, the company has earned $95.3 million, up from a loss of $1.4 million during the first six months of 1994.

> Cruikshank, who has been chief executive officer of Halliburton for 12 years, said the turnaround marks "the perfect time in the life of our company" to make a transition.

> "With the recent completion of the restructuring and re-engineering of Halliburton Energy Services, we have substantially accomplished the major changes that needed to be made,"

Renovation continues for Duncan and Frost

The stretch of Duncan Street in front of Austin Elementary should be ready for public use by the first day of school, says Public Works Director Richard Morris

"We plan to have the base material in and a seal coat on the surface by the time school starts," Morris said Thursday.

After school begins, crews will work on Saturdays laving in hot mix and additional seal coats. As soon as that project is finished, work will begin in full force on Frost Street.

Currently, that project has been delayed with problems from the two suppliers of lime for the project.

Morris says the companies. which are located in South Texas. have been flooded with recent heavy rains, and he doesn't know when their pits will be restored.

If that delay is too great, Morris says the crews will begin using flyash in place of the lime.

The substitute works as well as lime, but it is not used generally becase it causes more dust.

"In order to move the project along, we may have to use it," Morris says.

Morris estimates that it would take five to six working days to finish the street after the subgrading is complete.

He added that the city does not plan to work on Duncan Street in front of Pampa High School until next summer.

'Snow White' offers enjoyable flight into fantasy

By CHIP CHANDLER Staff Writer

Don't go to Snow White this weekend expecting to see the familiar Doc, Sneezy, Dopey or the rest of the Disney-ized crew.

Instead, ACT I's stage will showcase Sarge, Gabby, Gloomy Gus, Ticklish, Spritely, Snore and Slow Poke in the summer children's production.

Audiences won't be disappointed with the switch.

Twenty-two young actors take the stage tonight at 7:30 with their version of the classic fairy tale. The production is almost exclusively produced by kids ages eight to 16 in the Pampa Fine Arts Association's summer workshop from the lights and sound to stage management to acting.

Review

Seen Wednesday night in the first run-through in front of an audience, the production showed a few rough spots that should undoubtedly be polished before opening night.

On the whole, though, the production is an enjoyable flight into fantasy, replete with charming characters, humorous bits and

Texas Editorials

Houston Chronicle on gerrymandering:

Voting districts are drawn for a number of reasons, including the manipulation of racial bias for partisan advantage and the protection of incumbents. The public's best interest too often is not among them.

The blame for this grotesque thwarting of the public good goes to politicians in both parties. In Texas, the Democratically controlled Legislature tries to manipulate voting district lines in order to maintain the status quo and keep incumbents in office. Their efforts are complicated by the Voting Rights Act. As enforced by the Bush administration Justice Department, district lines had to be drawn to clump together as many minority Texans as possible, leaving their districts ripe for victory by suburban Republicans.

The result? Voting districts so misshapen they resemble ink blots. Communities, neighborhoods, even single residential blocks were carved up and rendered asunder.

A federal court has ruled unconstitutional three congressional districts in Texas, two in Houston and one in Dallas. If that decision is upheld by the U.S. Supreme court this fall, new congressional district lines will have to be drawn.

Gov. George w. Bush and other state leaders could do the right thing - for now and in the future - by appointing a nonpartisan commission of citizens to draw the districts in a way that would serve the public, not the politicians or the two major

Over the years, the Legislature has shown itself to be incapable of drawing district lines in a responsible and unselfish way. An independent commission to submit a district plan to the Legislature for an up-or-down vote is almost too much to hope for, and too good an idea to pass up.

El Paso Times on border fees:

The Clinton administration is working at cross purposes with regard to the North American Free Trade Agreement. While attempting to promote more commerce with two trading partners - Mexico and Canada - the administration is hindering the flow of goods and visitors from those two important countries.

The White House will have to answer for border-crossing frees that the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service wants to impose on foreigners crossing Mexican and Canadian ports of entry. The fees, ranging from $4 to $32 for extended stays are scheduled to start Oct. 9.

The INS' proposal inhibits the free flow of trade, commerce and people - people who want to enter the United States legally to spend money or visit relatives. It's a troublesome precedent worthy of review by a president who so strongly support-

Berry's World

... AND FINALLY, IN CONGRESS -THE ASSIGNMENT OF BLAME FOR THE HEAT-WAVE HAS BROKEN DOWN ALONG PARTY LINES!

The importance of civil discourse

Rabbi Joseph Telushkin wants us to watch our language. President Clinton has offered similar exhortations. The president, though, suffers from a certain credibility gap. For no sooner does he denounce the spirit and tone of civil discourse in America today than he turns around and commits a sin of his own. Even within the past few weeks, the president has returned to a favorite tactic, labeling Republican proposals as "extremist."

Rabbi Telushkin doesn't suffer from that handicap. With humor but in deadly earnest, the rabbi (who writes murder mysteries, anthologies of Jewish humor, as well as more serious works of hill and there to cut open a feather pillow and scholarship) has been at pains to introduce the wider world to the Jewish concept of "lashon hora" or hurtful speech. He has even managed to introduce a resolution in the Senate to create a National Speak No Evil Day.

Within the Jewish tradition, malicious gossip is not regarded as a trifle. The Hebrew term for "words" is "devarim," which also means "things." And words are indeed regarded as things - capable of doing great good as well as

The story is told of a small village in Eastern Europe. One of the men'in the community made it a practice to slander the rabbi at every opportunity. At length, feeling guilty at his lies and misrepresentations, the man presented himself to the rabbi, admitted his error and asked for forgiveness. The rabbi considered for a moment and then told the man to first go to the top of the highest scatter the contents to the winds. "When you have done that," he said, "return to me."

The penitent man did as he was told and get Sens. Joseph Lieberman and Connie Mack to returned to the rabbi. "I've done as you asked," said the slanderer. "Am I forgiven?"

"Almost," replied the rabbi. "You need to do just one more thing. Go and gather all of the feathers up again."

'But that's impossible," protested the man. They've been blown by the four winds. "Yes," said the rabbi, "and so is it also impossible to undo the damage you have done with your words, which can never be retrieved." Few of us have been trained to think of gossip as intrinsically evil. Washington, D.C., and particularly my profession, journalism, run on it. People like to prove their importance by what they know about others - especially if what they know is slanderer takes away his goodly reputation and unflattering. And it is seen as a mark of naivete leaves him a living monument to his children's not to believe, and repeat, the worst about every-' disgrace.'

one. It is rare for people in my profession to pause before repeating some delicious tidbit about someone famous and ask: "Is it true? And even if I believe it to be true, is it something I should be repeating to others for the sheer delight of damaging someone's reputation?"

Refraining from malicious gossip would not in the slightest restrain or inhibit robust debate about issues. And it is not, as far as I know, considered sinful to describe someone's ideas as misguided or wrongheaded. But Telushkin would like to see a moratorium on inflammatory comparisons - such as the facile use of analogies to Nazism. Following the 1988 presidential campaign, Mayor Andrew Young of Atlanta and Rep. Richard Gephardt (D-Mo.) offered that not since the days of Hitler and Goebbels had a political campaign depended so heavily on the use of the "big lie" as did that of George Bush.

The Nazi comparison has since been trotted out regularly by Democrats in response to each plank in the Contract With America. Telushkin, finding error on all sides, is also critical of Rush Limbaugh for using the term "feminazi." (My view is that Rush Limbaugh is more sinned against than sinning.)

Is Telushkin overly sensitive? Consider the dour reflection of President Andrew Jackson, a victim of scurrilous attacks himself. "The murderer only takes the life of the parent and leaves his character as a goodly heritage to his children, while the

Hiroshima: No apologies necessary

I pose a question often asked in the wake of catastrophic events: Where were you on Aug. 6 and Aug. 9, 1945, when the United States dropped atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki?

Do you remember what you were doing when you got the news? How you reacted? Did you think we would still be debating the strategic necessity and moral consequences of using these nuclear weapons a half century after the fact?

I am a member of the rapidly dwindling pool of possible respondents to those questions, but I have to confess I don't remember hearing the news. I was a 4-year-old tot at the time, playing in the streets of a and ponder his fate and grieve for him. small town in Maryland. What I do remember about the period is the dark cloud of sorrow that settled over our family when we got the word, a year before, that the aircraft in which my uncle, Harley A. Spear Jr., who was a tailgunner, had disappeared while on a bombing raid over New Guinea. His remains have never been recovered from the jungle where he died, half a world away from those who loved him.

I remember my grandmother's nervous breakdown when she got the news. She suffered bouts of depression and migraine headaches until the day she died. I remember the lines of sorrow on my grandfather's face. He suffered several heart attacks in the ensuing years and finally succumbed to one. And I remember my father's silent grief. He never talked much about personal feelings, but I can say this with complete confi-

Joseph Spear

I offer this personal history as a way of telling you that I have a bias about the bombs. I believe that Harry Truman did the right thing when he gave the order to drop them. By August of 1945, major Iapanese cities had been leveled in firebombing raids, but still they refused to surrender. A massive invasion of the main islands was in the offing, and Truman believed it would cost hundreds of thousands of lives of young men like my Uncle Harley. So he dropped the bombs. He sacrificed a hundred thousand Japanese lives to save six times that many Americans.

As Bill Clinton said last April, Truman did what he had to do, and the United States will apologize to no one for it.

We do not apologize to the revisionists in our own country, most too young to know what the war was about, who attempt to portray the dence: For the remainder of his life, not a day United States as a ghoulish nation that needlessly passed that my father did not think of his brother annihilated two Japanese cities. A group of them apologize.

even tried to rig an exhibit at the Smithsonian Institution this spring to downplay American sacrifice and emphasize Japanese suffering.

We do not apologize to the Japanese critics who refuse to accept their country's aggressor role in the war. They invaded Korea and China and Indonesia and Malaysia and Vietnam and Laos and Cambodia and other Asian lands, they say, primarily to free them from the voke of colonialism. They attacked Pearl Harbor, they say, because it was the only honorable response they could think of to an Allied embargo that cut off their supply of oil. And what did they get for their highminded conduct? They got bombed with nuclear weapons. As Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama put it when Clinton made his remark about Truman, the president had endorsed "the massacre of huge numbers of noncombatant civilians." He wished, he said, that Clinton "had shown some sympathy for the feelings of the Japanese people.

Murayama didn't say anything about the rape of Nanking, the sacking of Shanghai, the Bataan death march, the physical abuse of prisoners of war, the dissection of live POWS, the beheading of nuns, the sexual indenture of Korean girls.

No, all that mattered was the "atrocity" of the bombings. The question, it seems to me, is not whether it was an atrocious act, but whether it was a neces-

Abortion issue won't be double talked

On the topic that won't be double-talked, the abortion barriers Republicans are pushing through Congress are previews of an issue in waiting for the 1996 presidential campaign. They will confront it in the presidential primaries, where the religious right will be a powerful force, and they will deal with it in the glare of losing side in a Senate vote Saturday, that the govtheir national nominating convention in San Diego a year from now. A plank against abortion and for a constitutional amendment to overcome the 1973 Supreme Court decision that made it legal has been a fixture in Republican platforms, disputed but always reasserted.

There's bound to be a replay at the national convention next August. It is a subject that doesn't bend to compromise.

Witness the televised discomfort of Gov. Pete Wilson of California, trying to make his support of abortion rights fit the realities of his quest for the Republican presidential nomination.

On NBC-TV's Meet the Press, Wilson said that as president, he would sign a House bill permitting states to deny abortion funds for the poor under Medicaid, and health insurance coverage for federal employees who seek abortions, and then said that fits his pro-choice philosophy.
"I favor the right of reproductive choice," he said. "I don't think the taxpayers should necessarily be the ones who are asked to pay for it."

He said that includes federal health insurance because it is government funding. There also is a case to be made, as it was by the ernment money involved in federal health insurance is, in fact, part of the compensation of the people covered, not a government abortion subsidy.

In addition, the federal health insurance system offers options among varying insurance plans, including some that do and some that don't offer abortion coverage.

The Senate vote reinstated a ban that was in effect from 1984 until 1993, while Republicans held the White House. It was reversed by President Clinton.

The House had voted an even more stringent curb, forbidding federal health insurance abortions even in the case of rape and incest, permit-ting them only to save the life of the mother. Speaker Newt Gingrich said that went too far. In a recent interview on CNN, Gingrich said he prefers the Senate version because the exception is essential "if you're going to have a majoritarian right-to-life position.

The House also voted to permit states to decide whether Medicaid funding should gover abortions in pregnancies due to rape or incest. The margin was narrow, the impact largely symbolic - eliminate that plank and replace it with one that opponents said that in 1994, there were only two those who are pro-life and pro-choice can agree on." cases in which Medicaid was used to pay for abortions in those circumstances.

House Republican leaders effectively had shelved social issues to clear the way for the first phase of their effort to remodel government. But now those issues are back, full force, as riders to the appropriations bills to finance the government after Sept. 30.

They include a ban on abortions at military hospitals abroad, another Republican rule Clinton reversed, and a prohibition on the use of foreign aid funds to support organizations that advocate abortion rights or pay for abortions.

The White House has been threatening wholesale appropriations vetoes, largely over cuts that effectively would undo Clinton programs. The president favors abortion rights, while saying there should be more effective programs to avoid them, such as curbing teenage pregnancies and encouraging adoptions.

All but two of the Republican presidential candidates are abortion opponents. Sen. Bob Dole, the majority leader who tops the field, is against them except in cases of rape, incest or danger to the life of the mother. That is the consensus among candidates except Wilson and Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, who favors abortion ights and wants the anti-abortion plank stripped from the Republican platform.

Wilson's position:

"I am clearly on record as saying that we should eliminate that plank and replace * with one that

'Jane Roe' baptized, announces intent to join forces with anti-abortion group

DALLAS (AP) - The woman known as "Jane fied with what she felt was an undue emphasis on Roe" in the landmark abortion decision said she now has some regrets about her role in the case and, after months of soul-searching, has joined forces with an anti-abortion group.

Norma McCorvey, whose demand for the procedure led to the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion nationwide, said in an interview Thursday she still believes "a woman has a right to have an abortion, a safe and legal abortion, in the first trimester."

Operation Rescue moved its national headquarters into an office adjoining the abortion clinic on March 31. At the time, McCorvey said she was 'horrified" and concerned about possible violence. In recent months, the two opponents in the abortion debate had become friends. He called her "Miss Norma." She called him "Flipper."

In an interview in May, McCorvey acknowledged they were an unlikely match and called their friendship a "pretty bizarre relationship."

Benham, a recovering alcoholic, was a saloon owner in Florida when he found religion and entered a seminary. After moving to Dallas, Benham traded a steady pulpit for his full-time crusade against abortion.

McCorvey was a 21-year-old carnival barker when she found herself pregnant for the third time, after a casual affair, and decided to seek an abortion.

In the 1994 book, I Am Roe: My Life, Roe v. Wade, and Iesus Christ has reached through the abortion and Freedom of Choice, she chronicles how her life changed forever when she agreed in 1970 to become the plaintiff in a lawsuit seeking to over-

> However, the Supreme Court's decision came too late for her. She gave birth and put the infant up for adoption.

> Sarah Weddington, the Austin attorney who successfully argued Roe before the nation's high court, said she was sorry to hear of McCorvey's change of heart.

> But she predicted it would have little effect on the abortion debate or the mood in Washington under the Republican-led Congress to reverse some of the gains the abortion rights movement

The Labor Department said Thursday that the biggest drop in energy prices in nearly two years led by the steepest decline in gasoline in over four years – more than offset rising food prices.

The Producer Price Index was flat in July after falling 0.1 percent in June for the first time in eight months. Wholesale prices are rising at a tame annual rate of 1.8 percent so far this year.

"Given the slowdown in activity still taking place, inflation pressures should remain muted," said Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch & Co. Particularly pleasing is a decline in raw material prices, which fell 0.8 percent in July, he said.

The stock market rose in early trading, with the Dow Jones tion. industrial average up more than 10 points in the first half hour. Bond prices eased, pushing the yield on the 30-year Treasury bond up to 6.96 percent.

BERENICE --- DAUGHTER OF KING HEROD!

THE ELDEST DAUGHTER OF HEROD AGRIPPA SEEMS TO HAVE DONE HER PART IN KEEPING ALIVE THE TRADITION OF VILLAINY FOR WHICH THE HEROD LINE WAS FAMOUS OR "INFAMOUS"! SHE WAS FIRST MARRIED TO MARCUS, SON OF ALEXANDRA THE HEAD MAGISTRATE OF THE JEWS IN ALEXANDRIA. AFTER AN EARLY DEATH OF "POOR" MARCUS SHE THEN HURRIEDLY MARRIED HER FATHER'S OWN BROTHER, HEROD: CHALCIS, WHO SOON AFTERWARDS, ALSO DIED! THENCE, SHE WENT TO LIVE WITH HER BROTHER AGRIPPA AND THE SCANDAL THAT AROSE FROM THIS RELATIONSHIP EVEN THE HIGH-BORN BERENICE COULD NOT OVERCOME! SHE THEN TRIED TO ALLAY IT BY YET ANOTHER MARRIAGE, TO POLEMO, KING OF CILICICIA. BUT SHE SOON BE-CAME TIRED OF HIM AND, DESERTING HIM, RETURNED TO HER BROTHER AGRIPPA. HER CLAIM TO RECOGNITION IN THE BIBLE, CAME WHEN AGRIPPA HEARD ST. PAUL'S DEFENSE (ACTS 25:23:26) WITH BERENICE AT HIS SIDE. SHE WOUND UP HER CAREER, FIRST BECOMING THE MISTRESS OF VESPASIAN, AND THEN HIS SON TITUS --WHO, WHEN HE BECAME ING THE MISTRESS OF VESPASIAN, AND THEN HIS SON TITUS -- WHO, WHEN HE BECAME ROMAN EMPEROR, DISCARDED HER!

Notice of Public Hearing on Tax Increase

The City of Pampa will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 1994 by 5.92* percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on August 22nd at City Hall.

FOR the proposal: Mayor Neslage, Commissioners Andrews, Curry, McCormick

AGAINST the proposal: None PRESENT and not voting: None ABSENT: Commissioner Robert Dixon

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the effective tax rate that the unit published on August 9, 1995. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, your individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

Last Year

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would increase by $18.76 or 10.91* percent compared with last year's taxes. Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by $0.404 per $100 of taxable value or 6.77 * percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

Concrete golf trails

Volunteers, made up mainly of Hidden Hills Golf Association senior members, are pouring concrete on the cart trails at the public course. The volunteers finished with the No. 1 hole this week and will work on No. 4 and No. 5 next. Hidden Hills pro David Teichmann said the volunteers planned to continue working on the project until all the cart trails were covered with concrete.

family said. He emerged from the mountain forest Thursday, nearly a week after he disappeared.

"We just hugged him," his father said. "We are thrilled that he's alive. I had sort of given up hope that he had survived."

It was well after nightfall by the time Dunne finished the 4 1/2-hour trek down a rugged mountain path to the car he left at the trailhead early last Saturday on what was to have been a one-day hike.

GOP says witnesses contradicting each other

WASHINGTON (AP) Completing two sets of congressional Whitewater hearings, Republicans say important witnesses are contradicting each other's stories, while Democrats say the intense scrutiny of the President Clinton and his wife's real estate venture produced no new information.

"We've dug long and hard ... but no new nugget worth the cost of digging this worn-out pit we call Whitewater has been found," said Rep. Henry Gonzalez of Texas, ranking Democrat on the House Banking Committee.

Committee Chairman Jim Leach, R-lowa, says Democrats are ignoring "a story of conflicts of interest and professional mis-
