Congress Starts Impeachment Hearings

BIRD IN HAND — W.H. Earp, 1124 Garland, holds the golden eagle he captured on a farm five miles south of Pampa recently. With a six-foot wing spread, the rare bird is being kept at the Jack Robertson residence, 1104 S. Faulkner, in an old pigeon cage. Federal authorities have been contacted to come and pick up the bird.

Rhodes Says Resignation Would Help Republicans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House GOP Leader John J. Rhodes said today President Nixon's resignation would probably be helpful to the Republican party. A White House spokesman said the President "will not quit even if hell freezes over."
"I feel if the President comes to the conclusion he can no longer be effective as President, he will do something about it," Rhodes said. "If he should resign, I would accept it."

But he stressed he was not recommending it. And House GOP Whip Leslie Arends declared after a White House meeting of GOP leaders with Nixon: "I'm certainly not going to tell the President to resign—No."

The White House sharply denied Wednesday that Nixon was giving any thought to resignation as Congress moved toward the formal start of possible impeachment proceedings and Ken W. Clawson, communications chief, said today the President would not resign "no matter what."

Rhodes made his remarks at a breakfast meeting with a group of reporters.

He explained that the session was a long standing commitment and should not be interpreted as a snub to Nixon who had summoned GOP leaders to the White House for briefing on the economy. Rhodes missed that meeting.

Rhodes was asked: "Would a resignation help the Republican party this fall?"

He replied: "A resignation would probably be beneficial but I'm not recommending it."

Rhodes said that he now estimates the vote in the House is 51 per cent to 49 per cent against impeachment but said chances of impeachment had increased since release of the Watergate transcripts.

He described the contents of the transcripts as "certainly devastating" but said that he had a completely open mind on the question of impeachment.

Rhodes was asked whether Republican leaders were considering approaching Nixon to urge him to resign. "I know of no definite plan at this time," he said. "But if the President should be impeached, he should have resignation very high on his list to think about."

Rhodes saw a "danger" when newspapers such as the Omaha World Herald and Chicago Tribune call for Nixon's resignation or impeachment.

Ken W. Clawson, director of White House communications acknowledged that the loss of the Tribune support was "a blow" but he added "The President will not quit even if hell freezes over—no matter what."

Clawson said that Nixon shows no signs of being psychologically depressed. Other White House officials said however Nixon "blew his stack" after learning that Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott had called the performance of White House principals in the transcripts deplorable shabby and immoral.

On the question of resignation, Rhodes said, "I don't rule it out but I personally haven't come to that conclusion." He said his mail was running "overwhelmingly unfavorable" to the President and cited a ratio of 10-1.
He said the letters are mainly aimed at resignation.

"A President has got to have the backing of the people and perhaps the people in White House should consider this basic element is no longer present," he said.

CALLS FOR ELECTIONS

Trudeau's Liberal Government Falls

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, his minority Liberal government toppled by opposition from parties at opposite ends of the political spectrum, today asked Governor-General Jules Léger to dissolve Parliament and call a general election for July 8.

Trudeau arrived at the Governor-General's residence at 9 a.m. EDT, accompanied by Assistant Cabinet Secretary Jack Cross. He left after less than 30 minutes later in cold drizzly weather.

Trudeau's minority government lost to a coalition of Conservatives and New Democrats, two groups normally opposed to each other but which joined to dump Trudeau over his proposed national budget.

The New Democrats, which lean to the left of Trudeau's liberal party, previously backed Trudeau. But both New Democrats and Conservatives judged the Liberal party's proposed budget inflationary.

In the voting, 31 New Democratic Party members joined 106 Conservatives to defeat the government, 137-123, on a vote on the federal budget Wednesday night. Fifteen Social Credit party members voted with the 108 Liberals.

It was only the third time in Canada's 107 year history that a government was ousted on a nonconfidence vote.

"I am sorry that an election has been forced on us," Trudeau told Canadians in a brief nationwide television broadcast after the vote. "This will be a July election that I am sure the country does not want. I shall make my request to the governor general with reluctance."

"I do not mean reluctance to do battle in an election, because my party and I are very much ready for one."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Uncomfortable with its task, sufficient wrongdoing to warrant his impeachment by the House and trial by the Senate.

The committee's 154-member staff has been gathering the evidence since January, but until now the committee of 38 congressmen—all lawyers and none nationally known—has concerned itself with procedural matters.

Wearing earphones in a scene comparable to a United Nations debate, the congressmen will listen to some of the 19 recorded Nixon conversations it has received, including the famous March 21, 1973, discussion of whether to meet E. Howard Hunt's demands for blackmail.

At the outset, 17 members, all Democrats, were believed leaning toward a vote to recommend impeachment to the House.

Thirteen members, all Republicans, were believed leaning against such a vote unless hard evidence of Nixon's guilt of a major criminal violation is presented—eight members—four Democrats, four Republicans—were believed undecided.

Except for formal opening statements today's hearing, at 1 p.m. EDT in a high-ceilinged chamber in the Rayburn Office Building, across Independence Avenue from the Capitol, was closed to the public for the presentation of confidential evidence.

This includes the contents of the briefcase submitted to the panel by the Watergate grand jury after it was told by Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski that it lacked authority to indict a chief executive.

Televised hearings are expected to be held starting May 21, with the committee meeting Tuesdays through Thursdays, the House's normal work week.

Initially, John M. Doar, special impeachment counsel and a Republican, will present the evidence and answer questions from the members.

Testimony is to be taken later from John W. Dean III and many of the witnesses who became national figures last summer at the Senate Watergate hearings. Many are now defendants in pending criminal trials, and some may refuse to testify.

Arab oil producers were scheduled to review the lifting of the embargo June 1. Recent Arab press reports have quoted Syrian officials as saying Syria would ask the Arabs to reimpose the embargo of if Kissinger's attempt to negotiate a Syrian-Israeli troop disengagement agreement breaks down.

King Faisal has strong influence in Syria. Saudi troops have been fighting alongside the Syrians on the Golan Heights since the October war. As Kissinger arrived today, Riyadh radio announced two Saudi soldiers were killed and five others wounded in the current Golan fighting.

The announcements came less than three weeks after Saudi Arabia played a leading role in obtaining the lifting of the five-month Arab embargo on oil supplies to the United States March 18.

The Saudi Foreign Minister wearing flowing robes and a white headress called Kissinger "our friend Henry," embraced him on both cheeks, and said:

"From the first moment I met him, I sensed in him an integrity, great forwardness and truth, truthfulness to his word. I got the impression that he means what he says and is striving very hard for a solution of the problems."

FOR REPUBLICANS

Price To Attend Local Convention

Gray County Republicans will hold their annual convention at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Lovett Memorial Library Auditorium, according to Dr. Julian Key, GOP county chairman.

U.S. Rep. Bob Price will be in town for the convention and will be introduced by Ben Guill.

Delegates will act on resolutions adopted at the party's May 4 election night precinct conventions and elect delegates to the State Republican convention in Austin next Sept. 17.

Congressman Price will come to Pampa after spending the day making appearances in Donley County and Dumas.

He will be guest of honor at a dinner in Dumas tomorrow night.

Tomorrow morning Price, who is a member of the House Armed Services Committee, will begin his Texas tour in Dallas where he will make an orientation flight in the A-7, one of the newest high performance jets in the U.S. Navy's arsenal.

From Dallas the congressman will go to Dumas for the Friday night banquet and at 2 p.m. Saturday will attend a ribbon-cutting ceremony to unless granted immunity against self-incrimination.

The expectation in Congress, and in the White House, was that this summer, perhaps in July, the committee would recommend to the full House that it impeach Nixon.

A vote by the House could occur in July or August. The timing of a Senate trial is uncertain. It could occur either before or after the November elections. Or it could be put off until after the newly elected 94th Congress meets in January.

The immediate job facing the chairman, Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., was to mold a bipartisan

'GRAVE SITUATION'

Ford Criticizes Editing Of Tapes Transcripts

CHARLESTON, Ill. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford today criticized the White House editing of President Nixon's Watergate transcripts and pointedly omitted in a prepared speech his earlier claim they would prove Nixon innocent of wrongdoing.

In his strongest criticism of the Nixon administration yet, Ford referred obliquely to missing portions in the transcripts which were labeled "characterization deleted" when the President or his aides were talking about an individual.

"What has taken place up to now has created a diminished confidence in our public officials, basic distrust of their motives," Ford said in a speech prepared for an appearance at Eastern Illinois University.

"And while it may be easy to delete characterization from the printed page, we cannot delete characterization from peoples' minds with a wave of the hand," Ford added.

County Democrats To Meet Saturday

The Gray County Democratic convention is scheduled for Saturday at 2 p.m. in the district courtroom on the third floor of the courthouse, county chairman Harold L. Comer has announced.

There are 99 delegates to the county convention, elected at the various precinct conventions following the May 4 primary election.

Eleven delegates will be selected to attend the state convention in Austin Sept. 17. Delegates will be selected in Austin to attend the national convention in St. Louis, Mo., later in the fall.

Keynote speaker for the county convention will be Pampa attorney Ross Buzzard. Chairman Comer will preside.

County Clerk Wanda Carter is chairman of the county credentials committee. The platform and resolutions committee is headed by Rex McAnelly and Judge Don Cain chairs the nominations committee.

Resolutions passed at the precinct conventions will be considered by delegates to the county convention, Comer said, and the delegates will decide which if any will be taken to the state convention to be placed before the platform and resolution committee there.

Delegates to the national convention in St. Louis will help draft the national platform for the Democratic party and establish national rules for the party.

Members of the county executive committee met Tuesday to canvass the results of the May 4 primary. Comer said Vote totals in all but two instances were found to be as reported Saturday, he said, and those did not affect the outcome of any race.

Only one run-off resulted in the Democratic primary. Incumbent Mary Hess Dwyer, county commissioner for Precinct 4, will face challenger Ted Simmons in a run-off June 1.

Students planned a demonstration at the university where Ford was speaking, aimed not at the vice president but calling for Nixon's impeachment or resignation.

"That is why I am speaking frankly on the subject, perhaps more so than some of my colleagues might wish," Ford said. "But I think the matter is so vital that it must be discussed in public, by public officials. And it must be discussed thoroughly."

Ford referred to a "grave situation," caused, he said, by "a continuous series of revelations and reports of corruption, malfeasance and wrongdoing in the federal government, not the least of which is the sorry mess which carries the label of Watergate."

"We have seen charge and counter-charge, indictments, confessions, convictions and resignations, involving some of the highest offices. These have been hammer blows to the confidence the American people have placed in their government."

Students planned a demonstration at the university where Ford was speaking, aimed not at the vice president but calling for Nixon's impeachment or resignation.

"The case has been cleared by the arrest of a 15-year-old juvenile," Heard said. "The person is confined."

Three 15-year-old boys were taken into custody for questioning, indicating the killer is a male, although Heard would not elaborate on the sex of the suspect.

The victims were Kenneth Elliott, 11, and Ronald Elliott, 12. The headless body of Kenneth was discovered Wednesday a quarter of a mile from where the body of Ronald was discovered last Nov. 20.

Ronald's abdomen was ripped open and he was sexually mutilated.

The Texas juvenile code forbids the public identification of juveniles accused of breaking the law.

So Heard would not identify the person being held but said, "We will ask that this individual be classified as an adult and tried on that basis."

Assistant District Attorney Donald Lambright said psychological and sociological tests would be conducted to determine the extent of further legal questions.

"We're going to ask that the referee hold this juvenile in custody," Lambright said, "on that basis we will decide whether this juvenile will be certified as an adult."

VOICE OF BUSINESS

Is Petroleum Nationalization Good?

By ARCH BOOTH
U.S. CoC
President

WASHINGTON — Would you be willing to kick in a little out of your own pocket to help subsidize businesses that use a lot of gasoline or other petroleum products?

I doubt it. But strangely enough, some of those who would respond to that question in the most colorfully negative terms are nevertheless calling for action that would probably result in such a subsidy.

I'm talking about calls for nationalization of the oil industry, or steps leading to that. Some people think a government take-over would be a great way to punish the oil companies and protect the consumer from high prices.

They are half right. It might protect the consumer from visibly high prices, but he'd wind up paying the difference in his taxes.

Why? Consider what would happen in the event of nationalization.

To start, the government would have to pay the present owners of the industry a fair price for their property. The price would undoubtedly run to billions of dollars. This "government" money would come ultimately from the taxpayer.

Next, suppose we are past the purchase phase and the government is running the petroleum industry—in this country, anyway. What happens to prices? They probably go down a little. The government, being a supremely nonprofit institution, doesn't need to allow for a profit in its pricing.

But the prices would not drop much and a lot of any drop would be an illusion.

Economic Reality

First, much of the price of a gallon of gasoline is composed of state and federal taxes. Anywhere from 8-14 cents, depending on the state. Profit on petroleum products averages about 2 cents per gallon. The rest is the cost of production. Presumably, the government would still need the revenue that was coming in from those taxes.

Second, the government would somehow have to make up for the millions of tax dollars that were received from the privately owned oil companies through the corporate income tax. This revenue, too, would have to be recovered either through the price structure or through some new tax increase elsewhere.

Third, the "economic" costs of producing and distributing the oil would be no less for the government than for a private operator — costs like those of equipment, drilling, labor, exploration and the international market price. Finally, if other public enterprises are any guide, there would be a great deal of political pressure to keep user charges — prices — unrealistically low. After all, it's the unpopularity of high prices that has raised the issue of nationalization in the first place.

But the money to pay expenses would still have to be found. It would probably be found in the general revenues. And that means every taxpayer would be paying to keep fuel costs low — no matter how much fuel he personally used.

Of course, our government monopoly could set up a sliding price scale, with bigger users paying a progressively higher rate. These users would then pass their higher costs along to their customers, who would pay a higher rate in proportion to their patronage, and so on.

But that's pretty much what happens now, isn't it? When free market prices go up, those who are the biggest users have to shell out the most.

Insiders see the government reaching nationalization in three stages.

Stage one is the establishment of a Federal Oil and Gas Corporation to compete with the private companies.

With continuing taxpayer support, gifts of federal oil land the private companies must bid for at auction, no federal taxes, no need to pay interest and access to confidential industry information in federal files, it would not be surprising if FOGC "competed" favorably.

In the second stage, federal controls on wellhead prices for oil and gas would eliminate the incentive for private companies to produce.

In the third stage, politicians would use the resulting "failure" of private enterprise as an excuse to enlarge FOGC and take over the whole industry.

That would be a mistake. Nationalization may hide some problems, but it doesn't solve many. Just ask the British.

Court Rejects 'Sniffing' Charge

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals was ruled aluminum paint is not a harmful drug or narcotic and overturned the revocation of an Abilene man's probation because it was based on evidence the man had been sniffing paint.

Billy Don Allen of Abilene entered a plea of guilty on Nov. 21, 1973, to a charge of theft of over $50. He was sentenced to three years in prison but granted probation.

Four days after probation was granted, officers charged Allen with driving an automobile while under the influence of paint fumes.

His probation was revoked because of the offense.

Allen's lawyers appealed to the appeals court. It reversed the probation revocation.

"The allegations of the motion to revoke allege a violation committed by 'sniffing paint fumes and thereafter did drive an automobile while under the influence of paint fumes.'"

The record reveals some kind of use of aluminum paint, but is absolutely devoid of any evidence of any drug contained therein or of the harmful character of any element of the aluminum paint," the court said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Allergic To Sentimentality?

EDITOR'S NOTE — We thought readers would be interested in reading the following article by a former editor of The Pampa News, Jim Dean, now editor of The Santa Ana (Calif.) Register. It follows:

William Wordsworth was born in April, 1770 and died in April, 1850.

In between those dates, he wrote a few poems, mostly about nature and always with a gentle touch that warms those of us who are sometimes allergic to sentimentality.

Perhaps it was some divine scheme that Wordsworth was born in April. April is the month that new life begins in nature's wonderland, and that was Wordsworth's thing.

Remember this? "I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host of golden daffodils,
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.
He seemed to have been moved by the wonders and beauty of nature as no other writer in memory.
These thoughts about Wordsworth have come about because of a line that kept nagging the memory.
"The world is too much with us," he said in that famous sonnet. "Late and soon, getting and spending we lay waste our powers; Little we see in Nature that is ours."

About a hundred years later Ben Hecht wrote "A Child of the Century," which included his observation that people tend to live by proxy. He illustrated that by saying that when Clark Gable appeared on the screen in "It Happened One Night," there was a scene in which he removed his shirt and revealed that he was not wearing an undershirt. Hecht claimed that the sales of men's undershirts suffered a sharp decline across the country.

Both Wordsworth and Hecht were suggesting that we examine our lives. And that's not too shabby an idea. Wordsworth said we are so wrapped up in "getting" that we fail to enjoy the beauty of life. Hecht said we do it because we saw someone else doing it.

In a conversation the other day, a friend remarked that after nearly 25 years in his job he was considering quitting because he just began to ask himself "What am I doing here?"

Young people frequently complain that the older folks are too materialistic. For a while there, they rejected the "establishment" went out to "be themselves." And strangely, they all wound up seeming to look and act alike.

And that's not all bad if it is really what they want to do. And the fellow, the product of the depression age, who wants to make lots of money is OK, too, if he is doing what he really wants to do.

Doing your own thing is great if it doesn't keep someone else from doing his own thing. The problem is that too many of us don't seem to know what our thing is.

But the fellow who does know what he wants to do and is doing it is a joy to behold.

What he has is an inner peace, and it matters not whether he is getting rich or getting by. He's a rare human being because he has been able to withstand the bombardment of suggestion from the collectivists that he should follow a certain path because someone else is going that way.

This "living by proxy" as Hecht called it, was tailor-made for politicians and political activists. They don't merely suggest, they ultimately give orders. And have you ever found one of those guys who had that inner peace?

Wordsworth had the best approach. He merely told us that he got a lot of happiness from wandering through a field of daffodils, and we could take it or leave it.

Ben Hecht seemed to be in tune with a going idea since the advertising agencies put out huge sums of money hiring celebrities to tell us to drink milk.

What the individual really has to decide for himself is whether he wants to watch Joe Namath "get creamed" and then rush out and buy Rapid Shave or whatever that stuff is.

Or spend a little time thinking, deeply, quietly, and finding peace within.

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE That Immunity Law -- Again

By WILLIAM RUSHER

A motion for a new trial in a criminal case in New York has renewed the fears of legal observers that the Justice Department is seriously misusing, and perhaps abusing, the immunity provisions of the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970.

This is the law under which government prosecutors have granted varying degrees of immunity to self-confessed felons, among them John Dean and that fragrant quartet in Baltimore whose mutually corroborating testimony brought about Spiro Agnew's downfall.

The idea underlying the law is simple enough: Guarantee little fish immunity from prosecution in return for their testimony against big fish. The potential for abuse, by prosecutors who want convictions and little fish who want off the hook, is obvious. It is usually guarded against by requiring the little fish not only to testify, but to plead guilty and take the prescribed punishment for some lesser offense than might otherwise be charged against him. (Though even this, it seems to me, is no guarantee against some petty crook falsely implicating a bigger name at the behest of a hungry prosecutor, since after all it is better to serve a short stretch than a long one.)

But, as pessimists feared, signs are multiplying that certain government attorneys simply can't be bothered to construct a valid case when a spongy one can be patched together with the eager assistance of some talkative little crook who wants immunity.

In the New York case, four officials of a fur workers' union were convicted on February 27 of obstruction of justice, tax evasion, conspiracy and violations of the Taft-Hartley Act. These charges grew out of allegations that they had accepted payoffs from unionized furriers in return for ignoring the fact that the latter were subcontracting work to non-union shops. The indictments were the proud product of a 15-month investigation by the Justice Department's Joint Strike Force Against Organized Crime, the New York City Police Department, the Internal Revenue Service and the U.S. Department of Labor.

The government's key witness at the trial was one Jack Glasser, the business agent for the furriers, who swore he had collected about $14,000 in payoffs from them and passed some $9,000 of the cash along to the four defendants, pocketing about $5,000 for himself and spending this without even bothering to bank it first. In return for this painful admission, Mr. Glasser was granted immunity from prosecution for his own role in the shakedown without even being required to cop the usual lesser plea. He now resides in Miami Beach. The defendants, on the other hand, can get prison sentences of up to 20 years each.

Now, however, attorneys for the union officials claim to have discovered evidence that the demure and penitent Mr. Glasser lied when he swore he had not banked his "share" of the payoff money. On the contrary, they charge, he deposited more than $55,000 in cash in various New York banks during the period when he was, according to his own contention, acting as a bag man. Understandably, the four convicted union officials would like a new trial.

I cannot judge the merits of their application. Nothing I know about the fur workers' union, or about New York unions in general, leaves me deeply unwilling to believe that any particular group of union officials is as crooked as a dog's hind leg. There is independent testimony (also obtained by grants of immunity, however) concerning other payoffs to this particular crowd. But if the Justice Department really did, as it appears, base much of its case on the testimony of a confessed felon who got effectually total immunity in return for testimony implicating his alleged partners in crime, then we are all in potential trouble. How many New York union officials, I wonder, snickered last October at the seemingly remote and irrelevant agonies of Spiro Agnew? They will snicker less noisily, I suspect, hereafter.

U.S. Attorney Paul Curran is an able man, and can be counted on to correct promptly any mistake an ambitious aide may have made. But what is really needed, and needed soon, is reform of that immunity law. The Mitchell-Stans jury's unwillingness to believe the testimony of the Justice Department's pet canary John Dean is a fair warning to all concerned.

INSIDE LABOR

Clergy Rallying To Chavez

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — It's "May time, that's rebel time," an old radical used to say massed May Day banners, held aloft, went by on the country's cities' streets. But today May time is Cesar Chavez's time, harvest time in the fields ranging from the California-Mexican border right up to the state which any day now he will hit with a "series of representation strikes."

According to his spiritual mentor and counselor, Msgr. George Higgins, these stoppages will run "until the end of the summer" in the table grapes and lettuce ranches.

The issue is not Chavez's strength. He has the strength of many in George Meany's AFL-CIO, Leonard Woodcock's auto workers and Arnold Miller's mine workers. Nor will Chavez's United Farm Workers lack funds.

Chavez's little union had net assets of $1,449,429 at the end of 1972. And during the following year or so other labor leaders poured in some $3 million and considerable manpower in the conflict with the massive Teamsters brotherhood.

Charismatic as is La Cause (The Cause) of the little farm workers leader, who has defied Mahatma Gandhi, Bob Kennedy and Martin Luther King, Jr., the war now actually is sprawling jurisdictional conflict. Sooner or later it will hit virtually every large supermarket and food chain in virtually every major city.

What makes this jurisdictional strike different from all others is the self-involvement of the nation's clergy. Practically all the clergy. Not just the National Conference of Catholic Bishops but the United Church of Christ, the Presbytery of New York City, and the Synagogue Council of America, just to name a few of the clerical organizations which have rallied to Chavez.

True, some clergy swing behind the costly Amalgamated Clothing Workers (AFL-CIO) boycott of Farah slacks. But the union spent its own $2 million during its successful traditional strike and boycott. Its leaders, President Murray Finley and Secretary-Treasurer Jack Sheinkman, directed their own strategy. They swung the national and international labor movement behind them.

But in the migrant farm workers' war, which will see much blood shed, many heads cracked and perhaps bombings too, the clergy has been in the vanguard of Chavez's small union. Now, of course, Meany is mobilizing the AFL-CIO's 900 city and state central bodies. The war is on. He has dispatched documents giving advice on almost every minute detail to force off the nation's retail shelves any table grapes or lettuce picked by the Teamsters who now have 99 percent of the California contracts.

Meany is getting powerful support. Just the other day New York's new Democratic Mayor Abe Beame directed the city's Department of Purchase not to buy or even accept bids for lettuce (for the city's hospitals and institutions) from anyone who deals with the Teamsters in the field. This takes daring and loyalty to the AFL-CIO in a city in which there are some 175,000 tightly organized Teamsters.

In one fashion or another this is true of other heavily unionized communities — Detroit, for example. No simple conflict this. The Teamsters won't budge. Their argument, strangely enough, was best articulated recently by Jimmy Hoffa. He said:

"You have to understand the economics of canneries, drivers and field workers, concerning the desire of the Teamsters Union to protect the members they have in the canning industry ... in the warehousing and transportation industry, with an irresponsible union that reserves the right to call strikes that could eventually, in a matter of days, lay off hundreds of thousands of people we have in the Teamsters Union, as against the very minimal number of people who work in the fields."

So it is common sense that the Teamsters Union have tied into the canneries, the warehouses and drivers, the field workers that produce the merchandise that keep the other part of the industry operating."

However, without the power to strike at critical harvest time — the growers' make-or-break season — Chavez's spiritual, physical and fiscal support means little. That's why Chavez told one important Senate official he'll never give it up. He just doesn't trust any government agency. Certainly not the National Labor Relations Board. He just doesn't want any law which would prevent his striking the lush ripe fields at harvest time — no compulsory arbitration. No cooling-off period as in Taft-Hartley.

The Teamsters charge, according to the Senate official, that they won't agree to elections in the field without government supervision because they don't trust Chavez. They charge he would bring in "ringers." Chicanos who are not field workers, for the polling.

So it's a stand-off. The Teamsters won't back down. Neither will Meany. Nor Chavez. The balance of power therefore appears to be not the Congress but the clergy. They are, in Biblical terms, girding for the Armageddon. Their pulpits and most of their media are targeting in on Frank Fitzsimmons's Teamsters.

A Biblical Solomon is needed before armies literally clash in the vineyards. And on some hot pavements, too. May Day, May Day, May Day.

H.L. Hunt Writes:

EXPORT-IMPORT BANK

The Export-Import Bank (Eximbank) made direct loans of $2.4 billion in fiscal year 1973. Eximbank is operated in such a way that U.S. exporters and foreign buyers gain while the U.S. taxpayer loses.

If a U.S. exporter wants to sell abroad, he arranges an Eximbank loan to the foreign buyer. The U.S. exporter is promptly paid in dollars, and the foreign importer gets a subsidized interest rate. Eximbank charges 6 per cent interest, while the prime rate in the U.S. is at 10 or even 12 per cent interest. The interest subsidy is paid by Treasury grants to the Eximbank. In other words, it is paid by the taxpayer. If the foreign buyer defaults, the taxpayer takes the loss, not the U.S. company that made the sale.

This is bad economics. Government officials are in no position to evaluate the risks of international trade. This judgment should be made by the company that wants to make the sale. Then that company should extend credit at whatever rates of interest it believes are economically sound or insist that the foreign buyer find his own financing. Government involvement simply creates an artificial situation which encourages sales to bad credit risks.

Eximbank also engages in bad politics. One of its major loans in 1973 was to finance a Soviet truck factory. This factory is building trucks which could be used in warfare against innocent countries and even against the United States itself.

Nothing is gained by government subsidies of foreign purchases. The Export-Import Bank should be phased out.

ALL THAT GLITTERS No Holds Barred In Post-Trial Publicity

By VIC GOLD

WASHINGTON — Within minutes after the Vesco case jury returned its "not guilty" verdict against John Mitchell and Maurice Stans, an enterprising television news director in the nation's capital dispatched a correspondent and camera crew to Lafayette Park, across from the White House. His bright idea for the slow-news Sunday: elicit response to the verdict from idlers and passers-by.

"Don't like it," said one interviewee, with the vague trace of smile that people show when they understand they're talking for the television cameras.

"Why not?" pressed the newsmen.

"Cause they're guilty, that's why."

End of film segment. Sic transit gloria juridica in the capital of the United States, one year after the "Watergate atmosphere" first descended. Out of fear that a cover-up of massive scandal could damage our administration of justice, we seem to have lurched so far in the opposite direction as to recognize no bounds to media coverage of anything relating to Watergate.

Once, pre-Watergate, we were a society sensitive to the nuances of what damaging pre-trial publicity could do to the rights of an accused citizen. Maybe not as sensitive as the British, with their stringent rules against any publicity relating to criminal court proceedings. But nevertheless, sensitive enough so that a President of the United States, who forgot himself in a news conference and prejudged the guilt of even a Charles Manson, drew wide criticism.

Yet that, as I say, was pre-Watergate. Spring of 1974, it appears, no holds are barred. Thus, following that instant expert analysis by the juror-in-the-street, other enterprising news directors on local and national television joined in the game of providing viewers post-trial publicity in the Mitchell-Stans case.

Next morning, coast-to-coast, we were treated to a television "first": a live talkathon by the Vesco jury's forewoman, an instant news celebrity apparently eager to provide minute detail of the blow-by-blow process by which the Mitchell-Stans verdict was reached. Watching that spectacle, I, for one, wondered where the logic of this kind of total media coverage will lead. I mean, why should the public wait to hear a summary when, given their boundless enterprise, TV news directors would be only too willing to place cameras and microphones inside jury rooms while actual deliberations are going on?

But the electronic media, of course, isn't alone in such enterprise. Ever competitive, the morning newspaper in the nation's capital — where, lest we forget, future Watergate cases will be tried — featured the front-page headline: Jury for Conviction at First: Witness Credibility an Issue. And just in case somebody missed that point, the following day's headline, over a wire-service news story, announced: Jurors Doubled Testimony of Dean.

Meanwhile, in another part of town, someone else was issuing his own instant commentary.

After all, if that televised man-in-the-street can give the world his curbstone juror's view, why not the Vice President of the United States? The Vesco jury's verdict, declared Jerry Ford, "says to me that John Dean's credibility has been severely eroded."

Does it now? Well, maybe so. But Gerald Ford, bachelor of law, Yale 1941, must know that such instant analysis by the second-highest ranking official in the country also says other things to other people. Other people who may well be called to sit on other juries, at other times, to decide cases in which Maurice Stans's and John Mitchell's presumption of innocence — no less than John Dean's credibility — will be at issue.

Hand in hand, pro and con, our enterprising news media and public officials who mix political ends with judicial means are eroding something, all right. But as I see it, what's being eroded is far more important to the future of our system than questions concerning how one jury conducted its deliberations — or whether one witness, John Dean, can or can't be believed under oath.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

If today's deal can serve as an example, our West defender might be described as a "card pusher," rather than a card "player." At best, his play might be called lackadaisical and uninspired.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

East played the heart jack on West's opening lead of the king, urging a continuation of the suit. To trick two West led the heart three to East's ace, and to trick three East played a heart to West's queen. West now paused for a moment.

After "due deliberation," West led the eight of clubs to trick four. Declarer was now home safely. He won the trick with dummy's ace, after which he led a trump, finessing his jack when East followed suit with a low trump. The ace and king of trumps then picked up the adversely-held trumps, and that was that.

West's return of a club at trick was the height of futility. West should have recognized that the defenders had no hope in either the club or diamonds suits. Nor could a trump lead have ever accomplished anything, since if East had a trump winner, he would always make it later. And so, by a process of elimination, west should have turned his attention to the heart suit. Had West exercised his imagination, he would have

East would have recognized that his partner was leading the thirteenth heart for a purpose: to get East to trump with his highest trump (the uppercut) in order to promote West's highest trump to a higher rank.

In the actual deal, East would automatically have ruffed the ten of heart with his queen of spades. Declarer, of course, would have overruffed with his king. And at the precise moment, West, with his tripleton 10-x-x of trumps, would be assured of later making his ten of trumps, for the setting trick.

Jane makes three and that's unlucky!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My friend Jane and I work together. She and her husband and my husband and I had been close friends for 12 years. Two years ago, Jane's husband died suddenly, and we were all shocked and deeply grieved.

My husband and I tried to make life easier for Jane. We invited her over and took her places with us so she wouldn't be alone. Her other friends had her for dinner once and that was the end of it.

It's going on the third year now, and I think it's time Jane started to try to make a new life for herself. It's gotten so that she expects us to include her in everything. If we don't, she is hurt, and she lets us know.

She and my husband and I are a regular threesome. And who do you think gets all the attention? Jane does. My husband pulls out her chair and helps her with her coat and I have to look after myself.

I mentioned this to my husband once and he said: "Why, you're jealous!"

How can I remedy this situation without hurting anyone? I don't know how much longer I can hide my feelings.

THIRD WHEEL

DEAR WHEEL: Why hide them? Tell your husband: "You're darned tootin' I'm jealous!" Enough is enough. Discontinue the threesome. Dig up a single man for Jane, or ask her to find one, but let your husband know that three is an unlucky number.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old male with an unusual problem. I've worked at the same company for six years and have a good relationship with my boss, who is the president and owner of this company. The problem is the boss's daughter who also works here. She is very friendly to me, and every chance she gets, she straightens my tie or gives me a little hug. This girl is very attractive and I find it difficult to get my work done when she's around.

Last week, while I was standing at the copy machine, she came up behind me and put her hand in my pocket to make change for a soft drink!

I don't want to offend the boss's daughter, but I can't reciprocate her friendly gestures, so what do I do?

BOTHERED IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR BOTHERED: You poor kid! Pretend she is just another girl in the steno pool. Why should she be penalized because she's the boss's daughter?

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, MAY 10
Your birthday today: Ushers in an era of reorganization of your daily life to include fresh spiritual aspirations, added routines, personal obligations. Wherever you can drop an unproductive enterprise or a bad habit, now is a prime time to do so. Prefer the simplest approaches available. Today's natives are soon the target for many surprises, in which their abrupt and naturally inventive qualities will serve them admirably.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Very little, if anything, can remain secret now. None of the people who help or could help are ready or willing to become visible in doing so. Tact and acceptance enter into home life today.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Wind up the work week with as much grace and finesse as you can muster, but get done and attend home and family matters in a long and complex session. Make special preparations.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Friends and their projects should not attract any investment cash from you now. Relationships are delicate, apt to enter new phases with little warning.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Willy-nilly, your schemes are revised to fit into an organized context, may become simpler and easier as you are coaxed to drop frills. Surprising help is available in odd places.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Whatever you can do single-handed to advance yourself, by all means do so, within reasonable bounds. You can't wait or depend on others to open the subject or to begin operations.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: The fine art of saying "no" without stirring animosity comes into practice to day. Consolidate scattered enterprises and budgets. Tidy up household, try out new appliances.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Your career effort goes smoothly enough once you meet forceful suggestions from associates, competitors, with some definite assertion of your own devising. Expect no progress in romance.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Plain, common-sense methods are most pertinent to today's problems. People often complain of matters quite other than what really troubles them. Tactfully settle differences with loved ones.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Love and money are both high on your urgent list; what brings one repels the other, generally speaking. Rely on your own resources; nobody saves the situation for you now but yourself.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Relatives continue trying to help. Strangers are in pursuit of more flashy targets. Close associates are in a cantankerous mood, or can get into one very quickly.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Finances promise improvement in accord with the extra responsibility you now carry. Avoid fatigue and neglect as you work out the final stages of your work week. Watch your health!

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Strive for impersonal attitudes; stay out of the middle of others' differences; hold your temper. A moment's reflection brings intuition, perhaps a burst of inspiration.

PROGRESSIVE CLUB
The Progressive Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. E.C. Golden, 625 N. Carr, May 2, at 2 p.m.

Mrs. J.A. King, president, opened the meeting with the club prayer. Roll call was answered with a "Tornado Safety Precaution In My Home." Members voted to have meetings once a month during the summer months and plans for the installation of new officers were made.

Mrs. Bill Carter gave a program on making flowers with chenille pipe cleaners and beads. She has made beautiful peonies, Easter lillies, and iris. She became interested in making these beautiful flowers through working with the cub scouts.

Science Today

By ELDON BARRETT
SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — In the area known as the Hanford Atomic Reservation, an archeologist recently found artifacts that showed man lived along the Columbia River about 6,500 years.

In light of much older discoveries elsewhere, that date is a mere toddler's step back in the history of man. But what the discovery did do was upset a few theories about living conditions in these parts back in those days.

Anthropologists have presumed that the extremely hot, dry climate that prevailed in the Pacific Northwest back then would have kept man out of such deserts.

Now Dr. David Rice, a University of Idaho archeologist working for a public power combine that wants to build another nuclear power plant at Hanford, has unearthed in a layer of gravel man-made tools typical of others used by primitives in the region.

Recent Evidence
Rice, reporting his findings to the State Thermal Power Plant Site Evaluation Council, said the ancient campground he and his student crew explored was where the nuclear plant's water intake system would be built.

The most recent evidence unearthed at the dig was a clay pipe made in Scotland, trade beads and a rifle cartridge. The Wanapum Indians had used the campgrounds as late as 1910. This band once dwelled along the Columbia from Priest Rapids to where Richland now stands.

Further down, the diggers found a house floor that Rice estimated to be 500 years old. Still further, they found fresh water mussel shells which radiocarbon dating showed were gathered about 90 A. D.

At this point Rice said he had expected to run out of cultural material, but he and his crew kept digging just the same. Next they found tools used to kill big game. Perhaps these were 4,000 to 5,000 years old.

End Of Ice Age
After that came layers of gravel formed during high water periods at the end of the last Ice Age. It was in the gravel that four projectile points were found. They were of a type that seemed to have appeared in the area shortly after the great volcanic upheaval when Mount Mazama blew its top and ended up as Crater Lake in Oregon. That was about 6,600 years ago.

These primitive dwellers did not utilize the runs of salmon that are believed to have been in the Columbia then, but must have subsisted on game.

"It had been generally thought the Columbia Basin would have been depopulated during this period," said Rice. "But our work shows that people were there and were not too handicapped by conditions."

"I think we are going to have to revise some of our thinking about the effects of this period on early man."

No Evidence Of Pollution From Boating

CHICAGO (UPI) — The long debate over the effect of outboard motors in the ecology has been settled in part by the release Wednesday of a 2½-year study finding no evidence outboards harm water or its life systems.

The $750,000 study was financed jointly by the Environmental Protection Agency and boating industry associations.

"The conclusions are preliminary — subject to review by the EPA and additional statistical analysis — but scientists tell me there is no reason to believe that basic findings will change," said Matt Kaufman, project director for the boating industry group.

The tests centered around exhaust emissions and prolonged use of outboards and its effect on the plants and animals in natural waters. Test sites were located in Michigan and Florida.

Both the whale and the zebra have gestation periods of exactly one year.

MINI-GARDEN TIPS

If this year's unbelievable food prices have you planting a garden for the first time in your life, a fellow named John C. Huckans has some tips you might find valuable. John, who really knows how to squeeze maximum production from a mini-garden (measuring only 20 by 50 feet) in upstate New York, says:

"For several years I wasted my time with a small, pale lettuce that grows close to the ground, gets covered with dirt during every rainstorm and is a pain in the neck to wash. Now I'm happier with the large Burpee's Fordhook variety which shoots up over a foot high, forms a very loose head of tasty foliage and is simple to clean. It's also slow to 'bolt' and bears salad fare an uncommonly long time."

Mr. Huckans also plants Burpee's Lutz beets, which produce two crops: foliage that can be eaten as greens and a late harvest of roots which store well for winter use.

"Speaking of greens," says John, "I recommend chard over spinach. The latter usually yields little and goes to seed at the first sign of hot weather. Chard, on the other hand, produces a much greater harvest of foliage and may be gathered until snow covers the ground. Its stalks and ribs may be cooked like asparagus and leafy parts prepared like spinach."

For a more complete description of John Huckans' mini-gardening techniques—including a layout of his vegetable patch—send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®, in care of this paper. Ask for Reprint No. 180, MINI-GARDEN.

Appeals Court For Decision Slaps Judge

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals verbally slapped a Harris County district judge Wednesday for setting aside a woman's two-year conviction for murder in defiance of the higher court's upholding of the original conviction.

The strongly worded order was aimed at Judge William Hatten after District Attorney Carol Vance, reportedly angered at Hatten's dismissal of the indictment against Paula Ann Kelly, asked for an extraordinary writ of mandamus from the appeals court.

The court granted the mandamus and ordered Hatten to have Miss Kelly rearrested on her conviction of the Sept. 23, 1971 murder of James Clarence Wynn.

The Court of Criminal Appeals commanded Hatten to obey its order and said, "while this court has no general power to issue writs of mandamus, it can issue mandamus to enforce its own jurisdiction."

Fertilizer Management Is A Challenge

Proper fertilizer management for home vegetable garden soils in the Plains-Panhandle region is an important challenge this year. Our sandy loam and clay loam soils contain rich reserves of essential mineral elements.

Chemical analyses of area soils, conducted by Extension soil testing laboratories reveal large reserves of potassium and moderate levels of phosphorus. Heavier clay loam garden soils may be high in nitrogen, also.

It is not difficult to fertilize these soils properly. Soil test results clearly show the concentration of the essential mineral elements in the soil, and suggestions as to the kind and amount of fertilizer needed for vegetables are given on the written report.

Home gardeners are encouraged to have their soil tested by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Suggestions on sample collection and mailing may be obtained from my office.

A home garden soil which contains adequate phosphorus and potassium, but is low in nitrogen, may require the application of about eight ounces or one cup of ammonium nitrate per 100 square feet for starting most vegetables.

For a soil that needs both nitrogen and phosphorus, the application of one pound (one pint) of 16-20-0 or its equivalent per 100 square feet, tilled in, will give vegetables a good start in our area. It is unnecessary to apply potassium to most High Plains soil for vegetable production since this element is generally quite adequate.

The application of potassium where no deficit exists is wasteful and can contribute to a higher than desirable salt concentration in the soil. High soluble salts resulting from excessive fertilizer use inhibit vegetable seed germination and growth.

It is more sensible to know the fertility status of your garden before planting than to wait until your plants show you by their suffering that their nutrient supply is insufficient. Planning a vegetable garden without first testing the soil is much like throwing darts blindfolded.

When young vegetable plants are established and growing, many kinds will respond well to additional nitrogen as a sidedressing. Tomatoes, peppers, summer squash and okra can be sidedressed with eight ounces of ammonium nitrate per 100 feet or row when fruit begins to set.

The same amount of ammonium nitrate can be sidedressed on cucumbers, winter squash and pumpkins when the vines begin to spread out. Crops like cabbage, broccoli and brussels sprouts benefit from extra nitrogen about one month after being set in the garden or in the four to six leaf stage for direct seeded plants.

It is wise to irrigate soon after applying this nitrogen to transport the nutrient into the root zone.

Ecological Hazard
BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — A proposed superport off the Louisiana coast could pose a danger to the environment, a Louisiana State University researcher says.

Dr. Sherwood Gagliano says the proposed $528 superport, to be used by oil tankers, could adversely affect oyster beds and recreation areas in the Gulf of Mexico.

He also said currents in the Gulf could push accidental oil spills into the coast.

Defensive Driving Course Provides Safety

AUSTIN — More Texans than ever before are learning to save their necks and their money with the Defensive Driving Course, an eight-hour classroom course which teaches crash avoidance techniques used by professional drivers.

DDC, a joint venture of the Texas Safety Association and the National Safety Council, is a statewide campaign to reduce highway deaths, injuries and property damage through driver improvement training.

The program works, as evidenced by a National Safety Council study showing that DDC graduates have fewer accidents after completion of the course.

As an added bonus DDC graduates receive a ten percent discount on their automobile insurance premiums. This discount, good for a period of three years, applies to auto liability, collision and medical payment coverages written by insurance companies who are rate-regulated by the State Board of Insurance.

With the average insurance savings amounting to about $14-16 per policy per year, DDC graduates are building a potential savings of $1,995,000 annually.

This unique insurance incentive plan has resulted in Texas leading the nation in the training of defensive drivers. In 1973 DDC training agencies trained 145,000 persons, a record in any state in any single year.

There are currently over 500 training agencies located across the State. To enroll in a Defensive Driving Course in your area, contact your local authorized training agency or write to Texas Safety Association, P.O. Box 9345, Austin, Texas 78766.

Garner Touring Europe NEW YORK (UPI) — Pianist Erroll Garner will star on several television shows during his three-week European concert tour.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

He's Taking Medicine For Hives

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son has hives to an extreme degree. For some months he has been taking Benadryl and finds it relieves him for about three hours and then the hives come back. Would taking the medicine that often hurt him? What type of doctor do you suggest who could help find the reason rather than just give him temporary relief?

—Mrs. M.A.B.
The Benadryl — is an antihistamine — is well known as giving relief from allergy problems, which is what hives is. The outstanding drawback to frequent and repeated use is that it will make him drowsy. You don't mention his age, but if he's a schoolboy, the drowsiness is going to bother him. If he's old enough to drive, then he certainly shouldn't do so with that medication. You are quite right in wanting to find the cause rather than temporary relief. Whether the hives come from something he eats, or breathes, or touches, the heart of the problem is to find out exactly what thing — or things — causes the reaction.

And the doctor to investigate that vital question is an allergist. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you explain to me what colon trouble is and what are the symptoms? —T.M.
Not in my brief discussion because there are all sorts of "colon-trouble," ranging from mucus colitis to diverticulosis to irritable colon. So I'd suggest you send for my booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints," which discusses the various types of trouble. Send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, Dr. G.C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, for a copy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you discuss "keloiding"? For many years I have wondered exactly what it is and why it occurs in some people and not others. Should people who keloid have their ears pierced? If not, why not? —M.G.
Not that I haven't discussed this before — but a keloid is an overgrowth of scar tissue after a wound or incision. The scar gets thicker and hence more prominent. Why this occurs to some and not others is not known, but keloids are more common in folks with dark skin — by which I do not mean black, although black people do indeed have more keloids than those with light skins. I've warned keloid-formers to avoid ear piercing because a thickened scar can be more noticeable and in many instances can close the aperture after it has been made.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it necessary that healthy people should have vitamin B-12 injections once a week or as frequently as once a month? I believe it to be more a form of habit than necessity. —Mrs. W.D.
I'll pass that question unless I have some solid evidence that the person is, indeed, "healthy." I have in mind such possibilities as a patient with pernicious anemia who may appear to be healthy, kept so by B-12, but who would die without periodic B-12.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for a female to have some type of surgery to shrink the walls of the vagina or in some way make the vagina smaller? I am in my 40s, have had several children. Yes, it is possible, and has been done many times. You should consult a gynecologist about it. How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. G.C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, for a copy of the booklet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all mail from his readers, but because of the great volume received daily he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Copyright 1974 Field Enterprises, Inc.

Joan Tells Of Fasting Farm

By EARL WILSON
"Did you hear the newest diet gimmick?" asked Joan Rivers, the attractively slender comedienne who weighs 104 and is trying to squeeze down to 102 because at 106 her pants won't zip up. "It's a fasting farm," Joan said. "You pay $70 a day not to eat anything. Not even bottled water. Tap water you take, because that's all you get in sustenance." "What's the $70 a day for if you don't eat?" I delicately inquired.

"For the doctor on the premises that picks you up when you faint." Joan, who's starring at Westbury Music Fair with Helen Reddy, recalled other valiant diet ideas.

"Those sand belts that Jackie Vernon brought around and you wore them around your waist! And those plastic suits you sweated in them and where could you throw them when you threw them away?" Joan was sipping Chablis, the current dieter's drink (20 to 60 calories less than whisky). "At home I have a heavy scale and a thin scale. They're 3 or 4 pounds different." She regretted that her parents from Mamaroneck met her on her return to the East. "They brought me sandwiches," she explained. "When I'm thinking of the fasting farm."

On Sunday night, Joan finishes her Westbury show at 10:30. "Everything's packed, everything's in the car, the motor's running... it's like a well-choreographed heist." The car rushes her to Avery Fisher Hall at Lincoln Center. "By 11:30, if we get the right lights, I'm on stage." She was with that all-star collection of personalities at the Fight for Sight "Lights On" show with Sammy Davis, Carol Channing, Julie Styne, Tony Bennett, Sid Caesar, the Andrews Sisters, Jane Powell, James Whitmore, Morty Guntz, Soupy Sales, William B. Williams, the Luv Machine, Mike Gallo, four gals from "Irene," Sammy Cahn, Fred Collins — all directed by Hal Talchin. The only discouraging word for Joan was: afterward the actors were invited to a spaghetti supper.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... On "Sammy Davis Day," officially proclaimed in NY and LA, Sammy jocularly told the TV Academy at Pub Theatrical that when he and his father and uncle were on relief, sneaking a few jobs, "I made up my mind if I ever made good, I was going to pay the city back every penny they gave me on relief."

Laughing, Sammy said, "Well, I hope Mayor Beame has good luck in Albany getting more money for the city in the budget, because I'm not giving up a dime!" Virginia Capers introducing Sammy said, "Even Sammy's mistakes are sensational — and he has a right to make them."

She was referring to his announcement that he would be more careful when he hugged in 1976 (flashback to his embrace with President Nixon). All Sammy would say was, "I don't think it takes a lot of dissecting to figure out what that meant."

Henry Fonda hopes to be able to resume his tour as "Clarence Darrow" by May 16, his 69th birthday. He underwent heart surgery at Lenox Hill Hospital in N.Y. to have a pacemaker inserted. Rita Gam is elated over playing "a nasty dame in a taxi" in the Carol O'Connor picture "Grand Street." Kirk Douglas, who plays a genius electronic thief in "The Master Touch," went to dinner in Miami Beach leaving his money clip and $500 in a drawer. Despite all the electronic security, he returned to find he'd been ripped off. Three entertainers out of a group of four have hotels dunning them... Anne Bancroft and Mel Brooks said they've joined the Hollywood community.

Show Biz Quiz: What major standard song has lyrics that don't rhyme? Ans. to yesterday's: Barry Fitzgerald was Oscar-nominated as Best Actor and Best Supporting Actor in 1944 for "Going My Way."

Bantam Books is rushing to bring out its 700-page paperback of the White House transcript next week... Secret Stuff: A famed actor, who always gets good reviews, complains: "Where are the job offers? The ones I get are insulting!"... There'll be a Groucho Marx wristwatch, rolling eyes and all... Bravos: The People's Choice rock group at the Travelers Hotel; the Jerry Dunn duo at Sid Allen's. I'D RATHER BE LIGHT Today's Best Laugh: John

Markus is glad he moved to a big city: "The last place I lived was so small the zip code had a fraction at the end of it."

Wish I'd Said That: Comedy writer Jack Douglas wrote in his latest book, "This is dedicated to my agent, who believed in me — when everybody else did."

Remembered Quote: "Some people are so busy learning the tricks of the trade that they never learn the trade." —Dore Schary

Earl's Pearls: In some homes, husbands and wives aren't talking. In others, it's just the husbands who aren't talking. Two men discussed whether blondes or brunettes have friendlier dispositions, and one said, "I can't see any difference — and my wife's been both." That's earl, brother. All Rights Reserved.

Under Twenty

By KURT LASSEN
The film, "Claudine," starring Diahann Carroll and James Earl Jones, is not a musical. Listening to the soundtrack album featuring Gladys Knight and the Pips, however, one would think it was. Written and produced by Curtis Mayfield, the album contains six vocal numbers and the instrumental, "Claudine Theme." The film is a bitter-sweet, often funny look at inner-city life and the mood is reflected in Mayfield's score and lyrics and the highly popular style of Gladys and her Pips.

Often, music is added to a film because it is feared the production would be bare without it. In this case, however, the music is excellently integrated and furthers the mood of the story without detracting from the action. Gladys Knight and The Pips have had a phenomenal series of hits. Their "Midnight Train to Georgia" has been certified as a million seller and their album, "Imagination," has also been rated gold. The title number from the album climbed to the top as a single followed by "Best Thing That Ever Happened to Me," setting the charts on fire.

"All this and the Grammy Awards, too, places Gladys and her crew at the very pinnacle of success after a long, successful career where there were few hits but great popularity as a personal appearance group.

From the Claudine album, "On and On" and "The Making of You" are being released as singles. Among the others which should please the group's fans are "To Be Invisible" and "Mr. Welfare Man."

Recorded at Curtis Mayfield's studios in Chicago, the content and the production of the album is, if possible, even better than the winners Gladys and the Pips have had during their recent "hot" spell. (Distributed by Columbia Features, Inc.)

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Soaring interest rates have kept investors on the sidelines and volume sluggish, according to E. F. Hutton & Co. "The overall impression is of a sold out market," the firm says, "one which would not need much of an excuse to go up." The blue chips have been dramatically outperforming the rest of the market, it adds, so that quality issues could be among the leaders in the next major advance.

"This market is getting ready to end its basing phase and begin a new bull movement of major proportions," says the Predictor, a West Hartford, Conn. letter. Most investors are not geared to the thought of a massive new bull market, it continues, because in recent years the market has been punctuated by short upswings. "Activity of the past few years has finally served to place the majority of stocks in sold-out long term buying ranges — which invariably leads to an upside reversal," it adds.

"The mixed trend of many economic indicators will continue for some months, but no major recession is in the offing," says International Statistical Bureau, Inc. It predicts the prime rate and discount rate will peak in the next several weeks. "Even after considering all the pluses and minuses, we still conclude that we will finish the year with less inflationary pressure than with what we started," the firm adds.

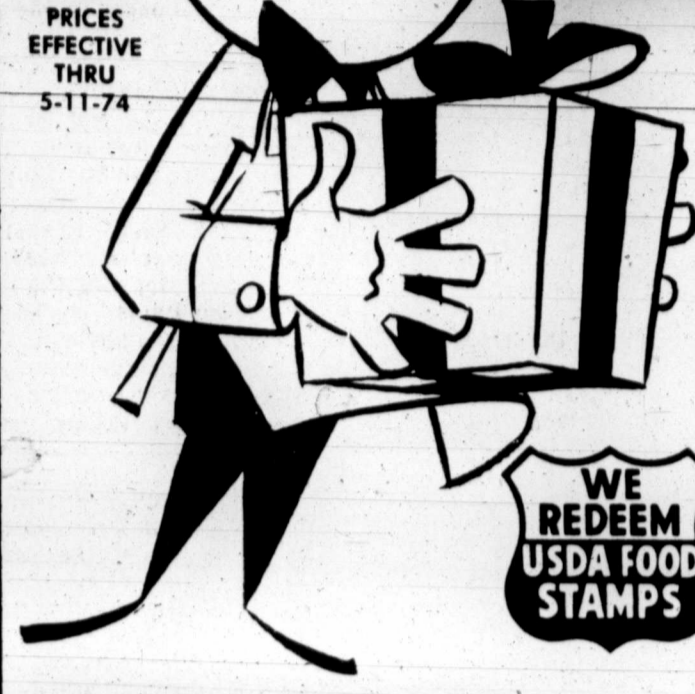

Wayne Role Encores HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — John Wayne will reprise his "True Grit" character when he stars in "Rooster Cogburn" for Universal Pictures.

Jerry Quarry Victorious With 2nd-Round Knockout

United Press International
 UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — "I started to pray," said a wide-eyed Charlie Quarry as she watched her husband crash to the seat of his pants after catching a crushing left hook.

Her prayer was answered. Jerry Quarry, risking a pay day of $200,000, was supposed to take care of Joe Alexander with no trouble

Wednesday night at Nassau Coliseum, but in the closing seconds of the first round Quarry was bouncing on the floor.

Jerry was up in plenty of time, taking the end of the mandatory eight count on his feet just before the round ended.

"I wasn't hurt," Jerry insisted later. "Just shocked. When I got up I knew I had to stop fooling around."

He came back to destroy Alexander in the second round, pounding his 205-pound opponent to the floor with a shattering right hand with less than 40 seconds left in the round, then polishing him off with a furious barrage that left Alexander flat on his back.

Under New York rules, a fighter cannot be saved by the bell and referee Arthur Mercante counted to 10, even though the bell rang at the count of six.

But there was no doubt Alexander, idle for 14 months, was finished.

At ringside, Joe Frazier, who will fight Quarry on June 17 in Madison Square Garden, hurried out of the arena while the crowd of 6,111 was still screaming its approval of the wild ring action.

"He almost fouled it up, didn't he?" Frazier said.

In the gleeful and much relieved dressing room, the lovely Charlie, in a form-fitting green halter-type dress, said she had sent a note to Jerry before the bout, warning him that the "ring was slippery. I could see that in the fight just before Jerry was to go on. No, I didn't see the punch he caught. I looked up and there he was, right on his pants, and I thought 'what the hell is he doing?' That's when I started to pray he'd get up."

Now all systems are go for June 17, Quarry gets his 30 per cent of the gross gate of $56,335 for Wednesday's win, his $200,000 pay day in June is safe and wife Charlie can pray again.

Stars Keep Alive In ABA Playoffs

United Press International
 SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — "We're getting healthier with each game," said aging, ailing Utah center Zelmo Beatty after the 10-year pro kept the Stars in the ABA championship playoffs against New York.

Beatty scored all 18 of his points in the second half and Utah guards James Jones and Ron Boone combined for 46 points as the Stars downed the Nets, 97-89, Wednesday night.

The win prevented New York from becoming the first ABA team to sweep a championship playoff but the Nets take a 3-1 lead back to the Nassau County Coliseum Friday night.

"We got blown out in the second game of the playoffs because so many players were injured," said Beatty, who only returned to action Monday after spending two weeks in bed with an infection and fever. "We were almost strong enough to win the third game but we gave out in overtime. By Friday we'll be in better shape still. If we can win in New York, we're going to take game six back here."

Utah quickly built up a 16-point lead in the second quarter but the Nets cut that to 50-42 at halftime as they outscored Utah, 12-4, in the final three minutes. The Nets mounted a furious third quarter attack and led, 76-74, at the start of the final period.

But Boone scored the first three baskets in the fourth quarter and Utah never trailed. Jones led all scorers with 24. Boone had 22 and Willie Wise 19.

Wise limited ABA scoring leader Julius Erving to just 18 points, his lowest output of the series, and he stopped "Dr. J" completely in the final 12 minutes. The entire Nets team managed only 13 points in the last quarter.

Wise said he didn't stop Erving.

"Nobody stops him. All I can do is wave, shout and carry on and hope he'll miss a few."

Newcombe Serve Defeats Okker In WCT

DALLAS (UPI) — John Newcombe has thus far done nothing to disprove that this is going to be his week in the World Championship of Tennis finals.

He has even added a couple of points in his favor.

For one thing Newcombe himself admitted he served about as well as he could Wednesday night while destroying Tom Okker in one of the two opening WCT quarterfinal matches.

And for another thing Newcombe luckily avoided serious injury in the early moments of his match when he twisted an ankle while heading to the net to pick off an easy shot.

"I was just running in for a simple shot and I thought I did something to my ankle," said the top-seeded Australian who took less than an hour and a half to defeat Okker, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

"It really hurt when it first happened but then it cleared up. I think it turned out not to be bad because I wasn't running very hard. If I had been running real fast and done that it might have been very bad."

Something bad happening to Newcombe seemed to be about the only way Okker might have a chance to win.

The Dutchman did not arrive in Dallas until early Wednesday, having played in Toronto Tuesday night, but that long trip, he said, had no effect on him.

"I'm not tired," he said. "I didn't do anything out there against Newcombe. I was just out there picking up the balls."

Newcombe's triumph puts him into the semifinals against defending champion Stan Smith, who took almost three hours to overcome Australia's Rod Laver, 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5.

In tonight's other quarterfinal matches second seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania will play Jan Kodeš of Czechoslovakia and last year's finalist, Arthur Ashe, will contend with 17-year-old Bjorn Borg of Sweden.

The semifinals will be held Friday night with the championship match coming on Sunday afternoon. The winner in that one will take home $50,000.

Newcombe won more than $100,000 on the WCT tour this year and led his nearest rival by 50 points on the performance chart that determined the eight finalists. He showed Wednesday night how he did all that.

"I got a lot of my first serves in," said Newcombe. "I don't think I can serve much better than that."

Okker agreed.

"I just couldn't return his serve," he said. "What could I do? The balls were going too fast for me."

Smith was the slight underdog to Laver, who was trying to win the only major world title that has eluded him.

Bassett Inks Pact To Move Toronto

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Canadian millionaire John Bassett Jr. shelled out $75,000 Wednesday and, with the scratch of his pen, acquired a home for his World Football League team and a lawsuit.

Bassett signed a five-year contract to move his Toronto Northmen (now the Memphis Southern) here and play in 50,000-seat Memphis Memorial Stadium beginning July 10.

That move came only hours after sports promoter Michael Lynn went into Chancery Court to file an 18-page suit charging that the Memphis Park Commission had no right to grant the WFL what he said amounts to "exclusive" use of the stadium.

Lynn, head of a promotion firm which has been seeking a National Football League franchise for this city, said that providing the WFL with "preferential dates" all but shut out any move which the NFL might make toward Memphis.

Chancellor Charles Rond set a hearing for May 16 on the suit.

The NFL recently granted Tampa, Fla., a franchise for $16 million and Memphis was on a list of potential cities for possible further expansion this summer.

"I have no opinion on the suit whatsoever," said Bassett before he turned over a $75,000 "faith money" certified check to the city and signed the lease.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Lonborg On Comeback Road, Two-Hits San Diego Padres As Phillies Win, 4-0

United Press International
 Jim Lonborg has always been a master of the put-on—regardless of his pitching fortunes.

He was that way when he was the American League's Cy Young Award winner with a 229 record for the pennant-winning Boston Red Sox in 1967. He remained that way while he struggled along the comeback trail following a skiing accident in the winter of '67. And he remains that way as he appears to have recaptured his old-time form for the Philadelphia Phillies this season.

"I'm pitching as well as I did in 1967," said the 6-foot-5 Lonborg Wednesday night after pitching a 4-0 two-hit shutout against the San Diego Padres. "In fact, I might be pitching better."

It was Lonborg's first shutout since Oct. 4, 1972 when he was in the AL, his third win in five decisions with the Phillies this year and he couldn't resist throwing a few "curves" at newsmen after the game.

He Credits Carlton

"I give the credit to (teammate) Steve Carlton who taught me positive thinking," confided Lonborg. "He taught me to program myself for each game. I think out every batter I'm going to face before the game. That way, I've already won the game in my mind before I take the mound. If that doesn't give you confidence, what will?"

Los Angeles defeated Montreal, 6-3, Houston scored an 86, 12-inning victory over Pittsburgh, the New York Mets downed San Francisco, 4-2 and St. Louis topped Cincinnati, 2-0, in other National League games. Atlanta at Chicago was rained out.

American League scores were Boston 4-New York 0, Kansas City 4-Texas 2, Oakland 7-Baltimore 3, and Cleveland 3-California 2. Chicago at Detroit and Minnesota at Milwaukee were rained out.

Mike Schmidt drove in the Phils' first run with a single and was on base after another single when Bill Robinson homered in the eighth inning. Lonborg, who had a 13-16 record last season, struck out four and walked two, allowing a second-inning single to John Grubb and a seventh-inning single to Willie McCovey. Randy Jones suffered his sixth loss.

Dodgers 6 Expos 3:

Steve Garvey's two-run double in a four-run first inning and homers by Ron Cey and Jim Wynn were the big blows for the Dodgers, who dealt the Expos their ninth loss in their last 10 games. Andy Messersmith pitched a six-hitter and struck out six in winning his third straight game. Ernie McAnally was charged with his fourth loss in five decisions.

Astros 8 Pirates 6:

Doug Rader's three-run homer off Jim Sadowski with one out in the 12th inning lifted the Astros to their triumph over Dave Parker's solo homer gave the Pirates a 6-5 lead in the top of the inning. Bob Watson led off the Houston 12th with a single. Lee May popped out and Milt May walked before Rader's game-winning blow. Mike Nagy was the winning pitcher.

Giants 4 Pirates 2:

Jon Matlack, emerging rapidly as the star of the Mets' staff, pitched a four-hitter and struck out 12 in raising his record to 4-1 and ending the Giants' four-game winning streak.

Crampton Returns To Defend Crown

HOUSTON (UPI) — Bruce Crampton admittedly is slowing down but he hopes as the Houston Open's defending champion the change will help him repeat as titlist.

"Since I live in (Dallas) Texas," the native Australian said, "I practice in the wind all the time. And when you play in the wind you tend to quicken your swing. Life is so hectic on the tour, too, that I found myself doing everything too quickly."

"So I'm slowing down everything I'm slowing down the way I eat, slowing down when I drive a car, slowing down when I walk the fairways and slowing down the tempo of my swing."

Crampton eased off the No. 1 tee in the $150,000 tournament today in the first round of the four-day event which is missing money and superstars.

The total prize money was cut $55,000 this year because the next PGA tournament, the Colonial in Fort Worth, will be mandatory for PGA golfers. The sponsors of the Houston Open expected a poor showing from the top money winners and they got it.

Staying away from the Quail Valley Golf Club were Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf, Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino and others.

Business-Like Houston Nudges Pittsburgh, 8-6

HOUSTON (UPI) — The difference in the second place Houston Astros and former Astro-non-winners, third baseman Doug Rader says, is their state of mind.

"This is more of a businesslike team rather than an emotional team," Rader said after his 12th-inning home run pulled the Astros from one run back to a 8-6 win Wednesday night.

"Emotional is what we have been in the past. The guys would get upset, ride the crest of elation a few games and then would end up losing nine or 10 and start moaning."

With the last win the Astros won their seventh of the last eight and remain one game behind Los Angeles in the national League West.

Houston ripped Pittsburgh starter Jerry Reuss for five runs in the first two innings on a two-run double by Bob Watson, a two-run homer by rookie Cliff Johnson and Ollie Brown's solo shot in the second.

But then four Pirate relievers combined to stop the Astros until the 12th after the visitors took the lead 6-5 on Dave Parker's one out homer off Mike Nagy.

In Houston's half, Watson led off with a double and after Lee May popped out, Milt May walked. Then Rader ended it with a blast over the left centerfield fence.

Rader said his homer was the biggest he has ever hit considering the circumstances.

"A win for any other ballclub is not as big as one for this ballclub," he said. "This one's a contender, not 15 games out. And on those terms I've never hit a bigger one."

Tickets Still On Sale For Opening Day

Tickets are still on sale from any Optimist Club member for the Optimist Club Opening Day (baseball) ceremonies Saturday.

Warren Spahn, probably the greatest left-handed pitcher in history, and Bob Hayes, starting wide receiver for the Dallas Cowboys and the "World's Fastest Human" will be on hand for the festivities, which begin with an early afternoon Babe Ruth baseball game.

Following the game, a barbecue dinner will be served at 4:30 p.m. Another Babe Ruth game will be played in the evening.

Tickets can be purchased for $2.50. Children six and under and accompanied by a parent will be admitted free.

The $2.50 is for the barbecue part of the ceremonies only. Admittance to the remainder of the program is free, according to Robert Dixon, president of the Babe Ruth baseball program.

Mistakes Destroy Texas, Royals Win

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Ferguson Jenkins never makes very many mistakes but he made a bad one to John Mayberry Wednesday night and the big Kansas City first baseman slammed it into the right field-stands for a two-run homer and a 4-2 Royals victory over the Texas Rangers.

Ferguson threw me a high curve ball and that was a mistake on his part," Mayberry said. "Everybody makes mistakes and he just made one to me."

Mayberry's shot came in the eighth inning and broke a 2-2 tie. It was his fifth homer and sent Jenkins to his second defeat against six victories.

"I wouldn't say I hit the ball real good," Mayberry said. "I was just trying to hit the ball up the middle and score the man from second base. I'm making a lot of mistakes up at the plate, swinging at a lot of bad pitches that I shouldn't be swinging at. But again, it was a mistake. It wasn't one of his best pitches."

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Hilda shows the magical effect when you fall in love at first sight. But such an exhilarating surge of emotion is dangerous. For the other person may not care for you at all. And you may be entirely unsuspected on the 10 basic traits for happy marriage!

CASE A-628: Hilda F., aged 19, is engulfed in a wild infatuation with a boy friend she met only 3 weeks ago.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "this boy seemed to hypnotize me the first moment I looked into his eyes."

"It was at a college party where he had asked me to dance."

"Well, when I heard his voice and he took me in his arms for the dance, I felt as if my knees would collapse."

"Never in my life have I experienced such an exciting, ecstatic emotion."

"It was love at first sight."

"But I wonder if it would last if I were to marry him."

"Isn't love at first sight rather dangerous?"

DANGEROUS LOVE

There are 2 kinds of love that lead to marriage.

One is this madly exhilarating infatuation at first sight and the other is "earned love."

The former may occur between a boy and girl who are totally unsuspected to each other.

In fact, it may be entirely one-sided, for the girl may be swept off her feet, yet the boy may not have any real affection for her at all.

Again, the boy may be the victim of a girl who is merely a gold digger.

Actually, however, all love must be earned.

And the more stable, permanent type of romance develops slowly between 2 congenial people who share many happy dates, picnics, canoe trips, parties and other gala social events together.

"Earned" love for a person of the opposite sex develops much like the child's fondness for hot dogs.

At the outset, there is no natural fondness for hot dogs so a toddler may spit out the first bite when he originally encounters that wiener.

But he later meets the hot dog at picnics, the circus, ball games, and dozens of exciting social events, each delicious and most children prefer it to steak or fried chicken, as you parents can attest.

Similarly, when a congenial couple share dozens of happy experiences together, they ultimately become "triggers" for the sudden release of a flood of happiness whenever they meet.

So they find themselves in an "earned love" romance, which is not likely to end in divorce.

For they learned to adjust during those many previous dates and picnics, church hikes or skating parties, etc.

Love at first sight is a misnomer, for it also developed originally because of our many happy experiences with a favorite uncle or aunt, cousin or other relative who thus really produced the flood of happy emotions that some stranger may now "trigger."

This stranger may merely have a nose or ears or a profile or a voice resembling that of the earlier favorite relative who caused our emotions to become entwined around such a physical attribute.

See tomorrow's case for a classical example of the hazard of love at first sight.

Swiss Steak Strips Satisfy

Quick Swiss Steak Solves Time Dilemma

SWISS STEAK DINNER MENU
 Swiss Steak Strips
 Egg Noodles
 Asparagus with Herbed Butter
 Butterflake Rolls
 Glace Strawberry Pie
 Coffee-Tea-Milk

Warm weather transforms families from indoor hobbyists and handymen to outdoor sportsmen and gardeners. This change of focus from the house to yard cuts down on meal preparation time. Yet indoor exercise brings requests for the hearty fare popular in winter months and produced by the long slow cooking. The time problem can be solved with an updated version of Swiss Steak, an old American favorite. The recipe shortens the cooking time from the usual two hours to 45 minutes, simply by cutting the beef round steak into thin strips. Even though dramatically reduced, this still is enough time to blend the beef with the tomatoes, onion, green pepper, celery and seasonings to produce a truly delicious flavor, characteristic of that popular Swiss Steak. Besides trimming the time it takes to prepare a hearty meal for your family, Swiss Steak Strips will also help you keep within your food budget. Beef round steak is economical since it is primarily good lean meat, with little fat and bone. It is often featured in the food ads and is an especially good buy since all beef is wearing lower price tags this spring. Serve Swiss Steak Strips with egg noodles to fully utilize that wonderful gravy and accompany the entree with other bargains of the season. Asparagus with herbed butter plus hot rolls for hearty appetites will round out the main course. For dessert, top glace strawberry pie with whipped cream to impress your family. You need not tell them it's not difficult to prepare.

Swiss Steak Strips
 2 pounds round steak, cut 1/4 inch thick
 One-third cup flour
 2 teaspoons salt
 3 tablespoons lard or drippings
 1 cup 1/4-inch pieces celery
 1/4 cup water
 1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
 1 large green pepper, cut in thin strips
 1 medium onion, sliced
 1 clove garlic, minced
 1 bay leaf
 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
 Partially freeze round steak; cut into thin strips, 2 to 3 inches long. Combine flour and salt; dredge strips. Brown in lard or drippings in frying pan. Pour off drippings. Add celery and water, cover tightly and cook slowly 15 minutes. Add tomatoes, green pepper, onion, garlic, bay leaf and cayenne pepper, and cook slowly, covered, for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. 6 servings.

Consumer Market Report

COLLEGE STATION — Vegetables are earning consumer attention this week, with abundant supplies of carrots arriving from the Rio Grande Valley, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt. They're at attractive retail price levels, the consumer marketing information specialist. Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, reported. "Asparagus supplies are a little heavier and slightly lower in price, though this vegetable rarely ever gets to the 'bargain' level. 'New crop cabbage, along with that in storage, means good supplies and prices, while celery, mustard greens, collards, dry yellow onions, radishes and green onions are other good choices." Supplies of cantaloupe and watermelon are on the rise, but prices remain at "luxury" levels, the specialist said. Fruits worth considering are oranges, grapefruit, apples, bananas, strawberries and pineapples, she added. Turning to eggs, Mrs. Clyatt termed the market "unsettled," with all but small-sized eggs in good supply. Even at $1 per dozen, large eggs are only 67 cents a pound, she noted, explaining that translates into "economical nutrition." "Beef values include ground beef, round steaks and roasts, chuck roasts and steaks, and beef liver. Pork prices remain about the same, with values generally on shoulder roasts and steaks, end-cut loin roasts, ham portions and picnics." Fryer chickens continue a good choice, price-wise, and frozen-turkey prices make those birds one of the better high-protein values, the specialist said. CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: Often the protein in lean meat costs more than the same amount of protein in regular ground beef. Ask your grocer the percentages of lean in the three types of ground beef. Ask your grocer the percentages of lean in the three types of ground beef at his store. Divide this percentage into per-pound cost of the meat — if regular ground beef has 75 percent lean and costs $1.05 per pound, the lean costs $1.40 per pound ($1.05 was divided by 75 percent — or 75).

Tweed, a basically twill weave wool cloth, derives its name from the old Scottish term for twill, which was "tweel."

Making Dewberry, Blackberry Jelly

COLLEGE STATION — Jelly from some of spring's earliest fruits — dewberries and blackberries — is an all-time Texas favorite, according to one nutritionist. She's Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "If you can buy these berries at a reasonably low price — or have them growing in a garden, turn them into homemade jelly," she suggested. "It's a treat for your family — and friends love it as a gift." To successfully prepare jelly at home, the specialist gave the following instructions: After sorting three quarts of dewberries or blackberries, wash them and remove any stems or caps. Expect about four cups of juice from three quarts of berries. Very ripe berries can be crushed and juice pressed out without heating.

Otherwise, add a small amount of water and bring to a boil on high heat. Place prepared fruit in a clean, white cloth bag — then twist and press to remove juice. Pour four cups of juice in a large pan. Add seven and one-half cups sugar and place on high heat. Stirring constantly, bring quickly to a full, rolling boil that cannot be stirred down. Add one bottle liquid pectin and return to a full, rolling boil. Boil hard for one minute. Remove from heat and skim off foam quickly. Pour jelly immediately into hot, dry, sterilized jars or glasses. (Sterilize jars and glasses by boiling them in water for 15 minutes.) Fill containers to within eighth inch of top. Seal immediately with a lid, according to manufacturer's directions. Or, fill glasses to within one-half inch of top and cover with melted paraffin. Add enough paraffin to make a layer one-eighth inch thick. Price air bubbles. This recipe makes 11 to 12 six-ounce jars or jelly, she added.
