Storms bring rain to Panhandle area over weekend, more expected

From Staff and AP Reports

Thunderstorms dropped from a half to two inches of rain overnight in parts of the Texas Panhandle with a chance of more showers tonight.

Most of the rain was reported overnight in the central Panhandle with showers lingering in the southwest Panhandle at dawn today.

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms dampened portions of the Panhandle, South Plains and extreme West Texas Sunday evening and during the night. Some of the strongest activity early today was near Lubbock and near Dalhart.

Showers and thunderstorms that developed across North Texas late Sunday afternoon had dissipated about sunset.

Pampa reported 0.12 of an inch. Amarillo reported 0.95 inch of moisture. Parts of northern Potter County were reporting as much as two inches of rain early today, but to the east there were few reports of moisture.

Brady Bishop with the Carson County Sheriff's Office said early today that it hadn't rained in the city of Panhandle since midnight.

Carl Knoll with the Shamrock Police Department said today that they had received some showers over night.

"We got some," he said, "but not very much."

Shaaron Keener with the Hemphill County Sheriff's Office said today that Canadian had received about an inch and a half Saturday night but very little rain since then.

"It sprinkled Sunday," she said. Wheeler County officials said they got a little rain over night and that it was still foggy and misty at dawn today.

The forecast for today and tomorrow calls for thunderstorms to fire up again in the late afternoon with temperatures around 90 degrees during the day and dropping to about 70 overnight.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms are possible across most areas of Texas tonight and Tuesday.

But there's a good chance that most areas won't get any significant rainfall since most of them will be widely scattered.

Appraisal Review Board members hearing protests

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

Gray County Appraisal District officials say they expect a busier day tomorrow at the Appraisal Review Board's hearing of filed protests.

Protests on mineral accounts and real estate accounts were heard today beginning at 9 a.m. in the district's conference room at 815 N. Sumner.

First up was Elvy Baumgardner, who requested that the board have the appraisal district reappraise his property in the wake of the June 8 tornado.

Baumgardner said that his house at 525 Perry was destroyed in the storm and that the district shouldn't be able to "tax anyone on something not there."

Assistant Chief Appraiser Jim Honderich told the board that the district is "restricted by law as to what we can or can't do" about reappraisals.

Reading from a letter by the district's attorney, Mike Mulcahy, Honderich explained that the only way property can be reappraised after Jan. 1 is if the taxing units (in this case, Gray County) request and pay for another appraisal if a natural disaster has occurred.

Honderich says that to his knowledge, the county has not yet requested another appraisal.

Review board Vice President Tony Smitherman expressed the board's regrets that they could do nothing about Baumgardner's request, saying that "the decision is pretty much made for us."

Smitherman was acting as president of the review board in the absence of Curt Beck, who recused himself from the case.

Board members must recuse themselves from a case if the case is discussed with the board member by an appraisal staff member or by the protester.

The board also heard a protest by James E. Williams III about the appraisal on his mineral lease.

Williams was represented by petroleum engineer John Pedaway, who told the board that the appraisal on Williams' property was based on a historical decline rate of six percent. Pedaway said that the property had shown a "substantial increase in decline rate" in 1994, and in such a case, it is "not feasible" to extend a historical curve.

Pedaway then asked the board to change the Jan. 1, 1995 appraisal to an 18 percent decline rate.

Bob Key, representing Lone Star Valuations, which does the Gray County mineral evaluations, called Pedaway's claim a "matter of interpretation" and said that the six percent decline rate was taken from an average of the past four years' production.

Key said that he preferred not to change the decline rate every year, favoring an average of three to four years. He said that last year's decline rate was seven percent.

Pedaway responded, saying that it was "overly optimistic to say it's going to turn around," referring to the decline.

The board passed a motion made by Jack Reeve that the decline rate be readjusted to last year's official decline of seven percent and, wait one year to take any further action.

Appraiser Debbie Stribling said that the board would likely spend the rest of the day signing settlement waivers based on compromises between Lone Star and protesting taxpayers.

Bob Dole's chief of staff center of political brawl

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's rare for a congressional aide to be at the center of a political brawl, but that's where Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole's chief of staff finds herself.

A steady stream of criticism has been flowing from conservative activists and columnists who argue that Sheila Burke is undermining the Republican revolution by advocating a moderate-to-liberal social policy agenda.

She has recently irritated conservatives by pushing a version of the welfare-reform bill they found objectionable — notably its failure to stress ways to stop out-of-wedlock births.

"Her approach to this issue is more liberal than the voters who gave the Republicans the congressional majority last November," said Gary Bauer, executive director of the Family Research Council.

Last year, Ms. Burke tried to fashion a compromise on health-care reform, drawing praise from Democrats such as Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York for supporting President Clinton's goal of government intervention.

But her actions infuriated conservatives. And they say her reputation as a GOP moderate is no longer a Beltway secret.

"It used to be an inside Washington story. Now, I'm beginning to get letters from around the country from activists raising her name," Bauer says.

The criticism of Ms. Burke, a former Democrat, has become an issue in Dole's campaign for the 1996 presidential nomination. If the Kansas Republican wins, Ms. Burke is a strong candidate to call the shots as his White House chief of staff.

Some conservatives wonder if she might steer a Dole presidency too far to the left.

"I can see the questions about Ms. Burke looming larger," Bauer said.

Scott Reed, Dole's campaign manager, disputes published reports that the campaign is disenchanted with Ms. Burke.

Reed credits Burke with devising the strategy that derailed Dr. Henry Foster's nomination to be surgeon general. He also credited her with helping engineer Senate passage of the executive-line-item veto and balanced-budget resolution, issues dear to the hearts of conservatives.

Reed said no one should assume Burke is pursuing an agenda different from Dole's.

"People are wildly wrong if they think she tells Dole what to do," Reed said. "She is an extremely capable tactician."

Ms. Burke, 44, came to Dole's office in 1977 after working as a nurse in California and New York. She rose quickly through the ranks to become chief of staff after nine years, and is now Dole's most trusted aide.

Other Senate aides, who spoke only on condition that their names not be used, described Ms. Burke as efficient, effective and occasionally intimidating in negotiating sessions. One said she was an "easy target" because of her high profile.

In an interview Friday, Ms. Burke called the criticism "absurd" and suggested she is being targeted by Dole's presidential rivals as an indirect way of undermining his campaign.

She said her job is to "process information and help him make decisions," not to set an agenda herself.

"Dole is not somebody who is going to tolerate a staff person running amok," Ms. Burke said. "Anyone who has ever worked for him would attest to the fact that there are none of us who lead Dole blindly."

She said she didn't "have a clue" what job she might have in a Dole White House, dismissing such speculation as premature.

"My priority is getting Dole elected president," she said. "I think it is just absurd to speculate, frankly."

Reed said Burke is the key reason Dole has been able to campaign for president while balancing the heavy responsibilities of running the Senate.

Writer seeks missing half of the Alamo story

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Davy Crockett, James Bowie and William Travis are the familiar figures involved in the 1836 Battle of the Alamo.

But none of the famed Texan rebels survived the March 6, 1836, defeat at the former San Antonio mission. What about the victors?

A sportswriter at a small California newspaper wants to change all that. Ron Jackson is seeking descendants of the foot soldiers who served under Mexican strongman Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna.

"We don't even know who these men are," said Jackson, who is writing a book on the Alamo battle and its aftermath from the descendants' point of view.

Jackson has been running classified advertisements in newspapers in Mexico City, Durango, Leon, San Luis Potosi, Piedras Negras and Matamoros.

"I want to put some advertisements out there, target the towns where the (Mexican) battalions were from, and see what happens," Jackson said. "Courageous men on both sides died in this human tragedy."

"There hasn't been enough done and that's a pity... I'm interested in the average soldado who fought for his country, no matter what his belief system might be," he said.

Kimberly-Clark to acquire Scott in $6.8 billion deal

DALLAS (AP) — Kimberly-Clark Corp. has agreed to acquire Scott Paper Co. for $6.8 billion in stock in a deal that would unite the owner of the Kleenex brand with the maker of Scott tissues.

The combination would create an $11 billion personal products and household products company that would be a more formidable competitor to industry leader Procter & Gamble Co.

The companies said today that the merger deal was unanimously approved by the boards of directors of both companies. The transaction is expected to be completed late this year.

Capitol renovation work faces political land mines

AUSTIN (AP) — State preservation officials face a potentially delicate decision as they decide whether the Texas Capitol grounds should be restored to past glory or designed to reflect the state's current diversity.

Fresh from a $187.6 million refurbishing of the 107-year-old Capitol, the State Preservation Board is preparing a $3.5 million project to recondition the 22 acres surrounding the building.

Among the decisions they face are whether to: reserve space for two privately funded monuments honoring minorities and women; buy back the iron gates that graced the Capitol approaches in 1886; revert to an emphasis on colorful floral landscaping; and remove a large fountain dedicated in 1976 through a $75,000 donation from the Texas Association of Realtors.

The Legislature created the State Preservation Board in 1983 to "preserve, maintain and restore" the Capitol and its grounds.

Brazilian arms depot rocked by explosion, dozens missing

By GARY RICHMAN
Associated Press Writer

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — In a scene one witness likened to a "war movie," explosions tore through the Brazilian navy's primary arms depot on an island 200 yards offshore. Ten people were reported missing.

TV Globo, quoting the Navy Ministry, said as many as 40 people were on the island. Initial reports citing unidentified navy officials had put that figure at 100.

No deaths were reported. The navy's Marcilio Dias Hospital in Rio said 17 people were hospitalized with burns. Twenty-three others were treated and released, media reported, but the hospital would not confirm that.

Thirty-seven homes on Boqueirao Island, the site of the explosions Sunday evening, also were destroyed, TV Globo said.

"The wounded were hugging each other and crying," said state Congressman Jose Morais, commander of the nearby Guanabara Yacht Club. "It looked like a war movie here."

The detonations began about 5:30 p.m. and lasted 90 minutes, creating a large cloud. They were felt up to 10 miles away. Smaller explosions continued hours afterward.

Television showed flames throughout the 138-acre depot, almost five hours after the first explosion.

The depot contained Exocet missiles as well as guns, rifles, gunpowder and grenades, TV Globo said. But a Navy Ministry statement issued late Sunday said there were no missiles at the depot — only ammunition and pistols, rifles and cannons.

Some radio reports speculated that a hot-air balloon — a popular staple at street parties this time of year — could have caused the explosions. The ministry said an official investigation would begin today.

Morais said members of his yacht club rescued a dozen injured navy cadets who swam from the island.

"We heard the screams but there was too much smoke to see anyone," Morais said. "There was so much gunpowder in the air that it got in the eyes."

Firefighters and navy rescue personnel backed by civil defense helicopters searched for survivors Sunday night. Private boaters eager to help were prevented from approaching the island because of fire. Scattered looting was reported.

An engineer, Andre Luiz Colin, was driving with his wife and two children Sunday evening along nearby Freguesia Beach on the mainland.

"There was a big first explosion followed by smaller ones," Colin said. "People ran out of their homes in panic. One car hit another as drivers tried to rush away driving in the opposite lane. ... My kids cried with each new explosion and aftershock."

Public libraries strive to manage new technology, tightening budgets

STAMFORD, Texas (AP) — Choosy fairy-tale reader Lisa Acosta fingered the Dr. Seuss collection and dozens of other books before plucking out just what she wanted.

Then the 10-year-old showed a visitor around the children's shelves at the Stamford Carnegie Library.

"It's fun," she said recently. "You get to look at all these books. And you get choices."

Lisa and others who patronize Texas' 499 public libraries are witnessing an evolution driven by technology, tight budgets and multicultural demographics.

Libraries across the state are rising beyond the image of dusty book depositories: Make way for computers, compact discs and videocassettes.

"The problem is that libraries get more and more expensive all the time," said Mike Clark, public information officer for the Texas State Library and Archives Commission.

"So the money doesn't go as far," Clark said. "Over the last five or six years, the nature of what libraries do has changed so radically."

The library in Stamford stands in deteriorating tribute to Andrew Carnegie, the steel magnate whose $15,000 built a handsome structure for this West Texas town in 1910.

But now its front exterior needs a $60,000 restoration. Ceiling tiles have peeled away. Its only computer — bought through the Big Country Library System in nearby Abilene — remains plastic-wrapped.

What does librarian Margie Barnett wish for?

"Besides money?" she asked. "We do pretty well for a small town."

Money for libraries mostly comes from cities and counties.

Clark said Texas lawmakers have allocated about $16 million for libraries over the next two years, plus about $1.5 million for Internet hookups. Library grants from the U.S. Department of Education amounted to $2.6 million in Texas in 1993, he said.

Boosters have gotten creative in the name of expansion and improvements.

The Crockett County Library, for instance, is summoning singers and storytellers for "Sat'day Nite in Ol' Ozona" this month to raise $200,000 to double the library's space.

Beatrice Takacs, coordinator of the regional system in Abilene, said some cash strapped communities make their first cuts at the library.

"Funding's always a problem between the economy and the fact that libraries aren't as highly rated as some other city or county services," Mrs. Takacs said. Texas libraries vary in size from Houston's (1.6 million people served) to Austin suburb Del Valle's (194 people served).

Fort Worth uses anti-nuisance law to fight festering crime dens

DALLAS (AP) — Fort Worth police are using an obscure state law to shut down festering crime dens.

Since 1991, Fort Worth police and the Texas attorney general's office have joined forces in using the old "red light" district law against nearly 20 businesses that tolerate lawbreakers on their premises.

Although several Texas cities use state attorneys to prosecute businesses identified as crime "hot spots," more than a quarter of their public nuisance cases are filed in Fort Worth.

"They're our No. 1 client," said Ward Tisdale, a spokesman for the state attorney general's office.

Some larger Texas cities, including Dallas, have their own nuisance abatement teams that use a combination of police, city attorneys and code enforcement officers to push problem businesses to clean up or close down.

In Fort Worth, police locate problem businesses, build their case and then file lawsuits under the decades old law that was designed to combat brothels and gambling houses.

The law was amended in 1987 to include provisions to combat the delivery of drugs and criminal gang activity at establishments, Tisdale said.

Owners of property where such offenses routinely occur can be required to post a cash bond, or face shutdown. If the activity continues, a judge may order the bond forfeited and the property boarded up for a year.

"Sometimes, we can resolve the problem if the owner cleans up voluntarily," Tisdale said. "Or sometimes we sue, and that gets the message across."

Statewide, the attorney general's office has prosecuted 93 cases under the nuisance law since 1991, 25 of them in Fort Worth. Of the 93 cases, 26 resulted in year long shutdowns.

Three Fort Worth cases have resulted in the closing of a convenience store, a motel and a home police said was used as a methamphetamine laboratory.

But some say the law unfairly holds property owners responsible for what other people do in the privacy of apartments or motel rooms.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coving commandment.

Taxpayer funded federal albatross

Leaders of the nation's largest teachers' union are worried that public support is waning for government-run, tax-payer-financed schools.

It's a worry that's well founded. At a recent conference of the National Education Association, its president warned that growing public disenchantment with the status quo in education could lead to movement toward privatization or vouchers.

It's certainly true that Americans have become increasingly skeptical that what ails public education can be fixed with a transfusion of more taxpayer dollars. Spending on public education has been going up for years nationwide, especially at the federal level, but the results have been discouraging. Our students still lag behind those of most other industrialized nations in their academic abilities.

That skepticism is reflected in a movement in the new Republican Congress to cut as much as $10 billion from future federal spending on education.

It's a movement that is much needed and long overdue. The federal government does not belong in the business of sending money to local elementary and secondary schools. Federal involvement means more paperwork and regulations for schools, more centralized control and less accountability. It involves Washington in an area of our lives that goes far beyond the scope intended by the U.S. Constitution.

A perfect example of this meddlesome federal involvement is the Goals 2000 program, co-sponsored by Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M. This program will distribute millions in federal tax dollars to local schools - by borrowing money from the very children it supposedly serves, we might add - while setting questionable "national standards" in a variety of subjects.

It is federal overreaching at its worst. Centralized, government planning has never worked for agriculture because government planners can never properly anticipate the demands of families acting voluntarily in the marketplace.

For the same reason, government directed education will always fall short of the changing demands of parents for the best possible education for their children.

To improve education, Americans should demand less government involvement and more voluntary community involvement.

Education, like food and clothing and shelter, should be delivered by voluntary associations in the marketplace, not by federal bureaucrats dispensing tax dollars.

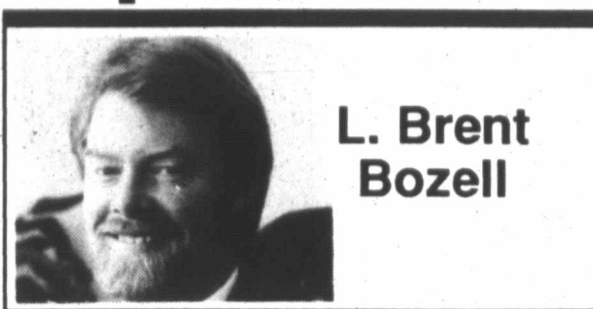

Every once in a while comes an idea that captures the national imagination - a unique, simple proposition that, when presented to the public, generates explosive results. To be sure, history is littered with the corpses of destructive movements born out of this formula - communism comes to mind - but when a positive force emerges, it merits special applause.

Bill McCartney has had such a vision. The former football coach at the University of Colorado, McCartney sees the deterioration of family as the single most important problem in America. He faults men for shirking their responsibilities and, in 1990, set out to teach them to become better fathers and better husbands. He founded Promise Keepers and, with a small force of volunteers, began to organize conferences around the country to project this message.

Four years later, the statistics stagger the imagination. The first conference had 72 attendees. In 1991, it was 4,200 - by 1992, it was 22,000, and then 50,000 in 1994. This year, there will be 13 rallies in stadiums around the country, packing 50,000 to 70,000 daily. In 1990, it had no budget; the 1995 budget is $65 million. Phone calls to the Wheat Ridge, Colo., headquarters range from 5,000 to 35,000 every day. The staff doubles every six months; it now takes 250 full time workers to handle the 400,000 member organization.

Hundreds of thousands have signed the Promise Keepers pledge. It commits men to honor Jesus, to build strong marriages and families, to support their churches and to reach beyond racial and denominational boundaries in Christian unity. This is salt-of-the-earth stuff, and it seems almost unbelievable that Promise Keepers would be attacked by some in the national media.

Not all, to be sure. Newspapers like The Denver Post have carried reports exploring every aspect of this phenomenon, from its finances to the people involved. The reader is left with an appreciation for the goals of the group regardless of personal inclinations to participate.

ABC's Linda Pattillo also did justice to the organization in a report from a rally in Houston's Astrodome. Pattillo introduced Promise Keepers as "a Christian men's movement devoted to reviving faith and family" and interviewed three people - two participants and a wife of a Promise Keeper who responded to the fact that it is a men only organization: "It's so much more beneficial for me to have these men out there encouraging him and supporting him to be a good husband and a good dad."

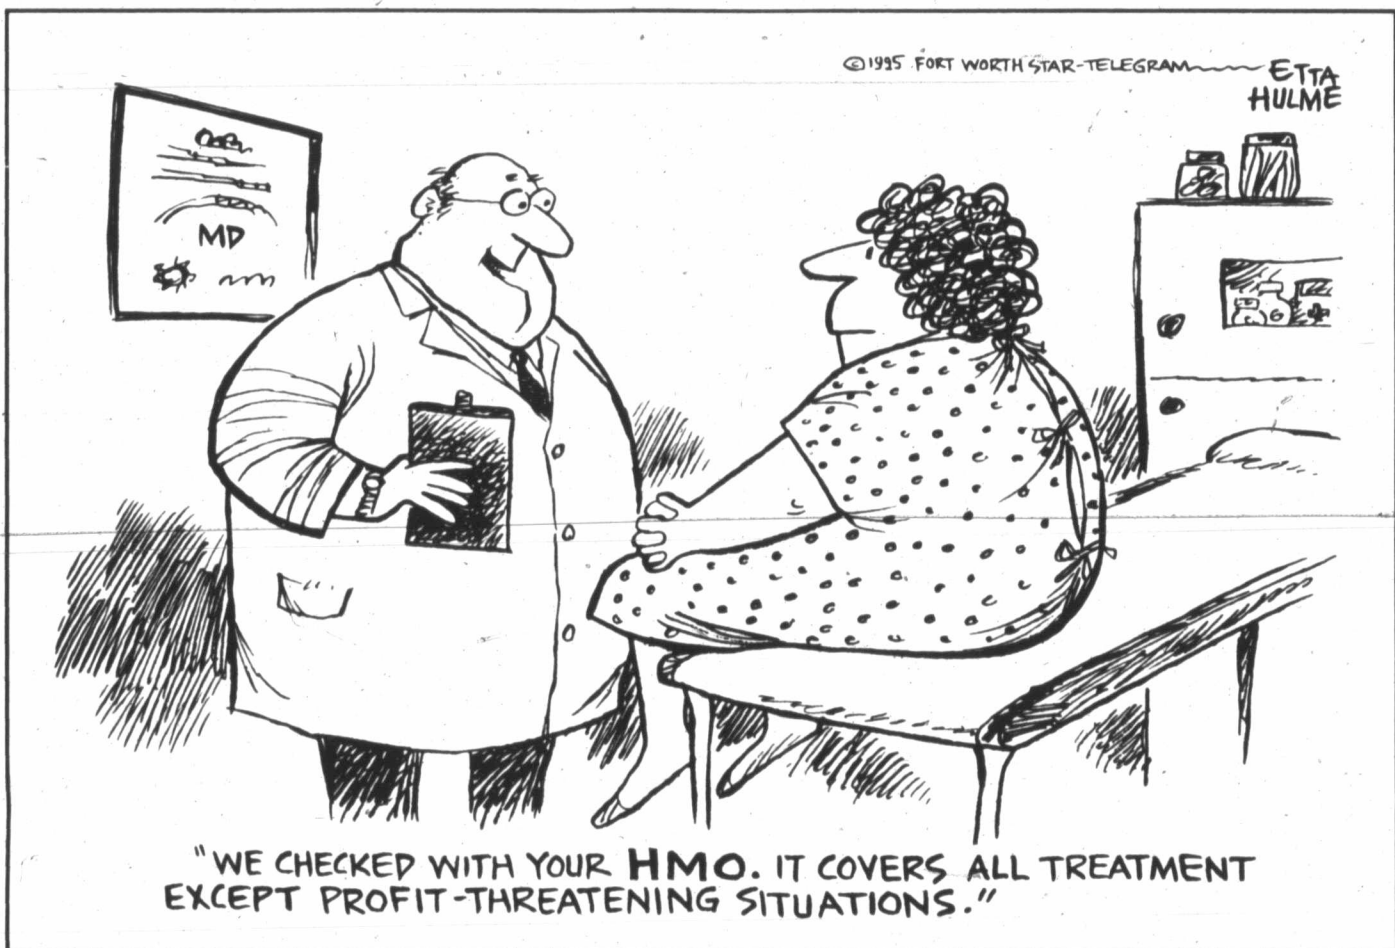

What in the world is wrong with any of this? CNN and NBC think they know and made it the thrust of their reports. CNN covered the May 27 Promise Keepers gathering in Washington not as a celebration of fatherhood but as a controversy. Reporter Carl Rochelle began with what appeared to be another positive report, featuring sound bites from McCartney and two attendees, only to add, "But there are critics." Who? Well, Kerry Lobel from the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force proclaimed that Promise Keepers is "teaching that a woman is subservient to the man," which is patently false. The other was David Wade from Sojourners magazine, who warned that if the movement became political, "they would be treading on some very, very dangerous ground." This is meaningless since Promise Keepers isn't political, nor would it be "dangerous" if it were, unless we believe people of faith cannot enter politics.

Tom Brokaw forewarned: "As NBC's Roger O'Neil tells us tonight, the Promise Keepers are not for everyone." O'Neil promptly labeled the organization "a worldwide $65 million a year tax-exempt business. ... In their commercials, it's a little old-time religion with a lot of new age music and graphics. ... But one gripe the organization has not been able to get away from is its policy excluding women." Two sound bites defending Promise Keepers followed, but O'Neil had another controversy prepared - one which he delivered with a delicious non-sequitur: "And while (McCartney) attacks abortion and homosexuality, his organization says it has no political agenda. And yet, McCartney refused a request for an interview."

Thus, in the two minutes allotted to the story, NBC felt it important to suggest that a) there are profit motives behind the mission, b) there is an anti-woman component to the all men organization, and, c) there is a hidden political agenda.

It's sad to see something so good and so necessary for our society like Promise Keepers become a controversy in the media's eyes. Spending 15 hours in the scorching sun in a charismatic revival may not be your thing (it's not mine), but that shouldn't stop us from saluting men like Bill McCartney and the hundreds of thousands of men who are committing publicly to better themselves for their families and country. It says something about journalists, whose suspicions about religion are so great that even the most positive of movements must contain a negative component.

Today is Monday, July 17, the 198th day of 1995. There are 167 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
Fifty years ago, on July 17, 1945, President Truman, Soviet leader Joseph Stalin and British Prime Minister Winston S. Churchill began meeting at Potsdam in the final Allied summit of World War II.

On this date:
In 1821, Spain ceded Florida to the United States.

In 1841, the British humor magazine "Punch" was first published.

In 1898, during the Spanish-American War, Spain surrendered to the United States at Santiago, Cuba.

In 1917, the British royal family adopted the name "Windsor."

In 1935, 60 years ago, the entertainment trade publication "Variety" ran its famous headline, "Sticks Nix Hick Pix" (which might be translated as "rural America dislikes rural-themed movies").

The mole caper: At last, it can be told

The New Yorker magazine recently carried, in its "Talk of the Town" section, a piece about Skipp Porteous, a lapsed evangelical minister who runs something called the Institute for First Amendment Studies. According to Porteous, the institute monitors far-right organizations, but with a special wrinkle: It has a network of about two dozen moles who actually join militias and the like, and send secret reports to Porteous.

The sad truth is that I am in no position get huffy about this. I have done it myself. What follows is a true story.

When I was in Harvard Law School in 1947, I founded the Harvard Young Republican Club and became its first president. We were a militant bunch, and when a Harvard Democratic Club was founded a month or two later I called in two newly enrolled undergraduate members of the HYRC, told them to keep their membership secret (I destroyed all written evidence of it), and sent them to the first meeting of the HDC. Their instructions were to join, keep their heads low, attend its meetings, and report to me weekly.

One of the two soon got bored with the charade and dropped out, but the other kept on. He gradually built up a new set of friends who thought he was a Democrat, and had to make sure he wasn't seen on his nocturnal visits to me. ("Where does an alien register around here?" he once cracked.)

William Rusher

Then one evening in April 1948 he phoned me about 10 p.m. "What do I do now?" he asked.

"What do you mean?"
"I've just been elected president of the Harvard Democratic Club!"

For one of the few times in my life, I was speechless. Still, the situation clearly had possibilities - especially with Harry Truman running for president that fall. I told our mole to go ahead and be a good president of the Harvard Democratic Club (but of course not too good!), and he would receive further instructions. As I recall, he was instrumental in getting Congressman John F. Kennedy to speak to the HDC that year.

I had graduated before our human time bomb went off under the Harvard, Democratic Club, but I heard about it. Two weeks before Election Day, at a big campus rally for Dewey and Warren, my successor as president of the HYRC read a letter from the president of the HDC saying that he could no longer stand Truman's ineptitude and wanted to join the HYRC!

The Harvard Democrats went out of their minds. Instead of accepting our man's resignation, they insisted on "impeaching" him, which of course simply kept the whole matter on page one of the Harvard Crimson for several more days. (Being a fellow of considerable wit, he played his part to the hilt: "I will always remain," he solemnly told the Crimson, "a democrat with a small 'd.'") The Harvard alumni magazine later wrote that the HDC never recovered from the blow.

So beware, Mr. Porteous. What if one of your moles is elected head of the Michigan Militia? What if one already has been?

Worse yet, what if James Nichols, say, disgusted with the anti-government ranting of his brother Terry and Terry's pal Timothy McVeigh, has been a liberal mole, reporting surreptitiously to Porteous? Then the question might become: What did Porteous know, and when did he know it?

The more I think of it, the likelier it seems that the existence of political moles explains a lot of things that have been puzzling me.

What, for example, if Arlen Specter is a Democratic mole? That would explain why he's trying to drive a wedge into the GOP over abortion, when he must know his candidacy for the nomination is futile. Fess up, senator!

AARP wails and moans over a lost cause

In the latest issue of the AARP Bulletin, the American Association of Retired Persons exhibits a woeful countenance indeed. Those bad, bad Republicans in Congress are threatening to impose ridiculously large cuts on Medicare: cuts that, according to AARP Executive Director Horace Deets, "would have dire effects on the program and the 36 million older and disabled Americans who rely on Medicare." At risk are "quality, choice and affordability." "Beneficiaries and their families will be left with the short end of the stick."

AARP, whose politics are hardly distinguishable from Ralph Nader's - or Bill Clinton's - has big-governmentitis. If there's a problem, the nation's largest organization of "seniors" can find no reason why the government should not step in. This was true even in the case of the Hillary-Bill healthcare plan, a document that AARP's Washington lobbyists smothered with enthusiastic kisses.

You can see the Clinton-AARP strategy unfold silkily, sumptuously, as the AARP Bulletin talks of polls allegedly demonstrating that Americans don't want Medicare cut.

Who's talking about cutting it, the Queen of Sheba? The Republicans aren't, that's for sure. The GOP budget plan - as Republicans have sought to explain - would increase Medicare spending between now and 2002, just not as fast as present law calls for it to rise. Present law would increase the spending by 10 percent, the Republican budget plan by 7 percent.

With Medicare's hospitalization fund set to go bankrupt by 2002 unless there are large-scale reforms, a small decrease in the rate of spending growth would not appear unreasonable. Except to a lobbying enterprise - AARP - cozily tied in with the tax-and-spend establishment in Washington.

Another problem with the AARP lobbyists is that while you can readily figure out what they don't want done, no one can get a firm line on what they do want done.

All we learn from the AARP Bulletin is that "Congress must move step by step to protect and strengthen Medicare, with substantial input from beneficiaries and after carefully examining all the options." Among the recommended measures is that old chestnut, elimination of "waste, fraud and abuse." Another is incentives to enter managed care.

As it happens, there are plenty of imaginative ideas out there for reform that increases patient choice and diminishes the possibility of government blundering. But AARP apparently doesn't want us to know about them.

Permit an AARP rank-and-filer, then, to spill the beans.

The Heritage Foundation proposes a system resembling the Federal Employees Health Benefits Plan. "Under such a system, unlike today's Medicare program, the nation's elderly and disabled could choose sound health insurance from a variety of managed care and fee-for-service arrangements. ... The key financial difference is that the government would make a defined financial contribution to the plan of the retiree's choice rather than reimburse each Washington-approved service according to a fee schedule that defies comprehension and ignores market realities."

The National Center for Policy Analysis, which has special expertise in the medical field, proposes allowing the elderly "to withdraw from Medicare Parts A and B and choose an alternative, private plan, including a Medical Savings Account, a health maintenance organization or an employer's health plan. Each retiree would be free to remain in Medicare and not choose any private coverage."

What does AARP think about all this? Probably not much, given its ideological bent. But from the AARP lobbyists, we won't hear much on this score. The talk will be of savage cuts and merciless treatment of the people who ante up $8 a year to AARP for their prescription and auto-rental discounts. The talk will be depressing - in the way that misrepresentation, willful or semi-willful, always depresses.

Democrats wary as Waco hearings loom this week

WASHINGTON (AP) — With potentially combustible hearings just ahead, the House Republican leadership distributed its fact sheet to rank-and-file lawmakers concerning what it terms the "tragedy in Waco."

Designed to help Republicans field questions from reporters and thus shape public opinion about the hearings, it notes that most of the dozens who perished at the Branch Davidian compound, many of them women and children, "were not suspected of any criminal wrongdoing."

Questions about "excessive use of force, militarization of law enforcement, and due process of law must be analyzed," the material says. "The raid also raised serious questions about religious liberty in this nation."

That sober rationale for eight days of hearings is strikingly different from the view of the Democrats in Congress and the White House, whose misery this sweltering summer extends from Waco to Whitewater.

Investigating the events at Waco "without investigating the extreme activities of some militias seems to suggest that law enforcement agencies are the real threat to the safety of American citizens," Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin wrote journalists recently.

The 1993 events in Texas must be viewed in the context of the April 19 bombing in Oklahoma City, with its connections to anti-government militia groups, he said.

Whatever mistakes the government made,

"the real villain at Waco was David Koresh," leader of the Branch Davidians, said Treasury Undersecretary Ronald Noble.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., was even more pointed. The run-up to the Waco hearings has, he said, "all the earmarks of a circus with the National Rifle Association as ringmaster."

The NRA has been critical of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, the agency heavily involved in the siege against Koresh. Four ATF agents and six Branch Davidians were killed when the ATF initiated a raid against the Waco compound Feb. 28, 1993.

Seven weeks later, an additional 81 Davidians, including Koresh, died in a fire that raged through the compound after the FBI tried to force out the compound's occupants with tear gas. The government maintains the fire was set by those inside.

The hearings are to begin Wednesday, with testimony by an author — himself the subject of Democratic complaints — and CNN-supplied videotape with scenes of the siege that federal law enforcement mounted against Koresh and his followers. The list of witnesses runs from Henry McMahon, a firearms dealer who sold to Koresh, to Attorney General Janet Reno, who approved the raid and is slated to appear on the eighth and final day.

Republicans hint at disturbing revelations about the arsenal the government assembled at Waco, said to include at least one Abrams battle tank.

The military provided equipment and reviewed federal agency plans for the initial encounter with the Branch Davidians, but did not approve those plans, Defense Secretary William Perry said Sunday.

"That's not our position to approve. We had a few consultants who reviewed their plans and gave them recommendations on how to best use the equipment that was made available," he said on ABC's This Week With David Brinkley.

Democrats charge that one witness, Robert Sanders, has a long history of antagonism toward ATF, where he formerly worked, and say his presence at the witness table will be evidence of the Republicans' attempt to promote an anti-government agenda.

Already, Republicans have been embarrassed by the disclosure that committee investigators sought to use consultants paid for by the National Rifle Association to examine weapons seized from the Waco compound after it burned to the ground April 19, 1993.

"That's not the Judiciary Committee's doing," said Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., chairman of the panel, emphasizing it was arranged by GOP staffers of another committee.

Some Republicans planned as long ago as December to hold hearings on Waco. The idea gained momentum last winter, when the leadership was trying to fend off NRA demands for an immediate vote to repeal the ban on assault style weapons.

Testimony expected to focus on Simpson's finger cuts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's back to blood again in the O.J. Simpson trial.

Doctors called to testify are expected to focus this week on Simpson's cut finger and whether the ex-football star was fit to kill.

Dr. Robert Huizenga, Simpson's personal physician, was due back on the stand today as the defense enters its second week.

Huizenga examined Simpson twice in the days after the June 12, 1994 murders of his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Deputy District Attorney Brian Kelberg is challenging Huizenga's opinion that glass probably caused four cuts on two fingers of Simpson's left hand.

The prosecution argues that at least one of those cuts was caused by the murder knife and that Simpson left his own blood at the crime scene, in his Bronco and at home.

The defense says Simpson cut his hand on a broken drinking glass in his Chicago hotel room the morning after the killings. Lawyers hope to call a travel agent who says she was on the phone with Simpson when he apparently cut himself.

Ultimately, though, the question of the cut finger must take a back seat to the key issue for defense lawyers: the mountain of physical evidence against Simpson, said Robert Pugsley, a Southwestern University law professor.

"I think they're postponing the inevitable," Pugsley said. "They have to address the DNA and fiber evidence."

The prosecution is attacking another part of the Simpson defense: that he was too banged up from his National Football League career to kill with such effectiveness.

Huizenga testified last week that, while Simpson appeared to have the body of Tarzan, he walked "like Tarzan's grandfather." Simpson's arthritis doctor, Bertram Maltz, is expected to take the stand later this week.

But if the defense wants jurors to believe Simpson was physically incapable of murder, it may have to explain how he made "O.J. Simpson Minimum Maintenance Fitness for Men," a workout tape produced just a few weeks before the murders.

The tape is the most lethal weapon in the prosecution's arsenal for the cross-examination of Huizenga and Maltz.

Legal observers said diminished physical capacity has always been among the weakest parts of the defense case.

"The idea that O.J. Simpson simply is incapable of doing these murders has always been bizarre," said veteran criminal defense attorney Harland Braun. "It sort of highlights the weakness of the defense: They're trying to tell us that O.J. Simpson — one of the world's great athletes — is incapable of doing what 75 percent of adult males could. This is starting to strain credulity."

Prosecutor Marcia Clark signaled in her opening statements that she was ready to counter the arthritis claims with the workout video.

In the one-hour tape, geared for professional men on the go, Simpson does light aerobics, shoots a basketball (one of his opponents is Brian "Kato" Kaelin), and demonstrates a number of specialized exercises designed for the office, hotel room and airplane.

Wu case shouldn't be linked to trade or U.N. conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — China's arrest of American human rights activist Harry Wu has become a "thorn" in U.S.-China relations, but should not be linked to trade issues or U.S. participation in a U.N. conference in Beijing, Secretary of State Warren Christopher says.

Christopher, speaking Sunday on NBC's Meet the Press, urged the prompt release of Wu, saying, "It would be very desirable to put the Harry Wu episode behind us so we can get our relationship back on a solid track."

Wu, a U.S. citizen who was born in China and spent 19 years in Chinese prisons, has been a leader in exposing Chinese prison labor practices. He was arrested on espionage charges when he entered the country on June 19.

His detention could complicate several events, including the renewal of China's most-favored-nation trading status, a Christopher meeting with China's foreign minister in Brunei and U.S. attendance at a U.N. conference on women in Beijing in September.

Congress is expected in the next couple weeks to take up President Clinton's decision to extend China's MFN access to low tariffs, and there is strong pressure to reject that extension if Wu is not released.

But Christopher said the administration strongly supports continuing China's MFN status.

"I think we should condemn the detention of Mr. Wu under these circumstances, but, at the same time, I believe that most-favored-nation status is in our interest, as well as being in the Chinese interest," he said.

The United States must maintain ties to China, Christopher said. "It is a very powerful and important country. We want to be engaged with them." Christopher also said the women's conference is held only once a decade and the United States should attend.

Republican leaders, including House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., have urged Clinton to cancel U.S. participation in the conference if Wu remains in Chinese custody. Wu's wife, Ching Lee Wu, has said it would be wrong for the U.S. to send a delegation and for first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton to attend while her husband is in a Chinese jail.

Purple snakes and Indian pottery turn Arizona highways into art

PHOENIX (AP) — Airport shuttle driver Joe McCabe likes to show his passengers the purple snake and American Indian patterns adorning the retaining walls and overpasses of the freeways.

"The highways there are dirty, dingy and pathetic," McCabe said. "Here, it is an exceptional beauty that they take the expense to enhance the highways."

In the past seven years, the state and city have spent about $23 million on highway wall murals, patterned concrete on bridge overpasses and sculpted support columns.

The effort has put Phoenix at the forefront of a movement to merge art with infrastructure, said Bill Morrish, director of the Urban Design Center at the University of Minnesota.

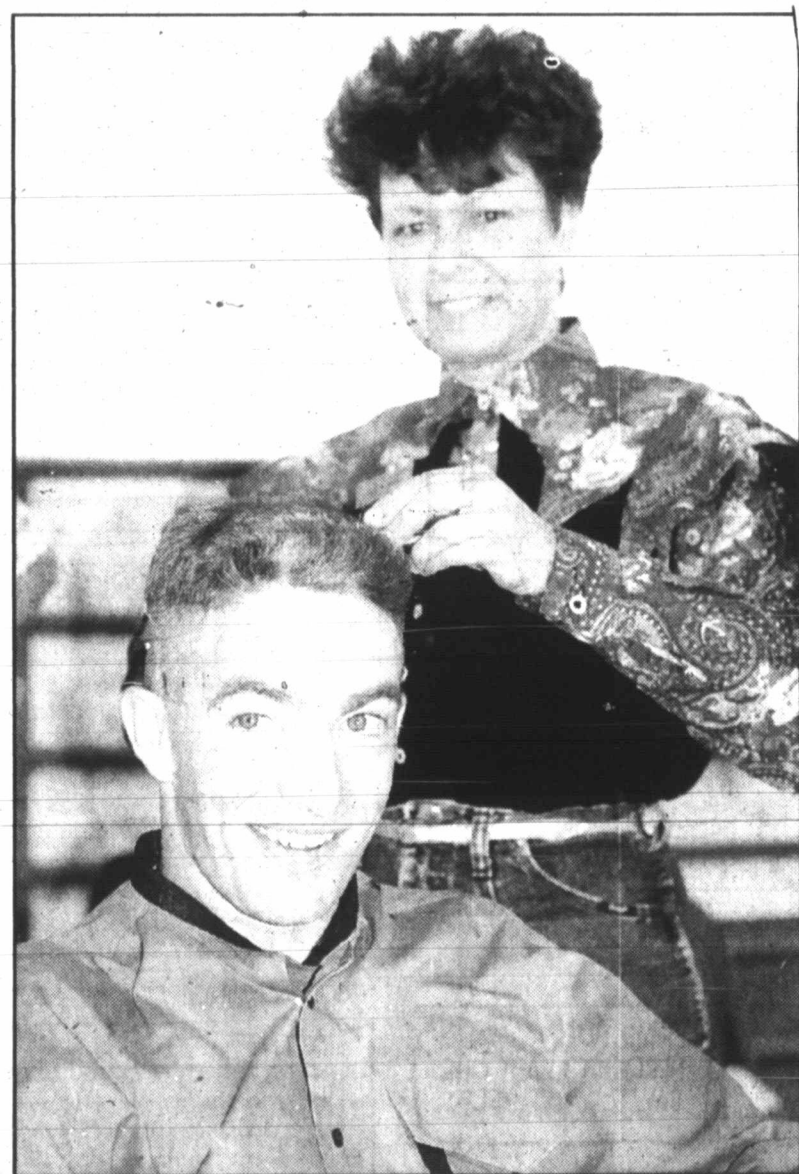

Seattle also devotes part of its construction budget to art, he said. Houston, San Antonio, San Jose, Calif., and St. Paul, Minn., have looked at similar programs.

In the past few weeks, Phoenix officials have shown their fanciful freeways to engineers and city officials from South Africa and Russia — just some of the people from around the world who have come to study how art becomes part of the design process here.

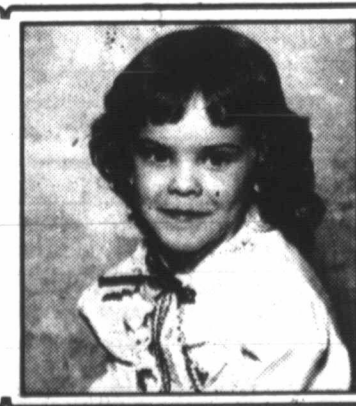

"Our engineers now think in terms of how to create something that is going to be a lasting monument and that people are going to treasure, rather than just, 'Let's go build a bridge,'" said James Mattison, Phoenix's streets transportation director.

Poem Eases Mother's Pain After Infant's Sudden Death

DEAR ABBY: In response to the letter from a postal worker in Cottage Grove, Minn., regarding the tragic loss of children in the Oklahoma City explosion:

Five years ago, on the same date that letter was written, I lost my 9-month-old son to SIDS (Sudden Infant Death Syndrome). I am enclosing a poem that gave me much comfort. Although I will continue to grieve the loss of my son, it would be selfish of me to wish him away from the perfect home in which he now dwells, just to fill my empty arms.

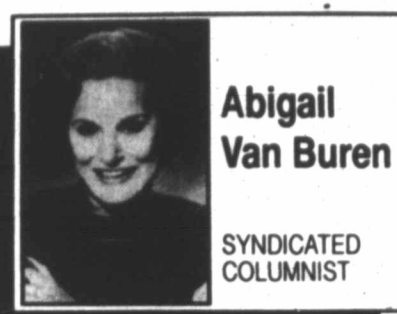

I have to consider myself blessed, and wait until the Lord determines that it is time for us to reunite.

A PARENT IN PLEASANT GAP, PA.

TO ALL PARENTS
by Edgar Guest

"I'll lend you for a little time a child of mine," He said,
"For you to love the while she lives and mourn for when she's dead."
"It may be six or seven years, or twenty-two or three,
"But will you, till I call her back, take care of her for me?"
"She'll bring her charms to gladden you, and shall her stay be brief,
"You'll have her lovely memories as solace for your grief.

"I cannot promise she will stay, since all from earth return.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

"But there are lessons taught down there I want this child to learn.

"I've looked the wide world over in my search for teachers true
"And from the throngs that crowd life's lanes I have selected you.

"Now will you give her all your love, nor think the labor vain,
"Nor hate me when I come to call to take her back again?"

I fancied that I heard them say:
"Dear Lord, Thy will be done!
"For all the joy Thy child shall bring, the risk of grief we'll run.

"We'll shelter her with tenderness, we'll love her while we may,
"And for the happiness we've known forever grateful stay;
"But shall the angels call for her much sooner than we've planned,

"We'll brave the bitter grief that comes and try to understand."

DEAR ABBY: When I was a child, my mother taught me something that profoundly influenced my life.

I was 7 years old when she came home with a surprise, and asked me to peek inside a cardboard box. Inside were two baby guinea pigs she had bought for my brother and me.

She showed me how to pick one up, and as I held the fragile little thing in my hand, she asked me to be careful and said, "Remember, that's a little life."

Through the years, we've had some wonderful pets in our family who were always treated with love and kindness, and I never forgot that no matter how tiny the creature is, there is a little heart beating inside.

Horoscope

Tuesday, July 18, 1995

In the year ahead, it would behoove you to go out of your way to make as many friends as possible in your field. Insiders who know and like you could prove instrumental in advancing your career.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be assertive today when necessary, but try not to cross the line of being perceived as aggressive or pushy. If they get this reaction, they're likely to erect barriers. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In business situations today, you're likely to handle yourself reasonably well. Socially, however, you may let your guard down and say or do things you shouldn't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid displaying preferential treatment today with your relationships. Above all, don't be more generous with new friends than you are with old pals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Libras usually do rather well in partnership arrangements, but today may be an exception. Someone else's unproductive baggage could slow you down.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) As long as everything runs smoothly, you'll be pleasant today. However, if confronted by obstacles, you may start searching for scapegoats.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Realize your limitations today as well as the limitations of those around you. If pushed to the edge, undesirable results are probable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Outsiders' faults are likely to receive tolerant treatment today, but you might not have the same compassion for your mate or other family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Act kindly toward deserving persons today, but don't be reluctant to say no to those who have no right to make demands on you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you hope to gain a lot by gambling a little today, disappointment is likely. In fact, you may even try gambling a lot in hopes of getting a little.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your insights and intuitions can direct your proper mode of behavior today. Unfortunately, you might intentionally ignore them and do otherwise.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Let your logic govern your judgment today instead of your sentimentality and feelings. If you allow your emotions to dominate, poor choices are probable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It could prove unwise to go to friends for financial advice. Although well-intentioned and eager to help, they may not truly understand your circumstances.

GOLF

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Ted Tryba took his first turn in the seat reserved for the champion, television lights shining in his eyes, and tried to comprehend his first victory on the PGA Tour.

"What a great accomplishment," he said. "All those balls and all the hard work, the sweat, pain, anguish and miserableness, learning how to cope with playing out here. This really makes it all that much more worthwhile."

Tryba earned his first victory Sunday when he opened a four-stroke lead in the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic, then withstood a late challenge by Scott Simpson to win by a stroke. The margin closed from three to one when Simpson birdied the par-3 17th and Tryba bogeyed No. 16.

"Yeah, I was nervous," Tryba, 28, said. "But I've been there before. It's not the same, but I won three tournaments on the Hogan (now Nike) Tour, and I've always had a knack for calming myself down."

West wins girls' all-star cage game

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Kim Durrett of Whitharral hit three 3-pointers down the stretch and Many Hodnett of Ackerly Sands made a free throw with nine seconds left, giving the West a 79-78 victory over the East on Saturday in the Six-Man Coaches Association girls' all-star basketball game.

Pampa area players contributed to the West win. Misty Barton of Miami scored four points and Fort Elliott's Andrea Dukes chipped in three. Katy Yauck of Follett added four points.

Durrett, who was named the game's Most Valuable Player, led the West with 13 points. Ashley Hart of Moran led the East with 15 points and 10 rebounds.

The East led by as many as 10 points in the first half and held a 40-35 advantage at the half.

With under two minutes to play, the West led, 75-73, but Bynum's Jackie Williams converted a three-point play at 1:48 to put the East back in front, 76-75.

Durrett hit another 3-pointer for a 78-76 West advantage, but Williams tied the score again, at 78-all, with 36 seconds to play.

Hodnett was fouled with nine seconds remaining and hit the first free throw, giving the West a 79-78 lead. She missed the second, but Durrett got the rebound.

The East came up with a steal, but couldn't get off a shot in time.

The victory is the West's second straight in the series.

Jenny Burkett of Guthrie added 10 points and nine rebounds for the West, while Lisa Borland of Ropesville had 10 points, five assists and three steals.

For the East, Williams added 12 points and 17 rebounds and Jennifer Guhl of Newcastle had eight points and eight rebounds.

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Chris Ashby of Jonesboro returned an interception 25 yards for a touchdown, leading the East to a 14-6 victory over the West in the Texas Six-Man Coaches Association all-star football game Saturday night.

Ashby's interception of a throwback pass came with 1:27 remaining in the game, which appeared headed for a 6-6 tie. The East has now won two straight games.

Ashby's fourth-quarter heroics earned him the defensive Most Valuable Player award, while Adam Castillo of the West was the offensive MVP.

The West had the early lead as quarterback Kurt Hess of Borden County took a pitch from Castillo as he was about to be tackled, and raced 40 yards for the touchdown.

But the East defense came through in the first quarter as well when Mike Reed of Gordon recovered a fumbled pitch in the end zone for the score.

Cody Blair of Paint Creek had 62 yards rushing on 12 carries, while teammate Chris Cumpston of Lueders-Avoca had 57 yards on 11 carries. Castillo had 33 yards rushing and Hess had 32 to lead the West. Castillo completed 5 of 13 passes for 35 yards and had two interceptions.

The West had one more first down, 6-5, while the East had the edge in total yards, 134-132. The West lost two fumbles and the East one. The East had three pass interceptions and the West one.

In penalties, the East was flagged four times for 45 yards. The West was penalized five times for 30 yards.

Pampa's Stone signs with Cameron University

LAWTON, Okla. — Cameron University golf coach Jerry Hrnciar has announced the signing of junior college transfer Cory Stone of Pampa to a national letter of intent.

Stone is a graduate of Western Junior College in Snyder and Pampa High School.

At Pampa, Stone finished second in the District 1-4A Tournament his junior and senior years and won the Pampa City Championship in 1994. He is the son of Robert and Cara Morris of Pampa and Robert Stone of Stephenville.

"Cory was a key recruit for us this season due to his experience and success," Hrnciar said. "He will be an integral part of our team and fill one of the holes in our starting lineup. Cory is a consistent player with no glaring weaknesses in his game."

Hrnciar also signed Jeff Van Horn, a native of Kemp and a graduate of Tyler Junior College and Mabank High School. He was a member of the 1994 Tyler Junior College National Championship Team, and recently played in three Collegiate Tour Events in North Carolina, Indiana and Missouri, against mainly NCAA 1 competition. He finished those three tournaments with a 73.8 stroke average, placing 12th, 8th and 6th respectively.

At Mabank High, Van Horn was a member of the Class 3A State Championship team as a sophomore, District medalist two years and the high school's most valuable player four consecutive years.

"Jeff is a very dedicated and determined student-athlete who has tasted success at the high school and junior college levels," Hrnciar said. "I am excited about his latest successes on the collegiate tour because he has demonstrated his ability on quality courses and against quality players. Jeff is a solid player and has the work ethic I look for in recruits. He is a grinder which makes him a probable starter for us. With the addition of Jeff and Cory, we replace the experience we lost in Dustin Wigington and Bob Shoemaker, and with the addition of our freshman class we have the quality to upgrade our overall team talent level."

Stone and Van Horn join freshman Jason Jeter and Sam Vandeman, both of Lawton Eisenhower High School, as the four new players on the Cameron golf team this season.

Indians pull off another winning rally to edge Athletics in 12th

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

As Dennis Eckersley found out, the Cleveland Indians can win a game in a hurry. As Brian Givens already knew, it can take a long time to win it all.

Cleveland pulled off another amazing comeback Sunday when Manny Ramirez connected for a two-out, two-run homer in the 12th inning off Eckersley. The 5-4 win over Oakland marked the 13th time this season that the Indians won in their final at-bat, nine of them at Jacobs Field.

"Phenomenal," Eckersley said. "I threw him two sinkers away, then I came inside and he came out of his shoes with that swing. Incredible."

Ramirez's 21st home run made the Indians 6-0 in extra-inning games and dropped Oakland to 0-8 in extras. Cleveland, which got five hits from Carlos Baerga, won its 10th in a row against the A's.

Givens, meanwhile, got into the win column for the first time in the majors by pitching Milwaukee past Chicago 6-1 at County Stadium.

Givens (1-2) waited a long time for the victory — he underwent five elbow operations and played 12 seasons in the minors before even breaking into the big leagues this year.

"I'm 29 years old. I'm not a typical rookie," said Givens, who played for the Brewers' replacement team in spring training.

Givens pitched 1,029 1-3 innings in the minors in the Brewers, Mariners, Mets, Royals and White Sox organizations. He played for 13 teams in the minors, including a stint with Michael Jordan last year, before making it to the majors June 24.

AL ROUNDUP

"I'm probably going to spend $70 tonight on the phone," Givens said after helping Milwaukee finish off its four-game sweep of Chicago since 1982.

In other games, California swept a doubleheader from Detroit, 6-4 and 13-6, Texas downed Boston 5-2, Baltimore beat Kansas City 3-2, New York defeated Minnesota 5-1, and Toronto stopped Seattle 9-3.

Brewers 6, White Sox 1
B.J. Surhoff put Milwaukee ahead to stay with a single in the fourth inning and added a two-run homer in the eighth.

Before the game, the White Sox put reliever Rob Dibble on waivers. He was 0-1 with a 6.28 ERA, and was appealing a three-game suspension imposed for throwing at Pat Listach of the Brewers.

Angels 6, Tigers 4
Angels 13, Tigers 6
Jim Edmonds and Garret Anderson enjoyed big games as California took two at Tiger Stadium.

The Angels swept the four-game series. Detroit, which started 5-0 on its 11-game homestand, dropped five of the last six.

Edmonds homered twice, doubled and drove in five runs in the second game, called in the ninth inning because of rain. Anderson hit a three-run double that keyed a four-run rally in the eighth inning of the opener, and homered in the second game.

Rangers 5, Red Sox 2
At Boston, Juan Gonzalez became Texas' career home run leader with the 154th of his career and 14th of the season.

He hit a three-run shot in a five-run third inning. Will Clark drove in the other two with a bases-loaded single. Kenny Rogers (9-4) got his first win since June 23, allowing three hits in seven innings. The victory was the sixth in seven games for Texas, giving the Rangers the best record (42-31) after 73 games in club history.

Orioles 3, Royals 2
Cal Ripken hit his first home run in July, helping Jamie Moyer and Baltimore beat Kansas City at Camden Yards.

Moyer (5-3) is 4-0 with an 0.91 ERA since June 21. He gave up three hits in 7 2-3 innings and retired 16 straight batters.

Melvin Bunch (0-1), promoted from Triple-A Omaha earlier in the day, retired the first 10 batters in his first major league start.

Yankees 5, Twins 1
New York rookie Mariano Rivera had more trouble with his fingernails than the Twins.

Rivera (3-2) shut out Minnesota for six innings. But he left in the seventh because of cracks on two of his fingernails.

Chuck Knoblauch led off the game at Yankee Stadium with a drive that hit the top of the fence in right-center field and appeared to bounce off the back wall for an apparent home run. The hit was ruled a double, however; a day earlier, Minnesota's Pedro Munoz was credited with a home run on a fly ball that was foul.

Blue Jays 9, Mariners 3
John Olerud hit his first grand slam and also connected for a solo home run as Toronto won at Seattle.

Olerud, a former AL batting champion who began the game hitting .252, had a career-best five RBIs. Joe Carter hit a two-run double off recently signed Norm Charlton.

Ed Hurtado (1-0) pitched 6 2-3 innings for his first win the majors.

Sorenstam claims U.S. Women's Open

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The first time Annika Sorenstam looked at a scoreboard, it started her adrenaline flowing and triggered a three-birdie binge. The next time she looked, it started her nerves twitching and nearly cost her the tournament.

Sorenstam, a Swede who maintains a home in Phoenix, built a commanding lead with three consecutive birdies, then survived a shaky finish to capture the 50th U.S. Women's Open on Sunday.

In making her first tour victory a major, the 24-year-old Sorenstam capitalized on a triple-bogey debacle at the fourth hole by third-round leader Meg Mallon. She closed with a 2-under-par 68 for a 2-under 278 total on the mountainous Broadmoor East course.

Nearly undone by bogeys at the 15th and 16th holes, Sorenstam finished one shot ahead of Mallon.

"I was five shots out starting the day," Sorenstam said. "I went off today with the attitude that I had nothing to lose."

Mallon had a chance to tie at 18 but missed a 20-foot birdie putt. Her final-round 74 gave her a 279 total. Betsy King and Pat Bradley were at even-par 280. Rosie Jones and Leta Lindley wound up at 281.

Winning the most prestigious title in women's golf overwhelmed Sorenstam.

"I can't believe it," she said. "I don't know what I got myself into. It's like a dream. I've thought about winning something like this over the last few years, but I never thought it could happen to me."

Team roping partners lose horses in accident

POWELL BUTTE, Ore. — Team roping partners Mike Beers and David Motes lost their team roping mounts on July 4, when their horse trailer careened off a bridge just 20 miles from Beers' house.

A calf roping horse owned by Tod Slone was also injured in the accident. Rescue workers used the "jaws of life" to free the horse from the trailer. Slone's horse is expected to be ready for competition in six weeks.

None of the three horse owners were in the trailer's truck at the time, according to Beers, 1984 world team roping champion. A driver had dropped Beers and Motes off at the Eugene, Ore., airport, and the driver was to take the truck and trailer back to Beers' home in Powell Butte, Ore., about two and a half hours away.

The driver lost control of the truck on a bridge near Beers' house, and both the truck and trailer tumbled over the side. The driver survived without serious injury. Law enforcement officials are still investigating the accident.

"I'm glad I wasn't there," Beers said. "There'll be nightmares forever about that."

Gjermundson wins at Calgary

CALGARY, Alberta, Canada — Brad Gjermundson, four-time world saddle bronc riding champion from Marshall, N.D., won the first round at the

RODEO ROUNDUP

Calgary Stampede in Calgary, Alberta.

Gjermundson, who finished third in the Crown Royal world saddle bronc riding standings last year by winning $128,331, scored 83.5 points on Calgary Stampede's Skoal Warfare Rocket. He earned $2,880 for the ride.

The Calgary Stampede, which runs from July 7-16, is the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association's most lucrative event held in Canada. Last year, the Stampede paid more than $200,000 in prize money.

Other first-round winners at Calgary were Kirby Berry, bareback riding, 85 points on Franklin Rodeo's Skoal's Blue Ridge, $2,628; D.J. Vaughn, bull riding, 83.5 points on Franklin Rodeo's Boot Camp, $2,779; Stran Smith, calf roping, 8.1 seconds, $2,214; Roger Lewis, steer wrestling, 4.2 seconds, $2,453; and Frances Church, barrel racing, 16.73 seconds, $2,157.

Bull Bonus Continues to Climb

MESQUITE — Mesquite Rodeo's bull Dodge Laramie II's bonus has climbed to $27,500 after the bull tossed Shane Yates.

Yates, gunning for a $27,000 bonus from Dodge Truck for an eight-second qualified ride, lost his seat after 2.4 seconds.

"He just bucked me off," said

Yates of Mesquite, Texas. "He knew what he was doing and I just wasn't paying attention. I guess it's my fault I lost."

The bull, according to Dodge Truck Rodeo, has never been ridden at the Mesquite Rodeo in 41 attempts. Laramie II was ridden by Brent Thurman and Owen Washburn at the 1994 National Finals Rodeo, however.

Laramie is the top bull in Dodge Truck bonus bull program. Each time a bonus bull like Laramie goes unriden, his bonus increases by $500, according to Steve Fleming with the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. Once a bull rider wins the bonus by making a qualified ride, the bonus goes back down to $500.

Losing teams have Super Sunday

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

Every dog has its day. That explains how the New York Mets, Florida Marlins and San Diego Padres — teams with a combined record of 88-128 — managed victories Sunday against the Colorado Rockies, Los Angeles Dodgers and Atlanta Braves (122-97).

New York won its series with Colorado by defeating the Rockies 2-1 in 10 innings for its third victory of the four-game set. Rico Brogna singled home the winning run with two outs in the 10th.

"You can't always get 10, 11 runs. You have to win a ball game 2-1 once in awhile," said Colorado manager Don Baylor, whose team swept its last four-game series before the All-Star break but was humbled by the Mets at Shea Stadium.

Still, the Rockies lost just one game in the standings over the past four days because the Dodgers — when they didn't have Ramon Martinez or Hideo Nomo on the mound — were having their own problems with the worst team in the NL.

Los Angeles managed only five hits Sunday in losing 5-2 to Florida at Dodger Stadium as the Marlins managed a split of the series.

"You're going to go through your times when you're hot and when you're cold, but that's when you've got to execute," said Eric Karros of the Dodgers.

The Padres, meanwhile, won for only the third time in 12 games Sunday, beating the red-hot Braves 3-1 at Jack Murphy Stadium. It was only the second loss in 14 games this month for the NL East-leading Braves, who got just three hits.

NL ROUNDUP

In other games, San Francisco beat Houston 7-6 in 14 innings, Chicago beat Cincinnati 7-5, Pittsburgh blanked St. Louis 3-0 and Montreal beat Philadelphia 5-1.

Mets 2, Rockies 1
New York got strong pitching from starter Pete Harnisch and reliever John Franco to beat the NL West leaders.

Harnisch struck out eight and scattered seven hits in eight innings, and Franco (4-1) allowed two hits in two innings.

"I still believe this ball club's capable of good, sound baseball," New York manager Dallas Green said. "I've been preaching (fundamentals) for two years. Today we played tight defense, got good pitching and enough offense to get the job done."

In the 10th, Jose Vizcaino singled, moved to second on a sacrifice and to third on a fielder's choice before Brogna's two-out single off Mark Thompson (2-1).

Marlins 5, Dodgers 2
Pat Rapp (4-5) struck out a career-high nine and combined with two relievers on a five-hitter. Charles Johnson hit a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth off Todd Worrell.

Ismael Valdes (5-6) lost his fourth straight decision after five consecutive victories and Raul Mondesi had his streak of 18 consecutive stolen bases snapped.

Batting practice was canceled by rain. Los Angeles averages less than 0.02 inches of rain in July and the Dodgers have never been rained out in July.

Padres 3, Braves 1
The Padres responded to a tirade by low-key manager Bruce Bochy after losing the first three games of the series.

"He's the most positive guy I've been associated with. When he goes off like that, it makes you think. We all know we're messing up. You want to win so bad for him," said Ken Caminiti, who hit one of two solo homers for San Diego. Steve Finley had the other.

Rookie Glenn Dishman (2-2) allowed only two hits in 7 1-3 innings and Tony Gwynn extended his hitting streak to 14 games.

Giants 7, Astros 6
Houston scored four runs in the eighth for a 5-4 lead, the Giants scored two in the bottom of the inning to make it 6-5 and Jeff Bagwell homered leading off the ninth to tie it 6-6.

J.R. Phillips, who came to bat hitting .152 and was 0-for-5 in the game, won it in the 14th with a leadoff homer off Doug Brocail (2-1).

It capped a wild series in which Houston won 15-9 Saturday and 13-8 Friday with comebacks. Thursday's game was won by San Francisco in 12 innings.

Cubs 7, Reds 5
At Wrigley Field, Brian McRae homered, tripled and singled twice as the Cubs avoided a four-game sweep.

Kevin Foster (7-5) won despite allowing four home runs.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 0
At Three Rivers Stadium, the smallest midsummer Sunday crowd in a decade saw rookie Steve Parris (seven strikeouts, no walks) combine with Dan Plesac and Dan Miceli on a seven-hitter.

Expos 5, Phillies 1
At Olympic Stadium, Carlos Perez (8-2) spoiled Sid Fernandez's debut for Philadelphia, pitching 7 1-3 strong innings and sending Philadelphia to its seventh loss in eight games.

Jarrett captures Miller 500 race

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — While Robert Yates Racing may not be back among the elite on the Winston Cup circuit, Dale Jarrett has at least earned a break from criticism that team and driver were no longer a viable force.

And Jarrett's victory Sunday in the Miller Genuine Draft 500 applied the brakes — albeit what amounted to only a slight tap of the pedal — to Jeff Gordon's seemingly inexorable march to the series driving title and Chevrolet's persistent domination of Ford.

Yates was happy for Jarrett, who gave Ford only its third victory of the year when he hung on to edge Gordon despite running out of fuel on the final 2 1/2-mile lap at Pocono International Raceway.

"We hope his stock is back on its way up, as it should have been before now, and we hope our stock is back up, too," Yates said.

Last season, the Yates team was one of the best with Ernie Irvan behind the wheel. But he nearly lost his life in an accident last August at Michigan International Speedway, and things haven't been the same since.

Jarrett, who hopes to form his own team next year, left his ride in the Joe Gibbs Chevrolet at the end of 1994 to sit in for Irvan. He has been blamed in many quarters for the poor showing of the Yates car this season, criticism perhaps unwarranted in view of the domination this year by the new Chevy Monte Carlos.

"If I was looking for praise, I probably wouldn't have come into this situation," Jarrett said. "If I go out and win 10 races, it's because I've got a great car. If I don't, it's because I can't drive."

Jarrett disproved that, by the barest of margins. He needed a push to the winner's circle after his car stopped less than a mile beyond the line.

He beat series leader Gordon by about five car-lengths (.19 seconds) to win for the first time in 17 rides for Yates. The victory was the fourth in the career of the 38-year-old Jarrett.
