PAMPA — So you have some time on your hands?

The city of Pampa in conjunction with the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program is sponsoring a free volunteer fair 1 to 4 p.m. Thursday in Lovett Memorial Library Auditorium, 111 N. Houston. The purpose of the event is to showcase numerous local and regional service providers, organizations and agencies who depend on volunteers to serve clients and link them with people in the community who want to volunteer.

Potential volunteers of all ages are invited. An afghan created by RSVP volunteers will be awarded as a door prize to someone present at the fair.

PAMPA — Seniors and their parents or guardians have been invited to attend a breakfast for Pampa High School seniors to kick off Graduation '95 activities.

The City of Pampa and the Pampa Independent School District will be sponsoring the breakfast for upcoming graduates at 7 a.m. Wednesday in the Heritage Room at M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium and Civic Center.

The breakfast is one of the activities planned for members of the Class of 1995 as they prepare for graduation on May 26.

NEW YORK (AP) — A man screaming irrationally ran at Mayor Rudolph Giuliani's motorcade Saturday in Central Park and was subdued by security guards.

The Republican mayor had just appeared at the park's annual Easter egg roll when the man approached a Parks Department truck and began pounding on the windshield, police said. He then tried to climb into the truck, which was just ahead of the mayor's car.

Walter Riordan, 50, of Ocean Grove, N.J., was screaming about "public facilities at city bus terminals," police spokesman Doram Tamari said. "He seemed quite irrational."

Giuliani spokesman Lenny Alcivar said the mayor may not have been aware of the man, who was taken to a hospital for psychiatric tests.

"The mayor was never in any danger," he said.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — They tried guns for cash, guns for groceries and guns for concert tickets. Now police are trying a cyber-swap.

Police will hand out used computers to anyone turning in a working handgun — no questions asked.

The program will begin April 22 in honor of Earth Day, police Capt. Timothy Hettrich said.

The hundreds of donated IBM systems have software loaded on them and some also have modems. The Black Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco will provide free training.

The guns will be destroyed.

"The people we are really after are the kids," Hettrich said. "We want to give them something educational for their handguns."

City, school candidates give views

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

Candidates who think they have what it takes to be a community leader had a chance to speak their piece last week at the Democrat Club forum.

Only a handful of voters turned out to hear school board candidates Chris Perez and David Smith, who are contending for Place 6, and Bill Jones and Nancy Poole, who are competing for Place 7 on the Pampa Independent School District's board of trustees.

Speaking on behalf of their candidacy for the mayor's spot were incumbent commissioner Jeff Andrews and retired U.S. Army officer Bob Neslage. Candidate Norman Howard did not attend the candidates' forum.

Vying for the post of Ward 1 commissioner are incumbent commissioner Jeff McCormick and Bill Willingham. Running unopposed for re-election to the Ward 3 post is incumbent Robert Dixon.

Following is a recap of statements made at the Tuesday forum. Bill Jones, candidate for Place 7: "As a former teacher and principal I feel I could look at issues from a different point of view."

"First I am a Christian, second I am a wife and mother and third I am a business owner," Poole said. Poole said she supports school vouchers because parents should be able to use tax money for the private education. It may motivate changes in public education, she said.

The former principal said he is not sure about the legality of school vouchers, though a parent should have the right to choose private education.

Jones said he allowed daily devotions while in Pampa, but not a specific prayer to one god because "the ethnic breakdown is so different any more."

"I think we can have prayer. It doesn't have to be stated. I think everyone believes in a Supreme Being," Jones said.

There is too much emphasis on the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test as a single measure of a school district's performance, Jones said.

He supports vocational education to prepare students for jobs.

Young people will do what school leaders expect them to do and want limits set on their behavior, Jones said.

"I think we've taken those limits away," he said.

Nancy Poole, candidate for Place 7: Part owner of V.E. Wagner Well Service; Pampa native. Active in business management, keeps books, insurance records, and contracts with major companies. She said she believes she can contribute to the business, curriculum and discipline needs of the district.

"First I am a Christian, second I am a wife and mother and third I am a business owner," Poole said. Poole said she supports school vouchers because parents should be able to use tax money for the private education. It may motivate changes in public education, she said.

Blooming in a land of strife, a small poppy flower opens over Easter weekend in the Garden of the Tomb in Jerusalem. The opening in the wall beyond the flower leads to a tomb many Christians believe was the tomb from which Christ arose after his crucifixion. Other Christians, however, believe Christ was laid to rest in a tomb over which Crusaders later built a cathedral known as the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

Clean Pampa, city to offer chance to get rid of hazardous waste items

With the arrival of spring and its warmer weather, Pampa residents are being encouraged to add something extra to the spring cleaning: removal of household hazardous waste items.

The City of Pampa and Clean Pampa Inc. are sponsoring the Top O' Texas Household Hazardous Waste Disposal Day in conjunction with the observance of Earth on Saturday, April 22.

Residents are being asked to clean out those garages, under the kitchen sink and in the laundry room or wherever they store their cleaners, disinfectants, paints, solvents, oil filters and other materials which may contain hazardous wastes.

"We want you to be ready," said Pam Green, executive director of Clean Pampa. "Ready to bring us your almost empty, out of date or 'I'm never going to use this again' containers of household hazardous waste."

The materials may be brought to the Community Recycling Center in Hobart Street Park, located just southeast of the ball park. Workers will be ready to start accepting the materials at 9 a.m. Saturday and will remain on hand until late afternoon, whenever people stop bringing in their hazardous waste materials.

Because of potential contamination of the water table, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission have passed laws governing the disposal of such common items as batteries and chlorine bleach, among others. These and similar items are now classified as household hazardous waste.

Landfill operators must routinely spot check loads of solid waste as they dump materials. If hazardous materials are found, that waste must be cleaned up, with the entire load considered contaminated and sent to a special landfill.

"Since we can no longer landfill these items, we are forced to find alternative methods of disposal for them," Green said.

The Top O' Texas Household Hazardous Waste Committee was formed three years ago to find a solution to this disposal dilemma. The committee decided that the most effective way to address the issue was to host a one-day recycling/disposal event.

"Since some of the items are recyclable, we have recyclers who will take them," Green said.

The automotive products, such as used oil and transmission fluid, are all recyclable. Some other items, such as paint, are reusable.

"We have some local non-profit agencies who will use the paint that we collect," Green said. "The paint that is left will be used in city parks to spruce up picnic tables and park equipment."

The rest of the household hazardous waste will be sorted and sent to the appropriate landfills or incinerated by a company specially trained and licensed to dispose of hazardous materials.

Items that will be accepted include motor oil, oil filters, antifreeze, tires, automotive batteries, solvents and gasoline/fuel mixtures, garden sprays or dusts, weed killers, fertilizers, rat/ant poisons, latex and oil-based paints, thinners, paint solvents, brush cleaners, paint strippers, lacquers and varnishes, preservatives, aerosol spray cans, ammonia, disinfectants, drain cleaners, bleach, mildew removers, spot removers, degreasers, tile cleaners and oven cleaners.

"We will not be able to take gun powder, old ammunition or explosive devices, including hand grenades," Green said.

Anyone having questions about any items that will be accepted may call the Clean Pampa office at 665-2514 or the city landfill at 669-5840.

"We encourage everyone to take advantage of this event to clean out those materials that you no longer need or may not want and dispose of them in the proper manner," Green said. "We look forward to seeing many of you at our Community Recycling Center on Earth Day, Saturday, April 22."

GOP renews call for tax-limitation amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — With taxes weighing on the minds of many Americans over the weekend, Republican House members are renewing their call to make it far more difficult for Congress to reach into taxpayers' pockets for new funds.

The GOP lawmakers are making their pitch for a constitutional amendment that would require a three-fifths majority in Congress to raise taxes. Currently, taxes can be raised with a simple majority.

The tax-limitation measure drafted by Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, will be introduced when the House returns from its recess on May 1.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich has promised Barton a vote on the amendment near April 15, 1996 — Tax Day.

Even though the action is nearly a year away, Barton and supporters will hold news conferences Monday in Washington and some 40 other cities touting the amendment.

Not so coincidentally, the out-of-town news conferences will be held at post offices — to catch last-minute filers as they scurry to get their tax returns postmarked before midnight.

Iraq rejects U.N. oil sale plan

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq on Saturday rejected a U.N. offer to sell $2 billion worth of oil to buy food and medicine, opting instead to launch a huge anti-American propaganda campaign.

Thousands of people, mostly government employees, staged two noisy demonstrations Saturday in the Iraqi capital, rallies reminiscent of those in the days before the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

"I think the voices of the masses have expressed the Iraqi stand," parliament speaker Sadi Mahdi Saleh told Associated Press Television at one protest. "What you have heard from the people is rejection to this decision."

The leaders of President Saddam Hussein's ruling Baath party, meanwhile, unleashed a diatribe against the Clinton administration.

"We need to fight the holy war against Satan America until our victory," said Abdul Gani Abdul Ghafoor, chief of the Baghdad chapter.

Both demonstrations appeared organized by the government.

The U.N. Security Council voted Friday to allow Iraq to sell up to $2 billion worth of oil over 180 days to get money. Part of the proceeds would be used for humanitarian needs. Iraqis are suffering deep privations under the U.N. trade sanctions imposed after Iraq's 1990 invasion of Kuwait.

The council said the draft would be referred to parliament, which has never challenged Saddam's decisions. No date was set for a parliament meeting.

Hours later, the government announced an increase in the monthly quota of flour handed out — from 14 1/2 pounds to 17 pounds per person.

State-run Youth Radio, run by Saddam's eldest son, Uday, broadcast interviews with what it described as "ordinary Iraqis," who all criticized the U.N. resolution and urged the government to reject it.

However, other Iraqis interviewed by foreign reporters on the street felt the government's stubbornness would lead to further misery. "Oh God, where do we go now?" asked one middle-aged man, who would not give his name.

Under the new U.N. proposal, most of the proceeds from oil sales would be used to buy food, medicine and humanitarian supplies, but 30 percent would go to a U.N. fund to compensate victims of Iraq's 1990 invasion of Kuwait. In addition, at least 13 percent would go to Kurds in northern Iraq.

Oil prices tumbled this week as traders speculated that Iraqi crude would soon come on the world market.

Carter and Moler attend training school for clerks

COLLEGE STATION - Gray County officials Wanda Carter, county clerk, and Yvonne Moler, district clerk, attended the 23rd annual county and district clerks' continuing education seminar in College Station March 27-29.

"The continuing education seminar provides valuable information and current procedures of the office to county and district clerks," Carter said. "It is designed to update participants on duties and responsibilities of their offices, helping them become more capable and effective in serving the public."

They studied working with a jury, working effectively with the legislature, processing juveniles, budgeting and purchasing, and optical disk programming. Updates were given on informal probate, state jail felonies/penal code, and proposed and pending legislation.

The two clerks also recently attended an educational conference in Austin conducted by the University of Texas School of Law.

Some courses taught by the law school faculty included legal terminology, legal research, unauthorized practice of law, a view from the bench, a primer on criminal procedure, statutory authority of the clerk, family law procedure, coping with the media, insurance and bond requirements, thinking like a lawyer, Texas employment law and update on the Americans With Disabilities Act.

Candidates

The candidate also supports voluntary prayer in school, but opposes state-mandated curriculum.

"I don't think they can put it in a package," she said.

As a "Parents in Education" volunteer at middle school, she supports administration discipline efforts.

Chris Perez, incumbent Place 6: He is employed as a reverse osmosis operator at Cabot and is a graduate of El Campo High School.

Perez said in his three years service on the board of trustees, he learned to look to seasoned board members and found state school board meetings helpful.

"I'm running again because there is a new governor and a new commissioner of education, Mike Moses, out of Lubbock. He's from the Panhandle and I hope he will try to help the Panhandle," Perez said.

Perez claims to oppose school vouchers. "I don't believe in spending tax money without permission of the taxpayer."

He supports tobacco-free schools, multi-cultural education and removal of disruptive students from classrooms. He said he believes TAAS strays from basic measurements and puts students under tremendous pressure.

He said a breakdown in the home environment breeds gang involvement for youth.

David Smith, candidate for Place 6: Smith is a certified public accountant and 1975 graduate of Pampa High School.

"It is my view that something has happened in the past 25 or 30 years that's caused people to be dropouts (from church, school and community)," he said.

Education standards need to be raised and students need to have the opportunity to excel, he said.

"You will never misunderstand where I'm coming from ... I will refuse to be passive ... I will understand the issues," Smith said.

Smith said the question of school vouchers is complicated and he does not have all the facts.

On the issue of school discipline, Smith said trustees must back teachers in tough situations, and dads must do their job at home first instead of pushing the job off on the school.

Smith supports re-establishment of respect for authority.

On municipal issues, candidates talked about everything from trash to economic development.

Robert Dixon, unopposed incumbent Ward 3: Six years on the city commission. First campaigned for street improvements, now running for enhanced economic development.

"I want something here for our kids," he said.

Dixon explained city's position on landfill closing and opening. He said the city operates a Class 1 landfill like Amarillo and Canyon. Without sale of landfill space, he said, local collection fees would be higher.

Dixon would like the city to close its Class C misdemeanor jail. Perhaps the city and county could exchange dispatch and jail functions, he said.

Jeff McCormick, incumbent Ward 1: Cabot Carbon Black employee. Appointed city commissioner in January to complete unexpired term of Ray Hupp, who was appointed mayor to replace now-County Judge Richard Peet.

"I want to stand up and give my opinion on something," McCormick said.

He supports Pampa as regional landfill site, with fees collected to pay for the facility, which is in the permitting process with Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission.

Bill Willingham, candidate Ward 1: Attended Pampa schools and works in family business.

Willingham said he supports city's enhanced involvement in Pampa Economic Development Corporation activities. He advocates PEDC support for retail businesses to bring shoppers from smaller towns.

He said he believes Pampa should participate in the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority's proposal to develop the Roberts County water field. He opposes sale of landfill space to area towns.

Bob Neslage, mayoral candidate: Retired U.S. Army as a lieutenant colonel. Pampa High School class of 1962.

"I owe a debt to society. I owe a debt to the community from which I came," Neslage said.

Neslage said he is qualified for the city's top elected spot because he has a strong management background. He favors the completion of Clarendon College-Pampa Center expansion.

Jeff Andrews, mayoral candidate: Comptroller Bourland-Leverich Supply. City commissioner. Former planning and zoning board member.

Andrews says it will cost $3.4 to $4.8 million to complete a new landfill, depending on the type landfill selected.

Andrews advocates consideration of annexation of adjacent county land to provide space for growth.

"Most of all I am for a positive outlook," he said.

Andrews noted that by law PEDC is allowed only to recruit and develop manufacturing jobs. He supports expansion of Clarendon College-Pampa Center and the proposed Festival of Lights.

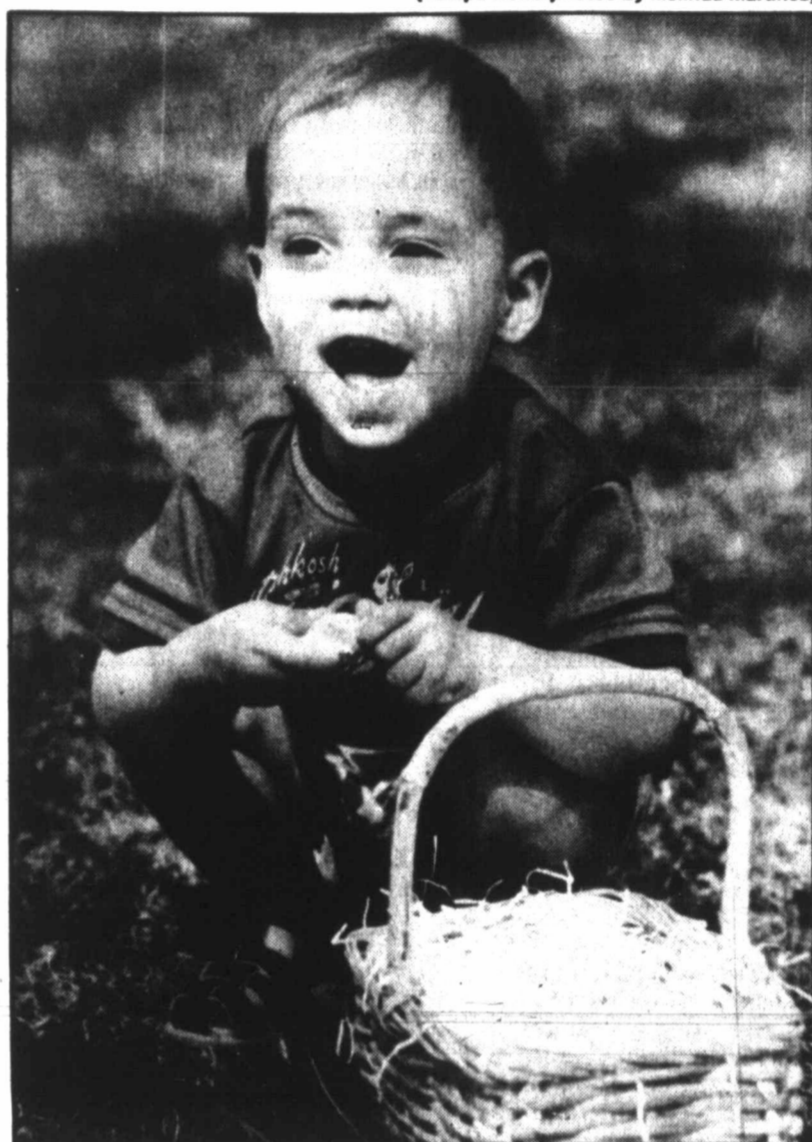

Andrews advocates consideration of consolidation of city and county services including law enforcement functions and roads.

At right, Hunter Hambright, nearly 2, shows a little enthusiasm as he holds a piece of candy that was in his Easter basket. He attended the hunt with his parents Bill and Vicki, and sisters Morgan, 3, and Megan, 6. Hundreds of children and their parents, family members and friends gathered for the annual event sponsored by the Pampa radio stations, offering eggs, candy and prizes provided by Pampa area merchants.

Friendly fire soldiers get Army medals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three U.S. soldiers in a unit that accidentally killed an Army sergeant with "friendly fire" during the Persian Gulf War nonetheless received Bronze Stars for their actions, according to a report Saturday.

The soldiers were awarded the medals based on "misleading statements and misrepresentations" by three of their commanding officers, according to a confidential General Accounting Office report on the Army's inquiry into the incident, obtained by U.S. News & World Report.

The GAO informed the Army of its findings in May 1994. And last August, the Army inspector general urged the Army to revoke the awards. The Army says it has begun that process, the magazine said.

Sgt. Douglas "Lance" Fielder, 22, of Nashville, Tenn., was killed and another soldier was wounded Feb. 27, 1991, when troops of the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment strayed outside their assigned battle area and, mistaking Fielder and four others for Iraqi troops, fired on their disabled ammunition carrier.

"The (GAO) report says the officers cited their men for heroic efforts 'involving conflict with an armed enemy' when, in fact, there was no enemy," the magazine reported in its April 24 edition.

Fielder's mother, Deborah Shelton Harris, said she still is not satisfied the Army has told the truth about her son's death. He also received the Bronze Star, awarded after his death.

"It tarnishes Lance's Bronze Star," his mother said. "It is just like spitting on the grave. I am stunned."

The GAO reviewed the Army's investigation at the request of Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., to determine whether the Army's probe was thorough. The GAO stopped short of accusing the Army of a coverup, but was highly critical of four Army investigations that had recommended exonerating the officers.

Col. Douglas Starr, Lt. Col. John Daly Jr. and Capt. Bo Friesen, ultimately were reprimanded by the Army for negligence for allowing their troops to cross battle boundary lines.

But the reprimands of Starr and Daly, which could damage the promotion chances of career officers, were not placed in their permanent records, on the orders of an Army general, the GAO said.

Chiapas land disputes claim 23 lives in past three weeks

SAN CRISTOBAL DE LAS CASAS, Mexico (AP) — Land disputes in the southern Chiapas state, site of a yearlong Zapatista rebellion, have claimed 23 lives in the last three weeks, according to the Mexico City daily La Jornada. As the Mexican government and Zapatista negotiators prepare for a new round of peace negotiations this week, the violence underscores the role land and vigilante justice play in fueling the indigenous rebellion.

An average of one peasant or landowner has been killed every day since March 14 in a confrontation, or by private guards hired to protect land from takeovers by landless peasants.

In the last year, 130 people have died, 15 fewer than were killed in the Zapatista rebellion before a cease-fire took effect last January.

Police: Family bilks aunt of $100,000

CAPE MAY COURT HOUSE, N.J. (AP) — They were supposed to take care of an elderly, ailing aunt. Instead, they just took her — for more than $100,000.

A Cape May County grand jury has indicted a niece and two other relatives for allegedly bilking Margaret Lowery, 88, while she stayed with them to recuperate from a broken hip.

"She was in a trusted position and it was used against her. You can imagine what she went through," Wildwood police Detective Kevin McLaughlin said Saturday.

Rose Marie Berry, 48, her husband John Berry, 51, and the couple's daughter, Jennifer Berry, 24, were each charged with theft by deception and conspiracy to commit theft by deception.

They allegedly used the money on casino gambling, two cars and mail-order items.

Our organization would like to thank the citizens of Pampa and surrounding area for their help and support in our recent book sale and membership drive.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveyng commandment.

Opinion

It's time to cry foul ball at Feds

Baseball fans across America are cheering a judge's injunction bringing an end to the nearly eight-month long baseball strike. But the court order may have only imposed a temporary peace in a labor-management war that could erupt again before the season's over.

This court action wasn't initiated by players or owners, but by a third-party government agency - the National Labor Relations Board. The NLRB filed a motion against the owners of Major League Baseball, accusing them of not bargaining in good faith with the players' union.

Manhattan Federal District Judge Sonia Sotomayor agreed. In her ruling, she ordered that, absent a new agreement with players, baseball owners must follow the same work rules that applied last season. With last year's more acceptable rules in place, players have agreed to come back to work.

On its face, the ruling seems to be a winner for baseball fans. First-string players will take the field April 26 to begin a shortened 144-game schedule. Meanwhile, negotiations between players and owners will continue.

When all the cheering has died down, however, baseball owners and players will still lack a voluntary agreement between them. They will be living under rules imposed by the government, not set by voluntary bargaining.

As a rule, government should not intervene in commercial transactions. If Major League owners want to change work rules, they should be free to do so as long as they do not violate any existing contracts. If members of the Major League players union decide they do not want to play under those rules, they should be free to walk out of their jobs. And if other baseball players want to take their place on the field, playing under the new rules set by owners, that too should be their right. Finally, baseball fans are free to vote with their dollars.

Government intervention short-circuits the bargaining process. In this case, it may actually delay the working out of a more lasting settlement had owners and the players' union been left free to work out their own resolution of the issues that still divide them.

When the government takes the field, whether in the form of congressional strong-arming, labor board suits or a judge's ruling, it infringes on the right of Major League Baseball to work out its own problems.

Berry's World

"In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of - of - well, REAL big-league baseball."

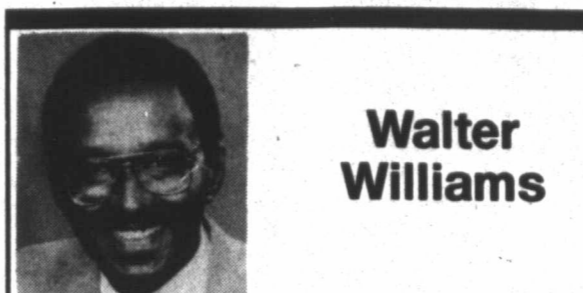

Free enterprise and blacks

Just about the most devastating idea many black Americans have bought into is that socialism is a friend and free markets are the foe. Let's look at it, but first, let's define the terms. Socialism is government ownership and/or control over the means of production. Capitalism is private ownership and/or control over the means of production. Most societies are neither pure socialist nor capitalist but constitute a mixture of various proportions.

If you are a discriminated-against minority, what scenario would you like to confront as a condition for going into business? The first option is where incumbents and bureaucrats determine the conditions you must meet before being allowed to enter. Or would you prefer the second, where there's unrestricted entry and your diligence and ability to satisfy customers determine whether you stay in business?

If you are a discriminated-against minority with just one ounce of brains, you'd probably opt for the second. The fact that the free market befriends outsiders and discriminated-against people is why there's been so much hostility toward it. Just a cursory reading of black history shows how people used the political mechanism to acquire advantages unattainable through the voluntary exchange of free markets. Practices such as licensing laws, minimum wage laws and often outright prohibitions were used to limit black earning opportunities.

Often, the stated motivation behind many regulatory laws was to exclude blacks. Today, that is no longer the case, but many of the same laws are on the books. Broadening opportunities, not only for blacks but for all Americans, requires efforts to repeal laws written in the interest of incumbents that have the effect of keeping people out who can be generally described as outsiders, discriminated-against and lacking political clout.

The Washington-based Institute for Justice is doing just that. After testimony by the institute's director, Chip Melior, Cincinnati removed its cap on the number of cabs allowed to operate in the city. Cincinnati's Mayor Roxanne Qualls and the city council said existing cab companies could no longer block new entrants by stating the new companies would hurt their business. Last year, the Institute for Justice forced the Colorado Public Utility Commission to relax taxi entry conditions in Denver, and it also assisted in bringing suit to lift Houston's ban on jitney services.

There are literally hundreds of regulations that block upward mobility and are supported by black politicians and civil rights organizations. It's hard for me to decide whether these people are simply uninformed or pursuing their own personal agendas. They support the Davis-Bacon Act setting minimum wages in federally financed construction projects. This 1930s law was enacted to get blacks out of the construction industry. Today, its supportive rhetoric is not racist, but its effect reduces opportunities for black construction workers and contractors. But there's hope for change. The Institute for Justice has brought suit challenging the act's constitutionality.

Setting minimum wages is one of the most effective tools in the arsenal of racists everywhere. South Africa's racist Mine Workers Union discovered that years ago, saying, "When the minimum wage is introduced, we believe that most of the difficulties in regard to the colored question will automatically drop out." Of course, the motivation for the minimum wage in the United States is different, but effects are identical - unemployment for the least skilled and least preferred worker.

Any way we cut it, the free market is a friend to discriminated-against people, and socialism is the foe. One of the smartest things blacks can do in today's changed political scene is to demand that Republicans link welfare reform to the elimination of government-sponsored collusion.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Easter Sunday, April 16, the 106th day of 1995. There are 259 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On April 16, 1789, President-elect Washington left Mount Vernon, Va., for his inauguration in New York.

On this date:
In 1862, a bill ending slavery in the District of Columbia became law.

In 1879, St. Bernadette, who had described seeing visions of the Virgin Mary at Lourdes, died in Nevers, France.

In 1912, Harriet Quimby became the first woman to fly across the English Channel, using a Blériot monoplane to travel from Dover, England, to Hardelet, France.

In 1917, Vladimir Ilyich Lenin returned to Russia after years of exile. In 1945, 50 years ago, U.S. troops reached Nuremberg, Germany, during World War II.

In 1945, in his first speech to Congress, President Truman pledged to carry out the war and peace policies of his predecessor, President Roosevelt.

Doggone that speech writing anyway!

Charley Reese

I noticed that Mr. Bill Safire, the New York Times columnist, mentioned that he walks his dog in a fancy suburb in Maryland.

I don't live in a fancy neighborhood, and in fact, I didn't think there were any fancy neighborhoods left in the Washington area, but I do have a dog. I never walk her, however.

I don't walk her because I am lazy and she is maniacal. Besides, she's an outdoor canine with a large fenced backyard in which to chase squirrels, blue jays, meter readers, tree trimmers, telephone repairmen, snakes, possums and raccoons. She is half Doberman and half German shepherd. She looks like a black German shepherd, except for a narrow head, but, of course, she acts like a Doberman. When she runs, she sounds like a horse.

She became an outdoor dog after eating two chairs, a sofa and my guitar case. Her favorite pastime is frustrating me by ignoring the doghouses and dog mattresses I buy her. Instead, she digs foxholes and sleeps in them on her back, with her four paws sticking up in the air, looking like a World War I canine casualty in no-man's-land. Rain and cold don't seem to bother her, but when the thunderstorms come, she's coming inside - one way or another.

Of course, Safire used his dog to slide into a column about former Vice President Spiro Agnew, for whom Safire used to write speeches. Telling about a dog lifting his leg in the driveway where a former vice president once lived is the Sneaky Lead technique, which all of us employ now and then.

Unfortunately, my dog has never visited the former residence of a former vice president nor have I ever written speeches for a vice president. I have, however, written speeches for a governor, lieutenant governor, state supreme court chief justice, a Catholic nun and various and assorted candidates for various and assorted offices.

That was in a former life for which I'm still doing penance. Speech writing is good training for a writer. It forces you to use short sentences, but there are better ways to make a living.

Once my lieutenant governor dropped by, announced he had to speak to a national convention of highway safety engineers and told me to write a speech. He himself had nothing particular he wanted to say.

So I wrote a speech in which he would propose toughening laws against drunk drivers. I thought that would be appropriate for highway safety engineers. When he came back from making the speech, I asked him how it went.

"Not worth a damn, Reese," he snapped. "By the time I got up to speak they were all drunk."

So here's a tip from a pro to all would-be speech writers: If the speech is going to be delivered at a national convention of anything, stay away from the subject of sobriety. As an added precaution, I'd stay away from the topic of marital fidelity in any convention speech, too.

There is an old story about a speech writer who worked for a particularly obnoxious U.S. senator. One day, the speech writer deliberately delayed giving the senator his speech - written in large type and laid out in what's called a speech box - until the last possible moment.

The senator, like most professional politicians, was a quick read and could deliver a written speech just by glancing at each page. The senator's speech, after suitable introductory remarks, said at the bottom of a page, "And now, ladies and gentlemen, I'm going to lay out for you my three-point program for balancing the budget, cutting taxes and bringing peace to the Middle East."

When the senator turned the page, the speech writer had penned this note by hand on an otherwise blank page: "Now, you're on your own, you (expletive). I quit."

Safire and I at least have this in common. Thinking about our dogs leads us to think about politicians.

Limiting terms and power is the real issue

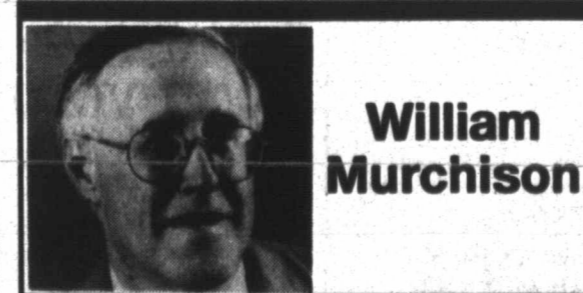

Republican Rep. Henry J. Hyde of Illinois views term-limit proposals - which he helped the other day to crush - as part of a "corrosive attack on the consent of the governed." Some proponents of term limits, Hyde told his colleagues in a blistering speech, "really in their hearts hate politics and despise politicians."

The gentleman from Illinois, who has served 20 years in Congress, manifestly doesn't hate them. "I love politics and politicians. They invest the one commodity that can never be replaced - their time, their family life, their privacy and their reputation - and for what? To make this a better country ..."

Well, er, um ... To hear an honest man like Hyde spout nonsense is always unpleasant. This particular morsel of nonsense, however, has an interesting aftertaste. It reminds us why we need term limits - because even honest men, after too many years in Washington, lose sight of their purpose. They come down with Potomac fever. They lay to their souls the flattering unctious of indispensability and self-importance. "The country needs me!" is their cry. Often coupled with: "I love the power!"

This baseless egoism makes it easy and logical to sacrifice, as Hyde says, time, family life, privacy, reputation. But to what end? Making this "a better country"?

If that were so, America should be the Promised Land. We have never in our history had so much government or so many politicians. Yet we live with an insupportable national debt, a brush thicket of regulation and social and moral tensions unparalleled for more than a century. Hyde, a conservative, is against the policies that created these phenomena. Yet he apologizes for those who created the policies.

He puts his finger on authentic concerns about the effects of term limits - the presumptive loss of experience and institutional memory, the voters' absolute right "to those who will represent you in Congress." He forgets that, despite these considerations, 80 percent of Americans tell the pollsters they want term limits. There must be some reason.

Hyde puts his finger on it: "The case for term limits is a rejection of professionalism in politics - 'career politician' is an epithet." You bet it is, congressmen. Career politicians have made it so.

It isn't that one wants stupid, bumbling, incompetent politicians - one wants modest politicians, who think they have neither the answers to everything nor a divinely ordained right to a permanent entry in the District of Columbia phone book.

Hyde interposes that the voters hold the ultimate check on career politicians: the right to throw them out any time they come up for election. This is technically correct, but the right needs reinforcement. We need not just to defeat time-servers like Dan Rostenkowski and Tom Foley but also to stigmatize the whole class of politician that regards Washington as the center of the universe. Sorry, but we can't trust frail human nature to resist the kind of power whose home base is Washington. We limit our presidents' terms - it makes no sense to treat congressmen differently.

Hyde, intending to excite sympathy for professional congressmen, notes the range of responsibilities they face: "environmental issues, health care, banking and finance and tax policy, the farm problems, weapons systems, Bosnia-Herzegovina, North Korea, foreign policy, the administration of justice, crime and punishment, education, welfare, budgeting in the trillions of dollars, immigration. The list is endless..."

Too true! The challenge isn't simply to limit terms. It's to limit the power of the term-servers and thus to empower, as of old, the working, tax-paying citizens of this country.

Hyde says the term-limits people hate politics? Bullly for them. In our time we've had far too much politics and far too little individual responsibility. The congressman reminds us of a physical phenomenon: too many years in Washington, like too much sun at the beach, can dry out the brains. In his own case, let's hope, just temporarily.

'Catechism' is receiving the big sell

DALLAS (AP) — The first comprehensive revision of the Roman Catholic Church's official code of conduct and philosophy for centuries is now in paperback, leaving "a bunch of very angry Catholic publishers."

Doubleday is banking that the new paperback version of Catechism of the Catholic Church will sell like Shrove Tuesday hotcakes.

"It will be in most places that display paperback racks, which already makes it one of the most widely distributed religious books ever," said Tom Cahill, Doubleday's director of religious books.

But Doubleday's optimism of the mass release has unsettled some publishing houses that specialize in Roman Catholic literature.

"You have a bunch of very angry Catholic publishers," said Jay McKee, associated director of marketing for Paulist Press, a Mahway, N.J., publisher of Catholic literature.

Doubleday, a division of New York-based Bantam Doubleday Dell Publishing Group Inc., is distributing its mass-market paperback edition later this month. The hardcover and trade paperback versions hit the market about a year ago.

The last major catechism was produced after the Council of Trent in 1566, a time of ideological and civil warfare between Rome and Protestant reformers.

This 1-inch-thick, 826-page volume, contains heavily indexed and annotated statements of belief written in modern language.

For the nation's 59 million Catholics, the catechism will be the point of reference for teaching materials for generations to come, from adult texts to preschool coloring books.

It lists such modern sins as tax fraud and the payment of low wages, along with church doctrine on such age-old conditions as adultery, homosexuality and abortion.

Things got exciting in the classroom this weekend as Lance Gaillard of Texhoma, Okla., seen riding a bucking bronco above, stayed seated at his desk during a rodeo school at McCloy Feedlot near Morse.

Want to be a rodeo cowboy? Then get off the horses and go to school

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

MORSE — Would-be bronc and bull riders from three states gathered this weekend at McCloy Feedlot near this Hutchinson County community to learn how to stay on top in roughstock rodeo events.

Allen McCloy, feedlot manager and rodeo stock contractor, hosted the Texas Cowboy Rodeo Association Bareback, Saddle Bronc, Bull Riding and Judging School on Friday and Saturday.

A roughstock jackpot is scheduled for today following the school.

"They're pretty green," McCloy said, surveying the young riders from his perch behind the chutes, "but then everybody starts pretty green."

Pointing to a student in a black cowboy hat dusting himself off after an unceremonious dismount from a bucking bareback bronc, McCloy said that Lance Gaillard of Texhoma, Okla., was one of several at the school that were good athletes and should do well.

"I've seen him ride some good broncs," McCloy said.

The veteran stock contractor and rodeo performer said schools such as the one this weekend was probably the first formal training many of the boys would get.

"It will be the only formal training for some of them," he said.

Friday morning was spent talking, said instructor Cole Tindale, recuperating from a rough night in Lubbock last week after getting hung up in a horse's rigging.

Friday afternoon and most of Saturday consisted of on-the-job training.

McCloy said he starts the students out on some Holsteins before they move on to horses.

"Those Holsteins move slow," he said. "It gives these young fellows time to think. When they get on a horse, things happen pretty fast."

McCloy, who has been rodeoing most of 40 plus years, said he learned to ride bucking stock on an old milk cow.

"It wasn't because I knew what I was doing," he grinned. "It was just all that I had to ride."

Between rides, Tindale held impromptu counseling sessions behind the chutes.

"Back here, relax, loosen up your muscles," he told Kevin McNett of Gruver. "Once you're on the back of that horse, focus on what you're doing. Block everything else out. When I'm in the chute, I look at the horse's main, run my hand in the rigging and concentrate. It takes total concentration."

Tindale said he's seen a lot of riders burn themselves out behind the chutes worrying about a ride.

"It's hard enough to concentrate for eight seconds without burning up all your adrenaline back here for 30 minutes before it," he said.

Abortion protest crowds drop

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three years ago, Operation Rescue drew thousands of followers to Louisiana for a weeklong anti-abortion protest. This year, the daily turnout has been measured in dozens.

"We've had almost as many police as demonstrators all week," police Maj. Howard Robertson said Saturday. "We were prepared for the worst, but it's been a real low-key thing."

In 1992, a weeklong anti-abortion demonstration outside a Baton Rouge clinic attracted about 1,700 Operation Rescue members a day.

Saturday's final demonstration paled in comparison: About 80 members of Operation Rescue showed up at one clinic, along with about 50 abortion rights activists.

"They've definitely bottomed out," said Janet Arenz, director of the national clinic defense project of the Los Angeles-based Feminist Majority Foundation.

Arenz, who was in town to train "clinic defenders," said there's been a steady decline at demonstrations.

"We're seeing it all over the country — people just aren't getting involved in the extremist groups," Arenz said.

Shootings of abortion doctors in Massachusetts and Florida have knocked down Operation Rescue's numbers, said the Rev. Bill Shanks, a Louisiana organizer for the anti-abortion group.

"The people who did that haven't anything to do with our movement," Shanks said Saturday. "But it hurt our cause as well as giving the 'pro' people the martyr they wanted."

Aftershocks felt near Alpine

ODESSA (AP) — Two geologists cite stress along a thrust fault along the base of the Del Norte Mountains east of Alpine as the probable cause of an earthquake that shook West Texas.

The two Sul Ross State University geologists, geology department chairman David Rohr and assistant professor Kevin Urbanczyk, plotted the quake's origin by drawing an arc on a map 20 miles east-southeast from Alpine and checking intersecting fault lines.

Geophysicists at the U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., placed the quake's epicenter 20 miles east-southeast of Alpine.

According to Urbanczyk, the main quake occurred at 7:33 p.m. Thursday and lasted about 12 seconds; then was followed by a 7:34 p.m. aftershock. Other aftershocks followed at 9:19 p.m. Thursday, and at 3 a.m. and 5:02 a.m. Friday. The 9:19 p.m. after-shock was the strongest, with a magnitude of 3.3, according to the center's reports.

Only minor damage and a few minor injuries were reported.

Another aftershock, the 13th since Thursday night's earthquake in far west Texas, registered a 4.0 reading on the Richter Scale Saturday morning, according to officials at the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo.

The latest shock was centered 25 miles east-southeast of Alpine, Texas, and occurred at 9:33 a.m. CDT. The aftershock, which Survey spokeswoman Pat Jorgenson termed as "strong," caused no damage or injuries and was barely noticeable.

Jorgenson said aftershocks are natural and unpredictable.

"It's hard to say with this type of earthquake," she said. "Shocks can go on for days, weeks or months. They should decrease, as we expect them to, but who knows?"

Minding your own Business

By Don Taylor

Weaving a character

*Sow an act and you reap a habit.
Sow a habit and you reap a character.
Sow a character and you reap a destiny.*
— Charles Reade

Every human being is a creature of habit. Some of our habits are good, some are bad and others may be neutral. Like many fine strands woven into a strong cable, our habits bind our destiny.

I believe we control the acts we allow to become habits. And, when we control our acts, we control what habits we choose to cultivate.

I would like to recommend these ten habits as proper and desirable for everyone to develop. If you agree, start weaving a strong success cable with them today.

Weaving a character

- Start early. Although I'm not an early riser by nature, as I grow older I find that an early start helps me accomplish more. Ben Franklin said, "He that riseth late, must trot all day and shall scarce overtake his business at night."

- Getting an early start, whether on the work day or on a specific project, will enhance your success opportunities. It can also lower your stress level. If you start early, you can often complete your work well before any deadlines sneak up on you.

- Do what needs to be done without being asked (or told) to do it. You may do some work you don't "have" to do. However, one of the big problems we have in this country is that too many people stop looking for work when they get a job. You can increase your worth by doing what needs to be done without making a big fuss about it.

- Don't mistake activity for achievement. I know a lot of folks who stay very busy, but aren't very productive. They work a lot, but they don't focus on results. They seem quite content with just being busy. It does make time pass quickly.

- Save a little money every pay period. If you can't learn to live on $800 per month, you won't be able to live on $8,000. When you save, you pay yourself first. This is still the safest, most reliable way to grow rich.

- Have some fun every day. If you can find ways to make your work fun, you never have to work. Learn to laugh. Laughter can heal bad attitudes, faltering relationships and aching bodies. Doesn't that sound like what the doctor ordered?

- Learn something new every day. Spend more time at the library and less with the remote control. Discover a new word in the dictionary. Read good books and study the lives of successful people. Learning to learn is a wonderful habit.

- Talk less, listen more. I'm beginning to notice that those who have the most to say, talk the least. However, when they do talk, people listen. Enough said.

- Honesty is the only policy. You build a life of integrity one honest day at a time. Be brutally honest with yourself and tactfully honest with others. Truth would solve the ills of this country if only there were more of it.

- Take responsibility for your actions. Blaming others is easy, but it's a bad habit. No strong family, business or government was ever built by folks who passed the buck. Eventually there comes a payday when you reap the consequences of your actions. Take responsibility now and all your paydays will be positive ones.

- Observe God's laws. Even if you don't believe in life after death, you can't go wrong following His commandments. The good life, the successful life, is one that is never in conflict with God's laws of living.

FERC judge OKs merger for utility

DALLAS (AP) - A proposed Texas utility merger is in the public interest, an administrative law judge for the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has found.

FERC Administrative Law Judge Jerome Nelson last week recommended that the merger be approved, subject to the commission's deciding a number of issues concerning comparable transmission service, Dallas-based Central and South West Corp. said.

Comparable transmission service means letting other companies use transmission service on similar terms to the company's own use.

The judge also deferred to the full commission a decision on a number of issues relating to the companies' tariffs.

Nelson found the merger would produce $202 million to $252 million in cost savings during the first 10 years.

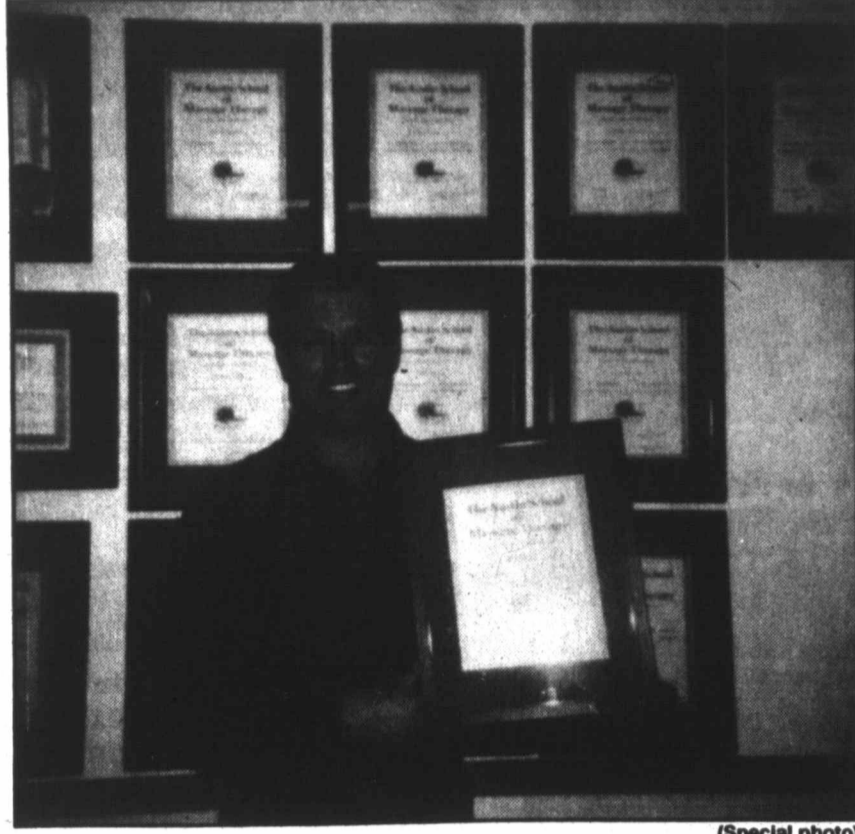

The FERC hearings were held in January.

IRS crackdown delays refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) - The IRS' crackdown on fraud, resulting in about 7 million delayed refunds this year, is putting a crimp in the electronic filing program the agency sees as crucial to its future.

Electronic returns filed primarily through tax preparation firms totaled 10.2 million through April 7, down 19 percent from the same period a year ago, the Internal Revenue Service said Thursday. The IRS had expected a rise of 15 percent.

Tax return preparers blame the sharp drop on the IRS' new effort to prevent bogus refunds from going out the door.

Bryan Going, registered massage therapist at Therassage Bodywork Professionals, shows the certificate he received for a workshop in neuromuscular therapy.

Going attends workshop on neuromuscular therapy

Bryan Going, a registered massage therapist at Therassage Bodywork Professionals in Pampa, recently completed a workshop in neuromuscular therapy for low back pain and spinal biomechanics.

Going traveled to Lubbock in March to attend an 18-hour advanced training workshop in neuromuscular therapy as part of his post graduate education and hands-on training. The certification program consists of a total of 300 hours.

This is the third of a four-part series in the neuromuscular therapy certification program that Going has attended and completed. His training in Lubbock focused on low back pain and spinal biomechanics. He learned hands-on techniques to alleviate chronic low back pain. Some of the techniques involve myofascial, trigger point technique, range of motion, stretching, structural release and re-education of the muscles.

Mormon-owned radio stations say no thanks to gambling ads

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - The gambling boats now floating along the Missouri River are bringing a big stream of advertising revenue to many media outlets - but not to all.

Citing moral grounds, a Mormon-owned corporation says it doesn't want a penny of gambling advertising money. Bonneville International Corp., based in Salt Lake City, is refusing to sell air time to any gambling interests on its stations in nine cities, including Kansas City. Bonneville also owns stations in Dallas.

The ban that started in January was a logical extension of Bonneville's philosophy, said Ron Carter, general manager of Bonneville's four Kansas City stations.

"The ownership of Bonneville International actively opposes gambling in this country," Carter said in a telephone interview. "It seemed hypocritical to, on one hand, actively oppose gambling and on the other hand, accept advertising on (Bonneville) stations."

The policy extends to all types of gambling, including racetracks and even state lotteries. The Bonneville stations in Kansas City are KCMO-AM/FM, KMBZ-AM and KLTH-FM. It also owns KAAM-AM and KZPS-FM in Dallas.

Carter estimated the total advertising revenue at stake in the nine cities in which Bonneville has holdings - which also include San Francisco, Seattle, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, Phoenix, Chicago and New York - at $5 million per year.

Of course, the Bonneville stations can sell the ad time to someone else, but it means more work, Carter said.

"When you take away an entire category of people who are actively spending money, it's not as easy to find somebody who's standing there in line ready to invest," he said. "It's a category that's a good category and a growing category."

The Woodlands, the dog and horse race track in Kansas City, Kan., has adjusted to the ad ban by buying time on other radio stations and by using direct mail. But the owners and some employees were disappointed and even offended by Bonneville's new policy.

Dollar drops against yen despite Japan's stimulus

NEW YORK (AP) - The dollar fell against the yen Friday after a new Japanese economic stimulus plan and an interest-rate cut by the Bank of Japan failed to impress a holiday-thinned currency market.

The greenback ended with modest gains vs. key European currencies.

The U.S. currency initially advanced in Asia after the Japanese government unveiled a spending package aimed at cutting Japan's huge trade surplus - a major cause of the dollar's weakness. As part of the effort to boost the dollar, the central bank cut its discount rate, the interest it charges on loans to commercial banks, 3/4-percentage point to 1 percent.

But sentiment soured as dealers scrutinized the plan, which had been much-hyped by Tokyo, and decided that it was simply an acceleration of previously announced measures that offered little help for the slumping dollar.

"If the Japanese government really wanted to help the situation, they would have made this move two weeks ago without so much fanfare," said Callum

Henderson, senior analyst at MMS International in New York.

"There was nothing in the plan that surprised the market," added Guy Bouaziz, a trader in Englewood, N.J. "Most of the movement in the dollar came before Friday in anticipation of the announcement."

Trading was extremely quiet in the United States and Europe, where most financial markets were closed for Good Friday and Passover.

Late in New York dealings, the dollar was quoted at 83.33 yen, down from 83.35 late Thursday. The dollar also was changing hands in New York at 1.3910 German marks, up from 1.3873.

The yen has gained about 20 percent in value against the dollar so far this year, despite regular dollar-buying intervention by the Bank of Japan in a bid to temper the strength of the Japanese currency.

The yen's appreciation is unwelcome in Tokyo because it makes Japanese products more expensive and thus less competitive on foreign markets, squeezing corporate profits and hampering a recovery in Japan's export-oriented economy.

Home schooling workshop set in Lubbock April 21-22

LUBBOCK - The Advanced Home Schooling Workshop featuring Gregg Harris from Gresham, Ore., and special guests Mike Bolinsky and Tim Lambert will be presented Friday evening and Saturday, April 21-22, 1995, at the Indiana Avenue Baptist Church, 8315 Indiana Avenue, in Lubbock.

The Friday sessions, from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., are open to the public at no charge.

The tuition for the Saturday sessions will be $35 per couple, $25 per individual or $10 for grandparents (60 years or older) and students between the ages of 13 and 18 years. Pastors (one per church) may attend free of charge.

Harris, a nationally recognized author and speaker, will appear on large screen video. Topics to be addressed by Harris include "Home School & the New World Order," "The Seasons of Life for Your Family," "How to Have an Orderly Home" and "Sunday Schools and Church Youth Groups."

On Saturday afternoon, Lambert, executive director of Texas Home School Coalition, will speak concerning "Home Schooling Laws in Texas." He will be available to answer questions at the THSC booth in the exhibit hall throughout the workshop.

Bolinsky, who has been recognized as National Science Teacher of the Year, will present the following topics: "How Do You Spell Science? F-E-A-R," "How Important are the Four R's?" and "Is There a Solution? It's as Easy as H2O."

For more information or to request a registration form for this workshop, call Sandra Schuneman in Pampa, 665-8644, between the hours of noon and 9 p.m.

'Love Boat' warship comes home

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) - The first U.S. warship to set out on an extended mission with women crew members aboard arrived home Friday after 15 pregnancies and some videotaped hanky-panky earned it the moniker "The Love Boat."

The Navy chafes at the nickname for the USS Eisenhower, calling the aircraft carrier's six-month mission to the Mediterranean "a mishap-free cruise," in the words of an Atlantic Fleet spokesman, Cmdr. Kevin Wensing.

"They've made every commitment they've had to make, in the Mediterranean, in the Adriatic, in exercises with NATO allies," he said. "They've had men and women aviators flying combat patrols over Bosnia and southern Iraq."

The warship arrived around 3:30 p.m. at the Norfolk Naval Base to a crowd of about 5,000.

All eyes were on the Eisenhower when it went to sea in October with 415 women among the crew and air wing of about 5,000.

The Navy is quick to note that of the 15 pregnancies, 12 women conceived before they boarded the ship last fall. Two of the women got pregnant during shore leave in Europe with their husbands. One unmarried woman also conceived while on shore leave, the Navy said.

Annual Saddle Up for St. Jude trail ride to be held on April 29

The fourth annual Saddle Up for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital trail ride will be Saturday, April 29. In case of rain or bad weather, the ride will be May 6.

This year's ride will be held on the Arrington Ranch between Pampa and Skellytown. Riders are needed for this event to raise funds for the research center to help in the fight against childhood cancer and other catastrophic childhood diseases, Saddle Up organizers said.

Riders are asked to get as many sponsors as they would like, with each sponsor making a one-time donation. All monies must be turned in the day of the ride.

Each rider turning in $35 will receive a St. Jude T-shirt and a blue ribbon. Riders collecting $75 or more will receive a St. Jude sports bag, T-shirt and blue ribbon. Riders collecting $125 or more will receive a St. Jude sweatshirt, sports bag, T-shirt and blue ribbon. A minimum of $15 will be required to ride.

Many other prizes have been donated by area businessmen. Special prizes have been set aside for the riders raising the most money.

Sign up will start at 8 a.m. with the ride starting at 9 a.m. The ride will continue until noon. After lunch, the ride will continue until 3 p.m., when all prizes will be awarded.

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) — Tim Lincecum had three hits, including an RBI single, as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Texas Rangers, 5-3, on Saturday.

The White Sox got 11 hits off five Texas pitchers, but Raines was the only Chicago player with more than one hit. He also scored a run.

For Texas, left fielder Shawn Hare went 2-for-3 as the Rangers also got 11 hits, running their total through three exhibition games to 38 hits and 22 runs.

In the third inning, Raines gave the Sox a 2-1 lead with a single to left field, driving in Norberto Martin. Raines scored one of two Chicago runs in the top of the fifth as the White Sox went up, 4-1.

Chicago right-hander Scott Ruffcorn earned the win, allowing two hits and a run in three innings. Right-hander Matt Karchner pitched the ninth inning and picked up the save despite giving up a run.

Coach Bucky Dent managed the Rangers in place of Johnny Oates, whom the club gave permission to be with his wife, Gloria, who reportedly became ill while driving to Florida from their home in Virginia. Club officials had no details about her illness.

HORSE RACING

NEW YORK (AP) — Talkin Man cruised to an easy victory in the $500,000 Wood Memorial on Saturday at Aqueduct, and now the talk turns to Kentucky.

With the upset victory earlier in the day by Wild Syn in the Blue Grass, Talkin Man might well go to Churchill Downs as the favorite for the Kentucky Derby on May 6.

Canada's 2-year-old champion a year ago, Talkin Man took the lead for good in the 1 1/8-mile Wood with a mile left, loped along easily on the lead down the backstretch and around the final turn, then stretched the margin of victory out to 7 3/4 lengths.

GOLF

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Mark McCumber, David Edwards and David Frost led a startling assault on Harbour Town Golf Links on Saturday and shared the lead after three rounds of the MCI Classic.

McCumber had a 64 and Edwards and Frost posted 66s and all were at 8-under 205 along with first-round co-leader Gene Sauers, who had a 69.

"Everything that felt so crummy on Thursday felt just great today," said McCumber, who made birdies on four of five holes on the back nine. "This is the kind of golf course that if you really get it going good, you can shoot 64."

TENNIS

HOUSTON (AP) — Asa Carlsson of Sweden pushed past a worn-out Meike Babel 6-4, 6-3 Saturday in the semifinals of the Houston Women's Tennis Championships Saturday.

No. 1 ranked Steffi Graf battled defending champion Sabine Hack, the No. 5 seed, later. Babel won the first two games of the second set, but Carlsson took the next five, gaining six break points in the seventh game.

Babel broke Carlsson's serve in the next game, but Carlsson answered her in the final game with an unreturned forehand.

Babel, of Germany, said she had felt a lack of energy when she woke up in the morning and ran out of steam during the match.

"You have to try and it just didn't work," she said. "Next time I'll try to be in better shape."

After beating Babel, Carlsson headed straight into a doubles match with Alexandra Fusaj of France against Nicole Arendt of New Jersey and Manon Bollegraf of The Netherlands.

Carlsson pulled away from a 3-3 tie in the first set and gained two games before Babel kept her pointless in the ninth game. Carlsson finished the set with an unreturned winner.

TOKYO (AP) — After new world No. 1 Andre Agassi looked solid Saturday in reaching the Japan Open final, he said a back strain will force him out of a tournament next week.

But Jim Courier, his opponent Sunday in this $1.2 million tournament, doesn't expect to gain any points from Agassi's back problems.

"For Andre to be in the final of this tournament indicates to me that his back is really not too bad," Courier said.

Agassi reached the final with a 7-5, 6-2 victory over third-seeded Wayne Ferreira of South Africa, the world's 10th-ranked player.

"I feel like I'm hitting the ball well," Agassi said, but added that his doctor, coach and manager "have been concerned with me just finishing this week" because of the back strain he sustained in preparations last month for the U.S. Davis Cup victory in Italy.

"I'll come out here and finish tomorrow, but I can't play next week at all," Agassi said. "The more fatigued it gets, the more you play on it, the worse it gets, and it can turn into something that could be chronic."

"I've got to take care of it."

Agassi said that after a couple of weeks of rest and treatment, he hoped to be back in action for a tournament in Atlanta May 1-7. He will miss next week's tournament in Hong Kong.

Ferreira, who now has lost five straight matches to Agassi, said the flamboyant American was hitting as well as ever from the baseline and serving better than in their past battles.

Spurs get back on winning track

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs were anxious to get back to winning after losing two consecutive games this week.

David Robinson and Dennis Rodman had just what it took to do it.

Robinson scored 32 points and grabbed 16 rebounds and Rodman — returning from missing 14 games with a shoulder injury — had 15 rebounds as the Spurs defeated the Sacramento Kings Friday night 98-88.

Still, the Spurs said they could have played better.

"We really didn't get into our rhythm until late in the game," Robinson said, attributing the "rhythm" problem to losses this week to Portland and Phoenix and to not being used to having Rodman in the rotation.

That's not to say Robinson wasn't glad to have Rodman back.

"It was a good, gutsy effort for him to come out and do the job that he did," Robinson said. "Right at the end there, that was the Spurs I know."

Sacramento fought back from a 60-49 deficit in the third quarter and took an 80-79 lead on a field goal by Randy Brown with 8:04 left.

But San Antonio went ahead 81-80 on a field goal by Rodman with six minutes remaining and never trailed again. The Spurs held the Kings scoreless for 5 1/2 minutes as San Antonio took a 93-82 lead as Robinson and Rodman dunked to send wild cheers through the Alamodome.

The victory improved the Spurs' record to 57-20, the best in the history of the franchise.

"All I can say is that I'm a big fan of their ball club. They've got a chance to go a long way," Kings coach Garry St. Jean said. "Down the end they tightened their defense. We had looks, but they didn't go."

Doc Rivers, a key to the Spurs' late-game defense, said the fourth quarter was "a wake up call we've been needing."

"Our defense won the game," Rivers said.

St. Jean also praised the Spurs' rebounding, and joked, "I wish Dennis' shoulder was still hurting."

Dennis said his shoulder was still hurting, but after missing nearly four weeks of play he wasn't going to let it stop him Friday night.

"Pain drives me. It makes me get into my game that much more," Rodman said. "I was going to do what it took to play."

"I just had to go out and do what I could. It was no big deal."

Rodman, who separated his right shoulder in a motorcycle accident March 19, received a 25-second standing ovation when he entered the game with 7:29 remaining in the second period.

Rodman left Friday night's game grimacing in pain as he had muscle spasms in his right shoulder blade seconds before halftime. But after working with a physical therapist at intermission he returned in the third quarter.

"It felt like pins and needles out there, and then it felt like somebody had shot me. It got tight and the therapist went back to work on it. Normally that would take two or three hours to get that kind of knot out, but I wanted to keep going strong," he said.

Spurs coach Bob Hill said he was surprised Rodman was able to play as much and as well as he did.

"Fifteen rebounds in 22 minutes was a pretty good night," Hill said.

Sean Elliott scored 17 points for the Spurs and Avery Johnson added 16 and Vinny Del Negro 12.

Mitch Richmond led the Kings with 22 points, while Walt Williams scored 18 and Brian Grant 12. Olden Polynice had 13 rebounds for Sacramento.

Pampa tracksters off to strong start

Tashia Wilson (left) of Pampa competes in the 100-meter dash during the preliminaries of the District 1-4A track meet at Randall High School. The Lady Harvesters scored 23 points during the first day to grab second place behind Randall.

CANYON — Three Pampa High track team members emerged as the early regional qualifiers in the first day of the District 1-4A meet at Randall High School.

Distance runner Marcy Leal for the Lady Harvesters won the 3200 with a time of 12:17.38. Teammate Barbara Wine placed second in the shot with a toss of 33-7 1/4. Wine finished just behind Randall's Shannon Hooker, who had a winning throw of 34-9 1/2.

Leal's time was personal best for the senior, who had to come from behind to beat Randall's Mandy Arp, who held the lead during the first half of the 3200.

Also for the Pampa girls, Jamie Hutcherson placed fourth in the long jump (16-5 3/4) and Tashia Wilson was sixth (15-9 1/2). Randall's Brandi Carpenter took first with a jump of 17-4.

In the boys division, Pampa's Coy Laury leaped 19-9 1/2 in the long jump to claim the gold medal. Laury, a junior, bested Randall's Justin Reed, who placed second at 19-5. Jimmy Reed of Pampa was fifth at 18-10 1/4.

After the first day of the two-day event, Randall was in the lead in the girls division with 28 points followed by Pampa with 23 and Borger 18. In the boys division, Canyon led with 47 1/2 points followed by Randall 42 and Pampa 12.

The top two individuals in each event qualify for the regional track meet in two weeks.

Groom girls, Wheeler boys win District 1-1A track titles

WHEELER — Groom outlasted Sunray to capture the District 1-1A girls track title. The Tigerettes scored 107 points, followed closely by Sunray with 102.

In the boys division, Wheeler emerged as the champion. The Mustangs scored 128 points while Shamrock came in second with 116.

The top two in each event advances to regionals.

The district meet was held last week at the Mustangs track.

'Horns end spring drills

AUSTIN (AP) — Linebackers Kyle Richardson and Tremaine Brown teamed for 14 tackles as the Orange team beat the Whites 17-3 Saturday in the University of Texas intersquad game which ended Spring football drills.

Richardson, a sophomore, had eight stops, four of which were unassisted. Brown, a junior, had six tackles, including three solos.

The Longhorns allowed more than 363 yards and nearly 24 points a game last season and apparently have benefited from Head Coach John Mackovic's renewed emphasis on defense.

The Orange defense, made up of first-team players, held the Whites to 124 total yards and a 2.6-yard average on 48 plays.

The Orange team allowed just one touchdown during four intersquad games this spring.

"You can see how much the defense improved," said defensive lineman Shane Rink.

"I just see an new attitude." The biggest play surrendered by the Orange team was a 34-yard pass from freshman quarterback Richard Walton to tight end Pat Fitzgerald. The play set up the White team's only score, a 42-yard field goal by Donnie Mellow.

The Orange's two touchdowns came on runs by sophomore Darrell Wilson and junior college transfer Jeffrey Clayton.

MIAMI — Fort Elliott boys and Miami girls are the District 6-A track champions for 1995. In the boys division, Fort Elliott outdistanced runnerup Miami and Higgins by 38 points. The meet, which was held last week in Miami, was much closer in the girls division, at least among the top two teams. Second-place Follett finished just 11 points behind Miami.

Tommy Green of Lefors was the top individual in the boys division, taking home gold medals in the high jump, triple jump and 400.

In the girls division, Kelton distance runner Elissa Ray won both the 3200 and 1600.

The top two individuals in each advance to regionals.

Floyd opens two-shot lead in third round of PGA seniors tourney

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Ray Floyd birdied the last hole and opened a two-shot lead while Jack Nicklaus continued a comeback in the third round of the PGA Seniors Championship. Floyd shot a 5-under-par 67 on the Champion course at the PGA Resort and completed 54 holes in 207, 9 under par. It mirrored his standing in this tournament a year ago — which he has forgotten. But that's understandable. "I don't remember," Floyd said when asked how he stood at this stage a year ago. "I think I was leading, but I don't know by how many."

There was a perceptible pause before he added: "Obviously, not enough," said Floyd who blew a four-shot lead on the final nine holes and finished second to Lee Trevino. This time, Jim Colbert and Jack Nicklaus are his closest pursuers going into Sunday's final round. "I've played with Colbert for three rounds and he's playing very well," Floyd said. "And Jack is on a great comeback. It should make for great television." Television, however, missed a miss that could have put Colbert

Don't succumb to spring fever: It's tax time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Procrastinators, beware! Do not let the distractions of spring obscure this painful reality: The IRS is waiting on you.

But the tax shut-ins over the weekend should find some solace in the fact that many, many other Americans are in the same fix. Although the bureau received 67.9 million returns from early birds through April 7, it expected an additional 36 million returns by the end of next week. The IRS also expected at least 5 million requests for filing extensions.

This year's filing deadline is two days later than most years, on Monday, because the usual April 15 deadline falls on a Saturday.

You can grant yourself an additional reprieve by requesting an automatic extension, until Aug. 15, using Form 4868. But that won't relieve you of responsibility for paying your taxes on time. Make your best estimate of how much you owe and include a check.

If you can't pay all you owe, send as much as you can. You'll still get the extension. And the IRS will bill you for the balance, plus interest and any penalty due. That amounts to about 16 percent at an annual rate so it may be cheaper to get a loan and pay on time.

You can ask to pay in installments on Form 9465. The IRS will let you know within 30 days. But, for the first time this year, a $43 fee will be added to your first payment.

Filing late, as opposed to just paying late, is really expensive. The penalty is 5 percent a month (an annual rate of about 60 percent).

The IRS is reminding filers of two changes since tax instruction booklets were published.

President Clinton signed legislation this week retroactively restoring a lapsed tax benefit for 3.2 million self-employed people. Now they can deduct 25 percent of their health insurance premiums, using line 26 of Form 1040.

Taxpayers who already filed but did not claim the deduction should file an amended return using Form 1040X.

And the IRS temporarily eased enforcement of a new law on charitable contributions. You were supposed to have obtained a written acknowledgement of any contribution of $250 or more.

But because many charities weren't accustomed to supplying acknowledgments, the IRS

Tax tips

Some tips for last-minute income tax return filers:

■ The deadline this year is Monday because April 15 falls on Saturday. New England residents have until Tuesday because the Internal Revenue Service center in Andover, Mass., is closed Monday to celebrate Patriot's Day.

■ Automatic filing extensions, until Aug. 15, can be obtained by filing Form 4868.

■ You can ask the IRS for an installment plan on Form 9465. A new fee this year, $43, will be added to your first payment.

■ Self-employed people can deduct 25 percent of their health insurance premiums. If you've already filed and didn't take the deduction, send in an amended return using Form 1040X.

■ If you didn't get a written acknowledgement of a charitable contribution of $250 or more, you can still claim a deduction for 1994. However, you must make a good-faith effort, such as writing a letter, to obtain the acknowledgment.

■ IRS representatives will field questions by telephone from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and from 7:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday. The toll-free number is 1-800-829-1040. Busy signals are common.

API/Wm. J. Castello

waived the requirement this year for taxpayers who make a good-faith effort by Oct. 16, such as writing a letter, to get one.

Gas stations in price war in Corpus Christi

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Two-hour lines for gasoline returned to Texas pumps, but this time no worldwide shortages or OPEC embargoes were to blame.

This time, with gas as cheap as 77 cents a gallon, customers actually enjoyed it.

"There was nothing good on television," said 21-year-old Carol Bolke as she waited for service at an area Diamond Shamrock station with her husband, Kent.

They, like hundreds of people there and at H.E.B. across the street, were taking advantage of lowest gas prices in the country in years.

The gas war mainly involved the Kostoryz Road H.E.B. grocery store and the Diamond Shamrock across the street.

The battle lines were drawn when the two H.E.B. stores in Corpus Christi that sell gas lowered their prices from $1.03 to 89 cents per gallon at the direction of the grocer's San Antonio home office, said Kostoryz Road H.E.B. store director Pat Butler.

"We're establishing our turf as a gas outlet in the Corpus market, and this is one way we wanted to do it," said Butler, whose store opened up its pumps March 17. Diamond Shamrock matched the price that afternoon, and the price cannonade has continued since.

"We'll lower our prices as long as they do," said Rita Canales, assistant manager of the Diamond Shamrock.

Late Friday, H.E.B. had the last word, with gas prices at 77 cents, creating the longest gas lines that officials and customers had seen since the 1970s.

"I haven't seen anything like this before," Butler said. "Not since I was a teen-ager and we were on gas rationing, if you remember that."

As of Saturday morning, Diamond Shamrock's price had returned to its original $1.03 while H.E.B. raised to its original discounted price of 89 cents.

Despite the long lines, most motorists were in high spirits, playing music, laughing and shouting to each other through open windows.

Some came prepared for the wait. Jacob and Irma Perez, with their 3-year-old daughter Ashley, brought sandwiches and drinks as they awaited their cheap tank-full.

Food For Thought by Danny Bainum

Playing one texture against another makes for an interesting salad. We vote for a combination of tender Bibb lettuce, peeled and sliced avocado and crunchy sunflower seeds in a mustard vinaigrette enriched with a little mayonnaise.

Sure, you could make vegetable soup from scratch. But when there's no time, combine a can mixed vegetables with canned vegetable broth and whole tomatoes, cut up. When it comes to a boil, add a cup of macaroni or curly pasta and simmer 'til done. Season with basil and garlic.

Can't decide between baked potatoes or yams? We like to mix 'em. Cut two large russets and 2 mid-size sweet potatoes, unpeeled, into six lengthwise wedges. Place on an oil-sprayed jelly-roll pan; toss with olive oil, salt and rosemary. Bake 20 minutes at 450 degrees.

Super dessert: ice cream sundaes topped with fresh pineapple chunks sauteed in butter and brown sugar, then flavored with orange liqueur and cinnamon. Just before serving, add banana chunks and heat through.

Program to review emergency plans for people having mobility problems

BORGER — In case of a tornado you go to a shelter close by, right? What do you do when you realize the shelter is not accessible to your loved one's wheelchair? What do you do if you are caring for a loved one with Alzheimers disease and must evacuate your home suddenly?

Now is the time to think about these things. To help area residents organize their special needs during a crisis, a free program on "Emergency Preparedness for People with Mobility Problems" and their caregivers has been planned for Tuesday, April 18, from 2-4 p.m. in the Mesquite Room at Frank Phillips College in Borger.

Speakers on the program include Gayland Darnell, fire marshal, City of Borger; Lynda Duncan, Gray County American Red Cross Chapter director and disaster preparedness instructor; and other local representatives who will assist.

Topics to be covered in the program include fire and hazard safety, creating an evacuation plan and organizing a family disaster evacuation supplies kit. Special considerations such as medications, personal supplies and special diet needs will also be discussed.

Sponsors are Hutchinson County Extension Service, Hutchinson County American Red Cross, Golden Plains Community Hospital and Frank Phillips College.

Pre-registration is suggested. For more information or to register, call the Hutchinson County Extension office, 878-4026.

The program will also introduce a series of seminars starting May 9. The series will present pertinent information for caregivers. The need for more information was identified through a survey of family and professional caregivers in the area.

Future topics include: financial and legal considerations, dealing with grief and depression, and dealing with caregiver stress among other topics.

The effect of health care reform on Medicare and Medicaid will be discussed by Gail Moddeman, PhD (c) with the nursing department at West Texas A&M University. Other speakers include Judith Warren, PhD, gerontology specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service; Ellen Lawrence, MSW; Mike Coston, RPh; and Linda San Miguel, Alzheimers consultant. A number of other specialists will be making presentations on numerous topics.

A nominal registration fee will be charged for this series. Please contact the Hutchinson County Extension Office at 878-4026 for registration materials.

Applications for American citizenship show sharp rise

HOUSTON (AP) — More immigrants applied for citizenship in Houston last month than ever before, INS officials report.

Exactly 4,000 people filed naturalization applications in March, topping February's total of 1,674 by 139 percent and smashing the record high of 2,734 set in September.

"It's an unprecedented, incredible surge," said Lisa Jacobs, spokeswoman for the Houston Division of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

More than 21,000 local immigrants applied for citizenship in Houston between February 1994 and February 1995, the INS reported.

Jacobs says the rise is in part a result of large numbers of residents who became eligible for naturalization in the past year as one more step in their participation in the 1986 amnesty program.

Molberg-Lovato

Shelly René Molberg and Jerry Wayne Lovato, both of Amarillo, plan to marry May 27 at Paramount Terrace Christian Church in Amarillo.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen W. Molberg of Duncanville and the granddaughter of Harold and Dollie Call of Pampa.

The prospective groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Jerry Lovato of Amarillo.

She is attending West Texas A & M University in Canyon and is pursuing a bachelor's degree in elementary education. She serves in the Host and Partner programs in the Amarillo and Canyon schools.

He is president of Panhandle Contractors Corporation in Amarillo. He is a member of the Panhandle Builders Association and serves on the committee.

Johnson-Chlad

Beth Laine Johnson and Jason Rodney Chlad, both of Arlington, plan to marry June 3 at Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ in Pampa.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Johnson of Pampa and the prospective groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Chlad of Colleyville.

She is a 1992 graduate of Pampa High School and a 1994 graduate of Exposito's Hair of Design. She was a nail technician. She is employed at Children's First Academy of Colleyville as a teacher.

He is a 1991 graduate of Grapevine High School and is attending Tarrant County Junior College where is a business major. He is self-employed as a trim carpenter in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Foundation offers scholarships

All graduates from Pampa High School from 1988 forward may apply for the McCarley Foundation Scholarship.

The exact amount of each scholarship will be determined by the McCarley Foundation. It is anticipated that each scholarship will be $4,000 a year, payable at $2,000 at the beginning of each semester.

Applicants must have been in the upper one-fourth of their graduating class from Pampa High School and must maintain a grade point average of 2.75 or better on a 4.0 scale in order to remain eligible for the scholarship.

The student must use the money to attend as a full-time student (12 or more hours per semester) at a four year college or university in the United States. The scholarship must be used for the payment of tuition, lab fees, books, room and board and other expenses directly related to pursuing an undergraduate degree.

Those students wishing to apply for this scholarship should go by either the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce at 200 N. Ballard, the Clarendon-Pampa Center at 900 N. Frost, or the Pampa High School at 111 E. Harvester to pick up an application form. The application should be returned along with a high school transcript with class rank, a college transcript including the Fall 1994 semester, and an essay or letter stating the student's college goals, including major and place of study (college).

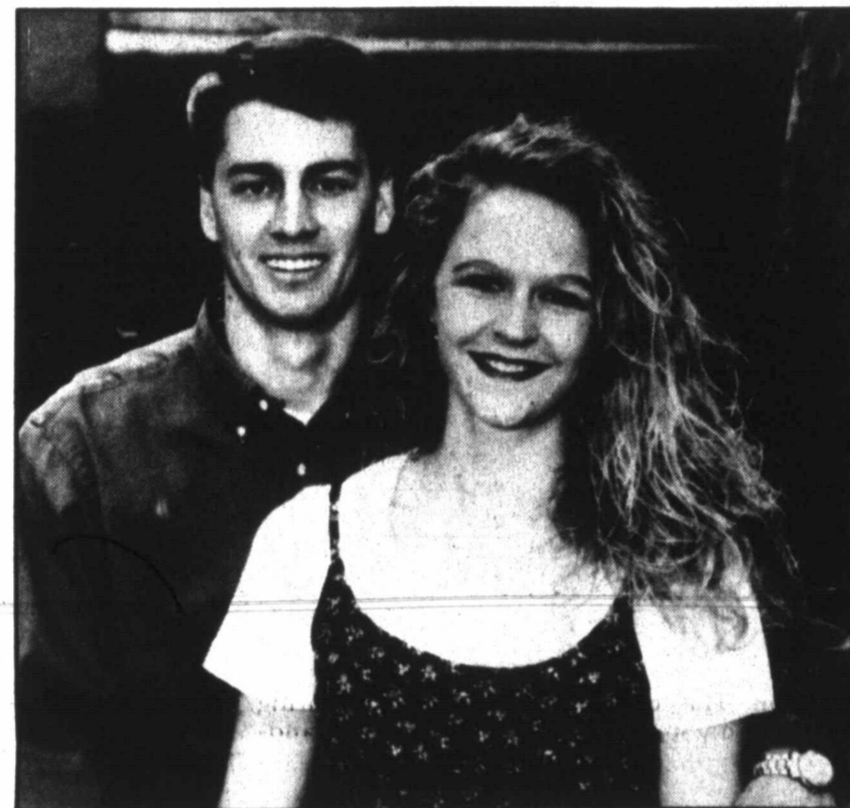

Hammons

Charlie Edward and Dorothy Marie Noel Hammons of Pampa celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary March 18 with a reception hosted by their children; Charles "Bud" Hammons of Carrollton; Jane Hammons of The Colony; Nan Hammons of Amarillo; and Jon Hammons of Clovis, N.M.; and their grandson Eric Nolte of The Colony.

She is the former Dorothy Marie Noel. The Hammons were married March 21, 1945 in Tulia and have lived in Pampa for 49 years.

Mr. Hammons was employed for 41 years with the Cabot Corporation and retired in 1988. He is a former longtime member of the Pampa Optimist Club and is active in youth sports youth programs.

Mrs. Hammons is a homemaker. They have four children and one grandson.

Maddux-Cornett

Gayla Diane Maddux and Cory Augustus Cornett, both of Wheeler, plan to marry June 3.

The bride elect is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. M. Kent Sims of Wheeler. The prospective groom is the son of Bob and Gwen McCain of Wheeler and Wes and Rhonda Cornett of Tomah, Wis.

She is attending Texas Tech University and plans to transfer to Arizona State University in the fall.

He is a graduate of Texas Tech University and is with The Summers Group in Phoenix, Ariz.

Revisiting those home mortgages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many would-be homeowners are missing out because they mistakenly think they won't qualify for a mortgage, says the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, an industry group.

"There are many serious misconceptions about the mortgage process that are causing people to deny themselves the financial security provided by home ownership," says Joe Pickett, the organization's president.

One of them is the belief that it takes a 20 percent down payment; in reality it can be as low as 3 percent, says Pickett. Most lenders have flexible credit history requirements, too, and a person making $28,800 a year could qualify for a loan of as much as $75,000, he says.

PERVERSIONS OF THE GOSPEL

"I marvel that ye are so quickly removing from Him that called you in the grace of Christ into a different gospel; which is not another gospel; only there are some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ. But though we, or an angel from heaven, should preach unto you any gospel other than that which we preached unto you, let him be anathema. As we have said before, so say I now again, If any man preacheth unto you any gospel other than that which ye received, let him be anathema. For am I now seeking the favor of men, or of God? or am I striving to please men? If I were still pleasing men, I should not be a servant of Christ." (Gal. 1:6-10.) From this we learn that the gospel preached by Paul was indeed the gospel of Christ, the word of God (cf. I Thess. 2:13.) We learn also the seriousness of perverting that gospel. A perversion of the gospel would be anything which would change the message of the word in any way. Jesus Christ authorized His apostles to preach the gospel and the gospel only (Mk. 16:15-16; Matt. 28:18-20.)

In the religious world today with the simple gospel of Christ, it is easy to see that there are many perversions of the gospel today. For example, to say that the doctrines originating with men are pleasing to God is a perversion of what Jesus said in Matt. 15:9: "But in vain do they worship me, teaching as their doctrines the precepts of men." And to say that a church founded by some man is just as pleasing to God as the one built by His Son is a perversion of Matt. 16:18, where Jesus said "— upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it." Further, Paul says that there is only one body and that body is the church (Eph. 4:4; 1:22-23; I Cor. 12:20.)

It is also a perversion of the gospel to teach that a person is saved at the point of faith without doing anything else to be saved. Jesus said: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven." (Matt. 7:21.) A person has to repent, confess, and be baptized as well as believe in order to be saved (Acts 2:38; 8:37.)

Gardiner

Ralph T. and Dorothy Gardiner of Garden City, Kan., plan to celebrate their 35th anniversary Sunday, April 23 with a reception for family and friends in the fellowship hall of the Presbyterian Church in Garden City. Hosting the reception are their children: Robert Gardiner of Wichita, Kan.; Patricia LeClerc of Garden City; Jo Ann Van Koughnet of Pueblo, Colo.; and Sally Gardiner of Lafayette, Colo. The Gardiners had another son, the late Bill Gardiner.

The Gardiners were married April 22, 1960 at Presbyterian Church of Liberal, Kan.

They lived in Pampa for 23 years and moved to Garden City in February of 1995.

From January of 1972 to 1975, they were co-managers of the Pampa Country, retiring in 1975.

Mr. Gardiner served as president of the Garden City School board and Chamber of Commerce. He also served on the city commission for six years and was mayor from 1953-55. In 1954 he was elected "Man of the Year" for Garden City. Mr. Gardiner served as state vice president of the Kansas School Board Association and the Kansas Chamber of Commerce. In 1950 he was presented the Silver Beaver Award by the Boy Scouts of America. He was president of the state Dairy Association and president of the National All Star Dairy Association. He served on these two boards for fifteen and eighteen years respectively. He was president of the Kiwanis Club, Country Club and exalted ruler of BPOE (Elks), all in Garden City. He was co-owner of the family owned Gardiner All Star Dairy and Ice Cream Company for 40 years.

Mrs. Gardiner worked at the Vogue Shop for over 14 years. She was co-owner of the Lakin (Kansas) Style Shoppe. Mrs. Gardiner is past Worthy Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star in Lankin and a former member of the Garden City Cowbells and Country Club.

They were members of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church here in Pampa.

They have 11 grandchildren and 29 great-grandchildren.

Children plus fashion

By The Associated Press

Country looks, bright prints, and sports motifs continue their popularity in children's lines this spring, with generous portions of sensible denims, cords, chambrays and knits.

An indigo chambray vest and sarong skirt combination for girls, embroidered with sunflowers, is part of the OshKosh B'Gosh line. The vest and skirt can be topped with an embroidered knit shirt with a bow. Girls also can wear OKBG's pretty Hawaiian fruit print sunrock.

The classic bib overall from the company is represented with an updated ministripe for boys or white-island multi-stripe shortalls for toddlers. The team theme is carried out in the OKBG Hall of Fame Line, featuring a striped jersey baseball shirt with embroidery paired with striped jersey slider shorts, or color block jeans shorts in denim stripes, topped with a screenprint jersey T-shirt.

Lots of farm-fresh looks from the Children's Place include blue denims, striped jerseys and chinos. A duck field vest printed with daisies for a little girl can be worn with indigo denim pleated walking shorts. Also for girls are a high-waisted printed cotton-poly jersey dress, a rope-dyed denim dress, and Lycra jersey leggings.

For boys, Children's Place offers a color block canvas barn jacket, a striped Henley shirt, and denim carpenter pants.

Danish homes and epic castles

William Shakespeare never saw Kronberg Castle at Elsinore, where he set "Hamlet," but the Danish castle, completed in 1585 as one of the most formidable fortresses in Europe, is accessible for modern tourists.

The courtyard has served as backdrop for numerous productions of the play with world-class actors (Laurence Olivier, Michael Redgrave, Richard Burton, Derek Jacobi).

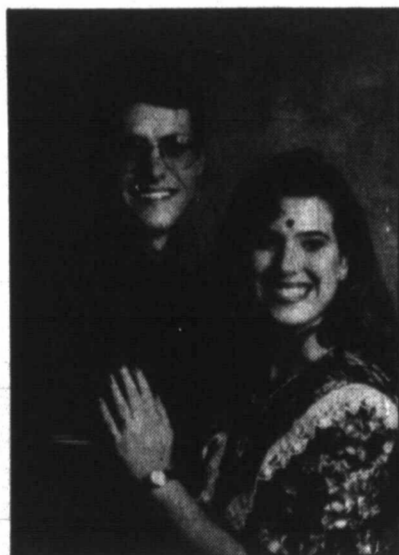

Perched on the North Zealand coast, it has survived fire and time and has the proper brooding atmosphere.

It's among the 55 Danish castles and manor houses open to the public. Another of these is Clausholm Castle in East Jutland, near Aarhus, dating from 1690 and a prime example of baroque architecture, with elaborate terraced gardens. Then there is Ledreborg, the well-preserved 18th-century home of the Holstein-Ledreborg family, sitting in a 200-acre valley park about 27 miles west of Copenhagen.

Home improvement books for your homemade bookshelf

By The Associated Press

First, build a shelf for your home and home improvement books. Consider these titles for filling:

— "The Family Handyman Helpful Hints" (Reader's Digest, $25 hardcover) is like a first-aid kit for the house, yard and car. It includes tips about painting, wallpapering, drywall installation, fixing squeaky floors, heating and cooling, and dozens of other maintenance projects.

— Also from Reader's Digest is "How a House Works" ($14.95 paperback) by Duane Johnson. This overview of the systems in your house tells you how to determine if something's wrong, how to find it and how keep it in repair.

— Many quality homes these days are built in factories. "Manufactured Houses: Finding and Buying Your Dream Home for Less" (Real Estate Education Company, $14.95) by A.M. Watkins covers the range of houses available, the procedures, the pitfalls and the savings you can realize over the standard stick-built home.

— Knowing the ropes about home inspections can save costly headaches for buyers, sellers, or those who just want to keep their current homes fit.

"The Home Inspection Troubleshooter" (Real Estate Education Company, $14.95) by Robert Irwin tells what to look for and where.

— The updated "New Basics" series from Sunset Books ($9.99 each) offers titles for six home improvement and repair projects: carpentry, home repairs, home wiring, masonry, plumbing, and woodworking. Included are lists of necessary tools for each project, glossaries, and troubleshooting guides.

OKBG is 100 years old and is seeking some of the oldest overalls

The company that started its life making bib overalls for railroad workers and farmers wants families to search their attics and trunks to find the oldest pair of its adult or children's overalls in existence.

OshKosh B'Gosh, now one of the top producers of children's wear, was founded in 1895 as the Grove Manufacturing Company and produced a "J&C" brand (after the owners, J. Howard Jenkins and James G. Clark) overalls. The company assumed its current name in 1911.

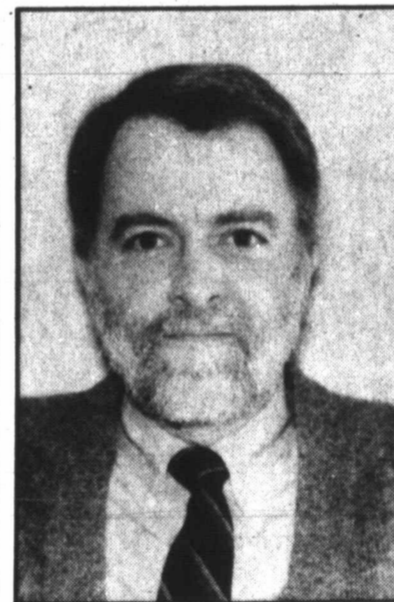

Design clues to early models are buttons or fabric striping with the "J&C" lettering, buttons with steam engines, or shoulder straps with slim, W-shaped hooks.

Clinical Trials. They don't include twelve people, a plaintiff and a defendant in a hospital setting. They do involve local people and institutions who can have an impact on health care throughout the world.

Dr. Brian Pruitt, Interim Medical Director for the Harrington Cancer Center, will explain clinical trials at the Pampa Area Cancer Support Group meeting on Thursday, April 20. Dr Pruitt has been the Director of Medical Trials at Harrington Cancer Center since 1981. He has held clinics at the center since 1981 while also serving as a full time Assistant Professor, Department of Internal Medicine, Division of Hematology/Oncology at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

The Pampa Area Cancer Support Group is sponsored by the Harrington Cancer Center, Coronado Hospital and the American Cancer Society. It includes people who have had a cancer diagnosis, family and friends. Anyone wishing to attend is always welcome. The group meets every third Thursday from 7:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m. in the conference room at Coronado Hospital's Medical Office Building-North.

When husband's friends speak Russian, it's all Greek to wife

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Yuri," came here from Russia six years ago. We have been married for five years. Yuri speaks excellent English. He has mentioned several times that it would be a good idea for me to learn Russian, but with two small children under 4, learning Russian has not been a high priority for me.

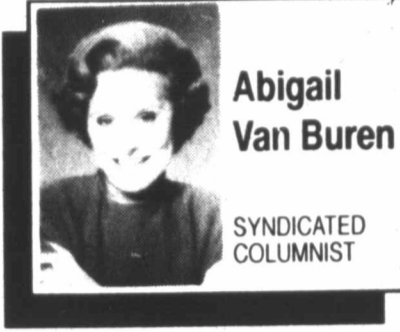

The problem is that Yuri has many Russian friends, mostly professional people who speak English very well. But when they come to visit, they speak in Russian, and I am left out.

Last Sunday, "Natasha" came over. I served cookies and coffee and tried to be a good hostess. She directed all her conversation to Yuri. When I asked her about her children and her job, she gave me brief answers in English, then turned to Yuri and continued speaking to him in Russian.

I realize she's Yuri's friend. I'm not jealous of her, nor do I suspect they are having an affair. I just think it's very rude of her to ignore me when she's here.

Abby, it's not only Natasha. It has gotten to the point that when his Russian friends come over, I go to our bedroom and watch TV by myself.

It's the same when we go to Natasha's house — or Sergei's or Ilona's. Their husbands and wives all speak Russian, and I'm left to play with the children. When I tell

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

Yuri how I feel, he says it is much easier for them to express themselves in Russian than in English.

I have decided to learn more Russian, but what do I do in the meantime? Should I insist they speak in English so I can understand them — or what?

FED UP IN CANADA

DEAR FED UP: Ask Yuri to compromise; suggest that he ask his friends to speak English part of the time they spend with you, while you learn their language.

A crash course in Russian would be a good beginning in overcoming the language barrier. Also, ask Yuri to teach you a few phrases every day. You'll be amazed at how quickly you can join in their conversations.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you wrote that the only man who beat Jack Dempsey was Gene Tunney.

Sorry, Jack Dempsey was beaten by Jim Flynn and Willy Meehan.

The late Paul Gallico, a longtime sportswriter, wrote a piece for Esquire magazine titled "The Gentle Warriors." In it, he contended that the gentlest athletes were boxers — and the least gentle were golfers and tennis players.

WOODY WILLITS, CAMAS, WASH.

DEAR WOODY: I don't know how Paul Gallico defined "gentle," but when two prizefighters get into a ring and try to knock each other senseless, I cannot imagine anything less gentle.

DEAR ABBY: I am mom to 8-month-old twin girls and would like to share with you my favorite "twins" question:

As I was taking my girls out of the car one day, a little 5-year-old neighbor girl asked, "Well, if they're twins, how come one is crying and the other one is sleeping?"

promising joint endeavor today. This project could spin off more than one good thing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your desire to get along with others could be quite strong today and this could impel you to look for their qualities rather than their frailties.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something materially advantageous might start showing new signs of life today. However, be patient with this situation; you might not reap rewards right away.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you feel inclined to gamble today, don't take chances on things. Take chances on people. Bet on those who have been lucky for you in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might be unusually fortunate; most things will work out to your ultimate benefit. Focus on major matters you would like to finalize and nail down.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Involve yourself with friends who stimulate your imagination today. Bouncing ideas off the right individuals could generate some interesting concepts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A situation that hasn't looked too promising up until now, might have more life left in it than you realize. Do yourself a favor and study it in depth today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone who thought you were wishy-washy could be in for a big surprise today when he/she sees how firm and determined you can be when it really counts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not discount your logic, but pay heed to your hunches in business affairs today. Your intuition might be exceptionally keen in this venue.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You won't need to put on any airs today to have the kind of magic, glamour and charisma that could be especially appealing to members of the opposite sex.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A close confidant might pass on some confidential information today that, if properly interpreted and utilized, may put you ahead of your nearest competitor.

Guitar craftsman Producing high-strung art

By KEELY COUGHLAN
The Odessa American

ALPINE (AP) — Only a single, small quarter note betrays the anonymity of the red alley door. Inside the crowded studio, Michael Stevens crafts high-strung performance art. Guitars. Mandolins. The Cadillacs of their breed, handcrafted from start to finish. The kinds that have graced the hands of Stevie Ray and Jimmie Vaughn, Eric Johnson and Eric Clapton, Rick Thompson of Black Crowes fame and George Strait bandmember Rick McCrae. Famous guitarists from Japan, including Kazumi Watanabe, and from all over the United States still beat a path to Stevens' door.

"I started out in art school. I wanted to be the new Andrew Wyeth," Stevens said. "Then along came Jamie (Wyeth)." Stevens started out in the rodeo program at Texas Christian University in the mid-1960s, and spent a few summers as a deck-hand for Cactus Oil in Midland, before drifting into the cosmic cowboy scene.

Somehow, he ended up fixing a friend's guitar while in the process of learning to play. Before long, Stevens and Larry Jameson had formed Guitar Resurrection in Berkeley, Calif., in the late 1960s.

His favorite model, the guitar Stevens is known for, is simply the "LJ": named after his buddy Jameson, who died of cancer.

"In high school, my biggest interest was wood shop and mechanical drawing," Stevens said.

"It just sort of evolved. I didn't plan any of it. I didn't play guitar until I was 20. One by one, it had a domino effect."

Stevens joined a Berkeley band, The Lynch Mob, named after member Jim Lynch, who now works for the Smithsonian. He moved to Weatherford in 1973, where he trained horses.

He moved to Austin in late 1979, where he was the first recorded bass player for the Austin Lounge Lizards.

He began doing custom work for Fender, a leading guitar manufacturer, in Austin in 1986; a year later, he began working at the Fender factory in southern California, where he became the first Fender employee to actually sign the guitars he made.

Stevens doesn't do much name dropping — except to explain what he's doing or the kind of sound a guitar produces. When an eager visitor asks him if he really did make guitars for Clapton, Stevens brushes it aside: "I built a Stratocaster for him when I worked at Fender."

He's never actually seen one of his guitars smashed. And musicians rarely harm the guitars they actually play. But there was that Jimmy Page concert when Stevens was still working for Fender.

Stevens became animated when he described what he witnessed on stage only a few feet away.

He recalled that he and his wife Alice were seated near the stage as guests of Page, who had recently received one of Stevens' custom-made guitars.

"He just got disgusted and threw one of my guitars across the stage. It just skipped across the stage, like this," Stevens said, pantomiming the guitar's bumpy skid.

"Alice had to hold me back in my seat. I thought, 'Well, if it was a Gibson, it would have broken.'"

Guitar craftsman Michael Stevens poses among some of his guitar collection in his small studio in Alpine.

"I found out later that he had a bad roadie who wasn't stringing the guitar right," Stevens said. "Later, I got a nice letter from (Page), saying how much he liked the guitar."

Stevens does very little repair work now, unless he can use it to train his assistant, South Plains College student King Rhiley. But he is rebuilding a guitar for Junior Brown, whom Stevens calls a great guitarist.

"He's somewhere between Hendrix and Ernest Tubb. He wears a Robert Hall suit and a starched tie," Stevens said. "This is a great guitar, a double-neck guitar."

He's worked in his tool-strewn Alpine studio for more than four years and is on an advisory board for South Plains College's string and felled instrument repair technology program, part of the Levelland school's creative arts program which focuses on all aspects of country and bluegrass music from performance and recording to making and repairing instruments.

"I'd like get a program going here (at Sul Ross State University) in connection with cowboy poetry and country music," Stevens said.

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT - (BULL/BEAR)

Outlook: Export demand has, once again, turned weak. The U.S. crop is generally in fine shape. These are bearish fundamentals which could keep a lid on price rallies. On the other hand, world supplies are tight - the smallest in almost 20 years.

There may have been some "winter kill" last week in certain growing areas (although it's hard to tell at this point how much yield potential was actually lost). The Chinese could come in at any time and use the rest of their bonus credits, which would turn a poor export picture positive. These are bullish fundamentals which could run prices higher.

Bottom line, we have a mixed bag here. Substantial rallies should probably be sold, but with wheat looking like the cheapest grain on the board, I'd have to say the path of least resistance appears up at the moment.

Strategy: Hedgers: Based on the seasonal tendency for new crop wheat to rally into May, we've not yet hedged new crop. The time is fast approaching, however, so start thinking about what price you need and what price you'd be happy with!

Traders: Fund participation in the wheat market should push it higher in the short term. Look to buy May Chicago at $3.52 or lower with a risk point of $3.45 and a profit objective of 10 to 15¢/bushel by the end of the month.

CORN - (BULL)

Outlook: As you know, I've been bullish corn since last November, and the market has rewarded us with a nice rally of over 20¢ per bushel. At current levels, at least for now, the market appears fully priced and I'd look for a range-trade over the coming few weeks.

The big commodity funds have a massive ownership position in the May corn (in the hundreds of millions of bushels) and they have to liquidate this over the next few weeks. They may just roll it into the December for a weather rally later in the season, but it still will take some big selling in the nearby and the front of the market seems to set the tone.

Don't be surprised to see a price correction of from 5 to 10¢ which could come at any time. It will be a buying opportunity.

Strategy: Hedgers: You sold your cash corn when the basis was strong last December. Based on a previous recommendation, you've regained ownership via the purchase of the July $2.50 corn calls for about 7¢/bushel. This strategy limits your risk as well as saves storage costs and interest expense.

Traders: We own July corn under $2.46. Risk to $2.40 and hold tight during the inevitable shake-outs to come.

CATTLE - (BULL)

Outlook: The advice last week was to cover shorts, but not try to bottom pick. The evening I wrote the column I did say I felt we were very close to a bottom, but neither I nor anyone else could pick the exact low. As it turned out, the market bottomed the next day.

The April cattle have a tendency to move relentlessly in one direction each year in the final weeks to expiration. The direction could be either way, but this year it looks like it wants to head North. Last week, the packers were paying $66 on Tuesday and $70 for cattle on Wednesday. They now say they have enough cattle, but this unprecedented $4 price bump in only one day could be repeated again at any time.

Those who are short the futures have the burden to perform. "Expensive" values can look "cheap" overnight. While the rally I anticipate could be short-lived, let's try to ride it for all it's worth.

Strategy: Hedgers: You are 100 percent hedged in April futures with an average price of 74. You should be cashing in on futures profits simultaneously as you market your cattle.

The futures market has offset potential losses in the cash market and locked in good margins. This is the way a "hedge" is supposed to work, and the reason the government allows the futures market to exist - so producers have a market to lay off their risk.

For June protection we also own the 68 puts, to hedge fall replacement needs. They were trading there as I wrote the column, but by the time you read it they had already rallied, so you probably were not able to get this done.

Cow/calf operators: You own the April and May $66 put options. These will provide downside protection should the market head south again, yet they leave your upside potential open.

Traders: Futures traders can look to buy the April futures at 69¢ or better. Risk to a close under 69 for an objective of 72.50.

Note: this position will be carried into the delivery period and while I don't feel there is a high chance of delivery it is only suitable for those traders who are familiar with this process and understand the risks. Spreaders are long the October feeders and short the February live cattle at a difference of 180 points or less. Hold.

Horticulture is big business in Texas

Azaleas, ficus, orchids, oaks and zinnias. What do all these plants have in common? Texas growers produce these crops and many more right here in the Lone Star state.

Texas is the third largest horticultural producer in the nation and horticulture is the fourth leading agricultural industry in Texas. In 1993, nursery and nursery products generated $4.2 billion in sales, with trends showing increases for 1995.

TEXAS GROWN is a Texas Department of Agriculture program designed to help consumers identify Texas-grown horticultural products and increase sales of those products by capturing a larger portion of the Texas market, according to Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry.

Texas is a strong producer of trees, shrubs, bedding plants, turf, blooming florals and tropicals - whatever your need. Central and Southeast Texas produce the majority of trees, woody ornamentals and perennials, while the Rio Grande Valley produces foliage and orchids. East Texas is known for its bedding plant production.

So what qualifies a plant as TEXAS GROWN? A TEXAS GROWN plant must spend at least 50 percent of its crop time before sale growing in Texas, Perry explained.

"Purchasing TEXAS GROWN 'greens' our Texas economy by keeping our dollars in our state," Perry said.

How do you find TEXAS GROWN plants? Just call your nearest Texas Department of Agriculture office and ask for a marketing specialist, who will locate your nearest TEXAS GROWN retailer, he added.

Because helping the Texas agricultural economy is a number-one goal for the department, the Texas Department of Agriculture has implemented the TAME system - The Texas Agricultural Marketing Exchange. This computer database marketing program links Texas Agricultural producers with buyers, quickly and efficiently.

"Simply put, we link buyers with sellers," Perry said. Anyone from a homeowner to a landscape contractor to a nursery retailer can contact a TDA office across the state and get information from TAME.

"This spring, as you purchase plant material for your landscape and home, remember to buy 'TEXAS GROWN,'" Perry said.

Crop down but prices up for Valley onions

McALLEN (AP) - Last year Rio Grande Valley onion growers had a great crop but lousy prices. This year they expect high prices but a not-so-great crop.

A glut of onions from Central and South America last year pushed prices to as low as $3 per 50-pound carton, said Darlene Barter, manager of the South Texas Onion Committee in Mission.

"Last year we had wonderful onions, beautiful onions and lots of onions," Barter said. "But the price was terrible."

"You just can't grow onions for that price," she said.

In response, Valley farmers have reduced the number of acres for onions from about 15,000 to 11,000. Now, prices have risen to at least $10 per carton, Barter said.

Marvin Miller, a plant pathologist at the Texas A&M Research Station in Weslaco, said the quality of the current crop is down.

Recent wet weather made the onions more susceptible to disease, including gummy blight disease, in which a fungus girdles the stem and kills the onion, he said.

Charles LaGrange, sales manager for Starr Produce in Rio Grande City, which grows and ships onions, doubts that many plants will be lost to disease.

However, abnormal growth of seed stems is forcing growers to cull a large number of onions, he said.

"We are averaging around 600 sacks per acre," LaGrange said. A better crop would yield 700 to 1,000 pounds of onions per acre.

He said the market is bringing up to $20 a carton for large onions and $16 to $18 for jumbo mediums.

Growers in California, Florida and Mexico pose the stiffest competition for Valley onion farmers. "A lot of people grow on both sides," LaGrange said. "The fields may be only 500 yards apart, but the Mexican onions can be produced less expensively because of cheaper labor."

Growers expect to end their harvest by the end of May. Last week, Valley farmers began harvesting small onions. This week they will begin the harvest of the "1015 onion," a large, sweet variety.

Test developed to detect deadly catfish disease

WASHINGTON (AP) - A test developed by Agriculture Department researchers will help catfish farmers detect a deadly bacterium in their ponds in time to save the fish.

The test detects Edwardsiella ictaluri in the blood of catfish by identifying the antibodies produced to fight the resulting disease, enteric septicemia, according to the department's Agricultural Research magazine.

Enteric septicemia often kills up to half of the catfish when an outbreak occurs, causing great financial loss for farmers. Additionally, the costs of the disease increase as farmers try to prevent infestation by giving their fish expensive antibiotic-dosed feed, a safeguard that is not always successful.

Researchers say the test will save farmers money both by telling them when to use the more expensive feed and by preventing a large number of deaths among the catfish.

"We've developed a diagnostic kit to detect the first appearance of the antibody," microbiologist Phillip Klesius said. "That's the most effective time to treat, because once the fish actually get enteric septicemia, they go off their feed and won't eat enough."

The excessive use of the medicated feeds has also led to another problem - increased resistance of E. ictaluri to the antibiotic treatment. Scientists say this test will reduce the bacterium's resistance.

USDA going on-line to give ag reports on the Internet

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department is going on-line to provide its reports on the Internet.

Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman announced that crop estimates and economic reports will be immediately available through the worldwide network of computers.

"Putting our key reports on the information superhighway makes direct access possible for millions of people and helps to level the playing field for market participants," Glickman said in a statement.

With the help of Cornell University, the department will make more than 400 reports available to Internet users each year, accessible within three hours of their release.

Major crop forecasts are expected to be released at 8:30 a.m. on the East Coast, with other reports going out at 3 p.m.

There are a number of ways to access the department reports, which will be maintained at the Albert R. Mann library at Cornell University.

Access through "gopher" can be attained by connecting to usda.mannlib.cornell.edu. Telnet users can also connect to usda.mannlib.cornell.edu, then log in as "usda" to reach the "gopher." No password is necessary for telnet users.

Also, the report can be reached through the anonymous FTP protocol by connecting to usda.mannlib.cornell.edu and logging in as "anonymous" with the user's ID name or e-mail address as a password. Finally, change the directory by typing "cd usda."

For more information on Internet access to Agriculture Department reports, contact Oya Rieger by phone at 607-255-2199 or by e-mail at oyr1(at)cornell.edu.

Little has changed at Ham's Barbershop since Bob Wills cut hair there more than 60 years ago. H.C. Ham, son of the man who built the shop, still plies his trade in shop filled with memories of days gone by in Turkey, Texas.

H.C. Ham recalls Bob Wills at his barbershop

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

TURKEY — There's no sign in the window. Even the barber pole is gone. But everybody around Hall County and most of the tourists coming through town know that it's Ham's Barbershop where Bob Wills used to cut hair. "My father started in 1911 cutting hair in Turkey," said H.C. Ham, snipping away with a pair of well-trained scissors. Ham's father, Floyce Ham, came to the sandy loam of Hall County from what was then the Oklahoma Strip. "When he was a kid," Ham said, "it was no man's land out there." By 1919, Ham's father and another man, Charlie Payne, constructed a brick building in the then thriving community of Turkey. The samples carried by the brick salesman serve as a door stop to the barbershop today.

The building that the two men built housed a drugstore on one side and Ham's barbershop on the other. The drugstore is only a memory, a series of black and white photos on the barbershop wall, but the barbershop is still in business with the second generation clipping and cutting on a daily basis. "This hasn't ever been anything but a barbershop," Ham said.

The younger Ham followed his father into the hair-cutting business in 1942. The senior Ham taught him how to cut hair just as he had taught another young Turkey man, Robert Wills, some 15 years before.

The senior Ham had gone to barber school in Oklahoma City. In the '20's, Ham said, apprentice barbers were allowed to learn from a licensed barber.

"Dad taught Bob Wills how to cut hair," Ham said. "I hung around here all my life. I used to shine shoes when I was a kid."

Ham said he remembers Wills standing behind the barber chair working and going next door with him to get a cool drink on hot dusty afternoons.

After Wills left the barbershop around 1930 to devote more time to his music, Ham said he would travel across West Texas to hear his friend's band.

"I go to Vernon, Odessa, Amarillo, Paducah, to dances where Bob was playing," he said. "He'd play one or two songs then we'd go talk. He always wanted to know how dad was doing."

Ham remembered a winter's night in Wellington long ago when he'd traveled to one of Bob Wills' dances.

"He saw me when I first came in," Ham said, "and motioned me over to the bandstand. I think he played one song, then we sneaked out the back door while the band continued to play, and sat on the bus and drank and talked. He never went back in."

Ham describes Wills as a man who loved life, warm and generous.

"I liked him," Ham said. "He'd give you the shirt off his back."

Among the photos on the wall of the two-chair barbershop is a likeness of Wills with his ever present fiddle and chewing on a Roi-Tan cigar.

"Bob sent that to me when I was 15 years old," Ham said.

There has been few changes in barbershop over the years. There is one less chair. The lights hanging from the high ceiling towering over the black and white checked tile floor have been replaced with fluorescent tubes. The shoe shine stand remains in the window though no one has shined shoes there for 25 years. The radio beneath Wills' photo is tuned to K-96 Country out of Childress.

Ham put a new roof on the building two years ago, but only the cut-off bolts in the sidewalk mark the spot where the barber pole stood for decades.

"It had a round globe on top," Ham said. "Some kids broke it so I just took it down and stored it."

Ham's father died in 1967. Wills died in 1975. "When I get through," said Ham, leaning over the back of his barber chair, taking a smoke break. "I reckon the town will dry plumb up, but I'm not thinking about quitting yet."

Oil and gas rig count increases by seven last week

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of oil and gas rigs operating nationwide grew by seven this week to 676, Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday. A year ago, the number of rigs running was 720. Of the rigs running this week, 340 were exploring for natural gas, 325 for oil and 11 were listed as miscellaneous.

Houston-based Baker Hughes has kept track of the count since 1940. The count peaked at 4,500 in December of 1981 during the oil boom. It dropped to a record low of 596 in the summer of 1993, exceeding the previous low of 663 in 1986. The rig count represents the number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Texas accounted for the bulk of the increase with four. New Mexico gained two and North Dakota added one. Wyoming and Pennsylvania each last two. California, Colorado, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Ohio and Oklahoma remained unchanged.

Professional golf instructor may buy his own course after winning $77 million Powerball

PHOENIX (AP) - A pair of professional golf instructors are thinking about buying a course today after stepping forward to claim a $77 million Powerball jackpot.

Kelly and Cathy LaFay, who buy $75 worth of lottery tickets a week, won the fifth-largest jackpot in the history of the multi-state Powerball game.

"This one, I did a double take, as I'm sure most of you would," LaFay said at a news conference Friday. "Then I did a triple take and I thought, 'There must have been something messed up here.' That's when we had a little trouble driving down here."

They're thinking about buying a course, or at least investing in one. But they intend to keep teaching, and playing the lottery, he said.

The couple got a check for $3,860,985.29 before taxes. The rest will be paid in annual installments through a 20-year annuity. The drawing was Wednesday.

Plant Plays Big Part In Household Hazardous Waste Day

The Top O" Texas Household Hazardous Waste Day is right around the corner—April 22—and will provide an opportunity that is the first of its kind to the Pampa community.

The event is a cooperative effort of a committee consisting of city of Pampa employees, industry employees, Clean Pampa Inc. and others.

Hoechst Celanese Pampa plant is playing a large role in the day.

In addition, the Hoechst Celanese Pampa plant is supporting the effort financially. The Pampa plant is contributing a significant amount of money to fund the program.

The committee did obtain a grant from the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Committee and that money is going a long way to pay for the collection and transportation of the waste that will be collected. The committee spent a lot of time putting the grant request together, said Scott Aler, environmental department section leader at the Pampa plant.

The grant money covers everything except the actual disposal costs of the waste that will be collected on April 22. That is where Hoechst Celanese stepped in and volunteered to pay for the disposal costs, which are estimated at about $10,000, in addition to the $5,000 already donated to the effort.

Anyone from Pampa community is invited and encouraged to drop off any household hazardous waste they may have stored. Aler said the hazardous waste around the house include paint thinners, paint, weed killers, solvents, cleaning chemicals, drain cleaners, antifreeze, batteries, fertilizer, fungicides, spray cans, preservatives, ammonia, bleach, mildew removers, oven cleaners, spot removers and other items.

Organizers are quick to point out that many different chemicals are used beneficially in every area of our daily lives and if used properly will never create a problem.

"The day was organized to get unused household chemicals out of people's garages and out from under their sinks and instead of having them end up in our Pampa landfill. The waste will go to a properly constructed landfill or be properly incinerated to keep it from getting in the groundwater around Pampa," Aler said.

This is the first of its kind collection of household hazardous waste in the Pampa area and organizers are looking forward to a successful day that will contribute to improving the environment.

Hoechst Celanese's Sunette® sweetening ingredient is used in hard and soft candies. It is found in Trident® gum, Martha's Old Fashioned Spice Tea®, and tabletop sweetener Sweet One®.

Team Looks At ways to Minimize Solid Waste

A team, whose goal is to recycle more and reduce landfill use, has been formed at the Hoechst Celanese Pampa plant.

The group, known as the Solid Waste Minimization QAT, will look at alternatives either to recycle, reuse or return waste to a vendor, said Ronnie McCain, team leader and a maintenance section leader at the Pampa plant.

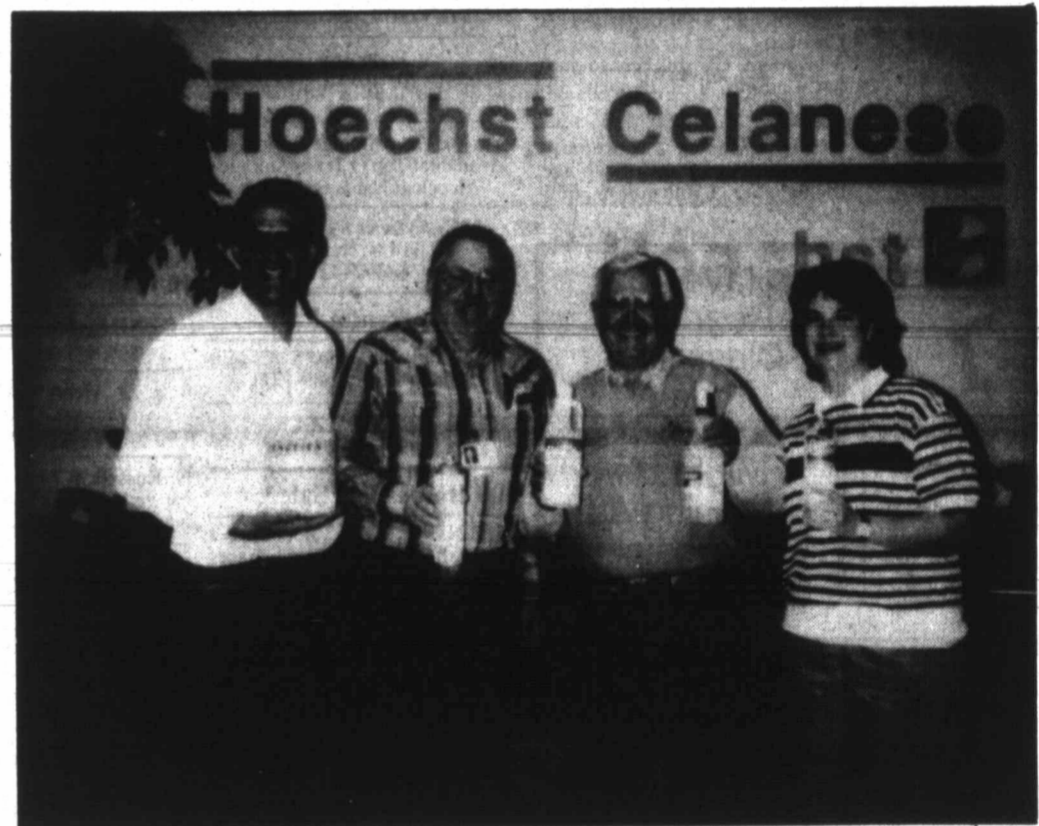

"Our goal is to provide the plant with a continuous improvement effort in handling, eliminating and reducing costs associated with solid wastes," McCain said.

The group is chartered to have a plan ready by August 1, 1995. However, the actual implementation will take place during a two year period.

"We will continue to identify new avenues and work with recyclers and implement new changes during that two-year period," McCain said.

The team will also work with suppliers to the Pampa plant. McCain said one area that will be examined is whether suppliers could provide recyclable containers that could be returned to the vendor.

The 16-member group is a multi-disciplined team make up of not only Hoechst Celanese employees but some of the contractors who work at the Pampa plant

Scott Aler, Stan Snider, Hunter Chisum and Mary Smith Hoechst Celanese representatives on the Household Hazardous Waste Day planning Committee demonstrate some items that will be accepted on April 22.

Plant Reduces Emissions By 85 Percent

A Hoechst Celanese corporation initiative known as WARR has resulted in a reduction of toxic emissions by 85 percent in 1995 as compared to 1987 at the Pampa plant. WARR stands for Waste

And Release Reduction. The corporation has committed to reduce emissions of toxic chemicals by 75 percent by the end of 1996.

"The Pampa plant is the first of the major Hoechst Celanese chemical plants to complete its projects," said Scott Aler, environmental department section leader at the Pampa plant.

In mid- to late- 1994, the Pampa plant completed its projects, reducing the emissions by 85 percent from the base line year of 1987.

"We're proud of that, for being the first of the major plants to do that," Aler said. "All of the other plants are still working on their projects to get them installed and we're basically done."

Did you Know:
Over the last twelve months, over 250 employees and their family members have received CPR training at the Pampa Plant.
