DESPITE COMMITTEE'S WORK

Questions Unanswered On Hughes Contribution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate committee completes its work this month with many unanswered questions about the mysterious $100,000 Howard Hughes contribution to President Nixon's campaign.

The "Hughes affair" was one of the most extensive and complex of the committee's year long investigations. Lawyers and investigators spent hundreds of hours and thousands of dollars traveling to Las Vegas, California, Florida and the Bahamas. But all they uncovered was more questions and very few answers.

secret fund for Nixon, and labeled as "ridiculous" reports that some of the money was funneled into the financing of Nixon's San Clemente estate.

Department Denies Secret Agreements

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department Saturday denied reports that Secretary Henry A. Kissinger secretly agreed more than a year ago to allow the Soviet Union to increase its missile force beyond ceilings approved by Congress in 1972.

the committee in court, saying they had asked for too much and were invading his privacy.

Department spokesman Robert Anderson declared the reports to be "totally without merit or any foundation whatsoever."

FOR MEAT SUPPLY

Local Markets Trying To Keep Prices Down

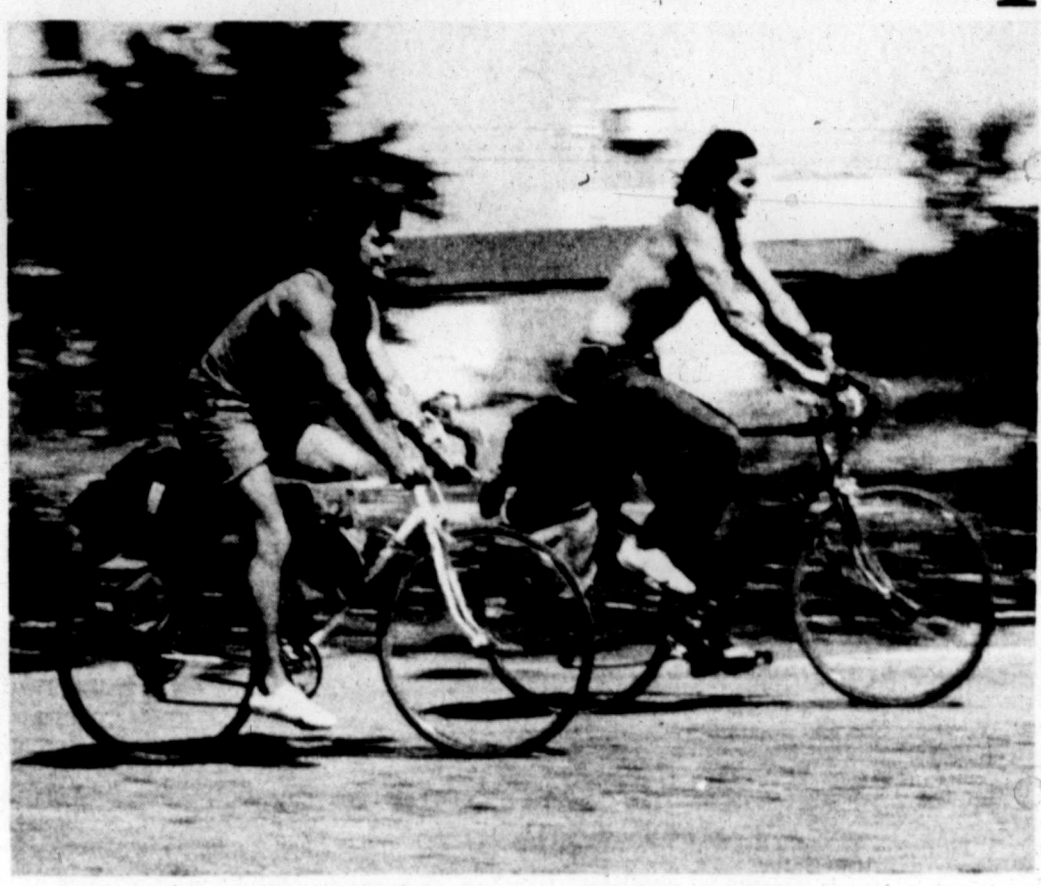

By FRANK BAIN
Retailers of meat in the Pampa area say they are doing all they can to bring down and keep down the price of beef.

Ideal Food Stores No. 1 — "Most of us here in this part of Texas are already selling beef at 30-40 or 50 cents a pound cheaper than elsewhere ... round steak for instance is selling here for 99 cents a pound ... it's better when the government stays out of the meat business."

SWPS Request Action Planned By Commission

Consideration of Southwestern Public Service Company's request for a ten percent increase in electric rates in Pampa will highlight Tuesday's meeting of the Pampa City Commission.

Group Wants Witnesses In Case On Impeachment

ON THEIR WAY to New Orleans and other points south, east and west are these two Pampa cyclists, who left here Saturday for a six-week tour of the south. Ronnie Minnick, left, Rural Route 2, and Steve Lash, 1901 N. Nelson, expect to pedal 60 to 70 miles a day, after the "breaking-in" process. They plan a loop which includes Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and the Texas gulf coast. Their packs contain freeze-dried food, tent and other camping gear.

IS TRIP NECESSARY? Nixon's Summit Decision Causes Division In Allies

BRUSSELS (UPI) — President Nixon's sudden decision to whip up a giant Western summit here next week left his allies divided Saturday over the question: Is this trip really necessary?

Soundings in the capitals of America's 14 North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) allies revealed various reactions to the meeting, with Holland miffed, Britain satisfied, Belgium skeptical, West Germany lukewarm, Italy enthusiastic and France blasé.

toward the United States that it is being held at all. West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt held off the expected announcement, that he will attend until he saw whether other leaders were going. This hesitancy was seen in Bonn as proof of Schmidt's lukewarm attitude toward the sudden NATO announcement that Nixon wanted a summit and was summoning his allies, in effect, to Brussels.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a month left before a decision must be made, the House Judiciary Committee is about to call witnesses for testimony which members hope will nail down a case either for or against President Nixon's impeachment.

Nixon's committee allies and foes alike are looking for testimony to make a compelling case in support of their own viewpoint.

But the President's friends admit privately their need is greater—their last best chance of blocking impeachment in the committee rests with the sworn and probably secret testimony to be elicited in the next few weeks.

Colson was reported Saturday to have disclosed that he warned Nixon on three occasions in January and February, 1973, that the Watergate conspiracy went far beyond the seven men convicted in the break-in. Nixon has said repeatedly that such information did not reach him before March 21, 1973, when John W. Dean III talked to him.

The Judiciary Committee staff also wants testimony from Henry E. Petersen, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, who must explain why the prosecutor's investigation never landed any higher figures in the Nixon administration.

Other potential witnesses include Dean, former Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson and Richard G. Kleindienst, former Nixon advisers John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldean, and former campaign worker Fred LaRue, who played a role in meeting E. Howard Hunt's blackmail demands on March 21, 1973.

But Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., is determined to whittle down the list and to limit questioning to narrow, important areas still in the shadows. He is likely to insist that sensitive testimony be taken behind closed doors.

Moreover, many on the committee of 38 lawyers have a distaste for granting immunity to recalcitrant witnesses who would otherwise invoke their Fifth Amendment rights. And the law provides a delay of up to 30 days before immunity can be granted—too long for the impeachment timetable to permit.

The witness list is to be thrashed out at public meetings of the committee this week, with the first testimony not likely to come before July.

Friday at 7:38 a.m. (CDT) marked the beginning of the first day of summer and the 101 temperature was in keeping with the date.

Summer's beginning cooled off some Saturday, with the high only reaching into the low 80s by midafternoon and a partly cloudy sky threatening rain, with a few scattered sprinkles across sections of the city.

Temperatures climbed over Texas Saturday and light showers roamed the northwestern part of the state. There were only scattered clouds over the state.

The National Weather Service (NWS) said there was some shower activity also along the coast. Temperatures were in the 80s and 90s everywhere in the state.

C-C ANNOUNCES Motorcycle Events Set For 4th Of July Show

Market Research Survey Set For Area Residents

Some 400 Pampa, Skellytown, and Lefors residents are scheduled to be interviewed by telephone here soon through a quarterly buyership survey conducted by the Trendex Market Research Co.

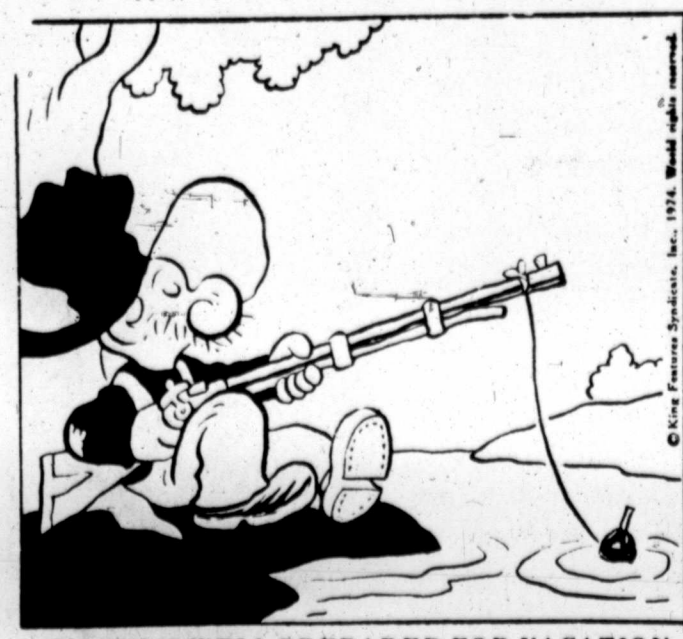

The survey is one phase of a number of similar surveys taken at various locations throughout the United States.

Trendex, Inc. has been in the survey business for about 25 years and has become one of the top market research companies in the country.

The survey is conducted entirely by telephone and the telephone numbers are selected at random.

Earl Wilson

Nixon was so well received abroad he could have slipped Agnew in and got him a standing ovation (Agnew who?) ... With today's inflation, it's a question what's more costly, investing in the market or shopping at a market ... A kibitzer is a guy who always has his nose to someone else's grindstone. Behind every successful man there's a woman — out shopping ... When I was young a Saturday night special was a three-dip banana split. (For more laughs see Earl Wilson on Page 8.)

Sheriff's Car Damaged From Night Accident

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan and three persons who were passengers in his car escaped serious injury when the sheriff's car was involved in an accident about three miles south of Panhandle Friday night.

Jordan said he and Deputy Sheriff R. B. Nickols were returning from Lubbock to Pampa with two prisoners at about 9:45 p.m. when the car struck one of a herd of cattle which suddenly appeared on the roadway of Highway 207.

Assorted bumps and bruises were the only injuries, with no medical treatment necessary, the sheriff said.

The car, a 1972 Pontiac, received extensive damage. A radio call to the courthouse brought a deputy who brought the group to Pampa.

Pampans Charged With Drug Offenses

A Pampa couple and two former residents of Lefors are free on bond after being charged in connection with drug offenses in Amarillo.

Jerry Wright, 30, and his wife, Sherryl Wright, also 30, were arrested Friday morning in Amarillo and were released later the same day after posting bond, according to a spokesman from the Potter-Randall County Metro Unit.

They were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Roy Byrd, who set Wright's bond at $5,000 on a charge of delivery of a controlled substance. Mrs. Wright was freed on personal recognizance bond of $1,000 on a charge of possession of a controlled substance.

Both remain free pending appearance in Potter County District Court, where they will each face a felony count.

The Metro Unit spokesman said the arrests followed a three-week investigation. The Amarillo men identified as former residents of Lefors were freed Friday on $10,000 bond each on federal charges of possession with intent to deliver dangerous drugs (amphetamines). They were listed by the Narcotics Diversion Unit of the Texas Department of Public Safety at Austin as Robert Lee Smith, 36, and Cecil P. Stracener, 50. The state and federal charges resulted from separate investigations in Amarillo by the Metro Unit and the Department of Public Safety.

In all, nine persons were arrested, three on federal charges and six on state charges.

Red Cross News Two Pampa Girls Camp-Bound

By LIBBY SHOTWELL
Executive Secretary ARC
We had 20 adults to come to our Learn to Swim program at the City Pool Monday evening. Several other have told us they would like to take the course.

Instructors for the Adult Beginner Class are Shirley Stafford, Nell Carter, Maritta and Laquita Carter and Ronnie Juett. All are Water Safety Instructors. The water has been so warm and everyone is enjoying themselves.

Larry Tracy, WSI, called us to report that he has 60 boys and girls in his swim class at Wheeler. We are sure that all of them are having a fine swim class.

Larry says that his Junior and Senior Life Saving class was a success with 10 persons from Shamrock with the Wheeler boys and girls taking the course. Larry is teaching a toddler class and he states it is a great success.

Mrs. Nell Carter, WSI, completed an Advanced Beginner Class at the Pampa Youth Center Pool June 14 with the following completing the course: Jackie McAndrew, Charles Dallas, Allen Dallas, Jackie Martindale and Debra Killough.

These boys and girls are ready to begin the Intermediate Class, where they learn their strokes.

The Moran Drilling Company are sponsoring a Multimedia First Aid Class beginning Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. in the City Club Rooms of the City Hall with classes running through Friday of the week. We are glad to work with these men who need First Aid.

The need for a Senior Life

Saving class has become known, so Larry Harris, WSI, will begin a class Monday evening at the City Pool from 6 to 8 p.m. Anyone 15 years of age or older who has taken their Swimmer Class may enter this class for $1 pool fee; the instruction is free.

Each person needs a Water Safety Textbook, so please come by the Red Cross office and pick up your book.

The Almanac

United Press International Today is Sunday, June 23, the 174th day of 1974 with 191 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

The duke of Windsor, Britain's King Edward VIII, was born June 23, 1894.

On this day in history:

In 1845, the Congress of Texas agreed to the territory's annexation by the United States.

In 1947, the House enacted the Taft-Hartley Labor Act over the veto of President Truman.

In 1967, Connecticut Sen. Thomas Dodd, a Democrat, was censured by the U.S. Senate for misusing campaign funds.

A thought for the day: Irish poet James Stephens said, "Women are wiser than men because they know less and understand more."

AMARILLO — Two Pampa girls will be among 150 junior and senior high school students who are expected on the West Texas State University campus June 23 for the fourth annual West Texas Choral Music Camp.

Campers from Pampa are Irene Haesle, daughter of the John J. Haesles, 313 N. Sumner, and Jamie Hood, daughter of the Floyd M. Hoods, 905 Terry. Both attend Pampa High School.

The week-long camp features the Mixed Choir, directed by guest clinician Dr. Eph Ehly, choral conductor from the Conservatory of Music at the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

Dr. Ehly has served as choral clinician throughout the United States, and is known for his work with junior and senior high school students, according to Dr. George Umberson, WTSU music department head and camp director.

Goals of the camp are "primarily to give choral and vocal students some summer enrichment," says Umberson, "to extend them musically, personally and vocally."

Campers will spend from five to six hours in rehearsals and classes each day. Classroom offerings are rhythm activities, stage movement, theory, conducting, beginning piano, private voice lessons and UIL solo preparation.

In addition to the Mixed Choir, students may audition for madrigal groups, men's quartets and girls ensembles.

The camp will close with a concert by the Mixed Choir June 29 in the WTSU Branding Iron Theatre. The 4 p.m. performance is open to the public at no charge.

Staff members for the choral camp are Dr. Hugh Sanders, associate professor of music at WTSU, and high school music directors Tom Jennings, of Canyon, John Wocikowski of Pampa, George Biffle of Amarillo and Tom Adams of Andrews.

Students attending the camp will participate in a Wednesday evening Talent Night, and will see a performance of the musical drama TEXAS at Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Cause Of Rising Prices

A recent survey shows that people are more concerned about inflation than anything else.

We would hope that were the case. For inflation is the cause of a host of bad things, including higher income taxes, rising prices, labor unrest.

But people generally have been concerned about inflation for a long time. Yet nothing has happened. And this is strange. As a rule when people get wise to governmental mismanagement, political electees and appointees change their game. So there must be a missing link that, if supplied, would explain why public concern does not bring about a remedy for inflation.

We have watched the inflation story as it developed in the press over the past 30 years. And we think that perspective gives us some basis for a diagnosis of the gap between widespread concern on the one hand and remedial action on the other.

Over a long period of time, many politicians, bankers, economists and media have combined to misinform the American people as to what inflation is. The general tendency was to say that inflation was the same as rising prices. When bankers said that, when politicians said that, when economists said that, and when newsmen repeated that, obviously members of the public would tend to believe that. For it would seem to the casual reader and listener that everyone who was in a position to know was in agreement.

How much of this deception was intentional, how much the old - follow - the - leader error is anybody's guess. But even prestigious financial journals were parroting the same mistake; that is, referring to high prices as inflation. But the truth was at hand all the time - no further away than the closest dictionary. One of the common dictionary definitions of inflation is this: "Disproportionate the relatively sharp and sudden increase in the quantity of money or credit, or both, relative to the amount of goods available for purchase. Inflation always produces a rise in the price level." In other words, when the government and the political bankers (Federal Reserve Bank Board) create purchasing media faster than the rest of the country creates marketable goods, you have inflation. Technically, inflation can take place through over - extension of private credit. However, for the most part it takes place when the federal government runs out of dollars to pay its bills and then authorizes the legal counterfeiting of additional dollars.

Because the media have not been frank and fair with the public, because they have been only too willing to accept statements at face value, the truth about inflation has not registered. The truth is, inflation is largely government caused. Once that single fact is widely and thoroughly understood, you can begin to expect some relief from the bad effects that inflation causes.

Banking On Wabash

We don't know anything about Wabash College except that it is in Crawfordsville, Indiana and that, according to a recent news release, it does not accept money from the Federal government.

That statement caused us to read further, because any institution that can withstand the temptation to saddle other people with a share of its burdens must have some strong moral fiber.

Wabash College held its 136th commencement recently at which an announcement was made that the school had raised $17.5 million in a campaign for continued independence and excellence." The drive, seeking $32 million began only three months ago.

The college has 800 students and 7,500 living alumni, and its president, Thaddeus Seymour, said the raising of the $17.5 million "is an unprecedented philanthropic achievement."

What it says to us is that someone out there recognizes the value of an independent college and is willing to invest in its future.

To be sure, a student body of 800 does not make it a very big school, but with an independent philosophy, they might be giants.

Special Kind Of Olympics

By GARRY WILLS

On a recent Saturday I spent the afternoon watching young people jump higher and farther than I can, and run faster. They were all mentally retarded.

Each spring Special Olympics are held around the country on the same weekend, and entries for them have been soaring, along with attendance and the volunteering of services. Last year I went to the Maryland Special Olympics in Towson, and it seemed to have only half the numbers that showed up this year.

Often asked to autograph a participant's program. She would ask for the young person's name and write a personal message to him or her.

If the child stammered or got stuck, she did not rush on or smooth things over. She waited and prompted the child until the task was achieved. The whole point of the Olympics is to show what the retarded can do for themselves. Each name pronounced against the recalcitrances of the body is a triumph of courage and will.

When a girl stumbled in a race, the coach was not there to comfort her while she cried. He told her to get up and keep going. There is too much to be done for people to stand around wasting their time. (That way, too, the coaches keep from crying.)

And the pride in achievement is stunning. Young people with medals and ribbons on their track shirts came up to me all afternoon and began, right off the bat, telling me how they had won them. They were the real educators of the day.

For the Olympics are not meant only to show the children what they can do, but to show us. Mrs. Shriver made the point repeatedly by asking each child who was about to get out of school if he or she had a job. An encouraging number said yes. There are many things the retarded can do, and are anxious to show their hard - won skills at. The false delicacy that shoves them all out of sight is disappearing, but not fast enough.

Some people still think of all the retarded as simply incompetent, and all as essentially alike in this incompetence. Yet here were people proving that even some severely handicapped children can do much more than might have been expected from them earlier. And many others were superb at what they did.

They call these spring meetings the Special Olympics, and the title is more than a euphemism. Some children wore gold medals, and some silver. Others wore ribbons of various sorts. But these were only the small recent victories in a whole series of achievements.

To get here, each had to overcome obstacles that would have disheartened most of us. In that sense, they were all wearing invisible clusters of gold medals. They are all special.

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

"IN THE INTEREST OF GOOD WILL, THE PRESIDENT WOULD LIKE TO PRESENT A GIFT - THE HOUSE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE."

If someone were to pay you ten cents for every kind word that you have spoken about people, and collect five cents for every unkind word, would you be rich or poor?

But aren't obscene profits made by oil companies at the expense of consumers? Well, let's see: Fortune magazine - compared oil company profits with other companies', and the most profitable of the largest oil companies last year was number 66 down the list! Most of out oil companies were in the bottom one-third. And oil companies were comparatively unrewarding investments mostly because there's already too much government snooping inhibiting profits and restraining development.

Let's look at the books of one typical oil company. Its profits on invested capital last year were 6 percent which, by the way, is less than the profits of any on of the TV networks.

Did the oil company hand out these profits to investors? Only a minute fraction of 1 percent was paid out in dividends. The oil company sat on those eggs and hatched them!

The company drilled twice as many wells as the year previous. Last year's 55 dry holes cost $260,000 per hole! This year the company will spend - not pocket - more than $165 million seeking and developing new oil and natural gas in the United States.

The increased profits are allowing this company to spend - $100 million dollars more this year than during the lean years of 1971 on domestic exploration for more oil and gas.

If government ran the oil business, that additional $100 million would likely come from increased taxes instead of from retained profits.

The next time some deluded senator condemns the oil industry - or any private industry - for showing a profit, tell him you sure wish government did.

INDICTED UNION OFFICIAL:

SLA Woman's Angry Father

By VICTOR RIESEL
NEW YORK

Bereavement is one thing. Abuse is another. Apparently both have been fused and confused in the mind of the father of one of the Symbionese Liberation Army women who was killed amid a revolutionary arsenal of eight sawed-off shotguns, four carbines, two rifles, five pistols and three bayonets. The parent, Lawrence De Angelis, has been complaining loudly that his late daughter, Angela Atwood, was driven into the class struggle by the "degradation" of society in general and the FBI in particular.

Since Larry De Angelis has laid his protestation on the line, he has set the rules for a public dialogue. "Perhaps," one federal agent said, "De Angelis should look closer to home for an analysis of his daughter's actions."

And, the chap added, "he should look more for fraud than for Freud, but the latter would help too."

Fact is the authorities believe De Angelis hasn't done so well by society. He is one of the leaders of Teamsters Local 999, Metal, Plastics, Novelty and Production Workers in New Jersey's Passaic and Bergen Counties. Authorities believe he keeps some mighty strange friends.

De Angelis now is out on bail and awaiting trial on nine counts of alleged conspiracy to embezzle, embezzlement and mishandling of union funds. Also failure to submit accurate reports and keep proper records. He is the union's secretary - treasurer.

He was indicted along with his union president, James Perrotti, and Joe Yannucci, business agent, on April 27, 1972. It was the New Jersey anti - organized crime Justice Department strike force, then headed by the dedicated Jerry McGuire, working with knowledgeable Labor Department investigators which brought in what they believe to be clinching evidence of guilt. McGuire has recently been transferred to the Brooklyn strike force.

The bulk of the charges, involving thousands of dollars, includes alleged unauthorized salary payments and forging of minutes. The men are innocent until proven guilty. This will be determined by a federal court.

Some of the evidence was brought in by the FBI. So one can understand De Angelis' antipathy for the Bureau.

In his public protestations and widely circulated letters, De Angelis insinuates there is little due process around - and that his daughter was killed without such "due process." Yet he knows that he has been given every possible iota of his legal rights. He will have a chance to defend himself against substantial charges that he defrauded the treasury of a working class organization.

Yet there was hardly any due process given to Marcus Foster, an esteemed Oakland (Calif.) educator, when the SLA shot him dead last Nov. 6 and proudly claimed the lethal distinction.

De Angelis, in his communications, writes of the social and political "degradation" which he says "contributed largely to these (SLA) young people's actions." Presumably, these actions include robbing a bank and shooting two innocent passers-by just for kicks in the process.

"There is no doubt," De Angelis has written, "that they (the SLA) were motivated by a sincere desire to alleviate the plight of the poor and the exploited segments of our population."

If that's a reference to the SLA's demand for food distribution (which was generously contributed), perhaps the union official has overlooked a statement by A. Ludlow Kramer who directed the distribution program.

"Our warehouses were burglarized, our trucks were hijacked and I had my life threatened 17 times, twice with a gun at my head," he said. "We were really in a war more than a food giveaway program."

But basically De Angelis

misunderstands "the revolution" which his daughter joined. It doesn't go in for collective bargaining, or ordinary muscle. This is not a shakedown of society. Nor a ripoff. It's war.

Therefore it's tragic to note that De Angelis sees this as partially a racial conflict. He writes:

"Had these people been found in an all-white neighborhood, and had the group not been interracial, would the FBI and the local (Los Angeles) police have turned their (SLA) last stand into an oven for a 'final solution'?"

The use of the words "oven" and "final solution," even inadvertently is bound to bring to mind Third Reich literature. Linking this to the FBI is reminiscent of other propaganda.

Why the sudden class consciousness on De Angelis' part? Why the abusive attack on the FBI? Why the talk about "due process"? The SLA confessed to many crimes. They no longer were innocent. So who is guilty of what degradation and exploiting what working class?

Where Oil Business Is Run By Government

By PAUL HARVEY

Notice the people shouting, "Power to the people!" They're demanding that government enforce it.

What these masochistic morons are really demanding is "more power to the government!"

We're even hearing electioneering on the theme that oil companies should be run by the government.

Before we submit Lady Liberty to further rape, let's see how government - run oil companies are doing elsewhere.

The price of oil in the United States has increased 73 percent over the past 15 years. During those same years the price of a penny post card escalated to 8 cents.

Private industry increased prices 73 percent. The business which the government ran increased prices 700 percent.

And you want government to run the oil business!

In those other countries where government does own and operate the oil industry, motorists are paying an average $1.25 a gallon.

A pollster put the question of nationalization of major industries to the British people 10 years ago: 61 percent of them were in favor of government taking over and running industries.

Then they tried it. They demanded and got government ownership of some major industries, and prices went so high and efficiency slumped so low that this year - asked about nationalization of North Sea oil - 67 percent of them replied, "Please, no!"

But aren't obscene profits made by oil companies at the expense of consumers? Well, let's see: Fortune magazine - compared oil company profits with other companies', and the most profitable of the largest oil companies last year was number 66 down the list! Most of out oil companies were in the bottom one-third. Did the oil company hand out these profits to investors? Only a minute fraction of 1 percent was paid out in dividends. The oil company sat on those eggs and hatched them!

The company drilled twice as many wells as the year previous. Last year's 55 dry holes cost $260,000 per hole! This year the company will spend - not pocket - more than $165 million seeking and developing new oil and natural gas in the United States.

The increased profits are allowing this company to spend - $100 million dollars more this year than during the lean years of 1971 on domestic exploration for more oil and gas.

If government ran the oil business, that additional $100 million would likely come from increased taxes instead of from retained profits.

The next time some deluded senator condemns the oil industry - or any private industry - for showing a profit, tell him you sure wish government did.

Rearview Mirror

By TEX DEWESE
Editor Of The News

PAMPA SOON will have a full city commission. Last Tuesday's special write-in election to pick a commissioner to fill the Ward 4 vacancy caused by resignation of Arthur J. Rohde was won by Linden (Butch) Shepherd. He will be sworn in Tuesday.

He won handily over two other announced write-in candidates. Shepherd came up with 290 out of the 461 total votes cast. His announced opponents received 111 and 53 votes.

This gives rise to a question from an interested election observer: How do you go about winning an election?

Well, to begin with - it doesn't hurt to get the "right" people on your side.

There was no on - the - surface campaigning by any of the candidates in Tuesday's election. There were no campaign novelties passed out, such as pencils, emory boards for the gals and matchbooks for the men. No cards with photos of the candidates and a plea for support. Very little personal contact campaigning.

In fact, not too many voters knew the candidates for whom they were voting - except for the council given them by those "right" people.

This casts no reflection on any of the candidates - it is mentioned here merely to point out the fact that a few friends can get on the telephone on the final day before an election and spread the word that they know you and you would make a good man for the office.

Rearview Mirror had calls from persons who said they didn't know any of the candidates and the candidates had not called on them - so, for whom should they vote?

Word comes from three of those who helped that it was a last - minute telephone campaign Monday night that decided the outcome of Tuesday's election.

ANOTHER interesting thing about the city election is the fact that only 461 of Pampa's approximately 8,000 eligible voters bothered to go to the polls.

Those figures tell you that about 95 percent of the city voters either didn't know the candidates well enough to make a choice, or they didn't give a hoot who was elected.

Repeating - no reflection on the candidates. Rather it is to show what can happen in any election - city, county, state or national.

The only city election in Pampa since 1969 that attracted more than 1,000 voters was in April 1973 when the total vote was 1,318.

Only 127 voted in April this year. 809 in April 1972; in April 1971 the figure was 331, in April 1970 only 94 votes were cast, and in April 1969 the total vote was 189.

Actually, when you consider those figures on the voting for municipal offices, last Tuesday's turnout was on the "heavy" side.

Another fairly heavy vote came in October of 1970 when 1,570 turned out for the M.K. Brown auditorium $800,000 bond election.

It would seem that when only 5 percent of the voters show up for an election there is reason to believe a lot of folks couldn't care less who is elected.

We'll say it again - there is no intention here to belittle or asperse any of the candidates in Tuesday's election. As a matter of fact, we have been told any one of them would have been a good public servant.

MAYBE IT is best to forget trying to figure out why more people don't show an interest in elections.

Perhaps it should be attributed to something that's happening throughout the land - something described as "the changing times."

Is it a feeling that no matter what - folks out in the grassroots and boondocks probably will come out on the short end of the deal?

Are people losing faith in those who do the "governing"? Is it because of political scandals in high places and trusted men who have fallen from pedestals?

Whatever it is, it's causing some kind of a downturn in the attitude and state of mind on the part of those who expect honesty, integrity and a fair shake from government at all levels.

And - whatever it is - it must not be forgotten the remedy can only come from the people - from individuals who take the time to be concerned about keeping the ship on the right course.

WORRY CLINIC

Alpha's professor can profitably be imitated by other pragmatic educators, both in seminaries and Liberal Arts colleges. For it is current problems that cause most of our unhappiness, so try to show people how to avoid divorce, animosity, unpopularity and disease!

CASE A-666: Alpha G., aged 24, is a seminary student.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "our psychology professor is a fan of yours."

"So he has suggested that I use as a thesis topic the idea of having churches conduct an annual 'Worry Clinic,' patterned after your daily psychology column."

"Therein he says we can perform group counseling and thus save many marriages that are heading toward divorce."

"In fact, we can include teen-agers and focus on the vital problems they should consider even before they enter wedlock."

"Other problems of the parent-child sort can likewise be the subjects for group discussion."

"Plus the 'Ponce de Leon Complex' which you mention as attacking many otherwise good husbands who pass the age of 40 and have stodgy wives."

"Dr. Crane, I'd like to use a dozen or more of your newspaper booklets for discussion purposes during our church 'Worry Clinic.'"

"We'll have the ladies scrapbook your column during our 12-week series of forum discussions, and thus employ the newspaper for our textbook."

"What do you think of this practical project as a thesis subject for my advanced degree?"

HORSE SENSE

Such practical projects are certainly worthy of praise. They merit duplication by other seminaries and graduate schools.

For far too many graduate theses are so farfetched and useless that they appear ridiculous to most Americans with gumption.

Imagine squandering 3 years of graduate work toward a Ph. D. and exhaustive library study on such a topic as:

"The Cultural Significance of Castanets in Medieval Spain."

What bearing would the results have on modern vital problems?

And here's another typical evidence of academic impracticality:

"The Love Life of the Gold Fish."

With the divorce rate zooming past the 30% figure and venereal disease becoming a worldwide epidemic, due to the modern sensualism Alpha's thesis topic certainly should pay far richer dividends in human happiness than 90% of the trivia now hatched up for Ph.

D. thesis topics. Seminary students should especially focus on current vital problems of their parishioners, such as:

(1) How to employ magic to zoom the interest of children in the 5-minute preliminary sermonette.

(2) How to use ventriloquy to attract attention and lampoon lazy church folks via the "dummy."

(3) How to use my H-E-L-P conversation formula to avoid letting teen-agers remain tongue-tied on a date.

(4) How to change timid or anti-social people (young and old) into attractive, gracious conversationalists via the "Compliment Club".

(5) How a coed can hold the admiration of her date without submitting to illicit sexual affairs.

(6) How to preside tactfully at a church Board Meeting and keep everybody happy.

(7) How to train parents, bosses and school teachers to employ the "Sandwich Method" for correction, without engendering hatred or ill will.

(8) How to prevent husbands from straying.

(9) How to stop bedwetting and thumb sucking.

(10) How to stimulate enthusiastic Bible reading among children.

Use the appropriate booklets offered by this newspaper for your church group "Worry Clinic" and homework projects.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Merrill, Indiana 47959. Enclose a leg stamp, address coverage and 25 cents in cover typing and printing costs when you read for one of these booklets.)

Youth Center Report

Summer Health Club Membership to Youth
The Center has a special short term membership for youth during the summer months who wish to use the health club. To graduating seniors or anyone in college you may purchase a 3-month membership for only $35. This entitles you to full use of all our facilities. Our health club houses the weights, exercise machines, sauna, two handball and racquetball courts. Most of the individual physical exercise machines are housed in the health club. Young people are urged to take advantage of this offer immediately.

Summer Baton Lessons
If you are interested in learning how to twirl or use a baton, we have just the class for you. During the summer vacation period, a baton class is held at the Center.
Such classes as junior high advanced classes, beginners, novelty, intermediates and dance twirl are offered.
Junior high baton lessons are scheduled from 1:30 p.m. until 2 p.m., beginners from 2:20 p.m. and novelty and dance twirl last from 2:30 until 3 p.m.
To participate in any of these classes there are only two qualifications. One, you must be a member of the Youth Center and have a balanced baton. All memberships are available at the front desk and batons are available at your local music store.

Rhonda Dennis, noted high school twirler, will conduct all of the classes. Classes continue from June 3 - July 12 on Monday, Wednesday and Fridays. Rhonda is also available for private lessons during the month of June to a limited number of people. If interested, please call her at 665-3095.

Summer Y.C. Schedule
During the summer vacation months the Center is open almost all the time. Swim lessons are taught in the pool from 8-12 p.m. with the gym and recreation hall open to activities. We observe lunch from 12-1 p.m. and supper from 5-7 p.m.
At 1 o'clock the afternoon activities begin with all ages swim and trampolining, twirling lessons, games, tumbling, basketball, pool, ping pong, etc. After supper hours, we reopen at 7 p.m. for the evening activities. The swimming pool is open from 1:40 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 1:40 p.m. on Saturday. The Center is closed on Sundays during the summer.

Summer Swim Lessons
Although the initial day of enrollment for the summer swim classes was May 9, you may still enroll your children. There are some vacancies in some of the classes and you may check the schedule below and inquire at the Center front office to see if there is still a vacancy.
All of the summer classes are taught during the morning hours so that the swimming pool can be opened in the afternoons to all ages swimming. Classes meet on a one hour time limit except the junior and senior lifesaving class. This lifesaving class meets for two hours each morning.
All classes are taught by qualified Red Cross Water Safety instructors. These instructors are co-ordinated

- by our resident instructor, Ruth Carter.
Cost of the lessons is $4 for non-members or free to Youth Center members. Memberships are available to the public at all times. You get a full six months or year's membership, no matter what day of the month you join.

Rhonda Dennis, Center baton instructor, has announced the first finalists for most outstanding twirler. Six girls were chosen out of the beginner and intermediate classes to compete for this title.
They are Lori Stephens, Melissa Nail, Cheryl and Katrina Whitmarsh, Donna Riddle and Penny Miller. Championships will be announced at a later date.

Dues Change July 1
The Center announces after much reluctance that there will have to be a dues increase as of July 1, 1974. Rising costs of services and all supplies have caused this change. This is the first change since the Center opened in 1961.
Starting July 1, an individual membership will cost $8 for six months and $10 per year. A family membership will cost $15 for six months or $25 per year.
Health facility dues will stay the same except for the initial payment or the difference in the regular dues increase. A health club individual member will pay $68 for six months or $120 per year.

Anti-Perspirant Doesn't Work

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My problem may sound trivial but it is very big to me. No anti-perspirant I use works. They stop odor but do no good in keeping me dry. I am so tired of being embarrassed even in winter or in air-conditioned rooms.

I am easy to excite and stay tense a lot. Could this have anything to do with my problem?

My mother says it is a sign that you are healthy when you perspire. If so there must be just a few healthy people on earth.

Perspiration is one of the bodily functions over which you have no voluntary control, but your overactive nerves have a great deal to do with it. It may well be that as you calm down with the passage of time, your problem will moderate.

However, that doesn't happen overnight, and I can sympathize with young women who have as extreme a difficulty as you do. (For the majority, the various antiperspirants plus a deliberate effort to relax is adequate, and the more confidence they gain, the better the results.)

In very severe situations, surgical help can become necessary for comfort. While there are drugs that suppress perspiration, the required dosage is such that side effects result.

As to surgery, there are two methods I am aware of. One is removal of tissue in the armpits that contain sweat glands. The other is a procedure called sympathectomy. This involves severing nerve trunks having to do with perspiration control, and is done by a neurosurgeon.

You would have to consult your own physician for referral to surgeons who do these operations. If you live in a city without such facilities, you can go to one of the larger medical centers.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About a year ago a guy on a TV program claimed he had accidentally found a cure for baldness. He said that while curing ulcers on the head of a 90-year-old man, he found a compound that grew a tuft of hair. It seems to me he said vitamin A and (are you ready?) estrogen.

Please don't think I am a nut. I KNOW I saw this show and he claimed it would be marketable in six months. Have you heard anything or can you find out?

No, I don't think you're a nut. But I have over the years heard and sometimes talked to so many people who were utterly convinced that they had found "a cure for baldness" that I have learned to pay no attention to them whatsoever.

When or if some university or medical center or reliable pharmaceutical firm reports such a thing, along with some factual data instead of a mere say-so, then I'll take notice. Feminization of males can occur from estrogen used this way.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does homemade maple sugar or brown sugar have as much effect as cane or beet sugar has on diabetes? Or how about molasses in making cookies or muffins?

The coloring and flavoring make no difference. Anyone with diabetes should stay away from everything you mentioned. They all have a high sugar content.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have glaucoma but the drops I have to put in my eyes sting for one or two minutes. The doctor has changed brands several times but the stinging continues. He says I should get used to it after a while.

Will this stinging do any damage to my eyes?

It is not unusual for the drops to sting momentarily, so you aren't alone. But unless they produce redness or greater signs of irritation, the advice to continue them is correct.

Unless properly treated, both glaucoma and cataracts can lead to blindness. If you are afflicted with either of these ailments, or know someone who is, write to Dr. G.C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, for his booklet, "Cataracts and Glaucoma." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Elizabeth And Her Liberation

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Liberated lady Elizabeth Ashley has been in jail a few times, doesn't know how many times she's been married, (promises she'll never marry again), finds smoking marijuana "a nice way to relax," and never liked being called "Mrs." because it was debilitating and "made me feel like a cow or a horse."

"I'm in my early 30s, right?" she says. "I was out there by myself in the female experience a long time and it was lonely. You're always grateful when others come in and you're not so freaky."

Seriously back in acting after a six-year layoff to be George Peppard's housewife, she's perfectly cast, she feels, as an adventuress, a gypsy, in an American International film "Golden Needles," playing a con woman.

"I've been married a whole lot of times," she said in her suite at the Drake, with her feet up on a coffee table, rubbing one against the other. "How many times? I don't know. I just got married a lot. They all run together at some point. I'm not going to march down any more aisles."

"Marriage hasn't anything to do with mating. There's not a lot of people I want to have sex with but the ones I want to have it with I want to have it a lot."

Her hair fell to her shoulders and she talked swiftly and well, her thoughts on being a liberalized lady pouring out incessantly.

"I've been in jail a bunch of times. In Chicago in '68 carrying a sign supporting Eugene McCarthy. I fell down and the police kicked me in the ribs. They took us to jail and kept us in 14 hours."

"And," she continued, "when I was very young, in Mississippi, when they had literacy tests for Negroes, they said, 'You Commy pinks aggit' and kept us in jail overnight, and overnight in Mississippi can be a lifetime."

"Also," and she was still rubbing one stocking foot against the other. "I was in the Tombs a couple of hours, when I was 19. Innocent babes that we were, we were demonstrating against the coffee houses having to kick back to the cops."

"That's about it as far as me being a criminal."

She's crazy about the shady lady she portrays in the film. "She's conning this dude into helping her pull off this caper and he says it's dangerous. She says, 'Don't you know anything any good is dangerous?'"

"I'm an adventuress, too."

THE WEEKEND WINDUP...

Peter Fonda was asked to be a judge at the Miss Universe contest in Manila, but declined when he learned he'd have to wear a tuxedo to the president's palace. He told Cindy Adams, "I don't own a tuxedo. I don't own a tie, or anything I can't wash"... Restaurateur (and horseman) Van Rapoport's entry placed in a major Greek show, ridden by socialite Christine Dimitriatou. (He may bring horse and rider back here.)

"I took my best shot at leading a conformist life but it's alien to my nature. To be dependent on anybody has been painful for me." As for continuing to be single, she said, "The day of the Scarlet Letter is far past."

Richard Nixon, she commented, "is a man who led a very neat, orderly, easy life." She sat up in anger. "What really me off was when they tried to steal my country, like a bunch of cur dogs snarling and salivating over a bone. For that I will have rage till the day die."

Her son Christian Peppard, 6, will make his own choices about many things. "I hear these parents, after about 17 martinis, saying their children don't love them. They say, 'All right, after all I've done for you, what are you going to do for me?' I think it's arrogant."

A friend of Sly of the Family Stone who had a televised wedding, Miss Ashley approved enthusiastically and also applauded Elliot Gould and Jennifer O'Neill announcing they'd shucked off other partners to have their own new wedding.

"I'd rather be light. Today's Best Laugh: Taffy Tuttle suspects her butcher is using phony scales: 'The other day I didn't buy anything -- and it weighed three pounds.'" Wish I'd Said That: It's when a woman hasn't been to the hairdresser for a few weeks that she shows her true colors.

Remembered Quote: "Minds are like parachutes. They function only when open." Earl's Pearls: People who've stayed at one of the expensive new resort spots say it's really a family hotel: "You have to bring along a very wealthy relative." View from the Plains
District Information/Education Officer, J.D. Prew
Texas Parks & Wildlife Department
Panhhandle Plains, District Office

Have you looked up the regulations on trotline requirements in Texas lately?

According to department reports over two hundred different violations covering trotlines on Lake Meredith were observed on June 6-7 by Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. wardens. In fact, this exact number of trotlines were confiscated by six wardens for violations for expired dates, no address, too many hooks and too many lines. Only about twenty percent of the trotlines observed were legal.

Apparently, fishermen are not obeying our trotline laws or they just don't know the rules by which they must fish," Weldon Fromm, Amarillo District Supervisor, said today. "Citations are being written every time we observe a trotline violation," Fromm continued, "and fishermen should call one of our district offices or stop by and find out what the regulations are for this type of fishing."

First, a trotline is a main fishing line constructed of a non-metallic material with more than five hooks. In all regulatory counties,

East Beats West For Soc Upset

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — A breakthrough goal by center forward Jurgen Sparwasser gave East Germany a 10 up victory over West Germany Saturday in the first major upset of the competition.

Both teams had qualified for the second round before they met in the final group one match at Hamburg—the first meeting of the two Germans on a soccer field—but the capacity crowd of 60,000 booted the home team off the field after it disintegrated in a feeble second half display.

In Frankfurt, Yugoslavia tied Scotland 1-1 and in Gelsenkirchen, defending champion Brazil scrambled past Zaire 3-0 in another unconvincing display to qualify. Australia held out for a 0-0 tie against Chile in Berlin, playing three hours later, automatic qualification before it began its match.

Tennis Club To Sponsor Tournament

The Pampa Tennis Club will sponsor a doubles tournament for both men and women (not mixed) next Saturday and Sunday at the high school courts.

The event, which has a 6 p.m. Thursday entry deadline, will start at 9:30 a.m. Saturday and approximately 1:30 p.m. Sunday. It will cost $3.00 for adults and $2.00 for students.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three teams in the two divisions.

San Diego Sophomore Ties World Record In 100-Meter

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steve Williams felt he had something to prove and he did.

The fluid-striding San Diego State sophomore beat Don Quarrie, Reggie Jones and Ivory Crockett Friday, tying a world record in the process.

Williams, 20, the No. 1 sprinter in the world in 1973 but whose reputation has been tarnished this year, captured the National AAU 100-meter dash title in 9.9 seconds. He was the favorite in the AAU 200 Saturday.

"I know some people were saying that I was old and washed up," the talented athlete said after becoming the sixth man in history to achieve a 9.9. "I came prepared to run. I was psyched up for this one."

The 6-foot-3 Williams came into the race as an underdog despite the fact that he was a double sprint winner at the 1973 AAU meet at Bakersfield, Calif.

He'd lost three in a row — first to Crockett at the Modesto Relays, then to Quarrie at the Kennedy Games and finally to Jones at the NCAA championships.

On Friday, Quarrie and Jones were second and third, respectively, in 10.0 while Crockett, who became the first man in history to record a 9.0 100-yard dash last month, was a badly beaten seventh in 10.2.

Williams matched a record that was set by Jim Hines, Charlie Greene and Ronnie Ray Smith at the 1968 National AAU meet at Sacramento, Calif., and equaled by Eddie Hart and Rey Robinson in the 1972 Olympic Trials at Eugene, Ore.

Big John Powell of the Pacific Coast Club and shaven-headed Dick Burkle of the New York Athletic Club set AAU records, Powell with 214 feet, 11 inches in the discus and Burkle with 13:33.4 in the 5,000-meter run.

NCAA champion Charles Foster of North Carolina Central tied the AAU record by winning the 110-meter high hurdles in 13.4.

World record holder Dwight Stones of the PCC captured his second straight AAU high jump crown by going 7-3 1/4, while Bouncy

Moore made it two AAU long jump titles in five years by capturing his event at 26-5 1/4.

The two-day competition wound up at UCLA's Drake Stadium Saturday with 13 more finals.

The top two American finishers in each event qualify for the U.S. team that will face the Soviet Union at Durham, N.C., July 5-6.

ABA Hopes To Operate With A 10-Team League

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The American Basketball Association, gearing for an all-out war with the National Basketball Association, plans to operate with a 10-team league again next season although the location of one franchise still is undetermined.

Emerging from a 14-hour meeting late Friday night, Commissioner Mike Storen announced the ABA trustees had:

—Resolved to press their $300 million antitrust suit against the NBA.

—Approved the sale of the Carolina Cougars franchise by owner Tedd Munchak to an unidentified group that made a $500,000 deposit and has not decided on a location although Cincinnati or Los Angeles were mentioned as the most likely sites.

—Decided to let another unidentified group make arrangements for buying the Memphis franchise and keeping it in the Tennessee city.

—Approved the sale of the Virginia Squires franchise to a Norfolk group headed by banker John Bernhard. The financially beleaguered franchise had been taken over by the league from owner Earl Foreman.

—Learned that San Diego Conquistadors owner Leonard Bloom had obtained a lease to enable his team to play in the 14,500-seat San Diego arena in coming seasons instead of the 3,200-seat Golden Hall Community concourse where they played the past two seasons.

—Decided to expand into Los Angeles and St. Louis with new franchises for the 1975-76 season.

John Y. Brown Jr., Louisville, husband of Ellie Brown, the board chairman of the Kentucky Colonels, disclosed that the ABA also planned to file lawsuits against the NBA and some NBA teams alleging "restraint of trade and misrepresentation" in the senior league's rejection of eliminating the player option clause.

The NBA action amounted to rejection of merger with the ABA, which ABA owners had been seeking.

French traders Radisson and Crosseliers made an expedition into Minnesota as early as 1654.

Problem Drinker Will Lose Control

This article is part of a series on "The Progression of Alcoholism" produced by the Alcoholism Council of San Fernando Valley, Calif. The stories are made available locally through the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation.

It often is said that problem drinker on his way to chronic alcoholism is in the same position as a man on a bus. He need not go all the way to the end of the line — death or a mental institution.

He may get off and achieve recovery at any station, it depends on at which point he recognizes the symptoms in himself and accepts them realistically.

In order to help actual sufferers of this killer disease or families, friends or employers of the alcoholic, The Pampa News is publishing a series of articles, of which this is the fourth. Once tell-tale signs are heeded, aid and direction can be obtained at the Alcoholic Counseling Program.

Earlier articles have explored symptoms of the pre-alcoholism stage. If permitted to continue unimpeded, this kind of behavior develops into acute alcoholism. This phase is marked by a worsening of previous symptoms and the introduction of new and more threatening signs of behavior patterns.

Conflicting emotion within the heavy drinker creates confusion and unreasonableness, which whiplashes violently into even more confusion and painful frustration. This phase sets the stage for eventual chronic alcoholism by building severe physical and mental complication in the handling of everyday problems.

One new major change in behavior beginning with the acute stage is the loss of control in the person's drinking. Once he takes that first drink, he cannot stop until he is drunk.

The person who has not accepted this as an irrefutable fact, may choose to kill 15 minutes before an appointment by entering a bar for a drink. Certainly, he is positive, no more than two. Hours later, he staggers out with perhaps two dozen under his belt.

He had not intended to get potted. He had not expected to want more than the predetermined couple. Once his imbibing begins, everything other than ordering refills becomes more and more unimportant. Too late, he agrees with the adage: one is too many, a thousand is not enough.

The tendency to always get "bombed" goes on with shocking surety even when the problem drinker tries to hold to a couple at a party, a business luncheon or at home all alone. A state of oblivion invariably beckons, and there is nothing he can do to hold back.

When the familiar "morning after" comes, he sincerely is concerned about whether or not he has lost will power. But he flares angrily at friends who attempt to suggest as much.

Why does he keep trying for controlled drinking when he continues to fail? Actually, he honestly does not believe (and will fight against believing) that he has reached a point in the abuse of alcohol where he never will again enjoy "social drinking."

At this point, practically every alcoholic behaves alike. Concern over loss of will power sends him on a long, futile, frustrating and usually painful campaign to recapture that power of control so that he can prove to the rest of mankind that he can drink without being alcoholic. This frantic search turns into an obsession that cannot fail to hasten deterioration. Each time he attempts those "two drinks only" he is positive this will be the time when, by exercising control, he can break through to normalcy.

From this point on, his addiction is complete. No longer has he any chance of controlling his drinking. When the problem drinker begins to excuse his excessive consumption and frequent and repeated drunks by saying he drinks "because" — nagging wife, unreasonable boss, for example — it is safe to conclude he is within the acute stages of the disease of alcoholism.

Rationalization is common to all alcoholics. The words of the drinker in trouble are predictable. "It's because..." "If only people would let me alone..." "Unfair attitudes and actions of others drive him to binges, he says. "I could control my drinking perfectly if..." "It's not my fault..."

Such excuses rarely accompany the descent into intoxication but spring forth when the overwhelming sense of guilt comes with the hangover. Why does he need to look for reasons when the glow is upon him?

Later, he has a need to explain the whys to family, friends, and employers. The more he passes the buck, the more he is positive that he merits special privileges so that he can continue to "drink at" all those injustices.

Home Honors Resident

Mrs. Elizabeth Kretzmeier was honored recently at the Pampa Nursing Center as "Resident of the Month" for May, according to Vickie Phillips, director of social services.

Born in Germany in 1880, she has lived in the Pampa area for several years.

Mrs. Kretzmeier is active at the Center, making dolls, which she sells to the other residents and to the employees, and hooking rugs.

She was guest of honor at the "Resident of the Month" party and was presented with a corsage.

Each month the Center honors an individual who has shown outstanding interest and participation in the Center's activities.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The market ignored bullish news that the U.S. had a record surplus in its balance of payments for the first quarter and continued to brood over the direction of short term interest rates, according to E.F. Hutton & Co. "Although substantial deterioration has occurred among some of the Dow components over the past two months," the firm says, "the overall reading is still viewed as neutral and has not yet given an extremely negative reading which in the past has signaled significant turning points for the overall market."

Even if the Dow Jones industrial overcome the 860 and 870 resistance zone, "it must be cautioned that the long range bearish trend would still be alive, and one more further and final severe decline is likely," says Merkin & Co. The prospect for the bulls in the next few weeks is "mildly favorable," the firm notes, but it advises traders to be highly selective and to use protective stops.

The early June rally was premature, the product of an oversold condition and occurring in the traditionally bullish first five days of the month, says

Smart Money of Old Tappan, N.J. "Though many indicators are progressing to levels characteristic of market bottoms, they are not yet ripe enough to reverse the bear trend started 18 months ago," the firm adds.

ONE TO TWO

TUCSON (UPI) — According to the Animal Science Department at the University of Arizona, feedlots in the state handled 919,000 head of cattle in 1973. That's about one animal per two human residents of the state.

Florida has 40 wildlife management areas with five million acres of public hunting land. Seven require special permits, but most are accessible with one $10 permit and a hunting license.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Ted Powell of Dumas, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stafford of Amarillo.

THE CEREMONY

The Rev. Jerry Boles, pastor, officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Wedding selection, "Joy," by Bach; "Psalm 19," Marcello; and "Trumpets Voluntaire," were played by organist, Mrs. Herschel Berry.

The background, Edwardian bouquet of Woodburn Abby roses, natural statice, Peruvian lillies, candy tufts, gypsophila, English ivy and Camelia foliage, formed the setting for the wedding and decorated the aisles. Windows held ivory candles and mixed greenery.

THE BRIDE

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a formal gown of silk organza over bridal peau de soie designed with a fitted Empire bodice enhanced by a candlelight alencon lace overlay. The Victorian neckline and organza trumpet sleeves, were caught at the wrists by petal points of lace. A candlelight silk organza fold encircled the waistline and miniature silk buttons highlighted the back closing and waistline.

Her A-line skirt fell into a double scalloped alencon hemline of candlelight lace, sweeping into-back fullness and cascading into a full chapel train. She wore a matching Camelot coil of alencon lace and pearls. A Belgium princess lace elbow mantilla cascaded over full cathedral length veil of illusion, and she wore a six pence from London in her shoe and a sapphire birthstone ring, belonging to her mother.

The bride carried a cloud bouquet of white roses, rose buds, pearl clusters, ivory moline tufts framed with English ivy and gypsophila.

ATTENDANTS

Nita Lovell of Dumas was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Claudia Herr, Moundridge, Kan., Ellen Reese, Houston, Barbie Jones, Fort Worth and Jan Hines Tyler.

They wore floor length, Gatsby design, printed chiffon gowns styled with gathered fitted necklines, sheer bodice and full long sleeves caught into deep cuffs over the wrists. A flounce complimented the hemline of the gowns. They wore matching hats covered in the same floral print of orange, soft pink, green and ivory.

Jr. bridesmaids, Kara McPherson and Alyssa Stafford of Amarillo, and Lisa Young and Leslie Young, both of Dallas, wore orange organza gowns styled with an Empire waistline and full sleeves. Each attendant carried a clutch bouquet of calendular, peruvian lillies, woodburn Abby roses, statice and gypsophila.

Best man was 2nd Lt. Dave N. Range of Shamrock and groomsmen were Gary S. Chag, Ware, N.H., 2nd Lt. Bruce P. McLane, Burbank, Calif., 2nd Lt. Mark E. Smith, Lone Pine, Calif., and Steve L. Stafford, brother of the bridegroom, Hedley. Ushers were Dave McMurry and Robert B. Powell, brother of the bride, both of Dumas and Ed Cole, Goldsmith.

The bridegroom and four attendants, United States Air Force Academy graduates, wore military mess dress.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK

When the good Lord was creating Fathers He started with a tall frame.

And a female angel nearby said, "What kind of Father is that? If you're going to make children so close to the ground, why have you put Fathers up so high? He won't be able to shoot marbles without kneeling, tuck a child in bed without bending, or even kiss a child without a lot of stooping."

And God smiled and said, "Yes, but if I make him child-size, who would children have to look up to?"

And when God made a Father's hands, they were large and sinewy.

And the angel shook her head sadly and said, "Do you know what you're doing? Large hands are clumsy. They can't manage diaper pins, small buttons, rubber bands on pony tails or even remove splinters caused by baseball bats."

And God smiled and said, "I know, but they're large enough to hold everything a small boy empties from his pockets at the end of a day... yet small enough to cup a child's face in his hands."

And then God molded long, slim legs and broad shoulders.

And the angel nearly had a heart attack. "Boy, this is the end of the week, all right," she clucked. "Do you realize you just made a Father without a lap? How is he going to pull a child close to him without the kid falling between his legs?"

And God smiled and said, "A Mother needs a lap. A Father needs strong shoulders to pull a sled, balance a boy on a bicycle, or hold a sleepy head on the way home from the circus."

God was in the middle of creating two of the largest feet anyone had ever seen when the angel could contain herself no longer.

"That's not fair. Do you honestly think those large boats are going to dig out of bed early in the morning when the baby cries? Or walk through a small birthday party without crushing at least three of the guests?"

And God smiled and said, "They'll work. You'll see. They'll support a small child who wants to ride a horse to Banbury Cross, or scare off mice at the summer cabin, or display shoes that will be a challenge to fill."

God worked throughout the night, giving the Father few words, but a firm, authoritative voice; eyes that say everything, but remained calm and tolerant.

Finally, almost as an afterthought, He added — tears. Then He turned to the angel and said, "Now, are you satisfied that He can love as much as a Mother?"

USDA Announces Rules For Meals And Milk In Child-Care Institutions

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) today updated regulations for child-care institutions on determining children's eligibility for free and reduced-price meals and free milk served under USDA's Special Food Service Program for Children and Special Milk Program.

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) administers these programs which provide meals and milk to children who pay for them and to needy children who receive milk free and meals free or at a reduced price. Eligibility for these program benefits is decided by each institution, guided by state and federal standards on income and family size.

These regulations were proposed for public comment on April 1 (USDA press release 918-74). Five organizations responded: one offering general approval, two making points not related to the proposal itself, and two asking questions which have been answered in the final version's preamble.

The final regulations require every institution to submit for approval its policy statement on how eligibility is determined to make sure that all eligible children receive free or reduced-price meals or free milk. If an institution participates in both programs, it will use the same policy for both.

Institutions which serve meals or milk at no separate charge to children will submit a simple affidavit type of policy. This policy statement must affirm that all children receive the same meals or milk at no charge, regardless of race, color, or national origin; and that there is no discrimination in the course of food service.

Institutions which charge separately for meals or milk must state the criteria used to determine children's eligibility; how necessary information will be gathered from families; how payments will be collected without overtly identifying children who receive free or reduced-price meals or free milk; a procedure for fair hearings for complaints; and an assurance that there will be no discrimination against any child because of race, color, or national origin.

Annually, every institution must announce its eligibility criteria to area news media, stating that these program benefits are available without discrimination to eligible children.

The final regulations were scheduled to appear in the Federal Register of Thursday, May 30, replacing an October 1968 notice governing eligibility. These regulations will take effect in the Special Food Service Program immediately and in the Special Milk Program when program regulations are finalized.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Mr. Smith was perusing the morning paper at breakfast one day when he was astounded to see an announcement of his own death in the obituary section. He picked up the phone immediately, and dialed a friend of his.

"Hello, John," he said. "Have you seen the announcements of my death in this morning's paper?"

"Just read it," replied John. "Where are you calling from, upstairs or downstairs?"

By analogy, the arrival at the proper contract (or, shall we say, final destination) is in itself no guarantee of success. Quite frequently, the important consideration is whether the contract is played from the "right" side or the "wrong" side. From the right side, the result can be Heavens; from the wrong side, Devils.

An illustration of "right" side, "wrong" side can be observed in today's deal, which arose in the National Championship of 1966.

VITAMIN K
 Vitamin K is essential for the body to maintain its blood clotting ability, says Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. It's widely distributed in a variety of foods such as green and leafy vegetables, tomatoes, cauliflower, egg yolks, soybean oil and any kind of liver, she explained.

Beef Rotisserie Roast

Place 4 to 6-pound boneless beef cross rib or chuck eye roast and Coffee-Citrus Marinade in plastic bag in pan. Close bag securely and place in refrigerator to marinate 6 to 8 hours or overnight, turning occasionally. Remove roast, reserving marinade, and insert rotisserie rod lengthwise through center. Balance roast on rod and tighten spit-forks so roast turns only with the rod. Insert roast meat thermometer at a slight angle, so the bulb is centered in thickest part but not resting in fat or on rotisserie rod. Place on rotisserie and roast at moderate temperature to desired doneness: 140°F. for rare; 160°F. for medium. Brush with Coffee-Citrus Marinade occasionally during roasting. (Allow 2 to 2½ hours cooking time.) Carve in thin slices.

Parents demand she entertain them

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My parents live in a small apartment near us. They feel lonely and neglected, and complain constantly that friends and relatives visit them only as a duty, and not very often. They are critical and quarrelsome and have no interests beyond their aches and pains and being entertained.

I've tried to interest them in senior citizen groups, but because some of their members smoke, play cards and are Democrats, my parents couldn't mingle with them.

I visit my parents every Monday, Wednesday and Friday. I take them grocery shopping, to the doctor, and out for lunch once a week. I have them to my home for dinner every Sunday and Thursday. I even do their laundry!

The problem is, they are not satisfied, and let us know about it in no uncertain terms. We've had several heart-to-heart talks with them, but they still think we are selfish for not spending more time with them.

When I'm not with them, they phone, and if I am not home, they get furious, and I get bawled out like a child for "running around all day."

I am 57 years old, and have worked for 41 years, and I am tired of running myself ragged trying to please them. Any suggestions? RUN RAGGED

DEAR RUN: The problem isn't THEM; it's the way you react to them. As long as you know you are doing all you can for them, there is no reason to feel guilty. None at all!

DEAR ABBY: I am a bartender in a small town and quite often a customer will say, "If anyone calls asking for me, say I'm not here. And if they ask if I've been here, say you haven't seen me."

Abby, when I lie, as I often do, it goes against my conscience, but I lie anyway because I don't know how to get around it. Is there a way I can keep from lying without losing customers? HONEST BARTENDER

DEAR HONEST: Probably not. Bartenders, like doctors and priests, are expected to keep confidences.

DEAR ABBY: My cousin had her first baby, so the other night we went to her home to see the new baby. There were lots of other relatives there.

This cousin kept looking at her watch because she had to feed the baby at 8 p. m. She could hardly wait to unbutton her blouse right in front of everybody. Then she said, proudly, "This is the first time I've ever had such a nice breast," and without even putting a blanket or diaper or anything around the baby, she proceeded to nurse him. BOTH breasts were exposed the whole time, which was not necessary. Some of the men went into the kitchen right away, and a couple of the younger kids got so embarrassed they also left.

I know there is nothing nasty about the human body, or nursing a baby, but what do you think of a woman who would take advantage of a situation like that to show off? DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Same as you. It's disgusting. I'd also feel sorry for her.

CONFIDENTIAL TO T. M.: When someone starts out with, "It's not the money, it's the principle of the thing," it's usually the money.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Making Small Spaces Look Larger

COLLEGE STATION — A common problem of making a small space appear larger can be overcome with a few basic principles, according to one housing and home furnishings specialist.

"First study the space carefully and define traffic lanes — 'people paths' from doorway to doorway," says Anna Marie Gottschalk, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Her suggestions for creating space where there really isn't any include the following —

Make the backgrounds — walls, ceiling and floor — seem to expand. Make the walls lighter than the floor, and make the ceiling lighter than the walls. Mirrored walls help create a feeling of spaciousness.

MOBILE HOME

An important mobile home accessory for appearance and comfort is some form of foundation, curtain wall, or skirting says Patricia Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Several types are available, and many mobile home parks now require this accessory, she noted.

Choose small-size furniture for small spaces. Keep lines and styles of the pieces clean-cut and simple. Chairs with see-through backs and without arms, upholstered pieces without skirts, and casepieces with small legs make the room look less crowded.

Hanging consoles, desks and storage pieces frees the perimeter of the room, just above the floor, creating a more spacious look.

In arranging furniture, try to leave the center of the room as free as possible.

Use enough light to eliminate harsh and definite shadows. A few simple, functional accessories add to the style of the room — too many destroy the spaciousness.

"The feeling of space you create in a small room will be worth the effort in terms of enjoyment and pleasure," Miss Gottschalk concluded.

Nutrition Important When Eating Out

AUSTIN — Eating out is no longer a luxury reserved for that special Sunday meal, but an eat-and-run necessity for most working people.

Americans now eat almost one-third of their meals away from home—a 131 per cent increase from the amount spent in 1952. During the same period the total spent for food eaten at home increased 127 per cent.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reported that almost one-third of the consumer's dollar is spent dining out. This is a yearly average of $128 per person.

The amount can be more for the working person who eats out every day. If meals averaged $1.50 a day, the amount spent just on noon meals would be close to $400 annually.

A non-porous safety glass cutting board for the kitchen is easier to care for than the wooden kind. It's smooth surface won't mar, nick, scratch or discolor; and it doesn't absorb liquids or grease.

Some of the meals eaten out are of the snack variety and are not nutritious. Most nutritional deficiencies exist because individuals make unwise choices in food selection," White said.

"It is easier to grab a hamburger and french fries during lunch than to sit down and enjoy a well-balanced meal."

"Most people lack the knowledge about what constitutes a balanced diet," White added, "and have an inadequate conception about the common food sources of important nutrients."

Texas Department of Agriculture home economists noted that when eating in a cafeteria or restaurant, a person should remember to choose from the four basic food groups. The four groups—milk, meat, vegetable-fruit and bread-cereal—are important to daily nutrition.

Not only do foods from the four groups provide protein and energy, but also the needed vitamins and minerals for body maintenance.

White said that providing a wide variety of nutritional foods to the public is in the best interest of the food service industry by giving the industry a better market. "It is also in the consumers' interest by providing them with a better diet."

"More than 100 million times a day Americans eat out, and the $2 billion food service industry in Texas is an important means of providing better nutrition for the people of the state," White said.

 County Extension Agent

Those of you who have signed up for the "Preserving Food at Home" mailout series will begin receiving information next week.

Have you wondered about the difference in water-bath and pressure cooker processing of foods in home canning?

The water-bath method is used for processing fruits, rhubarb, and tomatoes and is done using a pan with a lid and rack. The rack is used to hold the jars off the bottom of the cooker. The pan is large enough to cover the jars with one to two inches of water, so that the jars are surrounded with boiling water. The lid is used to help retain the heat. The acid in some fruits and vegetables helps prevent the growth of some bacteria which is the reason the water-bath process can be used.

However, low acid fruits and vegetables must be canned using the pressure cooker. The spores (seeds) of some bacteria are highly resistant to heat, which makes it necessary for them to be destroyed by high heat. This is accomplished with the pressure cooker.

What are foods processed by these methods? The water-bath is used for such foods as peaches, plums and tomatoes. The pressure cooker is used for such foods as beets, peas, corn, beans, greens and okra.

SUNDAY, JUNE 23
Your birthday today: Opens a year of generally normal maturing, much useful experience, prevailing tendency to wind up at places and conditions you hadn't planned. Relationships smooth out short of crisis or excess, are mostly reliable but not to be taken for granted. Today's natives are optimistic philosophers, who make a great deal of fuss over past records and deeds.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: For those who have settled, acquired partners and a definite place, this is a great Sunday. For the unattached it's a variable day of rest- less moods.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Plans come out piecemeal, find partial acceptance—or you try too much too fast and get an argument. It's better to find work that needs doing rather than to loaf.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Scattered connections keep you hopping to touch all bases despite a feeling of having less energy than usual. Mental pursuits work well, keep you away from possible mischief.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: It's a Sunday for staying close to home, enjoying familiar reminiscences. Invite a few good friends in to share favorite pastimes. They'll contribute so much more in return.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: A moderate course is the best one. Nothing spectacular or extraordinary is likely. Just get about early to fulfill your usual share of the community's customs.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Stop, think where you are in your stage of progress, do sensible things to protect your future. A holiday from the hullabaloo of day-to-day pressures is the thing to seek.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Doing the usual this Sunday may seem a little dull, but is preferable to the probable result of casual or needless travel. Hobbies, pastimes include minor creative innovations.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: The greatest benefit available today consists of the simpler, basic considerations: your health, how you preserve it, and your constructive use of time. Stay quietly busy.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Nothing comes out quite as planned, but little harm is done. Keep your faith in yourself and the future, likewise your sense of humor, appreciation of the absurd.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Nobody wears his feelings on his sleeve today. Draw no negative conclusions from this—you're the same for the moment. You'll find some chore to do, the sooner the better.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Lighten up your pursuit of pleasure. Get caught up on the "housekeeping" of your daily living. Clear away the miscellaneous collection you can't get to during the work week.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: This Sunday revolves around more detailed routine actions than rest. Social contacts expand, cause more commotion than you are ready to deal with.

Outsmart The Computer

COLLEGE STATION — Get results from computer-calculated bills.

"If you receive an incorrect bill, shred it," Lillian Cochran, home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, advised.

"Place the shredded bill — along with a note of explanation — in an envelope, and mail it to the company. This requires personal attention — whereas just a hand-written note might be ignored.

"The main point is to mutilate the bill in such a way that the computer is forced to take action," she said.

Swimming Is An Enjoyable Summer Pastime For All

The ole swimming hole 'ain't what it used to be! Backyard pools are springing up like crocuses in the spring and motels, clubs, parks, hotels all have luxurious facilities for this healthful fun. Also, the lovely rivers, lakes and beaches beckon to us.

There is something about water which is so appealing and relaxing. We can feel every nerve and muscle let go of tension when listening to a brook, the sound of the surf or even to happy splashing in a pool. Swimming has more advantages than any other sport I can think of.

I hope you will not sit on the sidelines this summer. If you have dropped this sport revive it, and yourself along with it. If you never learned to swim, why not now, as a new interest and challenge?

In the first place, it can be as vigorous or as mild as your wish and condition indicate. For this reason doctors frequently allow it for patients when prohibiting other forms of exercise. For this same reason you can take swimming down the years with you. Your weight is supported by the water, which makes it less strenuous.

Swimming has long been recommended for those who are nervous and tense, for underweights and people who suffer from insomnia. You have to try it to know how much this exercise can unwind you! It is the healing combination of water and exercise.

Another dividend is that the whole family can enjoy it together. Everyone from very young children to grandparents can join in the fun and be a part of the action. The younger generations will be more active but everyone "belongs."

Happily, swimming normalizes the figure. It is equally corrective to overweight and underweight. It will work off deposits of fat and build curves where needed, and what a pleasant way to mold your figure to more perfect proportions!

The breast stroke is not a popular one but it is great for the silhouette. What a bargain! It slims and firms the thighline, is firming to the bust and is an abdominal and arm exercise. What more can you ask? The crawl is splendid for increasing—the bust measurement and firming the arms and hips.

Head-hugging berets and knitted caps are edging out the floppy big hats for fall and winter wear.

RETIRING — Exa Faye Hutton, an eighth grade English instructor at Pampa Junior High School for the past 31 years, is retiring after 40 years of teaching. Jack Bailey, P.J.H.S. principal, was among guests honoring her recently.

MONDAY, JUNE 24
 Your birthday today: You'll soon find yourself more in demand to help bring in results, increased production in whatever your field is. Administrative chores multiply, with rewards in proportion. Relations serve you well in terms of high morale, encouragement. Today's natives often have special capabilities in sensing sounds, or else a reverse limitation with a high threshold to cross.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Older friends are of great help through their connections and interest. An overall successful day if you refrain from picking at trifles.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Formal agreements are favored; see that the details are correct. Settle outstanding negotiations, deal with the institutions of your life, rearrangements of family situations.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Leaving money questions to one side, consider purely human values, express your feelings for those you love. In evening you can think about new plans.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Early transactions make your day, the rest is mainly satisfactory work done at a reasonable pace. Don't be lazy, get moving while the going is good. Celebrate tonight!

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Practicality is always in season. With just a little extra push, you can establish a base for further expansion. Pause occasionally to give thanks.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: In balance with having stayed out of the financial ventures of friends, leave them out of your speculations. It's a provocative day for bright ideas, and a long one.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Your social life runs rich and full according to what you put into it. The business angles, though less amenable to fluent management, also go well.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Career matters move up steadily—be definite where possible to avoid misunderstanding about terms. It's an excellent time to enter a new home or headquarters.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Daily living habits flow so smoothly you take them for granted. Seek new contacts, learn another skill. Close friends are all busy generating schemes—let them alone!

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Attend to important issues early as your day includes many pleasing distractions. Be sure anything you write today is strictly the truth.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Amid generally good news there's an item that later comes to mean something serious to you. Correct any errors at once. Correspondence needs attention.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Temptation to speculate is strong. Projects intended to sharpen your public image do just that, but not quite the way you'd want. It's best to play it straight.

Pork Producers Plan Conference

Elmer McLaughlin, who farms east of Pampa and serves as board chairman of the Texas Pork Producers Association, says he plans to attend a swine industry conference to be held at Brownwood June 28.

Several other residents, he said, also will attend the marketing conference whose aim is "to determine ways to reverse the downward trend in marketing opportunities."

Under sponsorship of the association, along with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Texas A&M University, the one-day conference will include producers, packers, market representatives and allied industry officials.

State and industry officials have pointed out that there is a declining number of hog slaughtering plants in Texas.

UNDERGROUND irrigation pipeline on a Gray County farm northwest of Pampa is inspected here by Jim Roach, left, Foster Whaley, and an unidentified worker. The underground installation has many advantages, including conservation of water.

Troubles Keep Piling Up For Nation's Cattlemen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Doe, a farmer in Sioux County, Iowa, owns a 240 acre farm and makes his living feeding cattle and hogs to produce meat for the nation's tables. Until last fall he was doing fairly well.

Doe — the name is fictitious — had a net worth last October of $274,000.

Today, a financial statement on file with the Senate Agriculture Committee shows the farmer's net worth is down to $96,814. If he goes on at this rate, he would be wiped out completely before the end of the year.

In another demonstration of the cattlemen's plight, Paul Dean, owner of the Paul Dean Cattle Co. of El Paso, Tex., said that if he gave 2,000 feeder calves away the unlucky recipient would lose $7,180 on the deal.

Dean submitted a detailed breakdown showing that whoever took his calves would have to spend $353.55 per animal raising them from 300-pound "feeder" weight to 1,000-pound market weight. If sold at the $35 per hundred rate paid at some markets recently, the finished animals would bring $350 apiece, for a net loss of $3.59, or $7,180 on a total of 2,000 animals.

If the feeder paid $120 apiece for the calves, his loss would be $123.59 per animal, or more than $247,000, Dean's figures indicated.

The statement was filed by a Sioux County farm and business group appealing to Congress for emergency credit legislation to help livestock producers struggle through a crisis caused by months of livestock market prices below production costs.

According to the statement obtained from the owner of the 240-acre farm, he is holding cattle and hogs with a current market value totaling $448,800. The farmer's current operating debt, however, is $544,906. The $96,106 difference between the two figures is part of the financial storm which has slashed John Doe's net worth by some $177,000 since last fall.

"We are facing catastrophe," said Harlan Hummel, a Sioux County spokesman who presented the doleful list of figures to the Senate committee.

"Without immediate emergency financing, these people have no hope, they are being forced out of business, and along with them will go many of the businessmen they buy from," Hummel said.

Sioux County, Hummel explained, has a total population of 28,000 people and its largest town has 2,800 people. Its economy is primarily based on agriculture and many of its businesses are facing the same kind of fears confronting Jack Ping, a feed dealer in Ireton, Iowa, Hummel added.

"Mr. Ping has been in the feed business for 30 years... he has seen the same net worth wiped out in the last eight months," Hummel said.

"He has at least 150 farmer customers who (cannot pay their bills). Without emergency financing, they cannot pay him. He, too, will be wiped out with over $600,000 in accounts receivable. His feed mill employs 13 people, and within a few months at least three-fourths of them will have to be released," the Iowa said.

Crop Insurance Gains Importance

COLLEGE STATION — Although crop insurance has been a "yes or no" decision for most Texas farmers in the past, it may soon be a necessity, believes an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"One major insurance company is expecting to write two to three times more coverage for crops this year than in 1973 because of the higher cost of getting a crop in the ground," says Dr. Wayne Hayenga. "Also, farmers are expecting higher prices for their crops, and many of them remember the extensive damage done by hail last year."

Rates for hail insurance vary by crop, area of the state, and company, explains the Texas A&M University System economist. Grain sorghum rates go from about 1.5 to 8 per cent of the coverage while cotton rates usually start at 3 or 4 per cent.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS

Today we are continuing the series of articles to acquaint the people of the Texas Panhandle with the new recommended statewide Program For Conservation and Development of Texas Water Resources. In our column last week we were discussing the short-range plans. We ended with item 3, the Planning Period. Today we begin with item four, Development and Implementation.

Short-range plans must be developed and carried out through the coordinated efforts of all state agencies and political subdivisions concerned with water resource conservation and development. Active involvement of these entities in long-range planning is important, but their active involvement in short-range planning is absolutely essential.

Cities, river authorities and water districts, with the support and assistance of the Water Development Board, are the entities that actually construct and operate water resource projects or provide the local cooperation in construction and operation of federal water resource projects under permits granted by the Texas Water Rights Commission, and they are the entities that must be called on to provide the detailed short-range planning and to carry out construction and operation of projects in accordance with the short-range plans.

Through their activities to date, these entities have demonstrated capabilities in cooperation with appropriate state and federal agencies for conservation and development of water resources and to build and operate water conservation projects. If Texas is to have an effective statewide program for conservation and development of its water resources, it is essential that these capabilities be fully utilized in a properly coordinated manner under state-level leadership.

This leadership can and should be exercised in large part by the Texas Water Development Board, but fully effective coordination of the efforts of all the concerned agencies and political subdivisions in the state can be achieved only through the active and continuous leadership of the Governor, utilizing his Division of Planning Coordination for the detailed coordinating efforts required.

5. Updating: Short-range plans must be reviewed, revised, and updated almost continuously. Periodic formal review and updating should be scheduled at intervals no greater than every two years.

Planning for Water Quality Management

Provision for the establishment of water quality standards and for the maintenance of such standards must be an integral part of long-range water planning.

Planning for sound water quality management within river basins, coastal areas, and the bays and estuaries must be consistent with current and anticipated uses. State and Federal are well equipped to develop long-range plans, and local and regional political subdivisions can be called upon to provide short-range plans, calling for immediate implementation and operations.

The Texas Water Quality Board has primary responsibility for statewide water quality planning, and it should fully utilize and coordinate the efforts of regional and local entities in the development of statewide as well as regional and local water quality plans.

Data collection and analysis are particularly important in water quality planning and must be coordinated on a statewide level. Adequate monitoring networks should be provided for in all short-range water quality management plans and, through the Texas Water Quality Board, provision should be made for immediate dissemination of all collected data to all appropriate local and regional organizations as well as to all state agencies interested in water quality management.

Long-range planning for water quality management should include consideration of quality requirements for anticipated future uses of the water resources and of the effect of that proposed water resource development on streamflow and water quality. Areas that could present special problems should be identified and provision should be made in the long-range plans for meeting such problems, including provision for research as necessary.

Short-range planning for water quality management should be pointed toward action. The identification of current stream conditions and the planning of water pollution control facilities to meet current needs should be included in short-range plans.

Utilization of current wastewater treatment technology for the solution of identified problems will necessarily be the basis for action proposed in the short-range water quality management plan.

Estimates of costs of facilities and identification of federal, state and local responsibilities in carrying out the proposed action program must be included.

Next week we will carry the final portion of the proposed long-range and short-range plan.

The Governor's Task Force On Water and Natural Resources will hold its monthly meeting in Austin tomorrow. The Task Force on Water and Natural Resources has asked all areas of the State to study the current and future water needs of their particular area or region and then come forward, with some recommendations for solving them.

During the 1972-73 fiscal year, Californians consumed a total of 404.9 million gallons of beer, state tax records show.

Agriculturally Speaking

If fair weather holds for the rest of this week (June 17-22), wheat harvest will be over by the time you read this. Most of the dryland droughted out. Much of the irrigated was either damaged by hail or totally hailed out. It has been a most disappointing year yieldwise.

Price of wheat has taken some sharp jumps upward. The government has amended its forecast downward by five percent. For Texas they sawed it in half, I am told. This was forecast in this column some two months ago. It was amazing to me when certain officials in the Department of Agriculture predicted a super wheat crop for 1974 before the seed was even planted in fall of 1973.

They continued to make such projections up until less than two months ago. I've heard some reports that in the main wheat belt of Kansas, yields could run as much as 12-15 bushels under 1973. No doubt the acreage of wheat has increased tremendously.

This will offset the loss in yield. But I still think there is going to be some mighty red faces by some forecasters. The dramatic price rise also indicates that other feel very much as I do.

During the week of June 9-15, the bottom fell out of the cattle market. The past week, June 16-22, the market made a rapid turn around. The market by mid-week was higher than before it dropped so-drastically the previous week.

No doubt the announcements made in Washington helped bolster the attitude of cattle and hog people. It was panic selling that put the market in a tailspin. The withholding in mid-West seemed to be the main trigger for turning the market around. One of the biggest helps was the fact that the retailers nationwide have drastically cut their margins and are now promoting meats. Apparently the housewife is going back to the meat counter in big droves.

This is what it will take to turn this thing around. Finger pointing will not help. But the fact remains that while the price of cattle on foot fell 32 per cent, retail beef dropped only 12 percent. The retailers are not too anxious to have this spotlight turned on them too long. There was some rumbling to freeze their margins back to the level of a year earlier.

The grocery ads are showing meats to be at a real bargain now. If your freezer is low — I'd advise you to fill 'er up. Last month feeders placed 55 per cent fewer cattle on feed than in May 1973. Considering the fact that placement in May 1973 was off 8.6 percent when compared to a year earlier, you can see there will be an extreme shortage of choice beef in the not too distant future.

As of June 1, 1974, there were 16 percent fewer cattle on feed than a year earlier.

Nostalgia Freaks Holding Convention

HOUSTON (UPI) — Don Maris can flip a switch and a familiar voice comes out of the speaker to tell the story of how Lamont Cranston found the secret in India.

"Who knows what evil lurks within the hearts of men?" the voice intones. "The Shadow knows. Eh, eh, eh."

Maris, 38, is playing one of the thousands of tapes he has collected from the Golden Age of Radio — such favorites as "The Shadow," "Gangbusters," and "Inner Sanctum."

He is currently displaying his collection for nostalgia freaks during a three-day convention that features such relics as Captain Blackhawk comic books, the last known copy of the last known "Lone Ranger" serial and possibly even a bar of red Lifebuoy soap and a 1952 Kaiser.

"I've kept up this interest all my life," said Maris, who makes copies of the tapes and sells them from his home in Norman, Okla. "I was always a movie and radio buff. Everyday when I got home from school I would turn on the radios and listen to two programs at the same time."

His wife, Ann, is a dental hygienist who helps Maris make the recordings he sells to other collectors, librarians and universities.

"People want to live in the past," she said. "There's nothing good on radio and TV's lousy."

"There's nothing else to do. This is something in which people can use their imagination."

Statistics seem to substantiate her claims. Radio stations across the country have obtained tapes of old radio shows and are broadcasting them. One radio network is originating a "Mystery Theater" with name artists, reminiscent of the days of the old Liberty theater founded by Orson Welles.

Earl Blair, 27, of the Houston Comic Collectors Association and the chairman of the convention, believes that people want to return to a time that seems simpler by today's standards.

"I think it's something people want to see," Blair said. "They realize things weren't so bad then."

"Some may be trying to recapture their youth, but the young like it simply because the stuff that was done back then had quality."

Special Grad Seminar Scheduled

DENVER, Colo. — The inequities of education for the Mexican-American child as revealed in the six reports of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights will be examined, and programs for redress formulated, in a special graduate seminar at the University of Denver Aug. 5-23.

University of Denver Chancellor Maurice Mitchell, until recently a member of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, will join in leading Chicano educators for specific lectures on the subject.

Director of the seminar is Dr. Daniel Vades, publisher of La Luz magazine and professor sociology at Metropolitan State College in Denver. Registrations for the nine-credit-hour classes are not being accepted.

In addition to analyzing the Commission reports, the last of which was issued in February, 1974, students will review other studies and reports on Mexican-American education.

They will also evaluate the latest in learning theories against the culture, background and needs of the Chicano and consult with authorities in the field of government, education and in the Hispanic movement.

An attempt will be made to develop concrete ideas, proposals and specific programs that will rapidly improve education for the Mexican-American. Seminar leaders and lecturers will include Dr. Abel Amaya, administrator of Mexican-American fellowships for the Ford Foundation; Dr. Arnaldo Vento, professor of Mexican-American Studies at the University of Michigan; Dr. Philip Ortego, professor of English literature, University of California.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — I forget what I was doing — bathing my wrists with rose water, mostly likely — when the stampede started.

Someone dashed into the House Press Gallery and shouted "The Judiciary Committee is leaking out of control!"

And all of us newsmen bolted for the doors in wild alarm.

Later, after things calmed down a bit, we realized we had overreacted. The situation didn't really call for hysteria.

Panic maybe, but not hysteria.

Denounced Leaks
The mad flight was touched off by a White House aide who denounced leaks of confidential information from the impeachment inquiry as a sign the committee was "out of control."

An uncontrolled committee is not the same thing as the leaks themselves being out of control. Uncontrolled committees are, in fact, rather commonplace.

But, in the circumstances, our fright was understandable.

There is no doubt that the impeachment inquiry is one of the most porous investigations of all times. Some days the leaks are more like gushers.

Any reporter who ventures near the Judiciary Committee's headquarters on the first floor of the Rayburn office building runs the risk of having one or more confidential documents pressed upon him.

It has gotten to the point where we seldom venture into a first floor corridor alone. When we have business in that area, we generally use the buddy system.

Reporters regularly assigned to the impeachment inquiry can be philosophical about it. Leaks are something you learn to live with.

But when you are trying to cover another story, it can be sheer hell.

Like the other day I went to the Rayburn building for a news conference about a congressman's proposal to proclaim the week of July 7-13 as National Eat-More-Possum Week.

Staff Memorandum
As I was passing the Judiciary Committee, two members grabbed my arms, pulled me into a vacant room and tried to leak a confidential staff memorandum relating to one of the Watergate tapes.

I finally convinced them that I was the mayor of Sump City, Iowa, in town to testify at a hearing on federal watering safety standards. But by the time I shook them loose, it was too late.

It turned out that the sponsor of National Eat-More-Possum Week had received $2.63 in campaign contributions from the powerful possum lobby. And I missed it.

SLOWPOKE
PARIS (UPI) — The French Academy, ploughing through its decades-long task of producing a new standard dictionary, held a weekly meeting and defined nine words. The Academicians have reached the D's.

Payments Increased

The timetable for payment of increases to some 2.5-million service disabled veterans and dependents of veterans who died of service-connected disabilities was reported recently by the Veterans Administration.

A new law (Public Law 93-295) signed by the President May 31 increased disability compensation payments to veterans by 15 to 18 percent, and dependency and indemnity compensation for widows and children by about 17 percent. The statute made the increases retroactive to last May 1.

A separate retroactive check covering the increases for the months of May and June will be sent by VA to the veterans and dependents by mid-July.

The regular monthly checks due next on July 1 will be paid at the old rate, but the new increases will be reflected in checks received Aug. 1 and thereafter.

VA officials emphasized that no application or inquiry will be necessary to receive the increased amounts. The increases, they said, will be made by the agency automatically for all veterans and dependents.

The new law boosts payments to veterans rated 10 to 50 percent disabled by VA by 15 percent, and those rated 60 to 100 percent disabled by 18 percent.

The monthly payment to single veterans with 10 percent disabilities goes up from $28 to $32. For veterans rated 100 percent disabled under VA's general schedule the monthly sum is increased from $495 to $584.

And for the most severely disabled veterans the maximum monthly amount is jumped from $1,232 to $1,454.

Veterans whose service-connected disabilities are rated 50 percent or more receive additional allowances if they have dependents. These added allowances are also increased under the new law by 15 percent.

They don't worry about things like waiting for hot water when they want to do the laundry, or wash the dishes or things like that, because they know their electric water heater is fast recovery. They don't worry about service either, because they know we have over 100 trained people to provide any service that may be needed. Why don't you find out how great it is to be worry-free and how you can own an ELECTRIC water heater!
