PAMPA — Individuals whose homes were damaged or destroyed in last week's tornado can apply for relief funds through the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Donations have been made by "generous" local citizens, including Hoescht Celanese and Phillips, according to chamber spokesperson Nanette Moore.

"This gives people an avenue to help if they can't help any other way," Moore

Victims of the storm can fill out an application at the chamber offices at 200 N. Ballard. A committee then reviews each application within a couple of days. There is no minimum or maximum request amount currently, but chamber members are "trying to make it fair" for all those who apply, Moore

Direct donations may be made at Boatmen's First Pampa Banking Center.

County officeholders get personnel update

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS News Editor

Gray County commissioners listened intently Thursday to a representative of the Texas Association of Counties who conducted a training session for them and other officeholders on the ins-and-outs of the Americans With Disabilities Act, the Family Leave Act, Equal Employment Opportunity Act, the Whistle Blower's Act, sexual harassment and overtime policies.

Gene Schaeffer of the Texas Association of Counties, Austin, told officeholders Texas is number one in the nation in shift, even if it means an EEOC complaints, while compliance with the three and a half year old Americans With Disabilities Act is the number one problem counties face. trouble spot for counties because when someone is terminated, their entire existence is threatened, Schaeffer said.

Schaeffer told officeholders that any agency with more than 15 employees is subject to the act and cautioned them they must accommodate the disabled with reasonable accommodations. Most accommodations are free or nearly free and may include building modifications, like widening a doorway, or reassigning a disabled employee to another unpopular assignment for a non-disabled person.

Sheriff Randy Stubblefield asked Schaeffer what protects a worker who is forced to give Termination is the number two up his preferred job assignment for the handicapped. Schaeffer responded that an outside agency with greater authority requires him to make the accommodation "or it will come back to haunt you."

Schaeffer encouraged the county to proceed with its personnel policy manual which County Judge Richard Peet will serve to protect the county

Sexual harassment takes two forms, including quid pro quo, where favors are solicited for the job or status improvement, and hostile environment, where employees are offended by jokes, vulgarity or other personal behavior, he said.

Supervisors must take immediate action to stop the offensive behavior and investigate complaint discreetly, Schaeffer said.

"We have the right to come to work today without fear of intimidation," Schaeffer said.

Because the county may experience limited turnover, officeholders may not be up to date on questions they may legally ask or not ask an applicant, Schaefer explained.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment

Ross Perot is such a man. The question now is: What exactly is his Eyebrows raised - and some twitched, no doubt - when Perot invited the best known political figures in the land to the United We Stand conclave this August in Dallas, and many of them accepted.

Most of the Republican presidential contenders will be there. So will congressional leaders from both parties. President Clinton has hinted that he won't attend, but probably he will have a representa-

The event will serve as an "educational seminar," Perot said. He says it will be about "issues, issues, issues" and that partisanship won't be tolerated. "Our goal is to ... get away from sound bites," said the man who is a master of them. But after the August meeting, then what?

Will Perot and-or United We Stand endorse a candidate? Will a third political party be formed? Will Perot run for president again? ...

Even if Perot has little chance of becoming president, he can have a say in who is. That probably is the driving force behind the meeting in Dallas this summer, and it is why so many politicians with egos that nearly match Perot's are willing to patronize him.

Ross Perot was smart enough to jump in front of a parade in 1992, but not savvy enough to take it where it was headed. Americans will find out in the coming year and a half how much he has learned.

Corpus Christi Caller-Times, on Japan's non-apology for World War II:

The way the governments and the people of Japan and Germany have addressed the legacy of World War II — specifically, the atrocities committed by both — continues to be a study in contrasts.

One German leader after another, virtually from the end of the war has offered expressions of apology and regret for the obscene acts undertaken in the Third Reich ...

Then there is Japan, which last week presented the world yet again with the spectacle of a nation in which a sizable segment of the population - to include some very highly placed people indeed is caught up in the throes of denial.

Members of the Diet, Japan's parliament, struggled last week to draft a resolution as part of the observance of the end of the war in the Pacific that avoided an outright apology, a word which has sparked great controversy in the past among Japanese politicians ..

Until Japan does confront the past squarely and honestly, there will be a shadow over its relations with the rest of the world. Japan was not the only party guilty of excesses in World War II; far from it. It is, however, the only one which has yet to address them in a

Government is a lousy nanny

In London the other day, during an editorial luncheon at the Sunday Telegraph, Sir Peregrine Worsthorne asked a refreshing question, setting a precedent that we all might follow in our heated political discussions.

As conversation intensified among the assembled journalists about the latest Clintonian buffoonery, Sir Peregrine, venerable editor and author that he is, interrupted "Forgive me, but why is it that we are against President Clinton?" His point was made! Every now and again, it is beneficial to review our reasons for holding whatever position, we might hold.

Right now, Newt's revolution hums along on Capitol Hill. Those of us who applaud it are particularly delighted that Newt and his agents are at work lopping off government's tentacles. It is not that we are against government, but that we are for limited government, as were the Founding Fathers. Government is a blunt instrument, rarely delicate in dealing with human problems, always expensive and inefficient. Whatever community and social arrangements can be arrived at by the citizenry independent of government will always be superior to those arrived at by government involvement. Government is often a good cop, but always a lousy nanny.

Perhaps now is an appropriate time to ask ourselves why we are paring back government. The cavalcade of atrocities now accumulating as a consequence of the federal government's enforcement of the Americans with Disabilities Act ought to remind us why government's involvement in our lives should be limited. Passed into law in 1990 by an alliance of high-minded Democrats and Republicans led by President George Bush, it sought to grant disabled persons full participation in American life, as though their disabilities could be removed by law. In other words, the legislators attempted to play God. The law defined a disability as "(a) a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of the major life activities of such individual; (b) a record of such impairment; or (c) being regarded as having such an impairment."

Bring on the bureaucrats. Bring on the lawyers. And incidentally, is there anyone out there who does not meet the above mentioned qualifications for suing a fellow citizen into the poorhouse? The ADA is costing the American economy tens of billions already in construction costs, lawsuits and lost time. The National Association of Counties estimates that county governments alone will spend $3 billion to have their facilities built in accordance with this idiotic law. If we really sought government's assistance in easing the difficulties of the disabled it would be much more economical (and more sensitive to each disabled person) to give them personal financial aid.

As the law is written now, allergies and halitosis might qualify one for being categorized as disabled. The EEOC has yet to issue meaningful guidelines. And so the idiotic stories of government excess and lawyerly exploitation mount, as the writer James Bovard has masterfully chronicled in an issue of The American Spectator.

In August of 1993, the EEOC divined that obesity qualifies as a "protected" disability. In Rhode Island, we yell for limited government. Thanks for the 300-pound woman wanted to be a nurse's aide. question, Sir Perry.

The hospital afflicted by this woman insisted that she would not be able to fulfill the job requirements and that obesity was voluntary. The EEOC responded that "Voluntariness is irrelevant when determining whether a condition constitutes impairment." Thus, rather than shed a hundred or so pounds and improve her health, this elephantine nurse is bumping her way through a Rhode Island hospital with the full power of the federal government behind her. The comedy is picking up. A 410-pound Bronx sub-way cleaner has sued the New York Transit Authority for refusing to promote him to train operator, though his girth makes him manifestly unfit. In Los Angeles, the Odd Ball cabaret, a strip joint, had to close a shower stall on stage because it was not accessible to a stripper in a wheelchair. The business was accused of discriminating against handicapped women.

A deaf women in Santa Monica, Calif., has sued Burger King for having drive-in windows that do not take her impairment into account. Even lawbreakers can claim the benefits of the ADA. In Connecticut, a high-school guidance counselor, fired after a cocaine arrest, claims the school discriminated against him because he was disabled by cocaine dependence. At Boston University, a professor who was fired for allegedly sexually assaulting a female professor, sexually harassing students and giving students alcohol is charging the school with violating the ADA because his misbehavior resulted from his use of a medication.

Thus, this preposterous law has elevated social pathologies to the condition of civil rights. Nothing stands in its way other than Newt's revolution. And so, we are reminded of why it is that

Today in history

Significance of immigration reform

President Clinton, who can be relied upon to be all over the map, has endorsed changes in immigration law in response to recommendations from the Commission on Immigration Reform. It's difficult to guess why the president endorsed the minor adjustments in numbers and eligibility that the commission proposed - but this much is certain, the debate over immigration will not enchere.

Like all of the important intellectual debates currently engaging serious people, the debate over immigration is being waged not by conservatives against liberals, but by conservatives against other conservatives.

That is not to say that there isn't a liberal position on immigration. There is. It amounts to this: If people do not have a constitutional right to move to America, they are entitled to all of the benefits of our welfare state the minute they arrive. Further, immigration is good for America because it promotes diversity. Among conservatives, the debate looks a little different. Most conservatives, like House Majority Leader Dick Armey, are energetically pro immigration, believing that immigration adds a constant fuel of economic vitality, patriotism and energy to the American mix. Immigration enthusiasts point out that immigration is self-selecting that is, the indolent and stupid don't have what it takes to get here. And they cite the brilliant heritage of this country as a haven for the oppressed.

Carrying the anti-immigration standard is National Review, the conservative flagship magazine, and Forbes editor Peter Brimelow, author of Alien Nation: Common Sense About America's Immigration

Mona Charen

Disaster. Both Brimelow and John O'Sullivan, National Review's editor, are British-born, and though it may seem cheeky for new immigrants to criticize immigration policy, Brimelow's response is that immigrants always do the dirty work in America, and today, the dirty work amounts to challenging ill-founded assumptions about immigration.

Few Americans recognize that, even leaving illegal immigration aside, we are now in the midst of the greatest wave of immigration in our history. The last great peak, 1,285,349, came in 1907. In 1991, we accepted 1,827,167. Yes, our population is larger today, but as Brimelow notes (and as any resident of Miami or San Diego can attest), immigrants do not spread themselves evenly around the country but rather cluster in certain cities. Moreover, nearly all immigrants who come to America these days are staying here. That wasn't true of the great wave of 1880-1925. As many as one-third of the immigrants who came during that period eventually went back home.

Indeed, throughout American history (the decades of the late 19th and early 20th century being the exception), immigration has ebbed and flowed depending upon many factors, including economic conditions in the United States. But since 1965, immigration, legal and illegal, has gone steadily up.

Why? Well, the welfare state, explains Brimelow. The image we have of hard-working immigrants making a go of it in the New Land with long hours and steady toil is no longer accurate, he claims. Immigrants have become heavy users of welfare. According to Brimelow, immigrants consumed 6.7 percent of all welfare cash benefits in 1970 but 13.1 percent in 1990. And word has spread about what is obtainable here. Two-thirds of the births in Los Angeles County are to illegal-immigrant mothers.

One needn't endorse Brimelow's conclusion (he wants a complete moratorium on immigration for a few years and then a reappraisal of immigration policy) to agree that the questions he raises are worthy of debate. I believe that the traditional image of the hardworking immigrant is still true for most, but if even a significant minority are departing from that model, it means trouble. Unless we become again a nation that insists upon hard work and self-reliance, a nation that proudly asks immigrants to "Americanize" rather than hang on to their native languages and customs the New York school system now offers instruction in 100 different languages - we cannot hope to assimilate the numbers of immigrants we are now accepting. And unassimilated minorities can be a very serious matter. Just look at Bosnia. Gingrich dominates the political arena

Of course Newt Gingrich is trying to manipulate the political debate; the House speaker says so himself. And he's doing it with help from an unlikely source: President Clinton.

Presidents do not customarily accord equal billing to rivals, in campaigns or in Congress, but there was Gingrich, one on one in New Hampshire, after adroitly accepting an invitation that wasn't really issued.

Still, Clinton said it was the right thing to do, that their civilized discussion of the differences between Democrats and Republicans had avoided the rough partisanship that too often applies in Washington. Gingrich said it was less confrontational and more cooperative side by side. By the morning after, he was suggesting that it also had prompted the president to more accurately describe Republican budget curbs. It is a lot harder to say something that is not true when you have the other person sitting next to you," the speaker said in a Manchester, N.H., radio interview. Actually, neither the speaker nor the president yielded or broke ground at their unprecedented joint appearance in Claremont, N.H., recently. They politely restated their positions on issues before Congress, Gingrich later saying that the conciliatory tone didn't mean he was compromising on any of them. Both said that was better than 30-second TV attack ads, although both sides will be using them. And for all the gentle talk, the real test on

there are bills to be signed or vetoed. That's the record Clinton and the Republicans will take into the 1996 presidential campaign, when the Claremont mood won't apply

And while Gingrich was cordial, he didn't come to Republican command that way. "It is so difficult for us in Washington to communicate with people out in the country, with all the layers between us, that what often is the only way to break through is some fairly extreme statement," Clinton said. "The speaker's real good at that. He can break through like nobody I've seen in a long time. But it'll get covered."

The tone was bantering, the appraisal accurate. The joint appearance stemmed from Clinton's musing in a telephone interview with New Hampshire reporters that if they were going to be together he'd take the speaker to question-and-answer sessions with the people there.

All hypothetical, until Gingrich accepted. He did observe, pointedly, that he didn't need the White House in order to draw a crowd. "I think we had more than enough people showing up with or without the president and his staff, frankly," Gingrich said. "We were doing fine."

He had a presidential-plus media entourage for his four-day swing; he had standing room crowds. the budget, welfare reform, the minimum wage and the other issues they covered will come when and the other issues they covered will come when and in the end he shared a joint forum that ideas of the 1996 campaign," he said.

eclipsed Clinton's first New Hampshire appearance of the pre-campaign season, a Dartmouth College commencement address urging graduates to the service of genuine citizenship instead of "the politics of hollow, reactionary rhetoric."

Clinton, of course, will be on the ballot in the Feb. 20 New Hampshire primary. Gingrich said he isn't running for president, but he won't foreclose the option because it gets him the attention he needs to press his ideas.

"It's openly manipulative," Gingrich said in a recent NBC interview. "Of course it's manipulative." He said he wouldn't get the same coverage were he to renounce 1996 candidacy.

Actually, he's had a high profile and a platform to rival the White House since the Republicans took over Congress. He got a prime-time halfhour on one network to report on the GOP's first hundred days in power. The focus on Republicans had prompted Clinton to the remarkable reminder that "the president is relevant here ..."

"The Constitution gives me relevance," he said two months ago. "The power of our ideas gives me relevance.

Despite all the attention, Gingrich would rank far down the list of GOP presidential candidates, led by Sen. Bob Dole.

But none of them will be getting equal time with the president they all want to challenge. Gingrich did, and it fits his thinking about his role in the Republican effort to take the White House from Clinton.

The Mobile museum was a huge success with the Museum receiving numerous letters and banners prepared by the kids. One of the museum's main goals is to reach as many area people as possible in terms of educating them about the past for the sake of the future.

The recycling and quilting exhibit was viewed by over 1200 people and was a success. All the quilters were invited in for an afternoon tea to share stories before taking their quilts with them. A new quilting exhibit with a live quilting display is anticipated for next spring.

Two new exhibits are featured in the Brillhart Room. The first is a wedding dress display with three generations of Perrys and several other unique gowns. It is dis-played behind glass with each widow depicting a different scene. There is a Bridal Boutique which includes gowns, a wedding album, and several accessories.

The remainder of the Brillhart Room is filled with Photography taken by local photographers, Cindy Drum, Gwen Shuler, June Cook, Jeff Knighton and Bill Ellzey. This is a special display with photos of local scenery, animals, and several other subjects. The new modular panels used to display the pictures provide the room with the feel and the look of a gallery. The public is encouraged to come out and see both exhibits.

Another new exhibit is a traveling exhibit of a chuck wagon from the Devil's Rope Museum McLean. The Museum is open from 9 to 5 Monday through Friday and from 1 to 5 Saturday and Sunday.

Daughter Sinks Her Chances By Taking a Topless Swim

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been reading your column for many years and have agreed to take your advice on this problem:

We have a beautiful daughter who will soon celebrate her 18th birthday. (I'll call her "Cindy.") A few years ago, we decided we would make her 18th birthday really special by surprising her with a brandnew car.

Last Saturday, my wife was out of town and I returned home unexpectedly due to a fire at the plant where I work. As I came around the back of the house, I heard Cindy and her friends laughing and shouting in the swimming pool as usual, but my daughter and her girlfriends were not wearing the tops to their bathing suits! To my horror, there were several boys in the pool with them!

Now I no longer feel like buying Cindy a car for her 18th birthday. My wife disagrees, and says the punishment is too harsh. What do you say, Abby?

DISAPPOINTED DAD

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: If you want to punish your daughter because she and her girlfriends were topless in the pool in the presence of boys, please find another way. I agree with your wife. The punishment doesn't fit the "crime."

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. George W. Bush is putting the squeeze on Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles.

Bush said Thursday he is eagerly awaiting fresh oranges from Chiles as part of a bet the governors had on the NBA Finals between the Houston Rockets and the Orlando Magic.

Houston completed a four-game sweep of the Magic Wednesday night with a 113-101 victory.

Bush had offered to send Chiles some Texas barbecue if the Rockets were defeat-

"I look forward to Gov. Chiles sending me the oranges that he bet," Bush said. "I would hope they'd be on my doorstep in short order. I would expect no rotten oranges."

Bush said the oranges would be turned into freshly squeezed juice at the Governor's Mansion.

When Bush was first asked about the Rockets' repeat as champions, he said, "I was always for the Rockets, except when they played the (San Antonio) Spurs, in which case I was for the Texas team."

SAN ANTONIO (AP) -The San Antonio Spurs have bought out Terry Cummings' contract and released him into unrestricted free agency.

Jarod Hoover of the Pampa Panthers connects for a hit during a scrimmage game with former Harvester players Thursday at Harvester Field. Borger was scheduled to play the Panthers, but they had to cancel because of conflicting events. Pampa hosts Clovis, N.M. and Borger in a round-robin Saturday with starting times at 12 noon, 2:30 and 5 p.m. The Panthers are an 18 and under team. The team is coached by Steve Watson, Lynn Hancock and Jerry Larson.

Angels' Gubicza shuts out

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) -Kansas City manager Bob Boone just laughs when asked about the novelty of his four-man pitching

"For 100 years, that's the way it's been done," Boone said. "I felt it should have been done more often, but I was never in control of it before. Problem is now, (the fiveman rotation) has been in place so long, it's the thing that fired managers are made of.

Mark Gubicza, one of Boone's four starters, pitched the first onehitter of his 10-year career Thursday to beat the Oakland Athletics 7-0.

Gubicza was among baseball's hardest throwers in the 1980s before rotator cuff surgery set him back in 1993. He started this season 1-4, and Boone had a one-to-one talk with him about a month ago. Since then, Gubicza is 3-1 with a 2.11 ERA in the five starts.

"He basically told me to go after people," Gubicza said. "He believed in me. It built my confidence." In other games, Detroit defeated New York 9-2 and California beat Chicago 5-1. The Royals' foursome of Gubicza, Kevin Appier, Chris Haney and Tom Gordon have all contributed to the team's seasonhigh six-game winning streak. The streak has helped keep Kansas City within seven games of the AL Central-leading Cleveland Indians, who have baseball's best record at

AL ROUNDUP

"He just keeps getting better and better every time out," Boone said. Now he's even throwing harder, maybe because of (the shorter rest between starts).'

Gubicza says the short rotation keeps him alert.

"I don't have enough free time to let my mind wander between starts," Gubicza said. "And being a sinkerball pitcher, it kind of helps me not to overthrow the ball as much."

Oakland manager Tony La Russa might be swayed to switch to a four-man rotation after what happened Thursday. Ron Darling had another bad start, allowing seven runs in only 2 1-3 innings.

La Russa declined to talk much about either starting pitcher, instead focusing on the big picture of being outhit and outscored.

"I don't have any comment about Gubicza," La Russa said. "They just outplayed us. They outeverythinged us.'

Boone said Gubicza "is probably throwing harder than he has in the last five years." Combine that with some off-speed pitches, and you have the makings of a near no-hitter.

"He was throwing sinkers and sliders, which he throws all the time," said Oakland's Mark McGwire, whose single with one out in the fourth was the A's lone hit. Gubicza (4-5) walked one and struck out five, pitching his 14th career shutout. His last shutout and complete game both came in May 1992.

Vince Coleman led off the game withd a double off Darling (2-3) and scored on Wally Joyner's two-out single for a 1-0 lead. Coleman's two-run double in the second keyed a three-run rally to make it 4-0.

Darling lasted only one out into the third, leaving after the Royals scored three more runs. He has made it past five innings in only two of his 10 starts. His ERA is 6.75. Angels 5, White Sox 1

For the first time since April 14, 1988, a game at Anaheim Stadium was delayed by rain. After the start was held up for 44 minutes, California went on to beat Chicago.

Rookie Garret Anderson, who had three hits, and J.T. Snow, who homered, each drove in two runs.

Garcia swings hot bat as Pirates down Dodgers

By The Associated Press

A switch in the field gave Carlos Garcia a boost at the plate.

Moving from second base to shortstop to replace slumping Jay Bell, Garcia drove in six runs Thursday to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Los Angeles

Dodgers 11-7. Garcia, who entered the game with only 11 RBIs in 126 at-bats, hit a three-run homer and a basesloaded double. The six RBIs doubled his previous career-high for one game. 'Finally, I'm getting some timing at the plate and I'm starting to see pitches the way I should," said

Garcia, who went 2-for-3 to raise his average to .248. Garcia, who played shortstop in the minors, is getting his confidence back after undergoing knee surgery last winter. "He's been more aggressive and he's getting better swings," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said. "I also think he feels good physically." Bell was 0-for-21 against the Dodgers this season.

Elsewhere, Chicago beat San Francisco 3-1; Atlanta downed Montreal 2-0; Philadelphia defeated Houston 4-2; New York edged Florida 5-4 in 10 innings; and St. Louis beat San Diego 2-1.

Mark Johnson hit a three-run homer for Pittsburgh, which also was helped by the eight walks issued by four Dodgers pitchers.

Denny Neagle (6-3) went 6 1-3 innings for the victory. He had a shutout until the sixth, when a pair of Pittsburgh errors and Tim Wallach's two-run double cut the Pirates' lead to 8-4.

Pedro Astacio (1-5) lost his fourth in a row, allowing eight hits and four earned runs over four innings. Astacio has won only once in 19 starts since last June 25.

"Some innings he's outstanding, but he's giving up too many unnecessary runs," Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said. "He's got to have better control of his pitches." Phillies 4, Astros 2

Ryan will throw out first pitch in All-Star Game

Expressway, it's not surprising that baseball's all-time strikeout king will throw out the ceremonial first pitch when the All-Star Game comes to town July 11.

Ryan retired following the 1993 season, then made his only trip to the mound at The Ballpark in Arlington on April 1, 1994, when he threw out the first pitch at an exhibition game with the New York Mets that was the first game in the stadium.

Ryan, 48, will be throwing out the first pitch for the
