THE PAMPA NEWS

VOL: 88 NO: 52

Pampa, Texas

50¢ DAILY/SUNDAY $1

More thunderstorms expected for the eastern Texas Panhandle

The north bound lane of U.S. 287 between Childress and Memphis was closed early today because of flooding by the Prairie Dog Town fork of the Red River. South bound lanes were open after being closed Sunday, according to Department of Public Safety officers.

A fine drizzle covered Pampa early today. A 40 percent chance of showers and thunderstorms this afternoon were forecast for Gray County. The high is expected to reach 82 degrees with a low tonight in the mid-60 degree range. Flash flood warning continued through today for most of the Texas Panhandle.

Pampa recorded eleven-hundredths of an inch of moisture overnight.

Rain started falling at 7 a.m. today in Canadian, according to Sharon Keener with the Hemphill County Sheriff's office.

"We've got a good rain going on," she said.

Wheeler County officials reported no rain falling but cloudy conditions.

"It looks like it's fixing to pour," said one Wheeler County official today. "What's weird is that the animals are starting to gather by twos."

The National Weather Service expected more rain in the eastern half of the Texas Panhandle today as a dry line moved east out of New Mexico and was expected to stall on a line extending from Tulia to Dumas to Elkhart, Kans.

Fritch woman killed in crash

SANFORD -- Two people were in an Amarillo hospital today with injuries suffered in a head-on crash near Sanford Sunday that killed a 92-year-old woman.

Alma Head Forrest, 73, is in critical condition today at Northwest Texas Hospital with abdomen, hip and leg injuries.

Adam Wayne Robinson, 16, is also at Northwest in serious condition with head and arm injuries.

Alma Pendergrast, 92, died about 3:45 p.m. Sunday at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo. Pendergrast was riding with Alma Head Forrest, 73, of Sanford, in Forrest's 1977 Mercury two-door on FM 687 in the east bound lane when the accident happened shortly after 11 a.m. Sunday.

Robinson of Sanford was travelling west in the east bound lane, officers said. He pulled back to the proper lane, according to public information officer Wayne Beigle of the Amarillo Department of Public Safety, but Forrest pulled over into the west bound lane to avoid him, and the cars collided head-on.

Services were pending today for Pendergrast with Minton Chatwell Funeral Directors in Fritch.

Red Cross offers disaster classes

The Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross will be offering another series of disaster training classes beginning at 6 p.m. today.

The classes will be held at the Red Cross office, 108 N. Russell, in Pampa. Participants should be 18 years of age and up, according to Lynda Duncan, chapter director.

The series begins tonight with an introductory lecture. Next Monday's program will deal with shelter operation services Duncan said.

Duncan said senior citizens are particularly encouraged to sign up for the series, since they may sign up for the National Disaster System and travel to other places in the country, expenses paid, to help with disaster assistance programs.

Duncan said disaster assistance volunteers are needed to help with the wide variety of disasters that have been occurring in recent months.

Cattle breakout; stampede streets

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Mooove over!

When 39 cows found the barn door open, they headed straight for the street.

"Some moron took the hinges off a door," said John Ketelson, a bookkeeper at the Rock Island Livestock Auction who spent most of Friday night driving around in search of the fugitives.

Well-intentioned police and citizens joined the roundup, with mixed results — especially when the cattle realized they were bigger than their pursuers.

"I saw these two cows running full-speed down the street with 20 people chasing right behind them," Andrea Moffit said. "Thirty seconds later, I saw the same 20 people running back the other way with the cows right on their heels."

Three cattle remained on the lam Sunday.

Low tonight in mid 60s, high tomorrow near 90. See Page 2 for weather details.

PAMPA - The Gray County Commissioners Court has set usage fees for the new Holland Wing of the White Deer Lands Museum.

The wing, including meeting room and kitchen, may be rented by the public with a $100 refundable deposit. The meeting room rents for $35. The kitchen rents for an additional $25.

PAMPA - Lake McClellan is at least half full after rains for the past several days, Venita Roland, concession owner at the lake, said today.

Roland said she more than 100 cars came to the newly-filled lake Sunday.

"I hope it continues," Roland said, adding that the creek continues to run into the lake, further filling it.

DALLAS (AP) — Ron Kirk was sworn in today as Dallas' mayor, the first black mayor of a major Texas city.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Cancer Therapy and Research Center has opened its new $15.5 million facility in San Antonio's medical center.

IRVING (AP) — Former presidential candidate Ross Perot told a group of independent producers that a domestic energy industry is crucial to the nation's security. "We have got to keep ourselves in a very, very good position to defend our country. Fundamental to that is some strong oil and gas reserves — got to have it," he said Sunday in his keynote address to the 49th annual convention of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association. Perot suggested setting a minimum oil price to encourage domestic exploration.

SHELL POINT, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Allison buffeted Florida's Panhandle with 75-mph wind this morning, whipping high tides into a storm surge that flooded streets, parking lots and marinas.

NEW YORK (AP) — A subway train slammed into the rear of another train today in the middle of a bridge over the East River, killing the operator of one train and injuring 60 people.

The accident shortly after 6 a.m. involved two Manhattan-bound trains coming in from Brooklyn on the Williamsburg Bridge. It closed the bridge for the morning rush to subway and road traffic.

Standing in front of a sign he painted for an Alanreed motel years ago, Tye Thompson was back recently adding to the motel's collection of Thompson originals. His latest work is in the entry way to the motel office. His works are also in each room.

McLean artist uses world as his canvas

ALANREED — When Tye Thompson paints the town, he does it in outdoor acrylic latex.

"It dries fast," he said, "and it's not as messy as enamel." After growing up in McLean and graduating from then Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo with a degree in commercial art in mid-1970s, Thompson went to work at Colony Catherine in a silk screening operation.

When the company sold, he decided to strike out on his own in the world of fine arts.

"Me and 500,000 others," he said. "I had no luck with it at all." But fate stepped in when he received a call from Dixie Crockett at Crockett Motel and Exxon. She needed someone to paint "Texas" on the side of motel that she and her husband had in Alanreed.

"That was eight or nine years ago," Thompson said. "From there on it just took off."

People had been helping themselves to some of the painting hanging in the motel rooms, so the Crocketts had Thompson paint scenes on the walls of the rooms. Needless to say, no one has stolen the four by five foot paintings.

"They haven't been vandalized, either," Thompson said.

The real turning point, however, came when Thompson was asked to paint three exterior walls in downtown Shamrock. A building had burned and the city was clearing the area and asked if Thompson could paint the surrounding walls with an Irish motif. The result was a mural depicting an Irish village.

"The Irish Village at Shamrock changed my life," Thompson said.

Since then, Thompson's work has spread out over walls in McLean, Clarendon and Shamrock.

His murals cover eight city blocks on Clarendon, the site of his most difficult job.

"That was the Country Kitchen Restaurant," he said.

The rough brick walls and deep mortar took a lot of effort and a lot of paint.

"It's not as big as Shamrock," Thompson said, "but it was the hardest."

Still, with the detail in the work, he considers it his master piece to date.

Thompson has also done the dioramas in the Devil's Rope Museum in McLean and he's just accepted a commission to paint a wall in downtown Pampa.

With the growing amount of work he has, Thompson has gotten faster in his work.

"I can paint real fast now," he laughed.

Using big brushes, rollers and air guns, he said it's no more difficult than painting any other work of art.

"It's no different," he said. "It's just a bigger scale."

As his fame grows, so does his canvas. He's already getting offers from New Mexico to eastern Oklahoma and across Texas.

"Every time I do a wall, it sells another painting," he shrugged.

Serbs appeal to U.N. as Coats launch new offensive

By SRECKO LATAL
Associated Press Writer

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Serbs in Croatia appealed to the United Nations today to intervene in renewed fighting in their country, while Serbs in neighboring Bosnia refused to release their peacekeeper hostages or even let the Red Cross visit them.

The U.N. said Bosnian Croat and Croat forces launched a new offensive over the weekend and were within shelling range of Knin, the self-declared capital of Serb-held Croatia, and the main road linking it with Serb-held Bosnia.

U.N. special envoy Yasushi Akashi said Croatian Serb leader Milan Martić asked for U.N. intervention and threatened to rocket Croatian cities in retaliation.

The U.N. said Croat forces attacked Serb positions Sunday around Mount Dinara, a peak in the Dinaric range of mountains along Croatia's border with western Bosnia, and shelled the Serb villages of Unista and Cetina. The attacks eased today.

The Belgrade daily Politika quoted Dusan Babic, head of Knin's hospital, as saying that 26 Croatian Serb soldiers were wounded in the fighting, and one of them later died.

Akashi said he spoke with Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, the region's power broker, "who also expressed very grave concern" about the fighting in Croatia.

The Croatian army and Bosnian Croat forces are only 11 miles from the main road that links Knin with the Serb-held stronghold of Banja Luka in western Bosnia, U.N. spokesman Fred Eckhard said.

That's the area where an American F-16 jet fighter crashed Friday after being shot down by a surface-to-air missile. The pilot's fate remained unknown today, and NATO refused to release his name or any other personal information until it was.

Defense Secretary William Perry said Sunday that the Pentagon has found no evidence that the pilot ejected before his plane crashed. He said a search-and-rescue effort was continuing.

The Bosnian Serb military chief, Gen. Ratko Mladic, claims his forces captured the pilot.

Rain comes in excess in some parts of panhandle

Heavy rains last week trapped a small herd of cattle grazing a plays lake between White Deer and Panhandle Friday afternoon. The cattle were soon moved to higher ground. The same storm covered Hwy. 294 with hail. Thunderstorms over the weekend spawned tornadoes that damaged buildings in Friona Friday night and spun other tornadoes in open country across Castro County Sunday afternoon. Weather forecasters were predicting more storms tonight with a brief respite Tuesday followed later in the week with a return of stormy weather.

Borger woman wants answers in son's death

HOUSTON (AP) — Vina Payne isn't satisfied by explanations that prison guards were legitimately busy elsewhere in the Terrell Unit when her 23-year-old son was beaten to death by other inmates.

The Borger woman still wonders why guards didn't save her son, Randy, during his nearly two-hour assault last summer.

Mrs. Payne's disappointment is shared by State Sen. Teel Bivins of Amarillo.

Bivins, who was among those contacted by Mrs. Payne in a national campaign to draw attention to the case, has called on Texas Department of Criminal Justice officials for an explanation of Payne's death.

"It is a very troubling occurrence," he said. "Any time you have someone killed inside a state institution it is a cause for major concern."

Payne was serving a 15-year term for having sex with a minor. Dozens of inmates had approached Payne and they demanded sex and protection money.

When guards were away, prisoners surrounded Payne and beat him with their fists, padlocks placed inside socks and possibly steel-toed boots. He later died of his injuries.

"Imagine what was running through the boy's head for two hours, hoping and praying that the guards would intervene on his behalf," said Mrs. Payne, 45.

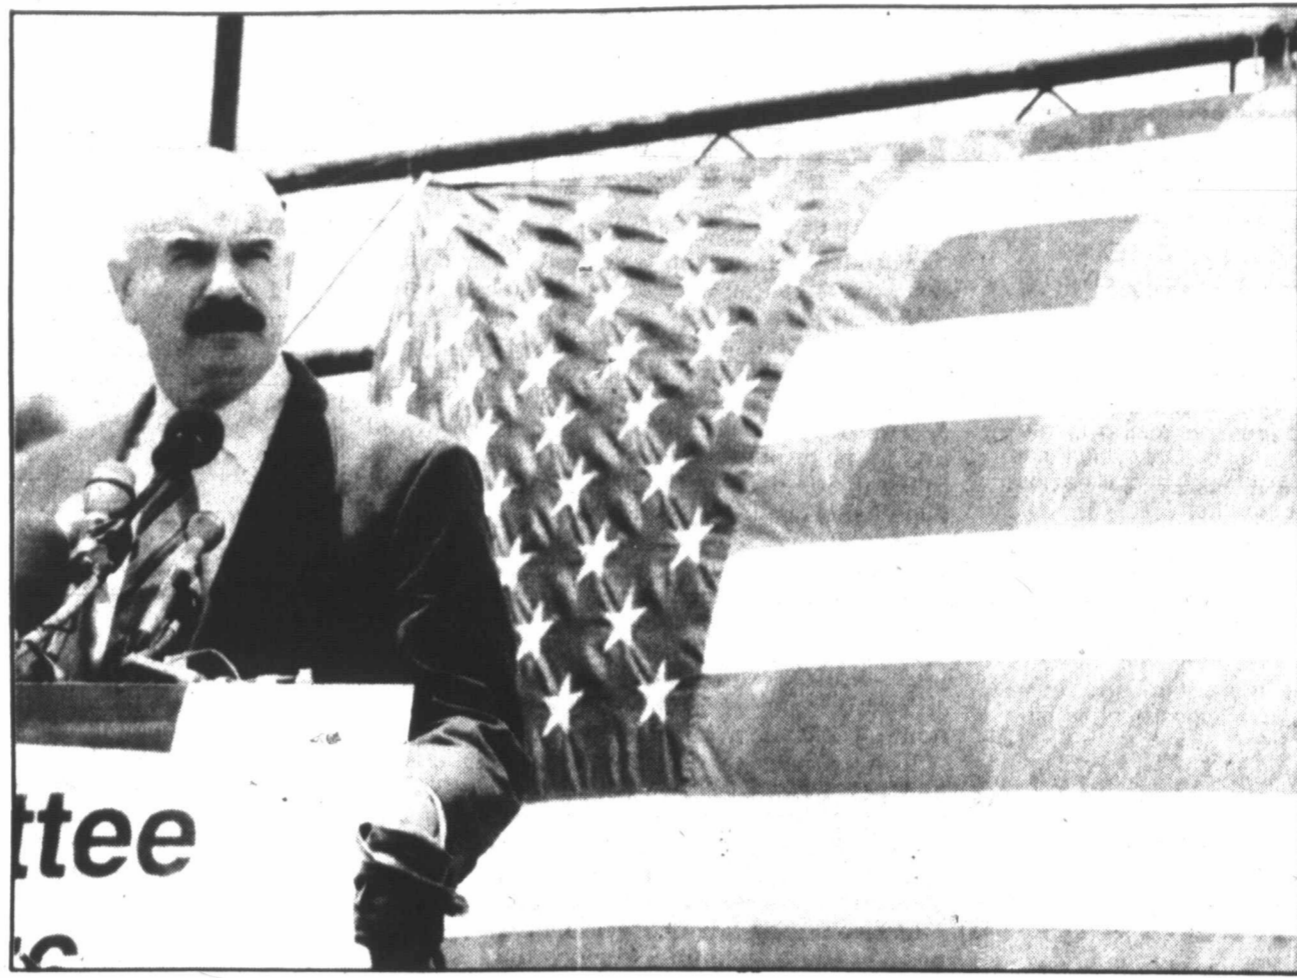

A prison system lawyer said guards were legitimately occupied elsewhere in the prison during the attack.

Ray Montgomery, an attorney with TDCJ's Special Prison Prosecution Unit, which handles felony cases occurring within prison walls, said investigations by his office and the internal affairs division cleared guards of negligence or wrongdoing.

Two guards assigned to Payne's unit had been called to another unit to escort an injured prisoner to the infirmary, he said. A third guard was distributing mail in another unit.

The unit's picket boss, who oversees cell blocks from an elevated office, might have been preoccupied with other duties or unable to see the site of the attacks, Montgomery said.

"Given the fact that inmates were watching the movements of the officers, they were able to assault inmate Payne at various times in various locations out of sight of the officers," said Wayne Scott, director of the TDCJ's Institutional Division.

Three inmates escape, one captured

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Two of three inmates who escaped from the Miller County Jail in Texarkana, Ark., remained at large Sunday night, while authorities had recaptured a 27-year-old man. The trio escaped about 12:20 p.m., triggering an all-points bulletin warning officers to approach the men with caution. No details of the escape were provided.

The men were identified as Marlin Trammel Clark, 19, Johnny Lee Ryan, 27, and Jody Michael Ogburn.

Volunteer forced to forfeit vacation time

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas firefighter Fletcher Dahman got a hero's treatment during the two weeks he spent leading a team of rescue workers in the rubble of the federal building at Oklahoma City.

But that sort of treatment ended when he returned to Dallas and discovered that the city will force him to use his vacation time as compensation for his work in Oklahoma City.

He can't be paid his salary for those two weeks and still be granted extra vacation time because he went to Oklahoma City at the request of his Air Force Reserve unit instead of the city.

"I didn't expect a hero's welcome when I got back to Dallas," Dahman, 39, told The Dallas Morning News Sunday. "But I also didn't expect this."

The Fire Department did not intend to punish Dahman for his good work, said assistant chief Danny Millaway. Instead, he said, officials are looking for a way to solve the problem.

"The policy won't allow us to give away time, but we're trying to see what other benefits are available," Millaway said. He also pointed out that Dahman collected two paychecks, one from the city and one from the Air Force

Reserve, and he was not forced to go to Oklahoma City.

"What is the harm?" Millaway asked. "He hasn't lost any money. He hasn't lost any seniority. He only lost some vacation time."

Dahman said that when he returned, he and his supervisor wrote city officials asking them to make an exception to the usual rules on vacation and military leave.

They supported the request with a letter from President Clinton, who urged executive departments and agencies not to charge their time in Oklahoma City to leave or cause them to lose any pay for the time they spent there.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Trade war would prove detrimental

Probably the best we can hope for is that the threat to impose 100-percent tariffs on 13 models of Japanese luxury cars is, like so many Clinton administration initiatives, simply a whim of the moment that will never actually be implemented. It has served to divert at least some attention from the decision to appoint a special prosecutor to look into the business dealings of the secretary of commerce, from Mr. Clinton's appallingly partisan efforts to exploit the Oklahoma City bombing, and from news that Congress is starting to investigate Whitewater.

Viewed strictly as a short-term political lightning rod, then, perhaps the macho posturing over trade has been effective. And it has served to send friendly signals to the United Auto Workers and the Big Three auto companies that might translate into campaign contributions or support come 1996.

But surely even the Clintonistas can see that this threat, while having some utility in Washington's never-ending political game-playing, would be simply horrible for this country as an actual policy.

The first terrible effect would be visited on American consumers, always the real targets when the government claims to be punishing some foreign manufacturer. If these tariffs go into effect, not only would the price of certain Japanese luxury cars rise, but upward pressure would be exerted on the price of every automobile sold in the United States.

Sellers would be tempted to hope consumers will view a price increase of 10 or 20 percent for American and European luxury cars as a bargain compared to the 100 percent increase for Lexus, Infiniti and Acura. With the overall supply of cars reduced, even less-expensive cars would not be immune to higher prices. And the pressure from overseas competition that has induced American auto companies to improve quality and performance in recent years would be alleviated, tempting American companies to slide a little, as protected industries have always done.

The next level of harm would befall American business people who have invested in dealerships and the people they employ, as well as the American sales and promotion staffs for the Japanese luxury models.

Some have suggested that job loss in some particular areas could be as high as 1,500, but the fallout will be wider. Fewer television commercials could mean layoffs at advertising agencies, as well as at auto dealerships. And on and on.

Then there's the loss of respect for the United States as a fair trader. The Clinton administration just pushed the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) agreement through Congress last year, and now it is poised to violate it with unilateral sanctions.

And why? The sticking point was concrete numbers: U.S. trade negotiator Mickey Kantor wanted the Japanese government to commit to forcing the Japanese private sector to assure that a certain number of dealerships would be established, a certain dollar value of auto parts would be bought.

The U.S. auto industry has gotten semi-serious about the Japanese market only in the last few years and has actually made some real progress. But the administration couldn't wait for the market to work; it wanted to impose managed trade targets and quotas - the very antithesis of free trade.

All in all, the tariff threat represents terrible policy. The best hope is that this was a gesture that will be abandoned as quickly as was the Clinton campaign promise to deliver a balanced budget in five years.

Viewpoints

Prime time equals bad business

The '94-'95 prime-time television season has officially ended. Some results were unsurprising: NBC's Seinfeld was the top-rated series and the same network's ER the most popular new show. ABC, powered by such hits as Home Improvement and Grace Under Fire, won the overall network competition.

It's instructive, though, to look closer to the bottom of the 142 Nielsen-rated programs. What you find in the prime-time cellar gives added impetus to the notion that the public is growing weary of Hollywood's cultural world view.

Three shows, all of which finished in triple digits in the final ratings standings, serve to illustrate. ABC's cult teen series My So-Called Life wound up at No. 115 and has been canceled. The show, which dealt with the angst-ridden existence of 15-year-old Angela Chase, was pretty good artistically, but as its title suggests, there was nothing of value in its content.

Teen sex, hetero and homo, was the driving force in My So-Called Life. The openly bisexual Rickie, a teenage male character, was treated approvingly by most on the show. In one episode, he pursued a new male love interest at a school dance. Two of Angela's girlfriends were sexually active, one to the point of promiscuity, and while Angela refused to bow to peer pressure, wanting to wait until she was "ready," the morality of remaining a virgin until marriage was never once addressed.

Abstinence as a goal was taboo for the series - even when Angela's mother feared Angela was sexually active. Instead, mother urged daughter to use contraceptives.

CBS's The George Wendt Show was heavily hyped, and why not? It marked the return to television of the actor who played the beloved barfly Norm on Cheers. Cheers was a long-running hit in part because it eschewed sociopolitical advocacy in favor of entertainment. Conversely, Wendt's sitcom went in the opposite direction, as did its ratings - No. 106 in the Nielsens.

In the strongly anti-Catholic premiere, one character vowed revenge against a priest for all the "mental abuse" the cleric subjected him to as a child. After a big winning streak at a church casino night, the character was told the priests were dismayed by their losses. "Good," he responded. "After all the hell they put me through as a kid ... I think it's their turn to squirm." For good measure, Wendt's character noted that being in the church building evoked memories of "the gradual stripping away of a young boy's self-esteem."

Wendt indulged in sexual envelope-pushing, too. In one episode, the lead character and his brother took an interest in two women who turned out to be lesbians and who subsequently kissed twice - purely for shock value. After expressing their desire to have children, the lesbians asked the brothers to act as their sperm donors. Did I mention this was a comedy?

NBC's Amazing Grace (No. 123 in the Nielsens) starred Patty Duke as Hannah, a minister who routinely dispensed sagacious advice regarding the quandaries du jour. It sounded promising ... until it aired.

GOP plan would balance the budget

May has been a cruel month for cynics in general, and for Democratic politicians in particular.

For many years it has been axiomatic among Washington observers that the federal budget couldn't be balanced without imposing either higher taxes or deeper spending cuts than the voters would permit. Viewed thus, the problem was the voters' fault: They wanted all sorts of "benefits," but were unwilling to pay for them. What was a politician to do?

Beginning in 1961, and in every year since then with the fluke exception of 1969, the politicians' answer has been: Spend more than you take in, and cover the gap by borrowing money and charging the debt to future generations.

Beginning about 1980 the burden of paying even the interest on the staggering subsidies laddled out by a generous government had begun to escalate to formidable proportions. President Reagan submitted budget after budget that would have scaled down these subsidies, but all were declared "dead on arrival" by the Democrats, who still controlled the House of Representatives.

The Democrats, instead, proposed sharp cuts in defense spending, which Mr. Reagan firmly ruled out, and called for tax increases, which he also largely rejected. One result, thanks to the relatively low taxes, was the longest boom in post-war U.S. history. Another, thanks to the defense expenditures, was the collapse of the Soviet Union. But a third, thanks to the unrestrained domestic spending, was a huge annual deficit and a correspondingly vast increase in the national debt.

Because these deficits became especially noticeable in and after 1980, when Mr. Reagan was first elected, the Democrats have tried to put the entire blame for them on Mr. Reagan - slyly ignoring the fact that every federal nickel spent during his administration first received the blessing of the Democrat-controlled House of Representatives.

In any case, the day of reckoning is now at hand - or so close that it can no longer be ignored. Huge subsidies to the poor, the elderly, the farmers, the students, the veterans, the disabled, the artistic, etc., are approaching bankruptcy, either collectively or individually.

And what has been the response of the politicians? President Clinton, having flatly pledged in 1992 to bring the budget into balance within five years, has confirmed the cynics' pessimism by submitting a spending plan that, on the contrary,

In the show's premiere, Hannah's daughter declared her agnosticism, but her mother showed little concern for her offspring's spiritual well-being. Another installment had Hannah worrying that the daughter was sexually active; this woman of the cloth urged the daughter to "protect" herself against pregnancy and AIDS but, like the mother on My So-Called Life, couldn't bring herself to advocate abstinence.

Before Grace premiered, NBC entertainment boss Warren Littlefield stated that because TV networks "ignore the issues of religion and spirituality, (NBC) wanted to find a program that could potentially touch on these themes." Too bad the show's producers weren't listening. Indeed, the powers behind Grace were proud - and publicly so - of their show's minimizing of traditional faith.

"This is not a show about religion. It's about love," Executive Producer Jonathan Estrin told TV Guide. Duke herself said that she "wanted someone on television ... who said it was OK to believe" but added that Grace doesn't want to be "the leader of the family-values" contingent. "We rarely use the word G-O-D," she claimed. Sadly, that was true, and that's what was most amazing about this series. The minister made virtually no mention of God or Jesus Christ and never imparted religious truths in her dialogue.

My So-Called Life was well-crafted but packed with anti-family values themes. The George Wendt Show featured one of television's most lovable actors, only to devote its energies to attacks on religion and morality. Amazing Grace was promoted as a family-values series - only to reject that standard in its content. All three shows failed. The public is finding political correctness to be politically obnoxious.

In 1723, economist Adam Smith was born in Kirkcaldy, Scotland.

In 1783, Joseph and Jacques Montgolfier publicly demonstrated their hot-air balloon in a 10-minute flight over Annonay, France.

In 1794, Congress passed the Neutrality Act, which prohibited Americans from enlisting in the service of a foreign power.

In 1883, economist John Maynard Keynes was born in Cambridge, England.

American aesthetics 'libido for the ugly'

"The American libido for the ugly" - that is how the Sage of Baltimore, H.L. Mencken, esteemed our American aesthetics. Let us not flinch from the facts. The old boy had a point. Look around you. What do you see but the tailoring and apparel of slobs? Mencken believed that the American libido for the ugly affected our every creation. He claimed that in his native Baltimore, one would pass block after block of homes that were appalling eyesores. Then, he noted, approaching his own middle-class neighborhood, one would encounter a "very tastefully" appointed house, belonging not to him but to an older lady, a "Negro." That was the term in general usage in his day.

Were Mencken around today, I think he would agree with me that the American home is easier on the eye than in his day. For one thing, the suburb allows us to conceal dubious facades behind trees and shrubs. It is difficult to tart up a tree. Unfortunately, American taste in clothes has declined to the level of savagery. It is the arrival of Washington's tropical season that provokes these thoughts - or, I should say, fears. In the winter, at least, we have the good sense to cover ourselves. In the spring, many Americans begin their great transcontinental strip tease. By summer, all knobby knees, varicose veins, mammary glands and body hair are on display. It was another literary sage, the Italian Luigi Barzini, who noted after coming upon a nudists' beach in his native land that the human form, for purely aesthetic reasons, is best left under wraps. Even a real-life Venus de Milo is not all that welcome. In the sun, such beauties can begin to smell. And who wants to encounter a beautiful naked woman walking down Park Avenue? One might miss one's cab or - worse - get hit by a cab.

But I have sauntered somewhat off the point. In America, the young in particular, and many women, seem to have a positive relish for ugly dress. The baseball cap worn backward is ugly. The cap's logo or clever message makes little sense when seen from behind. And how can one be comfortable when the visor of one's cap is forever getting jammed in a high-backed chair? The teenager's baggy clothes look downish, yet the teens do not have much humor. They listen to that angry music shouted by the skinny young men. The young men are forever lecturing us in their songs and complaining that no one must lecture them. They are also as ignorant as Cro-Magnon man. Give me Nat King Cole, who was at once more civilized, gayer and a natty dresser. Then, too, he had a sunnier disposition.

Incidentally, the baggy look of the teenager cannot be all that comfortable. The abundant material of sleeves and pant legs are probably dangerous in revolving doors, on escalators and while trying to elude the cops. I suggest a return to form-fitting jeans for now. Eventually, a return to coats and ties will seem natural. And the vast majority of female forms are much more agreeable in skirts - occasionally skirts with a bustle.

Which brings me to women's sense of dress. Too often, American women dress as though they were trying to scare men off and wild animals, too. The miniskirt is not a problem. Many American women have shapely legs, and their taste in hosiery can make up for nature's oversights. But, increasingly, I see women attired in chaotic ensembles that mix inmiscible styles and traditions: the military look of a Polish cavalry brigade with, say, shoes that might have appeared on Tinkerbell or a can-can girl, a vest or top reminiscent of a bull-fighter with the billowing skirts of an antebellum Southern belle, things hung from the neck that might more appropriately dangle from the rear-view mirror of a redneck's pickup. I urge American women to take a second look at the style of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. Keep it simple, and wear just a touch of perfume redolent of the garden.

I suspect that these suggestions will not win me many votes with my fellow Americans. The American impulse towards individualism is being repressed across a wide spectrum of human endeavor, starting with the schools and moving into the realms of art, health and society in general. Political Correctness is our National Socialism. When it comes to dress, we are making one last desperate attempt at personal liberty. But "desperate" is the key word. The young men walking into the deli or sitting next to you on the airplane attired in tank tops and gym shorts should rethink their macho style. The teenagers dressed like clowns deserve only laughs. The women mixing the inmiscible are hard on the eyes. Women, look to the French for style. Men, look to Nat King Cole. Mencken has been dead a long time. Let us, as patriotic Americans, show some taste and put one of his last and truest insights to death thereby. I understand that the dry martini is back in style. That is an auspicious start.

Vicars brothers move "out West"

Museum Mementos

Eloise Lane
White Deer Land Museum

In 1890 Joseph Clark Vicars was the principal of Sugar Tree High School in McConnell, Virginia. Highly skilled in mathematics, he was adept in algebra, geometry, trigonometry and calculus. He was also proficient in English grammar and declared that if Harvey's Grammar (standard text of the time) were burned to ashes, he could reproduce it word for word, syllable by syllable, letter by letter.

In 1906 Joseph Clark Vicars and his brother, Augustus, were coaxed by another brother, James F., to leave Scott County, Va., and move "out West." They spent two years in Pond Creek, Okla., before James F. became convinced that the Texas Panhandle offered greater advantages. The promoters of the White Deer Land Company were offering attractive incentives to lure settlers into their vast domain.

The three brothers bought land and built homes in Pampa. Eventually James F. Vicars moved to San Jose, Calif. Augustus Vicars was killed in a run-away team and wagon accident in 1909.

The family of J. C. and Mattie E. Vicars moved from Pond Creek to Pampa in 1908. They came by train, but their belongings, which included three horses and a cow, were shipped in a boxcar.

They bought an 8-acre tract in west Pampa, and their children were reared in a two-story, four-gabled house on Market Street near the intersection of Wells. Family members had to carry water from the James F. Vicars home one block north until their own well was drilled.

The five children of J. C. and Mattie Vicars were born in Virginia: De Lea in 1891; Edwin Sedley in 1895; Georgia in 1897; Bobbie in 1900 and Kermit in 1904. Georgia and Bobbie married and moved from Pampa. Kermit spent most of his adult life in California, but De Lea and Edwin were permanent residents of Pampa except for Edwin's times of service in the armed forces.

De Lea, nearly seventeen years old when his family moved to Pampa, attended the school at 513 East Francis for the 1908-1909 school term. He "finished" in 1909 — that was all anyone did then.

The entertainment at that time consisted of attending parties, box suppers, baseball and football games and going to the depot in the evenings to watch the activities when passenger trains arrived and departed.

On May 25, 1909, exactly one year after Pampa's first bank became the First National Bank, De Lea eagerly started work there as the boy who swept the floors. His first salary was $15 a month. Then he drew $25 a month while the president of the bank drew $100 a month. He worked his way up through the ranks, and in 1934 he became president of the bank and held that position until 1944.

As long as he lived, De Lea got excited about the bank robbery of March 31, 1927, when five men took $32,542 from the bank after herding employees and customers into the vault and closing the door.

For 20 years De Lea served as chairman of the Selective Service Board for Gray, Donley, Roberts and Wheeler counties. He received a presidential citation from President John F. Kennedy in 1962.

De Lea was a charter member of both the Rotary Club and the Pampa Country Club. He was director and vice-president of Security Savings and Loan and past master of the Pampa Masonic Lodge 966. He was past president of Pampa Chamber of Commerce and gave generously to support numerous civic and charitable organizations.

In 1952 De Lea was treasurer of the committee that planned and executed the 50th anniversary celebration of Gray County and Pampa.

On Nov. 30, 1921, De Lea Vicars and Beryl Wynne were married in Amarillo. Their home at 303 North Frost was built in 1921. They had no children.

Beryl was the daughter of J. S. Wynne and Minna (Davies) Wynne. She and her sister Alice were among the ten pupils who attended the first Pampa school in 1903-1904.

Beryl taught Sunday School in Union Church which met in the school building, and later she taught Sunday school and Bible classes in First Christian Church for more than 40 years. She helped with the first library, located on the second floor of the First National Bank building, and with one of the first day nurseries in Pampa.

As an efficient record keeper and history buff, Beryl had a fantastic collection of pictures, newspaper clippings and memorabilia of the Texas Panhandle which she gladly shared. The

(White Deer Land Museum photos)

White Deer Land Museum has been greatly enriched by her contributions.

Kermit, her brother-in-law, used to say that he remembered Beryl with crochet or knitting needles going 90 miles an hour and her tongue keeping pace.

Beryl's recipes for Caramel Pie (p. 252) and Dutch Cookies (p. 199) are in the Gray County Heritage Cookbook. Following the cookie recipe is this comment: "There's no way to know how many plates of these yummy cookies Beryl took to friends, the sick, the lonely?"

Beryl died in 1974, and De Lea died in 1984.

Edwin S. Vicars, one of the first draftees to leave Pampa during World War I, served from September 1917 to December 1918. In World War II, he enlisted in October 1942, and came back in March 1945. He attained the rank of Lt. Colonel in the U. S. Air Force.

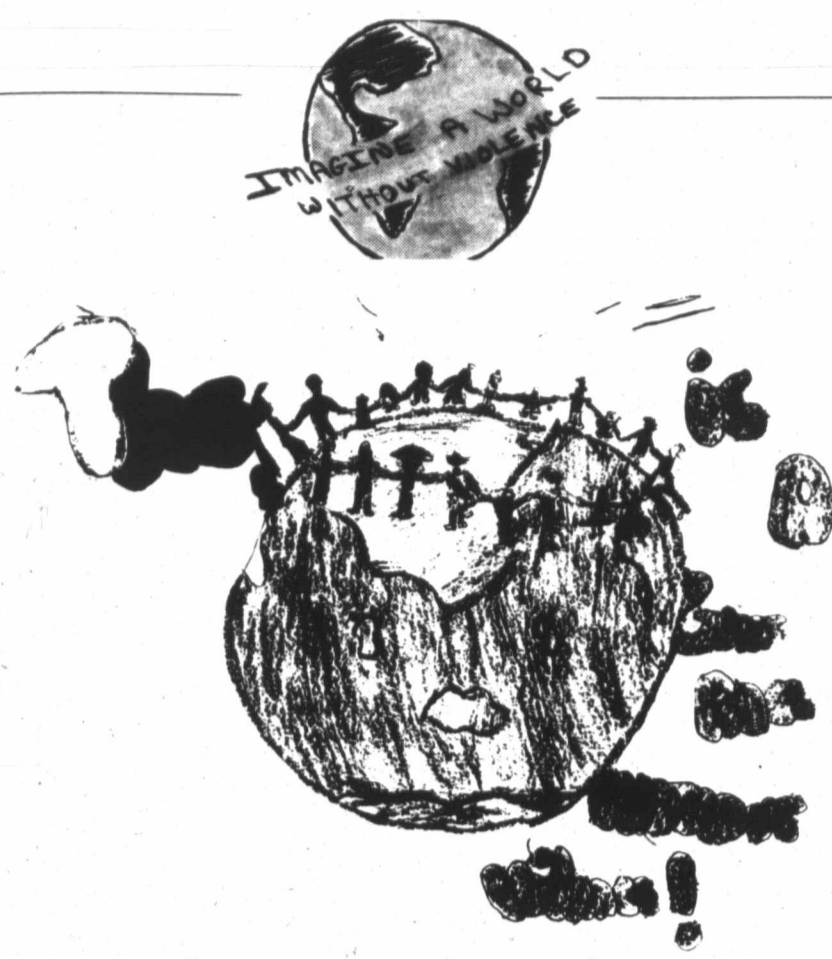

Edwin was a charter member of Pampa Country Club and the Kiwanis Club and had a perfect attendance record of 52 years in Kiwanis. He was vice-president and cashier of the First National Bank when he left to go into service in 1942. When he returned he worked for the City of Pampa from 1945 to 1960 and was city secretary for the last several years. He was past master of Masonic Lodge 966. On May 10, 1923, Edwin married Nina Daugherty, sister of Mrs. Rufe Thompson. Their home was at 608 West Buckler. They had an adopted son, James Edwin, who became a research scientist in California. Nina died in 1955; Edwin died in 1988.

Edwin liked to tell the story of the head-on collision of the cars of Dr. Brunow and Brady Cobb when the cars were the only two on the road in Gray County. He often complained that he always seemed to miss the most exciting events and regretted that he was at home eating lunch when the memorable bank robbery occurred.

Marriage's Bitter Ending Binds a Sweet Beginning

DEAR ABBY: I just read your column and must respond to "Dying Inside in Missouri." I am in my late 40s and have lived through the same experience.

In 1988, after nine years of what I thought was a good marriage, my husband announced that he was "unfulfilled" and wanted a divorce. He swore there was no one else. We had just bought a beautiful home, he had given me a mink coat for Christmas, and after several miscarriages, we were in the process of adopting a baby.

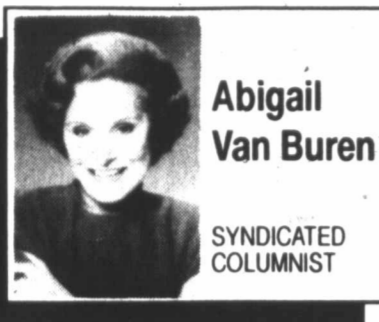

I gave him a divorce. A year later, he impregnated his secretary and married her (in that order). I later learned they had been having an affair for several years.

I thought I was going to die. I became anorexic, lost 25 pounds in two months, and almost ruined my health. Finally, after four months of living in the same town with him, I moved back to California to be with my parents.

I got into counseling, joined a gym, and spent my time with girlfriends, going to plays and movies, dinners, etc.

Sometimes it was hell coming home to an empty house, but I want to tell "Dying Inside" this: Quit feeling sorry for yourself. Get counseling, go to church and take good care of yourself.

That's what I did, and last year I met the most wonderful man in the world — at a Trivial Pursuit tournament! He is honest, kind, loving, and the sexiest man I've ever known. We are being married next Saturday. Abby, please tell your readers that there is life after divorce.

Abigail Van Buren

BETTER THAN EVER IN PIEDMONT, CALIF.

DEAR BETTER THAN EVER: Even the bitterest divorce provides an opportunity for growth. Your letter is an excellent road map for anyone who needs to move on after a traumatic divorce. I hope "Dying Inside" reads this and takes comfort from it.

I wish you much happiness in your new marriage.

DEAR ABBY: You have recently published some letters from mothers of twins — and the incessant (and sometimes "dumb") questions people ask. We had twins, and we also grew tired of people asking, "Are they twins?" So we made a sign that read, "Yes, they are!" and placed it on their double stroller. Everyone knew what it meant, and that question was never asked again.

GUS AND MONELL ORMBREK, PORT ANGELES, WASH.

P.S. We loved every minute of parenting our twins.

DEAR GUS AND MONELL: That's what my mother used to say, but how she could "love" every minute of washing twice as many diapers and preparing twice as many bottles is beyond me.

It couldn't have been easy raising twins who talked non-stop and collaborated in mischief-making. We really were cute, but she always called us "monkeys" because she didn't want us to grow up to be conceited. What memories!

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Horoscope

Tuesday, June 6, 1995

In the year ahead, you could be unusually lucky in progressive, imaginative endeavors. If you think you have a winning project, talk to people who like to market futuristic products.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are an innately persistent and tenacious individual when it comes to achieving practical objectives, but today you might back away from things that don't come easily. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Resist the inclination to put down the ideas and suggestions of others today just because you didn't think of them first. Others will see through your little game.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Stay on your guard today in business or financial matters. Avoid making any commitments that have not been thoroughly researched.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although your intentions will be for the good of all, let companions share in the decision-making process today. What they have to offer might be better.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Responsibilities you have failed to attend to might need to be completed today. These distasteful tasks will not improve with time, finish them now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) When socializing with friends today, do not judge them harshly if they disagree with your opinions or views. They probably will.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is one of those days when you might not work well under pressure. Schedule your time wisely to allow adequate wiggle room.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not discuss promising new ideas prematurely today, especially with a close friend who lacks your imagination and vision.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Trying to be a nice guy is an admirable effort, but there's no need to be easygoing when dealing with someone who is hard-nosed and selfish.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you negotiate an important matter on a one-to-one basis today, remain realistic about your expectations. You might get a good deal, but not a great one.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Recently, you pledged to do something for a friend and he/she took your promise seriously. If you fail to comply by today, the relationship could suffer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may feel rather lighthearted today, but you may select companions who are unduly dreary or too serious. They could take the edge off your fun.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Now comes the real test for Shaquille O'Neal.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Shaq's shack remains the Magic's kingdom.

With a dominating performance at home, the Orlando Magic won the biggest game in franchise history Sunday. Shaquille O'Neal had 25 points and 11 rebounds to spark a 105-81 victory over Indiana in Game 7 of the NBA Eastern Conference finals.

"Next season," Pacers guard Mark Jackson said, "we have to establish that if there's a Game 7, it's in Indiana."

The Magic will have the home-court advantage again for their first appearance in the NBA Finals. They face defending league champion Houston beginning Wednesday at the Orlando Arena.

The rout of Indiana was serenaded by a deafening sellout crowd of 16,010.

"They were super," said Magic guard Anfernee Hardaway, who scored 17 points. "They were the real sixth man for us."

The home team won every game in the series. That made the difference for the Magic, whose 39-2 regular-season home record was the NBA's best. The Pacers finished the season with a record of 0-6 at Orlando, including 0-4 in the playoffs.

Following Indiana's 123-96 victory in Game 6, O'Neal issued a plea for Magic fans to make plenty of noise Sunday. They did just that, and as Orlando's lead increased, so did the decibel level.

"Shaquille came to me and said, 'They're not loud enough,'" Hardaway recalled with a laugh. "I couldn't hear him say, 'They're not loud enough.' He had to repeat himself. So they were great."

The young Magic weren't bad, either. Playing in a Game 7 for the first time in the franchise's six-year history, Orlando shot 57 percent and limited nemesis Reggie Miller to 12 points, 16 below his average for the series. The Magic starters outscored Indiana's 89-51.

"I don't know when I've seen a team play better in such an important game," Pacers coach Larry Brown said. "They were sensational."

The bottom line: a 51-point turnaround from Friday's game.

"Whenever we get our brains beat out like that, we respond to the challenge," Magic forward Horace Grant said. "I think it was the best thing that could have happened to us."

O'Neal looked unstoppable at times in the biggest game of his career. The 7-foot-1 center hit 11-of-15 shots after a night of little rest.

"It was hard for me to sleep," he said. "I was just dreaming about what I had to do. I called (teammate) Dennis Scott a couple of times and he just said, 'Relax, man, let me sleep.'"

Giving the Pacers fits at the other end of the court was Nick Anderson, whose defense cooled off Miller. The Indiana guard took only 13 shots, missed eight and never reached the free-throw line.

"I take the burden for this loss," Miller said. "I feel bad for the guys because I didn't play particularly well. They should have nothing to put their heads down about. This is definitely Reggie Miller blowing it for them."

The other Pacers failed to compensate. Indiana shot just 37 percent. The Magic did better than that from 3-point range, hitting 13-of-27, including 5-of-7 by Scott. "They were making shots and the crowd got behind them," Indiana forward Derrick McKey said.

For the second consecutive year, the Pacers fell one game shy of the finals. A year ago today, Indiana lost to the New York Knicks 94-90 in Game 7 of the conference finals.

"This is probably a little more disappointing," Miller said. "Last year a lot of guys were just excited to be in the Eastern Conference finals."

This year's elimination left the Pacers bitter. Jackson complained that the Magic kept their starters on the court even when the outcome was evident.

"It's a total lack of class, lack of respect, to leave your guys in the game until 52 seconds to go, up 25 points," Jackson said. "You just don't do that."

Magic coach Brian Hill declined to respond. Hardaway shrugged off Jackson's complaint.

"We're a young team, and coach just wanted us to enjoy it," Hardaway said. "That's not anything to get mad about."

AUTO RACING

MILWAUKEE (AP) — One thing Paul Tracy has learned the hard way in his four seasons of Indy-car racing is that it takes some thinking and some luck not to beat yourself.

On Sunday, he put some thought into catching and passing Al Unser Jr., then used a little luck to keep from hitting the wall as he went on to win the Miller Genuine Draft 200 at the Milwaukee Mile.

The 26-year-old Canadian, known for an aggressive — sometimes foolhardy — style that has involved him in a number of crashes, showed once again he is maturing as a race driver with a solid effort on the way to his second win of the season and 10th of his career.

FOOTBALL

DALLAS (AP) — The membership of the College Football Association voted Sunday to keep the organization intact despite the loss of some of its television contracting powers.

The CFA's viability had been questioned since many of the association's affiliated conferences had negotiated their own television agreements beginning in 1996.

The 19th annual meetings, which ended Sunday, had focused largely on gender equity issues and football coaches' need to help develop "practical" tests for compliance to the Title IX law.

Among the propositions the CFA membership will make to the NCAA at its 1996 convention is the concept of one vote per Division I-A member. The CFA also supported the creation of an allied membership category for I-AA schools.

Other proposals the CFA will make to the NCAA are:

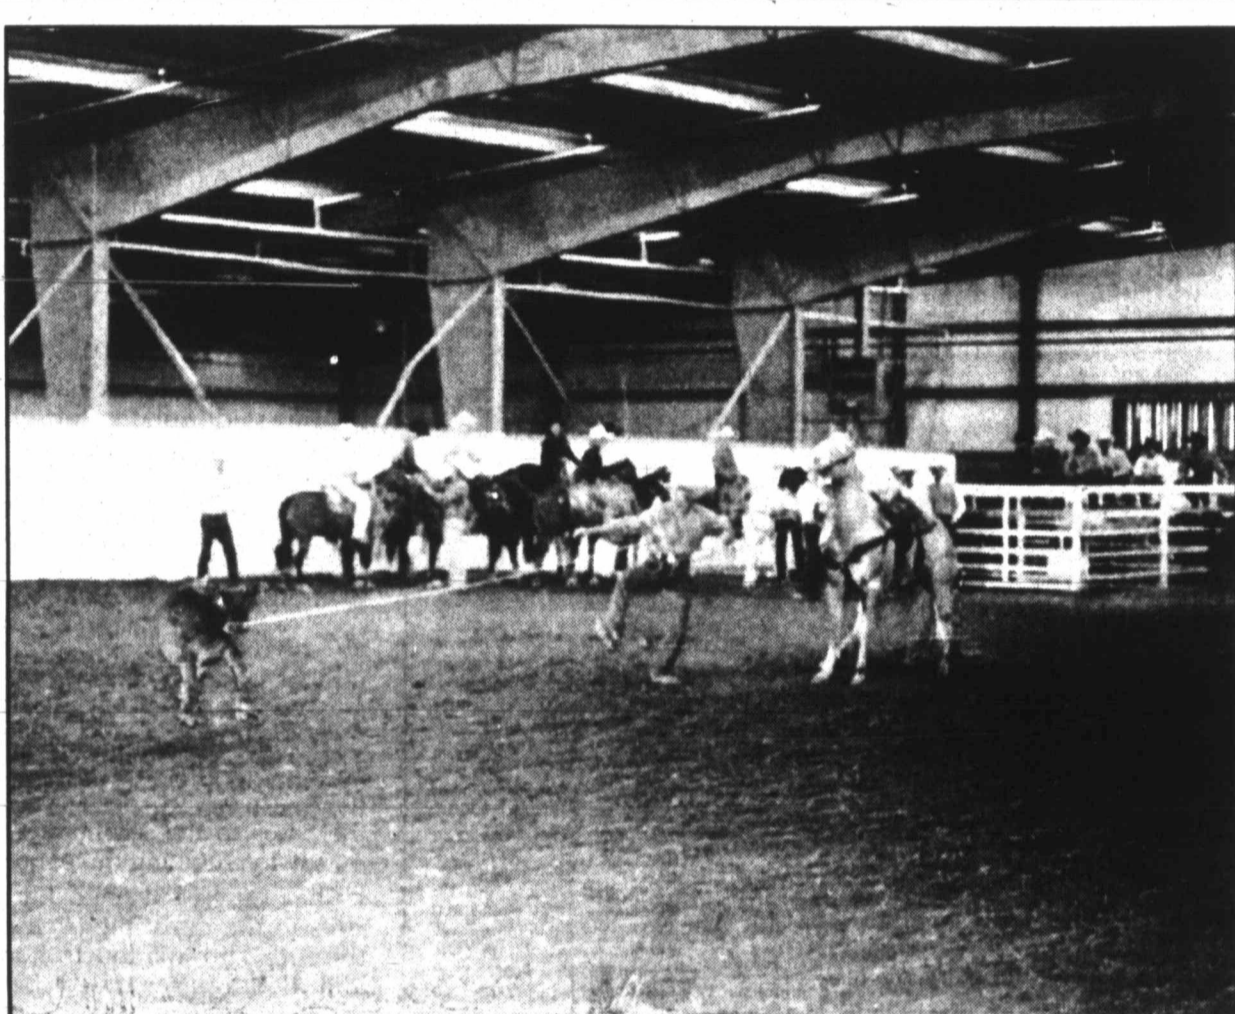

—To abolish the restricted earnings coach category in all sports in favor of use of graduate assistant coaches.

—Allow one football victory against a Division I-AA opponent to be considered applicable to the six-win requirement for bowl games.

—Allow students to receive athletically-related financial aid the summer prior to their first term of enrollment.

—Encourage opportunities for minorities as graduate assistants in football.

The CFA was formed in 1977 to serve as a forum for athletic administrators and coaches to discuss matters unique to major college football. It was not until 1984 that the association became involved with the negotiation of television.

Tettleton sparks Rangers past Twins, 7-2

ARLINGTON (AP) — With slugging third baseman Dean Palmer sidelined for the rest of the season, the Texas Rangers need increased power contributions from the rest of their lineup.

Mickey Tettleton delivered Sunday afternoon, homering twice and driving in six runs to send the Rangers past the Minnesota Twins, 7-2.

"It was kind of like a MASH unit out there," Tettleton said. "It's a big blow losing Dino. But you've got to go out there and play the hand you're dealt."

Injuries have taken a toll on the Rangers offense. Palmer became the latest casualty Saturday night, suffering a torn biceps tendon. Right fielder Rusty Greer and catcher Ivan Rodriguez were also on the bench with injuries Sunday.

"After the injury yesterday, everybody knew that they'd have to step it up a notch," Rangers first baseman Will Clark said. "Today Mickey stepped it up a whole lot."

Sooners sent packing in College World Series

By TOM VINT

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Monster home runs were the telling blows that kept Miami unbeaten in the College World Series and sent defending champion Oklahoma home.

Danny Buxbaum's three-run homer deep down the left-field line in the first inning gave J.D. Artega all the lead he needed as third-seeded Miami beat No. 2 Florida State 4-2 Sunday in a winners' bracket game.

On Sunday night, All-America Geoff Jenkins hit a ball over the 28-foot wall beyond the 408-foot sign in center field to ignite a seven-run second inning that gave Southern Cal a 9-4 victory over Oklahoma in the losers' bracket.

Miami's win gives the Hurricanes (48-15) a few days off. They will wait until Wednesday to meet the survivor of Tuesday's elimination game between Florida State (53-15) and No. 6 Southern Cal (46-20).

In today's games, Cal State Fullerton (54-9) meets Tennessee (53-14) in a winners' bracket game, while Stanford (39-24) and Clemson (54-13) meet in an elimination game.

Bruce Thompson and Rudy Gomez singled off Florida State starter David Yocum (12-3) before Buxbaum hit his 14th homer. It was Buxbaum's third this season off Yocum, the left-handed All-American who was selected No. 20 by the Los Angeles Dodgers in last week's draft.

"Buxbaum has done an amazing job against us," Florida State coach Mike Martin said.

"I can't explain it," Buxbaum said. "Yocum is a great pitcher. We do a great job of hitting against him. He threw a hanging breaking ball. It looked great. I just hit it out."

"I felt all right," said Yocum, who lasted only one-third of an inning. "My fastball was good. Buxbaum was the only mistake."

That was all Artega needed. After he finally had his chance to pitch following a one-hour, 33-minute rain delay that followed the four-run Miami top of the first, he tossed a seven-hitter with no walks and three strikeouts.

"Basically I got ready three times for the game today," he said. "The rain delay didn't affect me. I had good control, good command, didn't walk anyone. I let our defense do its job."

Artega (11-2), who had been involved in two no-decisions against Florida State earlier this year, looked like a new pitcher to the Sooners.

"Artega's learned some new pitch," said Florida State's Doug Mientkiewicz, who caught him in high school. "I don't know what it is, but I can't hit it. This was J.D. Artega at his finest."

Charlie Cruz came on in relief of Yocum to keep Miami in check the rest of the way with the help of five double plays which tied a CWS record set by Southern Cal against Wake Forest in 1949.

Jenkins started a seven-run second for Southern Cal with his long and lofty homer off Sooners starter Ryan Minor (1-1). Minor, who then failed to cover first base on a grounder to his first-baseman twin brother Damon, gave up homers to Ernie Diaz with one on and to Was Rachels before Dax Powell came on in relief.

"I make that play and we win the game," Ryan Minor said. "I didn't do my job. Damon made a great play."

Before the inning was done, Southern Cal had a walk and three straight RBI doubles off Powell and reliever Toby Wilmot. Jenkins had one of those doubles and added an RBI single later.

"Throw out the second inning and it was a close ball game," Oklahoma coach Larry Cochell said. "That's the one that did us in. One play never wins the ballgame, but it was worth six runs."

Greg Walbridge also homered for the Trojans.

"We came out and got some good hits early," Jenkins said. "We got up on them and got confidence at the plate. And Randy (Flores) threw a gem."

Flores (12-3) scattered 11 hits and left nine Sooners on base.

"My heart was thumping," Flores said. "Even though the ball was getting hit hard, the seven-run inning added to my confidence."

The only other time the Sooners (42-16) went home winless in nine CWS appearances was 1976. Southern Cal is in the tournament for the first time since winning the last of its 11 national titles in 1978.

Furlan overcomes shaky start in French Open

PARIS (AP) — Renzo Furlan of Italy overcame a shaky start Monday to win his fourth-round match against Scott Draper, a little-known qualifier from Australia who had engineered three straight upsets at the French Open.

The 135th-ranked Draper, celebrating his 21st birthday on Center Court, began the match with seeming invincibility — mixing aces and ground-stroke winners to build a quick 4-0 lead.

Furlan, trailing 5-2, took command, winning 10 straight games as Draper's errors multiplied.

Though Draper settled down in the final set, Furlan rolled to a 7-5, 6-1, 7-6 (8-6) victory.

Draper was able to connect on only 51 percent of his first serves and made 64 unforced errors to 35 for Furlan.

Furlan, ranked 61st, had never before reached a Grand Slam fourth round. He will play in the quarterfinals against either defending champion Sergi Bruguera or Magnus Larsson.

Bruguera is among three co-favorites for the men's title who have been extending remarkable winning streaks.

His third-round victory Sunday gave him 17 straight triumphs at the French Open since he began marching toward the first of two straight titles in 1993.

Andre Agassi, the top seed, has now won 18 Grand Slam matches in a row in a streak that encompasses his U.S. and Australian Open crowns.

Thomas Muster, who joined Agassi in the quarterfinals, has

Norman wins second Memorial Tournament

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Two holes in which he avoided disaster were the key to Greg Norman's second Memorial Tournament victory.

"How about talking about the other 16 holes I played well?" Norman joked in the Muirfield Village Golf Club interview room.

But there was no getting away from the two or three key holes that enabled Norman to hold off Mark Calcavecchia, Steve Elkington and David Duval and win by a deceptive four-stroke margin.

The par-3 12th hole was a perfect example.

Standing on the steep slope behind the hole, Norman flopped his chip out of the deep and wet rough to within inches to save par.

He followed that with a birdie at 14 and dramatic pars from deep trouble at both 15 and 16.

On 15, Norman hit his drive to a wet sidehill lie to the left, then bashed his second shot into the woods on the right side of the fairway. Next he aimed a shot through a 5-foot gap in trees some 24 feet in front of him, then chipped up and hit the short par putt.

On the par-3 16th, he hit his drive into a gaping sand trap. Standing several feet below the level of the green, he blasted out to 3 feet and hit another par putt.

Then he put the tournament — and the $306,000 paycheck — away with birdies on the last two holes.

Norman's closing 6-under-par 66 followed rounds of 66, 70 and 67 that left him at 19-under 269, just one shot back of the tournament record set a year ago by Tom Lehman.

"Nobody else really had a chance today," said Duval, who shot a 68 and still couldn't keep up with Norman.

Norman won the 1990 Memorial without firing a shot on Sunday when the final round was cancelled because of heavy rains. Last year, he finished second behind Lehman.

Norman won despite taking the last six weeks off, partly to rest his aching back and partly to take a break from his hectic schedule.

Calcavecchia shot a final-round 67, as did Elkington, while Duval had a 68 to finish at 15-under 273. Duval finished second for the third time this season, breaking Ernie Els' year-old record for rookie earnings.

Astros sweep over Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — Before their three-game homestand with the Houston Astros, the Atlanta Braves were in a slide. A sweep by the visitors has turned it into a full-fledged slump.

"To beat this team three games is huge," second baseman Craig Biggio said Sunday after the Astros beat Tom Glavine and the Braves 6-2. It was Atlanta's fifth straight loss, their longest losing streak since April 1993.

"They have a great team. Their pitching staff is one of the best in the National League," said Biggio, who had a home run in the Astros' three-run fifth inning.

Glavine overcame his usual first-inning jitters by striking out the first three batters. He loaded the bases in the second with no outs before fanning three more.

Then Derek Bell singled in two runs in the third. Biggio led off the fifth with his fourth homer, and Bell later singled before Luis Gonzalez hit his fifth homer of the year for a 5-0 lead.

Glavine (4-2) allowed nine hits and five runs in five innings and dropped to 5-10 in his career against Houston, which swept three games in Atlanta for the first time since 1989.

"If someone had told me we'd beat John Smoltz, Greg Maddux and Tom Glavine, I would have told them they were absolutely crazy," Houston manager Terry Collins said.

But it isn't the pitching that has Atlanta down. The Braves are hitting .201 and have scored 16 runs in the last eight games.

"It's no secret, our pitching is there. That's going to carry us. We just need to contribute a little bit with the bats," Atlanta manager Bobby Cox said.

"We did hit the ball this weekend, just not in bunches and not at the right time. The ball seemed to jump around pretty well. I'm not going to change the lineup. What you see is basically our club, and I'm confident they will start hitting."

'Sunset Boulevard' dominates Tony Awards, winning seven prizes overall

NEW YORK (AP) — Ready for your Tony Award, Miss Close.

As expected, Sunset Boulevard dominated the 1995 Tonys, winning seven prizes, including best Broadway musical and a top acting honor for its star, Glenn Close.

Love! Valour! Compassion! by Terrence McNally was chosen best play.

Matthew Broderick, who had to take singing and dancing lessons for his role as an ambitious window washer in How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, won as best actor in a musical.

Ralph Fiennes, who was nominated for an Oscar for Schindler's List, won the Tony as best actor in a play, for his Hamlet.

The Heiress, a stage adaptation of the Henry James novel Washington Square, took home four awards.

Cherry Jones who plays the cruelly deceived title character was named best actress in a play. She exulted as she picked up the prize.

Frances Sternhagen, a veteran character performer who plays a flighty, fidgety aunt, was chosen best featured, or supporting, actress. Gerald Gutierrez won as best director for The Heiress and the play won in the best revival category.

The 1927 Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein musical, Show Boat, won five Tony Awards, for best revival of a musical; best direction, Harold Prince; best featured actress, Gretha Boston as actress, Gretha Boston as Queenie; best costume design, Florence Klotz; best choreography, Susan Stroman.

"Here's to life on the wicked stage," said Stroman, quoting a song in Show Boat.

The Tony Awards were presented in the Minskoff Theater, against Norma Desmond's lavish living room for Sunset Boulevard.

The musical received Tony Awards in two categories where it had no competition, score of a musical for composer Andrew Lloyd Webber and lyricists Don Black and Christopher Hampton, and book of a musical, for Black and Hampton, who adapted the famous Billy Wilder film.

Other Tonys for Sunset Boulevard were won by George Hearn, best featured actor in a musical; John Napier, scenery, and Andrew Bridge, lighting.

Hearn, who shaves his head to play a butler, gave "special thanks to the hair department."

John Glover, who plays twins summer, won the Tony as best featured actor in a play.

Nathan Lane, a host along with dancer Gregory Hines and Close, perked up the show with a comic edge to his lines and three costume changes.

Once, he appeared in the wrap-around bib apron he wears in Love! Valour! Compassion! In the play, it's obvious when he turns around that he is wearing nothing else. On Tony night, he didn't turn around.

He made a running joke of not being nominated for a Tony. After

He made a running joke of not being nominated for a Tony. After CBS-TV cut off the show, playwright McNally made his acceptance speech and Lane entered carrying a Tony Award. "I found it in an empty box," he said, and put it inside his tuxedo jacket.

The awards celebrated a sparse Broadway season, with only 28 productions opened on Broadway during the 1994-95 season, and half were old plays and musicals. Thirty-seven shows arrived the previous year.

Despite the drop in activity, Broadway attendance climbed to its highest level in 12 years, reaching 9.3 million compared with 8.1 million the previous year. Ticket sales also surged, reaching a record $406 million, up from $356 million the year before.

Special Tony Awards for lifetime achievement went to Carol Channing, who is touring in Hello, Dolly!, and Harvey Sabinson, retiring as executive director of the League of Producers after 50 years in the theater. A Tony Honor was given to the National Endowment for the Arts and accepted by its chairman, actress Jane Alexander.

The special Tony Award for regional theater went to the Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam, Conn.

Tony Awards, founded in 1947 to honor the best new entries in a Broadway season, are voted by 714 theater professionals and journalists from nominees chosen by a 17-member committee.

Jurors to view graphic pictures of victims

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jumble of numbers and letters that dominated testimony during the DNA testimony in the O.J. Simpson trial gives way today to grim autopsy pictures and coroner descriptions of killing knife wounds.

The chief coroner for Los Angeles County returns to the witness stand to discuss the autopsies on the knife-slashed bodies of Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and her 25-year-old friend Ronald Goldman.

Coroner Lakshmanan Sathyavagiswaran is expected to show jurors photos from before and during the autopsies — photos that the defense had unsuccessfully tried to keep from the jury.

The coroner's graphic testimony will be in stark contrast to the jury's weekend fare: At a secret locale, the sequestered panel watched an improvisational comedy troupe.

Back in court, they'll have a look at the autopsy photos that are so grisly the judge told them not to be shy about asking for breaks.

The prosecution contends the pictures graphically illustrate not only the horrors of the killings, but just how Simpson allegedly committed them.

Under the prosecution theory, Simpson pinned his ex-wife to the ground on her stomach, yanked her head back by grabbing her blond hair, and slashed her throat.

Goldman, prosecutors say, was cornered in a gated-in area and brutally knifed to death.

The prosecution also is counting on the pictures and the erudite testimony of the respected coroner to divert attention from flawed autopsies performed in the case.

Sathyavagiswaran acknowledged recently that one of his pathologists, Deputy Medical Examiner Irwin Golden, made errors in the autopsies.

Golden, who is expected to testify after Sathyavagiswaran, emerged as a poor witness during the preliminary hearing. In addition to an edgy manner on the stand, he waffled in his testimony about what weapons were used.

Robert Pugsley, a law professor at Southwestern University, said he expects the prosecution to rely on Sathyavagiswaran and the photos to defuse the defense's criticism of Golden.

"What it will do is preoccupy the jury with the emotional photographic evidence of what they're seeing," Pugsley said.

The defense contends that Golden's failure to save Ms. Simpson's stomach contents eliminated one way of double-checking the prosecution's estimate of the times of the murders, pinned at about 10:15 p.m. last June 12.

The defense has suggested the killings occurred later.

Golden also failed to note some of the victims' wounds in his autopsy reports, and an internal coroner's office memorandum listed a number of other potential problems with the way evidence was handled.

The defense argued that the gory photographic evidence would cause jurors to become emotional to the point of irrationality.

It is the same sort of argument that the prosecution made in effort to prevent the defense from uttering a racial slur in front of the black-majority jury during Detective Mark Furrman's testimony.
