Storms Bring Floods

United Press International
For the ninth straight day, rain drenched a diagonal strip of Texas today from southwest bringing the threat of more flooding and forcing the evacuation of several families in Central Texas.

Sidney Simmons, 13, drowned Monday in a flooded creek in North Dallas, and three persons all members of the same family, drowned last week between Woodsboro and Refugio in South Texas.

The worst flooding reported today was in Killeen in Central Texas and Nolanville, four miles east of Killeen. About 50 persons were removed from their homes in a Nolanville trailer park about midnight Monday. Twelve families were evacuated at Killeen.

"I know we had five or six inches up there (Nolanville) last night," Bell County deputy sheriff Bill Coufal said at Belton. "Quite a few cars were covered with water but none was swept away as far as I know."

"It has about quit raining. The creek looks better. It got up to 50 or 60 feet wide. Normally it's about 20."

(Locally, mostly cloudy skies were expected to dominate throughout the area through Wednesday, with a possibility of shower and thunderstorms.

High was expected to remain in the middle 70s with overnight lows in the upper 50s. Pampa's high Monday was a mild 73, with a low this morning of 57.

Lead clouds blocked the sun at forenoon, but no immediate prospects of rain were apparent. Probability of precipitation is 30 percent tonight, decreasing to 20 percent Wednesday.

The sun broke through the cloud cover several times Monday, but failed to completely drive away the clouds.

Rain and thunderstorms covered an area 90 to 100 miles wide, running from just north of Del Rio on the Mexican border to Texarkana, on the Texas-Arkansas Line.

Light drizzle covered a wide area on either side of that. Rain, light or heavy, fell over about a third of the state.

"The situation is unchanged, that is to say, it is getting worse," a spokesman for the National Weather Service in Fort Worth said.

"The area of precipitation has not moved a great deal over the night. There is a trough in the atmosphere still to the west of us. It keeps sending off waves that keep creating rain, since there is so much moisture in the air."

Whatever Happened To The Unicorn?

Whatever happened to the dodo bird, the brontosaurus, the mastodon or the unicorn? Once among the creatures populating the earth, such animals now belong to the relics of museums, living only in the imaginations of those who wonder why such creatures are no longer around.

Animals now inhabiting various places of the earth, including sections of the United States, are now faced with the possibility of being remembered only in museums and books — the bald eagle, the red wolf, the whooping crane, the alligator, the Houston toad.

Why? And what is being done about it? A series of articles beginning on Page 3 today by Sports Editor Paul Sims explores the situation.

DRAMA NEARS CLIMAX

Authorities Clear Route For Japanese Gunmen

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Police cleared an escape route today for three Japanese terrorists who have held nine hostages at the French Embassy since Friday, and the grim drama appeared near a climax. The safety of the hostages remained in doubt.

Police ordered all motorists off the road leading to Schiphol airport where an Air France Boeing 707 awaited with a volunteer Dutch crew to fly the aircraft out of the country with another Japanese terrorist released earlier by France as part of the deal.

The airport was ringed with armored cars and army sharpshooters and special precautions were taken at Paris' Orly Airport in case the terrorists, members of the extremist Japanese Red Army, should try to land there.

A force of 20 Oly police sharpshooters was on hand there. The Japanese released two women hostages Monday in exchange for cigarettes, food and medicine but were still holding nine persons, including the French ambassador to the Netherlands, Count Jacques Senard. All had been under a death threat since Friday.

Queen Juliana, making a speech at the start of Holland's new parliament session, departed from her prepared text at one point and said the government was devoting its efforts to obtain the safe release of the hostages.

"Our nation was startled by an act of terrorism, wherewith the lives of innocent people are being threatened," she said. "The action of the government is with priority directed at the harmless release of the hostages. Our people hope and pray that this may succeed."

A gunman in a speeding car fired several shots at police ringing the embassy Monday night, stepping up tensions outside the besieged building.

Police said the man sped off after firing at a policeman. Authorities said the officer was unharmed but declined to disclose any other details about the incident.

In hopes of a break in negotiations, Dutch officials prepared a Boeing 707 jet at nearby Schiphol Airport to fly the Japanese Red Army guerrillas out of the country with a Marxist comrade sprung from a French prison.

In a television interview Monday night, Premier Joop den Uyl said negotiations with the terrorists produced some "possibilities" for agreement but warned against "too much optimism."

'PRICE TOO HIGH'

War Resisters Reject Amnesty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thousands of Vietnam-era war resisters now have a chance for conditional amnesty—but many find the price too high.

President Ford presented the basic terms—up to two years of "alternative national service" and re-affirmation of allegiance—in a formal proclamation Monday, and he said less might be required in cases with "mitigating circumstances."

But activists at home and abroad, especially in Canada and Sweden, quickly turned thumbs down on the offer and predicted limited acceptance by those eligible—about 15,500 charged with draft evasion and 12,500 accused of desertion from the armed forces.

Even Attorney General William B. Saxbe, a prime architect of the plan, said he thought no more than about 2,500 would take advantage of it.

Critics generally complained that Ford was asking too much in his "earned re-entry" approach, particularly after granting an unconditional pardon to former President Richard Nixon eight days earlier, and some maintained that

Ford Says Nixon Admitted To Guilt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says Richard M. Nixon's acceptance of a pardon "can be construed" as an admission of guilt for Watergate crimes and the former President has been "shamed and disgraced" by his forced resignation.

Vigorously defending the pardon, but admitting surprise at the antagonism it created, Ford said he acted to spare the nation further turmoil and division.

He said there was "no understanding, no deal...none whatsoever" between him and Nixon.

The President's half hour televised news conference Monday night in the East Room was dominated by questions about the pardon. He insisted that "in this very, very difficult situation, I made the right decision."

Ford, who has been moving almost nonstop since he assumed the presidency five weeks ago, today called an early morning meeting with the GOP steering committee, a cabinet session and another in a series of meetings with his economic advisers.

"Let me say very strongly the United States is not going to have a depression," he told his news conference. "The overall economy of the United States is strong."

In foreign affairs, Ford acknowledged that the United States secretly intervened in Chile to assist opposition newspapers and political factions, but he denied the CIA was involved in the coup that overthrew Chilean President Salvador Allende. He said the intervention was "in the best interests of Chile and our country," and said other powers do the same. He would not say whether it was legal under international law.

Ford disclosed that "within the next few days a very major decision will be taken on increasing U.S. food contributions for humanitarian purposes to help foreign countries suffering from drought and poor harvests."

On the question of Watergate tapes, whose ownership by Nixon Ford affirmed in a special agreement, the President said, "I believe that they have been properly preserved and they will be available under subpoena for any criminal proceeding."

The tapes will be kept in joint custody of Nixon and the General Services Administration for five years, after which Nixon will gain sole control.

Ford denied reports from congressional leaders and some Republican gubernatorial candidates who saw him at the White House recently that he had a "secret reason" for pardoning Nixon.

"Let me say I had no secret reason, and I don't recall telling any Republican I had such a reason," he said.

He disclosed that in exploring the question of pardoning the former president he found there was "the very real possibility" that Nixon would be charged with obstructing justice and 10 other possible criminal offenses.

Ford conceded his pardon decision "has created more antagonism than I anticipated." But he said he is "absolutely convinced" he was correct.

United Nations Delegates Meet For New Session

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Delegates from 138 nations gathered today for the opening of a U.N. General Assembly session expected to be dominated by the new economic muscle of the Arab world.

The assembly's 29th annual session opened with the world body painfully aware of its failure to head off the recent Cyprus warfare or work out a settlement to the explosive Middle East conflict.

The delegates are scheduled to meet this afternoon for the start of a three-month session highlighted by flowery speeches on the assembly floor and hushhush talks in U.N. corridors and plush hotel suites.

Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Monday the assembly is faced with the tough task of trying to agree on a "new global economic order" striking a balance between rich and poor countries.

Waldheim told a news conference the diplomats must consider an economic balance such as that discussed during last spring's special session called at a climactic moment in the world energy crisis.

The Arab countries, using their overflying "petrodollars" to pick up diplomatic support, are virtually certain to get the assembly to conduct a full-scale debate on the creation of a Palestinian state in the Middle East.

In the first order of business on the 112-item agenda, delegates are scheduled to elect an Arab—Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika—as assembly president, succeeding Leopoldo Benites of Ecuador.

President Ford is scheduled to appear before the assembly Wednesday.

Committee Views Possible Perjury

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee decided unanimously today to investigate secret disruptive activities by the Central Intelligence Agency in Chile.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, announced the committee decision, saying the study would help determine what course of action to take toward officials who may have perjured themselves in 1973 when they testified that the United States had not intervened in Chile against Marxist President Salvador Allende.

Church, chairman of the subcommittee on multinational corporations, said the Foreign Relations Committee decided to put aside a report prepared by his staff counsel, Jerome Levinson, recommending perjury action against former CIA director Richard Helms and other high officials.

He said the committee will decide whether to reopen the question of whether Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger deceived the Foreign Relations Committee when he minimized the U.S. role in Chile during testimony at his confirmation hearings.

President Ford acknowledged during his news conference Monday night that the United States intervened in Chilean politics between 1970 and 1973, but he denied any U.S. role in the overthrow of Allende.

Church said the object of the inquiry by the Foreign Relations Committee would be:

—To examine the wisdom of CIA intervention in Chile.

—To judge whether perjury was committed by high officials in testimony in 1973 before the subcommittee on multinational corporations.

—To examine the news leaks which led to the disclosure of CIA intervention between 1970-1973.

"I personally believe that the policy we followed in Chile was wrong and was an unprincipled one," Church told newsmen as he left a two-hour committee session.

He said that the policy "cannot be squared with the historic role of the United States. I regret very much that it happened."

Church said he hoped that the Senate inquiry might result in guidelines for future CIA operations. But he warned that it would be "extremely difficult to exercise effective restraint" on the covert operations of the CIA.

At the opening of the Senate committee meeting, Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., called for the creation of a congressional committee to oversee the CIA.

"I don't approve of our meddling in other people's elections," he said. "I think the proper way is to create a special congressional committee."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, whose subcommittee on multinational corporations has submitted a report recommending a perjury investigation, also denounced U.S. intervention in Chile as "unsavory, unprincipled and unjustified."

C-C To Honor New Teachers

New teachers in the Pampa school system will be honored at a 6:45 a.m. breakfast Monday, Sept. 30, in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room.

Because of conflicts with other school functions, members of the Education Committee of the Chamber of Commerce decided to hold a morning reception instead of the usual night affair.

Purpose of the program is to acquaint the new teachers with Pampa. Don Lane will present the "Pampa Story," an illustrated slide presentation and commentary.

Richard Stowers, committee chairman, said approximately 40 new teachers and their husbands and wives are expected to attend.

ON STATE AIMS Tower Asks GOP To Work Together

HOUSTON (UPI) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., urged Texas Republicans to avoid national issues in their party convention today and to concentrate on state problems and electing their candidate for governor.

At least one national issue, amnesty for draft evaders and deserters, was likely to be raised in the general assembly, however.

"I think we have been too national oriented," Tower told the State Republican Executive Committee Monday during pre-convention business. "If we advocate states' rights, we must advocate state responsibilities."

"I urge you to concentrate on state issues rather than national issues. If we can elect a governor we can prove our status as a major political party in this state. I hope there will be a spirit of unanimity."

Tower asked that both the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as vice-president and President Ford's amnesty plan be side-stepped.

"I have repeatedly stated my opposition to unconditional amnesty, but I am prepared to support the President's creation of the mechanism for such clemency is stringently applied and provided the condition for such clemency is stringently applied and provided that the Uniform Code of Military Justice is not subverted to the extent that it undermines professional military discipline," Tower said.

Tower also told the executive committee to support the recommendations of governor candidate Jim Granberry of Lubbock for the party platform. Granberry has called for a slate of priorities including a 1 per cent reduction in the state sales tax, limited annual sessions of the legislature, right to work, single member districts and public school financing.

The 4,708 delegates are to elect a new state executive committee, field resolutions on the anti-abortion human rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution pending in Congress and study a platform plank saying Texas should keep enough of its minerals for its own use before permitting export out of state.

House Budget Session Opens With Argument

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Budget Committee's first meeting opened today with an angry political exchange following the chairman's query on why the administration has devised "no meaningful policy" to deal with inflation.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes objected when Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., accused the administration of "old, trite, outmoded economic concepts that have clearly failed us."

Speaking to Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, the committee's first witness, Ullman asked: "Mr. Secretary, tell us why we are spinning helplessly in this whirlpool of inflation, with no meaningful national policy for survival."

Rhodes, visibly angry, interrupted Ullman. "I thought I was in the budget committee 'til I heard the chairman's politically inspired statement," he said. "If this committee is to be dominated by politics, it won't do its job. I'll promise you that."

Ullman said he was sorry that Rhodes had interpreted his statement as politically motivated. He said both Democratic and Republican administrations had contributed to inflation.

The committee, which will go into full operation next year, was established to give Congress greater control over the federal budget and to streamline the budget-making process.

Simon told the committee that inflation is becoming so deeply imbedded in the American economy that "squeezing it out of the system will be a long, tough process."

SLEEPING IN PICKUP

Police Arrest Murder Suspect

CARTHAGE, Tex. (UPI) — Edward Elton Corley, 29, charged with murdering a young mother and her son and suspected of killing two other persons, was captured early today while sleeping in a pickup truck at Lake Murval, 10 miles southwest of Carthage.

Panola County Sheriff Johnnie Spradley said he and two volunteers — a "Mr. Branno, and another fellow" — went to a park at the lake in response to a telephone call and captured Corley without resistance.

Corley is named in capital murder warrants as the killer Aug. 24 of Jeanette Wright, 28, and her son Wayne, 6, whose bodies were found at Lake Cherokee near where Corley lived in Rusk County.

Corley is the chief suspect in the killing of Vicki

Morris, 21, and of Dolly Jonas, 34, over the weekend near Tyler.

"We walked up on him," Spradley said. "He gave us no resistance. He had an over and under .22 and .410 (.22 caliber rifle and .410 gauge shotgun)."

"He was parked there in the park, lying in the same pickup he had been in all the time."

"He hasn't made any statement. I haven't asked him anything so far, not even how he feels."

As long as Corley roamed free in the pine woods east and southeast of Tyler, residents of the whole area were jittery.

Attendance in the schools of nearby Chapel Hill was down 10 per cent Monday.

Smith County (Tyler) Sheriff Harlan Long said Monday that since Corley had killed before he was "afraid" he would kill again.

Corley had spent most of his life in the hills of Smith and Rusk counties, which made him hard to catch.

There was no explanation of why he went to sleep in a lakeside park, where he could be easily spotted.

Miss Morris and Mrs. Jonas were both Chapel Hill residents. The body of Miss Morris was found Sunday on a country road four miles east of a Baptist church where she went to practice her music lessons Saturday. She was killed by a shotgun blast in the face.

Deputies later found the body of Mrs. Jonas on a beach at Lake Tyler. She was reported missing when she failed to return from church services in Tyler.

AT WOUNDED KNEE

Judge Dismisses Case Against Indian Leaders

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge Fred Nichol — citing government misconduct — Monday dismissed all charges against Dennis Banks and Russell Means, leaders in the 71-day occupation of Wounded Knee.

"Thank God," said Means, a leader of the American Indian Movement, as he left the courtroom after more than eight months of trial. "Members of AIM believe more in the American judicial system than the government. Our treaty rights stand as we stand here."

The case went to the jury last Thursday and the following day one of the jurors, Mrs. Therese Cherrier, 53, became ill. Monday, doctors said Mrs. Cherrier had suffered a stroke and could not continue as a juror. The government refused to let the other 11 jurors decide the case.

Nichol, who presided over the marathon trial, was hardly elated.

"This has been a bad year for justice," he said. "We thought the new President would bring about changes but this has been pretty badly blotted." He added that he referred not only to the pardon of former President Richard Nixon but to activities of the Department of Justice.

Court Fines Firm For Contributions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A South Carolina architectural firm and its president were fined in federal court today for making at least $10,000 in illegal corporate contributions to Richard Nixon's 1972 presidential campaign.

The firm, LBC&W Inc., of Columbia, S.C., and its board chairman, William Lyles Sr., entered guilty pleas before Chief U.S. District Judge George L. Hart.

Hart fined Lyles $2,000 total on two misdemeanor counts and fined the firm $5,000. The firm was the 14th to plead guilty to an illegal contribution to the Nixon campaign.

In papers filed in the court Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski said the firm maintained a "bonus system" under which selected employees would receive money and then turn them over to Lyles to be used as campaign contributions.

HGH Receiving New Renovation

Monday's regular meeting of the board of managers of Highland General Hospital featured a tour of the renovation and painting projects being carried out in various parts of the building.

Hospital administrator Robert Monogue said today the continuing program, which includes renovation of all patient rooms, will cost a total of $100,000.

Plans call for new furnishings, replacement of some floor covering, and a general sprucing up to make the hospital lighter and more attractive," Monogue said.

Travis Reports Vandalism Case

William E. Brown, 1102 E. Francis, reported to police Monday the theft of 30 eight-track tapes from his car. Value was listed as $100.

Officials at Travis School have reported two recent cases of vandalism.

Nine outside light bulbs, valued at $34, reportedly were broken out and were replaced Saturday. The new bulbs then were broken out Saturday night.

Close surveillance by police patrolmen has been requested.

'SWEET VOICE, HARD HEAD' Republicans Pick Woman Chairman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new chairman of the Republican National Committee is a white-haired lady of 59 with a sweet voice and a hard head.

Mary Louise Smith demonstrated the last characteristic Monday after she was unanimously elected to be the first woman to lead the national GOP. She told the party it was in trouble and it better pull up its socks.

"It is time for the Republican Party to come to grips with the shape we're in," she said. "Republican registration is down. In too many areas the number of Republican office holders has declined."

Speaking of Republican principles, Mrs. Smith said "if we have such a good thing going — and I think we have — then why do polls show that only 23 per cent of the voters call themselves Republicans?"

"Somewhere the Republican Party is doing something wrong. Or else we're not doing enough things right. Either we're being out-organized or out-sold. I suspect it's a little of both. It is here I will concentrate my efforts during the next two years."

Mrs. Smith, who succeeded George Bush as national chairman, said she expects President Ford and Vice President-designate Nelson Rockefeller to do what is needed in selling GOP philosophy to the voters, and she is going to concentrate on "party building" — organizing "in city streets, in town squares, down the country roads."

Briscoe Calls For Unity In State Elections

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe today played down differences between party factions that threatened to drag out the State Democratic Convention, and called on the 5,447 delegates to unite against Republicans in November.

"Texas Democrats are bound to have differences," Briscoe told the packed convention hall. "Let us air our differences at this convention and have a full and open discussion of the issues. But when we have resolved the questions before us in this hall, let us unite as never before."

He said the real threat to the Democratic Party in the November elections is not the GOP. "The real threat to Democrats is our own dissension and disunity," he said.

"The Republican Party will run a well financed campaign. And any problems they might have — we can expect they'll be pardoned."

Despite claims by liberals that Briscoe and Democratic chairman Calvin Guest had attempted to block them out of the convention, the governor said in his speech to the convention "railroading through a convention is out as far as the Democratic Party of Texas is concerned."

"The truth is the Democratic Party of Texas is not divided," he said, blaming the news media for predicting a tumultuous convention.

"We have more to unite us than we have to divide us," Briscoe said. "When Republicans have the country in trouble, Democrats always have more to unite them than to divide them."

Briscoe had predicted before the convention began that the session to pick new party leaders and delegates to the national mini-convention would be relatively harmonious.

Liberal leader Billie Carr said the fighting over representation could stretch the one-day convention into a three-day battle between the liberals and the faction led by Briscoe and Guest.

Leonel Castillo, city controller of Houston, is challenging Guest for the party chairmanship, and his backers planned to demand time-consuming roll calls votes on virtually every issue. The liberals caucused late into the night Monday to plan their strategy for today's convention session.

KKK Members To Visit Boston

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The national director of the Ku Klux Klan says Klansmen from around the South plan "white freedom rides" to the North to protest court-ordered busing in Boston.

David Duke, national KKK director and grand eragon of the Louisiana Klan, said Monday he expects about 150 KKK members to travel to Boston to "support the Boston plan and all the white people fighting against forced race mixing."

Many students have been boycotting Boston schools since last week when schools opened under a court-ordered desegregation plan.

"The KKK maintains that it is not going to Boston to start any trouble or to promote violence, but to effectively organize the white people," said Duke.

He said the Klan was planning a Thursday evening rally in Boston, but said a site for the rally had not been selected.

Duke said the Klansmen would travel to Boston individually from their particular states. He said the KKK members would wear their "security uniforms" — white slacks and KKK armbands — rather than the traditional white hoods and robes.

"In the mid-60s there were the so-called black freedom rides from the North to the South. Now in the mid-70s the Ku Klux Klan is initiating freedom rides North," Duke said.

More Exploration Funds Needed For OIL Drilling

HOUSTON (UPI) — Lease costs for offshore oil tracts should be put back into exploration to allow small producers to compete with large companies, an independent oilman said Monday.

Michael T. Halbouty, a Houston geologist and head of the Halbouty-Alaska Oil Co., criticized the present policy where the lease cost is paid to the federal government for outer continental shelf drilling.

He said a program of using the amount bid for the lease for exploration would produce more money for the government and more oil for the consumer. Now, he said, only large oil companies can afford the offshore exploration.

"This (present) system actually reduces the ultimate income the government receives in royalty payments, but more importantly it precludes the findings of much more oil and gas reserves," Halbouty said.

Boston Clamor Continues

BOSTON (UPI) — Police and anti-busing demonstrators clashed for the third day Monday in South Boston, where most parents are not sending their children to school under a court-ordered desegregation plan.

About 800 police, on horses, motorcycles and on foot, stopped a crowd of jeering whites trying time and again to march on South Boston High School. Twenty-two persons were arrested. Two policemen suffered heart attacks during the protest march. No schoolchildren were hurt.

Despite the violence in the blue collar, Irish Catholic southern sector of the city, known as South Boston, school officials reported citywide attendance was slightly higher Monday, and both the federal judge who ordered the desegregation plan and the mayor said the situation has improved.

"There was progress today — and avoidance of some of the incidents of last week," said U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity. His plan calls for the relocation of about 45,000 students, including 18,235 who are to be bused.

At least 23 persons were arrested and 21 injured Thursday and Friday, the first two days of school, mostly in South Boston.

Officials said citywide attendance Monday was 70 per cent, compared with 67 per cent Friday. But in South Boston, where the high school has a projected enrollment of 1,521, 148 pupils showed up, 87 of them black. It was a small fraction of the students expected, but double Friday's attendance of 75.

"Without question, today has been the best day so far. All responsible parties — black and white — have been doing everything they could to safeguard the children," said Mayor Kevin H. White.

He ordered South Boston's bars and liquor stores closed until 4 p.m. Monday. Despite the continued outbursts, White suggested the end of the violent demonstrations was at hand.

"With a lot of hard work, some luck and some prayers, the desegregation would be completed peacefully," he said.

The oilman told the opening session of the five-day Federal Energy Administration's Project Independence public hearings that too often only one well is drilled on a lease tract and, if found dry, the company moves to another lease. He said the costs are too high to allow repeated drilling on one tract after the lease cost is paid, plus the cost of exploration. Under his proposal, any money bid for the lease and not used in exploration or drilling, would then be paid to the government general fund.

"I think this is a waste of money that should be used for exploration," Halbouty said. "I don't think the government should take this money. They don't need it."

Halbouty also said that leases should be for 10 years instead of the present five to allow for better exploration and proper drilling.

The outspoken oilman said political interference has been a major cause of energy shortages and said that Project Independence is a necessary goal.

"This is an admirable objective and one that can certainly be attained if we can eliminate politics from dangerous interference and concentrated on energy and conservation and how each should be dealt with in the fight against inflation. Corporate officials from American Telephone & Telegraph, U.S. Steel, General Electric, Westinghouse, Alcoa, RCA and CBS offered their suggestions.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said inflationary problems were entangled in consumer needs, energy needs and environmental requirements.

"We must continue resource development, but if we think we can delay paying the price to the environment, we'll find this debt becomes a tremendous figure," Morton said.

Nelson said energy crises weaken inflationary controls and urged that another major energy crisis be avoided.

from distorting the aims of this effort," he said.

Texas Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said that price controls on oil and gas must be removed to encourage more production and a greater domestic supply of energy. He also said that each state must do its share for the nation to become independent.

Texas, Louisiana and Alaska cannot supply all America," he said.

Hobby said that government intervention has hurt the industry.

"The Sun just won't rise in the west, no matter what the Congress or the various legislatures enact," he said. "The lessons to be learned from several decades of federal folly and state silliness are these: government efforts to interfere in the production and allocation of energy are quite likely to produce results exactly opposite to those intended. And there ain't no free lunch."

The Almanac

United Press International Today is Tuesday, Sept. 17, the 260th day of 1974 with 105 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning star are Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

American actress Anne Bancroft and actor Roddy McDowall were born on Sept. 17—she in 1931 and he in 1928.

A thought for the day: President George Washington advised, "Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire—conscience."

"I shall never forget the day that Knievel plunged into the canyon. There was a loud crash down the block. When I rushed outside to see what had happened I was told the noise I had heard was Toribaker's crest falling.

Having paid $25 to watch the leap on closed circuit television, he was outraged by Knievel's failure to traverse the abyss.

"Those of us who tried to defend the build-up have been let down," he stormed.

But when I saw him a week or so later, he told me he had granted Knievel full, free and absolute forgiveness.

"The humiliation of sinking to the canyon bottom by parachute must have been hard to take," Toribaker said. "He has suffered enough."

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST WASHINGTON (UPI) — Like many male adolescents, my 46-year-old neighbor, Wally Toribaker, was a strong supporter of Evel Knievel.

Toribaker feels that jumping a motorcycle over 36 parked trucks is the sort of thing that has made America great. When he read or heard suggestions that Knievel's projected leap over the Snake River canyon was tinged with commercialism, he became incensed.

"That is typical of the cynicism and negativism that permeates the press and networks," he fumed. "Lacking nobility themselves, they refuse to credit it to anyone else."

And besides, he added, "even if it were true, he isn't doing anything that other stuntmen haven't done."

His conviction that the mercenary aspects of the canyon leap were being unduly stressed by the media prompted Toribaker to organize the Committee for Fairness to Daredevilry.

Its members circulated around the neighborhood and anytime they heard derisive remarks about all the hip-hop and ballyhoo they promptly sprang to Knievel's defense.

"Maybe it is true that some of his associates have engaged in a little hucksterism," the argument ran. "But that should not detract from his record of solid accomplishments."

"His achievements in the field of jumping motorcycles over parked trucks are unmatched by any daredevil in this century."

"If some of his associates have been over-zealous in prompting the canyon leap, they did so in the belief they were acting in the national interest."

"Knievel himself, being preoccupied with the awesome majesty of his commitment, was unaware of these activities."

"Had he known about it, you may be certain he would have ordered it stopped."

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said inflationary problems were entangled in consumer needs, energy needs and environmental requirements.

"We must continue resource development, but if we think we can delay paying the price to the environment, we'll find this debt becomes a tremendous figure," Morton said.

Nelson said energy crises weaken inflationary controls and urged that another major energy crisis be avoided.

HEY, DADDY, WHAT'S THIS?

Extinction Threatening Animals

(The following is the first in a series about the greatest problem facing today's animal world — the threat of extinction.)

Part I — "Hey Daddy, What's This?"

By PAUL SIMS There's going to come a time when children will ask, "What's a condor?" when they hear their parents or grandparents talk about the bird which once existed but died out in the late 20th century.

And it's a possibility now that the same kids will want to know what a bald eagle or a peregrine falcon is. And we'll have to tell them that what were once marvelous birds found all across this country are now part of civilization's dust.

The condor is the one that's really in trouble — there are only 28 left in America and experts say that the bird is doomed.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "We are convinced that the next Major bottom will be just like 1932—it comes only twice a century, where stock prices are flat on their backs," according to the Dines Letter. The market is in the midst of a three-stage decline, it continues.

"The Crash of '69' squeezed all the water out of the stock market," followed by the current phase in which stocks are described as underpriced, the letter says. "The next, and final stage, will feature panic selling at first, eventually leading into selling exhaustion and depressively low volume," it adds.

"The precipitous drop in gold prices this past week is a classic example of the 'sudden scare' phenomenon," says Indicator Digest of Palisades Park, N.J. Although the "Good Scare of 1974" was triggered by one advisory service which urged clients to dump these issues, "nothing has basically changed," the firm says.

"We continue to operate in a difficult market and the great tendency is to hold cash or roll over Treasury bills, certificates of deposits or commercial paper," says Laidlaw-Coggeshall Inc. The bear market is close to its bottom, the firm continues, and now is the time to buy. "When the market makes a major reversal, it may not accommodate sidelines with a second chance," the firm adds.

TWO ROLES FOR LIZ NEW YORK (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor will star in a motion picture based on the Maurice Maeterlinck classic, "The Blue Bird," that will be filmed in Russia as an American-Russian co-production. Miss Taylor will play two roles, the Fairy and Light, and she will sing.

resembles a huge turkey hawk, a vulture, is one of the most unique birds in the country today due to its huge wingspan, stretching nine to nine and a half feet across. He's ugly, with his bare orange head, dark brown plumage, large white patch under each wing and gaping expression, but he's going to be missed someday, just like the dodo bird and passenger pigeon are missed in our time.

And what's especially sad about the condor is that it's not his fault. His size — his wingspan — has created a necessity for space, and that's something that's not available anymore.

"The condor will never come back," said Robert Azevedo of Albuquerque, N.M., an endangered species team leader working for the regional office of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"The condor takes a large area for it to maintain itself. It looks like it's going to be extinct. Man's development of the land has been an encroachment on the bird's environment."

The condor Azevedo speaks about is the California Condor, which is found only on a small reserve in Southern California. The reserve is closed to the public and was set up in 1970 by cooperation of the State of California and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, a branch of the Department of the Interior.

One day the reserve won't be large enough to accommodate the birds. And then the number of condors will get smaller each generation.

The Southern Bald Eagle isn't in as much danger as the California Condor but still has its share of problems.

The bald eagle is one of two species in the country — the northern and southern bald eagles. The northern bird is not on the endangered species list, but the southern eagle is, numbering only around 500 in the country.

"At last report there were about 235 active nests — around 500 birds. The eagles are found around the Gulf Coast and from New Jersey to Texas and the lower Mississippi River southward to eastern Arkansas to western Tennessee. They're also in the southern states, west to California," said Azevedo.

The southern bald eagle's own instincts, coupled with the encroachment of man, has been its downfall.

"The birds pair off and they nest historically. It's an ancestral thing. The birds use their parents nests and the young will come back and nest in that nest," said the New Mexico official.

"What's caused some of their problems is that man has disrupted these birds from nesting."

"We're keeping tabs on those nests, historical nests sites."

One thing the federal government has done is establish a law protecting the nests from harassment. Even picture-taking, if it disturbs a nesting eagle, is a federal crime. "There is going to have to be some teeth in the law to maintain the eagles' preservation."

"The bald eagle will probably maintain its level if we hold off the encroachment of man into its nesting area. If the nest is disturbed, they may not nest. They may seek other areas, but it's not done too often."

The peregrine falcon, another endangered bird, is found from Alaska and Canada south to Baja, Calif. It can be recognized and distinguished from other falcons, which are all protected by law, by its long, pointed wings and feathers. The peregrine doesn't glide as much as an eagle, flapping its wings continually with a very short beat.

The peregrine, which could actually be either an arctic peregrine or an American peregrine, is sometimes found in Texas, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife biologist Floyd Potter, Jr. Potter says that if the falcon is sighted, it should be reported to the department office in Austin.

A sighting of a bald eagle, condor or any other animal considered an endangered species should also be reported.

Endangered animals, at least most of them, can be saved. But, like in the case of the condor, man has already signed death warrants for certain species.

The condor is ugly, but ugly is better than missed.

Dear Abby

Uncle wants applause for his wedding gift to nephew

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by The Chicago Tribune

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married. At the reception, my uncle handed me an envelope. I had no idea it was a check, but I put it in my pocket without looking at it. (There were over 300 people at the reception, and I was busy accepting congratulations.)

Before we started for our honeymoon I opened the envelope and found a handsome check with a four-page letter of advice on how to stay happily married (This uncle and his wife had been married for 34 years.)

On our honeymoon, my wife and I composed what we thought was a very nice letter of thanks, and mailed it to my uncle and aunt.

When we returned home, we found a very angry letter from my uncle ripping me up one side and down the other for not having the "good manners" to have opened the envelope at the reception, announcing his gift and reading his letter. I was shocked!

Abby, had I opened the envelope at the reception, I wouldn't have made such an announcement.

Was I in error? If so, I will apologize.

BEWILDERED NEPHEW

DEAR NEPH: It would have been improper for you to have announced your uncle's gift at the reception and an imposition on your guests. Your "apology" is quite unnecessary; but your publicity-seeking uncle owes you one.

DEAR ABBY: Ours was an office romance. Mert was in accounting and I was a secretary to the president. Maybe opposites do attract, because I'm the vivacious, outgoing, gabby type, and Mert is quiet and more introverted. I had never met a kinder, more thoughtful man.

After three years of marriage, we're having a planned baby in five months. I'm 28 and Mert is 30. Now the problem:

I plan to take a six-month leave from work to have the baby and to return to work when the baby is three months old. Mert is going to quit his office job and stay home to keep house and care for our child. He has a fantastic way with children. I don't. Mert loves cooking and housekeeping. I hate it. Mert finds office work dull and boring. I love it. I've always earned much more than Mert.

Do you think this could work out? Or do you think we're crazy?

REVERSED ROLES

DEAR REVERSED: Why not? If it doesn't, you aren't married to the plan. And no, I don't think you're crazy. I think you are to be envied. Few people have the courage to thumb their noses at the rule of thumb.

DEAR ABBY: I read a claim of psychologists that the average person tells about 1,000 lies per year. Is that true?

DESIRES PROOF

DEAR DESIRES: What "psychologists"? Reliable statistics for such a study could be acquired only by taping every word uttered in one year by an "average" person (and there's another trap for you—who's to define who is average?) and then separating the truth from the lies.

I doubt that such was every made. Moral: Don't believe everything you read.

CONFIDENTIAL TO KEEPING MUM IN CONNECTICUT: You may mean well, but you're making no progress toward a better relationship. "Speech is civilization itself. The word—even the most contradictory word—preserves contact. It is silence which isolates." (Thomas Mann)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal is a top-level bridge mystery, befitting the talents of a Sherlock Holmes, a Hercule Poirot, or a Perry Mason. You are informed that our West defender slipped in his defense, and thereby enabled South to fulfill a contract that should have been defeated. Can you isolate West's mistake?

Opening lead: Two of ♠.

East played the queen of trumps on West's opening lead of the deuce, and South captured the trick with the King. A low diamond was then led, West taking it with his nine-spot. West next shifted to the club queen. South's ace winning.

South now led a second diamond, which was ruffed in dummy, after which the South hand was re-entered via the spade ace. A third diamond was next ruffed with the board's last trump. At this point, the only adversely held diamond was West's ace.

A spade was then led to South's king, and this was followed by the cashing of the trump ace. From here in declarer lost only two more tricks, to West's jack of trumps and ace of diamonds. All in all, declarer lost two diamonds, and one trump trick. What was West's error?

West made a good start with his low trump lead at trick one, but he didn't follow it up. When he won trick two with the diamond nine, West should have continued playing trumps, and thereby reduce dummy's ruffing ability.

At first glance, the play of a second trump by West would appear to cost him a trick, since dummy's ten would win, and West's now remaining singleton jack would become subject to decapitation by declarer's ace. This would be true if

Rho Eta Chapter Plans Yearly Projects

Meeting recently in the Flame Room, Rho Eta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi began its new year with President Dian Grooters, calling the meeting to order.

The chapter welcomed Mrs. Georgia Mack, sponsor, on her return to Pampa after visiting in Iran this summer.

The business session included discussion on plans for fund raising projects, service projects, socials, and the fall rush.

Joyce Barrett announced that a rush party will be held at 2236 Aspen on Thursday, Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m.

Suggestions were made on the disposal of the Chapter's fireworks stand, but no decision was reached on that matter.

Betty Fuller and Pat Winkleblack presented an informative program on children's oratory in which they recited nursery rhymes and children's stories, and discussed their patterns of logic, symbolism, emotions, and music which have helped them remain as children's favorites throughout the years.

Hostesses were Pat Rich and Sharron Hurst. Other members present for the meeting were Ramona Houseman, Jenny Dorman, Vickie Hayes, Jan Reader, Martha Porter, Cathy Green, and Jan Morris.

Pampa Parts Means Quality

It doesn't matter what kind of car you have — whether it is big and beautiful or small and economical, it is going to have some kind of trouble.

That is a simple fact. So why burden yourself with a sky-high parts bill when Pampa Parts and Supply Co., Inc., is in town.

Whether it's major engine problems or just a rough windshield wiper blade, Pampa Parts has parts for your car.

Besides all-American made autos, Pampa Parts also has parts for most foreign cars.

Among the parts they have on hand are Monroe shocks, Delco batteries and other products, Fram and AC oil filters, Black Hawk tools, Black & Decker tools, Gates hoses and belts, AC, Autolite and Champion plugs, Victor Seals and gaskets and numerous others.

Added to their new parts, Pampa Parts has rebuilt under the brand names of Texas Rebuilt, Grayrock and Borge Warner. These fine rebuilt parts include brake shoes and clutch plates.

The firm also repairs and makes most hydraulic lines.

The do-it-yourself mechanics who have economy in mind should drop by Pampa Parts and Supply at 525 W. Brown and get a helping hand from Bob Burrows and Winford Swain, co-owners.

In their machine shop, Pampa Parts mechanics turn brake drums, overhaul carburetors, starters and generators, install cam bearings and perform general machine work in addition to carrying a complete line of headwork. They also carry stereo tapes.

Use A Little Imagination...

NEW YORK (UPI) — Planning and a little imagination can help you beat rising prices, inflation and shortages of goods.

But that route to smart shopping isn't always easy — especially if you give in to temptation and buy a new gadget that catches your attention but isn't always necessary.

The planning-imagination route to getting the most for your money is described in The Family Banker, a money management newsletter.

Planning ahead for a shopping trip and knowing the facts about what is being purchased can help shoppers get ahead and stay there, says the newsletter published by Continental Bank in Chicago.

The newsletter advises: — Make out a shopping list before you enter a store and make a commitment to stick to what's on the list. This will help reduce impulse buying and make shopping decisions easier and more rational. — Know how much you can afford to spend and stay within that budget. Realize that while paying cash usually means depleting savings or deferring a purchase until enough money is saved, buying on credit raises the total price of merchandise.

— Determine whether a retailer is reliable. Responsible businessmen stand behind their merchandise and are fair in handling reasonable exchanges, returns, and complaints.

A WILLING HELPER—Ronnie Patton, partsman at Pampa Parts and Supply, takes a special order for a customer over the telephone while checking the price list. If Pampa Parts and Supply doesn't have the parts on hand, they will order it for quick delivery.

Schooner May Make Comeback Because Of High Bunker Oil Costs

NEW YORK (UPI) — The sailing schooner, which down to World War I carried a substantial part of the world's commerce, may stage a comeback because of the high price of bunker oil.

An Australian company has begun building a four-master, the first big cargo schooner to be built anywhere for half a century. And in the current issue of Oceans magazine, a respected scientific journal, naval architect Hugh G. Lawrence presents a design for a modern three-masted schooner 220 feet long to carry 1,600 tons of cargo.

Lawrence argues if schooners could capture only 5 to 10 per cent of the freight carried on the oceans and the Great Lakes, building and operating them would be a paying proposition in this day of high priced fuel.

The schooner Lawrence envisions is about twice as long and four times as big in tonnage as most of the coastal and lake schooners at the turn of this century, but she would be vastly smaller than some of the six and seven masters then used in the lumber trade from the Pacific northwest to the east coast and Europe.

She would fly 16,000 square feet of dacron canvas in six sails, which would be hauled up and down by powered winches. Rarely would any of her crew have to go aloft—only in case of damage in the rigging.

She would differ from traditional schooners also in that all her sails would be jib-headed or triangular instead of trapezoid in shape. That means there would be no heavy gaff spars to be raised aloft and lowered. Her six sails would include two large triangles set on booms abaft the main and mizzen masts, two jibs set on the bowsprit, a third jib set on deck ahead of the mainmast and a big triangular wishbone sail tracked to the upper half of the foremast.

DAILY BOOKINGS

ROME (UPI) — A total of 361,080,000 passengers traveled on Italian State Railways in 1973, according to recently released figures. At the same time, it was announced that a new "electronic brain" in Rome's Pretestina Station now permits daily bookings for the 10,000 first and second class sleeping berths on 140 trains of the railway network.

A Case For The Angels

Who among us hasn't "felt" at one time or another that he has been discriminated against. Fortunate you are, indeed, if you haven't had such an experience.

But, one may reasonably ask, is that a valid reason to call on the government to spend taxpayers' money to conduct an investigation?

Most of us capable of rational thought would immediately answer "no" to such a question. Realizing that, in order to survive, individuals must make choices, and that every choice, of necessity, involves discrimination, rational individuals see the absurdity of such a proposition.

Yet, under a new federal housing law the Department of Housing and Urban Renewal (HUD) is given the authority to make such investigations and, presumably, to levy penalties. And, get this! All that is needed to set off such a witch hunt is the "feeling" on the part of a complainant that she has been discriminated against by some baker, landlord or realtor. No facts, no proof required. Just "feel!"

Of course, HUD has had the authority for some time to make investigations of complaints charging discrimination against minority groups. The new element added to the mix by the new law is that of sex.

As pointed out by AP, women who feel bankers, landlords or realtors are discriminating against them on the basis of sex or marital status can now call on the government for an immediate investigation.

This investigatory authority, AP further revealed, extends across the board to all elements of the housing industry, not just to transactions involving government loans or mortgages.

Commenting on the new law, Gloria E.A. Tootle, HUD's assistant secretary for equal opportunity, was quoted by AP as saying, "All a person must feel, in good faith, that they have had their rights violated and to report this to HUD. It then is HUD's responsibility to prove or disprove the allegation."

"From the ridiculous to the sublime" comes to mind.

Visualize this situation, if you will:

Two individuals, a male black and a female, white, make application to the same bank for a loan to purchase a certain house from a certain realtor. The banker is a female black, and the realtor is a Chicano male. The male black's application is approved, and he gets the house. The female white's application is disapproved, and she charges discrimination on the basis of sex and dumps the problem in HUD's bureaucratic lap.

Given the degrees of emotion now prevalent in both the minority group and women's lib camps, such a situation, and not an unlikely one at that, would tax the wisdom and patience of angels. We doubt that HUD, its officials being human, is qualified to handle it.

Not satisfied with having generated enmity between ethnic groups, the law, with the introduction of sex, has now guaranteed warfare between the genders in addition to warfare between the races.

Was it Dr. Johnson who observed that "The law is an ass"?

Standards Vs. Taste

The fact is established that the rate of growth is higher in the young than in the older. That applies to life generally, vegetable or animal.

Beef growers are trying to take advantage of that phenomenon to put more meat on your table.

They believe they can cut costs by shortening the time that livestock is kept in the feed lot. In other words, steers would go to market when they are substantially younger.

But there is a hitch. The government, again.

Department of Agriculture grading standards now in effect require certain visible amounts of fat in the red part of the meat. If the beef fails to show this "marbling" it doesn't receive the "choice" grade.

George Strathearn, manager of the California Beef Council, reports a beef carcass study is encouraging. "We think," he said, "the final taste tests will show we are wasting time, money and precious feed grain putting unneeded extra fat on animals so they will meet current grading standards."

So often in regulatory agencies, "standards" are drawn for the convenience of the standard user, rather than for the ultimate consumer.

Time may very well prove that younger, leaner beef is tastier to some palates than USDA fat.

BATTIN' AROUND

The Boom ---And The Bust

By C.R. BATTEN
When President Nixon announced some years ago that "I am now a Keynesian," he signalled official acceptance of the economic theories of John Maynard Keynes. With that acceptance came a policy of perpetual inflation — a cheap money policy.

We are now suffering the results of that commitment to Keynesianism. Those consumers who need better housing and workers in the construction and lumber industries have been hurt the most.

In its October, 1973 MONTHLY ECONOMIC LETTER, The First National City Bank of New York reported that "massive diversion of credit from mortgage markets is pushing the housing industry into another slump." Recent newspaper reports confirm that the market for housing is about as low as it can go. These are the worst of times in the housing industry," said one mortgage company official. "We have never seen so steep a decline in starts from one year to the next."

The demand for housing, fluctuates cyclically in response to short-term changes in consumer liquidity, confidence and wealth that seem to follow changes in the growth rate of money supply," said the Economic Letter.

When the public's real cash balances grow more slowly for two to four quarters because the Federal Reserve slows the growth of the money supply or because inflation accelerates, consumers tend to become more cautious about post-ponable, big ticket purchases and big new debt or lease commitments.

When the Federal government begins to attempt to control inflation by initiating a "tight money policy," the housing industry and its suppliers are hit the first and the hardest. Federal and state law holds interest on savings down, while interest for home mortgages rises.

Savers seek the higher yielding investments, leaving the home mortgage institution without funds. Without mortgage money available, home construction slows down. Since nearly half the lumber produced in the nation goes into new housing construction, demand for lumber falls, production is reduced, lumber and plywood plants close. Workers in the construction and timber industries are laid off.

The typical reaction is that while those industries support all action to control inflation, government must do something to "direct and encourage the flow of funds into savings and loans and make them more effective during these periods so that housing does not remain the nearest sacrificial lamb."

"The history of housing activity is marked by sharp peaks and valleys, by feast or famine, in new home construction," says the National Forest Products Association, in a background paper on the housing problem. "As a result there are periods when the housing industry, the wood products industry and other industries serving the housing market operated far below capacity — only to have to build up again when the next housing surge occurred."

"The Great White Fathers back in Washington don't give a damn about truck drivers. We're classified as the lowest form of life."

—John Welcher, a truck driver from Bennett, Iowa, protesting the 50-mile-an-hour speed limit requested by the President to save gasoline.

WHEN A FELLA NEEDS A HAND

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE President Ford On 'Amnesty'

By W.A. RUSHER
President Ford obviously intended his announcement concerning draft-dodgers and deserters, before the VFW convention, to look like a death-defying leap into the arms of liberalism, and the press obligingly played it that way. But the facts are otherwise — so otherwise that I am tempted to suspect the President of funniness. Begin with the fact that, as a Congressman, Mr. Ford was notorious for his opposition to "amnesty." We are urged to suppose that, in his speech to the VFW, he dramatically reversed himself. But not so; as he correctly pointed out, what he has steadfastly opposed (and what many liberals have been urging) is an "unconditional blanket amnesty" for draft-dodgers and deserters. And on that, his attitude hasn't changed a bit. All his speech to the VFW proclaimed was his intention to begin the long process of evaluating the individual culpability of each offender accessible to the law, and determining in a spirit of charity the appropriate penalty or (at a minimum) the required alternative service. Nothing could resemble "amnesty" less.

Second, regardless of whether or not President Ford actually reversed his own stand, we are told that his statement represented a sharp break with the policy of President Nixon, who is depicted as vengefully opposed to leniency for anybody at all, save possibly himself. But once again the precise opposite is true. As Nixon told Dan Rather in a televised interview on January 2, 1972, he (like Ford) was opposed to a blanket amnesty. But he went on to say that, once the fighting was over and the draft-dodgers and deserters had submitted themselves to American justice, he personally would be "very liberal" in the matter of penalties. All President Ford has done — 2 1/2 years later, after our withdrawal from Vietnam and the return of our prisoners — is indicate his readiness to start processing the cases.

The press also made much of Mr. Ford's declared intention to follow in the footsteps of Presidents Lincoln and Truman in this matter. That sounds encouraging from the standpoint of the draft-dodgers — until you study the actions of Lincoln and Truman. On March 10, 1863 Lincoln proclaimed an amnesty for deserters who turned themselves in before April 1; they were returned to their regiments and forfeited all pay and allowances for the period of their absence. In February 1864 the War Department reduced the penalty for desertion from death to imprisonment, and authorized generals to return deserters to duty in their discretion. Finally, just a month before his assassination, Lincoln on March 11, 1865 offered a pardon to all deserters who returned to their posts within 60 days and served a period of time equal to the term of their original enlistment. I cannot find that he ever amnestied draft-dodgers at all.

As for Truman, he set up an Amnesty Board to review and make recommendations in the cases of 15,806 World War II draft-dodgers, and ultimately pardoned less than 10 percent of them. There were no pardons whatever for deserters.

No doubt most applicants for President Ford's clemency will fare better than that — and deserve to. Many of them were simply kids who made the mistake of obeying their parents rather than their country, or who were brainwashed by teachers or the media into thinking law-breaking was a sort of higher patriotism. If they are sincerely repentant today, surely some form of alternative service for a couple of years would be penally enough.

But the supreme irony — and you may be sure President Ford knows this, and has coolly taken it into account — is that a great many of the draft-dodgers and deserters, including all the worst ones, haven't the slightest intention of coming home on any terms that involve any penalty whatever, including alternative service. They think they deserve a ticker-tape parade, not a penalty, and they will continue to hold out for it. All the way, I predict, through President Ford's administration.

Communism is worse than war, is the lesson we could learn from Vietnam where the Free South Vietnamese, who know both, fight on against the Communist World's forces, to keep from being under Communism.

INSIDE WASHINGTON Kennedy Stumping Seen As Preliminary For '76

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Sept. 12 — Sen. Kennedy has one version, but skeptical politicians have their doubts. To the controversial New Englander, his sole purpose in spending the next two days electioneering in California is to go to bat for Democratic candidates; notably Sen. Alan Cranston, running for a second term. But wary politicians view it quite differently. They are convinced there's a lot more to it than that. In their opinion, Kennedy is also adroitly getting in some potent licks for himself — for possible future use, say in 1976.

close eye on it. The politicians know that, and it's intensifying their curiosity about Wallace.

The same goes about the other 1976 possibilities. None of them have so far given any clue about attending the December affair. All appear to be highly leery of it. With good reason.

After what happened at the fractious Charter Commission pow-wow there is every reason to expect the "mini-convention" will be even more uproarious and turbulent. If it doesn't explode in rancorous dissension it won't be for lack of trying by certain discordant elements. They thrive on turmoil and disruption. As one of them defiantly bellowed as they stormed out of the Kansas City fray, "If we can't rule, we'll ruin."

Politicians Privately there is no love lost between Sens. Hubert Humphrey and Walter Mondale — despite outward friendly appearances. Both ardent liberals, both Minnesotans and reputedly personal and political allies, they are actually far from that. Relations between them are distinctly cool — if not downright icy. Humphrey partisans are outrightly hostile to Mondale; charge him with indifferent electioneering support. They also make it clear they are doing nothing to promote Mondale's 1976 prospects.

There is nothing new about this sort of thing and it pays off — as his brother President Kennedy amply demonstrated in 1958-60 when laying the groundwork for his successful drive for the nomination.

On that they are right in line with Mondale. With characteristic nonchalance and casualness, he isn't doing much himself!

There is nothing new about this sort of thing and it pays off — as his brother President Kennedy amply demonstrated in 1958-60 when laying the groundwork for his successful drive for the nomination.

Rep. Thaddeus Dulski, D-N.Y., is taking no risks in stridently challenging President Ford's 5.5 percent pay raise for upwards of 2 million government workers — for a budget saving of $700 million. It's easy for Dulski to play the popular hero on this. He is voluntarily quitting Congress this year. A 16-year veteran, the chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee retires with a $20,000 a year pension for life. So he is comfortably fixed and, not having to campaign, Dulski can afford to shake the partisan cudgels at the President on economizing and budget-balancing.

The Beneficiaries Slated for Kennedy stump are: Fellow Democratic Sens. Birch Bayh, Ind., Frank Church, Idaho, Thomas Eagleton, Mo., George McGovern, S.D., Gaylord Nelson, Wis., Abraham Ribicoff, Conn., Adlai Stevenson, Ill.

Also former astronaut John Glenn, running for the Senate in Ohio, and Rep. Ella Grasso, the Democrats' landmark gubernatorial candidate in Connecticut.

In this extensive campaigning, Kennedy will put in a good word for numerous other Democratic hopefuls; particularly Congressmen, governors and other state officials. No worthy aspirant will be slighted. The lists are already being compiled.

Illustrative of these electioneering sorties are the two days Kennedy is spending in California: On Friday, in Los Angeles, he is slated to make at least three speeches; one at a union convention, another on "world affairs," and a third at a fund-raising rally. In between, Kennedy will meet various groups and delegations, and attend a dinner given by a wealthy backer.

Also former astronaut John Glenn, running for the Senate in Ohio, and Rep. Ella Grasso, the Democrats' landmark gubernatorial candidate in Connecticut.

It remains to be seen how far Dulski gets in mustering support in the House and Senate.

Phog Allen Dies

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — It was a life of accomplishment — and victories.
Memories and past deeds came flooding back today on the life of Dr. Forrest C. "Phog" Allen, who died Tuesday at the age of 88.

Allen, who won 24 conference championships in 39 years as head basketball coach at the University of Kansas, was revered as one of the most responsible for the popularity of the sport.

He was almost single-handedly responsible for getting basketball included in the Olympic program, he was one of the founders of the National Basketball Coaches Association in 1927 (and served the first three years as president). He was also the man who recruited Wilt Chamberlain.

As coach of 49 teams over a span of 46 years, Allen won 771 games and lost 233, for a .768 winning percentage. At Kansas, Allen won 591 and lost 219.

He was bed-ridden in recent years and shattered by the death of his wife, the late Bessie Evalina Allen, in January, 1970. They were married 61 years.
Allen died Tuesday at the home in Lawrence. He had been ill since 1973.

When Allen retired from coaching in 1956, he was the winningest coach in history. It wasn't until 1968 that his record was surpassed by a former pupil, Adolph Rupp of Kentucky.

Rupp, who played on the 1923 national championship team at Kansas, returned to Lawrence in 1968 for the 45th reunion of that team.

In the pre-dinner amenities, Rupp and Allen were talking about basketball and the techniques involved. At one point, Allen, who needed a cane to get about, threw it away and advanced on Rupp to demonstrate the principles of defense. At the time, Allen was 82 years old. He was that kind of man.

AND WITH WBC, WBA Bob Foster Announces He's Done With Boxing

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — World light heavyweight champion Bob Foster, the only fighter ever to go unbeaten in his division, has wearied from his sparring match with the World Boxing Council.

The 35-year-old champion announced Monday he was retiring from the ring rather than continue to battle the council and World Boxing Association.

"I am tired of having the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association tell me who I can fight and when I can fight," said Foster.

The WBC last month stripped Foster of his title after the champion refused to fight England's John Conteh, rated the No. 1 contender in the division by the WBC.

More recently, the WBA ordered Foster to sign a contract with Argentina's Victor Galeindex by Nov. 3 or face similar action from that body.

Bantam Ben A Living Legend

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — William Benjamin Hogan won his first golf tournament here 34 years ago. He was 28 at the time and had been playing golf since he was 12.

Returning at the age of 62 last week as one of 13 initial inductees into the World Golf Hall of Fame, "Bantam Ben" Hogan stands as about the closest thing to a living legend that the world of sports has.

Time Running Out For Cincy

UPI Sports Writer
The inevitability of it all is beginning to sink in on the Cincinnati Reds.

Two and a half games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers and running out of time to catch them, some of the Reds already sound like they're ready to concede the National League West title to Los Angeles.

The reason they're so pessimistic is the schedule. Los Angeles is playing 13 of its final 16 games against San Diego and Houston—two teams it holds a combined 22-2 edge on this season.

That stretch began Monday night and the Dodgers had no trouble. They beat the Astros 7-2 while Cincinnati was defeating San Diego 9-2.

"I've got to feel that they're going to win all their games," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

Too Tall Lives Up To Ratings In Atlanta Game

DALLAS (UPI) — The vast pool of professional football scouting talent in the United States of America can now reach around and slap itself on the back and say to itself:

"Way to go. You hit that one right on the nose."
The preliminary results are in. And ratings on Ed Jones are so high they are off the charts.

Jones is the 6-8, 260-pound fellow from Tennessee State who they call "Too Tall," because he is. And he is the defensive end who back there before the strike and World Football League defections who Dallas made the No. 1 draft choice in the NFL.

He was the only person ever mentioned as a possible No. 1 pick, the overwhelming people's choice. And he showed why last Sunday.

Against Atlanta, playing only on downs when the Falcons could be expected to throw, Jones sacked the passer twice, hit the passer sounding a little like a beaten man. "There is no way to expect clubs to beat them now that haven't been able to beat them all year."

"They've got seven games against the Padres. They handle this club like they own them," chimed in Reds catcher Johnny Bench, the major league RBI leader with 117 including two against San Diego on Monday night.

The Reds figure their last chance probably was lost on Sunday when the Dodgers won their final meeting of the season to escape from a six-game September showdown with a split.

The Dodgers and the Reds were the only pennant contenders playing on Monday.

Both teams in the NL East race — St. Louis and Pittsburgh — and all three in the AL East — New York, Boston and Baltimore — were idle.

In the other NL games played, the Mets and Expos split 3-2 games, the Expos winning their eighth straight in the opener and the Mets taking the second game, and San Francisco defeated Atlanta 4-2. The Minnesota Twins, whose manager, Frank Quilici, got a new contract for 1975 on Monday, beat Kansas City 7-2 in the only AL game.

Dodgers 7, Astros 2
Houston made four errors in the first six innings to help the Dodgers get their first six runs on only three hits. Buckner's single was in the only hit in the third when Los Angeles scored three and the Dodgers got two more in the fifth when Steve Garvey singled Messersmith home and Buckner scored on an error.

Reds 9, Padres 2
Bases-empty homers by Dan Driessen and Cesar Geronimo led a 13-hit attack by the Reds. They put the game away early, scoring three in the first when Dave Concepcion singled two runs home and Geronimo singled in the other, and adding four in the third.

Mets 3-3, Expos 3-2
Ron Woods singled home two runs in the seventh to decide the first game and a bases-empty homer by Rusty Staub and a two-run single by Wayne Garrett, both in the fifth inning, gave the Mets the second game.

Earl, Roosevelt May Both Start

United Press International
Sooner or later Darrell Royal will get his wish. Roosevelt Leaks and Earl Campbell will line up in the same Texas Longhorn backfield.

Campbell, the freshman fullback running in Leaks' No. 1 position, gained 85 yards in 13 carries last week against Boston College.

Leaks, recovering from last Spring's wrecked knee, suited up for the game but didn't play. But, Royal thinks he could have.

"We just try to get the best 22 players we have on the field at the same time," Royal said.

Monday Leaks worked out from the halfback position with Texas reserves. Royal said it was just an experiment but it could enable him to put the two bruising runners in Saturday's Wyoming game at the same time without lining up on top of each other at the fullback spot.

Royal says Leaks is still a long way off from being "the Rosey we once knew."
The Arkansas

Razorbacks, stunned Southern Cal 22-7 in their opener Saturday, came back down to earth Monday with coach Frank Broyles trying to point out the dangers they face against Oklahoma State.

The Cowboys crushed Wichita State and Broyles hopes his club doesn't overlook that fact. But the Hog coach was admittedly happy with the way his team played in its first outing.

"We looked at the films and it was unusual that across the board the grades were all close — offense and defense," he said. "That's exceptional for a first game. They were really prepared and ready to go. The score verifies that."

Texas A&M coach Emory Bellard said cornerbacks Tim Gray and Pat Thomas led offensive grading in the Aggies 24-0 triumph over Clemson. But A&M faces a stiffer test this week against LSU.

The quills of porcupines are really slender bunches of hair which have solidly grown together.

Buffalo Plays Without O.J. In Last Half, Stops Oakland

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — "There's more than O.J. on this offense."

The speaker was none other than O.J. Simpson, the Buffalo Bills' record-breaking ground-gainer, who had just watched from the sidelines as his teammates scored a 21-20 National Football League victory over the Oakland Raiders in an almost incredible two-minute performance before a national television audience.

Simpson, who suffered a minor right ankle sprain late in the first half, did not play in the second half. However, he saw the game as another plus for the young Buffalo club.

"No longer can people say that O.J. is the Buffalo offense," Simpson said. "I'm just a plus in our offense."

Two of Simpson's usual supporting cast on the Bill's offense, quarterback Joe Ferguson and wide receiver Ahmad Rashad, took over — especially in the hectic final two minutes.

This was the situation: The Bills trailed 13-7 with 1:56 left when Ferguson connected with Rashad on an eight-yard touchdown pass. John Leybold converted the extra point and Buffalo led 13-13.

The Bills held the Raiders after three unsuccessful Ken Stabler passes and took over on their own 31. On the first play, Oakland's Art attempted a 50-yard field goal with six seconds showing on the clock. The kick was wide to the right as time expired.

The Bills took a 7-3 halftime lead on Ferguson's four-yard touchdown pass to J.D. Hill and Blanda countered for the Raiders with a 34-yard field goal. Clarence Davis scored on a 15-yard run and Blanda kicked another field goal to give the Raiders their 13-7 edge before the final two minutes.

Foreman, who suffered a cut above his right eye during a training session Monday to necessitate the delay, and Ali will remain in Zaire for the present time. The fight originally was scheduled for 3 a.m. Sept. 25 (10 p.m. EDT Sept. 24).

Schwartz also said that

Hank Schwartz, vice president of Video Techniques, Inc., joint promoters of the fight with the government of Zaire, made the announcement in New York. He said the date will be selected by Zaire officials and announced by them within the next 48 hours.

Also, the upcoming Perryton game will be discussed by Welborn.

Answering Myelogram Questions

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know how a person is given a myelogram. Are X-rays taken at the time? Who else besides the doctor sees the myelogram? Is a permanent copy kept at the hospital?
Are all the spinal fluids drawn out of a person's body in a myelogram? For how long after it should a person not get up?
I had a whiplash and am being told a myelogram is the only way to determine if I have a ruptured disc. Is there no other way? — E.S.
You've evidently been given some scary ideas about a myelogram. A small amount of spinal fluid is withdrawn — only enough to make room for an equivalent amount of material which is then injected into the spinal canal.
This opaque material makes the spinal canal visible on the X-rays which are taken promptly. This will disclose any encroachment on the spinal cord, whether from a ruptured disc, tumor, or other defect in the spine. Yes, it is the only way to determine such conditions — although of course they may be suspected from other symptoms.
The X-ray films will be read by the physician who is treating you and also by an X-ray specialist. The films then will be kept as a permanent record by the X-ray department.
After the procedure is finished, you will rest for several hours; you will be told when to be up and about.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like you to explain angina pectoris. My doctor has me place a nitroglycerin tablet under my tongue for the chest pain.
Also I am taking medication for high blood pressure. (It is 180 - 90.) I am 64 and a longtime reader of your column. — Mrs. J.R.
As a longtime reader you must know how many times I have written about angina, which is a fairly frequent problem. Or maybe you didn't have it then.
But anyway, I've put the discussions together into a booklet which explains what angina is, what to do about it, how nitroglycerine helps, and so on. I suggest sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me Dr. George C. Thosteson, at Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120 and asking for the booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris."
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a daughter, 12, who has had diabetes for two years. Lately I heard in the news that they about had a cure for it. Have you heard anything about it? — Mrs. M.B.
There are some interesting theories that are being investigated but there is no cure yet. I fervently hope that there will be, but saying they "about have a cure" is overly optimistic. I can only urge you to see that your daughter's diabetes is kept under control with diet and insulin in hopes there will someday be a cure for her.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can you tell me about Indocin? My doctor has been giving it to me twice a day for arthritis and it has been helping me. But another doctor told me it would destroy the marrow in my bones. Shall I stop taking it and "enjoy" the pain from my arthritis? — L.L.D.
I don't quite understand why this other doctor (is he a physician?) is butting in. Additionally I suspect, sir, that you may have confused the words "would" and "could." The drug is in quite widespread use for arthritis. While it can have various side effects, that is not the same as saying it will. Some patients benefit greatly; others do not tolerate the drug well.
It is the responsibility of your doctor to watch for any signs of harmful side effects, in which case you would have to stop using it. But if it is helping you, I would not stop using it just because somebody said it might be harmful.
Arthritis sufferers can be helped. Dr. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications. For a copy of "How You Can Control Arthritis," write to him in care of Dr. George C. Thosteson at Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120 enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents. — Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc.

Trouble With Nation Is Dieting

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — The whole trouble with the country isn't Ford or Nixon or parsons. It's dieting. Husbands are cranky from dieting. The only happy person I've seen lately is Virginia Capers, the round, bouncy, black Tony Award-winning star of "Raisin," who had a difficult decision to make.
For desert, should she have a cheesecake, or strawberries with whipped cream? A tough one. She decided "Double whipped cream!"
"My weight?" She couldn't believe I'd even asked. "I never discuss my weight. It's over 200 pounds though. But they like a Mama who's zofitic and juicy."
She laughed with genuine enjoyment at Sardi's as she finished the meal without asking for saccharine. They used to say people were sugar sweet and on a day they'll say "saccharine sad." Virginia Capers said she saw herself in a movie in 1960 and said "Oh my God," and dieted.
"I went for a TV job. They had a part for a slender girl. Before I got slender, the show was off the air."
That convinced her she was a Mama type, zofitic and juicy, and she didn't mind eating on 35 or 40 pounds if needed. Miss Capers thinks she could be as slender as Lena Horne or Barbara McNair or Dianah Carroll — but who'd want to look so skinny, and maybe you couldn't find a job besides and would have to get fat all over?
The drunks at 46th St. and 8th Av. give her great respect. "Miss Capers, you're the most beautiful girl in the world!" one of the habitués said. "Oh, but they do get stoned."
Once married, and the mother of an actor son, Glenn Capers, award-winning Virginia Capers admitted to having a secret love.
"Once in a while," she said in a soft voice, "you like to have somebody sit down beside you and say, 'you're special.'"
Well, they got Nixon to kick around again... The President might be the biggest Ford of all to be recalled... Just when I was getting used to makin' my own breakfast!
Joan Fontaine, off to Ireland, was given a bon voyage party at 21 where Shipwreck Kelly, to whom she has been engaged "several times," blew her a kiss. Miss Fontaine recalled persuading Kelly to take her to 42d St. to "my first porno movie."
"While she was being as shy about it as she could, the theater mgr. rushed forward and exclaimed, 'Joan Fontaine! Long time no see!'"
THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Paul Simon and Simon & Garfunkel and wife Peggy are splitting... Muhammad Ali was strutting along B'way with photographers. He stopped publicist Paul Benson and asked, "What do you do?" Benson replied, "I'm a press agent." Ali said "I'm a pretty good press agent myself." Benson nodded, "You're the greatest." Ali shouted, "Didn't I tell you fellows I'm the greatest in everything?"
It's hard to believe but some of the topless dancers in Times Sq. are men who are transsexuals and they're silicone top and bottom... Bob Stover, prez of Western Girl temporary help service, says male executives used to travel with male secretaries to avoid nasty gossip. Now they prefer to travel with female secretaries for the same reason.
LA-girl magazine writer declares that a big film director threw her and her tape recorder out of his office when she suggested he had given up artistic films to be more commercial.
Producer Joe Levine and famed artist Andrew Wyeth went shopping in Bergdorf's for a handbag for Wyeth's wife. They had no account there so the store refused to charge it, and wouldn't accept their signatures; they dug deep and found enough money to pay cash.
Show Biz Quiz: In what subject did Dr. Joyce Brothers win the $64,000 Question TV quiz? Ans. to yesterday's: Peggy Lou Snyder is Harriet Hilliard; Margie Yvonne Reed is Martha Raye.
Secret Stuff: Friends of a female star feel her husband is "destroying" her... A prominent entertainer who married several months is still telling the wedding photographer that "the check is in the mail" ... Frank Yablans' Paramount staff gave him a surprise birthday party — he's 38 — with everybody wearing "Yablans for President" buttons... Lionel Hampton'll meet Pres. Ford at the White House this week to discuss problems in the black community.
Carroll O'Connor's wife Nancy Fields has a cameo role in his "Law & Disorder" film... Milton Berle will be guest conductor on the first Las Vegas - L.A. Amtrak train run next week. (Berle used to tell the bandleader, "You're a conductor? If you're a conductor I wanna get off this train!")... The 1966 B'way musical "It's Superman" will become a TV special (produced by Norman Twain).

Under Twenty

By JEANNE HARRISON
While the tunes about "Baby" still hold their own in this week's survey, we predict that within a couple of weeks there'll be more "Think" songs in the works. The fact that Helen Reddy's "You And Me Against The World" shows up for the first time has nothing to do it. Just call it womanly intuition. Meanwhile:
TOP TEN SINGLES
1. "Can't Get Enough Of Your Love, Baby" - Barry White
2. "I Shot The Sheriff" - Eric Clapton
3. "Rock Me Gently" - Andy Kim
4. "You're Having My Baby" - Paul Anka
5. "I Honestly Love You" - Olivia Newton-John
6. "Then Came You" - Dionne Warwick & Spinners
7. "Im Leaving It Up To You" - Donny & Marie Osmond
8. "Nothing From Nothing" - Billy Preston
9. "Hang On In There Baby" - Johnny Bristol
10. "You And Me Against The World" - Helen Reddy
TOP FIVE ALBUMS
1. "Fulfillingness First Final" - Stevie Wonder
2. "461 Ocean Blvd." - Eric Clapton
3. "Back Home Again" - John Denver
4. "Caribou" - Elton John
5. "Rags To Rufus" - Rufus
It was inevitable! "Alice Cooper's Greatest Hits" has hit the record racks. On the jacket you'll have little trouble identifying a Thirties theme with Jean Harlow, Groucho Marx, Bogie, Edward G. Robinson, Clark Gable and, yes you guessed it, Alice Cooper. Inside, more nostalgia, and Cooper's greatest hits.
The Isley Brothers "Live It Up" in their latest album. Like most of their offerings, it is up, up and away. Also well worth the spinning is Vikki Carr's "One Hell of a Woman" and Steppenwolf's "Slow Flux," another winner for the group.

West Virginia Schools Reopen After Books Dispute

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Schools reopen today in the Charleston area after a bitter two-week dispute over textbooks that led Schools Superintendent Kenneth Underwood to compare the situation to living in Nazi Germany.

"I wonder when people tell me to burn books whether we live in Nazi Germany," Underwood said after ordering schools opened for the first time since last Friday. Underwood is the man caught in the middle in the often violent crusade against the books for the county's 45,000 public school students. The tempers of outraged parents cooled Monday but coal miners, still angered over the texts, picketed mines in four counties, shutting many down.

School officials have withdrawn the books — which some called "obscene and immoral" — for a 30-day period to review the contents and leaders of the parent protest said they were satisfied. The books provoked controversy because some dealt with such subjects as prostitution, cheating and religion. The protest began when schools opened Sept. 3 and Underwood said it had been "like a nightmare." He said his life had been threatened. Underwood, 46, said he does not plan to resign despite the turmoil the protest has caused to his life. "I have faith in the Democratic process," he said. "It will be worked out."
