COMMISSION TO STUDY IT

Electric Company Presents Rate Hike Request To City

By TEX DEWEESE
Formal presentation of Southwestern Public Service Company's request for a 10 percent average increase in electric rates for Pampa was made today to Pampa city commissioners by Melvin Kunkel, local SWPS manager.

The utility company's rate hike request was filed last Wednesday with City Secretary S.M. Chittenden. Kunkel appeared before the commission today to explain reasons for the request and to answer questions. He said the company plans to put the rate increase into effect with the September, 1974 billing.

The average residential electric consumer in Pampa uses about 500 kilowatt hours of electricity per month and the rate increase, if approved, would add about $1.38 a month to his current bill, Kunkel stated.

ON ANSWERING REQUEST

Supreme Court Gives Deadline

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court today gave President Nixon until Thursday to reply to prosecutor Leon Jaworski's request for a quick ruling by the court on his demands for additional tapes and documents dealing with the Watergate coverup.

A spokesman for the court said James D. St. Clair, the President's chief Watergate lawyer, had been asked to submit "an expedited response" to the appeal Jaworski filed Friday.

Thursdays also is the day that St. Clair has been directed to inform U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell of Nixon's final decision about surrendering files of two former top aides for use at their conspiracy trial next month. Gesell has hinted he may dismiss the charges unless the President complies with a subpoena for the documents.

Jaworski had asked the court to take the case away from the U.S. Court of Appeals here, where St. Clair filed an appeal earlier Friday seeking to overturn U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's refusal to quash Jaworski's subpoena for the materials.

Following St. Clair's response, the Supreme Court will decide whether to accept the case or allow it to follow regular channels through the appeals court—which could delay a final ruling until fall and cause postponement of the trial of seven persons, including Nixon's former top aides, on Watergate coverup charges.

The court announced the expedited schedule in the tapes case as it acted on a backlog of relatively minor matters. The court is to quit

Clean-Up Drive In Final Days

Pampa's annual city-wide clean-up campaign will end tomorrow as city workmen and trucks spend their final day in Ward 4.

The drive, under joint sponsorship of the City and Chamber of Commerce, has been in progress since Wednesday May 1.

Chamber Directors To Study Reports

Several reports will be made by various committee chairmen, including a resume on the recent membership drive when chamber of commerce directors conduct their May meeting at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Whether the President or the courts are to decide whether Nixon may withhold evidence needed in a criminal case on grounds of "executive privilege."

Whether the privilege can be invoked in the face of a showing that unless rebutted the conversations involved a crime.

Whether grounds of confidentiality can be cited when the President has already turned over similar data.

Syria And Israel Battling As Negotiations Continue

United Press International—Syria and Israel fought on Mt. Hermon today in the final hours of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's monthlong bid to separate their bloodied armies on the Golan Heights.

A Damascus communique reported new exchanges of fire on the strategic peak in the 78th day of a non-stop war of attrition on the embattled heights.

The latest fighting came after a day of Israeli-Syrian clashes across the full length of the heights spilled over into neighboring Lebanon.

The Israeli cabinet was meeting today to consider Syria's latest proposals for a military disengagement on the Golan Heights. U.S. Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco stood by to fly to Damascus with the document.

Kissinger waited in Jerusalem for the Israeli and Syrian responses before deciding whether to return home today or stay in the region another day for a final bid to arrange a troop separation accord.

On returning to Jerusalem Monday night after failing to clinch an agreement in talks with Syrian leaders, Kissinger said, "We will not know until tomorrow what the final outcome is."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko arrived in Damascus Monday night, saying he would exchange views with Syrian President Hafez Assad "on matters dealing with the Middle East settlement." He did not meet with Kissinger.

Yasser Arafat, leader of Palestine Liberation Organization, was also in the Syrian capital and was expected to confer with Gromyko.

In fighting Monday, Syrian artillery teams reported firing "at enemy tank concentrations, positions, military vehicle concentrations and staging points on several sectors of the front, inflicting losses on them."

except the sewage and water works.

Irrecoverable Stage
An electricity board spokesman said the shutdown at the two power plants still operating in the province now has reached the irrecoverable stage and that all electricity would be cut off by 6 p.m. at the latest.

Water supplies fell to two hours of service daily. A drizzling rain increased the stink of rotting, uncollected garbage.

Some 700 British army and navy specialist stood by in the province to take over operation of essential services, but they did not move into the power stations during the early morning hours.

Traffic throughout Belfast slowed to a trickle today because of severe gasoline shortages and human barricades of women and children blocking roads not already sealed by abandoned hijacked vehicles and debris.

The army tried to ease the gasoline crisis Monday by occupying 21 service stations, but it turned out to be a useless gesture. There was no electricity to run the pumps.

"We are now in a total strike situation from midnight and our people are being asked to passively oppose and obstruct the government forces," said strike leader William Craig.

"We are withdrawing from the scene. The army came in to break the strike and it is now their responsibility," Craig said.

Pictures Indicate Patricia Has Changed Appearance

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The FBI and police are examining Polaroid pictures which may show that Patricia Hearst changed her appearance significantly, cutting her hair short and dying it bright blonde.

A police spokesman confirmed Monday that investigators have a partially burned picture that may show Miss Hearst, carrying a gun, in a group photo with members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, posed before their seven-headed cobra flag.

The photo is similar to one published in this week's Newsweek magazine, but is not the same photo, a police spokesman said. Both pictures were found by amateur souvenir hunters poking in the ashes of the house where six SLA members died May 17.

Definitely Blonde
As in the Newsweek photo, police said, the woman believed to be Miss Hearst "was definitely blonde," her hair a much brighter shade than is seen on the photos of Miss Hearst used on the thousands of FBI "wanted" posters distributed throughout California.

"She appeared to have her hair cut just below her ears, shorter than in the earlier photographs that have been released," said police Cmdr. Peter Hagan.

That would confirm some reports by persons who claim to have seen Miss Hearst in recent weeks.

Identification was made difficult because the photos were of poor quality to begin with and have been singed and smudged.

Miss Hearst's parents have seen the Newsweek photo, police said. Publisher Randolph Hearst said "it could be" his daughter but he could not positively identify her. Mrs. Hearst felt the woman was not her daughter.

Hagan said he did not know whether the Hearsts have seen the other photo.

Archibald Cox Criticizes Disobeying Court Orders

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI)—Failure by the President to comply with a court order to produce additional evidence would be "the most serious grounds of impeachment," former Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox said Monday.

"Certainly a any disobedience of a judicial decree with respect to the production of evidence would in my view be the most serious grounds for impeachment because it would erode our whole constitutional tradition of the supremacy of law," Cox told a news conference prior to delivery of a commencement address at the University of Virginia.

"The second thing is the refusal to produce to the House (judiciary) committee evidence that it deems material," Cox said.

"Failure of the committee to treat the refusal as a major ground for impeachment would go far to concede that executive wrongdoing is beyond the reach of any form of law. The person that is being investigated can't be the judge of what is turned over."

Cox said the question raised by Leon Jaworski, his successor as special prosecutor, is whether criminal trials of White House aides can be based "upon consideration of all the evidence found relevant...by due process of law, or shall the evidence from the White House be confined to what a single individual—highly interested in the outcome—is willing to make available?"

Cox's dismissal Oct. 21, 1973, as special prosecutor spurred the first serious drive for impeachment of the President.

JERUSALEM (UPI)—In a last minute decision to salvage his peace mission between Israel and Syria, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger decided today to make one more trip to Damascus to work out a troop disengagement accord on the Golan Heights.

"I just thought that having carried every previous Israeli clarification and view to Damascus, I should do the final lap myself," Kissinger told newsmen on emerging from a two hour meeting with Prime Minister Golda Meir and her disengagement negotiators.

The decision came with dramatic suddenness and may have been made at the request of the Israelis to make one more effort.

"I owed it to everything that both sides had put into it to make the effort," Kissinger said before rushing back to his hotel. "I'll be going in an hour and I'll be back tonight."

Kissinger had originally planned to send Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco to Damascus with Israel's response to the latest Syrian proposals.

Mrs. Meir's cabinet met for four and a half hours to consider the latest proposals and said it would meet again tonight once it gets the clarifications it needs from the Syrians.

Kissinger and Sisco met with Mrs. Meir immediately after the cabinet session and prior to Sisco's departure for Damascus and a meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad for the final word from there.

Assad met today in Damascus with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko about the disengagement deal but Kissinger said Gromyko's visit to Damascus should have no effect on the negotiations. The Arab press carried big headlines today telling of Kissinger's "failure."

"There are still some matters that should be clarified during the day, and tonight the cabinet will meet again to conclude finalities or no," Information Minister Shimon Peres said. He added:

"We shall know later in the evening the results. But, really, now the dealings are on the overall picture as a package deal."

Peres refused to go into the details of the cabinet meeting or the difficulties blocking agreement, saying only that the government discussed "a sumup of the agreement, its political bearings, its geographic arrangements and different military points."

The remaining stumbling blocks, said by a high American official to be tough ones, reportedly included agreement on the width of a buffer zone separating the forces, with Syria wanting a narrower one than Israel.

Attorney General Meir Shamgar was called into the cabinet session, apparently to check over the wording of the agreement just as he had done with the accord on disengagement with Egypt prior to its approval in January.

Evening newspapers struck an optimistic note, with Yedioth Ahronoth saying that "despite the differences that have arisen at the last moment, it is assumed there will be an agreement." The report was uncorroborated.

Kissinger was scheduled to leave late tonight or, more likely, early Wednesday after 31 days of negotiations described as tougher than the ones he undertook to bring about a cease-fire agreement in Vietnam.

Kissinger flew back to Jerusalem Monday night with Syrian proposals for the few remaining issues still blocking an agreement after 31 tiresome days of personal diplomacy.

Kissinger met until early today with Prime Minister Golda Meir. Israeli Information Minister Shimon Peres said later the negotiators would "know definitely" today the outcome of the peace mission.

"The time has come for a general and definitive conclusion about this package deal," Peres said. "It's either no or yes, and the cabinet has to consider the whole picture."

INCLUDING FULBRIGHT, FAUBUS, MORSE

Candidates Face Primary Races

United Press International

In a primary election with national implications, Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman J. William Fulbright puts his 30-year record on the line today against the popular governor of his state. And maverick oldtimers Orval Faubus of Arkansas and Wayne Morse of Oregon are appealing to voters to nominate them for offices they once held.

In Kentucky, Republican Sen. Marlow W. Cook and Democratic Gov. Wendell H. Ford are heavy favorites to win senatorial primaries giving them the right to face each other in November.

Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers, 48, who has not attacked Fulbright's liberal record in foreign affairs — only his age — could stake claim to a place on the Democratic national ticket in 1976 with a victory today. The winner is expected to defeat GOP candidate John Harris Jones in the general election.

Differed Much
Neither the handsome Bumpers, whose image is that of a leader of the "New South," nor the 69-year-old Fulbright, an early opponent of the Vietnam war, differed much on issues.

Bumpers, by asking voters to "join me and help restore our faith in the Democratic process," apparently hoped disconcert with incumbents in Washington would give him the victory. Fulbright, fighting to overcome early deficits in the polls, said he did not want the election to become a popularity contest.

"It's all right to like Dale Bumpers and vote for Bill Fulbright," read one slogan in Fulbright's campaign against the governor, who is the state's best votegetter.

Another of the Senate's antiwar leaders during the 1960s, Wayne Morse of Oregon, tries to recapture the seat he lost six years ago to Republican Robert Packwood, who is running unopposed for renomination.

Morse, 73, faced state senate president Jason Boe in the Democratic primary. Two years ago, Morse won the Democratic nomination but lost to incumbent Republican Mark Hatfield.

Morse's campaign, based on the need for integrity in government, harked back to the days when he was the maverick, dissenting voice of the Senate. He served there as a Republican, Independent and Democrat.

Replace Incumbent
Wide open races were predicted in the two Oregon congressional districts where incumbents are retiring and in the race for the gubernatorial nomination where five candidates would like to replace incumbent Republican Tom McCall, barred by law from succeeding himself.

Arkansas had another spirited campaign in the battle between former six-term Gov. Orval Faubus and former Rep. David Pryor for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Faubus, who defied President Eisenhower's orders to integrate a Little Rock high school in 1957, resulting in the use of federal troops, has not made race a major issue this time, although he has campaigned against busing.

Pryor, a moderate, served in the House before losing a Senate primary two years ago to incumbent John L. McClellan.

A third candidate, Lt. Gov. Bob Riley, could get enough votes to force a runoff primary.

AT FUNERAL

Crowd Gathers To Honor Duke

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ella Fitzgerald, her eyes still red from crying, sang it for everyone at Duke Ellington's funeral: "In my solitude, you haunt me."

The musician and composer died Friday of cancer, and his funeral reflected the love he offered the world in his music.

The estimated 10,000 fans and friends jamming the Episcopal Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine on Manhattan's Upper West Side and overflowing into the street were a cross-section of society — rich and poor, dressed elegantly or in jeans.

They came to pay homage to a man who gave the world 50 years of musical splendor, and who six years ago offered his own musical prayers in the huge gothic cathedral in a "sacred song" concert.

Cotton Club
As crowds gathered at the cathedral Tuesday, the Duke was making his last trip, in a funeral cortege up Broadway and across 125th Street — Harlem's main stem — where more than 40 years ago he hit the big time at the Cotton Club.

The Duke's haunting and sophisticated tunes dominated the funeral. Besides Miss Fitzgerald, jazz stars paying tribute to the Duke were Joe Williams, Earl "Fatha" Hines, Billy Taylor, Jo Jones, Lyle Atkinson and Mary Lou Williams.

The service was a combination of high Episcopal lessons and prayers and musical tributes.

The Duke's long time friend and biographer, Stanley Dance, eulogized Duke Ellington as "a citizen of the world."

"Duke, you made good musicians sound great and great musicians sound even greater," Dance said.

"Some call you a genius but it was really a gift extended from God."

At the end, his voice breaking, he said: "The Duke had a lasting faith in this country. His memories will live in the years to come. He served this country well, and he will go on serving it in the years to come."

The dispute over the issue has sparked a name-calling battle between county judges and convention leaders. Convention President Price Daniel Jr. says he wants to continue to work with the judges, but says the spirit of compromise may be impossible to achieve now.

The second of the general provisions article of the proposed new constitution, and is supposed to be among the first items debated when delegates decide just how they're going to handle the consideration of the general provisions article.

Daniel wants final votes taken on each section as it is debated, and says his proposal could save as much as a week's time. It would also allow the convention to take up the judiciary article again as soon as a compromise is reached on the two remaining issues, rather than delaying another judiciary article vote until the general provisions article is approved.

But convention delegates rejected the section-by-section approach last week, and were asked by Daniel to reconsider their decision during the Memorial Day weekend.

most filling message: "Let your light shine so men can see."

Joe Williams, who sang with the Duke for many years, offered the joyfully introspective Ellington song "My Mother, My Father — and Love."

Played Medley
Pianist Fatha Hines played a medley of Ellington tunes that are woven into memories —

"Mood Indigo," "Sophisticated Lady," "Got It Bad and That Ain't Good," "Satin Doll."

But it was Ella Fitzgerald who filled the cavernous cathedral with Ellington's "Solitude." Then she moved into the traditional hymn, "Just a Closer Walk With Thee," backed by Joe Jones on drums, Lyle Atkinson on bass and Billy Taylor on piano.

Her voice, piped to the street, drifted through the chilly spring air to the hundreds unable to get inside the cathedral.

The Duke always ended his concerts with the message: "I love you madly."

And the Rev. Norman O'Connor, known in New York City as the Jazz Priest, ended his prayer with, "Duke, we thank you. You loved us madly — we will love you madly today, tomorrow and forever."

Two Proposals To Be Settled By Convention

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Two separate proposals that would strengthen the political clout of Texas Legislatures and weaken the position of the governor and county judges remain to be settled this week as Constitutional Convention delegates return from their long holiday weekend.

One of the provisions — giving future legislatures the power to change county courts to circuit courts — is part of the judiciary article that has already been defeated twice, but promised to bob up again today.

The dispute over the issue has sparked a name-calling battle between county judges and convention leaders. Convention President Price Daniel Jr. says he wants to continue to work with the judges, but says the spirit of compromise may be impossible to achieve now.

Saigon Forces Retake Village After Assault

SAIGON (UPI) — Government forces recaptured one of three Communist-held villages 25 miles north of Saigon today with a surprise pre-dawn armored assault across a rickety bridge, field officers said.

Heavy fighting broke out almost immediately at the village of Long Nguyen, which was abandoned by its 1,000 civilian residents May 16 when North Vietnamese forces captured the town.

UPI photographer Lim Thanh Van said Communist shelling on the attacking South Vietnamese ranger force and armored personnel unit killed several soldiers and wounded more than 20 others.

The sudden attack at Long Nguyen, two miles north of Ben Cat district capital, followed a futile two-day effort to storm An Dien village just west of the district town.

Entrenched Communist forces fought off government shock troops trying to recapture An Dien, which lies just across the Thi Tinh River from Ben Cat.

An Tay, a village west of An Dien, also was still in Communist hands today, field officers said.

They said President Nguyen Van Thieu last week ordered the recapture of the three villages by the end of this month.

At Lai Khe, five miles northeast of Ben Cat, government forces killed 41 Communists in beating back an attack, the Saigon command said.

The South Vietnamese government said today that one of Thieu's top personal aides had been fired in a staff cut, but denied reports he had been arrested as a Viet Cong spy.

In Cambodia, guerrilla troops fired seven 107mm rockets into the southeast section of Phnom Penh at dawn today, but caused no casualties or damage.

On Sunday, six 107mm rockets were fired at the capital. Three exploded inside the city limits, killing three persons and wounding 12 others.

Festivities Being Planned For Cow Calling Contest

MRS. JOE CUNNINGHAM

MIAMI (Sp.) — Festivities for the 26th annual National Cow Calling Contest will begin at 8 p.m. May 31 with the presentation of Cow Calling Follies in the Miami High School Auditorium.

Preliminary judging of Miss Miami Beauty contest will also be held at that time.

Max Presnell of Pampa will direct the Follies and the "Miami Stompers" will provide the music.

Winner of the Miss Miami contest will be announced at 2 p.m. June 1, after a party that morning during which three out-of-town judges will interview each contestant.

Contestants for the beauty contest will be Lynn Philpott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Philpott; Tammy Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Jackson; Dee Anne Flowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Flowers; Pam Brogden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brogden.

Also Karren McNair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David McNair; Susie Ehmman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ehmman; Leanne Guill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heare and Glenda Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Turner.

Cow Calling Day activities will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday with a fly-in at the Miami Airport. Those who arrive by plane will be met at the airport and taken to the Community Center for coffee and doughnuts.

Old Timers will begin registering at the Community Center at 9 a.m. Awards will be presented to the person traveling the greatest distance and to the oldest pioneer present.

A basket lunch will be spread at 12 o'clock noon at the Roberts County Park, a block east of the courthouse on Highway 60. In the event of inclement weather, the celebration will be staged in the Roberts County barn on North Main St.

The annual Cow Calling Contest, to begin at 1 p.m., will feature divisions for men, women and grandmothers, with prizes of $50, $25 and $10 given in each division.

The Miami Lions Club will be in charge of children's games and prizes given.

There were several accidents involving multiple fatalities. Four residents of Memphis, Tenn., were killed and five members of an Edinburg, Tex., family were injured in a collision on Interstate 55 near Hayti, Mo. early Monday, and four young people were killed Saturday in a two-car collision near Altha in northern Florida.

The council said most of those killed might have been saved if everybody in a motor vehicle wore seat belts.

Less than half of the persons who died in violent accidents in Texas during the Memorial Day weekend were killed in traffic accidents, possibly an indication of changing driving habits brought about by the energy crisis.

A United Press International survey showed 34 persons died in violent accidents between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday. Of those, 15 were killed in traffic accidents, 10 persons drowned, five persons died in fires, two were killed in a plane crash, one was electrocuted and one man was hit by a train as he walked on the tracks.

President, FRB Head Disagree Over Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The economy is showing encouraging signs, according to President Nixon, but the chairman of the federal reserve board said this weekend that the rate of inflation means "the future of our country is in jeopardy."

The President said in a radio address Saturday that he is asking Congress for a cost of living task force to keep watch on inflation.

The formal request was included in a report to Congress prepared by the President's Council of Economic Advisers which was to be released at noon EDT.

In his Saturday speech Nixon described the task force as a "small, flexible organization within the executive office," which would "monitor wages, prices, industry bottlenecks, supply shortages and other factors that bear on inflation."

In the same speech he reported "encouraging signs" that "the worst is behind us" with respect to inflation and other economic problems.

The next day, Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, took a less optimistic view, telling a commencement audience at Illinois College, Jacksonville, Ill., "If past experience is any guide, the future of our country is in jeopardy. No country I know of has been able to maintain widespread economic prosperity once inflation got out of hand."

Asked about it Monday, presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Burns had a right to his point of view — that Nixon listens to all such views, but that Nixon did not buy Burns analysis.

Robert Wood Presented B&L Science Award

Robert Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Wood, 2220 N. Sumner, was named winner of the annual Bausch and Lomb science award May 17 at Pampa High School.

The Bausch and Lomb science award is especially significant because it recognizes our senior with the highest scholastic standing in science subjects," Principal Don Walker said.

As winner of the award, he is eligible to compete for a four year Bausch and Lomb Science Scholarship at the University of Rochester, Rochester, N.Y. Scholarship winners are selected on merit, and stipends, based on need, could range up to $4,500 per year.

The science award, a bronze medal, is presented each year to winners at more than 8,600 participating schools throughout the United States and Canada.

Surveys indicate that the award has encouraged more than 30 percent of the winners to follow scientific careers.

Bausch and Lomb is a world-wide manufacturer of ophthalmic, analytical and scientific instruments and products. Its headquarters are in Rochester, N.Y.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Halsey sent out 10 letters of application and got 3 requests for immediate interviews. He landed a splendid job on his first call. So use the advice below to shortcut a lot of futile pounding of pavements. Scrapbook this case, too!

CASE A-644: Halsey D., aged 21, is soon to graduate from college.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I understand jobs are no longer served up to college students on a silver platter.

"But I must go to work fast, for I owe my parents $10,000 on my college education."

"And they need the money, so how can I increase my chances of landing a good position?"

HOW GET JOBS

Survey the various trades and occupations so you can narrow down the field.

Then adopt the experienced duck hunter's policy.

He doesn't shoot blindly at the flock overhead but focusses on just one duck.

So study the advertisements in your local newspaper or the trade journals in the special field you wish to enter.

Those journals are usually available in either your public or the college libraries.

If you live in a large city where you may wish to link up with a factory or some other industry, try to get the name of the Employment Manager (Personnel Director) or other top official.

Then send a brief, businesslike letter, addressing it to this man by name.

If you are replying to a blind ad in the newspaper or a trade journal, where only a return box number is listed, then start out your salutation with "Gentlemen" instead of personalized "Dear Mr. Ford."

Remember, too, that the primary purpose of your first letter is just to get an appointment for a personal interview!

So don't fill it with much detail but stress major points.

And unless the advertisement specifically requested a handwritten letter.

you better have it typewritten.

Employers also are more receptive to people who already have jobs, so don't start out by flaunting the fact you are unemployed.

Instead, use this sample first paragraph as your opening and pattern after the "Specimen Letter on Page 759 of my college textbook "Psychology Applied."

"Since I am looking for a position with a company which holds out a future for a person of my experience, I wish to cite the following qualifications:

Then indent rather deeply and tabulate 4 major headings, as:

1. Business Experience
2. School and Technical Training
3. Personal Data
4. References

Under the latter, list 3 or 4 people with "handles" on their names, such as "Judge" or "Advertising Manager" or "President (as of a bank or corporation) and "Reverend."

Briefly outline your major past business experience, listing your major job first.

The goal of this letter is to obtain an interview for you; not get a job, so keep that definitely in mind!

Then dress like an executive, not a long-haired hippie, for long hair on men connotes dirt and inefficiency.

For further advice, consult my textbook at your local library or send for my booklet "Vocational Guidance," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melrose, Indiana 47946. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Business Today

By LEONARD CURRY
UPI Business Writer
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities Investor Protection Corp. (SIPC), created by Congress during the broker-dealer failures five years ago, is beginning to benefit the public.

In fact many, including SIPC Chairman Hugh Owens, believe SIPC definitely proved its worth in 1973.

During the year 30 firms went broke, including the giant Weis Securities Inc. Customers of Weis and the other 29 firms were paid $202 million in securities and cash, including some $35 million from SIPC.

Without the quasi-governmental, nonprofit corporation, thousands of customers of insolvent broker-dealer firms would have lost some or all of their money. The final touch to the protection against loss is the fact it costs the investor nothing.

SIPC provides insurance to the securities industry in much the same way as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation protects deposits of bank customers. SIPC coverage is financed by brokers who are members. They make payments to SIPC of about one-half of one per cent of gross annual sales.

A Severe Test

Since it was created by the Securities Investor Protection Act of 1970, SIPC has built up a fund of $84.7 million to be used to insure the holdings of investors against the failure of SIPC member brokers.

But the growing equity in the fund was put to a severe test last year when Weis and J. Shapiro Co. of Minneapolis folded within 30 days. SIPC distributed $175 million to Weis and Shapiro customers from the remaining assets of the firms and advanced about $24 million from SIPC funds.

Owens says about $9 million will be recovered from the Weis and Shapiro estates, which will reduce the SIPC contribution. Even with that consideration, thousands of customers would have lost $15 million without SIPC.

In all, SIPC distributed $202 million to customers of insolvent brokerage firms including Weis and Shapiro.

The enormity of the payouts is apparent against the fact that only $22 million in advances and insolvent estates was distributed in the two previous years.

Find Weaker Firms

Because of the sharp increase in distributions of securities and cash to customers of insolvent brokers last year, SIPC Chairman Owens intensified contacts with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the exchanges and the National Association of Securities Dealers in an effort to learn earlier which firms may be in financial trouble.

Owens believes the improved liaison will enable SIPC to find the weaker firms early enough to protect more of the customers' assets and require fewer advances from the SIPC fund.

Finding a soft firm is difficult, Owens points out, because about 8 per cent of the failures have been in business for 10 years or more. The bulk of the insolventcies, however, come within the first five years of operation.

More than 40 per cent of the firms that failed were charged with criminal fraud and most of the others were guilty of mismanagement because of faulty records and inexperience, according to data compiled by SIPC.

The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This is the second of a two-part series analyzing the current political situation.

In case you missed the first part, clip out the coupon below and mail it to me in care of your local bandwagon dealer.

"Dear Sir: Please send me a free copy of the first part of your wonderful two-part series analyzing the current political situation. I understand I am under no obligation to purchase a used bandwagon. (Signature)"

The second part of this series, frankly, is an attempt to clear up some of the misunderstandings that arose as a result of the first part.

As you will see when your free copy arrives, my point of departure in the first part was a Gallup Poll on current political leanings.

Gallup found that 38 per cent of the voters considered themselves conservatives, 26 per cent regarded themselves as liberals and 36 per cent were undecided. From this, I predicted that the undecided vote would have a strong bearing on this year's election by giving a good boost to undecided candidates.

That forecast has now been challenged by Dr. Luigi V. Populi, a noted political scientist and bandwagon dealer.

"You make the mistake of assuming that an undecided candidate is someone who, like an undecided voter, can't make up his mind whether he is a liberal or a conservative," Populi writes.

"Actually, an undecided candidate is someone who can't make up his mind whether he should enter the race."

"It is true that undecided voters tend to support undecided candidates in the early stages of an election year. But all races have filing deadlines.

At some point an undecided candidate must announce whether or not he is going to run. When that happens, he loses the advantage of being undecided.

An undecided voter may go through the entire campaign and, indeed, enter the polling booth on election day still not knowing whether he is liberal or conservative.

Unfortunately for him, however, there will be no undecided candidates on the ballot that he can vote for.

Thus the undecided vote, which could be the crucial factor in many races, is effectively negated. Like it or not, an undecided voter is forced to cast his ballot for an avowed candidate."

Okay, I stand corrected. And I agree with Populi that the election laws should be amended by moving back filing deadlines to the day after the election.

That way a candidate could remain undecided until the votes had been counted and he knew whether or not he had won.

Science Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — That familiar warning, "don't swim after eating," should be modified to include "or drinking."

Two public health researchers at Johns Hopkins University reported that a study of 45 adults who drowned in Baltimore from 1968 to 1972 showed that 47 per cent had been drinking alcoholic beverages.

"Although it is possible that these high figures reflect factors unique to the city of Baltimore, our impression based on limited data available from the Maryland counties is that alcohol is a widespread concomitant of adult drownings," said Park E. Dietz and Mrs. Susan P. Baker in a report in the April issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

They said the role of alcohol in drowning has been neglected in both popular and scientific media. One reason, they said, is because tests for alcohol in the blood are not usually made in most areas unless there is reason to believe drinking was a factor.

Couple Will Hit Road Famous Hollywood TV

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Shirley Jones and Jack Cassidy step out of the television tube this month to hit the road with a new husband-wife nightclub act that may help solve their marital problems as well as provide an exciting new Las Vegas attraction.

The couple open at the MGM Grand Hotel June 5, after tryouts in Dallas, Tex., and Lake Geneva, Wis.

Both were optimistic the other day in their Beverly Hills home before embarking on their tour.

"Jack wrote the whole show," Shirley said proudly. "He coordinated all the music and costumes. Everything, I think it's a stroke of brilliance. It's unique."

"What we've done is give our act a theme," Jack explained. "It's the good and bad elements of marriage — with humor and music. It's more than an act. Ours is really a miniature show."

The handsome, blond couple are well versed in the vagaries of marriage.

They have been separated and reconciled and suffered marital ups and downs more publicized than most Hollywood couples.

"When I was doing 'The Partridge Family' series Jack was back in New York in the theater most of the time," Shirley said.

"It's not easy keeping a marriage together under those circumstances," Jack added. "We've had more career separations than any couple I know."

"We are going from one extreme to the other," Shirley said. "First we saw too little of one another. Now we're together almost 24 hours a day. And that isn't easy for a marriage either."

Separations Ended
Both, however, seemed pleased that their new act will put a stop to long separations.

Their marriage had better be harmonious because Jack and Shirley sing 10 duets during the course of the show. Shirley also sings a medley of songs from her hit movie musicals: "Carousel," "Oklahoma" and "The Music Man" among others.

"We haven't worked together since 1959," Cassidy said. "And this new act wasn't our idea to begin with. The Grand Hotel offered us an astounding amount of money to put a show together."

"Shirley was free because 'The Partridge Family' was cancelled, and my own television pilot didn't sell. We had the time and it sounds like a profitable and happy opportunity for both of us."

Few husband-wife teams have had the sex-appeal potential of the Cassidys. In the past there have been Cyd Charisse and Tony Martin, Steve Lawrence and Edye Gorme, Robert Goulet and Carol Lawrence, and Sheila and Gordon MacRae.

Jack has been working on the act for four months, a labor he says he wouldn't want to try again.

"We sang together 15 years ago," Shirley said. "And we're fortunate that our voices blend very naturally together. Jack even wrote optional material in case either one of us come down with Vegas throat."

Jack and Shirley shared a family smile. Their new lifestyle seems to suit them both — so far.

The gain-in-life expectancy for women since 1900 has been greater than for men at nearly all ages. Life expectancy at age 40, for example, was about 1.4 years longer for a woman than a man at the turn of the century. It is now 6.1 years longer.

Opinions vary on the question of bra size

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: When Dad asked his 17-year-old daughter what size bra she wore, she told him it was none of his business. Her mother agreed with her, and you sided with both of them. Dad worked for 17 years to provide the food that went into the tissue which created his daughter's breasts, but it's none of his business what size they are. CRAZY!

I deem it impudent for the daughter and her mother to even question Dad's right to this information. As long as he's supporting her, every part of her development is his business.

Boys get too big for their britches, and girls get too big for their brassieres when they can get away with telling Dad that something is none of his business.

I'll bet you will hear from plenty of readers on this.

FRANK IN OREGON

DEAR FRANK: You bet right. And the mail is running 20 to one against me!

Let's set the record straight, Frank. When Dad asked his budding daughter what size bra she wore, nobody told Dad it was "none of his business."

Daughter became embarrassed and declined to answer. Mother sided with Daughter saying she didn't think it was anything Dad had to know, and I took the distaff side.

Read on for a letter from a like-minded physician who said it better than I:

DEAR ABBY: May I say that the father who felt he had a "right" to know his teen-aged daughter's bra size was out of line?

My daughters are 18 and 20, and I have no idea what size bras they wear, and I couldn't care less.

I think that father should have been more concerned with his daughter's feelings than the size of her bra.

OLD-FASHIONED FATHER

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from the woman who recommends sending back "junk mail" so the company must pay the return postage and will remove her name from their mailing list.

I hope you don't agree with this policy, Abby. My husband and I started a small business, producing a high quality item, well worth its price. We can't afford national advertising, so we use direct mail advertising to inform people of our product and give them a chance to examine it before they buy.

On the few occasions when people have returned our envelopes stuffed with extra paper, I am more saddened than angry. It shows so much hostility and aggression. If the recipient isn't interested in the product, why not just throw the mail away?

I hope you feel that this is important enough for your column. It means a great deal to the small business people who rely on direct mail for their sales. Thank you.

STRUGGLING

DEAR STRUGGLING: And thanks for giving me the opportunity to open a few million eyes.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LEFT OUT": Don't pressure him to meet his family. Even though he is separated from his wife, he is still married. Obviously, he doesn't want his family to meet YOU.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212.

Civic Culture Club Holds 'Sand Dollar' Installation

Mrs. A.B. Cross was hostess to the Civic Culture Club in her home at 2425 Christine, May 14.

After the pledge to the United States Flag and the salute to the Texas Flag by the group, Mrs. Carl Smith read the minutes of the last meeting, and Mrs. George Neef gave the treasurer's report.

A cordial welcome was extended to a guest, Mrs. R.D. Patton of Clyde, Tex. Mrs. Patton is Mrs. Smith's daughter.

Mrs. A.D. Hills, president shared with the group an interesting letter she had received from a woman of the Philippines, Remy Warain. It is very lonely on her island, Culion, which is a leprosy retreat. As Mrs. Rife requested letters, all the members took her address.

The Gold Medal coupons were collected for Girlstown and a donation was voted for the City Beautification Program.

Mrs. D.A. Rife gave "A Summary of Our Year."

The new officers were installed in a very impressive way by Mrs. Carl Patchin. As each was "pinned" with a sand dollar, and given her charge, Mrs. Patchin wove in the legend of the sand dollar: "This most unusual of marine life specimens has markings that symbolize the Life of Christ. The five narrow openings represent the four nail holes and the wound in the crucified body of Christ. On the front side, the outline of the Easter lily is clearly seen with the five-pointed Star of Bethlehem in the center. The back reveals a Christmas nativity scene."

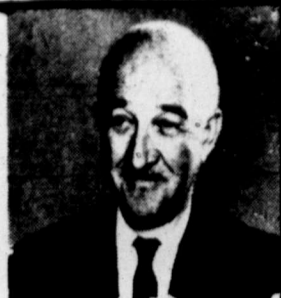

Legend has it that if the sand dollar is broken, the shell releases Five little Doves of Peace. Some say these are the Angels that sang to the shepherds on the first Christmas morning.

New officers are Mrs. D.A. Rife, president; Mrs. Teresa Reed, vice president; Mrs. Chester Williams, membership chairman; Mrs. Carl Smith, recording secretary; Mrs. George Neef, treasurer; Mrs. A.D. Hills, parliamentarian; and Mrs. A.B. Cross, reporter. Additional members and guest were Mmes. E.L. Anderson, Irwin Cole, F.R. Grantham, J.J. Rance, Emmett-Gee, W.F. Taylor, and Lucille Patton.

The year's pressbook, made by Mrs. J.J. Rance, was passed around and enjoyed during the refreshment hour.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

If one were to look at the North-South hands in the diagram below, it would be observed that declarer has a loser in each suit. It would be equally apparent that there is no place to park any of the losers; and that his four-spade contract appears doomed to defeat.

But, as will be observed, one of the losing tricks disappeared. The deal came up in the 1974 National Championships.

Neither side vulnerable. East deals.

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

After winning the opening heart lead with dummy's ace, declarer led a low trump. When East played the ten, South won the trick with his king. A second trump lead was taken by East's ace.

East returned the queen of hearts to the board's king. Now declarer made a play that had everything to gain and nothing to lose: he led the three of diamonds and when East followed suit with the nine, South "finessed" his ten. West's queen captured the trick.

As West viewed the set-up, South was trying to establish the diamond suit. And West wasn't going to help him by returning a diamond. So West made a mistake: he returned a low jack. South captured the trick with his queen.

Declarer next cashed his ace of diamonds, after which he led a low trump to the board's nine-spot. Dummy's remaining diamond was then ruffed in the closed hand. Diamonds had just been eliminated from both the North and South hands.

Now South led his ace of clubs, and this was followed by the nine of clubs. West taking the trick with his king, West had just become the victim of an end play, for he had no choice but lead either a diamond or his remaining club.

Actually he chose to ruff a diamond, which was led with the board's last trump. On this trick South discarded his losing heart.

If when West took South's ten of diamonds with his queen, he had returned a diamond, he would have avoided being end played. But how could he have known the true setup?

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MAY 29

Your birthday today: You are now at the final stage of a long search for a practical foundation. Puzzles are resolved quickly and forgotten as you plunge on into fresh adventures in lively daily living. Relationships are difficult, confusing for a while, then they clear up and become very comfortable. Today's natives are anxious to get on with life, usually quite articulate in expressing themselves.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: There's great wisdom in making sense out of your studies—today you see what you couldn't see before. Short journeys produce results; long journeys are better postponed.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Being on the job early gives you a passing opportunity for special personal achievement. Bring home symbolic gifts; celebrate your progress and prosperity!

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: There's a mystery to be passively investigated—asking questions will close the doors. Merely listen while you pursue ongoing routine. Competitors in general are headed elsewhere.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: Inspiration arrives and provides power for much day-dreaming or incisive planning according to how you discipline yourself. Be sure you make notes of some sort as you go.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Finances improve with normal efficiency but still are not helped by speculation, haste. Whatever you do for yourself unassisted is at least thoroughly within your own competence.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: You can definitely get what you want in personal matters. Collaboration on the job also works out well, brings great strides forward. Share the evening with selected company.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Attend to the more urgent details you have been putting off. Major changes will find a better later date. Health care and maintenance should be looked into today.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Draw on contacts or friends to further your own projects. Settle legal or other formal issues, get done with their tensions. Evening is excellent for entertainment.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: What you do now has a lasting impact on your career and welfare. Associates are easier to get along with. Make it quiet public relations rather than noisy action.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Self-improvement features the day, even though it comes in the middle of urgent routines. Concentrate on special matters which need only a little push for completion.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Continued financial prudence is essential. A balance may tip in your favor on a long-wavering contest—if you're consistent. Personal work has no substitute.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Family rearrangements seem inevitable as individuals come to view themselves and others in a new light. Much good can be done.

College Notes

LAVERNE, Okla. — Mark Eugene Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones, formerly of Pampa, graduated from Laverne High School May 21. He plans to enter the field of diesel mechanics.
He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. O.O. Jones, 724 E. Francis, and nephew of Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Boland, 801 E. Francis.

STILLWATER, Okla. — Andy Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Cole, south of Pampa, received the $400 Oklahoma Feed Manufacturers Association scholarship for the 1974-75 academic year at Oklahoma State University.
The award is presented to the OSU graduate who is selected as the most outstanding among those studying for the PhD degree in animal nutrition.

WARRENSBURG, Mo. — Timothy J. Duke, son of Rev. and Mrs. J.W. Duke, formerly of Pampa and now living in Hobart, Okla., received the Charno award for outstanding citizenship, the highest award for a graduating male student at Central Missouri State University.

Duke earned a bachelor of arts degree as a speech-communication major with a political science minor and graduated Summa Cum Laude. His grade point average for four years of academic work is 3.86.

SALINA, Kan. — Everett "Mike" Morgan, brother of Mrs. Artie M. Moultrie of 906 S. Wilcox, received a bachelor of science degree with a major in economics and business administration May 19 from Marymount College.
Morgan is a 1962 graduate of Carver High School, plans to do graduate work in data processing management, join the U.S. Navy and receive an officer's commission.

BORGER — Eight area students graduated recently from Frank Phillips College.
They are John Joseph Ryzman, 1008 Terry Rd., Pampa; Glenda Sue Trapp, Wynn Wesson Fleming, William Michael Jackson and Eva Dee Kinsey, Perryton; Garry Ray Gortmaker, Skellytown; Juan Chavez Lopez, Groom; and Carolyn Janice Nichols, White Deer.

PORTALES, N.M. — James Curtis Barnard, Pampa, received his master of arts degree in music education from Eastern New Mexico University recently. He was one of 750 candidates for graduation.

AMARILLO — Graduates of Pampa High School who received certificates from Amarillo College recently were Barry Allison, drafting technology; John E. Clark, Jr., drafting technology; Shirley Dawes and Roby Laycock, medical records technology; Darrell Nip, mid-management; Carol Leon Phillips, retailing and merchandising; and Cynthia Ann Welch and Eva Marie Whiteley, dental hygiene. All received applied science certificates.
Belinda J. Young was awarded a certificate in medical office secretary from the School of Technology.
Certificates from the School of Vocational Arts were awarded to Linda Kay Hall, vocational nursing, and Lowell Andrew Henning, air conditioning-refrigeration.
Norvel C. Simpson, a Mobeetie High School graduate, received a certificate in industrial welding.

GEORGETOWN — Brian Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Duncan, 2110 Charles; Fred Thompson, son of Mr. J.E. Thompson, 1912 Dogwood; and Susan Zlomke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zlomke, 2529 Aspen, were awarded their diplomas from Southwestern University May 12.

STEPHENVILLE — Two Pampans graduated from Tarleton State University May 12.
Receiving the bachelor of science degree in agriculture was Rodney F. Crow, son of Mr. Floyd L. Crow, east of city.
Cara Tidwell Stone received the bachelor of science degree in elementary education. Mrs. Stone is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Tidwell, 1164 Neel Rd.

SHAWNEE, Okla. — Larry D. Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ray, 2709 Rosewood, received his bachelor of arts degree in social sciences from Oklahoma Baptist University May 25. He was one of 270 graduates.

FORT WORTH — Two Pampa residents are among some 1,000 Texas Christian University students who were expected to complete degree requirements and receive their diplomas during spring commencement recently.
They are Raymond Hampton, BBA in business management, and Deborah Veale, bachelor of arts in biology.

ABILENE — Cynthia Marie Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Carter, 1906 Chestnut, Pampa, received her bachelor of music degree from Hardin-Simmons University May 12.

GOODWELL, Okla. — Four area students graduated from Panhandle State College May 12.

V. Suzanne Anderson from Canadian received a bachelor of science degree in secretarial science.
Barbara V. Ivie earned a bachelor of science in elementary education. Cassie Pearson received a bachelor of science degree in homemaking and physical education. Both are from Perryton.
Dean L. Rogers, Wheeler, received a bachelor of science degree in psychology.

AUSTIN — Joe Don Nienstiel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Z. Nienstiel, 2217 Duncan, was placed on the fall semester honor roll in the College of Natural Sciences at the University of Texas.

Robert Todd Lemmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Lemmons, 2113 Christine, placed on the electrical engineering honor roll from the College of Engineering.

Broil drained canned peaches and serve with ham or pork chops. To do so place peaches, cavity side up, in a shallow pan; place a spoonful of brown sugar and a little butter in each cavity; broil until hot through.

Books

All the President's Men, by Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward. (Simon and Schuster, $8.95)

Bernstein and Woodward are the Washington Post reporters who kept digging into a "third rate burglary" at the Watergate and came up with a Pulitzer prize.
When it all started they were obscure. Now it's another matter and what they possibly can do for an encore is inconceivable.

Their book, written in the third person, isn't meant to be that encore—it is only incidentally the story of Watergate. It is very much the tale of how two young men, barely acquainted and mutually suspicious at the start, learned teamwork to the point where their colleagues referred to them jointly as "Woodstein."

Even more, and here's where the fascination lies, it's the story behind the front page stories; how sources were developed, how hints and clues were confirmed into fact.

The story was unlike most almost from the beginning — before there was a question of it reaching the Oval Office of the President. The trouble was that there were not quotable, attributable sources. The few who would speak were reluctant or afraid to go on the record. That made it necessary to crosscheck each fact—call sources at Justice, the FBI, in the Administration, to try out the information on them.

There was Hugh Sloan, former aide to H. R. Haldeman, who had quit in dismay his post as treasurer of the Committee to Re-elect the President. Sloan's ethical code forced him into becoming a confirmation source for the reporters.
Most intriguing, there was Deep Throat, who worked at the White House and would meet Woodward by prearranged signal at 2 a.m. in an underground garage. The book doesn't reveal Deep Throat's identity, which is ethical but frustrating.

Watergate is one of the all-time great newspaper stories and the way it all came about is equally compelling.
Joan Hanauer (UPI)

Darling, I Am Growing Old, by Gene Stone. (Houghton Mifflin, $5.95) This frothy first novel is the answer to whether there can be sex—even adultery—after retirement age. The scene is Sunset Acres, a retirement community developed by Elysian Fields Realty Co., and the central characters are no spring chickens. But they act as if they were—without being ridiculous—and the results are funny, touching and surprising.

Ladies and Gentlemen-Lenny Bruce! by Albert Goldman, from the journalism of Lawrence Schiller. (Random House, $10) Comedian Lenny Bruce got into a lot of trouble by using the sort of (expletive deleted) words that have become a lot less eyebrow-quirking in today's society. He was a sick man, not because of his obscenities but because of his suicidal drug addiction and destructive relationships with wife and mother.

Kilgaren, by Isabelle Holland. (Weybright and Talley, $6.95) Kilgaren, unlikely as it sounds, is the name of a Caribbean island—a tiny semi-fabled principality off Jamaica ruled by the British Kilgaren family for several centuries. It's an unusual setting for a Gothic, in which the intrigue is tied in with island politics and rebellion as the few white landholders want to hold on to their position, the islands are divided and the Kilgaren Lord equivocal.

The House and Crafts Book, compiled by Annelike Hoogewegen. Humy Eijlders van der Tonnekreek, Noortje de Roy and Thea Wamelink, translated by Patricia Crampton. (Dial, $8.95) A great rainy day entertainment for every member of the family. The do-it-yourself projects range from cake frosting pictures children can make to stylized lamp shades and a wealth of simple furniture and furnishing designs to make the most of small quarters. The ideas originated in Denmark and Sweden.

SELF-SUPPORTING HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Agricultural operations, industries and construction projects combine to make the Texas prison system virtually self-supporting.

How About Day For Aunts, Uncles?

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Don't play uncle with me," wrote Horace in his "Satires."

"Visit your aunt, but not every day," crudely counsels Benjamin Franklin in Poor Richard's Almanac.
"My aunt! My poor deluded aunt!" wrote Oliver Wendell Holmes.

There's also this brilliant observation by John Ray in "English Proverbs": "If my aunt had been a man, she'd have been my uncle."

And, of course, there's "Uncle Tom and Uncle Shylock."

Literature certainly has dealt unkindly with uncles and aunts.
But no more unkindly than the civilization we know today.

On June 16 it'll be Father's Day. Following, by one month, Mother's Day.

But scan the calendar as you will, you'll find no Uncle's Day. No Aunt's Day. This is to ask, why not?

What have aunts and uncles done to deserve such universal disregard?
I ask the question for all the uncles and aunts of the world. Including myself, an uncle 12 times over, and my wife, an aunt also 12 times over.

We have, alas, no children of our own. But nieces and nephews? Galore!
Christenings and Christmas, birthdays, communions, graduations, all of them have been gifted on all these endless occasions and more. Or cuddled, diapered, patted, buried, bathed, congratulated, encouraged, sympathized with, read to. Or bedded down and fed for weekends or weeks, or taken to the circus, to playgrounds, to ball games, to the movies, on picnics, or swimming, or fishing, or Easter parading.

You name it and we've done it, for and with the whole dozen.

And who notices? Where's the tribute?

Has even one of these kids or their parents ever sent a card saying "Happy Uncle's Day" or "To My Dear Sweet Aunt on Aunt's Day"?

They have not indeed. Oh, sure. They've said their thanks you. They're nice kids, and polite.

But where's the status? Where is the universal recognition, the world gives so loosely to mothers and fathers? To grandmothers. By gosh even to mothers-in-law.

Uncles and aunts are forgotten people, that's plain. And most unjust. Happy Father's Day? Bah!

IT'S NOT PEANUTS
NEW YORK (UPI) — Americans gobble an average of eight and one-half pounds of goobers per person per year. That's one and one-half pounds more peanuts than the per capita consumption ten years ago, says the Cornell University Extension Service. The increase apparently is due to the high price of other protein foods such as beef, poultry and dairy products.

Simon Leans To Gold

Former Secretary of the Treasury John Connally predicted the demise of gold as a monetary instrument. He is not likely to win any medals, gold or otherwise, for prophesy. For just recently the Wall Street Journal reported that the new Treasury Secretary, William Simon, leans toward a lifting of the ban on private ownership of gold.

We haven't read anything that explains the reversal of thinking on high political levels. If private ownership of gold was bad one year ago, why is it good today? We will offer a couple of explanations, based on background information.

First, the politicians are running out of money. This has happened before. On previous occasions, however, they had the option of issuing Federal Reserve banknotes — which had enough governmental power behind them to make them acceptable as legal tender. In other words, the banknotes are good because you can still use them to pay off debts previously incurred. But that can't go on forever. As the paper dollar continues its slide down hill, the prospect arises that individuals will refuse to extend credit payable in what we have come to know as conventional dollars. When that stage is reached, normal business comes to a shrieking halt. Factories no longer would be able to distribute their product. Millions would lose their jobs. All would suffer. Many — especially among the elderly and infirm — would not survive.

With such a grim likelihood in view, it is plausible that even politicians would look around for some means of avoiding it. The pointed question is how to provide some means of exchange when the current exchange media no longer are effective. Follow-up question would be: Well, what did we use for purchasing media before Federal Reserve banknotes were devised? That line of thinking, of course, leads back to a re-consideration of gold and silver.

A second probable explanation does not exclude the first. It is that so many individuals are ignoring the ban on gold ownership that enforcement becomes more hopeless with each passing day. Thus the prohibition on gold travels the same path as the recent prohibition on alcoholic beverages. Unlike moral laws, man-made laws have a destruct mechanism. When people make enforcement too bothersome for the powers — that is, the law is changed or repealed or violations are overlooked.

While we understand the merit of gold, we certainly would not wish to be confused with those who call for a return to the gold standard. Any government-set standard amounts to an attempt to force a value upon individuals who would not accept it on its merit. The only standard that business requires is a free standard; that is, the latitude for all commodities — including the traditional monetary metals — to seek their own levels in the marketplace. Legislation is not necessary to assure contracts. The courts have shown their ability to follow, interpret, apply, and uphold the practices of the marketplace.

Lifting the ban on gold will prove embarrassing to the politicians. Frankly, we do not believe such programs as government welfare can work in the absence of an inflationary currency. This embarrassment explains the reluctance of politicians to accept the inevitable return to gold. We hope they do see fit to repeal the ban and avoid the tragic debacle of a moneyless society. The legislation already has been enacted. Only a presidential order is required.

OUTRIDER

Agnew's Ghostly Assistance

By GARRY WILLS

Mark Twain gallantly defended Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy's claim that her writings were inspired. He noticed that a strange thing happened to her prose when the winds of inspiration came over her. It became grammatical.

Twain should be here now to defend Spiro Agnew, who says he is afraid people will think his prose is inspired — or, more literally, haunted. He does not like the fact that some people believe his new novel is being ghosted. He should not exercise himself over the thought. Applying Twain's tests, we can prove from internal evidence that no one else would have bothered to write the excerpt Mr. Agnew just published in the "Ladies' Home Journal."

Item: "This was the tough negotiator who carved out the big bargains at SALT VI and VII in Geneva — the agreements that left the U.S. on the fork in the road that led to eventual mediocrity." No ghost able to hire his work out for pay would be guilty of a sentence like that. Mr. Agnew protests that "I am already a writer," but we can let that minor white lie slip by.

in order to defend his honor as sole author of the novel.

A writer would know that a fork does not lead anywhere. It is the job of the fork to divide, not to lead. It brings the leading process to a temporary halt, until choice is made among the two or more paths into which the road has been bifurcated (or trifurcated, or whatever). Before anyone can be led anywhere, he must go beyond the fork down a single lane, leaving the fork behind him.

Yet Mr. Agnew's America, in order to reach mediocrity, does not take any path at all. It simply gets left "on" a fork, and that very leaving is meant to be a simultaneous leading, a travel on toward "eventual mediocrity" (a concept much like an extreme middle or an ultimate penultimate).

Item: This polished, assured, handsome man as the ultimate synthesis of the new Soviet image. One cannot have a mixture of one. To synthesize is to join — to join, say, a new image with an old one, or several old images in such a way as to produce a new one. But neither of these processes would be described as an "ultimate synthesis of the... image."

It is clear what Mr. Agnew is trying to say. But it is just as clear that he is not succeeding. And no qualified ghost would huff and puff at such an easy task, and then ostentatiously fail. Mr. Agnew meant that the Russian gentleman was the final embodiment of forces that had made themselves felt comparatively recently (so the resulting image is new) yet over a sufficient time to allow some development (one that might reach an "ultimate" stage).

Once this idea slowly formed itself in the mists of Mr. Agnew's mind, advertising terms like "image" and a hifalutin noun like "synthesis" were slapped in as good enough to paw the idea in the air before us, and let us spell it out for ourselves with the effort he was unequipped to make.

Item: "Incommunicative" is not a word. Some dictionary probably assured the gullible Mr. Agnew that it is, and he had no way of knowing it was wrong.

Item: Infinitives may, on occasion, be split — but not so crudely, in such a short sentence, with another misused word that does the splitting. "They had yet to even share a kiss." Did they take uneven shares?

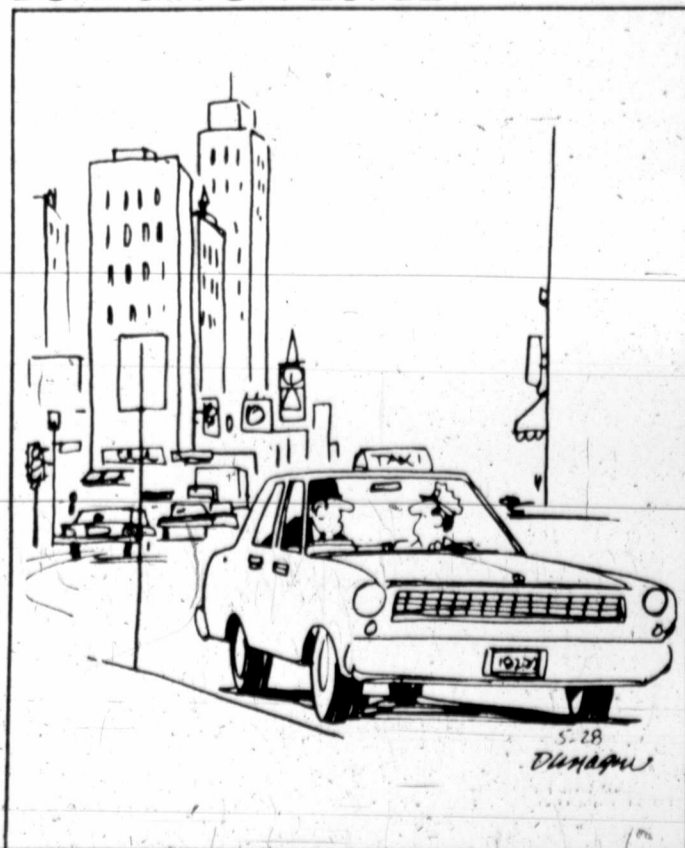

Item: When a woman's name is Meredith Lord, only someone totally insensitive to words would have her colleague with lecherous intent remark, "Lord, he thought, what sensational legs she has."

Mr. Agnew should give up his devotion to pure literary mediocrity, and scout around for whatever spirit of ghost or hired pen will "inspire" (i.e., save) his prose. If ever anyone stood in need of ghostly assistance, it is Mr. Agnew.

Unrequited justice doesn't go away. The residue of the tragedy is still there on the campus. My hope is that anything that is done by the Justice Department will be cleansing and redemptive.

INSIDE LABOR

Wage Demands Running Wild

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — There must be a touch of Noel Coward in Teamsters' president Frank Fitzsimmons. He flew to San Diego the other day to confer with leaders of the union's powerful National Construction Division and advised them it just wasn't enough not to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs — "don't give it a hysterectomy" when new wage fringe demands are laid on the bargaining table this summer.

And California is just the place for such advice. With no federal controls, no wage ceilings or reviews, no stabilization act, no nothing, tough regional construction union chiefs are rocketing through the roof with demands which make the open sky increases of 1970-71 appear penny-ante.

They've gone wild. Some of them are turning down contractors' offers of $25 increase per week per construction union member. In San Jose (Calif.) the plumbers Local 393 just "won" the equivalent of $73.20 a week increase per 40-hour week — in one year. It was effective May 1. That's a $1.83-an-hour jump. The men already were earning $10.96 an hour. And that's before overtime. Small wonder my good friend, the gentle Bill McGill, president of Columbia University, says college degrees really have been overrated.

Further, this now starts as the bargaining bottom for the plumbers' Local 38, San Francisco — a juggernaut. Very little stops the union — which incidentally keeps a pretty tight reign on new applications. I know young men who have literally begged for a chance to join and earn a living in the Bay Area. They have about as much chance as I have skiing up Mount Everest. Thus Local 38 may well set the pattern for the entire Bay Area as the multi-trades contracts are negotiated these coming weeks. It is reported they expect to get more than the San Jose local did because that one was just on a wage reopener.

Remember, this is for just one year. Negotiations resume for the '75-76 year in a comparatively few months. And as California goes — so go the nation's hard hats. But don't for a second believe that this sprouts only in the Pacific sun. Construction contractors are in trouble all the way from Dubuque, Iowa (an especially troubled state on the building front these days), to Kansas City (where everything is mighty up to date) and Philadelphia.

There are 113 critical construction strikes in the U.S. at this moment. Stoppages have hit Baton Rouge, La., and virtually all big centers in Iowa. I count at least a billion dollars in work disrupted.

The hard hats are playing for big stakes — and getting them. In Philadelphia, for example, the construction trades (multi-trades) just settled for 90 cents an hour increase during one year — or $36 a week increase per man per 40-hour week. The average increase has been 45 to 65 cents per hour in recent years. So it's beginning to double. Some settlements there are coming in higher. There have been plumbers' and pipefitters "agreements" increasing wages $1 an hour atop a previous pay of $8.60.

And there's a New Mexico statewide ironworkers' union pact calling for $1.10-an-hour jump over the old base rate of $8.14. And for a one-year contract.

They're going wild. The local leaders are listening to their constituents — now younger, more eager, more interested in quick "break."

They're heading — the statistics show — for increases of 20 percent a year in cash. More in fringes. They're not heading their national officers. The international plumbers headquarters here were not involved in the San Jose negotiations, they say. They were not even consulted. They also hear the contractors "fragmented" and "surrendered."

It should be recalled that in '70 and '71 the construction unions not only tipped the scale, they smashed it. This is the nation's biggest industry — doing well over $133 billion business annually. Other unions followed their fashion and rates — right into the wage-price control trap.

Recognizing all this, the 41-year-old Building and Construction Trades Department (AFL-CIO) president-elect, Bob Georgine, said recently:

"I would like to say one final word about the position of the Department to end wage controls (sic) with which I am in complete agreement. Let us take heed of the fact that if sensational and dramatic rises in wage levels should take place after decontrol even in isolated cases there will be a corresponding movement towards the return of wage controls."

Some say the sooner the better. That goose is flying mighty high.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON

Rusk's Memory Lapses In Wiretap Testimony

By CLARK MOLLENHOF

WASHINGTON — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk either has an exceedingly bad memory or is engaged in an intentional misrepresentation to the Congress on the question of electronic eavesdropping and wiretapping when he headed the State Department.

In testimony, Rusk has told a Senate subcommittee that he knows of no eavesdropping or wiretapping of State Department employees during the Kennedy or Johnson administrations.

And, in a burst of self-righteousness totally out of character with his active role in the cover-up in a case involving Security Evaluator Otto Otepka, Rusk suggested he would have quit his post as Secretary of State had such taps been placed on his staff members without his knowledge.

"There would have been someone else in my office the next day," Rusk told the Joint Foreign Relations and Judiciary subcommittees. He said he had strong feelings against some of the tactics engaged in by the Nixon Administration in recent years.

Rusk, now a teacher of international law at the University of Georgia, may have had no role in the decisions to "get Otepka" by burglarizing his office safes, putting a tap on his telephone and installing a "bug" in his office.

But, thousands of pages of testimony before congressional committees on the infamous ordeal of Otto Otepka demonstrate the Secretary of State knew of the controversy over the illegal wiretapping and night-time entry of Otepka's safe. Rusk also took an active part in covering up for the individuals engaged in the shameful efforts to frame Otepka, who was branded "an enemy" of the Kennedy administration.

Otepka's crime that won him a priority position on the Kennedy administration's enemy list was his truthful testimony before the Senate Internal Security Committee on certain laxities in the administration of the State Department employee security program.

Otepka, a long-time civil servant and expert security evaluator, gave his frank and forthright opinion on a Kennedy administration appointee and refused to change his report.

As a proper-disciplined bureaucrat, he noted that his superiors could overrule him if they wished to take the responsibility for the clearance of the individual involved.

When Otepka was called before the Senate committee, his testimony was in direct contradiction with that of one of his superiors, John F. Reilly, then the Deputy Assistant Secretary of State.

In proving that he was telling the truth and that Reilly's testimony was inaccurate, Otepka produced three documents from his files that conclusively corroborated his testimony as to what he had told Reilly about the security matter.

According to unchallenged testimony before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, Reilly and two other state department officials — Elmer Dewey Hill and David Belisle — embarked on the "Get Otepka" effort complete with burglary, eavesdropping, wiretapping, and personal surveillance. It was done with a fervor worthy of a Charles Colson, John Ehrlichman or H.R. Haldeman of the Nixon administration.

That subcommittee engaged in direct correspondence with Secretary Rusk on the eavesdropping and wiretapping after Reilly, Hill and Belisle under oath made broad categorical denials of any knowledge of any eavesdropping or wiretapping.

Rusk and the State Department legal office took part in approval of letters written by Reilly, Hill and Belisle in which they admitted they had tapped Otepka's telephone and bugged his office. But they insisted their denials under oath were justified because "static" on the wire made the effort "ineffective."

Even this ludicrous explanation was false, for Hill later admitted that there were "a dozen" recordings made of Otepka's conversations, that he had told Reilly and Belisle about these recordings and that they had in fact listened to them with comments indicating some of it would be helpful in the "Get Otepka" effort.

Hill testified that on Reilly's instructions he gave the recordings to an unidentified man who met him in a State Department corridor. Reilly later testified that he had no recollection of any recordings, conversations with Hill or instructions to Hill.

This took place under Secretary of State Dean Rusk, whose response was to force the resignation of Hill, who played much the same role as John Wesley Dean in the current Watergate controversy.

Belisle's conduct was totally condoned by the State Department where he remained and was promoted under the Rusk regime. Reilly was permitted to resign from the State Department with no derogatory report in his personnel record, and the Kennedy administration found a proper place for this wiretapper as a hearing examiner at the Federal Communications Commission.

Otepka was noted recently that in a June, 1967, hearing he was informed by Irving Jaffe, a Justice Department lawyer, that the taped conversations could not be produced because they had been destroyed.

The action has similarities to the Nixon administration's effort to install L. Patrick Gray as permanent director of the FBI after learning of his role in the illegal destruction of papers from the White House safe of convicted Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt.

Repetition of the documented story of Rusk's responsibility in the Otepka matter isn't intended to minimize crimes of Nixon administration officials. Rather, it demonstrates that lack of integrity in high places is not a unique characteristic.

The wheels of progress are not turned by cranks.

H. L. Hunt Writes

FUTURE MURDER

Experts at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have calculated on the computers that two percent of the children born this year in the United States eventually will become murder victims. This deduction presents a frightening picture for a future generation and it flashes to this generation a warning signal that we had better do something about crime now.

Experienced prosecutors and homicide investigators were hard put to curtail the ever-climbing murder rate when the Supreme Court of the U.S. decided three years ago that capital punishment was "cruel and unusual" and that it was therefore unconstitutional. The death penalty had been the best deterrent of murder. Capital punishment was commanded to be used in Biblical times to curtail serious crimes.

Fortunately, the Supreme Court left the door open for state legislatures to enact new death penalty laws and many of the states have passed the necessary legislation. The Federal government also is seeking to reinstate capital punishment. The capital punishment statute is a necessary tool in the fight against crime, especially murder.

The defense of this nation against foreign aggression is of paramount importance, of course, but it is also vital that we secure our persons, houses and papers and businesses. Internal defense must come first. We should support our police and prosecutors to the fullest extent and prove the experts at MIT wrong.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS

Little League presidents and-or coaches do need to start bringing in game results and standings, especially since the season is swiftly coming to a close.

Only once this season, has anyone brought in results. When concerned people call me and ask why no coverage is being given to Little League, I have to tell them that it seems those in charge don't really care. If they cared, they would spend the 15 minutes or whatever it takes to write down the results and bring them to this office.

Babe Ruth coverage has been limited but the hierarchy there has promised to start keeping the public informed. Last Thursday night, Pampa Daily News photographer Bill Kincaid went out to the ball park to take pictures of a Babe Ruth game for use in Friday's newspaper.

He was told to get out, and the umpire who did so did not even ask why he was there. "Nobody's allowed inside the gates to the field," the umpire told me after the incident. However, the truth is newspaper photographers ARE authorized inside the gates.

Kincaid will be at Optimist Park at 8 p.m. today, and hopefully he won't be ejected, as the two Babe Ruth First place teams, Ideal and the Lion's Club are meeting. Both teams are tied with 6-9 records.

The Pampa Tennis Club's Mixed Doubles Tournament is over. Winners are Joe Zuerker and Mary Hughes, who defeated Jack Scott, Jr., and Cassandra Mangold, 6-7, 6-3, 7-5, in the finals.

Jack Scott, Sr., and Elaine Scott captured third place by stopping Curtis and Cathy Dann, 6-3, 6-2.

In semi-final matches, Zuerker and Hughes downed Bob and Betty Blake, 7-6, 4-6, 6-4, and Scott and Mangold beat Joe Davis and Becky Setliff, 6-4, 6-1. In consolation semis, Jack and Elaine Scott beat Warren Wilson and Jean Franklin, 6-1, 6-1, and the Dann team downed Tony Frogge and Cindy Burns, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5.

"The fine play of the younger players (Scott, Jr., Miss Mangold, Frogge and Miss Burns) is a tribute to the coaching of Alton Setliff," said Joe Davis, tourney director.

Setliff, Pampa High's tennis coach the past two years, will be leaving Pampa soon to assume his new duties as tennis coach at Lubbock Monterey.

Pampa's Max Hickey, recent winner of the Men's City Tournament, came in second to Lloyd Moody of El Reno, Okla., by six strokes at the Memphis Country Club Invitational golf tournament over the Memorial Day weekend.

Moody, well-known to Pampans as a past winner of the Top O' Texas tournament, shot rounds of 66-68-69 for a 203 total. Hickey shot a 209 for his second place finish.

Pampa's Elmer Wilson won the first flight in the tourney with a 218.

Kenneth Gowdy of Pampa won the championship flight at the Elk City (Okla.) Invitational Sunday with a score of 35-33-68.

NEW YORK (UPI) — First the girls start muscling in on some of the boys in the Little Leagues, then Tom Seaver's fastball quits whistling while it works, and now the last straw. Brooks Robinson has come up with a sudden case of the bad hands and may blow his Gold Glove!

Nobody can picture that ever happening. Mostly because the Gold Glove, symbol of fielding proficiency, has been Brooks Robinson's private property for the past 14 years. More than his property, it has been his trademark.

Each year The Sporting News awards a gold-finished glove to the major leaguer best at his position and each year from 1960 on Brooks Robinson has won it among the third basemen.

Hall of Fame

The actual glove Robinson uses to work with is no ordinary hunk of leather, either. Some day he's going to trade it in for a place in Baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown. You can bet on that.

Brooks Robinson's name is synonymous with defensive perfection and has been almost from the first day he joined the Baltimore Orioles in 1955. Somebody says Brooks Robinson and the first thing that crosses your mind is one of those dozens upon dozens of unbelievable plays you've seen him make at third base.

One of his performances alone, against the Cincinnati Reds in the 1970 World Series, already has achieved the proportions of a classic. In the considered judgement of those who have watched him since he came up to the Orioles 20 years ago, Robinson has, for most of that time, been the finest fielding third baseman in all baseball, perhaps even the best of all time.

Now there seems to be some trouble, though. He committed his 10th error of the season in Monday night's 9-1 loss to Kansas City and showed his disgust plainly for everyone to see over national television after throwing wildly to first base.

Ordinarily if this were some other third baseman nobody would pay a whole lot of attention. But this isn't some other third baseman. This is Brooks Robinson, the greatest glove in America, who has gone a couple of entire seasons making only 11 errors and has averaged only 14 errors per season in his career.

Slowing Down

His 10 errors up to now constitute the most he has ever had at this point in the season, and the rather obvious conclusion is that at 37 even Brooks Robinson is slowing down. But then you take a look at that .325 batting average of his and you have to stop a moment and ask yourself what's so slow about that?

Robinson's batting average pleases him. His fielding so far does not, but it isn't something keeping him up nights. He's been around too long for that.

"I look at fielding a lot like hitting," he was saying, sitting there in the dugout, watching some of the other Orioles hit and making sure he didn't miss his turn. "You run into little slumps in the field, too, know what I mean?"

"That's correct. Five of my errors have been on thrown balls. I threw away a couple of balls which were ridiculous. I don't mind missing balls, but I hate to throw 'em away. I had plenty of time. I don't really know what happened. They just got away from me. I can't give you any good reason for those other errors either. I've been getting to the ball. I just haven't been able to put the clamps on."

Brooks Robinson shook his head, still unable to comprehend the reason for his trouble. He talked about his reputation with the glove.

"People look at me and say he's a great glove man. You can be the greatest glove man in the world, but if you can't swing the bat, you're not gonna get the recognition. You know, all the time I've been with the Orioles, they never paid me a penny for my glove."

Taken For Granted "That's right," insisted Robinson, a 271 lifetime hitter in the $100,000-a-year bracket. "When you go into talk to the general manager, he never talks about your glove. Offense is what this game is all about. The defensive part is taken for granted."

Pirates Blank San Diego Behind Brett

United Press International Nine years have passed without a perfect game in the National League.

So when Pittsburgh's Ken Brett had a chance to do it on Monday, what happened? His teammates gave him "a cold shoulder."

"I realized I had a perfect game from the fifth inning on," said the 26-year-old southpaw, who came from Philadelphia for infielder Dave Cash during the off season. "When I came to the bench, all the guys were kidding around with each other but they didn't pay any attention to me."

"It's an unwritten law," said Manager Danny Murtaugh, "to ignore a pitcher when he comes to the bench and he's pitching a no-hitter. He was superlative."

Brett's no-hitter lasted eight innings. He had retired 24 consecutive batters before Fred Kendall punched a leadoff single to left in the ninth. Brett, now 5-3, finished with a two-hitter and the Pirates a 6-0 shutout over the Padres in the first game of a Memorial Day doubleheader. They also won the second game 8-7.

Good Hit "I'd been throwing sliders all afternoon," Brett admitted, "but I guess this one just didn't go over. I used to pitch against Fred in high school in Southern California and he used to occasionally hit me. We were about 15 at that time. It was a good hit, no doubt about it."

After Kendall singled, Brett retired the next two batters before Derrel Thomas doubled. Enzo Hernandez bounced to Brett unassisted for the final out. The Pirates, playing with only one regular, Frank Taveras at short, banged out six hits and highlighted the eighth inning with a four-run rally.

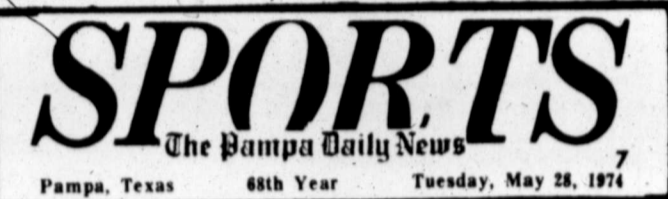

A two-run ninth inning home run by Richie Hebner won the nightcap for Pittsburgh as Brett continued his splendid day. He hit a two-run pinch-hit triple that tied the score 3-3 during a five-run seventh.

In other National League games, Atlanta ripped Philadelphia 9-1, St. Louis whipped Los Angeles 7-2, Chicago rapped San Francisco 12-4, Cincinnati nipped New York 4-2 and Houston at Montreal was rained out.

In American League games, Boston edged Minnesota 3-2, Chicago trimmed New York 3-2, Kansas City downed Baltimore 9-1, Texas blanked Cleveland 6-0, Oakland bombed Detroit 12-2 and Milwaukee shutout California 2-0.

Braves 9, Phils 1 Three RBIs by Dave Johnson and Dusty Baker's homer and double sparked a 13-hit attack in the Braves' victory over the Phils. Phil Niekro, upping his record to 6-3, tossed a five-hitter and had a shutout going until the seventh when Mike Schmidt belted his eighth homer.

Cardinals 7, Dodgers 2 Home runs by Joe Torre, Reggie Smith and Ted Simmons and five double plays by St. Louis sent Dodger ace Andy Messersmith to his first loss. Southpaw John Curtis, who started for the Cards, yielded two hits over seven innings then was yanked for reliever Orlando Pena in the eighth before nailing down his third victory in eight decisions.

GUIDOLIN RESIGNS

Bruins Coach Not Given 5-Year Pact

BOSTON (UPI)—The Boston Bruins, losers to the Philadelphia Flyers in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup finals, are in the market for a new coach.

Bep Guidolin, coach for the past year and a half, lost out in his bid for job security Monday when Managing Director Harry Sinden rejected Guidolin's demand for a five-year contract.

Guidolin followed through on his threat to resign if he did not get his long-term pact, made last week following a meeting with Sinden. The two talked again on the telephone Monday just prior to the announcement of Guidolin's resignation.

"If I don't get a long-term contract, you can say I won't be back," Guidolin said prior to leaving for his Barrie, Ont., Canada, home. "I have to think about some security. The length of the contract can provide more strength for a coach with his team, and maybe a better position about making suggestions for the future."

The 48-year-old coach hinted following the Bruins' Stanley Cup loss in six games to Philadelphia that he was less than pleased with the performance of some of his veteran players, although he did not name the ones to whom he referred.

No decision has been made concerning Guidolin's replacement, Sinden said, but Don Cherry, coach and general manager of the Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League, has been under consideration.

Another possibility is former Montreal Canadian star John Ferguson.

Manager Billy Martin said he never thought about taking Bibby out of the rotation.

Bibby Tosses Shutout As Rangers Run Over Cleveland Indians By 6-0

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — It had been almost a month since Jim Bibby had won a game but no one seemed overly concerned.

"We thought dropping my left shoulder was the big problem, but I've corrected that more or less and I'm still getting waxed pretty good at times," he said before Monday's game with Cleveland. "I guess it is just one of those horrible slumps every hitter or pitcher goes through."

Bibby came out of the slump in fine fashion Monday, tossing a three-hit shutout for his first win since April 30 and ending his own five-game losing streak that saw his record go from 5-2 to 5-7 and his ERA soar to 5.29.

The Rangers backed up Bibby with a four-run outburst in the fifth inning and added a pair of insurance runs in the eighth to coast to a 6-0 victory.

"I was throwing strikes with all my pitches tonight, that was the only difference," Bibby said. "Surprisingly, it (the losing streak) wasn't as big a load on my mind as you think."

Art Fowler, the pitching coach, told me I'd be going out there every fifth day and not to worry about it. There's no use crying over something you've already done. I didn't go around throwing things in the clubhouse or anything like that. Tonight I was keeping the ball down low mechanically. I wasn't doing anything any differently."

Manager Billy Martin said he never thought about taking Bibby out of the rotation.

College Draft To Start For NBA At 12 Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Failure reaped its rewards today when the teams that compiled the worst records last season got the early choices in the National Basketball Association collegiate player draft.

There was no suspense as to who would be chosen first when the annual grabbag began at noon EDT. That honor belonged to 6-11 center Bill Walton of UCLA, a three-time collegiate Player-of-the-Year who already has signed a five-year contract with the Portland Trail Blazers.

Portland, which finished with the worst record in the Western Division, earned the rights to Walton by winning a coin from Philadelphia, the worst team in the East.

The 76ers also were expected to go for a center, and Coach Gene Shue hinted over the weekend that it would be 6-9 Marvin Barnes of Providence. The club already has met with Barnes, who received a one-year suspended sentence.

Both completed 18 holes with 5-under par 67. Coody then won the playoff on the first extra hole with an 18-inch birdie putt while Blancas left his eight-foot putt for a birdie a trifle short.

Runners among the 20 pros competing in the event were Tom Watson, Larry Ziegler and Al Geiberger, all at 4-under 68.

The low amateur was Bill Musselman, of Louisville, the former state amateur champion, with a 3-under par 69.

Staubach To Have Surgery On Ankle DALLAS (UPI) — Cowboys quarterback Staubach undergoes surgery today to correct an ankle injury which has plagued him for the past two years.

"It's actually better than it was," Staubach said, "but the doctor feels he can relieve the irritation."

Perserverance Won Him $98,012

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Johnny Rutherford was $98,012 richer today because he remembered the late Peter Revson's favorite word—"persevere."

Rutherford left the garage 10 times at Indianapolis in previous years and always returned to the area before the 500-mile race was over. Last Sunday, the 36-year-old Texan made it all the way as 33 drivers shared a record purse of $1,015,686. Rutherford collected 40 per cent of the $245,031 that went to winning team McLaren.

"I kept remembering what Peter said each time I failed at Indianapolis," Rutherford said. "The pressure was on me with the 25th place start. But I persevered."

Took Longer At a victory dinner Monday night, which 21 of the drivers attended, Rutherford said "I've been dreaming of this a long time. I knew I was on my way — it just took a little longer than I expected."

The affable Rutherford, dressed in a tuxedo and a frilly shirt, praised team chiefs Teddy Mayer and Tyler Alexander for the tremendous job they did in building the car to meet the United States Auto Club deadline for qualifying.

Rutherford continued his 24-hour praise of A.J. Foyt and said he missed seeing the Houston hotshot in his rear view mirror the last 100 miles of the race.

"I really owe a lot to A.J. In 1968, I crashed in Phoenix and burned my hand badly. Foyt was forced out of the race earlier and helped me to the hospital. He phoned my wife, Betty, and assured her I'd be all right. He's No. 1 in my book."

Gearbox Broke Foyt said Rutherford's allegiance to racing was fanatic and that his fellow Texan will become a great winner. Foyt's gearbox broke on the 141st lap.

Duane "Pancho" Carter, a seventh place finisher, was voted the outstanding first-time driver at Indianapolis and joined a list of Indy greats that include Parnelli Jones, Jim Clark, Mario Andretti and Mark Donohue.

"I feel very fortunate to join this fine group," said the bespectacled Carter.

Carew Hitting .399, Yet Second In AL

United Press International It could only happen to Rod Carew.

What other player could be hitting .399 in the American League on Memorial Day—and still be second in the batting race?

Normally, .399 on Memorial Day is good enough to lead the American League by 40 points or so.

But it's happening again to Rod Carew, who's made a career of being overshadowed and may be the most underrated player in baseball.

Carew has several strikes against him when it comes to getting recognition. He's on a losing team that doesn't draw well and he plays in Minnesota—far from the media centers. Last year, he led the majors with a .350 average and everybody yawned. Pete Rose hit .338 to lead the National League and won the MVP award.

Jackson is on the threshold of one of the great seasons in American League history—akin to Mickey Mantle's triple crown season in 1956 and Carl Yastrzemski's triple crown year of 1967.

Jackson is noted as a power hitter but this year he's also taking a shot at the batting title. He leads the league in homers with 13 and he trails only Jeff Burroughs in RBIs, 48-39.

Jackson won his first 5.

MVP award last year and could be a shoo-in for a second straight if he keeps going at this pace. He's doing all this even though he was hobbled by a pulled leg muscle earlier this month.

Oakland pounded out 13 hits to batter Detroit and hand Vida Blue, who went seven innings, the victory. Joe Coleman took the loss. Oakland leads the AL West by 1 1/2 games.

In the other AL games, Kansas City routed Baltimore 9-1, Chicago topped New York 5-3, Texas blanked Cleveland 6-0 and Milwaukee downed California 2-0.

In the National League, Pittsburgh downed San Diego twice 6-0 and 8-7, St. Louis beat Los Angeles 7-2, Chicago routed San Francisco 12-4, Atlanta beat Philadelphia 9-1 and Cincinnati edged New York 4-2. Houston at Montreal was rained out.

Royals 9, Orioles 1 Kansas City didn't make it very interesting for the national television audience. The Royals took an 8-1 lead after five innings and coasted in Fran Healy's two-run homer in the second inning off loser Jim Palmer started the outburst. Bruce Dal Canton pitched a five-hitter for the victory while Palmer, last year's Cy Young award winner, dipped to 2-6 with his sixth straight loss.

Red Sox 3, Twins 2 Bernie Carbo, whose homer in the fourth drove in two earlier runs, singled home the deciding run in the 10th inning to give Boston the win. Two walks preceded Carbo's game-winning hit off reliever Tom Burgmeier. Luis Tiant went all the way and allowed 15 hits to even his record at 5-

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH Blood Types Threaten Marriage

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My marriage seems to have fallen apart. My husband accuses me of having relations with another man, which is not true. I've never done anything like that but his imagination has him beside himself.

He says the children aren't his because his blood is type O. Mine I do not know. Our daughter is A and son is B. He says this is not possible because his type is O.

I know they are his but he says he has to have proof and then will beg forgiveness. Please answer with definite statements, no buts or ands, please.

—D.H.

If you don't want any buts or ands, then why don't you have your blood typed?

A child's blood type is not determined by that of one parent; it depends on the types of BOTH parents. Your husband is entirely wrong when he says type A or B in the children is "impossible" because he is type O.

A type O parent can have children of either type A or type B if the other parent is type AB.

So don't you think you'd better have your own blood typed? If it turns out type AB, then it will be time for your husband to start begging forgiveness. He just doesn't understand how ABO blood types behave.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 51 and haven't had a menstrual period for a year. Would hormone pills start the menstrual periods again? Basically what are they for? What are the chances of getting pregnant after that length of time? Would I be safe in using foam and is it effective?

—M.R.S.

After a year without periods, you can forget about pregnancy.

Hormone medication may cause some breakthrough bleeding but they will not be true menstrual periods. Such medication is given to combat such menopausal symptoms as hot flashes — your ovaries have ceased producing female hormones and that leads to the hot flashes in some (no all) women. So you are given hormones to make up for the hormones no longer being secreted by the ovaries. I see no need whatever for you to use foam contraceptive.

Your questions, incidentally, are answered in my booklet, "Make Menopause Easier," along with some 50 or so other commonly asked questions on that subject. It might be a good idea for you to send for the booklet. Send 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, Dr. G.C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, for a copy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there anything you can do to prevent swelling of the eyelids after a bout of crying? After watching a very sad show last night, I cried quite a bit.

I was shocked to see what my eyes looked like. Why does this happen?

—Mrs. G.M.K.

The tissues around the eyes are thin. Put your finger to the area and you can feel the difference. This is the reason for the congestion associated with crying. The resultant fluid accumulation causes a puffiness and a discoloration.

It is variable with different people and there is really little that can be done. Often, though, cold compresses will help.

The only other thing I can suggest is that you watch happier shows.

Acne is one of the most terrible problems of growing up. If you are afflicted with this aggravation, or if you have children who are, write to Dr. G.C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, for a copy of his helpful booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Please enclose a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope, and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT Complaints On Anti-Nixon Jokes

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Some out-of-town readers complain about my reporting anti-Nixon jokes used by cafe comedians. My answer is, I'm just a reporter, not a censor. If cartoonists can poke fun, why not the comics? Marty Allen performed for Washington press photographers and saw several Cabinet members present.

"In the future," Marty notified them, "the names of the current Cabinet members will be posted in the White House on a blackboard with a wet eraser hanging from it."

Marty also told of a driver on the Pennsylvania Turnpike who stopped his car and asked a man how to get to Washington.

The man allegedly answered, "Lie."

Shelly Berman opened at Jimmy's — where David Frye, David Steinberg, Jackie Mason and Mort Sahl recently have told scores of Watergate jokes — and didn't even use one.

The reaction varied from "That's refreshing" to "Where were the Nixon jokes?" Berman said, "I think those are cheap jokes, easy jokes. For me, it would be using somebody's personal tragedy to propel myself humorously and I can't. I'm not criticizing anybody else. I'm just talking about me."

Berman isn't trying to start a no-Watergate-joke crusade. He sang in his act for the first time (surprisingly well) and got big laughs with his standard pieces about a mechanical heart, seatbelts, etc., screamed over a phone while sitting on a stool. He still uses a dial phone — no up-to-date push-button model.

If the Nixon jokes go, we'll rely on more sex jokes. Singer Julie Wilson, opening to a standing ovation at the Plaza Persian Room, sang a special number based on "Matchmaker" from "Fiddler on the Roof." Written by Eli Basse, it's titled "Exorcist" and pleads, "Exorcist, Exorcist, put a little more devil back in my man, he's lost his touch, you've extracted too much..."

Julie's former husband, and manager, Barron Polan, embraced her and exclaimed, "It's the best opening night you ever had!" Julie learned an entire new act in a week and, additionally, found a toy snake in a store to use when she sang a country-western, "Spiders and Snakes." Julie explained, "I went down Broadway myself at 6:30, looking for a snake — I found several."

Indestructible Serge Obolensky, who's 80-plus, couldn't attend Cavallero's 6th-month anniversary; friends said he cracked a leg.

Sarah Churchill took a NY apartment, went out for an hour and returned to find the door broken open and money stolen.

"Everybody with baby-sitters go home," Tony Bennett said at Nanuet Theater — Go-Round, and sang for 1 hr. — 45 min.

Margaret Whiting got up and sang "My Funny Valentine" at George Shearing's Half Note opening... Naura Hayden and Kevin Sanders are romancing since she co-hosted his TV show.

The U.S. Senate, a wonderful body of men, unanimously passed Sen. Vance Hartke's resolution thanking me for reporting the tragic problems of certain Russian dissidents trying to get to Israel.

So my name's in the Congressional Record today and I thank Atty. Leon Chasrmev, Hartke's adviser, who have me the story, and TV's Joe Franklin for telling the world at a surprise birthday party.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Jack Lescoulie, now semi-retired and living in Riverside, Conn., says he does an occasional commercial... Ava Gardner was the prettiest thing at MGM's fabulous "That's Entertainment" LA party; hard to realize she'd been married thrice... Film companies are rushing production due to a threatened actors' strike July 1.

Show Biz Quiz: Who played the title role in the film, "Harvey"? Ans. to yesterday's: "The Adventures of Hiram Holliday" TV series starred Wally Cox.

Douglas Fairbanks says he'll be back in films with Peter Sellers in "Return of the Pink Panther"...

Richard M. Dixon, the presidential look-alike, has a new cafe act that'll have a Watergate routine, "including deletions, 'inaudibles' and expletives..."

Ingrid Bergman's son Roberto, 23, is dating actress Ewa Aulin... Julie Andrews' new book is titled, "The Last of the Really Great Whangdoodles."

I'D RATHER BELIGHT Today's Best Laugh: Banks are still raising their rates, and Bobby Vinton figures that if you can afford to pay the interest, you don't need the loan.

Wish I'd Said That: Poem from Arnold Glasow: "Brains take second place to looks."

Women buy more bras than books... Remembered Quote: "Nowadays the rhyme should go 'One for the show, three to get ready — and five bucks for the baby sitter.'"

Earl's Pearls: Judging by the divorce rate, a lot of people who said "I do" don't.

Peter Falk explained why he prefers playing pool to playing golf: "When you're playing pool you never get hit by lightning, and you never have to go looking for your ball."

That's earl, brother. All Rights Reserved.

Under Twenty

By JEANNE HARRISON

"It's the funniest record I've heard in a long time," a greying gentleman told us recently. Of course, he was referring to "The Streak" by Ray Stevens. So it's not surprising that "Streak" is right up there in the top spot this week. Here's how they run:

TOP FIVE ALBUMS

1. "The Sting" - Movie Soundtrack
2. "Buddah and the Chocolate Box" - Cat Stevens
3. "Band On The Run" - Paul McCartney
4. "Denver's Greatest Hits" - John Denver
5. "Shinin' On" - Grand Funk

TOP TEN SINGLES

1. "The Streak" - Ray Stevens
2. "The Entertainer" - Marvin Hamlisch
3. "Dancing Machine" - Jackson Five
4. "Band On The Run" - Paul McCartney
5. "Midnight At The Oasis" - Maria Muldaur
6. "You Make Me Feel Brand New" - Stylianos
7. "Locomotion" - Grand Funk
8. "I've Been Searching So Long" - Chicago
9. "Sundown" - Gordon Lightfoot
10. "I Won't Last Another Day Without You" - The Carpenters

Rocking his blues, Johnny Rivers has a fine new album in "Road." His "Six Days on the Road" will appeal particularly to his fans. In the rhythm-blues-pop vein give a spin to the Stylianos "Let's Put It All Together." Each year Kris Kristofferson's voice seems better than the year before. His "Spooky Lady's Sideshow" shows him off as one of today's top singers. "Best of Bread, Volume II," has some of Bread's finest soft rock. Listen for "London Bridge" and "Guitar Man." Supreme Court Justice Deplores Weak Lawyers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell, Jr., said Monday that the recent trend toward expanded rights of criminal defendants is partly explained by the poor performance of lawyers for the states.

Powell, who took his seat as an appointee of President Nixon in January of 1972, said he has been disappointed in the quality of the briefs and arguments before the high court, particularly those presented by lawyers from state attorneys general.

"Some of the weakest arguments come from these representatives of the public interest," he said in remarks prepared for a meeting of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals

Wine Tasters Discover New Ways To Describe

By PATRICK J. KILLEN
CHICAGO (UPI)—"Full-bodied, robust, supple... sometimes I don't know if they are talking about a girl or a wine."
Irving C. Dobrow, a New York banker turned wine buff, admitted he is sometimes surprised at the way people describe wine.
Wandering through a crowded room of wine tasters during Heublein's Sixth Premium National Auction of Rare Wines, Dobrow, a Heublein consultant, said wine also could be "woody, corky, flinty, fruity, velvety—even mousey if it's not good."
"Okay, we said, glass at the ready. Tell us about wine tasting."

"Anything that is edible or palatable has to appeal to the eye. So we look at the color," said Dobrow, holding a glass of red wine close to a white table cloth.
If it's cloudy or milky, it has lost its eye appeal and may not be so good, he said, "but sediment is perfectly okay as long as it settles."
"Then the bouquet or aroma," Dobrow said, gently sniffing a 1959 Inglenook Charbono. Pleasant, but "not much nose to this," he said.
Dobrow said in general, whites should have a flowery smell and the quality reds "an overpowering aroma. Your senses are immediately alerted."

"Taste is a matter of personal preference," he said. "Most people prefer white wine to be very dry, to be eaten with bland food, like fish. Red wine is smooth, velvety and most pleasant."
Dobrow sampled the Charbono, pursed his lips and pronounced it "beautiful, a fine California red wine."
Its auction price was listed at $25 to $35 a bottle.
Professional wine tasters usually nibble on a bit of Swiss cheese or dry bread between sips. Dobrow said he liked an unsalted cracker and "certainly no smoking."

Church Conference To Change Lay Plan

AMARILLO — The Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church will take action on equalizing the number of lay and clergy delegates when it gathers here at Polk Street United Methodist Church June 4-6.
The conference will develop its own plan for increasing the number of lay members in keeping with the decision of the denomination's 1972 General Conference that called for an equal number of lay-clergy delegates in the 76 annual conferences of the nation.
Theme for the 65th session of the Northwest Texas Conference will be "Never Failing."
Dr. Alsie H. Carleton, bishop of the Northwest Texas and New Mexico Annual Conference, will preside over the three-day session.

Conference preacher will be Dr. J. Kenneth Shamblin, minister of St. Luke's United Methodist Church in Houston.
A dinner meeting and caucus for special appointees has been scheduled for Monday, June 3, between 6 and 8 p.m. with Dr. Robert W. Thornburg and Dr. James E. Kirby speaking. Dr. Thornburg is from Nashville, Tenn., and Dr. Kirby from Oklahoma State.
Preceding the official opening session of the conference on Tuesday morning (June 4), the Conference Council on Ministries will hold an 8 a.m. meeting.
The opening session of the conference is scheduled for Tuesday at 10 a.m. with the Service of Holy Communion and the Memorial Service. Rev. A.B. Cockrell from Vernon First Methodist will deliver the morning sermon.

Dr. Shamblin is slated to preach Tuesday evening, Wednesday morning and evening, and Thursday morning.
Dr. Thornburg will speak for the Board of Ministry Report on Ministerial Education Tuesday afternoon, to be followed by the Report of the District Superintendents.
Wednesday's morning business session will include Council on Ministries Reports and Advance Specials, and ordaining of elders and deacons.
The Board of Ministry Reports will be presented Wednesday afternoon. A Health and Welfare Agencies Dinner, an official session of the conference, is slated Wednesday evening at the Amarillo Senior Citizens' Center at 1300 S. Polk St.

Thursday's agenda includes the Board of Pensions Report and Board of Ministry Reports, Report of the Statistician, Conference Treasurer and Council on Finance and Administration, and Board of Ministry Reports on equitable salaries, conference relations policy and lay pastors' committee.

New pastoral appointments will be read at the evening session on Thursday by Bishop Carleton.
Mixing equal parts of evaporated milk and water restores the evaporated milk to the composition of whole milk.
