Ford Reviews Economy With Officials Of Labor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor got its chance to take a crack at the Ford administration's economic policies — and did just that. Union leaders asked for an end to tight money, lower interest rates, a rearrangement of tax priorities, and a rein on the power and profits of big business.

The second of 12 minisummit meetings on the economy was held Wednesday, and again President Ford, by his own choice, was confronted by the critics close up.

A third session, dealing with housing, was scheduled for today in Atlanta. Ford opened Wednesday's conference of labor officials by announcing: "The secretary of labor will immediately disperse $65 million to those communities in which unemployment is highest."

The money would provide jobs in public service projects. Ford also promised an additional $350 million and an estimated "170,000 public service jobs this coming winter."

Most of the administration's proposals had been heard before: cut the budget, hold the line.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said, "It does not appear that the inflation rate is turning down. I would not be surprised if we did not get increases in food prices which we will not like in the months ahead."

Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, explained the problems with cutting the federal budget in areas such as defense and other economic measures with numerous charts.

He explained that inflation has built up momentum and said it was like an aircraft carrier which cannot be turned around in a short radius.

He was confronted by Murray H. Finley, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, who said: "You should put a picture of a kid on the board who is denied a school lunch program, not pictures of charts going up and down."

Jerry Wurf of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees accused Ash of "doubletalk on the figures."

After the meeting, Wurf said, "The President has surrounded himself with men whose concept is that the way to deal with the problem is to impoverish the poor even further."

The kingpin of the AFL-CIO, George Meany, summed it all up for Ford. The first thing, he said, "is to agree that we are doing something wrong."

Then he discussed what he sees as the wrong things: tight money, high interest rates and plans for "indiscriminate" budget cutting.

In other developments: —A preliminary meeting was to be held tonight in Chicago for the Sept. 13 pre-summit session on agriculture in Kansas City. Farm and food industry groups were expected to challenge Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz opposition to export controls on crops.

—The Senate Civil Service Committee voted Wednesday to reject one of Ford's antiinflation moves, a three-month delay of a 5.5 per cent pay raise for government workers.

Military Seizes Throne From Emperor Selassie

LONDON (UPI) — Ethiopia's armed forces toppled Emperor Haile Selassie today from his 3,000-year-old throne and proclaimed a military regime to rule the country temporarily.

The armed forces promised new elections and invited Selassie's son, Crown Prince Woosan, to take the throne as a figurehead constitutional monarch. U.S. Embassy sources in London said.

Woosan, 57, is ill in Switzerland.

Selassie, the tiny, 82-year-old "Lion of Judah," bowed to the inevitable this morning and accepted an Armed Forces Committee decree deposing him as Emperor of the nation he had ruled since 1916, the sources said.

The American sources said Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, was quiet. They said they had no word of the Emperor's whereabouts. Other sources said he had been taken from the palace his army nationalized a month ago and conveyed to a place "specially prepared for him."

The armed forces decree did not abolish Ethiopia's monarchy, which is said to trace in an unbroken line from a union between the Biblical King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

The decree said new elections would be held, though it specified no time, and a new constitution proclaimed, the sources said.

It ignored Selassie's decree naming his grandson, a student in England, as his successor and invited Crown Prince Woosan, Selassie's sole surviving son, to assume the crown.

In 1960 Woosan was implicated in a revolt by Selassie's palace guard while the Emperor was abroad. Selassie quickly quelled that revolt.

But in recent years southern Ethiopia has been gripped by a killing drought. In the end it was this drought, and Selassie's handling of it in the context of his feudal and absolute power, that led to his overthrow.

Troops under the Ethiopian command of the Ethiopian Armed Forces Committee — which already had stripped Selassie of the power he wielded absolutely until seven months ago — were deployed at key points in Addis Ababa, the embassy report said.

The embassy said Addis Ababa airport was closed and warned travelers against trying to enter the country for the time being, the sources said.

Congress Cautious Of More Pardons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said today there appears to be a "unanimous feeling" in Congress that there should be no interference with impending Watergate cases.

"I don't know of any congressman or senator who wants a blanket pardon at this time," Scott said after a 1 1/2 hour meeting with President Ford at the White House. "I don't think the American people want any blanket pardons."

White House spokesman John W. Hushen said Wednesday that contrary to interpretations of his earlier remarks Ford "never, ever planned to give mass amnesty" for any Watergate figures and "it was never under study."

Pardons on an individual basis might be considered if requested by the defendants, Hushen said. As of Wednesday there had been no such requests.

"I have made no such request," said John J. Wilson, attorney for H.R. Haldeman, one of the former White House aides who is to go on trial Sept. 30 on Watergate cover-up charges. "But I haven't excluded from my mind considering it and talking to Mr. Haldeman about it."

Ford's surprise pardon of former President Nixon and the subsequent announcement that pardons for all Watergate defendants was "under study" set off a wave of protest. A presidential assistant who did not want to be identified said telephone calls of protest were still coming to the White House and the announcement caused "panic" among the staff.

Scott, who along with other congressional leaders met with Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to discuss the foreign assistance program, said that while many approved of the Nixon pardon there was a general opposition against blanket pardons and "a full and complete disclosure of the Watergate story."

Scott said he believed requests for pardons from Watergate defendants should be considered on a "case by case" basis.

Scott said that he had talked to Nixon two weeks ago and found him "cheerful." Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said he also talked to Nixon on the telephone a few days ago about "his situation in general."

"I think the man is suffering a lot and going through a lot of pain and anguish," said Thurmond. "But he was emotionally stable."

He mentioned the fact that there seemed to be no end to his problems, Thurmond added.

RENEWS OPTION

TV Station Gives Offer To Guy Hardin On Suit

By PAUL SIMS

It was a year ago today that District Attorney Guy Hardin held a news conference in Pampa, to which we were not invited, to say he was going to sue KVII-TV.

The statute of limitations runs out at midnight tonight. We have not been served (with a subpoena) and never expected to be served, for we can produce, in a civil action, evidence that would uphold our allegations about the questionable conduct of Mr. Hardin's office.

Therefore, we wish to renew Mr. Hardin's option another year to take us to court for allegedly libeling him.

"Evidence that may not have held up in his grand jury hearing would surely be admissible in a civil action."

"This has been a KVII editorial."

The preceding editorial, regarding allegations last year made by KVII-TV concerning Gray County District Attorney Guy Hardin and a suspected payoff, was a part of Wednesday's 6 and 10 p.m. Channel 7 news broadcasts.

The minute-long statement broke a year's silence after the Gray County grand jury found "no evidence that Guy Hardin is guilty of taking a bribe or pay-off" Sept. 7, 1973, in a report to District Judge Grainger McIlhenny.

The investigation of Hardin stemmed from questions raised by KVII news reporter Sandy Wright, who on June 23, 1973 told the Pampa News, "Some law officers in Gray County" said that they suspect a pay-off, "regarding the alleged dismissal of charges in a drug case involving three Pampa residents."

KVII aired the story that "a payoff was suspected by officers" after no arraignment was filed on the residents.

The station also raised questions about 45 arrests made recent to June, 1973, where only five went to trial. In the other 40, according to the station, the charges were dismissed by Hardin.

Many of the cases allegedly dismissed were no-billed by the grand jury and several were later presented again. Indictments were returned on some of those cases.

When the grand jury released its statement to McIlhenny, Hardin told the News, "I was very pleased by the report from the grand jury. Even though it was embarrassing, I wasn't worried about the outcome."

"Suit will be filed on Sandy Wright and on television station KVII in Amarillo," the DA added.

Hardin did not hear Wednesday night's editorial as it was aired. When it was read to him this morning, Hardin said, "I had been advised by my attorney (Bill Waters of Pampa) that there are federal decisions that would be adverse to any lawsuit — to any lawsuit that we might have."

"And I was advised by my attorney that it was not feasible to pursue the matter. That's about it...I just took the advice of my attorney and am going to Mr. Pratt and his people."

Asked about what the editorial meant to Hardin, he replied, "It sounded like a challenge. I do not respect a man like that (Pratt). I am simply going to ignore Mr. Pratt. I don't think it's worth discussing with him."

The first part of the editorial, especially the charge, "Mr. Pratt is a liar; I've never called a news conference about this at anytime. This part just burns me. I've never called a news conference."

Hardin then told the News to talk to Waters, who would be glad to answer any other questions concerning the legal problems of a suit against the station.

"I don't have any comment to make at all," the lawyer, who also missed last night's news broadcast said.

Pratt agreed with Hardin — the editorial was a challenge. "Yes, it was a challenge. I'd like for him to take me to court. My contention is that he cried suit in order to try to whitewash himself."

"I'm just waiting. If he's still district attorney a year from now, I'll renew the option for another year."

SHOWERS FORECAST Cold Air Plunges Into Pampa Area

Fall made another premature visit to the Panhandle regions today as an unseasonable cold mass of air plunged into the area, dropping temperatures into the 40s this morning after highs in the 90s yesterday.

Pampa's low this morning was 47, after a Wednesday high of 92. The temperature stood in the upper 40s at forenoon, with gray, cloudy skies and a brisk wind threatening to keep it down there.

Showers are in the forecast through Friday, with 60 percent chance tonight and tomorrow.

In UPI reports: Enroute to Texas, the cold triggered a two-inch snow in Denver. The National Weather Service in Fort Worth said the center of the cold air was still in Montana.

"It's a good, cold air mass," an NWS meteorologist said. "Unseasonably cold, we can call it. It is a bit chillier than the other cold front we had."

In the chilly air, temperatures were in the 70s.

The edge of the cold extended this morning from south of Childress to south of Lubbock and was advancing about 15 miles an hour.

Showers developed along the boundary of the cold air and other showers and some light rain extending below a line from Lufkin to Waco to Del Rio.

Forecasters looked for the cold to slow down slightly and ease into Central Texas tonight. Humidity ranged from 80 to 100 per cent over most of the state.

The colder weather brought clouds with it and forecasters called for fall-like weather into the weekend.

A late summer snow storm dumped up to three inches of snow on the eastern slopes of the central Rockies, making traveling hazardous today throughout much of Wyoming and parts of Colorado.

Fog cut visibility in the northern and mid-Atlantic states and thunderstorms spread into the lower Missouri Valley, Ohio Valley, Plains States, Great Lakes region and the western Gulf Coast States.

Most of Wyoming was blanketed under snow with Rawlins reporting three inches.

Falls City, Neb., reported two inches of rain. South Bend, Ind., 1 1/2 and Cincinnati, Ohio, one inch.

Chile Gives Offer To Free Prisoners

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Chile's military junta has marked the first anniversary of the violent overthrow of the late President Salvador Allende with an elaborate offer to free thousands of political prisoners.

Gen. Augusto Pinochet, head of the four-man junta, used Wednesday's anniversary ceremonies to offer freedom to most political prisoners — but only if Cuba and the Soviet Union released an equal number of dissidents.

The general, who led the Sept. 11, 1973, coup that toppled Allende's Marxist regime, also lifted a state of internal war declared a year ago, but left intact a nearly identical state of siege.

Chilean lawyers said both the state of internal war and the state of siege suspended constitutional guarantees in the country. They doubted the decision to suspend the war decree would bring any basic changes.

Pinochet said a nightly curfew would remain in effect and military tribunals would continue to try Allende supporters "for a considerable time to come."

The government is ready to authorize, with the exception of some cases of special gravity, the definite exit of those (political prisoners) who desire to leave the nation's territory, Pinochet said.

He said, however, the government considered it a "moral right" to "challenge the Soviet Union and Cuba to grant the right for a similar number of prisoners to abandon those nations" before freeing jailed Allende supporters.

Pinochet, a militant anti-Communist, strongly has been criticized by the Soviet and Cuban governments for his tough handling of Chilean leftists.

The junta has reported about 2,000 political prisoners in the country, but Amnesty International, a London-based lawyers' group, has put the figure at up to 10,000.

The anniversary of the coup was also marked by the largest public demonstration ever seen in the country. Police said 750,000 persons jammed a Santiago park and adjoining streets to pay a noisy tribute to the junta.

District Court Studies Cases

As of today, dispositions had been made in all criminal cases "ready for trial" in the current (July) term of 31st District Court, according to District Judge Grainger W. McIlhenny, presiding judge.

In many cases both defense and prosecution had reported that they were not ready for trial.

These will be re-set for the next jury trial session, beginning Oct. 21.

Included are criminal cases involving the following persons:

Pedro O'Dell Martinez, charged with assault with intent to commit murder, with malice; and Gary D. Sikes, charged with aggravated sexual abuse threats.

In Wednesday's deliberations, Roger D. Martin, charged with burglary, was sentenced by Judge McIlhenny to seven years probation in a non-jury trial.

All eight civil cases listed on the current docket will be heard the week of Oct. 21.

Books

A Bridge Too Far, by Cornelius Ryan. (Simon & Schuster, $12.50.)
Conceived by Field Marshal Montgomery, reluctantly approved by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, the battle of Arnhem, the greatest airborne operation of World War II, ended in abject failure.
Cornelius Ryan brilliantly recounts this attempt by a combined British and American force to sneak through the northern "back door" of Germany in 1944 and cut short the war.
The Arnhem bridge in central Holland was the key. Montgomery sent two U.S. airborne divisions and one British division, a total of 35,000 men, to "lay a carpet of airborne troops down over which ground forces can pass," as one optimistic British general described the operation.

But the British ground troops, fighting north along a corridor from Belgium and led by the Irish Guards, was blocked. As one bitter lieutenant said, "Arnhem and those paratroopers were just ahead of almost never felt such morbid despair."
Ryan has written about more sprawling, complex operations in "The Longest Day" and his book on the battle for Berlin. But here the biting pain of defeat results in a far more grippingly suspenseful story.
Ironies abound: the British ignored a report from the Dutch underground that warned of a buildup of German strength in the attack area; the complete attack order plan, including even the names of the British divisions, was captured by the Germans but ignored as suspect.
Ryan writes clearly, dramatically, with mounting impact, never omitting the telling detail. A Dutch nurse watches from a window as Germans dig foxholes, thinking what a "beautiful view of the battle" she will have. Nearby the American soldier who will become her husband is landing by parachute.
A slambang important story of war and men.

ROCK MUSIC

United Press International
Most rock bands that use horns end up becoming "horn bands" that sometimes play rock. The brass sound has a tendency to take over and limit the group as a whole.
Now, however, we have Isis, a very good rock band that knows how to use horns without letting them take over.
It should be unnecessary to mention that Isis is all women—perhaps soon that fact will no longer be either unusual or important. But right now Isis stands alone as the only all-female band with everything it takes to make it in the hard world of rock 'n' roll.
A major barrier to previous women's groups has been the lack of an experienced pool of talent to draw from.
"They (women) were afraid to try it," says Isis founder Carol MacDonald. "But let me tell you something—there were a lot of female bands around in the 60's. It's just that nobody took them seriously. It was a drag."
But, she insists, "that's all changed now—with Isis it has. And if it's changing with us it's going to change with everybody else—people who can really play."
Collectively and individually, the members of Isis hold receipts for their share of paid-up dues. Most have been in the business for years—and have left many a snub and illogical snicker in their dust.
More important to Isis' music than sex is the band's New York origins, that strange raunchy funkiness unique to the Big Apple.
Their costumes are a case in point, ranging from frilly dresses to studded black leather. From Flash Gordon on the Nile and painted faces to Sta-Prest blue denim cowboy. No attempt at coordination, no way to predict the sound on the basis of appearance.
"I'd be uncomfortable up there wearing a T-shirt," says MacDonald. "I like to wear makeup and dress up. But some of the girls aren't comfortable with that kind of thing. So we just leave it loose."
Isis is pure dynamite live—but a bit shaky on the debut album "Isis" Buddah BDS 5605.
The band plays well, but the album fails because of a spotty production by Old Pro "Shadow" Morton. One has the painful feeling that Morton failed to take his charges seriously enough as musicians and gimmicked the album to death.
First two cuts on the LP—"Waiting for the Sunrise" and "Everybody Needs a Forever"—are the best, covering the full range of Isis' impressive talents. "Sunrise" is hard rock, straight and simple, pegged on a gutsy vocal from MacDonald and the raspy lead guitar of Suzi Ghezzi. "Forever" is the opposite extreme, a mellow ballad made particularly tasty by some fine brass harmonies and Stella Bass' unique bass style.
It's downhill from there—with an incredibly heavy handed production crucifying one of the band's strongest tunes, "Servant Savior," and a pretty much up-and-down effort through the rest of the album.
Isis deserves to make it. They play an enthusiastic, get-it-on brand of rock with tight arrangements and varied and interesting writing. They have a power that comes from more than being dedicated entertainers—they believe in their music.

Governors Suggest Statewide Grand Juries, Crime Attacks

AUSTIN (UPI) — Southern governors have recommended creation of statewide grand juries and special crime fighting units in their states to battle encroaching organized crime, but balked at a proposal to legalize court-ordered wiretaps.
The governors, who ended their 40th annual Southern Governors' Conference Wednesday, contended the wiretap provision was too much of a threat to the privacy of individuals.
Arkansas Gov. Dale

Bumpers moved to knock the wiretap language out of the conference resolution on organized crime, and only Florida Gov. Reubin Askew and Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe objected.
"I think one of the key issues facing the nation in the next decade is the matter of privacy," Bumpers said.
"I think the events of the past two years have shown us what abuses can occur when you have this kind of foot-in-the-door legislation."
The governors passed 15 other resolutions, including one calling for creation of a national energy policy and phased de-regulation of the prices of oil and natural gas.
Only an hour before the governors voted down the wiretap proposal, FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley had told them such a measure was necessary if they hoped to successfully fight organized crime in the South.
Askew, elected to head the Southern Governors' Conference for the next year, told his colleagues their region has outgrown its past and is ready now to assume a leadership role in the nation.
"The South today stands ready and better prepared for what lies ahead than at any time in its past," he said.
"We go forward with a new outlook, a growing confidence, an even greater sense of belonging, of contributing and leading our country."

"And let it be recorded that in 1974, a clear and final message went out which said that the people of the South were too busy and concerned about serious problems to be preoccupied with and diverted by a political issue of the dark past."
Another speaker, the Rev. Leon Sullivan of Philadelphia, told the governors he sees a new South emerging.
Sullivan, grandson of a slave and founder of the Opportunities Industrialization Center, told the governors "hate and segregation won't win elections in the South like they used to."
"To be governor in the South now you need more than an axe handle, you need justice and understanding," Sullivan said. But he warned the governors they must begin immediately to wipe out poverty among both blacks and whites in the South.
The governors voted to hold their 1975 conference at Disney World in Orlando, Fla.

Boy Recovers From Plague

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI) — Public Health officials say a 5-year-old boy is recovering from bubonic plague—only the second case of the dread disease reported in the United States this year.
Dr. Taira Fukushima, director of the Utah Bureau of Disease Prevention, said tests confirmed Wednesday that the young boy had the plague.
Fukushima said doctors suspected it when the boy was hospitalized in late August.
"We were fortunate. We caught it early, and treated it early," the doctor said. "The plague is easy to cure if you catch it soon enough. The boy will be going home in a few days."
Fukushima said a special plague unit from the U.S. Public Service in Fort Collins, Colo., was investigating to find out where the boy contracted the disease. Local health officials suspect it came from infected rodents.
"You know how young boys are," he said. "We know that other members of the boy's family had been trapping squirrels and other rodents. They also have several wild animals as pets."

Bumpers moved to knock the wiretap language out of the conference resolution on organized crime, and only Florida Gov. Reubin Askew and Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe objected.
"I think one of the key issues facing the nation in the next decade is the matter of privacy," Bumpers said.

AT WOUNDED KNEE Jury Deliberating Fate Of Takeover's Leaders

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Defense attorney William Kunstler, tears welling in his eyes, told the jury: "These men are now in your hands. Take good care of them. They are my brothers."
His case completed, he sat down at the defense table and wept.
The jury of nine women and three men were to begin deliberations today on the guilt or innocence of American Indian Movement leaders Dennis Banks and Russell Means, accused of five counts of felony each in last year's takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D.
Final arguments ended Wednesday.
Kunstler, a veteran of civil rights cases, praised his clients for taking action in the name of Indians' rights. He said government charges against the defendants "have been said by prosecutors about everyone who stood up, through history."
"Those who never speak never bring about change," he said.
The prosecution, however, told the jury not to decide whether the takeover of the South Dakota reservation village was right or wrong, but whether crimes were committed.
"I don't care if they were right or wrong in taking over Wounded Knee—the law in a free society cannot contenance people resorting to violence and terrorism," chief prosecutor R. D. Hurd said. "I'm going to put the blame on the people who started the events."

"Your duty is to decide whether or not a crime occurred."
Defense attorney Mark Lane told the court the only place for Indians to go for justice was Wounded Knee—"and that's where they went."

But Hurd said a "flagrant attempt to portray Means and Banks as representative is unfair to the American Indians."
New Hampshire's scenic Crawford Notch was discovered in 1771 by a hunter, Timothy Nash, while tracking a moose.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Safeguarding the Tenant
Olga returned from the market to find that a burglar had broken into her apartment and decamped with some jewelry. Upon reflection, she decided that the landlord ought to pay damages for the loss.
"His caretaker had left the front door of the building open the entire day," she pointed out in a court hearing. "Obviously that made things easier for the thief. A landlord has a duty to shield his tenants against crime."
But the court said that generally speaking, a landlord has no such duty. Rejecting Olga's claim, the court said crime prevention is primarily the job of the government, not of private property owners.
This is the traditional rule of law, leaving tenants pretty much "on their own" with regard to crime. However, a few courts have ruled recently that at least in certain situations, the landlord may bear some responsibility.
Another case involved an apartment building that was located in a high-crime district. The lobby had only dim lighting, and the front door lock, having once been broken, was left that way.
One night an elderly tenant, entering the lobby, was beaten by an unknown assailant who had been lurking in the darkness. In these circumstances, a court said later, the landlord could be held liable for "creating a condition conducive to criminal assaults."
But even a neglectful landlord won't be blamed if his negligence was not the "proximate cause" of the crime.
Thus, another landlord was held not liable for a robbery, even though he had failed to repair a faulty lock on the tenant's door.
It seems that on the day of the robbery, the tenant had left a ground floor window open. Since the robber may well have gained entry through the window instead of the door, the court said it was impossible to pin the crime on the landlord.

Old Horse Not Her Old Self

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — William Toney's horse is not an old gray mare, but he's getting his money back anyhow, by court order.
Toney, a former St. Louisan now living in Houston, bought the horse for his teen-aged daughter. He sued to get his money back when he found out that the horse was blind in one eye.
St. Louis County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Campbell denied the claim, saying the horse was good enough for trail rides and shows.
Toney appealed the case and Appeals Court Judge George F. Gunn Jr. agreed that he should get his $690 back.
Gunn said the horse "was definitely not an old gray mare. But, alas, neither was she what she used to be."

High Costs To Produce Tough Beef

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — There is a hidden barb in the announcement that cattle feedlots across Texas are feeding and slaughtering far fewer cattle than during the same period a year ago.

On its face, the announcement indicates a continued bleak financial picture for feedlot operators because of high feed prices and other costs, and seems to suggest there will be fewer steaks and less hamburger for the nation the rest of the year.

That's the hidden barb, and it's the classic good news-bad news cliché. There will be plenty of meat, but it's going to remind a lot of beef-eaters of the rugged longhorns dined on decades ago.

The cattle population in the United States reached 138 million head on July 1, which is 7.5 million more than a year ago, the largest yearly increase in history, said Richard McDonald, executive assistant of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

Ranchers just can't afford to send these cattle to the feedlots. In the past few months, the price of sorghum (the main ingredient for feed in Texas) jumped 50 per cent, in the last 16 months it has increased 100 per cent and in the last 36 months, up 200 per cent. The reasons for high grain prices are grain exports to foreign countries and the early-summer drought in much of the United States.

The Association said during August Texas feedlots were operating at 65 per cent capacity.

Feedlots are what the name implies, a huge series of pens which hold a crowded amount of cattle who do nothing for two to three months but eat and stand around, getting fat.

The technique began about 30 years ago, and as consumers became accustomed to the tender, juicy, well marbled steaks which feedlots produced, it grew and became virtually a required step in the marketing process for beef cattle.

McDonald said the huge supply of cattle on the nation's ranges cannot be held off the market indefinitely and so it will be sent to the market directly from the range.

The big benefit of the feedlots was a uniform product, McDonald said. With grassfed cattle you get the extremes. Some can be as juicy and tender as if they'd been fed, but you're also going to get some tough ones, a loss of the juicy quality the consumer demands.

The cattle are going to go to the market off of all kinds of forages, from rye grass, oats, wheat, native grasses, the blue stems. The last 300 to 400 pounds used to be put on with sorghum, but now you won't know what it comes from. But it beats no beef at all.

Donated materials and volunteer labor are being utilized in redecorating the lobby-lounge. Included is the wood-burning fireplace (upper left). TO GET FAIR TREATMENT

Economist Urges Farmers, Ranchers To Show Views

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — A veteran agricultural economist says farmers and ranchers should take advantage of President Ford's antinflation campaign to receive fair treatment in any new governmental policies.

Dr. Tyrus R. Timm, a Texas Agricultural Experiment Station economist for 38 years, Wednesday said food and fiber producers can make their views known in three ways:

—As individuals exercising their citizen rights.

—Through general farm organizations or commodity groups.

—Through their representatives in Congress and the executive branch.

"It's time for farmers and ranchers to speak up," Timm said. He said there is an urgent need for all advisers in the President's inflation discussions to understand three basic "behavior patterns" about the nation's giant agricultural complex.

"Otherwise America's farmers and ranchers neither will participate as full partners in the inflation program nor receive fair and equitable treatment in the policies and controls adopted," Timm said.

He said the first behavior pattern involves price trends in and out of agriculture. With the high rate of inflation continuing, wider disparities are showing up among farm product prices, between agricultural and non-agricultural prices and wages.

Timm foresees stronger inflationary pressures for the next few years on the cost side of farming and ranching.

The second behavior pattern is the structure of the U. S. agricultural economy, he said. Timm believes inflation control be far more complex in this country than in other advanced nations.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wright Investors' Service suggests that investors keep a moderate cash-equivalent reserve position until the stock market gives a better indication it has reached its low in the current decline. It recommends retention of highgrade equities up to an invested position of around 85 per cent "in the expectation of... generally rising stock market prices next year."

The First of Michigan Corp. says it anticipates further "slight shifts" in the Federal Reserve's monetary policy, though it adds that the Fed seems to fear the markets will expect a "significantly easier" policy and push rates up fast. "If reaction to the Fed's signals does not give too strong a response, the Fed probably will continue with less restraint, hoping fiscal policy via budget cuts will help with the job of controlling inflation," the firm adds.

Paine Webber Jackson & Curtis says the pace of price boosts probably will remain close to 10 per cent through the rest of the year. However, the firm adds, as the economy begins to feel the easing in the rate of gain in wholesale prices of industrial commodities, price increases should slip to an annual rate of around seven per cent by the first quarter of next year.

TO TRAIN PERSONNEL

Soviets Plan Rehearsal For Joint Space Flight

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Soviets have stretched their commitment for next July's joint American-Russian space flight to include a full dress rehearsal in orbit, the chief of cosmonaut training said Wednesday.

At the beginning of negotiations for the international flight about two years ago, the Soviets said they would prepare two separate launch rockets and Soyuz ships and have two prime and two backup crews to prevent serious delays.

Vladimir A. Shatalov, heading a Soviet delegation at the Johnson Space Center working on the joint flight, said at a news conference Wednesday they planned an in-flight checkout of all the new hardware needed for the mission a few months before the July 15 launch.

Shatalov said one of the backup cosmonauts would make the test flight, but declined to identify which one of the six it would be.

"This will be nothing more than a full dress rehearsal of the joint flight. It is also to train the rest of the personnel, ground personnel, for the joint flight."

The United States which has not had the problems the Soviets seemed plagued with in their missions, has one Apollo ship and Saturday rocket prepared for the flight and only one prime and backup crew as they have had in all past programs. Shatalov said that although the Americans will not test fly the docking mechanism and equipment, he is not worried.

"Judging by the training I witnessed at Star City and here yesterday, I have no doubts that the American crews are well-prepared for this mission," he said.

Shatalov said the joint flight should bring the two nations closer together and further cooperation they have attained.

"We are confident that such joint cooperation will continue to develop," he said. "I am deeply confident that space has opened up only briefly for us. We're just beginning. In the next stages of history, I'm confident we will go through it together page by page."

Thomas P. Stafford, commander of the America crew for the flight, said the recent Soyuz 15 failure to dock in orbit with the Soviet Salyut space station, would not affect the international mission. He said a totally different docking mechanism was on Soyuz 15 than will be used for Apollo-Soyuz.

COUNTRY MUSIC

By J.R. YOUNG
Copyright 1974 Country Music Magazine
So what's this all about? Today, two of the hottest female vocalists in country music not only don't hail from the United States, but also didn't get into country music until their careers were well under way.

In fact, even today, with her last two singles both topping the country charts — and her album, too — one of the young ladies admits that she doesn't know the first thing about country music, has never been to Nashville, and at one point was quoted as saying she could "hardly wait to get to meet Hank Williams, because he's written so many beautiful songs." At least she was half right. That's Olivia Newton-John, an Aussie. The other lady is Anne Murray, a Canadian.

Anne Murray's country credentials are more in order than those of Olivia Newton-John by dint of time and proximity. Nova Scotia is hardly Down Under and country music does thrive in the Provinces. After all, it was that same Canadian Province that gave us the Singing Ranger himself, Hank Snow, and Wilf Carter, better known as Montana Slim.

Beyond all that, Anne has established herself with a string of hit country singles beginning with "Snowbird" — a crossover pop hit, too — "Cotton Jenny," and "Let's Talk It Over In The Morning." Distinct country. It's her latest single, however, that's most interesting, and indicates a real awareness on Miss Murray's part as to where her audience is. On one side was a pop re-do of the old Beatles hit, "You Won't See Me," and on the other side, a countrified "He Thinks I Still Care."

AM Announces Price Increase

ROCHESTER, Mich. (UPI) — American Motors today announced that tentative prices for its 1975 models will average $300 more than comparable 1974 models, the smallest price increases in the industry.

The 7.7 per cent increase is more than $100 below those already announced by General Motors and Ford. Chrysler has said its prices will be in the same ballpark as GM and Ford.

AMC Chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. said the increases, which will be made firm when 1975 autos are introduced in mid-November, are "the minimum we can see because the pressures are, in fact, tremendous."

Chapin told newsmen at the company's new model preview near Detroit that inflation will continue to be a problem in the coming model year.

"It isn't going to be business as usual in automotive markets after the dust has settled from events of 1974," Chapin said. "Car buyer attitudes, I believe, have changed permanently."

Anne herself was last seen in Los Angeles appearing to sellout crowds with rock & rollers Loggins and Messina. And she was making sure that her audience knew her country hits from the regular fare. The funny thing about it was that there wasn't any real difference. It was all just nice stuff.

If that hints at a certain crossover and identity problem in today's country music, then consider the plight of Olivia Newton-John.

Born in Cambridge, England, raised in Melbourne, Australia, the granddaughter of a Nobel Prize-winning physicist, daughter of a college president, Olivia backed into country music and, for all intents and purposes, may soon back out of it.

She never aimed her music in any one direction, but rather just made it. Country disc jockeys just happened to pick up on her before disc jockeys in other fields. That's how she got her "country" label.

Frankly, I was surprised. I'd never listened to country music, much less intended to make it. Olivia said, "In England, we aren't as concerned with categories as you are in the United States. In England we just do what we like and don't worry about whether it's country or pop or whatever."

"We liked that certain Western sound you heard in 'Let Me Be There' and 'If You Love Me, Let Me Know,' but that didn't mean we were going into the country music business."

"But I'm proud to have been accepted by the country music fans in the States." Beyond those rather general statements, Olivia has little to say about country music.

But then, perhaps it's asking too much to expect her to be an expert or even a fan. In fact, on second thoughts, it's patently absurd and rather country-chauvinistic to even fancy such an idea.

To be truly realistic, I think it's safe to assume that country music will eventually have to relinquish its claim on Olivia, and give her over to pop in general — in much the same way as Anne Murray.

And if I don't miss my guess, it's happening already. "I Honestly Love You," Olivia's latest single, was on the pop charts with a bullet a few weeks back, but had yet to register on the country charts, a first for Olivia.

And two more things. In just one week in Los Angeles, Olivia was interviewed by Journalists from "Newsweek," UPI, "The Los Angeles Free Press," "Country Music Magazine," the music trades, and enough others to cover the entire spectrum of Americana.

And she appeared, with a full orchestra and no rhythm section, for a week-long engagement at the Greek Theater with The Smothers Brothers.

TV In Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Aside from avocados and oranges, tired detectives may be one of the chief commodities of Southern California.

There have been the Sam Spades, the Phillip Marlowes, and only recently Jack Nicholson played J.J. Gittes in the much acclaimed film, "Chinatown."

At their best these fictionalized crime fighters entertain and evoke the mood and decadence of Southern California. They are the private eyes, the gumshoes, the dicks. All of them are loners — cynics, who like the heroes of Camus continue to live because they have nothing else to do.

They are the existentialist man of the philosophers. Thursday night, 10-11, ABC rolls out its version of this genre, "Harry O," starring David Janssen, the old warhorse of "The Fugitive" and "Richard Diamond, Detective."

Harry O — the O is for Orwell — is a private investigator who lives on a medical disability from the San Diego Police Force. He still has a bullet in his back and bolsters his pension by taking freelance cases.

In the premiere episode, titled "Gertrude," a flaky girl sells all her possessions so she can hire Mr. O to find her lost brother. In the process Harry gets caught in a web of naval intelligence and diamond theft.

Janssen's portrayal of Harry is vaguely reminiscent of the best California detectives because of the props he uses — the loosened tie, the slouchy clothes, the hungry look. He even takes a bus and borrows a beat up Volkswagen for effect.

Otherwise his performance will not haunt you or make you think about the tragedy of life. It is simply a workmanlike cops and robbers portrayal. But it is a cut above Mannix and Cannon.

Earlier in the evening, ABC dipped into Peter Bogdanovich's "Paper Moon" and turned out a half-hour version about two Depression era conartists, Moses and Addie Pray, age 11. She says he's her father. He declines the offer.

In the first episode, "Settling," Moses, played by Christopher Connelly, and Addie, played by Jodie Foster, buy a house and try to settle down. She's tired of huckstering across Kansas.

The only problem is that after the couple flim flams enough cash and buys the house from two so-called real-estate merchants, the actual owner arrives and kicks them out. It's a Midwestern version of selling the Brooklyn Bridge.

Father, Son Claim Evidence For Efficient Steam Powered Auto

United Press International
J. W. Carter Jr. of Burkburnett, Tex., says he knows the low polluting, energy efficient steam powered automobile ranks with the perpetual motion machine in the minds of most Americans.

"There have been a lot of steam cars that really were flops," he said. "And I guess that gave steam a bad name. That's why we (including his father, J.W. Sr.) haven't talked about our car until now. Now we have got it."

The Carters have worked for four years developing their prototype steam powered car. Both are mechanical engineers with degrees from Texas Tech University in Lubbock, and they say the evidence provided by the first car will lead to a second car that will encompass all of the demands of the Environmental Protection Agency, the energy crisis and the U.S. car buying public.

But there are difficulties, primarily along the line that everybody "has heard that old song before."

The EPA tested the car last May and passed along a preliminary, moderately negative result. The governmental agency, which must approve the car before it can be marketed and also controls grant money which the Carters want to build the second car, is currently writing a lengthy evaluation of it.

Carter Jr. said he felt the political influences in the EPA had a lot to do with the less than joyful reception of model one. The EPA has spent several million dollars on research into steam cars and recently contracted with a firm for $2.9 million for further development.

"There is pride, egotism," Carter said. "I think a lot of people up there are protecting decisions made a couple of years ago on steam. They want it developed by the EPA."

The EPA had refused even to evaluate the Carters' car until they were asked to do so by Rep. Bob Price, R-Tex., and Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., D-Tex.

"The public thinks a steam car is a long way off."

Carter said. "But if we can build a steam car which greatly exceeds EPA requirements and has many features that will appeal to the public."

The car can operate on most any fuel, including coal tar, a derivative of coal.

"There's an awful lot of coal in this country and we are running short on other petroleum supplies," Carter said. "The sooner we can change over to coal tar and save our petroleum supplies for other needs, the better this country is going to be."

The engine and boiler is unique, Carter said. The engine is a closed system and, therefore, allows the moving parts to be virtually bathed in oil, for nearly perfect lubrication which keeps the engine performing for years. The boiler is the same as those used in electrical generating plants and will last for years.

The closed system means the owner never has to add water for the boiler or oil for the engine. Used water and oil leaves the working area as exhaust but is collected in a basin and then separated by a small centrifuge and pumped back into the system.

The EPA's emission standards for 1975 model cars limits the car to .41 hydrocarbons per thousand cubic feet of air, 3.5 units of carbon monoxide and .40 nitrous oxides. Carter said highway driving tests of his car by the EPA revealed it emitted .02 hydrocarbons, .28 carbon monoxide and .31 nitrous oxides and that all of those statistics and a 24 mile per gallon fuel economy can be improved in the second car.

"We can build this second car much better than the first using the technology and ideas we've developed in the first car, taking care of the obvious areas of improvement," Carter said. "It is just simple engineering calculation."

"I'm sure the EPA wishes we would leave them alone. I know they have a lot of people asking them for money. I know they have their problems, but at the same time they have an obligation to the people of the United States to develop a low polluting, energy efficient system as quickly and cheaply as they can, and what we're proposing is just such a system."

"Why they don't just jump on it like a bee on honey I don't know."

Attorneys Want Investigation Of Nixon's Practice

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A group of California attorneys wants the state bar to determine former President Richard Nixon's "fitness to practice law," despite his planned resignation from the bar.

A petition was circulated today among the 500 delegates to the annual State Bar meeting, asking that an already lengthy investigation into possible disbarment proceedings against Nixon be completed.

Nixon's personal attorney, Dean S. Butler, previously announced that the former president will resign from the California Bar "to engage in matters other than the practice of law."

Some members feared the investigation would be forgotten once Nixon's letter of resignation was forwarded to California's Supreme Court, which is the final authority in the matter.

"We are opposed to any course of action which would impede a full and complete investigation of Mr. Nixon's fitness to practice law," said Mary Nichols, 29, a Los Angeles attorney who headed the drive.

The petition contained more than 50 signatures late Tuesday.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Two results of Pampa's 35-8 win over Hereford last Friday are the Harvesters have become the number one offensive team in the district and the number two defensive team. It's too early to be sure but it looks like Pampa may have beaten the odds after all.

The Harvesters rolled up 241 yards on the ground and rank third among district teams, but the 125 yards of Chuck Quarles' passes leads district teams, giving the Harvesters 366 yards total offense. Palo Duro, a 20-14 victor over Dumas, is second with 322 rushing, 31 passing and 353 total yards.

Other teams are Caprock, 263-28-291; Borger, 152-11-163; Amarillo High, 110-41-151; and Tascosa, 88-45-133. Caprock trounced Odessa Ector, 41-0, in its opener. Perryton nipped Borger, 8-7. Amarillo High fell to Odessa, 21-7, and Tascosa was whipped by Midland, 24-6.

Defensively, Caprock ranks as the best, holding the Eagles to minus 15 yards rushing and 90 yards passing for 75 yards. Pampa is second with 130 yards. Pampa is second with 130 yards, 61 rushing and 69 threw the air as Hereford completed four of 17 passes.

Other teams are Borger, 162-43-205; Palo Duro, 166-45-211; Amarillo High, 154-58-212, and Tascosa, 252-59-311.

The Amarillo Globe - News this morning ranked Pampa as the fourth best AAAA team in the area, behind Palo Duro, Lubbock Monterey and Lubbock Coronado. The Harvesters are ahead of Caprock, Borger, Plainview, Amarillo High, Tascosa, Hereford and Lubbock in that order.

So statistically the Pampa Harvesters had a successful game against the Whitefaces. But it's unrealistic to say Pampa has a successful team, it's just too early.

Several Harvesters look to be on their way to a good year.

Three of Pampa's backs - fullback David Smith, left halfback Rick Leverich and Quarles - are among the top eight rushers in the district. Smith is fifth with 11 carries for 76 yards, a 6.9 average. He is behind David Beezley of Palo Duro, six for 194; Greg Sellmyer, Palo Duro, 15 for 106; Chuck Velasquez, Caprock, 18 for 103, and Mike Glover, Borger, 11 for 80.

Leverich has 67 yards on 22 rushes for a 3.0 average and ranks seventh behind Caprock Dennis Skelton, 15 for 75 and a 5.0 average.

Quarles is eighth with 62 yards on 11 attempts for a 5.6 average.

Quarles has taken up where he left off last year when he was the number one passer in the district, completing five of nine against Hereford for 125 yards and touchdowns. The 5-6, 130-pound senior, is first among district quarterbacks. Quarles' two touchdown throws are the only ones by any quarterback.

Danny Ross of Tascosa is second with two completions in eight attempts for 45 yards. He is followed by Stanley Stambaugh of Palo Duro, four of six for 31 yards and two interceptions. Bobby Stewart of Caprock, two of three for 28 yards. Key Sanford of Amarillo, three of seven for 22 yards. David Lancaster of Amarillo, one of four for 19 yards. Chuck Kelley of Borger, two of eight for 11 yards, and Kyle Williams of Caprock, zero for two.

Howie Lewis is Quarles' leading receiver with three catches for 72 yards (24 yard average) and two touchdowns. The 6-6 Lewis ranks first, ahead of James Mayberry of Tascosa, two for 45, a 22.5 average. Pampa's other receivers are Tim Thornburg, seventh with one catch for 38 yards, and Kelly Baker, 10th with one catch for 15 yards.

Rick Leverich of Pampa is the number two punter with five boots for a 37.2 average. Number one is Johnny Rae of Tascosa, three for a 39.6 average.

Lewis, Leverich, Stewart and Sellmyer all lead the district in scoring with 12 points. Others who have scored for Pampa are Quarles, six points, and Joe Coutts, three points.

Success isn't measured in numbers so Pampans will have to see a few more games to decide if they have a winner.

Favorites Advance In Ladies Tourney

The four championship flight favorites advanced to the second round in the winner's bracket with wins in Wednesday's first round in the Panhandle Women's Golf Association Country Club.

Action resumed at 9:30 a.m. today and was over early in the afternoon. The tournament will end Friday. Billie Nichols of Borger, last year's champion, defeated Fran Wilson of Pampa to send the latter to the consolation bracket. In other championship flight matches, Neoma Johnston of Amarillo beat Callie Combest of Panhandle. Ruby Holmes of Amarillo stopped Willa Brown of Amarillo and Jan Elston of Pampa defeated Alma Lamberson of Pampa.

Today, Mrs. Nichols played Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Holmes took on Mrs. Elston in the winner's bracket while the losers played in consolation matches.

In the first flight, Lou Regan of Borger edged Dorothy Hood of Amarillo.

Priscilla Simpson of Pampa defeated Mae Browning of Borger. Nell Carson of Borger halted Ava Warren of Pampa and Frankie Gates drew a bye.

In the second flight, Jackie Hassinger of Amarillo beat Jean Weatherby of Amarillo. Louise Pfahl of Amarillo nudged Mava Clark of Borger. Thelma O'Bryant of Borger downed Pat Peoples of Pampa and Lula Kuhn of Pampa drew a bye.

Third flight winners were Donna Jo Evans of Pampa over Billie Chauveax of Clarendon. Bill McGrew of Borger over Peggy Minkley of Clarendon and Nita Hill (drew bye).

Mrs. Warren won the putting contest with only 32 putts, and Mrs. Elston captured the longest drive crown.

25-Inning Tilt Goes To St. Louis, 4-3

UPI Sports Writer

At 13 minutes and 40 seconds past 3 a.m. EDT today, after 25 innings of baseball that lasted seven hours and four minutes, John Milner swung and missed.

It was f-i-n-a-l-l-y over. The longest night game and the second longest game in the history of baseball was in the record books.

The St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Mets - who have something of a fetish for these marathon affairs - played for 25 innings before Bake McBride's daring run gave the Cards a dramatic 4-3 triumph.

Only the famous 26-inning 1-1 tie between Brooklyn and Boston in 1920 lasted longer in innings. The 7:04 clocking made it the second longest in time. The Mets lost to the Giants in 7 hours and 23 minutes in 1964 in a 23-inning battle.

The man who was responsible for keeping it going was Ken Reitz, who hit a two-run homer off Jerry Kosman with two out in the ninth inning to tie the game.

The pitchers then took over and matched 15 scoreless innings - Claude Osteen pitched 9 1-3 innings of four-hit ball for St. Louis and Jerry Cram threw eight innings of seven-hit ball for New York to lead the way - until McBride beat out an infield chopper up the middle off rookie Hank Webb to start the 25th.

McBride then took a big lead because the Cards were going to try a hit-and-run and Webb picked him off. But his throw was wild and went into short rightfield in foul territory. Milner retrieved the ball and fired to the plate when McBride decided to gamble for it all instead of stopping at third with none out.

Milner's throw seemed to have him but catcher Ron Hodges, who entered the game in the 24th, dropped the ball for an error as McBride slid across.

Sonny Siebert retired the Mets in the last of the 25th - striking out Milner for the final out to end it.

In the other 11 games, Philadelphia downed Pittsburgh, 8-5; Montreal swept

Chicago, 6-1 and 13-4; Los Angeles topped San Francisco, 5-4; San Diego blanked Houston, 2-0, and the Cincinnati Atlanta game was called by rain with the score tied 1-1 after five innings. It will be played as part of a doubleheader today.

In American League games, Baltimore edged

New York, 3-2, in 17 innings but lost the second game, 5-1; Cleveland downed Boston, 3-1; Milwaukee blanked Detroit, 3-0; Minnesota topped Oakland, 5-3, in 10 innings; Texas beat Chicago, 6-2, and California nipped Kansas City, 3-2, in 10 innings.

Phil's, Pirates 5 A three-run pinch homer by Bill Robinson in the eighth gave Philadelphia the victory over Pittsburgh.

Bucks To Vie Bronchos In Key Non-District Bout

By PAUL SIMS
The White Deer Bucks, who looked impressive last week against inept McLean, will find out just how impressive they are Friday, hosting the always-loaded Clarendon Bronchos in the area's feature game of the week.

In other contests Friday Canadian visits Spearman, McLean travels to Lefors, Groom hosts Claude and Miami takes on Balco, Okla., in Miami.

The Clarendon - White Deer clash wouldn't have been so highly regarded if McLean had played the Bucks closer last week. But White Deer rolled over the Tigers with a surprisingly balanced rush-pass offense, 28-9.

Billy Lynch scored twice on runs of three and 18 yards to lead White Deer in scoring.

The Bucks, behind Lynch, Dennis Moss, Dan Cathey (quarterback), Allen Cummins and Billy Joe Stephenson, gained 216 yards on the ground. Cathey accounted for 136 more through the air, completing eight of 12 passes.

The Tigers were able to run on White Deer, picking up 258 yards. However, the Bucks' pass defense fared well, as the Tigers were unable to complete a pass. To beat Clarendon, the White Deer defense, which is headed by John Keeton (185) at linebacker and safeties Cummins and Cathey, the run will have to be stopped. Clarendon has one of the best halfbacks in West Texas - 6-0, 190-pound Kenneth King who ran for more than 1,300 yards last week and scored 14 touchdowns.

King also kicks extra points and field goals, doing both consistently.

Heading both lines will be two 215-pound tackles, Randy Crosslin and Danny Moore. Besides those two on the offensive line, there is a lot of weight and talent in 200-pound guard Wayne Hardin and 190-pound guard Ricky Mooring.

The Bronchos have 16 lettermen returning off last year's 2-A runnerup, White Deer returns 13.

Experience, size and Kenneth King - Clarendon by 2.

Canadian at Spearman
The Wildcats dropped considerably, all the way to 49th, in the Harris Ratings for Class A teams after last Friday's 12-8 loss to underdog Louisiana. But Canadian has too much talent to stay down very long, particularly in its backfield and offensive line. Backs Kevin Wilson and Steve Schaffer and speedy quarterback Lonnie Hines need a game or two of playing together before coming up to their explosive potential. Their line is anchored by guard Ronnie Schmidt and tackle Terry Booker.

PAMPA DUO - Guard Tibby Rogers (left) and fullback Duvo McCarrell, both of Pampa, are expected to see a great deal of playing time Saturday afternoon as West Texas State takes on Spearman, a District I-AA school, was upset by I-A Stratford, 20-14, a week ago. The Lynx are favored to win their district, which has Phillips in it, so they will be favorites against the Wildcats Friday. Spearman is led by all-district linebacker Roger Jones, and running back Donnie Davis, who made the second team the Drake Bulldogs in a Missouri Valley clash in De Moines, Iowa. (Photos by Jim Williams) in post season honors last year. Spearman also returns quarterback Timmy Harper off last year's district champion team.

Two kinds of cats, but it looks like the Lynx have slightly longer claws - Spearman by seven.

McLean at Lefors
The Tigers of new head coach Randy Hicks opened their season with a loss, but that doesn't mean they didn't show any potential. McLean quarterback Marty Duniven led a balanced running attack with 100 yards on 19 carries. He was followed by Ronnie Heasley, 77 on 14 tries and fullback Bobby Crockett, 75 on 17 carries. And kicker Eddie Estes amazed every one with a 45-yard field goal into the wind. Estes, who weighs 270, also anchors both lines.

Lefors fell from fourth to 17th in the Harris Ratings this week after a 25-20 loss to Wheeler. And the Pirates will be down even more Friday since halfback Jim Mix tore elbow ligaments and will not play. "Of course it will hurt us," said head coach Leonard Tolbert. "It means a whole lot because we have so little depth." Barney Sawyer, an all-district fullback and running backs Rick Jennings and Greg Beck will now have to take up the slack in the backfield.

McLean has an injury, too - Crockett's knee and that makes the fullback a doubtful starter. But the Tigers have more injury than Lefors so an opponent isn't as costly. And McLean unveiled a solid running attack last week. It's gonna be close. McLean by three.

Claude at Groom
Claude, 7-3 and 2-A coach, had a tough time with Happy last week, blanking the Cowboys, 12-0. The Mustangs, however, should be better this week since one injury is usually needed to give inexperienced players the feel of starting a game.

Balco, Okla., at Miami
Balco edged District 2-B, 8-man favorite Follett, 34-30, in the opener while Miami fell to Forgan, Okla., 38-16. And Tyrone, Okla., beat Darroutz, 44-14, while Harrod, Okla., beat Patton Springs, 28-14. So, Oklahoma eight-man schools proved their superiority last week against Texas teams.

Miami, behind quarterback Danny Gilliland and running backs Don Howard, Kirk Flowers and Ken Jenkins, have the potential, according to head coach Bill Gilliland, to win 2-B's championship if the Warriors' many juniors and sophomores improve through game experience. Miami only has five seniors on its roster and that hurt the Warriors in their first outing. However, the juniors, in particular showed promise.

Miami is liable to explode on Balco; it's just a matter of breaks going the Warriors' way. However, Balco beat a fine team last week and shows no sign of letting up. Balco by 10.

50,000 Expected For 'Bama Tilt

United Press International It was only a couple years ago that the best way to avoid the traffic jam leaving University of Maryland football games was to stay until the final whistle.

Only the bravest could endure a full 60 minutes of Terrapins' football and the mass exodus began at some point in the third quarter.

But in those days, the SMU Player Has Meningitis

DALLAS (UPI)-Doctors said Wednesday Southern Methodist University freshman tight end Dwaine Staten had contracted meningococcal meningitis and was unconscious in critical condition.

Immediate steps were taken to prevent the spread of the disease among the Mustang football team, which opens its season Saturday against North Texas State.

"Our faith must remain strong," said coach Dave Smith. "It's a difficult time for us all now. Our fellowship of Christian Athlete group has set up a prayer vigil and we're all deeply concerned."

Staten's illness was diagnosed early Wednesday, 24 hours after he first complained of a flu-like illness. The first blood tests given Staten were negative, but further tests taken at Presbyterian Hospital determined the illness.

masses only numbered approximately 15,000.

For Saturday's season opener against "Bear" Bryant and second-ranked Alabama, Maryland fans erected as many temporary seats as possible to accommodate an overflow crowd in excess of 50,000.

The renewed interest in Maryland football is the result of the wonders worked by Coach Jerry Claiborne.

But beating 'Bama more properly might fall into the category of a miracle.

Nonetheless, the College Park campus is vibrant with hope, rekindled by last season's success, its No. 11 rating this year and the return of last year's starting lineup virtually intact, including standout defensive tackle Randy White.

And on the positive side, Alabama will be without the services of its first-string quarterback, Gary Ruitledge, sidelined by injury.

In another match-up of ranked squads, No. 18 Stanford travels to seventh-ranked Penn State for a nationally televised contest.

The Nittany Lions, 12-0 last season, have been hit hard by graduation, including Heisman Trophy winner John Cappelletti. But Coach Joe Paterno grows his talent wild in the hills surrounding University Park and always manages to find September replacements for June graduates.

Southmen Annihilate Birmingham

United Press International
The Memphis Southmen went out looking for blood and wound up leaving the Birmingham Americans completely drained.

The Southmen, blasted by Birmingham, 58-33, earlier this season, vowed revenge and took it Wednesday night, crushing the Americans, 46-7, and ending their dream of an unbeaten World Football League season.

Ed Marshall caught three touchdowns passes, Gary Shirk took another and J. J. Jennings and Willie Spencer each blasted for TDs as Memphis, now 9-2, sent the Americans to their first loss after 10 consecutive victories.

"I thought we were a better team than what we played down there," Marshall said. "We just weren't together then. We couldn't get it together then but tonight we did."

Spencer ran one yard and Jennings blasted eight for TDs and John Huarte threw 20 yards to Shirk and passed to Marshall for the action point and a 23-0 lead. Then Marshall really turned it on.

After Birmingham scored its lone TD on a six-yard pass from Matthew Reed to Dennis Homan, Marshall too a 48-yard TD pass from halfback John Harvey and 12 and six yards from Huarte before 30,675 in Memphis.

"I think Birmingham is capable of scoring four touchdowns a quarter if you don't go out there and put the defense on them," Memphis Coach John McVay said. "Tonight we put the defense on them."

In other WFL action, Detroit upset Florida, 15-14; New York ripped Portland, 34-15; Philadelphia blasted Jacksonville, 41-22, in overtime; the Hawaiians beat Houston, 24-17, and Southern California nipped Chicago, 31-28.

Wheels 15, Blazers 14
Bubba Wyche threw a 50-yard TD pass to Jon Henderson and rookie Billy Sadler ran six yards for another score as the Wheels scored their first victory after 10 straight losses. Wyche's pass to Sadler on the action point following his TD run was decisive since Florida, which earlier got a 16-yard TD pass from Bob Davis to Jim Strong, scored in the last period on a two-yard run by Tommy Reamon. "Davis' pass to Greg Latta for the tie was batted down."

Stars 34, Storm 15
Jim Ford scored twice on one-yard plunges to lead New York over Portland and lift the Stars into a tie with Florida for the Eastern Division lead. Tom Sherman threw a three-yard TD pass to Ray Parson and linebacker James Sims returned an interception 17 yards for another New York TD. Robin Sinclair had a 45-yard run with an interception and Marv Kendrick ran three yards for Portland's TDs.

Bell 41, Sharks 22
Claude Watts ran three yards for one TD and linebacker John Sodaski scored on a 22-yard interception as the Bell erupted in overtime to beat Jacksonville King Corcoran had a 74-yard TD pass to John Land for Philadelphia, while the Sharks sent the game into overtime on Reggie Oliver's 16-yard throw to Dennis Hughes.

New Boss, New Personnel May Mean Giant Comeback

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — The New York Giants, armed with a new head coach and a few new faces, figure they have nowhere to go but up.

string quarterback. Snead is coming off a season in which he led the NFL in pass interceptions with 22, the eighth time in his 13 year pro career he has had 20 or more passes picked off.

seasons and rushed for 902 last year despite missing 2 1/2 games because of injuries. Johnson missed the entire pre-season this year with a severe hamstring pull suffered while working out on his own during the players' strike.

Johnson hopes to be ready for the season opener against Washington but it doesn't say too much for the team's rushing offense when a player, as talented as Johnson is, can retain his starting role despite not playing one minute during the exhibition campaign.

With the poor showing of highly touted Leon McQuay during pre-season, Johnson's running partner is expected to be Joe Dawkins who was obtained last week from Denver. Dawkins gained 706 yards rushing last season and caught 30 passes for 329 yards.

Among the few bright spots on offense for the Giants are their receivers and linemen. Tight end Bob Tucker and flanker Bob Grim are two of the league's best pass catchers while rookie linemen John Hicks of Ohio State and Tom Mullen of Southwest Missouri State have earned starting assignments.

The few proven stars on the defensive unit include end Jack Gregory, middle guard John Mendenhall and free safety Spider Lockhart

Season Ducats Selling For Last Time Today

Season tickets for Pampa's five home games, including this Friday's against the Dumas Demons, are still on sale for $10.00 at the high school business office, 119 N. Frost, according to Homer Craig, business manager. Purchase deadline is today.

The season ticket means a saving of $2.50 for ticket holders since the admission charge for a reserved seat to a home game is $2.50.

Fans may buy single reserved seat tickets at the gate for $2.50 or general admission seats for $2.25.

The five home games this year (game time is 7:30 p.m. for each) are Friday against Dumas, Oct. 4 against Canyon, Oct. 18 against Caprock, Nov. 15 against Borger and Nov. 15 against Amarillo High.

Junior Bowling Leagues To Begin This Saturday

Bowlers between the ages of five and 21 are invited to join either the Bantam League or Junior - Senior League starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at Harvester Lanes.

Dues are $1.00 plus the cost of bowling each week — $1.80 for bantams and $1.90 for juniors and seniors. More information can be obtained from David Wortham, 1053 Varnon.

QUIETLY WAITING — Harvester Stadium, which has seen no varsity football action in nearly a year, will open its gates for the first regular season home contest of the year Friday night. Pampa and the Dumas Demons will meet at 7:30 p.m. The Harvesters will play five home games and season tickets for those contests can be bought for $10.00 at the high school business office. Those games will be (besides Dumas) Oct. 4 against Canyon, Oct. 18 against Caprock, Nov. 1 against Borger and Nov. 15 against Amarillo. Game time is 7:30 p.m. for every Harvester game this season, at home and on the road.

Drake Impresses Mayfield

CANYON — West Texas State University gets its 1974 football season started Saturday in Des Moines, Iowa, against the Drake Bulldogs, but the opponent is not the type team Buffalo Head Coach Gene Mayfield thinks he can take lightly.

Mayfield and assistant coaches Leon Fuller and Chop Van Pelt got a look at Drake in Dayton's 21-7 win last weekend in Des Moines. Don't let the score fool you — Mayfield was impressed.

"Most everyone there had the opinion that if the two teams played again next week, there would be some doubts on who would win," Mayfield said.

There's no doubt that Drake has some of the best talent in the skill positions as can be found in the Missouri Valley Conference. Quarterback Jonas Sears, although scholastically ineligible last year, led the Bulldogs to a MVC tri-championship in 1972. Tailback Jerry Heston is near the DU career rushing record and fullback Jim O'Connor was All-MVC last year.

Drake also boasts a top tight end in Hal Proppe, but Mayfield is perfectly content with his own man in that position.

Merced Solis, a 6-2, 219-pound senior from Mission, is the preseason all-Valley pick at tight end. "I know Drake is awfully proud of its tight end," Mayfield says, "but in all honesty, Merced is a better tight end than he is."

"And I think (Tracy) Dickson is a par with anybody." Dickson at split end gives the Buffs an excellent long threat. The senior from Lockney has traveled 100 yards in 92 for Coach Bob Kitchens' track team.

In the backfield, transfer Tully Blanchard held the mid-week lead in a spirited battle for the quarterback slot. The transfer from SMU holds a lead over 1972 starter Mike Wartes and '73 starter Don Nava.

The Buffs will use the Wishbone set in 1974, and Mayfield welcomes back four of 1973's top five runners. Jimmy Lisle has been bothered by a muscle injury, but should be ready for the game at Drake.

Rich Schleider has nailed down the starting slot at left half and Johnny Darden is the frontrunner at fullback. Only four seniors will start on offense with a like number on defense.

Next week, the Buffs open their home season against another MVC opponent, the New Mexico State Aggies. Game time in Frank Kimbrough Memorial Stadium will be 7:30 p.m.

WEAR YOUR TEETH
HOLMFIRTH, England (UPI) — Philip Redfern left one vital clue behind when he burglarized a Holmfirth fruit store — a half-eaten apple.

An inspection of the tooth marks in the apple showed the burglar had no front teeth and a few hours later a policeman spotted the Redfern — a big gap where his front teeth should have been.

Redfern, 21, pleaded guilty Friday to stealing $117.30 in cash and fruit. The judge deferred sentence for six months to give him time to find a job.

Cursing Highway Engineer Takes To Collecting Barbed Wire

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — J. M. "Mulkey" Owens spent years as the district highway engineer cursing pieces of barbed wire discarded along Texas roads.

The ranchers and farmers just cut it off and dropped it on the ground and, of course, this played hell with the highway department," Owens said. "I was like nearly everybody else — barbed wire was just barbed wire."

Then one day five years ago he discovered an unusual strand of wire and Owens was off on a hobby. Now the silver-haired 66-year-old Owens has been named "barbarian of the year" by the Texas Barbed Wire Collectors Association, a group of 300 members and part of a national society which aims to preserve the history of the fencing wire. Owens retired a year ago, but in his last four years with the highway department he built a collection of barbed wire over 300 strands strong, with specimens from all over the United States, Australia, New Zealand, Turkey, Japan, Belgium, Puerto Rico and Mexico. "A friend of mine in Turkey sent me a piece from the foot of Mt. Ararat. I've got another from the fence around the largest Buddhist temple in the world," he said. Owens — like other "barbarians" — collects and preserves the wire because he believes it played a significant role in the development of the American West. He can spin yarns for hours about the thorny stuff. "The need for wire became apparent after the Civil War when the people were moving West and they found all the cattle had accumulated on open land," Owens said.

Fencing materials became less and less plentiful and then the wood from the East played out they had to develop something else. Most penguins live in Antarctica.

The Woman's View

NEW YORK (UPI)—The fashion world calls the miniskirt dead and the pantsuit now permanently established in women's wardrobes.

But both still are issues out there where the fashions are worn. We know. We get letters every time we write about either.

Consider the matter of the mini. UPI did a spot check of major U.S. style centers to determine the status of the mini as designers dropped fall and winter hems to midcalf and when London's largest clothing retailer declared the mini dead. At its peak, the British firm, the C and A chain, was selling 18,000 minis a day.

Most of the mail that resulted from the survey (devotees of the mini fight on) turned out to be anti-mini.

Pretty typical was a clipping and communicate from Mrs. John A. Jackson, of Sun City Center, Fla., who wrote beneath a photograph of a miniskirted girl "Sick" and beneath a photo of a new midcalf length, "decent and graceful."

"The mini is the ugliest (fashion) ever foisted on women," she wrote. "No wonder there is so much rape."

The whole matter of nudity in fashion upset Max C. Samuels, of Jamaica, N.Y. He wrote his views after a column on the General Federation of Women's Clubs ongoing war on rape.

Samuels wrote in part: "If you want the number of rapes to decrease, try getting women, especially the younger element, to put some clothes on."

"Don't go crying rape (wolf) when at the bottom of all this are the exhibitionist women who would walk around stark naked if it was legal."

A senior citizen in Reading, Pa., praised a column on "Where have all the dresses gone?" Mrs. Minerva B. Kasper, 72, wrote that "It is most difficult to find fashionable clothing suitable for my age regardless of price. I do volunteer work among the elderly and find them at a complete loss when buying clothing...prices beyond their ability to pay on limited Social Security checks.

"As for pantsuits, I really despise them with all my being...nothing irks me more than seeing the elderly woman in a pantsuit or slovenly attired, trying to conform with young..."

An antipantsuit letter came also from Helen Meomartino, of Milford, Mass. "I have never worn a pantsuit to work...there is a time and place for that kind of get-up, but not in the office. Mostly I blame management for allowing the women to dress as such, especially in the summer when they start wearing beach clothes in an office. It's outrageous..."

Ms. Meomartino had some ungentle words for the men too. "Stop looking like slob," she said. "Long hair and beards are for the birds."

The subject of women's liberation brings responses pro and con. A column on Lt. Sally D. Murphy, the Army's first woman helicopter pilot, chided me for referring to her throughout as "Mrs." rather than as "Lt."

Marion Keisker, of Memphis, thought the thrust of the story was her military career "not her marital or domestic situation." Then, I compounded the error by referring to the officer's husband as "Capt. Dan Murphy."

Said Mrs. Keisker: "She may be Mrs. to Dan, at home. But she's Lt. in her military role. That I don't recognize the contribution a man makes to his family stirred Mrs. Helen Stall (that's the way her signature looked), of Linden, N.J., to write that if housewives were paid for their services, then why not the man too? "Why don't you figure out how much a man is supposed to be paid?" she asked. "After all, if a man builds his own home and it's worth $30,000, then shouldn't his wife pay him?"

Nearly six million West Germans live alone, says the Federal Statistical Office.

Britton-Cloud Exchange Vows

The marriage of Miss Pamela Kay Britton and Alan Ray Cloud was solemnized Friday, Aug. 2 at 8 p.m. in First Assembly of God Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Britton, 1229 Darby, are parents of the bride. Mrs. Marie Cloud and the late Mr. Homer Cloud, 623 W. Browning, are parents of the bridegroom.

THE CEREMONY
The double-ring ceremony was performed before a setting of two candelabra (flanked by Grecian urns of white gladioli and greenery). The couple lit the memory candle and family pews were decorated with white bows and held a red rose for the honored mothers.

The Rev. Gerald B. Barnard, pastor, officiated. Pianist, Dixie Bond, played the theme from "Love Story," "Twelfth of Never," and "We've Only Just Begun."

THE BRIDE
Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of Chantilly lace over bridal taffeta. The fitted bodice was styled with a Sabrina neckline, natural waistline and long, fitted lace sleeves that formed petal points over her hands. The bouffant, floor-length skirt, featuring rows of ruffles in waterfall fashion, swept into a chapel train. Her veil of imported illusion fell from a lace coil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white and pink carnations, baby roses and baby's breath with pink ribbon streamers.

Ginger Adds "Snap" to Pear Pie

For something just a little different, bake a pear pie. Thicken the juices slightly with Argo corn starch and top it with a crumb topping which includes chopped nuts and just enough ground ginger to add snap to the delicacy of the pear flavor.

Pear Pie with Ginger Topping

- 1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
- 4 Bartlett pears
- 3 tablespoons corn starch
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup dark corn syrup
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon margarine
- 1 recipe Ginger Topping (below)

Peel and core pears; cut into thin slices. Mix together corn starch, salt and ginger; add water and stir until smooth. Add corn syrup, lemon rind, juice, margarine and pears. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Pour into pastry shell. Top with Ginger Topping and bake in a 425° F oven 15 minutes until lightly browned. Cool before serving. Makes 1 (9-inch) pie.

Ginger Topping: Mix together 1 cup sifted flour, 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar and 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger. Cut in 1/2 cup margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add 1/2 cup chopped pecans, walnuts or almonds.

maid of honor and bridesmaids were Karla Jean Chase, Andrews, and Denise Terry and Sue Teakell, both of Pampa. They wore identical formal pink dotted Swiss gowns styled with empire waists, low necklines and short puffed sleeves.

Shelly Rae Britton, sister of the bride, was flower girl, dressed identically to the bridal attendants and wearing a pink hat and a wristlet corsage. Approaching the altar, she dropped pink rose pedals. Kevin Dean Brown and Kelly Byron Brown, cousins of the bride, lit the candles.

Best man was Kenny Cloud, brother of the bridegroom, and groomsmen were Randal Rex Britton, brother of the bride, Bob Hauson and Mike Cook, Randal Taylor and Glenn Jameson, both of Pampa, served as ushers.

MOTHERS
The bride's mother wore a floor-length soft blue dress trimmed with tiny pearls and a white carnation corsage.

RECEPTION
The serving table at the reception held at the church, was covered with a white satin floor length cloth and held crystal appointments. The bridesmaids' bouquets and the three-tiered cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, decorated the table. Debbie Shouse and Judy Cloud served cake and Ladonna Taylor and Patricia Archibold assisted at the punch bowl and coffee service.

Sandra Britton, sister of the bride, dressed identically to the bridal attendants, registered wedding guests.

Following a wedding trip to Albuquerque, N.M., the couple is residing at 722 W. Browning. For traveling the bride wore a cream-colored dress with blue print and lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

AFFILIATIONS
The bride is a 1974 graduate of Pampa High school. The bridegroom attended PHS and is presently employed by Wagner Well Servicing Co. PRE-NUPITAL EVENTS
A miscellaneous shower was held recently in Citizens Bank Hospitality Room.

Mrs. Marie Cloud hosted the rehearsal dinner at her home.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

There is an old bridge "rule" which says that, at a trump contract, a defender should never lead a suit that both declarer and dummy are known to be void of. In the vernacular, one should never give declarer a "stiff" and a ruff, thereby enabling him to trump the trick in one hand, while simultaneously discarding a loser from the other hand.

But all rules have their exceptions, as will be observed in today's deal. East - West vulnerable. East deals.

deliberate about what to lead to trick three.
To lead a club, in view of the dummy, had to be wrong. Either South had the king, or West had it. And if it were West, then a club lead would ambush the king and result in his decapitation. So East eliminated the club lead.

To lead a heart instead, in view of the dummy, was equally hopeless. No matter what the heart set-up was, the defenders could never make a heart trick.

And so by a process of elimination, East correctly concluded that the defenders' sole chance was for him to lead a diamond, despite the fact that North, South, and West were known to be void of diamonds.

When East led the diamond king to trick three, he doomed declarer to defeat. If South trumped low, West would overtrump with the trump ten. And if South ruffed with the spade jack (as he did), West would discard a heart or a club. With the A-10-5 of spades remaining, West could not be prevented from winning two trump tricks.

Had East led either a heart or a club at trick three, declarer would have fulfilled his contract. He would have won East's lead and played his king of trumps, driving out West's ace. Upon regaining the lead, he would then have cashed the queen and jack of trumps, picking up West's two remaining trumps; and his only losers would have been two diamonds and one trump.

Dear Abby

Wife wears rich sister's hand-me-downs

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife (I'll call her Ruth) has a sister I'll call Peggy. Peggy's husband is loaded with money, and Peggy spends a fortune on clothes.

Ruth and Peggy wear the same size, so Peggy sends Ruth boxes of dresses, coats and shoes that she's tired of. All the stuff is just like new, and Ruth looks like a million dollars in them.

Maybe I shouldn't feel this way, Abby, but it bothers me when I see my wife all dressed up in her sister's clothes. Although I can't afford to buy my wife the kind of clothes Peggy sends her, she wouldn't exactly go around in rags if she dressed in clothes that were within our income.

I've come awfully close to asking Ruth not to accept any more clothes from her sister, but I'm not sure it's the thing to do. I suppose it's selfish of me, Abby, but a guy can't help how he feels. What do you think?

POOR WORKING STIFF

DEAR STIFF: I think you should tell your wife what you've told me. Talk it over, and maybe you can reach an agreeable compromise. You're right, a guy can't help how he feels, and I, for one, can understand your feelings.

DEAR ABBY: My grandmother was one-sixteenth black. She married a white man. Neither she nor any of her children had Negro features, and they all married whites. The problem is my wife. I told her of my ancestry before we were married, and it didn't seem to make any difference. But now she refuses to have any children for fear one might be coal-black.

What are the chances of this occurring?
NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Zero. A child will be no darker than his darkest parent.

DEAR ABBY: I am blind at age 14, and take my Seeing Eye dog Juniper with me everywhere I go.

Kids will often try to pet Juniper. I like kids, but Juniper is trained not to be friendly with strangers. If he growls, the mother grabs their children and screams, "what a vicious dog!"

Abby, please print this so parents will tell their kids to stay away from Seeing Eye dogs.

JENNIE AND JUNIPER

DEAR JENNIE: Thank you for your informative letter. This might be a good time to warn people against trying to be friendly with ALL strange dogs. Many dogs are used for protection these days and are trained to attack strangers who come too close.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS. Are you properly registered in order to cast your vote next November? If you don't know where to register, phone ANY political party's headquarters (they're in your phone book) and inquire. May I remind you (with a quote from Edmund Burke) that "All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Men's Suits Change Personalities

COLLEGE STATION — Men's suits can be dressed up or down, just as women's can, one authority said.

"Appropriate accessories can make one basic suit in a neutral color serve for work, parties or casual events," Margret Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, explained.

She suggested some guides in choosing accessories: — Select those that change the personality of the suit.

This means more than simply removing a tie to look more casual. Colors and patterns are the keys. — Bold, contrasting sport shirts, sweater vests, or country shirts give a sporty or leisure look to a blazer suit.

— Pale colored dress shirts, foulard ties, and harmonizing patterns dress up the same suit for a more businesslike look. — Choose shoes, hats and jewelry that add to the total look and complete the personality change.

RECOVERY TEAM

SAIGON (UPI) — The Joint Casualty Resolution Center here is staffed with 160 American troops charged with recovering the bodies of 1,100 U.S. servicemen still missing in Indochina. The unit's budget is $1.1 million a year.

Breakfast Ticklers For A Good Day's Start

COLLEGE STATION — Breakfast doesn't have to be the same boring meal every day, according to one foods and nutrition specialist.

"Breakfast is still important to restore energy for the day ahead, but a 'good' breakfast doesn't have to be the traditional bacon, eggs, biscuits, juice and milk," Sally Springer, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said this week. "Breakfast should supply some protein food and a vitamin C-rich fruit."

"Sources of protein that are often overlooked for breakfast are peanut butter toast, toasted cheese or some other favorite sandwich, or hard-cooked eggs," she said.

You can eat these "portable foods" at the bus stop or even while riding to school or work.

The specialist stressed the importance of protein at breakfast, because "without it energy sags around 10 a.m."

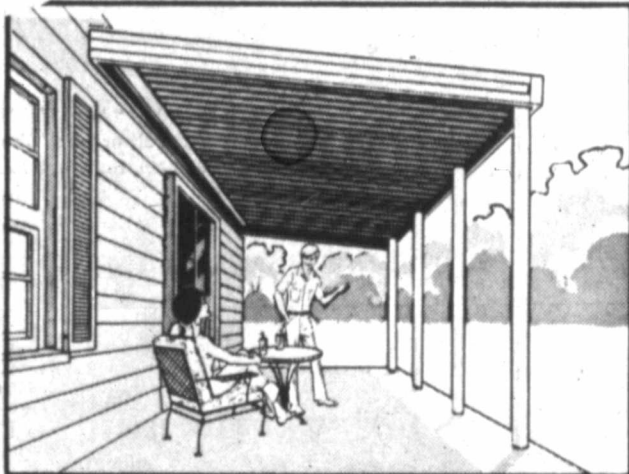

Turning to fruit, she suggested adding sliced peaches, oranges, pineapple chunks or melon balls to your favorite fruit juice.

Fisheries Hearing Slated

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Tex., today announced a hearing in Corpus Christi, Tex. on Sept. 20 on proposed legislation to extend the exclusive fisheries zone off the U.S. coast.

De la Garza, acting chairman of the Subcommittee on Fisheries and Wildlife Conservation and Environment, said the hearing would begin at 10 a.m. that Friday in the assembly room on the eighth floor of the Corpus Christi National Bank Building.

"We have previously held hearings on this subject in Biloxi, Miss., and New Orleans, La.," de la Garza said. "The committee is deeply interested in getting reaction to the bills extending the fisheries zone from people who have a first-hand knowledge of the problems involved, and that is the fishermen themselves."

"The Corpus Christi hearing will give our South Texas shrimp fishermen an opportunity to voice their views on this important matter."

De la Garza said anyone wishing to testify should contact his Washington office.

By GREGORY JENSEN CHICHESTER, England (UPI)—Keith Michell is ending the summer with a hit, but there may have been moments when he wished he were still playing the king in television's "Six Wives of Henry VIII."

Now the verdicts are in on Michell's first season as director of the Chichester Festival theater. After some anxious judgments earlier on, they are largely favorable.

"Michell's first season surprised many people. But then, many people were surprised to find him here at Chichester is one of Britain's more important theaters, and its new director had large shoes to fill. The only two previous chiefs of this lovely, park-set summer theater 63 miles south of London were Laurence (now Lord) Olivier and Sir John Clements.

Michell was an Australian actor seasoned by 20 years on Broadway and in London, by half a dozen movies and that spectacular TV series.

But he had never directed a play, let alone a company. This summer, starring in two of the four plays, he ran the company to the last detail, even painting a design for the souvenir program. (A former art teacher, Michell has exhibited as an artist in London and New York since 1959.)

When it came to picking plays, he hewed roughly to the pattern of Olivier and Clements. This revolved around safe, non-controversial revivals, mostly picked for painless summer evening viewing. It took Michell a while to get the policy clicking.

"Tonight We Improvise" by Pirandello, the first production, was so filled with intricate theatrical tricks it merely baffled people.

Next came John Vanbrugh's 269-year-old rarity, "The Confederacy." This mainly showed that when a play isn't performed for a couple of centuries there's usually a reason.

Real controversy—the kind Chichester seldom creates—followed its treatment of the "Oedipus" of Sophocles.

Freud named a complex after this ancient Greek tragedy of a man who murders his father and marries his mother. Chichester gave it an intricate new interpretation heavily larded with black comedy.

Michell played Oedipus. As Jocasta, his mother-wife, he audaciously cast Diana Dors, a one-time movie sex symbol who later lost a fierce battle with her diet. The odd, perverse production had serious intentions, but its reception was not kind.

But with "A Month in the Country," Michell finally struck gold.

Ivan Turgenev put into this play all the elements we consider typical Chekhov material. Here is a bored, sprawling Russian provincial family living empty lives tangled by unfulfilled love affairs. As in Chekhov there is comedy and absurdity in the conflict of characters trapped in the still, summer heat. As in Chekhov, people flee when situations become too much to master.

But Turgenev wrote this in 1850, half a century before Chekhov. Chekhov admired "A Month in the Country" so much he imitated it. Chichester's supremely well-acted revival shows why.

Public Service Jobs Like Complicated Gadgets

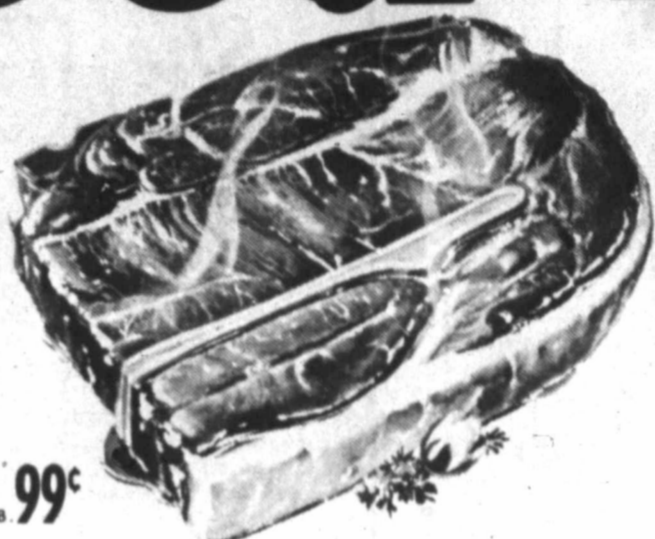

By ARCH BOOTH
U.S. C-C President
WASHINGTON — Ever try to put together one of those gadgets that comes disassembled with "clear, easy-to-follow" instructions for assembly? Invariably, the job grows more complicated the farther you get into it.
Public service employment is a lot like that. At first glance, it looks like a good idea to create a government program to provide jobs for people who are out of work because of the effects of the government's anti-inflation policies. But the more you think about the details, the more the complications appear.

It does not seem fair that the jobless should bear proportionately more of the cost of fighting inflation than the rest of us — and unemployment will rise as inflation is controlled.
Further, I think it is much healthier for the individuals involved and for society as a whole if those who are able to work for a living do. That much may be said in favor of public service employment.
The trick, though, is to design a program that will reduce the level of unemployment without worsening inflation.
Safeguards
Obviously the public service program would have to have safeguards — including a low rate of pay — to insure that only the genuinely jobless would qualify. Otherwise, some people who already had jobs would leave them for government employment, creating an inflationary shortage of labor in the private sector and ballooning the cost of the public service employment program.
But even with adequate safeguards, the program would still cost a lot — $4 billion a year is the figure often mentioned by proponents. Where do we get the extra money?

The University of Chicago economist Milton Friedman discussed the possibilities and the concomitant disadvantages in a recent Newsweek column:
"If the funds came from reducing other government expenditures, new government employees would simply replace other government employees with no gain to total employment and very likely a loss in efficiency."
"If the funds came from imposing higher taxes, the taxpayers would have less to spend, which would reduce the number of persons they employ directly or indirectly. New government employees would simply replace persons employed in the private sector. 'Make-work' would replace employment that met the private demands of taxpayers."
"If the funds came from borrowing from the public, less credit would be available to lend to others. New government employees would simply replace persons employed in building houses or factories or machines that would have been financed by savings now absorbed by the public employment program. Make-work would replace employment devoted to adding to our productive wealth."
Inflation, Again
The only other alternative, Friedman says, is for the government to borrow and simultaneously expand the money supply to provide for the credit needs of other borrowers. But that process is what gave us the inflation we're trying to halt.

Safe Sanitation For River Water

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: We have a camp and stay there as much as six months a year. We take drinking and cooking water with us but are using river water for washing dishes and cleaning.

Can I safely rinse dishes in this water if the water is only scalded and not boiled? Just what are the dangers of using river water for washing our hands and face? — Mrs. C.

Boil the water and you will be safe. The dictionary says scalding is just short of boiling.

It would be wise to find out, if you can, what is going on upstream from your camp. After all there are northern streams (and streams in sparsely settled areas elsewhere) that are not polluted, but if there are other camps upstream or if there are drains or drainage ditches running into the stream, it's better to play safe and boil water.

The principal dangers of using unboiled water are dysentery and hepatitis. I suggest that a sample of river water be taken or sent to a health department, if there is one within reasonable distance, to be analyzed for bacterial contamination.

As to washing hands and face especially face because of risk of getting germs, if any, into mouth and nose unless you have had the water tested and found it safe, it's best to play safe. Boil a pail of water, let it cool, and then use that for washing.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Leg cramps are troublesome in the night to both my wife and myself. Is there any connection with one's blood pressure, either high or low? Please send me your booklet on that problem. I enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents for it. — W.G.S.

Impaired circulation is one very common aspect in leg cramps, but this is not necessarily related to blood pressure. So the answer is no, high or low blood pressure does not cause such cramps.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor said I was just a little low in potassium and gave me a supplement. What foods contain potassium? — Mrs. F.T.

Potassium is contained in many foods but those that are particularly rich are apricots, raisins, dates, figs, melons, bananas, prune and orange juices, meat and milk. Being "a little low" is not likely to cause any noticeable troubles.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you touch upon "cystitis" — is this bladder infection caused by spicy foods and strong coffee or do they merely irritate? — E.H.M.

They may irritate; they aren't the basic cause of infection, since infection requires the presence and proliferation of germs. Recurring cystitis (urinary bladder infection that persists in coming back) can involve any of several causes. There may be an anatomical defect in the bladder so it does not empty completely.

Another pitfall is trying to treat the infection with medication without determining which germ is doing the mischief. Still another is stopping medical treatment too soon — patients may be tempted to stop treatment as soon as the symptoms subside. It usually requires a good bit of additional treatment before the germ is totally subdued.

Finally, allergy sometimes enters into the picture.

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble" — it could be dangerous. Read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need to Know About Them." For a copy write to Dr. George C. Thosteson at Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120 enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

She Wants To Be President!

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — I interviewed a girl who wants to be President — she happened to have the hiccups — and she scared me with her cynicism about politicians.

Blond little Jodie Foster, 11, of TV, kept gulping water and beating her small chest. "A President has to know how to con people, so it's good to be an actress first because they know better than anybody how to con people," she said.

"What do you mean by conning people?" I asked. "Making people believe something that isn't necessarily true," she said. "There's dirty politics in all of us and we must know how not to get hurt. First, before becoming President, I would like to be a lawyer. Where else can you go after you've been a lawyer but President?"

"To jail," a cynic at the table said. Little Jodie, who I guess could run for President along about 2000 A.D. said with a smile that she knew about dirty tricks.

She's now starring in Paramount's ABC TV series, "Paper Moon," playing opposite Chris Connelly, and has appeared in "seven, or is it six?" movies. She's been in TV since she was 3. TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — The title of the new public television series on health that will premiere Nov. 20 has been changed from "Alive and Well" to "Feeling Good." Legal and other problems prompted the change.

The leading role in the dramatization of Stephen Crane's classic Civil War novel, "The Red Badge of Courage," will be played by Richard Thomas, who has the John-Boy role in the CBS "The Waltons" weekly series. The Xerox special will be aired on NBC Dec. 3, a 90-minute program.

Bing Crosby returns to the CBS network for the first time in a decade on Oct. 9 in a music-comedy special, "Bing Crosby and His Friends." The friends are Pearl Bailey, Bob Hope and Sandy Duncan.

NBC's "The Count of Monte Cristo," starring Richard Chamberlain next

Jan. 10, will have in its cast Taryn Power, 18-year-old daughter of the late Tyrone Power and actress Linda Christian. In her American acting debut, she will play Valentine, daughter of deVillafort, who has hero Edmond Dantes imprisoned.

ABC's "The FBI" series has run its course after nine seasons, but Quinn Martin Productions and Warner Bros. Television will produce "The F.B.I. Story" for CBS telecasting over a three-year period. This will consist of from six to nine two-hour specials based on famous cases of this government agency.

Andy Griffith, long a television favorite in various series, will star in two one-hour dramatic projects to be made by MGM Television for the ABC Network.

Under Twenty

If you are one of those dedicated people who have decided on a career in nursing and you are qualified to enter the field, there is little reason for being held back by a lack of funds.

There are sources of financial assistance for eligible applicants to all types of nursing education programs. Many nursing programs make scholarships and loans available to students.

Federal and state government agencies allocate funds for student aid. Many banks, businesses, and foundations as well as civic, fraternal, religious and charitable organizations help deserving students in preparing for careers in nursing.

The National League for Nursing recently published a highly helpful booklet, "Scholarships and Loans for Beginning Education in Nursing." It is a brief, but comparatively thorough pamphlet which lists the broad sources of scholarship support and tells the reader how to get additional information in her own community.

Your quest for scholarship funds can start right at home with the local League for Nursing, the district nurses' association, the county medical society or your high school principal or guidance counselor. If you look, you will probably find many local organizations which provide scholarships and loans.

Many states have scholarship and loan programs for which the state appropriates funds. State departments of education keep a file of these and other scholarships open to residents of the state.

There are a number of national programs of assistance. The League's booklet details those funded by the government as well as national foundation and civic organization finance programs.

In addition a number of colleges offer scholarships under the National Merit Scholarship Program. There is information for scholarships for minority groups and for information on nursing careers in the service.

The booklet also lists additional sources of information and books to consult in regard to financial assistance for a nursing career. The pamphlet, "Scholarships and Loans for Beginning Education in Nursing," may be obtained for 50 cents by writing for Publication Number 41-410, National League for Nursing, 10 Columbus Circle, New York, New York 10019. Orders for ten or more copies are given a 20 percent discount.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a voluntary basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Presidential Subsidies

In the private economy, retired executives generally receive pensions from their companies and sometimes are retained as consultants. For services in such cases, the company generally pays the retired executive a special fee.

This no doubt is good business since the executive has an understanding of the company's operations, and being away from the firing line, can sometimes give advice from a different perspective.

Sometimes, of course, such consultant positions are merely tokens to make the "old boy" feel important. It all depends upon the individual situation, and the company's on-going management has to justify the expenditure since profit-seeking companies don't generally toss money around for sentimental purposes.

This probably was the rationale used to sell the federal government's policy of providing a former U.S. President with funds to maintain an office and a staff of employees. The idea is that as a former chief executive, he could be helpful to the new administration.

In actual practice, however, it seems to be nothing more than tokenism. Former Presidents usually spend their time writing memoirs, attending testimonials, or speaking on behalf of political candidates. Their activities generally are in the interests of their own personal welfare.

Stockholders of a profit-seeking company would not look kindly upon a management that would spend their money to keep a former executive in luxury without something in return. But tax payers have little to say about the huge sum of money dished out to former Presidents. It's the law.

There will be considerable negative reaction about the appropriation of funds in the case of Mr. Nixon because of the circumstances which made him a former president. This is especially true today because of the inflation when everyone else is struggling to stay solvent.

President Ford tells the nation's wage earners to watch their pennies then asks the Congress to give Mr. Nixon $400,000 to set up shop. This is so Mr. Nixon can write his life story which is reported may earn him $2 million.

That won't go down very easy with struggling tax payers mainly because of the economy and the personality involved.

But the case at hand is not the reason we object. We reject the idea in principle because it perpetuates the myth that political leaders are elite members of the community and therefore are entitled to continued financial gifts at taxpayer expense.

Presidents are well paid for the service while in office. They generally leave office enormously more wealthy than when they entered. They are pensioned with far greater benefits than most top business executives, and their former position gives them special opportunity to write highly marketable material. In short, they are not hurting financially, and they can afford to pay their own way.

It's high time the Congress gets that subsidy off the books, and not just because it's Mr. Nixon this time.

"But suppose the pressure did begin to affect your game - is the presidency worth it?"

INSIDE LABOR

By VICTOR RIESEL
 WASHINGTON — Revolutionary specters are stalking Capitol Hill. They are young and, in a weird almost hypnotic fashion, intensely bright though they speak of a strange revolution as though they were mannequins with Marxist-Leninist cassettes as voice-box implants.

They are heavily loaded with muscle, mind and money — and use all three frequently in violent profusion.

They, and a string of other revolutionary sects, range the nation — and most of the Western world. Their organizers and pickets have been active all the way from Stockholm to Brussels to London (where I observed them) and especially in New York, Philadelphia and Detroit.

One or another of these bands has shut down huge industrial installations. They have harassed Congressmen, political leaders, a city council or two, and appear intent on infiltrating and disrupting the massive United Automobile Workers (UAW) union.

Let there be skeptics among those who read this, let me rush in with a recent report on the "New Left, the Far Left and the Radical Left of the mid-1970s" recently presented to some 200 officials of the giant Detroit Ford local, UAW. The man who spoke of this network of revolutionaries rarely attacks the left. For him to do so is as startling as would be a new committee for the reelection of ex-President Nixon organized by Sam Ervin and Peter Rodino, with John Doar as executive director.

The man who blasted this weird phenomenon of the mid-70s is Emil Mazey (now recovering from a benign spine operation), secretary-treasurer and second-in-command of the UAW. Mazey is an old direct actionist himself, once a leader of the first American sit-down strikers in Detroit, and an avowed socialist.

He knows of whom he speaks. And he spoke in these terms:

The groups, many of them "mysteriously well-financed" have leafleted and picketed UAW president Leonard Woodcock and other elected union officers in places as far apart as Stockholm, Detroit, Brussels and New York, Mazey said.

The revolutionary units have put out newspapers in English, Swedish, German and several other languages including Arabic.

Last July in Stockholm, for example, during a world conference of the powerful "secretariat" known as the International Metalworkers Federation, at least one such revolutionary organization published anti-Woodcock newspapers almost daily in several languages. The same group has broken up press conferences, slugged other radicals and today wanders through the congressional halls with its literature.

During his report Mazey said that a recent unauthorized strike at a Dodge truck plant in Warren, Mich., was led by those cells and communes which can charter buses for "concentration" on the UAW and Detroit's industrialism and publish costly weekly and monthly newspapers and magazines urging direct violent action against big factories?

Therefore is this the time for the House of Representatives to be waiting for the Rules Committee to decide whether the House Committee on Internal Security should be abolished, or merged with the Judiciary or Government Operations Committee and so disappear just to save a few dollars on the triple billion-dollar budget?

These are very lively specters stalking this nation — and Capitol Hill — or the militant, veteran Mazey would not denounce this weird revolutionary and violent left.

Question Box

QUESTION: American oil companies increased their shipments of fuel oil to other countries last year, while reducing over-refining. Meantime prices are up. Don't you think it will be necessary to prohibit exports and roll back prices and establish price ceilings?

ANSWER: Our answer to both suggestions is a resounding NO!

If the people of the United States want to destroy what's left of the "American way of life," the best way is to clamp further controls on the people, including the producers of energy.

Those who object to a seller seeking the highest possible price for a product are refusing to recognize the facts of economic life. Even the politicians like Jackson, who is not as bad as some, fail to see that when price controls are set in the United States, the producers will sell in nations where a higher price is available. And if further controls are applied, such as prohibition on exports and price rollbacks, some marginal producers will simply go out of business, while others will cut back their production further.

Industrialists, including those in the oil business, are no different from other workers. They will seek to obtain the best possible price for their goods and services. If the prices are held down so that they cannot afford to continue furnishing the good or service, they will quit producing, as demonstrated by independent truckers in recent months, although the truckers at times have tried to force others to join them and to force fuel stations to close. In the latter instance, the truckers have resorted to force against other peaceable individuals. As far as we know, oil producers have not attempted to force others to quit production.

Sen. Jackson should know that price rollbacks and imposition of further price controls will do nothing to solve the increasing price of petroleum products. If the senator aspiring to be president wants to help solve the problem, he will use his considerable power to remove all controls and encourage the producers to develop new supplies. When the supply increases the price will go down. It's that simple. It won't be as quick as a political government rollback, but it will be more effective.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON

Connally Case Likely To Reach High Court

By C. MOLLENHOFF
 WASHINGTON, D.C. — The considerable talents of famed criminal lawyer Edward Bennett Williams will be put to a severe test to devise a plausible defense theory for former Texas Governor John B. Connally.

While the handsome, articulate Texan is entitled to a presumption of innocence until a jury returns a verdict of "guilty," the known evidence against him would cause most attorneys to advise most clients to enter a plea of guilty and appeal to the court for mercy.

But, Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's office is accepting the fact that this is no ordinary defense lawyer, and the former Nixon Treasury Secretary is unlikely to enter a plea of guilty regardless of the odds against him.

Although Connally is probably washed up as a political force, he has everything to gain and essentially nothing to lose in fighting the case all the way to the United States Supreme Court, if necessary.

Williams' record with jury trials is good, and includes the acquittal of former Teamster President James R. Hoffa in 1957 when the Federal Bureau of Investigation had photographs of Hoffa making the cash payments of $2,000 to a lawyer-investigator for the McClellan Labor Rackets Committee.

Under Williams' smooth rhetoric the jury bought Hoffa's story that the $2,000 was part of "a legal fee" slipped to the investigator in a Washington park, and was unrelated to the secret committee documents Hoffa received.

On the surface, the prosecutors have an air-tight case against Connally for accepting $10,000 in bribe money from a representative of the dairy industry to influence a decision to boost milk support prices from 80 to 85 percent of parity in March, 1971.

The White House transcripts of then Secretary of the Treasury Connally, President Nixon, and Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin tell the story of Connally's dominant role in convincing Nixon and Hardin that there was no political alternative to boosting the price level.

Those tapes make it essential that whatever defense theory is devised, it must contain Connally's admission of his major role in influencing the decision. He has already admitted to a federal Grand Jury and in testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee that he was offered $5,000 on two occasions as "political contributions" by Jake Jacobsen, a long-time Texas friend and a lawyer for a milk producers association, but refused to accept it.

Jacobsen, indicted jointly with Connally, has already entered a plea of guilty to a one-count conspiracy charge for bribery and obstruction of justice, and has agreed to cooperate as a government witness against Connally.

The indictment also charges that Connally and Jacobsen conspired to testify falsely before the Grand Jury and the Senate Committee that the $10,000 was not delivered, but was kept in Jacobsen's safe deposit box until the fall of 1973 when it was produced for examination. Connally is charged with having returned $10,000 in cash to Jacobsen in 1973 "so that he could make it available for inspection if called upon," according to the indictment.

The story told by Connally and Jacobsen to the federal Grand Jury and the Senate Committee started falling apart when the FBI established that Jacobsen could not have had the $10,000 in his safe deposit box from the fall of 1971, as the defendants allege, because some of the bills produced had been printed after that date.

Examining the deep trouble Connally is in today, it is difficult to imagine that it was only a little more than a year ago that he was seriously being touted as a presidential candidate for either the Democratic or Republican party. And, it was less than a year ago that he was seriously mentioned as a vice-presidential nominee to replace Spiro T. Agnew.

Experienced gardeners know that right now—rather than next spring—is the time to begin preparations for 1975's vegetable patch.

Start by gathering all the old vines and other dead growth from this year's garden. Grind 'em up fine (if you don't have a powered shredder, chop stch coarse organic material on a wooden block using an axe) with all the weeds, fallen leaves, kitchen cuttings, pine needles and animal bedding you can find. Add manure (rabbit, chicken, horse, cow, pig, sheep... whatever you can get), grass clippings, eggshells, coffee grounds, rock powder purchased from an organic gardening supplier and anything else that will decompose into natural "fertilizer".

Mix everything together, stack it up and cover the heap with a square of black plastic. Then forget it until the ground warms up next spring. When you do throw back the sheet of plastic, you should have a mound of rich, loamy, dark "earth" to spade into your vegetable plot.

WARNING: You never seem to have enough of this natural soil conditioner when you want it... so start plenty of big compost heaps this fall.
