Banks pledge to help victims

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

Pampa bankers and the Pampa Economic Development Corporation were moving ahead today with their plans for interest free loans for businesses damaged by last week's tornado.

"We've got the applications being worked up," PEDC Executive Director Jack Ippel said today. "We expect to have people coming in and start filling them out today."

"We're ready to go," said Larry Orman, president of Citizen's Bank and Trust, today.

Don Babcock, president of Boatmen's First Pampa Bank Center, said today that loans would be tailored to fit the needs of qualifying victims of the tornado.

"We're ready to move ahead," said Ben Shackelford, president of the National Bank of Commerce.

The PEDC Tuesday unanimously approved interest free loans of up to $10,000 for a period of 90 days for businesses damaged by the tornado while Pampa banks joined them in offering disaster loans.

The economic development board also formed a loan board consisting of PEDC board members with any two members, along with Ippel, needed to approve loans.

The Pampa City Commission, which adjourned from a work session to join the economic development group Tuesday afternoon, approved the loan program and set a limit of $400,000 in development funds that could be used for loans.

"We just wanted to come over and provide support any way we can," Pampa Mayor Bob Neslage told the PEDC board.

The PEDC board also said it would make its offices available to the Small Business Administration or any other agency as a clearing house for disaster relief aid.

"We're here to consider the situation resulting from our tornado," Bill Waters said, opening the Tuesday afternoon meeting. "We need to consider emergency short term lending and what other services we can render to those who suffered damages due to the storm."

The economic development organization had already made available to businesses affected by the storm a list of buildings that could be used for relocation.

Waters noted that the PEDC cannot by law lend to homeowners.

Bank presidents from Boatmen's First, Citizen's Bank and Trust and National Bank of Commerce, however, said they would provide interest free loans or reduced interest loans to both businesses and individuals who suffered damages in the tornado.

"Our bank will make available zero interest loans to qualified borrowers for up to 180 days," said Babcock.

He said the loans would be available to both businesses and individuals.

"What we're offering is a ready cash loan up to $1,000, zero interest up to 18 months, and also auto, home, business loans at reduced rates," said Orman.

Shackelford said his bank would offer zero interest loans for 120 to 180 days for those in the area hit by the tornado. He said the bank would also offer interim construction loans and possibly real estate loans.

"We came here together to help the community," Shackelford said of the three banks represented at the PEDC meeting.

Shackelford, who is also president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce this year, told the PEDC board that the chamber was setting up a committee to make decisions concerning their disaster fund. He said applica-

Marilyn Shelton, wife of Lonnie Shelton, part owner of Liquid Recovery Systems and Ragg Nook, talks with one of the men who is helping clean up the devastated building destroyed by last Thursday's tornado. Lonnie Shelton said approximately 25-35 people have volunteered to help them clean up. "It's wonderful to see how people have come together," said Shelton, who visited Tuesday with disaster team members. Hoechst Celanese has loaned them a crane and people from the company have volunteered to help them with the clean-up as well. He also said people from his church and the youth group have been helping out as well. "We couldn't have done it without volunteers," said Shelton, adding he is grateful to them for their assistance. Thursday's tornado also destroyed his other business along Milliron Road.

ations were available at the chamber office.

Wayne Holder with Copy Systems told the board that his company would offer loan of copy machines for free to businesses affected by the tornado.

"We're pleased with that response," Waters said.

Waters said that the PEDC loans were designed not to compete with the banking community, but to tide businesses over until longer term financing could be secured.

Neslage told the board that disaster assessment teams from state and federal agencies that toured the area Tuesday indicated that it would be a week or two before any decisions would be made on declaring the area eligible for disaster aid.

Waters said that with state and federal aid, it would take time before funds were available for rebuilding. Even companies that were fully insured would need interim funds until settlements could be reached, he said.

Ippel said they would try to get the money into the hands of business people as early as today or Thursday.

"It would be a godsend," said Mike Edgar of Howard Compressor, one of the more than two dozen people attending the Tuesday afternoon meeting.

The company, located on Milliron Road, sustained little damage compared to some of its neighbors, Edgar said, but he praised the coming together of the community to support the businesses in the area.

Disaster team inspects stricken areas

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

Gray County officials should know within the next three weeks whether or not the county will be eligible for state and/or federal disaster relief funds, officials said today following Tuesday's inspection by a disaster inspection team.

The team toured Pampa Tuesday afternoon examining the devastation caused by last week's tornado that ravaged the west side of town.

Moises Dugan of the Texas Department of Public Safety's Division of Emergency Management said he and representatives from the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the Small Business Administration were visiting with business and home owners about how much damage they sustained and how much insurance they had.

The team determined damage assessments and compared those figures to the city's figures. The city's were actually a little lower than the team's figures, said Dugan, but he added that he was pleased with the accuracy of the city figures given the time frame city officials had to work in.

Those figures will be compared to figures from other state disasters to determine what amount of state funds will be offered.

The federal representatives on the team were here on Dugan's request to "expedite the process" of requesting federal funding. Normally, a state team like Dugan's would turn in its estimates to a federal team which would then perform its own inspection.

In this situation, federal representatives were able to make their own assessment at the same time as the state team.

Federal funds would be necessary if the amount of state funds available would not be enough to cover the cost of the disaster.

The team took a slow, block-by-block tour of the disaster site, starting at Western Street in the industrial area west of town. They wound through the area between Browning and Lincoln Streets and then examined some of the businesses damaged on Hobart Street.

While they were being shown the residential damage, County Judge Richard Peet, who followed in another car, described the damage and the relief operations.

The team eventually saw damage on the east side of town and some damage in a rural area east of Loop 171.

The team will also inspect storm damage in Wheeler, Farmer and Wilbarger counties.

Next week, another assessment team is expected to look at the public assistance work here. Ken Hall, emergency management coordinator, said the county is seeking help with the "extraordinary expenses" occurred, including overtime, equipment and supplies.

Damage total lowered from initial estimates

Damage estimates released late Tuesday for last week's tornado totaled $9.5 million, a figure considerably lower than reported earlier but not altogether unexpected by city officials.

"This is not replacement figures, just appraisal figures," said City Manager Bob Eskridge, indicating that the numbers were property appraisals that did not include inventory or personal property costs.

The final numbers should be substantially higher, according to Eskridge.

Industry damages made up the bulk of the figures compiled by the Gray County Appraisal District office with a total of $8.6 million.

The figures broken down:
• Business, $171,020

• Industrial, $8,633,342
• Residential west of Hobart, $501,599
• Residential east of Hobart, $160,727
• Residential northeast of Loop 171, $60,463

"We're looking at value lost based on the appraisal value as of Jan. 1 of this year," said Chief Appraiser Pat Bagley.

Replacement costs will be much higher, says Bagley, citing costs for upgrading technology and rebuilding and repairing the older buildings damaged in the storm.

One person remains in an area hospital with injuries suffered in the tornado.

A 71-year-old man is still in satisfactory condition at Golden Plains Community Hospital in Borger with a fractured leg, dislocated shoulder, lacerations, and internal and external bruises.

A 38-year-old woman was released from the Borger hospital Tuesday.

Laura Walkup, 55, was dismissed from Northwest Texas Hospital Tuesday as well.

In all, seven people were hospitalized with injuries from the F-3 magnitude tornado that struck Pampa Thursday.

The tornado touched down at approximately 4:30 p.m., ravaging a strip about a mile long through an industrial park and into a residential area, with lesser damage occurring into the city past Central Park and east of Loop 171.

Some 150 homes and 20 mobile homes, along with 50 businesses, were damaged or destroyed.

Sheriff's Office

Gray County Sheriff's Office reported the following arrest in the 24-hour reporting period which ended at 7 a.m. today.

TUESDAY, June 13

Timothy Lewis Epps, 36, Pampa, was arrested on a charge of issuing a worthless check. He was released on bond.

Jury finds teen guilty of resisting

It took a Gray County jury 100 minutes to decide a 14-year-old boy resisted arrest when a local police officer attempted to search him in early March.

The youth is to complete one year intensive supervision probation, ordered by District Judge Lee Waters.

The six-man, six-woman jury was asked to decide whether the boy engaged in delinquent conduct. The complaint filed by the county attorney's office alleges the youth intentionally obstructed and prevented a search of himself by using force against a police officer by pulling his hands away from the officer, turning around and pushing off the ground.

The boy was with a group of boys at Sunset and Hill when they were approached May 8 by Pampa Police Department officers Kyle Battin and Cpl. Stephanie Raymond responding to a "suspicious persons" call from a neighborhood resident.

Battin testified he used force to subdue the boy so the youth could be searched and the boy tried to jump away from the officers when they attempted to walk him to the patrol car.

The accused and his 13- and 14-year-old friends told the jury the accused was last to follow the officer's orders to get to the ground, but did not turn on the officer to fight.

Trading slow in area cattle feedlot markets

The cattle trade in Texas Panhandle and Western Oklahoma feedlots was slow early today with only 400 confirmed sales.

Slaughter steers and heifers were not well tested, according to USDA and Texas Department of Agriculture Market News Service.

Feedlots reported light inquiry from buyers with 300 slaughter steers and 100 slaughter heifers sold. The total sales for the week were 63,000 head, including 4,400 head of formulated cattle to be shipped this week.

Medium and large feeder steers, 300 to 310 pounds, were $92 to $94; 355 pounds, $84.50; 400 to 500 pounds, $80 to $83; 500 to 600 pounds, $73 to $74.50; 518 pounds, $82; 600 to 700 pounds, $64.50 to $66.50; 700 to 800 pounds, $63.50 to $66.75; 758 pounds, $68.25, and 800 to 850 pounds, $64.50 to $65.60.

Medium to large feeder heifers, 300 to 400 pounds, were $75 to $76; 400 to 500 pounds, $67 to $70.50; 500 to 600 pounds, $62.50 to $64.75; 650 to 700 pounds, $61 to $62.50; 650 to 700 pounds fleshy, $58.50 to $59.75; 700 to 750 pounds $6 to $63.25.

Roper resigns as Lefors school superintendent

LEFORS - Lefors school board members voted to accept the resignation of Superintendent Joe Roper at Tuesday night's meeting.

The search for a replacement began today, according to Roper, and the board hopes to find a replacement by July 15.

The resignation of sixth grade teacher Linda Roper was also accepted.

The Ropers are moving to northwest Arkansas, where he will go into private business and his wife will continue to teach.

In other action, the board elected officers for the 1995-96 school year. Officers include Keith Roberson, president; Barry Jackson, vice president; Nora Franks, secretary; and Clay Lock, first vice president.

All were re-elected by acclamation to positions they held last year.

Roberson, Jackson and Lock also took their oaths of office after being re-elected to the board in May.

The board accepted a request by the City of Lefors to relinquish delinquent tax claims on property now used by the city as a recycling center.

Also, the board voted to renew a contract with the Gray County Appraisal District to continue to collect taxes and to renew a contract with North Texas Educational Insurance for a workers' compensation plan.

City appoints new member to PEDC board

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
 News Editor

Following a half hour executive session Tuesday, Pampa city commissioners named Ernest Ramirez to the board of Pampa Economic Development Corporation.

Ramirez, who will assume board duties this month, replaces Bill Waters, who earlier told city officials he did not wish to be considered for renomination.

"(Waters) is the one who got that organization off and running and he's to be commended," said Commissioner Robert Dixon.

"It's nice to see there are lots of people out there who want to see Pampa be a better place," said Commissioner Faustina Curry.

Reappointed to the PEDC board was retailer Wayne Stribling.

Also following the executive session, Pampa attorney Phil Vanderpool was reappointed Municipal Court judge.

In emergency action, city commissioners passed an ordinance continuing the declaration of a state of disaster in the city following Thursday's tornado which devastated much of the city's residential and industrial westside.

An interest free 90-day loan program proposed by PEDC was blessed by the city commission. They authorized the agency to create a $400,000 loan fund for businesses rebuilding or repairing tornado damage.

In regular items, commissioners authorized Southwest Securities to proceed with sale of $310,000 in 10-year general obligation funding bonds to pay a judgment in the Louis David Wilkinson and Nicholas L. Fortner vs. City of Pampa and Glen Hackler case.

The panel accepted a $58,159 bid from Fairbanks Scales for above ground, electronic scales for the Pampa landfill.

Passed on first reading were zoning changes in the 900 block of North Duncan and 1000 block of North Hobart. A second reading is required before the changes are final.

Commissioners authorized payment of $13,900 to EMCON-Baker Shifflet for response to Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission's notice of deficiencies on Pampa's planned landfill. It is expected the landfill permit will be certified as technically correct by the end of August, according to City Manager Bob Eskridge.

Effort to cut property rates may backfire

HOUSTON (AP) — Taxpayers in some school districts may end up paying higher property rates because of the state's new education bill despite lawmakers having voted against any tax increases.

"It really is a perplexing problem," said Greg Hartman, a spokesman for Texas Comptroller John Sharp. "It's one of those deals where the protection is done away with, and if you try to protect yourself, you get hurt even worse."

Lawmakers had sought to give voters more power by preserving automatic rollback elections, which would allow them to reject school tax increases they believe are too high.

They ended up adding a provision that says when a school district loses a rollback election, it can then use a new, enrollment-based formula to compute its tax rate, the Houston Chronicle reported.

In fast-growing districts, the new formula could produce a rate much higher than the rate rejected at the polls.

"They goofed," Craig Foster, director of the Equity Center, an advocacy group for property-poor school districts in Texas, said Tuesday. "They were writing in a hurry very near the end of the session, and they got things mixed up."

Hartman said, in effect, some districts will wind up with "roll-up" elections, where, if you win, you end up with even higher rates.

An example he gave is the Round Rock school district in fast-growing Williamson County, north of Austin.

It has a tax rate of $1.42 per $100 of property value. If the school board raised taxes above $1.50, there would be an automatic rollback election.

But if voters turned down the tax increase, and if the district was growing at a rate of, say, 16 percent a year, the new formula would allow the school board to raise taxes in this example to $1.92.

Rep. Steve Ogden, R-Bryan, said about 50 districts around the state would be affected because the growth of their property values are not reflected in the state's disbursements of cash to schools. That tag leaves them short of revenue.

But while he acknowledged the problem in the rollback provisions, he defended what he and other lawmakers were trying to do.

Ethics complaint dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Dick Armey has won dismissal of an ethics complaint because he promised there would be no further improper uses of his office stationery, sources report.

Congressional sources, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said the House ethics committee took note of Armey's admission of a technical violation. The Texas Republican acknowledged June 2 that he allowed an outside group to circulate a political letter he signed on his office stationery.

Armey said in a brief interview that the mistake was inadvertent. He said he checked the stationery before signing the letter and saw it did not contain the official eagle symbol — but overlooked the words "Congress of the United States" on the letterhead.

House rules prohibit the use by outside groups of stationery imprinted with the words "Congress of the United States" or "House of Representatives." "It was inappropriate and I told the committee it was inappropriate and I won't do it again," Armey said in the interview.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Bosnian quagmire deteriorates further

In Bosnia, a war zone continues to look like a war zone. Three French journalists seeking to cover United Nations efforts to reopen a road to Sarajevo were injured when gunfire sent their car out of control while driving on the very same road. Bosnian Serb leaders dropped hints that more of the U.N. soldiers being held hostage might be released. Various spokesmen were being cagey about whether a promise to end NATO air strikes has been the cost of their (potential) release.

Meanwhile, back in Washington, the world's remaining putative superpower continues to scramble in search of a coherent policy. Clinton administration mouthpieces offer four different scenarios under which U.S. troops might be sent into harms way in one of the more persistent civil wars of our time. Congress begs for answers, but Secretary of State Warren Christopher announces he can't cancel a trip to the Middle East to talk to Congress.

Can anyone imagine that the Bosnian Serbs don't think what Mao Zedong used to think - that the United States is a paper tiger?

The problem is that American diplomats, horrified by the ongoing civil war, have indulged in wishful thinking for years. Those Bosnian Serbs, the nastiest war criminals since - well, name your villain - were to be brought under control by firm warnings and escalating threats. So their atrocities were deplored, and vague promises made that sometime soon we would get really upset - maybe upset enough to settle their nasty hash.

For such visible expressions of disapproval to hold water, however, those who make them should be prepared to back them up with massive, convincing force. If they're not, they shouldn't make declarations of solidarity with the NATO or United Nations "peacekeeping" mission.

It would have been better to have recognized reality years ago - that the various forces in Bosnia don't seem amenable to having a solution imposed by the "world community," that no core interests of the United States are at stake, that any attempt to impose a solution by force would require more massive force and more casualties than U.S. citizens are likely to tolerate. Given those realities, U.S. leaders would have been free to deplore atrocities, but cautious about making promises or commitments.

Now, however, common sense is likely to look like backing down, "abandoning" NATO allies, or "giving in" to aggression. At least one American pilot has been shot down. It will take more skill than seems visible in the nation's capital for him to be the last American to die in this quagmire.

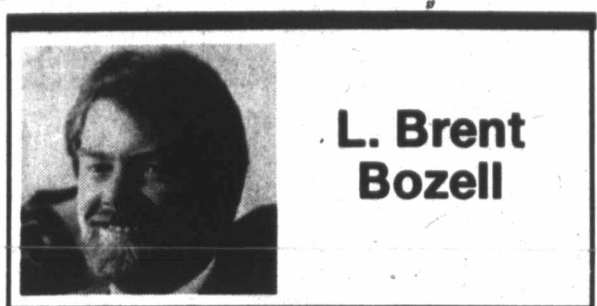

So now it's Bob Dole, senator and presidential candidate, who is blasting the entertainment industry. "We have reached the point where our popular culture threatens to undermine our character as a nation," Dole declared in his speech. "A line has been crossed - not just of taste but of human dignity and decency."

When Dole, Bill Clinton, Al Gore and Dan Quayle agree on something, it's got to be pretty obvious. So, why do so many in the entertainment community continue to resist the call for reform? Lara Bergthold is the executive director of the liberal, hyperfeminist Hollywood Women's Political Committee. "Unbelievable hypocrisy," Bergthold said of Dole's remarks. "It's always easier (for politicians) to blame fictional characters than to blame themselves for their inability to take guns off the streets."

Blame the NRA instead. This is this week's defense from Hollywood. It's the latest in a string of vacuous arguments that, in total, carry as much credibility as Clinton's Bosnia policy. What else do we hear from the defenders of the status quo?

Hollywood is only reflecting reality. William Bennett's Index of Leading Cultural Indicators shows that the average child watches up to 8,000 television murders and 100,000 acts of TV violence by the end of grade school. This is not reality, and while social scientists can debate the extent, certainly no one can dispute that Hollywood desensitizes the young to violence.

Entertainment is only make-believe. That's another contradictory defense. Implicit in this argument is that the audience can - should - reject messages in movies and on television as fantasy. Truth be told, Hollywood is far more influential than I suspect it ever wished to be. In a landmark study by the Girl Scouts, children were asked to name their heroes.

L. Brent Bozell

Not 1 percent named their parents or their teachers or their ministers - almost 70 percent named entertainers. What their idols champion on the screen is what children emulate in real life.

Our freedom of expression is protected by the First Amendment. Hollywood claims this as it falsely yells "Fire!" in a crowded theater. The argument sidesteps the crucial truth that freedom is not an end but a means. What one does with this freedom matters, and Hollywood is, quite simply, abusing it. Parents used to be able to trust the entertainment industry not to be an enemy of family values. They cannot do so anymore, and that's a shame.

There's a market demand for the products. There's a market for cocaine and pornography, too. It is only the irresponsible libertarian fringe that asserts that because there's a demand for X, X is ipso facto a good thing. This argument is Hollywood in a nutshell: greedy and value-free. If it will sell, put it out, and the hell with the consequences.

Censorship! This is perhaps the silliest response of them all for the claim employs a spurious definition of the term. Not Dole, not Bennett, not Quayle - not any thoughtful critic of Hollywood has called for the entertainment industry to submit its product to the government for approval. Censorship is abhorrent, but self-restraint is a different matter altogether. If calling on Hollywood to voluntarily control itself is an attempt at "censorship," someone needs a dictionary.

Before long, the uproar over Dole's speech will fade, but the battle - Hollywood vs. America, to use Michael Medved's formulation - will continue. Consumers have options and responsibilities. The public ought not to support, as an investor or even as a consumer, entertainment corporations that market repugnant products. Elizabeth Dole did the right thing by selling her stock in Disney, the company that recently brought you the repellent movie Priest.

According to the Associated Press, since 1987, Sen. Dole has received at least $21,000 in campaign contributions from Time Warner and its predecessor companies. Dole has declined to return this money, citing his speech's denunciation of Time Warner as evidence he cannot be bought. That's trite and too cute by half; Dole is a national leader with a responsibility to set an example. Send it all back, Senator.

There are other options. Pressure can and should be brought to bear on advertisers who make television programs possible and on studios that produce the offensive products; even celebrities themselves, the role models for the young, need to hear the voices of outrage. Will they listen? Absolutely. If I'm wrong about it, take Hollywood's final line of defense: You have the power not to watch the show, see the movie, listen to the recording. But when we reach that point, we've resigned ourselves to having the entertainment industry as an enemy of society. I'm not ready to do that.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, June 14, the 165th day of 1995. There are 200 days left in the year. This is Flag Day.

Today's Highlight in History:
On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia adopted the Stars and Stripes as the national flag.

On this date:
In 1775, the U.S. Army was founded.

In 1801, former American Revolutionary War Gen. Benedict Arnold died in London.

In 1841, the first Canadian parliament opened in Kingston.

In 1922, Warren G. Harding became the first president heard on radio, as Baltimore station WEAR broadcast his speech dedicating the Francis Scott Key memorial at Fort McHenry.

In 1928, the Republican National Convention nominated Herbert Hoover for president on the first ballot.

Is Senator Bob Dole really a hypocrite?

The fallout from the great Bob Dole confrontation with Hollywood has been fascinating. One might have thought, that raising moral objections to music that celebrates the disgusting, the unspeakably vulgar and the violent would be a no-brainer for all men of goodwill.

But apparently it isn't. The smart set has rushed to the defense of 2 Live Crew, Nine Inch Nails and the rest, and has been particularly solicitous about those poor, defenseless executives of multibillion-dollar Time Warner.

In the wake of Sen. Dole's speech (a beautifully crafted, subtle speech, incidentally), most of the criticism to be heard was not about the corporate purveyors of cultural pollution but rather about Dole himself.

President Clinton was first-out of the blocks, condemning Dole for hypocrisy because he doesn't support gun control. The president's role in this is interesting because, let us recall, he himself used the issue of rap lyrics just three years ago to magnificent political effect.

Down in the polls and unable to get traction in his run for the Democratic nomination in 1992, Clinton addressed a meeting of the Rainbow Coalition and publicly condemned Jesse Jackson for inviting the rap singer Sister Souljah to the gathering. Souljah had made headlines during the Los Angeles riots when she urged that black young men ought to consider killing white folks instead of one another.

Clinton's gambit worked brilliantly. Jackson fumed, while Bill Clinton became the talk of the political circuit and was praised for his courage and moral vision.

Mona Charen

The president's idea about guns and hypocrisy was quickly echoed elsewhere by liberals frantic to find a way to discredit Sen. Dole. On talk shows and in newspaper columns, we were repeatedly instructed that "music never killed anyone," whereas guns do.

That's strange. Who has heard of a gun that picked itself up, pointed itself and pulled its own trigger? Corrupting ideas, however, do have the capacity to warp a human being's capacity to make the right decisions. And propaganda (for that is what some of this music amounts to) that dehumanizes people, particularly women, can certainly contribute to rape and murder.

Well, they argued, Sen. Dole took $21,000 in campaign contributions from Time Warner over the past eight years, so he's a hypocrite. How so?

If Dole had criticized other entertainment giants but spared Time Warner, perhaps the hypocrisy argument would have some heft. But Dole ran the risk that his criticism would permanently alienate a donor.

He should give the money back, they say. Well, perhaps Sen. Dole can work out some kind of deal with his liberal brethren in the Senate. He will return the $21,000 from Time Warner if they return all of the money they've received from business political action committees with which they differ.

Dole is violating the First Amendment by speaking his mind, they cried. This hardly requires a response.

What about Arnold Schwarzenegger and Bruce Willis? They ask. Why don't Republicans like Dole condemn their movies? Well, here the liberals have a minor point. Perhaps Dole could have mentioned some of the conservative sinners. But other Republicans have. Bill Bennett has taken Rupert Murdoch to task personally for some of his less savory entertainment products.

Frank Rich, the reliable left-wing hit man of The New York Times op-ed page, was the most poisonous, arguing that Dole's remarks betrayed latent anti-Semitism - a totally unfounded and offensive suggestion, which only serves to prove that a leftist, when cornered, often resorts to ad hominem accusations.

What most of the baby boomers who defend gangsta rap and other garbage produced by Hollywood cannot grasp is that the world has moved on since their parents objected to Elvis in 1957. Love Me Tender is a sonnet compared with Bad Ass Bitch.

Sen. Dole has tapped a deep vein of anxiety in the American electorate. Fifty-six percent of voters in 1994 said they were more likely to vote for a candidate who addressed the nation's moral decline than for any other.

Moral leader is not a role Sen. Dole has sought before - but it becomes him.

Some foreigners' superior airs positively reek

Warning: Every curmudgeon has the right, by birth and by contract, to throw political correctness to the winds and wax chauvinistic on occasion. This is such an occasion.

It confounds me how people in foreign lands can look at a tragedy like the Oklahoma City bombing, or a farce like the O.J. Simpson trial, and assume superior airs and talk about what barbarians we are, when they themselves live in societies that often make ours look like models of civility and tolerance.

I also find it difficult to comprehend why the views of such purblind people so often put us in a Whither America funk. If you look closely, you will see they are the sentiments of insecure scolds who secretly envy our flair and our style.

Indeed, a dependable antidote to one of those America-is-going-to-hell fits is to ponder the fact that half the planet seems to spend half its time fending off American influence.

Take the Islamic world - which is dominated by holy men who issue decrees requiring young girls to be circumcised, prohibiting organ transplants and forbidding cosmetic surgery.

Guess what bothers the fundamentalists the most? I'll give you some hints: In Oman, bow ties are a no-no; in Kuwait, Barbie dolls are "she devils"; in Saudi Arabia and Iran, satellite dishes are banned. Guess what TV shows are all the rage in Teheran? Oprah, L.A. Law and Baywatch. Not that these are jewels of American culture, but you get the point.

Joseph Spear

Take France, which has some nice architecture and makes tantalizing pastries but which also invented nouvelle cuisine - which is a medallion of something smothered in raspberry sauce, served with two sprigs of asparagus and three semi-raw potatoes the size of golf balls which aren't even completely peeled.

The French seem preoccupied with rooting out anything made in America. They limit the importation of American films - no, monsieur, not because they fear U.S. cinema might be superior, but because, in the words of the French ambassador to the United States, "France is trying to keep open the possibility of choice for its moviegoers." The information super-highway frightens them because it is dominated by the United States and Japan and could dilute or even drown their beloved culture. The English language scares them because "American" words keep creeping into their vocabulary.

For 456 years, as near as anybody can figure, France has been passing laws requiring that French business be conducted in the French language. Last year, the parliament passed yet another bill outlawing "franglais" and the bureaucrats published a Dictionary of Official Terms of the French Language.

It is no longer acceptable to say "air bag" on the streets of Paris. One must say "cousin gonflable." A Frenchman must eschew "prime time" in favor of "heures de grand écoute." And a "cordless phone" is now a "poste telephonique sans cordon."

Take Canada, with whom we share the world's longest undefended border. Canadians are born with genes that compel them to be skeptical of anything American, but usually they confine their concerns to wheat and beer and whether American teams are dominating the National Hockey League.

Hockey is their national pastime, you see. They invented the sport and identify with it and thus have the patent on it. Lately, however, things have taken a turn for the worse. Heritage Minister Michel Dupuy announced an 80 percent excise tax on Sports Illustrated Canada. And, Canadian regulators forced the Nashville-based Country Music Television cable network off the airways.

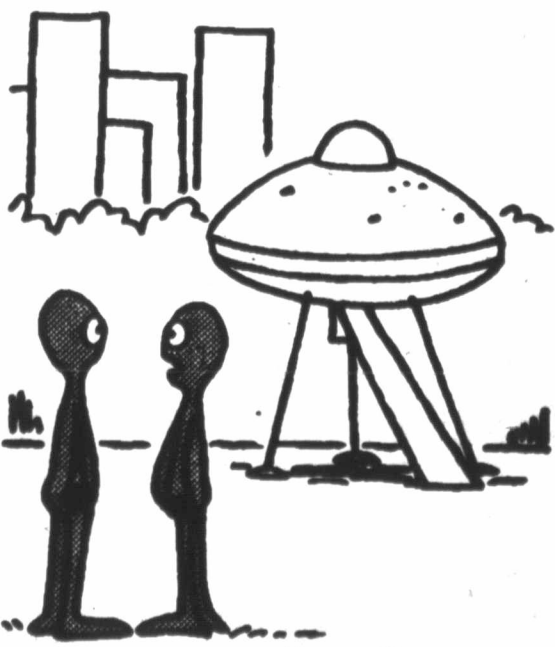

Mullahs and Barbie dolls are one thing. The French and their precious flicks are another. But when Canada starts to run down our country music, that could be perceived as an insult.

They do have an excuse, though. The NHL was on strike at the time and they were in a Whither Canada funk, so maybe we ought to give them another chance.

"Something called a 'woodpecker' put holes in it and we can't take off."

Bosnian soldiers closely massed around Sarajevo

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — More than 15,000 Bosnian army soldiers massed north and northwest of Sarajevo today, signaling government plans to try to break the Serb encirclement of Bosnia's capital, U.N. officials said.

U.N. forces restricted in their movement by both sides are not in a position to say when or where the soldiers could attack the Serbs who surround Sarajevo, said Lt. Paul D'Orsonens of Canada, based northwest of the city at Visoko.

"We do not see any immediate sign of a beginning of operations," he said, reporting 15,000 men or more massed in the area around Ilijas, some 7 miles north of Sarajevo, and fanning west toward Visoko.

Both politicians and military men with Bosnia's Muslim-led government have repeatedly promised to break the three-year Serb siege before fall, saying they are weary of waiting for the world to do it for them.

Bosnian Serbs are expected to target Sarajevo with heavy artillery in reaction to any government offensive. On Tuesday, city residents piled more sandbags in front of windows and other vulnerable sites.

The United Nations, keen to stop any outbreak of heavy fighting, is resorting to increasingly desperate tactics to try and keep the city meagerly fed and supplied despite Serb blockades of aid and severance of utilities.

Today at dawn, six U.N. trucks carrying high-protein biscuits and ready-to-eat meals arrived in the city after crossing the airport runway in defiance of repeated Serb threats to shoot at any vehicles using that route.

The food had been given to non-U.N. charities, but was stuck at the U.N.-controlled airport for weeks when Serbs refused to give permission for it to get into the Bosnian capital.

The convoy was "another last resort measure to feed people," said Mark Cutts, a spokesman for the U.N. aid agency.

Also in Sarajevo, one man was seriously wounded in heavy sniping near the presidency's building.

On Tuesday, Bosnian Serbs announced they were freeing all but 15 of the U.N. hostages they had held since NATO bombed Serb ammunition dumps May 25-26, and the Serbs struck back by taking more than 370 U.N. soldiers captive.

U.N. spokeswoman Capt. Myriam Sochacki said today that the United Nations also considers 11 Canadians near Ilijas to be captives, for a total of 26 peacekeepers still detained.

Up to 92 others — 59 Frenchmen and 33 Russians at points around Sarajevo — had been restricted, but "most of them have been de-blocked" and could be rotated or replaced today, said U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko.

Twenty-six peacekeepers released Tuesday were bused into Serbia, and were to be flown today to Zagreb, Croatia, before returning to duty.

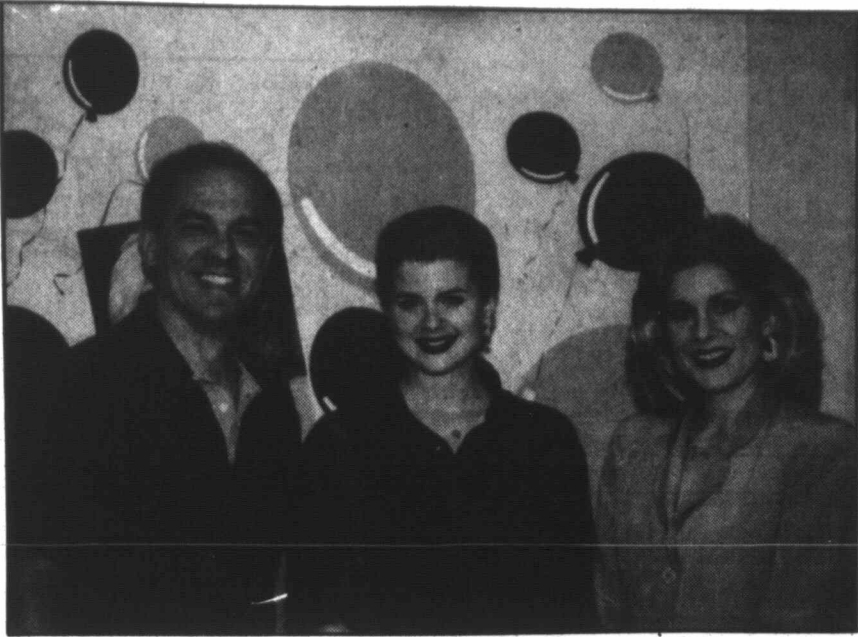

That group included 14 Frenchmen and the remaining six Britons held by the Serbs. Britain and France reacted most angrily to the hostage seizure, and are contributing most troops to a new rapid reaction force of up to 10,000 men to strengthen U.N. peacekeepers.

Ivor Roberts, the British charge d'affaires in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, said men still held by the Serbs include three Dutchmen, two Czechs, and men from Brazil, Pakistan, Algeria, Belgium, Finland, Kenya, Ghana, Canada and Jordan.

On Tuesday, Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic proclaimed a lessening of tensions. "We hope there will be no more crises of this kind," he said. "We don't want to fight. ... We want peace as soon as possible."

But the Serbs clearly would retaliate to any U.N. use of force to get aid through Serb-held territory.

"I doubt anyone would or should repeat any hostile action against the Serbs," Karadzic said. "However, if we are attacked, we have to defend ourselves by all means."

Children's Miracle Network Telethon raises $200,000

Reaching out to the children of the High Plains is the shared commitment of the Children's Miracle Network and KAMR-TV.

On June 3-4, KAMR-TV broadcast the 11th annual Children's Miracle Network Telethon live from both Disneyland in California and Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

More than $200,000 was donated locally during the two-day event. The money raised by the local portion of the telethon will remain in Amarillo to fund medical equipment and personnel needed to provide state of the art medical care to kids at Northwest Texas Hospital. On the national level, money donated will be sent to local hospitals across the nation.

The telethon was hosted by Holly Wayment of KAMR-TV and John Moesch of KMML-FM. KAMR news anchors Jay Ricci and Sharon Gregory also took a turn at hosting along with Lynn Esposto, Arnell Dimaandal, Michael Chisholm, and Rich Vaughn.

Reporters, photographers and production crews from KAMR-TV produced miracle stories about children who have been successfully treated at Northwest Texas Hospital, thanks to the Children's Miracle Network.

KAMR-TV and the Children's Miracle Network are working together to help make tomorrow a better day, and to open doors for a brighter future for all children of the High Plains, telethon officials said.

Judge upholds 'don't ask, don't tell'

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — The "don't ask, don't tell" policy on gays in the military is an appropriate and constitutional attempt to preserve military readiness, a federal judge ruled.

U.S. District Court Judge Claude M. Hilton ruled the Clinton administration policy does not violate service members' free speech or equal protection guarantees. Hilton threw out the case of a homosexual who is being forced out of the Navy.

Lt. Paul Thomasson's lawsuit said the policy is based on prejudice and cited his sterling service record as evidence his sexuality has no effect on his fitness as an officer.

"The policy, however, is not based on prejudice but on the military's need to address the legitimate concern that service by homosexuals in the military will adversely impact upon unit cohesion and military readiness," Hilton wrote.

The ruling Friday is at odds with a New York federal judge's ruling in March that the policy is unconstitutional. In both cases, service members declared their homosexuality and asked the courts to bar their ouster.

Both cases are under appeal and one or the other is expected to reach the U.S. Supreme Court.

Hilton refused to stop the Pentagon from discharging Thomasson and granted its request to dismiss the case.

Under the 1993 policy that modified a previous ban, gays can serve in the military as long as they keep their sexual orientation to themselves and don't engage in homosexual sex acts. Otherwise, they can be honorably discharged. Commanders may not ask a service member his or her sexual orientation.

American Family Radio shows to feature tributes to fathers

Three musical specials dealing with fatherhood have been scheduled by American Family Radio, heard at 90.9 FM for listeners in Pampa and Gray County.

A Tribute to Fathers and Sons will air on Thursday, June 15, at 1 p.m. and on Friday, June 16, at 5 p.m. The program features Christian artist Michael Kelly Blanchard. Blanchard is a songwriter, singer and storyteller who brings back memories of dad.

On Saturday, June 17, at 1 p.m., AFR will air Father's Day With Michael James. The program features Gary Chapman, Clay Crosse, Wes King and Michael W. Smith as well as James. The group talks about the heritage of faith stories from their childhood, fathers as role models and about spending time with children.

Fathering in America, to be broadcast on Sunday, June 18, at 4 p.m., features host Ken Canfield, the founder and president of the National Center for Fathering. Canfield shares insights from his latest book, Seven Secrets of Effective Fathering. The program includes music from several artists.

American Family Radio is a non-commercial station with a Christian format.

Octogenarian's Birthday Wish: Keep Cards and Letters Coming!

DEAR ABBY: I just turned 80 and had the most wonderful birthday in my life!

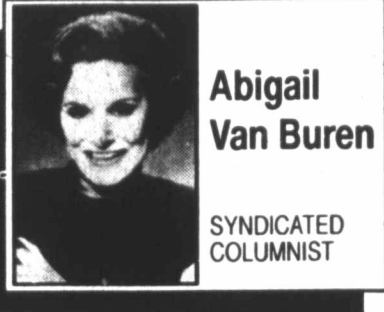

At 80, folks don't need presents — they need attention, and this year, my daughter saw to it that I got plenty. She wrote letters to many of my friends telling them my 80th was coming up, and I did not want gifts, but it would be wonderful if they sent me a card with a personal note or a snapshot, and to pass along the word to others.

Abby, the response was overwhelming! I heard from friends, relatives, people I had worked with many years ago — even a few friends from grade school! I can't describe the lift it gave me to know that these people are still alive and remembered me. They offered congratulations, compliments, a special memory and expressions of love. Each and every message was a precious gift.

I highly recommend this way of saying "Happy Birthday — I Love You" to anyone near and dear. My sincere thanks to my daughter for having thought of it — and a bigger thank-you to everyone who responded.

STILL SMILING

DEAR STILL SMILING: I have seen many such requests. Some were works of art, and most included a stamped envelope addressed to the honoree. I can't imagine a more rewarding gift!

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ABBY: You sometimes warn people about dangerous practices, and this is certainly the time of year to issue this warning.

I am appalled when I see young children mowing the lawn with power rotary lawn mowers. And worse yet, even younger children running alongside the mower!

Parents, wake up! Power mowers are extremely dangerous. They can pick up rocks, small toys and other debris and propel them out with the speed of a bullet!

No one should ever be on the discharge side of a mower; I don't even want to think about what could happen if a child should slip and fall in the path of the sharp whirling blade!

Abby, it happens every year — even to adults who are trying to be careful.

CAL S. HOLM, THIENSVILLE, WIS.

DEAR CAL: Thanks for the wake-up call. Readers, listen to Cal. The accident you may prevent could be your own.

DEAR ABBY: I've gotten myself into a situation I don't like. I seldom lie because liars are usually found out in the end, but I foolishly told a lie, and I can't seem to get it out of my head.

I recently started to date a wonderful guy I met through the personal ads in the newspaper. I was afraid my family and friends would ridicule me for being so desperate, so I told them we met on a blind date set up by a co-worker. (I also told some other people I met him at church.)

How can I come clean without sounding like a total jerk for lying in the first place? And in the future, how can I answer the common query, "How did you two meet?" SORRY IN NEW JERSEY

Horoscope

Your Birthday

Thursday, June 15, 1995

An ambitious objective you've been-anxious to achieve has an excellent chance of being realized in the year ahead. Reinforce your expectations instead of weakening them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make it a point today not to take yourself or your involvements too seriously. Your pride and ego will leave you a bit vulnerable and you might be easily wounded. Know where to look for romance, and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The frustrations you'll have to contend with today may be of your own making. Try to think a few steps ahead, so you don't paint yourself in a corner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An influential contact who usually tries to be helpful might resent being imposed upon today. Try not to burden others with your demands at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you're closely involved with might hesitate to make any concessions today because this person feels as if it's always up to him/her to do so.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for success today will only nominal if you let self-defeating thoughts overcome positive ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you must gamble on anyone today, do it on yourself. Better yet, avoid taking any chances at all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not involve outsiders or in-laws in your domestic disputes today. Their input could help make a bad situation even worse.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have a service performed for you today and you can't oversee the job personally, leave clear, detailed, written instructions of what you want done.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Avoid window shopping today at stores that carry merchandise you can't afford. Your need for instant gratification might make you do something rash.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Matters upon which you and your mate disagree should not be debated in the presence of others today. Your exchange could become very heated very quickly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A positive attitude will be imperative today. If your outlook is negative, you will probably take a course of action that will produce undesirable results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is one of those days when friends might make unreasonable demands on your budget. Avoid anything impulsive, extravagant or wasteful.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — John Muckler stepped down as coach of the Buffalo Sabres and signed a three-year deal to remain general manager. Muckler, who guided the Edmonton Oilers to the Stanley Cup in 1989-90, only reached the second round once in four years as Sabres coach. He served as coach and GM the last two seasons, but said having both jobs was too demanding. Muckler received a bulk of the criticism after the Sabres finished seventh in the Eastern Conference with a 22-19-7 record. They were eliminated from the first round of the playoffs by Philadelphia in five games.

BASKETBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Trying to avoid a lockout that could start as early as Thursday, NBA owners and players met again. The two sides had returned to the bargaining table Monday, the same day it was reported the league intended to lock out players after the finals if a new collective bargaining agreement isn't reached by then. The Rockets lead the Magic 3-0 and could capture their second straight title Wednesday night with a victory in Game 4. FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — Bob Bass ended his retirement to become the Charlotte Hornets' vice president of basketball operations. Bass, who left the San Antonio Spurs last year after two decades as a coach and executive, replaces Dave Twardzik, who last month became general manager of the Golden State Warriors.

SOCCER

GAVLE, Sweden (AP) — Kristine Lilly scored two goals, one on a spectacular 35-yard free kick, as the United States advanced to the semifinals of the Women's World Cup with a 4-0 victory over Japan. Tiffany Milbrett and Tisha Venturini also scored for the defending champions, who play Norway on Thursday at Vasteras in a rematch of the 1991 final. Norway beat Denmark 3-1 at Karlstad. Gro Espeseth, Linda Medalen and Hege Riise scored for the Norwegians. Gitte Krogh scored for Denmark. China beat Sweden 4-3 on penalty kicks after the teams tied 1-1. The Chinese will play European champion Germany, which beat England 3-0 on goals by Martina Voss, Maren Meinert and Heidi Mohr.

BASEBALL

TORONTO (AP) — Boston outfielder Mike Greenwell was taken off the field in the seventh inning after crashing head first into the left-field wall in the Red Sox's 11-7 victory over the Blue Jays. Chasing Roberto Alomar's RBI triple, Greenwell tried to reach out with his hands to stop himself, but was moving too fast and hit the padded wall with the top of his head. Greenwell was taken to Mount Sinai Hospital, where neck X-rays were negative. He had no neurological damage and was kept overnight for observation.

TENNIS

LONDON (AP) — Two-time Wimbledon champion Stefan Edberg and third-seeded Goran Ivanisevic powered their way to second-round victories at the Queen's Club grass-court tournament. Edberg defeated Arnaud Boetsch of France 7-5, 6-3 and Ivanisevic outlasted Marcos Ondruska of South Africa 4-6, 6-3, 7-5. Defending champion Todd Martin beat Jan Apell of Sweden 6-3, 6-4, while Britain's Mark Petchey topped countryman Greg Rusedski 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

Drexler helps Houston gain some respect

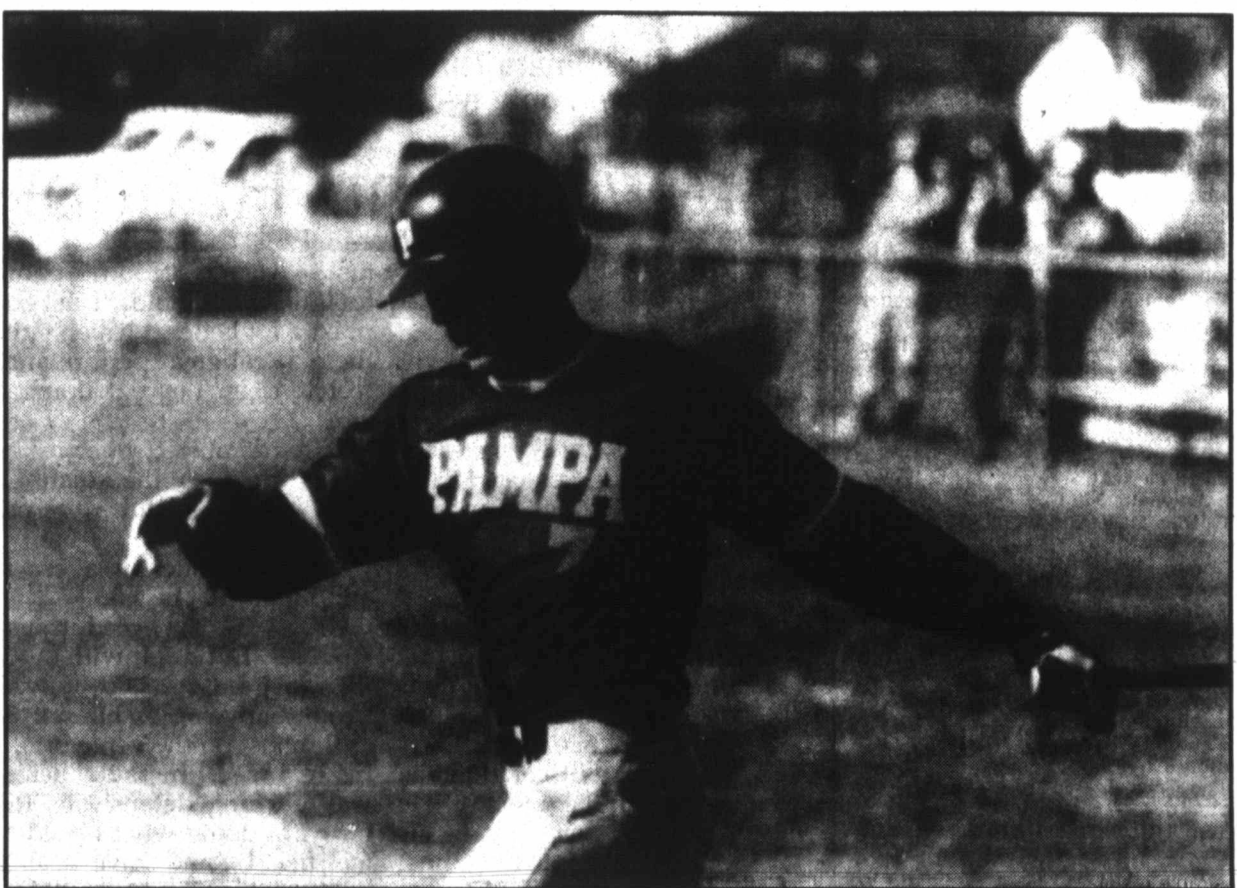

By WENDY E. LANE
AP Basketball Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — It has taken an unprecedented playoff run and a 32-year-old player with a yearning for a championship for the Houston Rockets to get a little respect and admiration. Beating the New York Knicks last year for the NBA title didn't do it. Trading for Clyde Drexler in February didn't do it. And entering the playoffs as the Western Conference's sixth seed certainly didn't do it. But with a win tonight in Game 4 of the NBA Finals, the Rockets can sweep Shaquille O'Neal and the Orlando Magic and enjoy the recognition that didn't come their way during a year's reign as champions. "I think the country loves this team, and what we represent and the way that we do things," Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said Tuesday. "Being down and sticking together and coming back, we should be admired for the way we do things." The Rockets can set NBA records by becoming the first sixth seed to win a championship and by getting past four teams with 50-plus wins. They've already made history by winning a record seven consecutive playoff games on the road. What the series between the veteran Rockets and the youthful Magic has shown more than anything else isn't that you have to pay your dues. It's that the process of paying them makes you stronger. Now Orlando knows. "We can take something from this," said John Gabriel, the team's vice president of basketball operations. The Magic's talent has gotten them further than most thought. But talent, it seems, is no match for experience when the experience is not all happy memories. The Rockets are still stinging from the heat they took in last year's finals for losing the Knicks' low-scoring, grind-it-out kind of game. And when they played it well enough to win, it was dismissed as a fluke. "It's something I don't understand," Tomjanovich said. "We took on all the good teams last year. I know how hard it was, I know where we came from, I know the personnel we had. To come out on top of a great league and have people say it was an off year, that (Michael) Jordan wasn't there, that bothers me." The unpopular finals was followed by the unpopular trade of Otis Thorpe for Drexler, a deal even most of the Rockets didn't like. And by the time Houston got to the playoffs with all of 47 wins, the team found it had a lot to play for and a lot to prove. "It's been so much fun kicking all those doubters," forward Robert Horry said. "Now they can't say anything, because we weren't even supposed to be here." What the doubters didn't accomplish, Drexler's desire for a title did. After missing an NCAA championship with the University of Houston and missing two chances at an NBA title with Portland, he quietly has picked up the Rockets every time they were in danger of hitting a lull. He's rebounded and led the fast break, leaving behind the twentysomething Magic players. "I think he's the guy that's really given them the spirit and the energy to carry the team through this whole playoff run," Orlando coach Brian Hill said. Perhaps if the Magic had been playing another team, one without so much to prove, things would have been different. Now they have a sense of the Rockets' mission, O'Neal and his teammates are showing little sign of the exuberance that carried them past Chicago and Indiana. A deflated-looking O'Neal acknowledged that youth hasn't given Orlando resiliency. "We haven't played well and I don't think that we have recovered from the first loss," he said, referring to a game in which the Magic led by three with 10 seconds left in regulation. "That first game, we were explosive and aggressive," point guard Anfernee Hardaway said. "Ever since the second half of that first game, nothing has seemed to go right for us." To a man, the Magic deny that lack of experience is the main factor in a finals that looks to be much shorter than they figured. They point to poor outside shooting, problems with transition defense and the defensive dilemma posed by Hakeem Olajuwon. But Orlando's veteran, Horace Grant, sees the look of a champion in Houston's eyes — and something else in his team. "For the younger guys, being down 0-3, they have a tendency to be a little anxious, to play a little tight," he said. "It just comes from being in this situation before."

Outfielder Ryan Cook is one of several Pampa High School varsity players on the Panthers' roster. The 18 and under team hosts Borger at 6 p.m. Thursday at Harvester Field.

Pampa Panthers set to open season

PAMPA — If the weather finally cooperates, the Pampa Panthers, an 18 and under baseball team, will get the season under way on Thursday. The Panthers had their first four games canceled because of rainy weather. The Panthers are due to host Borger at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Pampa High School field. Assistant coach Lynn Hancock said there are 18 currently on the roster, consisting mainly of PHS varsity and junior varsity players. Only one area player to date (Miami) is on the roster. Several Harvester varsity players are on the Panthers' roster. They include Ryan Cook, Clint Curtis, Dave Gamblin, Hank Gindorf, Jamisen Hancock, August Larsen and Chris Earl. Others include Jason Benton, Ryan Bruce, Corey Harris, Shawn Harris, Jared Hoover, Keith Jacoby, Duane King, Jaron Miller, Blaine Northcutt, Ryan Schumacher and Josh Sirmans. "We'll be playing mostly teams in the Southwest League although we're not officially a member of that league. We'll also be playing teams in our District 1-4A," Hancock said. Pampa hosts Clovis, N.M. and Borger in a round-robin format Saturday. Starting times are 12 noon, 2:30 and 5 p.m. The Panthers have 16 regular-season games scheduled plus a tournament at the end. Caprock, Randall, Dumas and Amarillo Tascosa are among the teams on the schedule. Steve Watson is the Panthers head coach. He will be assisted by Jerry Larson and Hancock.

Cabot pitcher hurls no-hitter, but team loses to Glo-Valve

PAMPA — Glo-Valve Service stole by Cabot Corporation Tuesday, 8-2, in an Optimist Major Bambino National League game despite heroic pitching by Vivian Botello. Botello threw 150 pitches and pitched a no-hitter, striking out 18 batters in six innings. His undoing was 11 walks and a hit batter. Glo-Valve only had one batter hit the ball in fair territory. Glo-Valve pitchers Kyle Keith and Randy Tice almost matched Botello, limiting Cabot to only one hit and no earned runs. Keith struck out two and walked two in two innings, allowing no runs or hits. Tice struck out 10 and walked three. He allowed two unearned runs and one hit in four innings pitched. Willie Hathaway was the offensive leader for Cabot, scoring one run and knocking in the other with the game's only hit. Glo-Valve took the lead in the second inning when Isiah Manzanera and Keith walked and both scored on a combination of wild pitches and passed balls. Cabot got one run back in the bottom of the fourth. With two outs, Hathaway walked. He took second on a fielders' choice on a ball hit by Andrew Cambern. An attempt to pick him off second went into right field, allowing Hathaway to score. In the fifth inning, Glo-Valve put the game away with five runs. Nathaneal Hill walked, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on a wild pitch. Shawn Strate, Matt Driscoll and Keith walked to load the bases. Strate scored on a wild pitch and Driscoll came in behind him when the throw to the plate trying to get Strate was off the mark. Tanner Dyer walked. He then stole second on the front end of a double steal with Keith scoring on the other end. Dyer continued around the bases when the ball went into center field. Dyer made the defensive play of the game in the fifth inning in center field with an over-the-head catch of a scorching line drive. Glo-Valve scored its eighth run in the sixth inning. Tice was safe on a two-base error. He scored on two wild pitches. Cabot came back for a run in the bottom of the sixth. Botello wound up on second as a result of errors. Hathaway drilled a single to right field for the only hit of the game to score Botello. Glo-Valve continues to lead the Optimist Major Bambino National League with a season record of 8-2. Moose Lodge defeated MMMC, 17-6, in a 9-10 year old league game Tuesday. The winning pitcher was Blake Helms, who gave up just one hit and one walk. Landon Baker pitched for MMMC. He gave up two hits while striking out three and walking 10. For Moose, Eddie Palma had an inside-the-park home run, Ryan Zemanek, double and triple, and Blake Helms, a double. SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Times change quickly in golf. "I've seen 'em all, big-eyed kids — (Nick) Price, (Mark) McNulty, (Ernie) Els — sitting behind the ropes watching me play," 54-year-old Simon Hobday said. "Then, it was 'can we have your autograph, Mr. Hobday?' Get out of my way, kids." "Now," Hobday said, and the tone of his voice went from pleading to belligerent, "it's 'What do you mean you want to play with us?'" Hobday, the South African called "Scruffy" by his fellow pros and the current Senior U.S. Open champion, got together with the younger crew from southern Africa for a practice round for the U.S. Open. "It's the first time I've played with him. It was fun," said Els, an easy-going sort who likes a good time. And that was part of his game plan for defense of his American national championship that begins Thursday at Shinnecock Hills Golf Club. "I want to have a good time," Els said. "It's going to be very difficult to make a success of the defense of the U.S. Open. I just want to go out on Thursday, keep calm, have some fun and try to get in contention," he said. Els, then 24, leaped to international golfing prominence with his playoff triumph in this event at Oakmont, Pa. He went from the category of a very good young player to the front rank of the game's big stars, hailed by many as the game's next superstar. "My life has changed a bit," Els said Tuesday. "A year ago, you guys (in the media) didn't need to see me. More people recognize me." And more is expected and demanded of him. Els admits he is "not completely comfortable with it." He is, however, very comfortable with the United States. Els, now in his sixth season as a pro, competed in South Africa and Europe, made a brief and unexceptional excursion to the Nike tour, went back to Europe, then returned to the United States and joined the American tour on a full-time basis last year. While he still plays abroad, most of his golf now takes place in this country. He is building a new home in Orlando, Fla.

And he has been playing sound golf since his Open victory in a playoff. "I've played pretty well; won four or five tournaments since then," he said. Two of them came in South Africa, another in the Byron Nelson Classic in Dallas last month. But the pressure of one of golf's major championships is something else, he said. "Winning the U.S. Open meant a lot to me. It still means a lot to me," he said. "When I joined the tour, what I wanted to do was win majors and have fun," he added, pointing to Price, who has dominated world golf for the past two years. "What he has done is phenomenal. To win major championships year in and year out, it puts more pressure on you. It's very difficult to keep it going." That's part of Els' problem in defending. Another is the golf course, "one of the best I've ever played. It's a true links course. It's very different from last year. That was target golf. This is going to be Scottish links golf. You're going to have to play every shot you have, the run-up, everything."

White Deer hires new football coach

WHITE DEER — Ralph Samaniego, defensive coordinator at White Deer the past three years, has been named the Bucks new head football coach and athletic director. Samaniego, 35 years old, takes the place of Stan Caffey, who resigned to become head football coach at AD at McCamey. Samaniego and Caffey started coaching at White Deer at the same time, but the 1995 season will be Samaniego's first as a head coach. The Bucks won the district title in 1993. "We won't be changing much, especially on defense," Samaniego said. "We might make some adjustments on offense. If we've got some players who can run, we'll run more. The same goes for passing."

The Bucks open the '95 season Sept. 8 against Vega on the home field. "We're going to be similar to last year's team. We had five seniors graduating last season and we'll have five seniors coming in. We're going to be young, but on the plus side we'll have a lot of sophomores and some freshmen who had playing experience last season," Samaniego said. "Our main concern will be youth and depth, but at the same time we'll have young players with some experience under their belt." Samaniego played football at Oklahoma Panhandle State University in Goodwell and was team captain when OPSU reached the national playoffs in 1981.

Astros turn back Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The recent struggles of both the Houston Astros and outfielder Luis Gonzalez may finally be coming to an end. Gonzalez ended a 4-for-27 slump when he hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning Tuesday night which gave Houston a 6-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. The win snapped the Astros' six-game losing streak and ended the Phillies' four-game winning streak. "That was a good win for us," Houston manager Terry Collins said. "It should be a big boost for Luis and for the whole ball club."
