Brown Era Tales, Anecdotes Told At Auditorium Luncheon

By TEX DEWEESE

The longtime friend and associate of the late M.K. Brown—the man who fulfilled the philanthropist's wishes for a civic auditorium in Pampa, —regaled an overflow Chamber of Commerce luncheon audience yesterday with stories and anecdotes of the Brown era in Pampa and the Texas Panhandle.

He was William Jarrell Smith, secretary-treasurer of the M.K. Brown Foundation, featured speaker at the first public function in the Heritage Room of the new auditorium building. Smith ran the gamut of Mr. Brown's philosophy and summed it up by saying:

"He wanted to be involved in things and see them move... And move they did."

He touched briefly on the activities of Mr. Brown from the time he came to Pampa in 1928 and the financial acumen that gave him the wealth he always planned to give back to Pampa and Texas.

Smith also spoke briefly on the operations of the Brown Foundation and the Gray-Pampa Foundation. He is secretary-treasurer of both foundations.

The luncheon speaker was introduced by Roy C. Sparkman, chamber president, who opened the luncheon program with a reference to the auditorium which was dedicated yesterday.

"We have been given a golden nugget and we must now make it work and turn Pampa into a Texas Panhandle convention center."

A number of dignitaries and special guests were introduced, including E.L. Green, Jr., chairman of the Auditorium Executive Committee, whom Sparkman described as "the man who got the show on the road."

Other special guests yesterday were Frank H. Wardlaw, Sunday's dedicatory speaker, and Mrs. Wardlaw. Mayor and Mrs. Milo Carlson, City Manager and Mrs. Mack Wofford and an acknowledgement was given to members of the city commission.

Also introduced were Cabot Corp. officials visiting in the city including three from Boston: Robert Charpie, corporation president; Ralph Seferin, manager of corporate planning; Alex Farrell, controller; and Bill Manley, group vice president of the engineer products division, and George Stewart, vice president and manager of the sellite division, both of Kokomo, Ind.; Mrs. Mary Burdette, widow of the late Hugh Burdette and city commissioner in the early days of planning for the auditorium, and Aubrey Steele, chairman of the Gray-Pampa.

Also introduced were Victor P. Raymond, the new manager of Cabot's Machinery Division in Pampa.

Special Top O' Texan Awards were given to Charpie and Mr. and Mrs. Wardlaw.

Luncheon entertainment was furnished by Richard Hill, vocalist, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Sue Higdon.

Presented by the United States Chamber of Commerce, the slides stressed the need of citizens to become active participants in the political activity of their communities, states and the nation.

It particularly mentioned the urgency of citizens becoming active in these times of stress if the American political system is to be maintained.

25 Sign Up For Course Sponsored By C-C Unit

After a breakfast meeting this morning at Coronado Inn, 25 persons have signed up for the first non-partisan Action Course in Practical Politics.

Sponsored by the Legislative and National Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, the course will begin at 8:30 a.m. May 9 with a breakfast at Coronado Inn in the Starlight Room.

Other courses may be started later if there is sufficient interest. Don Lane, committee chairman and instructor for the first course, said.

The only cost for the course is $5 for a series of pamphlets used in the instruction.

Persons interested in future courses may contact the Chamber office at 689-3241.

The purpose of the course is to help individual citizens, including men, women and youth, to become more aware of the political process in the United States and to become more effective in politics.

"Politicians listen to people who help them to get elected," Lane said at the meeting this morning.

He said the course will not make the class members experts or get them elected to office, but will help them to be more aware. Lane also noted that the course will not deal with governmental issues or become a political organization.

The course will consist of seven sessions of approximately two hours each. Six of the sessions will be class instruction.

The last session will probably consist of a meeting with various selected candidates sometime this coming fall.

Topics of the six lessons are "You and the Political Organization," "The Political Precinct," "The Political Campaign," "Political Crisis," "The Political Leader's Problems" and "Political Meetings."

As an introduction to the course, a 20-minute colored slide presentation, entitled "It's Up to You in '72," was shown this morning.

Presented by the United States Chamber of Commerce, the slides stressed the need of citizens to become active participants in the political activity of their communities, states and the nation.

It particularly mentioned the urgency of citizens becoming active in these times of stress if the American political system is to be maintained.

10 U.S. Legislators, Top Officials Found Making Free Use Of Firm-Owned Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson recently accepted a free ride to Chicago aboard a jet owned by Standard Oil of Indiana.

But an aide said it was the only time since taking office in February that the secretary has ridden on a corporate plane.

Undersecretary of Interior William T. Pecora is another high administration official who recently took a free ride on a company jet, traveling to South Dakota and back courtesy of Northern Natural Gas of Omaha, Neb.

But Pecora, too, insisted it was the only time he has ever accepted such a favor.

The question of corporations making their private airplanes available for government officials was raised last month by lobbyist Dita Beard of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. Mrs. Beard, a key figure in the Senate's investigation of ITT's relations with the Republican administration, said some members of Congress made liberal use of the company's jet fleet.

Singled out by name was Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind. The senator, said Mrs. Beard, considered ITT "a sort of personal taxicab company."

To find out how much use is made of company jets by officials, the Associated Press staked out the general-aviation terminal at Washington's National Airport for five days.

In addition to Peterson and Pecora, six senators and two members of the House were seen departing or returning to Washington aboard corporation-owned jets.

They were Sens. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga.; Milton Young, R-N.D.; Lawton Chiles, D-Fla.; William Spong, D-Va.; Harry F. Byrd, a Virginia independent, and Peter Dominick, R-Colo., and Reps. Dan Daniels, D-Va., and Rep. John S. Monagan, D-Conn.

An investigation of the individuals and companies involved, did not turn up any evidence of outright conflict of interest, although in almost every case there were strong common ties.

Most of those spotted at the airport indicated they saw nothing wrong with accepting the favors, but some did, including Pecora and the lobbyist who ferried the undersecretary and Sen. Young halfway across the continent and back.

Asked if his company made a practice of offering transportation to members of Congress and government officials, Lynn Mote, head of government relations for Northern Gas, replied:

"No, no. Because of the implication put on it. We don't do it

Price Denies He Receives ITT Donations

Rep. Bob Price denied Monday that he has ever received any campaign contributions or gifts or any other favors from International Telephone and Telegraph.

The allegations arose over a bill Price introduced on Feb. 9, 1971, which would have allowed ITT to delay action on a federal anti-trust suit.

ITT has been charged with contributing $400,000 or more to pay the cost of the 1972 Republican national convention in San Diego. During testimony before a Senate committee, the charge has not been proven.

Price's bill would have called for the Senate, House and President to name eight members each to a commission to study the current anti-trust laws and to consider revisions.

Similar bills have been introduced several other times, by Price and others.

In his speech before the House, Price said the government laws on anti-trust seemed to be leveled at bigness in itself. He noted that the laws, which haven't been changed in 20 years, need to be brought up to modern times.

Price said he knew the bill would benefit ITT but that he didn't introduce it for that reason.

He also said he had never talked to anyone connected with ITT, especially in relation to his bill.

He added that he had not received any form of contributions from ITT or taken any gift or even accepted a ride on a bus, car or plane of ITT.

In a front page story Monday the Washington Evening Star mentioned that Price had named ITT in his speech as a reason for introducing the bill.

Youth Given 5-Year Probated Sentence

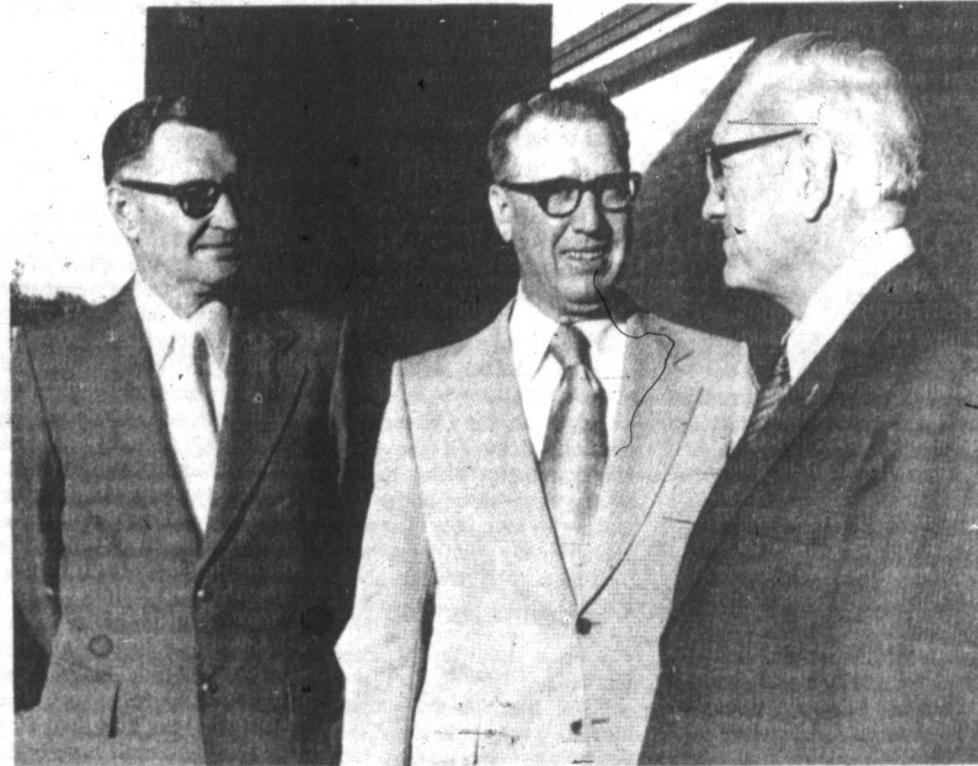

A 31st District Court jury, Monday, found Michael Dean Heiskell, 19, guilty of the burglary of a Pampa drug store. He was assessed a five year probated sentence.

According to the testimony before Judge Grainger McElhenny and the jury, the pharmacy was entered by a burglar apparently seeking drugs. However, the act of burglary was the subject of yesterday's court action, according to the records of the clerk.

Two-State Voters Go To Polls

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

A key campaign double header opened today as Democrats in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts marked ballots that will confirm or belie the optimism of the three major contenders. Sens. George S. McGovern, Hubert H. Humphrey and Edmund S. Muskie.

Early voter turnout in both states was light.

McGovern and Humphrey both predicted the day would end with victories, while Muskie, his early strength a fading memory, battled on both fronts to remain in contention for the White House nomination. The dual primaries open an intensive month of Democratic voting.

In Pennsylvania, about 40 per cent of the 2.8 million registered voters were expected to cast ballots.

Bright, sunny skies were reported across Massachusetts. The state election department has estimated a record 30 per cent of the eligible voters will turn out.

Muskie put his campaign emphasis on Pennsylvania and said in Pittsburgh he was "reasonably confident." Humphrey said he expected to win and begin "the long victory trail to the White House."

McGovern, far ahead in the polls in Massachusetts, said he expected to score "a clean sweep there," and ventured south Monday to hunt votes in Pennsylvania, too.

The voting began at 7 a.m. EST in Pennsylvania and some Massachusetts communities. Polls were to close at 8 p.m. EST in both states.

In Pennsylvania, Humphrey of Minnesota, Muskie, McGovern of South Dakota, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama were on the presidential preference ballot. That contest is not binding on the 182-vote delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

Pennsylvania Democrats were choosing 137 of the delegates in the primary. Humphrey said he expected to win more of them than any other candidate. Muskie was banking on the support of Gov. Milton J. Shapp and Democratic leaders signed on in his frontrunning days to buoy his delegate showing.

The long and complex Massachusetts ballot listed 12 names in a presidential preference poll. There are 102 delegates at stake there, 20 to the statewide winner, the rest apportioned among the 12 congressional districts. Only McGovern and Muskie were running full delegate slates. The Muskie slate is headed by Boston Mayor Kevin H. White and boasts a lineup of party office holders and leaders.

President Nixon is sure to win the Republican primary in Massachusetts, where Reps. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio and Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California remained on the ballot. McCloskey endorsed McGovern in the Democratic primary, and said that even though he had quit the campaign he hoped for some Republican votes to protest the renewed bombing of North Vietnam.

Plans were discussed for special public recognition of the dedication program committee.

Bids were opened for the purchase of gasoline and oil supplies, city jail prisoner meals and the purchase of water meters. Contract awards will be made at the next regular meeting.

A recommended change order in water treatment plant construction was approved. The change will cost the city $2,935.

Final payment of $10,000 on the contract for removal of the surplus water tank adjacent to Central Fire Station was approved.

An ordinance was passed on final reading for the improvement of N. Sumner St. between Coronado Dr. and Kentucky St.

Satisfactory progress was reported on the removal of old buildings at 416-420 N. West St. and 309 W. Tuke.

Smith Says He Is Worth $1 Million
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith said today he is worth over $1 million.

A financial statement filed with Secretary of State Bob Bullock showed Smith's total assets at $1,128,201 and liabilities of $120,495 for a net worth of $1,007,706.

The governor's listed assets include $223,187 in stocks and bonds and more than $400,000 in real estate.

Smith makes $58,500 a year as governor.

TAR Head Calls On Realtors Here To Fight For Existence

By TEX DEWEESE

Declaring that he saw no apparent end to attempts by do-gooders and socialists to do away with free enterprise and individual initiative, Lester C. Weatherby of Fort Worth, president of the Texas Association of Realtors, told a joint meeting of Pampa and Borger Boards of Realtors here last night they must band together in a bitter struggle for survival.

Speaking to his audience of real estate brokers and sales people in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room East, Weatherby said:

"The enemies of free enterprise will never let up—at least not in the foreseeable future—and we will still have to fight for our very existence."

He asked his listeners to support the Texas Real Estate Political Affairs Committee, explaining its purpose is to maintain a Washington staff to support legislation helpful to realtors, but more importantly, he said, to preserve the rights of property ownership.

Weatherby lambasted the increase in the long term capital gains tax from 25 per cent to 35 per cent which became effective Jan. 1 this year.

"The worst part of this is that once a trend in taxation is started there is no way of knowing where it will stop," he said.

"If we cannot convince our congressmen this is unfair, then maybe we should expend our talents and our money to elect some who will treat us fairly. Some of the laws they pass are intolerable. It is time to stop turning the other cheek."

The state realtors' president protested the ever-growing welfare state.

"I say it is morally and constitutionally wrong to benefit the public at large at the expense of a few prudent and hard-working citizens," he said.

"The cost of public policy should be spread through all the public. Careful and fair planning should be applauded, but pell mell and huge give-away programs designed more to buy votes than to help needy people should be drastically curtailed."

"Too much welfare robs a man of his self respect, and I think able-bodied men should work for their own and their family's living—because honest work begets pride and personal satisfaction."

Weatherby concluded his remarks on the welfare state by adding:

"This pride and personal satisfaction begets good citizenship. We need more of both in this nation and our congressmen would do well not to use so much of our money with which to buy votes in the name of welfare."

He said Americans should adhere as much as possible to time-honored traditions espoused by their forefathers whose doctrines caused the country to develop a system that produces the greatest amount of necessities and luxuries for its citizens that the world has ever seen.

"We live in a nation," he added, "that contains 6 per cent of the earth's land, about 5 per cent of its population—yet we produce more than 50 per cent of the earth's wealth."

"I don't think you should tamper with that kind of a track record. We have benefitted by and enjoyed the fruits of this unique and efficient system."

"We must therefore bear our portion of the load in preserving this concept of economics for ourselves and our posterity."

Weatherby was introduced to the banquet audience by Quentin Williams, a member of the TAR's state board.

Verl Hagaman, president of the Pampa Realtors, presided at the meeting and members of the Borger delegation were introduced by Carl E. Young, president of the Borger board.

Guests also were present from Clarendon, White Deer and Panhandle.

State Court Rejects Suit By Candidate

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today rejected an attempt by a Democratic gubernatorial candidate to remove his opponents from the party primary ballot because of a legal technicality.

Without writing an opinion, the court refused to consider the suit by Robert Looney of Austin.

Looney had sought a writ of mandamus commanding Democratic Party officials to remove 24 names from the primary ballot, including Gov. Preston Smith, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, Rep. Frances Farenthold and Dolph Briscoe, the major candidates for governor.

He called that the notaries public who took the candidates' oaths, Jo Ann Pool and Ana Lee Lofley, were not legally qualified as notaries. Looney said they posted their bonds and took their oaths before they actually were appointed by Secretary of State Bob Bullock.

Mrs. Pool is secretary of the State Democratic Executive Committee headquarters here. Mrs. Lofley worked in SDEC headquarters briefly last year during preparations for a Democratic fund-raising dinner.

City Commissioners Asked To Settle Arena Disputes

City commissioners were asked today to settle a controversy between the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association and representatives of the Pampa Roping Club and the Leather and Lace Club over charges for the use of the rodeo arena at Recreation Park.

Kenneth Ray, president of the Roping Club and Judy Morris, president of the Leather and Lace Club, appeared before the commission today and stated the Rodeo Association charge of $10 for each use of the facility was a price the two non-profit clubs could not afford.

Commissioners agreed to study the matter and try to come up with a solution to the problem.

In other business at their semi-monthly meeting in City Hall this forenoon the commissioners decided to hold study sessions on the operating rules and regulations for use of the new M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium.

City Manager Mack Wofford said many problems were arising that need to be resolved by the city commission. He added that a temporary schedule of charges for rentals of various auditorium facilities is being used until the commission comes up with its established rates.

A motion was approved commending city employees involved in the successful opening of the auditorium last Sunday.

Plans were discussed for special public recognition of the dedication program committee.

Bids were opened for the purchase of gasoline and oil supplies, city jail prisoner meals and the purchase of water meters. Contract awards will be made at the next regular meeting.

A recommended change order in water treatment plant construction was approved. The change will cost the city $2,935.

Final payment of $10,000 on the contract for removal of the surplus water tank adjacent to Central Fire Station was approved.

An ordinance was passed on final reading for the improvement of N. Sumner St. between Coronado Dr. and Kentucky St.

Candidates' Reports On Finance Draw Interest In Texas Political Campaign

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Money—that elusive green stuff that political campaigns never seem to have enough of—has caught the spotlight in the political races as candidates begin to report their finances and contributions.

Campaign donations and expenses must be postmarked no later than Friday midnight under state law.

Sen. John Tower and a Democratic challenger, former Sen. Ralph Yarborough reported recent contributions to their campaigns as required by a new federal law.

Rep. Frances Parnell, filed what she termed the only complete financial statement of the leading Democratic gubernatorial candidates.

Her financial statement shows assets estimated to be worth $171,796, including $100,000 worth of jewelry her husband brought from Belgium.

Her liabilities are listed as $67,585, for a net worth of $104,211. In 1971 she reported her adjusted gross income as $28,149 in 1971.

The Texans for Tower state committee said Tower has received $386,700 in donations from 8,014 persons—5,141 of whom are giving for the first time to a major Texas Republican.

Yarborough listed $15,015 in campaign contributions, $11,614 in paid expenses and debts of $36,034.

Mrs. Farenthold called for comparison of her statement and the financial statements of her opponents.

She said Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes' statement lacked "complete facts" and failed to include his income tax return—the heart of a financial disclosure statement.

She said Dolph Briscoe's financial statement is "little more than a joke" and "is lacking in hard facts."

All Democratic and Republican gubernatorial candidates except for Gov. Preston Smith have agreed to appear Wednesday night on a Dallas educational television station KERA-TV.

The program, which takes the format of interviews rather than a debate, will be broadcast direct in Dallas and Houston and in some other cities via cable.

Smith's headquarters said he could not appear because of prior commitments.

Gov. Smith told a Victoria reception, "One of the most amazing things about having served as governor is the fact that we've been able to accomplish so many great things with so few people knowing about them... because of a lack of publicity."

Briscoe told an El Paso luncheon Barnes is part of a political machine that "operates like a band of pirates." But he said the machine is falling apart at the seams and "it is too late for the professional politicians to patch up the hog air balloon."

Briscoe's Austin headquarters said 14 daily and 29 weekly newspapers have endorsed Briscoe for governor.

Barnes, in San Antonio Monday, blamed the legislature for much of what he said is going on in the University of Texas system. He pinpointed his opposition of the legislature's setting of faculty teaching loads.

He said he would recommend the legislature not set the teaching load. Barnes also scolded the legislature for not providing funds for pay increases, which has hurt in faculty recruiting at universities, he said.

In the Republican governor's race, Tom McElroy reminded voters "Dallas had not had a governor in this century, and Texas has not had a Republican governor since Reconstruction—so, May 6 is a rare opportunity to write two new chapters in Texas political history."

He said the Dallas vote should decide the outcome of the Republican governor's race.

At Fay criticized Smith and Barnes. He said in Amarillo that Smith signed bills levying more than $1 billion in new taxes during his first two terms, and "in 1969 he told a reporter for your newspaper that he favored across-the-board sales tax, which means a tax on food and medicine."

"Let's not forget, however, that he had help from Ben Barnes, who presided over the Senate as lieutenant governor while these tax bills, including the grocery tax bill, were being passed," Fay added.

Sen. Henry Grover, another GOP gubernatorial candidate, said, "I have repeatedly said that the governor's office is not the place for 'on the job training'—that this time the Republican candidate must know state government and how it works in order to have a chance in November."

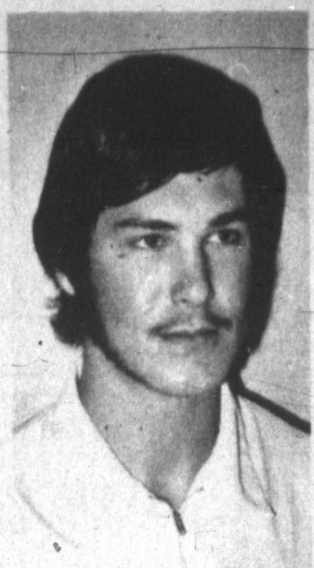

Dave Reagan, also a Republican running for governor, announced editorial endorsements from the Dallas Times Herald and the Dallas Morning News—which also recommended McElroy and Fay, stating it would be "more specific" in a runoff.

In the Democratic race for lieutenant governor, Sen. Ralph Hall took a flying tour of West Central Texas and said the job he seeks needs "bold leadership, not just a profile."

Bill Jones advised President Nixon and U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally to stay in Washington, rather than visiting Texas before the May 6 primary elections.

In the Democratic attorney general's race, John Hill challenged a "truth report" Crawford Martin has removed the issues in this race because he admits that 95 per cent of the complaints about his administration are true," Hill said.

Martin's campaign office mentioned he had been endorsed for re-election Sunday by the Dallas Morning News, Dallas Times Herald and the El Paso Times. A release from the attorney general's office said Martin was in El Paso Monday in connection with a $1 million to $4 million air pollution lawsuit against American Smelting and Refining Co.

Two Pampa High ICT Students Take Part In State Contests

Two local students in the Industrial Cooperative Training program at Pampa High School placed in state contests in Dallas over the weekend.

Pam McClelland, who works under the program at Highland General Hospital, placed second in the X-ray section.

Rod Warford, a laboratory technician at Worley Hospital, gained fourth place in the lab technician division.

Seven local students were among the 3,500 students who attended the state convention of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America.

The students had entered local and district competition before attending the state contests. The tests involved strictly technical information.

The students are involved in study at the school, but most of the work is done on the job.

Phil Earhart, instructor for the ICT program at PHS, said most of the credit went to the employers, who provided the on-the-job training, and to the individuals.

He also thanked those who donated to drawing for a bicycle, given away last week, and helped to obtain funds for those making the trip.

Kindergarten Class Meeting Set Tomorrow

A meeting for parents of children who will be eligible for the Pampa Public Schools kindergarten will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Carver Center, according to Dr. James Malone, school superintendent.

Jerry Cronister, elementary school curriculum coordinator will explain the program, which is for five-year-olds who are educationally handicapped.

Pampa schools have four kindergarten classes this year—two at Baker School and two at Lamar School. Enrollment for next year will be May 1.

'Witness' Leader Here For Assembly

Robert A. McCarroll, circuit supervisor for the 22 congregation area of Jehovah's Witnesses, accompanied by his wife, arrived Monday to take charge of plans for the circuit assembly here May 5-7.

"Conscious of Our Spiritual Needs" is the theme of the assembly expected to attract 1,200 to 1,400 delegates. Kay Fancher, convention committee chairman for the Chamber of Commerce, sees it as possibly Pampa's largest convention to date.

McCarroll, a 32-year veteran of Jehovah's Witnesses ministry, has spent the last 12 years in circuit supervision. The forthcoming assembly will be the twenty third of this type he has arranged and directed.

In addition he will appear each day of the convalesce as a featured speaker.

He will speak to the local congregation for the first time tonight following a ministry training school to start at 7:30. He will also discourse Saturday as a part of a program beginning at 8 p.m. In addition to his address, "New Things Learned" will be an audience-participation period devoted to Bible questions.

At 10 a.m. Sunday, McCarroll will present 80 colored slides and a narration entitled "A Close Look at the Churches." Seldom photographed scenes around the world are to be included.

"I believe," the visiting minister said, "this slide presentation will be of benefit to all Bible students regardless of their religious affiliation."

This program is free to all persons interested in it and in Jehovah's Witnesses. Kingdom Hall is located at 1701 Coffee St.

"This pre-assembly week is being anticipated by the local congregation as one of bustling activity and spiritual benefit," was the opinion of Lyman H. Pinard, local presiding minister.

EVEN HONEY GOES UP
FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—There is a critical shortage of honey in the world despite all the bustling of all the bees, says Edward Burleson of Waxahachie.

Addressing the Texas Beekeepers Association, Burleson said the cost of honey almost doubled in 1971.

"We have a world shortage of honey because of weather and plant conditions," Burleson said.

Man Treated For Injuries From Fight

A Pampa man was treated at Highland General Hospital last night for injuries received in an altercation at his home, according to the police report.

A Pampa police officer broke up a fight earlier at a local restaurant between the man, another man and a woman companion. The trio then left together.

The same officer recognized the man earlier involved in the fight at the cafe when he was called to Highland General Hospital. The victim's wife said the woman came to their home and stood in the yard cursing.

The sequence of events is vague from that point but the report told of someone going for aid. When they returned they found the victim bleeding and two guns, a rifle and a shotgun with broken stocks in the yard. The man was taken to the hospital for treatment.

No charges have been filed as yet in the affair.

PPROA Sets Annual Meet

The forty second annual meeting of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association is set for Wednesday and Thursday at the Quality Motel, Amarillo.

Registration begins at 10 a.m. Wednesday conducted by the Amarillo Desk and Derrick Club. Highlights of Wednesday's activities will be a directors meeting at 11 a.m.; a golf tournament at Tascosa Country Club and the President's reception and buffet starting at 6:30 p.m. at the Amarillo Club.

Transportation will be provided between meeting headquarters and the club.

Principle speakers Thursday will be Federal power commissioner Rush Moody Jr. at the 12:15 luncheon and Byron Tunnell, chairman, Railroad Commission of Texas, Austin.

There will be three morning speakers and three during the afternoon Thursday.

Climax of the meeting will be the annual banquet with Tunnell the featured speaker.

Boy, 7, Suffers Minor Injuries

Clinton Lawyer, 7, 1105 Jupiter, suffered minor injuries when he fell into the orchestra pit of the new M.K. Brown Auditorium about 3 p.m. Monday.

It was thought he suffered a broken knee cap but a Metropolitan ambulance took him to Highland General Hospital where he was treated for a sprained ankle and released.

Police Receive Bank Alarm Call

Pampa police officers converged on Citizens Bank at 4:51 this morning after the alarm went off at the station.

According to their report of the incident almost an hour passed before they were able to gain admittance to the building but nothing was found amiss once they were able to make their search.

Connally Probably Will Not Return To Campaign Before Texas Primary

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally says he probably won't return to campaign in Texas before the May 6 primary, despite recent hints to the contrary.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, a close Connally ally is fighting his political future in a race for governor.

In San Angelo, Tex., recently, Connally said the governor's race is "very confused, the people are confused."

He said the Sharpstown State Bank scandals and their effect on state government have affected the race.

"I think the atmosphere in Texas is bad. I don't know if I can do anything about it but if I can, I will," the former three-term Democratic governor said.

At a more recent luncheon interview with a panel of Associated Press reporters, however, Connally indicated he'd changed his mind.

"No, I don't have any plans to go back down there," he said. "I made a few remarks like that... that might lead someone to believe that I might be back down there but... I probably won't."

In his San Angelo conversation, Connally called on Texans to be discriminating in their analysis of the stock fraud scandals and the placing of blame.

"It is an easy thing... to fall into the trap of condemning people of guilt by association," Connally said. "It is a dangerous thing to do, for this state and this nation."

Gov. Preston Smith, who is seeking re-election, and House Speaker Gus Mutscher were among the statehouse politicians linked to the stock scandal by buying unsecured shares in enterprises owned by Houston banker Frank W. Sharp.

Mutscher has been convicted of conspiracy to accept a bribe. Barnes has insisted he had no role in the scandal.

Asked if he was referring to Barnes when he advised voters to "not attempt to tar everybody in Austin with the same brush," Connally said, "Not necessarily... No."

He said that "because of their general interest there in San Angelo they immediately assumed and interpreted 'his remarks as meaning that I was commenting on his particular race but I wasn't."

Connally said he thinks it is wrong for politicians or others to attempt to sow distrust in the minds of people about the institution of government.

"Men who hold public office and politicians in an election year themselves owe a high sense of responsibility, it seems to me, to be discriminating in their comments and particularly in their criticisms and that they ought not to try to cast reflections on the institution of government," Connally said.

He said a banker occasionally embezzles a bank and a preacher may run off with the money in the till but that's no reason to destroy banking institution or disavow all religious beliefs.

"And occasionally you get a corrupt politician—at all levels of government: state, local and national—but that's no sign you ought to destroy the democratic institutions of this country," Connally said.

Injured Pampa Woman Reported In Fair Condition

Mrs. Cecil Jameson, 435 N. Starkweather, is reported in satisfactory condition today at St. Anthony's Hospital, Amarillo where she had been taken following an auto accident eight miles east of Pampa.

Mrs. Jameson suffered neck and rib injuries when her car left the road about 5 p.m. Saturday.

States Urged To Drop Chest
X-Ray Vans

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government wants states to take their chest X-ray vans off the roads because it says the risk of overexposure to the radiation is greater than the benefits of finding a few cases of tuberculosis.

Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said in a statement Monday. "The use of mobile equipment, which produces relatively higher levels of X-ray exposure than fixed equipment, simply cannot be justified."

The Food and Drug Administration, which prepared the policy statement, said fewer than 28 states still use the mobile X-ray vans.

The government said the number of new TB cases in the United States dropped from about 29,000 in 1948 to 39,000 in 1969, and mass screening programs for active tuberculosis in 1969 found that 1.20 of 1 per cent of those tested.

Dear Abby Will Appear On NBC-TV Wednesday

Abigail Van Buren, Dear Abby of the famed syndicated newspaper advice column, which appears daily in The Pampa News, will surprise her readers Wednesday when she guests on "Dinah's Place," on NBC-TV, by revealing she is a top-notch torch singer.

Dinah Shore introduces her guest as PoPo Phillips and Dear Abby belts out "I Don't Know Why I Love You Like I Do," and then walks into the kitchen to mix a diet drink while wearing an original Norell evening gown.

Naturally, she sang a few bars of "I'm Going to Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter." In fact, she reveals she receives between 18,000 and 20,000 letters each week and that all are carefully read by a staff of experts.

"The best ones I can't print," she admits, adding one day she plans to put them in a book called "Not Fit to Print."

In a face-to-face question and answer period with the studio audience, Dear Abby's ability for quick repartee was shown. For example, one woman asks: "Is the pill deductible from your income tax?" Dear Abby answers: "Only if it doesn't work."

Another question: "Do you think a 24-year-old bride has to keep a kosher kitchen for her husband?" Answer: "Only if he is Jewish."

Reflections on Infinity:
Pioneer 10's Mission

By IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK—(NEA)—On Dec. 3, a spacecraft with an implausible mission will slingshot off Jupiter and begin what might be a never-ending trip through space.

Pioneer 10 will carom off Jupiter at 9:25 a.m. EST, according to Cape Kennedy headquarters. When in another 90 years the spacecraft leaves our solar system, it will be the first man-made object to do so. That's all we know for sure.

Scientists, with all their immense technology, must sit with fingers crossed for the next 80,000 years at least before they know whether Pioneer 10 is a success. The spacecraft bears a message which will inform any intelligent life—if any exists in some distant solar system—that we are here. Are you there?

Perhaps we will never hear from Pioneer 10 again. But I will never forget it.

On the evening of Thursday, March 4, I happened upon a quiet crowd along the ocean at Vero Beach, Fla. I felt a sudden awful chill of dread in my spine. I had once seen just such a crowd when a body washed ashore.

I now came closer. Lights from the beachfront Holiday Inn and the Ocean Grill Restaurant created eerie shadows of the people standing on the white sand.

Other men and women sat in automobiles, while more stood on the little weathered boardwalk. The night was clear and warm. All the stars were out. The sequined waves slithered in and burst with a foamy hiss on the beach. There must have been a storm at sea, because every few minutes a clap of thunder was heard in the distance and jagged lightning lit up maroon clouds.

"What's going on?" I asked.

"Pioneer 10," said an elderly lady on the boardwalk. "The satellite. It's supposed to go off in 10 minutes. At 8:25. We can see it from here. Didn't you read about it in the papers?"

The satellite was to be shot from Cape Kennedy, some 60 miles up from Vero Beach. Pioneer 10 would carry a message in the form of a gold-coated aluminum plate. The message was in symbols and supposedly decipherable by any scientist regardless of his place in time and history. The satellite was equipped with radio antennae for sending back messages.

"It's traveling to infinity," the lady said. "Isn't that a terrible thing to think about? Infinity?"

She looked out at the stars. She said she hasn't been in favor of the space program, spending all those billions of dollars when people on earth, people right here in the United States are starving. "But trying to communicate with some other civilization," she said, "well, isn't that fantastic? Even if scientists say the chances are very slim."

Even though, I asked, there will not be a word from outer space until at least the year A.D. 81972? "Waiting. At 8:25, nothing. 8:30, nothing. 8:35, nothing. 'I think it's called off again, fourth straight night,'" said a man, excitedly, who had just come from a car radio. "I keep getting a Spanish station, and it's kinda hard to make out."

A few people began to leave. Most stayed. 8:40, 8:45, 8:50.

"There it is!" someone shouted. "Isn't it beautiful?" A red ball began to rise slowly from far off. The ball slipped through a palm tree, rose, was briefly lost behind an unseen black cloud, poked out again and rose higher. Now it sailed through the bowl of the Big Dipper. In 50 years it would leave our solar system, then travel through the thick-as-gauze Milky Way galaxy. It

Heart Disease Is a Young Men's Killer

By DAVID HENDIN
NEA Science Editor
NEW YORK — (NEA)
He died of a heart attack.
"But he was so young."

Those five words are being used more often these days in relation to death from heart attack and related heart disease. And spoken tersely, with pity and with fear, they tell the tale of the rapidly increasing incidence of heart disease among young men, and in fact all persons, in the United States and other "developed" countries today.

Among 25- to 44-year-old men the death rate from heart attacks rose 14 per cent, from 45.7 to 52 per 100,000 between 1950 and 1967, the last year for which such statistics are available. During the same period the heart attack death rate for all men also rose.

Why are we faced with an epidemic of heart disease today, especially among younger men?

There is no single answer; there are many answers, and many are yet to be learned by the scientists who even at this moment are seeking to unravel the tangle of thousands of pieces of data, to relate seemingly unrelated bits of information and to gather more.

Although finding a cure for heart disease is important, it plays second fiddle to the severe need for the enactment of preventive measures.

"A large number of the people who die of heart disease have no previous medical findings and feel perfectly normal. Their first symptom is sudden death from a heart attack," explains Dr. Lawrence E.

Lamb, one of the world's foremost heart specialists and a nationally distributed medical columnist.

"It is so important to have a preventive program. You can't wait for the first symptom then treat it if the first symptom is death," he says.

Chest pains and other symptoms of heart attack, called a myocardial infarction by scientists, were not accurately identified until about 1900 when two German physicians found a relationship between the illness and changes in a patient's heart.

In 1912, when a previously healthy 55-year-old man suffered a heart attack, Dr. James B. Herrick became the first American physician to actually describe the events of heart attack.

"Although considered a medical rarity in 1912, this is now a common end to the American executive's career. In little more than 50 years the rare disease has become first commonplace and finally the expected," Dr. Lamb writes in his book, "Your Heart and How to Live With It."

He adds that the striking increase in heart disease represents a real increase. It is not simply that the disease existed early in the century and was not diagnosed until recently.

"This is a new health problem associated with our time. It has not cropped up because we have conquered all other diseases and this is one of the only ones left. Heart disease strikes too many young people in the prime of life," Dr. Lamb says.

He attributes the epidemic mainly to today's living patterns. At the turn of the century cigarettes were not widely sold or used, people ate fewer calories, less food, less fatty food and exercised more.

"There is a general tendency among American men to become fatter earlier in life. A 29- or 30-year-old man is likely to be as fat as his parents or grandparents were in their mid-40s. What this means is that as far as obesity is concerned middle age comes in the latter 20s instead of the middle 40s," Dr. Lamb says.

For years physicians have associated heart disease with coronary atherosclerosis, fatty deposits in the coronary arteries. But it was thought to be a problem associated with age, striking middle-aged and older men. During the Korean War and World War II, however, while doing autopsies on young men killed in battle, scientists found some startling results.

It was found that the "accumulation of fatty deposits in the arterial wall that ultimately leads to its blocking was present in over 77 per cent of these young men. In 10 per cent the process had already blocked over 70 per cent of the opening of one or more of the major arteries. These diseased arteries were not those of sedentary middle-aged men, but those of young, apparently healthy individuals, representing a group of Americans presumably in better than average health," Dr. Lamb explains.

The San Antonio physician, formerly a Baylor University professor of medicine and a high ranking civilian cardiologist with NASA and the Air Force, recalls that one of his youngest cases of heart attack was a 20-year-old aviation cadet. "I've seen many young and healthy men in the Air Force flying population who had experienced heart attack before the age of 30."

Thus even being a young man in good physical shape does not eliminate the possibility of heart attack.

Young or old, however, the most common cause for medical death in American men is heart disease. In 1900 the top three causes of all deaths in the United States were tuberculosis, pneumonia and diarrhea and enteritis. In 1968 the top three killers were heart disease, cancer and cerebral hemorrhage (also a circulatory ailment).

In 1900, 137 of every 100,000 Americans died of heart disease. Today the figure has almost tripled to 373 per 100,000.

Although many may say that increased stress has played a major role in this increase, Dr. Lamb disagrees to some extent.

"I think it is a gross oversimplification to attribute the marked increase in heart disease simply to stress. After all, man has always been subject to stress and many of the long-lived people in our history have had progressive personalities.

"It is our other living habits, smoking, eating too many fats and too many calories, and leading sedentary lives that are killing us."

People In The News

By Associated Press
SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — Actress Natalie Wood and her ex-husband, actor Robert Wagner, have survived a battering shipboard storm in which Cupid may come out the winner.

Both were passengers aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth 2, which docked here Sunday two days late after being hit by a freak Atlantic storm during its trip from New York.

But as the storm raged, Wagner and Miss Wood—divorced eight years ago after four years of marriage—were having their first meeting since they parted. Wagner said it was by chance.

"Timing is everything in life," he said. "It just happened, and as a result we've been very happy and had a lovely, enjoyable time."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson, recuperating from a recent heart attack, returned to Texas sooner than the doctor wanted.

"I would have preferred that he remain in Charlottesville," Dr. J. Willis Hurst said of Johnson's decision earlier this month to return from the University of Virginia Hospital to San Antonio, Tex. Johnson, confined to the Army's Brooke General Hospital, was reported in satisfactory condition.

NEW YORK (AP) — James A. Farley, the former U.S. postmaster general and national Democratic party chairman, was listed in satisfactory condition today at St. Clare's Hospital after suffering an apparent heart attack.

The 83-year-old Farley, often called "Mr. Democrat," entered the hospital Friday.

He served as postmaster general from 1933 to 1940 under President Franklin D. Roosevelt and was national party chairman from 1932 to 1940.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Empress Farah has a bone to pick with Iranian police.

They are "ill-mannered, inconsiderate and showed unnecessary favor to royal motorcades and owners of large luxurious cars," the empress said during a speech Saturday night to the police academy.

There was no comment from police officials. But there was a report that the police cadets cheered the empress.

Mass Transit System And Pollution Issue

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal official says people won't use mass transit systems even if they're free and, therefore, the systems are useless as means of reducing air pollution.

Ray Lozano said the main solutions to air pollution problems appear to be traffic control, restricted car use, car pool incentives and decentralization of cities.

Lozano is deputy director of surveillance and analysis for the Environmental Protection Agency district office in Dallas.

Lozano said the installation of the nearly $1 billion Bay Area Rapid Transit System in San Francisco reduced air pollution only 1 to 5 per cent.

The problem, he said, is that drivers are reluctant to give up their cars and, when they do leave their cars at home, other family members use the cars and continue the polluting.

He said a one-month free ride test for suburbanites on the Boston mass transit system increased transit use only 20 per cent and failed to reduce the downtown air pollution.

"Even if it's free, people won't use it," he said of mass transit.

FIRST CLASSMEN—Cadets Joseph Edwards and Percy Squires are scheduled to receive commissions in the Regular Army at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y., on June 7. Since 1970 many black men have attended the academy. Among the most famous of these was Lt. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis Jr. (USAF, Ret.), who emphasized that "Blacks in the armed forces can shape their own destiny—they can go all the way to the top without their race obstructing their military careers." Last fall 53 blacks joined the Long Grey Line as cadets. Cadet Edwards is from Washington, D.C. Cadet Squires is from Youngstown, Ohio. (U.S. Army Photo by Al Murphy)

Plastic Surgeon Uses Skin Glue

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A plastic surgeon is using a special glue rather than sutures to keep skin grafts in place over burns.

Dr. Tolbert Wilkinson of San Antonio's University of Texas Medical School says he has used the adhesive on more than 400 skin graft patients and others undergoing reconstructive or cosmetic surgery.

Describing the glue as "highly effective," Wilkinson says it has several advantages over sewing skin grafts into place.

In burn cases, skin grafts taken from other parts of a patient's body are placed over the burned area until the wound begins to heal and new tissue starts to form. Then the skin graft sloughs off.

The glue will hold the skin graft in place and keep it stretched for up to two or three weeks, long enough for the burn to start healing, Wilkinson said in an interview.

He noted sutures will hold the skin graft in place but may become infected, causing complications.

Pressure from sutures also may cause a skin graft to die before healing has begun, Wilkinson said. He said the glue cuts this risk as well as the danger of infection.

The tissue adhesive also reduces operating time because it dries quickly, the surgeon said. For example, a foot-square skin graft could be placed over a burn and glued down in about 30 seconds, he said, whereas suturing could take from 20 to 30 minutes.

Wilkinson said the tissue adhesive, known technically as isobutyl cyanoacrylate, also is being used for some types of cosmetic surgery such as hair transplants and for "scar revision," a procedure in which the direction of a scar is shifted to prevent it from contracting or to make it less obvious.

The glue is still in the testing stages and has not yet been approved for general use by the Food and Drug Administration.

Wilkinson said he is the only plastic surgeon in the nation authorized by the FDA to test the glue, although some other specialists are testing it for other purposes.

The surgeon is testing the glue on a grant from the Ethicon Co. of New Jersey, the nation's largest manufacturer of sutures.

Wilkinson said he first began using the glue on a trial basis as a resident at Emory University's Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta in 1965.

The glue is non-toxic and waterproof. The latter makes it particularly useful around the nose and mouth since sutures often become infected from saliva and sweat, Wilkinson noted.

He said the glue can be used for grafts on any part of the body except for areas such as the neck, where pressure exerted by sutures is needed.

In some reconstructive procedures such as scar revision, both glue and sutures may be needed, but the glue reduces the number of sutures, which often leave scars, he said.

Wilkinson, chief of the medical school's plastic and reconstructive surgery division, was among speakers at an annual post graduate course sponsored jointly by the school and Brooke Army General Hospital.

QUALITY PLUS EXPERIENCE—Years of experienced service help to insure customer satisfaction at B and B Pharmacy, 120 E. Browning. One of its successful departments is the pharmacy section, with over 10,000 medicines in stock to help meet prescription needs. (Staff Photo)

B and B Pharmacy Offers Convenient Place to Shop

For anything from chocolates to costume jewelry, B and B Pharmacy is a convenient and friendly place to shop.

With Mother's Day coming up in May, B and B has Russell

Stover chocolate candies to suit the sweet taste.

Or if chocolate is not to her taste, Pangburns and Ann Raskas hard candies are also available.

Or if candy is not enough, B and B stocks women's fragrances from Nina Ricci, Lanvin, Crepe de Shine, Coty, Faberge and Vitabath.

B and B also has a gift department carrying such items as costume jewelry, glassware and billfolds.

Or maybe cosmetics would be a fine gift for your mother—or just a loved one.

If that be the case, B and B carries several well-known lines of beauty aids, including Dorothy Gray, Frances Denney, Revlon, Bonne Belle and Allercreme.

But Mother's Day doesn't come every month. For instance, Father's Day comes in June.

For men, B and B stocks goods to meet all shaving needs and men's fragrances. They carry English Leather in the regular or lemon-lime scent; "That Man" by Revlon; Old Spice; Robert Denney; Black Belt and Signorici.

But B and B Pharmacy offers more than just a line of gifts. They also feature well-trained pharmacists.

Highly competent B and B pharmacists have been filling prescriptions to the best of their ability to meet the customer's satisfaction from their stock of 10,000 medicines since they opened for business in 1953.

Lumbermen Elect President

Wm. H. Whitworth, Berger lumberman, was re-elected to the board of directors of the Lumbermen's Association of Texas at the 86th Annual Convention and Exposition held in Fort Worth April 14-16.

Insurance Co. Pays Benefits To Residents

Connecticut General Insurance Corporation reports that its two major subsidiaries paid $43.7 million in benefits last year to Texas residents.

Connecticut General Life Insurance paid $31.4 million, up 3.1 per cent, and Aetna Insurance Company, its property and casualty affiliate, $12.3 million, a 1.2 per cent increase. Connecticut General Life's total included $24.6 million in living benefits.

The nation's eighth largest life insurance company said it wrote $85.3 million in individual and group life insurance protection in the state during 1971, bringing its total life insurance in force in Texas to $1.5 billion.

At the end of 1971, the two companies had $303.1 million invested in Texas. The figure represents investments in bonds, mortgage loans or real estate throughout the state.

Connecticut General Life or Aetna maintain principal offices in Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio.

Contestants Sought For Story Telling

If anyone in the Pampa area has a real "far out" story about the Old West passed down in their family, or if they have a lively enough imagination to make up their own, it could be worth money plus a free trip to Truth or Consequences, N.M., for the annual Fiesta May 9-14.

Three top "story tellers," selected as finalists on the basis of their entries in the Benson and Hedges Tall Tales Contest, will be brought to Truth or Consequences to appear along with top Hollywood and TV entertainers in a big stage show emceed by Ralph Edwards and Bob Barker on Saturday, May 13.

The winner will receive $300 while second is worth $200 and third $100. They also will enjoy attending other events scheduled for the Fiesta celebrating the city's name change to that of the popular TV show 22 years ago.

Anyone 18 years old and above can enter as many Tall Tales as they like. They may be typewritten, up to 500 words, or recorded on tape, not to exceed two minutes in speaking length.

Mail entries to Fiesta Inc., Box 31, Truth or Consequences, N.M., 87901. Entries must be postmarked no later than May 1.

Young Drivers Push Economic Loss Higher

NEW YORK — The disproportionate involvement of young drivers in auto accidents coupled with rising costs helped push the January economic loss from highway mishaps some $285 million above the figure for the same month last year, the Insurance Information Institute reported today.

While making up less than 2 per cent of the driver population, young drivers—those under 25 years of age—accounted for more than 36 per cent of the 1.6 million motorists involved in crashes, the Institute noted.

The Institute added that rises in auto repair costs, medical fees and hospital costs also contributed to the increase in the economic loss from a year ago—up from $997,041,000 to $1,282,462,000.

On the statistical side, accidents were down 2.3 per cent from last year—from 995,556 to 972,658; but this was more than offset by increases in deaths, up 3.2 per cent, from 4,000 to 4,130; and injuries, up 4.3 per cent, from 331,122 to 354,360.

Pampa Couple Set For European Tour

A Pampa couple will be going on an eight-day deluxe tour to Paris and London being sponsored by Stewart Title Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Price Smith will be joining other real estate brokers and home builders for the tour, according to Pat O'Neill, district manager of the Amarillo office.

The charter plane will leave from Love Field in Dallas at approximately 7 p.m. April 28, going directly to London for a four-day tour of London and the English countryside.

The group will then go by Hovcraft across the English Channel for a trip to Paris.

The persons on the tour will then return to Dallas on May 6. Approximately 165 persons from Texas and California are expected to make the trip.

Ward's Auto Parts Service Works To Make Car Safe

With vacation time coming up soon, many persons should begin to prepare their cars for the long trips.

A good place to find the necessary servicing for the automobile is at Montgomery Ward's.

In addition to being a popular retail store, Ward's also has complete auto service and parts departments, with a total of 10 salesmen and servicemen waiting to make an automobile or truck a safe vehicle for long-distance traveling.

The auto parts department,

As open space in the United States has decreased, the country's national parks have expanded.

with Tom Castagnetta as department work together as a team, with experienced salesmen and servicemen in each section.

One of the items that owners should check before taking their vehicles on any long trips are the shock absorbers.

Ward's motto is "Shock up for manager, works with the auto service department to find the parts and accessories needed to get a car in shape.

"If we don't have it, we can get it," Castagnetta said of the parts department.

Worn-out or inferior shock absorbers can make driving long distances a chore, even hazardous. Ward's offers different brands and types of shock absorbers to fit the needs of the customer.

And with hot weather just around the corner, Ward's also provides air conditioning sales and servicing to help make those long trips a cool time.

Ward's Auto Service Center is ready with parts and services to make driving a safe matter. The shop serves as an official State Inspection Station, open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Offering life-time guarantees on batteries, mufflers and shocks, Ward's also backs them with service. A great number of tires are also kept in stock for passenger cars and trucks.

Ward's always tries to provide safety in work, safety in installation and safety in products.

In addition to complete auto servicing, Montgomery Ward's continues to operate a many-faceted retail shop, with clothes, sporting goods, boats, motors, paints, hardware items, radios, records, stereos, television sets, appliances for the home, and lawn and garden equipment.

A PROFESSIONAL SHOP—Ford's Body Shop, conveniently located at 111 N. Frost in downtown Pampa, is ready to provide professional service in repairing autos needing body work. The most modern equipment is used to insure satisfactory work, all done by experienced repairmen. (Staff Photo)

Ford's Body Shop Provides Professional Auto Repair

Anyone interested in having body work done on their automobiles with the highest degree of professional skill can find such service at Ford's Body Shop, 111 N. Frost.

Coyle Ford, owner and manager of the shop, said his company always strives to provide complete body work and wrecker service.

The most modern equipment is used at Ford's to insure that the work on cars is done to a professional degree.

"We take a lot of pride in what we do here," Ford said, noting that his shop probably does the most auto body work in the Pampa area.

Ford's has several expert body repairmen besides himself ready to fix crumpled fenders, caved-in doors and other automobile body damage.

Satisfaction is guaranteed to meet the taste of the customer, Ford said.

Claiming to be the best in town for body work and wrecker service, Ford said, "What makes us the best is that we put out the effort to do the job right."

With many cars as there are on the road today, fate too often intervenes and entraps some cars in damaging accidents.

Ford's is ready to help restore automobiles to their prior condition—or to even exceed it—if the body work has been damaged.

Noting that there is always an attendant on duty, Ford invites anyone with body work needed on their cars to come by and check out the available facilities.

WEDNESDAY, APR. 26

Your birthday today: There's time to prove your quality. Consolidation of home and its management comes naturally. Develop some new skills. It's a busy, complex year of healthy growth. Today's natives are enterprising reformers interested in hiding or exposing hidden objects, sometimes have a strong healing gift.
Aries (March 21-April 19): It is easy to take the high road and tell everybody off—and regret it later. Put up with it; you'll be glad you did.
Taurus (April 20-May 20): Changes in circumstance during diversified activities shouldn't upset you—all come into balance soon. Give credit where it's due.
Gemini (May 21-June 20): Take complaints and criticism in stride; some of it may be justified. Progress in business and finance is feasible.
Cancer (June 21-July 22): Take a closer look at what you are into, make a better deal. Be discreet in all you do, others are watching for an excuse to worry.
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Something has been neglected—a friend may remind you, or a search thru papers may turn it up. Meditation brings inspiration.
Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The ferment of revision, fresh ideas return—if today's plans still look good tomorrow, act on them.
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Plans proceed with surprising ease and as you intended them. Make your peace with in-laws, bring them along to share the good times.
Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get your mind and comments off minor complaints—they're temporary and should be seen that way.
Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Mate, business associates need your attention. Circumstances become inconvenient if you let them.
Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Review your personal habits, health care, make changes where indicated by competent advice. Deliberate conclusions are more likely correct.
Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Romantic attraction and fulfillment of a long personal search can be found in familiar trusted path ways.
Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't allow intriguing new emotional experiences prevent you from making moves to improve your resources.

Banquet Held
By WD Band
SKELLYTOWN (Sp.)—White Deer High School Band students were treated to a steak supper Monday evening at a Pampa restaurant for their annual banquet.
Guest speaker was the band director from Gruver. The invocation was given by Morlan Shuman Jr.
Entertainment was provided by a group of three young people from Fritch.

Reader disagrees with Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was shocked with your sympathetic attitude toward HEARTBROKEN GRANNY. (She wanted to visit her son's children who he was divorced and his ex-wife was remarried and had taken the children to live in another state.)

I was a divorcee with preschool children, and now I am happily remarried to a wonderful man who is doing an excellent job with his ready-made family.

I have been bugged to death by my ex-mother-in-law who "misses" her grandchildren. She sends them cards and gifts for their birthdays and holidays, so they won't forget her. I always send her a brief but to-the-point thank you. I wish she'd stop sending them things!

As yet she hasn't asked to visit the children, [we live in a different state] but if she does I'll not permit it.

My children now have new grandparents who adore them, and one set of grandparents is enough. I just can't understand the nerve of my ex-in-laws. Why can't they accept the fact that I want nothing more to do with them?

You should have told HEARTBROKEN GRANNY to leave her ex-grandchildren alone. Sometimes you make more problems than you solve.

HAPPILY REMARRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: When one loses a mate [whether by divorce or death] if there are children, the biological grandparents remain grandparents forever. Circumstances differ, but it would seem unnecessarily cruel to deny grandparents the right to see their grandchildren. In some states [California] such a right has been written into the law.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine died last year, leaving two little girls who went to live with an aunt.

Last Christmas I sent a check payable to the aunt in a Christmas card addressed to the girls. I told the girls to give the check to their aunt to cash, and she would give them the money to buy themselves something for Christmas.

I received the cancelled check. However, last week I heard from the girls [in response to my letter asking them what they had bought with my Christmas money] and they wrote that the aunt had never given them the money.

Should I ask the aunt for an explanation, or just forget it and never send money that way again?

My husband says I should let it be. What do you say?

MINOR PROBLEM

DEAR MINOR: DON'T let it be. Let the aunt know that you know that the girls have not received the money—YET!

DEAR ABBY: When my son-joined the Navy-I informed him that I would not accept any reverse charges telephone calls.

After he was gone about a week I received a postcard with his name, rank and serial number on it. It also had "MESSAGE" printed on it. After "message" he filled in, "SEND ELECTRIC SHAVER." [No "Dear Mom, please, love," nothing—just an order to send his electric shaver.] Then he signed it on the bottom.

Well, I made up my own form postcard. I printed my name, for my rank I wrote "MOTHER", and after serial number I put down my Social Security Number. For "message" I wrote, "Shaver on the way. No letter—no mail."

Pretty soon I got a telephone call from my son. He said he just received the postcard and wanted to know what was the matter with me, and why couldn't I write a letter?

I told him nothing was the matter with me, and when he could write a letter I would write one.

After that I heard from him regularly, but I never got another form postcard. Just letters.

AN EYE FOR AN EYE

DEAR EYE: Now that's what "eye" call basic training!

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Garden Club Visits Pampa

The Paramount Terrace Garden Club of Amarillo made a pilgrimage to Pampa to view the garden of Mrs. H. H. Boynton, 1035 S. Hobart, which contains more than 450 named varieties of iris, as well as other flowers.

Heading the Amarillo group was Mrs. Dick McGuire, president, and a national flower show judge, who has given programs throughout District 1, Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., and who conducted a workshop on flower arranging in the Amarillo Garden Center last summer.

Mrs. Boynton, District I iris specialist chairman of the Texas Garden Clubs, conducted a tour through her garden, and gave information on organic gardening.

Pampa Garden Club members assisting Mrs. Boynton as hostesses were Mrs. Marion Brown and Mrs. James Malone, who is District I president.

Accompanying Mrs. McGuire from Amarillo were Mmes. John Brewer, E.E. Russell, Jr., Joe Jones, Lee Stoolbarger, T.L. Smith, and Mark Woodall. The Paramount Club belongs to the Amarillo Council of Garden Clubs and District I of the Texas Garden Clubs.

Tops Contest Is Underway

SKELLYTOWN (Sp.)—The Skellytown Texas Tops Club No. 255 met in the library with the members being weighed in by the recorder, Mrs. Juanita McCarthy. The meeting opened with the club pledge in unison. The leader, Mrs. Fannie Coleman, presided for the business meeting. Tops songs were led by Mrs. Odell Hassler, newly-elected songleader.

Mrs. Jo Skaggs was crowned queen for the week for a loss of 2½ lbs. The club reported a loss of 19½ lbs. with a gain of 8½ lbs.

A contest started and will last three weeks, ending May 9. Mrs. Margaret Fox is the new card chairman, sending cards to all members.

The program, given by Mrs. Frances Stamps, was entitled, "Happiness Is."

Attending were Mmes. Vastalee Hicks, Juanita Porter, Cecile Grange, Gladys Simmons, Opal Gray, Odell Hassler, Barbara Easley, Fannie Coleman, Juanita McCarthy, Frances Stamps, Jo Skaggs, Margaret Simmons, Margaret Fox, Naomi Fox, Gloria Frank and son George and Pauline White.

How Hank Greenberg Became First $100,000 Ballplayer

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica (NEA)—The Racquet Club in the languorous mid-day sun of the tropical Caribbean is the most unlikely place to find out the truth about Henry (Hank) Greenberg. Hank Greenberg is a daily tennis player who at the age of 60 made the sports pages of the New York Times and UPI by beating an out-of-shape writer. And this was an impromptu rematch in the island sun, followed by a healthy swig of fruit juice.

This was when Hank revealed the truth.

"I was," he said, "the original $100,000 ball player."

In these troubled times when Vida Blue strives to rise above a paltry $50,000, the $100,000 plateau means elite acceptance—no matter what the sport. Henry B. Greenberg reached it exactly a quarter of a century ago.

At the time he was a fading baseball player of 36 who had forfeited four and a half of the best years of his life to World War II. No longer would it be possible for him to hit 58 home runs, as he had done in 1938, for the Detroit Tigers. He had been waived through the American League and peddled to the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1947. Hank, with the Detroit organization since he was a high school kid in the Bronx, read about it in the papers and was crushed. He was going to retire.

The Pirates had just been purchased by John Galbraith, that gentle millionaire breeder of horse flesh. Mr. Galbraith called Hank personally.

Hank said, "I'm too old to ride trains any more."

"You can travel alone by plane from city to city," said Galbraith.

"I've reached the stage when I wouldn't want a roommate," said Hank. Galbraith said he could room alone.

"But your ball park is tough for a righthand hitter."

"Don't worry," said Galbraith. "We'll change it any way you want. Just tell us where to put the fences." (And so was created Greenberg Gardens in the old Forbes Field.)

Now piqued, Hank wondered about salary. Galbraith mentioned $40,000 and offered as a gesture two horses from his farm for Hank's wife, the former Carol Gimbel, who was building a racing stable.

Hank shrugged aside the horses and said, "I'm thinking of the future, that some day I'd like to own a baseball team."

So to seal the deal, Galbraith offered a piece of the Pirates. Greenberg bought $137,000 worth of stock. At the end of the season, as agreed, Galbraith bought back the stock for $197,000.

That meant a profit to Hank of $60,000 on which he paid only a capital gains tax of 25 per cent, plus the $40,000 in straight salary, and presto you had the sport's first $100,000 player.

From that start has been built the post-baseball fortune of Henry B. Greenberg, who lives just off Park Avenue and has a ticker tape installed in his home and takes weekends off to play tennis in Montego Bay.

He went from a Bronx kid with a 10-cents-a-week allowance (a nickel for the Saturday afternoon movie) to Hall of Fame baseball star to baseball executive to major league owner to his current life as a personal investment man.

For when that 1947 season at 100 Gs was over, Hank recognized the physical inevitable, despite the 25 homers he hit for the Pirates, and officially retired.

After watching a World Series game that fell in Yankee Stadium, he was walking through the right field exit when Bill Veeck hobbled alongside, introduced himself and made a dinner date. At 4 o'clock in the morning at Toots Shor's, Hank became a vice-president of the Cleveland Indians and later engineered the purchase of the Chicago White Sox with Veeck. (They got the club for $5 million, which included $2 million in cash in the club treasury, later sold the park for $3 1/2 million and finally unloaded the club in 1962 for more than $9 million.)

Hank left baseball in 1963 after staying around just long enough to get the new White Sox owners launched. He is his own man. Occasionally, there have been flickers of interest in getting back. He checked out the Yankees as a possible purchase for Veeck and decided they were a poor investment risk at the rate they were losing money.

"The trouble with baseball," said Hank, "is the ridiculous owners. Long before the Giants and Dodgers, I suggested at an American League meeting in New York we move the teams to the west coast. Old Clark Griffith, sitting there with his hat on and coat collar around his neck, said no, it was too cold out there. How'd he know? He once pitched for Portland. When was that? In 1906. Had he been back since? No."

So Hank putters contentedly with the stock market, wears a perennial tan and, oh yes, he still beats indignant writers at tennis. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Harvesters Travel To Tascosa

The Pampa Harvester baseball team goes to Amarillo today to play the Tascosa Rebels. The game will get underway at 4:00 at Tascosa's field.

Pampa is out of the district race completely now as a result of their loss to Caprock last Friday. They now stand 2-4 in loop play.

Mike Edgar is scheduled to take the mound for the Harvesters this afternoon. It will be the first appearance for Edgar (Pampa's regular shortstop) at that position this season.

Jeff Hogan, whose turn would normally come up today, was sick last week and is still not fully recovered.

The remainder of the Pampa line-up finds Dale Ammons at catcher, Bill Simon at first, A. J. Brewer at second, Gary Haynes at third and either Marsh Gamblin or Jody Johnson at shortstop.

In the outfield Al Ferguson will be in left, Roy Don Hendricks in center and Rick Musgrave in right.

Tascosa has one of the best overall hitting teams in the district and got 14 hits off Hogan in its first victory over Pampa earlier this spring.

The Harvesters can still have something to say about who will be the eventual winner of the district as they must play Berger, the league leader, and Amarillo High, which is tied for second in the district with Tascosa.

Pampa lost to Berger and beat AHS in the first half of district play.

Seagren Tries Come-Back

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He went from a 15-foot pole vaulter in high school to a 16-4 vaulter in his first year of college.

And then came all the glamor an athlete can hope for: the national pole vault champion; one of the first to clear 17 feet.

Then there was a successful tour of Europe, cheered by hundreds of thousands; a desired speaker at banquets because of his good looks and easy-going speech; a world record and then the Olympic gold medal followed by a storybook marriage to a beauty queen.

Bob Seagren then came down to earth. Literally. The rugged graduate of the University of Southern California was horseback riding with his wife Kam in mid-1971 when——the horse ran away with me is what happened. I thought I had control of him until he threw me. I landed hard, on my right knee... really tore it up.

The operation late last year left him depressed and upset. "I was slow coming around, even after the case came off," he says.

"Most guys who have cartilage operations are back playing football in four weeks. It was months before I could run and it was a little depressing to see my right leg 2 1/2 inches smaller at the thigh than my left."

But Bob Seagren may have profited from his experience of falling out of the headlines.

"I'm hungry again," he says. "It's really satisfying when people ask for your autograph and want to do stories about you. But in the past year, I've just been nobody, just an average guy. Last week at the Kansas Relays, I was treated just like I was one of the 47 pole vaulters. I wasn't treated like Kjell."

Kjell Isaksson now holds the world record. Back in 1968 when Seagren set the mark at 17-9, many thought he'd be the first over the 18-foot barrier. He wasn't and now Sweden's Isaksson holds the mark—18 feet 2 inches—and is favored by signature seekers.

At Kansas last week, Seagren cleared 17-0, the first time he'd reached that level in more than a year. And he nearly went over 17-5 but "I didn't know what to do. I'm using a new pole and it was a bit shocking to be so far over the bar."

Don Cain Signs Letter With McMurry College

By RICKEY WRIGHT

Harvester Don Cain signed a letter of intent with Abilene's McMurry College over the weekend. He chose McMurry after considering six other schools that had contacted him. Coach Hershel Kimbrell was in Pampa this week-end to sign Cain for the Abilene school.

Cain is leaving a commendable record behind him at the forward position for the Harvester Cagers.

Don was a two year starter and two year letterman for the Harvesters. He was selected to the district 3-AAAA second-team as a senior.

Cain finished his Harvester season as the third leading scorer on the team with 340 points in 30 games for a 11.0 average per game.

He scored at a 13.8 points average in 3-AAAA competition.

As well as being the third leading scorer, he was the third leading rebounder on the team as he pulled down 236 rebounds for a 7.2 average per game for the season, an 8.2 average in district play.

He received the Harvester Free Throw Award with a 69.2 per cent average which came on 102 baskets, out of 146 attempts. Cain had an exceptional tournament at the Midwestern Invitational in Wichita Falls and was voted the valuable player in the tournament.

Besides playing a big part in the Harvester's successful 24-7 season, he is a member of the National Honor Society and is serving as Vice President of Pampa High School's student body this year.

One of Cain's biggest achievements came this past

Stan Smith Plays Today

ROME (AP) — Top-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., No. 2 seed Ilie Nastase of Romania and third-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia play their first round matches today in the Italian International Open tennis tournament.

Tom Gorman of Seattle, seeded seventh, had to rally in the third set to defeat Australia's Ian Fletcher 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 in a highlight of Monday's opening matches. After trailing 1-3 in the final set, Gorman won five straight games to take the match.

In other first round matches, No. 4 seed Manuel Orantes of Spain whipped Nicola Pietrangeli of Yugoslavia 6-2, 6-1 and fifth-seeded Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union beat Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif. 6-4, 6-2.

Only one seeded player was beaten Monday, Ion Tiriac, the 33-year-old Davis Cup player from Romania, was upset by Italy's Ezio de Matteo 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

December when the Pampa Optimist Club selected him as the Young Texan of the month.

When asked what he was most impressed with at McMurry Don commented, "Being a basketball player, I liked the new gym that is under construction there. It added a beautiful facility." He added, "I was very impressed by their coaching staff there."

When asked why he chose McMurry he stated, "My brother David played there and it is known as a very good school, though I am yet to choose my major."

He went on to say, "I have considered a coaching career, but I have plenty of time to think about it."

Harvester coach Robert McPherson described Don as, "A comer. He is an outstanding player and has the tools and potential to make a good college basketball player. That is made obvious by the number of junior colleges interested in him."

At McMurry a freshman is eligible for some varsity play and Don is expected to have a good chance at doing so.

McMurry is in the South State Conference which is one of the toughest in Texas according to Coach McPherson.

Some of the coaches from McMurry saw Don in the Hardin Simmons Tourney in December and contacted McPherson in March.

Don had these comments in looking back at past Harvester seasons.

"I enjoyed training under coaches Robert McPherson and Ronnie Hearne as well as with my teammates."

Don's older brother David, called home to commend Don for his choice of schools and to say, "Being from Pampa and playing under McPherson will be an advantage in college play as Pampa coaches are known for teaching basketball fundamentals."

Don finished the interview with the comment, "Coach McPherson is one of the finest coaches and men I have known and I will be proud to say that I played for the Pampa Harvesters."

Winston Grand National Has Many Top Entries

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Ramo Stott of Keokuk, Iowa, king of the midwestern Automobile Racing Club of America, has filed his official entry to compete in the May 7 NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National event here at Alabama International Motor Speedway.

Stott, 35, winner of the ARCA national stock car championship for the past two seasons, has entered a 1972 Dodge owned by Bill Moyer of Des Moines.

Stott posted nine victories in 21 outings last year and won the only ARCA race at AIMS—the 1970 Vulcan 500.

Qualifying runs to determine the 50 starters in the 500-mile will get underway on Wednesday, May 3, when the coveted front row starting positions are determined. Qualifying will continue through Saturday morning. Drivers not making the starting field will compete in a special consolation race Saturday afternoon.

Stott, making one of his few appearances on the NASCAR circuit, will be facing probably the most awesome of Grand National talent of his career.

Formidable foes already in the lineup include Donnie and Bobby Allison of nearby

Hueytown, winners of the Winston 500 and the Talladega 500 respectively last year at AIMS. Both will drive Chevys.

Three-time NASCAR Grand National champion David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., fresh from a triumph in the Rebel 400 at Darlington will be on the line with the Pur-O-lator Mercury prepared by the famous Wood brothers of Stuart, Va.

Other top contenders already entered include the STP team of Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., with a Plymouth and strapping Buddy Baker of Charlotte with a Dodge, former Grand National champion Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., in the Harry Hyde-Dodge and many others.

Race time at AIMS May 7 is set for 1 p.m. (CDT).

SHAVING STROKES

16—Those Masters Greens

the ball as hard as usual. I've said that to fans who ask me about putting at the Masters, and they laugh. But it's true. I don't take the putter back from the ball as far and I lighten my stroke.

You have to be wary of knocking a putt well beyond the hole and three-putting. On fast greens, the grass is shorter, and the ball can roll right over the hole if you hit it too hard.

Because the greens at Augusta are so large and have so many subtle breaks, I make it a point to be extra careful surveying the putt—checking the line and the grain. After that it's no mystery what you do on fast greens. You don't hit the ball as hard, is all.

Name Trainers Head For Ruidoso Downs

Bill Thompson, the runaway leader in Sunland Park trainer standings and the defending champ at Ruidoso Downs, is included among the "name" trainers who'll be back at Ruidoso Downs this season.

This is the report from Dean McKinney, Ruidoso racing secretary, who's been busy sifting through some 2000 stall applications for the upcoming season.

Approvals for about 1,500 head will go in the mail this week, McKinney reports. He's being aided in the task by his assistant, Tom Dawson.

The new season, covering 63 race days and offering an estimated $3 million in purses, gets underway on Saturday, May 20, and extends through Labor Day.

The season's top event, as usual, is the All American Futurity, which is expected to offer a whopping purse of about $25,000.

This puts the mountain track in the remarkable position of the season's gross purse distribution on one race alone.

The All-American is by far the richest event in the history of racing.

Last season, Thompson easily grabbed the Ruidoso trainer championship by saddling 57 winners out of 290 starts. Currently, he holds 46 wins at Sunland, 14 more than his nearest rival.

Thompson got the green light for 35 head, and figures to again offer a strong stable. The list includes such stalwarts as Calimbo, Norgor, It's Bloomed, Juliet's Doll and Like I Say. Norgor is one of the top 870-yard-horses in the Southwest.

"Judging from the stall applications, the quality of horses—both thoroughbreds and quarter horses—will be even better than last year," McKinney said.

Included among the trainers who'll be getting approval is Paul A. Smith, whose contingent includes Fast Gas, one of the premiere sprinters in this part of the country.

Baseball Roundup

By Associated Press

When you're hot, you're hot... and that's not just some more Texas bluster, podnuh.

How else can you account for the Houston Astros and Texas Rangers continuing their winning ways Monday night on key blows by players who are hitting their weight, but not by much?

In the only baseball games played, the Astros nipped the Chicago Cubs 3-2 on an 11th-inning home run by 211-pound John Edwards (.239 lifetime average) and the Rangers defeated the California Angels 6-4 on a two-run seventh-inning single by 205-pound and 254-average Larry Bittner.

The only other scheduled contest—Detroit at Milwaukee—was postponed by cold weather. Houston's triumph was its seventh in a row and lifted the Astros into a tie with Los Angeles for the National League West lead. Texas has won four straight and is tied with the Chicago White Sox for second in the American League West, just .042 percentage points behind Oakland.

At the other end of the scale, the Cubs have dropped six in a row, the Angels five, and both are last in their respective divisions.

Houston's strong start isn't surprising since most experts thought the Astros improved themselves with off-season deals.

"This is the best club I've ever gone to Florida with or come out of Florida with," manager Harry Walker said following spring training.

One of the new acquisitions, first baseman Lee May, socked a two-run homer in the first inning after Ron Santo's staked the Cubs to a 2-0 lead with a home run of his own.

Edwards' homer with one out in the 11th made a loser out of Cub ace Fergie Jenkins for the third time in the young season, although it was only the fourth hit of the game off the 1971 Cy Young Award winner.

But the Rangers are in lofty surroundings for one of the few times since their birth as the expansion Washington Senators in 1971 and some of the boys aren't used to it.

"The two series coming (Detroit and Boston) are important because we've got to see if we can hold our own with the big boys," said Bittner.

Bittner, who had been struck out twice earlier by Andy Messersmith, drove home the tying and lead runs as the Rangers scored three times in the seventh. His bases-loaded single was a smash off the glove of first baseman Jim Spencer. Leo Cardenas and Spencer homered for the Angels.

FILION WAS TOPS
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — No harness driver has ever won more races in a single year (543), earned more money ($1,915,945) or logged more starts (2,213) than Herve Filion accomplished in 1971.

The tireless, 31-year-old French-Canadian for the second straight season captured North America's major harness driving championships—and in the process smashed his own world record of 486 wins established in 1970.

Bill Sharman NBA Coach

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Sharman, whose Los Angeles Lakers won a record 69 games during the regular season, was named Coach of the Year in the National Basketball Association today.

The 45-year-old Sharman was a runaway winner in the voting by three sports writers in each of the league's 17 cities with 42 votes. Tom Heinsohn of Boston and Al Attles of Golden State tied for second with three votes each.

In Sharman's first season as Los Angeles coach, the Lakers reeled off a 33-game winning streak, unprecedented in the history of major league professional team sports while cruising to the Pacific Division title. The Lakers then went on to win the Western Conference Championship and are preparing to meet the New York Knicks for the NBA title.

Sharman's attributes the team's success to the conditioning program he put the Lakers on when he was lured away from the champion Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association.

The Doves Ignore Vietnam Success

By DON OAKLEY

In a letter to the New York Times, eight members of the U.S. House of Representatives deplore the escalation of the war in Vietnam. A central paragraph puts the blame squarely where the congressmen believe it belongs: "The President of the United States has called off the regular meetings of the negotiators at the Paris peace talks. And only this week the United States launched a massive air attack of both South and North Vietnam. In short, there are no signs of any moral leadership on the part of the administration to end the killings and the destruction of countries now."

In the 254 words of the letter, not a word alludes to the massive invasion of South Vietnam by North Vietnamese troops, nor to the killings of South Vietnamese civilians troops, nor to the killings of South Vietnamese civilians and destruction of their villages by North Vietnamese tanks, mortars and howitzers.

In a hearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Secretary of State William P. Rogers was asked if the stepped-up fighting was not proof that the administration's policy of Vietnamization had failed. None of the senators suggested that North Vietnam's invasion, to which it has committed more than 90 per cent of its regular forces, might mean just the opposite—that Vietnamization is working.

But a funny thing has been happening on the way to the embarkation ports in Vietnam. That is it is ignored by those who, for some reason, hope for the discrediting of Vietnamization, is one thing. That the nation's representatives in Congress seem to be totally unaware of it is quite another.

The fact is that not only has the war been increasingly "Vietnamized," meaning that South Vietnam has taken over more and more of the burden of ground fighting, but the war has also become increasingly "North Vietnamized."

In the Tet offensive of 1968, which was such a telling psychological blow to the American public and to the Johnson administration nearly every village and city throughout the length and breadth of South guerrillas, who seemingly sprang out of the earth—despite the fact that U.S. forces were at a peak of more than half a million men.

At that time, the argument that the conflict was a civil war against a repressive regime in Saigon which we were immorally supporting had more than a little credibility. Little remarked in the United States, South Vietnam since then has made significant strides in land reform and in truly pacifying the countryside.

Today, when U.S. troop strength has dwindled to well under 100,000 and no units are engaged in active combat, the current fighting is almost entirely a North Vietnamese operation—a textbook operation involving frontal assaults by armored columns across the Demilitarized Zone, artillery support, logistical lines of supply and all the rest, an operation made possible by weapons and materiel from the peace-loving Soviet Union.

At the Senate hearing, Sen. J. William Fulbright could ask the secretary of state, in sincere anguish at the continued killing and destruction: Why have you (the administration) placed us in the position where either a Hobson's choice between either surrender or escalation?

Yet when President Nixon undertook to begin the withdrawal of American troops, with the full support of Congress and the vast majority of Americans, each reduction in our strength increased the possibility that we would be faced with one or the other eventuality. North Vietnam was repeatedly warned what our reaction would be.

The real question that should be asked is, why has North Vietnam chosen to attempt an all-out military conquest of South Vietnam, and to humiliate the United States in the bargain, at a time when U.S. withdrawal was so near to being accomplished?

And why aren't more Americans asking that question?

New Banks Are Viet's 'Defense'

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Thirty odd years ago in Southern California an American farmer of Korean ancestry woke up one morning to find his tomato crop ruined by a freak change in the weather. Heavily in debt, and in danger of losing all he owned, he has been carried for almost a decade by an understanding banker who had faith in his integrity.

In the months just past, that man's son has spent a good deal of his spare time making certain South Vietnam's small farmers have the same good fortune his father had in time of need.

Henry Lee, who works for the Agency for International Development, is supposed to work on over-all economic principles. But on his own he has been helping eager South Vietnamese officials set the stage for getting 31 village banks started—five in the past two months. There are plans for 169 more.

Each bank is very small. Each is founded, owned, funded and run by local villagers. Deposits are from the people in the village. All the money is lent to farmers with fewer than 25 acres, to small fishermen, to businessmen with assets under $4,200 (U.S. equivalent) or industrialists with assets of less than $8,400.

No one man or family can own a controlling interest in any bank. The government has no vote on the board of directors. Sixty per cent of the loans must go to farmers and fishermen.

The headlines these days are on military battles. But when the books are balanced, this reporter believes, from a decade and a half in Asia, that if South Vietnam survives and prospers, it will be because of these village banks and the chance they give the small man for credit.

Undergrounds rise or fall on how well or poorly they can play on the hopelessness of a nation's small farmers, fishermen, workmen and shopkeepers. The textbook solution is land reform, a cutback on corruption and a stable government.

But without credit, the small farmer is a victim of the moneylender—paying 50 to 100 per cent for his money, forced to mortgage his crop for a low price and finally, all too frequently, losing his land.

He is perpetually in hock—living from hand to mouth without hope.

The farmer thus becomes the servant of the money-lender-ricer-buyer patron. The profits, instead of going to building the community, are sequestered by the lender and put into fast-turnover money-making ventures. The great rural areas of a country stay backward and ready for whatever underground comes along.

Conventionally, the village bank may be one room in a home or a small shop. It may have eight to 60 or so investors. Depositors are paid from 12 to 21 per cent according to how long the deposit is to be left in the bank.

Since inflation is 13 to 15 per cent a year or more, without these high rates a depositor would lose more in purchasing power than he gained from interest. As a result, borrowers pay from 20 to 24 per cent—but they flock in. The soil is rich in the South and this is a far better deal than the 50 to 100 per cent they've been paying the moneylenders.

Savings have been pouring into these village banks at a fast clip, indicating a prosperity and a confidence not seen in rural South Vietnam for many years.

The feeling is that farmers and fishermen with this confidence will fight with whatever weapons they have if the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attempt to take over their hamlets.

Pennsylvania: A Big Flop Could Be Muskie's End

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

HARRISBURG (NEA)—Today's Pennsylvania primary is crucially decisive for Sen. Edmund Muskie's presidential chances, and yet the strongest hopes of his backers are summarized by one who says, "Maybe he can eke this one out."

Nobody in top position on the senator's side seemed willing to forecast an impressive victory for him in the popularity contest and most key supporters and managers—starting with Gov. Milton Shapp—say Muskie at best can win around half of the 137 delegates to be elected primary day. (Another are chosen later.)

One influential pro-Muskie support cast whispered to me that he thought the senator was a very bad campaigner who did not appear to want the presidency enough to work hard for it.

If this kind of thing is the best you can get from the Muskie side, it is no wonder that most other appraisers, including top men working for rival Sen. Hubert Humphrey, are predicting a clear win for Hubert.

An important labor leader privately guessed that Humphrey will sweep the popularity test and take upwards of 80 of the 137 delegates picked today. Any such result would bury Muskie and reduce the May 2 Ohio primary to an empty exercise for him.

Without A Shot

Several years ago, a Commie jail mate told a political prisoner friend of mine: "We will take the U.S. through the intellectuals—not the poor—and we'll do it without firing a shot. We think," he said, "if we can trick the American people into being 'liberal,' to believe that Communism will 'moderate,' that we can co-exist, then we'll take them. That's why Stalin was 'downgraded.' We can't take America with violence. We have to take it with trickery." And they're doing it in both ways, with the help of our clergy, educator, labor unions, press and the Federal Government.—Tom Anderson

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

During the American Revolution Nathan Hale, a young schoolteacher, was hanged by the British as a spy without a trial. The World Almanac recalls that it is alleged that when Hale's jailer scornfully demanded some last words, he is reputed to have exclaimed: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Your Health

New Home Can Ease Allergies

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am pleased to discover you in Toronto's new Sun, for I enjoy reading your column. I developed an allergy in 1956. I am allergic to ragweed, trees, grass, molds, and house dust. The desensitization injections have not been successful and I have had four asthma attacks, and subsequent hospitalizations, since the spring of 1970. My seasonal allergies have become a year-round asthma problem. The doctor advises that I relocate to a drier and more steady climate. Since ragweed is my main problem I am contemplating moving to Okanagan Valley in British Columbia on a temporary trial basis. According to a booklet from the Canadian government this area is ragweed free. Although Arizona is supposedly an ideal climate I am not sure the high temperatures would be agreeable with me for I prefer a moderate climate. I am 45 and asthma and blood pressure are traditional in my family.

Dear Reader—First may I say that I am pleased to welcome you and the other new readers of Toronto's new Sun.

Individuals who have allergic asthma often do better in a climate free of the allergen. If your problem is simply ragweed, your move would benefit you. In general the areas of the world free from ragweed are almost anywhere west of the Rockies, high altitudes such as the mountains in Colorado, Wyoming, the southern tip of Florida, Europe and South America.

You also say you have trouble with grass and tree pollen. Individuals with these problems often don't gain much by a change in climate. The best approach is to test your planned new area.

Individuals allergic to household pets and animal products sometimes improve markedly by eliminating pets, feather pillows, and items containing animal substances. Individuals who have house dust problems should eliminate things that contribute to collecting dust. This includes stripping your bedrooms-of carpeting, getting rid of drapes and heavy furniture, and maintaining careful cleaning. It might be well to have one room in the house that is relatively bare. Use it to isolate yourself from house dust.

I understand your desire to stay in a cool climate, but one advantage to a warm climate is the use of air-conditioning. The air-conditioning can be used to filter out dust and helps to purify the air. This is sometimes helpful for asthmatics. Many of the so-called air filters that are advertised, however, are not completely successful and are not nearly as good as is needed for this purpose.

For individuals whose allergy attacks are precipitated by respiratory infections, treatment is directed towards preventing or controlling respiratory infections, usually with antibiotics and similar medications.

Do unto others, and they'll do you right back.

Alibi artists are about the only kind you find in most studios.

Driving tip: Trains never stop for autos until they've hit them.

Grit your teeth and the dentist will be delighted with the work he gets.

At today's prices, the only thing most of us can afford to build is a castle in the air.

Understand your desire to stay in a cool climate, but one advantage to a warm climate is the use of air-conditioning.

For individuals whose allergy attacks are precipitated by respiratory infections, treatment is directed towards preventing or controlling respiratory infections, usually with antibiotics and similar medications.

Win or Lose, it Pays To Run for President

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—There is good money to be made running for President—regardless of the outcome.

In the last few years the three presently-leading Democratic candidates have collected thousands of dollars for lectures and various shortwritten articles—due solely to their prominence as White House aspirants.

From the latest available records, following is their handsome "take":

Sen. Humphrey—$47,000 in 1971.

Sen. McGovern—$60,000 in 1971, $24,000 in 1970, $63,000 in 1969.

Sen. Muskie—$70,000 in 1971, $40,000 in 1970, $80,000 in 1969.

Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy is creditably estimated as having taken in more than $50,000 from such fees in those years. Some politicians go so far as to attribute the Minnesota's tenuous Presidential race this year as having been prompted largely as a means of securing lecture engagements and writing assignments.

As one erstwhile Senate colleague wryly remarked, "You could say running for President has become a way of life for Gene, and apparently quite a lucrative one."

For the three incumbent Senatorial candidates, their juicy moonlighting is in addition to their $42,500-a-year Congressional salary and $300,000 to $400,000 (depending on their state's population) in numerous allowances and perquisites, including free haircuts, shaves and shins.

It's an old saying on Capitol Hill: "No one goes broke being a member of Congress."

Sen. McGovern's lecture fees range from $500 (relatively few) to $2,500. One exception was $300 from the "State of South Dakota," his home state. From one agency he listed a lump sum of $35,000 in 1969, without any details other than the word "speeches." Where, whom, etc.—no clue.

In 1970, McGovern acknowledges getting a total of $9,835 from six colleges in Kansas, without indicating how much from each, as well as $3,150 for two lectures at the University of Wisconsin, $2,800 from New York City Colleges, $1,500 from the Allied Education Foundation, and $1,500 from the Citizens Committee for Children.

Significantly, among the best paying of Sen. Muskie's lectures were trade and other organizations:

Connecticut Education Assn. $1,500, American Public Power Assn. $1,000, National Frozen Food Assn. $2,000, Oklahoma Education Assn. $2,000, Insurance Institute for Highway Safety $2,000, American Institute of Architects $1,000, Association of Milk Producers $3,000.

Other top honorariums were: Jewish National Fund $2,500, Miami University $2,500, Auburn University and Jacksonville State $4,200, LaSalle University $2,000, Welfare Council of Chicago $2,000.

Northern Illinois University $3,000, Wayne State University $2,000, University of Tennessee $1,926, University of Kansas $2,500, Alliance College $2,000, Michigan State University $2,000, University of Chicago $2,000.

During these years these Senators, while busily and lucratively moonlighting, were frequently absent from the Senate and missed numerous important deliberations and votes. Since the state primaries get underway early this year, they have been rarely seen in the Senate—being far more evident by their absence than their presence.

Meanwhile, of course, they are regularly collecting their full Congressional pay and the many other embellishments that go with the $42,500.

How He Did It

The disclosure of some of the details of the thousands of dollars Sen. McGovern has made moonlighting clears up a mystery that caused a lot of eyebrow raising in Washington.

This was how the South Dakotan suddenly bought a $160,000 custom-built home in a fashionable residential area after living for many years in a modest suburban six-room frame house.

In that section, McGovern's neighbors had been two other Midwest liberal crusaders—former Vice President Hubert Humphrey, who moved to a ritzy cooperative apartment with a stunning view of the Potomac River, and ex-Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who rented a large mansion opposite the still-incomplete Washington Cathedral on fashionable Upper Wisconsin Avenue.

Big puzzle was where and how McGovern, whose relatively small suburban house cost around $20,000 when he bought it in the 1950s, got the money to acquire the $160,000 show-place near American University.

It's all clear now! Those juicy moonlighting lectures and other fees running into the thousands of dollars provided the wherewithal.

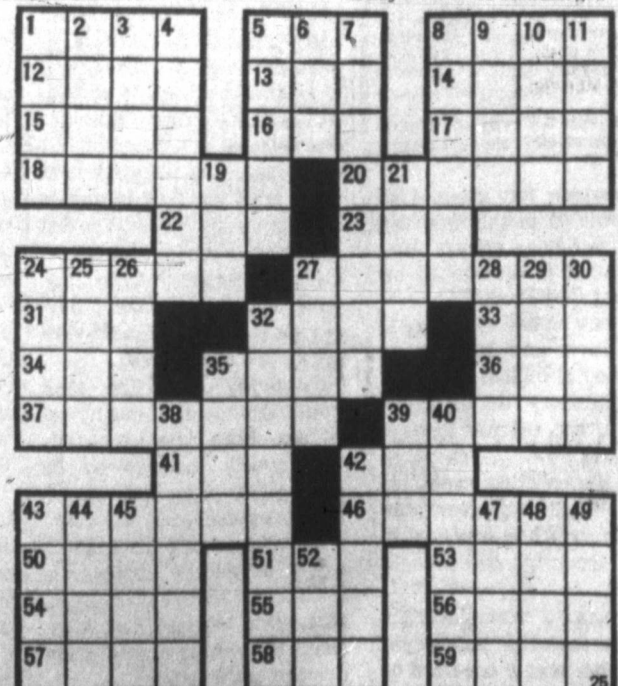

McGovern bought the fancy new home from Chief Justice David Bazelon of the U.S. Court of Appeals-of the District of Columbia—a Truman appointee and ardent admirer and follower of New Left Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. The Bazelons were very keen about Japanese architecture, and built their home in that style. The specially-made furniture, drapes and decor was in keeping with the house.

At the time McGovern and his family moved into their handsome new home, there was a reputed $100,000 in debts still owing from his last-minute Presidential campaign following the slaying of Sen. Robert Kennedy. Throughout McGovern's political career, he has been closely associated with the Kennedys.

Most of his present campaign lieutenants are Kennedy zealots and veterans.

County Atty. Assesses Model Congress Value

By JOHN WARNER
Student reaction to the first Model Congress was enthusiastic, John W. Warner, the Jaycee who served as general chairman, reported.

"The evaluation sheets turned in by the students were unanimous in saying that they enjoyed it, found it educational and wanted it repeated again," Warner said.

"I think the maturity of the students' education and thinking was demonstrated in the Model Congress," Warner said. "For example, the students approved a bill which would require sex education in every school receiving Federal funds. The bill had originally proposed that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare approve the courses taught."

The students amended it so that the HEW would still have a voice but required that the program be implemented by local citizens. They were not willing to give that kind of control over people's lives to the Federal Government.

"In the bill they passed regarding pollution, it was originally proposed only that a committee be appointed to investigate pollution," Warner continued. "However, the students simply did not want an investigation."

They wanted something done about it. Thus they added to the bill that the committee would have the power to regulate pollution and provided for a 10 per cent investment tax credit for those companies purchasing pollution control and recycling equipment.

"Our Congressmen were evidently impressed by the level of the students' thinking because they asked that a copy of the bills which were passed by both Houses be sent to them in Washington."

U.S. Congressmen Bob Price and Graham Purcell divided the duties of Speaker of the House while U.S. Senator John Tower and State Representative Phil Cates alternated as President of the Senate.

Out of town teachers were very impressed with the project. "It was very informative for our students and very worthwhile," said Tommy Harbin, a government teacher in Dumas High School which had 25 students attending. "More of these type of things need to be done."

"An exceptionally good program," said David Stults, the coordinator of social studies in the Amarillo school system. "I think the Pampa Jaycees, Jaycee-Ettes and the Pampa social studies department are to be commended."

AOSC To Meet

The Panhandle Tri-State Chapter, AOSC, will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday at Supten's Barbeque, Borger, for the purpose of installing officers. There will also be a discussion by company officials and contractors on the new Occupational Safety and Health Administration regulations and how they will be affected by same.

Existing U.S. airports are valued at $10 billion, but the Air Transport Association of America says another $13 billion in facilities will be needed through this decade.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Tuesday, April 25, the 118th day of 1972. There are 250 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1945, delegates of 45 nations met in San Francisco to organize the United Nations.

On this date: In 1859, construction of the Suez Canal was formally begun.

In 1898, United States declared war on Spain.

In 1901, New York became the first state to require licenses for cars.

In 1945, in World War II, U.S. and Soviet troops celebrated together when advance units linked up on a demolished bridge over the Elbe River at Torgau, Germany.

Today In History

In 1959, the St. Lawrence Seaway was opened to shipping. Ten years ago: A U.S. Ranger spacecraft was on its way to the moon, but the unmanned vehicle's communications system was not functioning.

Five years ago: Robert W. Haack was named president of the New York Stock Exchange. One year ago: A Soviet spaceship landed safely after a successful docking with a space laboratory that was in orbit around the earth.

Today's birthdays: Veteran baseball executive Fred Haney is 74. Ballerina Melissa Hayden is 44. Thought for today: Time goes, you say? Ah no! Alas, time stays, we go—Henry Dobson, English poet, 1840-1921.

Area Club Holds Traveling Dinner

LEFORS (Spl.) — "Dining With Our 49th and 50th States" was the theme of the Lefors Art and Civic Club traveling dinner recently.

Upon arrival at the home of Mrs. Carl Hall, members were presented with Hawaiian leis. Appetizers were served from a table centered with an ice-filled dish topped with fresh strawberries.

The main course representing both Alaska and Hawaii were served in the home of Mrs. Norman Barber.

Everyone then traveled to Mrs. Harry Youngblood's home for an Alaskan dessert.

A business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Carl Hall, President. Members attending were: Mmes. Earl Tarbet, R. W. Beck, Jerrell Julian, Bob Klien, C.C. Mullins, David Dennis, Harold Hooker, Jeff Bradley, Norman Barber, Joe Watson, Harry Youngblood and Carl Hall. The next meeting will be an installation ceremony May 6.

Glorified real estate advertising is hardly new. When Eric the Red discovered Greenland in 982, he gave the Arctic island its misleading name in a successful bid to attract Viking colonists.

Price Will Be Honored At Wichita Falls May 4

WICHITA FALLS—Paul Eggers, former Wichita Falls civic leader and GOP candidate for governor will enjoin a "Salute to Agriculture" honoring U.S. Congressman Bob Price on Thursday, May 4.

Eggers, the GOP's top vote getter in the state of Texas now practices law in Dallas following the 1968 election. He was named General Counsel for the Treasury Department by the Nixon administration in 1969.

The Salute keynoted by Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz marks the first visit by a Secretary of Agriculture to this district.

Prior to his appointment to the cabinet in 1971 Secretary Butz served as Assistant Secretary of Agriculture and was a member of the Board of Directors of the Commodity Credit Corporation. He has traveled extensively in the interest of agriculture serving as chairman of the U.S. delegation to the Food and Agriculture Organization meeting in Rome, Italy, in 1965 and 1966.

Congressman Price is a member of the House Agriculture Committee and holds membership on the sub-committee on Cotton, and Livestock and Grain. He has served as a member of the Congressional Task Force on Agriculture and Rural Affairs.

Price said, "It is indeed an honor to have leaders like Paul Eggers and the nation's number one man in agriculture on hand for this occasion."

"Secretary Butz has already gone to bat for the people of this district with his staunch defense of the American farmer. His recent effort to throw light on the true culprits and the high cost of beef being purchased by the American housewife are greatly appreciated by the farming and ranching people of Texas."

Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. at the Wichita Falls Country Club and will be preceded by a reception at 6:30. Butz's speech is slated for 7:45 p.m.

Tickets are priced at $50.00 and may be purchased from George Graham, 3000 Harrison in Wichita Falls, or from your local county chairman.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE, PH.D., M.D.

Horace was naturally frightened at his first heart attack. A full stomach, plus vigorous exercise, place an extra load on a hampered heart. And the BEST quick treatment is rapid, deep breathing, to gain extra oxygen from the 20 per cent in the air around us!

CASE T-562: Horace T., aged 42, is alarmed.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I suffered a heart attack 6 weeks ago."

"Right after lunch I decided to walk back to the office, which was only 4 blocks away."

"But I was late, so I hurried, and before I reached my office building, I got a dull pain across my left chest."

"Then I grew sick at my stomach."

"And I broke out in cold sweat over my forehead."

"So I called a taxi and went straight to my physician's office."

"He said I had suffered a mild coronary attack."

"And warned me to take it easy, with no strenuous exercise after meals."

"Am I likely to suffer another heart attack?"

"Suppose I were all alone in the house, what should I do?"

HEART WORRIES

The pain in a heart attack is due to lack of enough oxygen to the muscle fibers in the heart wall.

For a coronary thrombosis (plug, due to thickening of the artery wall) or a coronary embolus (plug from a tiny floating clot) shuts off circulation to a portion of the heart wall.

If you have the symptoms that Horace describes, maybe an area less than the size of a green pea is denied its former blood supply.

The larger the area of heart muscle shut off from blood, the more serious is your heart attack.

But if you are still conscious, the odds are more in your favor.

than—if you are knocked unconscious at once.

And you victims often can tip the scales in favor of life vs. death during those first 10 minutes, even before a physician gets to you.

For the air around you contains 20 per cent oxygen!

So breathe deeply and often, to build up a surplus of oxygen in your blood.

This quick remedy may let your heart adjust to the shock and begin to beat on a more regular rhythm.

Remember, even if you are scared and feel you don't dare breathe deeply because of the knife-like pain in your left chest, start that regular deep breathing!

For such exercise of the ribs and diaphragm will NOT harm your hampered heart.

Instead, it will bring extra life-giving oxygen to it!

All we medics do for you, anyway, is inject a big shot of morphine to reduce your fear and thus slow down your hampered heart.

And if you are conscious, we have you place a nitroglycerine tablet under the tip of your tongue, to dilate the coronary arteries so they may bring a little more oxygen to the muscle fibers.

Later, we administer oxygen from a bottle when we get you in the ambulance.

But you may die during the 30 minutes required to obtain an ambulance or drive you across town to the hospital.

Quick oxygen is your best lifesaver, so get it right out of the air via deep breathing!

Once I had a patient who had survived 12 heart attacks but died at the 13th, as per autopsy, so don't panic at your first attack!

(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg., Melior, Indiana 47558 enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)
