Thousands Watch Fireworks For Independence Day Event

By LARRY HOLLIS
Thousands, one of the largest crowds in years, gathered at Recreation Park last night to participate in the city's annual fireworks display as the community joined others in looking forward to the Bicentennial celebration coming up in 1976.

Prior to the aerial display in observation of Independence Day, local and area motorcyclists participated in a series of contests and exhibitions in the rodeo arena.

Rev McAnnelly, president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, delivered the annual patriotic address just before dark in preparation for the show presented by Burnett Fireworks Co. of Enid, Okla. McAnnelly based his talk on the significance a penny can have in recalling the blessings and experiences of this nation, using the inscriptions and figures on the coin.

Noting that the ancestors of Americans came from many different lands, McAnnelly said, "We are all Americans." This is signified in the Latin inscription on the penny, "E Pluribus Unum" (one from many).

He also noted the opportunities of liberty as exemplified by Lincoln's image on certain pennies. Talking of the liberties and freedoms enjoyed by Americans, he said, "We can lose it all if we get complacent within ourselves." He then urged greater participation in the democratic processes of the government, including more active voting.

He listed the freedom available to religious groups, noting that religion has played a great role in the development of the nation. The penny marks this great sense of religious awareness by using the motto, "In God We Trust." Even the date on the coins have a significance, marking the number of years the nation has continued as a unified government, he said.

"Two years from today we will celebrate a great date," he said, referring to the nation's 200th birthday to be widely celebrated across the nation then.

During the activities at Recreation Park, members of the Pampa Fire Department had to put out three grass fires that erupted around the arena, set off by careless use of fireworks. In addition, numerous smaller fires were put out by the persons who were shooting off their own fireworks during and after the scheduled program activities.

Residents in the Pampa vicinity enjoyed the holiday by taking to the area lakes and by going on picnics and family outings in the low 90 degree weather.

Firemen found themselves responding to a total of 15 grass fires including the three at Recreation Park. Most were reportedly the result of fireworks.

Most stores and government offices reopened for normal operations today after the holiday.

No traffic deaths in the Pampa vicinity were reported from holiday travel.

FEELING NO PAIN

Nixon 'Out Of Danger' From Leg's Blood Clot

KEY, BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon, who knowingly risked his life by traveling to the Middle East with a permanent blood clot in his leg, says he is in "good shape" and feeling no pain, his chief spokesman said today.

White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon's left leg still is "a little swollen" but his doctors insist there is "no longer any danger" from thrombo-phlebitis, an inflammation and clotting in the veins.

Nixon also told Ziegler that he "feels good and is catching up on his rest" since his return Wednesday night from Moscow where he held a week of summit talks with Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

According to Dr. Walter Tkach, the White House physician, Nixon was warned that there "was an outside chance the condition could take his life" when he was examined June 10 in Salzburg, Austria, a fast stop before his Middle East peace mission.

Tkach told reporters that Nixon "took a calculated risk" and "it could have killed him."

But Nixon, Tkach said,

"felt he had an obligation" to make the trip to the Middle East. Tkach and his assistant, Dr. William Lukash, agree the clot now has attached itself permanently to the wall of the vein, is in a "fixed position." It therefore no longer threatens to break loose and lodge itself in the heart or lungs, which could be fatal.

Nixon no longer is receiving medication, Tkach said, but may always suffer some swelling in the leg.

Nixon spent Independence Day at his Florida home resting from his Middle East and Moscow trips. He swam in the pool, walked on the beach and went for a ride on the yacht of his close friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Tkach said Nixon first felt discomfort in his leg June 8 at Camp David, Md., the weekend before the Middle East trip.

He said Nixon said nothing about it to his doctors until June 10, during his first stop in Salzburg, Austria.

Fund Campaign Continues For Downs Family

As funeral arrangements were being made at Wellington for services for Danny Glen Downs, (see page two) a Pampa group continued their efforts to raise money to assist the family of the eight-year old boy, who died Wednesday night of injuries suffered in an accident here June 30.

The parents of the boy, Mr. and Mrs. Winford Downs, 325 Jean, reportedly need financial assistance in meeting emergency expenses resulting from the accident, which occurred when Danny was stuck by a car as he rode his bicycle near his home.

Kirk Duncan, Pampa civic leader, has noted that, now more than ever, the family needs help.

He has asked that donations be sent to the First Christin Church in care of the "Helping Hand Fund," P.O. Box 2232, in Pampa.

Plans were being made today for special collections to be made on behalf of the family at Pampa churches during Sunday's services.

Winford Downs, father of the boy, is unable to work consistently because of a back injury. There are four remaining children in the family, ranging in age from 2 to 12.

Kissinger Briefs Europe On Nixon's Summit Trip

ROME (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived in Rome today under a brilliant summer sun and heavy security on his tour to brief European leaders about the Moscow summit meeting.

National police with submachine guns stood on the roof of Ciampino airport as Kissinger's Boeing 707 jetliner arrived at 1:33 p.m. (6:33 a.m. CDT) from Paris.

Italian Foreign Minister Aldo Moro, U.S. Ambassador John Volpe and representative to the Vatican Henry Cabot Lodge met Kissinger at the plane.

All concerned smiled, shook hands and drove to the Quirinale Palace for lunch with President Giovanni Leone. Police helicopters flew over the motorcade.

During his 22-hour stay, Kissinger will also meet with Pope Paul VI to talk about the Moscow summit and also about the status of Jerusalem, an American official said.

In Paris, Kissinger and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing conferred on the results of the Soviet-American summit and Europe's rocky relations with the United States.

The secretary of state emerged from the Elysee Palace after a one hour, 23 minute talk with the newly elected French president, conferring over a breakfast of grapefruit and coffee in the palace garden.

Indicating that once cool Franco-American relations were warming up, Kissinger told newsmen his talk with Giscard d'Estaing was "friendly and constructive."

At the airport Kissinger emphasized "the warm reception the French government gave me."

Before the talks, French government officials said Giscard d'Estaing would mention European alarm at the Soviet-American communique calling for a speedy conclusion to the European Security Conference and a jumbo summit meeting to sign it. Europeans are not anxious to conclude the conference until the Soviet Union gives in to European demands for more human rights in Communist countries.

Kissinger had said he would brief the French president on the limited success of U.S. Soviet talks on limiting nuclear arms.

Kissinger disclosed in Brussels Thursday the talks deadlocked because "it did not prove possible to find a balance between the overall number of missiles and the number of missiles with multiple warheads."

He said he and President Nixon presented a proposal of a certain number of missiles for each side but they "were not acceptable to the Soviets."

Kissinger and Giscard d'Estaing agreed on an unusual 8 a.m. session to let the secretary of state continue a whirlwind

European tour by flying on to Italy later in the day.

Elysee Palace officials quoted Giscard d'Estaing as saying he was anxious to keep his campaign pledge to improve U.S.-French relations, which were often rocky under his predecessor, the late President Georges Pompidou.

The meeting marked Giscard d'Estaing's first encounter with a member of the American cabinet since he was narrowly elected president May 19.

Diplomatic observers said Sauvagnargues' visit, which follows the just-ended summit between President Nixon and Soviet Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, appeared to fall into the pattern.

IN ELLSBERG CASE

Prosecution Introducing Ehrlichman's Testimony

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT
WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman's previously secret testimony that he learned about a psychiatric profile of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg only after a break-in at Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office was presented to a federal court jury today.

In the testimony, given to a grand jury May 14, 1973, two weeks after he resigned as President Nixon's top domestic adviser, Ehrlichman said:

"Well, I learned after the break-in that they were looking for information for what they call a psychiatric profile."

Ehrlichman is charged with lying to the grand jury in making that statement, as well as conspiracy in the break-in at the office of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, who was Ellsberg's psychiatrist. He and three others are on trial in U.S. District Court.

The prosecution also read Ehrlichman's grand jury testimony for Sept. 13, 1973, in which Ehrlichman changed his testimony and said he saw the psychiatric profile before the break-in. In the testimony, Ehrlichman said his memory was refreshed by an appearance before the House committee charged with overseeing the Central Intelligence Agency and by seeing the White House blueprint for the break-in.

The prosecution has presented much testimony in the trial about memos speaking of a psychological profile before the break-in—memos that were addressed to Ehrlichman—and of meetings among Ehrlichman and other members of White House "plumbers" unit at which the profile was discussed.

After the apparently conflicting Ehrlichman statements were read into the record, the prosecution rested its case.

Before the grand jury testimony was read, Ehrlichman's lawyer said he would drop a request to subpoena White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig to testify, and attorneys for Henry A. Kissinger said the secretary of state knew nothing about the burglary and asked that his subpoena be quashed.

Ehrlichman, President Nixon's former domestic adviser, is on trial with three convicted Watergate burglars in connection with the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. On June 19, Ehrlichman's lawyers obtained subpoenas against Kissinger and Haig.

William Frates, Ehrlichman's chief lawyer, said the subpoena against Haig would be dropped. Haig's brief said "Such an order would interfere with his duties to the President at Key Biscayne, Fla."

The record traffic death toll for a four-day Fourth of July period was 760 in 1972, when the council had estimated an all-time high of 800 to 900 fatalities.

"The lifesaving trend in traffic accidents that appeared last winter at the onset of the energy crisis still seems to be with us," council president Vincent Tofany said. He estimated the trend could save more than 200 lives during the holiday period.

TO ARTHUR BURNS

Price Suggests Lenient Livestock Loans Policy

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa and Congressman Happy Camp of Oklahoma have written Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns urging him to immediately institute a policy of leniency on livestock loans.

"To maintain fiscal stability in livestock producing areas, consideration needs to be given to extending the time for repayment of these loans," Price and Camp wrote.

"Lending institutions should not be forced by examiners to write off losses on livestock loans immediately; rather, livestock producers should be given the opportunity to work themselves out of the financial bind they are in so that they can make good on their loans."

Price, the original sponsor of Congressional action to provide guaranteed loans to help cattlemen survive extensive losses, said such action by Burns could provide important credit assistance without legislation and without delay.

"Action to allow lending institutions to extend the repayment periods of livestock loans, would be of significant help in providing the credit necessary to keep beef production under way," the senior House Agriculture Committee member said.

"The lenders know their borrowers. If given the authority to extend repayment periods, they would act to create a minimum of risk for themselves and a maximum of credit for livestock production."

Pressure Growing For Utilities Rules

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas produces 26 per cent of the nation's energy and yet is the only state in the nation that doesn't have a utilities commission to regulate the companies that sell power and phone service to consumers.

The fuel crisis is threatening to change all that. Fuel shortages and soaring prices have enraged consumers, turned municipal leaders against the utility giants for the first time and given supporters of regulation their first chance to crack the control industry lobbyists have held for years over the Texas legislature.

The reason we don't have a utilities commission in Texas all goes back to the fact that if the lobbyists do not want anything, then it won't happen until the people raise so much cain the legislators have to listen to them. Generally this legislature will not move unless the lobby wants them to," said state Sen. Ron Clower of Garland, a Dallas suburb.

Clower, a freshman Democratic senator, sponsored an unsuccessful bill to regulate telephone companies during his first legislative session. He predicts he'll succeed on a second try next year with a bill to regulate phone and power companies.

"The people have gotten worked up over the rate increases," Clower said. "This is going to cause a utilities commission."

Texas AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard, longtime advocate of utility regulation, agrees.

"Texas has been controlled by the utilities, oil, chemical and insurance lobbyists," Hubbard said. "Because of the closeness of the utility company lobby with those that controlled the natural resources they were able to just practically control our state government.

"But the consumers are feeling the crunch and the legislators are becoming more concerned about the consumers' problems and less concerned about what the lobby is going to do to them."

Politicians are hard pressed to ignore the complaints they are getting from constituents over skyrocketing electricity bills or displays of displeasure such as a hearing in San Antonio last month where outraged consumers hissed and spat upon Oscar Wyatt, chairman of the board of Coastal States Producing Co. — one of the nation's largest energy companies.

Coastal's chronic curtailments of natural gas deliveries to municipal power plants in Austin, San Antonio and Corpus Christi — and the resulting scramble for available supplies — have played a large part in souring city leaders on the present set-up.

"The larger municipalities have always jealously guarded their regulatory power," said Randall Wood, spokesman for the people's lobby, Common Cause.

"It has traditionally been the place in the state for the major ripoff and the city councilmen have been very reluctant to give it up," Wood said.

Militants Threaten Battle To Keep Peronist State

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A left-wing militant group threatened today to take up arms in the first sign of possible turmoil in divided Argentina following an emotional state funeral for Juan Domingo Peron.

The Montereros, a former guerrilla group that put away its weapons after Peron returned from exile, said it would resume urban warfare unless the "power vacuum" left by the president's death was filled.

The threat came hours after Lt. Gen. Leandro Anaya, the army commander, swore by the "body and immortal soul" of Peron to support the late leader's widow, Maria Estela, Latin America's first woman president.

The general made his remarks at a funeral in which tens of thousands of Argentines braved heavy rain to shout final farewells to the 78-year-old strongman and shower his casket with flowers.

The body of Peron, who dominated Argentine political life for three decades, was placed in a chapel on the grounds of the suburban presidential residence following a 10-mile funeral procession.

It was the largest funeral in Argentina since the death of Peron's popular second wife, Eva Duarte, who died of cancer in 1952 after helping her husband win the support of the nation's working class.

Mrs. Peron, the president's widow and successor, led the funeral cortege, which was protected by 8,000 armed troops. There were no major incidents.

In a paid announcement published in Buenos Aires newspapers, the Montoneros demanded an "immediate formal agreement of the political and social forces interested in national liberation" to fill the void, which they say resulted with Peron's death Monday.

The militant organization said a failure to guarantee Peron's ideals would lead to an "arduous struggle to reach national and social liberation."

The Montoneros group was formed five years ago to battle against the former military government of Gen. Juan Carlos Onganía. The group ceased commando operations last October when Peron assumed the presidency for the third time.

Peron, who ruled Argentina from 1946 to 1955, returned last summer from nearly 18 years in exile. Despite attempts to unify the country, his term as president saw increasing clashes between his leftist and rightist supporters.

Conservative Party May Get Minority Government

International
The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. says its final public opinion poll shows Conservative party leader Robert Stanfield may unseat Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and emerge from Monday's election as the head of a new minority government.

The CBC Thursday said its nationwide survey of 1,200 voters showed that the number of those favoring Trudeau's Liberal party has dropped since its first poll in early June from 36 to 34 per cent, while support for the Tories has risen from 31 to 33 per cent.

A Conservative alliance with the leftist New Democratic party would give Stanfield enough votes to form a government.

Most significant was the survey's reading of Ontario, the province with the most seats in Parliament. The Liberals suffered a five per cent drop in Ontario and "the trend is toward the Progressive Conservatives," the CBC said.

The network said its survey indicates the voting is likely to produce another minority government, and there is a strong possibility it will be a Conservative one.

Prime Minister Trudeau made no direct comment on the poll, but an aide told newsmen, "The signs are still good, very good, and although there may be some slippage, the signs are still encouraging."

A top aide to Stanfield said the survey "squares exactly with what our polls have been saying." Stanfield is reported by aides to be convinced he has at least a minority government in hand.

Stanfield was asked in Windsor, Ont., Thursday what his reaction would be if more Tories than Liberals were elected but Trudeau tried to hold power through an alliance with the New Democratic Party.

"Trudeau has already indicated he may not step down if we get more seats than he does," Stanfield said. He added, however, that he felt it would be more in keeping with Canada's political traditions for Trudeau to step down under such circumstances.

In New Westminster, B.C., Trudeau Thursday urged an audience, "Don't take a chance with your country. I don't think Canada wants to be governed by angry men, or by sad men."

He described New Democratic Party leader David Lewis and his party members as "angry men who think that if they tax the big corporations out of existence everything will be rosy."

Agents Arrest Killing Suspect At Flea Market

TRUCKEE, Calif. (UPI) — John W. Card, suspected of killing three persons and kidnaping three others, was arrested Thursday by FBI agents staking out a holiday flea market.

Agents said Card, a burly 6-foot-2 woodcutter, was captured without a struggle. He was armed with a .45-caliber pistol and was carrying more than $3,000 in cash, they said.

A 30-caliber hunting rifle was found in his car, they said.

Card, 26, of Willows, was suspected of killing veterinarian C.B. Griffiths, his wife and teen-aged daughter in that Sacramento Valley town eight days ago.

Earlier, a widow and her two children, who allegedly had been held hostage by Card, freed themselves after being chained to a tree at a campsite in the Sierra foothills near Colusa, Calif., 50 miles north of Sacramento.

Kay Skillin, 34, and her children, Wesley, 13, and Debbie, 12, were kidnapped last Saturday from their ranch near Willows.

They told police they were treated well as they traveled with their abductor to Utah and Nevada, spending the nights in motels or in a camper pickup truck along the edge of the highway.

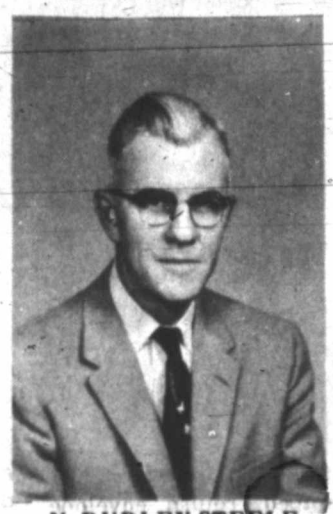

Deputies from three counties staked out the Truckee area, near the Nevada border, most of the day.

They did not say how they learned Card would be in town. The 240-pound former high school football tackle was arrested at the market, which was part of July 4 festivities.

Investigators said that Mrs. Griffiths was shot to death last Friday after her husband and daughter were killed near their ranch. She earlier had been forced to cash two checks totaling $5,250 at a bank and a grocery store.

The Glenn County district attorney said Card was to be charged with murder and kidnaping. No bail was set.

R&D DIRECTOR N. Dudley Steele Retires At Cabot

N. DUDLEY STEELE
42 years of service

Cabot Corp. today announced the retirement of N. Dudley Steele, director of Pampa Research and Development, effective June 30.

Steele, with 42 continuous years of service, began his career with Cabot in Pampa in 1932, as chief control chemist in the Kingsmill plant. He had recently graduated from the University of Denver with a Master of Science Degree in Chemistry.

Many technological changes have evolved in the carbon black industry during the past 40 years, and Steele was instrumental in the development and implementation of many of those changes, Cabot officials claimed.

During his service with the company, he held positions of process engineer, pilot plant engineer, assistant director of research and development of the southwest division, assistant production superintendent of carbon black, and in January, 1954, Steele moved to Lafayette, La., as district superintendent of the Louisiana plants.

Felicia Davis, one of the youngsters, was taken to Ochiltree General Hospital where she was treated for minor leg burns and released.

In August, 1956, he returned to Pampa as general production superintendent of the Carbon black division, and in June, 1961 became director of research and development.

Mr. and Mrs. Steele have been honored at several dinner parties including a surprise dinner in Boston, Mass., on May 15 with close friends and associates of that area attending.

Another dinner party was held on June 11 at the Pampa Country Club with Randy Antonsen, of Billerica, Mass., serving as master of ceremonies. Presentation of gifts to the Steeles were made by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Horn, Mr. and Mrs. G.W. Dingus and Mrs. Elleta Nolte.

Guests for the evening included employees of the Research and Development Department, retired R&D employees, and Cabot associates from Pampa, Boston and Billerica, Mass., England, Germany and Colombia, S.A. The Steele's daughter and son-in-law from Dallas were also special guests at the dinner.

Steele and his wife will continue to live in Pampa, where he plans to remain active in church and civic organizations. He also will be doing some consulting work for the Cabot organization.

Perryton Grants Gas Rate Hikes

PEERYTON — City officials here have granted a rate increase to High Plains Natural Gas Co.

The utility firm, based in Albuquerque, N.M. had originally requested a 60 cent per 1,000 cubic feet charge to the city, but council members granted a hike of 54 cents from the previous 45 cents.

Line losses in the system made the increase necessary, city officials said.

The increase was granted in order to give the gas company more incentives in their search for additional gas reserves.

Van Strikes Pampa Man In Accident On Highway

A Pampa man, Ricardo Diaz, is listed in fair condition today at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo where he was taken following a vehicle-pedestrian accident on the Borger Highway Thursday afternoon.

State Highway Patrol troopers said Diaz, 21, of 831 E. Campbell, suffered fractures of both legs, plus abrasions, when he was struck by a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Van driven by Stanley T. Beck Jr., also of Pampa.

Troopers said Diaz and another man had stopped their truck at about 1:25 p.m. because of a tire blowout which had left debris on the roadway of Highway 152 about 4.2 miles west of Pampa.

Diaz was on the roadway cleaning up the debris, and apparently did not see or hear the approaching telephone company van.

The van struck Diaz and carried him 177 feet. He first was taken by Metropolitan Ambulance Service to Highland General Hospital. Pampa, then transferred to St. Anthony's at Amarillo.

Douglas Thursday ruled that "substantial First Amendment claims" had been raised on Lewis' behalf, enough to justify his release on his own recognizance. At the federal correctional institution on Terminal island here, officials said they were waiting for a written order that would set Lewis free.

Lewis, the 42-year-old general manager of station KPPK, was jailed for contempt by U.S. District Court Judge A. Andrew Hawk June 19, after he refused to surrender the tape or answer grand jury questions.

The recording, found in a rubbish area behind the station June 7, contained messages from Miss Hearst and Symbionese Liberation Army members William and Emily Harris.

The station turned over a copy of the tape to the FBI, but withheld the original, which authorities said they needed to check for fingerprints and to try to trace where it came from.

Judge Releases Radio Manager

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Radio station manager Will Lewis, jailed for refusing to give the FBI the original of a tape recording by Patricia Hearst, has been ordered released from federal prison by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Douglas Thursday ruled that "substantial First Amendment claims" had been raised on Lewis' behalf, enough to justify his release on his own recognizance. At the federal correctional institution on Terminal island here, officials said they were waiting for a written order that would set Lewis free.

WORRY CLINIC By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Laura might have been seduced by a virile man other than her husband. For she subconsciously reveals her erotic need to be dominated in the boudoir. Idealistic men often lose their women to more dominant suitors. Scrapbook this case!

CASE A-677: Laura D., aged 26, admits that she is like Maggie in the Jiggs comic strip.

"Dr. Crane," she protested, "I just nag and nag my husband all the time!" "And he puts up with it, for he is a placid type who never gets ruffled and who always lets me do as I please."

"But I hate myself for being such a domestic shrew."

"Why, even my mother scolds me for being such a nagging wife."

"But I just can't help myself, for I seem to be goaded from inside to needle my husband and pick fault with him over trivial things."

"What makes me so mean to him when he gives me everything I want?"

PARADOXICAL SEX

Women relish husbands who let them have their own way in all the rooms of their house — except the bedroom!

Alas, Laura's meek and placid husband even accedes to her wishes in the boudoir!

So she is subconsciously trying to force him into taking his proper male role in their marriage.

Shakespeare beautifully depicted Laura when he wrote that psychological play about "Taming the Shrew."

For Shakespeare was a superb psychologist, so he realized that women wish to be dominated in their boudoir!

Alas, the more a meek husband gives in to his wife's tantrums, the worse they become.

For a nagging wife signifies a sexually frustrated female!

And the average inexperienced wife doesn't consciously know what she is hungry for, but subconsciously she desires a virile male who will rule the bedroom.

Seminar Is Planned

A three-day seminar on municipal government for newly elected city officials in the Painesville and South Plains area will be conducted next spring by West Texas State University as a newly funded community service project, administered through the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Director of the project is Dr. Walter L. Shelly, assistant professor of political science. He will be assisted by Dr. J. Pat Stephens, a Canyon city commissioner, former city commissioner George Ritter, and city attorney Elton Cox, each of whom is a member of the WTSU political science department faculty.

The seminar will be held May 8-10, 1975.

WTSU is matching $1,500 of its own funds with a $2,000 federal grant from the higher education Title I Community Service and Continuing Education Program to conduct the project.

The Coordinating Board administers Title I community service grants for public and private colleges in Texas.

So she nags and scolds and gripes and needles her sluggish mate, vainly hoping he will finally throw off his feminine meekness and shake her till her teeth rattle.

"Dr. Crane," Laura

tearfully confessed at the end of an hour. "I just wish Tom would turn me over his knee and spank me till I couldn't sit down afterwards!"

Which means what? Merely that she craves the "laying on of hands" by a masterful mate.

Even unmarried girls subconsciously realize that if they can tease and tantalize a shy boy friend, he may seize them in anger, and this physical contact can then lead onward to eroticism.

Dr. F. A. Moss thus showed that female white rats are meek and modest as long as the males are the aggressors.

But then he fastened the door to the male rat cage so it wouldn't open outward, thus preventing the males from going to the female rats.

Then the females even were willing to step on the intervening electric plate and get a painful electric shock, just to reach the males.

So Dr. Moss wisely stated that females are coy and modest only with virile males, but will become aggressors if the males are meek.

Alas, some suitors idealize their girl friends to such a point, they treat their sweethearts as angels.

Yet another man comes along who gives them rougher manhandling and they fall for the brute!

So I coached Laura's mate until he ruled the boudoir, after which his "Maggie" would purr instead of swinging her rolling pin!

HALFWAY HOUSE DALLAS (UPI) — A halfway house for persons released from prison will open this summer offering the former inmates a temporary home, counseling, job referral services and educational opportunities.

These are advantages found in a parole plan which the dischargee does not enjoy," a spokesman for the Dallas Area Criminal Justice Council said. "Usually, all a dischargee has when he gets out of the state prison at Huntsville is a new suit, $100 and a bus ticket."

Consequently, when the $100 is gone, he turns again to crime rather than submit to the responsibilities of starting a straight life. And it frequently happens quickly after he's released.

This is one reason why the repeat offender rate is so high among prison dischargees. Hopefully, the halfway house here will stem that.

AUTOGRAPH TIME — Mrs. Elleta Nolte, right, signs a copy of her new book, "Westward, Ha!" for Mrs. Reed Echols at a recent autograph party at St. Vincent's parish hall. The book, which recounts the experiences of the Nolte family in trying to settle in Wyoming, is available locally. Second Eldest Walton Is Only Real-Life Musician Of Family

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jon Walmsley plays Jason, second eldest of "The Waltons" television family and the only real musician of the lot.

Jon is a serious-minded 18-year-old who lives with his parents in the San Fernando valley in a modest home. He is an only child born in Lancashire, England, but reared in California.

His jargon is pure American teen-ager, but his parents have an unmistakable English accent which his friends find diverting.

The youthful actor has converted one of the three bedrooms in the family house into a music room, brimming with stereo equipment, speakers, guitars, piano, organ and microphones — not to mention drums.

When all systems are go and the volume is running full, Jon's parents are ready to move out. So is the family dog, a Yorkshire terrier named Tudor.

Home for Dinner Jon was graduated from high school last year via the Warner Bros. studio tutoring system, where all the other minor children in the series attend class every working day of the year. It's a big day when a child performer no longer has to duck out of a scene and into geography lessons.

Mrs. Walmsley is up every morning to fix breakfast for her husband and working son. Jon reports to the set at 8 o'clock and works through the day until 6 o'clock, having lunch in the studio commissary between 1 and 2 p.m., usually with one of the other members of the cast.

He is home in time for dinner with his parents, driving a brand new Mercedes which is his pride and joy.

Jon looks four or five years younger than he is — which is both a blessing and a burden.

Shuns Hamburgers The youthful appearance keeps him employed, but it is a damper for his romantic inclinations with girls his own age. He says they are looking for "older men" but he reminds them of their younger brothers.

Still, Jon takes girls out to dinner once or twice a week, and to movies.

But when he wants to dine well he stays at home for his mother's steak and kidney pie, a culinary delight straight from her home in England. She's also expert at American dishes.

Jon is not addicted to hamburgers, French fries and malts, as are many of his contemporaries. He is conscious of his health and sticks with more nourishing meals.

He also does calisthenics every morning to keep himself fit.

Several times during the year the family takes a long weekend by loading their camper with fishing gear

Alcoholism No Longer Hopeless

This article is part of a series on "The Progression of Alcoholism" produced by the Alcoholism Council of San Fernando Valley, Calif. The stories are made available locally by the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation.

Thirty years ago, alcoholism was considered hopeless. Today, use of the word "hopeless" in connection with this medically-recognized disease is held to be defeatist talk.

It does not have to be hopeless, although alcoholism cannot be cured, only arrested through abstinence.

Recognition of the disease through heeding symptoms, coupled with admittance of alcoholism by victim and family, can start the problem drinker toward recovery.

Statistics show that from 50 percent to 70 percent of all employed alcoholics do recover if they seek help through such organization as the Alcohol Counseling Program.

Of course all heavy drinkers are not alcoholics. It is estimated that 80,000,000 in the United States imbibe seriously. Only about 9,000,000 of them are alcoholic.

A heavy drinker has a choice of getting drunk. The alcoholic has no choice.

With the latter, one drink leads to a drunk, a result he seldom deliberately goes out to attain.

Even in the late chronic stage of alcoholism it is not too late to ask for help.

At this point, the drinker is accustomed to prolonged benders, experiences a loss of morale, drinks almost anything to get the required jolt, finds a decrease in tolerance and plunges into fears and anxieties.

Because of poor physical condition, he usually gets the shakes. His hands and lips quiver. The shakes increase the closer he comes to sobriety. Disturbed mental state also contributes to these shakes.

Naturally, this startling unsteadiness makes it impossible for the alcoholic to perform the simplest acts without liquor. Before he can tie his shoe laces or button a shirt, he needs a few drinks to steady his hands.

Morning drinking "shows" on him.

This creates a desperate, incessant tail-spin. He drinks to remove the symptoms brought on by boozing. Of course, this causes more symptoms to be covered up.

The compelling obsession to find self control and recapture the old pattern of casual drinking builds overwhelming remorse. He is crushed to see that others can drink the way he always thought proper.

He asks why this has happened to him. What went wrong? Why are they different? Why can't he stop in time as they do?

Rambling, ever seeking the answer, many believe they have it. It must be religion. Others seem happy and contented. Strangely, multitudes of chronic alcoholics feel that others have known religious experiences which have not come to them.

Desperate, the alcoholic may even pray. Not a religious prayer, but a calling out for help from God or whomever can hear and will care. He concludes he can go farther, that he will go mad if something isn't done for him.

For the first time in his life, he truly is ready to admit he is licked. He has said so before, but always with secret reservations. Now he is convinced it is true. He knows he is enmeshed in a web stronger than he is.

Economist Says Big Car Buyers Are Not Defensive

DALLAS (UPI) — Dr. W. Philip Gramm, a young but hard-nosed economist advocate of free enterprise, says the American who goes out and buys a gas-guzzling automobile has nothing to be defensive about.

"If we let the guy pay the market price for gas and if he chooses to do it, that is his right as a consumer," Gramm said in a telephone interview. Gramm is a professor of economics at Texas A&M University.

Besides Gramm feels that higher present market prices for gasoline are what will in a few years relieve this country of dependence on the Arab countries, and, in fact, make gasoline prices in this country go down.

His thesis, which he expressed earlier in the year before a congressional committee, is that over-emphasis on environmental protection and wage and price controls are mainly responsible for the energy shortage in this country.

"As facts have come to replace political rhetoric it has become increasingly clear that government stupidity and not industrial collusion have produced our energy problem in America," Gramm said.

"There is no question that our basic balance of payments position with the Arabs has changed on account of the higher price of crude. If these higher prices hold up and we continue to import the same quantities we do now, it will have a drastic impact on the balance of payments."

"I am not terribly concerned, because I believe these prices are not going to hold up. At these prices, we already are seeing a jump in domestic production and investment. The quantity of imports will decline, if these prices hold up."

Gramm blames the Federal Power Commission's setting of wellhead prices on natural gas for a lack of exploration for gas over the past decade.

The FPC set prices on some of this gas as low as 17 cents a thousand cubic feet. New gas produced and sold intrastate and not subject to FPC control has sold recently for as much as $1.25.

Gramm believes that any control the government exerts on oil decreases the supply.

"The oil industry can move a gallon of gasoline cheaper from New Orleans to New York than the Post Office can move a first class letter from Dallas to Houston," Gramm said.

He said the United States has huge reserves of petroleum and gas, some proven and some unproven, under the Continental Shelf the Alaskan North Slope and elsewhere.

"We have in operating and shut-in wells about 285 billion barrels of crude," he said. "Most of this is recoverable with current technology but not at current prices."

"Wage and price controls, by basically freezing the rate of return and profit, caused investment in the industry to decline. U.S. price controls did not affect world prices, so that the oil companies were able to raise price levels by selling on the world market. "My feeling is that the petroleum era is going to come to an end as did the Stone Age. But it is not going to be in this century if the government will not allow the free market system to work."

"The doomsayers say we are really living on a spaceship. That is true, but it is important to realize that this spaceship was made by a master engineer and is very well equipped. We probably have a million times more energy in the earth's crust than we have used."

The Australian government has announced that all future military barracks will provide private room accommodations for all, right down to privates.

Snooping By The Government

Government, federal, state and local, is probing deeper and deeper into your personal and private affairs and storing the information collected away in "data banks." The majority of which are computerized.

According to recent news dispatches, dateline Washington, D.C., more than 1.25 billion pieces of information about American citizens have been collected in information data banks by 54 federal agencies. The dispatch, citing a 4,000 page report released by the Senate Constitutional Rights Subcommittee, also pointed out that state and local governments are deep into the personal and private information collecting and storing "business."

Evaluating Values

Austro-American economist Ludwig Von Mises pointed out that all value is subjective, and therefore cannot be measured. He added, however, that any person can arrange his subjective desires in order of preference. Voting is also a matter of subjective preference. The elector has no sure way of knowing how his choice will perform if his candidacy proves successful. But given a little time, the voter can evaluate his own ability at picking the right man. He has only to make a list of the successful candidates that he voted for. Then, one year from the election, he can vote again unofficially on his selections. The ballot caster's decision would be whether — after 12-month trial — he is happy with his candidate's performance. An associate said he had made this type of evaluation and now no longer goes to the polls.

But, instead of calling for dismantling of the meddling agencies responsible for the snooping and storing of private and personal information and the junking of the "data banks," Ervin, true to his nature as a politician, used the report to call for more legislation, thus saddling the American citizen with more laws and more expense to enforce them.

Specifically, the North Carolina Senator called for legislation to include what he referred to as these "safeguards":
—Explicit legal authority for the creation of each data bank, as well as legislative approval for each decision to computerize files.
—Notifying subjects that personal information about them is stored in a federal data bank and providing opportunities to review and correct the records.
—Limits on the exchange of data bank information between agencies.
—Strict security precautions to protect the data banks from unauthorized or illegal access.
—Continued legislative control over the purposes, content and uses of government data systems.
As if making the snooping all nice and legal and letting the victims know that they are being victimized would make the whole abominable mess less objectionable.

ALL THAT GLITTERS

Whale Slaughter Continues

By VIC GOLD
WASHINGTON — Remember that war against whales we were talking about earlier this year? The "final solution" to the whale problem being carried out by the whaling policies of the Soviet and Japanese governments? Well, it continues apace, with the Russians and Japanese still winning all engagements against a rapidly diminishing enemy. And recently there've been some developments from the warfront worth passing along.

To begin, the Russians, predictably, are going about whale slaughter without much concern for world opinion. But the Japanese whaling industry has a propaganda arm. It's a Park Avenue, New York, operation called "International Public Relations Co. Ltd." otherwise known as the "Japanese Whaling Information Center."

of the war to date. As explained in a previous column, the United States and 12 other nations comprising the 15-nation International Whaling Commission have been trying to control the profligate commercial killing of certain whale species facing imminent extinction. One example is the Antarctic finback whale. According to the U.S. Senate Commerce committee, the finback population has been depleted in recent years from 380,000 to 77,000.

The primary depleters are Russian and Japanese whalers, who market their whale catch for conversion into such vitally needed products as dog food, cosmetics and shoe polish. Other whale species — the minke, sperm, and sei variety — are being slaughtered at a similar rate. So last week the international commission, meeting in London, voted 13 to 2 in favor of a moratorium on killing these endangered species. Unfortunately, the two negative votes, Russia and Japan, account for 85 percent of the world's annual whale catch. And the IWC has no real enforcement powers.

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

"LOOK, I'VE HAD IT UP TO HERE WITH THOSE ***** 'EXPLETIVE DELETED' JOKES!"

Now, for those who think the "Save the Whales" movement is just another of those flakey ecological fads that come and go, let me point out a significant distinction: the whale — as recorded history tells us from Biblical to modern scientific times — is a unique life form. It's a mammal — even as you and I — and studying its physiology and habits may reveal much about the mysteries of evolution. And indeed, about ourselves.

The U.S. has been the leading advocate of a full 10-year moratorium on whale-hunting. According to marine biologists around the world, this would give diminishing whale species time to replenish after years of attrition.

Enter now the International Public Relations Co. Ltd. In a 25-page document distributed just as the IWC convened, this propaganda lobby informs us that it had bushwah about indiscriminate whaling is the product of insensitive Americans who simply don't understand the "traditions or religious ethnic scruples" of the Japanese.

Why, argue these Japanese whale industry agents, matters really aren't all that bad. Only one out of every four whales slaughtered by the Japanese goes into such things as dog chow and pancake make-up. The other three provide "a real food source for a protein-hungry population of 100 million."

Really? Then how is it that, citing the Information Center's own figures, of the 23 percent meat protein consumed in Japan, a substantial 14 percent comes in the form of those despised four-footed animals — compared to only 9 percent whalemeat?

These figures suggest that the Japanese whaling industry would do well to spend their "information" funds back home, informing their countrymen of the protein virtues of cheap beef now glutting world markets. But, of course, whale meat is cheap, too. And so long as there's a market for it, the Japanese whaling industry, like its Russian counterpart, is going to fill that demand.

Then some of the stolen and counterfeit securities are sold to the Swiss bank. With reputation and credit supposedly established, the approach is made to the Vatican investment bureau. See, says the Rizzo front man, the securities are good. The Swiss bought them. But not really, it turns out. The Swiss check in the U.S. discovered the fraud and blew the whistle. And the Vatican didn't buy.

In this space, one can't do justice to the derring-do of this latter-day international confidence man and his conspiratorial troupe. But one can do justice by pointing to two crusading prosecutive investigators, "young" William Aronwald, U.S. Attorney in charge of the Joint Strike Force against Organized Crime and Racketeering for the Southern District of New York, and Ronald Goldstock, chief of the Manhattan District Attorney's Rackets Bureau. Working together they and their forces nailed Rizzo and company. Rizzo now is contemplating his errors in Leavenworth penitentiary. He's got lots of time for meditation.

INSIDE LABOR

Mafia Tried To 'Take' Vatican

By VISTOR RIESEL
NEW YORK — Well, it's like this. The Mafia has its own elite. Maybe you think it's the Godfathers. But the dons come and go, some naturally and some from lead poisoning. It's the "moneymaker" who rolls on, be he crooner or crook supreme — say like Vinnie Rizzo.

Rizzo is a family man — the so-called Genovese family. Devout, too. But business, is business. And three years ago he worked up an international plot to con the Vatican into buying some $14 million worth of stolen and counterfeit securities. He almost succeeded.

And it was a part-time operation. At the same time he "moved" counterfeit American currency from Canada to New York and Miami, dealt in drugs, negotiated with Japanese crooks, took mob contracts for the destruction of garbage trucks in New Jersey and ran a network reaching from Munich, Germany to Argentina, Panama, Las Vegas and California.

This operation starts with a series of thefts of Wall Street securities from the mails, banks and brokerage houses. He stole anything cashable — including Treasury bills. Could be as much as $18 million worth. From now on we see a Mafia moneymaker in real action — directing from the "hub of the wheel" quite a band of international con artists.

The securities are moved to Switzerland, Italy, Germany and France. Bank accounts are set up in Swiss and Rome banks. One, possibly two, are in the name of a Monsignor.

It took FBI men, city detectives, local and national police forces abroad, especially in Germany, to nail him and some 15 others. At one time the Germans had the mobsters and their international partners under 24-hour physical and electronic surveillance by some 16 to 20 detectives — especially in Munich. This is the investigators called Operation Fraulein. But there's more to Rizzo than the man pursued across Europe by "our" men. During Operation Fraulein, he was moving counterfeit American dollars down from Canada by a courier of the Buffalo (N.Y.) underworld family. This fake money was used in turn to buy Latin American drugs. Rizzo had real bottom-line instincts. He never wasted a penny of his own. He used a stolen credit card and forged airline tickets to travel on drug-trading missions to Florida and elsewhere.

He used a Las Vegas contact to move counterfeit dollars to West Coast Japanese mobsters for sale on the Tokyo black market because there he could get full value as real money instead of selling it for, say, 10 percent of face value through hot channels in the U.S.

Here he used counterfeit money for loan sharking — and hooked many legitimate businessmen in the restaurant field, travel agencies and bail bonding.

A most knowledgeable federal racket smasher said the other day, as we discussed the Senate investigations subcommittee hearings, dispute over whether ten billion or 50 billion dollars worth of securities had been stolen, that the Rizzo case had taught the investigators many valuable lessons.

First, the real Mafia moneymaker reaches far beyond one specialty such as labor, loan sharking, drugs or industrial rackets. And there is no geographic or jurisdictional limit on any one mob "family." Rizzo was at the hub of the wheel. He dealt in anything in which he could make a dollar anywhere in the world — nothing was sacred — and no underworld was unreachably.

Thus it isn't true that Mafia families don't crisscross. They have specialists in extortion, drugs, labor rackets, etc., and the Rizzos just reach out from the hub to activate them.

Second, to fight the Mafia successfully there must be faithful cooperation between the federal and local authorities — and foreign governments as well.

Also this underscores the validity for the joint strike force concept.

INSIDE WASHINGTON Detente Sinister Snare And Delusion For U. S.

By ROBERTS ALLEN
WASHINGTON, July 2 — The "detente" you are hearing so much about is in reality very different from what it's glowingly touted to be.

Far from the "peaceful coexistence" being sonorously claimed, it is actually a one-way street that is paying off richly for Russia — at grievous cost to the U.S. in particular, and the West as a whole.

On its record, detente is a sinister snare and delusion for the U.S. That's the grave judgment a group of specialists in Soviet and international affairs spell out in comprehensive detail in a special report of the Senate Arms Control Subcommittee, which has supervisory jurisdiction over SALT negotiations and agreements.

Warningly concludes the study: "It is not surprising that the Western public fed for years on the optimistic fare of detente is puzzled and bewildered. A genuine detente, is of course, most desirable, but in its present form detente has proved to be an effective instrument in weakening the West, as it has hidden from the West the political and military realities of the situation and lowered the threshold of risks for the Soviets."

"It has made possible the presentation in the West of political failures as successes for peace; of businessmen's fantasies about profits as rational enterprises in the interest of the state; of Western military decline as an achievement leading towards strategic stability. It is time for the West to recover its sense of reality if Western civilization is to survive."

The blunt-talking experts include Robert Conquest, Brian Crozier, John Erickson, Richard Pipes, Edward Shils and P. J. Vatikiotis. Members of the Arms Control subcommittee are among the most senior and influential in the Senate. They are Sens. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.), chairman; John Stennis (D-Miss.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee; Harry Byrd (Ind.-Va.); Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.); Robert Taft (R-Ohio); William Scott (R-Va.).

What Kremlin's Up To
The report charges flatly that Russia, its Communist ideology and imperialism aims as unchanged as when originally laid down by Lenin, is craftily and deliberately using detente as a "strategic alternative" to accomplish the following:

- (1) Undermine and cripple the Western (NATO) alliance by "making it appear to be unnecessary, indeed dangerous, to peace."
- (2) Eliminate the U.S. presence in Europe, and materially "reduce the extent and pace of the American defense effort."
- (3) Obtain from the West large-scale financial and technological assistance that will directly "enhance Soviet military power by making easier the continuous buildup of the military sector of the Soviet economy."
- (4) Legitimize Russian domination over Eastern Europe "by making it appear historically irreversible."

Declare the experts. "In Soviet terminology, detente or 'peaceful coexistence' denotes a strategic alternative to overtly militant antagonism against the so-called capitalist countries." It does not imply the abandonment of conflict with the Western countries. Head-on conflict yields to indirect methods of combat: in Soviet practice that means subversion, propaganda, political blackmail and intelligence operations.

Military detente: Even in simple numerical terms, detente has resulted in the expansion of Russia's strategic offensive and defensive systems both. There is no sector of Russian military policy where there has not been expansion, diversification and modernization. For the Soviets, detente has not meant the acceptance of military balance but an opportunity to seize unchallengeable superiority.

As a consequence, in the vital European theater, Russia now possesses a three to one superiority in armor, more than a two to one superiority in tactical aircraft, and in the SALT II negotiations is adamantly giving no sign of yielding "any element of this superiority."

Economic detente: Some of the most uncritical attitudes generated by detente in the West are in the field of East-West trade. The paramount Soviet aim in its economic detente offensive is to obtain large long-term credits at low interest rates (chiefly from the U.S.) in order to finance the purchase of equipment and technology for the development of oil, natural gas and other mineral resources. This will not only greatly increase overall Russian economic strength, but will also enable the Soviets to undertake military spending on a scale that would otherwise be impossible.

It is not necessarily true, as sardonically observe the experts, "that what is good for Pepsi-Cola or Chase Manhattan Bank is also good for the United States. Russian purposes in expanding trade are completely different from those of the West. The Soviet Union is trying to narrow the technology. By spending $3 million in three years, Russia gained 15 years in R&D. The economic and technological advantages of detente are one-sided, and in the long run this asymmetry could be dangerous to the U.S."

"Free flow of ideas": In Soviet eyes, subversion is not incompatible with detente. On the contrary, as the Russians conceive detente, it is entirely consistent with what the West considers subversion. The Soviets operate on the basis of two sets of rules: While Russia claims the right to subvert any other country, the West must avoid criticizing the Soviet Union and all the countries under its domination, as well as abstaining from communicating to those countries any ideas which their Communist rulers think might make the citizens critical of them."

Tersely points out the report, "Kremlin spokesmen have said repeatedly 'peaceful coexistence' implies the intensification of the struggle between the world systems. The intensification of that fateful struggle implies, above all, more subversion in all its forms."

In other words, it is Russia's firm contention that it is entirely all right for Moscow to lie about the West, but an outrage and provocation for the West to tell the truth about the Soviets.

That's the Kremlin's basic concept of what constitutes the "free flow of ideas."

This Is Education?

Indicative of the declining morality and growing irresponsibility in the country is the report of the U.S. Office of Education that more than 100,000 students have refused to repay banks for the money they borrowed, allegedly to get an education. Since these loans are federally insured, this means the taxpayers are holding the sack for $116 million. What is worse is that at the rate students are refusing to pay, the federal government will have to come up with $342 million in 1975 to reimburse the banks for these bad debts. The question is: What price education and what are we getting for our money?

Our Religion

An Irish Roman Catholic, Thomas Dongan, Earl of Limerick, was the first governor appointed by the British King James II over the colony of New York. He was known for his adherence to the principle of religious liberty in the colony.

Among the instructions given to him by King James was that, "You shall permit all persons of whatever religion quietly to inhabit within your government without giving them any disturbance or disquiet whatsoever by reason of their differing opinions in matters of religion, provided they give no disturbance to the public peace, nor to molest or disquiet others in the free exercise of their religion."

Question: In the state of Virginia, which religious body has the largest number of members? — Roanoke, Va.

Answer: In a majority of the counties of the state of Virginia, the population is more than 50 per cent Baptist. Only in Shenandoah County does the Lutheran Church have a majority.

ROMAN CATHOLICS predominate in Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William counties. Methodists have the lead in most of the western counties bordering on West Virginia and in five counties in the southern part of the state.

Question: Was the late Swiss Protestant theologian, Karl Barth, a pacifist? — Watervliet, N.Y.

Answer: Karl Barth, who probably was the leading Protestant theologian of his time, was strongly opposed to war until 1941 when Hitler's aggression against Jews and Christians became so terrible.

In May of that year, Prof. Barth declared: "We Christians do not accept his war as a necessary evil. We approve it as a righteous war, which God commands us to wage ardently."

Question: Proverbs 29:24 reads, "Whoso is partner with a thief hateth his own soul: he heareth cursing and bewrayeth it not."

What is the meaning of the word "Bewrayeth"?

Grand Forks, N.D.

Answer: In Old English, the verb "bewray" meant the same as "reveal."

The Revised Standard Version of the Bible translates this same verse: "The partner of a thief hates his own life; he hears the curse but discloses nothing."

Question: What is the origin of the name of the religious body called Jehovah's Witnesses? — Brooklyn, N.Y.

Answer: The name is taken from Isaiah 43:12, which reads, "You are my witnesses," says Jehovah.

That is the translation used in the American Standard Version of the Bible. The Revised Standard Version of 1952 and the King James Version of 1611 do not use the word "Jehovah."

In the King James Version, that verse is rendered: "Therefore ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, that I am God."

Question: What is the relative number of Christians and Jews in North America? — Regina, Sask.

Answer: In North and Central America, combined, the Christian population is approximately 224,839,000. The Jewish population for North and Central America is approximately 6,281,900.

(Editor's Note: Questions on religion and the Bible may be addressed to Dr. Adams in care of this newspaper. All questions must be signed.)

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Assembly Of God Church, Skellytown

REV. EARL SAVAGE

"Yes, Adam's sin brought punishment to all, but Christ's righteousness makes men right with God, so that they can live." Romans 5:18 Living Bible. How often we forget that one person can start a chain reaction. It is said that neither an individual person nor a single act is isolated from the rest of society. Every thing effects something else in life. We hear from ecologists in their concern of the environment of which we live. Their concern is legitimate for by the action of one person, a forest fire for example, can effect hundreds of other lives.

Adam is a prime example of the evil one man can do, not only to those in his immediate generation but for ages to come. The Bible states that "a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." In other words it just takes a little yeast to make the whole loaf rise. So it is that society is looking for a person to speak their sentiments. Many of those sentiments are rebellion, hatred, and prejudice and it only takes a spark to get the fire going. Let us as members of the human and Christian society be careful that we do not carry on the reactions of corrupt actions. Or sins can cause others to stumble.

In closing let us focus on the one Man's life that changed and transformed more lives than any other single person. Christ came not only to die for humanity but to be an example of right living. He taught us how to live in relation with God and our fellow man. The old translation of the truth which says "do unto others as you would have them do unto you" can still be the motivation for good deeds in this age that we live. We must remember that not only evil acts can be infectious but that righteous deeds can be a great influence in the world that we live.

Hansford County Sets Seminar

SPEARMAN—Several laymen of Hansford County are sponsoring a Spiritual Life Teaching Seminar, to be held in Spearman July 15-17 at the Catholic Parish Hall.

The evangelist is Hugh Smith of Hurst, Texas; the singer is Carl Vaughn, and ex-night club musician. Smith is also scheduled to speak at the First United Methodist Church on Sunday night, July 14.

Englishman Compares Religious Activities

GLORIETA, N.M.—Tony Ruddle has an important mission. It began half-way around the world nine months ago. It probably won't be completed for a long time, after thousands of Englishmen like Tony have contributed to the cause. That cause is the work of Baptists in England.

attending the Southern Baptist Convention and Glorieta during Sunday School and Church Training weeks.

About his countrymen, Tony acknowledged that the bulk of Baptist church members in England are conservative evangelicals.

"Although our churches are small in comparison to American churches," he added, "our strongest point is the preaching. English Baptists are very strong theologically and take the ordinances of the church very seriously. If someone is a member of an English Baptist church, you can count on him to be in church."

In contrast to Southern Baptist churches, Tony commented that church attendance is larger on Sunday night than on Sunday morning. Since we have no adult Sunday School, that program is held during the morning worship service, therefore the children and teachers do not attend the morning service.

"During my stay in the States, I am studying and observing Southern Baptist programs and materials which could be used in England."

Sunday's Service Theme is Announced

Dr. Bobby L. Stalcup, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, 525 North Gray, has chosen "From Opinion to Confession" as his sermon title this Sunday at the 9:30 a.m. worship hours. Assisting Dr. Stalcup in the pulpit will be Ruling Elder John Horn.

Special music will be provided by Miss Wanetta Bayless. The church organist, Mrs. Doris Goad, will present "Prelude, Postlude and Offertory selections."

The Communicant's Class meets Sunday at 10:30 a.m. and Thursday at 1:30 p.m. They are taking instructions and preparing for Church membership. Dr. Stalcup continues the Bible Class on Romans each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall.

The public is cordially invited to attend the Worship Services.

Church Continues Study of 'Wisdom'

The United Pentecostal Church continues their study of Wisdom and Worship from the books of Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and Song of Solomon.

This Sunday's lesson title is, "The Sensitive Soul."

This lesson studies one of the greatest men of the Bible, David.

Although David was a man after God's own heart, he still fell into the depths of sin.

His repentance, however, showed the depth of his character. David's need and desire was for full salvation. This promises to be a great lesson, and we would love to share it with you.

Rev. H.M. Veach and congregation extend an open invitation to everyone to come out and worship with them.

If unable to attend, you are invited to tune in to KGRQ each Sunday morning at 9 a.m. to the Voice of Pentecost.

'Peace Church' States Views

ROANOKE, Va. — An appeal to the United States Government to guard against "re-intervention in Indochina" and to "honor the restraints of the Paris Peace Agreement" was contained in an action taken here by delegates to the Church of the Brethren Annual Conference.

The conference, composed of representatives of more than 1,000 Brethren congregations, acted in response to a petition originating in the church's Southern Ohio District and recommended to the conference by the denomination's General Board.

Noting that the Church of the Brethren is a "peace church" and that our government, though having signed the Paris Peace Agreement, has continued to finance by ninety percent the Thieu government and its military operations, the petition specifically asked delegates to support legislation to (1) preclude direct U.S. military involvement, (2) to encourage a political settlement by withholding nonhumanitarian aid to either parts in South Vietnam, and (3) to end U.S. police aid used in funding police and prison systems in Indochina.

In discussing the action delegates added one provision urging the government to implement non-violent direct action toward the release of all political prisoners in Vietnam, and another urging church leaders to make known their concerns and actions not only to the U.S. Government but to other governments involved in Indochina conflicts.

Dear Abby

Inner beauty hidden by an 'ugly' exterior

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding that "Double Ugly" guy who says ugliness is a curse because no one wants to associate with physically ugly people. You said, "Ugliness—like beauty, lies in the eye of the beholder. The qualities that make one loved and wanted have nothing to do with the way one's face is formed. Honesty, patience, kindness, generosity—all the virtues—can be developed. A beautiful character counts for more with people who count than physical beauty."

Abby, you missed the whole point. This ugly person should seek out the blind for friends. He should volunteer to help in a school for the blind, or get a job there.

They say if a deaf lion roars in the desert, there is no sound. Nothing looks ugly to those who cannot see, so forget all that rot about developing honesty, kindness and a beautiful character, and give the poor guy some practical advice. He might find what he's looking for in the world of the sightless. PRAGMATIST

DEAR PRAG: Who says: "If a deaf lion roars in the desert, there is no sound?" Just because the lion can't hear the sound he makes, doesn't mean it's nonexistent.

To suggest that physically ugly people should seek out the blind in order to be loved is an insult to the sightless. Although they are unable to see physical ugliness, they're better able to "see" those qualities which are far more intrinsic to a person's real worth than physical beauty.

So if a physically ugly person has an ugly character, he should stay away from the blind—for they may "see" him better than those with 20-20 vision.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to Double Ugly: I have never met an ugly person I didn't like. They have personality plus!

When I was a young girl, I learned the little fellows with the big freckles and the stringy red hair that hung in their yellow-green eyes were the ones to ask a favor of. The handsome guys were too busy thinking about themselves.

Mr. Ugly, I like you already, for you have shown a lot of character and humility by asking for help with your problem. That is beauty right there! So you see, you aren't as ugly as you thought you were. ONE WHO KNOWS

DEAR ABBY: When I first saw this nurse, I said to myself: "That has got to be the ugliest woman I've ever seen!" She was shaped like a pear, had a pockmarked complexion, an enormous nose and buck teeth, and she wore thick glasses.

But an hour later, after watching her work with disturbed children, and observing her gentle, patient, kind, loving personality, I completely forgot about her looks.

Everyone who knew her adored her. She had the disposition of an angel and a way of bringing out the best in people. If I had to name the most beautiful woman I've ever met, I would have to say that nurse wins, hands down. CAPTIVATED

FASHIONETTES

International
If you can't make it, fake it. A sweater manufacturer now makes afghan kits that include machine knit panels for knitters and crocheters to put together by hand.

Look for more bodysuits in sheer and semi-sheer fabrics this fall. The softer fabrics lend themselves to feminine styling, including bow tied shirt styles.

Berets are big news for fall. They come in soft wool in a rainbow of colors.

Long mufflers and wool knit gloves are accessory news for fall.

Daytime bags are getting bigger while nighttime ones get smaller, says Women's Wear Daily. The most popular daytime style is wider than it is deep. It also comes with detachable shoulder straps.

Matched sets in jewelry are with us again. They pair bracelets with necklaces.

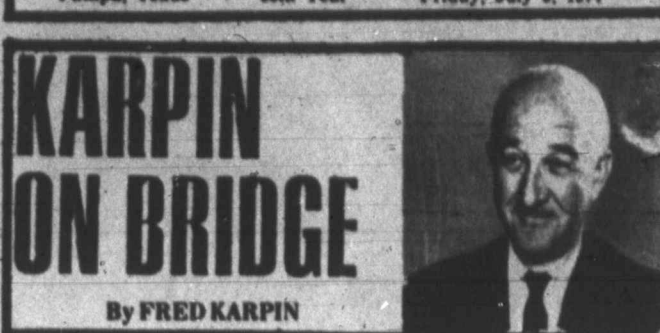

Knit yourself into the fall style picture. Make a sweater or vest with matching muffler and headhugger hat.

Can't make up your mind between a clutch bag and a shoulder bag? Buy a combination. Many manufacturers make clutch handbags with detachable shoulder straps.

Soft pouch handbags that were big style news in the 1930s will be back this fall with up-to-date shoulder straps.

If you're tired of the chain necklace look, switch to a simpler look. Hang an antique watch (real or reproduction) from a bead necklace or narrow black grosgrain ribbon.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

When today's deal came up in a top-level rubber-bridge game, our South declarer fulfilled his slam contract. But even in victory he was not sure whether he played the hand correctly, from a mathematical point of view. However, if success is the criterion, it cannot be said that his line of play was incorrect.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH		EAST
♠ 9	♥ 9 6 4	♠ J 7 5 4 3	♥ 3
♦ A 8 6	♣ A 10 8 4 2	♦ K Q 10 6 2	♣ J 7 5 4 3
WEST	♠ 9 7 5 3	♥ 10 8 7 5	♦ K 2
♣ 7 6	♠ 10 8 7 5	♥ 10 8 7 5	♦ K 4
	♠ 10 8 7 5	♥ 10 8 7 5	♦ K 5 3

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♣ Pass
3♥ Pass 5♥ Pass
6♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

After winning the opening lead with his spade ace, South promptly led his remaining spade and ruffed it. Next came the queen of trumps, and when East followed suit with the three, South spurned the finesse and put up his ace.

He next played the king and ace of diamonds, after which he ruffed the board's remaining diamond. This was followed by the king and ace of clubs. Now a trump was led, and West won the trick with the king.

West was end-played. Whether he returned a spade or a diamond, it would be ruffed in dummy; and on this trick South would discard his losing club. Of course, if West, rather than East, had possessed the high queen of clubs, he would have cashed that card, for the setting trick.

It is a moot question as to whether the line of play that declarer took offered the 50-50 chance that he would have had if he had elected to take the trump finesse. In this deal, however, his play worked out beautifully, for if he had taken the trump finesse, West would have won the trick with his king. In time, East's queen of clubs would have taken the setting trick.

When I spoke to South after the deal had been played, he stated that the play for the drop of the king of trumps was not too remote a possibility. And that this, combined with the hope of an end play, was superior to the taking of the trump finesse.

It should be noted that declarer's line of play would have been successful if West had held only one club. And it should also be noted that if East held the doubleton K-x of trumps, and either a singleton or a doubleton club, South would have fulfilled the contract as he played it.

Consumer Market Report

COLLEGE STATION—Retail beef prices probably will not go any lower, although beef continues in relatively large supply, one expert says.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System, made the predictions this week.

"There are frequent advertised specials on many cuts, so this is a good time to do a little extra buying for the freezer—look for best values on round steaks and roasts, beef liver, ground beef, chuck roasts and steaks," she said.

"Pork values include hams, picnics, end-cut loin roasts and chops, Boston butts, shoulder roasts and steaks.

"Fryer chickens and turkeys take the bargain spotlight in many markets, a grade A, large-size eggs offer economy and quality."

Turning to fresh fruits and vegetables, Mrs. Clyatt said items in good supply at most reasonable prices are sweet corn, squash, snap beans, okra, carrots, dry yellow onions, cushaw, blackeye peas, radishes, green onions and cabbage.

Also, Valencia oranges, bananas, cantaloupes, honeydew melons, watermelons and Santa Rosa plums.

"Apricots are in peak supply this month, although quantities are small—and prices are generally high," she added.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: Quality and prices vary on cherries, plums, pineapples, peaches, white grapes, nectarines and strawberriessm.

Cassandra Sweet Turkey-Bound

By MONA WILLIAMS
The coming year will be quite different for Cassandra Sweet than the last 18 have been.

Cassandra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Sweet, 2224 N. Zimmers, will leave Sunday morning on the way to Istanbul, Turkey where she will live and attend school for a year under the American Field Service Program.

She will leave Amarillo Sunday at 9:45 a.m. and fly to New Jersey where she will visit with friends before going to New York.

In New York, she will meet with other AFS students bound for Europe and Asia either to spend the next year or to go home from the states where they have been living for the past year.

On July 10 after orientation, Cassandra will fly to Istanbul with the Turkish students who are returning home.

She will arrive in Istanbul on July 11, but will not go to live with her "family" for another four days. During the first four days, Cassandra will receive additional instructions at Robert College.

Her home, a downtown apartment, is situated in the center of the city containing over two million people. Her father for the next year Lami Yakan, is a commissioner of transportation. Mrs. Yakan is a housewife and Nilufer, 16, is Cassandra's sister. They will be attending the same school.

Although they do not live at home, Cassandra will have two older brothers who will come home to visit during her stay. One brother, who is 27, lives and works in Germany while the other, 28, lives and works in France.

Cassandra will attend a Turkish language course from July 15-Aug. 30. She has already become familiar with several of the words.

Istanbul is the only city in the world located in two continents, Europe and Asia. Cassandra's home is located on the European side. The city is situated on the Black Sea and is famous for its embroidered goods, copper work and Persian rugs. Islam is the religion of the people.

Cassandra became interested in the AFS program during her junior year in high school. She applied and in October 1973 was interviewed by the local board along with two other applicants. The applications were sent to New York to the national headquarters and Cassandra was notified of her acceptance in February 1974.

After her notification, she received a notice of guaranteed placement. She knew she was going but not where.

On June 17 she found out that she would be living in Turkey for the next year and was notified of her placement in Istanbul June 22.

Navy Seaman Dennie J. Blasingame, son of Mr. and Mrs. V.F. Blasingame of Canadian, participated in the evacuation of a critically ill Indonesian merchant seaman.

As a crewmember of the USS Chicago, a guided missile cruiser deployed to the Western Pacific, he was on hand when the seaman was transferred aboard from a Greek freighter.

The Chicago's medical staff determined the illness to be gastrointestinal bleeding, and the patient was evacuated by helicopter to a hospital on Okinawa.

Blasingame and his crewmates were commended for providing aid to a fellow mariner in time of need.

He completed more than a year of intensive ground and inflight training and will now be assigned to specialized advanced training.

efficient operation rather than for emission control. Gasoline mileage should increase with 1975 catalytic equipped cars over non-catalytic equipped 1974 cars.

The factor, along with the beneficial effect of unleaded gas on car maintenance, will help to offset the added cost and inconvenience of switching to the new fuel.

French Still Cling To Joy Of Eating Despite Prices

PARIS (UPI)—Prices soar ever higher but the French cling to the joy of life that not even inflation can take from them—good eating.

The magazine Elle (She) published a poll by the Sofres organization showing that to the French a well-colored table is one of the last pleasures they would give up even in the face of an expected economic depression because of higher oil prices.

Beef has risen 45 per cent in price in three years. Yet only 32 per cent of those polled said they are eating less beef—for generations the favorite meat in France—in favor of eating more chicken and fish. Sixty-seven per cent said their beef menus had not changed and one per cent are eating more beef.

Twenty-four per cent of those polled have cut down on oil, also more expensive, apparently in favor of cooking with butter. Otherwise the French are eating virtually as many fruits, vegetables and, of course, drinking as much wine, even with higher prices.

Reserve a Table
Another question in the Elle poll was, "If you are offered a free vacation in a hotel and you have the choice of two hotels, which would you choose: the comfortable hotel with mediocre food, or the uncomfortable hotel with excellent cuisine?"

Eighty per cent of the French polled predictably said they would prefer to eat a great meal and sleep on a lumpy mattress.

The good restaurants of Paris are always crowded and if you have not reserved a table for dinner at least by 5 p.m. you are doomed to seek a lesser establishment or one of the thousands of foreign restaurants which suddenly dot the city. Service is more rapid, or the food takes less time to eat, because seats usually can be found.

For centuries, the French scorned foreign food until the great wave of Vietnamese escaping the French and U.S. wars in their country. Now more than 1,000 Vietnamese restaurants serve their specialties in Paris.

Spring Skirt Back
Crowds of immigrant workers from North Africa in the past five years have resulted in another thousand Arab restaurants serving cous-cous, the typical North African dish.

This summer's fad is Greek restaurants. The Latin Quarter is awash with kebabs turning on spits in restaurant windows.

The hot weather at last has arrived in Paris after a wool suit May, and Parisians have reverted to another traditional pastime, of sitting in sidewalk cafes and girl watching.

This spring the skirt is back. A casual count from a vantage point in Les Deux Magots indicates pants are less numerous this spring. Some girls are floating in long printed skirts or the 1930 bias-cut midi skirts complete with high heeled shoes, henna red hair and bright red lipstick.

The skirt for spring does not mean pants are out, just that the girls are wearing both. Blue jeans remain the Left Bank uniform for males and females.

Cafe Talk

Last summer's T-shirts imprinted with the names of U.S. universities still are with us, an amusing touch for the French whose universities have no campuses, football teams, cheerleaders, etc.

Some of the young have branched out to wearing T-shirts imprinted with the names of American baseball clubs.

The sidewalk cafe talk centers on the "new style" of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing who has opened the presidential Elysee Palace to the public and put orange trees in the courtyard, saved Notre Dame from a superhighway and invited schoolchildren to his inauguration.

tips for consumers

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

As of July 1, most major gasoline service stations in the nation are required to sell unleaded gasoline from at least one of their pumps.

The requirement comes from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and is in anticipation of 1975 model cars that will need unleaded gas to keep their antipollution devices operating properly.

The appearance of new unleaded gasoline pumps at stations across the country may be perplexing to motorists, especially with this new fuel costing two or three more cents a gallon than its commonly used leaded counterpart.

You may wonder, for example, if you should begin using this higher-priced gas even though you may own a pre-1975 model that doesn't need it.

Or, if you buy a new car in the fall, whether you can continue to use leaded gas because it costs less, or because your favorite neighborhood station doesn't sell the new unleaded fuel.

IS UNLEADED GAS HARMFUL?

Better Business Bureaus advise, first of all, that unleaded gasoline is not harmful to any car. It should perform at least as well in your present car as leaded gas, provided that the octane rating is as high as your present fuel.

Because the new unleaded fuel is required to have an octane rating at least as high as that required for the old, leaded regular, you should not have a problem substituting one for the other.

If your present car requires premium fuel, however, you should make sure that any new unleaded gas that you want to use also has the higher octane rating. Most stations—particularly higher volume stations—will be carrying unleaded regular, because virtually all 1975-model cars, as well as most cars from the 1971 model year on, will operate effectively on regular.

The question still remains: Is it worthwhile to change to the new—and more expensive—unleaded gas even if your car doesn't require it?

ADVANTAGES OF UNLEADED FUEL

The EPA says that there are some definite advantages to using unleaded fuel. The agency's main point, of course, is that unleaded gas does not emit dangerous lead particles into the atmosphere through automobile exhaust. So the benefit to society is one advantage.

But furthermore, unleaded gasoline should reduce automobile maintenance costs. For instance, spark plugs should last longer with lead removed from the fuel. The savings realized here should partially offset the extra two or three cents a gallon that you will pay for the unleaded gas.

Despite these advantages, however, the EPA is reluctant to advise all motorists to begin immediately to use the unleaded fuel. The reason is simple: This is a new product, and initial supplies may not be great enough to serve all the cars that don't need it, along with all the 1975 models that will.

1975 MODEL CARS
Which leads to the second question: If you buy a 1975-model, how important will it be that you use unleaded gasoline?

It will be absolutely imperative in order to keep the anti-pollution equipment functioning. Nearly all 1975-model American-made cars will be equipped with a catalytic converter, which changes engine exhausts into harmless carbon dioxide and water. But this converter is "poisoned" by lead in gasoline—even by as little as the amount in one tankful of leaded gas—and will no longer do its job.

The motorist will not be able to detect any difference in car operation or exhaust odor. However, only a test of the automobile exhaust will show whether the converter is working.

Most states are expected to eventually make checks of the exhaust, perhaps as part of their periodic car safety inspection, so it is in the car owner's best interest to use only unleaded gas. Replacement of an exhaust converter may cost up to $150.

SMALLER INLETS

Fortunately, there will be a safeguard device on all 1975 model and later year cars: the gasoline tank inlet under the gas cap, will be smaller than those on present cars, so that gasoline pump nozzles used for leaded gasoline will not fit into the new cars. Pumps for the new unleaded gas will all have smaller nozzles that will fit.

Although the coming of catalytic converters and unleaded gasoline will bring some inconveniences to American motorists, there is good news as well.

The converters will replace the cumbersome, often ill-working antipollution devices on 1971 and later model cars, thereby allowing engines to be tuned for smooth and

Newspaper route management can be a boy's first step forward

A BOY with a newspaper route truly is in business for himself. With an assist from our people who are experienced in working with boys.

He buys his newspapers from us and retails them to you.

He sells, he delivers, and he collects. Like any good businessman, he keeps records (you can see how valuable this is in applying the lessons he learns in the classroom in a practical way).

And like any good businessman, he shows a profit. A boy with a newspaper route earns money that can help him build a sizable bank account of his own. Useful for the things he wants. Even for a college education.

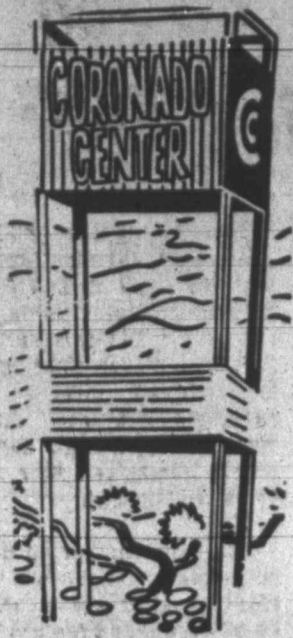

Not only does a newspaper route sharpen a young boy's business sense (which will be helpful to him throughout life no matter what career he chooses). It also offers him some important extras—the ability to deal with people, and the lessons of promptness, care, of self-reliance, and of good manners.

In these ways, a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life.

If your son wants to handle a route, put him in touch with us. One may be available for him in your neighborhood. It will be an unusual opportunity for the self-advancement you want him to have.

Daughter's Polyp Worries Her

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 47, just had a D. and C. with the following report: a polyp was found but not to worry. Just advised to have a yearly Pap test. Would you explain a polyp? Is it cancerous? Is it the same as a cyst? — Mrs. P.H.

No, a polyp isn't a cyst, nor is it necessarily cancerous, although occasionally some may be. Most are benign.

A polyp is a growth, often described as being like a tiny grape on a stem, attached to a mucous surface — in your daughter's case, since the polyp was found in a D. and C. examination, it is on the inner surface of the uterus or the cervix.

Evidently it was removed and examined in the laboratory, and found not to be malignant, so your daughter was told not to worry.

A polyp is a growth of tissue, while a cyst is a gland whose outlet has become clogged or closed.

so the contents produced by the gland cannot escape. Hence it swells.

Polyps can occur on a variety of mucous surfaces other than the uterus. They are fairly common in the nose, a nuisance but not dangerous. They can occur in the colon, and because polyps there sometimes become cancerous, those must be watched very carefully.

Exactly what causes polyps is not known. In the nose, there is reason to think that allergy has a good deal to do with it. Whether that is true in other cases remains to be established.

As to your daughter being advised to have a yearly Pap test, that is wise for any woman her age; indeed it is a sensible precaution even 10 or 20 years earlier, the main purpose being to detect cancer of the cervix at a very early and hence curable stage. That advice may have had nothing whatever to do with the finding of the polyp.

you give me any information on septicemia? — Sister N.R.

You're using the technical name for blood poisoning, also called "bacteremia."

Quite simply, when the bacteria-fighting mechanism around the site of an infection is lessened, as it sometimes is, then bacteria can enter the bloodstream. Once in, they may migrate to other parts of the body to set up infections at distant points such as the heart lining or brain.

The migration can be rapid and the seriousness of the disease multiplies.

Early detection and treatment is essential. This is done through a blood test to determine the type of organism. The staph and strep germs are particularly prominent in such cases. When this is determined the appropriate antibiotic therapy is usually successful.

only feels her breasts? — L.A.

No. But the problem is getting him to stop without wanting something more.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Many people tell me that because I have arthritis I should not eat chocolate or cocoa. Can you tell me if it is harmful? — E.T.H.

There is no reason to expect it to have any effect one way or the other on arthritis. A few people may be sensitive to chocolate and react in other ways, but it is not related to arthritis.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. Dr. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications. For a copy of "How You Can Control Arthritis," write to him Dr. George C. Thosteson, Box 1400, Elgin Illinois 60120 enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents. IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Jim Still Has Mickey's Voice

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Somebody concocted the pretty story that the late Walt Disney wrote in his will that he was leaving Mickey Mouse's voice to Jim MacDonald.

"It wasn't that romantic," MacDonald said, having a Manhattan at Gallagher's. "One day in about '45 or '47, Walt said to me 'You do Mickey's voice today. I'm too damn busy.' It was just a simple falsetto voice with an embarrassed giggle and I kept doing it till the last one about '53. I also did Goofy and Pluto, who just barks and pants as any dog does."

There was no will necessary, and the language may have been that Walt "willed it that Jim do Mickey's voice," which was obviously true.

Jim set up a sound effects department for Disney in 1934. He is an amusing cocktail companion because he may haul out a large wooden pool connected with a rubber hose which he blows into and produces the sound of some angry bees getting angrier, for "The Bees and I."

If some practical joker friends of mine had his knowledge of sound effects, they would drive people mad. "I had some little kids pestering me," he said, "and I made such strange noises that they said 'There's a monster in there.'"

MacDonald uses little props to make big noises. He "doesn't mind" rock music, acknowledging that "it's today." And he heard somewhere or may have propounded it himself, that "more gold has been dug with a guitar pick than a miner's pick."

The Wienerwald restaurant on B'way was visited by 3 guys who looked it over as though about to stick it up but decided not to after learning about Vera the cashier. She kicked the last holdup man in a vulnerable area and chased him up the street holding onto his arm. Eddie the bartender said, "She was protecting that cash like it was hers."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Broderick Crawford was anxious to buy a police whistle in a 57th St. store but "He wasn't our kind of drinker anyway," says Toots, adding that sometimes Burton didn't even drink two quarts a day. Joe Di Maggio got his home run haircut for the Old Timers game at Shea Stadium from Frank Gamaniti at the Stage Barbershop... The Library (literary) discotheque is doing good at the Barbizon-Plaza with that gimmick: you bring in a hard cover book Monday night and they give you a drink. They keep the book and you keep the drink.

Sammy Davis and Princess Gace really got bitter about that Monaco Sporting club opening, and Sammy will have something to say about the contention that he asked $30,000 expenses and a yacht for 10 days. The "Bad Habits" producers, J. Frank Lucas & Francie Hidden, gave "Monkey Awards" to playwright Terence McNally, director Robert Dribes and actress Doris Roberts (toy monkeys that clap hands). Caption supplied by Francie Hidden: "Theater Goes Ape at Sardi's."

Guy Lombardo ordered for the cast of his Jones Beach show, "Fiddler on the Roof," music boxes that played the score. When the boxes (made in Hong King) arrived, they carried a sticker: "Turn this over to play 'When Irish Eyes Are Smiling'..." A much-heralded film is already being described as "a disaster"... Under Twenty

If you are a whiz at algebra, trigonometry and physics and other sciences and are a radio or television buff you may know something of what goes on behind the scenes in broadcasting.

You may even be considering a career in the broadcast field. The people who operate and maintain the electronic equipment used to record radio and television — programs are called Broadcast Technicians.

In the control room, broadcast technicians operate controls that switch broadcasts from one camera or studio to another.

On location technicians may go to the site to operate the necessary equipment. In smaller stations technicians perform a variety of duties while in large stations and networks they are highly specialized.

In 1972 about 22,000 broadcast technicians were employed in radio and television stations. The highest paying jobs are located in the major cities where most network programs originate.

The increase in the number of technicians through the mid-1980's is expected to increase slowly. Most job openings will result from the need to replace experienced technicians who retire, die or transfer.

New stations will require some additional personnel but labor-saving technical advances will tend to limit the demand for technicians. If you are interested in the field you should get a Radio Telephone First Class Operator License from the Federal Communications Commission. Applicants must pass a series of written examinations covering construction and operation of equipment, characteristics of electromagnetic waves, rules and regulations.

Information about these examinations and guides to study for them may be obtained from the Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Taking an electronics course in a technical school is a good way to acquire the necessary knowledge. Some aspirants gain work experience as temporary employees filling in for regular broadcast technicians. Having training at the level of a technical school or college is an advantage for those who hope to advance in the field.

Salaries of beginning technicians in commercial radio and television stations ranged from about $100 to $170 a week in 1972 while experienced technicians earned from about $130 to $320.

General information regarding careers for broadcast technicians may be obtained from: National Association of Broadcasters, 1771 N. St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20036 or Corporation of Public Broadcasting, 888 16th Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20006. (Distributed by Columbia Features, Inc.)

TIME FOR CHANGE

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Economist Alice M. Rivlin says federal budgetary procedures should be changed because they allow no chance for the re-examination of national priorities.

"Budget plans should be made at least one year in advance and Congress should evaluate these plans as they relate to an overall priority system," the Brookings Institution economist said.

Astros Edge Atlanta, 4-3

UPI Sports Writer
You won't here any complaints from the Houston Astros about Cesar Cenedo's batting average this season.

Although his .295 mark is way off the .320 average he's posted the last two years, the Astros are pleased with it—because he's driving in more runs this year.

He hit a three-run homer to keep the Astros in the game Thursday and then doubled in the winning run in the 10th inning in a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Cenedo has yet to hit more than 25 homers in a season or drive in more than 82 runs, but he now leads the National League in RBIs with 65 and his 18 homers leave him just one behind Los Angeles' Jimmy Wynn in that department.

Cenedo's homer in the eighth inning wiped out a 2-0 Atlanta lead. It was a tremendous shot that landed in the left field seats high above the 385-foot sign.

The 23-year-old outfielder has no explanation for his sudden surge in homers and RBIs. "I don't worry about things like that," he says. "I just do the best I can and let those things take care of themselves."

Cenedo wasn't impressed either that he hit a Joe Niekro knuckleball for the homer and a slider by Tom House for the winning double.

"Fast ball, curve ball, screwball, knuckleball, sooner or later you've got to look at them all," Cenedo said.

"No matter what they throw, they've got to get the ball over the plate, and if they do, I'm going to hack away at it."

"Don't ask me how I hit that knuckleball that far," said Cenedo. "I don't know. I usually hit knuckleballs pretty good, but I've got no system. I just go after it. If it breaks my way, great; if it doesn't, I miss."

The 10th-inning double was a drive over left fielder Ralph Garr's head, a drive Garr played off the fence.

"I knew it wasn't going over," said Cenedo. "It started sinking too soon for that. Frankly, I thought he'd catch it."

Cenedo, of course, was involved in an off-season tragedy—a motel room shooting that took the life of a 19-year-old girl in Santo Domingo. He pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter and was released after paying a $100 fine.

He's been subdued on the field this year to avoid any controversies, but has continued to play well.

He's handled the situation as well as anybody could handle it," says Manager Preston Gomez.

In the other NL games, Los Angeles nipped Cincinnati 3-2. San Francisco downed San Diego 9-2. Chicago beat St. Louis 3-2. Montreal downed Pittsburgh 2-1 but lost the second game 3-2 and New York beat Philadelphia 5-3 before losing the second game 6-2.

In the American League, Baltimore beat Boston 10-6. Milwaukee routed Cleveland 15-3. New York edged New York 6-4. Chicago blasted Kansas City 11-3. Minnesota downed Texas 3-1 and Oakland downed California 9-4.

Dodgers 3, Reds 2
Cincinnati, which has lost eight of nine to Los Angeles, blew a chance to gain on the Dodgers. The Reds took a 2-1 lead into the ninth, but the Dodgers rallied for two runs on doubles by Steve Garvey and Willie Crawford and Bill Russell's single to pull out the game. The Dodgers are now 9½ games ahead, but Cincy was 8½ back on July 17 last year and still won it.

Mike Marshall gave up a run, but got the win in a two-inning stint to boost his mark to 11-3. He's appeared in 54 games and 14 of the last 15.

Cubs 3, Cards 2
Steve Stone and reliever Oscar Zamora combined on a seven-hitter to pace Chicago past St. Louis. Chicago got its three runs in the third inning to beat John Curtis. Andy Thornton's run-scoring double and Steve Swisher's run-scoring single were the key blows of the inning.

Expos 2-2, Pirates 1-3
Steve Rogers pitched a seven-hitter to give Montreal the victory over Pittsburgh in the first game and snap the Pirates' 14-game home winning streak. But in the second game, the Pirates rallied in the eighth on Richie Zisk's run-scoring double and Bob Robertson's sacrifice fly to gain a split.

Mets 5-2, Phils 3-6
Jon Matlack scattered 10 hits and struck out 10 and Cleon Jones drove in four runs to give New York the first game victory over Philadelphia.

Pearson Wins Firecracker

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Roaring into the final lap of the Firecracker 400, David Pearson took his foot completely off the thrill of his Mercury, allowing a startled Richard Petty, who was riding right on his tail, to "slingshot" past into the lead.

The maneuver apparently rattled Petty, the Randleman, N.C., racing millionaire. "It's just not like David to do a trick like that," said an angry Petty after the race.

But the trick succeeded and Pearson rode Petty's bumper into the final turn, cut to the inside and passed Petty's slower Dodge just 1,000 yards from the finish line to win his fourth Firecracker at Daytona International Speedway Thursday.

Pearson and Petty sparred verbally in the post-race news conference, Petty claiming that the trick endangered both drivers' lives and Pearson maintaining he did what he had to do to win.

Pearson recalled how Petty tried to cut him off in the last 1,000 yards, forcing Pearson almost onto the infield grass as the Spartanburg, S.C., driver shot past Petty to win by three-quarters of a car length.

Pearson picked up $18,100 for his 27th superspeedway victory on the Grand National tour for NASCAR. His win broke the record of three victories at the July 4th race held by the late Glenn "Fireball" Roberts, who died 10 years ago.

Montgomery Dealt By Pokes To AFL Oilers

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys have traded Mike Montgomery, a running back-wide receiver, to the Houston Oilers for an undisclosed draft choice.

Montgomery was one of three Cowboys who have signed future contracts with the World Football League and is due to go to the Birmingham Americans after playing out his option in 1974. The other two WFL signees are Calvin Hill and Craig Morton.

PLAINVIEW SUNDAY

Legion Season Coming To Close With Only 4 Contests Remaining

The Pampa American Legion baseball team, which has won twice since Saturday, hosts Plainview in a non-conference clash at 4 p.m. Sunday in Optimist Park.

The Rebels are 6-9 for the season at 5-7 in conference games after stopping Palo Duro, 11-4, last Saturday; losing to Tascosa, 10-4, Tuesday; and beating Memphis, 15-0, Wednesday. The Memphis game was played in Pampa, the others in Amarillo.

Pampa is out of the running for the league title. The top two teams, Tascosa and Dumas with one and two losses respectively, will advance to the district tournament later this month.

The Rebels have three Legion games left after playing Plainview — Caprock at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Amarillo; Canyon at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Pampa; and Hereford at 4 p.m., July 14 (Sunday) in Hereford. Pampa will take on the Babe Ruth All-Stars at 8 o'clock tonight.

Pampa's win against Memphis was one of its most impressive of the season.

The game was called after five innings as Roy Morris won his first game of the season, going the distance and giving up only one hit.

Morris, 1-2 for the season, struck out eight and walked only two. He aided his own cause by going four for four at the plate. Steve Edwards went two for two, belting a double and a triple.

Fernando Lopez started the contest for Memphis and was tagged with the loss, going three innings and yielding eight runs. Herbert Moore relieved him and gave up the last seven Pampa runs.

Against Tascosa, Mike Adair pitched well, according to Pampa coach Dan Hood, but the experienced Amarillo team still managed 10 runs and nine hits. Adair walked nine.

"Mike pitched well in his first start," said Hood, "but Tascosa is a good hitting club, with eight starters who graduated this spring. House (Larry) is a fine pitcher; we hit him as well as can be expected."

House went the entire seven frames for the winners, while giving up four runs, four hits and four walks. He struck out four. Six of Tascosa's runs were unearned as Pampa committed nine errors. Tascosa did not make a defensive mistake in the game.

Pampa, down 3-0 after the first inning, got a run in the top of the second as Kory Gamblin tripled and came home on Mark Adair's base hit. The Rebel's losing 10-1 in the sixth, scored three times in the inning as House walked Morris, Mike Mayes, Gamblin and Mark Adair and then gave up a single to Mike Adair.

Against Palo Duro Saturday, the winning pitcher for Pampa was Mike Fraser, who, despite walking 12, struck out 13 and pitched a two-hitter. He gave up singles in the first and fifth innings in upping his season mark to 2-1.

Leading hitters for the Rebels were Edwards, who went three for five, and John Agan and Tony Frogge, who both went two for four at the plate.

"Mike Fraser pitched well and we hit the ball well," said Hood, whose Rebels pounded out 11 hits off PD hurlers Steve Cain and Gene Jolly.

POLICE CALLED Football Veterans March On Rookies

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Action in the National Football League player strike got much heavier Thursday as veterans attempted to march to the San Diego Chargers' rookie camp.

The march failed, but a meeting was permitted later. Three players' representatives had been given permission to go to the camp to speak with rookies about player demands. When the time came to go to the closed meeting, about 10 veterans walked through the entrance to the United States International University rookie campsite.

They walked about 100 yards before being stopped by security guards, who also called police. The players spoke with Chargers' attorney Stacey Sullivan for several minutes and then disbanded at the urging of their executive director, Ed Garvey.

While the representatives met with the rookies, veteran Chargers tight end Pettis Norman said the stopping illustrated what the strike was about.

"The same prejudice and restraining inflicted on us is what they will be subjected to," he said.

Evert Advances To Finals Today

WIMBLEDON ENGLAND (UPI) — Chris Evert goes into the finals of the women's singles of the Wimbledon Tennis Championship today, a certainty in all eyes but her own to become the youngest titleholder since the late, great Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly 23 years ago.

Nineteen-year-old Chris meets her good friend and doubles partner, Olga Morozova, the first Russian to get a crack at the women's crown. Olga never has beaten her. The bookies have made Chris a 2-5 odds-on favorite. Players who have been on court with both of them rate Chris a cinch.

The winner will get $16,800 in prize money. Olga, who said her quarterfinal victory was the talk of Russia, according to a phone call from her husband in Moscow, believes that friendship ends at the grass edge of Center Court.

Unseeded Dick Stockton of Port Washington, N.Y., also has a chance of becoming the first to follow a long-ago precedent—the first unseeded player to reach the finals since Kurt Nielsen of Denmark in 1953.

No unseeded player has ever won the men's singles title.

Amarillo Gets Split

United Press International
Arkansas' Jerry Murphy tripled in the first game and knocked in the winning run in the nightcap as the Travelers took a doubleheader from Alexandria, 6-3 and 3-2, in the Texas League Thursday.

In other games, Shreveport beat Victoria 6-1. El Paso defeated Midland 15-5, and Amarillo defeated San Antonio 7-4 in the first game of a doubleheader before the Brewers took the second game 2-1.

Murphy's triple scored the winning run for Arkansas in the first game and in the second game he tagged a long sacrifice fly in the top of the seventh, again driving home the winning run. Larry Anderson and Dennis Yard's combined pitching effort for Shreveport resulted in a four-hitter in the Captain's defeat of Victoria.

13-Year-Old All-Stars In Tournament Finals

CANYON — Pampa's 13-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars, 11-9 winners of Dumas Wednesday, will play the Dumas team again at 6:30 p.m. today, this time for the championship of the Canyon 13-year-old Tournament.

Steve Stout will pitch for Pampa, which edged Dumas Wednesday in six innings after the two-hour time limit ended play. The regular Pampa All-Stars are also in action today, as they play the American Legion team in a practice game at 8 p.m. in Optimist Park.

Helen Hayes Content To Take Second Billing

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Helen Hayes said a remarkable thing the other day: "My career remained at the top so long, to my amazement and gratitude, I'm content to take second billing to a Volkswagen."

She was talking about her role in "Herbie Rides Again," a sequel to "The Love Bug." The automobile is the star of the film with human beings in the supporting cast.

As Miss Hayes approaches her 75th birthday she is much in demand as an actress. Moreover, she is anxious to continue working—with some reservations.

"My idea of heaven," she said, "would be to make one Disney picture a year. That would be the perfect career for me now."

Physically Miss Hayes is not as robust as she once was. But she is clear-eyed, bright as a new penny and unimpressed with that tiresome sobriquet, "first lady of the theater."

She works not out of financial necessity but simply because performing is and has been her whole life.

She just completed a nationwide tour promoting her first Disney picture and was, frankly, exhausted.

"This is the only time I've made a circus of myself by promoting a picture," she said. "I'd only do it for Disney. I led a parade in Orlando, Fla., and took part in a festival at Disneyland in California."

Miss Hayes also made whirlwind appearances in Philadelphia, Toronto, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, New York and Atlanta.

"It was really too much for me," she said. "But I've been tramping since childhood and I must say one-nighters hold no nostalgia for me. My bronchitis caught up with me. Now I know why I left the theater."

"Producers keep trying to lure me back again. They even offered me the old lady role in 'Night Must Fall' with my son (James MacArthur of 'Hawaii Five-O') co-starring. But I hurriedly turned it down."

Miss Hayes doesn't kid herself that she is straining her acting talents for Disney.

"There is less emotional and mental demand to slapstick comedy than drama," she said cheerfully. "I was so dazzled by all the glamorous mechanical and technical devises that I forgot about myself and my part."

The long-time star is delighted about the recognition she gets these days from young people and children who saw her in "Airport" and were fans of her television mini-series, "The Snoop Sisters."

"Now I'm a child's delight," she concluded warmly. "So I'm going to do another Disney picture later this summer. 'One of Our Dinosaurs is Missing,' with Peter Ustinov. The minute I heard the title I wanted to do it."

Department Film Shows Missions

AUSTIN — A new motion picture just released by the Texas Highway Department proves again that factual history can be as fascinating as fiction.

Titled "The Missions of Texas," the film focuses on that epic era of state history, and explores 10 of the ancient Spanish missions where Texans can walk in the past today.

Settings for the colorful chronicle range from shadowy pine forests to the blazing West Texas desert. Filmed on locations at Weches, Goliad, El Paso and San Antonio, the film invites viewers to visit sites that were old before the United States existed.

"The Missions of Texas" introduces proud Spanish conquistadores and humble padres. It traces the legends of Indians and Texas frontiersmen. Most of all, the new film is a reminder of Texas' rich mission heritage.

Ricardo Montalban, who combines his acting talents with an abiding interest in the cultural history of the New World, narrates the 15-minute film which was made especially for television. It joins other Texas travelogues circulating for TV broadcast and currently being seen by more than nine million viewers throughout the nation each year.

The film is the first in a series of quarter-hour movies being planned by the Highway Department. Each will focus on a special aspect of Texas scenery, history, or recreation.

A professional treatment in 16 mm sound and color, "The Missions of Texas" is available for free showings to schools, civic clubs, and historical organizations, as well as for television broadcast. Prints may be borrowed from the Texas Highway Department, Travel & Information Division, Box 5064, Austin 78763.

Buyer's Billboard

By MICHAEL J. CONLON WASHINGTON (UPI) — Buying vacation land, homesites or other property can be risky even if you get a chance to take a look at what you've bought before the deal is closed.

The Federal Trade Commission, for instance, recently reached a settlement with a big Florida developer, GAC Corp., which had been selling property there and in Arizona. The agency said consumers who bought into some of the developments in Florida wound up with lots under water, or otherwise worth very little money.

The victims stopped making payments when they found out what they had bought. The settlement provides refunds that could cost the company more than $17 million.

But some people are victimized in more subtle ways. A couple in Jacksonville, Ill., wrote recently that they signed up for a giveaway—one prize in which was a "free" vacation to Florida—while attending the Illinois State Fair. Predictably, a letter arrived later informing them they had won a "fabulous" Florida vacation—if they attended a land sales meeting there.

They did and bought an acre of Florida land for $5,490, with a down payment of $390 and the right to return to Florida within six months to cancel the deal if they weren't satisfied. In February they took their look—and canceled. But the company dragged its heels in returning the $547.35 down payment and additional payments they had invested.

We referred the case to the Division of Florida Land Sales in Tampa, which filed a complaint against the firm. The couple involved now writes:

"Thank you very much for your help in getting our refund so promptly from Zenith American Land & Development Corp. We received it on May 23, 1974, just a few days after we had received a letter from the Division of Florida Land Sales. We feel we would not have gotten our money for several months, if maybe not at all, if it hadn't been for your assistance."

The credit should go to the Florida agency which seems to be genuinely interested in keeping a clean house for the benefit of the consumer and the legitimate land sellers alike. Part of the problem here, as elsewhere, is that many people don't know how to appeal such a problem.

For the record, the people who may be able to help you in Florida are the Department of Business Regulation, Division of Florida Land Sales, Box 4448 Tampa, Fla., 33607.

And here's another development involving the quick sales business which may help many consumers.

Under new rules from the Federal Trade Commission which went into effect June 7, door-to-door salesmen and others making sales outside of their place of business—such as via the telephone—now must give the buyer a chance to change his mind.

All such sales involving merchandise worth $25 or more will now have an automatic three-day "cooling off period." That means the customer during those three days may cancel the deal for any reason.

The theory behind the regulation is that buyers will have a chance to talk their decision over with friends, family or consumer protection officials and perhaps arrive at a different conclusion than when they were under the salesman's sway.

A privately financed research group in Washington, the Center for Science in the Public Interest, believes consumers are being deceived by food coloring some bakeries add to bread. They say some breads have yellow dye to make them look like butter and eggs are present in greater quantity than they really are. Brown coloring can minimize the effect of whole grain wheat.

The group has filed a petition with the Food and Drug Administration charging that use of such dyes constitutes "economic adulteration" that is a deception for the buyer. They asked the agency to order industry to halt the practice.

We'll try to answer your complaints, or pass on your suggestions to our readers. Let us know care of Buyer's Billboard, United Press International, 315 National Press Building, Washington D.C. 20004.

Science Today

By JAMES J. DOYLE
PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Long standing scientific theories are difficult to change, but two students at the California Institute of Technology have revised one dealing with a

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International

There's something admirable about anything done superlatively well, even it's as crassly commercial as promoting a rock 'n' roll band. And when it comes to that dubious profession, there are few around with as much skill or style as Neil Bogart.

Bogart is the former head of Buddah Records, who recided he could do better on his own and split to form his own company, Casablanca Records (Bogart—get it?).

And, since the name of the first band Bogart signed was Kiss, it just naturally led to a kissing contest.

Actually, Bogart didn't come up with the original idea—credit for that goes to a couple of promotion types at Warner Bros., Casablanca's distributor. But it was Bogart who made the idea work.

Marathon kissing contests were held all over the country and the winners were flown to Chicago for the finals. Grand prize was an eight-day trip to Acapulco and a trip to see Kiss perform.

Now, this whole thing could have been really obnoxious in the hands of the ordinary publicity hound, but Bogart has his head on exceptionally straight. The final contest was held in the indoor mall of a gigantic suburban shopping center—pure, unadulterated Middle America. All proceeds from donations by the gawking crowds and sale of various Kiss paraphernalia (posters, albums, etc.) went to a children's hospital. Bogart spent four days with a microphone in his hand like Jerry Lewis at a telethon, and in the end, upwards of $10,000 was raised for the kids.

The winners were a couple from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., who after keeping their lips together for 113 hours (with five-minute breaks every hour), asked that the prize trip be converted to cash so they could help rebuild the burned-down house of a friend.

So lots of folks did all right.

And since Kiss is one of the finest hard rock 'n' roll bands to come out of New York City (or anywhere) in a long, long time, that publicity will be all right, too.

About all most folks know about Dutch rock music is Eocus, the elaborately esoteric group that produced last year's near-novelty hit, "Hocus Pocus," a tune that doesn't fit with most of the rest of their music.

Enter the Cats, occupying the opposite end of the Netherlands' rock spectrum. Their album, "The Love In Your Eyes" (Fantasy F-949), is strictly Top 40 stuff from start to finish.

The Cats have had numberone tunes all over continental Europe, including "Be My Day," an upbeat mellow rocker typical of the album. They have yet to break in England or the U.S.—the two markets crucial to any ambitious rock band.

For some reason, the big success of the film "Ladies and Gentlemen, The Rolling Stones" in New York has changed the minds of distributors who now plan to show the film for just a couple of days in each town it hits instead of a couple of weeks. Elton John and Chicago planning a summer tour of big stadiums. Eric Clapton has recorded a "comeback" album called "461 Ocean Blvd.," address of his Florida retreat during recording, according to rock magazine Zoo World. John Lennon has a new single called "Don't Ever Change," with—would you believe—Mick Jagger singing lead. A&M has finally released Rick Wakeman's "Journey To The Center of The Earth" in the U.S. England's had it for months.

phenomenon of great potentiality.

The theory deals with superconductivity, the ability of certain metals to carry electric currents with no resistance if the temperature of the conductor is low enough.

The old idea was that atoms had to occur in a precise crystalline pattern before superconductivity could occur. But William Johnson, 25-year-old graduate student from Bowling Green, Ohio, and Sui-Joe Poon, 22, undergraduate from Hong Kong, showed that atoms need not be in a pattern but could be jumbled together at random.

Both are students of renowned metallurgist Dr. Pol Duwez who had been on the track of that discovery for 10 years. So far the finding may only be academic, but Duwez said he hoped it will lead to a better understanding of one of the most fascinating properties of the metallic state.

He said some years ago his laboratory created amorphous metals, those without crystalline structure.

"Then we got amorphous alloys with magnetic qualities proving that a crystalline structure was not necessary for magnetism. Now, after looking for 10 years, we have an amorphous alloy that is superconducting."

Duwez said he expects a burst of interest all over the scientific world.

Johnson and Poon were working with an alloy of gold and lanthanum, a rare earth element, when they made the discovery. They were looking for something else.

"We were working on superconductivity in primitive, or simple, cubic structures and we came across this," Johnson said.

Johnson and Poon combined 20 per cent gold with 80 per cent lanthanum in a crucible and melted it. The alloy was frozen by a tremendously fast cooling method developed by Duwez.

A drop of the molten alloy was spilled from the crucible and an electronic eye triggered a pneumatic hammer that slammed the drop onto a copper anvil. The alloy quickly spread over the heat absorbing copper and solidified almost instantly into a foil.

The freezing technique is so fast it doesn't give the atoms time to line up in a crystal pattern. So they solidified into a new, random arrangement with new chemical bonding properties.

Duwez, who is professor of applied physics at Cal Tech, said, however, the alloy can be obtained only in thin foils, about two thousandths of an inch thick. That thinness is required to get the 450 degrees Fahrenheit below zero cooling needed for superconductivity.

Mexico, Venezuela Plan Joint Venture
MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexico and Venezuela are planning joint efforts to construct their own oil-drilling equipment, the National Properties Secretariat has announced.

National Properties Secretary Horacio Flores de La Pena said Tuesday the Mexico-Venezuela manufacture would save time in the delivery of drilling machinery and facilitate exploration by both countries.

He said preparations are already underway and equipment manufacture may begin soon.

Meanwhile Ernesto Barroso, president of the Mexican National Chamber of Industries in Transformation, left for Venezuela Tuesday to discuss a possible regional integration of petroleum and petrochemical industries.

Barroso said he will pave the way for further discussions during a state visit to Venezuela by President Luis Echeverria later this month.

Flores de la Pena also said Mexico's state owned monopoly Petroleos Mexicanos (Pemex) is not planning any new price hikes after raising its rates an overall 85 per cent last December.

He also said Mexico's oil production is rapidly nearing the domestic consumption level, allowing the possibility of petroleum exports "within the next few months."

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — The General Federation of Women's Clubs has declared its own war, the war on rape.

"This should be no hush-hush thing," said Mrs. Carroll E. (Mary Katharine) Miller, the new president of the 11-million-member international federation that calls itself the world's largest organization of women.

"Statistics show rape cases on the increase, no matter what the size of the community," said Mrs. Miller, who now calls Charleston, W. Va., and Missoula, Mont., home.

Officially the program, begun as Mrs. Miller took office for two years, is called "Woman Against Rape" (WAR).

"We need citizen action groups throughout the country to stop the rising incidence," she said. "We are going to train groups of women in every community through our state federation, our district and local clubs, who will attend court when rape cases are heard to give moral support to victims."

"Everyone who reads newspapers knows that rape victims often are ruthlessly grilled in courts and ironically their reputations are frequently impugned so that many victims no longer will report the crime and make their private humiliation a public affair."

"We want to change the laws. Today, while the victim's sexual history becomes an open book in the courtroom, the defendant's criminal record is not admissible in rape cases. And, as there rarely are witnesses, the case pits the word of the victim against that of the defendant."

Mrs. Miller cited the work done by clubmembers in Indianapolis. They go to court "by the hundreds" to support women.

"As far as I can determine, Indiana is the only state where no convicted rapist can be given a suspended sentence," she continued. "We want to see this legislation enacted across the country."

Accordingly, the federation will propose that its 15,000 clubs in the United States adopt a resolution proposing that it be mandatory for a convicted rapist to serve time.

The federation also has programs to fight alcoholism and drug abuse; to promote highway safety and make seat belts mandatory, and to improve decaying downtown areas.

Other major activities include work with the New York Stock Exchange to teach women the rudiments of finance, especially in the area of wills and estate settlements; in conservation, a "Brighten the Night" program for better street lighting as a crime deterrent; a "Justice for Juveniles" program; support of the Equal Rights Amendment (many men are federation members), and promotion of the bicentennial.

Chile's numerous rivers, fed by the eternal snows of the Andes mountains, are famed for their trout fishing.

IN POLITICAL WILL

Tito Determining Post-Tito Era

BELGRADE (UPI) — At the age of 82 President Tito, Europe's most durable Communist leader, has finally made his political will.

At the recent 10th Communist party congress he spelled out the kind of leadership the country can expect after his death and rounded off a two and one-half year period of purges and recentralization designed to provide for firm, united government in the post-Tito era.

To run the nation after Screwworms On Increase

MISSION, Tex. (UPI)—Texas recorded 628 confirmed cases of screwworms as the cattle pest continued its northward migration during June, the National Screwworm Eradication Center said this week.

The cases were found in 71 counties, according to Dr. M. E. Meadows, veterinarian in charge of the U.S. Department of Agriculture center.

June's 628 cases compared to 145 during the same month of last year, and 15,889 during June of the record 1972 outbreak.

The 1,500 screwworm cases the first six months of this year compared with 284 for the first half of 1973 and 21,097 during the first six months of 1972.

"Screwworms got an early start this year due to the mild winter," Meadows said, "but relatively dry spring and early summer weather is helping the screwworm program keep case numbers relatively low in many parts of Texas."

him Tito has brought back all the veteran party stalwarts who now completely dominate the 39-member policy making party presidium and the eight-man state presidium which on Tito's death is to become a so-called "collective leadership."

The more independent-minded, unorthodox, liberal young Communists who came into the upper ranks of the party during the 1960's have been excluded to prevent any rocking of the political boat.

Loyal Aides Recalled
"His main concern has been to give a cohesion to the party hierarchy and prevent splits developing even if this means an elderly, somewhat unimaginative leadership," one Western diplomat said.

Such splits caused by national and liberal factions led to flareups in Serbia and Croatia in 1971 and 1972 which brought the country close to civil war. It was largely Tito's personal authority that brought the nation through the crisis.

To prevent any recurrence an estimated 100,000 party members have been purged since then and the 10th congress stressed the need for "democratic centralism." This reversed the accelerated decentralization program adopted by the 9th congress in 1969 which allowed nationalism to take root in this federation of individualistic republics.

In bringing back all his most loyal aides of partisan days, Tito has also carefully chosen the kind of men who were very much involved in the crucial break with Josef

V. Stalin in 1948 and could be counted on once again to stand up to the Russians, government officials said.

Who Will Lead?
Party authority has also been increased. By making all the state presidium members also members of the party presidium, Tito has created a situation where the Communist party has a stronger controlling hand in running the nation than it has had for many years.

Organizational changes have also given the top levels of the party and the administration more independence of control, although in theory a new constitution has widened the base of the power pyramid by involving workers more in political decision taking.

The main outstanding question is who will take over from Tito as president of the party—the nation's key office which also entails ex-officio membership of the state presidium.

Officials said the best bet was Edvard Kardelj, a 64-year-old ex-schoolmaster and party theoretician, who has been Tito's closest aide since the war years.

President for Life
Though he has always been Tito's unquestioned number two, Kardelj has not held high office in recent years until his election just before the congress to the state presidium. The officials said this would put him in an ideal position to take over the party slot.

His public role has also become more that of an heir apparent and aides said he was the only Communist leader that Tito kissed at his birthday party.

But though Tito has set the scene as if he may not be present at the next congress in four years time, he clearly has no intention of leaving the political stage just yet.

The congress elected him to office for life and at frequent public appearances he looks tanned and fit even if his hair is now thinning and he is a good deal heavier than when he took over leadership of the Communist party in 1937.
