John Connally Off On 15-Nation Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon dispatched Treasury Secretary John B. Connally off on a round-the-world mission today then went back to work at the White House.

The chief executive came home Monday after a rainy three-day Florida vacation which in turn had followed the Soviet summit trip and a report to Congress on his historic arms limitation agreements with the Russians.

Nixon looked more rested than when he traveled to Florida Friday afternoon, but told reporters he could have used more time off.

It was disclosed in Florida that the President will not make any more foreign trips for the remainder of this election year.

While he planned to stay at home, however, the President sent Connally off on a month-long trip starting in South America. In all, Connally will talk to leaders of 15 countries in the Far East, South Asia and Europe, as well as South America, about international economic and political problems.

And on Friday, national security adviser Henry Kissinger will depart for a three-day visit to Japan to meet with top leaders there.

Nixon's only business appointment during the Florida stay was a three-hour session with Kissinger and Connally to discuss their forthcoming travels.

With the Republican convention little more than two months away, President Nixon has stoked speculation about his 1972 running mate by sending John Connally around the world.

Indications from the White House that Connally might also be explaining to world leaders the President's Peking and Moscow trips add to the importance of the trip and to the outgoing Treasury secretary's stature as bearer of such news.

This is the kind of mission traditionally handled by a vice president if not a secretary of state. The Washington rumor mills have Connally available for either post if Nixon is re-elected. Regardless, the trip will give Connally public exposure in the foreign-policy arena. Among his stops will be South Vietnam.

Nixon's announcement Monday that Connally will represent him on a 15-nation tour beginning today came a day after another key Republican said it is possible a Democrat, such as Connally, could get the GOP vice-presidential nomination.

House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said Sunday in a radio interview that he disagrees with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's assertion that a Democrat on the

JOHN CONNALLY

GOP ticket in his place would be inconceivable.

With the time of decision drawing near, Nixon has never said whether he will keep Agnew as his vice president, and Connally has not definitely been taken out of the picture.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said in Key Biscayne, Fla., that Connally will be ready to take up "any subject which his hosts wish to raise," including Nixon's trips to China and the Soviet Union.

The complete itinerary has not been announced. Connally's first stops will be in Venezuela, Colombia, Brazil, Argentina, Bolivia and Peru. To follow will be visits to South Vietnam, Australia, Singapore and New Zealand.

Welfare Cost Down In January

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's welfare costs dipped in January for the fifth time in six months, although 60,000 more persons joined relief rolls, according to government figures released today.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said unexpectedly lower costs for providing medical care to the poor resulted in the $12.4-million decrease from the previous month.

Cash payments in January rose nearly $1.7 million for a total monthly welfare bill of $1.54 billion.

Previous monthly welfare-cost decreases of $15 million in August, $10 million in September, $19 million in November and $1.3 million in December were more than offset, however, by a $100-million hike in October.

Welfare rolls were expanded in January, latest month for which figures are available, by addition of 43,000 persons receiving aid to families with dependent children—AFDC—11,000 in the disabled category and another 11,000 receiving nonfederal general assistance.

The expanding AFDC program also came in for review on Capitol Hill Monday when the Senate Finance Committee tentatively adopted a new federal-state financing plan with emphasis on keeping down the number of AFDC recipients.

When combined with changes in three adult welfare programs—the aged, blind and disabled—the plan would save the states $5 billion through 1974, said committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La.

Jets Sink Over 100 Red Boats

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers knocked out more than 100 supply boats Monday in the most damaging attack on North Vietnam's inland waterways since the resumption of full-scale bombing two months ago, the U.S. Command said today.

U.S. officials said that with its harbors mined, its two railroads to China cut and much of its highway system severed, Hanoi was turning more to small craft and barges to move supplies. But one senior U.S. official said America's air forces were successfully countering this.

The biggest kill was claimed by Navy pilots from the carrier Coral Sea, who reported destroying or damaging 69 water craft. Most were caught on the Song Ca River and tributaries two miles from the coast near the city of Vinh, a major transshipment point 160 miles south of Hanoi and 145 miles above the demilitarized zone.

The U.S. Command said more than 220 strikes were flown across North Vietnam Monday.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon command said government troops and supporting U.S. planes continued to battle North Vietnamese troops holding out in the northern part of Kontum in the central highlands.

VEE Can Be Prevented, Says Expert

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says laboratory tests have proved horses can be protected fully from Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis (VEE) by using full-strength vaccine.

Officials of the Agricultural Research Service said tests were conducted by veterinary scientists who used the "recommended level" of VEE vaccine. Ten vaccinated horses were exposed to VEE viruses two weeks later and showed no sign of the illness, the department said.

Anti-Pollution Autos To Cost Consumer More

BALTIMORE (AP) — Consumers will pay $260 more for 1975 autos because of required pollution control equipment which will not significantly reduce exhaust emissions, a General Motors engineer claims.

Gary W. Dickinson, of the firm's environmental activities staff, told area GM dealers at a meeting Monday that auto makers achieved an 80 per cent reduction in hydrocarbons and a 70 per cent reduction in carbon monoxide emission through improvements between 1967 and 1972.

Reminiscences Of D-Day That Marks 28th Anniversary Today

By LARRY HOLLIS

Today is June 6—a day many Americans remember as D-Day, when the Allies launched a massive invasion against Nazi-controlled Europe in 1944.

The announcement of the "great crusade" of the Allied forces against Germany created an atmosphere of calm happiness among residents of Pampa, clouded with the knowledge that the battle would also bring many deaths.

According to a story in the June 6, 1944, issue of The Pampa News, and hours of listening to radio broadcasts, Pampans generally took the situation calmly. "The News reported. Many were worried about relatives and friends who were involved in the battle. Some had already lost loved ones; others were to feel the pangs of another's death for the first time.

Most, if not all, seemed glad to hear of the invasion, but they were concerned about the effects of battle upon the fighting men, many of them only "boys."

The first report of the news found most of the residents asleep. As the news of the invasion spread, lights flickered on, and many persons inquired at The News and at the radio station (KPDN) as to what it all meant, or if the

HUD Says City Plan OK If PRPC Also Approves

By TEX DEWEESE
Pampa's $35,000 three-year-old Comprehensive Plan today was halfway over the hump in getting approval of the U.S. Housing and Urban Development agency and the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

Halfway means HUD has agreed to accept the plan if it also gets an okay from the PRPC.

City Manager Mack Wofford and City Commissioner R.D. Wilkerson met in Amarillo last Friday with two representatives of the HUD Review Board from Dallas and Ernest Clark, PRPC executive director.

Wofford, who has been out of the city until today, said this forenoon the Pampa plan was presented to the Review Board with a request it be accepted, inasmuch as Pampa already had spent $35,000 to have it prepared.

The city manager said HUD's agreement came with the reservation that final federal approval hinges on PRPC's acceptance.

The Regional Planning Commission Board is expected to meet soon to decide if the Pampa Plan fits into PRPC's regional comprehensive plan. Pampa is not yet a member of PRPC. Whether Pampa becomes a member could have some bearing on the PRPC decision.

Gray County commissioners recently joined the regional planning group after a 4-1 vote with Commissioner Don Hinton dissenting.

Wofford said that in order for Pampa to receive any kind of federal aid, application must be made through PRPC before HUD will review it.

The city manager said PRPC does not yet require a city to be a member of the regional planning group in order to have an application reviewed by its board.

However, he said, there is some question about spending other PRPC member cities' money for reviewing requests of non-members.

He stated that beginning June 30 this year, HUD will require an application for federal funds must meet three requirements.

The first two provided by a regional planning commission. The group must represent 75 per cent of the population in its region and it must review applications from all entities in its area whether members or non-members.

It also will be required that cities making application for funds must have functional plans for water, sewer, storm sewer and open space land use.

The city manager said Pampa has not been pressured to join PRPC, the regional plan group officials have been cooperative and he believes Pampa will get PRPC approval of its plan.

Senator Predicts Wins In Four Primaries Today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California holds its crucial Democratic presidential primary today with Sen. George McGovern the strong favorite to capture the state's 271 delegates.

New Jersey, New Mexico and South Dakota also are holding presidential primaries. The South Dakota Democrat expects to take a majority of the 144 delegates in those states.

"I'm going to predict here this afternoon we'll win all four of the primaries," McGovern told several thousand cheering supporters in Albuquerque, N.M., Monday before flying to Houston, Tex., to confer with Democratic governors.

Success in the four primaries could shoot McGovern's delegate total past the 850 mark—1,509 are needed to nominate—and virtually end Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's hopes of winning the Democratic nomination for the second time.

If Humphrey defeats McGovern in California, however, McGovern's surge toward the nomination would be halted and the presidential race would be thrown wide open with Humphrey as the new front runner. Both men have predicted the California winner will capture the nomination.

Besides the presidential primaries, voters in Montana and Mississippi are choosing candidates for state and congressional posts. Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., James O. Eastland, D-Miss., and Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., are all expected to win re-nomination.

After today's four presidential primaries, only one will remain—in New York, which will elect 238 of its 278 delegates on June 20. McGovern, virtually unopposed in more than one dozen New York congressional districts, expects to win at least 200 delegates there.

As two weeks of hectic California campaigning wound down Monday, McGovern made final stops in Los Angeles and San Diego before flying to Albuquerque and Houston.

He described a two-hour mid-night meeting with 22 Democratic governors in Houston as "enormously beneficial." He said he compromised none of his stands on controversial issues but promised to oppose "frivolous" challenges to delegates at the party's national convention.

Humphrey, meanwhile, covering California from Oakland to Los Angeles to San Diego, assailed McGovern's decision to go to New Mexico and Texas.

"I think he should be here in California and not take these voters for granted," the Minnesota senator said.

Referring to the inability of the two camps to work out arrangements for a fourth televised debate, Humphrey said, "If he wants to take a powder, that's all right. But I wanted to talk to him about some things."

He said his own polls show his support coming up and received a last-day boost when Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, one of the eight Democrats on the California ballot, urged his backers to vote for Humphrey. Polls show Yorty with about 1 per cent.

Republicans are also holding presidential primaries in the four states today. The only question is how many California Republicans will back conservative Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, who is challenging President Nixon in the California GOP primary.

In the presidential primaries, this is the situation:

CALIFORNIA — All 271 delegates will go to the top man in the statewide Democratic presidential preference vote. Besides McGovern and Humphrey, six other candidates are on the ballot and a write-in campaign could put Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace into third place.

Out-financed and out-organized in the nation's biggest state, Humphrey based his campaign on sharp criticism of

GEORGE MCGOVERN

McGovern's proposal for a $32 billion defense spending cut, a $1,000 "income supplement" for everyone to replace the welfare system and, in the closing days, his civil rights record.

McGovern, hitting Humphrey hard for supporting U.S. involvement in Vietnam while vice president, spent most of the campaign defending his proposals while pledging to create full employment and warning "the American people will not stand for a rerun in 1972 of the choice they had in 1968."

Besides McGovern, Humphrey and Yorty, the ballot lists Sens. Edmund S. Muskie and Henry M. Jackson, New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, Rep. Shirley Chisholm and former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, who threw his support to McGovern.

NEW JERSEY — Rep. Chisholm and former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina are the only entrants in the presidential preference contest. The real race is for 109 delegates, seven being elected at large and the rest divided among the states' 21 counties.

Humphrey, with support from organized labor and party regulars, was rated the early favorite. McGovern, however, out-organized and far outspent him, and aides predicted the South Dakota senator might capture up to two-thirds of the delegates.

Governors, McGovern Hold Talks

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — In a bid for party unity, presidential front runner George McGovern met with Democratic governors early today and said his campaign will be one of cooperation and reconciliation rather than divisiveness.

The South Dakota senator altered his campaign schedule and flew into this sprawling Southeast Texas city late Monday night for a meeting with the Democratic governors, most of whom have remained neutral or opposed to McGovern's candidacy.

When the meeting was over, most of the Southern chief executives were still voicing doubts or opposition to McGovern, claiming his candidacy would assure Southern strength for President Nixon and other GOP office-seekers in November.

But McGovern, whose liberal views on several issues have been an issue among Democratic governors attending the annual bipartisan National Governors' Conference here, apparently did not hurt his cause by showing up.

"I think it was good that he came," Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said in an interview. "The best point was just the fact that he left California and came here. It showed he was concerned."

Postal Commission Okays Mail Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Rate Commission has approved about $1.5 billion in increased mail rates, most of which have been in effect on a temporary basis since May 1971.

The effect for most mail users will be to make permanent the 8-cent cost of mailing a letter, and 11 cents for air-mail letters unless the Postal Service Board of Governors rejects the rate schedule, an action viewed as unlikely.

Nevertheless, the new rate proposals drew immediate criticism from magazine publishers and other mailers who use second-class rates on a broad scale.

The commission says it has substantially cut the temporary rates the partially-independent Postal Service proposed for the publishers and for users of the third-class mail.

Within 30 days the board of governors is expected to act on the proposals which the commission says will save publishers $21.8 million annually over the temporary rates. They expire in 30 days.

The commission replaces Congress as the rate-setting body under the 1970 Postal Reorganization Act, an attempt to put the service on its feet and end recurring deficits.

For second-class mail, the commission recommended a 1.6-cent-per-piece rate instead of the 1.9-cent cost put into effect by the Postal Service temporarily last year.

In New York, Andrew Heiskell, chairman of the board of Time, Inc., which publishes Time and Life magazines, said the new rates "will drive a number of magazines out of business, force others to cut circulation and therefore decrease the flow of information throughout the country."

The temporary rates by law expire 30 days after the Rate Commission issues its findings. The governors of the Postal Service have four alternatives. They can approve the commission's rates, reject them, modify them or permit them to go into effect under protest.

The commission's recommendations, if approved, are unlikely to benefit the average mail user except for postcards, which go from a 7-cent temporary rate to 6 cents under the permanent schedule.

Inconsistent Federal Plan On Energy Hit By Oilman

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) —

The chairman of the National Petroleum Council said today vast U.S. energy resources are not likely to be developed in the face of "confusing and inconsistent" government policies and poor economic conditions.

"The time has very definitely come when those in decision making positions must heed the danger signals as they rise before they pass beyond the point where correction becomes impossible," said H. A. True Jr. of Casper, Wyo.

True's remarks were prepared for delivery at the 26th annual convention of the Texas

Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association.

"Since the 1950s, the growth rate for domestic petroleum production has slackened, while that for imports has increased," True said.

"As a result, incentives and prospective profitability for exploration and development of hydrocarbon resources in the U.S. have decreased."

True said that implicit in his statements is "the clear fact that an improved economic climate would encourage increased exploration for new reserves of oil and gas and increased recovery of oil and gas from known reserves."

Positive government action, he said, must be forthcoming, particularly in respect to the leasing of federal lands, environmental controls, health and safety, tax rates, research funding, natural gas price regulation and import policies.

Swimming Registration Ends Today

This is the last week of registration for swimming classes at the city pool, Mrs. Libby Shotwell, Red Cross secretary has announced.

Children may be registered for beginner, advanced beginner, intermediate and swimmer classes at the Red Cross office, City Hall. Mrs. Shotwell stated that pre-registration is necessary, as children cannot be enrolled at the pool the day classes begin, or after classes are underway.

The first session will be from June 19-30, second session, July 3-14, and third session, July 17-28.

Beginner, advanced beginner and intermediate classes will begin at 9 a.m. for all three sessions, and beginner, advanced beginner and swimmer classes will begin at 10 a.m.

Defense Department Decides To Study Feasibility Of Killer Satellite System

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Defense Department has decided to study the feasibility of a killer satellite system capable of intercepting, inspecting and destroying hostile space vehicles. The Soviet Union already has demonstrated this capability.

The Air Force space and missile systems organization in Los Angeles asked industry on May 26 to submit proposals on the system. At least three companies are expected to be selected to conduct competitive studies.

If defense officials decide on the basis of the studies to develop a satellite destroyer, it is believed subsystem testing could start next year, aiming for a test launch in 1975 or 1976.

If interceptor satellites are built, they would be able to fly alongside an alien spacecraft, determine its assignment and, if necessary, disable or destroy it. Destruction could be effected by some sort of a "death ray," perhaps a laser beam; by signals that would disrupt the payload's electronics, or by blowing up the American satellite, destroying both payloads.

Satellite explosion is the technique used by the Russians. Since 1968, the Soviets have successfully demonstrated their spacecraft killer system at least seven times, according to U.S.

Four Cities In Texas Reach Accord On 2 N-Power Plants

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A tentative agreement has been reached for a joint feasibility study of two nuclear power plants which would serve the Houston, Corpus Christi, Austin and San Antonio areas, it was disclosed here Monday.

J.T. Deely, general manager of San Antonio's City Public Service Board, said the utility is considering participating in continuing studies on such a project, which would cost about $902 million.

The joint venture agreement does not require a final commitment to proceed until November.

Deely said the others that would be involved in the project include Houston Lighting and Power; Corpus Christi's Central Power and Light; the City of Austin, and the Lower Colorado River Authority.

The group's tentative plans call for construction of one nuclear plant in South Texas by 1980, with a second to be completed in 1983.

In addition to the $902.9 million for construction of the two plants, costs for transmission lines and other facilities for the participating utilities are estimated at $55 million.

Deely said the San Antonio utility also is considering the possibility of building a nuclear power plant for this city. He said the Houston utility also plans to build and operate a separate plant to meet its own needs in addition to participating in the joint venture.

Deely said his utility is considering the project because natural gas "probably will not be available" as an alternative energy source after 1980.

Prowler Observed, Described

Police now have a description of the "Somerville Street Prowler" but missed picking him up last night.

A couple sitting in a car on North Somerville noticed a man cross a yard and peer into a lighted window of a house. After watching, he then walked south and they followed making contact and talking with him for a time.

According to the official police report, the couple said the man did not appear disturbed over what he had done. A search of the area was made but he was not found.

Police have concentrated their efforts on North Somerville for several nights trying to catch a prowler in the act after a number of reports confirmed by footprints at windows.

Two Students Of Pan Am U. Are Indicted

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — The defense took over questioning of prospective jurors today for the rape trial of two Pan American University basketball players.

Reese Stovall, 21, of San Antonio, and Leo Tolin, 22, of Detroit, Mich., were indicted March 2 by a Hidalgo County grand jury on a rape charge. Tolin was also indicted on a charge of assault with intent to rape.

Defense lawyer Craig Washington of Houston said he would intensely question the 36 prospective jurors qualified Monday by Hidalgo County Dist. Atty. Oscar McInnis.

McInnis said he believes testimony in the trial could get underway by sometime Tuesday afternoon. He has subpoenaed 15 witnesses and expects the trial to take about four days.

Judge Hester said he would make a ruling on the issue after listening to jury questioning. McInnis did not disqualify any of the 36 prospective jurors he questioned Monday. None of them said they had made up their minds about the case based on the publicity.

Stovall and Tolin, costless and wearing afro-style haircuts, appeared to doze from time to time as McInnis questioned the prospective jurors.

The 92nd District courtroom was about half filled Monday and a larger crowd is expected once testimony gets underway.

The two men, the team's leading scorers at the time of the indictment, are accused of raping a coed from Laredo.

Mrs. Onassis Pays 1st Visit To JFK Center

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Aristotle Onassis attended a performance of Leonard Bernstein's "Mass" at the John F. Kennedy Center Monday night and, her acquaintances said, liked both the opera house and the performance.

This was the former Mrs. Kennedy's first visit to the national cultural center which bears her husband's name, and her first viewing of the Bernstein composition which she asked him to compose for the opening of the Kennedy Center last Sept. 8.

Bernstein told a reporter after the performance that Mrs. Onassis seemed to like the work, but made no specific comment.

She entered the center, as do most visitors, through the Hall of Nations, a huge corridor hung with the flags of more than 100 countries, and turning a corner—saw for the first time a six-foot-high bust of her late husband, sculptured by Robert Berks.

Mrs. Roger L. Stevens, whose husband is chairman of the board of trustees of the center and who shared a box with Mrs. Onassis, said the former Mrs. Kennedy declined to comment on the bust.

Mrs. Onassis wended her way down the stairs at the opera house and went backstage after the performance to greet some of the members of the 200-person cast.

The widow of the 35th president had been expected to appear when the center opened last September, but she declined the invitation at the last minute on grounds that her appearance would arouse intense emotional excitement among the audience.

Angela Congratulated On Acquittal Of Charges

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer
SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Angela Davis has been deluged by hundreds of congratulatory telegrams and phone calls praising her acquittal. But she also has received about 20 death threats, a spokesman said.

The 29-year-old black Communist spent Monday swimming in nearly 100-degree heat, taking a sauna bath and discussing vacation plans, spokeswoman Stephanie Allan said.

The all-white jury of seven women and five men acquitted Miss Davis Sunday of murder, kidnap and conspiracy charges stemming from a 1970 courthouse escape attempt in which a judge and three others were killed.

Relaxing at her San Jose apartment on her first day of freedom in 22 months, the tall, attractive militant said she hadn't made any firm decision about the future.

Miss Allan said the telegrams of congratulations from across the nation and throughout the world far outnumbered the hate calls and death threats.

One telegram came from San Quentin inmate Fletta Drumgo, one of the two surviving Soledad Brothers.

Drumgo said: "Dear sister and comrade. Anticipated victory. Revolutionary love and solidarity."

During the 13-week trial, the prosecution contended that Miss Davis helped plot the courthouse escape try in hopes of freeing the man she loved—Soledad Brother George Jackson, who was killed last year during an alleged breakout attempt from San Quentin Prison.

Drumgo testified for the defense that he knew nothing of the plot to free the Soledad Brothers.

Communist leaders in France, Germany, Australia and Britain joined American Communist party officials Henry Winston and Gus Hall in cheering Miss Davis by telegram.

U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug of New York City sent congratulations, saying: "Your strength and courage through this ordeal has been an inspiration."

The Italian town of Reggio Meilia, which named Miss

Davis an honorary citizen during her stint in jail, cabled congratulations in Italian which her defense committee was still hoping to translate.

Seal-Coating Program Set

Pampa's 1972 mini seal-coating program is expected to start tomorrow or Thursday. City Manager Mack Wofford said today.

This summer's project, about one-tenth of the usual annual resurfacing program, will cost the city $4,542.

It will cover Kentucky Ave from the west city limits east to Lefors St. and Comanche St. from Washita Drive to Kiowa Place.

The work will be done by G.W. James, Pampa contractor, who was low bidder.

PLEASANT DISTRACTION—Amid the hot sun and Texas dust, Dallas model Neil Farmer provides a pleasant distraction to the men of the 72nd Infantry Brigade (Mechanized) of the Texas National Guard. The guardsmen are now engaged in their two-week Annual Training at North Fort Hood, Texas. Over 5,000 guardsmen and Army Reservists are participating in the field training that will run through June 11.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

A Painting Worth $4,583,800

LONDON (AP) — Everyone knows that money can't buy everything, but try and prove it. Britain's National Gallery, one of the world's great museums, is about to do just that.

J. Paul Getty bought a painting here last year that a member of the British royal family could no longer afford to keep. Now Getty will not be allowed to keep it either. The gallery is going to stop him. By appealing to the man in the street, it has just about raised what's needed to match billionaire Getty's price—1,763,000 pounds or $4,583,800.

The gallery has less than $39,000 to go in order to make sure the Titian masterpiece "The Death of Actaeon" stays in Britain, in its permanent collection. Instead of going to the United States. Even by the most pessimistic estimate, all the money should be in hand by July.

The success of the appeal defies all expectations. Never before had anyone in Britain sought so much money just to keep one picture—in this case a Greek myth painted by an Italian master for a Spanish king. The Titian was no more British than spaghetti. But the fact it had been held in this country by aristocratic families was enough to make it a matter of national pride.

Behind the successful appeal is a textbook case in that relatively obscure field of international competition—the politics of art—involving some fancy footwork by governments, museums and dealers.

The Earl of Harewood, pronounced Harwood, a cousin of Queen Elizabeth II and 18th in line for the British throne, put the Titian up for sale at an auction last June.

At the time Lord Harewood's family still owned some $2 million in death duties from the estate of his mother, the former Princess Royal. Inheritance taxes in Britain rise to a whopping 85 per cent, often forcing rich heirs to sell art treasures to pay them off.

In effect, the tax policy was benefitting government coffers and forcing the sale of valuable paintings. American museums could usually outbid the British at auctions. This happened when British owners sold the Velazquez portrait of Juan de Pareja in 1970. New York dealers paid a world record price of $5,544,000. The painting went to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City.

The British government refused gallery entreaties to buy it back. For the same price, the government said, it could air-condition the National Gallery, build a new wing, and have almost $3 million left over. Besides there were greater priorities for the government funds in health, education and other programs.

The Titian was expected to exceed the price paid for the Velazquez. Experts said it would almost certainly go to America.

Despite the odds, the National Gallery was determined to have the Titian, which it had displayed for 10 years on loan from Lord Harewood. An appeal for funds went out even before the auction.

Much to the surprise of the art world, the Titian fell well short of a record price. One reason was some subtle but legal tactics by French and Co., the American art dealers acting for Getty's museum in Malibu, Calif.

Only French and the London-based American dealer, Julius Weitzner, were left in the bidding. To continue the auction would have forced a far higher price. So French stopped Weitzner from bidding.

Then French purchased it directly from Weitzner at his price, plus a commission, saving the funds that would have gone into higher auction bids. Weitzner later contributed part of his commission to the National Gallery appeal.

As soon as Getty was revealed as the new owner, the curator of his museum in Malibu, Burton Frederickson, offered to lend the Titian back to the gallery, if they would lend comparable works to the Getty museum. "The National Gallery has enough in its basement to match the displays of many an American museum," Frederickson said.

The gallery refused, preferring not to risk shipping the Titian back and forth across the Atlantic. Then Getty lent the Titian to the gallery anyway for the course of its yearlong appeal.

Cynics noted that Getty now lives outside London, in suburban Surrey. But the gallery found his offer generous, and accepted.

When the fund drive began, however, gallery publicity made no mention of Getty's intention to lend the Titian for part of the year anyway. Instead it presented the prospect of an irretrievable loss to the British art world. "A major disaster."

"The highest degree of national importance attaches to this painting," it said.

The 260,000 people who have seen the Titian at the National Gallery during the appeal have dropped about $100 a day into collection boxes there, and the occasional fat check. Now that the tourist season is under way, American dollars are more frequent than British pounds.

Usually, the talk in the gallery's boardroom, where the Titian is displayed under spotlights, is all money and very little art. Attendants there are constantly asked the total raised and the mechanics of the export license, withheld for 12 months to let the gallery try and match Getty's price.

A father explained to his young son how much the painting cost. The boy wanted to know if that included the frame.

Getty is philosophical about the whole business.

"To be honest, it is not a picture I would care to live with," he told a newsmen. "Who would want to start the day by looking at a picture of a man changed into a deer and then eaten by hounds?"

Primaries Cost State $2,001,124

AUSTIN (AP) — Secretary of State Bob Bullock reported Monday the May 6 and June 3 primary elections cost the state $2,001,124, or $300,000 to $400,000 more than the original estimate.

Bullock said election costs could be reduced by at least one-third if Democrats and Republicans voted at the same places.

He attributed the higher than expected costs to a large voter turnout, a $2 an hour pay scale for almost all election workers and the additional polling places to handle the crowds.

Bullock said future primary elections should be financed by county clerks' offices.

Republicans Blamed

HOUSTON (AP) — Democratic governors blamed Republicans Monday for many of today's farm problems and asked the Democratic nominee for president to pick a farmer as the next secretary of agriculture.

Windfalls Pose Tax Problems

By CARLTON SMITH

A tax accountant named Mike Cunningham recently met with four people who were groaning, holding their heads and moaning. "Oh, what do I do now?" Real problems, they had.

Three of them had just won $50,000 (each) in the Massachusetts state lottery. The fourth, poor guy, had this really terrible problem. He was an assembly line worker in an auto plant who'd just won a million—$50,000 a year for the next 20 years.

You may find it difficult to sympathize with these four victims of ill fortune, and even wish some of the same for yourself. But as the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants points out, the tax problems that member Mike Cunningham was dealing with are magnified examples of what happens to anyone when his income takes a substantial jump during a given tax year. It shows up in the family tax return, as one example, when a wife goes back to work after the children are in school, and taxable income suddenly increases 50 to 100 per cent.

On a different scale, the problems of the lottery winners are those of any taxpayer faced with a suddenly large bite by Uncle, which usually comes as a surprise and a shock, unprepared for. And the remedies are very much the same as those suggested to the Massachusetts winners.

Cunningham is a member of a volunteer advisory group, set up at the request of lottery officials, to help these unfortunates with the tax, legal and investment problems they acquire when thousands of dollars are dumped into their unsuspecting laps.

The most frequent advice given by CPAs on the panel, says the AICPA, is to use income averaging. To simplify a fairly complicated procedure, you're allowed to lump this year's high income with that of the past four years, and divide by five. That will increase the past years' taxes, but the net savings can be as much as $5,000 or $6,000.

Many taxpayers seem to believe that putting their windfall into tax-exempt bonds will afford a tax shelter. Not so. Once the money has been received as income, it's taxable — period, paragraph. Investing it in tax-exempts only frees from subsequent taxes the income earned on the investment.

One thing suggested to the grief-stricken lottery winners — and applicable to any taxpayer with a jump in income — is to prepay local taxes. Pay your state and/or city income tax before the end of the year, and you have a deductible expense on your federal return in the year of high income.

Other suggestions were to anticipate medical or dental work and expenses. Pay the bills and take the deductions in the year of high income. Likewise any charitable contributions you may feel moved to make.

It all goes to show how perilous life is. You can be sitting there, happy as a clam, only worrying about making the mortgage payment, and the car payment, and hooking the silverware to get some hamburger from the butcher — the usual things. Then all of a sudden you win a lottery, or your rich uncle leaves you half a million, or you find a satchel of money in the street.

Just to remind you of how things are these days, you can't even avoid the tax problems by giving it away. You've had it as income. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Physician Says Paraplegics Can Lead Busy Lives

By DAVID HENDIN
NEA Science Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Even if his physicians' worst fears come to pass and Gov. George Wallace becomes a permanent paraplegic, there is no reason to believe his political prognosis must be as grim as the medical one appears to be.

"The outlook cannot be predicted, but it is not favorable. It would be unusual to get complete recovery under these circumstances," said Dr. James Galbraith, head of the University of Alabama's Neurological Department and a member of the surgical team that operated on Wallace after a would-be assassin shot five low-caliber bullets into the candidate's midsection.

Physicians say that two of the bullets caused serious damage. All of them were removed except for one, which was lodged dangerously close to his spine. The injuries caused by this bullet were being blamed for a paralysis of Wallace's lower extremities.

Wallace suffered other wounds in the abdominal area. But the primary concern remains the possibility of permanent paralysis from the waist down, a condition known as paraplegia.

One of the surgeons attending the Alabama governor, Dr. Joseph Shanno, voiced early hope that Wallace would make a full recovery. He added, however, "If worst, you could say he would have the same disability as Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Although FDR was confined to a wheelchair for a number of years, his disability was due to polio. His legs were paralyzed, but he had feeling in them.

In paraplegia not only are the legs paralyzed, but there is no feeling in them, explains Dr. Howard A. Rusk, a pioneer in rehabilitative medicine and director of New York University's famed Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine (IRM), the largest such center in the country.

It is difficult, Rusk says, for physicians to determine the seriousness of Wallace's condition because when the spinal cord is injured there is an initial swelling process. The swelling, which is one of the body's first steps toward healing, "shows the same symptoms as lesions, or actual injuries to the spinal cord. If severed, nerve tissues, such as those the spinal cord is made of, do not heal.

The spinal cord is a bundle of nerves going from the brain to the muscles, skin and internal organs. It can be compared to an electric conduit which connects the power station with the lights

'One tends to get so involved in his work that he pays no attention to the disability' in your home. If the conduit is cut the lights do not work. If the spinal cord is cut, parts of the body below the injury are separated from their connections with the brain.

If there is no permanent damage to the cord itself, and "if there is minimal swelling, there may be improvement quite early. But we have seen improvement go on not only for days and weeks but for months," Rusk explains.

It is estimated that there are 100,000 paraplegics and quadriplegics (all four limbs paralyzed) in the United States, and there are some 10,000 new cases each year. Most come from traumatic injuries associated with sports, automobile, diving or similar accidents.

Today, however, the paraplegic and quadriplegic can lead next-to-normal lives in literally every way.

"Fifteen years ago," Rusk says, "if you got 10 to 15 per cent of them back into some kind of life you thought you were doing pretty well."

But in a recent follow-up study of 141 paraplegic and quadriplegic patients treated at IRM in the last three years, 83 per cent were found to be back at school or at work in gainful occupations.

"Prior to antibiotics and newer surgical techniques, bladder, kidney and skin care, the prognosis for life expectancy in the spinal cord-injured patient was very low," Rusk says.

Today, however, the life expectancy of the person with such injuries is within two years of normal—an average lifespan for quadriplegics and paraplegics of 70 years.

With proper rehabilitation they can learn to meet all the needs of daily living. They can drive their own car, with hand controls, type, shave, bathe and work office machines.

Over the years the Institute for Rehabilitation Medicine has had scores of lawyers, executives and doctors as patients, and today they are all living full, active lives.

Indeed, today there are quadriplegics and paraplegics active in high government circles.

Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Alan Reich is a quadriplegic who broke his neck in a diving accident in 1962. At the time he was an executive with the Polaroid Corp. Today, he says from his office in the State Department, "One tends to get so involved in his work that he pays no attention to the disability."

Reich drives to work every day and goes to his office by wheelchair via an elevator.

"Doing a lot of flying in a wheelchair is a little bit awkward and cumbersome, particularly when it involves overnight travel, but the airlines have been terrific," he says.

Lyman Kirkpatrick, former executive officer of the CIA, is another quadriplegic, confined to his wheelchair because of a serious case of polio. Today Kirkpatrick is professor of political science at Brown University. He is now on sabbatical leave, but instead of vacationing he has taken the Chester W. Nimitz Chair of National Security and Foreign Affairs at the Naval War College.

Another active and well-known quadriplegic is former Brooklyn Dodger catcher Roy Campanella. After the accident that disabled him, Campanella has led a full life coaching baseball, doing his own radio program, charity work and raising his family.

"In the paraplegic with no complications our average training time to get to an ability to meet all needs of daily living is about 120 days," Rusk explains.

As far as recreation, the paraplegic is certainly limited by the fact that he cannot use his legs. But he can drive, shoot archery, bowl and even play basketball. The annual Para-Olympics also has shot putting and javelin throwing as events and they are "very hot and spirited games," say witnesses.

Neither is mental function affected by the paralyzing conditions. Once a person injured permanently in this way accepts his condition the battle is all but won, Dr. Rusk says.

"In my opinion," he adds, "once a person comes through and is rehabilitated his mental stability is strengthened."

"They have a depth of spirit that many of them didn't previously possess."

KEEPS MONEY AT HOME
BALTIMORE (AP)—Mayor William Donald Schaefer wants his department heads to hire city residents for city jobs.

"Giving preference to city residents, as long as they are qualified, makes good sense," the mayor said. "We retain their salaries in the city and thus increase our tax base."

About $85 million of the city payroll now goes to persons living outside the city limits.

Demo Presidential Contenders Asked To Settle Delegate Challenge Issue

HOUSTON (AP)—Democratic state governors, worried that their party's national convention may again dissolve into chaos, asked major presidential candidates Monday to settle most of their proliferating delegate challenges informally and quickly.

Some saw the surprise request as aimed at Sen. George McGovern, who headed here from election-eve primary campaigning in California and New Mexico to meet with the governors. They are assembled for the bipartisan National Governors Conference.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey had planned to arrive Wednesday but supporters urged him to move the trip up a day after the delegate matters surfaced.

What worries the governors is that roughly 500 Democratic convention delegates are being challenged, mostly by McGovern supporters. This is roughly half those chosen so far.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, who engineered the delegate peace mission, said unless the trend is halted, some delegates in nearly every state will face challenges.

"If the pace continues this way, almost every member of the credentials committee will come from a delegation that's being challenged," Shapp said. "We want to get some order out of chaos."

Shapp said the party reforms that sprang from the riotous 1968 Democratic Convention in Chicago may have gone so far and fast that next month's Miami convention also will be a mess.

Even some governors don't know how to interpret or apply new rules requiring more women, blacks and young people among the delegates, he said.

"This is not going to be a controlled convention," Shapp said. "I've started saying that we ought to change the name of our party to the 'Demo-chaotic party,'" he said.

Shapp and three other governors were appointed as an informal committee of the Democratic Governors Caucus to approach candidates McGovern, Humphrey, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama and possibly others.

Their aim is to get the candidates to agree among themselves on how to dispose of as many of the challenges as possible, especially those charging relatively minor violations of rules, and to recommend solutions jointly to the credentials committee that will decide whether or not the challenged delegates are allowed to sit.

Gov. Patrick Lucey of Wisconsin, a McGovern supporter who agreed reluctantly to serve on the four-man committee, said he thinks it's superfluous.

But even Lucey said he worries about the large number of delegate challenges. He said they won't cause chaos but could swamp the credentials committee and delay the start of convention business.

Outdoor Book Sale Set For June 10 In Amarillo

The Annual Outdoor Book Sale sponsored by the Friends of the Amarillo Library will be held all day Saturday, June 10, beginning at 8 a.m. in the alleyway and paved parking area behind the Mary E. Bivins Memorial Library building at 10th and Polk in Amarillo.

Mrs. Louis Finney is sale chairman. President of the Friends is Mrs. William Klingensmith.

On hand by June 1, according to Mrs. Marie Loyd, order department head at the library, were 6,758 hardback books, 27 boxes of paperbacks, 30 boxes of magazines and 11 boxes of records.

All have been donated during the past year for the sale. Prices will range from 5 cents up.

This is the 13th year for a Friends Used Books Sale. The 1971 sale netted $2058.24, a record.

Proceeds go for a scholarship fund for library staff members to work on a professional library degree, for brochures, equipment, and additions to special library services such as checkout reproductions of framed paintings.

A new feature this year will be a 1 p.m. auction sale of more valuable books and others of special interest. Until that time, they may be examined in the adult education office on the second floor of the library.

The Friends of the Amarillo Library have announced plans to have a rare book auction; their annual Outdoor Book Sale.

The auction, which will feature rare books on Western history, will be held outside the Mary E. Bivins Memorial Library at 10th and Polk, Amarillo, at 1 p.m. on June 10.

In addition to editions of Western Americana, there will be other scarce and rare editions dating back to 1847 and a number of books autographed by the authors.

New Books In The Library

McGovern-Robert Sam Anson: far from being a routine politician, this book marks him as an important figure on the landscape of American politics.

Monday the Rabbi Took Off-Harry Kemelman: the Rabbi has gone to Israel to soak up the atmosphere-sit in the park, talk to the kids, go to the synagogue, or-not, as the mood strikes him.

A Science-Fiction Argosy-Edited by Damon Knight: an anthology of 24 of the best stories and two full-length classic novels.

Death in a Sunny Place-Richard Lockridge: Enid finds herself drawn into the shadow of something she doesn't understand, as she begins to fear she is being stalked by a killer who dispenses death in a sunny place.

From Sphinx to Christ-Edouard Schure: an occult history.

Squaw Point-R.H. Shimer: seal hunts, the fogs and wild storms of Alaska, the handful of people who have learned to live the hard way in a demanding climate are skillfully combined with a most unusual love story.

Two Litt: Rich Girls-Mignon G. Eberhart: the setting is East Side Manhattan's snug, conservative world of inherited wealth, and as tension mounts, it is only in the hair-raising climax that the identity of the murderer is revealed.

A Girl Named Sooner-Suzanne Clauser: a moving, realistic story about a little girl, and how her devotion to a hurt animal attracted the attention of a lonely veterinarian and his wife.

The Phone Calls-Lillian O'Donnell: once it became apparent to the police that there was an obvious connection between the deaths and the obscene phone calls, Homicide began an intensive investigation to clear up the cases.

The Many Mansions of Sam Peoples-Howard McMillin: a novel with a new twist.

There were 1,749 daily newspapers in the United States in 1971.

Sen. Bentsen Airs Views On Crime

By SEN. LLOYD BENTSEN
Supreme Court Decisions
The U.S. Supreme Court handed down two decisions last week that are being widely interpreted as evidence that the Court has changed some attitudes toward crime and the effectiveness of our court system.

In the first decision, the Court ruled that jury verdicts do not need to be unanimous in criminal cases.

The second decision compels witnesses to testify before grand juries.

In the jury decision, the Supreme Court upheld—by 5 to 4 majority—state law requiring only a 9-3 or 10-2 jury vote to conviction criminal cases.

In the decision on immunity, the Court ruled that criminal suspects who are compelled to testify before grand juries are not entitled to absolute immunity from future prosecution.

Concern About Crime Rate Along with many Americans concerned about growing crime rates, I have long felt that U.S. courts are not as effective as they need to be to deal with the crime situation our country faces. Criminals have been released on legal technicalities. Court dockets are jammed. Justice is meted out at a snail's pace.

In our society it is important that we protect the Constitutional rights of persons accused of crimes.

It is just as important that we protect the rights of victims of crimes.

It is important that our courts provide justice.

One of the Supreme Court Justices who dissented in the decision involving non-unanimous jury verdicts said the majority had discarded "Two centuries of American history."

By the same token, though, it can be argued that the Court discarded tradition many times during the past decade. On many occasions throughout the 1960's many citizens have felt that the Supreme Court set tradition aside to write new protections for criminal defendants into the Constitution.

And, this seems to have been done in pursuit of abstract conceptions of criminal rights, rather than from any feeling that actual miscarriages of justice were common. There were few cases in which Supreme Court decisions freed innocent men during the 1960's. Rather, many of their decisions freed men who were guilty—including some who had admitted guilt—but who had not been convicted according to the rules.

A wide cross-section of America has given notice of concern about the apparent ineffectiveness of our courts in dealing with crime.

And the notion that compelled testimony doesn't necessarily confer ironclad immunity from later prosecution was written into law by the Congress in 1970.

Graham Purcell Lauds Legislation On Drugs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Representative Graham Purcell had strong words of praise this week for legislation favorably reported by his postal facilities subcommittee.

In a measure designed to assist the federal government and individual American families in the fight to control the traffic of narcotics and dangerous drugs, Purcell's subcommittee of the House Post Office Committee approved a bill to allow parents, guardians and public officials to send samples by mail of any substance believed to be a drug to federal law enforcement officials for thorough and anonymous analysis.

Present law flatly prohibits the sending of dangerous drugs through the mail.

According to Purcell, who commented immediately after the subcommittee's action, "Those members who joined me in supporting this limited exception to the present law did so for the purpose of giving the family a chance to handle any potential or real drug problem that may arise before it gets to the point where it involves the police and the community at large."

"Parents today need facts to replace the fears and suspicions that grow when substances thought to be drugs are found by worried parents on the person or in the belongings of children. Already too many families have been wrecked unnecessarily by suspicions unsupported by facts," he said.

Under provisions included in the bill, law enforcement agencies will be able to provide anonymous reports as to whether a sample of a substance mailed to them is a dangerous drug or narcotic. A parent or other individual would simply mail to a government facility a sample marked by a six digit code number, thus preserving anonymity.

Some time later the parent could telephone the agency, identifying themselves by referring to the code number and date, to be advised of the results of the analysis.

"In order to aly any public concern that this program might be misused," Purcell said, "the subcommittee enlisted the support of law enforcement officials throughout the entire country. The word we heard again and again in favor of such a program was that parents are generally reluctant to turn to local law enforcement agencies for the proper information they need due to the groundless fear that they would be 'turning in' their children."

"This seems particularly true in low income areas of the country where distrust of law enforcement agencies and officers seems most prevalent. Although in most instances this distrust is groundless it nevertheless exists and can only be effectively dealt with by sound, constructive, and realistic measures such as this," he added.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

Thomas Jefferson really gives the main reason why I launched this "Worry Clinic" column: For now I have an estimated 50,000,000 "students" in contrast to 300 each semester in my classes at Northwestern University. Note Shakespeare's comment, too!

CASE U-502: Thomas Jefferson was one of our most brilliant Founding Fathers.

One day he was requested to make a crucial decision.

"Suppose," he was asked, "we had to give up either our schools or our newspapers, which would you surrender?" Jefferson didn't take but a moment to reply.

"I'd keep the newspapers," he stated, positively.

And you can see why, for people would still learn to read and write without our expensive public schools.

George Washington thus received his superb education from private sources.

So did Abraham Lincoln.

In fact, most of those astute statesmen who signed our famous Declaration of Independence, never attended public schools!

Nor did the framers of our superb U.S. Constitution!

Yet how many college professors today could have evolved such remarkable documents?

"Men wearing rapiers," said William Shakespeare (also not a public school alumnus), "are afraid of goose quills."

Which is the basic source for the paraphrase:

"The pen is mightier than the sword."

Nowadays we might properly state:

"The typewriter (or linotype) is greater than the nuclear bomb."

Jefferson again lauded the newspapers by saying:

"Where the press is free, and every man able to read, all is safe."

Benjamin Franklin and

Thomas Jefferson were thus our major defenders of free speech and a free press.

George Washington also realized the vital importance of a free press when he added:

"The mass of citizens of the United States mean well and I firmly believe will always act well when they can obtain a right understanding of matters."

But Washington's reference to a "right understanding," precludes a regimented press like that which Hitler controlled in his rise to dictatorship.

In Chile, South America, we have recently seen the catastrophe of a Communist take-over, which muzzled the press, as well as the television and radio stations.

"Dr. Crane," I am often asked, "why did you give up your campus teaching of psychology at Northwestern University and throw in your lot with newspapers?"

It was because I saw that the newspapers are the major educational force in America!

For most people quit the formal school classroom at the age of 18.

But now they have an average longevity of at least 70 years.

So who is the major "teacher" of adult Americans during their 52 adult years. AFTER they have left the classrooms forever?

It is mainly the newspapers! So I decided that, via this "Worry Clinic" column, I could help stop thousands of threatened divorces, school dropouts, unwed pregnancies, and even persecution complexes based on lack of skill at winning friends.

(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg, Mellett, Indiana 47858, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Readers spent $2.8 billion for daily and Sunday newspapers in 1971.

Doug Boyd Dependable Car Dealer

Doug Boyd Motor Company has been the dependable dealer for the pre-owned cars in Pampa for over 13 years, providing a center for shoppers that can be depended on for top quality vehicles.

Doug Boyd has backed selling with integrity and has offered customers on-the-spot bank financing up to 36 months on most of the later models.

His selection of cars is discriminate, eliminating the risky vehicles from the top condition autos. The car of choice on the part of the company is an advantage to the buyer desiring a second car or interested in trade for a serviceable pre-owned auto.

The motor company located at 821 W. Wilks has added on to their car space by buying the car lot next to it. Now they feature a four-car showroom accompanied by one-half of a block of spaces filled with the finest used cars.

Regular hours are from 8 a.m. until dark, but interested buyers can contact an employee of the company at any time.

Doug Boyd points out that persons wishing to inquire about a car on the lot are invited to call him. Tomm Ammons may be reached by dialing 665-1280 or Randy Slavik can be called at 665-3445. Wallace Jouett can be reached at 665-2904.

Successful business since the August, 1959, opening date is special proof of calm that the special consideration of Doug Boyd's means happy customers.

Doug Boyd insists that a good selection of cars and station wagons is available at all times. He states the selection at this time will answer the desire of model and design desired by most customers.

Drop by Doug Boyd Motor Company and look over the fine vehicles to see if you can find what is to your liking.

Doug Boyd also now offers a fine line of mobile homes, with up to 12 years financing.

University Names Folk Consultant

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Don Yoder, University of Pennsylvania, has been named a consultant for the first state Texas Folklife Festival Sept. 7-10 at the University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures at San Antonio.

Institute Director R. Henderson Shuffler said Yoder "is an international folk scholar who is a member of the Historic Council planning scholarly events for the 1976 Bicentennial. He is a founder of the Pennsylvania Dutch Folklife Festival held at Kutztown, Penn., since 1950 and the Pennsylvania Folklife Society.

The Texas Folklife Festival is the first statewide showcase for local festivals and talent and will celebrate the traditional ways Texans have had fun, Shuffler said.

Gillpatrick Completes Training

NORWICH, N.Y.—Jon L. Gillpatrick, Houston, a medical sales representative for Eaton Laboratories Division of Morton-Norwich Products, Inc., recently completed an intensive two-week educational course at Eaton's headquarters in Norwich, N.Y.

Gillpatrick grew up in Pampa where he graduated from the local high school. He attended West Texas State University, Amarillo, a Junior College and Northwestern State College, Weatherford, Okla. receiving the B.S. degree in biology from the latter in 1967.

For three years Gillpatrick served in the U.S. Navy as a hospital corpsman, 2nd class. The two-week session in Norwich concluded a comprehensive eight-month training program which also includes a two-week orientation at Norwich soon after employment and six months of supervised field training given by his district manager.

The training program provides medical lectures on basic anatomy and physiology, nutrition, microbiology, antimicrobial agents, and basic and clinical research. Highlighted, too, are the nature and treatment of trauma, infections, and Parkinson's disease, as well as the use of Eaton's prescription drug products and discussions of ethical sales principles.

Clements Offers Service For Youthful Appearance

Looking for the Fountain of Youth?

Clements Barber Shop, 310 S. Cuyler, may not be able to restore youth, but a styled haircut and scalp massage can help one look and feel younger.

Bob Clements, who has been a barber since 1946, has had training at Amarillo, Tyler and Dallas.

"I went to some of these styling shows and saw what some of these barbers were doing that I couldn't do and I said to myself, that's for me," Clements said.

Clements has satisfied customers from Miami, Canadian, McLean, Wheeler, Pampa and other points around the Panhandle.

With a practicing knowledge of hair-less retardation, Clements massages the hair and scalp for 20 minutes to increase the circulation and to relax the scalp.

"If this procedure is not followed, the hair stands straight up, making a good styling or cutting job near impossible," Clements claimed. Clements doesn't claim to be able to restore hair that has been lost, but he does feel he can help a person to retain the hair he has.

To help him maintain a better shop and to provide better service to meet the needs of his customers, Clements handles a line of Roffler's products. He recently received an award for being the best Roffler salesman in the Lubbock-Amarillo-Pampa area.

The wife of a former customer of Clements wrote him to request more of the Roffler products.

"His hair is a lot thicker than it has ever been since we've been married," she wrote. "It's really been growing a lot lately."

To enable his customers to keep up with the fashions and to offer expanded service, Clements now offers the Ruff L. Look, a new hair style perfected by Roffler for the young man with long hair.

"The natural look" is Clements' specialty, but he does regular barbering as well as styling.

So if you're looking for a Fountain of Youth, drop by Clements Barber Shop or call 665-1231.

A NEW LOOK—The new Ruff L. Look, especially designed for young men with long hair, is now available at Clements Barber Shop. Designed by Roffler, the new style reflects the new fashion of collar-length hair with exposed ear.

Santa Fe Waiting To Handle Grain

Santa Fe Railway is "ready and waiting" to handle the coming grain movement and expects to accomplish it again without a serious car shortage, John S. Reed, president, said in Chicago.

"Our surveys indicate that Santa Fe will be called upon to move more than 20,000 covered hoppers and over 3,000 box cars loaded with wheat," he reported. "Thanks in good measure to our fleet of about 10,000 giant covered hoppers, acquired over the past few years specifically to handle grain and other bulk commodities, we are ready and waiting."

"We have also concentrated efforts on repairing and upgrading box cars for this purpose, and have begun to stockpile covered hoppers and box cars at strategic points around the system in anticipation of requirements," he said.

Reed pointed out that some country elevators currently have less available capacity than at similar times in other years.

"This could result in some instances where our cars are improperly used for storage instead of transportation, which might lead to isolated, local shortages," he stated.

The rail president also emphasized that Santa Fe has adequate locomotives available to handle the peak load expected during June and July.

"To handle the vast amount of grain that moves in a relatively brief period of time requires the cooperation of farmers, elevator operators and the railroad, plus a little cooperation from mother nature. We had excellent cooperation from all concerned last year, and moved the 1971 harvest without difficulty. We feel confident that Santa Fe can accommodate this year's demands in good fashion, too," Reed concluded.

Official Urges Shipping Unity

HOUSTON (AP) — A Federal Maritime Commission official says United States port authorities and cargo carriers must "form a grand partnership" to move cargoes more efficiently or lose the cargoes of Canadian ports.

George H. Hearn told a transport seminar here that some U.S. Shippers already are moving cargoes through Canadian ports because the ports offer more efficient service.

He suggested putting foreign-bound cargoes into containers at a factory, then transporting them to inland waterway ports for loading on barges.

The barges would proceed to seaports for loading on cargo-carrying ships which would deliver the bargeloads intact to foreign ports.

The barges would move to foreign river terminals for dispersal of the containers to buyers in that area.

The concept is working in a fragmented way now, through the use of container ships specially designed to handle the huge cargo boxes and through the use of barge-carrying ships by several lines.

The problem is that competing companies use containers and barges of different design and paperwork, or documentation, varies from shipper to shipper.

Hearn and others say the containers, barges and documentation must be standardized.

FOR LOW PRICES—Gibson's Discount Pharmacy offers a fine line of medicines and related articles at lower prices to aid customers to combat illness. Three registered pharmacists are on hand to fill prescriptions quickly and efficiently as needed, with several clerks on hand to take orders and offer friendly service. (Staff Photo)

Gibson's Discount Pharmacy Has Low-Priced Medicines

At today's high prices, many people would think pharmacy costs are the most expensive part of an illness.

But thanks to Gibson's Discount Pharmacy, fine medicines can be obtained at a price nearly everyone will find reasonable.

And in addition to lower prices, Gibson's Pharmacy continues to offer efficient and dependable service.

Three registered pharmacists are on hand to aid the customers to obtain their prescriptions quickly from the medicines on stock from reputable pharmacy companies.

Dean Copeland, who became a registered pharmacist in 1957, has been with the local firm since 1965. David Burns has been with Gibson's for just over a year.

Newest member of the group is Dick Wilson. Although new to Gibson's, Wilson has lived in Pampa since he was nine and is a familiar face to many residents.

These three work together to fill any prescription with the finest in medicines without the high overhead prices that are common to smaller pharmacies.

Gibson's Discount Pharmacy carries approximately 15,000 medicines that more than meet most needs in time of illness.

Vitamins are a special feature at Gibson's, with many in stock, again at that low price that Gibson's has made popular.

Many doctors believe people who take proper vitamins regularly may ward off many of the illnesses that come to Pampa each year.

In addition to the three registered pharmacists, several clerks are on hand to take orders and eliminate the time a pharmacist might spend on paper work.

At least one pharmacist is ready 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to aid a customer to obtain the medicines needed to combat illness.

Gibson's also has a complete line of medicines to help control allergies. For people with over-sensitive skin, a full line of Allercream cosmetics are kept in stock.

And with summer at hand, Gibson's has many suntan and other skin lotions to keep the skin healthy looking against all the wear and tear of summer exposure.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Charles Scribner's Sons, Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I never thought the day would come when something in your column would provoke me enough to write to you, but "PERTURBED," who claims that in some small towns hairdressers make as much as $100 a day, so why tip, certainly got my back up.

I have been a hairdresser in Massachusetts and Florida for 12 years and I have yet to find such a place. I've worked in some of the best shops and I was lucky to make ends meet. After working 5 1/2 days, my gross pay was $50 for the week. So you see where I would be without tips from my customers.

We hairdressers pay a lot for our schooling, and today we make less than a girl who has just graduated from high school and takes a secretarial job.

J. P., PLYMOUTH, MASS.

DEAR ABBY: You can tell your hairdresser, Cloyd, that he can move to Duncan, Okla. There are seven beauticians in the shop I go to and they all make at least $90 a day, and $100 on Fridays and Saturdays. And this town has a population of only 25,000.

REGULAR PATRON

DEAR PATRON: I gave Cloyd your message, and he says the hairdresser who takes in that kind of money MUST have a very lucrative sideline.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "PERTURBED," who doesn't think beauticians need tips, to come off it. There are some jobs that wouldn't be worth a plug nickel without the tips. Waiting on tables is one, and hairdressing is another.

BEEN BOTH

DEAR ABBY: I have been a hairdresser for 18 years, and only once did I come close to making $100 in one day. And that included my tips!

"PERTURBED" is Disturbed. ROSE

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know what that beauty operator who told "PERTURBED" she made $100 a day was smoking. She must have meant $100 a WEEK!

NOT HACKING IT IN HACKENSACK

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from "PERTURBED" who says beauty operators don't need "tips" because they make so much money, I had to write:

I wish "PERTURBED" could be a hairdresser for just eight hours. She'd find out what it's like to keep on schedule with clients calling and begging to be worked in on a Friday afternoon. Also, trying to be pleasant to a different person every 20 minutes when your feet are killing you and you are half dead.

No beauty operator I ever knew could cut the mustard without tips. I don't care where she works.

BOILING OVER IN BALTIMORE

DEAR ABBY: I am a beauty operator who wants to tell you how I feel about tipping.

In our profession, tips are appropriate, but a tip should not be expected. I get tips, which I appreciate, but if I couldn't make it without tips, I'd find something else to do for a living. After all, a tip is something extra given because the customer feels generous, and it's never a sure thing.

Please print this in defense of the hairdressers who want their patrons to know that we appreciate their patronage whether they feel like tipping or not. There are three operators where I work and they all agree with me.

HAPPY IN NATCHEZ, MISS.

D'Artagnan, the best swordsman and bridge player in France, decided that while it was the duty of a musketeer to protect the king, this was one time that a lead of a king was called for. He placed the king of hearts on the table.

Porthos, sitting East, played the nine and D'Artagnan continued the suit. Porthos cashed the jack and ace.

The wily De Rochefort, sitting South, false-carded with the 10 and it was up to D'Artagnan to discard.

He knew that Porthos would follow the instructions conveyed by his discard. What should he tell Porthos to do? It all depended on who held the seven of hearts.

Could Porthos hold it? Very unlikely for two reasons. If Porthos held five hearts to the ace-queen-jack he would surely have over-called and even if he hadn't over-called he would have overtaken D'Artagnan's king with the ace if he held five hearts.

After working this all out carefully it was no trouble for D'Artagnan to drop the diamond deuce. Porthos led his last high heart and since De Rochefort had to ruff with one of dummy's high trumps the contract was doomed.

"Sacre Bleu!" cried De Rochefort. "From now on I will stick to juggling against you. You are far too good

El Progresso Installs Officers At Luncheon

El Progresso Club held its closing luncheon in the country home of Mrs. Glenn Dawkins, Assisting Mrs. Dawkins were Mrs. J.F. Malone, Ralph Palmer, and Darrell Cameron.

During the business session, conducted by Mrs. J.F. Malone, president, plans were submitted and approved for a year-long celebration of the 50th Anniversary during the coming club year. Mrs. J.G. Morrison, chairman of a special committee, reported that two specific anniversary parties would be on Oct. 10, 1972, and Feb. 13, 1973.

Mrs. O.K. Gaylor, yearbook chairman, outlined the year's study, "Our Golden Anniversary, A Year to Remember." Mrs. Kermit Lawson, newly-elected secretary of Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, reported on the convention in Dallas.

"Using 'Garden of Flowers' theme Mrs. Malone installed the new officers for the coming year. Each was presented a flower, yellow-gold in color, representative of the office. Officers installed were Mrs. Glen Dawkins, president; Mrs. O.K. Gaylor, vice president; Mrs. Roy McMillan, secretary; Mrs. R.A. Keagy, treasurer; Mrs. Kermit Lawson, reporter; and Mrs. J.F. Malone, parliamentarian.

BUSY BALLET NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City Ballet reported that its 14-week winter season attendance rose slightly over last year's winter season, at the New York State Theater.

George Balanchine went to Geneva to supervise preparations for the Opera Ballet's spring gala. His company's next season will include a week of "Stravinsky Festival" in June.

The company will dance its seventh annual season at the Saratoga, N.Y., Performing Arts Center, starting July 5. On Aug. 9 it will dance four performances in Munich.

HONOR MISS HORNE

NEW YORK (AP) — Opera star Marilyn Horne received the 1972 Albert Einstein Spirit of Achievement Award for Women for her contribution to the performing arts.

The presentation was made at the meeting of the Greater New York Chapter Women's Division of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

Miss Horne will open next fall's season of the Metropolitan Opera in the title role of "Carmen."

Has Time Run Out for Angkor?

By TOM TIEDE

SIEM REAP, Cambodia—(NEA)—For nine centuries the priceless ruins of Angkor have survived invasion, sacking, trashing, neglect and at one time desertion. Even the relentless forces of the tropical jungle have been unable to destroy the massive, incredibly lovely, locally sacred centerpiece of ancient Cambodian civilization.

"The gods built it," natives explain, "the gods protect it."

Whatever the power behind past preservation, however, it may at last be failing. Indeed, somebody up there may be sleeping on sentry duty. The careless antics of modern war may yet do what time has been unable: humble, harm, even bring down the imperial temples.

Early in this nation's now two-year-old war with the Communists, enemy troops slipped into and around Angkor's ruins. Their guess was the government would not risk desecration of the monuments with a counter-offensive. The ploy worked. The government was furious, but prudent. Still is. "We can bomb them out," says a Khmer general, "but in so doing we would make rubble out of our entire history."

For a time it appeared the Communist occupiers (mostly Viet Cong, perhaps 500 men) would treat Angkor with respect if not devotion. Indeed, it appeared the troops had orders to be careful. Buddhist monks were allowed to stay on as caretakers. Members of a French-sponsored restoration team were permitted to continue working. Safe from government fire, almost relaxed, the VC roamed the ruins as all tourists do—gawking and taking pictures for the folks back home.

Then, early this year the Communists abruptly expelled some of the French team, and jailed the rest. They booted out all Cambodian civilians. And even some monks were chased from the shrine.

Why? Officials shudder to speculate.

One guess is that the Reds decided to take a second advantage of Angkor. Government sources insist that the Viet Cong, "with no real appreciation for the cultural significance of Khmer art," have been secretly breaking off pieces of the temples and selling them to connoisseurs in third nations. Reports of Angkor treasure trade have been surfacing from Bangkok to Hong Kong. If the reports are true, the VC have found a neat new way to finance their operations. Even a small Angkor relic can bring as much as $1 million from droolers.

The rip-off reports, to be sure, are as yet unconfirmed. And Angkor experts tend to doubt them. For one thing, says Ly Vouong, the secretary general of Cambodia's Commission for the Protection of Cultural Properties, "There is not much left of value in Angkor. When the war began we took as many of the movable objects out as possible. At least 130 chestful of carvings have been sent to Phnom Penh and many more are in relatively safekeeping in Siem Reap."

Yet still the specter of Communist soldiers chipping away at 900 years of Cambodian magnificence worries the nation. "SOS Angkor" posters hang over the streets. Student letters of protest go out daily to Communist capitals. United Nations' help has been asked.

"Westerners can't know our concern," says Ly Vouong. "You build something one day and then tear it down the next. But here, Angkor is like a stone cemetery, inviolable. The faces on the statues are of our ancestors. The carvings were done by our forefathers. The temples remind us of how rich our heritage is."

Indeed, judging from Angkor, the Khmer heritage is rich beyond belief. The shrine boggles the mind. Constructed by a succession of 30 monarchs over seven centuries, Angkor is a conglomeration of 'incredibly brilliant and sizable temples. Angkor Wat, for example, the most famous portion of the complex, is almost a walled city of artwork, a mile to the side and surrounded by a 200-foot water moat. Built to honor the man-god Vishnu, Angkor Wat's stone walls are almost entirely spread with chiseled detail depicting wars, executions, hooded cobras, sinners, holy people and bare-bosomed women.

The beauty, however, is just a memory now. Only the Communists see it these days. The best anyone else can do is to stand behind government lines (outside Siem Reap) and look down the road. There, a mile and a half away, invisible, is one of the wonders of the world.

And, people still do come here to look. Even though they see nothing but sorrow. The Communists have occupied Angkor for two years. Red defectors say that at least some abuse is going on inside. And even if everything is still intact, the spectators feel that Angkor's luck may yet run out. "They will never give Angkor up," says a man who looks like the faces on the temples. "I think they will destroy it first. And not even the gods could protect it then."

ONE SURVIVOR of the centuries and the North Vietnamese destruction in Angkor Wat, the ancient temple city of Cambodia, is this piece of sculpture. A caretaker stands by.

Precision Flying Member Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the Air Force's precision flying team, the Thunderbirds, has died in a fiery crash while performing for tens of thousands on the last day of the Transpo 72 exhibition.

The crash Sunday was the third fatal accident to mar the huge exhibit of air and ground transport systems at Dulles International Airport in the Virginia countryside outside Washington.

The pilot was identified as

Maj Joe Howard, 32, of Ahsoskie, N.C., a veteran of 322 combat missions in Southeast Asia including 69 over North Vietnam.

The swept-wing plane which can fly more than twice the speed of sound appeared to stop in midair, then rolled and drifted to the left. Moments before the plane struck ground, Howard's parachute appeared.

The $2.5 million plane exploded in a huge fireball and sent up a column of smoke.

J.D. Ray completed a standard first aid class with a troop of Boy Scouts of America completing the course. The following received their cards: Randy Craig, Bruce Ferris, Dale Ferris, Donny Ketchem, Randy Ketchem, Andy Stephens, Clifford Stephens and Houston Woods.

Registration for the Summer Swim Program at the City Pool will continue through June 9. Please do not expect to register your child after this date. Please do not come to the City Pool expecting to put your child in a class if you have not registered in the Red Cross Office. Remember the cut-off date is June 9 and that gives only one week for us to complete our records and have classes in Beginners, Advance Beginners, Intermediates and Swimmers. Classes begin June 19 and continue through July with two-week sessions each.

The Beginners Swim Class will begin June 5 and run through June 16 at the Marcus Sanders Municipal Pool. James Tucker WSI will assist with this class. Registration for these classes will be at the pool Monday morning June 5.

Word has been received that Jackie Marlar is working with the Duncan, Oklahoma Swim Team and is teaching classes in the summer program at Duncan. We are very happy that Jackie is interested and continuing her work in Water Safety in her new home of Duncan, Okla.

Paula Homer and Pat Homer are home from college and working with the Swim Classes at the Pampa Youth Center. Summer classes begin June 5 and these WSI's are planning to teach classes before they leave on their summer work in camps. We are happy to report this continued interest in our swim program.

James Dalrymple, Multi Media First-Aid Instructor, will begin a Multi Media First Aid Class the second week in July.

Persons interested in taking this Standard Multi Media Class should come by the Red Cross Office and register for this important class. We believe it will be taught in three sessions or on a Saturday as the people request. Standard multi media or Standard First Aid Class is required by the Health and Safety Act of 1970 for those who work in plants. Please plan to take this course as we do not know when another will be offered this summer.

Baseball Roundup

By Associated Press

BALTIMORE (AP) — Not even extra batting practice, spectacles for Boog Powell, or the arrival of usually friendly Minnesota pitching could snap the Baltimore hitting slump.

Instead, the Orioles once again surrendered rather meekly at the plate Monday night as the Twins won 3-2 on a sixth inning double by Bobby Darwin.

The victory ended a four-game Minnesota losing streak and enabled the Twins to slip into second place in the American League West, five percentage points ahead of the idle Chicago White Sox.

Both Minnesota and Chicago are four games behind the surging Oakland Athletics, who topped the sagging Cleveland Indians 3-2 on the 10th inning home run by Campy Campneris in the only other major league game played Monday.

One other scheduled game, Pittsburgh at San Diego in the National League, was postponed by rain.

Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles, at a loss to explain Baltimore's 220 team batting average as compared with last season's league-leading .261 mark, ordered batting practice Monday morning.

Against Minnesota starter

Dick Woodson, 4-3, and ace reliever Wayne Granger, however, the Orioles managed just five hits and two of those were bunts. Last season, Baltimore hit an amazing 312 against Minnesota pitching.

Veteran Brooks Robinson did slam his first home run of the season, in his 158th trip to the plate.

The Orioles have now lost six of their last seven games to fall 3½ games behind Detroit in the American League East.

Powell's, Baltimore's erstwhile slugging first baseman in three trips to the plate Monday. He wore glasses for the first time on one at bat, and struck out.

In Cleveland, the homer by Campneris extended Oakland's winning streak to four and dealt the Indians their 10th loss in 12 games.

Reggie Jackson hit a two-run homer for the A's, giving him the league lead with 11, while Eddie Leon's homer tied the score for Cleveland in the eighth, 2-2.

John "Blue Moon" Odom, who needed help from Darold Knowles for the final out, was the winner and is now 3-1. The loser was the Cleveland workhorse, Gaylord Perry, 9-4.

Pentathlon Lead Goes To U.S. Team

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Athletes from six countries faced the demanding 2½ mile run today in the final event of the world military modern pentathlon championship, with the U.S. team well ahead of Italy and West Germany.

The United States surged to a comfortable lead Monday after Charles Richards of Tacoma, Wash., and John Fitzgerald of Chicago, Ill., captured the top spots in the 300-meter swim.

The victories also left Richards and Fitzgerald in first and second place, respectively, in individual total standings, with Michel Gueguen of Fontainebleau, France, in third.

Earlier Monday, after the pistol shooting event, Giovanni Perugini of Rome, Italy, held first place in total points. But he slipped to fourth after placing 10th in the swim.

Richards, an Army captain, swam the event in a superb time of 3:24.2 for first place and 1,240 points. Fitzgerald, an Army specialist 4th class, had a time of 3:34.5 for second and 1,156 points. Third was West German soldier Gerhard Werner of Oldenburg, in 3:37.2 for 1,136 points.

After four events in the five-sport championships, the United States was out front with 11,344 points, followed by Italy with 10,460, Germany with 10,199, France with 9,817, Switzerland with 8,875, and Mexico with 8,682.

The U.S. team placed first in the swim with 3,480 points, with Germany second at 3,136 and France third with 3,092.

Grant Appeal To Be Today

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Race driver Jerry Grant has his day "in court" today to appeal the penalty that cost him $72,000 in prize money from the Indianapolis 500-mile race.

A three-member United States Auto Club panel heard the appeal in a closed session. USAC President Charlie Brockman presided, but the other members were not identified in advance of the hearing.

Grant finished the race May 27 in second place, just seconds behind winner Mark Donohue. But the next day a protest was allowed, and Grant was dropped to 12th spot.

Grant was charged with taking on fuel from the supply of teammate Bobby Unser who dropped out early in the race. Car owner Dan Gurney, who filed the appeal, admitted the pit crew inadvertently pumped fuel from Unser's pit tank into Grant's car, in violation of race rules.

Gurney contended it was an honest mistake because Grant, coming in for a tire change with only 30 miles left in the race, overshot his own pit and ended in Unser's.

Gurney challenged the severity of the penalty, 10 places and a difference of nearly $72,000 in the prize allotment. He also said the rules set no penalty for violating the fuel limits.

Brockman said results of the hearing would not be announced until Wednesday or Thursday. "We do not want to make an announcement on the outcome until we are able to write a full report giving our reasons," he said.

Trevino Tries Out Canadian Open Course

FORT ERIE, Ont. (AP) — "The fairways are narrow, the bunkers are rough. Give the rough another month's growth and they won't be burning up this course."

Lee Trevino was giving his general rundown of the Cherry Hill Club's course where the 1972 Canadian Open Golf Championship will be held July 6-9.

The 32-year-old Mexican-American arrived Monday and immediately donned his golfing attire for a run at the 6,751-yard, par-71 layout but limited his round to three of the tougher holes, Nos. 7, 8, and 9.

"If they are any indication of the other 15, I don't know whether I want to come back and defend my title," said Trevino, after paring the three holes.

During a luncheon Trevino was presented a $25,000 check as a belated gift for his 1971 accomplishment of winning three national titles—the U.S., Canadian and British Opens. He was the first professional golfer to achieve the feat in one year.

Trevino chided himself for a missed putt Sunday on the 72nd hole of the Kemper Open that cost him that tournament championship.

"I don't really know what happened," he said. "The hole looked about that big, (the indicated a 25-cent coin), my shaft felt like rubber and the golf ball looked the size of a tennis ball."

"I did everything wrong. People tell me it was five-or-six-foot putt. It looked more like 10 feet to me. When I stroked through, my left wrist stopped and my right kept going."

When someone suggested he made someone happy, Trevino retorted good-naturedly: "Who? Doug?"

Ah, he deserved it." Trevino added of the Kemper Open Winner, Doug Sanders, who ended several frustrating months on the tour.

Trevino who has won about $70,000 on the PGA tour in the past three weeks, got a birdseye view of the course from the plane that flew him into the airport.

"Man, have you got a lot of bunkers on that course. What's the deal? Somebody got a sale on for sand wedges?"

When told 119 sand bunkers rimmed the fairways and greens, Trevino replied with a laugh: "Yeh? But I saw that many on one hole."

Of the man expected to be the biggest threat to his U.S. Championship later this month, Jack Nicklaus, Trevino said most of the touring pros aren't out to beat each other.

"We're all trying to beat Jack. We feel if we can beat Jack Nicklaus we can win $200,000 during the year."

Nicklaus, however, is not entered in the Canadian Open. Several other big name players will be among the starters, including Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, George Archer and veteran Sam Snead.

NCAA Tennis Continues Play

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Three schools were deadlocked in first place after the opening day of play Monday in the 10th annual NCAA college division tennis championships at Kalamazoo.

Sharing the lead with six points each were California State Poly, Rollins of Florida and the host school, Kalamazoo College.

One point off the pace and tied for fourth place were the University of California-Irvine, defending champion, and Samford University of Birmingham, Ala.

Robert Chappell of Irvine, the 1971 singles champ and top-seeded in the 31-school, 88-player tournament, meets Steven Bruhn of Southern Colorado State Tuesday after drawing a first-round bye.

Second-seeded John Lowman of Rollins also drew a bye in the first round and plays Jim Lathrop of Muskingum, New Concord, Ohio Tuesday.

The tournament ends Friday.

Little League Scores

Father Insurance slipped by Holmes Gift Shop 9-8 in the first National Little League game last night despite being out 11 to 5.

Terry Smith was the winning pitcher getting three strike-outs and giving up four walks. H. Woods and Lafon were both two for four at the plate.

In the NL second game Cabot blitzed VFW 25-5. Kerry Braddock was the winning pitcher and Vern Cave added another home run to his record.

In the American League's first game of the night Harralson Oil ran past Harvester Barbeque 24-4. Davis was the winning pitcher and Doom belted a homer. In the second game Rotary Club beat Gibson's 9-4.

Pampa Wholesale beat Chase 5-1 in the first farm league game. Emmitt Calfy struck out six, walked only two and gave up just two hits in the game for Chase.

In the second farm game Behrman's got by Citizen's Bank 5-4. Steve Kotara was the winning pitcher.

Babe Ruth Scores
In Babe Ruth action last night Johnson's Inc. beat the Lions Club 23-3 in the opener. In the second game Grant Supply got by Ideal 6-2 in nine innings.

Sam Snead Fails Sanders, Allen Lead Sectional Qualifiers

DALLAS (AP) — Down-on-his-luck Ras Allen of Dallas got the breaks Monday to lead a pack of 81 golfers in sectional qualifying for the 1972 U.S. Open.

Allen, who lost his sponsor two weeks ago, holed a 230-yard three-iron for a double eagle on the 509-yard par 5 first hole at the Dallas Athletic Club Course en route to a second round 65 after going out in three-under-par 69.

Allen followed the double eagle with birdies on holes No. 8, 9, 10 and 11 for a 36-hole total of 134—five shots ahead of touring pro Homero Blancas of Houston.

The notable casualties among those who didn't make the cut were touring pro John Schlee of Dallas who shot 75-70 and Houston's Jack Burke, who withdrew.

Tom Kite and Ben Crenshaw, the golf golden boys from the University of Texas, easily qualified. Kite shot 70-70 while Crenshaw, who won the state amateur title Sunday, came in one-over-par 142.

Other qualifiers included Ronald Weber of Houston and Mitchell Voges of Chula Vista, Calif., at 143 and Bruce Lietzke of Beaumont and Darrell Hickok of El Paso, both at 144.

Lietzke, a former state amateur champion, and Hickok both won berths in playoffs.

Allen seemed in a daze from his rare double eagle.

"I had a bad lie and hit the ball out low," Allen said. "It just skipped up to the green and ran in the hole."

Allen has won only $4,500 on the professional golf tour this year and has to qualify on Monday mornings. He had his brother totting his bags Monday.

"That's about the worst I've ever played in my life," declared a very hot, very tired and very disappointed Sam Snead after failing Monday in his bid to qualify for this year's U.S. Open.

After a fine morning round of 69 in sectional qualifying at the Charlotte, N.C., Country Club, Snead ballooned to a 78 in the afternoon round. His 147 total was 12 strokes back of Doug Sanders, the top qualifier. More importantly, it was two strokes over the qualifying limit.

So Snead, winner of 84 PGA-co-sponsored tournaments—but not a single U.S. Open, will be absent when the field of 150 tees off at Pebble Beach, Calif. June 15-18.

Snead, who turned 60 nine days ago, had five bogeys on the front nine and his second round. But even with that, he would have managed to qualify if he was able to par the back nine. Instead, he bogeyed the 17th, then three-putted for a double bogey on the par four, 423-yard 18th.

The temperature was in the high 80s on this hot, muggy day, but Snead refused to say that as an excuse.

"I had no excuses," he declared, after flopping down on a bench in the scorer's tent. "I just played badly. I've played 36 holes in one day before."

So for Snead, the U.S. Open jinx continues. An Open again ran 33 times, he competed in 25 consecutive Opens starting in 1937. His closest shot at a title came in 1939 at the Philadelphia Country Club, when with victory in his grasp he bogeyed the 17th and then shot a triple-bogey eight on the final hole.

Ironically, there is one Snead who can compete at Pebble Beach. That's J.C., Sam's nephew and a tour regular, who was exempt from qualifying rounds because he was among the 15 leaders on the PGA tour in 1971 under the USGA point system.

Sectional qualifying for 115 spots unfilled in the Open continues today. A large field will still compete at Philadelphia, where 105 golfers will vie for 21 placed. Included among the entrants are tour regulars such as Gardner Dickinson, Deane Beman, Marty Fleckman, Dale Douglass and George Knudson.

Among the golfers exempt from qualifying are Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Gary Player and Billy Casper.

Sanders, the flashy dresser who won the Kemper Open on the pro tour this weekend, carded a 68-67—135 to lead qualifiers at Charlotte. Other tour regulars who qualified there included Hubert Green, Don Bies, Rod Funseth, Lou Graham, Kermit Zarley, Dave Marr, Bob Murphy, Bob Lunn, Mason Rudolph, Dave Hill, Charles Sifford, Jim Jamieson, Bruce

Favell agrees

MONTREAL (AP) — Doug Favell, 27, a goalie with the Philadelphia Flyers since the team's inception in 1967, has agreed to terms for three more years with the National Hockey League club, it was learned Monday night. Favell joined the Flyers from the Boston Bruins in the original NHL expansion draft.

Wiley McIntire, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill McIntire, 1719 Evergreen, was in Dallas with his parents last week and decided to play a round of golf. As it turned out it was probably the most enjoyable one he has played to date.

Wiley aced the 135 yd. fifth hole of the Bob-O-Links Golf Course in Dallas using an eight iron. Witnessing the hole-in-one were Dallasites J.T. Howell, Randy Wright and Johnny Gething, none of whom had ever met Wiley before the round.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

45—The Toughest Shot

If you hit the shot a little heavy you may not get out of the bunker. If you hit it a little thin you may air-mail the ball over the green.

The worst thing you can do is hit the shot fat, so from a normal lie I use a 9-iron close the face slightly, and lead the club into the ball with my hands more than usual.

This shot differs from most sand shots in that you must hit the ball before you hit the sand. You must get a solid hit.

Otherwise you are immediately faced with the toughest shot in golf all over again.

Ex-Bonus Baby Kitt Feels Pain, Nostalgia

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Howard Kitt never made it to the major leagues, which may have been the best thing to ever happen to him.

In the fall of 1960, at age 18, he was signed off the Long Island sandlots by the New York Yankees for a figure in excess of $60,000, still one of the highest bonuses ever tendered by the Yanks.

He was a left-handed pitcher who struck out hitters with mechanical frequency. He can still recall headlines, "Strikeout Whiz Kitt," and he can still remember all those laudatory words, like Yankee manager Ralph Houk, in Florida spring training of 1961, saying that Kitt's name comes to mind first when he thinks of his hard throwers.

"And you know, one pitcher in that camp was named Ryne Duren," says Kitt. "The Yankees were the Bronx Bombers in those days, and Kitt intellectually reasoned that he had little chance of sticking with the big-league team."

"However," he says today, "I romanticized that Whitey Ford was getting older and the Yanks would be needing a left-hander soon. It might not be me, but then again, why not?"

And he dreamed of another headline: "Young Phenom Makes Club."

It wasn't to be. In the next five years, the 6-3, 190-pounder would pitch for Modesto, Amarillo, Greensboro, Richmond, Augusta, Columbus (Ga.), Binghamton. He would develop bursitis in his arm and lose the fast ball that Ken Harrelson, at Modesto in 1961, said was even faster than another pitcher in that league, Sam McDowell.

Howard Kitt had also been a good student. In off-season he studied economics at Hofstra University and eventually graduated cum laude. After his fifth season in professional baseball, he decided that he was stagnating, having dropped from Triple A ball to Double A.

He recalled some of the guys he had played with along the way, who "had mud thrown in their faces" yet stuck in the minors despite being released from one team and hanging on by fingernails with another.

Columbia University offered Kitt a fellowship in economics in 1965 and he accepted. He gave up baseball and his big-league dreams. He is now a thesis away from a Ph.D. has taught economics at Hofstra and is currently a consultant for the prestigious New York consulting firm of National Economic Research Associates.

He is aware, of course, of some of the pro ball players—the "Boys of Summer"—who struggle in retirement, having known little but baseball all their lives.

"Maybe that would have happened to me, too, if I had gone on to the major leagues," says Kitt. "I don't know. But since my career was kind of shaky, I began to read more widely and began to become more introspective. I was no longer single-minded about baseball."

His interest in the game now, at age 30, is still high. He watches games with, he says, "a jock mentality."

"I love the center field television camera," he says. "I work on the hitter with the pitcher."

He goes to games infrequently but when he does go,

Striped Bass Survive Transfer

AUSTIN—Texas is 950,000 striped bass richer, thanks to a successful transfer of four-day-old fry from Virginia to state fish hatcheries.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists say they had the lowest loss ever experienced in handling bass fry.

The department's Lewisville fish hatchery received 500,000 with a shipment loss of only one percent. These were kept in tempering boxes and then later released into hatchery ponds.

The San Angelo fish hatchery received approximately the same number of fish, but suffered a complete loss in one tempering box. They had a negligible loss in their other nine tempering boxes, however, and were able to release 450,000 fry into hatchery ponds.

Biologists say that the danger to the bass fry isn't over yet, but the transfer is a critical stage, and they are encouraged by its success.

The striped bass will be kept in the holding ponds until they are of sufficient size to release into Texas lakes.

there is a mixture of pain and nostalgia.

"For instance, when I watch Mel Stottlemyre, I picture myself in a Yankee uniform. I played with Mel in Modesto and Greensboro, and we roomed together in Richmond. I see Mel running sprints in the outfield, and I think, that could be me with him, since Mel and I ran sprints together a hundred times."

Yet Kitt refuses to dwell on these thoughts. What's past is not prologue for him. He has not pitched competitively since 1965, when he was 12-3 with Binghamton.

"I was asked to pitch on several Industrial League teams, but refused," he says. "I want people to remember me as a hard-thrower, not some old slob pitching Sundays for some semi-pro club. And I don't want to be cannon fodder for some young guys coming up who want to make a reputation." But Kitt "cannot help feeling fortunate in the way things have turned out.

Last season, Baltimore pitcher Tom Dukes, an old minor league friend, was in town and called Kitt to get together.

"I was happy to, but I felt some trepidation," recalls Kitt. "We shared a lot of dugouts and laundromats, a lot of hopes, and a lot of problems, and I wondered if Tom would want to talk about those minor league days."

"He did, because it was a happy time, a time when the world was all before us. Now, Tom's curve—in economic terms—is going down. And mine, well, I think I'm on the way up—in my business. He is concerned about what he'll be doing after baseball. And since then I've thought about Curt Blefary, another guy I played with, who has just quit baseball. Curt said he'll become a cop.

Horse Racing Leads Gate For 20th Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Major professional and amateur sports events drew record crowds in 1971, with horse racing leading at the gate for the 20th straight year.

The statistics were compiled by Triange Publications Inc., publisher of the Daily Racing Form.

Thoroughbred tracks drew 46,750,643 fans and 30,203,645 turned out for the trots for a total attendance of 76,954,288 and an increase of 2,921,871 over 1970.

Automobile racing was a distant second with an estimated 43,700,000 fans, up 1.2 million from 1970.

A close race for third place on the spectator scoresheet shaped up between football and baseball, but for the fifth straight year football won on the basis of attracting nearly 31.5 million fans to college games alone. Including college and pro regular season and post-season attendance, the sport drew 42,039,065, an increase of 1,622,788.

Baseball, both minor and major plus the playoffs and World Series, drew 41,256,145 fans, up 1,337,821 from 1970.

College and pro basketball, including the professional post-season play, drew 32,603,034 fans as the No. 5 sport but enjoyed an increase of 2,684,019, second only to horse racing.

Hockey was next on the list with the National Hockey League attracting 7,965,310, some 1.5 million more than the previous year. But figures for the Stanley Cup playoffs were not included in the statistics.

Allison, Unser Garner Weekend Auto Victories

By BLOY'S BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

Bobby Allison says race drivers must stay busy or they go stale. Bobby Unser agrees.

Winning also helps to keep the ego above water and the two Bobbys did it in grand style Sunday.

Allison drove a Chevrolet to victory by more than a mile over superstar Richard Petty in the Mason-Dixon 500-mile stock car race at Dover, Del. It was Allison's 37th start in a race car this season and his 11th triumph, four of them major ones.

Unser, who like Allison is 37 years old, beat Indianapolis champion Mark Donohue across the finish line by four seconds to capture the Rex Mays 150 for United States Auto Club championship cars at Milwaukee.

Allison's average speed was 118.679 m.p.h., Unser's 109.139 m.p.h.

In other weekend auto races,

Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil drove a Lotus to victory in the Belgium Grand Prix and took a solid grip on the 1972 world driving title. He now has 28 points to 19 for New Zealander Denis Hulme, who came in third Sunday behind Francois Cedert of France.

Milt Minter led from start to finish to give Pontiac's Firebird its first victory in the Sports Car Club of America's TransAm series for sports sedans at the Mid-Ohio Course near Lexington, George Follmer, who had won the two previous Trans-Am events, was second in a Javelin. Third place went to Warren Agor in a Camaro.

Pete Gregg drove a Datsun to victory in a race for 2.5-liter cars that preceded the Trans-Am.

David Hobbs of England wheeled a Lola T-300 to victory in both 25-mile heats of a race for SCCA Formula 5,000 machines at Edmonton, Alberta. Allen Lader was second overall and Graham McRae of Australia third.

Allison, surely one of the busiest race drivers in America, started his Chevrolet in second place at Dover and during the grueling 500 laps exchanged the lead with chief rival Petty 11 times.

Near the end, however, the transmission started failing in Petty's Plymouth and Allison was able to put a full lap of the one-mile oval between himself and stock car racing's only $1 million winner.

Third place went to LeeRoy Yarbrough in a Ford, fourth to Britshery Jackie Oliver in a Mercury and fifth to John Sears in a Plymouth. The latter three were a least 13 miles behind the two leaders.

The Milwaukee race was held up for 45 minutes when Johnny Rutherford's Michener Petroleum Special crashed into the wall, spraying fuel and debris across the track. Rutherford escaped with minor burns.

How to qualify for the Army's new $1500 special enlistment bonus.

A four year hitch in Armor, Artillery or Infantry will do it. It's a special enlistment that demands a special man. A man the Army is now able to give more to get. $1500 more.

If you've got what it takes, you may qualify for this bonus, paid when you successfully complete your training.

The bonus is over and above the Army's new starting salary of $288 a month. Over and above the Army's many benefits. Like free meals, free housing, free medical and dental care, and 30 days paid vacation each year.

This special enlistment in Armor, Artillery or Infantry offers other advantages, too. Like your choice of unit, or your choice of location in the States or abroad. And the choice is guaranteed.

We'll put it in writing for you before you enlist.

Find out if you're the special kind of man we'll pay a special bonus to get. Talk it over with your nearest Army Representative. Local quotas are limited, and this offer may be in effect for only a short time depending on Army manpower requirements.

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see others to see its blessing.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Report On Spending

Congressman H.R. Gross, Iowa Republican, mails a bulletin from Washington called "On The Capitol Firing Line."

The current Gross bulletin leads off with the following item: With the reckless abandon that has become its trademark, a majority of members of the House of Representatives the other day voted another windfall for all federal employees, including themselves, by increasing to 75 per cent the federal government's contribution to health benefits.

In other words, instead of the government's present contribution of 40 per cent the cost of medical care for members of Congress and other federal employees, the bill provides that by 1977 the taxpayers will be shelling out 75 per cent of the cost. It also means a $1.063 BILLION increase to the government—double the present cost.

Unblessed Tie That Binds

Industrial Week magazine noted the trade barriers imposed by foreign governments, and then called attention to a report on the domestic scene by the National Association of Manufacturers.

The NAM discovered that "a small company in Maryland that wants to do business in Alabama must file more than 175 separate sales tax and use-tax forms."

Today, the NAM reported, there are 44 sets of corporate income tax laws and 45 sales and use-tax laws levied on interstate commerce by states alone.

Litigation, Anyone?

Law seems to have taken the place of engineering as a glamor career.

Whether or not Ralph Nader and the rise of consumer and environmental advocacy have anything to do with it, the number of persons applying for entrance to law schools has been doubling every five years.

In 1960, 24,000 people nationwide took the Law School Admission Test (LSAT). It is predicted at 135,000 will take that test in 1972.

This intense interest in legal education has puzzled a lot of people, says Angus S. McSwain Jr., dean of Baylor University's School of Law, which has room for 150 new students a year and already in 1972 has received 1,500 applications.

Moreover, an amendment was adopted by which postal workers, whose health benefits program had been subject to collective bargaining in the new Postal Service Corporation, would be taken out of that jurisdiction and given the benefit of the government's 75 per cent contribution at an eventual increased cost of about $375 million. This will undoubtedly mean an increase in postal rates since postal employees fringe benefits are now paid out of postal revenues.

Approval of this legislation by the House is unconscionable, not only because it is unwarranted and because of the nation's desperate financial situation, but also because employees in private industry will now demand higher health benefit contributions from employers who in turn must increase the prices of their products to cover increased costs of production.

Thus is the fire of inflation further fueled by the greedy and in this case the greedy include the members of Congress who voted to feather their own nests.

It added that more than 3,000 municipalities and 400 counties also levy sales taxes.

Look what effect this has on a company payroll. Hiring people to fill out forms doesn't produce the final product that can be sold to bring revenue back into the company so that the owners can pay more people to work.

Every additional bit of red tape levied against the owner is a tax upon the workman's opportunity. It is a subtraction from the number of jobs. And this barrier to production is imposed not by the American workingman's competitors, but by the politicians who subsist from his labors.

"I can't help but think this trend will peak out either this year or the next and things will return to normal."

Book Says Nixon Has Crisis Need

By DON OAKLEY

Remember back during the 1964 election campaign when a bunch of psychiatrists did a neat hatchet job on Barry Goldwater?

The experts replied to a questionnaire sent out by one of that era's shorter-lived and less respected magazines, making it the most spectacular case of long-distance psychoanalysis since Sigmund Freud explained the hidden meaning of Leonardo Da Vinci's babyhood dreams at four centuries removed.

It didn't take a degree to know that Barry was close to the edge. Why, he advocated a massive infusion of U.S. troops into Vietnam, bombing, defoliation. Fortunately, the American people rejected that nut and elected a man who did not suffer from such delusions of grandeur.

Now, just in time for the 1972 election, someone has performed a similar service in the case of one Richard M. Nixon.

Bruce Mazlish, professor of history at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with training in psychoanalysis, has founded a new discipline he calls "psychohistory," a fusion of psychoanalysis and history. First fruit of this fusion is his book, "In Search of Nixon," subtitled "A Psychohistorical Inquiry."

While the history may be dubious, there is no doubt about the psycho part.

"Nixon," Mazlish informs us, "is a man torn between his mother's dislike of warfare and his father's sharp competitiveness; thus he is extremely ambivalent about his aggressive impulses and tends to deal with them by projection onto other."

Right now, of course, he's projecting onto the North Vietnamese, who were good enough to stage an invasion of South Vietnam and thus offer him a pretext.

Furthermore, says Mazlish, "He still speaking of you-know-who is wracked by indecision and by the question of his own courage, especially in a crisis. He has had a serious problem with death wishes."

In regard to the latter, Mazlish suggests that Nixon's "need for crisis" may partially be "motivated by the need to confront his death fears, repeatedly and constantly."

This is but a sampling from a book that is all the more remarkable for having been written by an author who has never met his subject.

Forget that Richard Nixon did not start the Vietnam war. Forget that in foreign affairs, except for Vietnam, his overall record in the past four years has been one of removing the causes of the crises that have periodically wracked the world for more than two decades.

Forget the Okinawa treaty with Japan, the SALT disarmament talks with Russia, the President's historic visit to China.

With candidate Nixon neatly disposed of, now all the voters have to do is find a man who doesn't have this "need for crisis" and we can all sit back and enjoy four years of national tranquility undisturbed by the North Vietnamese, the Russians, the Chinese, the cost of beef, the corn blight, the San Andreas Fault or the Fates.

"Tax The Fat Cats" Is An Empty Campaign Slogan

"The time has come," asserts Hubert Humphrey, "for a tax system that says to the wealthy, to the super-rich, to big business, to the banks, 'You must pay your fair share.'" Hubert's bold suggestion isn't exactly original—the Presidential candidates are screaming the same slogan with relentless redundancy.

The "loopholes" in the individual income tax do not add up to many billions of dollars. Though they have great emotional value for the populist candidates, the actual monetary gain realized by closing them would be insignificant. Corporations are already taxed more heavily than are individuals; moreover, total corporate income is small compared with individual incomes.

One of the most audacious tracts on the subject of tax reform has been written in the New York Times Magazine by Phillip M. Stern, who charges that a tax deduction is the equivalent of a "direct Federal handout." He objects to all deductions, even joint returns for married couples and the regular exemption allowed to all taxpayers, because the more money you make, the more money you save from such deductions—which is somehow unfair.

Less than two weeks after the invasion had begun, Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz announced that the U.S. would sell "surplus" grain to the U.S.S.R. on three-year credit terms, the maximum allowable under the law, with sales as high as $200 million annually.

This agreement will help the communists smooth over the latest in their chronic grain shortages, thereby releasing other resources to produce more weapons for use against our troops in South Vietnam.

Foreign affairs analysts have pointed out that rhetoric directed against the Soviets will have no effect whatsoever so long as our government's actions conciliate and aid the communists.

Secretary Butz has indicated that the U.S. will be paid for the grain with natural gas and oil from newly developed fields in Siberia, rather than in dollars or gold. But the U.S. will not receive these payments unless we help the communists build the pipelines to carry the oil and gas into Eastern and Central Europe.

Trade experts view this as a means of increasing the Soviet hold over Eastern Europe. It is also very dangerous for the U.S. to become dependent in any way on the Kremlin for strategic fuels or to give to the Soviets our advance pipeline and oil and gas production technology.

This grain deal is the latest in a long list of U.S. concessions to the communists. All we have received in return is stepped-up communist aggression in the Orient.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dairy Man Backs Lowfat Milk Dear Dr. Lamb—I read your column stressing the importance of 1 per cent low-fat milk to provide calcium the body needs and that we do not need the animal fat in our present-day diets. I am the vice-president of a dairy company. Having had open heart surgery at the Mayo Clinic a year and a half ago to alleviate blocked arteries to the heart caused by eating foods high in cholesterol and fat, I have attempted to interest all our management personnel and sales people in the importance of 1 per cent low-fat milk in the diet.

As a result, we are in the midst of a big promotion of low-fat milk. I want to thank you for your support for low-fat dairy products.

Dear Reader—I am putting your nice letter in the column because it is a fine example of positive leadership. As vice-president of a large dairy company in Minnesota, you are certainly representative of the forward-thinking policy of much of the modern dairy industry. The provision of low-fat products, such as fortified skim milk and the 1 per cent low-fat milk, plus the uncreamed cottage cheese, has provided the American public with an opportunity to have essential nutritious food values obtained from milk without the problems associated with saturated fat.

Such forward-thinking as you exemplify also insures the probability that the dairy industry will be able to increase the market and help to improve the health of the American public. Satisfied customers promote good business. The provision of all these products by forward-thinking dairy leaders such as yourself is certainly good business, since it results in a lot of satisfied customers who may live longer and use more low-fat milk.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am having a water softener installed in my mobile home, but first I would like to have your opinion. The drinking water would be filtered through salt pellets. Would this water be harmful in any way to a person's health? I have had high blood pressure in the past and I am 64 years old and drink four to five glasses of water a day and would appreciate learning if drinking water from a softener would cause any trouble.

Dear Reader—For people in normal health, water passing through the type of water softener you are describing would not be harmful. They can be harmful for individuals who have any tendency toward retention of fluid or need to restrict the salt in their diet for this reason or for high blood pressure.

Water is often a hidden source of excess salt or sodium. Most commercial water supplies have a minimal amount of salt or sodium in them, but some have more than desirable for individuals with medical problems.

Neo-Populists All; McGovern Attacks on Wallace Abating By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON—Sen. McGovern is quietly backtracking on his once harshly disparaging opinion of Gov. Wallace.

As the South Dakota leftist has lately weaseled, trimmed and pussyfooted on a number of his key radical stands (a "share-the-wealth" tax program, drastic dismembering of U.S. military forces, unrestricted busing and wide-open abortions), he is now busily endeavoring to ingratiate himself with the conservative Alabama governor.

That is what was really behind the fanfare of his visit of Democratic National Chairman O'Brien. A lot more was involved than just friendly concern over Wallace's recovery.

The bedside call was made at the undisclosed but express behest of McGovern—as part of a carefully thought-out strategy to court Wallace and his followers in the South. Northern industrial and other states where he has strikingly demonstrated widespread voter support.

During their bedside talk, O'Brien gave Wallace earnest assurances of respectful and courteous hearing and treatment at the Miami Beach convention. "No rowdiness or hooliganism will be tolerated," said O'Brien. "Your staff and your delegates will be treated the same as all others, and I can assure you you will have ample opportunity to present your views fully to the Platform and other committees. Naturally I can't say what the committees will do, but I can state categorically that you will get fair and equitable consideration."

Similar conciliatory word has come from other McGovern emissaries.

One went so far as to tell Wallace that McGovern sees no "irreconcilable difference" between them, particularly on Wallace's basic campaign theme of "sending them the message." Added the intermediary, "That's exactly what McGovern is doing, too."

Discreetly not mentioned by the McGovernite is the salient fact that the "messages" of the two candidates are poles apart.

What's Worrying Him Reason McGovern and his inner group of Kennedyite managers are so fearfully anxious to appease Wallace is one dread overriding political reality.

Should the Alabaman bolt in the general election—either running as an independent or declaring as a Democrat for President Nixon—the effect would be catastrophic for the Democratic standard-bearer, especially an extremist like McGovern.

For the South Dakota leftist, a blockbusting Wallace defection could result in a landmark electoral debacle.

There is good reason for this inner McGovernite apprehension.

Sources close to Wallace are dropping hints there have been overtures from Nixon quarters. It is intimated the wounded Alabama governor has been told he can play a leading role in the President's reelection organization if he wants it. Also that he would be completely free to expound the policies and concepts he champions.

One backstage story going the rounds is that Vice President Agnew and Wallace had what is described as a "heart-to-heart" talk—the nature of which is not specified.

Basis for that sound conclusion is the already widely evident aversion to McGovern and outright dismay over the looming possibility of his nomination among high-placed Democratic officeholders and party regulars. Privately, they are making no bones they view him as a disastrous liability in the fall election.

Apparently in an effort to defuse this explosively destructive situation, McGovern is strenuously trying to persuade Sen. Edward Kennedy to assume a leading convention role in his behalf.

McGovern has at least twice in the past several weeks personally appealed to Kennedy to put him in nomination.

The South Dakotan has also hinted broadly of wanting Kennedy as running-mate.

So far, Kennedy has turned down both schemes. He flatly rejected the idea of being No. 2 man on a McGovern ticket—or any other ticket. He wasn't quite as categorical in declining to make the McGovern nominating speech. While Kennedy said no, he didn't shut the door as firmly as he did on the running-mate proposition.

He may still be wheedled into making the nominating speech by the small army of Kennedyites masterminding and running the McGovern campaign. Mrs. Ethel Kennedy, widow of Bobby, has been enlisted in this pressure effort.

She is the most zealous McGovern backer in the Kennedy family. That is attributed to the fact that McGovern worked closely with Bobby from the early days of the JFK campaign. She has been active in raising funds for McGovern, and urging bank leaders to back him.

Insiders credit Ethel with putting over the McGovern endorsement by Mrs. Coretta King—who actually doesn't know the South Dakota leftist.

Graphically illustrative of the controlling role Kennedy veterans are playing in the inner clique of McGovern advisers and managers are the following: Frank Mankiewicz, national campaign coordinator who was Bobby Kennedy's press man and political handyman; Fred Dutton, former White House assistant under JFK who also worked intimately with Bobby; Pierre Salinger, JFK White House press secretary and another Bobby henchman; Richard Goodwin, JFK and Bobby speechwriter and hatchet-man.

Slapping Him Down If Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), haughty chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, had any illusions about his colleagues' opinion of him, he should be well over them by now.

In the past several weeks, in repeated rollcall votes, they have been all but kicking him in the pants.

Time after time the Senate, in most instances by decisive margins, has tossed into discard amendments Fulbright wrote in the State Department-U.S. Information Agency budget authorization bill out of personal pique and rancor.

Apparently, the Senate's manifest dislike of the Arkansan is getting under his skin. In private conversations he is intimating he may not run for reelection in 1974.

One thing is certain: if he does retire, he won't be missed!
