THERE'S THE SPRING—The rule of thumb for Daylight Saving Time is "Spring forward. Fall back" and Floyd Watson, president, First National Bank, watches as bank employe Adell Myers, responsible for the "time in lights" feature (inset) shows how bank time will be "sprung" forward sometime after the close of

Pampans Lose One Hour Sunday Despite Token Relief Elsewhere

By RAY BAXTER
The Federal Uniform Time Act reaches into every life in the nation Sunday and snatches away one hour.
The official hour of confiscation is 2 a.m. but surrendering the hour has divided the nation into two camps: 1) those who run their clocks forward Saturday night before drunk or bed as the case may be and 2) those who set them forward at 11 a.m. Sunday ("Old" time)—the precise moment they discover they missed church.
Then there are the stragglers—those who, after six years of bureaucratic chronometry, still cannot remember whether clocks go forward or turn back. For this mentality the federal time finaglers have come up with the shrill little drill: "Spring forward... Fall back."

All the problems Daylight Saving Time creates in the lives of Americans—particularly those living in Alaska, Indiana, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Kansas, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Oregon, Montana and Texas—is not remembering to move clocks forward the last Sunday in April and move them back again the final Sunday in October.
Alaska lies in four time zones. All the other states are in two time zones. Here in the Panhandle area, Amarillo, only minutes away from the mountain time marker, experiences an unusual phenomenon on the longest day of the year. Last year on that date the sun set in Amarillo at 10:48 p.m.

That is "congressional time" of course. Citizens across the country have come to divide the moments of their lives between that and "God's time."
On March 30, congress gave token relief. The house passed Public Law 92-267—its version of a senate measure passed the previous session but sidetracked in the house. This measure gives those states (at the discretion of their legislatures) falling in more than one time zone the option of exempting one part of the state from changing time during the summer. Thus time is uniform throughout the state.

This still does nothing about the problem of children standing in the pre-dawn hours during October awaiting their school bus. Texas voters sought to make an expression of their feelings known by a referendum in the state's primary. It will be on the republican ballot but it was left off the Democratic ballot—much to the chagrin of most of the state's demos who lambasted State Democratic Chairman Roy Orr for the omission.
However, the referendum accomplishes nothing but an official "venting of spleen" against the time-tinkerers.
In the meantime, readers should remember to advance their clocks an hour this Sunday—I think.

AFTER MUSKIE'S ANNOUNCEMENT

Sen. George McGovern Given More Endorsements For Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—With Edmund S. Muskie retired from active campaigning George McGovern has picked up more endorsements for the Democratic presidential race that appears to have narrowed to a battle with Hubert H. Humphrey.
After Muskie quit the primaries race Thursday, Sen. Fred Harris, himself a former candidate for the nomination, cast his lot with McGovern. Harris previously had been uncommitted.
Cliff Larson, Democratic chairman in Iowa and a backer of Muskie, announced he was switching support to McGovern but retaining the right to return to Muskie, depending on what happens at the Miami Beach convention.
And sources in the McGovern camp said Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., who has stayed out of the battle, would endorse McGovern today. It was Ribicoff who nominated McGovern at the 1968 Chicago convention.

McGovern, meanwhile, said he plans to actively seek the support of organized labor and of the Democratic party leadership, despite the urging of some of his backers.
He told The Washington Post in an interview: "I think I've got the skill and the common sense to quiet the fears of those people and bring them on board at some point."
"As we move along and time permits, I'll be calling on the party leaders in many states," McGovern said. "I think that's the best way I can answer their anxiety about whether I want to work with them."

Muskie and Humphrey have been sharing organized labor's support. Muskie has had a number of endorsements from state Democratic organizations.
Before Muskie withdrew from the primaries Thursday, it appeared he, Humphrey and McGovern would go to Miami Beach with delegates hopelessly split three ways.
Now, it probably will become a two-way split. But matters will be complicated by George C. Wallace, who will make it a three-way race in some states and take a sizable minority bloc of votes to the convention.
Plan To Remove Abandoned Houses Is Progressing
The city's plan to remove abandoned and dilapidated buildings is progressing, according to the city manager's office.
It was announced today that two long-vacant residential structures at 925 Ripley and 321 N. Zimmers have been demolished and hauled away to the city landfill.
The removal work is being carried out under a city ordinance calling for the demolition of buildings considered a fire and health hazard.
Owners of buildings that can be repaired are given an opportunity to renovate and put the property back in condition to be occupied.

$7.6 Million Lawsuit Filed
A $7.6 million class action suit was filed in District Court at Tulsa, Okla., against World Market Centers of Oklahoma, Inc. late Thursday.
Tulsa attorney David Loeffler filed the suit in behalf of Frederick Bagan, who alleges he lost $2,000 investing in the company. The suit also was filed in behalf of all others who invested in the firm.
The action alleges that World Market Centers is violating the Oklahoma Securities Act as it covers "pyramid" sales operations and specifically mentions a promotional film which Loeffler said "has enticed hundreds of Oklahomans into investing in the company."
A number of Pampans also are reported to have placed investments in the firm.

City Explores Data Processing Change

The City of Pampa is exploring the possibility of leasing and installing equipment to operate its own data processing system in municipal departments.
This was learned today following data processing programmer's aptitude tests given at City Hall Thursday afternoon by a representative of the IBM Data Processing Division of Amarillo.
The current contract for data processing in the payroll, utilities and tax departments is held by Tri-State Data Processing Co., 111 S. Ballard.
The city pays approximately $20,000 a year for Tri-State's service. City Manager Mack Wofford said today.
The city manager also stated the city is merely exploring the possibility of putting in its own operation.

"We are studying to determine what the cost would be if a change is made—to see if we can do it at a lower cost and to see if we can spend the same money and do more work," Wofford said.
There has been no decision to make a change, the city manager added.
"This is solely an exploratory move on the city's part to determine if there would be any advantage in making the change, he said.
Eight women and two men employees of the city took the programmer's aptitude test yesterday, according to Wofford.
They included five from the utilities office, two from the finance office, one from the tax department, one from the electrical inspector's office and one from the personnel office.

Pampa Boy Scouts Join Clean-Up Drive
Pampa Boy Scouts have figured out an excellent way to earn merit badges.
They're going to join Pampa's annual Clean-Up Campaign by devoting tomorrow to cleaning up debris and trash on Harvester St. from N. Hobart to the city's landfill site on the east city limits.
While the actual clean-up drive does not start until Monday morning in Ward 1, the scouts decided to jump the gun and clean up Harvester St. tomorrow.
Kirk Duncan, clean-up drive publicity chairman, said the scouts were recruited by Vincent DiCostimo, a member of Scout Troop 22.

N. Viet Tank Troops Overrun Key Defense

SAIGON (AP)—North Vietnamese forces, apparently aiming at a conquest of the old imperial capital of Hue, smashed through South Vietnam's northern defense today.
They overran Dong Ha, sent government forces reeling toward Quang Tri, and were reported to have attacked Fire Base Bastogne, a key base 12 miles west of Hue. Parts of Hue were captured for a short time by enemy forces in the 1968 offensive.
Advices from the field indicated that Fire Base Bastogne was more than half overrun by the North Vietnamese forces. Late tonight details were scant.

The base, manned by Saigon's 1st Division, has been hit by numerous shelling and ground attacks in the last three weeks.
Bastogne has blocked the only access to Hue by road from the west. The new assault appeared to be an attempt by the North Vietnamese to open the road, called Route 547, so tanks and heavy guns can move forward for attacks against Hue itself.
Dong Ha, eastern anchor of the defense line, was overrun in the eight-mile enemy advance. That is the distance between Dong Ha and Quang Tri, first major objective of the northern offensive. The enemy is now at its outskirts.
Two bases southwest of Quang Tri were abandoned under heavy North Vietnamese shelling amounting to 10,000 rounds in the past two days of the renewed enemy offensive.
The United States threw the bulk of its air and naval power into the battle in efforts to avert the fall of Quang Tri, 19 miles below the demilitarized zone.

AP correspondent Holger Jensen reported from Hue that U.S. planes and helicopter gunships bombed and rocketed North Vietnamese tanks on two sides of Quang Tri.
At least 11 tanks were reported knocked out and two U.S. aircraft were lost. In a dramatic air to ground battle with the tanks, two crewmen of a rocket-firing Cobra gunship died after knocking out three tanks.
About 150 air strikes were reported around Quang Tri.
U.S. 7th Fleet destroyers poored 10,000 rounds of gunfire into the Dong Ha area alone after South Vietnamese troops fell back.

The retreating South Vietnamese troops blew up a bridge on Highway 1 halfway between Dong Ha and Quang Tri in hopes of slowing the North Vietnamese advance.
The U.S. Command said seven 7th Fleet destroyers were attacked by shore batteries but none was damaged.
Some U.S. and South Vietnamese officials have said that capture of Quang Tri is possibly a part of a big plan to annex South Vietnam's two northernmost provinces of Quang Tri and Thua Thien, which includes Hue. The old imperial capital, Hue is 35 miles south of Quang Tri.
Most of the tanks have been sighted north of Quang Tri but several amphibious tanks were spotted in the rolling sand dunes southeast of the provincial capital.
Quang Tri itself was being subjected to sporadic shell fire.
Enemy gunners also set up anti-aircraft machine-gun sites on either side of Highway 1 south of Quang Tri and all approaching American helicopters were taking hits.

Nepotism Now Hot Subject Of Gubernatorial Campaign

AUSTIN (AP)—If Barnes and Farenthold resign—as Preston Smith suggests they should for violating the nepotism law—can the governor be far behind?
When Smith said in Brownsville Wednesday that Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and Rep. Frances Farenthold perhaps should resign, he apparently forgot he hired Speaker Rayford Price's wife in 1965.
Senate payroll records show Barbara Price was paid $1,600 for working for Smith for four months in 1965.
"Maybe Ben Barnes and Sissy Farenthold should resign," the governor said. After suggesting it, he said: "I'm not suggesting it, but it should be looked into."
Smith's remarks were prompted by the resignation of Sen. David Ratliff of Stamford, who hired several of his own relatives while he was in the legislature.

Earlier Wednesday, in Corpus Christi, Smith said: "I'm not saying that (nepotism) is wrong or right, but Mrs. Farenthold had them and Ben Barnes had them. I'm kind of interested in this kind of thing. There might be some others who are guilty of it."
The nepotism law forbids legislators and other state officials to hire their relatives.
But for years it was assumed that House members could hire relatives of senators and vice versa.
Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin cleared that up on April 18 with an opinion that declared the practice violated the nepotism statute, which carries a fine of $100 to $1,000.

Travis County Dist. Atty. Bob Smith said Thursday he did not have the resources to investigate all the nepotism cases in the legislature. At least 75 relatives of 45 legislators have worked on legislative payrolls sometime in the past five years.
However, the grand jury will investigate any case where a legislator hired his own or another legislator's relative and that relative did no work for the salary received, the prosecutor said.
This would be theft of state money by false pretext, punishable by a prison term from two to 10 years, the district attorney said.

Groups Will Conduct Projects To Keep Area Clean, Beautiful

By LARRY HOLLIS
Tomorrow is Keep America Beautiful Day.
And in observance of it, various local organizations, including Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, will be conducting individual projects to make America a more aesthetic place in which to live.
In advance of tomorrow's observance, which is sponsored nationally by the Boy Scouts of America, a local Explorers Post went on a trash collecting expedition last Saturday.
Members of Explorers Post 86, sponsored by the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District, walked along the Borger highway west of town for one mile, picking up the assorted trash along the way.

Expending four man-hours of work, the group accumulated 70 pounds of trash, which was broken down thus:
20 pounds of glass;
15 pounds of cans (185 cans);
8 pounds of metal (including a pair of pliers and a line of type);
3 pounds of wood; and
24 pounds of paper, plastics, foil, rubber and other materials.
Jack C. Williams, Post advisor, said the trash had accumulated during a period of approximately one month, as the Texas Highway Maintenance department had cleaned the area just several weeks earlier.

In a discussion with Gordon Taylor, a member of the local Maintenance department, Williams discovered there are 339 miles of highways and farm-to-market roads in the county.
With last Saturday's clean-up used for a comparative base, Williams said it would take 1356 man-hours or two-thirds of a man-year (based on a 40-hour week) to clean up the area along the roads in Gray County.
And at 70 pounds to the mile, there would be 23,730 pounds, nearly 12 tons, of trash accumulating during each month.
The Post has had its collected trash assembled for a display on the second floor of Pampa

High School during the week to advertise the upcoming Keep America Beautiful Day and to show the need to prevent litter.
The exhibit has a sign in front of it:
"Did Any of This Belong to You?"
Organized as a specialty post on soil conservation in December, the Post studies soil conservation, wildlife, grasses and trees and other related subjects.
Saturday's clean-up was conducted as a community service project in the ecology phase of study, with particular note made for the aesthetic aspect of man's relation to his environment.
Post president is Rick Smith, with James Beistle as vice president and Pam Jones as secretary.

Study Shows Boston Is Now Third Most Expensive City

By BROOKS JACKSON
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — New Labor Department figures show Boston has overtaken New York as the third most expensive city for medium-budget American families.

Anchorage retains a firm grip on first place, and Honolulu holds second despite some relative slippage. Small Southern cities remain the cheapest urban places to live.

These are among the findings of the Bureau of Labor Statistics' urban family budgets, updated Wednesday for the first time in a year and a half.

During that time the national average cost of maintaining an intermediate standard of living for a family of four rose 2.9 per cent to $10,971 a year.

The cost of a more austere standard rose 3.5 per cent to $7,214, and the cost of a higher standard, providing more comfort and luxuries, rose 2.5 per cent to $15,905.

Consumer prices rose 6.3 per cent during the same period, but lower income taxes helped keep total budget costs down.

The lower budget provides for rental housing without air conditioning and meals that are nutritious but feature mostly low-cost meat and meat substitutes.

The higher budget provides for a higher rate of home ownership, a new car every four years for most families and more and better food, clothing, furniture and household appliances.

The figures are updated to last fall. Previous figures were for the spring, 1970.

During that time the costs of an intermediate budget in Anchorage remained at a solid 136 per cent of the national average. Honolulu slipped from 120 to 119. Fourth-place Boston shot up from 113 to 117, overtaking third-place New York, where relative costs went up more slowly from 114 to 115.

Places where costs now match the national average are Baltimore, Los Angeles, Kansas City, St. Louis and Green Bay, Wis.

Lowest urban costs were recorded in Southern towns of from 2,500 to 50,000 population. They averaged only 84 per cent of the national norm. Other low-cost cities included Austin, Tex., 86 per cent; Orlando, Fla., 88; and Atlanta, 89.

The department gives no figures for farm areas.

The Labor Department says it has no measures of income that are precisely appropriate to compare to the three budgets. One widely used measure of income, average weekly earnings for rank-and-file pro-

Allies Claim Victory In Quang Tri; S. Viet Suffers Heaviest Casualties

SAIGON (AP) — A tank battle erupted Thursday on the approaches to Quang Tri in a renewed North Vietnamese drive to seize that northernmost provincial capital. Allied officers claimed victory in the armored battle and said South Vietnamese were holding their own elsewhere.

The fighting around Quang Tri, 19 miles south of the demilitarized zone, broke a lull of more than a week in the north, where the North Vietnamese have been held along a river line 10 miles south of the zone.

A U.S. officer at Quang Tri said 10 enemy tanks were destroyed in the armored engagement five to six miles north of Quang Tri.

When the enemy stormed across the demilitarized zone March 30, it was believed that Quang Tri and its nearby military base was the prime objective.

Associated Press correspondent Lynn C. Newland reported from Quang Tri after a flight over the battlefield that a North Vietnamese ambush knocked out trucks and disrupted traffic on Highway 1 three miles south of Quang Tri. This was the closest enemy approach reported.

The savagery of the fighting in the enemy's new offensive was reflected in casualty figures for last week. The South Vietnamese reported 1,149 soldiers killed and 3,376 wounded, the heaviest of the war. The U.S. Command said 10 Americans were killed, 8 were missing and 78 wounded, the heaviest losses in six months.

With bad weather holding air strikes to 14 on the northern front, U.S. fighter-bombers attacked enemy targets in North Vietnam, hoping to blunt the North Vietnamese attack.

The U.S. Navy also joined the battle. Warships standing off in the Gulf of Tonkin fired at enemy lines.

Cloud-Seeding Operation Will Be Performed Again In Oklahoma Areas

By the end of this week, the planes should be in the air over southwest Oklahoma again, this time under a $225,000 federal weather modification contract awarded by the Bureau of Reclamation to Weather Science Inc. of Norman, Okla.

The primary objective of the program is to increase rainfall over the watersheds of the Altus, Foss and Mountain Park reservoirs. In all, eight Oklahoma counties will be affected — Beckham, Custer, Greer, Marmon, Jackson, Kiowa, Roger Mills and Tillman. At the same time, the city of Lawton, Okla., has contracted with Irving P. Krick and Associates of Palm Springs, Calif., for a $27,000 rainmaking program. The Krick firm will use ground-based silver iodide generators, a number of them already in place, to seed clouds.

"There is no question but what we have the ability to increase rainfall," Radcliffe said. "The only question is getting the material into the clouds."

"All the scientific evidence we have shows that cloud seeding from airplanes is the method which will work in southwest Oklahoma. Ground generators have about a 3,000-foot capability in this area. They depend on the air currents being just right to get the silver iodide crystals into the clouds. With a plane you can put the material right where it will do the most good."

Regardless of the method used, the objective is the same — to put something into a cloud that tiny droplets can gather around to become big drops, which then fall as rain.

With one of the driest first-quarters on record through much of the nation's mid-section from Nebraska to Texas, Colorado and New Mexico, the lessons learned in southwest Oklahoma may soon be applied in other states.

A scanning electron microscope can magnify objects as much as 100,000 times.

By LESLIE WALLER

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The Mafia is alive and well, even though a lot of its members have been getting shot to death lately.

The current East Coast vendetta murders—with top mobster Joe (Crazy Joe) Gallo heading the list of corpses—has police and civilians alike wondering what it all means for the future of organized crime.

If something this complicated and bloody can be summed up in a word, the answer is: growth.

Where the mob is concerned, growing pains, usually fatal, accompany any major change. The crime syndicate is heading in a new direction, full steam ahead, and when a train rounds a rough curve people get thrown off.

The billions in cash generated by the mob's criminal activities—drugs, gambling, loansharking, fencing of stolen goods and the like—are still being plowed back into legitimate businesses which are growing at a fantastic rate because of this force-feeding. But the balance between legal and illegal enterprises is starting to shift rather dramatically.

Two colorful new figures dominate the scene, even though one is dead, one is permanently crippled and neither is the real behind-the-scenes leader of the secret conflict.

The "front men" are the recently deceased Gallo and Joseph A. Colombo Sr., who was supposed to have died by assassination last June 28, but miraculously survives with extensive brain damage.

Family feuds have something to do with the current bloodbath, but the conflict runs far deeper. Gallo and Colombo symbolize basic, contradictory trends in the future plans of organized crime.

Colombo, with his blatantly all-white publicity approach, spearheads one mob faction that seeks to keep control of the lucrative heroin and numbers rackets in black and Puerto Rican ghetto areas.

Gallo, who hoped to change his "image," represented a faction that wants to walk away from the socially obnoxious drug trade, concentrate more on its legal holdings and become respected pillars of society.

To this end, Gallo planned to elevate black, Puerto Rican and Chicano underlings to management level, let them pocket the immense profits and take the undesirable publicity, too.

Moving with him, blacks and Puerto Rican mobsters have been pressing their all-white overboses for a heftier cut of the take... or else. In Attica (N.Y.) State Prison during 1963, Gallo worked closely with black inmates. He later filed a court suit charging he'd been punished cruelly and unusually for defending the rights of blacks.

So, when a black assassin, Jerome A. Johnson, was used against Colombo last summer, many read this as Gallo's personal signature. But, although instant revenge was predicted, the Colombo faction has been thrown into confusion.

One delay was Colombo's physical condition. So ironclad is mob discipline, and so few the subordinates with real leadership ability, that no one wanted to make any major decisions while there was a chance Colombo could stage a comeback from death. Recently he has grown stronger.

The second fact that held bloody retribution in check was the "double take-out" plan of the Colombo kill. This classic gambit involves a "hit man" who is conned into committing a public murder by promises of full protection.

Once he pulls the trigger, a "take-out" man silences the hit man forever, pleading self-defense or temporary insanity as a motive. In the Colombo caper, the take-out man was one of the victim's own trusted bodyguards. This confusedly pointed away from Gallo toward the Boss of Bosses, 72-year-old Carlo Gambino.

In the nine months it took Colombo to regain enough faculties to help solve the dilemma, there has been no dearth of gangland slayings. On Sept. 19, 1971, James (Jimmy Doyle) Plumeri, leading member of the old Luchese family, was strangled. On March 2, 1972, Vito Licata was killed and Frank Giambone wounded. In fact, police of the New York-New Jersey area estimate that over the past two years more than 30 Mafia-connected homicides have taken place.

The first time the business of organized crime jolted this violently around a curve of history was during Prohibition, when younger mobsters were held in check by the 18th-century Mafia taboos against drugs and alliances with non-Sicilians.

But with the end of Prohibition in sight, this major source of profits seemed about to disappear. Something had to be done.

On the night of Sept. 11, 1931, and for two days thereafter, more than 40 old-time Mafiosi, including Boss of Bosses Salvatore Maranzano, were rubbed out. Overnight the Mafia went from 18th to the 20th century and made broad alliances for handling drugs. This new source of cash effectively replaced alcohol when Repeal came in 1933.

In the 1950s, with the murders of high-ranking mobsters like Willie Moretti and Albert Anastasia and the shooting of Frank Costello, a brief war of geographic jurisdiction flared up. But the current wave of killings reflects a deep-seated move to win respectability by leaving drug profits to those who will usurp them anyway, in time.

The new direction of the mob is now toward legitimate investments and enterprises in the area of so-called victimless crimes—gambling, stock market manipulation, business and bank fraud and the like.

The syndicate's well-known use of Swiss banking secrecy highlights the extent to which many legal businesses are owned, wholly or in part, openly or in secret, by members of organized crime.

Unreported cash moves by courier to Switzerland from the criminal and quasi-legal activities of the mob. It returns to the United States as anonymous Swiss bank drafts to buy stocks and bonds, make mortgage and business loans and otherwise grease an already well-oiled legal business empire with heavy interests in the fields of real estate, construction, trucking, clothing, food, retailing, entertainment, resorts and vending.

Although Securities and Exchange Commission regulations require an investor who controls more than 10 per cent of a corporation to reveal his identity, many a nameless Swiss account holds up to 9.9 per cent of the company. Other faceless accounts own similarly discreet percentages.

When the real owners of these accounts feel the time is ripe, they reveal their interconnection and make their control felt. Only then does management realize who actually owns the various 9.9 per cent chunks of the corporation.

But such business chicanery goes only so far in explaining the present bloodbath. Key mob figures are eliminated for business reasons, but once this happens the family-vendetta concept of manliness is challenged and murders are then committed to regain respect.

Since this kind of killing is even more irrational than business rub-outs, it is harder for authorities to predict how far it can go before the traditional Mafia outsider is brought in to mediate. The last time this was necessary was in 1961 when the Gallos rebelled within the Profaci family, now controlled by Colombo, and started an internal war.

Whatever the next few months hold in store for individual members of the two families, there is no doubt what lies ahead for organized crime. Whoever else dies, the trend is now zeroed in on legitimizing the secret army of publicity-shy mobsters who crave respectability as much as they crave power.

THE LAST GOODBYE

Stargazing Is a Woman's Business

By ARNOLD TUCKER
Written for NEA

LONDON, England — (NEA) — When Professor Margaret Burbidge grins she sparkles. Her hair is sleek under a glossy blue rinse and she looks more like the director of a successful fashion house than one of the world's leading optical astronomers.

Yet in July, 1972, she became director of Britain's Royal Greenwich Observatory, Prof. Burbidge is the first woman to hold the post and it is the first time that the post has existed separately from that of astronomer royal.

After 40 years of comparative eclipse, optical astronomy is now limbering up in Britain for reemergence with world status. The plans of Britain's Science Research Council have laid the groundwork for an interrelated group of observatories. In the next few years these observatories will come into successive operation and require research coordination at a level unprecedented in the discipline's history.

This expansion and the demands it would make on the new director called for an appointment based on qualities unlike those normally associated with an astronomer royal. As the British government explained when the separation of posts was announced, this opened the way for a director of Greenwich of any nationality. The astronomer royal has to be British.

To the great satisfaction of astronomers in Britain, though, the new director turned out to be a Briton.

Prof. Margaret Burbidge
No discrimination in astronomy.

For Prof. Burbidge, although at present professor of astronomy at the University of California, was born in the industrial northwest of England.

She took her doctorate at the University of London Observatory where she was assistant director from 1948 to 1950 and served as director in 1950-51.

On a fellowship from the International Astronomical Union she went to the Yerkes Observatory, University of Chicago, for two years, became a research fellow at the California Institute of Technology in 1955 and was ly discovered "oscillating" radio objects called pulsars, great objects of incredibly great mass, small volume and enormous energy output.

Much of her work on quasars and in the field of astronomy generally has been done in collaboration with her husband, Prof. Geoffrey Burbidge, who is at present professor of physics at the University of California. Britain's Science Research Council states that it is considering "appropriate arrangements to enable this collaboration to continue."

The British program includes an Anglo-Australian optical telescope at Siding Spring, north of Sydney. When it comes into operation in 1974-75 it will open up the southern skies much as Mt. Wilson in the United States opened up those in the north.

Within months an infrared observatory will come into operation at Tenerife in the Canary Islands and plans have been laid for a British northern hemisphere observatory to match that at Siding Spring.

The new director of Greenwich will play a major part in creating and coordinating the national and international research programs woven round these observatories.

But Prof. Burbidge is not overawed by the prospect. "A good director does not get too involved with administration," she says. "Scientific research must have first priority."

Because she will increasingly be directing the work of scientists who are predominantly men, people ask her about the problems posed by discrimination against women. She smiles but is clearly serious. "Where it exists, discrimination against women should be done away with," she says, adding that she has never met discrimination in astronomy.

Prof. Burbidge has in front of her the task of reshaping and of rebuilding the whole fabric of British observational astronomy.

She is the most important director at Greenwich for two centuries and undoubtedly the most charming.

Pampa Youth Goodfellow Candidate

Stephen Craig Walls, son of Mrs. Lorita Walls, 627 N. West, is one of 57 students at the University of Texas at Austin to be named Cactus Goodfellows.

The title is a special honor to students of achievement in campus activities and University interests.

The students were chosen from nominations by campus organizations and groups. Selection was made by the students and staff from the Dean of Students office.

Pictures of the Goodfellows will appear in a special section of the 1972 edition of the Cactus, UT Austin student yearbook.

Market Basket Cost Declines

WASHINGTON (AP)—Consumers got a little break at supermarkets last month as food prices dropped slightly, but it was all because farmers wound up with a smaller share of the consumer grocery dollar, according to the Agriculture Department.

Lower prices for cattle, hogs and fresh vegetables were main factors for a $5 decline in a market basket list of store-bought food, the amount theoretically needed by a typical family for a year.

In March the market basket cost an annual rate of $1,292 compared with $1,297 in February, the USDA announced Wednesday. The share farmers got was $502 compared with $516 in February, a $14 drop.

Meantime, costs for transporting, processing and merchandising market basket food—the so-called "middleman" cost—increased $9 to $790 for March.

Mathematically, that meant the farmer's share of the consumer food dollar dropped last month to 38.9 cents from the February level of 39.7 cents.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who has defended farm prices against charges they are causing higher food costs, said rising wages for workers are the main cause.

"I'm glad they are well paid," Butz told newsmen. "But, on the other hand, I think we have got our priorities mixed up when we pay butchers in Chicago twice what we pay school teachers."

Vehicle Emissions Testing May Be Required On Privately-Owned Cars

A likelihood that vehicle emissions testing will be required on privately-owned automobiles to ensure that cars meet emissions safety standards exists within the near future, with car owners being required to have auto tune-ups for cars that don't meet the standards, said Mrs. Char White of San Antonio during the annual meeting of the Texas TB and Respiratory Disease Association, held last week in Austin.

Such inspection requirements will not be uncomplicated, she stated, adding that inspection stations would have to install the necessary testing equipment, and that cost of the inspection probably would rise from two to four dollars.

Mrs. White said that New York City will ban parking in certain sections of the city in 1974, and that the public would be increasingly dependent upon mass transit as other large cities follow New York's example in the fight against air pollution.

The Austin meeting covered a wide scope of health problems, ranging from TB control to new research in emphysema and other respiratory diseases. Dr. John A. Pierce of St. Louis reported that research in emphysema had yielded evidence that some individuals have an inherited predisposition to the disease.

"In some persons, we find an absence of antitrypsin antigen, which renders the body unable to combat its own enzymes," he said. "Our research indicated in effect that the body's enzymes are digesting its own lung tissue, resulting in emphysema. We suspect the same thing is going on in the liver, resulting in cirrhosis."

Smoking increases the danger of emphysema in all individuals, he indicated, and for these heredity-prone individuals it is particularly dangerous.

The Top of Texas TB-RD Association, headquartered in Amarillo, was praised for its work in TB, anti-smoking education, and respiratory disease work.

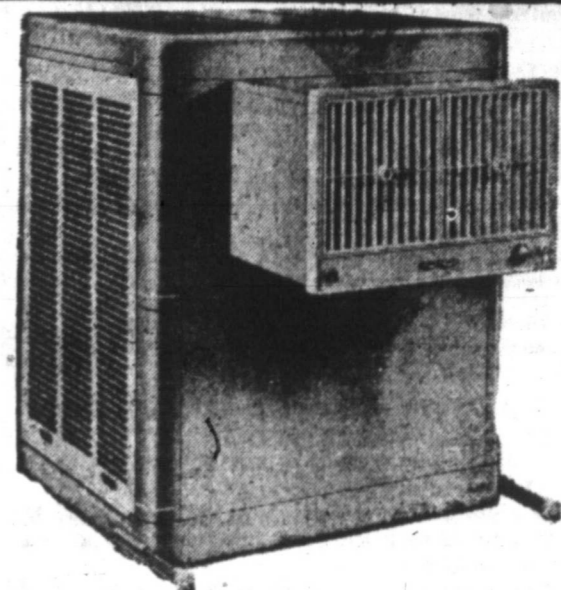

Six area residents were mentioned as receiving Laura E. Scott community health trophies from the association's awards chairman, Rip Underwood, at its March meeting.

Dear Abby

Want a job? Then you should do the asking

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I own my own business, and I hire many high school students for part-time work. Abby, you cannot imagine how many parents call me and ask if I have a job for Mary or Billy!

If Mary or Billy want to work, THEY should do the asking. Having Mamma or Dad ask for them doesn't say much for their child's initiative.

I feel it is important for young people to work, and I give as many of them a break as I can, but I have made it a policy NEVER to hire anyone whose mother or father calls and asks me to put their child to work. If a boy or girl is old enough to draw a salary, he is old enough to ask for a job.

I am sure other employers share my viewpoint. And if this letter helps to wake up just one teen-ager, it will have been worth the time I took to write it. EMPLOYER

DEAR EMPLOYER: I'm glad you wrote. I'm sure you woke up more than just one teen-ager. [And a few parents, too.]

DEAR ABBY: Last January my nephew [I'll call him George] married a girl I'll call Martha. Although we all live in the same town, George didn't bring Martha around to meet any of the family, and the first time most of us saw her was at the wedding.

After two months of marriage, George and Martha separated. Everyone in the family gave them very nice and expensive wedding gifts, all of which Martha thinks she is entitled to keep.

Don't you think that because it was such a short marriage George should keep everything they got from HIS side of the family, and Martha should keep everything from HER side?

Please print what is proper in your column, because Martha never misses it. GEORGE'S AUNT

DEAR AUNT: It is proper under the circumstances that all gifts be returned.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I remarked on the number of letters in your column from couples who were married 20 years or more and have made a mess of their marriages. What is wrong with people anyway?

When a person seeks employment and gets a job he wants, does he sit back and relax just because he got the job? No! He works at it.

That's the way it is with marriage. It has to be worked at. The wife and I will be married 25 years in November. We have three children, one married, one engaged, and the third practically out of the nest, but we have never put our children before each other. That's the first rule.

Let's face it, the biggest job is the wife's. My wife is up, her hair out of curlers, make-up on and dressed in the morning before she wakes me up, and breakfast is on the burner by the time I'm finished shaving. And when I return in the evening, she's not slouched over the TV or a magazine, with hair uncombed, dirty apron and the bit. She's bathed, fresh dress on, make-up intact and she greets me with a smile and a kiss. And no matter how tired I am, I come alive again. She's a jewel, a gem and a queen.

My job is supporting her and the kids and letting her know I appreciate her. I help her when I can. [A few years ago I discovered outdoor cooking, and I'm sorry I didn't discover it years ago. I'm the "cook" which takes a lot of work off her shoulders.]

I'm not saying we don't have our differences. What couple doesn't? But our marriage is working because we both WORK at it. And the job is never finished.

STILL WORKING

DEAR STILL: Your "work" sounds like a pleasure because you've set up ideal working conditions. Bless you and your "queen," and may you celebrate your 50th.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ANONYMOUS, PLEASE": The man who is your legal husband at the time of your baby's birth is the baby's legal father. No ifs, ands or buts. You should see a lawyer anyway.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

"If I had bid four no-trump as my cards really warranted, we might have reached six clubs. I doubt it. He would have looked at his heart and spade kings and if he had bid a slam it would have been in no-trump. Playing at three no-trump he would only make five. As it was we did make game."

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 29

Your birthday today: You get what you deserve this year, largely in personal terms that may mean little to the outsider. Concentrate on work you can do with little collaboration. Intuitive strength should be let free to function. Today's natives tend to strong ambitions or special wants, frequently have voices suited for oratory or persuasive salesmanship.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: A relatively quiet weekend, in which you select issues to force favorable conclusions. Review the past and learn from it.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Do whatever you must to keep the peace, starting now without recriminations or complaint. Improve your habits.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Find the loose ends of your list of things to do, promises to keep, possessions to round up and put in proper places.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Intellectual pursuits are favored. Compare notes with others of like interests. Your own calm encourages others.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Devote every minute you can to home affairs, the care and maintenance of your base of operations. Spruce up both your habits and apparel.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Physical exertion proves heavier than comfortable, should be avoided where you can. Plan to replace useless items.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Further extension of previous actions is your best line for today, with time for rest and meditation. New projects need some added touches.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Recreation, your favorite outdoor hobbies (if possible) should feature your weekend. Stir yourself; the effort is worthwhile.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Use a quiet and slow approach, with more details filled in as you go. Old business has to be done first.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: By the time you attend the minor and nuisance items, the day is pretty well finished. Relax, then celebrate.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Extra energy is hard to come by, so use what you have to cope with what is nearby. Do things right the first time.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Ease family affairs along, reconcile differences, guide young people. Concentrated thought brings you a short cut which works out an old problem.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Catherine who has holes in her "wet look" coat caused by the buttons pulling off. She could cut swatches of an adhesive-backed leather-like mending tape. If the lining is loose, open it up from the bottom and attach the tape piece on the inside—otherwise put one of the inside and one on the outside to have a new surface for attaching the buttons. Use strong thread for sewing them on and put a smaller button on the inside, sewn at the same time the outer one is sewn on. The stitches will not pull out so easily as the inside button equalizes the strain.—MRS. L.W.M.

problem with the buttons on her "wet look" coat may be solved if she uses felt or iron-on patches as a backing on both sides and then sews the buttons on with either dental floss or nylon fishing line. Both are excellent for sewing on coat buttons especially when there is an energetic man around the house.—KAREN

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is that sales pitch about certain garments saying "One size fits all." Hardly true unless the item happens to be a handkerchief.—LILLIAN

Christian Church Takes Stand On Death Sentence

CORPUS CHRISTI — Citing Christian teachings and the U.S. Constitution's prohibition of "cruel and unusual" punishment, the assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Texas declared last Friday that it is "for the abolition of capital punishment."

The resolution approved after vigorous floor debate calls upon Christians to "work actively for the abolition of the death penalty through constitutional, legislative and court action."

Seven of the 11 delegates who spoke to the issue from floor microphones favored abolishing capital punishment, some giving reasons not mentioned in the resolution.

One of those, Charles Johnson of Arlington, said that his opposition to capital punishment is largely because most persons actually put to death for crimes are the poor, "mainly blacks and Mexican-Americans," who can't afford expensive lawyers.

But Luke Bolin, pastor of Lakewood Christian Church in Waco, declared that some persons have committed such crimes "that they have forfeited their right to live among decent human beings."

Other resolutions approved in the session: —Supported "immediate passage and implementation of proposed national legislation that would create a program to care for Vietnamese children who are victims of the war."

—Asked the Christian Church in Texas to encourage its congregation "to make available their scholarship monies for Disciples students" to attend either of two church-related institutions—Jarvis Christian College at Hawkins or Texas Christian University in Fort Worth—and to seek additional financial support for those preparing for the ministry.

—Encouraged congregations and church organizations to pay the additional 1 per cent dues to enable their ministers and employees to have the expanded Pension Fund benefits authorized during the past year.

Mrs. Taylor Grimes of Austin complained that some of the language "in the whereases" in the resolution on Vietnamese child care seems to be "a slap at the government." She objected, for example, to the charge that Vietnamese children are abandoned "as a direct result of our involvement."

Charles H. Jagers, pastor of Central Christian Church of Frisco in Collin County, was named Town and Country Minister of the Year in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) in Texas.

Since December 1969, Jagers, a layman-turned-minister, has led the Frisco congregation in almost doubling its membership, erecting a new building, increasing its giving for outreach causes and developing a strong youth program.

He took the lead in organizing the United Youth Fellowship, an inter-denominational youth group, and continues to serve as its coordinator.

Youth Service Featured By Presbyterians

A youth service entitled "God, Brother and Soul" will be held at the First Presbyterian Church at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services of worship.

Giving the three main messages will be members of the senior high fellowship, Deborah Bray, Steve Cory and Patricia White. The worship service will include celebration of the Lord's Supper and songs of contemporary praise and worship.

The senior high fellowship extends a warm welcome to all to take part in this joyful celebration of Christ's presence among us.

The junior high fellowship will meet at the church at 4 p.m. for the purpose of distributing flyers to neighbors of the church concerning the use of Fellowship Hall for shelter during severe weather warnings.

The Session of the church will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday evening for their regularly stated meeting.

The new Mariner's group will meet for a game night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Mackey, 562 Terry Road at 7:30 p.m. May 5. First Presbyterian Church is at 525 N. Gray.

Synod Sets Year-Long Anniversary

"Rejoicing in Mercy" is the theme for the year-long 125th anniversary celebration of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod which begins this Sunday.

Zion Lutheran Church will join in with 6,000 sister congregations and 3,000,000 fellow members through a special worship service Sunday at 11 a.m. The Rev. M.G. Herring, Pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, will deliver the anniversary message, "A New Song."

Serving as organist and leading the congregation in the singing of several new anniversary hymns will be Mrs. Harris Brinson.

Commissioned during the Worship Service will be "Messengers of Rejoicing"—volunteer members who will seek to share the Gospel with others in special ways during the anniversary year.

The goal of the Synod is to inspire 125,000 members to serve in this capacity during the anniversary year. Other goals will include: a "Venture into Community" project; additional worship celebrations; encouraging members to invest in "Century and 25" church extension bonds; learning more about the Missouri Synod's tremendous challenges today and uniting in a joyous anniversary thanksgiving of $20 to $30 million to enable the Missouri Synod to surge ahead in the future in mission and ministry.

Growth Drive Mark Set For Sunday

Sunday is the third of the Spring Growth campaign at Central Baptist.

The emphasis on growth is two-fold: new Sunday School members and a higher sustained attendance. During the past weeks there has been a large increase in new members as well as higher attendance.

Sunday, the emphasis is upon growing through giving. The people are being challenged to reach a goal of $4,000.00 in gifts which will go to the building improvement fund.

The church is now planning for the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Black. Black has been called as youth director and will move on the church field June 1. He is a graduate of Hardin Simmons University, Abilene and is now teaching band in San Antonio. He and his wife, Sandi, have two children.

The church will soon begin construction on a new youth recreation room. The building will provide facilities for all types of youth activities. The room will be located in the basement of the education building and all activities will be under the direction of Black.

Sermon Topics Selected For First Baptist

Dr. C. Gordon Bayless, pastor will preach both services of worship Sunday in First Baptist Church. He has chosen "Chains Broken" for the 11 a.m. sermon subject and "When Jesus Complimented His Friends" for the 7 p.m. sermon topic.

Larry Sherwood, minister of music, will direct the sanctuary choir in the anthem, "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee" by Ransley at the morning worship. Mrs. Larry Sherwood will sing "My Heavenly Father Watches over Me" for the special music.

The youth choir will occupy the choir loft for the evening worship to sing "Love Is Surrender" by Carmichael.

Organ offertory selections for the services are "Intermezzo" by MacDonald and "The Heart of God" by McAfee which will be played by Miss Eloise Lane.

Prayer Meeting begins at 6:15 Wednesday evening, and Dr. Bayless will continue teaching the Book of Philippians. The fellowship supper precedes Prayer Meeting from 5:30 until 6:15.

First Bapt. Men will have their regular monthly meeting at 6:30 Thursday morning. Breakfast will be served. George Warren will be the speaker.

Morning services can be heard over radio station KPND and seen on channel 13 TV. The evening services are televised only.

"Heavenly Guidance"

In the Book of Proverbs, Chapter three, verses five and six are these words: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not upon thine own understanding: In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He will direct (make plain, smooth, straight) thy paths."

Let us give a brief consideration to the necessity for God's Guidance because of human limitations. In the first place we are limited because of our ignorance of the future. Ancient man and modern man have been avid in their search for the key to unlock the vaults containing the secrets of tomorrow.

Like Columbus, we set our sails to cross unknown seas. We know not what may happen each day, but we must face that day and plan for many a day in advance. Of necessity, our lives must be arranged with respect to the future, and yet, the future is hidden from us. How needful then to be guided into the unknown tomorrow by ONE who sees and knows the end from the beginning.

Then too, a second human limitation is the ability to make decisions aright. No man, not even a redeemed man, is capable of making moral decisions apart from God's Guidance. Degraded by the fall and darkened by the corruption of the human heart, every one of us must have help from above.

Again, we need God's enlightenment upon us because of the difficult choices that we face. Many times we are helpless to choose from a multiplicity of possibilities which confront us. In the complexities and perplexities of life, God's leadership is an imperative, for only through Him, can we choose from the innumerable and conflicting choices that perplex us, and find that confident, inner assurance that this choice is right and best.

Also, we need heavenly guidance, not only for our own interest; but how much more is this true when we are called upon to serve God and others. Because we have been called, we are not free to choose our own paths, even if we had the light and wisdom to do so. We are the servants; He is the Master. The servant must learn the will of the Master before he can know what he is to do, or how he is to accomplish it.

Having said, in the above statements, the Necessity of God's Guidance, let us now consider the Conditions by which man may receive his guidance.

The condition upon which the text says that we are to receive Guidance from the Lord is found in the word "trust."

"Trust in the Lord and He will direct thy paths." This text would imply great truths but let's consider three.

First of all, it is to be an exclusive trust. "Trust in the Lord...and lean not upon thine own understanding." This would mean that we are to use our own understanding (intellect, knowledge, reasoning), but we must not place upon it any degree of dependence which should be placed upon God alone.

Second, this trust is to be a complete trust. "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart." To the Hebrews the word for heart is much more inclusive than is our English word. We tend to divide man into various parts as heart, mind, intellect, soul, will, body, but the Old Testament conception of the heart includes not only the affections, emotions, desires, feelings, motives, but also the will, the aims, principles, the thoughts, the intellect—the whole inner man. Therefore the emphasis is on the words, "All" and "Heart."

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart," and when one does this, he trusts God COMPLETELY.

Thirdly, this is a continuous, constant, abiding trust in God. "In all thy ways acknowledge Him." Not in some of your ways, but in all of your ways, wherever that might be. Acknowledge him in the dark as well as in the light, at school or at church, at work or at play. As someone has said, "God is not one of the electives in the school of life; rather he is one of the school's most rigid requirements." "In all thy ways acknowledge Him."

After examining the necessity for Heavenly Guidance, let us lastly, look at the results promised unto us in this proverb. The promise is that God will direct their paths. "Trust in the Lord...in all thy ways acknowledge Him and He will direct thy paths."

The promise here is based primarily upon the words "way" and "paths." If we will choose God in all our ways, which refers to the mannerism of living each day, then God promises to direct our paths. Thus, one would have the blessed comfort and assurance, that with God directing our paths, that no true evil can baffle our minds, no obstacles can hinder us if He directs us.

DAVID POLING, D.D.

Vietnam: A Test Of American Soul

By REV. DAVID POLING

We were driving toward the New Mexico-Colorado line the other day and passed through the remote mountain village of Eagle's Nest. Here in the high country of New Mexico the snow still drapes the nearby peaks and protected valleys. The wind seems more winter than spring. The cattle are out, but stick together for warmth and protection.

Just before you enter this small town in the Rockies, you pass a majestic chapel, sculpted of stone, cement and glass. This nearly completed memorial—for all faiths—was built on a lovely hillside by a father who wanted to honor his son. The son died in Vietnam, one of nearly 45,000 Americans who will never come home.

Many of us have almost forgotten that the conflict grinds on. The administration has talked peace and settlement and compromise so that we could almost hear the signers putting pen to paper and wrapping up the decade of sorrow and agony.

But it is not the case. The war is front page and the casualty lists will soon appear and many more parents will be greeted with youthful graves.

This final episode of Vietnam, with renewed offensives from the North and increased bombings from the South, is going to test the soul of America. Not the manhood, for that was proved 45,000 lives ago. Nor the determination, for billions and billions have been invested, wasted and spent on that tiny piece of Asian real estate. A testing of soul reveals the spirit of a people and it appears we shall be frustrated by those in Washington as well as those in Hanoi (and Saigon, if they have not yet fled to Switzerland).

In the past 18 months national churchmen of every brand and persuasion have moved against an increase in the fighting and a pressing for prompt settlement of the war. Every major religious body has expressed alarm at the slow pace of peace and the restless itch of some military-political leaders to prolong the conflict.

Last month Cardinal Cooke was asked about the war in Vietnam—whether or not it was a "just war" in classic Christian terminology. In other words, was it O.K. for us to be there and have a good conscience in the pursuit of warfare.

He hesitated in his answer. He allowed that many issues were at stake, and although our right of self-protection was always just, he wasn't sure the war was blessed by God.

Powerful and persuasive leaders like Oral Roberts and Billy Graham, while supporting the men in uniform and visiting in their camps, have never endorsed the "Holy War" theory and would choke on the words if suggested. In fact, Sen. Mark Hatfield, leading dove and war critic, was a prominent guest on Roberts' television specials. Those close to Billy Graham have noted his dismay and anguish over the war and hinted that he has put constant pressure on White House advisers for swift settlement of the Asian conflict.

America is approaching the ninth inning in Vietnam. This contest is about to be entered in the record books. The players are worn and weary. The people in the stands have moved toward the exits and only a few coaches keep shouting from the sidelines. And their shouting will not change history nor alter the course of events—only prolong, for awhile, the embarrassment and pain.

Senate Abolishes War III, Kind Of

By DON OAKLEY

An interesting feature of the war powers bill passed by the U.S. Senate and sent to an uncertain fate in the House is that it effectively abolishes World War III, on paper, at any rate.

The bill forbids the president to make war without congressional authorization except to repel a sudden attack against the United States or its military forces, and then only for 30 days until Congress decides whether or not a state of war exists.

"At what point does the state of affairs which flows from sudden attack become war?" asked New York Republican Jacob Javits, during floor debate of the measure.

"That is the pivot of the issue. What happens when the president, as Commander-in-Chief, repels a sudden attack" and that leads us into war, triggering the war powers of Congress? The Constitution, characteristically, is silent. So we have chosen the 30-day test in that regard. We have no illusions that it is a perfect answer but we believe it is the best a group of men...could develop as a test of autonomy....

Of course, Congress could later declare that there HAD been a state of war—if anyone was left to care.

Mars Losing Secrets To Us

The U.S. Geological Survey is suffering from an embarrassment of riches—a bewildering flood of spectacular photographs of the planet Mars being returned by the Mariner 9 spacecraft in orbit around the red planet.

The situation planetary scientists find themselves in with respect to Mars is as though mapmakers, geographers and geologists woke up one morning to find that the earth they had worked so hard to map had completely changed," says Dr. Hal Masursky of the survey's Center of Astrology in Flagstaff, Ariz.

"We have a completely new planet to contend with. Just keeping up with each day's new influx of information is keeping many of us working around the clock."

The first step in this super long-range mapping job consists of plotting the locations of each small photograph on a specially prepared grid. Since the altitude of Mariner changes continuously as it circles Mars, the area covered by each photograph also changes.

Thus complicated and distorted bases prepared ahead of time by scientists must be used. Even so, a certain amount of "stretching and pushing" is necessary to make the pictures fit into preliminary mosaics.

After the preliminary plots are made, a computer transforms each picture so that it has the same scale and perspective as its neighbors. They are then fitted together in a much more precise jigsaw puzzle on which geologic and topographic information can be depicted.

Knowledge of the "ups and downs" of the Martian landscape is extremely important for the selection of landing sites for the unmanned Viking spacecraft, which is scheduled to be sent to Mars in 1976.

The final product—a complete map of a planet, which is 35 million miles from earth at its closest approach—will be ready in time for the landing of Viking in 1976. An atlas of Mars maps will eventually be published and made available to the general public.

It is all a little hard to believe.

Commies Plan Thai Take-Over

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) —There are no headlines, no tanks and no pitched battles between masses of troops, but in a number of ways the situation in Thailand is even more dangerous than in South Vietnam.

Here is progressing steadily the slow, unglamorous political build-up of the underground that is the essential basis for successful insurgencies.

The terrorism is precisely directed at killing key men—police, government officials and selected teachers, farm group leaders and merchants—in sufficient numbers to enable the underground to organize with the minimum amount of interference.

The Communist underground essentially is following the oil spot theory so popular with American planners in South Vietnam for several years. An area is built up with a competent underground to a level where, for all practical purposes, the Communist shadow government is the de facto political power in the area—through organization, intimidation and outright terrorism.

Then organizers are sent to nearby territories to expand the base.

The Communist have been mining the Northeast, the far North-Northwest and the Southwest for years. Though the government is still normally in control in most of these areas, the Communist power is not to be denied. Enough progress has been made so that organizers are moving southward from the North and Northwest and northward from the Southwest.

Small cells now dot the central heartland of Thailand. They are not yet powerful. But they are building. It will probably take another five to eight years for these central Thailand pockets to grow to serious proportions.

A sound countryside Communist organization takes 15 to 20 years to develop. The Thai organization is perhaps 10 years old by this calendar. There were Communist groups in Thailand many years before this "starting point," of course. But the organized expansion began about 1962.

The work before that was scattered and fragmentary, based primarily on the community of North Vietnamese which had fled Indochina in the fighting against the French.

What we have then in Thailand essentially is the highly-skilled and persistent political organizing and recruiting which is the basis for any effective underground take-over. But with a special twist. These precinct workers are backed by armed terrorists who assassinate or terrify key members of the opposition and any hardy independent souls who stand in their way.

Each of these groups, whether Communist or not, is controlled where possible, by a Communist secretary, who makes the motion, organizes the actions and nominates the officers.

The Communist underground thus has a means of manipulating public opinion through a wide range of "independent" as well as Communist organizations.

The situation in Thailand is all the more serious because the government, however well intentioned, has once again eliminated the elected officials and elected legislative bodies and set aside the basic democratic features of the constitution which was adopted such a short time back.

The Thai developments do not call for troops or air power. Instead they call for a full play of democracy which will pit freely-elected political officials and self-governing villages against Communist-style organizing by stealth, terrorism and force.

Every human being has a work to carry on within, duties to perform abroad, influence to exert, which are peculiarly his, and which no conscience but his own can teach.—William Ellery Channing, clergyman.

I JUST CAN'T HELP IT, I'M GOING TO MISS THAT JOHNNY AND CHARLIE TV SHOW!

BRUCE BLOSSAT

A Faded Muskie Shows the Shock

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) —Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, struggling desperately to stay in a presidential race he once dominated, is today a poignant figure.

It is easy to say that anyone who enters the presidential arena must be able to take it. The man who tries is presumed to know the perils of the ordeal—the risk of defeat, the chance of harassment, the crushing physical toll.

But the actuality always is beyond imagining. And, in the turmoil of changing fortunes, it is not at all easy to remember the human vulnerability of the man who tries and falters.

Twice within a week I saw Ed Muskie arrive at airports with just a tiny routine of accompanying newsmen. Two months earlier, 20 or 30 would have poured off his plane.

Few local reporters were on the ground to greet him. In both places, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, prominent politicians were in his camp. But they were not on hand.

The senator was visibly suffering the pangs of desertion. When he spied one newsmen who had often traveled with him in more promising times, he grabbed him by the back of the head, as if to say: "Remember the many good days we all had together?"

The good days had slipped away, and Muskie was fighting for his life as a presidential prospect. Stung by defeats in primaries where he was expected to do well, he seemed lost in his quest for new fighting ground. Even as he shouted on the issues in ways too strident to be natural for him, you could see his confidence ebbing.

It was not helped by young hecklers at Lancaster, Pa., hollering their non-negotiable demands for a perfect world by noon tomorrow. Hecklers are a cruelty the politician is supposed to endure. Who would expect the insensitive to see the sadness and bewilderment that were engulfing Ed Muskie that morning? They were throwing baseballs at a wooden doll in an amusement park.

Oh, yes, the catalogue of Muskie's campaign mistakes is long. He failed to identify himself clearly with the concerns that seem to be troubling American voters today. He never really won the hearts of his supporters. He wants the presidency but doesn't want to labor around the clock for the job. He cried in public, and that's "not a thing a president should do."

When a man is losing, he can't make effective justification for his errors. They look like mountain peaks behind him wherever he moves. As the eclipsing shadow advances, his harsh critics say: "He had it coming to him."

Maybe so, in the tough world of politics that celebrates only the survivors. But where, in these stark judgments, is the remembrance of Muskie, frail and human, like the rest of us?

It was not many months ago that he was still being strongly perceived by countless Democrats, leaders and rank and file, as a man of calm wisdom and unifying strength. He was not the front-runner just because he was the front-runner, as some like to argue. He had the look of the great rock that gives men shelter.

Now, however, the voters seem to be saying they don't want the familiar safe anchorages, but new daring. In 1972, Muskie is not their man. Yet once he was. And it is hard to watch him in the loneliness of defeat.

Your Health

Heart Drug Comes From a Plant

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have been taking Lanoxin for heart rhythm. I believe my trouble is due to nervous disorders. I have no chest pain, etc. Sometimes I notice no rhythm disturbances for weeks and then it starts again. I take one small tablet of Lanoxin a day by prescription. Is this a dangerous or unsafe medicine to take over several years? I know that stomach gas seems to start my rhythm disturbance.

Dear Reader—Lanoxin is the trade name for one of the digitalis preparations. Most of these products used today, like Lanoxin, are purified drugs. They have an interesting history. Originally they came from a plant called foxglove and when first given to patients were brewed as a tea. The noted English physician, William Withering, discovered the drug by observing that an old lady in the countryside, who was thought to be a witch, brewed tea for people who had "dropsy" or accumulation of fluid. In many instances the tea relieved them of their disorder. His colleagues thanked him for his trouble by nearly drumming him out of the British medical profession.

Today these medicines remain the single most important drugs that have ever been discovered for heart disease. When the doctor gives them to you it is important to continue to take them exactly as he prescribes and for as long as he recommends. Many individuals need to take these for life and do so without having any major difficulty. The medicine helps to improve the strength of the heart muscle and in this way is our most useful drug in the treatment of heart failure. It is also used in the treatment of certain heart irregularities and apparently your doctor feels that you have the type of irregularity that can be helped by this medicine. This is a fairly common practice.

Under most circumstances the medicine is entirely safe, although when given in too large a dosage it can cause trouble. I would like to point out that these medicines have been used for more than a century and are among the most reliable medicines we have. No medicine, not even aspirin or simple baking soda, is safe if used improperly.

The "stomach gas" you mention can be caused by nervousness, too much coffee and cigarettes. It can also be caused by heart trouble. Remember, even people with heart attacks often have "indigestion" which obscures the real problem. Your stomach gas can trigger irregularities of the heart. Why don't you stop using any coffee, tea, colas and cigarettes? And of course continue the medicine your doctor has given you as long as he recommends it.

Sen. Byrd Brings Up Guns On Fulbright's Chrome Repealer

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — If Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., thought he could get away with it, he is in for a big surprise.

The ultra-dovish Foreign Relations Committee chairman's wily circuitous maneuver to restore the ban on the importation of metallurgical ore from Rhodesia will be strenuously fought on the Senate floor.

Sen. Harry Byrd, Ind.-Va., author of legislation that junked the United Nations embargo on this vital defense production commodity, is organizing powerful bipartisan opposition for an all-out stand against Fulbright's little known scheme. Says Byrd:

"Last year both branches of Congress voted decisively to repeal this United Nations embargo. That was done after it was conclusively shown that many UN member countries were disregarding this sanction while the U.S. was meticulously abiding by it at considerable cost. By observing that embargo, the U.S. was forced to import Russian chrome—a perfectly absurd situation in view of the fact that the Soviet Union is our major military threat."

"Now to propose to undo the sound and highly-justified action of Congress last year just doesn't make sense. It is as ridiculous as our being forced to buy defense-essential chrome from Russia, our principal potential enemy. I intend to go the limit in resisting this dangerous and senseless retrogressive move."

With covert State Department support, Fulbright put over his scheme to reimpose the UN embargo in the secrecy of the Foreign Relations Committee.

By a bare 8 to 7 vote, he wrote the repealer into the bill authorizing funds for the State Department and the U.S. Information Agency. Possible as an unpublicized rider in that major budget measure, it would escape undue attention and thus slip through easily. If that was Fulbright's strategy, it was a resounding flop.

Sen. Byrd not only immediately got wind of the backstage plan, but launched prompt and forceful steps to kill it.

The scrappy Virginian is not confining his efforts solely to the Senate. He is also moving to organize vigorous opposition in the House in the event a strong fight there becomes necessary to scuttle Fulbright's maneuver.

What's Behind It Fulbright engineered his repeal maneuver at the covert behest of the State Department—which vehemently fought the Byrd bill to junk the UN embargo.

The department, piously contending the ban on chrome was a "solemn treaty obligation," did everything in its power to kill Byrd's measure. Under it, the 1945 law by which the U.S. joined the United Nations is amended to "provide that the President cannot prohibit imports of a strategic material from a free country as long as the importation of the same material is permitted from a Communist-dominated country."

That prohibition strikes directly at Russia which became the principal U.S. chrome supplier when the importation of Rhodesian ore was halted. U.S. adherence to that embargo profited the U.S.S.R. handsomely.

Its sales to the U.S. soared to 60 per cent of this country's chrome needs. Last year Russian shipments amounted to more than 400,000 tons at $72 a ton—a 188 per cent increase over the $25-a-ton cost before the UN embargo. This immense price hike cost U.S. taxpayers more than $15 million last year.

During the tense Senate fight over Sen. Byrd's bill, Fulbright forced two rollcall votes on it in his furious, State Department-backed efforts to kill it. On the other hand, the House readily accepted Byrd's bill and approved it overwhelmingly.

Since becoming law early this year, around 100,000 tons of Rhodesian chrome have been shipped to the U.S. This country, which has no chrome, imported 700,000 tons last year. In addition to the 60 per cent from Russia, 135,000 tons came from Turkey, 97,000 tons from South Africa, and 65,000 tons from other countries.

Says Sen. Byrd: "This repeal maneuver by Fulbright means we would again be forced to depend heavily on Russia for supplies of this ore which is so essential for our defense production. Russia's persistent profiteering was bad enough, but what concerns me most of all is that the United States would again be put in the position of being largely dependent on the Soviets for an indispensable strategic commodity."

"That is utterly incomprehensible to me and I am determined not to permit a resumption of that suicidal folly—whether the State Department likes it or not."

The Vietnamization of Soldier Chi

By TOM TIEDE

TRUC GIANG DISTRICT, Vietnam — (NEA) — Alas, some people just never get the word. Take Le Thanh Chi. He's a platoon leader in South Vietnam's Regional Forces (National Guard) but for some reason he has yet to get the hang of this thing called Vietnamization.

For the first three decades of his life, the skinny, berry-brown Mr. Chi was merely a humble peasant here in the Mekong Delta. He knew from nothing about politics. Even less about war. Minimally educated, patch-pocked, his sole concerns on earth were a one-chair barbershop he ran, a toothless wife and an assortment of children.

Then, in 1962, national duty called, rather insistently. Chi was hustled out of his routine, in mid-shave so to speak, given some hand-down fatigues, a World War II rifle, and told he was chosen to help save his political district from the destruction of communism.

Who, me? he said. At first, soldier Chi did not take his new responsibilities very seriously. At second, he didn't either. Nor at third. He was assigned to a rag-tag unit near his home, given somewhat unimaginative orders about defending to the death, etc., but except for the uniform, and the sudden flush of being part of the historic struggle, Chi's life did not change all that much. He found military duty to be something he could take or leave. So, mostly he left. Whenever he could he returned to his barbershop to carry on as before.

And why not? The Regional Forces, then, were a joke. Mostly misfits who could not qualify for regular army status, they were a defense force on paper only. Figures for the government propa-

Le Thanh Chi
Who, him?

all, of the responsibility. What good was a former barber who couldn't shoot straight alongside an infantry grunt with a rifle that could fire 700 rounds a minute?

So it was that soldier Chi shrugged his way through the next eight or nine years. Playing warrior. His job was to help defend the Truc Giang District headquarters here and it was a sleepy task. In the big picture, the headquarters was fairly important (on a main route between Saigon and the Delta). In the big picture, there were thousands of enemy soldiers lurking in the region. But soldier Chi never saw the big picture, never saw the enemy for that matter, and at worst was made occasionally uncomfortable by rockets fired around his home.

Then, late in the 1960s, things changed. Or so were supposed to. The new word was the Americans were going to leave, and the Vietnamese were taking over their own fight. Chi was reindoctrinated, a little. He was given a new weapon, a new uniform, and from now on, hear this, there would be no more goofing off, gold bricking, wise-assing at al-Vietnamization. That's what it was called. Shape up.

Who, me? Chi asked again. And so the Americans did leave, for the most part. And the Vietnamese did take over, at least largely. And the bold patriots of the Regional Forces were ordered, this time for real, to defend to the death.

But Le Thanh Chi, somehow, never really got the word. The other night here, an unknown force of Viet Cong guerrillas mortared Truc Giang District headquarters with 150 shells. Then they followed up with sapper, hand grenade and small arms attacks.

Soldier Chi was having coffee with a friend when it started. They ran outside to see what was happening and the friend was killed.

Chi got scared. What to do? He decided quickly. "I could not see anything but fire and smoke," he says, remembering. "The houses were exploding and the people were yelling. There was nothing I could do. I ran down the road to a bunker (a friend's house, a mile away) and stayed under a bed until it was over."

The battle lasted several hours. The district headquarters was overrun twice. Defense, except for some American advisers, was almost nonexistent. Nine civilians and 18 soldiers lost their lives.

Le Thanh Chi has still never seen the enemy. "I don't ever want to," he says.

British Drug Withdrawal Plan Helps Reduce Heroin Addicts

LONDON (AP) — A heroin addict who mistimed his last dose walked into a London clinic, twitching.

"You look awful," a doctor said. Then he handed out a legal narcotics prescription under the tax-subsidized National Health Program.

Once again a junkie had turned up just for another fix that could eventually kill him, rejecting the chance for free withdrawal treatment at a government hospital.

But at least there was no need for him to turn to crimes of violence to raise money for illegal drugs. And with legal narcotics available, there was less profit incentive for gangsters to start mass black market operations here.

He was taking advantage of Britain's system of treating addicts as patients rather than criminals, a practice once denounced by former U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell as "the surrender approach."

There's a big question whether the British system could work in the United States, but evidence accumulates that it works tolerably well here, following some key revisions.

The number of addicts known to the government is declining. Perhaps more important, it is declining among the younger age groups.

Britain's drug situation pales by comparison to the U.S. problem. At its peak there were probably fewer than 4,000 addicts in this nation of 55 million, against perhaps 200,000 in New York City alone.

But the British addiction rate grew alarmingly over the past decade, calling the whole system into question and forcing some major changes.

The system was riddled with abuse. Rogue physicians privately overprescribed for registered addicts, who then sold their surplus to pay the rent or buy food, sometimes hooking a new young junkie.

A new law in 1968 limited the legal prescription of narcotics to government-run clinics. By 1969 the number of known addicts on hard drugs had dropped.

Part of the drop was due to a change in the method of recording addicts. The new system, in effect a census taken on the last day of the year, eliminated from that year's figures those addicts who had died, given up drugs, left the country or for any other reason had been deregistered. Previously these categories were listed as known addicts.

Shop Names Thai Style

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A lady visitor to Bangkok might hesitate before entering an establishment called "Porn Shop."

In fact it is a quite innocent hairdresser: porn is a common first name in Thailand.

Men who head for "Modern Kiss" thinking it is a bar or massage parlor will find instead that it is a tailor.

Tourists who think of buying the kids a gift at "Siamese Dolls Shop" had better think again. The only dolls there are warm, live ones—it's a night club.

Thais have a bizarre flair when it comes to naming their shops, restaurants and bars. The name frequently has little connection with the line of business.

Men's tailors offer some good examples of Thai sign language. "Pele Shop" and "Joe Louis Shop" might be more appropriate names for sports stores.

Then there is simply "Very Good Shop" and "Wonderfully Shop."

If one tailor hits it big, others are likely to copy his name on the premise that the name brought him fame in the first place.

Thus one finds, "Handsome Man Shop" and "Handsome Shop" and "Handsome Shop." Or try "99 Shop" and "999 Shop."

This copying is not confined to shop names. International companies are constantly bringing suits against Chinese merchants who produce items with names so close to registered brand names that the public finds it hard to tell the difference.

One classic was "Colgate" tooth paste which was near enough to "Colgate" to start a law suit.

But shop names are the most colorful, although the copied is not always sure what he is copying.

Jerry West's Double Burden

A personal slump and memories of past team failures nag the Lakers' all-star guard

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Jerry West's lank, flat-nosed face was dark and grim, cock-eyed with fury. It was the sixth game of the Milwaukee-Los Angeles play-off series and now the Lakers had lost their lead and West, as the game ticked down to conclusion, had missed six, seven, eight, nine, ten straight shots.

Oh, no, not again, he seemed to be railing at his subconscious. Can't blow another chance at a championship.

The Bucks scored and as the Lakers came downcourt, Gail Goodrich dribbling, West patted the air with his palms. Calm, calm, he was gesturing. He would not allow obsession to sour into frustration to end in desperation.

Then, in the final six minutes of the game, West scored 12 points to lead the Lakers to victory and into their ninth NBA championship series in 12 seasons. They have yet to win one.

It is an agonizing fact for West. He has never been on a "winner." In sporting terms, if your team does not capture a championship you are a loser. There is no middle ground.

Four times in the last 11 years, the Lakers have gone to the seventh and final game of the championship series. And they've lost by three points, two points, two points and 14 points.

Nineteen sixty-nine may have been the most devastat-tating. The Celtics beat Los Angeles 108-106. West scored 42 points in that final game.

"I guess it just wasn't meant for me to be a member of a championship team," he wrote in his autobiography, "Mr. Clutch."

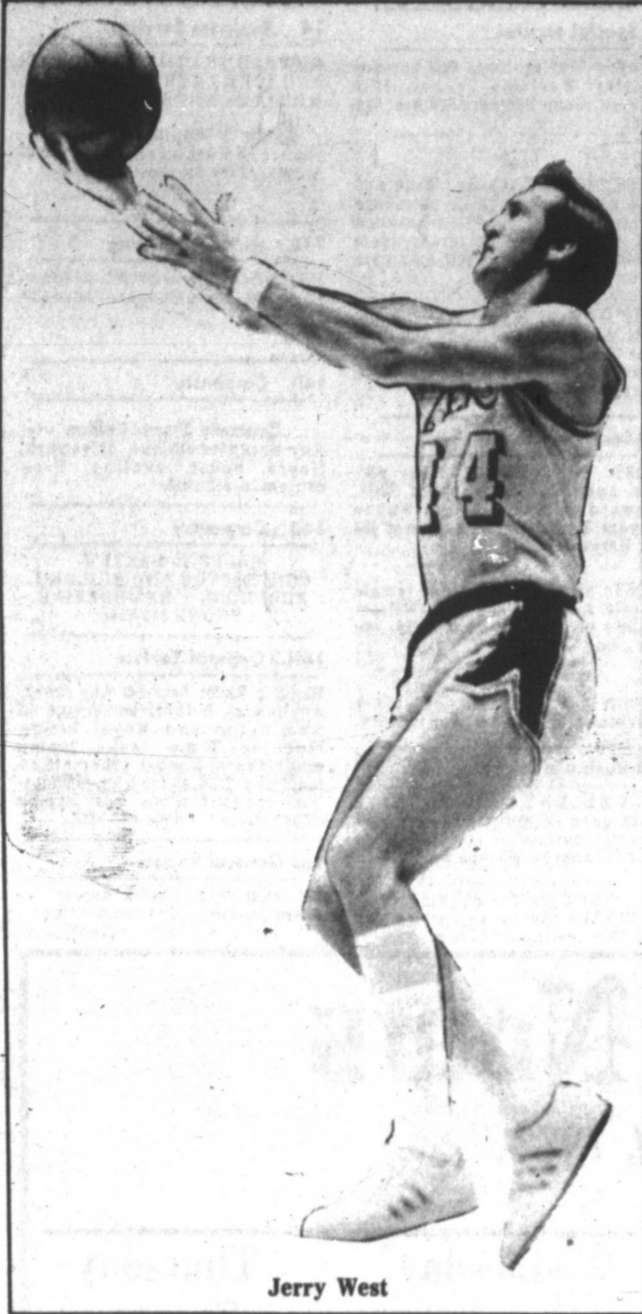

"Maybe there'll be another year, another chance... I sat in that awful, still dressing room listening to the noise of the Boston players celebrating as it came through the walls and it was like I'd been hit by this all my life and now I'd been hit one too many."

"(Bill) Russell had 11 titles, I had none... I've been disappointed before, but this was the worst... I admire Russell and Havlicek and Jones and all the great Celtics, who always have it when it counts, and I envy them. I didn't cry, but I wanted to."

West thought at the time that he would never have another chance at a title. He was getting tired. A nine-year veteran then, he was feeling that profound ache in his bones and psyche. His nose had been broken nine times. His hips and arms and fingers and muscles had been sprained, torn, twisted. His ego bruised.

Yet now he has another chance. Will this in fact be the last, he wonders. For now, at age 34, every season, as the season winds down, may be the end for him as an active player. "You always think about quitting at this time of year," he says. "You're so tired."

Now he also says he is stale from the long, long season. It showed in the play-off series against Milwaukee. He shot only 34.8 per cent, and averaged 21.8 points per game. Far from his record as the highest scorer in NBA play-off history: 48.3 per cent shooting and a 30.9-point per game average.

"It's so bad now," he said, after the final Milwaukee game, "that I can't even hit in practice. I'm a mile clear and the basket looks a mile wide and I still can't put it in. I'm still scoring, but it's from the saturation method. Throw up enough shots, you're bound to get some."

His game, though, is not all shooting. He is finally being recognized for the all-around player he's always been. He led the league in assists this season, with nearly 10 a game. And for the fourth straight year he was named to the NBA's all-defensive team.

But he entered the finals against the New York Knicks carrying a double burden. One, that his graceful, quick, soft shot is on vacation. Another is the Lakers' history of title flops.

It is a time, he knows, to calm the air with level palms and, of course, to bust his gut.

Nelson Classic Begins? Today

DALLAS (AP) — Jack Nicklaus shrugged off the effects of a minor hand injury today as he began a delayed defense of his title in the $125,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

"It's no big deal," Nicklaus said of the injury to the forefinger on his right hand.

There was a slight discoloration of the finger. Nicklaus said he sustained the injury when the shaft of his driver shattered after he got off a terrific drive on the 16th hole of the final round last Sunday in the Tournament of Champions.

"I think I may have a little tiny piece of the shaft in there, but it doesn't bother me," said the 32-year-old Nicklaus, the heavy favorite to win his third consecutive title in the Byron Nelson Classic.

"I'm not going to do anything about it," he said. "It'll work out in time."

The first round was scheduled for today when Thursday's play was washed out by an early morning thunderstorm. Showers continued all day and made the 7,031 yard, par 70 Preston Trail Golf Club course unplayable.

The schedule now calls for a single round today and Saturday with the final 36 holes set for Sunday.

Should another day's play be rained out—more showers were expected today—officials almost certainly would have to extend the tournament through Monday.

Among the standouts are Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and Australian Bruce Crampton. None has yet won this season but Crampton has had a remarkable record with eight finishes of seventh or better.

Harvesters Take On Bulldogs

Pampa's Harvester baseball team meets league-leading Borger this afternoon at 4:00 in the Optimist Park.

Pampa is 2-5 in district play and 9-10 for the season, while the Bulldogs are undefeated in loop action.

"We can't do anything now except play to win our remaining games and finish with a .500 district record," said Coach Deck Woldt. "If we do that we'll also obviously take a spoiler's role," he added.

Jeff Hogan (4-1) and one of the district's leaders in ERA will be on the mound for the Harvesters. Dale Ammons will be at catcher.

Bill Simon or Larry Knutson will be at first base. A. J. Brewer or Roy Don Hendricks at second. Mike Edgar at shortstop and Gary Haynes at third.

Al Ferguson will be in left field. Marsh Gamblin in center and Rick Musgrave in right for the Harvesters.

Stinnett Schedules High School Rodeo

By Associated Press

"I hope we're not all fired." That was Don Zimmer's first reaction when he and fellow San Diego coaches Roger Craig and Bob Skinner, out playing golf Wednesday morning, were told that Padres General Manager E. J. "Buzzie" Bavasi wanted to see them.

Their jobs, however, were safe. It was Preston Gomez, the Padres' field manager, who got the axe. And it was Zimmer who got his job.

"I've always wanted to be a major league manager," said Zimmer, who went from the Dodgers' world championship club of 1955 in Brooklyn and 1959 in Los Angeles to become a charter member of the stumbling New York Mets in the course of his 23 seasons in professional ball.

"But I never expected it would happen like this," Zimmer added.

Whether he expected what happened Thursday night, though is debatable. It wasn't very different from what has happened pretty regularly to the Padres since their inception—with Gomez at the helm—back in 1969.

What happened is that they lost 4-3 to the Mets. It was San Diego's sixth setback in seven games while, for the Mets, home runs by Rusty Staub and Jerry Grote paved the way to victory No. 6 in a row.

In the only other games on Thursday's abbreviated National League schedule, Cincinnati slipped past Pittsburgh 5-4. Philadelphia topped San Francisco 7-6 and Montreal outlasted Los Angeles 7-5. The American League was idle.

Cincinnati in general, and Joe Morgan in particular, literally stole its victory against the Pirates.

With the game deadlocked 3-3 in the ninth inning, Morgan led off with a walk and promptly swiped second. So Pittsburgh gave Bobby Tolan an intentional walk—but he and Morgan responded with a double steal.

And after Tony Perez was also purposely passed to load the bases with one out, Ted Uhlender, an off-season acquisition from Cleveland, got his first National League hit, a run-scoring single. Denis Menke then hit a sacrifice fly that proved to be the Reds' winning run.

Greg Luzinski's fourth home run of the season and the Phillies' fourth of the game snapped a ninth-inning tie and led to the Giants' downfall.

Don Money had a pair and Deron Johnson added one for Philadelphia while Dave Kingman ripped his fifth of the year for San Francisco.

Ron Hunt and Ken Singleton, with three hits apiece, paced a 16-hit Montreal assault that enabled the Expos to snap a three-game losing spin and stay within a game of the first-place Mets in the East. The Dodgers, despite Steve Garvey's homer, slipped half a game back of idle Houston and into second place in the West.

Gardner Leads SWC Tennis

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Top-seeded John Gardner of Southern Methodist won his second round match to lead SMU toward the singles and doubles titles in the Southwest Conference tennis championships Thursday.

SMU advanced all of its four singles entries and both doubles teams into today's quarter-finals.

Favored Rice University lost two singles and two doubles matches.

Gardner, who had a first-round bye, polished off Bill Borders of Arkansas, 6-3, 6-0, in the second round. Today he was to play Dick Fikes of Texas A&M, who defeated Ron Touchon of Texas, 7-5, 7-5, and Allan Boss of Rice, 6-4, 6-4, in Thursday's first two rounds.

Lakers Must Re-Discover Their Lost Fast Break

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Question: "How do you beat the New York Knicks?" Answer: "Make all your shots and hope for a tie."

At least that formula would have kept the Los Angeles Lakers in Wednesday night's opener of the best-of-seven series to decide the National Basketball Association championship.

The Knicks won 114-92, surprising the Lakers and themselves with their uncanny accuracy in the first half when the game was decided. Bill Bradley and Jerry Lucas led the assault as New York made 72 per cent of its first-half shots, many of them from beyond 20 feet.

The Lakers and their coach, Bill Sharman, studied game films Thursday in an effort to gain an edge for the rest of the series.

New York forward Dave DeBusschere said, however, that the Knicks cannot expect to shoot so well the rest of the series.

Taking DeBusschere's word for it, then, Los Angeles perhaps can work harder on the scouting report of K.C. Jones, assistant coach.

Thus Los Angeles is highly aware that:

—The Knicks play the best team defense in the league.

—New York center Jerry Lucas would try some long-range bombs to draw Wilt Chamberlain away from the backboards.

—The Knicks, offensively, run without the ball and hit the open man with good passes.

—Each player wearing a Knick uniform can shoot.

What Jones was saying Tuesday, the Lakers were thinking Thursday.

"It (the New York offense) is going to call for a little more concentration on our part," Jones had said. "They pick and pass so well."

"They play better defense, as a team, than we do," he said. Statistics, which show the Knicks leading the league in that category, support the statement.

New York's diversified firepower with tight defense makes the Knicks a tougher team to beat than Milwaukee, Jones said. Despite the scoring of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Lakers beat the defending champion Bucks in six games in their semifinal series.

"Against Milwaukee you've got to try to contain Jabbar," and feeling their muscles tighten. It requires a conscious effort.

Concentrate on keeping the left arm firm and in control of the club. When I say firm, I definitely do not mean stiff or rigid. Tom's left arm is a little stiffer than I prefer. The left arm and the club form the radius of the circle that is your swing, and if it collapses the entire swing is going to collapse.

With your left arm firm, take the club straight back from the ball as far as you can without letting your body sway to your right. That good extension will establish a full arc. You may not hit it as far as Tom Weiskopf, but you'll hit it farther.

Kite Leads SWC Golf

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Tom Kite of Texas snaked in two 40-foot birdie putts on the closing nine Thursday for a three-stroke lead going into today's final 27 holes of the Southwest Conference golf championships.

Kite, who had nines of 35-3532 for a 102 total, five under par, led teammates Ben Crenshaw and Tony Pfaff, who had 105s. Kite's two long birdie putts were on par three holes.

Texas was the heavy favorite to win both the individual and team titles over the par 71, 7,200-yard Paradise Valley Course.

Play was delayed for two hours at the start Thursday morning because of rain. The Longhorns' low four players shot a total of 423 to take an eight-stroke lead over Southern Methodist. Arkansas was third at 441.

Defending individual champ Steve Veriato of Texas A&M had a one-over-par 108. Texas Tech, the defending team champ, was out of it at 457.

Kite, who had seven birdies for the day and two bogeys, said the heavy rains "helped the greens," which held better than they did during Wednesday's practice rounds.

Crenshaw was the low amateur in the 1972 Masters and Kite was second low.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Ellen says the younger wives root for this column. But the women past 45 may often exclaim, "That awful Dr. Crane. He is at fault because our husbands chase around with other girls!" Look in your mirror and you'll see the REAL culprit!

CASE T-565: Ellen D., aged 28, has a sex puzzle.

"Dr. Crane," she smilingly began, "at our University Women's Club, we often debate your columns."

"And I find that young wives, say under the age of 35 to 40, usually back you 100 per cent."

"But women of 45 or above are often critical and charge that you encourage husbands to run around with other women."

"But I have never yet seen you urge husbands to be unfaithful to their wives!"

"Instead, it seems to us younger women that you keep showing stodgy older wives how to PREVENT such threats to their homes."

"So why do the older wives more often pick on you?"

SEX SELF-DEFENSE

Despite what many older wives say, you readers will never find a single case where I have urged husbands to desert their wives.

Instead, I often describe husbands who are about ready to develop an affair, so I instruct their fat, stodgy mates in how to prevent it.

For the aim of this clinical column in practical psychology and psychiatry is to PREVENT divorce, school dropouts and unhappiness.

This "Worry Clinic" exposes the common worries of the human race and then shows you how to solve them successfully.

It prevents divorce, delinquency, promiscuity, drug addiction, stuttering, excessive timidity and even insanity!

Those older wives who attack me, are merely using the "ad hominem" fallacy in logic.

"That awful Dr. Crane," they often state, "I can't imagine why our newspaper runs his column!"

Others angrily add: "He ALWAYS sides with our husbands! And gives them an excuse to have an affair with another woman."

As a matter of fact, it is you stodgy wives, who waddle like a walrus as you jiggle down the street, who are driving your husbands into clandestine affairs!

Why pick on me? If your waistline now equals your bust line, that makes you look like a good, old, motherly soul.

So you don't suggest romantic notions to your placid husband.

Because I candidly explain how you look and also clearly outline the husband's usual attitude, that is to wake you up to the erotic Sword of Damocles that precariously hangs over your double chins!

If you fat, lazy wives were honest with yourselves, you'd be grateful to me for explaining why your marriages are now in danger.

And you'd thank me for showing you how to serve more cheesecake in the boudoir, as by regaining your slender figure, using diaphanous nighties, plus perfume and more seductive aggressiveness.

But you prefer to lazily drift along in the status quo, despite the fact it may soon bring you into the divorce court!

And then you wail: "That awful Dr. Crane did it!"

(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg., Melott, Indiana 47958, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Middle East War Threat Seems Long Way Off

EDITOR'S NOTE—The writer of this dispatch is AP chief of bureau in Israel. He has just completed a swing through the Middle East to take a look at the Arab capitals.

By HAL McCLURE
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO (AP) — Spring fever is ruling the Middle East. The threat of war seems a long way off.

The Mideasterner sees not the posturing of politicians but only the trees and flowers budding under soft April skies.

He hears not the oft-empty words of his leaders but only the sweet song of the winging bird. He feels not the usual swift anger reserved for his enemy, but only a blissful lassitude.

In Damascus, shoppers happily jam the world's oldest super-market, the Grand Bazaar, or lazily sip black Turkish coffee under flaming jacarandas.

Jerusalem's lush hills echo to laughing picnickers on family outings while other Israelis gather noisily around soccer pitches as the national pastime gains seasonal momentum.

On Beirut's colorful Corniche the impatient Lebanese motorist, slowed to bumper-to-bumper pace, inches past packed beaches where scantily clad bathers—and the ubiquitous girl watchers—laze away the afternoon.

In Cairo young couples, trendy in their minis and flower-print shirts, stroll aimlessly along Africa's mother of rivers, the Nile, or join excited queues to see such American-made films—as "The French Connection" or "I Love My Wife."

"Don't confuse relaxation with frustration," advised a journalist on one of Cairo's largest dailies. He added: "Nothing—or no one—has made the Israelis leave captured Arab lands."

"We have a stalemate, and that's the real Middle East tragedy," he asserted.

Jerusalem says if the Arabs would only sit down and talk peace it would negotiate withdrawal.

But a visitor to Middle East capitals finds it difficult to understand what all the talk of war is about. No one would have guessed last week that President Anwar Sadat had—according to news stories—ordered the Egyptian armed forces on "full alert" to counter a possible pre-emptive war by Israel.

Cairo's lights burn brightly at night and its night life is boisterous. Hotels are packed, casinos filled with foreign gamblers.

Indeed, Egypt is enjoying its biggest tourism boom since the 1967 Middle East war. An estimated 450,000 visitors arrived in 1971 and a half-million are expected this year.

What besides the vernal equinox has brought calm—temporary though it might be—to the usually roiled Middle East?

Major credit may go to the Americans and their cease-fire initiative which halted the bloody Suez Canal fighting more than 20 months ago.

The decline of the Palestinian guerrilla movement, which through its espousal of violence helped raise regional tensions, also may have helped. Tough-looking commandos in their tiger suits are a rare sight on Middle East streets nowadays—certainly not in Amman where King Hussein of Jordan all but liquidated the fedayeen.

Hussein's own plan to form a federated united kingdom straddling the River Jordan appears to be gaining momentum despite objections from the Arabs and Israelis.

Indications in Amman point toward a widening of the "open bridges" policy to permit an increase of goods and people across the Jordan.

Meanwhile, spring moves inexorably toward summer, when the blazing desert sun both exhausts the spirit and triggers short-fused tempers.

"On June 5, it will have been five years since the Middle East war," mused an Egyptian journalist. "Who can say what will happen after that?"

Since the island lies west of the Date Line, it is blue Monday in Guam when many Americans are still eating Sunday dinner.

Brandt Fails Attempt To Oust Him

BONN, Germany (AP) — A jubilant Willy Brandt Thursday beat back an opposition attempt in parliament to oust him as chancellor, scoring a personal victory and safeguarding his peace policy.

Opposition challengers failed by two votes to win a no-confidence motion on Brandt, in a dramatic vote in the Bundestag, parliament's lower house. The opposition won 247 votes but needed 249 of the 496 members.

Brandt's triumph cleared the way for ratification next week of his nonaggression treaties with Moscow and Warsaw—vital for the whole course of his policy of easing East-West tension.

The challenge to Brandt was led by Rainer Barzel, leader of the Christian Democrats against the chancellor's coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats.

The tiger takes infinite pains in stalking prey.
