THE PAMPA NEWS

PAMPA, TEXAS

May 11, 1995

50c DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Good Evening!

AREA

PAMPA — Attention parents of children ages 3-14. It's almost time for the summer reading club.

Most children have been given information about the Texas State Reading Club at school, according to Lovett Memorial Library staff members. The flyer tells parents and students when the reading club starts and a little about the Texas State Reading Club.

The reading club is an annual event sponsored by the Texas State Library and Lovett Memorial Library. This year there is a special program for fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade children called Teen Read.

If your child did not receive this flyer, please call 669-5780 or come by Lovett Memorial Library. All children are encouraged to participate.

WHITE DEER — An Oklahoma man is planning the 50th reunion of the White Deer High School class of 1945.

George Dickey of El Reno, Okla., said the reunion of the 1945 class will be June 9 and 10 at the Coronado Inn in Pampa.

"Anyone graduating from that class should contact me if they haven't already done so or if they haven't heard from me," Dickey said.

For more information, contact Dickey at 4607 S. Country Club Road, El Reno, OK 73036, or call him at 405-262-3217.

PAMPA - Ronald Ray Browning, 48, 429 N. Dwight, is in Gray County jail today awaiting transport to a Texas prison following a Wednesday drunk driving conviction, subsequent offense.

Browning was found guilty by a jury after about 40 minutes of deliberation, according to a spokesman for the district attorney's office.

The jury took over an hour to assess Browning five years in prison and a $1,000 fine. The trial began Tuesday. Assistant District Attorney Tracey Jennings served as prosecutor. District Judge Kent Sims presided.

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — Two tickets, sold in Houston and Waco, correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $11 million.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 13, 14, 15, 24, 25 and 31.

There were 166 tickets — each worth $1,496 — with five matching numbers. There were four matches on 8,284 tickets, each worth $108. An automatic $3 prize was won by 155,258 tickets that matched three numbers.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $4 million.

McALLEN (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has announced plans to open a satellite office in South Texas, culminating two years of planning.

The new office will make it easier for the regulatory agency to monitor wastewater and housing subdivision improvements.

The office will be at an undetermined site on Agriculture Department land.

Opponents try to block concealed weapons bill

AUSTIN (AP) — House and Senate negotiators have agreed on a final version of legislation to allow Texans to carry concealed guns. Opponents are looking for ammunition they might use to defeat it in the Legislature's closing days.

"What was that song? 'Bang, bang — you shot me down?'" said Sen. Royce West, D-Dallas, a leading Senate opponent.

"We're doing everything we can do until, I guess you could say, 'high noon,' when the vote is taken. I still think it's bad public policy," West said Wednesday.

West said he was looking for procedural methods to block the bill and encouraging citizens to call lawmakers to voice their opposition.

He also said he might filibuster. But the legislative session doesn't end until May 29, and the gun bill's backers said a filibuster would only wind up taking time from other issues that await debate.

Senate sponsor Jerry Patterson, R-Pasadena, said he doesn't fear a filibuster threat.

"He has to think what he's doing by filibustering a bill that's ultimately going to pass. He's killing some other good legislation, noncontroversial things that we've got to get out of here," Patterson said.

The bill would allow Texans with training to obtain permits to carry concealed weapons. Differing versions of the measure passed the House and Senate, and Gov. George W. Bush has said he would sign the bill into law.

Rep. Sherri Greenberg, D-Austin, vowed to fight the bill after the House-Senate conference committee removed several provisions added during House debate, including a nonbinding voter referendum.

"There are a number of members who are very unhappy with the current condition of the bill," Ms. Greenberg said.

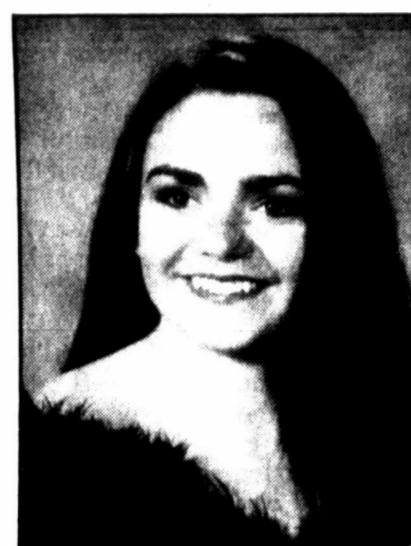

Patterson has said the referendum was pointless, since it wouldn't be binding and would take place two months after the gun law had gone into effect.

Other provisions stripped from the bill by negotiators included a proposal increasing the number of hours required for handgun training. The House bill required 15 to 30 hours of instruction, but the committee accepted the 10 to 15 hours included in the Senate version.

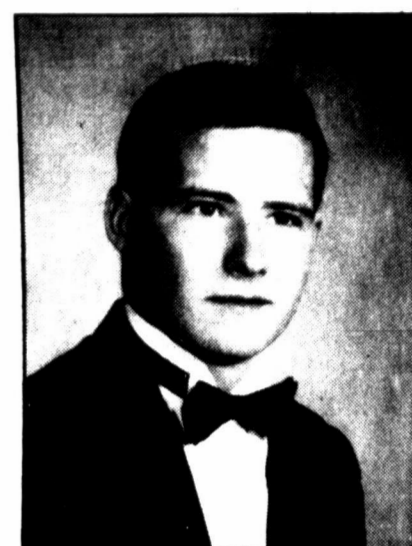

The committee also rejected a House amendment that would have authorized the Texas Department of Public Safety to conduct drug testing of certain permit holders.

"Without the training in there, the drug testing, the referendum, there is significant concern among House members," Ms. Greenberg said.

Ms. Greenberg said she didn't know whether there were enough votes to defeat the bill when the House is asked to adopt the conference committee's version.

Lock and Winegeart top scholars for Lefors HS

LEFORS — The 13 member class of 1995 of Lefors High School will celebrate commencement exercises at 7:30 p.m. May 26 in the school auditorium, 209 E. Fifth. They will be honored with baccalaureat services at 8 p.m. May 21 also in the auditorium.

Leading the class as valedictorian and salutatorian are Shawn Renee Lock and Jason Winegeart.

Lock is the daughter of Dale and Pam Lock of Lefors. She plans to attend West Texas A&M in the fall. Winegeart is the son of Cheryl Ray of Lefors and David Winegeart of Pampa. He plans to attend Texas Tech University in Lubbock and study engineering.

Lock was student council representative for her freshman and sophomore classes and served as vice president her junior and senior years. She was inducted into the Lefors chapter of the National Honor Society her sophomore year. She served in NHS as secretary her junior year and president her senior year.

Lock was voted female student "Most Likely to Succeed" by the student body this year. She was named to Who's Who Among American High School Students for four years.

Lock played varsity volleyball all four years of high school. She was on the all-district first team as a junior and second team as a senior and was the team's most valuable player her sophomore and junior years.

Lock was voted class favorite her freshman, sophomore, junior and senior years. Her sophomore year she was voted Miss Lefors High School. She is a member of First Baptist Church in Lefors.

Winegeart served Lefors High School as class representative his freshman and sophomore years. He served the student council as treasurer his sophomore and junior years. His senior year he was student council president. He was junior class president.

He was inducted in the Lefors chapter of the National Honor Society his sophomore year and maintained that membership until graduation. Winegeart was selected the male student "Most Likely to Succeed" by the high school student body.

Fund raising challenge

Rotary Club members threw down the gauntlet to other civic organizations Wednesday, challenging them to beat Rotary's support of Clarendon College Pampa Center construction efforts. Lee Cornelison, Rotary Club president, right, presents Joe Kyle Reeve, associate dean, with a $1,000 pledge from Cornelison's family. The club with the greatest per capita level of giving will be honored at groundbreaking ceremonies, said Cornelison. Fund raising efforts are to continue through July 1. The college is aiming for a $600,000 fund-raising goal from local pledges for the new campus facility to be built on a site south of West Kentucky.

Pilot dies in stealth fighter crash

ZUNI, N.M. (AP) — An F-117A stealth fighter from Holloman Air Force Base exploded in a ball of flames as it crashed overnight about 35 miles south of Gallup, killing the pilot.

Holloman spokesman Bob Pepper said the aircraft was on a routine training mission when the crash occurred about 10:25 p.m. Wednesday in the foothills of the Zuni Mountains.

The pilot wasn't identified, but Pepper confirmed that his body had been recovered from the wreckage today. The cause of the crash and the pilot's death remained under investigation, he said.

The $46 million, single-pilot aircraft was assigned to the 49th Fighter Wing at Holloman Air Force Base near Alamogordo.

The Gallup Independent newspaper quoted an unidentified witness as saying he saw a fireball, "like the sun coming up," at the time of the crash.

The crash site on Pfpia Mesa, about five miles south of Zuni Pueblo, reportedly was scorched over a wide area. Terrain includes rolling hills, low brush and juniper and pine trees.

A rescue team from Kirtland Air Force Base in Albuquerque was handling recovery of the aircraft, Pepper said. Airman Stephen Gillis of Kirtland's public affairs office confirmed the team was dispatched but said he had no further details.

Pepper said an Air Force investigation into the accident was under way but no details were immediately available.

The Independent reported that Air Force Capt. James Milroy, who identified himself as an official from Kirtland, arrived at Zuni Pueblo about 3:40 a.m. to brief tribal officials.

Tribal police then sealed off roads near the crash site, and tribal officials have declined comment.

A Gallup police dispatcher who declined to give her name said Air Force officials told Gallup and McKinley County authorities that their help wouldn't be needed in securing the crash site. She had no information on the crash, she said.

It was the second time a stealth fighter has crashed in New Mexico since the planes moved in mid-1992 to Holloman from Tonopah Test Range in Nevada. In August 1992, an F-117A crashed in the outskirts of Alamogordo shortly after taking off from Holloman. The pilot ejected safely.

At least three other stealth fighters have crashed, all during the 1980s when the program was top secret.

Thornberry backs budget plan

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The House Budget Committee has begun deliberating an historic budget plan to eliminate the federal deficit in seven years without raising taxes or touching Social Security.

U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry said he supports the Republican plan, which "is our best hope to stop raiding our children's futures to pay for excessive spending today."

The Budget Committee is considering a plan released by House Republicans to achieve a balanced federal budget by the year 2002. The budget proposal focuses on eliminating government bureaucracies, reducing the rate of increase in spending and improving federal programs to deliver higher quality services at a more efficient cost.

Thornberry compared the GOP plan to President Clinton's proposed budget, which adds more than $1 trillion to the national debt over the next five years. Under the GOP budget, overall spending continues to increase, but at a rate slow enough to gradually eliminate the annual federal deficits.

"The cost of doing nothing is simply too high," Thornberry said. "A child born this year will pay $187,000 over his or her lifetime just to pay interest on the debt we have borrowed. I refuse to pass along this crushing burden to my children and I believe my constituents in the 13th District feel the same way."

"Slowing down the rate of growth in government spending won't be easy, but it is necessary if we are to get the federal government back in control," Thornberry said.

Retail sales drop 0.4 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail sales fell 0.4 percent in April, the second drop in three months and new evidence of a slackening economy.

Automobile sales posted the largest drop in more than two years.

The Commerce Department said today sales totaled a seasonally adjusted $192.6 billion, down from $193.3 billion in March, when sales advanced 0.8 percent. They had fallen 0.7 percent in February.

Many analysts had expected little change in the April sales figure for several reasons, including slack auto sales.

Car dealers reported a 2 percent decline during April that erased a 1.3 percent gain a month earlier. It was the largest drop since a 2.5 percent plunge in February 1993.

Excluding the auto component, sales inched up only 0.1 percent, compared with a 0.6 percent increase in March.

Other signs of a slowing economy recently have included shrinking housing starts and home sales, drops in the index of leading economic indicators, weak employment figures and falling factory orders.

Sales of durable goods were off 1.5 percent in April after rising 1.3 percent in March.

Reflecting the softness in the housing industry, sales of building materials fell 2.4 percent and purchases of furniture and other home furnishings were down 1.3 percent.

Officers recover stolen goods

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

Pampa police expect to make three arrests today in connection with $5,400 worth of stolen property recovered Wednesday.

A Crime Stoppers tip Wednesday morning led police to a North Wells home where they picked up nearly all the stolen merchandise. A smaller batch of stolen property was recovered from a car delivered to the police department, said Cpl. Donnie Brown.

Twelve burglaries have been cleared, Brown said, including a theft of credit cards reported Wednesday morning. About $1,900 worth of the recovered property had been purchased Sunday using the stolen cards, Brown said. The cards were used primarily in Amarillo, he said.

Property recovered was taken from April 29 to May 6, and was stolen primarily from unlocked cars and trucks where the goods lay in view, Brown said.

Recovered were four sets of stereo speakers, clothing, car stereo equipment, in-line skates, toaster, beer, wine, tennis shoes, tapes, compact discs, radar detector, ammunition, Oakley sunglasses, binoculars, four telephone handsets, five black light posters, black light, lava light, Skilsaw and a watch.

Det. Terry Young said security officials from the credit card companies and management of Amarillo's Best Buy cooperated in the investigation.

The Crime Stoppers tip led to the recovery of the goods and the tipster can expect a cash reward, Brown said.

Confederate submarine found, researchers say

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Researchers today said they found a Confederate submarine that went down off the South Carolina coast in 1864 after sinking a Union warship — a discovery for which P.T. Barnum once offered $100,000.

Using metal detectors, archaeologists and divers found wreckage in January that they believed to be the CSS Hunley, researchers said. The object was about 40 feet long and six feet wide, matching descriptions of the missing submarine. "It's intact and covered with silt," said Dean Foster, a spokesman for the National Underwater and Marine Agency, a nonprofit foundation.

Divers dug down through 3 feet of silt and came up with what they said was one of the Hunley's observation towers.

The nine-member crew went down with the submarine Feb. 17, 1864, after destroying a Union blockade warship, the USS Housatonic. Foster said it was the first time a submarine sank a warship.

"I wish I had a nickel for every time somebody told me I was wasting my time and the sub wasn't out there," said Clive Cussler, an underwater adventurer and author who spent $130,000 in a 15-year search for the Hunley.

Many people over the years have tried to find the Hunley, including P.T. Barnum, who once offered $100,000 for its discovery.

Researchers said that for now they would reveal the shipwreck's exact location only to state officials.

"With the prices on Civil War artifacts, people would just go out and blow her up and sell the parts," Cussler said.

Sheriff's Office

Gray County Sheriff's Office reported the following incident and arrest in the 24-hour reporting period which ended at 7 a.m. today.

WEDNESDAY, May 10

Christine Diaz reported violation of a protective order at 2401 Alcock.

Arrests

WEDNESDAY, May 10

Ronald Ray Browning, 48, 429 N. Dwight, is in Gray County jail awaiting transport to prison following a conviction for driving while intoxicated, subsequent offense.

Gov. Bush proclaims Home Education Week

Tim Lambert, president of the Texas Home School Coalition, has announced that Gov. George W. Bush has declared the week of May 7-13 "Texas Home Education Week."

"Home educators all over Texas will celebrate the joy and benefits of the fastest growing educational alternative in the country this week," Lambert said.

Lambert estimates there are over 200,000 children in Texas being taught at home by their parents and the numbers show no sign of slowing down.

"More and more people are making the ultimate choice in education," he maintains.

Home education is the tutorial method of education. Because of the low teacher-to-student ratios, there is a tremendous amount of individual attention given the student, Lambert claimed. Numerous studies confirming that these students perform well above the average prove this to be a viable educational alternative, he said.

Home educators have also shown themselves to be politically adept at keeping the freedom that they have won, as the U.S. Congress learned last year when hundreds and thousands of home school proponents shut down the House switchboards in opposition to a measure that would have outlawed home schooling, he said.

Lambert said that while home schoolers will be celebrating this week they are also closely watching the Texas Legislature as lawmakers rewrite the Texas Education Code.

"Parents just want to keep their right to direct the education of their children," he said.

In his proclamation for Texas Home Education Week, Gov. Bush noted the state of Texas is committed to excellence in education.

"Since the days of the Texas Republic, some parents in the state have chosen to teach their own children, taking full responsibility for their education," the proclamation reads.

The proclamation states that home schooling continues to be proven effective by numerous studies, with individual attention and family participation contributing to this success within the framework of family beliefs.

In June 1994, the Texas Supreme Court upheld, by unanimous decision, the freedom of parents to choose this method of education for their children, Bush notes in the proclamation.

"It is appropriate to recognize the continued growth and the importance of the home school sector of education in Texas," the proclamation states.

Pancho Villa supporter dies at 120

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A woman believed to be Mexico's oldest, who fought with Pancho Villa in the 1910-1917 Mexican Revolution, has died a month short of her 121st birthday, according to news reports.

The government news agency Notimex said Wednesday that Manuelita Chavez Villasenor died at her home Sunday of stomach cancer and complications of old age.

She had nine children, 38 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren and 6 great-great grandchildren, the agency said. It did not list survivors.

Villa headed the famed Northern Division during the war, which claimed 1 million lives.

Senators continue bickering over Waco hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee refused to commit to a deadline for conducting hearings into the 1993 federal siege of the Branch Davidian compound in Waco, Texas.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said he did not want to rush into the hearings and potentially hinder the FBI's investigation of the Oklahoma City bombing.

"I don't want to pull anyone off from that investigation" to testify, Hatch said. "If they did you may never know where some felon can slip through and escape. We just don't know at this point."

"I think it's the wrong thing to do to try to push hearings too soon on these matters under the circumstances at this time," he added.

Hatch's remarks continued a feud with Sen. Arlen Specter, a Pennsylvania Republican who has scheduled his own hearings on the Branch Davidian siege for May 18 as chairman of the Judiciary subcommittee on terrorism.

The subcommittee hearing became a subject of dispute between the senators earlier this week, prompting an exchange of letters in which they accused each other of political opportunism.

Hatch questioned whether Specter, who is seeking the GOP presidential nomination, has jurisdiction to review the government's actions in Waco.

The raid against the Texas cult has received renewed interest in Congress in the wake of the Oklahoma City bombing on April 19, which was the second anniversary of the fire that killed more than 85 Branch Davidians.

Leeches aid attempt to save thumb

ODESSA (AP) — Doctors said leeches flown in from a special leech farm in South Carolina appear to be helping in an effort to save a 6-year-old girl's thumb from amputation.

Saturday, Samantha Raines was playing in a neighbor's yard in Odessa when a heavy barbecue pit lid fell on her thumb, almost severing the top, at about the point where the thumbnail ends.

A doctor used microscopic needles to reattach the top of the thumb, but amputation was under consideration because of poor circulation.

First, however, an army of leeches was given an opportunity to help. The leeches were flown in, and the girl is undergoing 10 days of leech treatment in addition to calcium channel blockers being administered to her.

The calcium channel blockers increase the circulation, and the leeches thin the child's blood so it won't clot. After three days, Samantha is starting to get some feeling back, doctors say.

If the leeches, combined with the medication, can keep the thumb alive for ten full days, doctors say Samantha can expect to have full use of her thumb again.

"The leeches were a surprise," the girl's father, Cecil Raines, told The Odessa American. "It got to us the first time they did it. But it's working, so whatever makes it work."

Dr. Sylvan Bartlett, the doctor who reattached the thumb, said after three days, Samantha is starting to get some feeling back.

"She can feel a pulse in her thumb, and it's pink," Bartlett said. "The leeches are freaking out all the nurses on the floor. But every day it looks better and better."

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Congress may have a standoff

When Congress returns to the nation's capital in May, one of the choices it will face will involve the different approaches to regulatory reform enacted in the Senate and the House of Representatives. How the issue is resolved will tell us a good deal about whether the Republican majority plans to be the friend of small business or of big business.

During the fabled Hundred Days, the House passed the Regulatory Transition Act, which would establish a moratorium (except for a few actions like establishing dates for duck season) on all federal regulatory agency regulations issued between Nov. 20, 1994 and Dec. 4, 1995. This "breathing period" would give agencies a chance to reconsider their missions, consider possible reforms, and take a close look at rules previously issued - and give businesses a chance to operate for at least a few months without worrying about what the feds will throw at them next.

That medicine was too strong for the Senate. It passed, instead, a Regulatory Review Act, sponsored by Republican Don Nickles of Oklahoma and Democrat Harry Reid of Nevada that would allow Congress a review period of 45 days for new regulations, during which time it could use a fast-track procedure to rescind regulations.

But the Nickles-Reid bill would only apply to regulations that would cost the economy $100 million or more. Combined with the need to act within 45 days, that would create a bias in favor of businesses or trade associations large enough to have a team of expensive lobbyists already in place in the nation's capital. Big businesses would have a good shot at rescinding, or modifying, dubious regulations, but small businesses wouldn't stand a chance.

For many small companies, the most costly aspect of federal regulation is not complying with the regulations themselves, but going through the cumbersome and time-consuming process of learning, what new regulations have been issued.

For small companies that can't afford to hire legal and regulatory experts to guide them through the maze, even a regulation with a marginal impact on the economy as a whole, or one that requires something they already do as a matter of course can have a substantial deleterious impact.

The argument that a moratorium would raise serious issues of health or safety hazards is dubious at best. The federal government has been regulating health and safety for decades, and has addressed most of the genuine issues in the marketplace many times - often with redundant and overlapping regulations.

When Congress returns, the House is likely to take up the Senate version and amend it to add a year-long, moratorium on rule-making. If the moratorium then passes, it will signal a new resolve to give all businesses some relief from over-regulation. If the Senate insists stubbornly on its version and only that can pass both houses, it will reinforce suspicions that despite the brave populist chatter, the Republicans are essentially the party of big business - or Wall Street rather than Main Street.

China watchers admit mistakes

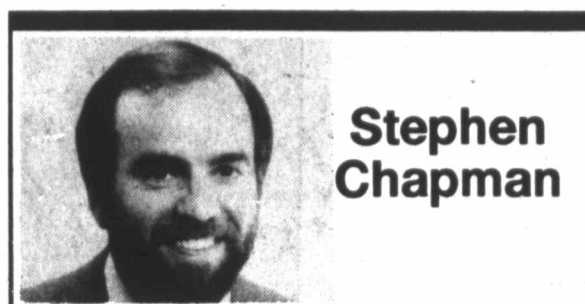

Foolishness and credulity are common human traits, even among the smartest and most learned. But the experience of China scholars over the past two decades provides reassuring evidence that these failings are not incurable.

My acquaintance with the subject began in 1972 when I arrived at Harvard to begin my freshman year. There may have been times in its history when Cambridge, Mass., offered a warm embrace to those rejecting leftist dogma, but that fall was not one of them. Socialism was the rage among faculty and students; American capitalism was generally reviled as cruel and imperialist. The student newspaper, the Harvard Crimson (which somehow found a place for me), rooted for a Vietcong victory in Southeast Asia.

But perhaps the most oppressive feature of my new environment was the general enchantment with China, which wasn't confined to Cambridge. A by-product of Richard Nixon's historic visit, it pervaded the mass media. As a slightly skeptical Newsweek put it, visitors described "an impossible dream - a land without drug addiction or pollution, without crime or venereal disease; a land where there are no slums, no alcoholics and not even any bosses." Mao Zedong was said to be building not just a new society but a new man.

If the veneration of Mao was a religion, Cambridge was its Rome. The dean of American China scholars, John King Fairbank, was teaching there, enthralled undergraduates with his expert judgment that the communist revolution was "the best thing that ever happened to China."

Equally inescapable was another professor, Ross Terrill, whose glowing dispatches in the Atlantic Monthly had been among the most influential reports from the Middle Kingdom. "Here in the 'Forbidden City' is the real challenge to Western hegemony," he rhapsodized. "In China, you feel a strength which comes from belief in oneself. America's Asia cannot match that kind of strength."

Stephen Chapman

It wasn't just professors who thought this way. Chinese-American undergraduates took pride in the new prominence of China - even though many of their parents had come here for no reason but to escape communism. They and other Sinophiles had no patience for criticism of Mao. "What does a Chinese peasant care about some American idea of liberty?" one Chinese-American woman scoffed. Armed with a firm belief in democracy, capitalism and freedom, but scant knowledge of China, I earned nothing but ridicule for doubting such wisdom.

So it is no small satisfaction to be affirmed in my early convictions by the very people who in 1972 fostered such ridicule - John King Fairbank and Ross Terrill. Fairbank's last book, China: A New History (Harvard), published after his death in 1991, paints a much less favorable portrait of communist China than he did back then.

The Great Leap Forward of 1958-60, which he once treated gingerly as a period of "serious economic dislocation," is now characterized more accurately as "one of the greatest of human disasters," which killed at least 20 million. His past praise of Mao he dismisses as "sentimental Sinophilia." Instead of seeing the revolution as a break with the past, Fairbank's book depicts it as just the latest stage in China's autocratic history.

Terrill goes further still. His book, China in Our Time (Simon and Schuster), exhaustively catalogues his past mistakes and offers mournful explanations of how he went wrong. "In the early 1960s, I was asking how China had changed under the communists, but in the early 1990s, I wonder if a still backward and unfree China can change much while the communists sit astride the nation," he writes. Admitting your errors is admirable; writing a book about them is heroic.

Arthur Waldron, a Brown University adjunct professor in East Asian studies who was at Harvard during the 1970s, says most China experts have moved in exactly the same direction as Fairbank and Terrill. He cites two main causes. "What changed minds in the academy," says Waldron, "was being able to go there" - something hardly any scholars (except Terrill) were able to do during the first two decades of Mao's rule. Fairbank, he says, had no access to communist China until the 1970s.

For some experts, even first hand exposure wasn't enough to disenchant. Fairbank remained sympathetic for years. Then came the Tiananmen Square massacre, which Waldron says destroyed any remaining illusions, revealing the brutal character of the government beyond any doubt.

So the era of Mao-worship is now just an embarrassing memory of youthful folly among most China scholars. It was once said that Westerners who study the Soviet Union come to hate the Soviet Union, while those who study China come to hate themselves. If you study long enough, though, you apparently can learn even the obvious.

How to properly direct anger over bombing

Charley Reese

Some of the TV guys, filling up air time over pictures of the Oklahoma City bombing, prattled on about how Americans have now been made to feel afraid or insecure. That's not true. Americans are just angry.

We Americans are an unusual people. Generally we're at our worst in times of peace and plenty and at our best in times of danger and hardship. Just look at how magnificently the people in Oklahoma City responded to the disaster.

In an instant, all the petty things such as race, politics, ambition, position and competition that plague us in peacetime vanished, and the people in that city became one. Hundreds of doctors and nurses dropped what they were doing and rushed to the area; police and firemen and ordinary citizens immediately joined in the work of rescue. Volunteers rushed to the blood banks. Black and white worked side by side, sharing blood and tears, without a single thought about color.

It was an inspiring sight, proof that the American people remain far superior to the images put out by cynics and demagogues.

What we have to do now is make sure our anger is directed toward the parties responsible. First, there are the individuals who did this. Law enforcement officials are hunting them down, and I hope they will be killed.

But administering justice will not get at the problem of terrorism. Terrorists expect to die. They are already dead, in fact. When a person gets to the point of killing indiscriminately, he has already committed spiritual suicide. Killing a terrorist will give some of us momentary satisfaction, but it won't deter or prevent other terrorist acts.

Second, we must not allow shameless people with a hidden agenda to use this unfortunate incident to spread racist poison in our society. Before Tim McVeigh was arrested, I had already received six phone calls blaming Arabs and Moslems in general. Had it turned out that the terrorists were Arab, that would not have meant that 130 million Arabs and 6 million Arab-Americans were responsible. Had they been Moslems, that would not have meant that 1 billion people were responsible.

Moslems, including fundamentalists like Hamas, condemned the bombing. There is no Islamic campaign against America and nothing in the Islamic religion that condones the murder of innocent people. American Moslems have been living peacefully in our country since the 1880s.

But you were starting to hear otherwise from a well-organized campaign to turn an American tragedy into a political advantage for a foreign country. Just remember that what these people were doing was spreading pure, unadulterated Ku Klux Klan-style racist claptrap against innocent people.

Third, don't let the politicians can us. You can't prevent terrorism with police-military-intelligence forces. They can help but only in a limited way. Israel has more experience, more expertise and more resources than anyone in the world when it comes to dealing with terrorism.

Israel also fights terrorism ruthlessly and employs tools our Constitution forbids. Yet, what is the result? In the last few months nearly 100 Israelis have been killed by terrorists in their own country.

The terrorist can choose the target, the time and the place. Guard here and he goes there. Guard everywhere and he takes a vacation until you let your guard down.

Don't let Congress pass laws which shred our own freedom in the name of countering terrorism. Don't let anyone con you into believing that piling on criminal sanctions will solve the problem. We already have the death penalty. The FBI may need some new tools, but let us not overreact. Let's address the issue in a reasonable manner.

The horror in Oklahoma is in part a failure of communications in the broad sense of that word. Otherwise how could even a few Americans develop such a tragically distorted view of their own country? All of us should ponder that question.

How does Oklahoma City terror affect gun control?

The National Rifle Association has come in for its share of abuse in the wake of the Oklahoma City tragedy - not all of it unjustified. There is simply no excuse for some of the language the NRA has used in its fundraising appeals - referring, for example, to agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms as "jack-booted government thugs."

On the other hand, the conventional wisdom that the Oklahoma City bombing puts defenders of the Second Amendment on the defensive seems to be based purely on emotion and not on facts.

Why should the bombing affect the debate over gun control? Because a small number of men who call themselves "militiamen" and run around the forest in fatigues love their guns? Is that why gun control gets a boost from Oklahoma City? As several observers have noted, Oklahoma City perhaps makes a case for fertilizer control, but it is irrelevant to the debate about guns.

I have no particular enthusiasm for guns - and there was a time when I expressed my concern over violent crime by endorsing mild gun control. I have changed my opinion. Even putting constitutional considerations aside (which we cannot), it is becoming clear to me that gun control cannot work and that guns are a necessary evil.

Why can't gun control work? As James Q. Wilson explains in the May/June issue of The American Enterprise, there are about 200 million privately owned guns in the United States today, a third of them handguns. Only 2 percent of the handguns are used to commit crimes, and only one-sixth of handguns employed by serious criminals are purchased. Most are stolen, borrowed or bought through informal purchases that would not be regulated by laws that apply to gun shops.

Ah, say gun-control advocates, but if there were fewer guns in legal circulation, there would be fewer available for criminals to steal and borrow. True. But if you take guns from the law-abiding, you leave them almost completely vulnerable to the predations of criminals. As Wilson puts it, "Your government, having failed to protect you from criminal assault, now intends to deprive you of the opportunity to defend yourself."

And people do defend themselves with guns - every day. As Gary Kleck, a criminologist at Florida State University has found, guns are displayed or fired in self-defense more than 1 million times every year. Gun owners know this intuitively, and that is the source of their fierce attachment to the Second Amendment. It really isn't about hunting.

Criminals know best about guns. Wilson notes that occupied homes in the United States are much, less likely to be burgled than those in Europe. Why do burglars feel free to jimmy the doors on European homes even if people are home? Because far fewer European homes have guns.

Gun-control advocates have done an excellent scare job about the risk of accidental shootings. But Wilson puts this in perspective: Most gun accidents involve rifles and shotguns, not handguns, and in fewer than 2 percent of cases, someone is shot because the gun owner mistook him for an intruder. Moreover, accidents happen with cars, knives, planes and roller skates, too.

We are not helpless in the face of gun-related crime. Wilson suggests several common-sense reforms that would make it easier to get guns away from criminals rather than the law abiding.

First, police should aggressively stop and frisk anyone who they suspect may be carrying illegal weapons. All probationers and parolees should be followed closely and their weapons confiscated if discovered. Also, technology to detect concealed guns at a distance would aid police in knowing whom to frisk. In response to Wilson's prodding on this subject, the Justice Department has recently awarded three lab contracts for such detectors, which may be ready within 18 months.

Civil libertarians will complain that stop-and-frisk tactics by police will disproportionately target young black men, sometimes pulling innocent men into the net, and that may be true. The question the rest of us have to ask, especially black women and children who are most likely to be victimized by criminals, is: Is it worth it?

Players set to present "Bottoms Up"

"Bottoms Up", a hilarious comedy set in a quaint hotel on the tropical island of Santa Pequena, will be the spring dinner theatre production of the Canadian Community Players. The play begins this evening and continues through Sunday at the Canadian City Auditorium. The group has brought live theatrical productions with a gourmet dinner to area theatre enthusiasts for the past eight seasons. The story centers around the ill-fated suitcase full of money. The Hotel Grande, a somewhat run-down and gaudy island resort, offers a perfect setting for the romp of the eight actors. The evening of entertainment will begin with dinner music, played by Natalie Sanders, and a festive and delicious meal. Evening dinner service will begin at 6:30 p.m. and Sunday matinee lunch will begin at 12:30 p.m.

The Canadian Community Players have benefitted local non profit entities and Canadian High School students through a scholarship program. Tickets are all pre-sold and can be purchased by calling (806) 323-8431, (806) 323-6213, and (806) 323-6234 at a price of $22 each. PPW announces deadline for entries in annual writing contests

Panhandle Professional Writers (PPW) announces June 15 as the deadline for receiving entries in its 1995 writing contests. Entries must be the original work of the contestant and must not have been accepted for publication prior to contest deadline. Contest categories include short stories, writing for children, poetry, book-length manuscripts and non-fiction articles. The latter may include several types of short nonfiction, including personal experience, "how to," inspirational, historical, nostalgic, humorous, travel or feature article, or any other non-fiction subject. Contests are open to all writers, with the exception that first-place winners in 1994 may not enter the same category this year. They may, however, enter other categories, said Lou Ann Garrett, vice-president for contests. Winners will be announced and prizes awarded Saturday, August 5, at the Frontiers in Writing (FIW) Conference at Amarillo College.

Prizes for book-length manuscripts are first place, $50; second place, $25, and third place, $15. Prizes for winners in each of the other categories are $25, $20 and $15. To receive a copy of the 1995 contest rules, send request with a self-addressed, stamped envelope (SASE) to PPW Contest Chairman, P.O. Box 19303, Amarillo TX 79114. For FIW Conference information, send an SASE after mid-May to the same address.

Arts and crafts show coming to Spearman

SPEARMAN — Spearman Study Club will be having an arts and craft show in conjunction with the celebration of Spearman's Heritage Days on June 10. Any dealers interested in obtaining a booth at the Spearman show in June or anyone needing more information should contact the following person: Claudine Hardy, 803 Wilmeth Dr., Spearman, TX 79081, or call (806) 659-3440 after 4 p.m.

"All You Would Need For a World Without Violence Is A Cat!" — Melissa Watts, Horace Mann Elementary School, second place in the fifth grade category of the Tralee Crisis Center coloring contest, "Imagine A World Without Violence." The Tralee Crisis Center, a non-profit organization, helps victims of violent crime. To show our readers how some of the youngsters in our community envision what our world would be like without violence and to show them what hope our children hold, The Pampa News is running drawings entered in the contest twice a week.

U.S. ARMY RECRUITING BATTALION, IRVING — Jason A. Huckins has joined the United States Army under the Delayed Enlistment Program.

The Delayed Enlistment Program gives young men or women the opportunity to delay enlistment into the Army for up to one year so they can finish their studies before reporting to basic military training.

Huckins reported to Fort Knox, Ky., this month to begin military basic training. After basic training, he will remain at Fort Knox to receive advanced individual training as an armor crewmember.

The recruit indicates he joined the Army to get better skilled training and experience and to travel and enjoy the adventure. Huckins is the son of Timothy A. Huckins and Barbara McKean-Huckins, both of Pampa.

PLAINVIEW — Tony Bybee of Pampa, an athlete at Wayland Baptist University was among those athletes recently recognized as 1995 NAIA All-America Basketball Scholar-Athletes and NAIA indoor track and Field All-Americans.

As an Indoor Track and Field All-American who placed in the top six individually or top three in a relay in the pole vault, Bybee is eligible to receive the scholarship.

Salsa, picante makers compete at taste-off to support pepper research

WESLACO, Texas (AP) — Salsa and picante makers will be showcasing their hottest goods at a taste-off competition organized as a fun way to raise money for pepper breeding research.

The taste-off will be held in conjunction with the 10th Texas Pepper Foundation Biennial Conference on May 31-June 2 at the Texas A&M Agricultural Research and Extension Center in Weslaco.

The contest will help support the work of Ben Villalon at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, who receives minimal state support, said Frank Dainello, a Texas Agricultural Extension Service horticulturist.

The event is co-sponsored by the experiment station, extension service and Texas Pepper Foundation.

Villalon began a pepper breeding program in Texas during the early 1970s. He has released nine multiple virus-resistant varieties. Two of his releases — the TAM Mild Jalapeno-I and Hidalgo serrano — have become standards in the industry.

Because pepper plants are highly susceptible to viruses, breeding in resistance was the first step for making the industry profitable in Texas.

Patmos notes the Revelations

This is the year the Greek isle of Patmos commemorates the time, 1,900 years ago, when St. John received Divine Revelations in a grotto on the island, the northernmost of the Dodecanese Islands.

The fortress-like monastery of St. John, founded in 1088, will be site of celebrations through the year.

The monastic library houses about 3,000 rare volumes, including many from the Byzantine era.

Just below are the church and convent of the Apocalypse, built above the grotto where St. John received the Revelations.

Reporting Telephone Fraud Is As Easy As Making a Call

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, you published a letter from a woman in Illinois whose mother has been victimized by fraudulent telemarketers because she can't resist those sweepstakes "prizes" that come in the mail.

Abby, the law enforcement community can and should do more than offer sympathy.

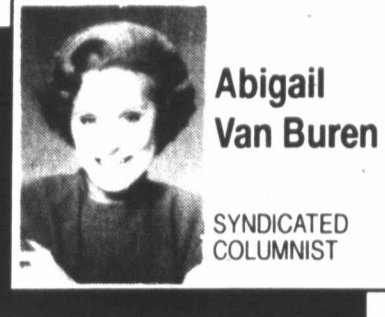

First, complaints concerning telemarketing scams should be filed with the National Fraud Information Center. Call (800) 876-7060 during normal business hours Monday through Friday (Eastern time). Or contact your state's attorney general.

Last year, a nationwide effort was made to crack down on telemarketing fraud. Law enforcement officials now share access to a national computer database that contains information about ongoing investigations, active cases and consumer complaints.

In addition, the National Association of Attorneys General, the Federal Trade Commission and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) have launched a consumer education campaign to combat telemarketing fraud.

A free brochure, "Telephone Scams and Older Consumers," is available by writing to: Federal Trade Commission, Sixth and Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

RONALD W. BURRIS, ILLINOIS ATTORNEY GENERAL

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ATTORNEY GENERAL BURRIS: Thank you for the helpful information. I hope my readers will place the toll-free number near their telephones and report all suspicious calls.

DEAR ABBY: The recent letter from "Unshakable in Milwaukee" reflects a common concern of people who have arthritis. In your answer, you offered a good strategy when confronted by a potentially painful handshake. Here are three additional options:

— When people offer their hand, enclose their hand with both of yours. This offers a warm response and gives you control over the intensity of the handshake.

— Place only one or two inches of the end of your fingers into the other person's palm. This alerts them to be careful and keeps large knuckles out of their grip.

— A smile and a friendly nod before a hand is offered may avoid a handshake.

Thank you for pointing out that many men as well as women have arthritis. In fact, nearly 40 million Americans of all ages have some form of the disease, according to statistics released by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Those interested in learning more about how to reduce joint stress from arthritis can receive a free "Basic Facts" brochure by contacting their local chapter of the Arthritis Foundation, or by calling (800) 283-7800.

TERESA J. BRADY, NATIONAL MEDICAL ADVISER, ARTHRITIS FOUNDATION

DEAR MS. BRADY: Thank you for the additional suggestions, which should benefit many readers. And thanks for sending the "Basic Facts" brochure, which I found most informative. I had been unaware that the word "arthritis" refers to more than 100 different diseases that can affect the joints and other parts of the body.

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Horoscope

Your Birthday

Friday, May 12, 1995

Persons for whom you did favors in the past will eagerly seek ways to reciprocate in the year ahead. You will discover that being a nice guy can really pay off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before relaxing and letting go today, make sure you've paid adequate attention to your responsibilities. You won't be able to enjoy yourself if you have a guilty conscience. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences that govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Go along with the majority today instead of insisting upon having your own way. A small sacrifice will be better than a fight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This will not be a good day to discuss business or mundane matters with friends, especially if you're out together in hopes of finding some fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Strive to achieve things today from which everyone can derive some type of benefit. Avoid goals which would reward only you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you get involved in a joint venture today, make certain the costs and efforts will be shared proportionately. If it doesn't balance out, pass the action.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might not be able to function as independently as you'd like today due to your mate's demands. Instead of fighting, try to find some sort of compromise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your way of doing things might be best today, but you'd be wise not to call too much attention to your tactics. It might wound some sensitive egos.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Go slowly with someone of the opposite sex that you met recently. There is a chance that this person may not be all he/she professes to be.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Whether you like it or not, everything you do today is likely to be scrutinized by others, so be doubly careful about how you behave in public.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes we can get away with telling harmless little fibs, but today won't be one of those days. Keep this in mind if you feel like embellishing a story.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Disappointment is possible if you do something for another in hopes of getting more back in return. Insecure motives aren't likely gain you any ground today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Flattery might work to gain temporary support today, but after the persons you target realize they've been manipulated, they might turn their backs on you.

AUTO RACING

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Last May, the big question at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway was simply which Team Penske car was going to win the 500.

Roger Penske, who heads the most successful team in the history of the speedway and the Indy-car series, made the results a virtual fait accompli with a daring decision to take advantage of a long-ignored rule and build a 209 cubic inch stock-type, push-rod engine just for the Indy 500.

The engine, with a Mercedes-Benz nameplate and built by Ilmor Engineering in England, took just 10 months from sketchpad to racetrack. It hadn't even completed a 500-mile test until the weekend that the speedway opened for practice early in May.

"The advantage we had last year showed up on race day when at half distance you had me and Emerson on the lead lap," said Al Unser Jr., who wound up winning his second Indy 500 after Fittipaldi crashed with just 15 laps remaining.

AMERICA'S CUP

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sixty-foot waves pounded his boat. Powerful gales battered it. Icebergs threatened it. Pitch-black darkness made his battle with the high seas even more dangerous.

Peter Blake survived it all. Now the man who sailed around the world in less than 80 days has it easy. He's sailing rings around Dennis Conner.

Blake, 46, is the cool boss of Team New Zealand's exceptional America's Cup campaign. Black Magic 1 has routed Young America in the first three races. It can sweep the best-of-9 series with wins today and Saturday on the sunny, smooth Pacific Ocean.

"If they had some fantastic ideas, I think they would have used them a long time ago," Blake said.

The adventurer who risked his life on stormy seas sat Wednesday on an off-white couch, legs casually crossed as he chatted with two dozen journalists.

With no scheduled race, his crew had the day off. The mood was relaxed just three days before what may be one of New Zealand's most important sporting achievements.

"Rest time," Blake said, "is just as important as sailing time."

The Americans, meanwhile, were out on the water searching for something, anything, that might give them more speed. They tested downwind sails and practiced sailing upwind.

Conner, co-helmsman, four-time Cup winner and head of the campaign, didn't practice. He had an out-of-town speaking engagement. By Saturday afternoon, he could be talking about adding to his already dubious notoriety. He's the only U.S. skipper to lose the Cup and now he may do it again.

HOCKEY

DALLAS (AP) — Since the NHL went to a best-of-seven playoff format over a half-century ago, 25 teams have rebounded from a 2-0 deficit — nine in the past eight years.

But only twice have teams come back from 3-0. So the Dallas Stars know that unless they defeat the Detroit Red Wings tonight, they're all but kaput.

"Either we fight back into the series, or we face elimination," Stars coach Bob Gainey said Wednesday of tonight's game at Reunion Arena in Dallas.

Something will have to change for the Stars to change their luck against the Red Wings, the best team in the NHL during the abbreviated season. In regular games, Detroit went 5-0 against Dallas, though three of those wins were by one goal.

Rockets look for better things in Game 2

PHOENIX (AP) — The Houston Rockets have finished what amounted to an autopsy on their performance against the Phoenix Suns.

And, in the aftermath, the defending champions found reason to hope for better things tonight in Game 2.

"When the game is tight, that's when the pressure is on," Hakeem Olajuwon said Wednesday. "So whether you get beat by 20 points or 40 points, that really doesn't matter. They won a game yesterday; tomorrow is another game."

The Suns blew it open early after Houston's No. 2 scorer, Clyde Drexler, drew two technical fouls and was ejected. They never were challenged again on the way to a 130-108 victory, only the second for Phoenix in the last six games the teams have played in the America West Arena.

NBA PLAYOFFS

Both sides agreed the game offered little information about what to expect in the rest of the best-of-7 series.

"It won't be 20 next game," said Sam Cassell, who scored 31 points in a losing effort. "We have enough competitors on this ballclub. We don't want to lose like that again."

Drexler, who wouldn't talk about why he blew up at referee Jake O'Donnell, said he thought better defense was the key.

"I think we can play a lot better on the defensive end, keep those guys off the boards, keep them from getting easy jump shots. Those are the things we're going to try to do," he said.

On the Suns' part, the great debate was how much effect the loss of Drexler had on their play. Phoenix set a franchise playoff record with 43 points in the second quarter, most of them after the ejection.

"The last game, Drexler wasn't in there, so we can't really put a lot of merit on that game. We did win, and I'm happy, but he wasn't there, and he's a real big factor," said A.C. Green, who had a playoff-high 25 points and pulled down 15 rebounds to lead a 48-29 Phoenix imbalance in that category.

Such talk was heresy to Charles Barkley, who had 26 points and 11 rebounds.

"I think that would be short-changing our effort," he said.

"I just think we played terrific from beginning to end," Barkley went on. "We never let down. Even when we got the big lead, we just kept the hammer down. Obviously they can play a lot better; they're the world champions, and we know how they play after they've lost a game. But you've got to give us some credit."

Coaches put Barkley and Olajuwon in the same category — unguardable 1-on-1 — but only Barkley delivered in Game 1. Joe Kleine and Wayman Tisdale alternated on Olajuwon and held him to 18 points. They also scored 12 points each, mostly on outside shots set up by Kevin Johnson's drives in the lane.

"I think they've got to do something with KJ's penetration and maybe double-team Charles," said Kleine, who hit 6 of 7 shots.

Olajuwon said Kleine shouldn't be underestimated.

"We played against each other in the Southwest Conference, and I respect him," Olajuwon said. "So when they're saying they don't have a center, there's Joe Kleine, 6-11, very strong, can shoot. He's a decent big man, so you have to give him credit."

Outstanding wrestler

Pampa High senior Corey Alfonsi (right) was named the outstanding wrestler during this year's wrestling banquet. Presenting Alfonsi with the award is head coach Steve Kuhn. Alfonsi finished second in the state tournament this year.

Pampa draws bye in district playoff

Pampa gained the bye post in a District 1-4A baseball playoff series to determine which two teams advance to post-season playoffs.

Pampa, Borger and Randall game all tied for first place in district action, each team having 8-4 records.

After a meeting of coaches in Amarillo on Wednesday morning, a playoff series was set up among the three teams.

District playoffs will begin in Dumas at 4:30 p.m. Friday, with Randall and Borger playing. Pampa, which won a coin toss to determine the bye, will play the winner of that game at 7:30 p.m.

"Getting the bye does not put us in the playoffs automatically," PHS head coach Dennis Doughty pointed out.

If Pampa wins the Friday night game, then the Harvesters will go to the 4A playoffs as first seed. If Pampa loses, then the Harvesters will play the loser of the Friday afternoon game at 1 p.m. Saturday.

The winner of the Saturday game will go to the playoffs as the second seed team.

The three-way district tie came after Randall spoiled Pampa's chances of winning the District 1-4A baseball championship outright, defeating the Harvesters 13-5 Tuesday at Harvester Field.

The Harvesters, 12-9 overall, were all alone in first place in the 1-4A standings going into Tuesday's tilt.

Pampa junior righthander Todd Finney has been named the player of the month for April by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

Reds' Jarvis hurls first complete game of season

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

After 172 games over the first 15 days of the season, the complete game drought and solo shutout shortage came to an end on Day 16.

The unlikely winner: Kevin Jarvis of the Cincinnati Reds.

"He was just a name. Other than that, none of us had heard of him. I doubt any of us had ever faced him," Marlins first baseman Greg Colbrunn said.

The 25-year-old right-hander pitched a two-hitter Wednesday night, beating Florida 3-0. It was the first complete game of the season in either league and it came much later than it usually would.

The reason: Pitchers, even when they were throwing well, have been pulled from games after six, seven or eight innings to prevent them from throwing too many pitches too early in the season. Also, teams are carrying an extra pitcher or two since rosters are temporarily expanded to 28.

"It is surprising considering the shortened spring training we all had, but he had a lot of quick innings and that helped," Reds catcher Eddie Taubensee said.

Jarvis, making his third start of the season and his ninth career major league appearance, threw 110 pitches, struck out three and walked two. The only hits he allowed were a double to Colbrunn in the second inning and a two-out single to Gary Sheffield in the ninth.

Jarvis didn't allow any runners to reach third base and retired 13 in a row at one point, keeping the Marlins winless (0-7) at home this season.

In other games, Philadelphia beat Montreal 10-1, Colorado beat San Francisco 8-4, Los Angeles beat San Diego 3-1, New York beat Atlanta 5-2 and St. Louis beat Chicago 10-1. The Houston at Pittsburgh game was rained out. Phillies 10, Expos 1.

Philadelphia won its seventh in a row and opened a three-game lead in the NL East.

Darren Daulton and Tony Longmire were both 4-for-5 and Jim Eisenreich went 3-for-5. Tyler Green (2-1) allowed only three hits and struck out six in six shutout innings.

Gil Heredia (1-2), the starter for the visiting Expos, allowed four runs and six hits in four innings.

Vaughn leads Red Sox surge

By The Associated Press

Mo Vaughn is having a classic all-or-nothing season. Lee Tinsley is having a classic make-your-career season, and as a result, the Boston Red Sox are in first place in the AL East.

Vaughn is batting .200 with 10 hits, but six of his last eight hits have been homers, tying him with Matt Williams for the major-league lead.

"Give me some 4-for-4 days," Vaughn said. "There's still some things to be done. I want to get some base hits to go with the power."

Vaughn and Tinsley both hit two-run homers Wednesday night in Boston's 6-2 victory over Baltimore, but Tinsley has been far more consistent than the veteran Vaughn.

Tinsley, a .215 hitter in two major-league seasons with 352 strikeouts in two minor-league seasons, has hit safely in all 13 Red Sox games this season and is batting .418, earning his promotion from ninth to first in the batting order. He is playing center field in place of Otis Nixon, traded to Texas for Jose Canseco in the offseason.

"I think Tinsley's very capable of being a .300 hitter in the big leagues," Red Sox manager Kevin Kennedy said.

Elsewhere in the AL, it was Cleveland 3, Kansas City 2 in 10 innings; New York 6, Toronto 4 in 11 innings; Chicago 8, Minnesota 7; Detroit 4, Milwaukee 2 in 10 innings in the completion of a suspended game, then Milwaukee 13, Detroit 2 in the regularly scheduled game; Oakland 7, Seattle 4; and California 11, Texas 2.

Athletics 7, Mariners 4. Steve Ontiveros signed a one-year $900,000 contract earlier in the day, then limited Seattle to five hits in 7 2-3 innings at Oakland.

Mark McGwire, Scott Brosius and Ruben Sierra homered for the A's, and Rickey Henderson, whose ninth-inning pinch-hit homer beat Seattle on Tuesday, had a two-run double in the fourth that put Oakland up 5-3.

Ontiveros (2-1), who made $175,000 last year, surrendered a three-run homer to Jay Buhner, but the Mariners did little damage other than that.

Dennis Eckersley pitched a perfect ninth for his fourth save of the season and 298th of his career. He now has 30 saves against both Seattle and California, his high against any opponent.

Angels 11, Rangers 2. Chili Davis went 5-for-5, the first five-hit game of his 15-year major-league career.

After his two-run double off Bob Tewksbury in the first inning, Davis greeted reliever Wilson Heredia with a three-run homer in the fourth, capping a five-run outburst that gave the host Angels a 9-0 lead. Davis singled in his other three at-bats.

Scott Sanderson (1-1) shut out the Rangers through the first six innings before Ivan Rodriguez hit an RBI double in the seventh. Mickey Tettleton hit his fifth homer in the ninth.

Indians 3, Royals 2. Cleveland rallied to tie the game in the bottom of the ninth against relief ace Jeff Montgomery, then won it with one out in the 10th on an RBI single by Manny Ramirez. The victory was the fourth straight for the Indians, including a sweep of three games with the Royals.

Carlos Baerga started the 10th with a double off Rusty Meacham (1-2), the Royals' fourth pitcher. After Albert Belle lined out, Eddie Murray — leading the American League in hitting — was walked intentionally.

Center fielder Tom Goodwin grabbed Ramirez's hit on the run, and the throw arrived on one bounce to catcher Pat Borders, who missed the ball as he tried to sweep a tag on the sliding Baerga.

Eric Plunk (1-0) pitched 1 1-3 hitless innings for the win.

Tigers 4-2, Brewers 2-13.

Milwaukee's seven runs in the fourth inning keyed its victory over visiting Detroit in the regularly scheduled game after Alan Trammell's two-run double won for the Tigers in a game that was suspended by rain one night earlier.

The Brewers, with the majors' lowest payroll, had 15 hits in the second game, including two doubles and three RBIs by B.J. Surhoff. The seven runs in the fourth inning chased Mike Moore (2-1).

White Sox 8, Twins 7. Chris Sabo's two-run homer in the eighth, his first career homer in a pinch-hit role, gave Chicago a three-game sweep.

Sabo's homer off Mark Guthrie (1-2) followed a single by Ray Durham, who finished with three hits and four RBIs.

Jerald Clark tied the game with a pinch-hit homer in the top of the eighth for the Twins, and Scott Leis' sacrifice fly put them ahead 7-6.

Yankees 6, Blue Jays 4.

Bernie Williams hit a two-run homer in the 11th inning, ending the Yankees' three-game skid.

Mike Stanley led off the inning with a walk off Woody Williams (0-1). Bernie Williams followed with his second home run of the season.

John Wetteland (1-0) worked three innings for the win despite allowing Ed Sprague's second homer of the game, tying the score 4-4 in the ninth. It was Wetteland's first blown save in six opportunities this season.

Pat Kelly led off the eighth with his first homer of the season, pulling the Yankees into a 3-3 tie, and they took a 4-3 lead on Jim Leyritz's RBI single.

Wheeler girls win 1A golf championship

AUSTIN — The Wheeler girls' team easily won the Class 1A state championship this season.

The Lady Mustangs had a two-round total of 797, finishing 54 strokes ahead of second-place Lago Vista. Their score on Tuesday's final round of play was a 397 at the Morris Williams Golf Course.

Kasey McCasland was Wheeler's top individual, tying Petersburg's Skye Porter with a two-round score of 169. Porter beat McCasland in a playoff for the first-place medalist. Wheeler's Angie Thomas was third with a two-round total of 185.

Other Wheeler scores were Rachel Smith 221, Mika Goad 222 and Marcie Kuehler 289.

Bronte finished third in the team standings with an 858.

In the boys division, Booker won the 1A title with a 664. Meridan was second at 684.

Nic Ketcherside of Farwell was medalist with a two-round score of 158. Tyler Maxfield of Booker was second with a score of 161. Kelly Weintette of Booker was fourth at 165.

Farwell was third in the team standings at 697.

Jordan returns to superstar form

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — He had 23 on his back, 45 on his shoes and determination in his eyes. Michael Jordan was his superstar self again, leading Chicago to another playoff victory, a 104-94 triumph that evened the Bulls' Eastern Conference semifinal against Orlando at one game apiece.

Jordan uncharacteristically made mistakes that cost his team Game 1. He was so determined to make amends Wednesday night that he surprised almost everyone, his teammates included, by slipping on the jersey he and the Bulls had said he'd never wear again.

Jordan was No. 45 when he was held to 19 points on 8-for-22 shooting and failed to take care of the ball in crunch time in Orlando's 94-91 victory in Game 1. No. 23 made 11 of 13 shots in the second half and finished with 38 points in Game 2.

Why he made the change, Jordan wasn't saying. He left Orlando Arena without speaking to reporters, leaving others to compare the No. 23 to the No. 45 of three nights earlier.

"He had a little more determination," said the Magic's Nick Anderson, whose defense on Jordan was one of the keys to the opener. "He came out focused and ready to play."

Jordan, however, didn't take over at the expense of not involving others in the offense. Scottie Pippen also rebounded from a subpar performance (7 points on 2-for-11 shooting in Game 1) with 22 points as Chicago shot 51 percent compared to 44 percent in the opener.

"There's still a lot of ball left, but this gives us a real boost," the Bulls' Steve Kerr said, looking ahead to Game 3 Friday night at the United Center in Chicago.

Shaquille O'Neal led Orlando with 25 points, but had only six in the fourth quarter when he was slowed by foul trouble. Horace Grant had 23 points and 15 rebounds.

Historic treaty extension awaits adoption by U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — In 11th-hour bargaining, diplomats cleared away one last hurdle — a dispute over Israel's nuclear weapons — to approving an indefinite extension of the Non-Proliferation Treaty today.

A carefully crafted compromise, including the extension decision and a list of arms control goals, awaited adoption today as a month-long global conference on the nuclear treaty neared its end.

The U.S.-sponsored extension decision makes permanent a 25-year-old pact that has drawn the line, largely successfully, against the spread of nuclear weapons in the world.

The list of goals, which includes completion of a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty by next year, is paired with a plan for annual international meetings to review progress toward the goals.

Some disarmament advocates dismissed this scheme as meaningless because the goals are not binding on the nuclear powers. But others welcomed it as a step forward.

"Strengthening the review procedures means this conference is working out better than most of us had hoped," said Joseph Cirincione, head of a coalition of U.S. arms control groups.

The extension decision was originally expected Wednesday, but a last-minute resolution on Israel, submitted by 14 Arab states, forced a one-day postponement.

That surprise resolution demanded the Israelis "without delay" sign the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty — and, consequently, dismantle their clandestine nuclear weapons program.

Israel has said only that it will consider signing the treaty two years after it wins peace agreements with all Middle Eastern states.

After hours of closed-door talks between U.S. and Arab delegates, a compromise emerged.

The resolution, to be adopted today, does not single out Israel by name but calls on all states in the region without safeguards on nuclear facilities to submit to such controls. It also links elimination of nuclear weapons in the Middle East to achievement of a broad peace accord.

The 1970 Non-Proliferation Treaty had only a 25-year guaranteed term. It stipulated that in 1995, member states would have to decide how to extend it — for a fixed period or periods, or indefinitely.

Republicans pushing balanced-budget plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Democrats attacking them at every turn, Republicans Wednesday began pushing balanced-budget plans through Congress, looking for huge savings from Medicare and Medicaid and elimination of scores of federal programs.

"It is a revolution," GOP Rep. John Kasich of Ohio said as he gavelled the House Budget Committee to order to vote on the Republican proposal to force a balanced budget by 2002. A tote board served as backdrop, silently charting the ever-escalating federal debt, measured in 13 digits.

Across the Capitol, the counterpart committee in the Senate met to vote on a slightly different balanced-budget plan.

From the Commerce Department to the ranks of Congress, Democrats attacked the Republican proposals in a preview to a months-long political battle.

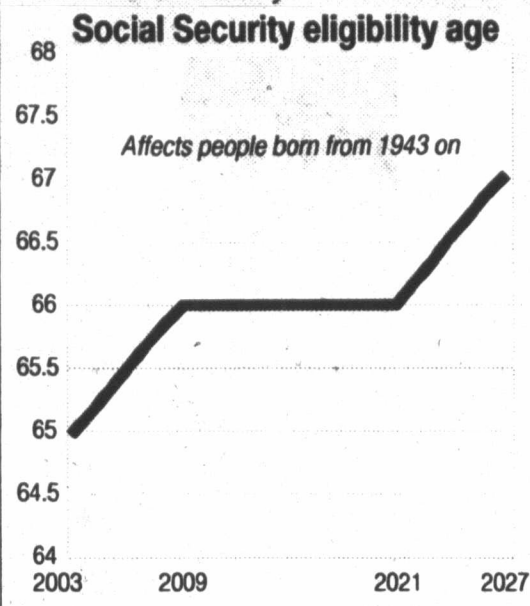

"It seems inconceivable that you can find justification for cutting medical care for seniors in order to give additional tax breaks to the wealthiest Americans and largest corporations," the two top Democratic leaders in Congress wrote the two top Republicans.

Republicans said Medicare needed reform to remain solvent, and said their proposals would merely slow the rate of growth in the giant health care program for senior citizens. Democrats said under Republican care, Medicare would spend $250 billion to $280 billion less than currently planned, and noted Medicaid was slated for additional savings in the Republican deficit assault.

In a slashing attack on President Clinton and the Democrats, Majority Leader Richard Armitage accused them of political fear-mongering. "The party that once lived by the motto, 'We have nothing to fear but fear itself' has been reduced to the motto: 'We have nothing to offer but fear itself,'" he said in remarks prepared for delivery to the American Enterprise Institute.

Saving Medicare

Congress is considering a plan to raise the eligibility age for Medicare to match that of Social Security.

AP/Wm. J. Castello

There was no doubt Republicans had the votes to prevail in committee over outnumbered Democrats as they worked to redeem last fall's campaign pledge to shrink government and eliminate the federal deficit.

From the huge Commerce Department to the Commission on Fine Arts, Republicans propose killing agencies, programs and commissions by the dozens. Tax cuts emerged as the largest difference between the blueprint offered by the House and the one in the Senate.

Tax cuts were the principal point of contention for the Republicans. In the House, they left room for the $189 billion in cuts over five years approved last month as part of the "Contract With America."

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici's budget includes room for a cut to take effect when the Congressional Budget Office certifies that lawmakers have passed a plan that would achieve a balanced budget. Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, a GOP presidential contender, is expected to lead the fight on the Senate floor for a tax cut only slightly smaller than the one the House voted for.

"We believe any proposal to eliminate the Commerce Department simply does not make sense," said Jonathon Sallett. This rejuvenated department provides bang for the buck.

Kasich's aides distributed a five-page list. It ran from two other Cabinet-level agencies to six separate programs at Howard University, a historically black school in the nation's capital that receives funding from the federal government.

Pentagon spending would be reined in under both proposals; many federal programs turned over to the states as part of block grants; and agencies eliminated in the most far-reaching restructuring of government since the New Deal six decades ago.

Both proposals call for elimination of the Commerce Department, while the House GOP also proposed phasing out the departments of Energy and Education. Other programs threatened with extinction are the Legal Services Corp.; National Endowment for the Arts; mass transit operating subsidies; and Clinton's prized volunteer service program.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich and his chief lieutenants decided at the last moment against proposing curbs in cost-of-living increases for millions of federal military and civilian retirees. A proposal along those lines drew sharp protests from some lawmakers concerned about the political fallout.

Neither Republican plan would make any change in Social Security.

Sovereign citizen sues city of Abilene

ABILENE (AP) — An Abilene policeman who says he has renounced his citizenship is suing the city for stealing his money because of the income tax it has withheld from his paychecks.

Officer Greg Parks also objects to the city's reporting his earnings to the federal government, according to the documents filed in state district court.

City attorneys said little about the case Wednesday, but told the Abilene Reporter-News that it seemed to be a federal issue because it involves a federal withholding requirement.

Parks, who is representing himself, claims he is a sovereign state citizen — not a U.S. citizen — and shouldn't be forced to pay taxes against his will. He says he has rescinded his Social Security number.

In January, Parks unsuccessfully petitioned the city to stop withholding taxes from his paycheck. City attorneys responded that Parks would have to supply a letter from the Internal Revenue Service stating he is exempt from the law.
