PAMPA, TEXAS

Good Evening!

LOCAL

PAMPA — The M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium and Civic Center has expanded its hours to be open for business Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

"This will help us better serve our customers in two ways," Auditorium Manager Seleta Chance said.

"First, it allows us to not charge a building superintendent fee for groups setting up for an event Saturday night, if they move their equipment in that day.

"Secondly, we often have requests from clubs and organizations from out of town to tour the facility on Saturday," she added. "In the past, this has required rescheduling personnel in order to have the building open. With the new schedule, customers can call or come by on Saturday and schedule their event on our activity calendar."

Chance also said many of the auditorium's events are annual events and can book a year in advance, so it is best to check on space availability as much in advance as possible.

PAMPA — John Trippelhorn, president of Freedom Museum USA, announced today that the museum soon will receive a U.S. Marine Corps PBJ plane. Known more familiarly to the public as a B-25 Mitchell bomber, PBJ is the Department of Navy designation for the same aircraft.

The museum will build a large exhibition hangar north of the museum to house the PBJ and other aircraft it eventually will acquire. It is estimated that the project will cost more than one-half million dollars.

The dark blue bomber, fully restored by conservators at the U.S. Marine Corps aviation museum in Quantico, Va., was destined for static display at the USMC museum in Cherry Point, N.C., but funding cuts forced the USMC Museums Branch to find another home for the vintage World War II bomber.

PAMPA — The Gray County 4-H Clubs will be having a fund-raiser sale of potted geraniums on Saturday.

The geranium flower sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Dobson Cellular's parking lot, 2131 Perryton Parkway. Assorted colors of geraniums will be sold in 4-inch pots for $2.

Proceeds will benefit programs for all county 4-H clubs.

WORLD

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada and Mexico have agreed to jointly oppose U.S. legislation to punish them and other nations that trade with Cuba.

Canada's foreign affairs minister, Andre Ouellet, and his Mexican counterpart, Jose Angel Gurria, said the bill by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., is inappropriate under the North American Free Trade Agreement.

"We have indicated how displeased we are with the Helms' legislation," Ouellet said after the two met in Ottawa Thursday.

"We will work together with others to make sure that such legislation does not have consequences on third countries."

Evidence grows against McVeigh

By TOM HAYS
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — One witness spotted Timothy McVeigh driving a rental truck toward the federal building. Another saw him minutes later, speeding away in a car just before an explosion ripped through the building.

The alleged sightings, and those of several other witnesses, are part of what a U.S. magistrate called "an indelible trail of evidence" against the only person charged so far with the deadly April 19 bombing.

A manhunt continued today for a second suspect, known only as "John Doe No. 2" — who authorities fear may bomb again.

At a hearing Thursday, U.S. Magistrate Ronald Howland found sufficient evidence to hold McVeigh without bail pending a trial.

A grand jury will be asked to return an indictment. McVeigh, 27, is charged under a federal anti-terrorism statute that carries the death penalty.

"I could not imagine a more heinous offense than this," federal prosecutor Merrick Garland told Howland.

The death toll stood at 110 today, including 15 children killed in the destruction of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building.

At the building, a firefighter and an FBI agent sustained minor injuries overnight, and a major part of the search was called off after a slab of concrete broke loose and slid into the area that held a Social Security office and day care center, Assistant Fire Chief Jon Hansen said.

Hansen did not know when the search could continue in the area known as "the pit," where firefighters expect to find many bodies. Authorities had expected to have all the bodies out by early next week, but Hansen said that may no longer be possible because of the delay.

During McVeigh's preliminary hearing, FBI Special Agent John Hershey testified for four hours, describing accounts of several witnesses. He also testified that authorities fear John Doe 2 may strike again.

The success of the manhunt may hinge on Arizona license plate LZC646.

When McVeigh was stopped by a state trooper less than 90 minutes after the explosion, his yellow Mercury Marquis was missing the plate. The FBI is still looking for the plate, said Special Agent Weldon Kennedy, who is in charge of the investigation.

Investigators have recovered a videotape showing that the "plate was on a vehicle in Oklahoma City before the blast," according to a federal law enforcement source in Washington who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Why would it be useful now? "It might be on the ground," and the location might help pinpoint an escape route leading to John Doe 2, the source said.

The source said there has been no reliable sighting of John Doe 2 since the explosion.

Arizona records show the plate belongs to a 1983 Pontiac station wagon that McVeigh registered in that state in February. McVeigh lived in a trailer park outside Kingman, Ariz., from June through September 1993. He continued to pick up mail at a private postal company as recently as early this month.

Playing a little chess during a Pampa Chess Club meeting is Brandon Berner, 10. The newly formed club is for novice and expert players. Current ages range from 11 to 37 and skill levels are from beginner to master level. The club meets at 7 p.m. every Tuesday night, currently meeting at the Coronado Inn. The club will hold tournaments and give instruction. For more information, call James Shook at 669-0227.

Clinton urges Congress to move swiftly on his anti-terrorism proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton urged Congress today to move swiftly on his anti-terrorism proposal, saying "we must not dawdle or delay" in giving government new tools to prevent a repeat of the Oklahoma City bombing.

"The American people want us to stop terrorism," Clinton said during a Rose Garden appearance. "They want us to put away anyone involved in it. We must not allow politics to drag us into endless quibbling over an important national item."

Clinton, who unveiled his anti-terrorism plan on Wednesday, said he was "encouraged so far" by the response of members of Congress from both parties and called for continued cooperation.

"We must not delay the work we have to do to keep the American people safe and to try to prevent further acts of this kind," Clinton said. "We must allow the American people to get on with their lives and all of that is caught up in this measure."

FBI Director Louis Freeh warned Thursday that "the face and hand" of terrorism are changing and called for better intelligence-gathering tools to prevent future terrorist incidents.

If it had expanded resources, the FBI would use them without trampling on constitutional protections, Freeh promised at a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing Thursday.

"We must intensify our focus on the threat to America from within by individuals and domestic groups who may have no foreign connections," Freeh said, testifying for Clinton's new anti-terrorism proposals.

"Intelligence ... should not be considered a dirty word. The FBI is entirely comfortable with the Constitution, due process rights, congressional oversight, legal process, and the American jury system."

Jamie Gorelick, the deputy attorney general, presented Clinton's plan, which she said carried a price tag of $1.25 billion over five years, including the addition of $150 million to the current 1995 budget.

"We think we have a strong and solid and cohesive approach," she said.

Clinton wants to hire 1,000 new law enforcement personnel, place traceable materials in chemicals, make terrorism a federal crime, and allow the FBI to gather more information about potential domestic terrorists. Among the proposed methods: giving the FBI better surveillance techniques and access to credit reports and telephone records in terrorism cases.

"The face and the hand of terrorism are changing dramatically," Freeh said.

Teen sentenced in Vidor slaying

HOUSTON (AP) — A Beaumont teenager has been sentenced to life in prison as punishment for the capital murder of one of four blacks who moved into a previously all-white public housing complex in Vidor.

A jury needed only two hours and 20 minutes Thursday to convict David Jarone Brown, 18, of fatally shooting Bill Simpson during an aborted robbery that police say was not related to the integration.

Prosecutors did not seek the death penalty because Brown was only 17 and had no criminal record at the time of the killing, so State District Judge Charles Carver automatically sentenced him to life in prison.

Brown must serve at least 40 years before becoming eligible for parole. Simpson, 37, gained attention as the 7-foot tall Vidor resident who had complained of racial taunts and threats of violence when he became the last of the blacks to move out of the complex.

He was shot to death on a Beaumont street corner Sept. 1, 1993, less than 12 hours after he moved out of the complex.

Poll: Texans want term limits except for their local lawmakers

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans favor the idea of limiting politicians' terms, but they're not too crazy about dumping their own local lawmakers, a pollster says.

"Texans want to limit the terms of their neighbors' legislators, but not their own," said pollster Bryan Eppstein of the Eppstein Group Inc.

Eppstein said a survey conducted this month for a nonpartisan coalition of professional and trade groups found 65 percent of Texans favoring the term limits concept.

But 54 percent also responded favorably when asked if they supported "the right to re-elect local state legislators who are doing a good job, regardless of how long they have served."

Eppstein said voters "appear to have a dual standard" about term limits. "The local ballot box still appears to (be) the term limit of preference in Texas," he said Thursday.

The Texas Senate has approved a proposed constitutional amendment that would limit service in the Texas House, state Senate or top statewide offices to 12 years. If the House approves the proposal, it would go before voters in a statewide referendum.

The bill now is pending before the House State Affairs Committee.

Eppstein conducted a telephone survey of 1,001 randomly selected registered voters in 140 of the state's 254 counties from April 14-21. He put the margin of error at plus or minus 3.16 percent.

Asked whether they favored or opposed term limits, 44 percent said "strongly favor" and 21 percent said "somewhat favor," a total of 65 percent. Only 13 percent were opposed and 22 percent undecided.

Asked whether they were generally satisfied with the job their local legislators were doing, 60 percent said yes, 27 percent said no, and 13 percent were undecided.

They also were asked, "And with term limits in mind, do you favor or oppose preserving the right of voters to re-elect local state legislators who are doing a good job, regardless of how long they have served?"

To that, 30 percent said they were strongly in favor and 24 percent somewhat in favor; 23 percent were strongly opposed and 16 percent were somewhat opposed, while 7 percent were undecided.

"Ultimately, it appears that the voters in Texas value their right to re-elect a local official based on job performance, not job tenure," Eppstein said.

McVeigh

Michigan records show he bought the Pontiac for $100 in January from his friend James Douglas Nichols.

Nichols and his brother, Terry, are being held as material witnesses. They have also been charged in Michigan with conspiring with McVeigh to build and detonate homemade bombs at James Nichols' farm.

The Nichols brothers are not charged in the Oklahoma bombing, and McVeigh is not charged in Michigan. James Nichols was to return to court this afternoon outside Detroit for a hearing on whether he should be released on bond.

A crumpled business card found in the police car that carried McVeigh to jail led investigators to Paulsen's Military Supply in Antigo, Wis.

Owner Ed Paulsen called himself "a victim of circumstances," but refused to comment further. Langlade County Sheriff Dave Steger said the Paulsens told the FBI they had no knowledge of McVeigh and suggested the suspect could have picked up the card at a gun show. He said federal authorities "were comfortable" that McVeigh and John Doe 2 hadn't been to Antigo.

The Los Angeles Times reported today that investigators were looking into whether Paulsen and his son, who investigators believe lives in Chicago, had supplied the small explosive devices needed to set off the Oklahoma City bomb.

The Times, citing anonymous sources, said investigators were also trying to determine whether McVeigh's 21-year-old sister, Jennifer, knew of the bombing conspiracy. The Times said Jennifer McVeigh had told friends, who have been interviewed by the FBI, that "something big is going to happen in March or April and Tim's involved."

Timothy McVeigh used similar words in a conversation with Terry Nichols three days before the bombing, a prosecutor said Wednesday.

The Army also conducted an inventory at Fort Riley, Kan., where McVeigh once served, and found no blasting caps, explosives or detonator devices missing. Maj. Ben Santos said the 60mm anti-tank rocket rocket confiscated at the Herington, Kan., home of Terry Nichols, who also served at Fort Riley, is an old model not in use at the fort.

McVeigh began his defense Thursday looking more like an awkward teenager fresh out of gym class than a man accused of committing the worst act of domestic terrorism in U.S. history. He wore a wrinkled white T-shirt, khaki pants, blue canvas sneakers and arm shackles for the hearing at the El Reno Federal Correctional Facility, about 30 miles west of Oklahoma City.

The hearing was held in the prison visitors' room because the blast damaged the federal courthouse in downtown Oklahoma City. Attorneys' arguments and witness testimony competed with the loud hum of a bank of vending machines.

McVeigh listened intently, showing little emotion but becoming more animated as the hearing wore on. He seemed most interested when one of his attorneys showed the court a large collection of newspaper headlines about the case.

Hershey testified that traces of detonator cord were found on the clothing McVeigh wore when he was pulled over for the missing license plate.

He also said a parking meter tender told the FBI she saw McVeigh driving a rental truck toward her in the direction of the building shortly before the blast. The truck was moving slowly enough that she thought the driver was going to stop and ask directions.

A few minutes later, a man said he saw McVeigh and another man speeding away in a yellow Mercury, "obviously in an effort to avoid the bomb blast," Hershey said.

Cowboy poets to gather for roundup in Amarillo

AMARILLO — Sarah Gill from Miami will be one of more than two dozen cowboy poets gathering during the Cowboy Roundup, USA, in May at the fairgrounds in Amarillo.

Cowboy Roundup, USA, being produced by The Outfit, a Texas Panhandle western heritage group, includes the seventh annual Outfit Rodeo, a chuck wagon cook off and cowboy poets and musician presentations. It is scheduled for May 19 through 21 at the Tri-State Fairgrounds in Amarillo.

A Cowboy Poetry show is set from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. or later, Saturday, May 20, in the Rex Baxter Building at the fairgrounds, according to Pat Henry, president of the Southwest Cowboy Poets Association.

Among the poets and musicians scheduled to appear at the celebration are Jack Blease of Frederick, Colorado; Rick and Regina Brumley of Borger; Charlie Cahill, Midwest City, Okla.; Alvin Davis, Lubbock; Duke Davis, Pecos, N.M.; Dean

Foster, Los Cruces, N.M.; Gene Grassie and Charlene, Dexter, N.M.; Jack McCarty, Nara Visa, N.M.; Vince and Valerie Moss, Dimmitt; Rusty Nichols, Borger; Bud Paine, Fort Worth; Roger Ruidosa, N.M.; Andy Wilkinson, Lubbock; Perry Williams, Lubbock, and the Walker Family, Hereford.

The rodeo starts each evening at 7:30 p.m., said Quien Stapleton with The Outfit.

The rodeo benefits the Childrens Miracle Network, Stapleton said.

Ex-lawmaker's son indicted in KFC slayings

HENDERSON (AP) — While an ex-lawmaker's son went silently to jail on five capital murder indictments, relatives of restaurant kidnapping victims were vocal about their 1983 slayings.

"We're so thrilled about the indictments," Lana Maxwell Chiles, the widow of victim David Maxwell, said Thursday. "We waited so long for this man to go to trial. We are encouraged. But there is no honor among thieves."

In addition to Maxwell, 20, other victims included Joseph (Joey) Johnson, 20, Monte Landers, 19, Mary Tyler, 37, the assistant manager of the restaurant, and Opie Hughes, 39, another employee.

They were kidnapped Sept. 23, 1983, during a $2,000 robbery at around closing time at the Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant in Kilgore, about 110 miles east of Dallas. Their bodies were found on an oil lease in neighboring Rusk County the next day. Each victim had been shot in the head.

James Earl Mankins Jr. was in Rusk County Jail today in lieu of $2.5 million in bonds after a special grand jury indicted him Thursday afternoon in the slayings of those abducted from a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant.

Mankins' father, owner of a Kilgore transportation company, served several terms as a Democrat in the state House of Representatives. James "Jimmy" Mankins Sr., 69, was re-elected in 1982 but ousted in the next election.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales, in announcing the indictments, said grand jurors' terms have been extended three months to consider any additional evidence, with the belief that others were involved in the shooting deaths.

"We are going to seek justice. I believe that the nature of the crimes that were perpetrated here speaks for themselves," he said. "Frankly, in my personal opinion, I would characterize what occurred not really as acts of murder. I believe these were acts of coldblooded execution."

His eyes shaded by dark, round sunglasses, the handcuffed Mankins appeared before state District Judge Donald R. Ross, who ordered him held on $500,000 bonds in each of the five counts.

The judge also agreed to appoint Mankins an attorney after the defendant's sworn statement that he was poor and could not afford one.

"Judge Ross, at this time I have no attorney. I am indigent and need an attorney immediately," Mankins, wearing blue jeans and a green shirt, said in a handwritten statement to the court. "I have turned myself in to Rusk County and seek your consideration."

State House tentatively approves new emissions testing legislation

AUSTIN (AP) — Drivers in regions of the state with poor air quality would be required to begin emissions testing June 1 under a bill given tentative approval by the Texas House.

The measure gives Gov. George W. Bush the authority to negotiate with federal regulators about how best to administer the vehicle emissions testing program in light of changing Environmental Protection Agency policy.

With a deadline for the state to resume emissions testing looming just days away, the House adopted a proposal Thursday by state Rep. Jim Horn, R-Denton, that appears to have the backing of the Senate and Bush.

The Senate last week had approved a plan to delay testing until 1997.

"I know the governor will sign it and Sen. (John) Whitmire and I have been working together for months on this program," Horn said.

Whitmire, the bill's Senate sponsor, said the measure, which faces a final House vote Friday, would be supported in the Senate.

Under Horn's proposal, motorists in Dallas-Fort Worth and El Paso County would be required beginning June 1 to have tailpipe tests at sites where state inspections are done.

Drivers in Houston and Denton and Collin counties would need to undergo visual inspections of pollution control equipment.

The tests would be required annually as part of the state inspection process.

John Steib, of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, said Beaumont and Port Arthur had previously been classified as a "nonattainment" zone, but are expected to be exempted by the EPA.

Steib said emissions registrations that would have been required beginning May 2 would be suspended under the House bill until the new June 1 start date.

Opponents of Horn's proposal said it would not meet federal requirements and would result in the loss of federal highway funds.

But Bush's office said Horn's bill gives the governor flexibility in trying to fine-tune the emissions testing program as the EPA changes its policy.

"Gov. Bush has said he supports maximum convenience for consumers and flexibility so that the state can change the program as needed as the EPA changes its rules," said Bush spokeswoman Karen Hughes.

Horn's proposal was an amendment to a bill by Rep. Warren Chisum, D-Pampa, who had proposed more stringent emissions examinations at centralized testing centers. But critics called the bill too inconvenient for consumers.

Horn's amendment was approved 92-54 before the House approved the entire bill on a voice vote. If the bill receives 100 votes on Friday, it could take effect immediately. An amendment to the bill approved by the House called for Texas Testing Technology, the company with a state contract to test vehicles in Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth, to pay back $8.8 million loaned by the state within 90 days.

Bob Miller, president of Texas Testing, said Horn's proposal wipes out a $100 million investment by the company to carry out emissions testing in Texas. Miller said the House's actions should send shock waves to other businesses considering contracts with the state.

Baker gains TASB training

EL PASO — Pampa Independent School District trustee Jimmie C. Baker was among 35 Texas school board members gathering in El Paso recently to discuss the board's role in promoting diversity and multicultural understanding among schools and families.

The trustees met in El Paso April 6-8 for the fourth of five Leadership TASB training sessions. Leadership TASB is an education leadership program for school board members sponsored by the Texas Association of School Boards (TASB).

Valuing diversity was the common thread that linked the program's sessions, which began with a cross-cultural simulation workshop facilitated by Robena Jackson, owner of Robena Jackson Agency, a visioning and strategic planning firm.

Program participants visited El Paso area school districts, including Ysleta ISD's culinary art school, alternative education site and other innovative programs; Fabens ISD's on-site health care clinic and high school; property-poor San Elizario ISD; and El Paso ISD Alamo Elementary. Herbert Y. Wong, president of Quantum Solutions, presented an evening session, "Optimizing the Future of Schools in Times of Change."

The group wrapped up the training program with a discussion led by Maria Montano-Harmon, a professor of secondary education and linguistics at California State University. She focused on the important role school boards play in building cultural bridges between schools and communities in her session, "Understanding Diversity Through the Legal and Professional Responsibilities of Policymakers."

"Diversity awareness sessions are a staple of the Leadership TASB training," said Virginia Trchalek, Leadership TASB program manager. "Board members must be aware of and sensitive to the demographic trends in our schools. Setting effective policy and serving the needs of children of a diverse population can be done only with thorough understanding of the needs of this population."

Leaking gas line explodes, killing dozens of people

TAEGU, South Korea (AP) — A leaking gas line exploded during morning rush hour today, tossing cars, buses, and heavy metal plates from a temporary road into the air like dominoes. At least 96 people were killed.

Rescue workers said 161 people were injured, many seriously.

"It was like a nuclear bomb exploding," high school student Kim Dong-duk said. He arrived early for school, only to watch from across a street as the blast flung vehicles filled with classmates into the air.

About 80 students never showed up today at his school. Two other nearby schools said dozens of students were missing.

The explosion was caused when a spark from a subway construction site ignited gas escaping from a broken pipe, police said.

Taegu, a provincial capital of 2.2 million people about 140 miles south of Seoul, is the country's third-largest city. The subway — Taegu's first — was near completion after more than three years of work.

The national news agency Yonhap suggested that construction workers, using cranes and other heavy equipment, might have damaged the gas line accidentally. It did not elaborate.

Gas company officials said they were investigating the cause.

The explosion blew off and scattered heavy metal sheets serving as a temporary road over a 900-foot stretch of the construction site. Kim said he saw metal construction beams thrown into the air as high as a 15-story building.

Some 2,500 soldiers, police, firefighters and volunteers worked desperately to find survivors. Huge cranes were used to lift the beams. Two helicopters, along with dozens of ambulances, ferried the injured to nearby hospitals.

"There are torn limbs, blood everywhere," said Choi Hong, one of the rescue workers. "A lot of the people down there are kids, kids who were crushed to death."

As many as 100 cars and city buses were engulfed in flames. Some tumbled more than 30 feet into the exposed excavation site.

Passersby cried and hugged as rescue workers carried out bloodied, unconscious victims from the construction site. Rescue efforts were being hindered by a broken water main that officials feared could drown some survivors.

Cars were mangled and crushed like paper cups. Bloodied clothes and schoolbags were scattered helter-skelter.

Beams landed atop buildings, cars and passersby. Several buildings were burned black, and a dozen more were shaken hard by the explosion. Houses had broken windows up to 2 1/2 miles away, Yonhap said.

"There was a tower of fire rising out from underground," said Choe Byong-kil, who had been working at his nearby bookshop when the blast knocked him unconscious.

South Korean President Kim Young-sam ordered all government offices to do their utmost to save as many of the injured as possible, while Home Minister Kim Yong-tae expressed condolences to the families of the victims.

But an opposition party blamed the government for the accident, calling it evidence of incompetence. The New Peoples Party also demanded a thorough investigation and harsh punishment for those found at fault.

Cowboys head to Oklahoma to give support to bomb victims

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, coach Barry Switzer, quarterback Troy Aikman and several other players were bound for Oklahoma City today to lend emotional support to those distraught by the recent bombing tragedy.

The Cowboys planned to fly to Oklahoma City to spend a few hours with rescue workers, injured survivors and the families of victims. It will be Switzer's second visit this week.

"We're going to go see the unknown heroes, the real heroes," said Switzer, who on Tuesday attended the funeral of Secret Service agent Mickey Maroney. "If there's something we can do for those people, we will do it."

Switzer is extremely popular in the state because he was the head coach of the University of Oklahoma for 16 years.

Aikman, though, may be just as popular. He went to high school about 80 miles away from Oklahoma City in Henryetta, Okla.

Aikman has stayed on top of the situation since last Wednesday's bombing of the federal building because his sister, Tammy Powell, is a nurse at St. Anthony's Hospital, which is about five blocks from the blast site. Her husband also works at the hospital.

"They've been working around the clock," Aikman said.

Jones also has a close tie to the incident. For several years, he had an office directly across the street from the federal building.

"We certainly feel like Oklahoma is part of our Cowboy family," he said. "The thing we wanted to do was to offer our team as a sense of comfort if it could be in any way meaningful."

Other players making the trip said they too hope to be able to help raise spirits.

"We'll try to give the rescue workers some encouragement, let them know some people in Dallas care," said defensive tackle Russell Maryland.

Linebacker Dixon Edwards said, "If it brings a little joy to people in these sad times, then it's worth the trip."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on religious freedoms:

Much confusion still surrounds the debate on prayer in public schools. If left to their own devices, politicians and others who think American schools and courts hostile toward religion would take advantage of the chaos.

Organizations as diverse as the National Association of Evangelicals and the liberal People for the American Way agree that before they vote to change laws, people should understand what their rights are under current law. Some 30 religious and civil liberties groups recently released a handbook that spells out current guidelines under the law.

Issuing accurate information works to the advantage of groups on both sides of this issue. When politicians like Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., tell voters that they will fight to allow students to pray voluntarily in schools, voters should be informed enough to know that this would be a small feat — students already have that right.

Current law won't satisfy everyone. Religious conservatives may view the separation of church and state as an impediment to religious freedom. Civil libertarians may believe that the separation is already too porous and weak, and that changes in the law are needed to buttress it.

A strong separation is an assurance against the establishment of religion by the state, but it must not impede individuals' religious expressions. As our nation becomes more stratified along racial, ethnic and religious lines, disagreement may become even more common.

But when differences collide with confusion, debate grinds to a halt. If we are to change laws, let us do so based on what the law is, not on what it is perceived to be.

El Paso Herald-Post on government secrecy:

It's no secret in Washington that government information is not always classified for security reasons. Sometimes information is classified because its disclosure would be awkward, embarrassing or inconvenient. Information tends to get classified because doing so is easier and less hassle for bureaucrats. The memo classified "Top Secret" will not soon come back to haunt the classifier.

A prime example of that is the four-year battle The Albuquerque Tribune fought to win declassification of documents recording the radiation experiments on unwitting human guinea pigs. No national security issues were involved, only the government's desire to spare itself embarrassment and litigation.

President Clinton has taken a partial step toward abolishing this unnecessary secrecy. He signed an executive order that will make millions of previously secret documents public record, open to historians, researchers, journalists and the merely curious. Clinton mustn't let his drive for openness stop with this executive order.

Barring overriding security reasons, records should be open because that's the way a democracy operates. And — who knows? — we may have a better-run government if our officials know their reasoning will one day — preferably sooner than later — become public.

Viewpoints

It appears CBP would rather rural stations fail

Washington, D.C., is the nation's capital of surrealism. Special interest groups regularly paint a dark picture of "severe" spending cuts that never make a budgetary dent, but that's the game: If your program is even whispered as a target for a cut, scream bloody murder. The media won't correct the hyperbole. They'll thrive on it.

Take the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. CBS anchor Sharyl Attkisson reported on March 4: "(Newt) Gingrich is leading the drive for deep cuts in federal funds to pay for public broadcasting. For a start, his House Republicans have recommended slashing 15 percent."

"Deep cuts" and "slashing" must be in the network stylebook for explaining any cut. This tone sounds very much like the rhetoric of the public broadcasting elite and serves their cause well. CPB Chairman Henry Cauthen has called these cuts a "death blow." CPB President Richard Carlson has described the proposed CPB cuts as "devastating," warning ominously: "Some stations will be forced to close. National programming will contract significantly. Local production will decline on the order of 40 percent. This is not an exaggeration to make a point. It is a fact."

He might as well have announced the coming of the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse while he was at it. Carlson knows he is exaggerating. After all, the federal portion of public broadcasting's annual budget is but 14 percent. Thus, Cauthen's "death blow" and Carlson's "devastating" cut is merely 15 percent of 14 percent of $1.8 billion, or a fraction of a fraction of a monster.

The Republicans now claim they will get serious and remove public broadcasting from the federal dole completely in 1998, and to that end have offered several options. It has been demonstrated the PBS could generate millions of dollars for itself — as if this were necessary — by negotiating better merchandising agreements with producers. It has been suggested that CPB could save millions of dollars by refusing to fund the duplicate stations in 25 percent of the nation's markets. (The Washington, D.C., media market, for example, has no less than three PBS stations and two major NPR stations — why?)

Or, they could save millions by refusing to fund political propaganda on PBS. Let's begin with Frontline, which has absolutely no corporate or foundation underwriting. CPB spends an estimated $11 million on the show through PBS. Among other things, the show smeared the Reagan administration for the "October Surprise" and the "secret team" selling drugs to run the contras — and refused to apologize when their lies were exposed.

The obscure but scandalous slush fund called the Independent Television Service receives $8 million a year for left-wing films thanks to Reps. Henry Waxman and Ed Markey. Since 1989, it's received $38 million but has aired only nine shows, all with radical messages. Passin' It On, for example, celebrated Black Panther cop killer Dhoruba bin Wahad.

Pacifica Radio's five radio stations have received $1 million a year for radical-left programming. Last week, morning talk show host Julianne Malveaux labeled Hollywood racist because the disease spreading monkey in the movie Outbreak came from Africa not Asia. There are plenty of monkeys in Europe, she explained, "many of them heads of state." This is the same woman who said of Clarence Thomas on PBS, "I hope his wife feeds him lots of eggs and butter and he dies early like many black men do, of heart disease."

Point of View is funded in part by $250,000 from CPB, $250,000 from PBS and $375,000 from the NEA. Last year's season not only included Passin' It On but Times of a Sign, about a man put in jail for four days for stealing a "John Poindexter Street" sign. The show felt that was unfair since Reagan officials committed "the first-degree murder of millions of people." In One Nation Under God, therapists seeking to cure people of homosexuality are spiced next to footage of Nazi concentration camps.

Add this up and you've already taken care of almost $21 million in spending cuts, devastating nothing but federally funded political advocacy that violates the Public Broadcasting Act's mandate for objectivity and balance.

But no, the leadership of CPB threatens to eliminate programming for rural communities rather than take steps toward financial and programmatic responsibility in yet another social experiment run amok. If Congress is concerned about CPB's abuse of the public trust, it will demand that public broadcasting open its books, put its financial house in order and stop using taxpayers' money to insult their values, their leaders and their country.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, April 28, the 118th day of 1995. There are 247 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: Fifty years ago, on April 28, 1945, Italian dictator Benito Mussolini and his mistress, Clara Petacci, were executed by Italian partisans as they attempted to flee the country.

On this date: In 1788, Maryland became the seventh state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1789, there was a mutiny on the Bounty as the crew of the British ship set Captain William Bligh and 18 sailors adrift in a launch in the South Pacific.

In 1940, Glenn Miller and his Orchestra recorded "Pennsylvania 6-5000" for RCA Victor.

In 1947, a six-man expedition sailed from Peru aboard a balsawood raft named the Kon-Tiki on a 101-day journey that took them across the Pacific Ocean to Polynesia.

Why do Americans obsess about generations?

Do other countries obsess about generations the way Americans do? Here, we never tire of naming ourselves according to birth order, like some middle child complaining to his psychiatrist about whom Mom loved best.

There are the baby boomers — and don't you wish you had a dime for every time that group gets ink? And Generation X, those now in their 20s, said to be an anxious, rootless bunch. And the World War II generation. And the silent generation. That's not all. Somewhere in the interstices you must find room for the yuppies (young urban professionals), guppies (geriatric urban professionals), dinks (dual income, no kids), senior citizens, notch babies (ask the Social Security Administration) and thirtysomethings.

U.S. News and World Report devotes an entire story in a recent issue to analyzing the pack of Republican presidential hopefuls according to generation. Bob Dole is given credit, the article says, for his military service but demerits for his age. Most voters, a poll has purported to show, would prefer to vote for someone of the "silent generation," that is, the group that came of age in the 1950s.

That pollsters even ask such questions is proof that they are too bored for their own good. For while a few broad generalizations are possible about generations — the older an American is the more likely he is to be law-abiding, for example — categorizing people politically by the decade of their birth is bound to be a silly enterprise.

The generation that gave us Bill and Hillary Clinton also gave us Dan and Marilyn Quayle,

Mona Charen

John Lennon, David Duke, Charles Manson, Tom Clancy, Richard Simmons, Rush Limbaugh, Richard Gephardt, Eldridge Cleaver and Alan Keyes. Does anyone care to find the common trait — other than age — linking them all?

I thought this nonsense about generations had been put to rest a few years ago, when retrospectives of the 1960s revealed that, contrary to popular myth, most young people of the time supported the war in Vietnam, shunned drugs (that changed among youngsters of the '70s, '80s and '90s), remained virgins until marriage (that has certainly changed since!) and were more likely to call themselves conservative than liberal.

Gary Hart ran an explicitly youth oriented campaign for president in 1984 and received no more votes among the young than his rivals. George Bush put Dan Quayle on the ticket in 1988 in part to appeal to younger voters. There is no evidence that it worked.

When the Constitution was amended to permit

18-year-olds to vote, it was the common assumption of the time that the new law would benefit younger and more liberal candidates. Disappointment followed. Young people, when they vote at all (and they have the worst turnout of any group) tend to vote pretty much the way their parents did.

When people cast votes by group, it is usually on the grounds of racial or ethnic identity — not age or sex. When John F. Kennedy ran in 1960 as the candidate of youth, energy and sex appeal, he got fewer votes from women than Richard Nixon. On the other hand, Kennedy did extremely well among Catholic voters, and Nixon benefited from a corresponding vote among Protestants that year.

Marion Barry, the mayor of Washington, D.C., can call upon the group solidarity of blacks, just a Mayor James Michael Curley could rely on the loyalty of his Irish American constituents in Boston two generations (forgive the expression) ago. Barry had to wait until he was released from jail to run again. Mayor Curley was reelected from his jail cell.

This is not to suggest that generational generalizations are always baseless. The times do shape men, to a degree. But in a nation of 260 million people, and hundreds of separate subcultures, knowing when someone was born is not likely to yield any useful information. Bob Dole is running, in part, on his membership in the World War II generation. Without denying that he served his country nobly, suffered greatly and deserves our gratitude, it should be added that the same generation also produced Lyndon Johnson, John Lindsay and George McGovern.

Rose Garden strategy fails when TV viewers don't watch

The White House isn't quite as bully a pulpit as it used to be, prompting a remarkable reminder from President Clinton: He's relevant.

For presidents, that ought to go without saying. In the pause after the Republicans' hundred-day congressional barrage, Clinton is trying to command the stage with a series of agenda speeches, and at a news conference, in prime television time with less than prime coverage.

The only major network that broadcast him live Tuesday night was CBS, the one that gave House Speaker Newt Gingrich an unprecedented half-hour of prime time to boast of the first installment of GOP rule in Congress.

Both speaker and president were covered by CNN and C-SPAN.

The president, of course, doesn't need to ask for time when events send him before the cameras to reassure the American people, as they did Wednesday when he denounced the Oklahoma City bombers as cowards and killers who will be caught and punished.

But the era of automatic, all-network coverage when a president holds a nighttime news conference is over.

There were no groundbreaking disclosures in Gingrich's April 7 address, nor in Clinton's Tuesday night news conference. Both were summaries and renewals of positions and proposals already made. It happens all the time. Staying on message, as the image-makers counsel, means saying the same thing again and again.

"I was not elected to produce a pile of vetoes," Clinton said. "And the Congress was not elected to produce a pile of political issues for the next election." Which is not to say that there won't be some of both, and not infrequently on the same issues. So on Wednesday, Clinton was saying that he was not going to be blackmailed by Republicans in Congress into signing measures they tack on to must-pass legislation.

A case in point is the bill to raise the debt limit, without which the government can't borrow to function. It has been used for Democratic riders in the past, and sometimes blocked by Republican presidents in a game of dare, until somebody backed down.

"No president of the United States can ever be, in effect, blackmailed by that sort of thing," Clinton said. But it happens. The line-item veto, which both parties are backing, would eliminate that congressional tactic, since a president could erase a provision without blocking the entire bill.

Clinton earlier had linked that specific issue to his remarks about the relevance of his presidency. "The Constitution gives me relevance, the power of our ideas gives me relevance, the record we have built up over the last two years and the things we're trying to do to implement it give it relevance," he said. "The president is relevant here, especially an activist president."

Actually, whether broadcast live or taped for later, there's ample focus on what presidents say at their news conferences. The fallback to less than universal coverage is a symptom of changing attitudes, and not only about Clinton's appearances. When there is no crisis, no guarantee that anything compelling will happen, the networks previously have bypassed news conferences in favor of their regular entertainment programs.

That probably denies Clinton, and his successors, access to what's called the Rose Garden strategy, the campaign conducted just outside the White House to point up who's in charge while other candidates are chasing around the country. It won't work unless it's on the air.

As a forum and an institution, the presidential news conference has changed before, most dramatically when John F. Kennedy put his on national television, live, for the first time in 1961.

Clinton's was his fourth in prime time, but he has answered questions constantly during much of his presidency, sometimes disarming advisers who think fewer news conferences might have more impact in shaping his message.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry said it was disappointing that only one of the major TV networks went live Tuesday night. He said no and changed the subject Wednesday when asked if Clinton was concerned about irrelevance.

What's said and done determines impact, and relevance, on or off the air. Even though the edge is off the old TV forum, the White House platform still is a Clinton advantage.

As President Theodore Roosevelt said: "Most of us enjoy preaching, and I've got such a bully pulpit."

History books awarded

Child that wouldn't stop crying allegedly slain by father

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Only 3, John-John Torres cried a lot after his mother went to jail. His father admittedly "couldn't take it" and today he's charged with brutally killing the child.

Anthony John Torres, 37, is being held without bond at the Bexar County jail after confessing to sedating the boy, slashing his throat and leaving him soaking in his blood for six days before returning and dumping the body in a trash bin.

The gruesome details come from a statement by Torres and a police affidavit used to search his apartment Thursday. He was then taken into custody and he appeared before a magistrate Thursday afternoon. Killing a child under age 6 is a capital offense, meaning a conviction could result in the death penalty.

Police had been warned the father may be up to something by the child's aunt, who first was told of the possibility of danger in a letter from the boy's jailed mother.

They were suspicious but couldn't confirm anything until Torres broke down Wednesday while being interviewed by a child protective services specialist.

When asked to produce the child, Torres stammered "I can't! I can't!" and he refused to answer when asked if the child was safe, the affidavit states.

A search warrant was executed at Torres' apartment early Thursday and police found what appeared to be blood spatters on a wall adjacent to a bed, apparent blood stains on a blanket and a section of the bedspring cut out.

Confronted with the evidence, Torres then gave his statement to police. He also admitted to having bought a hunting knife and to giving the boy a prescription medication so he would go to sleep on or about March 28.

Torres claimed he slit the child's throat and left him in bed.

Proof of early toolmaking found in Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stone Age humans first learned to make tools in Africa more than 80,000 years ago and not, as widely believed, in Europe many thousands of years later, researchers reported today.

Alison S. Brooks, a George Washington University archaeologist, said that bone tools with barbed points and blades dug up from an ancient lakeshore in Zaire predate similar tools found in Europe from some 60,000 years later. This proves that human toolmaking began in Africa, not in Europe, she said.

"The old idea that there were humans in Africa who looked modern, but who didn't behave like modern people until they got to Europe ... is not correct," said Brooks.

She added: "The finding shows that early humans in Africa invented sophisticated toolmaking long before their European counterparts. Barbed points like these appeared in Europe only 14,000 years ago."

Brooks and her husband, John E. Yellen of the National Science Foundation, along with researchers from eight other institutions, are co-authors of studies on the tools published today in the academic journal Science.

The old tools were found during years of excavation at seven sites in Semliki River valley on the border between Zaire and Uganda in central Africa.

Included are double-pointed blades with carved barbs and single points with ridges that could have been used for attachment to spear shafts. All of the bone tools probably were carved from the ribs of large mammals that lived in the area, the scientists said.

Yellen said the researchers were so concerned about the accuracy of dating the discoveries that the tools were subjected to four different age-dating techniques. The age estimates ranged from just under 80,000 to more than 170,000 years and Brooks, for convenience, referred to the ages as "more than 80,000 years."

Steve Kuhn, an anthropologist at the University of Arizona and a specialist in ancient tools, said the African implements came from "much earlier than any of us expected. It makes us rethink some ideas" about how early technology developed.

"It upsets a lot of simple models about technology progress," Kuhn said.

However, he said the fossil record has so many gaps that it is not clear whether the tools developed in Europe descended from the design ideas of the early African craftsmen or the Europeans invented them independently.

Fragments of skeletons from what are considered to be anatomically modern humans, called Homo sapien sapien, have been found in several places in Africa and dated at more than 100,000 years old. Younger evidence of modern humans has been found in Europe and Asia. There also has been evidence of more primitive humanlike creatures found on the three continents.

It is widely accepted now that modern humans physically developed first in Africa. What is uncertain is how and when these presumed ancestors of all humans migrated to the rest of the world.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE CONSCIENCE OF A PEOPLE
WHENEVER KINGS AND PRINCES IN THE BIBLE SEEMED TO DEVIATE FROM THE TRUE PATH OF UPRIGHTNESS AS PRESCRIBED BY MOSAIC LAW, INVARIABLY A PROPHET WOULD COME CHARGING FROM THE HILLS, OR FROM THE FAR-FLUNG REACHES OF THE WILDERNESS, TO REMONSTRATE AND AWAKEN THEM TO THEIR SACRED OBLIGATION TO THEIR CREATOR. "THUS SAITH THE LORD," RANG THROUGH PALACE, COURT, YARD, AND TEMPLE TO SEND CHILLS OF APPREHENSION THROUGH ALL WITHIN HEARING DISTANCE. SAUL WAS BEDEVILED BY AN INFURIATED SAMUEL, KING DAVID WAS ADMONISHED BY A STERN NATHAN, AND JEZEBEL AND AHAB FOREBODINGLY THREATENED BY A WRATHFUL ELIJAH. NO MATTER HOW MIGHTY A KING, JUST LET HIM GET OUT OF LINE AND AN OUTSPOKEN PROPHET WOULD APPEAR ON THE SCENE TO BLAST HIS SELF-SATISFACTION! THEY WERE TRULY "THE CONSCIENCE OF THE PEOPLE!"

Gold Star Award goes to Lutheran association

Local members of the Aid Association for Lutherans have been awarded a Gold Star rating by the fraternal benefit society in recognition of exemplary volunteer service to the community.

Officers of the local branch 4049 are Joy Thomas, president; Hilmar Heinritz, secretary; and Eloise Woldt, vice president.

The association's branches are ranked in eight performance categories. To achieve a Gold Star rating, branches must annually sponsor at least one AAL benevolent activity, conduct at least 12 meetings, sponsor at least one educational activity and one member awareness event and comply with AAL's attendance, voting and reporting requirements.

AAL is a fraternal benefit society based in Appleton, Wis., which provides members with life insurance and retirement products, as well as disability income and long term care insurance in most states. Mutual funds are offered to members by AAL's wholly owned subsidiary, AAL Capital Management Corp. Credit union services are available to members from the AAL Member Credit Union, an affiliate of AAL.

Richardson in revival at Faith Christian

The Rev. Freddie Richardson, pastor of Soul's Harbor Church in Amarillo, is to be the evangelist for revival at Faith Christian Center Foursquare Church in Pampa.

Revival is set for 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday at 118 N. Cuyler. A nursery will be provided.

The Rev. Ed Barker said this will be an old fashioned Pentecostal revival. Richardson can be heard daily at 12:15 p.m. on KPDR and KJRT on "Lunch with the Parson."

Calvary Assembly of God hosts concert Saturday

A gospel concert is set for 7 p.m. Saturday at Calvary Assembly of God, 1030 Love.

Singing at the concert will be Simply Gospel of Wellington, Kan., Crosswinds of Pampa, and Philip Elsheimer of Pampa. The music will be Southern gospel.

Members of Simply Gospel are Bill and Delores Glenn and Jack and Julie Cowell. Members of Crosswinds are Charles Wagner, Annette Elkins and Joan Eccles.

A nursery will be provided and a freewill offering taken.

Dixie Melody Boys in Berger concert

The Southern gospel group, the Dixie Melody Boys of Kingstons, N.C., will be singing at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Berger.

The concert will be in the Berger High School auditorium. Admission is free. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m.

St. Matthew's celebrates 70 years in Pampa

Congregants returned to first meeting place Monday

"The Church's one foundation is Jesus Christ her Lord."

The singing voices of local Episcopalians filled an historic Pampa home Monday when they returned to worship in the place where their congregation met for the first time 70 years ago.

Congregants returned to the Buckler-Guill home, now owned by the Rev. Ed and Lorelee Cooley, at the intersection of Somerville and Buckler to celebrate the place where they began on April 24, 1925 with the baptism of one child and confirmation of an adult and a child.

While there were no baptisms or confirmations Monday, 40 worshippers did participate in the blessing of the Cooley's home and filled the rooms with the sounds of traditional hymns and scripture reading.

On hand for the service was Liz Haning of Berger the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C.P. Buckler, and daughter of the late Anne Buckler Green, the baby baptized during the first service. Mrs. Buckler and Margaret Buckler were confirmed during the first service, also, according to a history of the church.

An early member of St. Matthew's Church, Mary Ann Kelley, who was confirmed Sept. 18, 1932, brought the prayer book given to her at her confirmation. It bears a label inside saying it was presented by "The Female Protestant Episcopal Prayer Book Society of Pennsylvania."

According to a history of the church, in 1926, M.K. Brown purchased two 50-foot lots on Browning Street and presented them to St. Matthew's Mission.

The church met in various places from 1926 to 1928, including the funeral parlor, and the homes of M.K. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Buckler, and Mr. and Mrs. Craven. When Bishop E. Cecil Seaman visited the Pampa congregation, he brought the "Tent Cathedral," and erected it for services.

The cornerstone of the present church building was laid March 10, 1954. The building was consecrated Oct. 12, 1954 by Bishop Quarterman.

Steven Curtis Chapman captures six Dove awards

By JIM PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Steven Curtis Chapman won six times Thursday night at the Gospel Music Association's 26th annual Dove Awards, including as best artist, songwriter and male vocalist.

Chapman also won for best contemporary song and contemporary album for "Heaven in the Real World." He shared a sixth award with several other artists for best praise and worship album, "Coram Deo II."

Chapman said he was overwhelmed at the "opportunity to do music that gives people hope."

"It's communicating the message that the world desperately needs, that Jesus is heaven in the real world," Chapman said.

Other winners were 4Him for best group, Clay Crosse as best new artist and Twila Paris for female vocalist. Paris also won best song honors, for her "God Is in Control."

Chapman has won the songwriter award seven years in a row. He has twice before won male vocalist and three times artist of the year. His stiffest competition in those categories was absent this year.

Michael English, last year's artist and male vocalist winner, has left Christian music. English returned six Dove awards won last year after his extramarital affair was revealed.

Although he is trying to launch a pop career, English was still nominated in one category this year, best long-form music video for The New Young Messiah.

He did not win, losing to Mouth in Motion by comedian Mark Lowry.

Only seven of 33 awards were handed out during the two-hour broadcast on The Family Channel from the Grand Ole Opry House. That allowed for performances that ranged from alternative rock to old-time Southern gospel.

DC Talk won for best rap song, "Luv Is a Verb," and country singer Charlie Daniels' album, The Door, won for best country album.

Religion briefs

YANKTON, S.D. (AP) — The Rev. Frank Cordaro, released recently after a federal prison term relating to his fifth conviction for protesting nuclear weapons at Offutt Air Force Base, says he likely will be back behind bars.

"It's just a matter of time before I cross the line again at Offutt," said Cordaro, associate pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Council Bluffs, Iowa. "I'm not the only one, though. There's lots of other folks. This is a movement."

Cordaro spent the past six months in the minimum-security Yankton Federal Prison Camp for trespassing at Strategic Air Command Headquarters at Offutt, near Omaha, Neb. He said he remains a priest in good standing and that his pastor in Council Bluffs has been supportive.

"Am I making any great headway? I don't know," Cordaro said. "It's an act of faith."

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Religious reformer William Tyndale was burned at the stake in 1536 by the Church of England for translating the Bible. But a copy of his work survives at Pensacola Christian College.

"They paid a great price so Bibles could sit in our collection and on our coffee tables," said Joel Mullenix, college vice president for public affairs.

Dennis Everson to speak Sunday

Calvary Assembly of God is to host evangelist Dennis Everson of Springfield, Mo., at 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Everson will speak on the power of God in Pentecostal baptism and spiritual gifts. Special music will be provided by Simply Gospel trio.

The church is located at the corner of Crawford and Love streets, one block east of Hobart. The public is invited.

Lesson in government is milked for all it's worth

DEAR ABBY: About five years ago, you had a letter in your column from a teacher who taught economics in a high school. The letter explained in a humorous way the various types of governments throughout the world. Will you please try to find it and run it again? I need it for a speech.
NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I teach government and economics at Grant High School in Van Nuys, Calif. This is a belated thank-you for one of your columns. I have been using it for years to explain the difference between communism, socialism, capitalism and a few other "isms." My students love it.
BARBARA HALPERN, VAN NUYS

DEAR BARBARA: Thanks for your thank-you. I'll run it again for others to enjoy. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: A friend gave me these definitions of the various forms of government, and I thought you might want to share them with your readers:

COMMUNISM: You have two cows. The government takes both of them and gives you part of the milk.

SOCIALISM: You have two cows. The government takes one and gives it to your neighbor.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

FASCISM: You have two cows. The government takes both cows and sells you the milk.

NAZISM: You have two cows. The government takes both your cows, then shoots you.

BUREAUCRACY: You have two cows. The government takes both of them, shoots one, milks the other, then pours the milk down the drain.

CAPITALISM: You have two cows. You sell one of them and buy a bull.

Abby, what happens in a democracy?

MRS. J. MC C.

DEAR MRS. MC C.: In a democracy, everyone has two cows, then a vote is taken, and whatever the majority decides to do, you do, and that's no bull!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl. My birthday is next month, and I can't wait. I'm looking forward to being a teen-ager, but more than that, when I'm 13, adults won't think of me as a "little kid." Most adults think when you are 13 you are more responsible than you are when you are only 12, but actually, you aren't.

It makes me angry when adults assume that I'm irresponsible because I'm a "little girl." (Some of the teen-agers I know act like 2-year-olds.)

Please publish my letter, Abby, so adults will know how people my age feel when we are treated like "little kids" when we are not.
NICOLE QUINTERO, GAINESVILLE, FLA.

DEAR NICOLE: You appear to be very mature for your age, but please don't be in a rush to grow up. People have only a short time to be children, but a very long time to be adults.

What teens need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with peers and parents is in "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Horoscope

Saturday, April 29, 1995

Endeavors or enterprises that have strong artistic or glamorous elements should go well for you in the year ahead. There is a definite market for what you have to offer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your leadership qualities might be hard to suppress today, so don't be bashful about taking charge when you feel you can do a better job than others. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you might question whether the kindnesses you extend toward others is truly appreciated. Put your mind at ease, what you do will be duly noted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A break from mundane duties could prove very stimulating today. Select a fun activity, but also include several enjoyable companions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can do something worthwhile today with situations that offer only sparse promises. Look for these unique opportunities because you'll know how to expand them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This will be a good day to study subjects of practical value. Not only will you absorb knowledge easily, you'll know how and to use it later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Listen carefully today to any proposals brought to you by an individual whose judgment you trust and respect. Something extraordinary might happen.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your companionship will be desired and appreciated by others today. You will instinctively know how to make those you're with feel they are important.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Probabilities for achieving your ambitious objectives are stronger than usual today, so establish meaningful targets and go after them full force.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This could be a romantically exciting cycle for unattached Capricorns. Someone you've had your eye on might send signals today that he/she is interested.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Things could do an about face in a very important matter you've been unable to control. Now it can be finalized to your satisfaction.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The impression you make on others today could be favorable and lasting. Your charm will capture their attention, and your sincerity that will win them over.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions that have an influence on your material well-being might make two distinct shifts in your favor today. Watch for opportunities.

The next meeting will be at 10 a.m. May 12 at the Pam Apartment Retirement Center.

GRAY COUNTY FAMILY AND COMMUNITY EDUCATION
The Gray County FCE Council met April 24 at the annex with 10 members and one agent present. Five clubs were represented.

Renee Stout, vice chair, presided over the meeting in the absence of Virginia Horton, chair.

Plans are being made for a field trip to the Denim Cotton Mill in Littlefield and the Plainview Antique Mall in May.

It will be a Spring Fling hosted by patchworks and Evening Star Clubs.

Janice Carter, TAFCE chair, reported 13 members from Gray County attended the district meeting in Dumas April 20.

Delegates to the meeting, Marilyn Butler and Madeline Gawthorp and Janice Carter, gave reports on workshops they attended.

The winner of the district quilt raffle was Becky Hilton of Amarillo.

Gray County will host the 1996 district meeting.

Photography show up and coming

The Pampa Fine Arts Association plans to have its 15th annual Photography Show May 5-7 at the Pampa Mall. The location will be across from the ACT I Dinner Theater.

Area photographers are invited to display their work. To help with publicity of the event, sponsors would like to know if photographers would be willing to donate some photographs as door prizes.

Each photographer will be assigned a display area where they can hang and display their photographs. Nameplates and titles may also be displayed. No nails, staples or anything which could damage the panels are allowed. There is no charge for the display.

Show times will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, May 5, and Saturday, May 6. On Sunday, May 7, show times will be from 1-3 p.m. Hosts will be present during the show.

Displays may be taken down from 3-3:30 p.m. Sunday. For more information, contact Herb Smith at 665-8341 or 665-5185.

Mazzola's testimony ends with admission

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Criminalist Andrea Mazzola wrapped up four days of oft-dull O.J. Simpson testimony by admitting a paperwork mistake the defense says could have made important evidence susceptible to tampering.

Mazzola collected most of the evidence in the case. She acknowledged that when she first testified at an August hearing, she said she initialed every envelope in which she placed blood evidence that had been soaked up on a swatch.

But on Thursday, she said she had initialed none of the envelopes. She also said she was wrong about who initialed small paper folders, known as bindles, that were wrapped around the swatches.

Defense attorney Peter Neufeld asked at one point, "Would you agree that without proper documentation, it's easy for someone to tamper with them?"

"Yes," Mazzola said.

At the end of the series of questions, which drew numerous objections from the prosecution, Neufeld suggested that Mazzola changed her testimony when she saw the envelopes full of evidence and realized her initials were missing from them.

"So did the absence of your initials raise in your mind that the original evidence may have been tampered with?" Neufeld asked.

An objection blocked any answer.

The admissions were hardly the stuff of high drama, but on a day when the high point for the jury was a chance to hold a test tube of water, the matter provoked extra interest. Jurors snapped to attention, picked up their notebooks and leaned forward when Mazzola flip-flopped.

The defense contends that a combination of evidence tampering and sloppiness renders genetic test results on the blood meaningless.

Law professor Robert Pugsley of Southwestern University said the net effect of Mazzola's testimony was "a wash" for both sides. She held her own, he said, even though she did admit some mistakes.

No testimony was scheduled for today. Instead, a hearing was set on whether a courtroom sketch artist violated the judge's order forbidding identifying jurors by drawing too realistic a picture of the panel.

Mazzola was the second police crime lab witness, following her boss, Dennis Fung. The next witness, scheduled for Monday, is Gregory Matheson, chief forensic chemist for the police lab where the evidence was tested.

Under redirect questioning by prosecutor Hank Goldberg, Mazzola insisted she did not believe anyone tampered with evidence and showed jurors a key card needed to enter the evidence processing room.

"Did you ever see anyone scurry into the room and hide?" Goldberg asked sarcastically.

"No," Mazzola said.

Earlier, jurors passed around a test tube similar to one that held Simpson's blood sample. Neufeld tried to prove the tube was so light that Mazzola wouldn't have known whether it was inside a trash bag holding other evidence.

Two researchers believe digital phones interfere with pacemakers

BOSTON (AP) — Two researchers are warning people with pacemakers to be careful around digital cellular telephones because they might speed up or slow down the heart-regulating devices.

While the interference is not harmful, the studies were enough to raise concern, the researchers said Thursday. There have been no reports of people with pacemakers being injured by the phones, experts said.

"If a patient asked me if it was OK to use a cellular phone, I'd have to say, 'I don't know,'" said Dr. David Hayes, director of pacemaker services at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. "Because we can't answer the question, I'd be particularly cautious with patients who are completely pacemaker-dependent."

Hayes and Dr. Roger Carrillo, a cardiovascular surgeon at Mt. Sinai Medical Center in Miami, conducted separate studies with patients who were not dependent on their pacemakers.

Some patients have pacemakers to guard against irregular heartbeats, while others need them to continually control their heartbeats.

The researchers found no irregularities when analog cellular phones were used.

But when newer digital cellular telephones were used — especially when they were placed close to the pacemaker — the patients' electrocardiograms showed interference, "a rare slowing or speeding up of the pacemaker," Hayes said.

Many cellular telephone companies are moving into digital technology, which puts signals in the language of computers and allows data and video to be intermixed with voice calls. About 375,000 digital cell phones were sold last year in the United States, The Wall Street Journal reported.

Some European studies also have found that digital phones can disrupt pacemakers. But telephone company representatives have said that the risk of interference is small.

Carrillo used 10 models of cellular phones — both analog and digital — on 59 volunteers. He found an "inhibition of the pacemaker function" 21 times in 170 tests — all when a digital phone was used. Hayes had similar results in his tests on 30 volunteers.

The most interference occurred when a digital telephone's antenna was placed close to a pacemaker's pulse generator, which is usually placed under the skin near the collarbone.

Briscoe County faces water problems

By BILL RUSSELL
Guest Writer

Whoever coined the phrase "it isn't over until it's over" could have been describing the water crisis facing the Briscoe County seat.

"Our water problems are not yet solved by a long shot," said Silverton City Manager Jerry Patton, who has been struggling to banish the specter of water rationing in the city this summer. "We need some help from Mother Nature right now."

Silverton's water woes began last fall when the lack of rainfall caused the Lake Mackenzie level to continue its downward spiral. Silverton normally receives 60 percent of its water from the lake.

In November of 1994 Silverton's allocation of lake water was cut to 80,000 gallons per day by the Mackenzie Municipal Water Authority. With the production of two city wells each pumping about 100 gallons per minute, there was enough to supply needs for the fall and winter, but summer promised to pose a problem.

During the late spring and summer months Silverton's water usage climbs to about 318,000 gallons per day.

"This is quite a serious problem we're facing," Patton said last fall. "We're looking for all the help we can get." Some of that help came from the state in the form of a $350,000 urgent need grant to develop alternate water sources. But it wasn't simply a matter of going out to the city park and drilling a couple of water wells.

"Unfortunately, Silverton sits on a dry patch," Patton explained. "There is no water at all under the town."

So the city was forced to go looking for likely sites and has purchased the water rights to 55 acres of land two miles east of town.

Two test wells have been dug and initial results have indicated the ability of the wells to produce about 150 gallons per minute each. The water will be piped to the city from the wells.

That was good news, but city officials doubt the additional water will be enough to completely solve the problem.

"The level in Lake Mackenzie is still falling," Patton said. "We all hate to use the 'D' word, but unless it gets real damp here within the next 45 days we're not going to be out of the woods on the water problem."

The water level at Lake Mackenzie has been falling steadily for three years. In January of 1993 it was 93.8 feet, in January of 1994 it had fallen to 83.1 feet and in January of this year it stood at 74.7 feet. Last week the measurement was 73.4 feet.

"We're approaching the critical level now," said Roy Garris, general manager of the Mackenzie Municipal Water Authority. "We cut the supply to our four cities by 60 percent in November and we're trying to locate some high capacity wells to augment the supply."

Lake Mackenzie supplies water to Silverton, Floydada, Tulia and Lockney. Garris said that the lake would not be pumped dry.

"If we drained the lake, it would create a huge health hazard with all of the dead fish, and we also want to keep back enough water for an emergency should some of the city wells fail."

Garris said that they would stop pumping water when the level reached 50 feet.

"That 50-foot reading is a little misleading," Garris explained. "That's measured from the mouth of the intake. We've actually got only about 13 1/2 feet left to draw down."

If water distribution from Lake Mackenzie is halted, Silverton will face rationing despite its two new wells. Both Patton and Garris agree on the quickest and most lasting solution to the problem.

"Rain!" both said emphatically.

Gold team posts two wins in girls' softball

PAMPA — The Gold team is off to a fast start in the Lady Harvesters softball league. Last week, the Gold team posted a 24-1 win over the Blue team.

The Gold downed the Red team, 15-2, earlier this week at Hobart Park.

Jill Trollinger led the Gold's hitting attack with three singles. Other Gold players with hits were Patti Montoya, two singles; Jessica Gonzales, Jessica Harper, Hillary Ybarra, Lisa Jones, Angie Downs, Jamie Humphrey, Vickie Fossett and Keely Topper, one single each.

Winning pitcher was Danette Hoover, who gave up five hits while striking out six and walking seven.

Christi Walkup and Amanda Sims scored the runs for the Red. Valerie Simpson and Lindy Sells pitched for the Red.

Rintoul leads Houston Open

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Steve Rintoul is ready to join the list of first-time winners at the Houston Open.

Rintoul shot a 6-under par 66 on Thursday for a one-shot lead in the tournament that during a recent stretch produced five consecutive first-time winners.

Mike Sullivan started the trend in 1989 with his first Tour victory. He was followed by Tony Sills (1990), Fulton Allem (1991), Fred Funk (1992) and Jim McGovern in 1993.

"First time win, if it happens, so be it," Rintoul said. "But there's a lot of young players out there besides myself that haven't won. A lot of good veteran players out there too that haven't won."

"It's a long way to go before Sunday," Rintoul's effort was one shot better than a group of five golfers, topped by Tour leading money winner Peter Jacobsen, who finished with a 5-under-par 67. Ten others were another stroke back at 68.

Rintoul had six birdies, no bogeys and a par-saving putt on No. 10 that kept his momentum going. He credited birdie putts of 4 and 15 feet on the first two holes as the keys to his round.

"The last month, I've been plagued by bad putting," he said. "But today I got started with a couple of good putts and I just stayed with it for the whole round."

Rintoul added another birdie on No. 6, hitting a sand wedge within eight feet of the cup and sinking the putt. But it was a par-saver on No. 10 that kept his round going. He sank a 10-foot par putt after blasting out of a bunker.

"That was a momentum-saver," Rintoul said.

Beginning on the par-3 No. 14, Rintoul birdied three of the next four holes to secure his first-day lead.
