Israel Plans More Raids

United Press International Israel says it plans to continue retaliatory bombing raids against Palestinian guerrilla bases in Lebanon but three other Arab nations have offered to come to the aid of the guerrillas and Lebanon.

The semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram warned today that the next war in the Middle East, which it said will break out if Israel continues to reject a just settlement, may well be a nuclear one.

On a more peaceful note, Israel and Syria were disengaging themselves on schedule from last October's Middle East war under an agreement negotiated by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The last group of Israeli tanks and halftracks rumbled past a newly installed United Nations barricade on the Golan Heights Sunday to complete Israeli troop withdrawals from the 325-square mile Syrian salient captured last October. Civilian Syrian officials and police were permitted into the area today.

Ahead of Schedule

On Tuesday, the Israelis will hand over Mt. Hermon's strategic summit, the ruble-strewn regional capital Quneitra and a thin strip of land west of the 1967 cease-fire line to complete the withdrawals 24 hours ahead of schedule.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, speaking to a Zionist executive meeting in Jerusalem Sunday, called the Palestinian raids and counter-raids "a protracted war — Israel will take whatever steps it finds necessary to hit the terrorists at any place, at any time."

Rabin said foreign critics judge Israel by a "double standard" because they do not condemn Arab guerrilla attacks on Israeli settlements which have killed 52 Israelis since the war. The Israeli air strikes have killed about 100 people in Lebanon, 30 of them in three days of raids last week.

Before leaving for Washington, Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres told newsmen the raids "have achieved their purpose because those hit were truly the terrorists themselves."

Court Defers Decision For Nixon Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today deferred a decision on President Nixon's request for disclosure of material that led a grand jury to name the President as an indicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

The court in a brief order said it will not rule until it has heard arguments on the request that Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski submit the grand jury evidence both to the White House and the high court itself.

The court has agreed to rule on the authority of the grand jury to name the President, and on whether the White House must produce tapes and records of 64 conversations between Nixon and his aides.

Arguments are scheduled July 8 on Jaworski's subpoena for the tapes.

Meantime presidential lawyer James D. St. Clair asked U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who will conduct the cover-up trial, for grand jury exhibits "and any and all other matters" related to the grand jury's action in naming the President. Grand jury records are normally secret.

When Sirica denied the request, St. Clair went directly to the Supreme Court, arguing "only this court, the President and his counsel will have access to this material."

St. Clair, who has been sitting in at the closed House Judiciary Committee impeachment hearings, told the court that grand jury materials submitted to that body show the grand jury was acting outside its authority and on the basis of "totally insufficient evidence" in naming the President.

PROTESTS MADE

Britain Reveals Nuclear Testing

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson said today that Great Britain carried out an underground nuclear test explosion in Nevada "a few weeks ago."

He told the House of Commons no further British nuclear tests were scheduled in the near future, but the one which took place in Nevada was "necessary to maintain the effectiveness of our nuclear deterrent."

Wilson made his parliamentary statement in the face of severe criticism from members of his own party about reports of a British nuclear test.

Labor party politicians have denounced nuclear tests generally, criticized Britain's maintenance of its own nuclear strike force and taken the forefront of criticism of other nations conducting test explosions.

Wilson said arrangements for the test were made by the former Conservative party government, which left office four months ago.

The experiment was conducted fully within the framework of the provisions of the partial Nuclear Test Ban Treaty of 1963 and the Non-Proliferation Treaty of 1968, Wilson said.

It was equally in accordance with the policy of the Labor party in our party manifesto based on multilateral disarmament and does not involve any breach in our party program as laid down in successive party conferences during our three years in opposition," he said.

Wilson added, "No further British tests are due to take place in the near future and certainly not before the defense review is completed and a report is made to the House."

It was Britain's first nuclear test in nine years. Wilson's statement in the House of Commons followed persistent reports in the British press, most recently in the London Sunday Express, that the explosion had been carried out without any public announcement.

Before Wilson spoke up, both the British Defense Ministry and the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission had declined to confirm or deny the report.

In Washington, an Atomic Energy Commission spokesman said Sunday British nuclear scientists have been at Nevada testing sites "at least until very recently," but he couldn't confirm or deny the reports either.

The Express quoted information from the United States.

The reports stirred up a storm of protest among left-wing Labor politicians, who said they would demand an explanation from Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government today in the House of Commons.

Oil Industry's Friends Trying To Save Depletion Allowance

NO FRIENDS OF OIL INDUSTRY — Senators Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., left, and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., are among sponsors of a

Senate bill to repeal the oil depletion allowance. The measure is likely to be voted down this week, which should please oilmen.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The oil industry's friends in Congress are likely to win a key round this week in their effort to save the oil depletion allowance.

And if the liberal-sponsored anti-depletion move fails on the Senate floor, so too will an effort to trim individual income tax payments.

The tax cut and the depletion repeal measures are part of a package proposed by Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Walter Mondale, D-Minn., and others who used the pending debt ceiling bill to try to force their tax reform ideas through Congress quickly.

The debt bill, which would raise the ceiling on the national debt by $19.3 billion to $495 billion, is considered "veto proof" because it must become law by midnight Sunday or the government will no longer be able to pay its bills.

Veto Anyway

But the administration let it be known that President Nixon would veto the bill anyway if it came to his desk with tax cut attached.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., backed by oil state senators, then skillfully maneuvered the liberal measures toward defeat, first with a time-consuming filibuster and then by forcing a vote — set for Monday afternoon — on the liberal package as a whole, not on each separate part as the liberals wanted. Enough senators oppose at least one part of the bill to vote against the whole package.

Kennedy has vowed to offer each part of the package separately if the whole measure is defeated, but Allen or some other opponent could then resume the filibuster as time runs out on the debt bill.

The Kennedy package would cut individual taxes slightly by increasing the personal exemption from $750 to $825, with an optional $190 tax credit for low income taxpayers.

To make up the loss to the Treasury, the liberals would strengthen the minimum tax, end some business depreciation advantages and export incentives, and end the oil depletion allowance, which permits oil companies to deduct 22 per cent of oil and gas income, up to a maximum of 50 per cent of taxable income.

Oil Industry

While defeat of the Kennedy amendments will not end the effort to scrap the oil depletion allowance, the week of maneuvering has shown that oil-oriented legislators now stand a good chance of preventing any big tax increases for the oil industry.

Even the normally conservative House Ways and Means Committee approved an oil tax bill which would cost oil companies more than $12 billion over five years, including a phase-out of the oil depletion allowance. The committee was reacting to an obviously overwhelming anti-oil sentiment in the House.

But that bill is bogged down by Democratic infighting, partly because liberals successfully persuaded the Democratic caucus to order the Rules Committee to allow floor amendments that would have greatly strengthened the committee bill.

Conference To Debate Sea Laws

CARACAS (UPI) — Delegates from 148 nations returned to the negotiating tables today in an effort to keep the floundering, dispute-plagued third United Nations Law-of-the-Sea conference afloat.

Before beginning its major task of revising the law of the sea, the conference ran into trouble upon opening Thursday when the major maritime powers, including the United States and the Soviet Union, disagreed with a large number of developing countries on voting procedures.

Poorer countries want faster procedures that would give them advantages in voting for proposals, while the big powers, outnumbered 4-1 by developing nations, want tighter rules.

The Soviet Union, in closed-door debate, has asked that issues be approved by 90 per cent of the states voting.

The United States argued in favor of requiring a majority of two-thirds of the participants listed, but developing nations are lobbying for U.N. General Assembly procedure, which calls for approval by two-thirds of the states present.

TO OLD ALLIES, ENEMIES

President Preparing For Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has a short visit with his old NATO allies this week and a longer one with his old enemies of the Soviet Union.

The planned trip may show how much the diplomatic world has changed since the Atlantic Alliance was formed in 1949 as a warning to the Russians that Europe was protected by the U.S. nuclear umbrella against possible communist invasions.

President Nixon goes to Brussels Tuesday to sign a new version of the Atlantic Charter and meet with European leaders, who saw the NATO alliance under extreme tension during last year's Arab-Israeli conflict. Nixon then travels to Moscow for a summit meeting where he is expected to expand on spirit of détente.

Day At Yalta

The Russians had even planned for Nixon to spend a day at Yalta, site of the World War II meeting of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Russian Premier Josef Stalin and England's Winston Churchill, at which agreements on eastern Europe were criticized by Nixon and other conservatives as a "sellout" of United States interests.

According to American sources in Moscow, the irony was not appreciated by White House advance men who changed the site as soon as they arrived last Thursday in order to prevent a dateline that carried memories of the Cold War and the possibility that Nixon's enemies could claim a new "sellout."

Nixon spent the weekend at his Camp David, Md. retreat, doing homework for the visit. He breaks away from foreign affairs for a few hours today to discuss inflation and other economic problems with his economic advisers.

The President is apparently leaving his Watergate defense in the hands of his lawyers. White House aides said Nixon has held only one hour-long session with his chief Watergate lawyer, James D. St. Clair, since his return from the Middle East.

"Secret Deal"

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger holds a news conference today to explain diplomatic plans for the trip. Questions are sure to touch on the national security wiretap investigation and a statement from Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., that a "secret deal" has already been made. The State Department denies the statement.

Soviet Premier Leonid I. Brezhnev will only say that he expects Nixon's third meeting since the two leaders began yearly discussions in 1972 to lead to "new good agreements" that would "make people happy."

The White House cautioned against expectations of spectacular results and said the main wish was for further improvement of good will between the two nations.

Nixon's eight-day stay in the Soviet Union will begin Thursday and include state banquets, an address to the Soviet people on national television, and long hours of discussions, along with side trips to Minsk in Byelorussia and the Black Sea resort of Orenda — instead of Yalta.

Oil Boycott

Relations have changed between the United States and its former European allies, and they were under extreme tension during last year's Arab-Israeli conflict because weapons and equipment given to Israeli troops were either located in or flown through Europe — making them targets of an Arab oil boycott.

Congress Studying Appropriations Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The possibility of debate on President Nixon's impeachment is what it takes to get Congress to speed up passage of appropriations bills.

With five of the money measures for the next fiscal year already approved, the House plans to push through four more this week. That would leave only four more.

Scheduled for action this week are bills funding Treasury and Postal Service; the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Veterans Administration; Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare; and the District of Columbia.

The House hopes to dispose of the four others — including major ones on defense and foreign aid — before the end of August.

when it might have to cease all other activity and determine if Nixon should be impeached.

Despite the frenzy of activity last week and in the coming week, Congress again will enter a new fiscal year July 1 and the government technically has no money. This is a yearly problem and in other sessions, passage of appropriations legislation has been put off until Christmas or later.

The Senate has passed only one appropriations bill dealing with funds for the legislative branch. To keep the government going, Congress will pass a so-called continuing resolution which allows the department or agencies to spend at last year's levels or those approved by the House, whichever is higher.

Workmen Almost Entomb Woman In Her Old Home

SHEFFIELD, England (UPI) — Workmen hammering doors and windows shut drowned out the cries of Katherine Godfrey inside her home.

When the workmen went away after boarding up the doors and windows with heavy timbers, they left the crippled Mrs. Godfrey, 75, in almost total darkness and with no way out.

Officials said she could have died there. But by chance, a relative arrived three hours later and rescued the widow.

The workmen had turned her home into a tomb by mistake, the Sheffield Council said. They were ordered to seal up houses being readied for demolition — and had been given the wrong address.

Safety Thinking For Advertisers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the TV screen, a child reaches into a microwave oven for a hot dog. A motorcyclist roars along with a case of beer in tow. A stunt driver goes wild in a new car.

Citing examples like these, a panel of advertising experts said in a study released today that TV ads can lead children and adults who take risks into dangerous misuse of products by careless power of suggestion.

It urged advertisers and agencies to start "thinking safety" by anticipating the danger even safe products can have if the sales pitch unwittingly suggests misuse, or dramatizes them in such a way as to lead impressionable viewers to misuse them.

Safeguard Users

"Advertising can do more than it is now doing to safeguard the users of advertised products without impairing its ability to merchandise those products effectively," the study panel of the National Advertising Review

Board said in a report released in Washington and New York.

"Advertisers and agencies do not always recognize that some consumers are particularly vulnerable to suggestion or have limited capacities for judging risks."

It stressed children foremost in the "vulnerable" category, but also said some ads — and especially those that sell fast, powerful cars — can lead impressionable adults "to commit themselves to hazardous situations which... they cannot manage."

Among its recommendations, the panel urged advertisers and agencies to create ads "with consumer safety in mind" from the beginning. It said they should set up Safety-In-Advertising review panels, whose membership "should include people who are parents of young children."

The study reviewed potential safety hazards in familiar advertisements of many types of products, from appliances and autos to medicines and toys, and recommended corrective do's and don'ts. Some examples:

— "A television commercial showing a boy and girl... taking just-cooked hot dogs out of the microwave oven. The doggo describes how easy it is to use the product." The panel concludes, "microwave ovens are not playthings and should not be treated or advertised as such. Adult supervision is required."

— "A beer commercial based on a motorcycle race which features the product as reward after the contest. Even if there were not an assumption that the drivers have to return home on their motorcycles, such association (of driving and drinking) is imprudent."

— "Citing several examples of auto and auto accessory ads that stress the speed, power or endurance, the panel says 'advertisers should avoid presentations keyed to risk-taking or performance under circumstances that might give the consumer predisposed toward risk-taking more confidence in his own car or his ability than would be realistic.'"

FOR ABOLISHING Delegates Debating Plan For Agencies

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A provision in the proposed new constitution automatically abolishing state agencies after 10 years could jeopardize the ability of river authorities across the state to market bonds needed for their operations, convention leaders have decided.

Leaking Barge Brings Pollution To Mississippi

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Coast Guard today directed Mississippi River traffic single file around a wrecked and leaking oil barge to prevent waves from slamming against the vessel and rupturing more of its tanks.

The barge, carrying 23,000 barrels of oil, plowed into the Huey P. Long Bridge two miles upriver from New Orleans Saturday. Oil slicks drifted as far as 30 miles downstream.

Cleanup crews tried to catch the pollution at the source, but officials left the barge wedged against the bridge to avoid another rupture in the six tanks aboard.

Officials said one tank was ruptured and another was believed leaking at the seams.

"Wave action from a passing vessel could come by and rupture another tank very easily," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

"That's one reason we're out there directing traffic, to try and reduce the speed of the ships and the likelihood that the wave action could rupture another tank."

"There hasn't been an attempt to move it because they haven't figured out how yet," he said.

Coast Guard Port Capt. D.J. Riley spent Sunday directing the ships as they passed under the bridge in single file.

"There are copious quantities of crude oil," he said. "The pollution has stretched much of the way down the river."

Traces of oil were spotted in one of the New Orleans area water intake systems but were eliminated by chemical treatment.

"People need not worry about their health," Riley said.

FOR THE FUTURE University Makes Study Of Energy

COLLEGE ATATION, Tex. (UPI) — Texas A&M University's Texas Transportation Institute is working on energy projects that includes finding new sources of transportation and ways of importing fuel to Texas.

Dr. Ron Holder, an associate research engineer with the Texas Transportation Institute (TTI), said today a study on transportation and energy policy alternatives will involve expected technological changes in transportation.

He said the primary objective of the project will be to determine the extent of shifts in the ways people travel that are likely to occur in the future.

"We expect to see several changes, including shifts from private to mass transportation, from truck to rail, from rail to water and so on," Holder said.

"We already know about the relative energy use of each mode of transportation," he said. "What we will be looking at is how effective the changes will be."

He said the project will also look at public policy and how it can be used to ease the transition from one transportation use to another. As an example he used the shift from large to small cars.

The study on importing fuels will concentrate on the capacity of the state's transportation system to import fuels.

"We deal primarily with the problem of importing western coal into Texas for electrical generation," Holder said. "We will also study the use of coal as a possible petrochemical feedstock."

The project will also look at foreign importation of crude oil into the state, but the main thrust will be placed on coal importation by rail, barge and possibly pipeline in the form of water-coal slurry.

SLA Trainee Urges Group To Surrender
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 30-year-old Vietnam veteran who trained with the Symbionese Liberation Army said Sunday that the remnants of the terrorist group should surrender to authorities.

Bill Brennan, a former political activist who eased away from radical movements and now works in a factory, said Patricia Hearst "would serve the people best if she came out and told her story."

"Patty Hearst should come forward and possibly through a political trial create her own platform if she really believes in political work," Brennan said in a copyrighted interview in the San Francisco Examiner. "And Bill and Emily Harris should convince her to do this in her own best interest and in the interest of the masses."

Miss Hearst's father, Randolph A. Hearst, is president and editor of the Examiner. The Harisses and Miss Hearst are at large, apparently among the last surviving members of the SLA. Six members of the group, which apparently converted Miss Hearst to its cause after kidnapping her, was killed in a shootout with Los Angeles police May 17.

Ag Department Worried About Beef And Pork

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department is worried because supermarkets have too much beef and pork.

The Department has issued a "Food Marketing Alert" for July which says: "Beef supplies will continue large... moderately above year earlier levels. Pork production will dip seasonally from June (but) will exceed July, 1973."

The report added that turkey supplies will be at record levels and broiler chicken production will be slightly above a year earlier.

It is a problem because livestock producers say they pay more for their feed than they get for the sale of their animals and birds. The Senate votes today on an attempt to help cattle and hog producers — a bill to guarantee private lenders against loss on up to 90 percent of $3 billion in loans to "bona fide" livestock producers.

Individual producers, under the bill, could get loan guarantees of up to $1 million. In an effort to make the measure more palatable to city lawmakers, farm leaders in the House have drafted a second version with a $350,000 ceiling for individual guarantees.

An aide to Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., floor manager of the bill, said the measure was expected to pass by an overwhelming bipartisan vote.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who originally opposed the measure, has softened his stand and hinted he might "take another look" if the bill contains safeguards against abuse and strict time limits.

Guaranteed loans under the bill would be made at regular commercial interest rates by banks, cooperative Production Credit Associations and other private lenders. The guaranteed credit would be available to farmers and ranchers whose primary source of income is production of cattle, hogs, milk and poultry as well as feedlot operators.

There were no deer hunting seasons in Illinois from 1901 until 1957. In 1973, 13,730 deer were harvested by 55,440 Illinois hunters.

School Board Plans Meeting

The proposed budget for the 1974-75 school year will be among the topics discussed at the June 25 meeting of the board of trustees of Grandview-Hopkins Independent School District, set for 8:30 p.m.

If the budget is approved, a date will be set for a public hearing.

Amount of the proposed budget is $141,000.

Since Grandview-Hopkins is a "balanced budget" district, most of the entire amount comes from local taxpayers, according to Superintendent T.J. Atkins.

The only exception, he pointed out, is state per-capita funds amounting to about $10,000.

The board will also consider bids for addition of stucco to one of the buildings to match the other buildings.

Car Fire Reported

Firemen were called at 8:12 a.m. today to the intersection of Stark weather and Browning where a flooded carburetor had caused a fire in a 1967 Buick belonging to Bob McCoy of Pampa. There was light damage under the hood.

YOU CAN RUN YOUR CAR ON WOOD!

By J. SHUTTLEWORTH
The oil companies and some politicians like to tell us that the "energy crisis" is over. And I guess it is... if you don't mind paying 60 cents a gallon for gasoline.

On the other hand, I know of a few fellows who've found a way to operate their cars without any gasoline at all! Believe it or not, they know how to power an automobile with scrap wood and sawdust!

Actually, as these experimenters are quick to point out, their idea is not a new one at all. It was developed decades ago and, in fact, was rather widely used in England, Germany and several South American countries during the Second World War.

Fueling an internal combustion engine with wood is really pretty simple. An airtight tank the size of a 55-gallon drum (or larger or smaller, as you desire) is lined with firebrick and partially filled with small pieces of wood (or charcoal, low-temperature coke, straw, peat, etc.).

A fire is started in the container and a limited amount of air is drawn through the furnace (called a "generator").

The fumes given off by the smoldering, red-hot mass in the container are mostly carbon monoxide and are known as "producer gas" or "power-gas." Amazingly enough, when these vapors are collected and piped to a powerplant, the engine will actually start and run on them!

In its most basic form, that's about all there is to the whole producer gas idea. Real aficionados of the do-it-yourself fuel, however, have elevated its manufacture to a high art.

For instance, they've now developed at least five variations of the basic generator: Updraft, Downdraft, The Updraft-Downdraft Combination, The Updraft With Double-Walled Combustion Chamber and the Crossdraft.

Some power gas experts also claim that a fine spray of water or steam added to a generator's air intake will cause the furnace to create fumes with a higher hydrogen content that burn better than ordinary producer gas.

"Maybe so," answers another school of devotees, "but the extra plumbing complicates a generator's design more than it's worth."

And so it goes with the relatively few dedicated tinkerers in the field and their acceptance or rejection of the latest refinements in power gas production.

All experimenters, on the other hand, do seem to agree that softwoods—such as pine and fir—have a higher "octane" value than hardwoods. Unfortunately, the tars in the softer woods also tend to plug up a generator and give more trouble.

So OK. So an engine will run on producer gas. So how does a car have to be modified to take advantage of this fact?

Well first, of course, any would-be power gas motorist will have to remodel his automobile's trunk or build a platform on the vehicle's rear bumper large enough to hold the generator.

Once the furnace is mounted, the proper plumbing must be added between the unit and the car's engine and a few minor changes made to the powerplant's carburetor.

In most cases, the engine's spark timing will have to be advanced somewhat "ahead" of the timing normally used for gasoline... and that's about it. All of this work is well within the capability of any average auto repairman.

Then again, you'll probably want to think twice before you run out and begin converting the family station wagon from gasoline to charcoal.

First and foremost, you can expect a power loss of from 35 to 50 percent. This reduced performance will be most apparent in small cars and least noticeable in larger ones. Big, high-compression V-8's—in fact—are reported to run nearly as well on this homemade fuel as they do on service station petrol.

In any case, the loss is more annoying than anything else: modern automobile engines have considerable power reserves and—as you know—maximum U.S. highway speeds are currently restricted to 55 mph anyway.

A second major drawback to the producer gas scheme is the container of very hot flames you'll be carrying with you wherever you go. Then again, a tank of gasoline isn't exactly the safest traveling companion in the world either so I can't take this "added danger" too seriously.

Perhaps the real reason power gas isn't more widely used is its third unhandy characteristic: You can expect to spend approximately 30 minutes a day cleaning out the production unit, firing up the furnace and otherwise maintaining the equipment that makes your "free" fuel.

Most folks find it much easier to pull into a gas station and let the attendants there fill their car's tank with less exotic (and less troublesome) gasoline.

Taking the long view, the short view and a quick sideways glance over the left shoulder, then, it's extremely doubtful that hoards of citizens are going to trample each other in a mad rush to convert their automobiles to wood power.

Still, as experimenters with the process have pointed out, it's mighty comforting to know that any Detroit chariot can be operated on charcoal, coke or even straw... just in case the "experts" are wrong and the energy crisis really isn't over after all.

To get illustrated instructions for the design, assembly and operation of a producer gas generator, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed, long envelope to The Mother Earth News, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Reprint No. 193, "Run Your Car on Wood."

Nickel Government Coffee?

More and more people are beginning to realize that asking the government — federal, state or local — to do something is the most expensive way possible of getting it done.

That is encouraging but, according to a little pamphlet entitled "It's Your Money" published by The Economics Press, Inc., Fairfield, N.J., far too few realize just HOW expensive governmental projects REALLY are.

In an effort to bridge that information gap, the pamphlet put the government in the business of selling coffee to the public at the advertised price of five cents a cup. But that, the pamphlet emphasized, would be just the beginning. Due to inefficiency, red tape, lack of incentive, lack of competition, and bureaucratic puff, the REAL price of each cup of coffee sold to the consuming, tax-paying public would be in the neighborhood of 45 cents; that is, the advertised five cents, plus 20 cents in subsidizing taxes, plus another 20 cents in the hidden tax of inflation.

Already, the pamphlet pointed out citing data provided by the Tax Foundation, the various levels of government taxes take more than $33-out of EVERY $100 we earn. The average employed person in this country works about TWO HOURS AND FORTY FIVE minutes out of EACH eight hour day just to pay taxes.

Would you like to pay even more in taxes, $40, $50, $60 out of every $100; the pamphlet asked. If so, all you have to do is keep on asking government agencies to do things for you. The bureaucrats running those agencies will be happy to oblige.

And don't make the mistake, the pamphlet went on to warn, of believing that the increased tax burden will be shouldered by someone else. It won't! If and when government spending for projects increases, the cost of that increased spending will have to be shared by everyone. Big incomes are already so heavily taxed that, if the government confiscated ALL taxable income over $100,000 — took every cent of it — it would only provide enough additional money to run the government for less than two months. That's all!

So who's going to pick up the tab for additional governmental projects? The pamphlet asked. Face it, you are! And, if you don't pay it in increased overt taxation, the bill will be collected in the form of monetary inflation; the hidden tax which shrinks your paycheck while you sleep.

Nickel government coffee? There just isn't any such thing!

Shocking Sherpa Shortage

Since everybody seems to be playing "Can You Top This?" on the subject of shortages, be advised that in the Himalayas they're running out of Sherpas.

No less than 22 mountaineering teams from eight countries plan to tackle the Himalayas this spring, reports the National Geographic Society, and many of these expeditions will be hard-pressed to find experienced Sherpa guides.

The famous mountain men who have successfully guided assaults on towering giants like Mount Everest now apparently prefer to shepherd tourist hiking groups at less demanding lower altitudes.

"They pay us equally well, and it is not such a back-breaking job," the Geographic quotes one Sherpa climbing veteran.

Sharp fellows, those Sherpas.

Potomac Fever

There's no truth to the rumor that Nixon is going to Moscow to set up a government in exile.

Press Secretary Zeigler will go thundering down in history like a molehill in the Rockies.

Federal Reserve Chief Burns thinks a tax cut now is inflationary. That's like advising Totie Fields to stay in shape by avoiding Weight Watchers.

ALL THAT GLITTERS

Re: 'Either Way' Journalism

By VIC GOLD

WASHINGTON — Call it "either way" journalism. It's the way a sensation-hunting newsman can play a heads - I - win, tails - you - lose game with a responsible government agency, oh, yes, there are such things!

A few weeks ago, following our peripatetic Vice President's visit to Colorado Springs to address the Air Force Academy graduating class, there was this wire - service story that told how a weekly editor had caught the U.S. Secret Service protective division with its security guard down.

EDITOR CITES SECURITY LAG AT FORD EVENT, read the headline. The story went on to report that a clever editor had copied the name, hometown and Social Security number of a wanted extortionist from a poster at the Colorado Springs post office and put the man's name in for press credentials at the graduation ceremonies.

"I just wanted to find out how through their checking is," said the editor afterward. And then, revealingly, he added: "I decided either way it went it would be a good story."

Now, the Secret Service protective division, in case you don't know it, is the original no-win government agency. Its members are paid to carry out only one mission: protecting the lives and personal safety of those they're assigned to guard.

In a totalitarian society that assignment is made easier by the leadership's ability to insulate itself from the public, and by the unlimited powers given security men to provide the insulation. But in a democratic society, the interests of personal security must be balanced against the need for leaders to maintain contact with the people who elect them, and vice versa.

Thus, when the Secret Service does its job, nobody hands out any medals. But when, despite all precautions, the accessibility of our officials has led to tragedy, voices are always raised criticizing some aspect of the agency's procedures. That Secret Service agents have on such occasions shown personal courage and selflessness is, of course, taken for granted.

The same no-win principle applies to relations between the Secret Service and the press. When the Service comes to a town with a visiting official, 99 times out of 100 some member of the local press can be heard afterward, raising hell because he showed up for an event at the last minute and was delayed at the door by security men checking credentials.

This is why that story out of Colorado Springs demonstrates how "either way" journalism can do more of a disservice to the press than to the credibility of the government agency being criticized. True, that weekly editor is only one individual. But like a government official who behaves irresponsibly, a single sensational newsman can make things that much more difficult for his colleagues in the future.

For years the convict served on the House Foreign Affairs Committee with Donald Fraser, now directing a whirlwindish impeachment drive through the ADA, via the mails, phones and meetings. For years, Gallagher served with Congressman John Conyers on the House Government Operations Committee. A good deal of this time, Conyers, who already has said he would vote for President Nixon's impeachment, was on the Judiciary Committee.

Yet no record I could find discloses any outcry by these men over the series of exposures of Cornelius Gallagher. The thunderous, constantly indignant Conyers seems not to have even whispered about a Judiciary Committee probe of Gallagher. Yet the committee has several subcommittees which could have done this easily enough.

Nor is there any record of Don Fraser's protest against serving with a fellow Congressman

"Frustration is achieving one's lifetime income goal and going broke all in the same year."

INSIDE LABOR

Double Standard Of Justice?

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — Those impassioned impeachment-ists weren't always so fascinated by tapes — even when they disclosed what could have been damaging criminal evidence against at least one highly placed man in government.

Indeed, these tapes appeared to link the man, former Congressman Cornelius Gallagher, with some mighty sordid, heavily armed and muscled characters.

The impeachment-ists herein referred to are the Judiciary Committee's Peter Rodino and John Conyers, Jr., and Congressman Don Fraser, National Chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action.

All of them served with Gallagher, who now is serving a term in the Allenwood (Pa.) federal prison. He was convicted of tax evasion. But that's just a bit of the story.

It's all brought to mind by what appears to me to be a double standard of justice — and the appearance of convicts Gallagher and former White House aide Egil Krogh, Jr. They were interviewed on television on the prison farm last Sunday. Krogh, who was also sent to Allenwood, was philosophically, though officially he received a two- to six - year sentence for conspiracy to break in on Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. But Gallagher complained steadily, though he got only two years when sentenced in June 1973. Most of Krogh's sentence was suspended, but the full term will be on his record to haunt him wherever he seeks to earn a living.

But the story here is Gallagher. For years he was a close colleague of Rodino's in the New Jersey congressional bloc, in the northern New Jersey corrupt Hudson and Essex Counties' politics in the state's Democratic party.

For years the convict served on the House Foreign Affairs Committee with Donald Fraser, now directing a whirlwindish impeachment drive through the ADA, via the mails, phones and meetings. For years, Gallagher served with Congressman John Conyers on the House Government Operations Committee. A good deal of this time, Conyers, who already has said he would vote for President Nixon's impeachment, was on the Judiciary Committee.

Yet no record I could find discloses any outcry by these men over the series of exposures of Cornelius Gallagher. The thunderous, constantly indignant Conyers seems not to have even whispered about a Judiciary Committee probe of Gallagher. Yet the committee has several subcommittees which could have done this easily enough.

Nor is there any record of Don Fraser's protest against serving with a fellow Congressman publicly accused of links with the underworld — and a grim sadistic mob it was, and is.

Rodino, Conyers and Fraser could have called for tapes which might have X-rayed Gallagher's character. These are FBI bugging records. They were made public in the late '60s. These are tapes of conversations between Sam (the Plumber) DeCavalcante and Joe (Joe Bayonne) Zicarelli. Obviously, Sam the Plumber just didn't fascinate the Congressmen as do the latter-day plumbers, DeCavalcante, after all, was merely listed as the head of his own Mafia family. And Joe Bayonne was a mighty tough waterfront boss.

Those tapes reveal references to Neal Gallagher Asafriend.

Why were these tapes ignored? Why were the exposures dtdained? After all, Gallagher was a ranking member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs and stood in line to head it some day. He is only 53. He served on the House Government Operations Committee's Special Subcommittee Investigating Invasion of Privacy (as chairman). He was on the Legal and Monetary Affairs subcommittee and was chairman of the U.S. and Canadian Interparliamentary Group. Gallagher was House of Representatives adviser to the U.S. Arms Control Agency and a member of the U.S. delegation to the Disarmament Conference and the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Commission.

Even if he was a backbencher, the public charges against him should have brought him to the dock of the Judiciary Committee. But with all these positions and more, why was he ignored by Rodino, Conyers and Fraser, just to mention a few?

Further, many insiders knew that Gallagher was under constant investigation by many security agencies and the U.S. Attorney for New Jersey. In 1972 he was indicted on seven counts. Six were dropped, including charges of perjury and conspiracy with two former Jersey City officials to cover up at least $373,000 in kickbacks.

Finally he was convicted of tax evasion — "willfully and knowingly" evading a payment of $74,000 in federal income taxes in 1966.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

'Peaceful' India Under Fire For Nuclear Blast

By ROBERTS ALLEN

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's "nuclear tipped" diplomacy in the Middle East is resulting in an unexpected reaction in Congress.

There is a strong likelihood that an explicit safeguard will be written into the pending $5.18 billion foreign aid budget flatly banning aid of any kind to countries with atomic weapons.

Immediate target of this contemplated restriction is India — which recently exploded a nuclear bomb for "peaceful purposes."

The provision is also intended to be a clearcut warning to Egypt and Israel — beneficiaries of the President's fanfare "nuclear tipped" diplomacy.

All these countries are earmarked for large allocations in the foreign aid budget: Israel, $350 million, of which $50 million is for "supporting assistance" (direct grant for budget support); Egypt, $250 million, of which some $25 million is for clearing and renovating the Suez Canal; India, upwards of $100 million.

The last is a new figure. It had been indicated India was slated to get $75 million, but hearings in the House Foreign Affairs Committee have developed the actual amount is more than $100 million.

Forcefully illustrative of the intensity of congressional feeling on this new aspect of foreign aid is Rep. Frank Brasco's unsparing denunciation of what he jeeringly characterized as "India's new invention of a substitute for eating." Decried the New York Democrat:

"India's foreign policy reeks of hypocrisy, perhaps even more than that of France. At least the French do not pretend to be moral. India does. Congress would do well to keep this in mind when India soon detonates another atomic bomb 'for peaceful purposes' while at the same time asking us for more foreign aid."

The U.S. has no business underwriting India's nuclear program, even indirectly. The U.S. should not make any more aid available to India in any form for any reason. The time has come to put an end to this outrage. If Russia can sell weapons to India, then it can also feed it.

Perhaps when the famine-stricken masses of India plead for bread, Madame Gandhi will ask them to eat enriched uranium. That ought to make them content with their lot. After all, they are now the starving citizens of a nuclear power. India has the bomb, and surely that should satisfy them."

More To Come

India's startling atomic bomb test last month was emphatically NOT a one-shot affair.

Far from it, India is in the nuclear weapons arena with both feet.

U.S. experts anticipate there will be at least one more Indian nuclear test this year, and certainly several next year.

Despite Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's unctuous pronouncement about "peaceful purposes," it is now definitely known India has enough plutonium stockpiled for at least eight more atomic tests of the same magnitude as the first — upwards of 10 kilotons, about the size of the bomb dropped on Nagasaki.

India's secret plutonium stockpile is estimated at more than 100 kilograms.

And that isn't all. India also is well advanced in developing an intermediate range (around 1,500 miles) ballistic missile. Testing of an IRBM is expected by late 1975. India already has a small rocket, SLV-3, generally comparable to the U.S. Scout — smallest rocket employed — by this country for orbiting space satellites.

This column has obtained from Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., chairman of the Joint Atomic Committee and one of the best informed nuclear authorities, some revealing details about India's little-known atomic program.

India has an extensive atomic research center in Trombay, now named the Bhabha Atomic Research Center — BARC," said

Price. "It has a staff of nearly 10,000, of which 2,000 are scientists. Three research reactors are located at BARC. India has its own sources of uranium and thorium, reactor fuel manufacturing plants and chemical reprocessing facilities."

"India also has two U.S. type power reactors, which began operating in 1969. Four Canadian - type heavy water moderated, natural uranium fueled reactors are also in various phases of start-up or construction. India has had a 40-thermal megawatt research reactor under construction for a number of years. This is the Canada - India reactor (CIRUS) which utilizes natural uranium and heavy water. This reactor can produce six to 10 kilograms of plutonium a year.

"This reactor is not subject to inspection. The Canadians were assured by the Indians it would be used for only peaceful purposes. However, use of the material produced by this reactor made possible the atomic bomb exploded last month. The grim meaning of that is that India spent the money and effort to develop nuclear explosives, and all that foreboding implies."

It also strongly portends a bare - knuckled congressional crackdown on giving aid to "needy" countries that arm themselves with cataclysmic nuclear weapons.

The Target

Fate of the thrice - passed Hartke amendment recomputing military retired pay rests largely on the stand of the nine Senate conferees on the multi - billion - dollar defense procurement bill.

If these nine conferees (five Democrats, four Republicans) stand pat and refuse to yield on the Hartke provision, there is a good chance of forcing Chairman F. Edward Hebert of the House conferees to back down on his heretofore adamant opposition to recomputation.

The powerful Louisiana might be induced to take the question of whether the Hartke amendment is germane to the House Rules Committee — instead of arbitrarily rejecting it as he has done in the past.

Success of this strategy depends on how forcefully the Senate conferees will uphold the Hartke provision — which that chamber has decisively approved three times — 82 to 4 in 1972; 71 to 14 last year; 57 to 20 last week.

The Senate conferees on whom military retirees should concentrate their attention and pressure are: Sens. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman; Stuart Symington, C-Mo.; Henry Jackson, D-Wash.; Howard Cannon, D-Nev.; Thomas McIntyre, C-N.H.; Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.; John Tower, R-Tex.; Peter Dominick, R-Colo.; Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Stennis and Symington are the only members of the panel avowedly opposed to recomputation.

Of the nine House conferees, at least four are strongly for recomputation. They are Reps. Bob Wilson, R-Calif., Charles Gubser, R-Calif., Charles Bennett, D-Fla., O.C. Fisher, D-Tex.

The whole problem of recomputation revolves around getting this long - pending legislation before the full House. If that can be done, its enactment is certain. A definite majority of House members favor recomputation, but have been blocked from voting for it by a handful of strategically - placed opponents — foremost among them Hebert and Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., chairman of the subcommittee that several years ago recommended against recomputation.

If they can be outmaneuvered or outpressured, and recomputation brought before the full House, its approval by a big majority is a cinch.

"THE WATERGATE BUILDING LOOKS SO SMALL FROM UP HERE..."

"We count on the responsibility of the mass media," says Jack Warner, the agency's spokesman on such matters. Meaning the Service trusts that news organizations and editors aren't going to request press credentials for criminals to cover vice presidential speeches.

A reasonable assumption? I'd hope so, whatever the current state of mistrust between government agencies and the press. But if "either way" journalists who seek to make rather than report news have their way, even that could change.

Dear Abby

Talk about problems, this wife has one

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Harvey is 76, and I am a few years younger. We've been married for two years, both having lost our mates in death.

My problem is his interest in other women. He says he just likes to "talk."

We went to the Bahamas for a holiday, and he took up with an old maid he met in the hotel lobby. She was with a tour, but found Harvey so fascinating she stayed behind and let the group go on without her. [Now don't tell me all he gave her was conversation!]

When Harvey was in the hospital for a few days for tests he called up an old girl friend, and she came to visit him. Even with me in the room he held her hand, and they talked over old times. The head nurse told him he couldn't have any more visitors after that because it ran up his blood pressure. You can imagine how humiliated I was.

Divorce is not the answer. If it weren't for this thing he has about other women he'd be a good man.

I'm considering inviting two or three women over every day, and let him get all talked out. Should I, or not? HURT

DEAR HURT: I wouldn't. Harvey might have more conversation in him than you think.

DEAR ABBY: How does a parent deal with this new breed of woman? I need advice on this matter. Somehow I find it hard to accept this business of living together without marrying.

Am I wrong to deny them sleeping quarters together in my house?

My daughter is well educated, with a master's degree from a fine eastern university. She is only dumb where men are concerned.

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO: What your adult offspring do away from home is their business. What they do in your home is YOUR business. If you don't feel right about their sharing sleeping quarters in your home, tell them so. And if they don't like it, they can stay at a motel.

DEAR ABBY: What can be done about a neighbor who comes over every day as soon as I come home from work at 3:45 p.m.? Her husband travels, so she stays for hours. I have no time for myself and absolutely no privacy. Sometimes I've had a hard day at the office and would like to lie down for an hour before I start preparing dinner, but I can't because she's here.

She brings her two preschool children along, which makes matters worse because she doesn't discipline them, and they run wild.

Otherwise she is a good neighbor and does a lot of little favors for me. I haven't wanted to say anything that might hurt her feelings, yet these poorly timed visits are getting to me. Any suggestions? WEARY

DEAR WEARY: Yes. Tell her you sometimes like to lie down after work so please telephone before coming over. I don't know what "little favors" she does for you, but you're paying a big price for them. Is it worth your privacy? Think about it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DESPERATE OLD MAID": At 29 you are far from an "old maid," so drop that label. And don't act so desperate. Think of yourself as a whole individual, not a half looking for another half.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JUNE 25

Your birthday today: Brings on the first of a long series of firm decisions if you are to prosper fully. Each notch of progress opens an additional challenge. You're on your way! and largely on your own resources. Relationships run deep and quiet, an underpinning of emotional sustenance. Today's natives develop intense self-discipline, a keep appreciation of the qualities of others.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Reasonable or a bit slow is enough today—give things time to settle in place. Attend any long-range agreement that's been hanging fire. Find time for an old friend.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Family and its connections offer a broad field for interest or concern. Bring your information up to date. Take nothing for granted in any negotiation.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Now is the time for definite economy both in cash and personal energy. Any commitment should be undertaken with thought of many factors beyond your own convenience.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: A diplomatic touch saves not just the day but a long future. Insight into an old mystery may be a shock. Be discreet! Home life and its improvement come up as a main issue.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Financial matters drift into moments of decision-dilemma; no time is left for reconsideration. Depend on nobody for anything beyond well-established normal routine.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Fast talk runs a full range of sales pitch. There's no urgency to get into new ventures. The sound ones will still be available after you have checked them out.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: The unexpected is the order of the day. Delay your response to be sure where your best interests lead. The most important considerations may not be visible at all today.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Be yourself without internal conflicts; all else then clicks right. Keep all dealings aboveboard. Nothing works so well as meditation and the serenity it brings.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: It's almost certain you'll have to put in a heavier contribution to your family and community. Partnerships tend to confusing results—go it alone.

The First Baptist Church in Miami was the setting Friday, June 14, at 7 p.m. for the exchange of wedding vows for Miss Cynthia Dianne Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce E. Bailey of Miami and Terry Lynn Farrar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton B. Farrar of Crowell.

THE CEREMONY
Rev. Weldon Farrar, brother of the bridegroom, Davis, Okla., performed the double-ring ceremony before basket arrangements of pink and white gladioli and white daisies, flanked by two 15-branched candelabra holding white tapers entwined with greenery. Pews were marked with white bows with greenery.

Mrs. Wiley Bailey, organist, aunt of the bride, Miami, provided traditional wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Weldon Farrar, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Davis, Okla., as she sang "More" and "We've Only Just Begun."

THE BRIDE
The bride, given in marriage by her father with the "her mother and I" avowal, wore a "Mori Lee" formal gown of silk organza designed with a high-rise waistline, stand-up neckline and long sleeves with wide fitted cuffs edged in crystal pleats. The bodice was designed with a daisy lace motif. The skirt, enhanced by a deep flounce with daisy trim, swept to back fullness and a train.

The waist length veil of illusion fell from a Juliet cap trimmed in seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

She wore the traditional something old, a ring belonging to her mother, something new, an opal necklace, a gift of the bridegroom; a borrowed blue garter; and a six-pence in her shoe, a gift from a banker in Vernon.

The traditional red rose was presented to the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother immediately following the ceremony. The couple also lighted memory candles.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Kay Gill was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Kim White of Panhandle and Dianna Rowell of Amarillo. All wore identical floor length dresses of nylon with clusters of blue flowers. They were styled with round necklines and A-line skirts, complimented with matching jackets with long sleeves. The jacket and sleeves were edged in self ruffles. Their headpieces were navy blue flat bows, and each carried a cascade of green carnations with navy blue streamers.

Michann Bailey, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor length dress styled similar to those of the bridesmaids, and wearing a green carnation wristlet tied with navy blue ribbon.

Ringbearer was Rodney Farrar and candlelighters were Troy and Brian Farrar. All are nephews of the bridegroom, Morris, Okla.

Trainbearer was Ken Farrar, nephew of the bridegroom, Davis, Okla. Steve Bailey, brother of the bride, was best man. Groomsmen were Mance Melson of Crowell and Ronnie Naylor of Thalia.

Ushers were Ronald Morton, nephew of the bridegroom, Amarillo, and Douglas Bailey, brother of the bride, Miami.

Presiding at the guest register was Miss Janna Gordon of Miami.

MOTHERS
The bride's mother wore a floor length melon colored dress of printed polyester styled with a V-neckline, long sleeves with bordered cuffs, and pleated skirt with bordered hemline. She wore a green orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore a floor length gown of turquoise blue double knit with white accessories and a pink orchid corsage.

RECEPTION
A reception followed the ceremony in Fellowship Hall of the church. The hall, covered with a white linen cloth trimmed in lace, was centered with a six-tiered white wedding cake, decorated with yellow roses. Between each tier were angels and angels with harps, with a miniature bride and bridegroom and white wedding bells atop. Fresh garden lilies circled the bottom tier and a three-angel epergne held a bouquet of blue carnations and white daisies.

Mrs. Harvey Bailey and Mrs. Courtney Broadbush, aunts of the bride, and Mrs. Viola Beum assisted at the table serving cake and pouring punch.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a beige cloth trimmed with brown fringe. The chocolate cake was trimmed in white lattice work topped with a cluster of chocolate roses. Alop this was a pair of miniature lovebirds. Misses Emmy Lou Bailey, cousin of the bride, presided at the silver coffee service and Cathy Morgenstern served the cake.

Rice bags of tulle tied with navy blue ribbon were distributed by Misses Kasandra and Michann Bailey, cousins of the bride.

For the wedding trip to Oklahoma City, the bride traveled in a pink pantsuit. She wore the corsage lifted from the bridal bouquet. The couple will be at home at 4010 S. Ong in Amarillo, where the bridegroom will be employed.

AFFILIATIONS
The bride is a 1974 graduate of Miami High School where she participated in all school activities. She served as girl's basketball manager, her freshman year, and played basketball her sophomore year. She was alternate cheerleader two years and cheerleader her senior year. She was a member of FHA and served as homecoming princess her senior year.

The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of Crowell High School where he played football and was a member of the FFA. He has attended West Texas State University the last two years where he is majoring in Animal Science, and plans to continue his education this fall.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS
Parents of the couple hosted the rehearsal dinner in the Community Center.

A miscellaneous shower held recently in the home of Mrs. Gail Jackson was hosted by Mmes. Charles Bailey, Travis Noble, Harold Stone, R. A. Flowers, Jr., Randall Gill, Wiley Bailey, Robert Howard, Cecil Gill, Melvin McCuiston, Lawrence Buice, Wilford Jackson and Viola Beum.

She was honored with a lingerie shower in the home of Miss Kay Gill with Misses Melinda McCuiston, Cathy Bailey and Debbie Bryant as co-hostesses.

Her "Home and Family Living" class honored her recently with another

FIRST BAPTIST WOMEN
The Betty Law Bible Study Group met Wednesday, June 19, at 9:30 a.m., in the home of Mrs. E.C. Mackie, 2219 Christine.

The chairman of the group, Mrs. Louis Tarpley, informed the group of the June mission action which is to help the Valley Baptist Academy. The ladies gave an offering for this.

Mrs. D.B. Jameson gave the "Call to Prayer" and Mrs. Cecil Lunsford offered the opening prayer.

Mrs. Jameson then taught the Bible lesson using Mark 10 as her text.

The next meeting of this group will be July 17, in the home of Mrs. J.V. Young, 1120 Williston.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Lunsford.

Members attending were Mmes. J.P. Moore, Earl Murphy, Lee Heath, Myron Porter, Tommie Grant, Corine Wheeler, D.W. Osborne, W.G. Harvey, Young, Mackie, Jameson and Tarpley. Two visitors welcomed were Mmes. Ed Railsback and E.R. Mackie.

CARPETING

Select carpeting with an eye to adjacent outside areas — dark carpeting for living area next to white sand outside would be unwise, Patricia Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System, advises. A white carpet would be less practical than a colored one for children's rooms or kitchens, she added.

North's game-forcing two-spade opening bid was overly aggressive. Although his hand was an unbalanced one, two notrump would have been the preferable opening bid. And when South responded with three hearts (also an over-ambitious call), North, consistent in his aggressive bidding, drove

On numerous occasions, the finding of the winning opening lead is nothing more than sheer guesswork. But, on many occasions, the winning opening lead can be determined by the application of reasoning. The latter was the case in today's deal. West's analysis of the situation confronting him serves as a good illustration of the functioning of the expert mind.

North's Blackwood bid, South had denied having an ace. And if North had the club queen (in combination with his known ace), then West's king of clubs could be finessed against successfully.

So West opened the jack of clubs, on the sound assumption that if North possessed the A-Q of clubs, South wouldn't risk a finesse at trick one unless no other hope existed. South, of course, wasn't going to learn about the "bad" division in spades until later on.

When declarer saw the dummy, he put up the ace of clubs, figuring that if the adversely held spades were divided no worse than 4-2, he could make a winner out of the board's fifth spade, upon which he would discard his losing club.

But with the bad break in spades, declarer had to lose a club, plus a diamond. Had West not led a club originally, South, after discovering the 5-1 spade division, would have had no choice but to take a (successful) club finesse.

Recycling Clothes Is 'In'

COLLEGE STATION — Recycling old clothes for new life, fit and fashion is "in" today as recycling paper, glass and metal.

Concern over fabric shortages and energy conservation — as well as clothing costs — can take credit for this trend, the clothing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, explained.

"Whether it's simply a button change, shorter hem, new applique or complete garment renovation, recycling offers consumers a rewarding, creative experience."

"Most families have closets full of clothes they no longer wear regularly. This stems from rapidly changing fashions, larger more varied wardrobes and strong synthetic fibers and blends — which mean clothes don't wear out as quickly."

With a little time and imagination, these items turn into wearable fashions.

Mrs. Culp pointed out. Before recycling a garment, she advised considering the following:

— Is the fabric worth using? Is it stained or worn out? Can an adequate portion be used? Will the fabric successfully combine with others?

— Do you possess necessary sewing skills to make the garment wearable again — without it looking "homemade" or like changes were tacked on?

— Are compatible trim and notions available?

After asking these questions it may be wiser to either purchase or sew a completely new item.

Even though recycling clothing isn't new, mending, altering, repairing and renovating existing garments has taken on new fashion excitement, the specialist added.

Big is the word for sleeves on new fall dresses. Some are gathered at the wrist, some are trumpet-shaped and others are full, flowing kimono designs.

Baseball Roundup

United Press International National League Roundup

Mike Marshall, who sometimes talks in riddles, says he can keep pitching at his current pace and the bad news comes through loud and clear for the Los Angeles Dodgers' rivals.

The 31-year-old reliever completed perhaps the most sensational weekend of his career Sunday when he was the winning pitcher in the Dodgers' series-sweeping 4-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The winning pitching in all three weekend triumphs over the Giants, during which he pitched seven shutout innings, Marshall has relieved in 45 of the Dodgers' 70 games and has a 7-3 record to go with a 2.28 earned run average. At the moment he is a strong candidate for the National League's Cy Young Award and Most Valuable Player award — provided his arm doesn't fall off by August 1, of course.

"There's no chance of that," says Marshall, who says kinesiology is the reason for the effectiveness of his screwball. "I've never had a sore arm and I never will have one. The secret is training and the secret to training is specificity."

Handle His Pitching

No wonder rival hitters can't handle his pitching, they can't even understand what he's talking about.

Marshall, who shut out the Giants for two innings Sunday, received credit for the win when pinch-hitter Ken McMullen singled with one out and the bases filled in the ninth inning to score pinch-runner Dave Lopes with the winning run. The Dodgers have a 6 1/2-game lead in the National League West over the Cincinnati Reds, who won three of four games from the Atlanta Braves in their weekend series.

The Reds defeated the Braves 4-2 and 2-1 in 12 innings. The Chicago Cubs beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-3. The Houston Astros downed the San Diego Padres, 8-2, and the Montreal Expos topped the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-2, in other NL games. New York at Philadelphia was rained out.

American League Roundup

Rudy May and Lindy McDaniel, two pitchers given an opportunity because of the misfortunes of others, believe in making the most of a big chance.

May, a 29-year-old lefthander who has had only one winning season in five years in the major leagues, made his debut with the New York Yankees Sunday because of an injury to Mel Stottlemyre and responded with a four-hitter in pitching his new club to a 4-1 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

The 38-year-old McDaniel, acquired in the off-season by

Barty Smith Hurt

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Running back Barty Smith, the Green Bay Packers' No. 1 draft choice, underwent knee surgery Sunday night for an injury sustained in the Coaches' All-America game Saturday night.

Smith was injured in the third quarter of the game at Lubbock, Tex., when he was hit while carrying the ball along the sideline.

He was checked by an orthopedic specialist in Lubbock and then flown here early Sunday where Dr. James Nellen, a Packer team physician, checked him in at St. Mary's Medical Center.

Kansas City from the Yankees, made a rare starting appearance because Nelson Briles still is not ready to return to the starting rotation and responded with a three-hitter in leading the Royals to a 4-1 victory over the Oakland A's.

May, acquired from the California Angels on June 15, had been used primarily in relief by California manager Bobby Winkles and it was somewhat surprising that he had enough stamina to complete the game which was delayed one hour at the start and hampered by a steady rain throughout.

The rain was so bad, in fact, that the second game of the scheduled doubleheader was postponed.

May, though, attributed his success to just putting the Yankee uniform.

"When things are happening to me, they play on me psychologically," he said. "He (Winkles) just didn't have any confidence in me and so I lost it in myself. I hadn't been pitching well. I feel fine and there's nothing wrong with my arm so it must be in my head."

"There's no way I'm going to be throwing the ball as badly here as I was in California. I feel great being here in New York and this was a big game for me. I have to prove it to myself and the ballclub. I want to show (manager) Billy Virdon I can pitch in the major leagues and I want to. This is a helluva ballclub and I think they got a chance to win."

May's performance earned him a place in the starting rotation at least until Stottlemyre returns to action, which may not be for quite some time. The Yankees have sent their ace righthander to California to confer with noted orthopedist, Dr. Robert Kerlan. Stottlemyre has a tendon problem in his right shoulder.

In other American League games, Boston blanked Cleveland 8-0, Milwaukee routed Baltimore 9-4, California topped Texas 10-2 and Chicago defeated Minnesota 2-1 then lost 4-3.

Los Angeles edged San Francisco 4-3, Cincinnati took two from Atlanta, 4-2 and 2-1 in 12 innings, Chicago beat Pittsburgh 7-3, Houston whipped San Diego 8-2 and Montreal downed St. Louis 4-2 in National League action.

Rebels Lose Pair In Weekend Action

Pampa's Rebels lost a pair of heartbreakers this past weekend in District 18 American Legion action. Dumas bumped the Rebels 10-4 on Saturday, and Amarillo squeezed out a 6-5 win Sunday.

Saturday's contest saw the Rebels close a 4-2 deficit to 5-4 going into the final inning, but an error and six consecutive walks by three Pampa pitchers gave Dumas the five extra runs.

Righthander Robby Harris drove in three runs with a pair of timely singles for the Rebels, and Tony Frogge collected a double and a single while scoring twice.

Mike Fraser absorbed the loss while Dumas' Mike O'Kelly chalked up the win. Fraser struck out 10 and walked 10 while O'Kelly fanned 11 and walked only three.

Sunday's contest in Amarillo was a seesaw battle down to the wire, as Amarillo took a 1-0 lead in the first frame only to be tied in the third as John Agan singled, was sacrificed to second by Bobby Chance, and scored on an errant pick-off attempt.

The Dusters took a 2-1 advantage into the fourth, but Kory Gamblin singled home Roy Morris and Tony Frogge to give the Rebels the lead at 3-2.

Mike Adair singled Robby Harris home in the fifth to up the count to 4-2, but three base hits pulled Amarillo into a tie in the bottom of the stanza. Agan scored again in the sixth when Bobby Chance and Rick Smith followed his walk with hits.

But Amarillo used five walks to tally twice in the sixth and win 6-5.

Larry Petty took the loss in relief of Roy Morris, and Chip Biggers took over for Matt Sherley to garner the win. Kory Gamblin led the Dick Weston of Plainview won the Men's West Texas Golf Tournament with a 69 after a playoff was called between him and Steve Whiteside, Midland, yesterday at the Pampa Country Club.

Whiteside called a shot penalty on himself when he said that his ball moved and forced the playoff. He shot 69 also, and the two players ended 72 holes of play with a 280. Whiteside would have won the Championship Flight if he had not called the penalty and played. Third place in the Championship Flight went to pre-favorite John Farquhar of Amarillo, who carded a 69 and a 72-hole total of 282. He won the Tournament in 1971 and 1972 and was runner-up in 1969 and 1970.

First place in the President's Flight went to Greg Myers of Fort Worth with a 73 in Sunday's play and 216 for 54 holes. He won the playoff between him and Steve Talbot of Snider. Talbot came out with a 72 and a 54-hole total of 216 also.

Jobe Moss of Lubbock won the First Flight with a 75 for Sunday and a 224 for 54 holes.

In Second Flight action, Irvin St. Clair beat Buddy Lamberson in the winners bracket. St. Clair carded a 76 and Lamberson finished with an 82. Pete Evans, with an 81, won the consolation bracket.

Third Flight winners were Jerry Hodges, 74, and Phil Waters, 78, while Jim Reese with a 76 won the consolation bracket.

Ben McClure, 81, won the Fourth Flight ahead of L.L. Garren, 82. Bill Leonard, 76, took the consolation.

Floyd Sackett, with an 80, took the Fifth Flight in front of Jerry Mickey, 82, while Mike Maloney took the consolation category with an 84.

In Senior Flight action, C.L. Duniven shot a 72 with no handicap for low gross honors. Mark Smith, with a 71, was second low gross player. Duniven carded a 54-hole total of 227 and Smith finished with a 233. Low net player was Frank Underwood with a 65 and Grover Austin came in second with a 69.

All winners, runners-up and consolation winners received trophies. First place winners won $150 in merchandise, second, $100, and third, $50. Consolation runners-up won $8 in prize value while Lane Duck winners received merchandise prizes. Weston's Plainview club will receive a traveling trophy to display until next year's tournament.

Coaches Enjoy All-Star Game In West Texas

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — As if the housewives of America don't have enough to put up with, what with costlier grocery bills and baby sitters, the football season will apparently be starting in June for many years to come.

The Coaches All-America game has been going on for 14 years now and to hear the coaches and players talk about it the contest has a long future in this West Texas, football-crazed city.

They held the game again last Saturday, with the West All Stars putting on a surprising display of smoothness to demolish the East, 36-6.

And during the week before, as well as in the moments after the game, the coaches and players alike were so high in praise of what they were doing that it sounded like they had been bought off by the Chamber of Commerce.

"The great thing about all-star games," said Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer, who led the West, "is that five days after the game is over nobody knows who won and nobody knows the names of the coaches."

"That is great for us. There is no pressure on us. I had heard from some of my players what a great game this was. They all said they had been treated so well and that they thought this was the best of the all-star games."

"Now, having been here and seen it for myself, I agree. I would always recommend to my players that if they get a chance to play in this game they should take advantage of it."

East coach Johnny Majors had less reason to like the game after it was over since his team obviously did not have the polish of the West, but Majors still felt the game was good for the players involved.

"I would tell my players to come here if they could," Majors said. "I think this is a good step for those who are going into pro camps — and of course almost all of them are."

"And it helps when they have a good time, too."

The game kicked around in Buffalo and New York for nine years before coming to Lubbock and last Saturday, despite near 100-degree temperatures at gametime, more than 42,000 people showed up.

The game's contract is renewed only on a one-year basis, but already the Football Coaches Association — sponsors of the game — have agreed with Lubbock officials to return to West Texas in 1975.

Sandra Haynie Takes Win In LPGA Tourney

SUTTON, MASS. (UPI) — The only thing flashy about Sandra Haynie is her bankroll.

The quiet, businesslike Miss Haynie showed again Sunday that consistency is the key to victory as she parlayed her third straight even par round with an opening day 69 into her most important win ever. The 13-year pro from Dallas scored her second straight tournament decision with a four-under par 288 to earn $7,000 in the LPGA Championship over a 6,130-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course that subdued her more flamboyant peers.

The win gave her $44,085 in earnings this year and more than $350,000 in her career.

Miss Haynie putted home three birdies on the first four holes, then weathered a double bogey and two single bogeys on the back nine during a drizzly, raw day to best charging JoAnne Carner by two strokes.

The third leading money winner in LPGA history ranked the victory "tops" among her 31 career wins because "there is just nothing like winning your own organization's championship."

"This is truly a championship course. You have to play every club in your bag," she said.

She had to use several more clubs than she wanted on the double-water-holed 17th that almost was her downfall. Miss Haynie had dropped two strokes on the 13th and 15th holes and was trying to play safe on the rugged 17th.

Colbert Uses Putting Stroke In American Classic Victory

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — When Jim Colbert came on the PGA tour nine years ago the only thing he brought with him was courage and a good putting stroke.

He needed, and used them both to perfection Sunday to win his first tournament of the year—the $170,000 American Golf Classic. In picking up his fourth career triumph, the jubilant Colbert pocketed $34,000 to up his season earnings to $73,871 — good enough for 15th place on the current PGA money list.

Colbert defeated Ray Floyd on the second sudden death playoff hole after Gay Brewer and Forrest Fezler were eliminated on the first extra hole. The four had ended the 72-hole event tied at one over par 281.

"I had overestimated my ability and had underestimated my intestinal fortitude and was beginning to think all I could do was choke when it came to the big ones," said the 33-year-old Colbert, who carded five birdies and four bogeys his final round.

"This time," he said, "I just reversed it and there was more intestinal fortitude and less emphasis on ability. I had only one thing in my mind when I came here and that was to win. If I didn't take it all, I didn't care if I finished second or 95th."

Floyd and Colbert salvaged par three on the first sudden death hole while Brewer and Fezler were eliminated with bogey fours. This time it was Floyd who could smell the green.

On the par five, 625-yard 16th hole Colbert hit safely to the green in three as the ball landed 20 feet away from the pin. Floyd just cleared a fronting lake on his third shot and executed a good chip shot that trickled past the hole.

But after Colbert two putted for a par, Floyd, whose ball went eight to 10 feet from the hole, missed his putt for par.

Youth Tennis Clinic Slated

A tennis clinic will be conducted Thursday from 1 to 4:30 p.m. at Pampa High School for those between the ages of 10-18.

John Michie, new tennis instructor at Pampa High, will handle the clinic along with Alton Setliff, former tennis coach at PHS, and Rod Setliff.

The instructors will cover all fundamentals of tennis and give other tips.

The course will cost $20 and players must bring their own rackets, but balls will be furnished.

No experience is needed. Interested persons should contact Michie or Setliff before Thursday, if possible.

Several Methods To Correct Squeaky Floor

By HERMAN BAUM Dear House Doctor: We moved into a brand new home last fall. During the winter, the hardwood floors, especially in the living room, began to make a squeaking noise when walked on. This does not occur over the entire floor, only in two places, and it is very annoying.

We asked the builder about this and he said that the trouble always occurs in winter when heat dries out the wood, and he can do nothing about it. Is this true? —R.L.M.

ANSWER — Many

United Press International

It took the three members of Brownsville Station several years of hard work to stay in one place musically so the world could catch up to them. They were always one of the best, most straightforward rock bands to ever come out of Detroit—but until their single of a few months back, "Smokin' In the Boys Room," their track record on the charts had been less than impressive.

"Smokin'" finally isolated Brownsville's audience — high school-age boys—and started what could be the band's steady rise into the big time.

One of the best things about Brownsville Station is their sense of humor. At least two-thirds of their songs stop over from humor into farce, on a basic teenage level. Best of all, they have excellent memories for the way things really are for most high school kids.

Brownsville's new album, "School/Punks" (Big Tree BY-89500), is—like their manic stage performances—nonstop boogie from the start to finish. Most of the songs revolve around various forms of American male teen-age lust, but this is rock, and the lyrics really aren't that important anyway.

"Punks" is a uniformly tight album, combining new tunes (one, "Kings of the Party," an obvious follow-up to "Smokin'") with some well-selected oldies ("Hey Little Girl," and "I'm A King Bee"); it's unquestionably their best album so far.

On the other hand, the band has yet to capture on vinyl anything like the natural spontaneous power of their driving stage act, sparked by bespectacled Cub Koda on guitar and lead vocals. If they ever pull it off, Brownsville Station could turn into one of the really big rock bands of the 1970's.

Meanwhile, unwilling to remain mere musicians, the trio has moved into movies. They've finished work on a screenplay called "Brownsville Station Join the Army." In the flick, members of a rock band are drafted and sent to the front lines—at the White House. With a plot like that, it could turn into one of the great Z-movies ever made.

George Harrison has put together a new label, Dark Horse Records, and an agreement with A&M to distribute. George will produce for Dark Horse but remains on contract to Apple for his own product. "Rock magazine 'Zoo World' reports that Alvin Lee is likely to depart 10 Years After following the current U.S. tour. British trade magazines say Andy McKay is leaving the ever so strange Roxy Music to join up with Mott the Hoople. Back together again: Iron Butterfly, the original heavy metal band, and the Righteous Brothers, who already have a single out called "Rock and Roll Heaven"... one of the most neglected bands of the decade. Manfred Mann's Earth Band, has changed labels (Polydor to Warners) and may now see some light. Slade will be furnishing party favors at U.S. tour: balloons, favors, confetti, etc. Bob Dylan and The Band are set for a European tour next fall.

Rhode Island, the nation's smallest state, has the longest official name. It is "State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations."

builders are like that. Only politicians surpass them in ability to concoct alibis. In all fairness, we must say that he is partially correct.

During the winter, with heat on in the house, the wood does dry out and shrinks in size. This could cause the squeaks. If the builder had taken proper precautions, the trouble would not have occurred.

After a home is closed in, the flooring should be stored inside the rooms for two weeks before it is installed. This allows all the wood to attain the same moisture content, so that later all of it will expand and contract in the same proportion. Apparently this was not done. Proper nailing is also an important factor for preventing floor noises.

There are several things you can do to correct this trouble. Try one, and if it does not help, try another.

The simplest method, if there are any spaces between the floor boards in the area that produces the noise, is to squirt liquid glue into these cracks.

White plastic resin glue is a good choice. Use as much glue as will flow into the opening. Place a barricade over the area for two days to allow the glue to dry. Powdered graphite may be used in the same manner and it does not require the barricade.

If you have a ceiling in your basement so that the underside of the floor is not accessible, all work must be done from the room side. The hardwood floor and the subfloor can be drawn into firm contact by driving 8d finishing nails down into the floor joists. Use two nails at each location and drive them at an angle to form a lock.

Drill holes, slightly smaller than the nails, through the hardwood floor to prevent splitting the boards. Set the nails and fill the holes with putty.

If the underside of the floor is accessible, wood screws can be driven through the subfloor and into the hardwood floor to pull the two into firm contact. You must drill holes for the screws, but be sure to use a depth gauge on the drill so as not to penetrate the hardwood floor.

When examining the underside of the floor, you may find that a space appears between the subfloor and the joist. This could cause the noise.

These spaces can be filled with thin wedges, or you can nail a board longer than the space to the joist and hard up against the subfloor. Use a prop against the floor to hold the board while nailing.

OUTPATIENTS' CLINIC

B.S. — Nothing is gained by insulating the first floor ceiling of a two-story house. If your heating system is properly designed, the three inches you now have serves no purpose. R.D.C. — The cathedral ceiling in your living room was improperly insulated and ventilated. This is causing the stains. Structural changes now will be a major operation.

Mrs. L.S. — You can cover your ceramic tile kitchen with sheet vinyl that has a cushion backing. Installation should be done by a flooring mechanic.

PEELING PAINT

Dear House Doctor: My problem is keeping paint on the outside of my frame house. Within six months to a year, after being painted, it starts to chip off. Is there some kind of undercoat that can be applied to prevent this?

—Mrs. L.O.I. ANSWER — The major cause of outside paint peeling is moisture that accumulates beneath the paint. This moisture may be the result of rain leaks, or just moist air that passes through the walls from the inside of the house. Another frequent cause is the use of latex paint over a previous application of oil paint.

We have an illustrated bulletin that describes several methods for eliminating the dampness problem. A copy is available by sending 15 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to The House Doctor in care of The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Bulletin No. G-33.

LAUNDRY TUBS

Dear House Doctor: As a young homeowner, I have moved into a house that has stone laundry tubs in the basement. The former occupant painted the tubs inside and out with a white paint that is now peeling. Should we remove the paint or repaint them?

—A.S. ANSWER — Those old stone laundry tubs become so saturated with soap that it is not possible to make paint adhere to them. You may try to remove the paint with a chemical paint remover or by scraping, but you should consider replacing them with a more modern type.

PROBLEMS PLUS

Dear House Doctor: I recently bought an older home and have much remodeling to do. Among other things, I want to insulate the attic and paint it inside and out. Do you have instructions that will help, as I have had no experience at this work?

—F.B. ANSWER — Our Home Repair Manual contains all this information and much more on home improvement. A copy is available by sending a check or money order in the amount of $1.75 (which includes postage and handling charge) to House Doctor Books, 6631 Emerson Avenue South, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33707.

For 18 fence plans which you do yourself, send for the booklet, "Wood Fences You Can Build." Mail 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to The House Doctor, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Business Today

By W.J. STANFIELD SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI) — William Selzer's company turns out more airplanes each year than McDonnell Douglas, Boeing and Lockheed combined ... and business is good, thanks in part to inflation and the energy shortage.

Selzer is president of L.M. Cox Manufacturing Company which manufactures enginepowered model airplanes and automobiles as well as HO model electric trains. He is also vice president and a director of the Hobby Association.

Not only is his company doing well in the face of high prices and some fuel shortages, Selzer said, but the $1.2 billion hobby industry as a whole is looking toward a 10 per cent increase in sales this year.

The energy crisis is doing much to boost hobby craft sales as people try to conserve gas by discovering new areas of interest and recreation at home," he explained. "The hobby craft industry historically has shown a capacity to move ahead during hard times. Our market studies indicate that when the demand for new cars, boats and motor homes slackens, young and old alike turn more and more to hobbies."

A Fighter Pilot — A model plane enthusiast himself since childhood and a World War II fighter pilot and B29 navigator, Selzer got into the hobby industry almost by accident. Following graduation from the University of Michigan with a mechanical engineering degree, Selzer worked for Pratt Whitney in Hartford, Conn., for two years and then moved to Southern California in 1952 to seek employment in the aircraft industry.

He heard about the small Cox company which made a little racing car with an engine in it but farmed out its engineering work to outside people. He went to work there as an engineer and became president when owner-founder Roy Cox retired five years ago and the firm was acquired by Leisure Dynamics.

From a small company that had only 15 employees in 1952, Cox has grown to a firm with more than 600 employees and annual sales of nearly $20 million in more than 75 countries. It sold more than one million model airplanes last year.

Sopwith Camel The airplanes range from the PT19 trainer of World War II, a standard for 15 years, to a Messerschmitt 109E superstunter introduced this year. Three models are the Sopwith Camel, Fokker triplane and Fokker D7 from World War I. The most popular ones date from World War II—the PT19 Mustang, P40 Warhawk and the JU87D Stuka, in addition to the PT19 and Messerschmitt.

"I guess they are so popular because they represent the last propeller-driven high performance aircraft," Selzer says. "And the PT19 is popular because so many people trained in it during World War II."

Similarly, the Stuka has traditionally been the best seller in West Germany and that country is Cox's best export country.

All the airplanes built by Cox fly at the end of control lines and most are powered by the standard Cox .049 cubic inch engine that turns 15-20,000 revolutions a minute.

Excruciating Pain In Left Leg

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: My problem is my left leg. I have excruciating pain that radiates from the hip down, sometimes all the way to the ankle.

I have been to about five different doctors and none helped me. One said it might be poor circulation and prescribed a purple pill, and another said it might be from back strain or sciatic nerve and gave me a white pill, and another said it could be from female trouble I have been having, and two others said it was not from that even though I am scheduled for a hysterectomy and have trouble with my ovaries.

I am only 35 and have four children that keep me on the go, so I need help very badly. Please help me or refer me to someone who can.

Five doctors have seen you and come up with variable answers: I'm certainly not going to try to diagnose the trouble without even seeing you. All the same I hope and think I can help you.

I get the impression that none of the five doctors made a thorough study, and possibly in some cases it was a matter of seeing a doctor about your "female trouble" and asking him something like, "Does that have anything to do with the pain in my leg?"

One thing stands out: the pain radiates down your leg. That implies something is bothering the nerve which serves that area, and that in turn lends substance to the doctor who said it might be the sciatic nerve.

If that is the case, a pill isn't going to be the answer, nor, as so many folks blindly hope, liniment or massage.

Personally I think you should see a neurologist (or perhaps an orthopedist) but you should not expect a solid answer on the first visit.

First step is to make certain it is the sciatic nerve (if that, in fact, proves to be the case). Second step then would be to find what is irritating that nerve.

Has your lower spine been X-rayed? Has back strain caused a shift in the bones of the spine so they press on the nerve? Is there an infection that has reached and irritated the nerve? Can the problems with your ovaries or other reproductive organs (a tumor, for example) be exerting a pressure?

In other words, there are some health problems that are quite readily solved and there are others which require some logical and progressive study before the answer appears. Seeing five doctors sometimes isn't nearly as helpful as seeing one doctor five times as often.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What do you think of the Leatrice cancer treatment?

Experts on treatment of cancer have not been able to find any evidence that it helps; until they do, I certainly will have nothing to do with it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About blood pressure, is 100-80 better than 90-60? I am a woman of 58, weigh 90 pounds and feel "lousy" most of the time.

I don't want to be too arbitrary in an opinion, but I would say that the lower pressure—90-60—could be a sign of a more general disorder than "low blood pressure."

I would recommend a complete examination to determine the state of your thyroid and other parts of the glandular system; check for the possibility of anemia, or for chronic infection.

There are many factors to account for the "lousy" feeling, among them faulty nutrition, inadequate sleep or exercise, possibly a mild depressive state. Blood pressure is just one sign of many possibilities, albeit an important one, of course.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)" by Dr. Thosteson. Write to him, Dr. G.C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Bigot And Marty Are Together

By EARL WILSON.
NEW YORK — Ernie Borgnine and Carole O'Connor have been filming together until 5 a.m. on the lower East Side. Some of the Henry Street stay-ups found this celebrity combination a fantasy. They didn't believe it at first. They decided their drinks were too potent. They were seeing pink actors.

They then developed a fierce proprietary pride. "They're right here on this street, OUR STREET! Hey, ARCHIE BUNKER. Hey, Bigot. Where's Meathead?" Then they'd turn to Borgnine. "Hey, MARTY. Hey, McHALE! Where'd you leave the boat? Where's the silly ensign?"

Borgnine found Friday and Saturday morning the most fascinating for filming "Grand Street." "Everybody's brown-baggin' it," says Ernie, meaning they're carrying bottles. "And so many dead Indians (empty bottles). People must be drinking more. We had a scene where I was in an auxiliary cop's outfit, my head down on the street, supposed to be dead. Two brown-baggers don't know it's a movie. They say, 'The guy's dead. Let's help him!'"

It's 20 years since Ernie Borgnine of Hamden, Conn., did "Marty," it's just 10 years since he and Ethel Merman were married. Ernie now will discuss only his last wife, lovely Tove Newman of Norway. "I'd had enough of women and didn't want to meet any more," he said. "Marty Allen and his wife Frenchy forced me into a blind date in a front booth at Chasen's. From the moment we met we were oblivious to everyone else. My wife is with me here. She stayed up with me on this picture till 5 a.m. She says, 'Where you go, I go...'"

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... I could have been killed in the line of duty. But I wasn't. (Too bad, it would have made a great anecdote.)

Several Secret Service agents protected Moshe Dayan and wife when they went to see "Candide" at the Broadway Theater. They encircled him sitting up in the reserved seat section.

As a reporter, I walked into the theater mid-performance and stood rather noticeably in an open doorway gazing at Dayan and his eyepatch.

The light man, Robert F. Maybaum, later told me: "You caused a scare. When you stood there looking at Dayan and reached into your pocket for your notebook, three Secret Service men reached into their pockets for their guns."

The talk at Sardi's is of the great fall season coming on. Such as shows as "Absurd Person Singular," "Equus," "Chicago," "Good News," "Miss Moffatt" and "Who's Who In Hell." (Bette Davis is reported to be in line for $15,000 a week plus for "Moffatt.") However, one Broadway cynic commented: "The greatest fall theater season we ever had any year was — every June."

Comedian Billy Baxter from England, one of the most talented funnymen, said at La Scala that he doesn't tell Nixon jokes ("I haven't got my papers yet")

But he sees nothing wrong with Henny Youngman's about Nixon dialing Dial-a-Prayer and Billy Graham hanging up on him... B'way's richest playwright Neil (Doc) Simon may move to Beverly Hills; his wife Marcia Mason will have a great movie career... Martha Mitchell greeted Carol Channing backstage at "Lorelei" with "We're both little girls from Little Rock."

Secret Stuff: "Good friends" are trying to break up the Elliott Gould - Jennifer O'Neill marriage plans... Las Vegas, though jammed, asks "Where are the high rollers?"... There was a heluva shakeup in "The Stepford Wives" movie in Connecticut with Paula Prentiss and Carole Mallory being rushed in to replace some departing beauties... Marty Allen and Connie Stevens and her show open at Nanuet July 2... "Pippin" is now near a $10 million gross... Phil Harris has become an Alice Faye fan. Saw "Good News" in San Fran 3 times.

Bill Chaikin, Avco Embassy's new boss, stopped at Stage Deli on his way to London with his predecessor Joe Levine where they'll set the premiere of Joe's "Nigh Porter." Joe wants the opening to benefit NIU Hospital because it took such good care of him... MGM's "Medical Center" starts its sixth year with Rita Moreno loving a defrocked priest... Twelve of the suites in Caesar's Palace 16-story addition will have swimming pools in the living rooms... Bravo: singer Robert Miano at Satyros... Angella Allegra, who dances at Roseland, will be seen in "Godfather II."

Show Biz Quiz: Name a dozen of Fred Astaire's movie dance partners. Ans. to yesterday's: Edgar Bergen's female dummy was Effie Klinker. I'D RATHER BE LIGHT Today's Best Laugh: "I visited a resort that looked like the travel folder — like it might fold up any minute."

Wish I'd Said That: A U.S. traveler says the Russian stewardesses are terrible; use a 4 letter word all the time: "Nyet."

Remembered Quote: For schools and legislatures both: Nothing succeeds like success. Earl's Pearls: It's remained the straight and narrow because it gets so little traffic. With Los Angeles finding that nude pictures in newspapers are legal now, there won't be any way to violate the law except to say a good word about New York City. That's earl, brother. Under Twenty

By KURT LASSEN
The crowd who had come to enjoy Who, at Madison Square Garden in New York, where yet unaware Golden Earring, was making it on the album charts, with their "Moontan."

Golden Earring is an exciting group from Holland and their gig spread excitement through the audience with a rhythmic, hard rock performance. At one point Cesar Zuiderwijk leaped over his bass drum, snare drums and cymbals, a mighty eight foot leap carrying him to the brink of the stage. The crowd went wild.

"Intense, intense," shouted one fan. Next day we talked to handsome Barry Hay, who plays flute, saxophone and handles the vocals with a passion and excitement. He was down, real down.

The sound system was a mess," he admitted. "It was about as bad as I've ever had before."

Those who have heard Golden Earring's album or their high flying single "Radar Love," would agree with Barry, although few could share his genuine disappointment at a performance that didn't come up to his standards, or those of the group.

There wasn't time to straighten it out. No way. Later today we're going over to see if we can't get some balance out of it. Imagine, thousands and thousands of dollars in all that equipment and I couldn't pick up the music to sing the way I should."

we'd pack it in, but we kept going. Larry brightened as he talked. "We fell in love the way you. Things are happening."

When they play, things do happen. "Cesar did that leap one night, we thought he'd break his neck." George will take his guitar and go through a series of contortions still managing to keep the melody and beat right on target. Barry keeps on his feet but makes things happen with his voice.

Barry was warming up now, thinking about tomorrows and trying to put the bad system out of his mind.

"When we go back to Holland, we're going to do a new album which we're probably going to call 'Up and Down Absurbia' or 'Up and Down Absurbity'." "George and I do most of the writing. I do the lyrics and he does the music. Then we get together with Rinus and Cesar and work it out. Sometimes they say we haven't got anything and other times they like it and we get to work putting our arrangement together. We've got quite a few numbers ready for the new album."

The new album is a must now, the more appearances of the Golden Earring in the 'United States, the greater their popularity and the greater the demand for their current album. They want to be ready and they want to reach top billing on the concert tour.

BIG GEORGE! Virgil Partch

Chronic Drinker Buys Good Will

This article is part of a series on "The Progression of Alcoholism" produced by the Alcoholism Council of San Fernando Valley, Calif. The stories are made available locally by the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation.

A Chinese proverb has it that "The man takes a drink, the drink takes a man and then drink takes the man."

How true — often tragically true — that is. But because this seemingly hopeless cry of despair can be accepted as a warning and does not have to proceed to frightful death or confinement, the Alcoholism Council has been formed.

An active branch is now at Highland General Hospital, Room B-12, 669-6111. Advice and assistance may be obtained about the killer disease of alcoholism.

In an effort to help keep the drinker from taking the drink and to "take the man from the drink," the Pampa News is printing a series of articles on progression toward chronic alcoholism. This article continues pointing up symptoms during the acute stage.

The problem drinker reaches the point where, once the first drink is taken he always winds up drunk. Guilt during a return to sobriety prompts excuses. He knows it is not his fault.

He often admits to himself he has become a drunk but he'll deny it to others. Self-esteem diminishes and he must devise ways to bolster his waning ego. This leads to extravagant behavior.

The chronic alcoholic needs to buy good will. Since he has learned to drunk to excess, his gestures to family or friends are bombastic. He may buy a set of luxurious furs for a wife whose dresses are shabby and who cannot

By JAMES R. QUINN
OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — A pioneering state program to prevent birth defects has unexpectedly reduced the number of abortions among women fearful that their unborn child might not be normal.

The program has provided many mothers with the peace of mind which comes with knowing her baby is normal," said Dr. James D. Eisen, director of Genetic and Birth Defects prevention programs at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

"It was an unexpected dividend that women who were going to have an abortion changed their minds when assured through our program that the baby was normal."

A major part of the two-year-old, state financed program is carried out at the center's genetics laboratory. Here, doctors using a process called amniocentesis can diagnose about 60 different genetic abnormalities in the fetus, Eisen said in an interview.

The process involves the withdrawal of amniotic fluid from the uterus of the expectant mother at about 12 to 16 weeks of pregnancy. Fetal cells are isolated from the fluid and then examined for suspected abnormalities.

Physicians refer pregnant women to the program if they have previously given birth to a genetically abnormal child or who have a family history of such disorders. The service also is provided to expectant women over 35 to rule out the possibility that their child might be mongoloid.

When an abnormal fetus is discovered, the parents are informed and the decision on a possible abortion is left up to them.

Eisen said the goal of the program is to prevent various types of birth defects. The scientists working in this effort look forward to the day when the defect is not only identified in the unborn child, but treatment can be administered.

"In this regard, there has been a minimal impact so far, but as the years go on there will be a significant impact," Eisen said.

afford visits to hairdressers. He will seek to see his children's eyes sparkle at a new television set while they are badly in need of dentistry or even proper food. The gift may be practical, such as the best washing machine available — which eventually is reclaimed for non-payment.

The drinker who abuses the use of alcohol feels that being a "big wheel" makes up for what his drinking is doing to others and himself. Liquor makes this man feel he really is somebody. He exults in the mere act of tipping a waiter, riding in taxis, dialing long distance. The elaborate buying of drinks "for everyone" in a bar is common.

Comes sobriety and he knows self-incrimination and self-punishment. He is aware what a "couple of drinks" has done to him. He sets about to "make it up" to others by denying and depriving himself.

Recipients of his generosity briefly appreciate his efforts. Some may take advantage.

But the end is revulsion at the simple and childish attempts to buy good will. Their reaction, their criticism, has to get through to the drinker who backlashes normally — a build of inner anger which smolders before eruption.

Aggression follows. The problem drinker becomes anti-social. His retaliation need not come in fights, brawls or abuse of his family. The alcoholic is noted for a tendency to develop resentments against person or objects entirely removed from those whom he believes has stirred up his ill-will.

Feeling deeply offended, the alcoholic too often strikes back by doing such things as kicking in the window of an innocent bystander or charging down a street slashing the tires on automobiles of strangers. Both have been done many times.

The drinker whose actions are less flamboyant is not less sick. Kicking dogs and throwing things are relatively just as violent.

Because of the intensity of his actions, the alcoholic at this stage seeks isolation. He will walk out on family, friends and employers, usually to avoid embarrassment at them deserting him.

His foolish and erratic behavior inevitably carries him into increased complications at home, at work, with friends, even with the law. Now the things he once merely regretted become objects to create depression. He feels that no matter what he does, everything turns out wrong. His best efforts are misunderstood by others.

With increasing regularity, he starts out with great expectations and abandons them because another "drunk" gets in the way.

Remorse is a constant companion of all problem drinkers. Why? Why? He keeps asking that and: Why him? Why can't he drink like other people?

Always, he finds his answer. It is not him. The world has handed him a bum trap in spite of the fact he always has "done his best." The answer also lies, he tells himself, in seeking blessed relief in a few hours boozed up. They are hours not to only enjoy, but to suffer and endure. Oblivion, for the time blots out all the troubles and worries. He keeps trying, always with the same results.

Unpleasant picture. But there is much more for the alcoholic to undergo even before he reaches the chronic stage.
