President Nixon Heading Toward Summit Meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon headed today for his third Summit meeting in a little over two years with Soviet leaders, expressing hope his new "journey for peace" would help avoid a runaway arms race and a danger of world war.

Nixon flew first to Brussels for meetings with some of the top leaders of NATO countries — with the aim of giving "new purpose and direction" to the alliance—before going to Moscow Thursday.

In a brief departure ceremony at Andrews Air Force Base, just outside Washington, Nixon said that "as we take off on another journey for peace," his aim at the Moscow Summit was threefold:

"First, we expect to strengthen the bilateral relations between the two strongest nations in the world.

"Second, we hope to develop areas of cooperation to displace confrontation in other critical areas of the world that might be those places where conflict could develop between the two great powers.

"And third, we hope to make more progress on a goal that we began to achieve and move forward toward in 1972 of limiting both the burden and also the threat of nuclear arms over our two nations and over the world generally."

The President seemed in good spirits, having apparently recovered strength from the fatiguing Mideast trip. He also showed no sign, in his public appearances on leaving the White House and at the airbase, of the limp resulting from an attack of phlebitis in the leg that afflicted while he was on his way to the Mideast.

He expressed confidence, in his departure statement, that most Americans "are united behind the efforts we are making to attempt to resolve differences that otherwise would lead to a runaway arms race and otherwise would lead to confrontation not only between two great powers but all over the world."

Nixon leaves behind, as he did when he went to the Mideast for the first meeting by a President with leaders of three Arab countries in their own capitals, the multifaceted Watergate scandals, with Congress in the process of an impeachment inquiry.

He made no reference to his domestic problems as he outlined his hopes for the Moscow summit, including further steps to limit the arms race.

"These are very great goals and like all great goals, they are difficult to achieve just as was the case of the goals we sought to achieve on our first trip to the Mideast," he said. "But we are confident that when we look at these goals not only must we seek to achieve them but we believe that we can achieve them."

The President added, "And we know that (with) American strength, American resolve and, above all, American determination and dedication, that we will be able to make progress on this long but vitally important journey for peace, not only for America but for all mankind."

This third Nixon Summit with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev follows previous Nixon-Brezhnev meetings in Moscow in May, 1972—when they signed the first phase of nuclear arms control agreements — and a Brezhnev visit to the United States last June.

Representatives of the Soviet and Belgian embassies saw Nixon off at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., just outside Washington, as he, his wife and a high-level delegation led by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger left for Brussels. He goes on to Moscow Thursday.

Nixon showed no sign of the limp that resulted from an attack of phlebitis in the leg and was in good spirits as he left on his second long, arduous journey this month.

Nixon was dressed in his familiar dark blue suit and his wife was wearing a dark blue dress with a red patterned blouse as they departed at 8:42 a.m. EDT, 12 minutes behind schedule on the nonstop flight to Brussels.

The Nixon daughters, Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, rode with their parents by helicopter from the White House to the airbase for the final sendoff.

Missiles Debate Erupting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As President Nixon headed for Moscow summit talks to seek more progress on nuclear arms control, a sudden debate flared at home concerning his last major nuclear pact with the Soviets in 1972.

The dispute began Friday, when Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., announced he had received "rather startling" information that the May 26, 1972, U.S.-Soviet agreement limiting offensive missiles had been secretly reinterpreted to give the Russians more missiles and the United States less — without telling Congress.

On Monday, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger held a 70-minute news conference mostly devoted to Jackson's charges, which Kissinger called "false in every detail."

Jackson had said that a secret agreement allowed the Russians to replace 70 missiles aboard its elderly, diesel-powered G-class submarines, which he said would allow them a total of 1,020 submarine-launched missiles instead of the 950 publicly announced on President Nixon's last visit to Moscow in 1972.

Ceiling Still Stands

Kissinger replied that the 950 ceiling still stands, and was specifically reinforced in a subsequent agreement of interpretation between the two countries.

Furthermore, he said, even if the Russians wanted to claim a "super-legal interpretation" of the original agreement in order to put modern missiles in elderly, vulnerable, short range submarines, it would be "absurd" for them to do so.

Jackson's second point was that the 1972 agreement allowed the United States 710 submarine-launched missiles, but that the Nixon administration secretly told the Soviets it would in fact deploy only 656.

Kissinger replied that this was done after the top U.S. military leaders told him they did not plan to build as many Poseidon submarines as the agreement allowed but would wait for the Trident submarine, still on the drawing boards, to come along until after 1977. The 1972 agreement only runs until 1977, and the Tridents are not covered by it.

Kissinger then went into a three-hour, closed-door session with an armed services subcommittee headed by Jackson. A congressional source said the session was acrimonious, starting with Kissinger's "resenting" having to be sworn in.

KEEPING COOL — The News carrier Steve Monogue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Monogue, 1001 N. Somerville, has found a way to stay cool during the hot and humid weather which has been in the area for the past couple of weeks. He simply ties his shirt around his neck and uses the bag as a ventilated covering.

IN NEWSPAPERS

Judges Overrule Free Reply Right

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today unanimously struck down a Florida law granting political candidates the right to free reply space in newspapers in which they are criticized.

Mississippi is the only other state with such a law but it was believed other states might enact one if Florida's had been found valid. Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., has suggested Congress consider a federal right-to-reply law.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, writing for the Court, said "compelling editors or publishers to publish that which 'reason tells them should not be published' is what is at issue in this case."

He said the statute operates as a command in the same sense as a statute or regulation forbidding a paper to publish something. The law violates the First Amendment guarantee of a free press, he said.

The Miami Herald brought the Florida case to the high court after the state Supreme Court upheld the 1913 law on July 18, 1973.

The statute called for fines and jail terms for violation of the requirement to allow a candidate to reply to any publication which "assails personal character," charges "malfeasance or misfeasance" in office, or "otherwise attacks his official record."

The Herald was sued by Pat L. Tornillo, a Democratic candidate in 1972 for a seat in the Florida House of Representatives. As head of the Classroom Teachers Association, he was a well-known figure in the community.

Tornillo invoked the law after the Herald rejected his demand to print replies to editorials against his candidacy.

Dade County Judge Francis J. Christie dismissed the case but was reversed by the state Supreme Court.

Burger said the law exacted a penalty on the basis of the content of a newspaper by imposing additional printing, composing and materials costs and by taking up space that could be devoted to other material the newspaper may have preferred to print.

Even if this were not so, the opinion said, the law still failed to clear First Amendment barriers because of its "intrusion into the function of editors."

"A newspaper is more than a passive receptacle or conduit for news, comment and advertising," Burger said. "The choice of material to go into a newspaper and the decisions made as to limitations on the size of the paper, and content, and treatment of public issues and public officials—whether fair or unfair—constitutes the exercise of editorial control and judgment."

C-C Directors Meeting Slated

The June directors' meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will be at 10:45 a.m. Wednesday in the chamber office when awards will be presented to winners of the recent membership campaign. The presentation will be made by Melvin Kunkel, finance director.

Reports will be given on the July 4th program, Top of Texas Beauty Pageant, City Beautification, Bicentennial coin sales, Top of Texas Rodeo, Korean labor program and other chamber activities.

Gene Steel, chamber vice president, will preside in the absence of president Rex McAnelly, who will be out of the city on business.

Commission Okays Electric Rate Hike

By TEX DEWEESE

The average electric bill of Pampa residential and commercial consumers will be hiked approximately ten percent with the first billing in September.

The city commission today approved a resolution granting the rate increase to Southwestern Public Service Co.

The vote on motion of Commissioner Joe Curtis and a second by Commissioner Leo Braswell was unanimous.

Ward 4 commissioner Linden Shepherd, elected in last Tuesday's special election and sworn in at today's meeting, failed in an attempt to have the rate increase cut in half for persons depending solely on Social Security and state aid.

Melvin Kunkel, SWPS local manager, and other commissioners said it would be difficult to determine who would be entitled to the rate reduction. Kunkel also said it would be discriminatory to ask other consumers to bear the brunt of any rate reduction to one segment of the utility's customers.

The new rate increase, according to Kunkel, will add about $1.38 a month to the bill of the average 500-watt residential consumer in Pampa.

Questioned by Commissioner Shepherd, Kunkel said the rate increase did not affect current rates of the City of Pampa or parochial and public schools which are under separate contracts.

In other business today the commission:

Appointed Commissioner Curtis to succeed resigned commissioner Arthur Rohde as one of Pampa's two representatives on the General Assembly of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission. Mayor R.D. Wilkerson is the other representative.

Approved on final reading an ordinance expanding the mobile home zone in the south central portion of the city.

Continued hearings on a proposal to remove abandoned buildings at 623 N. Cuyler and 317 Perry and ordered removed abandoned buildings at 534-36 Crawford.

The commission will hold an executive session in City Hall at 4 p.m. Thursday to discuss a lawsuit concerning the determination of operation and maintenance costs for city members of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

Gardening is an anatomical experience. You wind up with an ear of corn, a head of cabbage, and a bellyful of gardening. Safety note: It isn't the used cars that are a highway menace — it's the mis-used cars. There's a burglar so successful (reports Blackie Sherrill), that he won't make house calls anymore. This electronic age has its drawbacks. Parents who once bored you with pictures of their kids now play their tape recordings for you. (For more laughs see Earl Wilson on Page 3.)

ALL YOU NEED IS A PROGRAM

Gasoline Prices Situation Still Uncertain

By FRANK BAIN

There's an old saying in the sports world to the effect that "if you ain't got a program, you can't tell who's playing."

This may help the concessionaire who's selling programs in the bleachers, but even with a program the fan may have trouble figuring out who's on first.

It helps, of course, if he's an expert and keeps his score card right up to snuff on substitutions, and knows the game and the players well enough to distinguish Smith from Jones in a cloud of dust around the bag.

What we're leading up to here is that, regarding the current situation on gasoline prices and availability in and around Pampa, the hapless motorist has company — his friendly but equally hapless filling station operator.

It helps if they've both got a program and can follow it.

A couple of weeks ago the Pampa Daily News contacted 14 service stations up and down Highway 60 and published the going rate for a gallon of regular, ethyl and unleaded gasoline.

The prices varied widely.

Today, we tried the same thing again, with a different list of stations, but with the same results.

Prices quoted around town show some have gone up, others have gone down and still others have remained stable.

The gap between the lowest price and the highest is still about 10 cents a gallon.

But new federal regulations are beginning to have an effect, and that's where the program business comes in.

The Federal Energy Office has some regulations and so does the Environmental Protection Agency.

The News talked with a gasoline jobber, a wholesaler and about a dozen service station operators.

The jobber said the new, no-lead gasoline must be offered by July 1, since the new 1975 model cars can't operate efficiently on leaded gas.

But not all stations will be required to stock the no-lead. Only those (got your program handy?) who last year sold 200,000 gallons.

Okay so far? But wait, stations classed as "rural" only need to have sold 150,000 gallons to come under the mandatory no-lead deal.

Regardless the price-cut some stations have introduced from time to time, the wholesaler says that's strictly temporary and that things now are "too unsettled" for predictions, what with adjustments due to cost-control regulations, and the mandatory allocation of gasoline.

And about stocking up on that un-lead gas, some local stations are having problems, and if they've got problems, you, and I have problems, right?

For instance, some stations have only two underground storage tanks, one for regular, the other for ethyl. The ethyl must be pumped out to make room for the un-lead, so — no ethyl at those stations.

The News tried Monday to get recent and official information from government sources on this rather (pardon the pun) fluid situation. Help was promised "as soon as possible."

Meanwhile, the motorist fastens his seat-belt and heads into the setting sun.

How about that station up ahead? How many gallons did he sell last year? Is he rural or urban? Should I get ethyl or regular? What's my car's octane rating? What's the station's allocation?

Did he dump his ethyl for no-lead? Can I burn regular without harm? And what did I do with those regulations? Oh yes, they've been promised.

Meanwhile, anyone claiming to know who's on first should contact his friendly home town newspaper.

Guerrillas Take Reprisal Blame

United Press International

The military command of the Palestinian guerrillas assumed responsibility for an attack early today on the Israeli seacoast town of Nahariyya and said it was a reprisal for Israeli air raids on Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon.

Seven persons were killed, including an Israeli woman and her two children who tried to escape the guerrillas by jumping out a window.

The three attacking guerrillas were cut down when Israeli troops blasted their way into an apartment building where they were holding out. An Israeli soldier also was killed. Six soldiers and a civilian were wounded.

that more attempts may be made by sea because the guerrillas might be finding it harder to cross the frontier by land," an Israeli military spokesman said after inspecting the rubber raft.

In another guerrilla attack, the Israeli military command reported several mortar shells fired early today at the border town of Qiryat Shemona, where 28 Israelis were killed in a guerrilla attack last May. The command said the mortar fire was returned and there were no casualties.

The statement of the Palestinian general command did not identify the organization to which the three Arab attackers belonged, but other guerrilla sources in Beirut said they belonged to Al Fatah, the largest guerrilla organization.

The guerrillas landed at the resort of Nahariyya, a town of 25,000 persons four miles south of the Lebanese border.

They came in from the Mediterranean on a gray rubber equipped with an outboard motor and touched shore about 200 yards from the three-story apartment building, an Israeli military spokesman said.

Heavy Fire

Neighbors said the assault began an hour before midnight and ended 3 1/2 hours later when army troops stormed the white concrete and stone building under heavy fire.

"There is a possibility

Rotary To Hold Installation Of New Officers

Charles D. Zlomke will be installed tonight as the new president of the Pampa Rotary Club during ceremonies scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

Other officers to be installed for one-year terms are Otis Nace, secretary; treasurer; Don Nelson, assistant secretary; and directors John Reeve, Melvin Kunkel, Gary Stevens and C.E. Steel. Nace and Nelson also will serve as directors.

Rex McAnelly is outgoing president.

Installation ceremonies will be by T.C. Lively Sr., with invocation by W.H. Vaughn.

Following the welcome by Myron Aftergut, attendance recognition will be presented by Roy Sparkman.

The evening's program is by the Rev. Phillip Craig. Dinner music will be provided by Peggy Stevens.

Another Agnew?

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford, on the stump for the Nixon administration Monday, accidentally hit a spectator on his first drive in a benefit golf tournament.

Ford's drive off the tee at Rolling Green Country Club soared almost straight up, grazing the head of Tom Gerard when it came down.

"I'm deeply sorry about that," Ford said.

Doctors found only a bump on the left side of the teen-ager's head. Ford's press secretary phoned the hospital "to see how the young man was."

Ford was taking part in a golf tournament to raise funds for the Variety Club Heart Hospital at the University of Minnesota.

Somewhere on the back nine, where Ford played only seven holes, one shot bounced off a policeman's motorized cart.

Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew had similar troubles a couple of times. Once a ball glanced off his club and struck a spectator. On another occasion, Agnew bounced a ball off a fellow golfer.

Jackson's second point was that the 1972 agreement allowed the United States 710 submarine-launched missiles, but that the Nixon administration secretly told the Soviets it would in fact deploy only 656.

Kissinger replied that this was done after the top U.S. military leaders told him they did not plan to build as many Poseidon submarines as the agreement allowed but would wait for the Trident submarine, still on the drawing boards, to come along until after 1977. The 1972 agreement only runs until 1977, and the Tridents are not covered by it.

Kissinger then went into a three-hour, closed-door session with an armed services subcommittee headed by Jackson. A congressional source said the session was acrimonious, starting with Kissinger's "resenting" having to be sworn in.

Entry Blanks Available For Cycle Events

Entry blanks now are available at all motorcycle dealers for the July 4th Motorcycle Jamboree in Recreation Park.

Anyone interested in participating in the various games and contests should go to one of the local dealers and sign an entry blank and responsibility clause.

Events include: Barrel races for children 10 years of age and under, and a second group ages 11-14; short track race for 125cc. water haul for mixed teams, express race for experienced riders, slow race and a short track race for 250cc and up.

The show will start at 7:45 p.m. and will be followed by a patriotic ceremony and fireworks display.

All residents of the Top of Texas area are extended a special invitation to be in Pampa for the annual event which is made possible through contributions by local business and professional people.

DELEGATE WARNS

Possible Income Tax For Texas

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Constitutional Convention delegates, under pressure from highway lobbyists to keep all gasoline tax revenues reserved for highways and education, begin debate today on final passage of the controversial finance article of the proposed new charter.

Evel Knievel Planning Jump Over Canyon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Evel Knievel apparently knows something about death, considering he's almost killed himself several times by flying his motorcycle over rows of people and things.

Rep. Bill Sullivan, D-Gainesville, a member of the finance committee, warned delegates in advance that the Texas Good Roads Association, the major highway lobby group, is attempting to reverse a previous convention decision allowing voters to decide if revenue from future increases above the present 5 cent per gallon tax should be used for purposes other than highway construction or education.

And now Knievel wants to jump his "Sky-Cycle X-2" over the mile-wide, 1,000-foot-deep Snake River Canyon in Twin Falls, Idaho, to make him "the most famous man in the world" on Sept. 8—or so his promoters hope.

A provision tentatively adopted earlier in the convention would let voters decide separately if they wanted to maintain one-fourth of the future increases for education and let the legislature decide how the remaining three-fourths of the revenue should be spent.

At a news conference Monday, Knievel described his Sky-Cycle—it's 13 feet long, painted red, white and blue and has his name painted on the sides in gold leaf. It looks something like a missile.

Sullivan warned that if the highway lobby is successful in knocking that provision out of the final draft, the result could be a state income tax for Texas.

"In fact it is a missile," Knievel said. He said the Sky Cycle has 15,000 pounds of rocket thrust—"more than my Lear Jet."

The convention Monday finally approved the Executive Article, and Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, said it would change the Texas governor from a weak to a strong chief executive.

He already has been given a check for $6 million for the stunt, and has been promised 60 per cent of all the proceeds, if the 60 per cent exceeds $6 million.

Included in the Executive Article is a provision that automatically abolishes state agencies after 10 years unless they are renewed by the legislature.

"I will outdraw the Pro Bowl and the Superbowl put together," Knievel said, "and I'll make more money than any heavyweight fighter in history."

The Sky-Cycle will take off from an almost perpendicular ramp at one side of the canyon, boosted by a jet-like propulsion system. The craft will shoot 2,000 feet into the air and will float slowly to the other side of the canyon. A hydraulic shaft also will protrude from the nose of the Sky-Cycle to help cushion its blow.

Knievel said he has a "50-50 chance" of surviving the stunt, if nothing mechanical goes wrong. But he's hedging his bet by numbering the Sky-Cycle "711."

Prisons Head Warns Of New Inmates Breed

Knievel said his wife supports him in his wild ventures, but does not always accept them with total equanimity. "When I look her and my three kids to the top of the (take-off) ramp," he said, "she looked down and all she could do was cry. And I don't blame her."

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (UPI) — The director of the Texas Department of Corrections believes a small number of "revolutionary" elements have been entering Texas prisons.

As the news conference closed, Knievel asked all those who will be at the spectacular jump to "blow like hell when I take off, because I'm going to need all the help I can get."

W. J. Estelle Jr., speaking to the East Texas Peace Officers Association Monday said Texas prisons are receiving a "new breed of inmate."

He said counter-revolutionary tactics may be needed to suppress dangerous elements both in the community and the prison.

He did not elaborate on such tactics, saying, "They are pretty scary to talk about."

The average prisoner now is younger, smarter, more violent and more difficult to manage," Estelle said. "They are usually better educated and more aware of their rights, but they are not any more aware of their responsibility to democracy than the prisoners of 20 years ago."

"The problem in dealing with the revolutionary mind lies with you and me," he told the officers. "Their reasoning is so far out that we just can't comprehend people really willing to give their lives and the lives of innocent bystanders to reach their goal."

He said counter-revolutionary tactics may be needed to suppress dangerous elements both in the community and the prison.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH
Just A Few Gallstones, Eh?

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please send me your booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It?" I am sending 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
Also, what is your opinion of gallstone surgery? I have never had any trouble, but after a complete physical, it was discovered I have a cluster of small stones. Is it best to have the gall bladder removed even though I have had no trouble?
—M.H.

No trouble, just a few gallstones, eh?
I'll send you the hiatal hernia booklet and, assuming you want it for information that relates to your own personal health, let me add that gall bladder problems can produce symptoms similar to those of hiatal hernia along with others.
Is it best to have surgery? I can't make any specific yes or no answer, because this is obviously a matter for your doctor and you to decide. But I'd say this: if your physician wants it done, have it done.

The X-rays told him a lot about your gall bladder. That cluster of small stones could mask clusters of even smaller ones. Stones range from poppy-seed to golf-ball sizes.
The smaller ones can quickly find their way to a duct where they can cause painful colic attacks. And I mean painful. They could also lead ultimately to infection or malignancy.
The point is that you have a defective gall bladder or else the stones wouldn't be there. Now the decision is whether you want the condition remedied by surgery now or wait until later when it might be a matter of immediate necessity but you might not be enjoying the good health you now have.
About 10 percent of adults suffer some form of gall bladder disorder, from stones to infection. Operation for the removal of the bladder, while still considered major in the sense that any abdominal surgery is major, is becoming more and more common.
The risks are negligible and you can expect only a temporary period, if any, of diet restriction afterward.
In short, if you and your doctor agree to it, the surgery can be a powerful ounce of prevention to forego the need for emergency care later on.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 50 and still having my periods regularly. I have always had a problem with hair on my upper lip and chin, but lately it is getting excessive and I am getting panicky. My friends tell me the doctor can give me a hormone to stop this growth. Is this correct?
—Mrs. J.S.

Sorry, but I'd advise you not to let your friends get your hopes up in that direction. Since your periods are still regular, it is an indication that your production of hormones has not declined to any appreciable extent.
Actually, such hair growth is not uncommon at your age, and my suggestion is that you consider methods of removal. Electrolysis is one answer. Bleaching, removal with a depilatory (if your skin is not irritated by it) or even shaving are others.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 12 years old and have a habit of cracking my knuckles. I annoy many people. Do you have any ideas that will help me stop?
—B.R.

One is just to remember that it does annoy people. Another that might help is this: when you think of it, take hold of the knuckle as though you are going to crack it—but then don't.
Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what kinds of trouble to look for, read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Write him, Dr. George C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, for a copy, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT
Pat And Her Boa Constrictor

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK
Somewhere in this land of ours, Patrice Munsel is getting on and off airplanes carrying a six-foot boa constrictor.
His name is "George," and he has teeth and he loves Pat. Everybody doesn't love George. The staff of a hotel in Memphis considered leaving it George stayed.
Pat carries George in a case such as are used for dogs and when somebody says, "What have you in there?" Pat says, "My pet." Her son Cookie noticed his mother enjoying the snake charmers in Morocco and said, "Oh, what a nice present that would be for Mother!" It bit her once, but not severely. Her husband Bob Schuler says, frankly, "Pat likes it, but I hate the damn thing. It eats live mice."
Pat is taking George on a current tour. Schuler tried to send George to Spokane yesterday by air to join Pat but an airline refused. Schuler persuaded the line to ship it air freight. Pat will be back in Warren, O., doing "Kiss Me Kate" later this week.
If the audiences are nice about it, Pat will bring George out and let him wrap himself around her on stage. She frequently does and George loves it. Nice snake!
The Sammy Cahn 61st birthday party celebrated at the Plaza by the Friars was monumental in talent, especially by Pat Uchitel (Mrs. Morris Uchitel, wife of the everything tycoon) who did such beautiful singing that I was reminded that she sang with Olsen & Johnson in "Laughing Room Only" in 1945—and still looks in her 20s.
Sammy Cahn's show was one of the greatest of all time, but to me in the heartthrobs there was a nice moment when they brought on his collaborator on several songs, Julie Styne. There were tears here and there.
The Plaza opened a new-old restaurant... which it calls the Plaza. It was new the first time in the year 1907—year of the Panic, if I remember. Oh, all the Panics!
Kelly Garrett, the singer who went from "Words and Music" to "Your Hit Parade," now confesses that her real name is Ellen Boulton and that she changed it in Hollywood when she had two jobs.
"I was singing all night at the Little Club and working days in a bank in the returned items department," she said. "I didn't want the bank to know I was up all night so I invented another name."

I asked her, "In the returned items department, what were you handling?"
She replied, "Something very familiar to show business people—bouncing checks."
Some Hollywood prophets say that Carrie Fisher, the teen-age daughter of Eddie Fisher and Debbie Reynolds, will prove to have one of the great voices. Concerning Carrie, who just appeared in Warren Beatty's film, "Shampoo," Debbie says, "Carrie is Eddie's legacy to me."
Barbra Streisand tried to save it for her old friend Kay Medford—but her part in "Funny Lady," sequel to "Funny Girl," was written out of the script of the movie and there'll be no mother-in-law of Fanny Brice in the picture. Kay was paid, and says, "I'm now painting a lot of my furniture white."
Jane Powell phoned to complain that there are a lot of bad things in the papers every day and couldn't we print a column of nice news every day—preferably on the front page? Jane says she's always finding nice things going on here since she came to NY to do "Irene" and she's sure people would like to know about it.
We're having lunch and I'm going to explain to Jane how eagerly the city editors, managing editors and executive editors are going to grab up her idea.

Under Twenty

- By JEANNE HARRISON
It's a common belief that trouble comes in triplicate. So, too, do new arrivals in the coveted Top Ten. It seems, anyway, that's the way it works out most weeks, according to our score card.
This time around, the new ones fall into sixth, ninth and tenth places. The complete picture looks like this:
- TOP TEN SINGLES (+)
1. "You Make Me Feel Brand New" - Stylistics
2. "Sundown" - Gordon Lightfoot
3. "Billy, Don't Be A Hero" - Bo Donaldson
4. "Be Thankful For What You Got" - William DeVaughn
5. "Band On The Run" - Paul McCartney
6. "Rock The Boat" - Hues Corporation
7. "For The Love Of Money" - The O'Jays
8. "The Streak" - Ray Stevens
9. "If You Love Me Let Me Know" - Olivia Newton-John
10. "Havin' Got Time For The Pain" - Carly Simon
- TOP FIVE ALBUMS (+)
1. "Band On The Run" - Paul McCartney
2. "The Sting" - Movie Soundtrack
3. "Sundown" - Gordon Lightfoot
4. "Shinin' On" - Grand Funk
5. "Buddha And The Chocolate Box" - Cat Stevens
Leon Russell, on a ride of hits, has another top spinner in his album, "Stop All That Jazz." It's in the rock vein with great instrumental backing in the nostalgic corner the Andrews Sisters (Patty and Maxine) offer "The Andrews Sisters In Over Here" from their hit Broadway musical.
Jazz buffs will want to listen to Paul Horn's "Visions," and Keith Jarrett's fine piano touch on his "Treasure Island." Rock 'n' blues is captured by the up-and-coming British group, Climax Blues Band, with their "Sense of Direction." Definitely in the right direction.

Court Okays 'Carnal Knowledge'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court, ruling the film "Carnal Knowledge" was not obscene, said Monday that juries may be instructed to apply their own "community standards" rather than broader standards in dealing with obscenity cases.
The court had been urged to tailor its obscenity standards to the laws of the 50 states on the ground that $770 A Week - Is That Bad?

U.S. District Judge Arnold Bauman is threatening to quit his job this summer because, he says, he can no longer make ends meet.

The job pays $40,000. That comes to about $770 a week. Not a lavish sum in terms of today's weakening dollar, but a number of people manage to struggle through.

Judge Bauman says he will return to private practice where, in New York City, he can reasonably expect to top $150,000. That we think would have been a better reason to offer for quitting than not being able to make ends meet. After all, making ends meet is not solely a matter of what the ends are as how they are managed. If a judge can't manage $40,000 a year in his private finances how can he be deemed qualified to sit in lawsuits in which not infrequently millions of dollars are at stake?

After Judge Bauman quit, Judge Frederick B. Lacey of Newark, N.J. told of his intent to leave the bench because he also considers $40,000 a year inadequate.

This impending departure was also duly reported in the press. The news service added a note that Lacey planned to resign last year, but decided to hang in there in hopes Congress would vote an increase.

That is getting to the gritty Congress did have a plan going whereby they would acquire an increase without having to vote on it. To this was attached a proviso that judges would obtain a like hike. Columnists Robert Allen and Victor Riesel got the scenario in advance from that sturdy watcher of the public purse, Rep. H.R. Gross, and all of a sudden the elected representatives experienced a change of heart. The judges' pay raise went down along with those of Congress, both being in the same package.

The widely trumpeted resignation of two judges, with other resignations reported due, has all the earmarks of a ploy to persuade taxpayers that the federal bench is going to rack and ruin because judges aren't able to pay their rent.

We are not so sure that a $40,000 judge isn't doing about as well as a $150,000 attorney. He doesn't have to worry about meeting a payroll, shooting bad golf or otherwise entertaining clients. His name gets in the papers without his trying. The bailiff will drive his car if he needs help, and who cares what kind of suit you have on if it is covered with a black robe? For the private practitioner lawbooks come to a fancy bill, as well as office space.

Just to double check, before you rush out in a passionate campaign to save destitute jurists, it might be well to take an objective measurement. First count the federal judges who aim to quit, and next count the lawyers who would like to get on. When the get-off line is longer than the get-on line, then you will know that something should be done.

OUTRIDER The Pattern Of Watergate

By GARRY WILLS

WASHINGTON — It almost worked. That sly Kissinger, the Superman who is also a con man, conned them one - two - three. Conned, in fact, six of them. But only for a while.

I am talking about the Senate's stampede to tell Secretary Kissinger it loves him without question. Within 48 hours roughly half of the Senate had subscribed to a resolution, introduced by Alabama's James Allen, saying that the Secretary's integrity and veracity are above reproach. And look who was in that company of subscribers — Senators Sparkman, Mansfield, Pell, Javits, Hugh Scott and Humphrey.

The odd thing is that, roughly 24 hours before that, the same six men had voted to undertake an inquiry into the Secretary's veracity. At the Secretary's request.

A number of these men have expressly refused to 'prejudge' President Nixon in case of a Senate trial on the House's impeachment — which is still a hypothetical development. But the Senate Foreign Relations Committee (of which all six senators are members) has voted for a review of the integrity that these men now for the record prejudged as beyond reproach.

The problem was underlined for me when I read Senator Humphrey's press release of Tuesday (before joining in the Allen resolution on Wednesday). He said of Dr. Kissinger:

"While I admire him greatly and feel that he has served us in an outstanding manner, this matter of wiretapping must be checked into again and resolved." How can it be in need of resolution — i.e., unresolved — if the Senate says the man's truthfulness is beyond question?

When I confronted Senator Humphrey with this inconsistency, he answered with that bubbling, almost boastful readiness to apologize that is part of his exasperating charm: "It was a mistake on my part to fix my name to the resolution. I admit it. I did not read it carefully enough. I thought of it as an expression of support. But I didn't go into it thoroughly. Yesterday (i.e., Wednesday) when I did consider it, I thought of sending an aide up late in the afternoon to withdraw my name, but I thought that would create more misunderstanding than letting it stay there — as if I meant to impugn the man's integrity beforehand. I don't want to prejudge the matter in any way, but to preserve my objectivity."

A quick check at the other five senators' offices did not get any such candid retraction. But when I suggested that Dr. Kissinger might be trying to use the committee, asking it in effect to reconfirm its confirmation, and saying it should not be led into thinking there is any more evidence than was brought before it the first time — Humphrey replied: "I hope and pray Dr. Kissinger does not think he can use the committee. But if he does, it would be a very great mistake on his part. We are on the spot, too. We confirmed him in good faith, on the evidence supplied us. But we will be very careful and scrupulous in looking at all the evidence we can gather."

Aides to three of the senators indicated a suspicion that Kissinger may have set a trap for them. If the committee plays by his rules, their reconfirmation is just an assertion of their own thoroughness and good work at the confirmation hearings. If the committee seeks new evidence, it is joining the critics the Secretary has precondemned, and against whom he tried to enlist his allies on the committee.

All this fits a Watergate pattern, of seeking out a favorable forum to obviate the more natural channels of inquiry. Vice President Agnew tried to preclude indictment with a House inquiry. President Nixon rushed his tax case to a joint Congressional committee before it could be investigated in the normal way. Secretary Kissinger now commits to his good friend, the lame duck Senator William Fulbright, and to the committee that cleared him in the first place, a request to conduct a new non-investigation of their first baffled investigation.

The six men's first instinct was to fall for it. But Senator Humphrey says that others besides himself are having second thoughts. The Foreign Relations Committee is a beehive of presidential aspirants or of burnt-out cases of White House fever. If there is danger of new evidence coming out later, so as to make the committee's hearings look like a whitewash, ambition as well as conscience prescribes a good solid look at the miracle man's new feints and flourishes. Dr. Kissinger's attempt to forestall a real investigation with a phony one may be a very big mistake — and that, too, fits the pattern of Watergate.

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

"I DON'T UNDERSTAND RUSSIAN, BUT I THINK HE SAID 'TESTING ONE, TWO, THREE'."

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE That March 21 Conversation

By WILLIAM RUSHER

Mr. Nixon's conversation with Dean and Haldeman on March 21, 1973 seems to loom ever larger in discussions of possible grounds for his impeachment and removal. Herewith, therefore, an interpretation of that conversation.

So far as concerns any possible "obstruction of justice" charge, the story begins with Dean's report of certain money demands by Watergate burglar Howard Hunt. He then adds:

D — Hunt has now made a direct threat against Ehrlichman. As a result of this, this is his blackmail. He says, "I will bring John Ehrlichman down to his knees and put him in jail. I have done enough seamy things for he and Krogh, they'll never survive it."

P — Was he talking about Ellsberg?

D — Ellsberg, and apparently some other things. I don't know the full extent of it.

P — I don't know about anything else.

D — I don't know either, and I hate to learn some of these things. So that is that situation.

The vital question here is: Precisely what was Hunt threatening to disclose? Significantly, Dean is apparently unsure. Nixon clearly seems to think it was "about Ellsberg," but what is the exact reference? The break-in at the psychiatrist's office? Perhaps, but for almost a year there have floated around Washington rumors about other actions by Hunt concerning Ellsberg — actions which had a "national security" aspect.

When the Senate Watergate Committee neared this area in its investigation, the White House privately divulged to Senators Ervin and Baker (the ranking Democratic and Republican members of the Committee) the nature of those actions, and the Committee probed no further in that direction.

In any event, Nixon is plainly disturbed by Hunt's blackmail threat to reveal those unspecified activities, and is willing to contemplate a payment to deter him:

P — Just looking at the immediate problem, don't you think you have to handle Hunt's financial situation damn soon?

D — I think that is — I talked with Mitchell about that last night —

P — It seems to me we have to keep the cap on the bottle that much, or we don't have any options.

Please note, however, that Nixon's desire to keep Hunt quiet is clearly distinguishable from his attitude toward the overall problem of Watergate. A little further on, Nixon sums up the latter as follows:

P — So what you really come to is what we do. Let's suppose that you and Haldeman and Ehrlichman and Mitchell say we can't hold this? What then are you going to say? What are you going to put out after it. Complete disclosure, isn't that the best way to do it?

D — Well, one way to do it is —

P — National security. We had to get information for national security grounds.

D — Then the question is, why didn't the CIA do it or why didn't the FBI do it?

P — Because we had to do it on a confidential basis... With the bombing thing coming out and everything coming out, the whole thing was national security.

To which Dean replies, in a line worthy of a Restoration comedy of errors: "I think we could get by on that!"

There, I believe, is the nub of the March 21 conversation. If the "national security" matters mentioned by Messrs. Nixon and Haldeman were those which deterred Senators Ervin and Baker last year, then Nixon's subsequent alleged authorization of a payment to Hunt to silence him falls far short of any "obstruction of justice" that would warrant his impeachment or removal.

Answer to Saturday's puzzle.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON Did Kissinger Just Apply The Pressure?

CLARK MOLLENHOFF WASHINGTON — Dr. Henry A. Kissinger's emotional threat to resign as Secretary of State had many earmarks of a clever ploy to force a formal vote on his integrity in the friendly Senate Foreign Relations Committee before the question comes before a less friendly committee.

The Secretary of State knows he may never be in a better position to force the issue than in the wake of his phenomenal diplomatic victories in the Middle East. He also realizes his vulnerability to criticism concerning his testimony about his role in wiretapping of government employees and newsmen.

The results which may follow from incomplete testimony are shown dramatically in the case of former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst, who entered a plea of guilty after failing to answer fully the questions of the Senate Judiciary Committee in his confirmation hearings.

Kleindienst's misrepresentations and mis-statements, made in April, 1972, were all but forgotten until the question came up on the fringe of the Watergate investigations by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

In his Senate testimony, Kleindienst left the impression his only contact with the White House concerning the ITT anti-trust case had been with Special Assistant Peter Flanagan.

Sen. Marlow Cook (R-Ky.) had said, "As I recall there was no discussion concerning the (ITT) report other than perfunctory remarks regarding delivery and an expression of appreciation for the assistance rendered to Mr. (Assistant Attorney General Richard) McLaren."

Kleindienst said, "Yes."

In all his replies, Kleindienst overlooked very pointed discussions in which President Nixon protested McLaren's actions on the ITT anti-trust matter. These discussions were hardly ones Kleindienst would have forgotten, for they caused him to threaten to resign as deputy attorney general.

Some members of the special prosecutor's staff believed Kleindienst should have been prosecuted for perjury for failing to relate the involvement of President Nixon in the ITT controversy.

Kleindienst initially had felt protected in the controversy by his friendly relationship with Judiciary Committee Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.). However, he saw that protection collapse under a three-way pressure from the House Judiciary Committee, the Senate Watergate Committee and Special Prosecutor Jaworski.

This is not unlike the current position of Dr. Kissinger, who already has made an explanation on his wiretapping note that satisfied his friend, Chairman William Fulbright (D-Ark.). But, that involvement is now coming in for closer scrutiny in several other forums.

At the request of the Nixon administration, Chairman Fulbright locked up the transcripts of Dr. Kissinger's latest "clarifications" on his knowledge of the activities of David Young, a former National Security Council staff member and a member of the notorious "plumbers" of Ellsberg break-in case.

Chairman Fulbright also has never revealed that his committee had possession of FBI documents which seemed to contradict Dr. Kissinger's explanations that he had no role in "initiating" the wiretaps on 17 people, including four newsmen.

Until the House Judiciary Committee started investigating the questionable domestic surveillance practices, documentary evidence relevant to Dr. Kissinger's purported contradictions remained buried in the Foreign Relations Committee safe, the FBI files and in State Department records directly under Mr. Kissinger's control.

The defenders of Kissinger contend the wiretapping was not illegal and that it was a necessary step to deal with a serious breach of security through "leaks."

The central question on Dr. Kissinger's integrity does not involve the legality of the wiretap or whether it was justified for stopping security leaks. The main question is: Did Dr. Kissinger, under oath in his confirmation hearings, deliberately misrepresent or misstate his role and responsibility for 17 specific wiretaps?

There is no doubt that he seeks to avoid any role of "initiative" and picture himself as only "going along" as a conduit between President Nixon and the late J. Edgar Hoover.

Chief U.S. Judge George Hart, in sentencing Kleindienst, noted the former attorney general's testimony indicated no real desire "to deceive" but only an interest in "protecting" his relations with the President.

Hart gave Kleindienst a slap — on the wrist sentence of 30 days and $100 fine, both parts of which the judge suspended.

In what Dr. Kissinger has referred to as "the poisonous" atmosphere created by Watergate, the Secretary of State had seen that even a cabinet officer might be held accountable for misstatements at some future time.

Rather than take a chance with serious damage from the Senate Watergate Committee, the House Judiciary Committee, Special Prosecutor Jaworski or in one of the several trials in which he may become involved, Dr. Kissinger chose an early show-down when his reputation is at its peak.

Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee are friendly to Dr. Kissinger and flattered by the special attention he gives them from his celebrity pinnacle as a Nobel prize winner and diplomat par excellence in foreign affairs.

Add to that the record of past reluctance that deal with foreign aid frauds and other scandals and it is easy to see why Dr. Kissinger demanded an early investigation by that group.

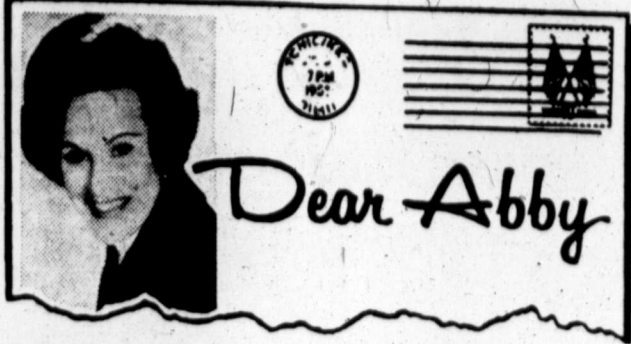

H. L. Hunt Writes

CONGRESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY

Public opinion polls continue to show an erosion of confidence in the deeds of the U.S. Congress. Members of the two law-making branches are given marks even lower than that of an embattled President. This lack of confidence in Congress could not come at a worse time for the Republic. The branch of our government that normally is the closest to the people must assume responsibility and demonstrate statesmanship in overcoming a morass of problems confronting all of us.

The Senate needs to exert responsibility in foreign relations. The entire Congress should tackle, along with the Administration, the devastating problems of inflation. Both branches of Congress face the awesome impeachment issue which may determine the future of all of us for years to come. This is a matter of making the Constitution work and demonstrating to the world that that old document is as valid now as it was in the days it was written. The machinery for good, constructive government is available and it is up to the duly elected officers of government to put it to work.

We believe that the nation will survive its present predicament and emerge even stronger, but Congress will have to keep its nose to the grindstone. Since the 1930s, Congress has yielded entirely too much of its responsibilities to the executive branch. If there was ever an opportune time for this process to be reversed and corrected, it is now. The influence of the voters can go a long way in urging this action in the fall. That's where you and I come into the picture.

Dear Abby

Minority has right to its privacy, too

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: I received the following letter. [It was signed.]

DEAR ABBY: We are two students at Scripps College in Claremont, Cal., who are distressed by the attitudes of the majority of the girls in our residence hall concerning male visitors.

Not only are men allowed in the girls' rooms 24 hours a day, but they are also allowed to use our bathroom facilities!

We find it particularly embarrassing to encounter men just outside the showers with only a towel wrapped around them. We also sometimes encounter couples showering together in the same stall.

These rules were approved by the majority of the girls in our dormitory, but we feel that, as a minority, we have certain rights to our privacy, and that since this is a women's college, we shouldn't have to accommodate men in our living quarters.

We would appreciate your advice on this subject and hope you will print this so that girls at other women's colleges who share the ideas of the majority will have a greater respect for the sentiments of the minority.

DOUBTFUL

Suspecting that "Doubtful's" letter might have been a put-on, I wrote to the Dean of Students and asked for verification. I received the following reply:

Dear Ms. Van Buren: I have received your letter and the enclosed letter from one of our students. Indeed, the situation which she has described is not a "put-on." Though ours is a residential college for women, the college community, at the express request of students, adopted a 24-hour visitation system three years ago.

Part of the understanding inherent in this procedure, and one which the students must reaffirm each year, is that special consideration and accommodations be given to any student in any residence hall who finds herself, as "Doubtful" does, in the minority. She has only to talk to the president of the hall, the residence staff person, or to one of us in the Dean of Students office, and we will make every effort to provide her with a living situation compatible with her particular lifestyle.

I think "Doubtful" should be encouraged to use the channels available to her within her own college!

Sincerely, Stephanie Adams, Dean of Students

DEAR DOUBTFUL: Well, there you are. The Dean of Students has suggested alternatives available to you and others who find the prevailing lifestyle within your dormitory repugnant to you.

Even though you are in the minority, I share your feelings of outrage, and believe that since yours is a women's residential college, those girls who have opened their bathing and toilet facilities to their male guests should suffer the inconvenience of applying for a living situation compatible with THEIR lifestyle.

DEAR ABBY: My 68-year-old mother died of cancer last week. During her illness, which lasted for about eight months, she occupied our guest bedroom.

I want to make sure the room is entirely disinfected. Would having the carpet, curtains and mattress dry cleaned make it safe for others to sleep in that room? I have already scrubbed the walls and furniture with disinfectant.

A friend of mine said I should burn up everything that was in that room and repaint just to be on the safe side. Please advise me.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Your friend is mistaken. Cancer is not a contagious or infectious disease. Since there is no known germ or virus which causes cancer there are no "germs" to get rid of. Give the room a thorough routine cleaning and forget about it.

Tuberculosis Still A Menace

COLLEGE STATION — People think tuberculosis is conquered — but in Texas the first five months of 1974 show all forms of tuberculosis increased nearly 45 percent over a similar period last year, according to one authority.

She's Dr. Barbara Sears, health education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "This figure could be drastically lowered if Texans would take advantage of the tuberculosis control services offered by the State Health Department," the specialist noted.

For free TB testing, persons should visit their county health department, the county health officer, or the regional health office.

If they can't find the testing locations, they should contact the county judge, Dr. Sears added.

Texas' tuberculosis control services program has three aims: 1) detect cases of tuberculosis infection, active or non-symptomatic; 2) treat persons with active disease; and 3) prevent spread of the disease, the specialist explained.

In Texas, tuberculosis is most common and most difficult to control among low-income populations and among people who fail to seek regular medical attention," Dr. Sears said. "Statistics also show a relationship between tuberculosis and cases of diabetes, alcoholism and other chronic diseases," she added.

Also, persistence of obsolete ideas, fears and myths about tuberculosis — such as curing it with a diet of skunk meat — continues to hamper the fight against tuberculosis," Dr. Sears pointed out.

"Constant, thorough care is the only way to reduce tuberculosis — from its present status as a continual public health problem to the level of a relatively rare disease," the specialist concluded.

International Festival - Institute At Round Top To Present Concert

The Houston Symphony Chamber Orchestra, guest conducted by Maestro John Covelli, will appear in concert at the International Festival - Institute at Round Top, Texas, on Monday evening, June 24 at 8:15 p.m. and Tuesday morning, June 25, at 11 a.m. The Monday evening concert will feature concert performances by the outstanding student artists of the Festival - Institute.

The Tuesday morning concert, especially for children, will present the Texas premiere of a work for chamber orchestra by American composer, Richard Ralf, based upon the award-winning "Haiku" poetry, written by the children of the Wilhelm School, Houston. Students of the Wilhelm school will be special performers in this work. Festival - Institute student artists will also appear on the program in concert performances.

Maestro Covelli began his musical career as a pianist, distinguishing himself with top prizes in the famed Queen Elizabeth Piano Competition in Brussels, Belgium and the Busoni International Piano Competition, Bolzano, Italy.

His conducting ability was developed under the tutelage of Pierre Monteux at the Master's Class Domaine School of Conductors. After serving in the military, Covelli received the Ditson Award in Conducting from Columbia University for the purpose of continuing his studies with Maestro Monteux in London. He is currently Associate conductor of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra and is an Exxon affiliate Artist Conductor.

Miss Marilyn Wilhelm, innovative educator and founder of the Wilhelm School, Houston, will present a seminar on Tuesday afternoon, June 25 at 2 p.m. She will speak on "You - Aesthetics - Ethics." John Palmer Leeper, Director of the McNay Art Institute, San Antonio, will speak at 4 p.m. on Thursday, June 27, on "Music in Museums." All seminars at the International Festival - Institute are open to the public and are held in the red and gold Theatre - on - the - Square, one of the many buildings carefully restored, preserved and made available to the International Festival - Institute by the Texas Pioneer Arts Foundation.

World renowned concert pianist, Madame Lili Kraus, will arrive June 28, for a three - day Artist - in - Residence during which time she will present master classes for Festival - Institute student - Artists. A pupil of Artur Schnabel at the Vienna Conservatory of Music, Madame Kraus was a full - fledged professor there at the age of 20. By the 1930s, the Hungarian pianist had established and has maintained since that time, a major concert career in this country and abroad. In addition to a heavy concert schedule, she is now Artist - in - Residence at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, Tex.

In keeping with the Festival - Institute recognition of area cities and citizens and their work in historic restoration and preservation, the Festival - Institute has designated June 24 as "Giddings Day," honoring the Giddings Historical Society.

All concerts and seminars at the Festival - Institute are open to the public free of charge. For information write: P.O. Box 89, Round Top, Tex. 78954, or call (713) 249-3032.

A slogan that has persisted through the ages is "always cover an honor with an honor" (or, in present day terminology, cover a picture - card with a picture - card). As a general slogan, it is a winning one, provided that the word "always" is deleted. But, unfortunately, many players adhere slavishly to the slogan in toto, and thereby lose contracts that should have been fulfilled.

In today's deal, our South declarer's unthinking adherence to the principle of covering an honor with an honor cost him his contract. Both sides vulnerable, North deals.

Foundations Stones For Good Marriage

COLLEGE STATION — A happy, successful marriage is built on a number of "foundation stones," according to one specialist.

"These may vary somewhat among marriages, but all are important for a good marriage." Mrs. Jane Fleischer Moss, family life education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, said this week.

Quoting Lester Kirkendall, Oregon State University professor of family life, she named the "foundation stones" that help marriage grow.

"The existence of love — A feeling of affection based upon an appreciation of such qualities as thoughtfulness, sincerity, generosity, and willingness to compromise has a sound basis for becoming enduring love."

"Emotional maturity — A mature person can analyze his mistakes, admit error without hurt feelings, and accept responsibility," Mrs. Moss said.

"When both partners are emotionally mature, they can discuss problems openly, with the interests of each other in mind."

"Similarity of interests — A couple should have enough major interests in common to form a satisfying championship."

"Satisfactory sexual adjustment — Experience shows this side of marriage is most satisfactory when the couple has many of these other foundation stones to support their marriage. It may be unsatisfactory without them."

"Presence of children — Children serve as a uniting force for husband and wife. Helping children grow up successfully may be one of the greatest satisfactions of marriage," the specialist added.

"A sense of humor — While people need to take responsibilities and problems seriously, troubles are lighter when laughter comes easily."

"Similarity of purpose in marriage — Partners need to be as honest with themselves and each other as possible. If one partner marries for love while the other is interested in social climbing, this difference in purpose may cause quarreling and discontent," she predicted.

"Loyalty to each other — Both partners should feel they can trust each other, to be loyal in their love, to give support, help in time of need and carry their share of the load in marriage and family life."

"Willingness to work for success of the marriage — Every marriage requires effort and sacrifice to make it work well. If one partner has to make most of the sacrifices, he, or she, usually becomes dissatisfied with the situation and eventually gives up the effort."

"Ability to make financial adjustments — Whatever arrangements are made must seem fair to both partners. And both must help in working out the best ways of saving and spending the family income."

"Marriages built on these foundation stones grow more satisfying through the years, and a happy marriage is very much worth planning and working for," the specialist concluded.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26 Your birthday today: Materialization is the keyword in this coming busy year of discovery and development.

So many diverse interests come to productive levels later in the year that you must select which will be your main enterprise. Relationships offer many poignant episodes all year. Today's natives are much given to big ideas, apt to offer promises beyond ready achievement.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Teamwork swings along normally if you respond promptly and fairly. Good news from distant places helps. Bring in a symbol of another way of life for comparison.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Impatience on all sides is typical today. Pace your efforts deliberately, allowing time for meditation. Let your imagination range over the available probabilities.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Creative work comes out on top today. You'll do better facing forward rather than trying to redo past details. Unselfish attitudes invite cheerful incidents.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: Sensitive as you are, others are even more so. If necessary, delay your own plans and help someone else. Romance has some surprises, moments of triumph.

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: Nothing is easy today, but there are people close by who have good advice to offer. Creative efforts are assisted by fresh ideas, better working conditions.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Many small, neat transactions, which are well-understood, add up to more than a hasty plunge into big deals. Consider your health program and how you can maintain it.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Experts and amateurs are all out for a field day of opinions, advice. Be your own counsel, avoid arguments as you go after your personal goals in calm discretion.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Beware of secret deals, efforts to obtain unfair advantages. Care in the use of confidential information yields extra results. Find a good show, hear some great music!

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Tread lightly, wait for the full story before you act on what you've heard. Business contacts need prudent handling. Family relations are strong.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: The program you're pursuing presently reveals added areas in which you really ought to prepare yourself in greater depth. The sooner the better!

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You can't always have exactly what you want; on the other hand, neither can the other fellow. If you each compromise just a little everybody is the winner.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: In everything but money, share whatever there is to do and enjoy. Pay no more than your share, however, and make no promises regarding future occasions.

Pampa Parts Means Quality

It doesn't matter what kind of car you have—whether it is big and beautiful or small and economical, it is going to have some kind of trouble.

That is a simple fact. So why burden yourself with a sky-high parts bill when Pampa Parts and Supply Co., Inc. is in town.

Whether it's major engine problems or just a rough windshield wiper blade, Pampa Parts has parts for your car.

Besides all American-made autos, Pampa Parts also has parts for most foreign cars.

Among the parts they have on hand are Monroe shocks, Delco batteries and other products. Fram and AC oil filters, Black Hawk tools, Black & Decker tools, Gates hoses and belts, AC Autolite and Champion plugs, Victor Seals and gaskets and numerous others.

Added to their new parts.

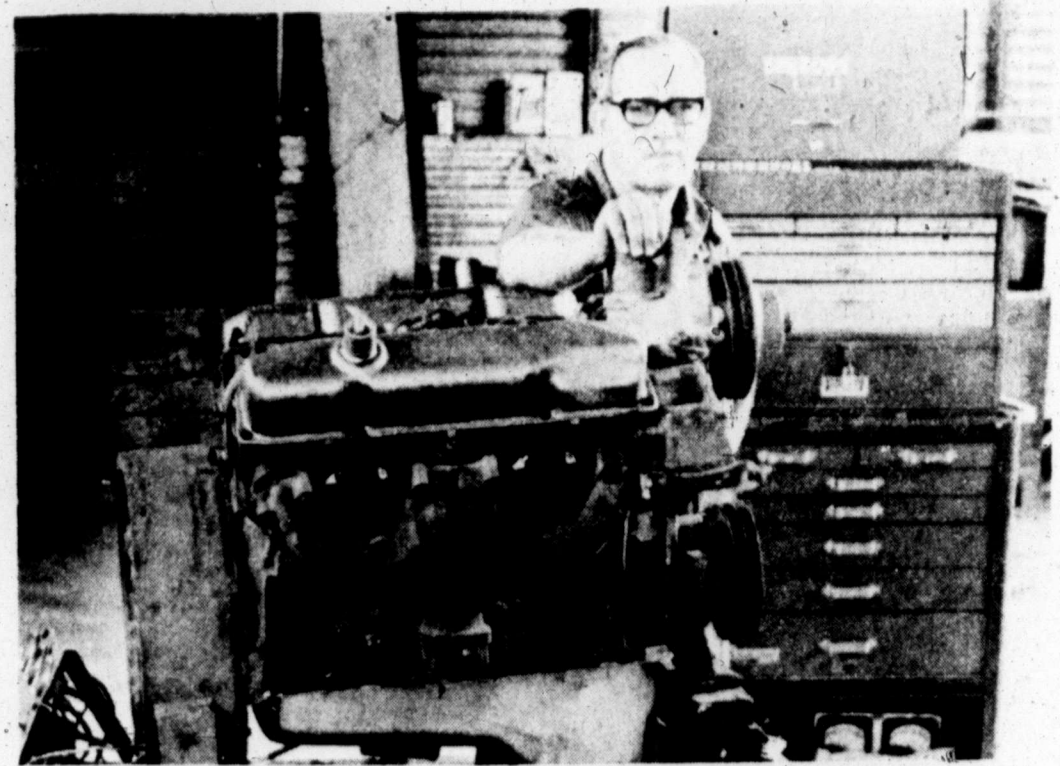

Pampa Parts has rebuilt under the brand names of Texas Rebuilt, Grayrock and Borge Warner. These fine rebuilt parts include brake shoes and clutch plates.

The firm also repairs and makes most hydraulic lines.

The do-it-yourself mechanics who have economy in mind should drop by Pampa Parts and Supply at 525 W. Brown and get a helping hand from Bob Burrows and Winford Swain, co-owners.

In their machine shop, Pampa Parts mechanics turn brake drums, overhaul carburetors, starters and generators, install cam bearings and perform general machine work in addition to carrying a complete line of headwork.

They also carry stereo tapes.

CO-OWNER BOB BURROWS displays a 417 irrigation engine in the machine shop at Pampa Parts and Supply, 525 W. Brown. They carry parts for American cars and foreign autos.

A.N. ROGERS, Perma-Balance representative in Pampa, shows the Perma-Balance ring on a large truck. Perma-Balance guarantees longer tire life, positive braking action, increased road hold, steering stability, less vibration and all around comfort.

A.N. Rogers, Perma-Balance Ready For Large Trucks

Belted tires, when out of balance, tend to have two ribs that protrude, cutting themselves out. Normally when these tires have 4,000 to 6,000 miles on them, and vibrations occur, it's too late to merely balance tires.

All tires tend to slip around the wheel. It's usually necessary to rebalance them every 5,000 to 6,000 miles.

But Perma-Balance, a wheel balancing technique, compensates for slipping tires.

A.N. Rogers, Perma-Balance representative in Pampa, can now balance large trucks. Rogers has his office and home at 717 N. Christy and supplies to balance most wheels.

Perma-Balance can reduce operating costs for truckers by controlling cupping and dishing of expensive truck tires, eliminating dynamic imbalance or "squirmying" of tread, more tire wear per dollar up to 50 percent increased tire life, reducing wear of king pin, steering and sector shaft.

It also helps eliminate backlash and tandem hop, noticeably reduces vibration in truck cab, reduces driver fatigue, permits increased stability and handling and reduces fuel requirements.

Perma-Balance rings provide 50,000 to 70,000 miles of steering axle tire life when only 35,000 miles of front tire life was noted before the rings were installed. In addition, the tie rod end life and king pin life increased to 200,000 to 250,000 from 100,000 miles in actual use.

Perma-Balance guarantees longer tire life, positive braking action, increased road hold, steering stability, less vibration and all around comfort.

Rogers says he can now balance 13-inch wheels of the following cars: Colt, Cricket, Pinto, Mustang, Opal, Vega and Capri, and the 14-inch wheels of Gremlin, Hornet, Javelin, Matador, Ambassador, Dart, Challenger, Coronet, Charger, Valiant, Barracuda, Satellite, Road Runner, Comet, Cougar, Montego, Apollo, Centruy, Camaro, Nova, Chevelle, Omega, Cutlass, Ventura, Le Mans.

Firebird, Volkswagen, Volvo and Toyota.

He can balance most 15-inch car wheels and 20-inch (and more) wheels on large trucks. Rogers will also balance pickups and vans.

Perma-Balance is a scientifically engineered metal disc bonded to a circular tube of high-impact unbreakable plastic. The tube contains over 700 (eight and one half ounces) small ball bearings immersed in a special viscous fluid—all designed to be activated by centrifugal force to automatically and accurately oppose imbalance existing in both wheel and tire.

A.N. Rogers has been a part of Pampa for over 40 years. He retired from Phillips Petroleum Co. 10 years ago after working as an oil pumper for 30 years.

United Press International Today is Tuesday, June 25, the 176th day of 1974 with 189 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

French composer Gustave Charpentier was born June 25, 1860.

On this day in history: In 1876, Gen. George Custer and his force of 208 men were ambushed by Sioux Indians in the battle of Little Big Horn in Montana.

In 1950, North Korean Communists invaded South Korea.

In 1962, the U.S. Supreme Court handed down a decision interpreted as barring prayer in public schools.

In 1973, White House attorney John Dean told a Senate committee President Nixon joined in the plot to cover up the Watergate break-in.

A thought for the day: British writer John Galsworthy said, "If you do not think about the future, you cannot have one."

BUTTONED UP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Needles and pins and buttons and snaps are still big business in America, says the Commerce Department. At manufacturers' price levels, which are away below real level, the value of these products turned out in 1972 was $575 million and 20,100 workers were employed in making them.

DOLL SALES UP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Little girls in the United States still love dolls so much that sales rose 22 percent in the five years between 1967 and 1973, the Census Bureau reports.

The 1972 doll sales at the manufacturers' price level were $199 million and the industry employed 10,400 workers. The retail sales level was more than twice that.

Wimbledon Has Three Champions

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Tradition-rich Wimbledon got under way Monday with the players mandatorily clad in tennis whites, but there's something terribly unconventional about a tournament with not one, not two, but three defending champions.

The 88th Wimbledon Tennis Championships began with the men's singles and Jan Kodes, Stan Smith and John Newcombe, each claiming to be the defending champion, scored first round victories.

The prestigious tradition-bound tournament on Wimbledon's famed grass courts — and at $234,480 the richest as well — finds itself with a full complement of the world's top men players after two years of bans and boycotts, which explains the abundance of defending champions.

Newcombe, victor in 1970 and 1971, claimed he was prevented by the boycotts and bans from competing again until this year. "And so I consider myself still the champion and defending my title," he said.

Newcombe, playing with a wood racquet instead of his customary steel to meet the terms of a commercial contract, had some trouble adjusting, but dispatched France's Georges Goven in straight sets 6-3, 6-2, 8-6.

The top seed, who is the strong favorite and the players own choice to win, Newcombe said, "I hit so much wood today the strings at the top of the racquet are more frayed than in the middle."

Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., who won here in 1972 and didn't play in 1973 made the same claim of being the defending titleholder after handily beating Grover Reid of Greenville, S.C. 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

And this only added to the bitterness of last year's champion Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, who was chagrined to discover that he was seeded only sixth, the lowest seeding for a defending titleholder in the history of the tournament.

Kodes defeated Sherwood Stewart of Houston, Tex., 6-3, 6-4, 9-7.

In the dead days of the amateur game players saved themselves for this tournament, but most of the seeds confessed themselves a bit tired after the WCT tour, WTT and other match play. Sweden's 18-year-old, Bjorn Borg, idol of the teenagers, made an unimpressive debut by dropping a set to Britain's veteran Graham Stribling and blamed fatigue.

There were a few sets dropped by the seeds who played Monday, but all survived the opening round.

Billie Jean King, the overwhelming 11-0 favorite to retain her singles title, is the top seed in the women's singles, which begins today.

UPI Sports Writer
For 5 1-3 innings Monday night, a crowd of 16,193 in Kansas City watched Steve Busby of the Royals try to match a miracle.

Then it all fell apart and the Chicago White Sox scored a 3-1 victory over the Royals after spoiling Busby's gallant bid to be the second man in the history of baseball to pitch consecutive no-hit games.

Busby, who pitched the second no-hitter of his career against the Milwaukee Brewers, June 19, carried his no-hit pitching forward for 5 1-3 innings before Pat Kelly singled in the sixth inning. Kelly's hit snapped a string of 33 consecutive batters Busby had retired over a two-game span. Former Yankees' pitchers Vic Raschi and Lindy McDaniel shared the previous American League record of retiring 32 straight batters over spans of several games.

Once having broken the spell, the White Sox scored three runs in the seventh inning and went on to a 3-1 victory behind the combined four-hit pitching of Wilbur Wood and Terry Forster. Wood allowed four hits in 8 1-3 innings, picking up his 12th victory with the relief help of Forster.

"I began to think that Busby might pitch a no-hitter again," admitted White Sox manager Chuck Tanner after the game. "But I figured I've got Wilbur and I felt pretty good about it. I thought Busby might pitch nine or 10 hitless innings but Wilbur might still pitch runless ball even though he gave up several hits."

Wood, still working on a three-day pitching schedule, said he understood why Tanner brought in Forster in the ninth.

Law of Averages
It's common sense to do that," said Wilbur. "I had been gassing the ball up there for eight innings and the difference in the velocity between us is like night and day. As for the possibility of a second no-hitter — well, the law of averages was just against him."

The Oakland A's defeated the California Angels, 11-1, the Boston Red Sox beat the Milwaukee Brewers, 9-0, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Detroit Tigers, 3-1, the Cleveland Indians topped the New York Yankees, 10-3, and the Minnesota Twins tipped the Texas Rangers, 8-4, in other AL games.

Ron Santo's two-run homer started a three-run seventhinning rally which brought Wood his 12th victory against eight losses. Carlos May started the seventh with a single, Santo homered and then the White Sox added a run on Bill Sharp's double and Bucky Dent's single. Busby had pitched 2 2/3 consecutive scoreless innings.

A's 11 Angels 3
Sal Bando's sixth grand slam homer and a single paced the A's to their victory over the Angels, who dropped into the AL West cellar. Vida Blue went eight innings for his seventh victory with Rollie Fingers relieving in the ninth.

Red Sox 9 Brewers 0
Rico Petrocelli hit his ninth grand slam and Luis Tiant pitched an eight-hitter for his 10th win to give the Red Sox their victory over the Brewers. Petrocelli's grand slam came in the fifthinning after Dick McAuliffe's single, a double by Carl Yastrzemski and a walk to Carlton Fisk. Jim Colborn was the loser.

Indians 10 Yankees 3
Fritz Peterson, making his first start against his former teammates, pitched seven innings of five-hit ball and John Lowenstein hit a grand slam homer to pace the Indians to their victory over the Yankees. Fred Beene, another former Yankee, finished up for the Indians, who collected 15 hits, including three by Oscar Gamble. Bill Sudakis had two doubles for the Yankees.

Twins 8 Rangers 4
Danny Thompson singled twice, doubled and drove in two runs with an inside-the-park homer in leading the Twins to their victory over the Rangers. Bert Blyleven went six innings for the Twins to win his sixth game while David Clyde suffered his fourth loss of the season for Texas.

Bob Gibson Shows He's Not All Washed Up Yet

UPI Sports International
Bob Gibson may be nearing his 39th birthday, but it's still too early to blow out the candles on the famed St. Louis Cardinals' righthander.

Gibson, who many thought was washed up after losing eight of his first 11 decisions this year, Monday night demonstrated the form that has made him baseball's winningest active pitcher when he tossed a four-hitter and struck out 11 in leading the Cardinals to an 11-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the second game of a doubleheader.

St. Louis also took the opener 3-1 and moved to within one game of the first place Philadelphia Phillies in the NL East.

Gibson, who had not won a game since May 19 and was rumored headed for the bullpen, won his 241st career game to break a tie with Boston's Juan Marichal as the winningest active pitcher. His 11 strikeouts also moved him to within 12 of becoming only the second pitcher, next to Walter Johnson, to pass the 3,000 career strikeout mark.

Gibson said he had felt good for the last two or three starts but just couldn't get it together.

"Just Happens"
Anyone can know he's doing something wrong, but not know how to correct it. It's like that in pitching, hitting or writing," he said. "There's nothing you can do about it. It just happens."

Tim McCarver, who caught Gibson during the Cardinals' pennant-winning years in the 1960s, was behind the plate Monday night and said Gibson was hitting the right spots.

A three-run homer by Ted Simmons and a solo shot by Jim Dwyer provided Gibson with the only runs he needed to post his 56th career shutout. Simmons' homer was a three-run blast in the thirdinning.

In the opener, the Cardinals scored all their runs on four straight singles bunched around a throwing error by Richie Zisk in the secondinning. Ken Reitz delivered — the key single, driving in Luis Melendez, and Bake McBride also scored on the play when Zisk's throw went into the Pittsburgh dugout. Mike Tyson single home Reitz with the final run of the inning.

Philadelphia topped Montreal 8-2 in a nationally televised game. Atlanta edged Los Angeles 4-3, Houston beat Cincinnati 6-1, San Diego nipped San Francisco 2-1 and New York defeated Chicago 4-2 in other NL games.

Phillies 8, Expos 2
Jim Lonborg pitched a sixhitter for his 10th victory and also hit a grand-slam homer to keep the Phillies in first place in the NL East. It was only the third major league homer for Lonborg, who boosted his record to 10-5. Larry Lintz collected three hits for Montreal.

Braves 4, Dodgers 3
Ivan Murrell robbed Jimmy Wynn of a three-run homer in the thirdinning and the Braves came from behind to beat the Dodgers on pitcher Buzz Capra's squeeze bunt in the seventhinning. Murrell tumbled into the leftfield seats to catch Wynn's long drive in the third and Capra settled down after that to retire 16 in a row en route to his eighth win in 10 decisions. Ron Cey homered for the Dodgers.

Astros 6, Reds 1
Doug Rader and Cesar Cedeno hit homers to support the five-hit pitching of Tom Griffin and lead the Astros to victory over the Reds. Rader's homer was a three-run blast while Cedeno's was a two-run shot as the Astros pinned Don Gullett with his fifth loss in 12 decisions. Griffin struck out eight in picking up his eighth win in 11 decisions.

Padres 2, Giants 1
Reliever Vicente Romo halted a Giant rally in the ninth by retiring two batters with the bases loaded as the Padres handed San Francisco its 12th loss in 15 games. Romo preserved Dan Spillner's fourth victory in five decisions while Ron Bryant, a 24-game winner last season, suffered his ninth loss against only two wins.

ORIOLES' PITCHER Palmer Annoyed With Forearm

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Earl Weaver knew he had to make a move. He took the first step briskly, the second quickly, and then the third. Now he was on the top step of the dugout from which point he strode directly to his pitcher, who, sad to say, was being hammered harder than a tenpenny nail.

No manager enjoys removing one of his pitchers, especially when the ace of his staff, a 20-game winner the past four years and the best pitcher in the league only the season before.

Earl Weaver, manager of the Baltimore Orioles, gave Jim Palmer that traditional little pat on the backside, motioned the bullpen for the reliever he wanted and took the baseball from Palmer, who was obviously annoyed.

His Forearm
The big Baltimore righthander wasn't annoyed with his manager; he was upset with his inability to get more on the ball, an inability due in large measure to the pain inside his forearm.

Palmer's concern was understandable enough. Last year he had won 22 games, and now here he was going into the third month of the season with only a couple to show. Last year he had pitched 19 complete games, this time only two. No wonder he was frowning. "Now you gotta relax," Weaver tried comforting him. "Don't worry."

"You tell me to relax," Palmer replied. "How can I relax?"

It was a good question. Jim Palmer asked Earl Weaver that a few weeks ago, some time before the Orioles put him on the disabled list. They did that after the tall, 28-year-old Cy Young Award winner was unable to get past the firstinning against the Chicago White Sox nine days ago. Palmer had dropped seven in a row when he was sidelined. He had a record he didn't even want to talk about — three wins eight losses and a 4.01 ERA.

Fine Performances
It is about as easy for Jim Palmer to relax, having the kind of year he's having, as it is for Bob Gibson or Tom Seaver to relax, having the kind of year they're having. You can generally figure the bigger a reputation, the more pride involved. That's usually the way it seems to work out and if you think about it while you come to understand why the three of them have achieved what they have and command the salaries they do, pride may goeth before a fall, but evidently it also goeth before consistently fine performances.

Originally, Palmer was to come off the disabled list this Friday but now that date has been pushed back past July 1.

"He'll pitch as soon as he can," says Weaver, who can use Palmer badly but isn't inclined to rush him. "He's only playing a little catch now and backing up the pitcher in batting practice. His arm doesn't feel right and he doesn't have a lot of strength in it. Knowing him though, I feel he's still going to help us this year. I feel he's going to bounce back."

Jim Palmer has done that twice already during his 11 seasons in professional baseball. After winning 15 games in 1966 and becoming the youngest pitcher ever to hurl a shutout in a World Series game that Fall, he came up with shoulder trouble and was sent back to the minors a year later. Then in 1969, he tore a muscle in his lower back, spent 42 days on the disabled list but still managed to win 16 that year and 20 or more each season after that.

Baseball is a funny game. One year ago this time, Jim Palmer was sympathizing with Steve Blass.

Now, Steve Blass is still up to his ears in his own problems, but he can feel for Jim Palmer. Meanwhile, life goes on for the Orioles, Earl Weaver and Jim Palmer.

Good Shape
Doyle Alexander, a 23-year-old righthander with good control originally signed by the Dodgers, has taken Palmer's place in the rotation. Weaver feels the club can still win. "The pitching hasn't been that bad," he says. "Cuellar has won nine in a row. McNally has won two of his last three and Grimley three straight. We can still do it. If Palmer comes back after the All-Star Game, we'll still be in good shape."

Palmer isn't panicking. "To pitch and win," he says. "I have to be able to throw my fast ball, and to do that my arm has to be healthy. With rest, I'm hopeful it will be. You always have hope."

Fair enough, but even with it, sometimes it's awfully hard to relax.

Cowboys Upset Court Ends Ban On WFL Action

DALLAS (UPI)—A Texas appeals court has dissolved a judicial ban and allowed the World Football League to resume its courtship of members of the Dallas Cowboys.

The 5th Texas Court of Civil Appeals Monday said a lower court has abused its discretion in deciding the WFL could not sign Dallas players.

"Obviously we are disappointed," said Tex Schramm, president of the Cowboys.

WFL President Gary Davidson, however, hailed the ruling. "We have always believed in the freedom of competition between leagues and the freedom of players to have viable alternatives in choosing employers," he said from his Newport Beach, Calif., league office.

"We are pleased to see that the most recent ruling in Texas confirms the validity of the WFL's position, just as the federal court in Cincinnati did several weeks ago (in the Bill Bergey case)," he said.

The WFL signed Calvin Hill, Craig Morton and Mike Montgomery off the Dallas roster and the Cowboys then went to court to stop the raids arguing that the new league was inflicting "tortorous injury" on the NFL club.

But appeals court Judge Harold Bateman studied the arguments of both leagues and Monday said he could find no such tortorous injury or threat of any such injury.

"We believed we were right and now the court says we were," said Bert Cottrell, general manager of the Houston Texans who signed Morton.

Twins Crawl Over Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Danny Thompson singled twice, doubled and drove in two runs with an inside-the-park home run Monday night in helping the Minnesota Twins and Bert Blyleven to a 4-4 win over Texas.

Thompson's homer came in the fourth off David Clyde. 3-4. With two out and Steve Braun on second, Thompson drove one off the centerfield wall. Joe Lovitto crashed into the wooden fence trying to make the catch and collapsed on the warning track.

Before anyone could get the ball and relay it to the infield, Thompson easily circled the bases. Lovitto walked off the field after that play.

Blyleven, who had not started a game in nine days after pulling a muscle in his right side, lasted six innings plus before Bill Hands came in to protect the lead.

Minnesota scored a run in the first when Steve Brye led off with a bloop double, moved to third on a groundout and came in on an error by shortstop Toby Harrah. The Twins produced two more runs in the sixth on Thompson's double, a single by Phil Roof and a triple by Brye.

Larry Hisle scored three more runs in the ninthinning with his 10th homer of the season, bringing in Jim Holt and Bobby Darwin. Harrah accounted for Texas' first three runs with two homers, a two-run shot to left with Dave Nelson on in the fifth and a leadoff home run to right in the seventh which led to Blyleven's departure.

STRIKE DEADLINE NEAR NFL Players, Owners Continue Dispute Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NFL players and owners went back to the bargaining table with a federal mediator today, but a strike next Monday seemed more likely than any chance of a settlement of the dispute.

The 1 p.m. EDT session was the first held by negotiators for the two sides since talks broke off in an angry mood 12 days ago.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said before the meeting he was adamantly opposed to postponing the strike deadline if a new contract is not signed.

He was pessimistic that a strike — the second in the last three seasons — could be averted, particularly since none of the major issues presented by NFLPA had been met to its satisfaction.

The agenda for the first day of renewed bargaining listed insurance, pensions, union security and player safety as issues for discussion. But they were only four of 90 demands Garvey and the players have served on the owners' Management Council.

Federal mediator James Scarece was hopeful that he could keep the talks going through Thursday and possibly into the weekend as well.

At issue are a series of contract changes which the players deem to be "freedom issues" as well as minimum wage and contract provisions. John Thompson, executive director of the Management Council, has declared that in the owners' view the "freedom" demands, including elimination of the reserve clause, would create "anarchy" in the National Football League's operations.

Milo wonders if male impotence sends men into excessive alcoholism, or does whiskey produce platonic husbands? Note the latest medical finding outlined below. But you wives can offset alcohol with bouddir cheesecake!

CASE, A-668: Milo Q., aged 36, is a Personnel Director.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I'd like to have you come to Pittsburgh to address our next convention."

"For we find that inefficiency among our workers is often a result of their use of alcohol."

"Many of them have drinking parties on Sunday night, so they have their wives phone us on Monday morning that the men are sick!"

"And we find that the men who seem excessively addicted to John Barleycorn are having sexual problems in their bouddir."

"As you have often stated in print, divorce starts in the bedroom and such husbands seem unusually susceptible to liquor."

"Does liquor cause their sexual problems or do the latter drive them into liquor as an escape mechanism?"

IMPOTENCE AND LIQUOR
When a husband begins to fear that he will become prematurely impotent, his terror soon makes him platonic.

Meanwhile, he feels the need of a convenient "red herring" to divert his wife's attention from his real problem.

Since men are hypersensitive about admitting they are impotent, they must then conjure up a convenient excuse to fool their wives so the latter will not suspect the real cause of male frigidity in the bedroom.

That's why thousands of husbands may suddenly become heavy drinkers by the age of 40, or even much earlier.

Then a vicious circle ensues, for the more they flee into alcoholism, the more the alcohol in turn, reduces their organic erotic function.

Remember, at the outset, impotence in husbands is usually above the eyes, meaning psychological.

An understanding wife who deliberately attempts to seduce her diffident husband by use of more enticing bouddir cheesecake, can cure such husbandly panic in one night!

But after such a scared husband flees from his worries via a whiskey flask, then an organic change may occur.

For chronic alcoholics have just recently been discovered to be deficient in testosterone as well as male sperm.

Drs. David van Thiel, Roger Lester and Richard Sherins recently presented their findings to a medical meeting here in Chicago.

They found that the men with alcohol damaged livers were typified by infertility, impotence and even the development of feminine characteristics.

For example, 62% of the alcoholics had female hair growth patterns, and 16% had abnormally large breasts.

Moreover, 68% of the men, who ranged in age from 29 to 65, had marked reduction in testosterone, plus decreased sperm counts.

And only one man had normal seminal fluid.

Such findings are attributed to damage to the pituitary and hypothalamus glands in the brain, which produce hormones called LH and FSH.

Those hormones seem vital to healthy male sex function.

Many of these men had drunk an average of a pint of whiskey or a quart of wine every day for from 5 to 20 years.

Thus, a psychological sexual inferiority complex may originally drive men into excessive alcoholism, but then the latter may soon render such men organically deficient in sex drive.

Wives, prevent such dire consequences by sending for my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melrose, Indiana 47538. Enclose a long, stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you need for use of his booklets.)

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most states have an official flower, bird and tree. Several also have state fish and at least five have state animals.

But until Gov. Milton Shapp recently signed legislation designating the firefly as the state insect of Pennsylvania, none had an official bug.

The unfairness of this situation may be seen in a National Geographic Society report on the experimental use of firefly bioluminescence as an aid in detecting cancer.

Certainly insects are as much a part of American life and heritage as fish, birds, trees, flowers and animals.

Betterment of Mankind
And, as the Geographic release makes clear, some contribute more to the betterment of mankind than a couple of birds I could mention.

So why doesn't the United States adopt a national insect to take its place alongside our national bird?

I realize such a step would create great controversy. For I have seen the bitter strife that once raged in Congress over the adoption of a national flower.

Covering national flower legislation was the next thing to being a war correspondent.

So fierce were the struggles between the partisans of the rose and the friends of the marigold that to this very day the nation still has no official posy.

Both sides simply exhausted themselves in their titanic clashes and have not yet mustered the strength to renew the crusade in behalf of their favorite blossoms.

Equal or even more vicious infighting could be expected as the lawmakers took positions for or against the honeybee, grasshopper, firefly, picnic ant, cricket, butterfly, katydid, ladybug and other candidates for national insect honors.

But that should not deflect them from their duty.

National Level
Taking nothing away from Pennsylvania, I doubt that the firefly, despite its friendly sparking and medical potential, can go very far on the national level.

The ladybug will be a sentimental favorite, and the powerful butterfly lobby is a factor to be reckoned with.

But just as the national flower free-for-all finally narrowed down to a one-on-one contest between the rose and the marigold, the national insect selection essentially is a choice between the cricket and the honeybee.

These estimable creatures, one pollinating our plants, the other bringing us good luck, clearly are the creme de la creme of the insect kingdom.

All 50 States Now Recognized As Being Free Of Hog Cholera

By BILL HOBBY
Lieutenant Governor
Special recognition to Texas swine producers and the Texas Animal Health Commission (TAHC) marked a significant milestone in the national battle against hog cholera.
For the first time since late 1962, all 50 states in the nation are recognized by the U. S. Department of Agriculture as being free of hog cholera. A state must go for 12 months without a confirmed case to qualify for the designation. A certificate recognizing the achievement was presented at a special meeting of the Commission and Texas pork producers recently in Austin. Making the presentation was Dr. Francis J. Mulhern, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. Dr. Mulhern praised Texas, as well as the other states, for efforts aimed at eradicating the costly disease in this country. "Great savings have already been realized," he said, "with only three infected herds reported nationally during the past 12 months." "However, we must remain vigilant," he continued, "and keep up surveillance at farms and markets until we're sure this disease has, in fact, been eliminated." He said it was especially important for swine producers in the Southwest to remain vigilant because of the proximity to areas in Mexico where the disease is still widespread. Hog cholera is caused by a virus which is highly infectious and usually fatal to hogs. It is completely unrelated to Asiatic cholera that affects humans. The last Texas hog cholera case was confirmed May 2, 1973. The only hog cholera cases reported nationally this year were confirmed February 7 in Mississippi and May 4 in Puerto Rico. Neither Mississippi nor Puerto Rico lost "hog cholera free" status, because those outbreaks were quickly confined and no spread to other herds occurred.
