

Questioning Of Jurors Begins In Watergate Trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Five associates of Richard M. Nixon went on trial in the Watergate cover-up scandal today with the knowledge that the star witness — the former President himself — might never appear.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica began questioning some 200 prospective jurors at 9:30 a.m. EDT in the huge, ceremonial court room on the sixth floor of the same federal courthouse where he tried the original Watergate burglars nearly two years ago — before the scandal washed through the highest levels of government and brought Nixon's resignation.

John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's former No. 2 aide, was spat upon and jeered by youths as he entered the courthouse. But he and the other four defendants, who have all pleaded innocent, sat smiling and relaxed when they reached the courtroom.

Ehrlichman reportedly had changed his defense to contend that Nixon planned the cover-up and his agents should not be punished for carrying out presidential orders.

Nixon was subpoenaed by both the prosecution and defense but his doctors in California said it was doubtful he could appear at the trial. Nixon's health was a key issue in what form the trial would take and how long it would last.

Despite Ehrlichman's encounter, the trial drew fewer spectators than previous Watergate-related court proceedings. The demonstrators outside, about a dozen in all, identified themselves as Yippies and chanted slogans at each of the defendants.

The first of some 1,000 prospective jurors were asked questions by Sirica which eventually would weed them down to a panel of 12 to decide the fate of the two former White House aides, an ex-attorney general, one of his assistants and an attorney who worked for Nixon's re-election campaign.

Sirica asked if any of the venireman would "feel most uncomfortable" by serving on a sequestered jury or would it create a "serious interference" in their lives. About 50 persons stood in response and the judge then questioned them more closely at the bench.

Sirica said the defendants should be "presumed to be innocent" and warned that the jury would be sequestered, possibly until Christmas, at a motel near the courthouse, eating all its meals together and prohibited from seeing any newspaper or television stories about Watergate.

Nixon, an unindicted coconspirator in the cover-up who received a pardon from President Ford although he has admitted no guilt, was subpoenaed by both the prosecution and the defense. Bedridden with phlebitis in California, Nixon was said by his doctors to be ill to appear or even give a deposition for at least a month — possibly three.

At first, the questions which Sirica posed to the prospective jurors would be general — designed primarily to determine which of them claim any association with the defendants, the attorneys or any other figures in the scandal that preoccupied Washington and the nation for so long.

The process of jury selection was expected to take a week and lawyers predicted the trial might continue until Christmas, including an open court hearing of the still controversial tape recorded conversations in which Nixon discussed Watergate with his aides.

Standing trial were five of the seven men indicted last March for plotting to hush up the Watergate scandal — Ehrlichman, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, former White House chief of staff H.R.

Haldeman, former Assistant Attorney General Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, an attorney for the re-election committee.

All are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice. All but Mardian are also charged with obstruction of justice. Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman are further charged with lying to federal investigators.

Charges were dropped against Charles W. Colson last summer after he pleaded guilty in a related case, and Sirica reduced the number of defendants to five Monday, ordering a separate trial for Gordon C. Strachan.

Strachan, once Haldeman's aide, has contended for months that evidence being used to prosecute him was tainted since he had been promised immunity in return for his testimony.

President To Testify About Nixon's Pardon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a gesture not made by an American president for more than 100 years, President Ford has volunteered to testify before congressmen and answer questions about his pardon of Richard Nixon.

"This is to advise you that I expect to appear personally to respond to the questions raised," Ford said in a three-sentence letter delivered to Rep. William L. Hungate, D-

Mo., chairman of a House-judiciary subcommittee on criminal justice. He offered to appear within 10 days.

It was more than the surprised congressmen had expected or asked.

Most recent presidents have asserted "executive privilege" to avoid giving information to Congress — much less appear in person.

Nixon fought for that principle all through the Watergate scandal, saying he had to preserve the powers of the presidency.

The committee has before it two "resolutions of inquiry" asking Ford questions about the Nixon pardon granted three weeks ago. It generally was assumed these would be written answers.

Hungate and some of his colleagues were angered last week when the President replied that he and his counsel, Philip Bucher, already had answered all the questions in public statements.

Hungate then renewed his demand for information and asked that Bucher or someone equally knowledgeable about Ford's reasons for the pardon be sent to Capitol Hill to testify today.

George Washington went to Congress to seek advice on a treaty with Britain which later became the Jay Treaty of 1794.

Large Crowd Expected For Briscoe's Visit

A capacity crowd is expected in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room tomorrow noon when Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe stops over in Pampa to address a joint meeting of the Pampa Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce.

It will be the governor's ninth stop on a five-day campaign swing through 18 West Texas cities.

Governor Briscoe will make two appearances in Pampa immediately following the Rotary Club luncheon he and Mrs. Briscoe will go to the First National Bank where he will be honored at a public reception. He is scheduled to be there for one hour before leaving around 2:15 p.m. for his next stop in Plainview.

The governor started his campaign trip this morning at Brownwood and was scheduled for stopovers in Haskell, Vernon and Wichita Falls. He will spend tonight in Amarillo.

Wednesday morning stops are planned in Dalhart, Dumas and Borger before coming to Pampa.

Jimmy Thompson, Pampa attorney, will introduce the governor at tomorrow's luncheon which will be open to the public. Reservations may be made by calling Otis Nard, Rotary Club secretary, at 669-6512.

Senate Votes To Cut Off Aid To Chile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today voted 47-41 to cut off all U.S. military assistance to Chile shortly after President Ford announced he would veto the legislation.

The Senate approved an amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to halt all military aid to the South American country which Kennedy said was "engaged in a continuing pattern of gross violations of human rights—including the torture of political prisoners."

The United States is currently providing Chile with some $15 million a year in military aid.

Ford announced he would veto the continuing appropriation resolution to which the Chile amendment was attached because of a similar action Monday in which the Senate voted to ban military aid to Turkey.

Ford copied the veto threat with an offer of compromise if the Senate would go along with softer language.

Ford said in a White House statement that his position was shared by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was in New York to make what the President described as "a major effort in talks with Greek and Turkish representatives to bring about progress."

MADE BY BEN BYNUM Price Denies Charges Of Campaign Violation

By TEX DEWEESE
U.S. Rep. Bob Price of Pampa today denied a charge made by State Rep. Ben Bynum of Amarillo that Price had violated Texas campaign finance disclosure law by not designating a campaign manager before soliciting money for his political race.

"My congressman has flagrantly violated this act," Bynum told a House subcommittee Monday in Austin. "He had a dinner in December and raised $40,000 and he did not name a campaign manager beforehand."

In a telephone interview with the congressman in his Washington office this forenoon, the News was told by Price that in July of 1973 he wrote to the Texas secretary of state asking what was needed to comply with the law, was so advised and sent back the required form.

Price stated he also has a letter in his files showing Ben Sturgeon, former Pampa attorney now residing in Amarillo, was designated as his campaign manager in September of last year, three months before the fund-raising dinner to which Bynum referred in his testimony yesterday.

"It is on the federal record here in Washington and I thought it was on record in Texas," Price said.

According to United Press International wire service, Bynum called Price a "felon" and urged state legislators to push for creation of a state commission and local bodies to enforce the campaign reporting law and to fine or prosecute violators.

Bynum was quoted in today's Amarillo News UPI story as saying:

"That same congressman — his filing forms indicate he's paid his income taxes with campaign funds."

To this charge, Price said:

"I have never used campaign funds to pay my personal income taxes. I regret very much they have resorted to this type of accusation and smear tactics in the campaign."

IN KIDNAP DEMANDS Leftists Harden Position

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas holding a U.S. woman diplomat and six other hostages in the Venezuelan Consulate since last Friday suddenly hardened their position today in the slow moving negotiations with U.S. and Dominican Government authorities.

Archbishop Hugo Eduardo Polanco Brito told newsmen the guerrilla members of a pro-Castro extremist group again were demanding $1 million ransom, freedom for 37 political prisoners and guaranteed safe conduct by plane out of the country. They had asked this originally and threatened death for the seven hostages.

A top government source said earlier today that the guerrillas, in messages dropped from the consulate in bottles, had reduced their demands to freedom for only one prisoner, underground leader Plinio Matos Moquete, and safe departure out of the country.

The government, which has offered only safe passage from the Dominican Republic for the consulate raiders, has yet to make a decision on the latest demands, the sources said.

Earlier, a Latin American diplomat said the government had rejected the commandos' demands for a $1 million ransom and release of 37 political prisoners.

Grand Jury Recedes, No New Indictments

The Gray County grand jury which had been called into session Monday at 10 a.m., adjourned at 5:30 p.m. without returning any indictments, a court spokesman said this morning.

There was no official word today on when the jurors might reconvene.

One of the items under investigation is a shooting incident which occurred here Aug. 23.

In that incident two Pampa men were injured and hospitalized as a result of an altercation at the Catalina Club.

Hotel Company Picks Directors

Election of eight new directors was announced at the annual meeting of stockholders of the Community Hotel Co. of Pampa this forenoon in Coronado Inn.

The new board members who will join 16 holdover directors are Dr. Joe Donaldson, Kirk Duncan, Melvin Kunkel, Floyd Imel, Jim Nation, George Scott, Hoyd Taylor and Calvin Whately.

George Scott, president of the hotel company, said the board is expected to meet within a few days to elect officers for the coming year.

The eight new directors were elected for three year terms, according to Scott.

Salary Increase Now In Effect

Salary increases for nearly 200 city employees became effective today, the start of the new 1974-75 fiscal year.

Copies of the city's new Classification Compensation Plan were distributed at a meeting of department heads with City Manager Mack Wofford shortly before noon.

The new budget also effective today provides funds amounting to approximately $130,000 in annual salary raises.

The individual wage hikes range all the way from 5.5 percent to 11.5 percent.

Wofford said the higher percentage increases went to city workers who have been lowest on the pay scale.

First city pay checks reflecting the wage boosts will be received by municipal employees Oct. 15.

Operation ID Under Study

In the past, law enforcement agencies have been concerned with "after the fact" crimes, conducting investigations of crimes and tracking down criminals after a law was broken or a crime committed.

Now, however, these agencies are seeking to prevent crime.

One of the preventive measures under study is that of marking personal items with an identification number for easy recovery making it harder to sell for a criminal.

A story on Operation Identification, being put into effect by local and area law enforcement agencies, can be found in page 3 of today's issue of The News.

County Okays Tax Roll, Bids

At today's meeting of Gray County Commissioners Court, which opened at 10 a.m., the court approved the county tax roll and moved to advertise for bids for a piece of road and construction machinery for Precinct 3.

Bids are to be opened Nov. 1 on a used backhoe, the machine to be paid for from revenue sharing funds.

Aside from the routine matters of paying salaries and bills, the commissioners with County Judge Don Cain presiding, were scheduled to consider the following agenda items:

- Contract with Western Data for tax services
- Maintenance and improvements at Perry Lefors Field
- McLean Museum
- Office expenses and reimbursement to Highway Patrol office on radio equipment
- Resolution regarding service in the National Guard and Reserve forces

Next regular meeting of the court is scheduled for Oct. 15.

The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some of President Ford's ambassadorial appointments are catching flak. Critics say he is falling into the familiar pattern of using U.S. embassies as a dumping ground for campaign contributors, lame duck politicians and advisers whose advice he prefers long distance.

Okay. Maybe it would be better if these posts were filled with career foreign service officers.

But how would you, as President, reward the fat cats who made your election possible? How would you take care of political pals the voters turned out to pasture? And how would you ease out aides you don't wish to fire outright?

In England, that sort of thing is no problem. In England, you simply elevate them to the knighthood.

Being tapped on the shoulder with the royal sword and addressed thereafter as Sir George, Sir Kenneth or whatever is recompense enough.

Then you can appoint as ambassador to China someone who knows where the place is.

American colleges also handle the matter nicely with their system of honorary degrees for endowment fund donors, emeritus deanships for obsolete professors and athletic directorships for losing football coaches.

But in the government, alas, no such convenient and suitable honorifics are available. The nearest thing to knighthood in America is the Honorary Kentucky Colonel.

Honorary titles are fine for fried chicken franchise owners. But hardly in the class with ambassadorships. Someone who has sunk several hundred thousand dollars in a presidential campaign expects a little more than being named Honorary Commodore in the Nebraska Navy or Honorary General in the Confederate Air Force.

What this country needs is a title that carries prestige, prerogatives and semblance of authority without any real influence.

In short, something like the vice presidency.

For that matter, why not the vice presidency?

There is no reason the United States should have only one vice president. Surely an organization as large and majestic as the U.S. government is entitled to as many vice presidents as General Motors.

The first vice president could be elected as at present. The others would then be appointed by the president from the old list of ambassadorial prospects.

Expanding the vice presidency would provide ideal honorifics for political claimants, aging party stalwarts and advisers who become inconvenient or embarrassing.

What is more, it would greatly improve the foreign service.

OPERATION IDENTIFICATION

Police Provide Program To Aid Crime Prevention

Police Chief James B. Conner has announced the beginning of a year-long crime prevention program with the kick off of Operation Identification, a property marking program designed to thwart burglars and help the Pampa Police Department return stolen property.

Crime prevention is a vital part of law enforcement," Chief Conner said in announcing the program. "If we can stop some of the crimes before they happen, not only will we have a safer community, but also we'll be saving some tax dollars, since the money that would be spent to handle the increased case load of the country's rising crime rate would be channeled into more productive areas."

Operation Identification is the first project in the crime prevention public information and education program starting here as well as Carson, Collingsworth, Deaf Smith, Donley Hartley, Lipscomb, Potter, Randall, Roberts, Swisher and Wheeler County Sheriff's Departments and the Berger, Canyon, Clarendon, Friona, Fritch, Shamrock and Tulia Police Departments.

The Pampa Police Department is assisting with the initiation of the program.

The project's objective is to make individuals more aware of the steps they can take as private citizens to arrest the growth of crime. The primary target of this year's activities is burglary.

Panhandle Regional Planning Commission has enlisted the aid of Austin-based Travis Froehlich Associates to consult on the implementation and public information portions of the program.

The Austin public relations and advertising firm is assisting 13 other Texas law enforcement agencies in the same type of crime prevention program.

The regional crime prevention program is funded by the Criminal Justice Division of the Governor's office with federal funds from the law Enforcement Assistance Administration. Partially matching local funds also support the project.

Crime prevention is a relatively new concept for law enforcement agencies whose duties have previously been involved with crime.

This project, however, concerns itself with the preventive aspects of crime control and seeks to enlist public participation which is vital to its success.

Operation Identification is aimed at marking property with an easily traced identification number and is only one portion of the overall crime prevention effort.

Once an article is marked — usually with the owner's driver's license number — it carries his "brand" and is, therefore, more difficult for a thief to resell and easier for the owner and law enforcement officers to positively identify if recovered.

The return of stolen property marked in Operation Identification is made easier.

Legend Wood, crime prevention specialist for the PRPC, will work with the participating law enforcement agencies in

New Car Year Hurt By Strikes

DETROIT (UPI) — The traditional 1975 model car year began today with mixed news on the labor front, and 24,550 assembly line workers off the job.

The best news came to GM early Monday with the announcement that the United Auto Workers and GM's DelcoRemy Division, which employs 14,000 persons, tentatively agreed on a new local contract.

A ratification vote was set for next Monday.

Delco-Remy produces all of GM's starters, generators and ignitions, but a shutdown last Wednesday brought warnings by the company that it would cease operations at all 26 assembly lines because of a parts shortage.

After the word of the tentative settlement, GM said it doubted the company would lay off anyone nor would production stop or slow at any of its plants.

Ford Motor Co. laid off 15,250 workers Monday at seven assembly plants across the country because of a strike at Arvin Industries, Inc., of Franklin, Ind., which builds exhaust systems and assembles catalytic converters for the No. 2 automaker.

Chrysler Corp. laid off 9,300 assembly line workers in Detroit and Ontario because of the Arvin strike and said it would idle another 9,300 workers next

Arvin Industries produces all of Chrysler's catalytic converters.

At American Motors Corp., closed for 16 days by a strike, talks resumed between company negotiators and representatives of 17,000 UAW on strike over a new national contract.

Workers went on strike Sept. 16 when contract talks between the smallest automaker and the UAW broke off.

But an AMC spokesman said Monday the two sides resumed negotiations at the request of the union.

Oct. 1 is the traditional "official" first day of the new car model year, although this year automakers allowed dealers to start selling 1975 models in mid-September.

Texas produces 35 per cent of the nation's oil.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The test of the lows that we foresaw as a possibility is now at hand," says Standard & Poor's Corp., "against a background of heightened concern over the nation's economic problems." Among the major market depressants are the sluggish economy, failure of last week's 1/4 point drop in the prime rate to spread among the nation's bigger banks, and concern over unabated inflation.

Even though stock prices generally would seem to have made ample allowance for such setbacks, the market is likely to remain on the defensive until investor confidence returns," it adds.

Explorers Post Elects Officers

Members of Explorers Post 488 met recently to elect officers.

Officers are Ann Beck, president; Don Baker, vice president; Ricky Bryan, secretary; Tolle Jean treasurer; Vance Bruce, reporter; and Dana Preston, assistant to the advisor.

Subjects discussed at the meeting included a tin-can drive and a possible ski trip. Several of the members were involved with the Bob Price barbecue Sunday. These members worked Saturday helping to prepare the grounds and barbecue and serving the food Sunday.

The next meeting of the post, formed for students interested in veterinary medicine, will be Tuesday, Oct. 8, at 7 p.m. at Hendricks Animal Clinic, 1912 Alcock.

"The gloom is still so deeply entrenched that even a long-awaited cut in the prime rate failed to budge the public back to the buy side," says the Predictor of West Hartford, Conn. But the firm says there are parallels between current market behavior and the conditions prevailing when the 1962 market hit bottom.

"We anticipate an upward eruption to develop shortly," it adds.

The Dines Letter says the market is far from reaching its bottom because "this bear is the killer of all killers." The letter predicts a strong rally — actually between two and five little rallies — soon, after which it urges investors to close out trading purchases and sell short.

"While we think the odds of a rally here are about four out of five, there is still the outside chance that the bear will insert his claw into our little niche and try to rip it out," the letter says.

Ted Opposes Amnesty Plan

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Monday he opposes President Ford's amnesty plan for draft dodgers and deserters, arguing that they "have suffered enough."

No further penalty should be exacted from the young men who refused to be part of the Vietnam war policy for deep personal reasons of conscience," he said in his keynote address to the National Conference of Catholic Charities.

Weaving his prepared remarks around the conference theme of "renewal and reconciliation," the Massachusetts Democrat sought to show how presidents from Washington to Lincoln to his slain brother John F. Kennedy had set precedents for an amnesty policy more liberal than Ford's.

"President Ford deserves our support for having taken a courageous first step in breaking with his predecessor and beginning a program of amnesty," Kennedy said.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE
By FRED KARPIN
Ever since contract bridge came into being, constituted authority has advocated the use of an opening bid of three, four, or five in a suit as a barrier against the opponents. With few exceptions, all bridge authorities have agreed that an opening pre-emptive bid should be based on a hand that is relatively weak in high cards, a hand that does not qualify for an opening bid of one in a suit. All concurred that the purpose of the pre-emptive bid was to impair, sever, or destroy the opponents' line of communication.
Today's deal, which came up in a duplicated game, serves to illustrate that when one makes a pre-emptive bid, he should not attempt to "save pennies" — and wind up losing dollars. That is, one should pre-empt to the maximum extent consistent with reasonable safety: if he gets doubled, and his partner has nothing, the pre-emption should lose exactly 500 points.
Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

When play had ended, West, at his five spade contract, had gone down three tricks, doubled and vulnerable, for a loss of 800 points. Had South been permitted to play at his five diamond contract, he would have fulfilled it, for a score of 600 points (trick score of 100, plus 500 points for a vulnerable game).
When this deal was replayed during the afternoon, many South players incorrectly opened the bidding with a pre-emptive call of four diamonds. West, quite naturally, overcalled with four spades, which was doubled by the various North players. At this contract, West suffered a loss of only 500 points, which was a poor score for North-South, considering that the latter should have scored 600 points for bidding five diamonds.
In those cases where North doubled four spades, and South then elected to bid five diamonds, West now passed (he had been doubled at four spades, so he wasn't going to bid five spades).
And so the best North-South score was obtained by the ones who bid the South hand to the hilt with a five-diamond opening call, there by inducing West to overcall with five spades, which North doubled.

MIDDLE C STANDS FOR CARE
On your piano, Middle C should stand for Care.
An expensive investment, a piano should have definite care to preserve its value. Piano manufacturers recommend tuning the piano three or four times a year. Atmospheric changes, not frequency of use, affect the tune. However, an annual "check-up" for the piano is adequate if it's impossible to have a tuner more often.
The check-up should include regulating tone and action when necessary. The tone of the piano may become "brilliant" with use due to constant pounding of the hammer felts against the steel string.
Action refers to the smooth and responsive touch of the player. The desired action may become sluggish when the felt brushings in the action parts absorb moisture and swell, or the keys seem to stick.
Location of the instrument is important — it should be kept in a normal temperature and free from dampness and sudden changes of temperature. This will help protect both the inside mechanisms and the finish of the case.

Cases of new pianos do not have to be waxed or polished. Cleaning with a soft, damp chamois or cheesecloth, following with a dry cloth, bring out the natural sheen of the wood.
The keyboard can be covered when the piano is not in use, but genuine ivory keyboards should be exposed to light. Otherwise, the ivory turns yellow over a period of time.
Keyboards on most new pianos are constructed from a plastic that will not yellow. Clean the keys by wiping them lengthwise with a soft, slightly dampened cloth and then following with a soft, dry cloth.
Concerning piano storage, if you are leaving the instrument in an unoccupied house or putting it into storage for a period of time, place quantities of newspaper in the interior to absorb moisture. Cover the case with heavy flannel or blankets.
BATTERY CHECK
DETROIT (UPI) — Car batteries should have their water level checked every two weeks in hot weather. High temperatures evaporate electrolyte, leaving the plates exposed and in danger of buckling or sulphating.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK
I bought $52.34 worth of groceries the other day and the carryout boy asked, "Did you want help with this or are you going to eat it here?"

"Things aren't that bad yet," I snapped and as he shifted impatiently from one foot to the other while I fumbled for my car keys he said, "Where do you want 'em?"

I have some other errands," I said. "Just put them in the glove compartment."

When you think about it, shopping for food is getting pretty absurd. Why I can remember when my station wagon runneth over with $52.34 worth of groceries in it. Today, I can't afford help for my hamburger.

How have the high prices affected consumers? For one thing is has made them better shoppers. Face it, a lot of mothers I know used to shove a banana and a box of cereal through the bars of the baby bed at night and sleep in the next morning. But at 85 cents a box, we want to know what the cereal can do.

I spent the better part of an hour in the cereal aisle the other day trying to find the all-purpose cereal. The manager came by and said, "Look, here's a great all-around cereal. It's crunchy, sounds like World War III when you pour milk over it, fills you up, not out, gives you energy, provides a midday snack, makes you grow strong, solves your irregularity problems, offers you natural vitamins, tastes like hickory nuts, and has a Yo-Yo that glows in the dark."

Yes, I said suspiciously. "But will it patch the driveway and take puppy stains off the carpet?"

Another thing the consumer crunch has done is to pull shoppers together. Every week, the same people gather at the supermarket where we share a common crisis. Sorta like the Poseidon Adventure. I've made friends like Lois, who does her shopping for the week and can still get in the express line. And Mrs. Bretstock, who was checking out her food one day when the store was robbed and she didn't know the difference. And Maity, a young mother who is going to use her Christmas savings and buy five pounds of sugar. And proud Stephanie who puts plastic fruit in her refrigerator and pretends she's rich.

But mostly, the inflated prices have brought about an appreciation by the family for the simple things of life. The other day as I drove in from the supermarket, the family all danced around the car fighting to see who opened the glove compartment first. Everyone but the dog. He's been eating out since last May.

Profs, Students Protest Firing Of UT Leader

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Faculty and student groups at the University of Texas have begun organized opposition to the firing last week of Stephen H. Spurr as President of the school.

Two voted no confidence Monday in Chancellor Charles A. LeMaistre because of his dismissal of Former President Stephen H. Spurr, and the general faculty of the state's largest university scheduled a meeting for 4 p.m. today to consider an identical motion.

Opposition to Spurr's dismissal, for which LeMaistre and UT regents have refused to give reasons, sparked meetings of the faculty senate and of the staffs of several departments through most of Monday.

The local chapters of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and the Texas Association of College Teachers (TACT) passed the vote of no confidence, saying LeMaistre's failure to consult with faculty and students before firing Spurr and his refusal later to give reasons "have again shown the chancellor's complete contempt for the academic community and the people of Texas."

The general faculty has an identical resolution on its agenda with motions to condemn the board of regents for its part in the controversy and asking state officials to convene an investigation.

Other resolutions against the dismissal were approved by the Department of Classics, the Graduate School of Social Work, the School of Communication Council, the faculty of the Department of Radio-Television-Film, the Department of Spanish-Portuguese and the Council of Deans.

The Faculty Senate also approved a resolution asking the chancellor to let another committee of faculty and students recommend to him nominees for the next permanent president.

WANTS CONVICTION UPHELD

Army Appeals Decision To Have Calley Freed

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Army wants William Calley to serve his full 10-year sentence for killing at least 22 civilians at My Lai, and has asked the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to uphold his 1971 murder conviction.

While the army filed its request Monday, a delay order issued by the appeals court forced Calley to remain in custody at the U.S. Disciplinary Barracks at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., where he works as a clerk-typist.

Calley did not file his answer to the army motion before the court closed Monday, and the court said its delay order would stand until a further ruling was issued.

U.S. District Judge J. Robert Elliott of Columbus, Ga., overturned Calley's My Lai conviction last week because of the pretrial publicity, denial of Calley's rights to confront unfriendly witnesses and improperly drawn charges.

But Elliott also cited the Supreme Court's action ordering former President Richard Nixon to surrender Watergate tapes to the special prosecutor, and said the former Army lieutenant should have been able to get copies of evidence gathered by a House of Representatives committee investigating My Lai. "We see that the Supreme Court, in deciding the 'Nixon case' also decided the 'Calley case,'" he ruled.

Calley was sentenced to life imprisonment and discharged during his court-martial, but a military appeals board reduced the term to 20 years and Army Secretary Howard H. Calloway cut it to 10. The Army said it had never maintained Calley would present a danger to society if he were released, although courts normally were reluctant to free convicted murderers until their appeals were settled.

The reluctance "represents an awareness on their part that society recognizes qualitative degrees of criminal misconduct," the Army said. "Petitioner was convicted by a lawfully constituted court-martial of the premeditated murder of not less than 22 human beings."

Socialists Challenge State Laws

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas' campaign disclosure laws face a court challenge from the Socialist Workers Party which contends the laws discourage financial support to minor parties.

Sherry Smith, Socialist Workers candidate for governor, said Monday a suit had been filed in U.S. District Court in Houston asking for a temporary restraining order preventing state officials from requiring the party to reveal the names of its financial contributors.

"In this situation for us to turn over the names and addresses of our contributors means to supply (Secretary of State) Mark White with a ready-made enemies list of individuals who will become new targets for harassment," Ms. Smith told the House Subcommittee on Campaign Finance Reporting and Disclosure.

"In Texas we have documented dozens of incidents of harassment, from the machine-gunning and bombing of our campaign office, the admitted infiltration by the Houston police to harassment by the Department of Public Safety."

She said the 1973 Campaign Finance Reporting Act was not a reform measure, but a law intended to restrict the success of minor political parties.

"We reject the claim that these laws are going to help end big business control over the twin parties of big business, the Democrats and Republicans. That idea is a complete hoax.

"Far from ending corruption these laws are perpetuating the most corrupt aspect of American politics: the monopoly maintained by the Democrats and Republicans on political activity in this country."

"These laws represent a clear breach of the right to associational privacy and political anonymity and have the effect of discouraging support to Socialist Workers candidates."

The Socialist Workers Party won a case last week in the Texas Supreme Court allowing the party to get 10 of its candidates on the ballot for the state's Nov. 3 general election.

Ms. Smith said the same American Civil Liberties Union attorney who won the favorable ruling from the Texas Supreme Court would handle the party's latest case.

State Needs To Enforce Election Laws In County

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former state Rep. Dick Reed, who contends a false handbill cost him his reelection bid, says the state should have the authority to enforce election laws at the county level.

Reed told a House Subcommittee on Campaign Finance, Reporting and Disclosure Monday that Dallas County prosecutors and law enforcement officials refused to enforce laws against watergate-type dirty tricks in his 1972 campaign.

Reed lost that race to Dallas County Commissioner Roy Orr.

He said a false handbill was distributed by his opponents the day before the election that linked him with a controversial black leader and indicated he supported open housing, welfare increases and busing.

"The effect of the handbill was disastrous," said Reed. He said the 15 per cent differences in votes he lost in the areas where the handbill was distributed cost him the election.

Reed told the legislators that the Texas laws should be changed to give some state official or agency the authority to enforce election laws at the county level.

He said in his own case he got no action from complaints to district Attorney Henry Wade or Dallas Police Chief Frank Dyson. Reed said he was also turned down by a Dallas Grand Jury which refused to hear the case without Wade's approval.

"The district attorney isn't going to prosecute the man who helps write his salary," said Reed.

He said Attorney General John L. Hill tried to get Wade to reopen the case last year but that request was also turned down.

Rep. R. C. Nichols, D-Houston, subcommittee chairman, said Reed's testimony showed the state needed a law requiring identification of the sponsor of political advertising.

New Device Curing Pollution Problems

DETROIT (UPI) — The catalytic converter is one device Detroit's automakers could have done without. The muffler-like device that treats exhaust gases makes the 1975 models now rolling off assembly lines probably the most pollution-free automobiles ever produced with internal combustion engines.

Sometimes kicking, sometimes screaming and sometimes getting their way, Detroit's automakers have come up with the catalytic converter as their answer to the 1970 government order to take the car out of the pollution picture by 1975.

They not too affectionately refer to the device as the "Muskie Muffler" in reference to the U.S. senator from Maine who was most responsible for the 1970 Clean Air Act.

Aside from the technical developments and the legal battles, the addition of the little chemical furnace beneath the floorboards of 1975 cars basically means to the American motorist:

—Higher prices since the catalytic muffler is adding between $100 and $150 to the price tags of the '75s.

—Better mileage since engineers for the past five years have been tuning engines to produce fewer pollutants can now tune for more get-up-and-go and mileage. General Motors is talking about a 14 per cent improvement over '74 models and Chrysler says it has a general 15 per cent gain.

—Mandatory use of unleaded gasoline since the lead additive that controls knocking also "poisons" the platinum and palladium catalyst. There's a new, smaller gas tank filler pipe on the '75s that will prevent anything but unleaded gasoline—at one or two cents more a gallon—from being put into the car.

Less evident to the motorist will be the exhaust coming out of the tailpipe containing 90 per cent fewer hydrocarbons than 1967 models, 83 per cent less carbon monoxide and 48 per cent fewer oxides of nitrogen. In California, where smog is a greater problem, the exhaust will be even cleaner.

GM, which was sharply critical of the government's timetable set in 1970, has since embraced the catalyst technology more than any of its competitors. But that didn't stop the world's largest auto company from going into court to fight the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and gain further delays.

"Catalysts have an aura of alchemy about them, black magic, even with chemists," says Dr. Richard Klimisch, GM's first resident expert in catalysis. "The normal sequence of research and development is almost always turned around in technology."

"Somebody finds a catalyst maybe by a clumsy accident," he says. "Then we spend 20 years trying to find out why it works. I hesitate to say this, and I'll probably lose a lot of friends, but we don't really understand many catalysts."

The basic principle of the catalytic converter is that it speeds up the chemical reaction that converts unburned hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide caused by incomplete combustion in the engine into harmless carbon dioxide and water.

More important, it does this and emerges unchanged—able to repeat the process again. That's important since the catalyst is a combination of the relatively rare platinum and palladium that is available from only two places—the Soviet Union and South Africa.

To supply its need GM signed a deal with Impala Platinum Limited of South Africa for 300,000 ounces of platinum and 120,000 ounces of palladium a year. A lot of rock—10 to 15 tons—has to be mined to produce just one ounce of platinum and palladium.

The two noble metals are either coated on 1/4 inch beads for use in GM's system or on a honeycomb-like structure at Ford before being placed in a metal container. At GM's AC Division's Oak Creek, Wis., plant, full production will mean 30,000 converters a day.

About 110,000 U.S. gasoline stations were required to have at least one grade of unleaded fuel by July 1. There were some delays getting the equipment to handle the new fuel, but both the government and automakers—wary of customers hanging back on '75s—have been working hard to assure motorists they'll be able to find the fuel.

What if you run out of gas and can't find a station selling the unleaded fuel you need for your '75 model? Or maybe you don't want to pay the extra cent or two a gallon?

YOU CAN BECOME FOOD SELF-SUFFICIENT

By J. SHUTTLEWORTH
don't have to tell you that the cost of supermarket food soared during the past years. Nor do I have to point out that the price of fresh edibles is expected to climb even higher throughout the rest of 1974 and all of 1975.

Millions of solid, middle-class families in the U.S. and Canada are now serving meat dish only once or twice a week and tens of thousands of elderly men and women have been reduced to eating dog food. Here will we all be 18 months from now? How many more corners can be totaling $5,000 for a "How To Become Food Self-Sufficient" competition. A first prize of $2,500, second award of $1,000 and three third place presentations of $500 each will be given to the individuals or groups who can demonstrate the five best grow-your-own food systems one year from Oct. 1, 1974. This contest is not open in states where it is not permitted.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Pounds of garbage tossed out every day by homeowners and businesses can be turned into fuel instead of being buried, two University of Houston professors say.

It's little wonder that the average housewife snickers every time one of our government "leaders" impudently suggests that we'll all just have to pinch pennies. The pennies we already been pinched in thousands of cases, are simply are no pennies to squeeze.

I haven't yet visited their "farm" but I have been in touch with the Olkowskis and I've seen photographs of their rabbit pens, chicken coops and vegetable garden. They're really doing what they claim!

How about you? Do you have a workable idea for producing fruit, vegetables, eggs, milk, meat or other edibles in a small space? Can you make a back yard, basement or spare room feed a family? If so, I'd like to hear from you!

Farm Bureau Plans Annual County Meeting

The Gray County Farm Bureau will have its annual county convention Saturday, October 5, at 7 p.m. in the First Christian Church Fellowship Hall, 18th and Nelson St.

So let's start pulling! Or, put it another way, let's see if there isn't some way at any U.S. or Canadian mill — city, suburban or country — can become just food self-sufficient as it is to be. Right up to the edge of 100 percent.

And don't forget Clifford Ridley, another pioneer whose work I covered a few weeks ago. Cliff, as I'm sure you recall, added a $400 greenhouse to the side of his family's home over a year ago.

For further information about The Mother Earth News "How To Become Food Self-Sufficient" competition, send 10-cents and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to The Mother Earth News, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Reprint No. 204. "Food."

This is listed as the most important meeting Gray County Farm Bureau will have during the year. The Pampa Shrine Club will serve a barbecue supper at 7 p.m.

Nor should we imagine for a moment that petitions, boycotts, consumer strikes, riots will ever exert any meaningful or long-term influence on our food distribution system. A chain of many links, you know, never be pushed from the end. It can only be pulled.

The initial investment was a little hard to take, but Ridley thinks it was worth making. He now feeds himself, his wife and three children, all the fresh produce they can eat — year-round — at an annual expense of less than $100.

Tickets are $2.50 per person and can be purchased at the Farm Bureau Office, 1132 S. Hobart. This is a "Family Affair" and there will be drawings for door prizes donated by local merchants.

Mary Sailor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Sailor and a junior at White Deer High School will speak on citizenship. Miss Sailor attended the 12th annual high school citizenship seminar with 465 other high school students at Baylor University.

Burning Garbage Could Produce Energy

Pampa, Texas - PAMPA DAILY NEWS 68th Year Tuesday, Oct. 1, 1974

because production of aluminum from recycled stock requires about 5 percent of the energy used to produce the same amount of new aluminum. Also, export taxes have been increased on Bauxite by producing countries.

Garbage containing iron is easily extracted and recycled, they said, but paper products are more expensive to pull out and reuse.

The professors said the average American discards about five pounds of garbage per day and that most municipal solid waste is buried in sanitary landfills.

"Sanitary landfill cannot continue to be the most economic and viable means of solid-waste disposal," the report said.

Garbage used as fuels can provide steam for running electric generators or thermal heaters and air conditioners.

Dalton and Huang said that some incinerators can collect the heat and steam produced, although the waste must first be shredded which costs more. The residue from the burning is usually about 20 to 25 percent of the original bulk and the leftover needs to be buried.

The report, which used the Houston area as a test base, suggested that pyrolysis is the best method of turning waste into needed energy.

The method heats the waste to great temperatures, but doesn't allow enough oxygen into the system to have full combustion.

The Los Angeles Rams defeated the New York Giants 23-17 in an exhibition game in 1955 that was the first professional football game to be decided in a sudden death overtime period.

VOICE OF BUSINESS

Inflation Problem Continues Despite Government Advice

By ARCH BOOTH
U.S. C.P. President
WASHINGTON — Recent polls show that a sizeable plurality of Americans understand correctly that government causes inflation, not business or labor. And yet, government has just established a Council on Wage and Price Stability, the purpose of which is to tell business and labor not to cause inflation.

It is a development I view with serious misgivings. If the new Council has no power to enforce its views about the desirability of any particular wage or price change — and for the moment that is the case — then it is merely a tranquilizer, designed to create an illusion of action against inflation. But even a tranquilizer can have some serious side effects.

If Congress and the President bring the federal budget into balance and the Federal Reserve System holds the growth of the money supply down to a noninflationary rate, inflation will subside and there will be no need for the Council.

Grim Possibilities
On the other hand, if our leaders are unable to stick to this harsh but necessary treatment, inflation will continue to be a problem — perhaps even a worse problem than it is now.

Suppose that is what happens. Then prices and wages would continue to go up — symptoms, not causes, of inflation. Meanwhile, the Council would undoubtedly be making recommendations against the wage and price increases and complaining loudly and bitterly about its powerlessness when these recommendations were exceeded.

About this time a new Congress convenes. Many of its members have been elected on a promise to "do something" about inflation. The quickest, most visible and least unpopular thing its members could "do" would be to give the Council the power to enforce its decisions. At that point, we would be right back to August, 1971, with another round of controls which would fail as inevitably as did the last batch, after causing an equivalent amount of damage to the economy.

Threat of a Threat
Even the threat of new controls can have the effect of worsening inflation, because business and labor try to get the biggest increases they can before controls are imposed, figuring they may not be able to get what they need afterward.

And ironically, these big increases then become additional "evidence" of the need for controls. It is a self-fulfilling prophecy.

Both the President and Congressional leaders recognized the potential for triggering such a process. That's why they have strongly denied any intention of giving the Council enforcement powers at this time.

But I don't think these denials are enough. The Council itself will constitute a threat — in being as long as it exists. The pressures to give it enforcement power will be enormous. And the enforcement power could be created swiftly, once the decision was made.

I hope the leaders of business and labor will do everything they can to avoid giving the Council an excuse to ask for more power. But even in this course there is danger.

To the extent that wage or price changes indicated by market conditions are foregone for political reasons, the "powerless" Council will tend to create the same kind of shortages, distortions and misallocations of resources that would result from genuine controls.

The real solution is for all of us to keep the pressure on Congress to restrain the federal budget. Let's lay off of the tranquilizers.

The first flag to fly over what is now Oklahoma was the Royal Standard of Spain, brought to the territory by Coronado in 1541.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH Endometriosis A Curious Ailment

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: I found out three months ago that I have endometriosis. I still don't understand this disease. Can it be fatal? After surgery is there still a chance of cancer? — Mrs. C.R. Dear Doctor: I am 30 and two years ago was in the hospital for back problems. It turned out to be endometriosis, and I was put on birth control pills. That has helped quite a bit but there are still problems. Am I correct that they give the pill for endometriosis to prevent ovulation? If this is true, wouldn't the "bandaid surgery" be a good idea, instead of the pill? — A.R.

Endometriosis is a curious ailment that can cause a good deal of abdominal distress, but it won't be fatal. (It has no relationship to cancer, either.) Here's what happens. The endometrium is the lining of the uterus. This lining reacts to the rhythmic change in female hormone levels — hence the periods of menstrual bleeding. In some way, not clear, some of the tissue of the endometrium manages to "emigrate" to other areas in the abdomen — but it still reacts to the hormonal tides, and bleeds at menstruation time. Unfortunately some of this tissue may have "emigrated" to areas where the blood cannot readily escape. It is trapped, builds up pressures, becomes increasingly painful as time goes on.

Pregnancy is a temporary relief. Pregnancy puts an end, for the time being, to menstrual periods, so that misplaced endometrium tissue remains quiescent. "The pill" helps because it mimics pregnancy, hormonally speaking. Menstrual periods are less vigorous than normal. But for various reasons it is not likely to give total relief. What will? Well, if all of the misplaced endometrial tissue can be removed surgically — that will do it. But that can be quite an undertaking — and it's far from easy to find all of that tissue.

So, alternatively, putting an end to menstrual periods can halt the misery. Menopause does it, but that may mean waiting 15 or 20 years so that's hardly an acceptable answer. Hence in severe cases "surgical menopause," by removal of the ovaries or using radiation to make them inoperative, can be done. The suggestion of "bandaid surgery," which is a nickname for one technique of tubal ligation or "tying the fallopian tubes," will not work. The tube-tying, you see, prevents an ovum or egg from the ovaries from uniting with a sperm cell to cause pregnancy. But it does not inactivate the ovaries, does not stop the rise and fall of hormone levels, and does not prevent menstruation. That's why it is not a solution to endometriosis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taking medication for nearly five years to get rid of excess water. In the last six months I have had kidney infections twice and asked the doctor if the medication would cause the infection. He said no. I don't know what to think and would appreciate your comment. — Mrs. F.H.E. Accept your doctor's answer at face value, because these diuretic (anti-fluid) medications do not cause kidney infection. Kidney infections are not at all uncommon, and it is human nature to try to find some handy explanation, but in this case you are jumping to the wrong conclusion.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If lung cancer has started to develop, will a routine chest X-ray reveal it? — E.P. It may not reveal it in early stages.

For a comprehensive discussion of how to cope with the change of life, write to Dr. George C. Thosteson at Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120 for his invaluable booklet, "Make Menopause Easier."

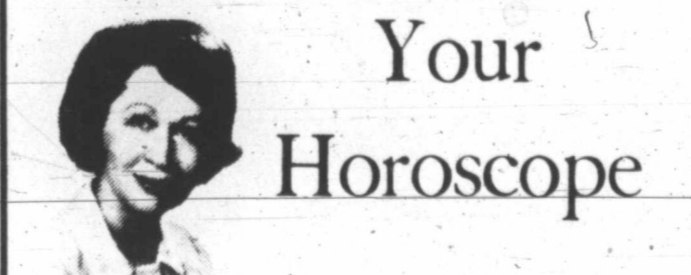

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some Arab leaders appear to have misinterpreted President Ford's warnings about the dire consequences of high oil prices. "America Declares War Against Oil-Rich Arabs," said a Beirut newspaper. Such alarm entirely was uncalled for. Ford was not thinking in terms of military action against Middle East petroleum producers. What he had in mind was smiting them with his jawbone. Ford's economic program, as best it can be perceived, which is dimly, calls for fighting inflation in America by jawboning the Arabs. Contrary to critics who complain that Ford has failed to come up with any new approaches to the problem, this is a departure from previous procedures. In times past, when inflation became troublesome, the presidential jawbone was aimed at domestic price and wage hikers. This verbal pressure took the form of crying "Fie!" and "For shame!" Or else appealing to their better natures. If any. But unless there is some precedent I am unaware of, the use of the presidential jawbone as an international economic weapon is a Ford innovation. Authorities on mandible power say Ford has the mightiest jawbone of any president since FDR. So it is only natural that he would make use of it. There is, however, some feeling in diplomatic circles that jawboning the Arabs is a dangerous extension of the practice. These diplomats point out that Arab leaders already

Under Twenty

By KURT LASSEN Now almost eighteen, Scott Jacoby has already had almost nine years of success on Broadway, in films and on television. He's also managed to work in some commercials and now has turned his interest to a recording career. His first single, "(Hey Girl) Act Like A Woman," is ready for release. In the musicals I've played in I belted songs the way you do on stage. I've always wanted just to sing. Scott told us, "so I made some demos and shopped around for a record company. I guess you'd call my style light rock. Scott's belting took place, for example, in 1968 when he was in "Golden Rainbow" and received a Tony Award nomination for Best Supporting Actor. He's played the role of the Artful Dodger in "Oliver" and appeared in "The King and I." Why strike out on another career when he's kept busy as an actor? "It was just something I wanted to do," Scott says. "I like the idea of traveling around and making personal appearances. It's just another way to reach people, to say something. The album I'm finishing up now is a very personal one, a personal statement really." Scott isn't, however, completely deserting the ranks of actors. On Oct. 23 he'll be seen in "Bad Ronald," a made-for-television film. "I play a very sheltered boy who gets into trouble and is protected by his mother from the world in a weird way. It was an interesting part to do. I play my own age for a change. Usually I'm cast as younger than I am." High school is now behind Scott. "This last year was rough," he told us. "I was working so much I really had to keep after the correspondence work to

NEW BRIDGE LAREDO, Tex. (UPI) — The U.S. Coast Guard has issued a permit for the construction of a second international bridge across the Rio Grande, designed to relieve a bottleneck at the present bridge that connects Laredo and Mexico. City planners said construction of the bridge, estimated to cost $5 million, would begin within 45 days from the time the property is acquired south of the present bridge.

WEDNESDAY, October 2 Your birthday today: Open a memorable year of high responsibility and surprisingly good personal growth. You learn the hard way, and near year's end move on into a quite different pattern of daily living. Relationships are tested repeatedly this year. Today's natives are courageous, frequently plunging into fields that are risky. Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Please yourself in the little things. Routines, well done, bring better results than experimenting. Today's short-term deals fall short of expectations. Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Impulsive moves only seem to open the way out of problems. The real answers come from meditation and acceptance of people as they are. Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Yesterday's conditions continue to make your burden heavy. Persistence eventually tips the balance for the better. Save others from your own tensions. Taurus [April 20-May 20]: It's a more favorable day, although still unsettled. Carelessness is the chief factor at work. You tend to try too much too fast too soon. Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Impulsive speech and action are the order of the day. You'll be fortunate in a special effort at self-discipline. See what you're getting before you buy. Cancer [June 21-July 22]: The unsettled situation is no excuse for dissension. Take a no-nonsense stand. Avoid casually rearranging things at either home or office. Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Getting there isn't much fun, particularly if you start late and aren't well equipped. Leave strangers or any other travelers to their own devices.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You'll have to supply most of the energy, as the people who talk agreement stand still. Be realistic. Waste no time explaining, offer no advice. Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: A sudden shift in attitude disrupts ongoing rapport. Resistance to temptation is the key to your success today. Late hours promise news. Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: The fallout from yesterday's events is less intense. Avoid abrupt decisions, great changes. Close associates resent your long hours of work. Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Travel and normal work continue to emphasize promptness, preparations, early confirmation of arrangements. Obstinance gets you nowhere. Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Joint resources may be a sensitive area — no flippant remarks today! There's much to think about and hope for. Tomorrow brings change; meanwhile, rest.

Your Horoscope

When I went they told me I didn't have a commercial face, so they sent me over to try out for "Music Man." I got the job and acting took up most of my time from then until now," Scott said. In spite of his desire to go on the road, Scott likes his privacy. "I'd like to get a place 'way out in the country," he told us. "A place where I can ski and be alone. I'd want to work and still have a place to get away from everything. Later on I think I'd like to produce and direct films. I've watched a lot of good people work and I think I've learned a great deal. One thing I've learned is that I don't want to direct myself. It's too inside and you don't get enough depth. When Scott isn't working, which is seldom, he studies quiet, reads books on psychology and sees a very special fashion model who's studying to become a designer. "In November I start on the second album," Scott told us. "Considering the first one isn't out yet, this shows a great deal of faith. Where Scott Jacoby is concerned, why not?
