Clemency Board Chairman Sees Plan's Acceptance
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the presidential clemency board predicts that President Ford's earned re-entry program will eventually be accepted by those who felt it went too far and those who felt it didn't go far enough.
The clemency board was to hold its second meeting today, the first to discuss individual cases.
One of the first items before the nine-member board is a report on why 40 men in military stockades refused to apply for discharge at the time Ford announced the clemency program.
Chairman Charles Goodell was interviewed Sunday on UPI Audio's "Washington Window" program.
"I think the initial reaction of the veterans groups and the representatives of the resisters in Canada ... was predictable," Goodell said.
"They are very sincere, they have very strong views. On the other hand, I think as they see this program operate, assuming it operates fairly, I think a great many of them are going to come around — even the veterans organizations and the resister groups."
Goodell would not predict how many would take advantage of the offer, but at the same time he stressed what he believed was the fairness of Ford's program.
He took exception to statements that it was punitive.
Yonkers, N.Y., got its name from a lawyer, Adriaen van der Donck.

CONSUMERS HURT Cattlemen's Association Head Says Politicians Don't Work
GOLIAD, Tex. (UPI) — Politicians have not been watching out for ranchers and as a result both consumers and cattlemen are being hurt, says a spokesman for a newly organized cattlemen's association.
"Right now we have millions and billions and zillions of dollars invested in cattle and ranches and we have nobody looking after business. We're going to have somebody look after our store," said rancher T.A. Cunningham.
"We want our people (elected officials) to wake up and look after business. They're working for us. They're our employes and we're tired of them not working."
Cunningham said both the consumer and the cattlemen are being drained financially by the middlemen who take a $1 profit on each pound of meat sold over the counter.
He said a drop in live cattle prices of 25 cents a pound has cost him $250,000 on his herd of 600 cattle.
"Let's face it," he said, "Agriculture is the only thing that's holding the United States up the last five years—the only thing we've got to trade, the only thing we've got cheap enough we can sell."
"And if we let agriculture crumble, we're going to be in for one hell of an inflated depression."
A planned slaughter of calves near Stephenville last week was postponed for two weeks to allow emotions to cool.
Cunningham and a group of South Texas ranchers have formed the new, independent cattlemen's association to try and do something about their financial problems.
He said the group has enlisted 3,000 ranchers from a few surrounding counties in the last three weeks and plans to approach the rest of Texas' ranchers within a month.
Cunningham said once the association was organized it would invite the Texas congressional delegation to a meeting in the Capitol grounds in Austin. He predicted 100,000 ranchers would attend.

Consumers Face Meat Decisions

AMARILLO — The latest generation of beef-buying consumers will face some perplexing decisions at the meat counter this fall, says Charles E. Ball, executive vice president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

Headquartered in Amarillo, the TCFA represents cattle feeders in the No. 1 cattle feeding state in the nation.

The "new" type of beef will be available at the grocery store and its difference from the traditional "grain-fed" beef, to which consumers have become accustomed, may cause some confusion.

For those people who grew up in the Depression and World War II years, the reappearance of "non-fed" or "grass-fat" beef may also be surprising but not new.

"While there is a marked distinction between eating quality of the two kinds of beef, it may not be reflected in price savings," warns Ball. "Here are some facts to think over before making your next beef purchase."

Economics cause the reemergence of non-fed beef. The U.S. Department of Agriculture, in its cattle-on-feed report released Sept. 13, reported that feedlots in the seven major cattle feeding states have 25 per cent fewer cattle on feed than a year ago.

Furthermore, the placement of cattle feeding eroded and less and less numbers were put on feed, the total number of cows and calves in the U.S. reached an all-time high — 138 million head or 7.4 million over last year.

This marked increase combined with the fewer number on feed, caused many farmers and ranchers to market their cattle, without being fed grain, directly to packers. Unfortunately, these cattle have not been "tailored" for the taste of the American consumer.

The consumer can identify non-fed beef by such retail names as "baby beef," "heavy calf," "mature veal," "calf," "economy beef," "grass-fat beef" and others.

Grain-fed beef, by far the most popular in recent years, comes from cattle raised primarily on grass for the first year of their lives. At a weight of 600 to 700 pounds, the animals are then placed in feedlots on high energy grain rations to a weight of 1,000 to 1,200 pounds.

Most of this beef is classified by USDA meat graders as Choice — the label most consumers look for when buying beef.

Ball, who says the majority of beef this fall will be grain-fed, adds, "All beef is an excellent source of protein and other essential nutrients, but grain-fed beef is preferred for its tenderness, flavor and juiciness.

Choice grain-fed beef also maintains flavor and juiciness in the freezer longer than grass-fat beef. This is especially important to the consumer who takes advantage of specials and buys two or three weeks' supply of beef.

"When faced with the decision to buy grain-fed beef or grass-fat beef, the consumer should demand to know which is which," concludes Ball. "There should be a substantial difference in price, because there is a difference in quality."

The Almanac

United Press International Today is Monday, Oct. 7, the 280th day of 1974 with 85 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

American poet James Whitcomb Riley was born Oct. 7, 1849.

On this day in history: In 1916, in the most staggering football defeat ever recorded, Georgia Tech humbled Cumberland University 222 to 0.

In 1963, Bobby Baker resigned as Senate Democratic secretary after being charged in a $300,000 civil suit with using his influence for personal monetary gains.

In 1971, President Nixon announced an economic control system to follow the 90-day wage-price freeze he imposed in mid-August.

A thought for the day: American poet James Whitcomb Riley said, "The ripest peach is highest on the tree."

HARVESTERS OF THE WEEK - Linebacker Frankie Lemons, left, and offensive guard Joe Couts, right, were named Pampa Harvesters of the Week for their exceptional play against Perryton. The award was presented last week at the Pampa Noon Lions Club. Also at the noon luncheon were (from left) the Lions' September Sweetheart, Gail Simon, Pampa head football coach John Welborn, and the October Sweetheart Janice Shults.

NEW STARTER - John Agan (11) substituted for injured Chuck Quarles in the fourth quarter of Friday's 33-0 Pampa win over Canyon. And it was learned today that Agan will be Pampa's starting quarterback for probably at least three or four weeks as Quarles, who had his thumb broken on his passing hand, will not be able to play.

Holtzman Pitches A's To 5-0 Win To Even American League Series

OAKLAND (UPI) - Baseball players in general and managers in particular like to talk about momentum, that undefinable emotional state they claim decides championships.

In the first two games of the American League playoffs here, which the A's and Orioles split, both managers, Al Dark of Oakland and Earl Weaver of Baltimore, talked about momentum.

Weaver claimed his club had it coming into the playoffs because the Orioles had won their last nine regular season games to clinch the East.

Then Sunday, after the A's had beaten the Orioles, 5-0, behind the five-hit pitching of lefty Ken Holtzman, Dark claimed his club now had the momentum.

"I think winning the second game of any short series is the most important," said Dark, "because it gives you momentum."

Weaver didn't exactly buy that. "All it means is that we are now 1-1 and the club that wins two of the next three will play in the World Series," he said.

The day before, though, after the Orioles had opened the playoffs with a 6-3 victory, Weaver said "momentum is on our side."

No matter, the series is squared at one victory apiece and now the scene shifts to Baltimore where the next three games are scheduled to be played, starting Tuesday with Vida Blue pitching for Oakland and Jim Palmer for Baltimore.

Sunday's game wasn't as one-sided as the final score would indicate.

Lefty Dave McNally matched Holtzman almost serve through three innings, in a scoreless tie. Then in the fourth, Oakland got a break when sure-handed second baseman Bobby Grich dropped a high foul pop up behind first by Sal Bando.

On the very next pitch, the Oakland strongman lined a homer over the left field fence. It stayed 1-0 until the sixth when Billy North walked to open the inning.

went to second on a wild pitch and scored easily on a two-out triple off the right centerfield fence by Joe Rudi.

Holtzman, who retired 16 batters in a row from the third through two out in the eighth, did crack a bit when Enos Cabell and Andy Etchebarren singled. But Holtzman got pinch-hitter Curt Motton on a roller to first and seemed home free.

Not that he needed it, but the A's gave him three insurance runs in the bottom of the eighth, again as a result of a break.

DENNY MOSS, White Deer halfback has his best game of the season, "a super game," according to Coach Larry Anthony, by rushing for 185 yards on 24 carries to lead the Bucks to a big 14-7 win over the district rival Stratford, Saturday.

New England, St. Louis Stay Unbeaten In NFL

UPI Sports Writer
For the first few weeks, winning was an experience. Now it's becoming commonplace for the New England Patriots and the St. Louis Cardinals.

The two clubs, both picked to finish near the bottom of their divisions, continued to rate as pro football's biggest stories as they ran their records to 4-0 Sunday with impressive victories.

New England, which numbers Super Bowl champion Miami and powerhouse Los Angeles among its victims, annihilated the winless Baltimore Colts 42-3, even pulling its first team midway through the third period.

And St. Louis, trailing 9-0 at halftime, erupted for 24 points in the third period to swamp the San Francisco 49ers 34-9.

Jim Plunkett, who left the game in the third period, threw three touchdown passes, two of them to Reggie Rucker, as the Patriots took a 21-3 lead at the half and then tacked on 14 more points in the third period to turn the game into a rout and ruin Joe Thomas' head coaching debut.

Thomas, the Colts' general manager, took over the head coaching job last Sunday when Howard Schnellenberger was fired.

Plunkett, who now has nine touchdown passes this season, hit Rucker with a 69-yard scoring pass on the third play of the game and flanker Darryl Stingley ran 23 yards for another score.

Mack Herron's five-yard run made it 21-0 before Toni Linhart's 27-yard field goal gave Baltimore its only points.

Plunkett threw four yards to Sam Cunningham and 16 to Rucker before retiring and John Tarver added the last score on a seven-yard run.

"We were worried about the game when we went into it," said Patriots Coach Chuck Fairbanks. "We didn't expect it to go this easily. It was a nice win for us. This was the first week where you would say things were comfortable and relaxed on the sidelines."

Plunkett also was happy with the lopsided win. "It's a good feeling to be able to sit down in the third quarter and watch the team play when you're ahead," he said. "Whenever I sued to sit down, it was because we were way behind."

Thomas, who has a monumental task before him, said the Colts, "made early mistakes that killed us. The big thing was we didn't make any third down plays and they did. We need a game like the Patriots' win over Miami (34-24) to make the players believe."

St. Louis, meanwhile, got its biggest boost from two of its smallest players, Terry Metcalf and Mel Gray. Metcalf (5-10, 185) scored on a 24-yard run and Gray (5-9, 175) caught a 57-yard TD pass from Jim Hart to put the Cardinals ahead to stay and then took a 59-yard TD pass to break it wide open. Hart also passed four yards to Donny Anderson for a TD, and Jim Bakken added two field goals. Joe Reed's 58-yard pass to Gene Washington accounted for the 49er TD.

"Every coach is a dreamer," said St. Louis Coach Don Corvell. "but I don't know if I would have thought we would be 4-0 at this time if you had asked me before the season. This was our best game—certainly in the second half it was."

In other National Football League action Sunday, Minnesota overtook Dallas 23-21. Cincinnati downed Washington 28-17. Oakland routed Cleveland 40-24. Buffalo trampled Green Bay 27-7. Atlanta edged the New York Giants 14-7. Pittsburgh squeezed past Houston 13-7. Chicago trimmed New Orleans 24-10. Denver topped Kansas City 17-14. Los Angeles dumped Detroit 16-13 and Philadelphia beat San Diego 13-7. The New York Jets are at Miami tonight.

Bills 27, Packers 7
Jim Braxton scored on three short runs and Joe Ferguson passed nine yards to Ahmad Rashad for another score as Buffalo trounced Green Bay.

1-B Tigers Tip Pampa

By CHARLES BURK
GROOM - Coach, Don Sessom's number two state-ranked Class B Groom Tigers continued their winning ways Saturday night in Groom's Tiger Stadium as they stopped the young, but formidable, Pampa Shockers, 28-0.

The game, played amidst intermittent rain showers that thoroughly soaked partisan fans of both schools as well as scouts from at least four area teams, saw the Tigers score on their second possession to take a lead which was never seriously threatened.

With 5:32 remaining in the opening period following an exchange of punts, Stan Britten, 145-pound senior halfback, scored from four yards out to light the scoreboard. The conversion run failed, and the first quarter score was Groom 6, Pampa 0.

The second quarter saw Groom's Britten brothers score two TD's with senior Tim getting one from three yards and little brother Chris adding the two point conversion, and then getting a touchdown from the 20. A one-point kick by Dale Major ended the first half scoring, 21-0.

After a scoreless, damp third quarter, sophomore Chris Britten scored early in the fourth on a 37-yard run. Major added the point after touchdown, ending the scoring at 28-0.

Groom's "Dreaded Red" defense played up to pre-game billing as the Tigers' Binbo Bivens picked off both an interception and a Pampa fumble. Gary Friemel and Chris Britten also collected Pampa fumbles. Junior Art Brown, with another of his fine performances, was credited with a blocked punt to aid in the Tigers' victory.

Leading Groom's ground game was Chris Britten with 78 yards on 10 tries, followed by Stan Britten with 77 yards on 16 carries, and Tim Britten with 50 yards on 10 attempts.

Pampa's leading rusher, was David Caldwell with 17 yards on 14 carries.

Tipton, Mrs. McPhillips Win In Pigeon Races

A.J. Tipton, owner of a Blue Bar Cock which flew 1494.22 yards per minute, won the Roswell N.M. to Pampa young bird "A" race Saturday in the weekly Top O' Texas Racing Pigeon competition.

Tipton's pigeon was also the fastest of the day in either the "A" or "B" race.

R.L. McDowell, last week's winner, came in second, third and fourth in the "A" race. His birds - a Red Cock, a Blue Check Cock and a Blue Check hen - turned in times of 1220.87, 1218.29 and 1216.07 yards per minute respectively.

Margaret McPhillips won the "B" race with a Blue Check hen flying 1446.64 yards per minute. Roy McDowell won second through fourth. A Red hen with a time of 1398.32 finished second, another Red hen with a time of 1397.01 came in third and a blue Bar hen with a time of 1383.98 won third.

Forty-one birds were entered in the "A" race while 40 competed in the "B" race.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

It's fall. The flies and mosquitos of summer are gone from the house ... but the mice of autumn are beginning to creep in. Time to set traps for the little blighters.

Great-granddad seldom wasted money on store-bought mousetraps. Instead, he often controlled the little rodents which raided his pantry with a bucket half full of water, a board, a sheet of brown paper, some string and bait. You can too ... once you know his trick.

Cover a partly filled pail with brown paper (cut from a large grocery sack) and hold the paper taut and in place with string. Then set the pail in a corner of the utility room, kitchen, pantry or whatever part of the house is being frequented by your unwanted guests.

Use a piece of scrap lumber to make a nice little ramp from the floor to the top of the bucket and put a small mound of grain or bits of cheese and bread in the center of the pail's paper top. It's also a good idea to suspend an attractive chunk of cheese directly over the mound of bait.

Let the mice gorge on this feast for two or three nights (replace the bait as necessary) until the whole tribe gets in the habit of free-loading on top of the bucket. Then, instead of serving up any more goodies, use a razor blade or very sharp knife to carefully slit an "X" into the pail's cover ... thereby creating a trap that automatically resets itself.

A quick dump of the bucket the following morning should dispose of every troublesome mouse in the group.

TV In Review

By F. S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tuesday night's episode of "Marcus Welby, M.D.," which centers around the effects of male rape on a teen-age boy, is already one of the most controversial programs of this young TV season.

At deadline for this article, four of ABC's 185 affiliates have dropped the show, entitled "The Outrage," and all but one minute of airtime has been sold for commercials.

What is the brouhaha about?

Simply, gay activists who have become militant about the stereotyped images of homosexuals on television are up in arms. They believe the 60-minute Welby is an affront to them and their cause.

Consequently, they have gone to ABC's network of stations and have sought to have the show dropped.

ABC, despite the protest, is going ahead with the program. The network says the show is not about homosexuals, but about the effects of the assault on the boy.

Thus, the battle lines have been drawn. And the controversy has raised some interesting questions: —In an era when pressure groups are demanding changes on TV, at what point does a group have the right to try to censor a show because it offends them? —At what point should the program be dropped because of the pressure? —And at what point should a network, given the sensitivity of the subject,

RICHARD III REVIVAL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball players doing Shakespeare? Not exactly. But producer Joseph Papp's revival of "Richard III" at the Mitz E. Newhouse Theater in October has Michael Moriarty in the title role and Paul Winfield in the major Buckingham part. Moriarty played the young pitcher in last year's admired "Bang the Drum Slowly" movie, and Winfield appeared as Roy Campanella in television's recent special drama about that noted catcher's career.

For proper food storage, a refrigerator should be set at 40 degrees Fahrenheit or cooler in the coldest part of the appliance.

sanitize or avoid a controversial topic because it offends a minority? Certainly, the gay groups have every right to object. The stereotypes are there, only standing in the shadows. The 14-year-old is attacked by his science teacher, giving fuel to the belief that homosexuals should not be allowed to teach.

Then too, there are unnecessary comments like — "They have to put all those creeps in jail." However, ABC should have the right to air a show about male rape, child molesters or homosexuality. They are facts of life, and it is time we faced them openly.

What is unfortunate about this show is that a sensitive subject is wrapped in a can of garbage, and this garbage can has been raised to a level it does not deserve.

Marcus Welby — "superdoc" — is not the proper forum for a discussion about child molesters or perhaps anything with intellectual merit.

The Welby image is fraudulent. There is no physician alive like Welby, just like there was no father alive like "Father Knows Best," also starring Robert Young. Both present an erroneous view of life.

In "The Outrage," everything is hinted at. The real subject seemed to be homosexuality, but it was a phantom cloaked in garb of child molestation. Marcus Welby, by these standards, is exploitative trash — a rating getter.

If ABC is going to present a program about child molestation or homosexuality, another forum, perhaps some sort of film or documentary, should be used, especially since the network is well aware that homosexual groups will object. In that case, it would have something worthwhile to defend.

OFFICIAL CLAIMS

Medical Programs Don't Control Cost

DALLAS (UPI) — The government's top health official Sunday said Medicare and Medicaid programs do little to control rising treatment costs and provide inadequate coverage for services outside the hospital, encouraging dependence on the most costly forms of care.

Dr. Charles C. Edwards, assistant secretary for health of the Department of Health Education and Welfare, told several thousand eye, ear, nose, throat and plastic surgery specialists Congress was considering several new health insurance proposals aimed at correcting the flaws in the present system.

"There seems little doubt now that some form of national health insurance will be enacted in the next year or so," Edwards said. He told the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology the Ford administration's comprehensive health insurance plan was both a workable and equitable health insurance scheme.

Chinese Junk Feared Lost In Research Trip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Officials expressed concern Sunday about the fate of a 50-foot replica of a Chinese junk that has not been heard from in three weeks, but a New York filmmaker said he doubted anything was wrong.

Eight men left Hong Kong on June 18 in the vessel, Tai Ki, hoping to sail the Pacific to the West Coast of Central America and prove that is how Oriental people were among the first to settle in the Americas.

The last message from the junk was on Sept. 13. The U.S. Coast Guard station in Kodiak, Alaska, received a faint message that the Tai Ki's regular radio equipment was dead and that it was relying on a small, low-powered emergency system.

"That's the last word we've had," said New York filmmaker Philip Hobel. "But we're confident the Tai Ki is right on course and nothing is wrong. The Tai Ki is a very seaworthy craft."

Hobel planned to co-produce a film taken by cinematographer William Martin, 30, the only American on the Tai Ki's crew.

At the time of the last message, the crew reported the position as 1,600 miles east of Japan.

In its first few days at sea, the boat encountered heavy damage after encountering four storms and put into Taiwan for repairs.

At sea again, a crewman, Kumo Knoebel, an Austrian television producer and writer, became ill. Knoebel was removed by Japanese seamen.

The Tai Ki continued its voyage. At one point the crew said worms were burrowing into the hull, but the boat was able to stay afloat because of patchwork.

The purpose of the journey was to test anthropological theories that the Americas were settled by persons arriving from more than one route, including one from the Far East.

In addition to Martin and Knoebel, the crew included Arno Dennig of Austria, Allan Karting of Denmark, Carl Frederic Grage of Denmark, Wolff Werner of West Germany, Dr. Robert Kendrick of England and Hal Price of Ireland.

"Not only does it retain the best elements of the existing health care system, it moves wisely and constructively toward correcting the defects in present insurance programs by striking a sensible balance between coverage for in-patient and out-patient services, linking the cost of deductibles and coinsurance to individual and family income and making certain that no person is unable to obtain health insurance because of income or health status," he said.

Edwards said the suggestion 10 years ago that the federal government might help pay for health care for the elderly and the poor was viewed by many as the dawning of socialized medicine.

"Today probably a majority of physicians approve the general concept of national health insurance," he said.

"On the one hand Medicare and Medicaid, despite their problems, have not fundamentally changed the way physicians practice nor have they ushered in a government takeover of the health care system.

"On the other hand many practitioners, hospital administrators and consumers have come to recognize that the present health insurance system has some major inequities and defects.

In addition to the system's failure to control rising costs and its encouragement of dependence on costly forms of out-patient care, Edwards said it has been slow to reflect the fact that many kinds of health services can be effectively provided by nonphysicians at a substantial saving of both time and money.

WITH INJURED JUSTICE

Supreme Court Opens New Term

WASHINGTON (UPI) — He may be injured, but Chief Justice Warren E. Burger says he'll be wielding the gavel anyhow today at the formal ceremonies beginning the Supreme Court's 1974-75 term.

Capital punishment and wiretapping top a huge backlog of appeals.

The chief justice has been recuperating since Sept. 20 from multiple minor injuries suffered in a fall from a bicycle.

Aides say he is able to preside at the opening session, although he still has a cast on one finger and his black robe may conceal an arm in a sling.

Burger was to formally declare the court's fall term in session and admit a few attorneys to practice.

Then, the nine justices adjourn to their private conference room where they start work on about 1,000 cases which arrived during the summer recess.

Most petitions for review considered in the justices' week-long conferences will be rejected on Oct. 15 at their first public business session, making the lower court rulings final.

A few cases will be acted on immediately and some will be accepted for argument and later opinion.

As the new term gets underway, the court's docket shows the usual array of issues affecting the personal lives of Americans but few far-reaching ones. Racial questions no longer keep the court as busy as in the past.

Whether the death sentence is "cruel and unusual punishment" banned by the Constitution comes to the court from seven North Carolinians on Death Row.

Even that case could be decided on a technicality, since the men can be saved without a decision on the constitutional question.

The court in 1972 banned capital punishment as then administered but since then numerous states have revised their laws or enacted new ones and the NAACP, which brought the challenge, says 141 men are now under sentence of death.

The North Carolina Supreme Court reinterpreted state law to make it conform with the 1972 ruling.

This factor may give the federal tribunal an "out" in the event that it wishes to delay a final decision.

The justices, who have wrestled with wiretapping over many years, have not yet issued opinions on whether the government may wiretap, without a warrant, to gather information about foreign intelligence activities and whether what it gets may be used in a criminal trial.

Warrantless wiretapping for domestic security reasons was barred more than two years ago by the Court, which said it violates the Constitution's ban on "unreasonable searches and seizures."

Lesser wiretap appeals now docketed involve a husband's tapping his wife's telephone and using the conversations in a divorce suit and a challenge to allged wiretapping by a grand jury witness held in contempt for failure to answer questions.

Other appeals run the gamut of constitutional issues included are the rights of mental patients, women, aliens and students, new obscenity questions and a big batch of cases dealing with welfare and family life.
