IT'S NOT THAT BAD! — Realizing that today is the dreaded Friday the 13th, Scott Conner, 2 1/2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Conner, 1901 N. Dwight, sheds tears after he unfortunately broke a mirror. According to superstitions, Scott is in for seven years of bad luck. But as long as he stays out of politics, he may escape that fate. ## Ford, Senate Deny Watergate Pardons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and the Senate separately have arrived at the same policy: no pardons for Watergate defendants until they are brought to trial. How far the understanding would go to ease the weeklong controversy over the pardon issue remained to be seen.

The circumstances of Ford's pardon of former President Nixon were still in dispute, and Ford has yet to reveal his final decision on the closely related issue of amnesty for Vietnam war draft dodgers and deserters.

"I thought about it a long time before making the decision," Ford said after a White House dinner Thursday night. Asked whether Nixon's health was a factor, Ford replied, "Didn't you read my speech?" When he announced the pardon Sunday, Ford had compared Watergate allegations to a sword "threatening the health" of the former president.

His wife Betty also said, "I think health had a great deal to do with his decision." For the third day in a row Thursday the Ford administration modified its position on pardons for Watergate defendants. On Tuesday, White House Acting Press Secretary John W. Hushen said "the entire matter is under study." Wednesday, Hushen said Ford "never, ever planned to give mass amnesty" to these defendants but would consider individual requests.

"If we got one I believe he (Ford) wouldn't act on it." The statement followed a 1 1/2 hour meeting between Ford and Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott.

"I don't know of any congressman or senator who wants a blanket pardon at this time. I do not think the American people want any blanket pardons," Scott told newsmen.

Later in the day, the Senate adopted 55-24 a resolution urging Ford not to grant any future pardons in cases related to the 1972 presidential campaign until the defendants have been tried and all appeals completed.

It has no legal force, but it puts the Senate on record with an opinion.

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., indicated the House might adopt a similar resolution.

For the six former Nixon aides who are awaiting trial in the Watergate cover-up case, the day was a double disappointment. First they learned no pretrial pardons would come from the White House.

SAYS CIA BOSS Secrecy Needed For Intelligence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director William E. Colby defended the agency's secret activities today as essential to insure American security, lest the nation "risk subordination to possible adversaries."

In a speech prepared for a hostile symposium on the CIA, Colby acknowledged his audience. "If I said I am happy to be here, my statement might be used to challenge the credibility of the intelligence community," he said. The meeting, sponsored by the National Security Studies section of the privately financed Fund for Peace, has castigated covert CIA operations as illegal, immoral, unconstitutional and a violation of international law and the U.N. Charter.

Former officials of the CIA, State Department and Pentagon intelligence groups, authors, researchers, and journalists came with new ammunition — the disclosure, through news "leaks," that the CIA spent from $8 million to $11 million trying to "destabilize" the Marxist government of the late President Salvador Allende in Chile. Allende was deposed and died in a military coup last year, a victim of a suicide.

Colby said the CIA's primary function was gathering information and analyzing it but the agency carried out covert activities "only when specifically authorized by the National Security Council. The board of trustees of Pampa Independent School District took action on a wide variety of subjects ranging from budget reports to hiring of new personnel during Thursday's regular meeting held at Pampa High School.

Following the invocation by the Rev. Bobby Stalcup, the board tackled a 13-item agenda which ran to three hours in open session, followed by an hour of executive session.

Gray County Judge Don Cain presented a report on the County Available Fund, the board moving to instruct Paul Simmons, board president, to request of the County Commissioners Court a partial distribution.

Judge Cain explained in detail the fund, how it started (by purchase of US Treasury bonds) and how interest on the bonds allowed the county to accumulate the "available" fund, which remains at the disposal of Commissioners Court.

Cain said the commissioners needed to know the wishes of the school board regarding distribution among all school districts in the county.

The money is divided on a per capita basis. Pampa's share last year was $17,700. The gist of Judge Cain's presentation was to the effect that closing out the permanent fund, which could have par value of $471,000 in 1980, might result in "killing the golden eggs."

Warren Fatheree, one of the commissioners, pointed out that in similar situations it had been declared illegal to "assign" workmen's compensation by combining it with other pay.

The board moved to approve tape recording of regular meetings as an

REVIEWS BUDGET School Board Approves Informal Public Session

Several local insurance agents who handle insurance on school district property, gave a lengthy report and explained how the school board might utilize any one or more of several options for continuation of coverage on buildings and contents valued at more than $12 million.

No final action was taken pending further conferences between board members and the insurers.

If the deliberations on insurance were complicated and hard to follow, the budget matters were even more so, despite explanations by Superintendent Dr. Dan F. Long, assistant superintendent James E. Trusty, business manager Homer Craig and others.

All of which led board member Sam Anderson to remark, "I just can't understand all this. The bookkeeping system is confusing."

Craig admitted that it might be hard to follow, and said the only way to improve it would be to computerize the system.

Regarding workmen's compensation and accident leave policy, the board followed the advice of board member Harold Comer in moving to consult with the board's attorney before taking final action.

Dr. Long had proposed what he termed a "fair and equitable" program which would incorporate base pay with workmen's compensation to assure sick or injured personnel of full pay while off duty because of illness.

He withdrew this proposal when Comer, a lawyer, pointed out that in similar situations it had been declared illegal to "assign" workmen's compensation by combining it with other pay.

The board moved to approve tape recording of regular meetings as an

Ethiopian General Takes Power

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — An American-educated general took over as Ethiopia's military strongman today, culminating a gradual, seven-month coup that began with army unrest and ended with the ouster of Emperor Haile Selassie. Lt. Gen. Aman Michael Andom, 50-year-old leader of Ethiopia's military reformers, emerged from the shadows of behind-the-scenes rule to become chairman of the ruling Council of Ministers.

Woosen, picked by the military as a puppet ruler in place of his once-mighty father, met with family members in his luxurious Geneva apartment to decide whether to accept. The Armed Forces Committee reformers came into the open Thursday, deposing the 82-year-old, 100-pound, 5-foot-4 "Lion of Judah" for allegedly amassing billions of dollars in Swiss banks while his drought-stricken peasants starved.

In Washington, the State Department took the ouster in stride. "As we enjoyed good relations with the government of the emperor, we look forward to continuing these good relations with the new government," a spokesman said. The new military rulers sent soldiers to the emperor's plush palace in Addis Abba to take the world's longest-reigning monarch "to a special place for his personal safety."

Witnesses said the still-defiant Selassie balked at going, but was hauled off in the back seat of a crumpled blue Volkswagen police van to the capital's military headquarters. A large crowd gathered outside the army headquarters building shouting insults at the deposed "King of Kings" and chanting praises of the military.

"As from today, Sept. 12, his imperial majesty Haile Selassie has been deposed from office," a brief, blunt military decree said in reporting the demise of the diminutive monarch's 58-year-old rule.

The decree also suspended parliament, but promised free elections and a new constitution in the

Don't Block Crosswalks

An appeal was made today by city police asking parents of school children not to block crosswalks in school areas when they stop to pick up children as classes are dismissed for the day.

The matter was referred to police by administrative officials at City Hall after a telephoned complaint was filed this forenoon. The caller indicated it was a safety hazard when motorists stop on crosswalks to discharge children arriving for school in the mornings and to pick up children leaving school in the afternoon.

Stopping on the crosswalks, it was pointed out, makes it necessary for other children to go around the stopped cars and walk into the danger of oncoming traffic in the middle of the street.

Conference Listens To Housing Heads

ATLANTA (UPI) — A member of President Ford's first pre-inauguration conference on inflation said Thursday that the requests of home builders and bankers for government subsidies are "no different than what welfare mothers are asking."

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-De., listened with other conference members Thursday to suggestions from more than 75 housing and construction leaders for dealing with the economic crises in their business. "The construction industry is just now getting the whole picture," Biden, 31, the youngest member of the Senate, said. "Guys have walked out of the conference saying, 'We're not the only ones.' It's a mutual recognition of fright that the bear is out there, and he can get us all."

He said many affluent home builders and bankers have been critical of government subsidies for the economically depressed. "But now what they're asking is no different than what welfare mothers are asking."

Many representatives of money lending institutions proposed to the conference that incentives be given for putting more money in personal savings accounts. They suggested that the first $1,000 in a personal savings account be tax-free.

A poll by the Lou Harris organization of the delegates to the one-day meeting showed 60 per cent of the industry leaders foresaw the economy getting "somewhat worse" and 15 per cent predicted it would become "a great deal worse."

STILL COOL HERE More Flooding Threatening Southern Sections Of State

While thunderstorms flooded sections of South Central and Southeast Texas today, the Pampa area continued to shiver under a cool air mass that settled over the area. Although showers have been in the forecast, with as high as 60 percent chance, no moisture has fallen. More showers are in the forecast through tonight.

High Thursday reached up to 60 after remaining below 50 until noon. Today's low was 47. Forecast calls for a slight warming trend through Saturday, when the high is expected to reach into the upper-60s.

County Judge Gentry Jeter said in Woodsboro, "Low places around town are flooded but nobody is out of his house yet."

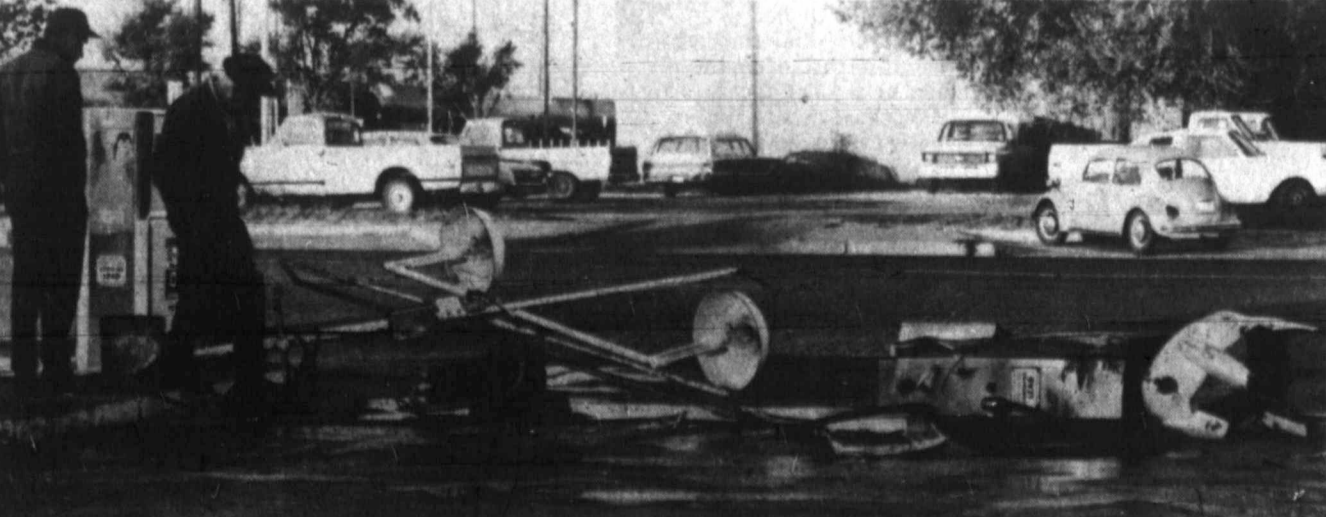

"They also had heavy rains over toward Beeville. I haven't seen so much lightning or heard so much thunder in a long time."

Flood warnings were out on the Lower Nueces from the Three Rivers area, to below Calallen and on Little River near Cameron.

There also were good rises on the Frio and Navasota rivers and on numerous smaller streams. U.S. 281 with two feet of water over it and Texas 9 with a foot of water over it were closed in Live Oak County. U.S. 77 was closed by water in Refugio County near Woodsboro.

There were many reports of four and five inch rains. The combination of a cold front pushing south and a low pressure area pumping moisture from the Gulf promised to continue heavy rain and thunderstorms.

The low pressure area was over South Central Texas and the moisture was overrunning the front and condensing into rain. There was not much punch left in a cold front which dropped temperatures more than 25 degrees in upstate points Thursday. The lowest overnight temperature reported was Dalhart's 45 degrees.

Officers Hunt For Runaway

Local police and sheriff's officers have been asked to be on the lookout for a 14-year old boy missing since last Friday from Boys Ranch.

The boy, Tommy Ethridge, reportedly left the ranch Friday afternoon. He is described as of slender build, five feet tall; has short blond hair and green eyes; weighs about 120 pounds.

At the time of his disappearance he was wearing brown field boots, blue jeans and a blue and yellow plaid shirt. Anyone seeing the boy is asked, by his mother, to call her at 665-1602 or to call the Gray County Sheriff's Office 665-5789 or Pampa Police station 669-2515.

Nixon Reportedly Feeling Better, Waits For Doctor

United Press International Former President Nixon, reportedly feeling better after another attack of phlebitis, has returned to his estate in San Clemente, Calif., today to await a visit from his doctors.

Nixon and his wife, Pat, ended a five-day visit at the estate of U.S. Ambassador to Britain Walter A. Annenberg Thursday night and drove back to San Clemente with a carload of Secret Service agents, according to a spokesman at San Clemente.

Nixon's former White House physician, Walter Tkach, said he intended to fly to California today to examine Nixon's leg, which is severely swollen below the knee from by a blood clot in the vein. Tkach said the swelling had added four inches to the circumference of Nixon's leg.

Dr. John Lundgren of Long Beach, Calif., an internist, also was expected to examine the leg.

There was no formal medical bulletin on Nixon's condition. But the former President's two sons-in-law have discussed the situation in several interviews over the past few days.

Ann Greer, a secretary in Nixon's former White House press office, confirmed that Nixon and his wife had returned to San Clemente Thursday night.

A source who was in telephone contact with the Annenberg estate said late Thursday that Nixon was "a little better" but feeling frustrated because he could not move around and must keep his swollen left leg elevated.

The same source said the family hoped the doctors would be able to talk him into entering the Eisenhower Memorial Hospital in Palm Springs, Calif., but that Nixon so far has refused.

An informed medical source in Washington also said Nixon has refused the urgings of his family to enter a hospital for treatment of the phlebitis, an inflammation of the veins, sometimes involving a potentially dangerous blood clot.

He said Nixon's left leg had swollen four inches in circumference below the knee.

Nixon's spokesman, Ronald L. Ziegler, has refused to discuss the former president's health and also has put restraints on Tkach's public statements.

But Nixon's sons-in-law, Edward Cox and David Eisenhower, have not felt themselves under this constraint.

Eisenhower said on the NBC Today Show Thursday that Nixon's health was "not good," his leg was swollen to twice normal size and he was depressed and unable to relax.

Eisenhower said later in a telephone interview that Nixon was "obviously low; just how low I don't know; I think it's a pretty rough period."

"With the pressure off - the grind of the presidency - I think he'll be in the mood again, looking for new things to do," he added.

Cox has been quoted as telling friends Nixon has been depressed and Cox felt someone should know about it.

Nixon suffered an attack of phlebitis last June and undertook his tour of the Middle East that month against his doctors' advice.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ford rejected Thursday night widespread criticism that his pardon of former President Richard Nixon was "precipitous."

"I thought I took a long time in making the decision," he told reporters at a state dinner honoring Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

The timing of the pardon - one month after Ford succeeded Nixon - has aroused a popular outcry.

This was the first time Ford has spoken on the subject since he pardoned Nixon last Sunday.

When asked whether Nixon's physical and mental state had been a factor, he said amiably: "Read my speech."

In his statement Sunday, Ford had raised the specter of a sword hanging over his (Nixon's) head threatening his health.

Ford said that he had not talked to Nixon in three weeks.

He appeared in jovial spirits, unperturbed by the storm of controversy he evoked.

According to his press aides, Ford still believes strongly that he did the right thing. His close advisers say Ford was getting the word it disturbances on "unacceptable and irresponsible agitators."

"I will use all the powers vested in me to guarantee you a safe future," Crespo said Thursday night in a radio speech. "Portugal's eyes are on her sons who always served with dignity and love."

Diplomats said Crespo was waiting to meet with Mozambique Liberation Front leaders, who were expected to arrive shortly.

Petroleum ministers from the world's major oil-exporting countries met today to work out details of a proposal to pocket a bigger share of fuel profits to compensate for inflation.

The Western economists said the move would leave the major international oil companies with the dilemma of absorbing the increased payments or passing their losses on to consumers.

Jamshid Amouzegar, Iran's chief delegate to the talks, told newsmen Thursday the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would decide on an increase of "something between zero and 14 percent."

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani, however, said he still hoped consumer prices could be lowered. "We had very hot discussions on this issue," he said.

Oil industry sources said price reductions were unlikely.

Whittenburgs File Suit On Papers Sale

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) - A $10 million suit has been filed in federal court claiming the sale of the Amarillo Globe-News and Lubbock Avalanche-Journal to Southwestern Newspapers and Morris Communications Corp. was conducted in a fraudulent manner.

Plaintiffs are Catharine Morris Brown, Joseph Robert Brown, Georgia Morris Mann, James D. Mann and Eugene J. McCarrill III, all members of the Whittenburg family.

Defendants are trustees of the Fagg Trust, including other members of the Whittenburg family, Plains Radio Broadcasting Co., Southwestern Newspapers Corp. and Morris Communications Corp.

The plaintiffs, all recipients of proceeds of the Fagg Trust, contend the sale of the newspapers for $42 million involved manipulation of funds between the Fagg Trust and another trust.

Members of the Fagg Trust claim funds were transferred from the trust in an effort to lessen family control.

The plaintiffs also claim they were not informed of negotiations to sell the newspapers though they held controlling interest in the Amarillo Globe.

They are asking the court to set up a trust to handle the funds until final disposition of the case, and to require Southwestern and Morris Corp., to execute new notes, deeds of trust and security agreements to secure payments.

His principal holdings were listed as $13 million in stocks and $12.5 million in an art collection which totals 1,500 works, mostly in modern art and including several Picassos.

The report said Rockefeller has $8 million in real estate, $2 million in boats and airplanes and $1 million in "furnishings."

Committee Putting Delay On Rocky's Confirmation

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Vice-presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller - who reportedly has told congressional committees he is worth only $33 million - probably won't be confirmed until after the November elections.

In a special message to Congress Thursday, President Ford said Rockefeller's confirmation was his top legislative priority, but House Democrats said confirmation would be impossible before the elections.

Speaker Carl Albert said he would not push the House Judiciary Committee into hasty action.

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that Rockefeller filed voluminous statements of his wealth with the House Judiciary and Senate Rules Committees as part of their preparation for confirmation hearings.

SPS Planning 7 Projects In Canadian Area

CANADIAN - Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. plans to spend $500,000 within the next 16 months on seven projects in the Canadian area.

Gary Stevens, district manager for Bell at Pampa, said the half million dollars will be spent to meet area requirements for a larger volume of traffic to serve additional customers.

He said rapid expansion of local economy during the last two years has made construction and extension needs imperative.

The new projects include a buried cable extension south of Canadian, $132,500; highway widening northeast of the city, $106,000; a rural "relief" south of Canadian, $75,000; rural "relief" northwest of Canadian, $64,000; and rural extension to the southwest of Canadian, $24,000.

TV In Review

By FRANK SWERTLOW
NEW YORK (UPI) — James Garner, who stars as NBC's Jim Rockford on Friday night, may be the best TV private eye of the new season.

Rockford, another Southern California gumshoe, takes only those cases the police have marked closed and unsolved — hence the title of the show "The Rockford Files."

In the premiere episode at 9 p.m., "The Kirkoff Case," Rockford is hired by an heir to a $20 million fortune to find the murderer of his parents. The police believe a young man, Larry Kirkoff, is the killer, but finds it impossible to prove, so they "close" the case.

Rockford, for a $20,000 fee, then goes through a series of battles with thugs and killers in his efforts to prove Kirkoff is innocent or perhaps guilty.

The road to the final solution takes, at times, the familiar course of detective work, but Garner is so engaging and durable, the show is just plain fun to watch.

Equally professional are Noah Berry, who play Papa Rockford; Joe Santos as Detective Becker, and Julie Sommars, as Tawna, a girl of the night. She is much better than her recent role as a kook in ABC's "Harry O."

It's nice to see Garner in a show that could make him a TV star again. Look to Writer-producer Stephen J. Cannell for this. He provides a solid script that does not dote on the old props of Southern California investigators: slouch hats, beat-up clothes, and staccato lines to utter.

Jim Rockford is not a 1974 version of Sam Spade or Philip Marlowe. Humphrey covered them in "The Maltese Falcon" and "The Big Sleep" even though people have been trying to recreate them ever since. ABC's "Harry O" is one example.

Southern California-1974 is tired enough. We don't need any more rumpled and world weary private eyes. They just clutter up the smog.

Jim Rockford and James Garner are full of life.

ABC trots out "The Night Stalker" starring Darren McGavin and Simon Oakland Friday at 10 p.m.

This show is so poorly written, directed, and produced that it may be the funniest show of the season. It's a shame that McGavin and Oakland have wasted their talents.

McGavin is a so-called Chicago reporter a la "Front Page." Don't Hollywood types know that there are no more Chicago-type reporters around, and

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reynolds Securities, Inc., says current investment strategy should consider groups which have been "showing relatively strong momentum" in recent sessions. The company says accumulation of stocks in such a group as steels, chemicals, papers and domestic oils, which have reached long-term bottoms, "should prove rewarding."

This is the time for investors to begin a program of buying certain stocks "on weakness" since the probabilities are strong the eventual lows "when established, will be subsequently retested," according to Rosenkrantz, Ehrenkrantz, Lyon & Ross. Thus, the brokerage firm adds, investors will not have "to run after stocks once the first short-term rally occurs."

Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. says "gloom and doom" talk about the economy seldom has been as "thick" as it is these days, but it suggests the recession is now about to "bottom out" and that by year's end "an economic upturn will be noticeable." Reasons given by the bank for its optimism include the expectation the Federal Reserve's fiscal policy will become more stimulative, an indication the gap between the rate of growth in take-home pay and the rate of price inflation is closing and the reported profits now being if they are, they work in Australia.

McGavin's fulltime job is writing a "Miss Lonelyhearts" column for a wire service. But McGavin's real avocation is to cover unusual crimes.

An ABC press release says McGavin, as Carl Kolchak, it sounds like "Kojak" is a "dynamic crime reporter," who "tracks eerie malefactors."

The first episode is entitled, "The Ripper." And you guessed it, it is based on Jack the Ripper, who methodically murdered women in Victorian England. Only this ripper wears a cape, carries a cane-sword and can bound unscathed from tall buildings. He also is bullet proof and can write poetry.

"Another pretty girl will die." So Jack can have his kidney pie.

The pie referred to in the rhyme is the kidneys of his latest victim.

This villain is so ludicrous that you almost have to laugh when he attacks his victims. So is McGavin's role — at one point he doubles as a photographer — and the camera he uses — and you won't believe it. It's a pocket instamatic, which also uses 35mm film.

This reviewer, unfortunately, did not sit through the end of the show. But as they say on the farm, if half an apple is rotten, the entire apple is rotten.

But the show is so weird and camp it might make it in the rating game.

David Gerber, who ruined "Born Free" with a hack job, now is serving NBC "Police Woman," starring Angie Dickinson. Friday at 10 p.m. It's a double fault.

Miss Dickinson, who was deliciously sexy as the John Wayne's love interest in the film, "Rio Bravo," is still great to look at. But her acting, unlike wine, did not improve with age. She is terribly unconvincing as she deals with murder, rape and assorted crime.

She is not a hard-boiled detective, or soft-boiled one, just a bad actress.

In the first episode, "The End Game," Miss Dickinson and her police team battle a pack of shotgun-toting bank robbers led by actors Paul Burke and Jonelle Allen.

Miss Allen, who appeared in the Broadway musical, "Two Gentlemen of Verona," is so good in this program that she steals everything in sight, especially Miss Dickinson's scenes. Earl Holliman turns in a workman like performance as the head and unifying factor of Miss Dickinson's police team. So do the other members of the squad.

The entire show seems like a hodge-podge of old scripts. The 60-minute show opens with a police ambush scene that is reminiscent of the film, "The New Centurians." And the rest of the show begins to look like the bank robber scenes in the film, "The Friends of Eddie Coyle."

Commissioners Meet Saturday

Two new items have been added to the previously published agenda for Saturday's regular meeting of Gray County Commissioners Court.

They are discussion of the county permanent school fund and consideration of authorizing ads for bids for culverts to repair a bridge in Precinct One.

Aside from routine matters such as payment of bills, time deposits, transfer of funds and monthly reports, the commissioners will also consider salary adjustments for county officials and employees.

The Saturday meeting will be the fourth consecutive open session at which pay raises have been discussed.

A legal advertisement which appeared in The News of Sept. 3, 1974 outlines the pay adjustments, which are to become effective Oct. 1, 1974.

The Aug. 29 issue of The News lists present and proposed salaries.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

... it tells you how

BLACK WALNUT

September 23 marks the autumnal equinox for the Northern Hemisphere. It's the second and final day (the first is March 21) each year that the sun seems to circle the earth exactly above the equator... thereby making day and night of equal length at all points on the earth's surface. From now until December 22 (when the sun will appear to circle our planet directly over the Tropic of Capricorn) the days will become increasingly shorter and the nights longer. Autumn is officially here!

Now's the time for long walks in the woods to spot—and mentally note—the best possibilities for this year's coming harvest of wild nuts. Hickories, black walnuts, butternuts, pecans, hazelnuts, beechnuts, piñons... some kind of wild nut grows in virtually every section of North America. It's doubtful that any have ripened yet in your neighborhood (unless you live "way up in the mountains or in one of the colder areas of Canada), but they soon will. You'd be well advised, then, to scout out the best trees now so you'll be ready to make your move (ahead of the squirrels) when the right time comes.

And while you're out there tramping the hedgerows and back fields, keep a sharp eye peeled for fox grapes, crab apples, cranberries, staghorn sumac, rose hips, persimmons and the hundreds of other wild foods that are already ripe—or will soon ripen—all across the continent.

For some tips on harvesting and preparing black walnuts, hickory nuts, rose hips, staghorn sumac and wild cranberries, send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Reprint No. 108, COLD WEATHER WILD FOODS.

Jury Sentences Chenault For Death Of Mrs. King

ATLANTA (UPI) — A superior court jury sentenced Marcus Wayne Chenault to death by electrocution Thursday for killing Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr. and a church deacon.

Chenault, 23, a former Ohio State University student, clownishly acted out his own execution as his court-appointed attorney, Randy Bacote, argued against the death penalty.

The jury took about three hours to find Chenault guilty on two counts of murder, one of aggravated assault and two of carrying concealed weapons, and to sentence him to death. His parents, Mr and Mrs. Marcus Wayne Chenault Sr., Dayton, Ohio, wept silently as the sentence was read in the crowded courtroom. Their son bowed from the waist in his chair to the jury.

Chenault then stood before Fulton County Superior Court Judge Luther Alverson and smiled as he was sentenced to die Nov. 8 in the state prison at Reidsville.

The death sentence will be appealed automatically. There have been no executions in Georgia in about seven years. Bacote recalled for the jury how Mrs. King and her son, the late civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., both died violent deaths.

"If they were here," Bacote said, "They'd say

"I will not kill anyone in my name." Chenault clutched the arms of his chair, stuck out his tongue and convulsed as though he were being electrocuted during Bacote's argument. Seconds later, he smiled, flashed a V for - victory sign and sat up.

District Attorney Lewis Slaton then called for his execution, saying, "This society cannot afford this defendant. Send him to prison for what happened, and he'd find a weapon. Ladies and gentlemen, he has tasted blood and he'll kill again."

$100,000 Reward For Theft?

CENTERVILLE, Del. (UPI) — No names were mentioned in the classified advertisement, but there was a $100,000 reward.

That and the reference to a theft from a private residence in Delaware made it almost certain that a member of the wealthy du Pont family was involved. Chubb and Son, Inc., a Philadelphia insurance firm, offered the reward in Thursday's New York Times.

Apparently trying to keep the family name out of it, however, the ad said only that the jewelry was taken "from a private residence in the state of Delaware, USA, on Sept. 1, 1974."

In a small state like Delaware little more was needed to suggest the du Pont family was involved. A Chubb spokesman, who would not say where the theft occurred, set the value at "at least $500,000."

Delaware State Police added little other than the name of Bayard Sharp, son of one of the most important du Pont family members. They gave the same figure for the loss, but some estimates went up to $1,000,000.

Police said Sharp, 60, and his wife were in their Centerville home when the jewels were taken, but in another part of the house.

Sharp, who is retired, is the son of H. Rodney Sharp Sr. and Isabella Mathieu du Pont.

His mother was the daughter of the first Lamont du Pont and sister of the late Pierre S. du Pont, both key members in controlling E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Co.

His father, who also became linked to the du Pont chemical empire, was a prominent philanthropist probably best known for his gifts to the University of Delaware.

State police were reluctant to discuss any details of the robbery, although they did say a number of family heirlooms were taken.

The newspaper ad said the stolen items consisted of 50 items of personalized gold jewelry, brooches, earrings, rings, pins, clips, bracelets, necklaces and watches.

The size of the reward suggested the actual value of the stolen items, if normal insurance company practices were followed, could have been $1,000,000 or more.

Gem Society Plans Show

The Canadian River Gem and Mineral Society will host its 14th annual show, Oct. 5 from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Oct. 6 from 12 noon to 6 p.m. in the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium.

Hourly door prizes of gemstone jewelry will be awarded. Exhibitors' prize of lapidary equipment and the grand door prize, an imperial topaz pendant in 14K white gold, will be awarded Sunday, Oct. 6, at 6 p.m.

Included in the show will be special exhibits, working exhibits, dealers, and rockhound exhibits of faceting, carving, mineral collecting, gemstone jewelry, oil painting on rock slabs, and many more. Movies will be shown daily and there will be a rock swap Oct. 6 from 9 to 11 a.m.

Admission will be $1 for adults, 25 cents for students and sponsored school and scout troops will be admitted free.

Reality Versus Truth

When a President says there will be no wage and price controls, he doesn't mean there will be no wage and price controls.

Typically Americans misunderstand political leaders because they do not understand the political language. They fail to understand the political language because they do not understand the political system. The language grows out of the needs of the system.

Political language sounds a good deal like the English language. The words and grammar are the same. Only the meaning differs. For example when President Ford said he would not reimpose wage and price controls, this was generally understood to mean that controls were not to be considered.

But of course, the very opposite is evident. If the President was not considering imposition of controls, he had no cause to mention them. Now put yourself in a President's position. Here he sits in the middle of inflation. He's got to make a showing of action. People expect him to. The question is what action. Among the things that have been tried in the past and that people have come to expect are wage and price controls. To the President personally, such regulations may be obnoxious, but he has to face the fact that objectively they are part of the action inventory. That brings up a new question.

What is the best way to get a wage and price proposal out of the warehouse and onto the front dock of public considerations? The President has two options. He can say, "Let's try wage and price controls" or he can say, "Let's NOT try wage and price controls."

As a politician, he knows there is no merit in taking a higher risk when you can accomplish the same thing at a lower risk. For example, going back a few years to 1916, fans of Woodrow Wilson said, "He kept us out of war." This was a way of talking "war" to the American people in a way that they would accept the discussion. President Roosevelt used the same method. He said, "I will not send your sons to fight and die in a foreign war." If either Wilson or Roosevelt had brought up the subject of war in any other context, they would have suffered an unnecessary exposure to political counterattack. By their understanding of the political language, the two late Presidents minimized the risk of what otherwise would have been highly unpopular action. By denouncing war they introduced the subject of war to the American people and achieved a climate of opinion in which precautionary steps for war could be taken earlier than otherwise would have been feasible.

Peacetime wage and price controls are far less traumatic subjects than war. But the principle of minimum risk still applies. First step in preparing for controls is to get American people to think about them as a potential alternative. To deny the coming of controls achieves the initial objective quite as well as proposing controls. A political leader cannot be blamed for suggesting a non-program. On the other hand, if a frantic Congress and desperate labor union apply overwhelming pressure for price ceilings, the President retains the option of gracefully yielding to evident reality. He couldn't be blamed. He didn't really want things to turn out that way.

The political language is not deliberately deceitful. In the context of the system, the reverse meaning is a matter of common sense. That's why the system can't be relied on; political reality casts out truth.

"And along with the other briefings, perhaps a crash course in tea sipping, inscrutibility, and reserve."

Uproar Over Panama Canal

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 — Any attempt to curtail or in any other way tamper with U.S. sovereignty over the crucially strategic Panama Canal will be vehemently resisted in Congress.

That her warning about Russian encroachment on the Canal is not idle, Mrs. Sullivan cited the Panama regime's recent resumption of diplomatic and trade relations with Cuba's Communist dictator Castro.

"From the best interests of the U.S.," Mrs. Sullivan told Kissinger, "this renewal of ties between the Republic of Panama and Castro's Cuba must be viewed with alarm, especially since it coincides with the ongoing negotiations between Panama and the U.S. directed toward a new treaty affecting the Canal and Canal Zone. Congress has very serious misgivings about these negotiations."

"The linkage of the two events, renewal of ties between Panama and Cuba and the continuing treaty negotiations between the U.S. and Panama, profoundly exacerbate congressional fears of a Communist takeover of the Canal."

Behind this grave apprehension is the fact that General Omar Torrijos, Panama dictator, and his ruling clique of henchmen have given unmistakable signs of deep-seated hostility towards the U.S. on one hand, and marked pro-Soviet bias on the other.

Emphasizing this, Mrs. Sullivan squarely questions the advisability of "continuing these treaty negotiations at a time when the Republic of Panama is moving closer and closer to the Communist government in Cuba. I certainly hope we are not negotiating away our sovereign rights over the Canal and the Canal Zone so that the vacuum created by our diminished presence and influence is filled either directly or indirectly by Communist forces and interests."

On The Spot
Mrs. Sullivan doesn't limit herself to merely cautioning the high-powered head of the State Department.

The highly regarded 22-year congressional veteran, who in addition to being chairman of the powerful Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee is also a senior member of other major committees, firmly calls on Kissinger to keep her advised on three key points:

(1) "Precise status of the treaty negotiations (with Foreign Minister Tack, noted for his virulent hostility toward the U.S. and Communist leanings)."

(2) "When they are expected to be concluded."

(3) "How the State Department views these treaty negotiations in the context of the renewed relations between the Republic of Panama and Fidel Castro's Communist regime."

While restrained in her language, Mrs. Sullivan makes no bones she means business, saying:

"In the light of widespread congressional concern regarding this matter, I would appreciate your keeping me informed. A polite way of directing: 'You'd better be sure to do so.'"

From more than two decades of experience, Mrs. Sullivan well knows bureaucrats and how most effectively to deal with them.

Addendum: Latest to join the mounting anvil chorus against meddling with U.S. sovereignty over the Panama Canal is Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo. In an unreported talk in the Senate, the one-time rancher, serving his second term, called attention to a recently published Commerce Department study titled "The Panama Canal in U.S. Foreign Trade."

Hansen noted the report stressed that U.S. loss of the Canal would mean a $932 million increase in the annual price of all exports, a $583 million increase in the yearly price of imports, and a 31-day increase in shipping time.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE Should We Have Wage, Price Controls Again?

By WILLIAM RUSHER
Are we now to undergo, for the second time in less than five years, the blind folly and ultimately destructive effect of wage and price controls?

Most people, I imagine, would be merely amused if Congress were to pass a law decreeing that there shall henceforth be precisely 30 inches of rainfall per year, distributed evenly over the United States. Rainfall, we all know, is simply the by-product of certain uncontrollable antecedent conditions: the amount of water vapor (clouds) in the air, the temperature of the great air masses, and so on. The government has very little to say about it.

And yet many people seem to assume that the federal government has the power to legislate out of existence the economic by-products (wages, prices, etc.) of antecedent conditions that it chooses not to control: notably the money supply. My children, it just won't work. And not only won't it work, but the attempt to make it work will simply aggravate the underlying problem.

I think the American people, by and large, know this very well. Dr. Gallup recently asserted that 50 percent of them now favor "having the government bring back wage and price controls," but I think this is merely another example of the good Doctor's habit of asking a poor question and then misinterpreting the answer.

People are desperately, and rightly, concerned about inflation these days. If asked whether they favor "wage and price controls," a fair number of them will answer "Yes" — meaning thereby not to affirm the slightest confidence in government decrees on the subject, but simply to signify that wages and prices must be "controlled"; i.e., brought under control.

The true advocates of wage and price controls are the usual demagogic politicians, plus a handful of renowned economists whom it is costing me considerable effort not to call out — and out — quacks. In August 1971, when President Nixon finally lost his nerve, abandoned his principles, and imposed controls, the Democratic National Committee (which, of course, had been demanding them for years) hailed the step as "long overdue and welcome". Walter Heller and John Kenneth Galbraith, who had been in the forefront of the struggle for controls, proclaimed themselves vindicated.

As "National Review" magazine pointed out in its Aug. 30 issue, the immediate effect was business uncertainty and a sharp drop in the real growth rate of the GNP. As the economy staggered on through phases II and III of controls, wholesale prices rose at rates far outstripping anything seen in the old days before they were imposed. Then — with the 1972 election safely behind it — the Nixon administration abandoned its doomed effort to hold back the rain, and scrapped controls. We are currently experiencing the inevitable delayed downpour, in the form of a 12 percent rate of inflation. Now, of course, Heller, Galbraith and the Democrats are calling for controls all over again.

Economics is too important a subject to be left to economists, let alone to politicians. The reason inflation is so thorny a problem for democracies is that it is associated with a high level of nominal employment that is politically popular but economically unproductive. This luxury is created and maintained by fleecing the productive sectors of the economy through unwarranted increases in the money supply (thus causing the inflation). The extra money is then pumped into the economy, artificially stimulating it, while the inflation grows steadily worse. Wage and price controls solve nothing. The process can only be reversed by tightening the money supply and precipitating a recession. Thus disemploying those marginal workers who have not been producing sufficient goods or services to justify their pay.

President Ford knows all this, of course. The question is whether he will have the courage to do what needs to be done, if inflation is to be halted.

Press And The President

By GARRY WILLS
We journalists are being a bit goopy about President Ford, as if the only virtue needed in the modern world is not to be Nixon. He has, by and large, deserved rave reviews at the outset of his performance. But it may be time to stop and take note of the new temptations that are arising.

The press is normally so docile to a president that when it dared criticize Mr. Nixon people took that as an evil departure from nature. On the contrary, it was a healthy break from normal practice, one that will be hard to maintain without the excuse of sensational corruption that Mr. Nixon gave us.

It is not surprising that newsmen are so acquiescent. The president is news, whatever he does, and he can choose the way he means to expose himself. Access to him or his aides is naturally given to the friendlies. Press conferences are not the ordeals that Mr. Nixon made of them, but ceremonies of allegiance. (Any president who cannot learn a photogenic two-sentence answer to every likely question would never have lasted in politics long enough to reach the White House.)

But the cult of the presidency, the fawning pictures of Mr. Ford heroically lifting his own English muffin into the poster, the details on the First Family's sleeping arrangements — what journalistic justification is there for such attendance at the royal levee? Mr. Johnson, it is true, thrust his surgical scar upon us. But Mr. Ford no doubt has better things to do than toast an extra muffin for photographers in the morning. Why don't we lay off?

President Roosevelt, because of his affliction, banned cameras for all but the most formal and posed shots. He was never shown being lifted in or out of cars, and his health was kept a secret at the end. That way lies the curtained room and its mysterious occupant of Woodrow Wilson's last year in office. We do need a certain degree of exposure. But the opposite extreme came into fashion under John F. Kennedy, that expert manipulator of the press. He directed his wife's tour of the White House on the pattern of Sophia Loren's documentary "Rome". His "lonely" beachwalks must have been the most photographed parades since Barnum's time. Photographers soothed him, helped him make decisions more impressively — witness the famous pictures of him huddling with Bobby during his exercise in Cuban brinkmanship.

Kennedy and the press were friends — far too friendly. Kennedy even sent General Maxwell Taylor rushing off to see Henry Luce's people with more classified documents on the Bay of Pigs than congressmen were allowed to see.

In a memo printed by the Harvard-Crimson, when a new batch of documents was opened up in the Kennedy Library, the president is shown taking time out during the missile crisis to write: "Is there a plan to brief and brainwash key press within twelve hours or so?" Then he lists the most likely brainwashers, who include Joseph Alsop and Marquis Childs.

When someone suggested that Walter Lippmann be made ambassador to France, Arthur Schlesinger, then on the White House staff, wrote that Lippmann was working more effectively for the Administration by writing his columns than by taking such a mission abroad. That way lies the true corruption of the press, not in the skeptical and suspicious attitude reporters acquired under Mr. Nixon. Let Gerald Ford try to find a marriage partner in Congress. With the press, he should get no more than a rather wary friendship.

H. L. Hunt Writes

COOPERATION NEEDED
"Project Sanguine" is a Navy defense communication system for guaranteed, H-Bomb-proof radio communications from the Polaris, Poseidon and Trident ballistic missile submarines to the United States. But anti-national defense propaganda has stalled its completion.

Sanguine's special low-frequency transmission signals are the only available way of penetrating ocean depths of 200 to 300 feet so that missile-carrying submarines need not expose themselves near the surface in order to receive messages. The system requires an underground antenna network or grid from 35 to 50 miles on a side. This grid is made up of cables criss-crossed at three-mile intervals about six feet underground. In order to work properly the antenna network requires an underlying stratum of granite and a flat terrain.

Only a few places in the United States meet the needs of Project Sanguine: Wisconsin, Texas, upper Michigan, upstate New York and the Carolinas. The Navy's first choice was Wisconsin, but anti-military agitation caused such an uproar that the Navy had to withdraw its proposal. The same thing happened in Texas and is now occurring in Michigan.

The Navy has a mass of scientific information to prove that Sanguine's network will do no harm to the area in which it is located. If our citizens could hear the Navy's side instead of just the propaganda of those who oppose the project, they would be more likely to support a program which could do them only good.

As reported by this column, Flood asked the President for a conference on a three-point alternate plan advocated by Flood, Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill., and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. Under their proposal, the Canal would be extensively modernized and the trade facilities of Panama greatly expanded — but there would be no change in U.S. sovereignty over the waterway.

The Hidden Menace
It is strikingly noteworthy that both Mrs. Sullivan and Rep. Flood forcefully stress the threat of covert Russian designs on the Panama Canal.

The two legislators mince no words on that.

Mrs. Sullivan wrote Secretary Kissinger: "The greatest concern of Congress is the fear that U.S. presence in the Canal Zone will be substantially reduced or eliminated altogether and replaced by a Communist presence. The last thing we want is our control over the Canal replaced by Communist control of the Canal."

Flood was equally forthright in his letter to President Ford: "For many years Russia has aimed at wresting control of the Panama Canal from the United States. In the current struggle for domination of strategic waterways (the Straits of Malacca and Gibraltar, the Suez and Panama Canals), a line

Naturally, therefore, each member extols the virtues of the people, the produce, the weather, the cities, and the manufactured goods found within the area in which his or her constituents live.

OF LABOR GROUP Conventions Asked To Adopt Policies

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The state conventions of the Democratic and Republican parties, both opening next Tuesday, have been asked by Texas labor to seek legislation for a public utilities commission, collective bargaining rights for state employees and pay raises for lawmakers.

Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard Thursday asked both parties to adopt strong platforms which also included equal education opportunities among 15 items.

The Texas Republican Party can help lead the Grand Old Party out of the wilderness of moral decay by offering the people of Texas a program which speaks to solutions to specific problems in our state, Hubbard told Republicans.

He specifically recommended Democrats adopt a platform calling for broadened minority representation, regular meetings and activities of the party's executive committee and an improved fund-raising.

The state AFL-CIO submitted identical lists of proposed platform planks that call for state legislation in the following areas:

- Equal educational opportunity; requiring public schools to be financed based on the wealth of the state as a whole.
- Public utilities commission; a state agency to regulate utility rates.
- Legislators' compensation; pay raises for state lawmakers.
- Public employes rights; state employes should have collective bargaining rights.
- Single member districts; the last of the multi-member House districts in a few Texas cities should be eliminated.
- Illegal aliens; criminal penalties are needed for persons who employ illegal aliens, who cause unemployment among Texans and undermine the state's wage structure.
- Insurance reform; group auto and homeowner insurance policies should be legalized.
- Political party purity.

Lung Seminar Set In Amarillo

A physician seminar on pulmonary disease evaluation is scheduled for Saturday from 9 a.m. till noon at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo, to which all area physicians, respiratory therapists and nurses are invited without charge.

Topics will include pulmonary laboratory evaluation, alveolar-arterial oxygen difference, and evaluation of continuous ventilator patients.

Gary Gerard, chief of respiratory therapy at High Plains Baptist Hospital, will present guidelines for evaluation of the pulmonary status of ventilator patients, when to place them on ventilators, how to maintain them on controlled and assisted ventilation, and when to wean patients off of ventilators.

Dr. Ted Nicklaus of Amarillo will speak on alveolar/arterial oxygen difference, and Dr. W.G. Johanson of Dallas will speak on pulmonary laboratory evaluation.

The program is sponsored by Top of Texas Area of the American Lung Association of Texas, Texas Society for Respiratory Therapy will hold a business meeting following the program.

voters should be required to register and vote in only one party primary.

— Privacy: "legislation is needed which restricts police state type dossiers on citizens whose only 'suspect' activity was to protest a proposal by government."

— Employment service reform: Texas Employment Commission should be expanded to help unemployed and compensation should be increased.

— Health delivery systems: health maintenance organizations and prepaid group health insurance programs should be legalized.

— Mass transit: the state should raise funds for mass transit systems from a tax on refinery production.

— Workers compensation: injured workers benefits should be raised to at least 75 per cent of their average weekly wage.

— State housing authority: a state agency should be established to develop human resources in the same way the state has assisted in the development of natural resources.

— Park development: new parks and refuges should be created to relieve overcrowded conditions in many parks.

More than 100 cities across the United States offer regular, curbside collection of used newspapers for recycling.

Merchant Fleet Harmful, API President Says

DALLAS (UPI) — The proposed Energy Transportation Security Act to encourage development of an American merchant marine would fuel inflation and increase gasoline prices, according to the president of the American Petroleum Institute.

"The total cost to the nation would have to take into account the expense of enlarging the tanker fleet, the inflationary impact of higher prices and the harm to international relations," API President Frank Ikard said Thursday.

With a forced switchover to U.S. built ships, we estimate that the cost increase (of petroleum) would be 79 cents a barrel in 1975, rising to $1.44 a barrel in 1985," Ikard said. "The cost to the average American household would be $70 a year and the cumulative cost would exceed $60 billion by 1985."

Versions of the measure have passed both the House and Senate and are now in committee to work out the differences.

The bill would require not less than 30 per cent of waterborne oil be carried in tankers that are built in the United States and fly the U.S. flag.

Ikard said the United States already has enough flagships and said their operational costs is much higher than those of other nations.

Ikard said despite increased domestic oil production the nation's gasoline supplies remain dependent largely on Arab oil. He urged all-out domestic exploration.

"We are historically wasteful in this country," Ikard said. "We have got to develop a conservation ethic."

He also predicted that huge profits recorded by American oil companies this year would be a "one time thing" and said the profit margin on a gallon of gasoline is only 2 cents.

He blames rolling over on heart condition

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 50 and my husband, Walter, is 52. Two years ago he had a heart attack, but he recovered and is now enjoying excellent health.

Walter plays tennis at least three times every week, so he's not exactly an invalid, right?

However, when it comes to lovemaking, I am told not to "bother him" because he doesn't want to take any chances on damaging his heart.

Before his coronary, he wasn't the world's greatest lover, but now he has an excuse. (Or has he?)

Please ask one of your medical consultants and let me know. Don't advise me to ask Walter's doctor because he is also Walter's tennis buddy. Thanks.

MISSING SOMETHING

DEAR MISSING: I consulted Dr. Donald B. Effler, the famous Cleveland Clinic heart surgeon, who is cooler than Denton Cooley and hotter than Michael DeBaeky. His response: "If Walter, age 52, is enjoying regular tennis, but will not take care of his homework, three possibilities come to mind: a) Walter's got something going on the outside, b) Walter's wife has lost something that must have looked good to him a number of years ago or c) Walter is one of those rare men who loses interest in sex at 52. In any event, judging from his wife's letter, Walter's past heart attack is most likely a phony excuse.

"Very few coronary patients are advised against sexual activity at home. This simple observation, made long ago, gave rise to the aphorism, 'There's nothing dangerous about sex, it's the chasing after it that can kill you.'"

DEAR ABBY: Our 27-year-old son is a college graduate who lives and works a few hundred miles from us. Two years ago he met a very nice girl three years his junior, and they have gone together ever since.

My husband and I hope to see them get married—since they are devoted to each other and are certainly not too young—but they tell us they have no such plans for now.

Recently they rented an apartment and are now openly living together. This bothers me much more than it does my husband.

Our son would like some help in furnishing his apartment, and while I would gladly give him things if he were married, I feel it is wrong under these circumstances.

Yesterday I was asked by a friend to give my son's address and also his girl friend's, so she could invite them to a wedding. I was embarrassed to tell her the address was the same for both.

I understand that the life-style and morals of these young people are not mine, but I am hurt just the same. Must I accept this arrangement publicly, go along with it and keep my thoughts to myself?

UNHAPPY MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If you want to maintain a good relationship with your son, yes.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that small-town bartender that he doesn't have to lie. If someone phones the bar and asks if Joe Blow is there, all he has to do is page Joe Blow by calling his name loudly.

If Joe Blow doesn't want to answer the page, it's his business. That way the bartender isn't in the middle.

LADY BARTENDER

DEAR LADY: Leave it to a lady to figure out how to keep from getting in the middle.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, Sept. 14
Your birthday today:

Finds you in the early stages of a major effort to use all your resources and skills for profitable ends. Personal relationships are glamorous but disappointing if you fail to keep details clear. Today's native are practical, despite their tendency toward romantic or poetic fantasy.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You are easily confused, particularly in unfamiliar places. Postpone large purchases or long-term contracts. Don't offer or accept promises. Home life improves tonight.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Let well enough alone; stay with long-established plans. Romance is likely and produces lasting memories, future promise.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Be candid but discreet. Don't debate the puzzling qualities you discover in friends and loved ones. Later hours bring both explanations and a happier mood.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Don't depend on luck alone. Search persistently to get past doubt and slow going. Everything clears up by evening.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: You judge strangers by your expectations. Money gets into situations where it should have no part. Reserve comment on unusual expressions until you learn more.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Reconsider ideas and plans. You handle home and family concerns with some uncertainty. Attend to one thing at a time to arrive at firm decisions. Romance meets with conflict.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Find a sensible way to resolve weekend complications. It helps to be alert and prompt. There are many special circumstances to deal with today.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Nobody is deliberately deceptive, but most advice seems that way if you follow it without thoroughly understanding the problem. Emotional events are pleasant.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Business conditions are, at best, puzzling. Wait for another day to sort through the complexities of a big change or financial rearrangement.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Rely on routine no more than you must. Use leisure time for pleasure, not speculation. Discuss a mystery among intimate friends.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Resist attempts to sell you something; treat appeals lightly, but do buy a gift to express your feelings for someone special.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Business becomes uneven. Don't deviate from routine. What seems a bargain is anything but one. Rely on your own judgment, not that of friends.

Scarves-The Versatile Accessory

There's no doubt about it... 1974 is THE year of the scarf, and that means scarves will be more important than ever to every fashion-conscious woman. A few different styles in different fabrics and you have at your fingertips countless "looks" to keep you right up to date... adding freshness to that outfit that needs some spark, helping create a mood in your dressing. If ever there was a time when scarves could expand your wardrobe and be just right, this is it! Top right: Looking casual and sporty is easy with a shirt and vest, but looking really put together is even easier... tie this 27" square around your neck twice and knot it inside your shirt... this tone-on-tone houndstooth is perfect and has to make that big difference.

your head and wrap yourself in it's long long matching bias end muffler... The softest acrylic keeps you cozy while the bulky tweediness of this set assures you of looking greater than you could ever hope.

At Wit's End

By ERMA BOMBECK
If you're an ecology enthusiast and you're keeping records, combs are biodegradable.

They biodegrade so fast at our house, they often disappear right out of your hand.

This is only a conservative figure, mind you, but I spend on the average of five hours a day looking for a comb. Standing in the middle of the bathroom every morning I say to myself, "If you were a shy comb where would you hide?" Then I check the bottom of the clothes hamper, the top of the breadbox, in a trouser pocket under the bed, in the sewing basket, and once I even found one by the bathroom sink.

It wasn't always this way. When the kids were smaller they felt if God had meant for you to comb your hair with a comb He would never have given you five adjustable fingers and nails to make a part. But then they discovered combs and, frankly, I don't like what it has done to our family.

It has turned brother against brother, husband against wife, and mother against the whole crummy bunch. I said to my husband one morning, "Have you seen the comb?" (Notice, we give it singular distinction like, "Have you seen the queen? The Pope? The pyramids?" etc.)

"Not in a week," he said patting his hair down with his hand. When I returned to the bathroom suddenly, I saw him sneaking a comb out of hiding under the sink that was jammed between a hot water bottle and a shoeshine kit.

I couldn't believe it. This is the man whose children I had borne, who promised to love and cherish me through Spock and Stillman... whom I had nursed through 18 income tax returns, who shared my bed... my toothpaste... my deodorant, but who hid his comb from me.

In his guilt he said, "Would you believe it wasn't here yesterday?"

I called the children together, "Daddy has the comb. He had it all the time." The last time I saw a look on a child's face like that was when Alan Ladd refused to use his gun in Shane.

"Didn't you know what not having a comb could do to us?" I asked. "Suppose I had to answer the door..."

"You could have worn a hat and told them you had brain surgery," he said. "May the teeth in your comb rot and fall out," I said stiffly. "Come children, I know where there is a hairbrush."

seen the queen? The Pope? The pyramids?" etc.)

Top left: There's always an occasion when a woman wants to look especially pretty and feminine... The way to do it is to tie a very lovely and soft 64" chiffon in a bow at your neck. This stripe in subtle colors is exactly what fits the bill, and it even makes you feel as feminine as it makes you look.

Bottom left: How do you look super when it's freezing cold? Easy... Pull down the biggest, bulkiest and most luscious cuffed hat over Top right: Looking casual and sporty is easy with a shirt and vest, but looking really put together is even easier... tie this 27" square around your neck twice and knot it inside your shirt... this tone-on-tone houndstooth is perfect and has to make that big difference.

Bottom right: You're going to lunch in town and you want to look smashing... A silk oblong in a geometric paisley is the right print... Doubling it around your neck and letting the ends sit softly outside your shirt (or in it) is the right way to wear it. What you've created is the look that's on target and very special without having to work too hard.

Scarves are everywhere in 1974... to look modern and thought-out, everyone needs them. They're the flexible, workable, versatile accessory this year.

'Baby Beef' Saves On Food Dollar

COLLEGE STATION — If you'd like to eat more beef but can't afford existing prices, there may be an alternative in "baby beef."

According to a livestock and meat specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, baby beef is beef produced from young animals weighing 400 to 700 pounds that have come off pastures where they have been nursing.

"Baby beef was once quite popular in the supermarket, but in recent years the trend has been toward choice heavy beef," points out Woodrow Bailey. "However the high cost of feedgrains has caused the price of fat animals to jump while young calves coming off pastures have sold for considerably less."

This price differential on August 10 was 20 percent, according to the Texas A&M University System specialist. So, consumers could save that much on their beef dollar by purchasing baby beef instead of heavy beef.

What are the basic differences in the two types of beef? "The major factor is that there is less marbling — flecks of fat — in the lean portion of the meat," points out Bailey. "This means that loin steaks from baby beef do not lend themselves to broiling as well as those from heavy beef. But for all other methods of cooking, young beef is excellent. In fact, baby beef is unsurpassed for pan frying."

The specialist encourages consumers to look for baby beef in the supermarket, as some stores are beginning to display it once again. Better yet, check with a rancher or an auction owner and buy a young calf weighing 500 to 600 pounds. Then have it custom slaughtered, cut and wrapped from your home freezer. Often the manager of a local meat processing plant will be able to obtain a calf for you.

Emil Jannings, the famous German actor, was born in Brooklyn, N.Y.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal arose in a rubber-bridge tournament in Las Vegas a few years ago, our South declarer arrived at an excellent game contract. As will be observed, the defense was super-perfect. In the post-mortem analysis, it was revealed that the contract could have been fulfilled if declarer had come up with a ridiculous play.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

Opening lead: Two of ♠. After capturing the opening lead with his ace of clubs, East shifted to the four of spades. West won this lead with his ace, and returned the spade jack. South played low from dummy, in the hope that the jack would win the trick.

PRIMROSE HOBBY CLASS
The Primrose Hobby Class met recently in the home of Mrs. Grace Rider of Lefors, to honor Ruth Kendrick of Houston, with a luncheon.

Mrs. Kendrick had spent part of the summer in Pampa visiting her sister, Madge Caviness, who had been teaching the group how to make Chenille bouquets. Those present were Rena Jeffries, Leona Dorsey, Ruth Kendrick, Madge Caviness, Gracie Bishop and the hostess.

Women comprise 45 per cent of the automobile drivers in the United States, according to the National Automobile Club.

But East came up with a good play: he overtook the jack with the king.

From East's position, he knew that he was making the right play, for he had asked himself the question: "Why didn't declarer cover the jack with dummy's queen, thereby making winners out of dummy's remaining spades?" The answer suggested itself: Declarer had no losers in his hand, and didn't need any tricks in the spade suit.

So East came to the correct conclusion that the defenders' sole hope for the setting trick rested in obtaining a trump trick. After winning trick three with his spade king, East led his remaining spade.

There being no spades remaining in the defenders' hands, declarer quite naturally ruffed this trick with his jack. West discarded a diamond. Next came a trump to the board's ace, after which the trump queen was cashed. When West failed to follow suit to the second trump lead, declarer was down, since East had a sure trump winner.

Declarer made the right play when he ruffed the third spade lead with the jack. Had the five outstanding trumps been divided normally (3-2), he would have avoided the loss of a trump winner.

Of course, if declarer had been clairvoyant, he would have ruffed with the three-spot instead, which would have won the trick since West possessed only the singleton deuce of trumps. But this just couldn't have been the correct play, although on this day it would have been the winning play.

Difference In Diabetes Testing

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: My sister just found out that she has diabetes. Her doctor says all her children, also her brothers and sisters, should have the test. When her daughter went for the test, she was told to eat a big breakfast, including sweets. My doctor told me to come without breakfast. Why the difference? Which doctor is right? — Mrs. E.S.

which your blood sugar rises and falls. Your sister's daughter's doctor, on the other hand, evidently intends to start out with the more complicated sugar-tolerance test. For that test, the patient very often is instructed to eat a diet high in carbohydrates (starches and sugars) for three days prior to the test. The sugar tolerance test gives more information than just the fasting blood sugar and can give evidence of hypoglycemia if it exists, whereas the fasting blood sugar will not disclose hypoglycemia unless the patient happens to be having an attack of it at that particular time — which would be a rather long coincidence.

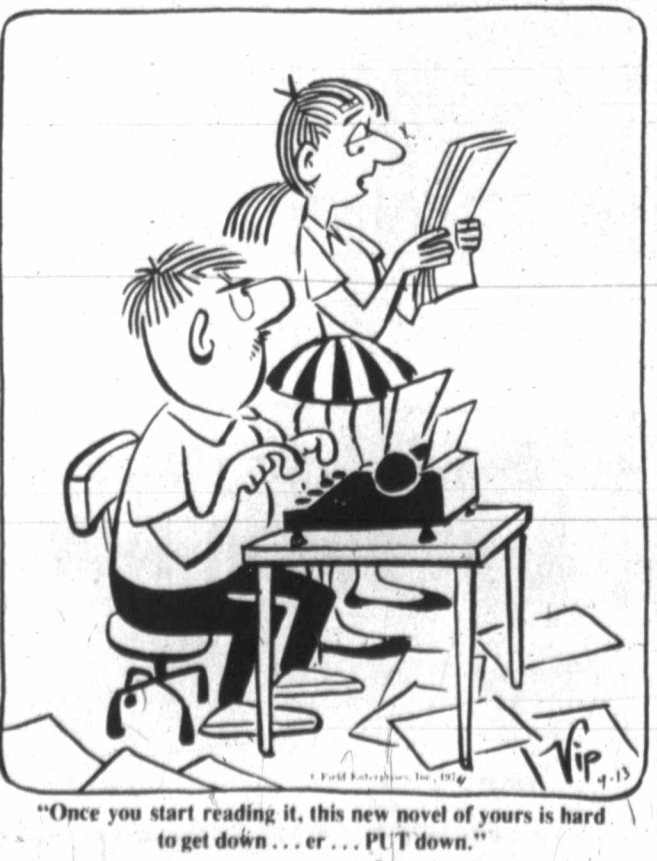

Pay Windfall In Store For Some Military

A back-pay windfall is in store for everyone who was in the active military, reserve forces, or the National Guard during late 1972. The payments, totaling several hundred million dollars, are owed to the military according to a court decision. The one-shot back pay due stems from a ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals that former President Nixon illegally delayed the government pay raise scheduled by law for October, 1972.

The Second Supplemental Appropriations Act, signed June 8, 1974 provided the military services with funding authority for retroactive payments to military personnel, including those who have since separated or retired. The decision came in a law suit brought by the National Treasury Employees Union after Nixon delayed until January, 1973 the automatic raise required under the Federal Pay Comparability Acts. The active duty basic pay increase was 6.7 percent. The Texas National Guard is now processing the payments for current and former Guardsmen. Persons who were in the Guard or Army Reserves or on active duty during that period and remain in that status today will receive the money automatically in the next few weeks.

Others who have moved from active duty to the Reserves or from one Reserve component to another must request the payment. Reservists who have separated or retired since Oct. 1, 1972 are also eligible for the back pay. Persons eligible for the back pay should write their last unit of assignment. The letter should include full name, Social Security Number, rank, current mailing address, date separated, and the duty station during October-December, 1972.

Under Twenty

By DIANE O'BRIEN There are times when opinion and actions are gathered together in a neat, tidy package and there appears to be little choice. Then, there are times when young people have a unique opportunity to grow in their own way, to listen to the sounds of another beat on the drum. There was a time when everyone "should become an engineer." Everyone should be anti-war or anti-establishment. There was a time when almost all opinions had to sway before the same breeze. This isn't the case today. You have an opportunity to select your own position, your own direction. There is little, if anything, to peg you into a round or a square hole. This is for young people an unusual time. There is no military draft hanging darkly in the future. The world is changing so fast that no single career goal is the key. What, then, emerges? The opportunity and the need for the development of each individual as a distinct entity. In other words, it is a time to be yourself, to be the person you choose to be. This year in your school and social life you have an opportunity to grow on your own, in your own way. Develop your own personality knowing there is no set pattern, no distinct direction for you to follow. It is a time when there is little leadership and a crying need for leaders. When all things are flowing one direction it is easy to follow the flow. When there is no definite direction the answer lies within the individual's ability to select his or her own direction. The "stamp" placed on you this year could well be your own stamp. With few guidelines to follow, other than those you inherently feel you should follow, this year should and can be a year of personal growth as "you." (Distributed By Columbia Features, Inc.)

Harvesters Meet Dumas Demons In 2nd Contest

DEFENSIVE TACKLE Dane Rasmussen was instrumental in last week's 35-8 Pampa win over the Hereford Whitefaces and will be counted on tonight as Pampa hosts the Dumas Demons. Pampa's defensive line will average 20 pounds a man heavier than the Demons' offensive line. (Photo by Jim Williams)

By PAUL SIMS
Dumas head coach Bill Spann admits Pampa is a vastly improved football team, but after last week's 20-14 Demon loss to Palo Duro, he's not selling his team short as the Harvesters entertain the 1-AAA Demons at 7:30 p.m. today in Harvester Stadium before what is expected to be a full house.

Dumas was expected to be slaughtered by huge Palo Duro last week in Dumas, but as things turned out it was the Dons who were hanging on for their lives before taking the close win.

"The second half we were a little more pleased," said Spann. Dumas shut the Dons' who led 20-0 at halftime, off in the second half and almost won the game by scoring twice and almost three times in the waning minutes.

"We hope we can do it against Pampa. The situation will dictate what we're going to have to do. But we hope we can run the ball," said the Dumas mentor.

"Pampa looks very good

What I know about that district, if I had to evaluate it, I'd put Caprock and Pampa at the top of the list. Pampa, it's just their overall squad play.

"The offense looked very good, they execute the offense very well. The defense overall is a very good, sound defense—good, sound pursuit. They're more of a squad unit than what they've tried to achieve before."

Spann's Demons won last year's fame, 10-7, going into the contest as underdogs. But Dumas has always performed admirably when picked to lose (Dumas was supposed to lose last year, and Pampa is again favored this time).

Dumas will field a small team tonight, particularly in its backfield where the biggest player is 165-pound full back Wayne Jones. Jones gained 534 yards on 13 carries against the Dons and is expected to be the Demons' primary rusher against the Harvesters. Quarterback will be either 5-9, 150-pound Tim Noack, who started last week, or 5-10, 160-pound Eddie Troutman. Both are seniors and both will play equal time tonight. "They're both better runners than they are throwers. We threw 14 times against Palo Duro. We'd like to throw 15 to 25 times a ball game. We're not going to line up and run right over these four - A people - we play. We need to pass."

Noack, the probable starter, and Troutman will alternate series tonight.

Filling out the backfield will be left half back Curtis McCandless, a 5-8, 140-pound junior, and Randy Srader, a breakout threat, is a 5-9, 150-pound senior.

The quarterbacks' primary receiver is left end Joel Wright, 6-0, 165-pound senior. Right end will be 6-1, 165-pound senior Russel Wheeler. Other linemen will be left tackle Terry Sheldon (178), right tackle Rex Hudson (170), left guard Coy Lovvorn (165), right guard Robert Ames (175) and center David Carrell (150). Most of the offensive starters play defense also. The biggest player on the Dumas defense is left end Logan Harben, a 6-2, 180-pound sophomore end.

Pampa quarterback Chuck Quarles, split end Howie Lewis, halfbacks Tim Thornburg and Rick Leverich will try to keep the diminutive-defense guessing as the Pampa offense was able to do last week against Hereford.

Pampa ran for 241 yards and passed for 125, giving the Harvesters a balanced offense en route to their 35-8 win.

Defensive standouts were end Kelly Baker, who recovered three fumbles, tackle Dane Rasmussen and noseguard Ron Willett. The latter two pressured Hereford quarterback Mike Crim throughout the win and forced six fumbles.

Tickets for tonight's game will be on sale at the gate for $2.50 for reserved seats and $2.25 for general admission.

Favorite Falls In PWGA Play

Neomia Johnston of Amarillo downed defending champion Billie Nichols of Borger Thursday and will play in the championship match today against Ruby Holmes of Amarillo in the Panhandle Women's Golf Association Tournament at Pampa Country Club.

Mrs. Holmes defeated Jan Elston of Pampa to earn the right to compete for the championship.

In consolation play Thursday, Fran Wilson of Pampa eliminated Callie Combost of Panhandle (Clarendon Country Club) while Willa Brown of Amarillo edged Alma Lamberson of Pampa. The losers are out of further competition.

In the first flight, Priscilla Simpson of Pampa beat Lou Regan of Borger and Nell Carson of Borger stopped Frankie Gates of Pampa to set up the final match today. In consolation play, Dorothy Hood of Clarendon downed Mae Brown of Borger by default. Ava Warren of Pampa drew a bye in the second round.

Winners in the second flight were Jackie Hassinger of Amarillo over Louise Pfahl of Amarillo and Lula Huhn of Pampa over Thelma O'Bryant of Borger. In consolation play, it was Jean Weatherby of Amarillo over Mava Clark of Borger. Pat Peoples drew a bye Wednesday.

Third flight winners were Donna Joe Evans of Pampa over Ramona Houseman of Pampa and Bill McGrew of Borger over Nita Hill of Pampa.

Mrs. Simpson won Wednesday's chipping contest.

The tournament concluded today.

Dumas-Ward Pass Nips Hereford, 6-0

Rusty Ward caught a 25-yard pass from quarterback Gary Dumas with 20 seconds left in the game to give Pampa Junior High's ninth-grade A-team a 6-0 win over Hereford LaPlata Thursday afternoon.

The touchdown capped a four-play, 50-yard drive and was the first time either team even came close to the opposition's goal line.

Tim Reddell intercepted a pass on Hereford's series following the touchdown and ran it back from the 40 to the four to kill LaPlata's hopes for a comeback.

Defensive standouts in the game for Pampa were tackles Marvin Oliver and Vernon Cave, noseguard

Terry Simmons and Mark Coufal.

Dean Smith, a halfback, and Floyd White, Pampa's fullback, ran the ball well against defense-minded LaPlata.

Pampa and Hereford Stanton will play next Thursday in Hereford.

In the only other junior high action Thursday, the eighth-grade Red and ninth-grade B-team tied 0-0 in a game-type scrimmage. Eighth-grade coach Dickie Crockett was pleased with his team's defense.

"We still need to polish up on the things we do," said Crockett.

The eight-grade Blue will take on the ninth-grade B-team at 3 p.m. at PJH field.

Also dropped were Ken and Don Thurman, according to coach Darrell Royal. Roosevelt Leaks went through his second workout Friday without injury to his repaired knee.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas coach Frank Broyles says he is satisfied with the Razorbacks' readiness for their opener against Southern Cal Saturday. Broyles said his team had more confidence than before last year's opening loss to the Trojans.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — TCU coach Jim Shofner has decided to start junior college transfer Ronald Parker of Brenham, Tex., at tight end Saturday in the Frogs' opener against Texas-Arlington. Shofner said he had not decided on a starter at tailback.

SAN AMARCOS, Tex. (UPI) — Tailback Walter Hartfield and Safety Mike Moody have been dismissed from the Southwest Texas State football team by Athletic Director Bill Miller for disciplinary reasons. Hartfield, a senior from Austin Johnson, was the team's leading rusher last year with 704 yards.

US Leads 2-0 In Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Leading 2-0, the United States sent its defending yacht Courageous out today for a third race against Australia's Southern Cross, 22nd challenger in the 123-year history of the America's Cup.

Both sides hoped today's encounter would be devoid of the controversy that marked Thursday's racing when both yachts filed protests against each other on the maneuvering that proceeded the race. The protests were considered by an international jury of three — none of whom had ties to the countries involved in the race — which disallowed them.

In Thursday's racing, Courageous won by one minute and 11 seconds in one of the closest races since the 12-meter boats replaced the big expensive J boats in 1958.

Courageous was only one second behind at the start of the six-leg course, with starting helmsman Dennis Conner letting Southern Cross cover him. Then, Conner turned the helm over to skipper Ted Hood, who in a tacking duel to the first mark, put the defender out ahead by 34 seconds. From there to the finish line he never was headed.

He lost a little on the downwind second leg, rounding the mark at 28 seconds ahead, but he made it up on the next leg and turned the third mark 54 seconds ahead. He increased this to 56 seconds around the fourth mark, was 45 seconds ahead at the fifth mark, and then on the finishing leg to windward, he pulled away to end up the winner by one minute, 11 seconds.

played only one game outside its home state — the 1964 Orange Bowl — in even numbered years. In odd numbered years, it plays at least one out-of-state game — at Arkansas.

The Longhorns, who were upset at Miami in their opener last year, should have an easier time Saturday night when they travel to Boston College.

Even without Roosevelt Leaks, the Longhorns — ranked eighth nationally in the UPI preseason ratings — are listed as 17-point favorites over BC.

With Mike Esposito leading the ground attack, Boston College will be trying for an upset but the Eagles, who were 7-4 last year with losses to teams like Tulane and Syracuse, aren't quite in Texas' class.

Another team which expected an easy road opener was second-ranked Alabama, which scheduled Maryland as an easy tuneup. The Terps are trying to become the best in basketball but their football program has been in decline for years.

Maryland, ranked 11th with last year's team returning virtually intact, including standout defensive tackle Randy White, is a two-touchdown underdog and probably can't keep up with Alabama even though the Tide's top quarterback, Gary Rutledge, is sidelined with an injury.

'Playoffs Attainable' Says Philadelphia Boss

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — For the first time in eight years, the Philadelphia Eagles are talking seriously about making it to the National Football League playoffs.

That may be a struggle for a team which won only two games two years ago and two of six exhibition games this summer. But with an offense which led the league in passing last season under Roman Gabriel, Coach Mike McCormack doesn't think he and the Eagles are over-optimistic.

"The playoffs are definitely attainable," McCormack says. "I don't know about the Super Bowl. Our goal is just to make the playoffs. We're setting that goal because of the way the offense performed last year and because of the addition of Bill Bergey at middle linebacker."

Philadelphia gave up first-round draft choices for 1977 and 1978 to get Bergey from Cincinnati, building for the present rather than waiting for the future.

The Eagles had been rebuilding since their last winning season in 1966 before the present playoff system was established under the pro football realignment. They never have been in the playoffs under the present system.

With Bergey in the lineup, McCormack says he already has noticed a difference in a team that has suffered from poor linebacking for several years.

"Our defense is hitting more with Bergey," he claims. "We hoped that his ability would be infectious, and it has. He is very swift and makes the plays that only the top linebackers make."

Steve Zabel is back at outside linebacker after recovering from an Achilles tendon injury that sidelined him for the second half of last season. Dean Halverson is the other linebacker.

The defensive line is young but aggressive. Rookie Willie Cullars of Kansas State has replaced end Richard Harris, who was traded to Chicago, and Will Wynn is in his second year at the other end. They are joined by third-year tackle Jerry Patton, acquired from Buffalo, and second-year man Bill Dunstan.

Free safety Bill Bradley, who led the league in interceptions in 1971 and 1972, anchors a veteran defensive backfield that has John Outlaw and Joe Lavender at the corners and Randy Logan at strong safety.

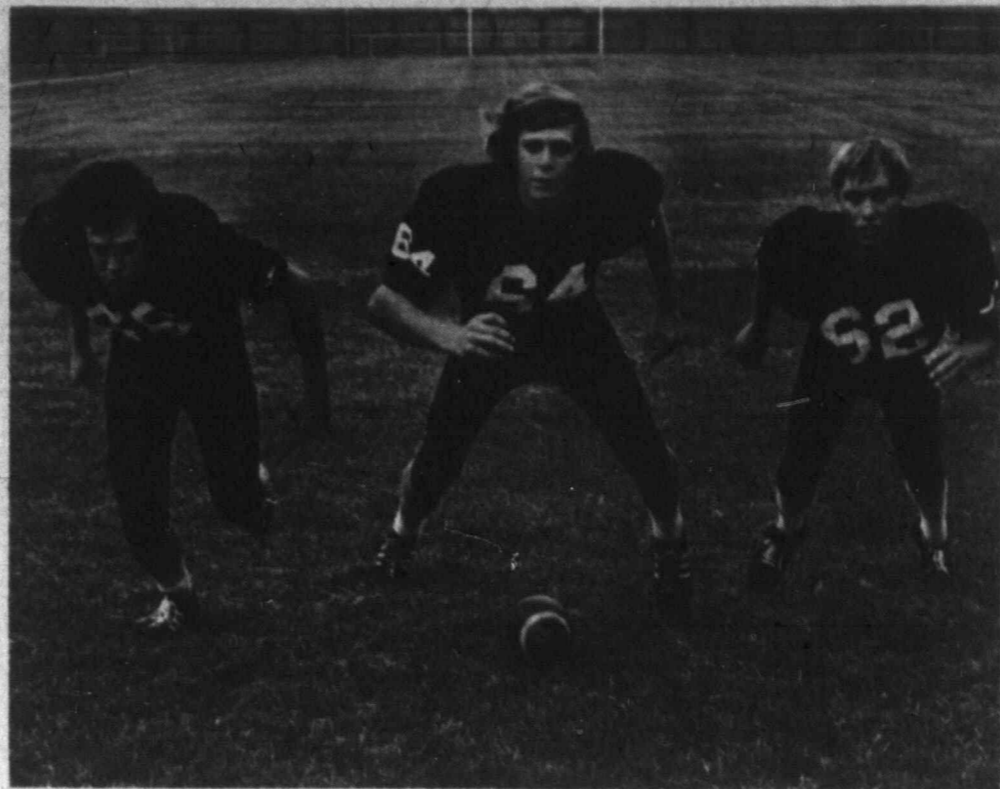

The Eagles' offensive lineup is virtually the same as last year's, with the addition of rookie Mike Boryla of Stanford as another back-up quarterback, along with three-year man John Reeves, behind Gabriel.

Gabriel tied Roger Staubach of Dallas for the league lead with 23 touchdown passes last year, with 6-foot-8 wide receiver Harold Carmichael catching nine TD passes and a club-record 67 total receptions.

Tight end Charles Young caught 55 passes as a rookie, and both Young and Carmichael are powerful runners who can hurt an opponent on end-around running plays that the Eagles use as often as two or three times a game. Second-year man Don Zimmerman is the other wide receiver.

Tom Sullivan, who averaged 4.5 in 217 carries and caught 50 passes last year, leads a backfield that has Norm Bulach, Ron "Po" James, Lee Bougess and Tom Bailey in its stable.

No penalty shots were awarded in the National Hockey League in the 1964-65 season.

AT LEFORS TONIGHT — McLean Tigers who will be among those playing in Lefors at 8 p.m. today are (from left) senior right guard Donnie Bentley, senior center Sam Taylor, senior guard Donnie Bentley and senior kicker Eddie Estes, who is also a starting tackle. Estes (270) booted a 45-yard field goal against White Deer last week.

Frank Robinson Goes To Indians For $20,000

NEW YORK (UPI) — On the face of it, Frank Robinson is in a better position now than anybody else to become the first black manager in major league history.

At least that's the way it seems.

The whole thing is strictly an illusion, though.

Robinson is with the Cleveland Indians now, having just come over to them from the California Angels for the $20,000 waiver price, but he's really no closer to becoming a big league manager in the near future than Hank Aaron, Willie Mays, Maury Wills or Jim Gilliam.

Phil Seghi, the Indians' general manager, says they got Robinson from the Angels "because I still feel we have a chance to win this thing and I'm leaving no stone unturned in an effort to do it."

Those who keep seeing something ulterior in every single baseball transaction immediately will tell you that what Seghi is handing out now is nothing but a lot of pap, pure general manager talk.

Some of these same people say if the Indians don't win in the American League East, and their chances aren't that good then they'll bounce Ken Aspromonte at the end of the season and make history by naming Robinson as their manager.

That isn't likely to happen. For a lot of reasons. First of all, Phil Seghi is telling the truth when he told everybody why the Indians got Frank Robinson, 39, from the Angels.

They got him because they need the kind of big stick he's capable of swinging. They're hoping he can get hot in these next two weeks, bring some people out to the ballpark, win a few ball games and who knows, maybe even help land them in the World Series.

It's a long shot, but for the Indians, it's worth a try.

Robinson isn't costing them that much despite his $172,000 salary. Prorated, all the Indians have to pay him between now and the end of the season is $22,000 and if he does what they hope he will, he'll be the biggest steal since Harry Dalton, the Angels' boss who talked the Mets out of Nolan Ryan.

Then there's another reason why Robinson is no closer to a major league managership right now than he was with the Angels.

He and Seghi aren't exactly strangers. Both were with Cincinnati together a long time. Their relationship then was never really that warm. It was Seghi's job each year to sign Robinson, and that was never an easy job. Some of the arguments the two men had were classics. General managers have a way of remembering things like that a long time. Forever sometimes.

When I asked him whether he had any discussion with Robinson regarding managing the Indians, Seghi said:

"None whatsoever. I believe him."

Prayer Vigil Goes On For SMU's Staten

DALLAS (UPI) — Members of the SMU football team and Fellowship of Christian Athletes today maintained a prayer vigil for freshman tight end Dwaine Staten, in a coma and under intensive treatment for meningococcal meningitis.

"He is in intensive care," said an athletic department spokesman. "Right now they are looking at his vital signs. His temperature has gone from 105 down to below 100 degrees and I believe they think that's good."

Staten's illness was diagnosed Wednesday.

Royal Starting Season Jumpy

United Press International Darrell Royal has been coaching football for quite a few autumns now, but that doesn't mean he can take the opening of another season calmly.

"It's a trait of a coach to be jumpy," he says.

And, indeed, it is "jumpy" time again for the eight Southwest Conference coaches whose teams will compete this season for the league's 60th football crown.

A full schedule of eight games will be played on the first big weekend of college football, not the least of which will be the meeting of Royal's Texas Longhorns — including fullback Roosevelt Leaks — and Boston College in Boston Saturday night.

And it will also be the first chance fans will have a chance to see whether Arkansas, Texas Tech or Texas A&M — or perhaps all three — could pose a real life threat to the Longhorns' string of six consecutive conference championships.

"I think it is more out of force of habit for us to be rated first in the conference," Royal said during the final day of pre-season drills. "I don't feel we are that much of a favorite."

The Longhorns will carry a No. 8 ranking going into Boston, somewhat reminiscent of last year's season opener for the Longhorns at Miami, a game won by the Hurricane, 20-15.

"Boston College has always had outstanding talent," Royal said. "They had something like seven guys drafted last year and always have good personnel. They are as stiff an opener as we had last year."

Of almost as much interest to Longhorn fans as the final score will be the showing of freshman Earl Campbell, who will start at the fullback spot in place of Leaks.

Campbell has been wondrous in scrimmages and Royal didn't hesitate placing the first year player from Tyler into Leaks' king sized shoes. Leaks, meanwhile, was declared fit last Wednesday by doctors who gave his rehabilitated right knee a final examination.

Leaks, holder of the single season Southwest Conference rushing record, was obviously not up to form during brief contact sessions this week, but he could still see limited duty against the Eagles.

Elsewhere around the conference, Arkansas has a rugged opener, Texas Tech and Texas A&M will have less difficult assignments, three teams will battle neighboring rivals and Baylor simply must do the best it can.

The Bears travel to Oklahoma to face a team that publicly states it wants to run up the score this year to prove it is the best in the country.

Arkansas will entertain fourth-ranked Southern California in a night game at Little Rock. The Razorbacks have opened against the Trojans the past two years and have lost both times.

Texas Tech, 14th-ranked, plays host to Iowa State in an evening affair and Texas A&M, picked by more than a few to win the conference this year, begins its season at home against Clemson with a 4 p.m. start.

Rice will travel up the street in Houston to the Astrodome Saturday night for an encounter with Houston, which fell 30-9 to Arizona State last week.

Two other area nighttime battles will take place in the Dallas-Fort Worth region. SMU must tangle with North Texas State, whose coach, Hayden Fry, was fired by SMU two years ago, and TCU will entertain Texas-Arlington.

Chisox Nip Texas

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago White Sox pitcher Stan Bahnsen is off the hook and it may have saved his job.

Although Manager Chuck Tanner would not admit it, his veteran right-hander had been a big disappointment this season.

Even Bahnsen says, "I let the team down this season," but after Thursday night's performance it may mean a new lease on life.

Bahnsen pitched six innings of five-hit ball as the White Sox tied the Rangers 2-2 in a game that was halted by rain after six innings. It took a home run by Ken Henderson with one out in the bottom of the sixth to save Bahnsen from suffering his 15th loss.

But Bahnsen had not won a game since Aug. 16 and that was in relief. His last win as a starter came against Cleveland Aug. 9 but Bahnsen was bothered by his wildness and it cost him both Texas runs in the opening inning.

"That's been my trouble all season," he said. "I've walked too many hitters and it's just like giving them a base hit. It's been so bad that when I went out to the mound tonight all I could think about was trying to get the ball over the plate. I still feel personally that I have let this club down with my poor performances and I was lucky to get off the hook tonight with Henderson's home run."

Tanner however would not buy Bahnsen's pessimism.

"As long as Stan is willing to go along and work hard and want to stay with me I'll give him every chance," Tanner said. "But if a guy gives up on himself, then there is nothing I can do."

Apartment Dwellers Enjoying Privacy In Landscaped Plaza

By KAY BROWN
ATLANTA (UPI)—From the balcony of her 4th floor apartment, Mrs. Ruth Duckworth rocks and watches people scurrying across the well landscaped plaza of "the world's first micropolis."

The memories of the 78 year old woman are of the past, but her view is of what developer James E. Cushman believes may become the salvation of the cities—a model inner city community where life is enjoyable and personal.

"I am of the conviction that the more a person is known, the less likely he is to commit crimes and the more likely he is to make a contribution to his community," says Cushman, developer of the multi-million dollar Colony Square and the driving force in its eight-year development.

Mrs. Duckworth was one of the first residents to move into Colony Square, a sleek development of offices, apartments and shops that will be worth more than $100 million when completed. She said she found her large, three-bedroom home too much to take care of after her husband died and decided to move to Colony Square at the urging of her daughter.

"I just won't let myself sit here and be lonesome," she says. "I'm going to make the best of what's left of my life."

Colony Square, situated on a 12-acre site just north of downtown Atlanta, includes two office towers with 750,000 square feet of office space, an underground parking garage for 2,000 cars, a large indoor ice skating rink and a 200,000 square-foot shopping mall that will open this fall.

It also includes 97 high rise apartments with monthly rents starting at $340, and 167 high rise condominiums with prices ranging from $37,750 to $212,000. A 31-story Fairmont Colony Square Hotel, the first Fairmont Hotel to be built on the East Coast, will open this month.

"This is one answer for the future of cities," Cushman says. "It is approaching an answer. The real answer is the smaller community within the city, and Colony Square could very well one day be studied as a model. It can be the salvation of cities."

Miss Sheppard Patterson, director of residential properties, says people who live in the complex want more out of life than just a place to live.

"They want to look out the window and think, 'I'm in an exciting place.'"

"Atlanta doesn't have a tradition of high-rise living, and many people think the high-rise doesn't offer much privacy. But they find that's just not true. This is a very civilized, and sophisticated, way of living," she says.

Colony Square's residents include the Japanese and Canadian consuls general, Coca Cola executives, a concert pianist, a beauty shop owner, a retired school teacher, insurance executives, several widows, 14 children and a justice of the Georgia Supreme Court. Miss Patterson says 65 per cent of the residents are under 35.

Colony Square offers numerous social activities for its residents, including covered dish dinners, seminars, speakers, dessert parties on the mall and football brunches with a bus ride to the stadium.

The service is outstanding. For a fee, Miss Patterson says, Colony Square's staff of maids will serve breakfast, water plants, feed cats, do the laundry and help plan and serve parties.

Cushman, 43, president of the Cushman Corp. which owns Colony Square, has been firm, some say stubborn, in his determination to keep the living environment high.

He has refused to let corporations rent or buy property in the residential section, believing "every apartment is a home and people just don't want strangers parading in and out."

The architects for Colony Square, Jove-Daniels-Busby of Atlanta, see the mini-city complex as a place where human needs can be dealt with efficiently.

"We wanted a place with 24 hour vitality, an almost self sufficient community," says Stanley Daniels, an architect who helped with the original planning in 1966.

Cushman says he is now studying the possibility of a number of similar developments, a "sister-city" for Colony Square.

SPREADING THE FAITH

Dropout U Becomes Meditation Center

By GORDON JACKSON
FAIRFIELD, Iowa (UPI)—Fairfield used to be known as the home of "Dropout U." Now, the same buildings comprise the campus of the Maharishi International University and Fairfield is fast becoming the "transcendental meditation center" of the Midwest.

Fairfield achieved a dubious fame in educational circles in the 1960s when its Parsons College, a small, religiously affiliated institution of more than 100 years' standing, went big time.

Parsons hired one of the highest-priced faculties in the country and began attracting students from all over who had trouble making it at other schools.

It looked like a magic, money-making formula for a while. Then Parsons lost its accreditation and finally folded last year, leaving Fairfield with an empty campus and nobody to put into it.

Along came the followers of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, an Indian mystic who spreads his teachings of transcendental meditation—known familiarly as TM—from a Southern California base.

They moved their center onto the Parsons campus and began to spread the faith.

At first, Fairfield, a town of 8,700, was leery. Then some of the townspeople began to give TM a try. A lot of them became believers.

One is Gordon Aistrope, 37, president of the Jefferson Savings and Loan. He was "very apprehensive" about the center moving to Fairfield until he decided to try transcendental meditation last May.

"Now I practice transcendental meditation daily and it does everything they say it will do," Aistrope said. "It gives you a way of relaxing anxieties and expands consciousness. It's not a quirk. It's very restful."

Aistrope said TM was catching on fast among many longtime Fairfield residents. About 80 of them, many of them businessmen over 40, practice TM, he said.

"I think it's going to be beautiful and I don't think you would find a person in town that feels differently," Aistrope said. "The town is accepting them. It's absolutely fantastic."

MIU students began arriving in Fairfield in late August. Jim Bellove, a spokesman for the school, said more than 175 students currently were on campus and as many as 650 students were expected when fall quarter classes open Oct. 1.

"The town has been overwhelmingly good to us," he said. "They've helped us clean the campus buildings and mow the lawns. They've given us a great welcome. They are very, very friendly."

Bellove emphasized that while MIU student practice TM, the school offers more traditional courses and is seeking accreditation in Iowa.

"The container of knowledge is expanded through TM," Bellove said. "Our motto is, 'Knowledge is structured in consciousness.' We aim to provide knowledge of the knower as well as the known."

Bellove said everyone at the school—students, teachers and staff—practiced TM in the morning and that it prepared them for the day's activities.

Mother Earth News

By J. SHUTTLEWORTH
As you know, if you're a regular reader of this feature, I'm always on the lookout for self-employment ideas that an ambitious individual can start on the proverbial shoestring.

Little one- and two-people enterprises that almost anyone can launch... with or without former experience. Businesses which can be run either part of full time. Small ventures that can—if necessary—be moved from one location to another... or operated out of a spare room, garage, basement or kitchen.

And that's just the kind of enterprise that Michele and Michael Sevin—who live in British Columbia, Canada—have come up with!

Michele says that it all started on a rainy, dreary evening when she timidly brought home a small box of coconut-covered date rolls. "Timidly" because the Sevins were out of work and Michael had said that they couldn't afford treats.

Still, he tasted the candy and grudgingly admitted it was good.

"But it's really a gyp," he said. "You can get a whole pound of dates for 31 cents... and this smidgen in fancy wrapping costs 75 cents."

The next evening, when Michele entered the kitchen, Michael greeted her with two steaming bowls of his own freshly cooked dates that were the consistency of pudding. Michele says that the dish was fantastic... especially after she added some sunflower seeds. Soon the young couple was experimenting with even more exotic variations on the basic date pudding.

Homemade Candy
Eventually Michele and Michael reached what they—and everyone who tasted the homemade candy—thought was the epitome of natural food treats. They called it the Almond Date Ball and they made it like this:

First the Sevins brought one cup of water to a boil and added one teaspoon of ground cumin. Then they dropped in four pounds of loose, pitted dates and covered the pan with a heavy lid.

After a minute or two, the heat under the pot was turned off and its contents were allowed to sit for about five minutes, or until the fruit inside was soft. The dates were then crushed with a potato masher (or creamed in a blender) until they were smooth.

Once the date mixture was cool enough to handle (the cooler it is, the less sticky), a small amount was scooped out and shaped into a ball. An almond was then placed on top and the tasty morsel rolled in a bowl filled with sunflower, poppy or same seeds and granola or coconut.

(Other toppings favored by the Sevins are ground peanuts, wheat bran and wheat germ. And for an extra-special treat, they say to try mixing peanut butter or tahini with the dates before coating a scoop of the pudding.)

Well, to make a long story only medium length, Michael and Michele eventually started packaging and selling boxes of 54 Almond Date Balls for resale in health food stores all around Vancouver. Soon, natural food restaurants, and herb shop, an avant-garde cinema and outlets on a university campus were also handling the Sevins' candy.

A Profit Candy
"Almond Date Balls retailed at 15 cents apiece, the stores bought them from us for 10 cents each and every ball cost us a little less than 3 cents to make (not including labor, or distribution expenses such as gasoline)."

"In other words, each box sold—wholesale—for $5.40 and brought us $4 gross profit on our material costs. The average shop took two batches at a time, and some would buy as many as five or more," says Michele.

"Counting the time required for setting up to make a batch of 25 boxes of Almond Date Balls—and for cleaning up afterward—you can figure about one hour's work per box. That's approximately $4 gross profit per hour."

"Or five work hours per day for five days. Then, on the sixth day, all 25 boxes are piled in the van for delivery while we do our shopping, and the seventh day is one of rest."

Michele says that, after she and her husband had worked their candy enterprise in and around Vancouver for a while, they decided to take a summer vacation. And the business went right along with them!

"We prepared a large batch of the balls, packed it in three big plastic buckets with tight lids (recycled bakery supply containers) and took the buckets with us on an extended holiday camping trip to the Okanagan, B.C.'s fruit-growing region. Large plastic bags held the coatings, and we packed all the boxes, bowls, wooden spoons and wrapping materials we'd need in the back of our van."

"Then, whenever we found a nice public campsite, and the weather was warm and sunny... we'd just stop and make our candies on the grass or at a picnic table. We sold enough Almond Date Balls to pay for the trip!"

Can you duplicate the Sevins' success? I see no reason why not. Check with your local health department to find out what licenses you'll need... and start rolling those Almond Date Balls! Michele and Michael Sevin say the rest is easy, fun... and profitable!

Social Security Q & A

(Have you a question about social security? Address it to Howard L. Weatherly, Branch Manager, Social Security Administration, 1541 N. Hobart, Pampa, Texas 79065. You will receive an answer in this column or by mail.)

By H.L. WEATHERLY
Q My wife, who is 65 years old, will need to undergo surgery. Is there anyway this can be covered under Medicare? She has never worked, and I am only 62 and not yet retired.

A You can qualify for Part A of Medicare (Hospital benefits) by filling a claim for retirement benefits. You are old enough—age 62—to do this, even though no cash benefits are payable because of your earnings.

If you do this, she can file for wife's benefits and qualify for Hospital Insurance under Medicare since she is already 65. This can be retroactive to cover any hospital stay within the last 12 months, if she was 65 and you were 62 at the time. She has medical insurance coverage (Part B) to help pay the doctor bills only if she signed up for it during her initial enrollment period.

If she missed this enrollment period, she can enroll for Part B during any General Enrollment Period, an open enrollment period from Jan. 1 through March 31 each year.

Q We have a retarded son, age 32, who has to be fed, dressed and otherwise cared for by my wife. When I become entitled to social security benefits, will my son also receive a check?

A Since your son became disabled before age 22, he very well may be eligible for disabled adult child benefits when you start receiving benefits. Also, your wife, because she is caring for him, may be eligible for monthly benefits regardless of her age.
