PAMPA, TEXAS

March 26, 1995

50¢ DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Good Morning

LOCAL

PAMPA — Pampa Police Department officer Fred Courtney has been named school resource officer, replacing Bryan Hedrick, who is leaving the department for a teaching position with Hereford Independent School District.

Courtney was named to the post last week, according to assistant police chief Col. John Ellen.

Further training is expected for Courtney, who has been with the department two years. He was previously assigned to the day shift.

The position is funded through a grant which continues through the 1994-1995 school year.

Pampa Police Department has three job openings, plus a fourth expected to be funded through the federal government's COPS EAST program.

PAMPA — Trustees of the Pampa Independent School District have called a special meeting for 7 p.m. Tuesday for the consideration of textbook adoptions for the 1995-1996 school year.

The school board will meet in the Pampa Middle School library, 2401 Charles.

The meeting may include an executive session for discussion, with any action taking place after reconvening in public session.

Also on the agenda are a public comments session and an academic spotlight.

STINNETT — The Hutchinson Soil and Water Conservation District named their Conservation Homemaker and Conservationist of the Year this month.

Jo Tolleson was named Conservation Homemaker, and Herbert Kirk was named Conservationist of the Year at the soil and water conservation district's awards banquet on March 20.

Tolleson and her husband Jack farm and ranch near Stinnett.

Kirk farms and has a cow-calf operation.

Two Indiana men held in Wheeler on robbery charge

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
 News Editor

WHEELER — Wheeler County authorities today continue to question a pair of Indiana men about an Oklahoma robbery and subsequent flight into Texas which ended when they and a Wheeler County Sheriff's Office deputy collided on a muddy country road.

The men, 18 and 20, were arrested by Wheeler County deputies and Department of Public Safety troopers after the 1990 Nissan pickup in which they were riding was in collision with a 1994 Crown Victoria patrol car driven by Deputy Jerry Bailey at the intersection of Wheeler County roads 17 and O.

The men are believed to have robbed a Virginia tourist in the restroom of a rest stop at the 12-mile marker on Interstate 40, near Erick, Okla. Deputy Tom Lowe, Beckham County Sheriff's Office, said robbers relieved the tourist of more than $500 cash after brandishing a .22-caliber Ruger semi automatic pistol as he washed his hands.

The suspects, both of Bloomfield, Ind., and Bailey were transported to Shamrock General Hospital, where they were treated and released for minor injuries. One of the Indiana men suffers a gash to the back of the head.

The patrol car collided with the driver's side of the pickup, sending it briefly airborne, said Trooper Lynn Holland Jr. The pickup was stolen from Bloomfield, the trooper said. Toll tickets inside the pickup indicate it entered Oklahoma about 9 a.m. Saturday.

Following the 3:30 p.m. robbery, Holland said, the suspected robbers left the interstate at Erick and headed to Sweetwater, Okla., where they crossed the state line on Texas 152 and headed for Wheeler. From Texas 152, they turned south on Wheeler Road 17, where the collision occurred. Local authorities pursued them less than two miles after they were spotted by Deputy Cliff Fletcher.

Holland said the pair have agreed verbally to return to Oklahoma. They are being held in Wheeler County jail awaiting a warrant alleging robbery from Oklahoma.

The patrol car is believed to have a bent frame besides a crashed front bumper. Both airbags activated at the time of the collision.

Thornberry votes for GOP welfare reform measure

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry, R-Amarillo, voted Friday for the sweeping welfare reform bill that is a centerpiece of the Contract With America. Final vote on H.R. 4, the Personal Responsibility Act, was 234 to 199.

The bill is the first comprehensive reform of the welfare system since its inception in the 1960s.

Passage of the welfare bill marks a turning point for the nation, Thornberry said.

"Welfare was never intended to destroy the incentive for people to work," he said, "but it has done just that. Our current welfare system is the most costly government failure of our time. It gives people something for nothing, and in doing so robs people of the incentive to work and be personally responsible."

"The poverty rate is now higher today than when the modern welfare system began. I want to reform welfare for the sake of the children. Today's children of poverty are trapped in a system that encourages illegitimate births and discourages their parents from getting a job. I am glad we have taken a big first step today to give these children a better future."

Misty mountains

Damaged pickup

Law enforcement officers search a 1990 Nissan pickup following a short chase and collision which sent two Indiana men and a Wheeler County deputy to Shamrock General Hospital with minor injuries on Saturday. The Hoosiers are being held for Oklahoma authorities, who expect to charge them with armed robbery in connection with a Saturday holdup which relieved an Interstate 40 tourist of more than $500. ## Open records requests stacking up

DALLAS (AP) — More than 1,000 pending requests under the Texas Open Records Act have been joined by others in a backlog that media groups, legislators and consumer advocates contend are effectively emasculating the law.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales blames the backlog on an increase in the number of requests, including some from public agencies that seek legal opinions from him simply to delay release of information.

But consumer advocacy groups, lawmakers and news organizations were critical of the delays in requests under the act, passed 22 years ago to give the public access to most government records.

"There's an old saying that justice delayed is justice denied," Tom Smith, executive director of the consumer advocacy group Public Citizen, said. "Well, access delayed is access denied."

More than 1,100 open records requests — some more than two years old — were sitting unanswered in Morales' office as of Jan. 1, with a continuing backlog growing daily.

Noting that his office issued more open records opinions last year than when he first took over, Morales said that he needs more people to handle the task.

Morales, who has made open government the centerpiece of his administration, said his own efforts to educate the public on the use of the law have added to the workload.

Since Morales took office in January 1991, the number of requests for written open records opinions have shot up 161 percent to a total of 1,735 last year, Morales said.

Requests for public records come from college students and professors, lawyers, government employees, accident victims, prison inmates and civil rights groups.

Currently, the media account for about 10 percent of those seeking information in cases before the attorney general.

Of 1,123 requests pending as of Jan. 1, 110 were clearly initiated by news reporters and organizations, according to a synopsis of the cases prepared for The Dallas Morning News by the attorney general's office.

Any governmental agency receiving an open records request, from a school board to the governor's office, is required by state law to provide the information within 10 days.

But the agency must seek a legal opinion from the attorney general if it believes the material sought is exempted from disclosure because of pending litigation, personnel records, land purchases and police investigative reports.

Pirate for a day

Storybook characters came to life Friday at Lamar Elementary School when Principal Lee Carter, left, dressed up as a pirate and other teachers and staff members dressed as other fairy tale and children's story characters. The reason they were into character was because Loralee Cooley, far right, professional story spinner from Pampa, was visiting the school telling tall tales and singing folk songs to students.

Educators call for pay raise, thoughtful reforms

AUSTIN (AP) — Several busloads of Texas educators descended upon the Capitol Saturday to rally for a pay raise and against several proposed changes to the state's education laws.

The rally was the culmination of a three-day Association of Texas Professional Educators convention.

Association members from across the state called for a heightened commitment to the state's public schools and public school teachers.

"All I'm asking for from the state Legislature is the respect I deserve as a professional and the pay to provide for my family," Debbie Andrews, a teacher from Mansfield, told the crowd.

"What message do we send as a state when our elected officials are far more eager to fund prison construction than public education?" association President Gayla Langley asked.

Both houses of the Legislature are working on major rewrites of the state's education laws. The full Senate is slated to consider one bill Monday. The House bill is still in committee.

Ms. Langley, a counselor at Monahans Independent School District in West Texas, expressed concern about a proposed private school voucher plan in the Senate bill.

"This attempt to siphon off public dollars for private schools in the name of education reform is unacceptable," she said.

Ms. Andrews echoed her concern, saying the plan would not provide the opportunities expected. She predicted successful private schools will not need the public vouchers.

"The good, accredited private schools will not be part of the voucher system. And the students will suffer by going to the poor private schools," Andrews said.

Another educator, Irving math teacher Connie Kilday, worried that end-of-course exams in core subjects — math, science, social studies and English — may replace a final TAAS test.

Ms. Kilday, who currently tutors kids who have failed the TAAS, said the final exams will be no better for many students with "test-taking anxiety."

The association also opposes the concept of local textbook purchasing. Doug Rogers, executive director of the group, said the practice would open local school officials to endless solicitation.

Those at the rally, however, addressed most earnestly the need for higher teacher salaries.

"Investing in education includes investing in educators," Langley said. "Texas ended its last fiscal year with billions of dollars in surplus revenue. Yet, any mention of a teacher pay raise falls on deaf ears."

Crime of the week

Whoever burgled this house now has something to sit on.

Sometime between August 1994 and February 1995, burglars took 30 green, cushioned, wooden chairs when they broke into a northwest window of a residence at 538 Maple.

Besides the chairs, thieves stole clothing, bed linen and personal items, valued at $345.

Pampa Gray County Crime Stoppers wants any information which leads to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for this crime or any other felony crime or narcotics trafficking.

THE PAMPA NEWS

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Congress pacing on term limits is slow

One of the most disappointing aspects of the leadership provided by the new Republican majority in the House of Representatives has been its cutesy maneuvering on term limits. It's almost as if, having been granted a majority on the business-as-usual, some Republicans want to stick around to enjoy the fruits of majority status a little longer.

In 21 of the 22 states that have passed term limit measures, the limit has been three two-year House terms and two Senate terms. Poll after poll shows that voters who want term limits favor a three-terms-and-out rule rather than a six-term limit.

But for a long time, the House Republican leadership thought it could assuage the popular sentiment for term limits by enacting a proposal long favored by Rep. Bill McCollum of Florida. And if it hadn't been for a revolt by the House Republican freshman class, they might have gotten away with it.

The trouble is that if it were added to the U.S. Constitution, the McCollum proposal, which calls for a six-term limit for House members, would have invalidated the laws in all those states where a three-term limit was in place. After weeks of intense behind-the-scenes maneuvering, on March 27 the House will have a chance to consider four different proposed Constitutional amendments, all of which limit U.S. senators to two six-year terms.

The McCollum six-term (12-year) proposal, which would have the effect of striking down three-term limits in 21 states.

A Democratic six-term proposal, which would also invalidate current state laws but would be retroactive - i.e., the term-limit clock would start from when current members were first elected, not when the amendment passed.

The Inglis-Dorman proposal, which would limit House members to three terms, the version preferred by U.S. Term Limits and other grass-roots organizations.

The Van Hilleary Amendment, which would set a 12-year term-limit cap but specifically allow and invite individual states to set shorter limits. This would keep three-term limit laws in California and other states in place.

Right now most Capitol Hill vote-counters don't expect any of the four to get the two-thirds majority required to start the ball rolling toward making a term-limits amendment part of the U.S. Constitution.

U.S. Term Limits and other volunteer groups have endorsed a "federalism" bill proposed by Mark Sanford, R-S.C., and Nathan Deal, D-Ga. Their bill would respect the 22 states that already have term limits in place and provide explicit statutory authority for the other states to pass term-limit laws. That would put the issue in the hands of the people and the state legislatures.

Perhaps, as U.S. Term Limits executive director Paul Jacob says, "Career politicians aren't any more able to set real limits on themselves than my 3-year-old would set a reasonable bedtime."

Berry's World

If enough ballot initiative signatures are obtained, Californians will vote on a proposition that reads: "Neither the State of California nor any of its political subdivisions or agents shall use race, sex, color, ethnicity or national origin as a criterion for either discrimination against, or granting preferential treatment to, any individual or group in the operation of the State's system of public employment, public education or public contracting."

The fact Californians find this law necessary, and the way they're choosing sides in the political struggle for passage, shows how wrong we've gone in matters of race. You don't have to be a racist to condemn racial quotas and see them as a betrayal of the noble goals of the early civil rights movement. But if you're against quotas, who might be your allies? Some will be America's racists. Quotas give racists strong cover to infiltrate, exploit and win the sympathies of non-racist whites.

People who support quotas argue they are needed to fight discrimination. But discrimination is not the main problem. Take college admissions. Any black high school graduate with a SAT score of 900 points would be admitted to most of the nation's 3,000 colleges. However, as of 1992 black SAT scores averaged 737, nearly 200 points below the white average of 933. At elite colleges, where a typical SAT score may be 1,000 points or higher, black students may trail by more than 300 points. It is also not uncommon for black students to be admitted to law schools with scores well below the average of 42 points out of 48, such as at Georgetown Law School where whites scored 42 on the LSAT and blacks 32.

The quota mind-set produces a prescription for disaster. It guarantees that academically superior white students will run circles around black students. The academic difficulties of black students can't be hidden from white students and professors. It creates negative impressions of black academic ability and fosters condescending attitudes toward them. Worse of all, it creates unnecessary anxiety and self-doubt among black students. In addition, quotas that cause black students to be academically mismatched create dropouts and failures out of people who might otherwise be successful.

It's not hard to see how racist attitudes can develop among white students who, possibly meeting blacks for the first time, come to see blacks as incompetents given special privileges at their expense. This wouldn't happen if black students were admitted to college solely on academic merit; they would share the same academic characteristics as the general student body. However, given today's SAT differential, there'd be far fewer black students attending the nation's elite colleges like Harvard, MIT and Stanford. But a greater percentage of those actually admitted would graduate.

Much of the quota debate focuses on fairness to white students. That's important. But just as important, perhaps more so, is what quotas have done to black students. The quota vision sees racial discrimination by colleges as the problem. That's a false vision. The real tragedy and academic handicap is the day-to-day destruction of the career chances of black students by the public school system. The quota vision, emphasizing what colleges may or may not be doing allows that tragedy to go unchallenged.

Without a doubt, blacks would be the major beneficiaries of changing the focus from admissions quotas to the realities of public schools. Black parents should ask, "If my kid graduated from high school, why is it he can't get into college on his merits?"

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, March 26, the 85th day of 1995. There are 280 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 26, 1979, the Camp David peace treaty was signed by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat at the White House, with President Carter signing as a witness.

On this date:

In 1804, the Louisiana Purchase was divided into the Territory of Orleans and the District of Louisiana.

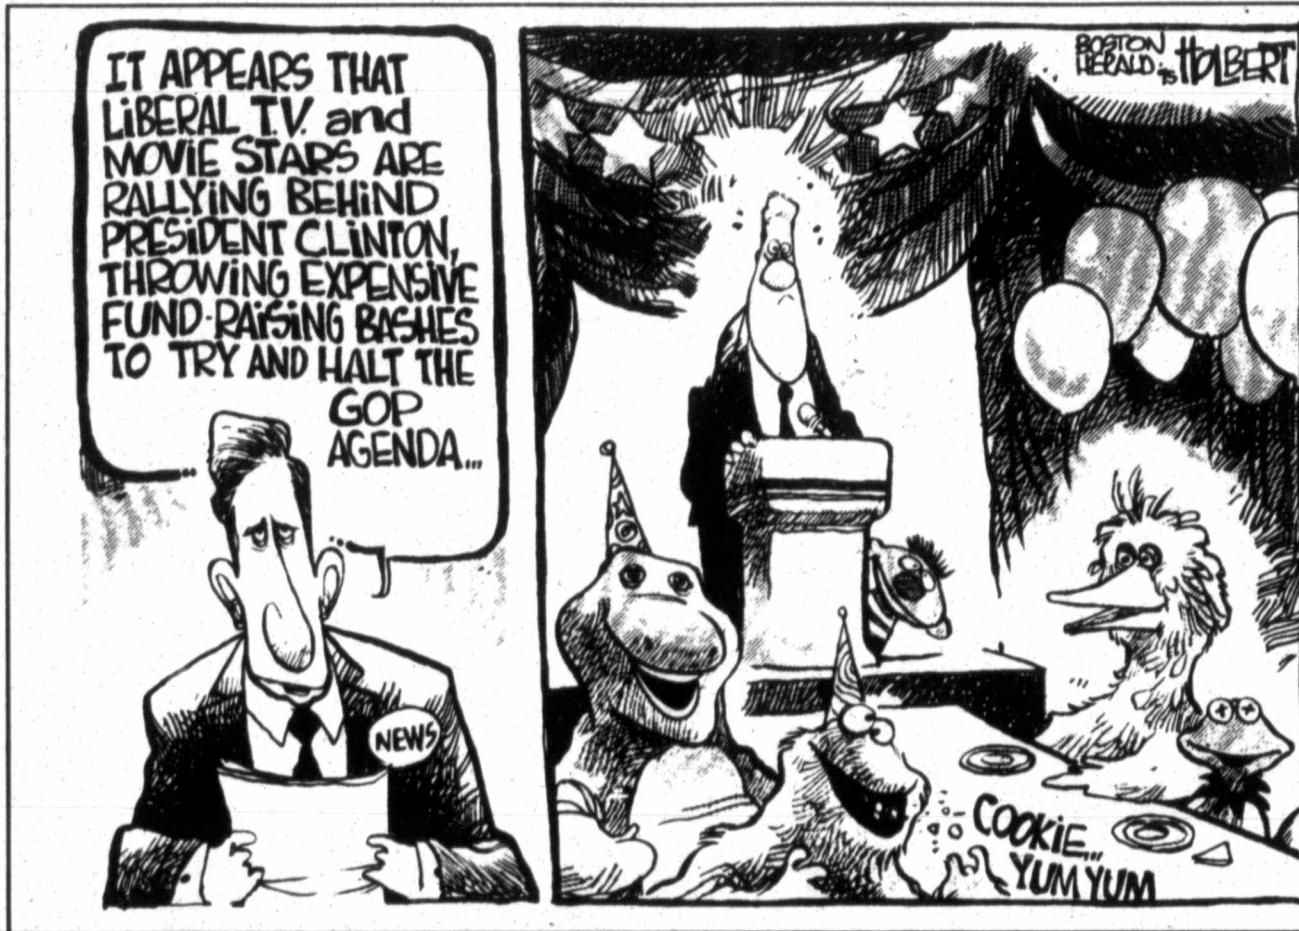

In 1827, composer Ludwig van Beethoven died in Vienna.

In 1875, poet Robert Frost was born in San Francisco.

In 1885, the Eastman Dry Plate and Film Company of Rochester, N.Y., manufactured the first commercial motion picture film.

In 1892, poet Walt Whitman died in Camden, N.J.

In 1958, the U.S. Army launched America's third successful satellite, Explorer III.

When does liberalism fit the bill?

Charley Reese

If so-called free trade policies work, and we have them in place, then why do we suffer a huge, record trade deficit?

If liberal social programs work, and they are all in place, then why do we have an increase in crime, sexually transmitted diseases, divorce, suicide, mental illness, declining test scores, declining public health and illegitimacy?

If big, activist government works - and God knows we have a big, activist government - then why do we have all the problems the advocates of big, activist government said they could solve? And why have these problems gotten worse instead of better? And why is our standard of living declining instead of increasing? And why is there less, not more, opportunity for our children?

Pardon me while I go outside. I want to cup my hand to my ear and give a long listen. OK. I'm back, and I heard nothing from NAFTA advocates who only a few months ago were assuring us with arrogant certainty and disdain to not have doubts about Mexico, that it is a politically and economically stable country. Being ever the optimist, I thought I might find one of those people somewhere who would say at least, "Oops, well, I was wrong about that."

No such luck.

The liberal establishment today reminds me of what Brother Dave Gardner once said jokingly of Southerners: "We may not always be right, but by God we ain't never wrong."

Let's take two cities. If there are two cities in America in which every liberal program and scheme known to man has not only been tried but fully funded, if there are two cities in which multiculturalism and diversity have been the ruling philosophies, they are New York City and Washington, D.C.

And what do we see? Inefficiency, corruption, poverty, crime and bankruptcy.

It's not only elected Democrats who are in denial, folks, it's liberals in general. The flood of evidence that their ideas were flawed, their claims were false and their programs were unworkable is up to their nostrils, and they are still denying that their feet are even wet.

Now that's real denial. That's why they are reduced to name-calling and sloganeering. They now say the umpire is a crook and miscounted their number of swings, that the pitcher cheated, that the fans are deluded, that the manager is a fool, that baseball is a rotten game and an unfair test anyway. No hope. One hates to say that of a fellow human, but I fear our liberal brethren and sisters have left us to dwell in the land of their fantasies, thoughts and ideology. The shock of being run over by reality was too much. They have abandoned our troublesome world for one of their own creation.

Well, that at least leaves the rest of us, free to work on some programs that are based on human nature as it is. Those will be more likely to work because they won't be based on assumptions that people are what they are not and can never be.

Reality, for all its difficulties, complexities and subtleties, is a lot more fun to work with than fantasy. When you have no illusions about human beings, you not only are seldom disappointed or surprised, but you also find that humans are remarkably predictable.

It takes only a realist, not a rocket scientist, to know that if you offer some people more money to loaf than they can earn by working, then they will elect to loaf. It takes only a little knowledge of Mexico not to be surprised that it is corrupt.

The writer John Dos Passos once said the world had become a museum of socialist failures. We may now add the exhibits of failed liberalism, the Western version of socialism.

Wrong-headed search for political betrayal

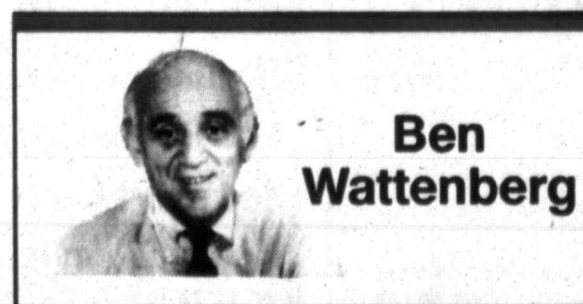

Stanley Greenberg, President Clinton's pollster, has written an interesting new book, Middle Class Dreams (Times Books, $25). It is interesting in its own right and particularly so if you want to find out what's still wrong-headed about the Democratic Party in the era of Clinton. Greenberg's book itself is a case in point.

Greenberg says that Americans have been doubly betrayed by their political parties. The Democrats betrayed the people with the "Great Society." And the Republicans betrayed the people with "Reaganism." The Democrats betrayed America because "bottom up" economics hasn't worked. And the Republicans betrayed America because "top down" economics hasn't worked.

And Bill Clinton (surprise!) can fix it all through "accountable government with public investment." I only disagree with all of these propositions. Certainly, the terminology is wrong. Mislabeling political history means misunderstanding it.

Was the Great Society a betrayal? Is that why voters have turned against Democrats? It is a phrase that will always be associated with President Lyndon Johnson, in whose administration I served as a speech-writer about a hundred years ago.

Johnson's civil rights laws broke the back of legal racial segregation. The Great Society programs featured the "War on Poverty," included "Head Start," and "Jobs Corps." It also included many non-poverty-related programs: Medicare, clean air, clean water, new colleges for millions of new college students and health research concerning heart, cancer and stroke. The war in Vietnam, begun earlier, was escalated by Johnson, as the military situation in Vietnam changed.

Politically, these were complex decisions. It may be that Johnson's stand on civil rights hurt the Democratic Party, as Greenberg indicates, but who among us would have it differently? It may be that the poverty programs and the non-poverty programs engendered too big a role for the federal government, although one is reminded of the elderly woman who recently approached her congressman and said, "Don't let them take away our Medicare and turn it over to the government." Vietnam split the Democratic Party like a cleaver ripping through an over-ripe melon.

The then-young New Leftists said it was an immoral war, that American was guilty. And by the way, America was also guilty of racism, sexism, puritanism, environmental despoliation, homophobia, consumer fraud, colonialism and imperialism. Crime, of course, was caused by this oppressive system. Welfare, of course, was a right not a privilege. Quotas and preferences, of course, must be extended to oppressed minorities. And what was so wrong with promiscuity and pornography?

Honky! Tune in, turn on, drop out. Make love not war. And much of the adult liberal part of the Democratic Party, trembling, fearing their children, agreeing by not disagreeing, remained silent.

None of that guilty stuff came from either LBJ or the Great Society. All of it enraged most Americans, deservedly. Which is why voters believe they were betrayed - by Democratic liberalism. If you don't understand what went wrong, you can't fix it.

Were the voters betrayed by "Reaganism"? America won the Cold War on Ronald Reagan's watch. Last time I looked the public opinion polls showed Reagan as the most popular of the 10 modern presidents.

Was America betrayed by "bottom up" or "top down" economics? If so, how did America become the most prosperous society in history? To believe that we have witnessed economic betrayal means accepting the trendy notion that Americans have lost income in the last quarter of a century. I think it's bonkers.

Heaven forbid that I would criticize any author whose name ends with "enberg." Indeed, there are whole paragraphs I agree with. But Greenberg is searching the wrong precincts for evidence of political betrayal.

Betrayal? Is there a man or party that has said one thing and done another? Such as running for high office as a New Democrat, promising to end welfare as we know it, looking for a "third way" between liberalism and conservatism, putting Republicans in the Cabinet and ending the "something for nothing" state? If Greenberg is so intent on discovering betrayal he might start his search in the Oval Office.

Letters to the editor

No more water rights

To the editor:

Our city commission will soon vote and decide on an issue of huge importance to us and our children who may choose to remain here. It will decide whether Pampa chooses to join the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority in buying water rights in Roberts County, water rights that I believe we just do not need – not now, maybe never! Let's look at some facts and information concerning this issue and please let our elected officials know!

We are told that our drinking water will taste better since the city will mix well water with Lake Meredith water.

One of the biggest (if not the biggest) problems with Lake Meredith water is the salt content being caused by a brine (salty) aquifer in New Mexico that empties into the Canadian River. The feds are helping with a solution. Wells are being drilled – one in operation already – that will divert this salty water into deep injection wells away from the Canadian River.

Pampa has no water mixing operation now. If one is built, the huge cost will show up – guess where? Lubbock officials, according to the Amarillo Daily News, made a huge money blunder by opting to help build a dam to supply their water needs. The dam is partially built but apparently, even if finished, it will be at an added enormous expense. A risk these officials are not willing to take on top of the large amounts of money already spent! They made a mistake. Now we are being asked to bail them out.

Remember, Lubbock also opted not to buy the water Pampa does not need from Lake Meredith, even though we have to pay for it. Perhaps another blunder by Lubbock officials.

Southwestern Public Service Co., a monopoly, along with Lubbock would benefit from Pampa joining this unneeded endeavor. Some years back a wholly owned subsidiary of SPS bought the water rights in Roberts County, anticipating a substantial population growth in this area, thus creating a need for an additional power station. It hasn't happened and probably won't. Now SPS has no need for the water rights it purchased and possibly, like Lubbock, SPS is looking to water users in Pampa to also bail them out from the millions of dollars they spent!

Pampa is reeling from over 190 homes that are empty – listed with local Realtors – for sale. This does not include houses that are being sold by owners themselves. Take into account the water that are out of service! Higher and higher water bills are no inducement for people to move into Pampa at a time when we have almost lost all of our chain stores, those stores that could offer better prices for our shopping needs in hand goods.

With little competition locally, perhaps that's why we can journey to Borger and save money at Kmart and, yes, even their Wal-Mart store! I keep hearing over and over, "Why should we move to Pampa? You are quickly becoming a one store, one price town!"

Those of us who plan to stay here, and hope our children do, must speak out and be heard. Urge city officials not to join in bailouts of bad judgments made by Lubbock and SPS!

In future years, a good, close supply of drinking water may turn out to be our biggest, invaluable asset!

Study textbooks carefully

To the editor:

There are two kindergarten curriculum textbooks being considered for adoption by our local school board on Tuesday, March 28. These are state approved, and one will probably be accepted by our district.

According to David Spurgeon, who receives waivers from districts so they can adopt textbooks that are better suited to their needs, over 200 districts across the state have rejected both of these, including Borger. He said most of their reasons were because the students in their districts were too advanced for this material. He agreed, along with Dr. Robert Leos (the director of textbook and curriculum development at the Texas Education Agency), that in a state the size of Texas there is not a one-size-fits-all curriculum.

The waiver deadline was March 1, but both of these men assured me that the new commissioner of education (Dr. Michael Moses) would be lenient on this deadline due to the fact that the commissioner was not approved until after the waiver deadline. In addition, it is the goal of the new state administration to help the local districts to have curriculum that fits them.

It should be noted that all of the textbooks up for adoption at the local level on Tuesday, March 28, at 7 p.m., were approved by the state school board in November. According to Dr. Leos, these were approved after the November election. At least four of the board members were leaving office, but they were allowed to approve these books that will impact our children for the next eight to ten years, if adopted locally (including the controversial health textbook).

Is this what we in Pampa, Texas want for our children – curriculum that has been rejected by over 200 districts? Do we want a health textbook that has activities that deal with how different choices of deciding whether or not to be in a gang affect one's self esteem? They just don't fit our district – the director of textbooks at the TEA recognizes this. I encourage our administration to look long and hard at what is best for our students.

Good people in Pampa

To the editor:

My wife and I attended a Rotary District Conference in Pampa recently, and we found out firsthand what kind of people live in Pampa.

Twenty years ago I gave my wife a gold pen in the form of a pine cone. It has been her favorite piece of jewelry. She discovered that the pen was missing when we attended the Rotary dinner in the M.K. Brown Community Center. We immediately started making our way through the crowd, looking under chairs and tables. Loraine Sally, who works at the Brown Community Center, saw us looking for the pen. She said, "I know what you are looking for and I have it in the office." She returned the pen to my wife.

Pampa should be proud of Loraine Sally because the Loraine Sallys, who have daily contact with the public, are more important to the image of your town than the leadership who have much less exposure. My wife and I thought you should know what kind of people live in Pampa, Texas.

Changes are appreciated

To the editor:

Over the past few months, I have noticed many changes in the Pampa News. I would like to express my appreciation for these changes. The larger print in many articles eases the eye-strain on my poor, tired eyes.

I find that the ink stays on the page, rather than rubbing off on my hands. The usage of color on the front page is very appealing. Perhaps the most noticeable improvement is in the quality of proofreading. Overall, The Pampa News has attained a higher level of professionalism. I'm sure others have noticed these changes.

There is one more thing I'd like to mention. Printing the names and addresses of our elected officials is an excellent idea. It makes it much easier for us to contact these officials to express our opinions. Thanks for the wonderful changes. Keep up the good work!

Help senior party plans

To the editor:

As happens each spring, another class of our young citizens are preparing to graduate from high school and turn their attentions toward future endeavors: college, marriage, the work force or the military. Before they leave their childhoods behind, most plan to have one "last fling" with their peers and friends.

We, the parents and friends of the Miami High School student body, wish to see that the "last fling" is a chemical-free party that results in good fun and pleasant memories rather than in possible hangovers, arrests or physical harm. In conjunction with the Texas Department of Highways, we are sponsoring our annual Project Graduation in the Miami High gymnasium on May 19.

The evening will be packed with activities, food, games and door prizes. We hope to show our kids they do not have to drink or get high in order to have fun. To build enthusiasm we need incentive, and to fund an ample supply of incentive, we need donations to purchase prizes and refreshments. Since no public funds are available, we rely solely on donations of cash and prizes. If you wish to be a contributor, please call Stephanie Early (806-868-4861), Vina Sullivan (868-4781), or Linda Browning (868-6471), and we will pick up your contribution at your convenience. If you can make a cash donation, please make your check payable to: Project Graduation, ATTN: Stephanie Early, P.O. Box 368, Miami ISD, Miami, TX 79059.

Any contribution you can make is greatly appreciated by both the sponsors and the students of Miami High School.

Old paintings sought

To the editor:

We have found a number of old, special oil-on-tapestry paintings in your area and are led to believe that many others exist there.

Mrs. Anna Laurie Harle painted these and sold them at the turn of the century to raise money to help free her doctor son from a Mexican prison. He was eventually freed by Pancho Villa. We have seen a number of the beautiful paintings and continue to assemble as much information as we can about them and their present owners.

We would appreciate hearing from others who have or who know of other such paintings, as we hope to share information.

I may be contacted as follows: Gaynell O'Brien, 1201 S. Seaman St., Eastland, TX 76448.

Infantry division reunion

To the editor:

The Second (Indian Head) Division Association is conducting a nationwide search for any man or woman who ever served in the famous Second Infantry Division and who do not know of the existence of our Association, which we would like to tell them about and of our forthcoming reunion.

With your assistance, we can reach a great number of these veterans. For information about our association and our forthcoming reunion, please contact: Bill Creech, P.O. Box 460, Buda TX 78610.

Young walker

Decked out in a Pink Panther balloon hat, a March of Dimes WalkAmerica T-shirt and a balloon tied to his wrist, Andrew Garner, 4, the son of Coronado Hospital Administrator Doug Garner, was prepared for Saturday's 25th Anniversary March of Dimes WalkAmerica in Pampa. Several hundred people showed up at Central Park for the 5-mile walking event which took them from the park, down Duncan Street and around to Harvester Street and back to the park.

House ratifies GOP's sweeping welfare reform plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite bitter debate, Republicans pushed their sweeping welfare reform bill through the House quickly: two months in committee and four days' fighting on the floor. No such speedy fate awaits welfare reform in the Senate.

Hearings are just getting under way on that side of the Capitol and lawmakers in both parties have expressed reservations about cutting off assistance to teenage mothers and other needy families.

House Republicans say their bill, which passed the House on Friday, 234-199, will get rid of layers of federal bureaucracy and help free poor people from an endless cycle of poverty.

"We are sweeping away a destructive system and we are putting in a system that can work," Rep. Clay Shaw, R-Fla., declared after the far-reaching welfare reform bill passed.

Democrats say the bill, which saves $66 billion over five years, will hurt poor women and children and is all about saving money for tax cuts. President Clinton said the measure was "weak on work and tough on children."

"Our best hope now is that the Senate chooses to reject this tax-cut, bail-out bill the Republicans are calling welfare reform," House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., said just after the vote.

The measure makes fundamental changes in a web of social programs dating to the Great Depression.

It cancels the federal government's promise to provide school lunches, cash assistance, foster care support and child care to the country's neediest women and children; cuts families off welfare after five years; and requires able-bodied food stamp recipients to work.

There are no guarantees, however, that single mothers on welfare will be given training, education, child care or a job as they move from dependency to the work force. Those details are left to the states.

In a rancorous weeklong debate, Democrats accused the GOP of pillaging school lunches, foster care and food stamps to finance tax cuts for the wealthy.

"Who pays for this gift from Uncle Sam to the privileged few in this country?" said Rep. Harold Ford, D-Tenn.

Pointing to a chart, Ford said, "$24 billion is donated by poor families with children. Food stamp recipients contribute $19 billion. Kids who lose school lunches, child care, WIC (the Women, Infants and Children nutrition program) ante up another $12 billion. Abused and neglected children pay $2 billion. And legal immigrants contribute about $21 billion. ... I say to my Republican colleagues: Pick on someone your own size."

Tip Of The Month ...

Would you want an oilfield hand doing brain surgery on you? Would you want a brain surgeon trying to extract oil from the ground? Of course not!

Always use a professional.

Example - We have seen springs on a garage door wound the opposite direction, not enough turns, not the proper length, not the proper wire size and even two right hand springs on one door! Many times problems with a door are nothing but the door opener's limit switches.

Always have a professional service your door as Federal Law UL/325 effective 1992 has made many changes in the door business!

Tyson's first act of freedom is prayer, then home

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

PLAINFIELD, Ind. (AP) — Mike Tyson, the fighter known for his ferocity, got down on his knees and prayed to Allah on Saturday, his first act in a journey that could restore his title and his fortune.

Wearing a white knit skullcap, Tyson, released from prison after serving three years for rape, was whisked off in a black limousine to a mosque at the Islamic Society of North America.

He was joined there by former boxing champ Muhammad Ali, NFL Hall of Famer Mel Blount, rapper Hammer and hundreds of others.

A prayer of thanksgiving was offered in Arabic. Tyson, sporting a mustache and short beard, sat in the front row before the imam, bowing solemnly as rays of sunlight streamed through clear mosque windows.

Tyson, a Muslim for three decades, sat nearby. Don King, the promoter who hopes to guide Tyson back into a multimillion-dollar boxing career, was behind them.

Tyson took his brute force instincts into prison, running into early discipline problems, then made peace with the stringent demands of prison life. He failed his high school equivalency exam, but he read regularly, recited Maya Angelou's poetry when she visited him and was tutored in Islam by Muhammad Siddeeq, who led Saturday's service.

"He's coming out a tougher man, a better man, a wiser man and a more spiritual man," Hammer said.

After the prayer service, Tyson took a private jet to his 66-acre estate, about 45 miles southeast of Cleveland — a stark contrast to the spartan 9-by-11 cell he shared at the Indiana Youth Center 20 miles west of Indianapolis.

His Ohio mansion's wrought-iron gates were decked with yellow ribbons and banners that read: "MIKE welcome back to your family" and "Champ we missed you."

Tyson, who became the youngest heavy-weight champ ever at age 20, had to pay huge legal bills, but at age 28 still could rake in $75 million to $100 million in a year of fights.

"They're negotiating like it's the sale of India, because he's very popular," said Showtime boxing analyst Ferdie Pacheco.

Some women's groups have decried Tyson's celebrity status and said it's wrong to treat the boxer as a hero.

Tyson served only half of his six-year sentence because of good behavior but he still faces four years probation.

Tyson said nothing publicly Saturday, though a printed statement given out near the prison in his name said: "I'm very happy to be out and on my way home. I want to thank everyone for their support. I will have more to say in the future. I'll see you all soon."

Tyson, wearing a long black coat, was whisked out about 6:15 a.m. His entourage, including King, managers Rory Holloway and John Horne, surrounded him on all sides; an aide spread open his coat to block any view of the boxer.

Monica Turner, a 28-year-old Georgetown University medical student who is reportedly Tyson's girlfriend, also was at the prison.

Assistant prison superintendent Phil Slavens said Tyson "said we were fair — 'Thank you for being fair.' We shook hands."

Some boxing experts say Tyson's prison stint will not diminish his drawing power.

Desk & Derrick Club sets program on TxDOT permits

The Desk and Derrick Club of Pampa will have its regular monthly meeting Tuesday at the Pampa Country Club.

Speaker for the evening will be Jenny L. Shumake, assistant unit manager with the Texas Department of Transportation. Her topic is "What You Always Wanted to Know About Permits But Were Afraid to Ask."

Shumake is the first female hired in the Crane, Texas permit office. In 1986, after 14 1/2 years, she transferred to the central permit office in Austin.

In September 1991 Shumake became the manager of the "hub" department and still holds that position, although she plans to retire on March 31. She then will have accumulated 23 years and four months with the TxDOT.

She is married to William L. Shumake II. They have two sons and daughters-in-law and four grandchildren.

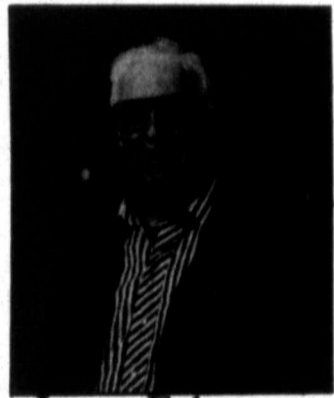

The public is invited to attend the meeting, especially those who have a TxDOT permit or who are interested in learning more information about them.

Social time starts at 6:30 p.m., with the meal and meeting beginning at 7 p.m.

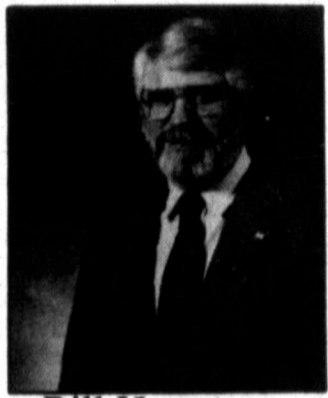

Reservations may be made by calling Esther McAdoo at 665-3404 or 669-3498.

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — Tyrone Narcisse allowed one hit in five innings and Ted Milner drove in two runs with a pair of singles as the Houston Astros won their seventh consecutive game, 8-4, over the New York Mets Saturday before 1,068 at Osceola County Stadium.

The Astros (17-5) have won 16 of their last 19 games and tied a franchise record with their 17th exhibition victory.

Narcisse (3-0) has a 1.42 ERA this spring. He has walked only three and struck out 12 in 19 innings.

The Mets took a 1-0 lead in the third on Sandy Pichardo's RBI single.

The Astros scored four times in the fourth. Jose Flores reached on an error and Tim Jordan tied the game with a pinch triple to right. Milner followed with a base hit to center to score Jordan. A double by Juan Guerrero and a base hit by Lance Madsen off New York starter John Gardner (1-2) gave the Astros their 4-1 lead.

Milner, who stole his third and fourth base of the spring, singled in a run in the sixth and Tony Gilmore doubled in two more in the seventh.

BASKETBALL

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Dory Kidd led Clemson on a 16-4 run in the first half, propelling the Lady Tigers to a 107-66 rout over East Tennessee State on Saturday for the consolation championship of the women's NIT.

Tara Saunooke led Clemson (21-11) with 27 points, including 16 in the first half, when she hit 7 of 11 field goal attempts.

Clemson hit more than 60 percent of its shots in both halves while holding East Tennessee to 33 percent. The Lady Tigers controlled the boards, 46-28.

East Tennessee State's Lady Bucs (21-9) led 7-4 after 3:08, but Kidd scored 7 points as Clemson scored 16 of the next 20 points for a 20-11 lead.

Saunooke scored 9 of her points in the first 4:30 of the second half as Clemson bolted to a 19-point lead, and the Lady Tigers pulled steadily away, leading by as many as 43.

DeShawne Blocker scored 31 points for East Tennessee State, giving her 730 points for the season. Saunooke finished with 251 3-point field goals and 1,462 points in her career for sixth best in Clemson history.

TENNIS

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — It's getting to be habit: Pete Sampras vs. Andre Agassi. No. 1 vs. No. 2.

For the third time this year, the world's top two players face off in a tournament final. This time, it's the Lipton Championships.

Magnus Larsson knows better than most what it takes to beat Agassi. The Swede didn't have it as Agassi won their semifinal match 7-5, 4-6, 7-6 (7-1) Friday.

"Now he has a chance to be No. 1 and he's not giving away any points or any matches," Larsson said. "If you make 50 aces and 50 forehand winners, you can beat him. It is not so easy to do."

Sampras made sure he gets a chance to try by beating another Swede, unseeded Jonas Bjorkman, 4-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Sampras, seeking his third consecutive Lipton title, edged Agassi in last year's final. Both of their meetings this year have come in finals, with Agassi winning at the Australian Open and Sampras winning at Indian Wells, Calif.

GOLF

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — Maybe they shouldn't call it The Players Championship. Maybe they should call it The Champions Championship.

Sure, Corey Pavin and Gene Sauers have the lead going into today's third round at the TPC course. But just look who's chasing them.

Twenty-eight players are within five strokes of the twin leaders, and among them they have won 29 major championships, six of the last eight majors and the last three Players Championships.

It certainly looks like the stage is set for a wild weekend on the Stadium Course at Sawgrass.

And the way the wind has dried out the greens, no one is going to run away and hide from the field. The course is just playing too tough.

"The greens are hard and hard to hit to," Pavin said. "They need some water."

"The course is playing so difficult, it's unbelievable," said Pavin, who struggled to a 73 and was tied with Sauers at 5-under-par 139 after Friday's second round.

Sauers stumbled home with a double bogey 6 on No. 18 and shot an even-par 72.

"I did everything great except for the last hole," Sauers said. "It started left and just kept going left," he said about the tee shot on No. 18 that found the water.

Pavin and Sauers were a single stroke better than Bernhard Langer, Davis Love and Steve Stricker after 36 holes and two ahead of Hale Irwin and D.A. Weibring.

Payne Stewart and Lennie Clements were at 142.

OSU advances; Hogs survive close call

By The Associated Press

Top seeds Wake Forest and Kansas were toppled, defending champion Arkansas survived another close call and Massachusetts romped again in the regional semifinals of the NCAA tournament.

Arkansas beat Memphis 96-91 in overtime and Virginia downed Kansas 67-58 in the Midwest, while Oklahoma State defeated Wake Forest 71-66 and UMass trampled Tulsa 76-51 in the East on Friday night.

Final Four berths will be at stake Sunday when second-seeded Arkansas (30-6) meets fourth-seeded Virginia (25-8) at Kansas City and second-seeded UMass (29-4) plays No. 4 Oklahoma State (26-9) at East Rutherford, N.J.

The other two regional championships will be decided today when top-seeded Kentucky (28-4) plays No. 2 North Carolina (27-5) in the Southeast at Birmingham, Ala., and top-seeded UCLA (28-2) meets No. 2 Connecticut (28-4) in the West at Oakland, Calif.

Arkansas overcame a 12-point, second-half deficit to force overtime, then controlled the extra period to win its third straight nailbiter in the tournament. The Razorbacks beat Texas Southern by one point in the first round and edged Syracuse by two points in overtime in the second round.

"We've been behind by 12 or even 15 in games and we always find a way to get back in the game," said Corliss Williamson, who finished with 27 points and 13 rebounds.

Arkansas capitalized on a controversial call in the closing seconds of regulation. Chris Garner of Memphis was called for a hand-checking foul against Corey Beck with 11.5 seconds left and the Tigers holding an 83-82 lead.

Beck made one of two free throws and Memphis (24-10) missed a 3-pointer at the buzzer to send the game into overtime.

Oklahoma State shut out Wake Forest star Randolph Childress down the stretch to reach the final eight for the first time since 1965.

Childress finished with 22 points, but didn't score in the final eight minutes and lost the ball in the closing seconds while Wake (26-6) was trying to set up a possible game-tying 3-pointer.

Oklahoma State center Bryant "Big Country" Reeves knocked the ball away from Childress and it was picked up by the Cowboys' Andre Owens, who passed to Terry Collins for the game-clinching dunk.

Randy Rutherford led Oklahoma State with 23 points and 11 rebounds, but he said defense was the key.

Virginia 67, Kansas 58

The Cavaliers became the first non-Big Eight team to beat Kansas in Kemper Arena since 1983. Playing just 40 miles from their campus, the Jayhawks (25-6) made only 2 of 21 3-point shots and were held to their lowest point total of the season.

Junior Burrough, giving up a half-foot to Kansas center Greg Ostertag, scored 18 points. Virginia led by nine points in the first half and held on after the Jayhawks closed within two in the second half.

Harold Deane had 22 points for Virginia. Jacque Vaughn scored 13 for Kansas, which made only 13 of 25 foul shots.

Massachusetts 76, Tulsa 51

Marcus Camby had 20 points, nine rebounds and five blocked shots as Massachusetts routed its third straight opponent. The Minutemen beat St. Peter's 68-51 in the first round and downed Stanford 75-53 in the second round.

Camby had 11 points during a 26-6 run that put Massachusetts ahead 35-15. During the spurt, Tulsa (22-8) had 11 possessions end after only one shot.

Massachusetts guard Edgar Padilla injured his left foot in the first half and did not play much thereafter. His status for Sunday was uncertain.

Shea Seals scored 19 for the Golden Hurricane.

Questions remain as opening day in baseball season is just one week away

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

A batter without a number on his back swings late at a fastball barely moving 80 mph and can only lift it a few feet into the air. An old scout, sitting alone in a box behind home plate, shakes his head and doesn't bother to follow the flight of the ball.

No, not even the popups have been major league this year.

Now, following the strangest spring training ever, is there any reason to believe baseball will look any different when opening day arrives in a week?

Instead of watching Cal Ripken catch that popup, will fans see short-stops plop over trying to backpedal? Rather than cheering Tom Glavine's curveball, will they chuckle when out-of-shape left-handers lob up lollipops?

"Everybody paints these guys as being so different from the major leaguers," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said. "But they've played the game a long time. They have the same kind of competitiveness, they just can't execute at the same level and with the same consistency."

Neither can the umpires, probably. With the big league umps locked out by owners in a contract dispute, fill-ins have been hired. They've been calling high strikes, too, resulting in shorter games.

Other stats so far from spring training: Home runs are down about 40 percent from last March and errors are up about 20 percent.

Besides, the ball always seems to be bouncing and it never seems to go very far or fast, whether it's pitched by Pedro Borbon, hit by former All-Star Chris Brown or thrown by grandfather Todd Cruz. In fact, Seattle manager Lou Piniella complained that his pitchers were throwing fastballs so slowly that the radar gun couldn't clock them.

What the attendance will be at new Coors Field in Denver or anywhere else is anyone's guess. Even with free tickets, some exhibition games drew just a few hundred fans. Florida Marlins owner Wayne Huizenga thinks he can bring out 15,000 per night, but other spectators were so disgusted with what they saw this spring that they threw foul balls back on the field.

Then again, maybe Bud Selig and Donald Fehr will settle the strike in the coming days. Or, at least, perhaps they can find a way to delay the beginning of replacement ball.

Otherwise, starting next Sunday night when the New York Mets play at the Marlins on ESPN, the crack of the bat will sound and look like nothing before.

There will be the Toronto Blue Jays, with a replacement manager and a replacement stadium in Dunedin, Fla., forced out of their SkyDome by an Ontario labor law. There will be the Detroit Tigers, without Sparky Anderson, who temporarily left the game he loved. There will be no Baltimore Orioles and, in the horror of horrors for baseball historians, no streak for Ripken.

Dumas slips by Pampa

DUMAS — Dumas scored two runs in the sixth inning to edge Pampa, 3-1, in District 1-4A baseball action Saturday.

The loss evened Pampa's district mark at 1-1 while overall the Harvesters are 5-6. Dumas is 1-0 in district play and 12-2 overall.

The district tilt turned out to be a pitching duel between Pampa junior Rene Armendariz and Dumas' Jeremy Dickinson.

Pampa broke on top first in the fourth inning. Todd Finney led off with a single and moved to third on a throwing error and a passed ball. With one out, he scored on a fielder's choice grounder by Danny Frye.

Dumas struck back to tie the score in the fifth on a run-scoring single by Greg Glover. The Demons struck for two in the sixth on an RBI triple by Tim Raycof and a run-scoring single by Cody Anderson.

Pampa got two runners on in the seventh when Frye reached first on a groundball error and Luke Long singled to right field. However, with one away, Dickinson struck out the last two batters to end the game.

"The difference in the game was that they got the hits at the right time and we didn't," said Pampa head coach Dennis Doughty. "We're playing pretty good baseball, but our hitting just needs to come around."

It was Armendariz' first mound loss after two victories. He gave up four hits while striking out seven and walking two in going the distance.

Dickinson allowed five hits while striking out 10 and walking one.

Finney was Pampa's leading hitter with two hits while Bryan Martindale, Armendariz and Long had one hit each.

The Harvesters travel to Lubbock on Tuesday for a non-district game with Lubbock High. Gametime is 4:30 p.m.

Tar Heels return to the Final Four

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — North Carolina's back in the Final Four and the Tar Heels are there because of Jerry Stackhouse.

The sophomore All-America forward scored, rebounded, passed and just plain led college basketball's winningest program to a 74-61 victory Saturday over top-seeded Kentucky, the all-time victory runner-up, in the NCAA Southeast Regional final for a berth in the national semifinals.

The second-seeded Tar Heels (28-5) will meet the winner of Sunday's Midwest Regional final between Virginia and Arkansas next Saturday in Seattle.

Stackhouse finished with 18 points, 11 rebounds and six assists, but it was the things he did that can't be counted that mattered most.

With North Carolina obviously not as deep as Kentucky (28-5) and bothered by nagging injuries throughout the game as well as foul trouble for sophomore center Rasheed Wallace, Stackhouse was the glue. Now coach Dean Smith returns to the Final Four for the 10th time and just two years after the Tar Heels won it all for the second time under him.

Donald Williams, the MVP of that last Final Four trip, finished with 18 points and Wallace, who sat out the last 10 minutes of the first half with three fouls, had 12.

Tony Delk had 19 points to lead the Wildcats, who shot a season-low 28 percent from the field (21-for-75), including 7-for-36 from 3-point range.

When Wallace left in the first half because of the foul trouble, North Carolina turned to Stackhouse, who scored nine points the rest of the half as the Tar Heels took a 34-31 halftime lead.

When Kentucky closed within 58-54 on a 3-pointer by Delk with 5:51 to play, Stackhouse made two nice passes to Wallace for a short turnaround and a dunk and the Tar Heels were up eight.

Pampa's Young, Nickelberry; White Deer's Herring make all-region team

WACO — Backcourt stars Rayford Young and Duane Nickelberry were named this week to the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches All-Region 1-4A team.
 Young, a 5-11 junior, was a first-team all-region pick, while Nickelberry, a 5-9 senior, made the third team.
 Young, who was District 1-4A's Most Valuable Player this season, averaged 22.1 points per game to lead the Harvesters in scoring for the second year in a row. He also averaged five rebounds, six assists and five steals. Young scored a career high 43 points in one game this season.
 Nickelberry overcame a severe ankle injury during the early part of the season to average 17 points per game in district play. He averaged around four assists and three steals.

Young and Nickelberry helped lead Pampa to a 26-8 record and into the regional semifinals.
 White Deer senior Willie Herring was named to the second-team, All-Region 1-A team. Herring averaged around 16 points per game as the Bucks advanced to the playoffs for the first time in five years.

UCLA races past Connecticut, 102-96

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — UCLA, putting on a show of speed that would make any of its 10 past champions proud, is back with a vengeance in the Final Four.
 Fifteen years after its last Final Four appearance, and 20 years since its last NCAA title, UCLA left Connecticut breathless in a 102-96 victory Saturday to capture the West Regional.
 Not even a masterful 36-point performance by Connecticut guard Ray Allen could stop the Bruins, who raced in dizzying patterns and throttled the Huskies' key big man, Donny Marshall, on defense.
 Tyus Edney was a gold-and-blue blur as he spearheaded UCLA's offense, scoring 22 points and passing for 10 assists, and fellow guard Toby Bailey came up with perhaps his all-around game with 26 points and nine rebounds.
 Top-ranked UCLA (29-2) didn't just outrun Connecticut (28-5), the Bruins outmuscled the supposedly more physical power from the Big East.

 This was a game that proved UCLA worthy of its No. 1 ranking and sent the Bruins to Seattle as the favorite for the championship. Swamped by their fans in a celebration on the floor of the Oakland Coliseum Arena, the Bruins responded by hugging them and each other before going through the traditional ritual of clipping the net — scissors in one hand, video cameras in the other.
 UCLA took a 67-55 advantage with 14:04 left; its biggest lead of the game to that point, but Connecticut scored seven straight points in 38 seconds to cut the lead to 67-62.
 The Huskies got as close as four points on Allen's 3-point shot a minute later, and that seemed to wake up the Bruins from their brief lapse. They went on a 13-3 run to take an 82-68 lead, beating the Huskies with quickness, control and rebounding power. From that moment, the game wasn't in doubt.

 Edney, in a play reminiscent of his game-winning sprint at the end against Missouri, got the ball after a timeout with 3.6 seconds left in the first half, dashed upcourt and launched a spectacular buzzer-beating 3-pointer from 25 feet to give UCLA a 48-41 lead.
 Edney played the entire first half, leading the Bruins with 13 points and spearheading a fast-break attack that had even the speedsters on Connecticut looking winded.
 Charles O'Bannon did a brilliant job of keeping Marshall from running wild as he had in every game in the tournament. With O'Bannon shadowing him everywhere, Marshall scored only five points in the first half and finished with 15.

Southern Indiana captures NCAA Division II crown

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Cortez Barnes scored the go-ahead basket with 1:29 to play as Southern Indiana rallied from a 22-point deficit to defeat California-Riverside 71-63 for the NCAA Division II championship Saturday.
 Brian Huebner, who finished with 18 points for Southern Indiana, tied the score at 62 on a 3-pointer with 2:19 to go. Riverside (26-6) led for the last time 21 seconds later when James King made one of two free throws.
 Barnes banked in a 5-footer to give Southern Indiana (29-5) a 64-63 advantage. After Riverside's Craig Marshall misfired on a 3, Chad Gilbert connected on one to give Southern Indiana a 67-63 lead with 43 seconds left.

CONFESSION UNTO SALVATION

"But what is it? The word is nigh thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith, which we preach: because if thou shalt confess with thy mouth Jesus as Lord, and shalt believe in thy heart that God raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved: for with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." (Rom. 10:8-10.) The confession unto salvation is recorded in acts 8:37: "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." Phillip's response to the eunuch's desire to be baptized was: "If thou believest with all thy heart, thou mayest." It was then that the eunuch made the good confession of his belief in Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

The thing which motivates this confession is faith. The thing which produces faith is the word of God (Rom. 10:17.) By an understanding of the inspired record about Jesus, one is made to believe that He is the Son of God (Jn. 20:30-31.) This faith motivates the obedience to the gospel which results in the salvation of the soul (Rom. 6:17-18.)

There will be no hesitation in making the confession which is unto salvation if one believes with all his heart that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God. And with the kind of faith, all other acts of obedience, such as repentance and baptism for the remission of sins will follow.

The phrase "with all thy heart" is the key to understanding the confession unto salvation. Insincerity will not avail. The only faith that saves, or justifies, is the faith that works (Jas. 2:24.) We read in Jn. 12:42-43: "Nevertheless even of the rulers many believed on Him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess it, lest they should be put out of the synagogue; for they loved the glory that is of men more than the glory that is of God." Even though these men believed on Jesus, still their fear of the Pharisees was stronger than their faith, thus they would not confess their faith in Jesus Christ. Obviously, they did not believe with all their heart. The confession unto salvation must result from a complete and honest faith.

Internal Revenue Service not happy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is considering turning the tables on the Internal Revenue Service. Proposed legislation would force the agency to prove taxpayers are wrong in disputed cases, rather than requiring filers to prove they are right.

IRS Commissioner Margaret Milner Richardson warned the House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee on Friday the change would destroy the tax system.

"You might as well repeal the income tax law and pass the hat," she said.

Richardson and Deputy Assistant Treasury Secretary Cynthia G. Beerbower said they supported many congressional proposals for strengthening taxpayer rights but adamantly oppose a bill, sponsored by Rep. Jim Traficant, D-Ohio, which would shift the burden of proof in all civil tax cases.

The IRS already has the burden of proof in criminal cases and civil cases involving fraud.

"An accused mass murderer has more rights than a taxpayer fingered by the IRS," Traficant said in a statement to the subcommittee. "Jeffrey Dahmer was considered innocent until proven guilty. Mom and Pop small business owners, however, are not afforded this protection."

However, Beerbower said a "longstanding and well-established legal doctrine" in all civil proceedings, not just tax cases, is that the party that has control of the facts has the burden of proof.

Shifting the burden of proof would force the IRS to intrude into taxpayers' lives far more than it does now, interviewing people other than the taxpayer and summoning information from third parties such as banks and credit card companies, she said.

"As a result, the simplest audit would become a costly nightmare if the taxpayer refuses to cooperate," she said. "For example, if a taxpayer claims a child as a dependent and the IRS suspects the child does not exist, the IRS would be forced to interview neighbors."

Richardson said the change would make it so easy to claim phony deductions, to the disadvantage of honest taxpayers, and that "passage ... would destroy our voluntary compliance system."

Four former IRS commissioners — Donald Alexander, Lawrence Gibbs, Fred Goldberg and Sheldon Cohen — submitted testimony backing Richardson's position.

Traficant, a longtime crusader against the IRS, has his salary garnished to pay for a tax case he lost in the mid-1980s. It stemmed from a criminal charge, for which he was acquitted, when he was a candidate for county sheriff in Ohio.

Amarillo radio station awaits FCC sale ruling

AMARILLO — A Stephenville man reportedly has a local marketing agreement with an Amarillo radio station while the Federal Communications Commission ponders the sale of the station.

Bob Haschke, acting general manager at KDJW-AM and KBUY-FM in Amarillo, said he would have no comment on the sale of the station until the FCC ruling, which is expected in May.

He confirmed, however, that some changes in format at the station were being made, including more agricultural business reports, sports and historical spots.

The AM station will be carrying more agricultural talk programming while the FM side maintained its programming of country music. The station will also carry the Amarillo Dillas baseball games. Haschke said they were also trying to make arrangements to carry West Texas A&M sports as well.

Desk and Derrick

"Greater Knowledge — Greater Service" — that is the main goal of the Desk and Derrick organization whose main purpose is education in the energy industry.

"Career Day" is one of the civic activities which the organization sponsors for the schools to give students an idea of what kinds of careers are available in the industry. Desk and Derrick also tries to give away a scholarship every year to a college student from the area.

Educational field trips are offered for the members. This year, the group took a tour of the Hutchinson County Museum in Borger which holds a lot of history from the oil and gas days of the area. The members were also able to see the old-time derrick which is being constructed across the street from the museum.

The annual convention is set for Sept. 21-23 in Tulsa, Okla. In 1996, the convention will be held in San Francisco, Calif., and Doris Odom of Elk City, Okla., first vice president of the Association of Desk and Derrick clubs will preside over it.

The organization will be holding their Annual Dance and Silent Auction which is set for April 1 from 8 p.m. to 12 a.m. at the M.K. Brown Auditorium. "Kracker Jack" will be the band playing at the event. For more information, call Scena Snider, dance chair, at 669-0742.

Desk and Derrick officers for the present year are: Scena Snider, Empire operating, treasurer; Norma Briden, IRI International, immediate past president; Ester McAdoo, McAdooles, secretary; Carol Cofer, Pampa Economic Development Board, director; Sharon Ward, Adobe Operating, director; Murrel Jones, F and M Companies, director; Teresa Snow, Adobe Operating, president; and Linda Slaybough, National Bank of Commerce, vice president.

Dance decorating committee members (left to right) Carol Cofer, Scena Snider, Linda Slaybough, and Teresa Snow look over a few of the decorations which will be used for this year's Desk and Derrick Annual Dance and Silent Auction this Saturday at the M.K. Brown Auditorium from 8 p.m. to 12 a.m. "Kracker Jack" is set to perform.

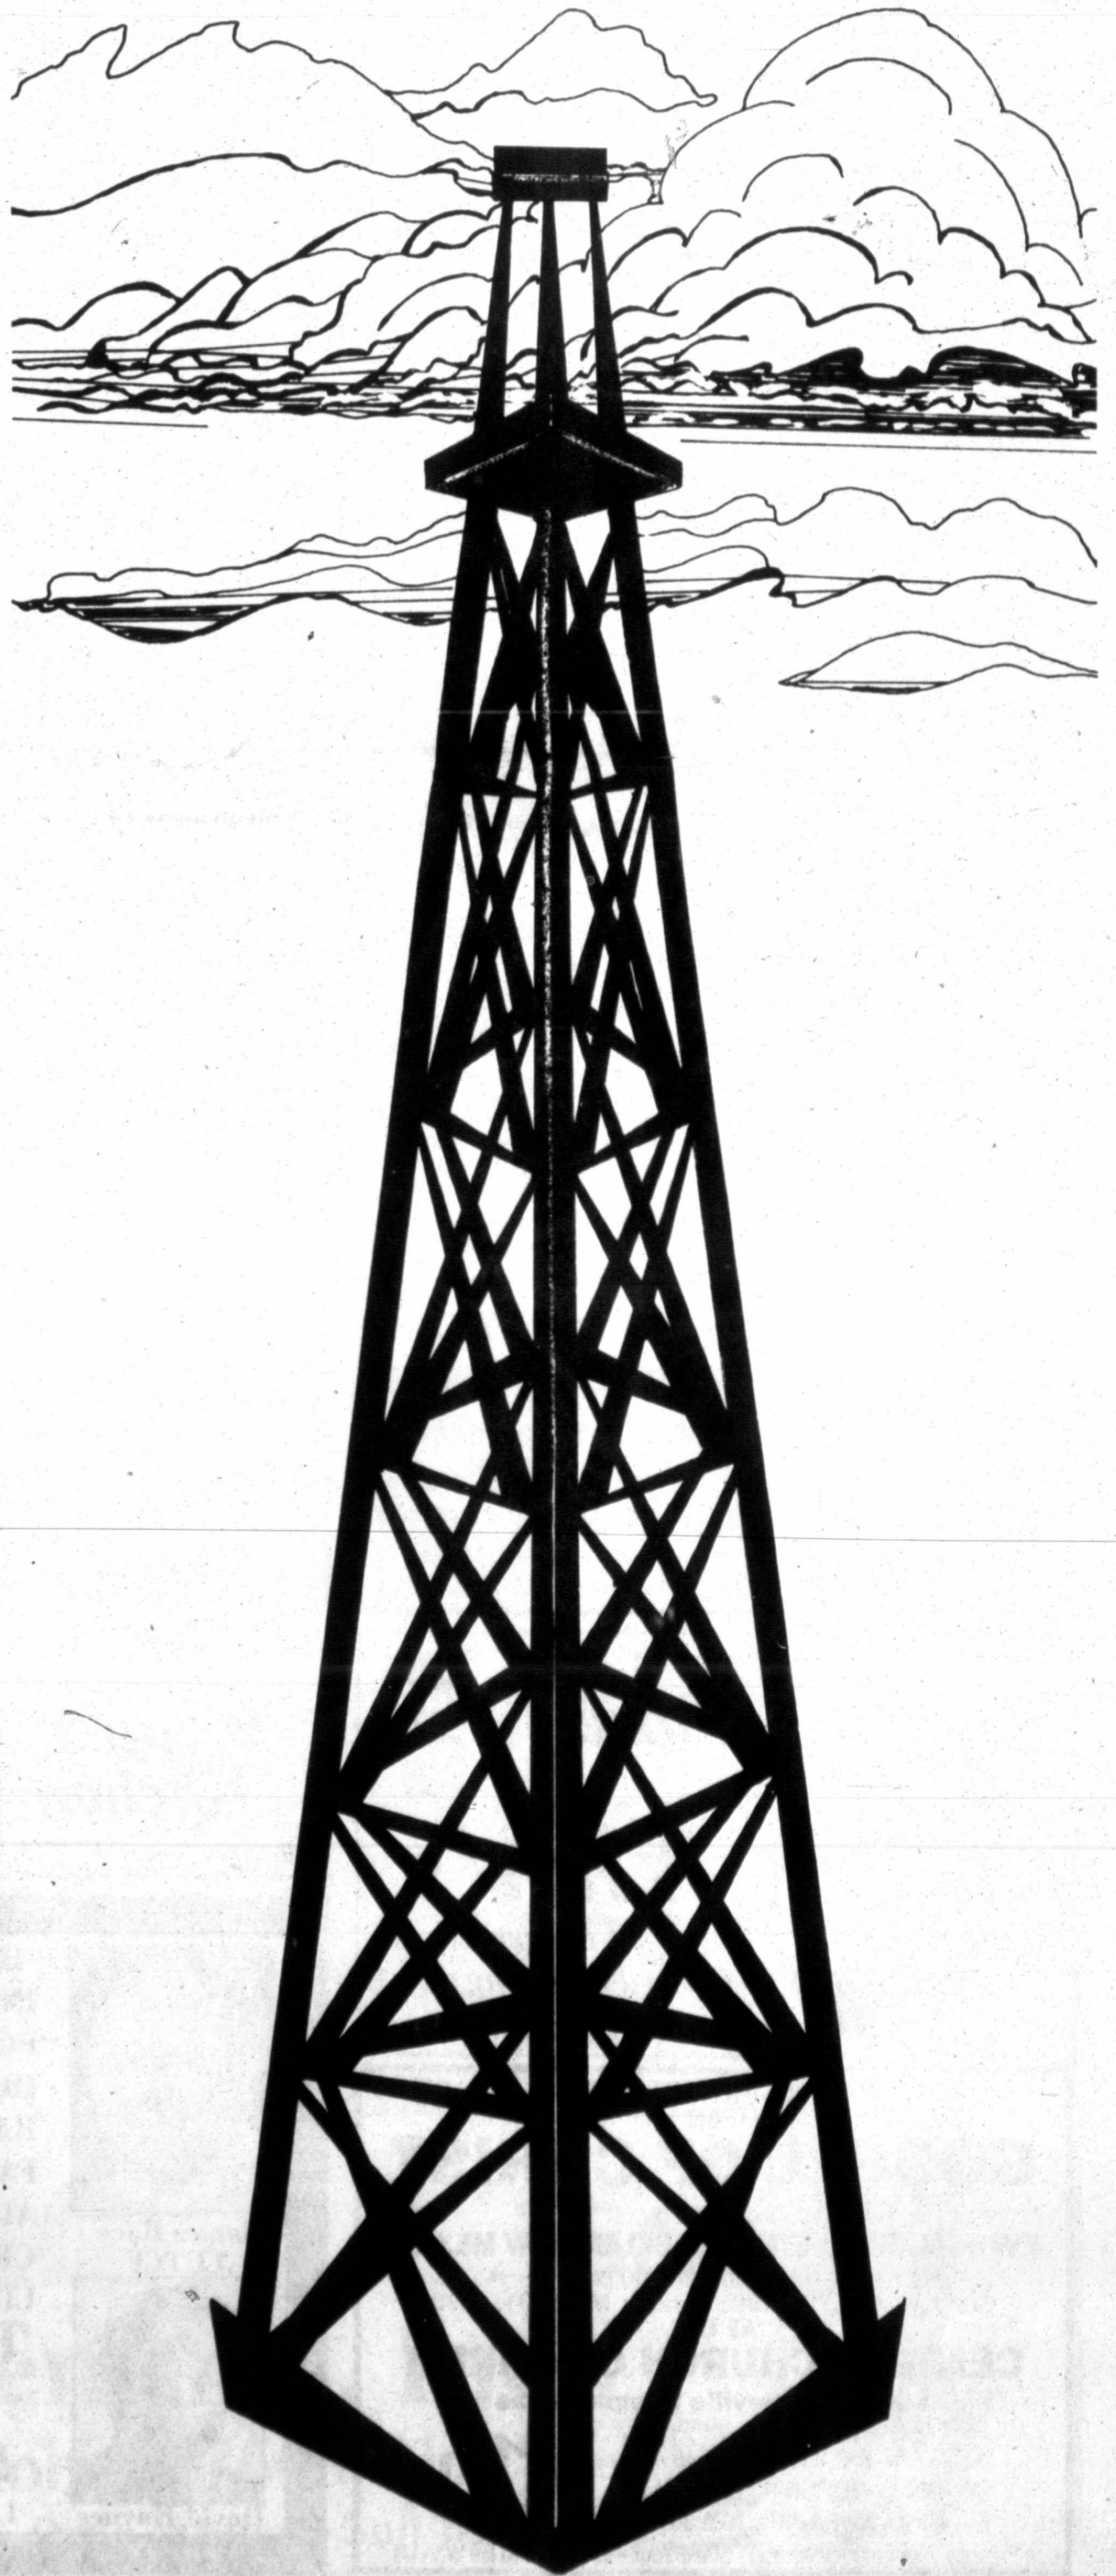

Teresa Snow, president (back) and Elaine McDowell (center), past 1995 Region V president, show Kyle Ward (right) and Leslie Ward about careers available in the industry.

Sharon Ward, scholarship committee chair, talks over the scholarship opportunities Desk and Derrick provide with Lib Jones, counselor's administrative assistant, and Kay Kibbe, counselor.

Sew fair offers latest in fashion, fabrics

Creative sewing and fashion and fabric updates will be the focus of a Sew Fair to be conducted Tuesday at the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard. The educational event will feature speakers, exhibits, and door prizes throughout the afternoon and evening.

The afternoon session will begin at 1 p.m. with registration and exhibits. Cynthia Shattles, Ochiltree County Extension Agent, will lead off the afternoon at 1:15 p.m. with a presentation on "Sewing With Scraps". She will be sharing a new jacket technique as well as ideas for clothing and home accessories utilizing bits and pieces of fabric. Shattles is well-known in the upper Panhandle and Oklahoma Panhandle for her quality clothing construction ideas and instruction.

"The New Cottons" will be the featured program at 2:15 p.m. Janie VanZandt, free lance home economist from Pampa will be the guest speaker. VanZandt completed her masters degree in clothing, textiles, and merchandising, at Texas Tech University in Lubbock in 1994. While at Texas Tech, she was a teaching and research assistant for three years.

The popular "Silk Ribbon Embroidery" will be the featured program at 3:15 p.m. Nelda Patton, crafter and instructor with The Hobby Shop in Pampa will share tips and ideas for using the silk ribbon embroidery techniques on clothing and accessory items as well as in home decor accessories.

The evening session will begin with registration and exhibits at 6 p.m. "Clothing Recycling As An Alternative Buying Style" will be the featured program at 6:30 p.m. Becky Johnson, creative seamstress and free-lance home economist from Mobeetie, will share ideas to help women look and feel great on a shoestring. Johnson has studied fashion history and design in London, taught home economics for eight years, and is now involved in studying clothing recycling for environmental, aesthetic, and economic reasons.

Rounding out the evening's program will be a presentation on "Sewing Tips For the Professional Look" by Janie VanZandt. VanZandt will provide tips related to fabric, thread, machines, pressing, interfacing, patterns and fit, seam finishes and more. VanZandt is well known as an instructor for creative and basic clothing construction classes in the Pampa area. She has competed in numerous fashion design and clothing construction competitions and also has served as a clothing construction judge for 4-H and fiber sewing competitions.

The Sew Fair is being sponsored by the Gray County Family and Community Education Council. Admission fee is $5 per person which includes one or both sessions.

Try this flavoring paste to rub onto halibut or scrod: three cloves garlic, minced, 3 Tbs. sweet paprika and 1 1/2 Tbs. ground cumin, mixed into 1/4 cup lemon juice and 3 Tbs. olive oil. Let marinate four to eight hours, then grill or broil the fish lightly.

Your microwave oven can speed breadmaking. Put the bowl of ready-to-rise dough into a pie plate filled with hot water. Cook, covered, on low for 10 to 14 minutes until doubled. Cook shaped dough in a glass pan on low for 5 minutes; let stand 10 minutes until doubled.

Three cheers for pita bread, great for sandwiches. It has almost no fat, and far fewer calories than a long sandwich roll or a bagel. The whole-wheat version is extra nutritious.

Sports nutrition and myths

In this last column in a series relating to nutrition during National Nutrition Month, we will look at sports nutrition — when myth is confronted by truth. Research certainly recognizes how important diet can be in athletic training. In evaluating the sports nutrition focus, we will look at sources of information, myths related to enhancement of performance through diet, the quick energy myth, and avoiding dehydration.

SOURCE OF INFORMATION

In one study, 77 percent of high school and college athletes ranked their parents first or second, followed by the media and magazines as their major sources of nutrition information. Only about 10 percent ranked medical personnel and 15 percent chose coaches as major sources of sports nutrition information.

What this does is question the accuracy of the nutrition information obtained by athletes with so many sources of varying information. In one high school study, football, basketball, and track coaches were questioned to see how knowledgeable they were. The results indicated that of the 86 percent of the coaches that provided nutrition information to their athletes, only 11 percent had taken at least one college course in nutrition.

PERFORMANCE MYTHS

Several myths have become

Homemaker's News

By Donna Brauchi

prominent among athletes who are trying to enhance their physical performance. These myths and the real truth about each concept are as follows:

(1) Muscle-Building Myths —

The more protein and protein supplements you eat, the more muscles you will have. The truth is that no evidence exists that excess protein will lead to more or stronger muscles. In fact, excess protein is stored by the body as fat. Steroids are by far the best way to develop massive muscle, but, of course, they can be extremely dangerous. Steroids have many risky side effects such as stunting growth, causing acne, deepening the voice, and altering sex organs. The right way to build muscle is through a well-balanced diet and regular exercise.

(2) Quick Energy Myth —

Vitamin supplements give you more energy. The truth is that none of the known 14 vitamins supply energy. Some vitamins can help the body better utilize energy, but these are ordinarily supplied through a normal diet. The water soluble vitamins such as the B and C vitamins when taken in excess are simply flushed out by the urine. Others such as the fat soluble vitamins A, D, E, and K in excess are stored in your body fat and can be dangerous when taken in excess.

(3) Water During Exercise Myth —

Water during exercise upsets the stomach and slows you down. The truth is that no evidence supports that drinking water during exercise causes upset stomach or any other problems. In fact, drinking fluids during exercise is very important.

(4) Salt Intake Myth —

Inadequate salt intake causes muscle cramps. The truth is that cramps are caused by severe loss of water through sweating.

(5) Cottonmouth and Milk Myth —

Cottonmouth in athletes is caused by drinking milk. Actually dry mouth is due to a lack of saliva resulting from stress and loss of body fluids.

AVOIDING DEHYDRATION

As temperatures become warmer, it is especially important for athletes to take precautions such as drinking plenty of cool fluids before, during, and after practice and competition in track, soccer, softball, and other sports even if you don't feel thirsty. Thirst is really no guide to how much water your body needs. Weigh yourself before and after exercising and allow two cups of fluid per pound of weight lost during sweating. Salt tablets are not the answer as too much salt increases your body's water needs. Besides, salt tablets can irritate your stomach and cause nausea. Working out in rubber or plastic suits can cause serious dehydration, limit performance, and thus lead to heat exhaustion and heat stroke. One adequate indicator of hydration is the color of urine. The more hydrated, the lighter and clearer the color.

"Discover Nutrition Anytime, Anywhere" during National Nutrition Month! For more information, contact your Gray County Extension Office.

Food, nutrition and health: A balancing act

A special program linking nutrition, lifestyle, and disease prevention and management will be presented from 6-9 p.m. Thursday in the Gray County Annex, East Highway 60, in Pampa. The program will feature guest presenters Jill Shafer, Extension associate for health education with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Dr. Dymple Cooksey, Extension food and nutrition specialist.

Participants in the program will: (1) Learn about the current research concerning the interrelationships between diet and lifestyle as factors in the chronic diseases; (2) Learn what some of the nutrition and health pieces are and how to fit them together to lower disease risks and enhance nutrition and health; and (3) Understand what influences dietary patterns and practices and ways to modify behavior to make positive changes.

While the program may be especially helpful to overweight persons or persons who have been diagnosed with heart disease, type II diabetes, or hyperension, it is also appropriate for anyone interested in following a nutritionally sound and cancer preventative diet and lifestyle.

The program will feature food demonstrations along with interactive presentations.

The program is free of charge. To make reservations, call 669-8033 by noon on Wednesday.

Silence can be golden when old friends meet

DEAR ABBY: I recently read this quote by Dave Tyson Gentry: "True friendship comes when silence between two people is comfortable." I was reminded of this true story about Laurel and Hardy.

Toward the end of his life, Oliver Hardy suffered a stroke that left him unable to speak.

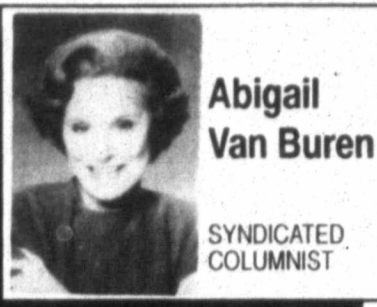

When Hardy was able to have visitors, Stan Laurel went to Ollie's home, where he was met at the door by Ollie's devoted wife, Lucille. She showed Stan to the room where Ollie was sitting in a chair, and left the two comedians alone together.

About 10 minutes later, she noticed that she couldn't hear anything from that room. Wondering what was wrong, she looked in on them and saw a beautiful sight. Stan and Ollie were having a spirited conversation without uttering a word. Both men were masters at pantomime from their early years in silent films. This skill was never put to better use.

It also illustrates the deep brotherly love between the partners. Stan had determined that he would not underscore Ollie's inability to speak by talking to him. And Ollie, I'm certain, was grateful to Stan, who thus helped Ollie to maintain his dignity.

WALT MITCHELL, ORISKANY, N.Y.

DEAR WALT: What a poignant demonstration of "love" between these two old

Abigail Van Buren

partners! Thank you for a heart-warming letter.

DEAR ABBY: I'm married to an extremely domineering man. He wants to control my life from morning until night. He listens when I'm on the phone (if I go to another room he'll come stand in the doorway or mute the TV so he can hear better). He picks up letters I'm writing and reads them. He questions my every move, and even pokes through my shopping bags.

I'm learning to deal with all those things, but he has one habit I cannot understand. He buys himself gifts and cards for holidays, and signs my name, as though I had sent them.

Last Christmas, he bought himself a gift and had his secretary wrap it. The card enclosed read, "To Sam, with all my love, (signed) Mary." He put it under our tree and spent days shaking it under my nose, saying, "I wonder what you got me... ha, ha!"

On Christmas morning, he made a big ceremony out of pretending to be surprised. When the family came over, he made a point of announcing, "Look what my sweet Mary got me!"

On Valentine's Day, there was a large envelope on the table marked "To my Sweetie from Mary." (I had already given him a gift and Valentine card, and also prepared an extra-special dinner.)

He asked, "Isn't that a cute card you got me?" When I said, "I didn't buy it — you did," he laughed and said, "Oh, that's all right."

I asked, "What's all right?" He replied, "Well, I know you would have bought it for me if you'd seen it first, so I did it for you." Abby, this made my gift and card seem pointless.

What's wrong with him? Please ask a psychiatrist.

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: I fear that you have good reason to be "troubled." Your husband sounds delusional. My asking a psychiatrist will not help him. He needs to see one.

York NY 10163 Be sure to state your zodiac sign

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Problems cannot be resolved today if you pretend they don't exist. Use your imagination and seek resolutions, not rationalizations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Associates who cannot help you in your present objectives should not be involved in your endeavors today. Their input might confuse you and get you off track.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Compagnions will be more likely to accept your philosophical and political ideas today if they aren't imposed upon them. Use gentle tactics and cheerful phrases instead of force.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not attempt to change things today that you don't have the power to alter. The best you might do is to postpone them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to broaden your mate's point of view today if he/she only sees issues in a negative light. Point out the brighter alternatives.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be grateful for the good things that come your way today, even if you feel you deserve more. Keep your expectations within realistic bounds.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Guard against the inclination today to take risks with casual acquaintances. You might back the wrong person and the wrong deal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will be compassionate and sensitive with others today, but you might not express yourself properly and your actions could be misinterpreted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to prejudice people or situations today. You are likely to assess outside influences very inaccurately at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to help those who are deserving today, but don't let a skillful manipulator make you feel as though you are under any sort of obligation to him/her.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to succeed today, your motives must be good. If you do things out of spite or revenge, they will probably backfire.

Comedies come up short in race for Oscars

Best Picture Nominees

EDITOR'S NOTE — The theme of this year's Oscar ceremonies may be "Comedy and the movies," but funny films historically have been given short shrift by the Academy Award voters. There is a lone comedic entry this year, Four Weddings and a Funeral, but the odds are that Forrest Gump will sweep up the prizes.

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A simple-minded Southerner who talks with presidents, or a crew of lowlifes with murder on their minds. That's the big choice Monday night when the 67th annual Academy Awards take center stage to honor the best of film in 1994.

Forrest Gump appears the likely winner in view of its 13 nominations and overwhelming public acceptance, with revenues of more than $300 million.

Yet Pulp Fiction, with seven nominations, poses a threat because of Quentin Tarantino's innovative storytelling and collection of an array of critics' awards.

If Forrest Gump should prevail, star Tom Hanks could pull off the back-to-back Oscar stunt accomplished by only four actors in history. He was named best lead actor last year for his role as the AIDS-stricken lawyer in Philadelphia.

John Travolta's comeback feat as the dreamy-eyed hit man in Pulp Fiction might capture the Academy voters' fancy. The best-actor category, one of the best in recent years, also includes Morgan Freeman, the lifer-philosopher of The Shawshank Redemption, Nigel Hawthorne, the demented George III in The Madness of King George, and Paul Newman, the town crank in Nobody's Fool.

The category of best lead actress reflects the continuing decline of showcase roles for women in today's films. All the performances are creditable, but they lack the heart-stopping quality of times past, when movies were not so male-dominated.

The nominees: Jodie Foster, Nell; Jessica Lange, Blue Sky; Miranda Richardson, Tom and Viv; Winona Ryder, Little Women; and Susan Sarandon, The Client.

Joining Forrest Gump and Pulp Fiction among the best-picture nominees are Quiz Show, The Shawshank Redemption and Four Weddings and a Funeral.

The nomination of Four Weddings and a Funeral was something of a surprise, even though many considered it the most enjoyable film of 1994. The surprise was due to the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' historic disregard of comedy as a medium worthy of awards.

Of the 66 winners as best picture of the year, only three might be classified as comedies: It Happened One Night (1934), You Can't Take It With You (1938) and Annie Hall (1977).

Of almost 400 films nominated for best picture (in the early years as many as 12 were included. Among them: She Done Him Wrong, Ruggles of Red Gap, The Awful Truth, Ninotchka, The Great Dictator, The More the Merrier, MASH, Tootsie and Moonstruck.

But not Bringing Up Baby, Modern Times, My Man Godfrey, Nothing Sacred, The Lady Eve, His Girl Friday, The Road to Singapore, A Night at the Opera, Some Like It Hot, The Odd Couple, Pillow Talk, etc.

Why this downgrading of comedy by the Academy?

Says actor Randy Quaid: "I think that Academy voters, of which I am one, tend to think of drama as having more meaning and more impact. I guess it always looks better for the Academy to select a high-powered drama as best picture and leave the comedy for the box office and the laughs."

"I still don't understand" why Robin Williams wasn't nominated — or why he didn't get the award — for Mrs. Doubtfire.

Comedian Paul Reiser (Mad About You) observes: "I don't know if it's deliberate. I think some of the best comic actors can make it look easy, and their work is by definition 'not dramatic.' It's made to look effortless; maybe sometimes it slips past people."

"Look at Cary Grant — pretty sterling work there. Look at Jack Lemmon — his nominations are usually for his more serious roles. And he was one of our best comic actors. I think people perk up and pay attention when there's weight in the material, and they don't always appreciate the subtlety of a comic performance."

Of the 67 winners as best actor (there was a tie in 1932), only three might be considered comedy performances: Clark Gable, It Happened One Night (1934), Lee Marvin, Cat Ballou (1965) and Richard Dreyfuss, The Goodbye Girl (1977). Seventeen others have been nominated.

Cary Grant may be considered the screen's greatest light comedian, but his nominations came for serious roles: Penny Serenade (1941) and None But the Lonely Heart (1944).

The Academy often employs the honorary award to compensate for its lapses. Thus Grant, Charlie Chaplin, Harold Lloyd, Stan Laurel, Bob Hope, Danny Kaye, Buster Keaton and Groucho Marx have been so honored.

The best actress awards in comedy roles amount to only two: Claudette Colbert in It Happened One Night (1934) and Diane Keaton in Annie Hall (1977). Twenty others have received nominations.

The Hollywood Foreign Press Association deals with the situation by giving Golden Globes for picture and star performances in two categories: drama and comedy or musical. That system may seem more equitable, but it's not likely to be adopted by a monolithic Academy loath to change.

Not that the Oscar crowd totally ignores the comic genre. The theme of this year's awards ceremony?

"Comedy and the movies."

Business

Minding your own Business

By Don Taylor

We have no off switch

The crowd at the doctor's office was thinning out. Only three were left on my side of the large waiting room: A young, frazzled-looking mother, her 3-year-old son and me.

For a while, I tried to work. However, the constant movement of the child, coupled with his squeals, car sounds and animal noises, made concentration virtually impossible. For at least an hour, I had watched his constant motion.

Apparently, I was frowning at him unknowingly, for as I looked up, his mother caught my eye. "I'm sorry if he's bothering you," she said. Then with a tired little smile she added, "He doesn't have an off-switch."

I returned her smile and said it was OK, and that I could remember when my little one had that much energy. However, her words kept ringing in my ears: "He doesn't have an off-switch."

There's a Thought

Immediately, I got out my yellow pad. There was a thought. None of us have an off-switch.

My mind toyed with this concept. I remembered some of the folks I most admire. There was Mrs. Elgiva McCracken, my eighth grade teacher. Mrs. McCracken didn't have an off-switch.

Then, there's my former business partner Arnold Rosenboom. He comes from good German stock and he knows how to work hard. When we were in business together, the word quit wasn't in his vocabulary. Though nearly ten years my senior, he could work me into the ground any day. Arnold doesn't have an off-switch.

Then, I remembered my favorite basketball player, John Havlicek. From the opening jump ball, to the ending buzzer, he never stopped hustling. In every game he played with the Boston Celtics he gave his all. Havlicek always came to play, he didn't have an off-switch.

A Winning Concept

We may stop short of success on our own accord, but God didn't make us with off switches. Others may condemn us, criticize us or otherwise put us down, but they can't flick our off-switch.

Who limits our success? Who makes us accept mediocrity? Who keeps us from achieving? Only ourselves.

As I look back over my own career, I cannot find one instance where someone else kept me from accomplishing my goals. Often, in troubling times, I stopped. Frequently, when the going got particularly tough, I quit. There were times when it was easier to give up than to go on, so I gave up. However, no one else ever made me quit.

If you are in one of those trying times, don't give up. If the going is pretty tough, remember the words of Dr. Robert Schuller. He said, "Tough times never last but tough people do."

I'd like to share a poem with you. I wrote it for me, to remind myself that I don't have an off-switch. I hope it will help you stay "turned-on" to your goals and dreams.

When burdens are heavy, almost unbearable,
When thoughts are sad, nearly unshareable,
When days are long and strength is gone,
Don't give up yet, you must press on.

Success, you see, may be quite near,
A whispering sound you can't yet hear.
So don't stop now, go on and do it,
Success will come, if you pursue it.

Sears to get Jiffy Lube in auto centers

CHICAGO (AP) — Jiffy Lube is coming to more Sears auto centers.

The quick oil-change leader and Sears, Roebuck and Co. on Thursday said Jiffy Lube will open as many as 456 outlets in Sears stores over the next three years.

Jiffy Lube, a subsidiary of Houston-based Pennzoil Co., currently operates six outlets in Sears auto centers in Kentucky and New Jersey under a test announced last May.

The deal will return oil changes and related services to more than half of Sears' 779 auto centers. Sears discontinued those services in 1992 amid allegations of overcharging and recommending unnecessary work.

Jiffy Lube will open as many as 234 company-owned and 222 franchise units in space left vacant in Sears auto centers by the 1992 overhaul. Sears will continue to offer batteries, tires, brakes, shock absorbers and front-end alignments at all its auto centers.

Chicago-based Sears will receive a portion of Jiffy Lube's revenues from the new outlets, the companies said. They would not disclose financial details.

Jiffy Lube will open the first 145 company-owned units this year, the companies said. They will study those operations and develop a final plan by the end of this year for the remaining 311 units.

Jiffy Lube won't open outlets at all Sears stores because some Sears auto centers have no excess capacity and some already are located near Jiffy Lube stores, Sears spokesman Bob McHenry said.

Automotive services accounted for about 10 percent of Sears' 1994 revenue of $32.12 billion, he said.

Sears also owns Western Auto auto parts stores, and NTW and Tire America tire stores.

Senators threaten to hold banking bill hostage

DALLAS (AP) — Some state senators are threatening to hold hostage one of the Texas House's favorite bills because of a lack of House support for home equity lending.

The target would be legislation that would reject a federal law making it cheaper for big national banks to operate in Texas, The Dallas Morning News reported. The House of Representatives passed the bill 142-0 earlier this month.

Many House members said the vote reflected their distaste for big out-of-state institutions such as NationsBank and Banc One, which came to Texas in the 1980s to take over failed local banks.

Small-town bankers fear the new federal interstate branch banking system would help big banks run them out of business in rural areas. The system would allow the big banks to convert their various operations nationally into one branched network.

Texas automatically will join the federal system unless the Legislature rejects it before June 1997.

Meanwhile, the legislative session's other important banking bill has a good chance of dying before it ever makes it to the House floor.

That bill, supported by big and small banks alike, would let Texans vote in November on whether they can borrow against the equity in their homes.

Many House members oppose giving voters the chance to repeal Texas' prohibition of home equity lending — the nation's only such ban. But there is much stronger support for the proposal in the Senate.

All interested citizens are invited to attend and provide input on the I-27 North extension study at the Texas Department of Transportation open house on Monday, March 27, from 4-7 p.m. at the Amarillo City Commission Chambers, third floor of City Hall at 509 E. 7th St.

At 7 p.m., TxDOT will conduct a public meeting with public input beginning at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the TxDOT's decision to study the extension of I-27 North and to solicit input from citizens from Amarillo and the region. The I-27 North study will be part of an overall study of developing a north/south trade corridor between Mexico and Canada.

Bill Waters will present the Pampa delegation's proposal to TxDOT to consider the route go east to Pampa on U.S. Highway 60 and then north to U.S. Highway 83.

On Tuesday, March 28, community representatives from the Panhandle will travel as a group for "Panhandle Day in Austin." After a luncheon with Gov. Bush as the keynote speaker, they will divide into mixed groups and make drop-by calls to legislators and/or agencies. A Panhandle barbecue for the 74th Legislature will be held on the south lawn of the Capitol prior to the delegation's returning to Amarillo.

Pizza Hut to have cheesy crust now

NEW YORK (AP) — Pizza Hut, flying in the face of the low-fat trend sweeping the food industry, will cram cheese into the crust of its latest pizza concoction.

The new product, Stuffed Crust

Pizza, will be available starting Sunday. The cheese in the crust gives this pizza about 34 percent more fat and 27 percent more calories than in a regular pizza, the company said.

Bacchants have new bible

By FRED PIERETTI
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's as thick as any bible and for many wine enthusiasts the world over it may soon prove to be their new gospel. From Roman drunkenness to wine's health benefits, from Abruzzi to Zinfandel, The Oxford Companion to Wine is an authoritative tome on one of nature's greatest gifts.

It is thoroughly researched, painstakingly edited and artfully illustrated. It also fills a sorely needed niche in the wine book trade.

Until now, wine books came in basically two varieties. The ephemeral, vintage-linked buyer's guide, which is useful in the short-term but without much background. On the other side are the geography oriented wine atlases, either country-specific or global. They can be rich in specific detail but are rarely all encompassing.

Edited by noted British wine writer Jancis Robinson, the Wine Companion has over 3,000 entries, 1,088 pages, 31 maps, 32 stunning color photographs and hundreds of black and whites. In fact, the title is the result of the British penchant for understatement; the book is truly more of a one-volume encyclopedia than a mere companion.

The book is enjoyable on many levels, including as history.

Consider this excerpt from the entry on Roman drunkenness, as hilarious as it is informative: "Cicero claimed that his great enemy Mark Antony had a riotous home life, where drinking began by 9 a.m., and he never let anyone forget the unfortunate occasion when Antony threw up over the benches of the senate."

The Oxford Companion is a collaborative effort of scores of international wine experts. One of the major contributors to the book is A. Dinsmoor Webb, professor emeritus of the University of California at Davis, the premier school of oenology (winemaking) in the United States.

The writing is clear, often entertaining, and both objective and opinionated. Amateur oenophiles who want to learn more about wine can benefit, but experts and self-styled connoisseurs will undoubtedly pick up a thing or two.

The entries on grape varieties, for example, are exhaustive. Tens of thousands of words are dedicated to the "noble" grape varieties such as Cabernet Sauvignon, Pinot Noir, Syrah, Nebbiolo and Chardonnay. But lesser known types also are given their due. And the mysterious origins of the Zinfandel grape are definitively sleuthed.

Though not a flaw, the density of the book can be daunting. About an eighth of the book is dedicated to wine-making. These entries could be at home in a biochemistry book and they contain chemical formulas, pretty dry reading.

The one letdown of the book is the maps. Though the major wine regions (and many minors ones) are detailed, the black-and-white maps lack the precision of the some of the atlases.

Since even slim wine-buying guides can run nearly $20, the $50 price tag for The Oxford Companion to Wine is not excessive.

The Oxford Companion to Wine; Oxford University Press; $49.95.

Man's search for Korean War friend ends old trauma

By LOIS LUECKE
Wichita Falls Times Record News

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Jack Hogue had searched almost 45 years for his friend, Leon Flake, hoping to heal a shattering trauma from their youth.

The two Army veterans of the Korean War met in an emotional reunion this past week.

The San Antonio attorney finally found the chance to say, "I'm sorry," to Flake for failing to rescue him during a bloody battle in which Flake was wounded and crying for help. It happened at Pohang, South Korea, on Sept. 2, 1950.

"It will always haunt me ... I know I would have been killed trying to get you, but I should have tried. It was the only time in my life I thought I was a coward," Hogue told Flake when he arrived last Wednesday.

As the two men sat down for a late lunch at the Wichita Club, Hogue expressed his pent-up feelings, tears streaming down his face.

Flake responded with assurances. "I wouldn't worry about that," he told Hogue. "I haven't worried about it so you don't have any worry coming."

And, in a teasing mood, "Well, you probably would have messed around and got us both killed and we wouldn't be here to celebrate."

The two men, both corporals in Company K, 3rd Platoon, 21st Infantry Regiment, 24th Infantry Division, participated in the assault against the North Koreans on what was known as the battle for Hill 99.

Hogue recalled that he and two other men, a sergeant and a scout, made it almost to the top of the hill. There they heard Flake's cries for help from the foot of the hill where he lay, both legs broken and torn by enemy machine gun fire.

"He called for help for a long time," Hogue said. "Then finally when he started calling me, calling my name, and I said, 'I can't take this any more, I've got to go back.'"

"And my sergeant said, 'The hell you are. Don't you move.'"

It was an indelible memory, one that has plagued him on and off all these years, said Hogue, who served 25 years in the Army, including duty in Vietnam.

Flake remembered that a soldier named Pulinsky was able to reach him and apply tourniquets on his legs, saving his life, and that Pulinsky was shot in the chest by enemy fire but survived. Later South Koreans came with stretchers to take Flake to an aid station.

Flake and Hogue were two of the 34 survivors in the one-day battle. Company K started out with 249 men.

The poignant story of Hogue's apparent search for forgiveness began unfolding about 10 days ago when Flake received a telephone call from Hogue's daughter, Mei-Yu Bates, in San Antonio.

Flake describes the conversation: "I was sitting at home watching television when the phone rang. I thought she was selling books or something."

"Mr. Flake?" she said, "Mr. Leon Flake?"

Flake identified himself: "Were you in Korea in 1950?"

Were you wounded on Sept. 2, 1950?" she asked.

"Yes," he said. "What is this all about?"

The woman identified herself. "My dad has been looking for you for 45 years!" she said.

Hogue said his daughter finally located Leon Flake by calling all the Flakes listed on the state's birth certificates in 1931.

Flake said he has talked to Mrs. Bates several times on the telephone since then and exchanged letters with Hogue. Her husband, Bill Bates, flew Hogue to Wichita Falls in a private, four-seater aircraft.

The visit, said Flake, was "a once-in-a-lifetime deal."

"Can you believe something like that happens 45 years ago, and then someone comes up that was there with you in Korea? I imagine we will be friends forever," he said.

Seed bank keeps crops, culture alive

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — It all began when Tohono O'odham Indian gardeners were offered free seeds for crops like broccoli and brussels sprouts.

Thanks, they said. They would prefer seeds for the crops their ancestors grew: brown beans, white-kerneled 60-day corn, orange-fleshed squash, casaba-like melons.

So archaeologist Barney Burns and botanist-author Gary Nabhan set to work, planting seeds and grasping the past.

Eleven years later, they have a regional seed bank for edible crops and other plants of cultural importance to more than 40 Indian tribes in Arizona, New Mexico and northern Mexico.

Foods include amaranth, corn in scores of colors and sizes, dozens of types of beans, watermelons, lentils and garbanzos. Nonedible plants include gourds and devil's claw, used in O'odham basketry.

The cultural heritage represented by such crops is essential to traditional Indians, says Angelo Joaquin Jr., new executive director of Native Seeds-SEARCH, the seed bank.

A genetic scientist may change a plant's seed by manipulating its genes, said Joaquin, a Tohono O'odham.

"The traditional farmer has done the same thing over a longer period of time. And he ends up with a piece of life, with prayers, traditions and ceremonies part of it," Joaquin said. "When a seed becomes extinct, you've lost not only the piece of life but the songs, traditions and ceremonies attached to it."

Nabhan and Burns' wife, Mahina Drees, worked for a private aid group that first offered the nonnative seeds to Indians. Drees, first director of the seed bank, said operators hope their work will help keep native cultures alive.

"Most of the cultures of the Southwest are defined by their farming," Drees said. "If they lose their agriculture, then they lose a sense of themselves. It's like losing their language."

The seed bank serves a larger purpose by preserving genetic diversity, said Jimmy Hillman, a retired University of Arizona agricultural economist. That's important because such desirable traits as resistance to disease, drought or bugs can be bred out of a crop.

"When you get things too pure without resistance they get easily knocked off," Hillman said.

Most tribal farmers grow on small plots for their own use. The traditional crops, which have evolved to withstand adverse conditions, don't yield as much as genetically engineered hybrid seeds, Joaquin said.

The seed bank was founded in 1983, using corn, bean and squash seeds provided by old-time O'odham farmers.

The nonprofit organization has seeds of some 1,300 varieties of plants representing more than 50 species. Its current catalog offers nearly 350 types of seeds.

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT - (BULL/BEAR)

OUTLOOK: Export business has started to pick up again. This is good news for the market - it's been dismal in recent weeks. It's not all that unexpected, of course (see our remarks from last week), since the weak dollar makes our wheat a bargain basement item for many European and Asian customers.

Seasonally, this is a time of year when wheat prices stabilize and rise. The trend generally continues until mid-May when the market will start to break anticipating the winter wheat harvest. The crop should be a big one this year, so if the pattern of the past few years continues, the market will experience a harvest break and bottom in mid-summer. For now, however, let's move away from our cautious stance. A more bullish posture appears warranted.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: You are sold out of old crop for months now and currently are out of the options market as well. Farmers who are willing to speculate on price can consider re-owing wheat "on the board," but only if the May can again close over $3.52 (note this is 5¢/bushel lower than last week). At that time look to purchase the May 350 calls (this is a change from the 360s of last week). These options have about a month of time value in them.

Traders: Look to buy soft red wheat in Chicago (the most underpriced of the three in my opinion), but only after it shows a sign the trend has turned back up. The way to do this is on a stop above the market at $3.53. (Note this price is 4 cents lower than last week). Risk 10¢/bu. for an objective of $3.77.

CORN - (BULL)

OUTLOOK: Readers of 'The Market Forecaster' know I've been bullish corn for about three months now. The market's rewarded us with a nice 20¢/bushel rally in that time period. The only thing that bothers me now is that all of a sudden we have lots of company. Many of the same people who were bearish 20 cents lower (the big crop argument) are now touting corn buys.

When a market gets too overloaded with bulls it is vulnerable to a sell off. This can come any time and will be sudden and swift. Be prepared - the massive fund long in corn could cause one of these routs when you least expect it. Since the major trend is up, it should be a buying opportunity. Record high demand is bullish, and this market is bound to have a few 'weather scares' after planting time.

STRATEGY: Hedgers: You sold your cash corn when the basis was strong last December, saved storage and interest, and took a modest profit in call options a few weeks ago. Those of you who wish to regain ownership in the options market have been advised to buy the July $2.50 corn calls at about 7¢/bushel.

Traders: We own July corn under $2.46. Risk to the contract lows of $2.32 and hold tight into the "weather scare" season (that's mid-April through the summer months).

CATTLE - (BEAR)

OUTLOOK: I have a little "bull on my face" since I didn't think the cattle market could be as weak as it has been. The pattern we discussed in past columns (where the April contract closes near contract highs, which it has done for 6 years straight) doesn't appear to be holding this year.

We've been hearing a lot about tight supplies, current feedlot conditions and packers being short-bought, but the market action doesn't support this talk. Neither does the packer action. Even though they're making good money now, they seem quite content to let the market come to them; they're not out chasing cattle by any means.

The feeder cattle market looks dismal. Rising corn prices and declining fat cattle values in the deferred futures doesn't make them look like the kind of property anyone needs to pay up for. At press time, we do not yet have the Cattle Report numbers and perhaps this can change the bearish attitude. However, to paraphrase Yogi Berra, the trend is down until it's up!

STRATEGY: Hedgers: You are now 100 percent hedged in April futures with an average price of 74. Based on current market values, it looks like we did a good job here. The real reason I recommended this was the fact it locked in good margins for most cattle feeders, not because I was looking for a collapse.

The net result was what we wanted - to lock in good profit margins, and the value of this strategy is now readily apparent. For June protection, we also own the 68 puts, purchased for less than $2. If you're a "selective" hedger, and April closes for two days over 72.75 (Note: this is $1 lower than last week) look to buy 74 call options to open upside potential.

Cow/calf operators: No hedging recommendations at this time.

Traders: If you took our advice to buy the April futures under 72.25, you were stopped out on the first close under 71.70. Since the trend has turned down, I would now look to go short the Aprils above 72 for an objective under 70. Risk to 73.07.

Pirate bug predator seen as ally in stored grain control

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Department researchers are teaming up with a "pirate" in efforts to keep pests out of stored grain products in a natural manner.

Lycotocoris campestris, commonly known as the larger pirate bug, lives in places where grain is stored, along with a variety of other insects. However, researchers have noticed that this hungry predator does not feed on the grain, but on the other insects that do, the department's Agricultural Research magazine reports.

Researchers hope that by influencing the population of pirate bugs in stored grain, the total number of insects found there can be reduced.

Cotton growers fear bill limits chemical control

LUBBOCK (AP) - Organic cotton growers in Texas are worried the ability to limit chemical spraying near their fields would be restricted under a bill designed to reduce the number of boll weevils.

About 40 percent of the nation's organic cotton comes from Texas, most of it from within a 100-mile radius of Lubbock. Farmers say part of the bill would weaken their ability to protect their fields from chemical sprays.

Carl Pepper, chairman of the Texas Organic Cotton Marketing Association's legislative committee, said the bill lessens growers' protections.

"My concerns are that this bill would put the organic grower in a possible position of losing his property rights to grow cotton organically," Pepper said.

The legislation was filed by state Sen. Bill Sims, D-Paint Rock, and state Rep. L.P. "Pete" Patterson, D-Brookston. It would amend a 1993 bill that created the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation.

According to Pepper and others, part of their bill would dilute the foundation's mandate to protect organic cotton fields from chemical sprays.

The foundation has developed a weevil-fighting program that uses a wide variety of control methods, including the use of a chemical called malathion. The chemical is sprayed over fields.

But cotton cannot be sold as organic if it is sprayed with malathion. If organic fields are sprayed, farmers say, the states' fledgling organic cotton economy would be crushed as buyers turn to other sources.

In 1991, Gov. Ann Richards vetoed legislation to create a boll weevil eradication program, principally because of a lack of environmental protections.

The foundation is eradicating the weevil in the Southern Rolling Plains and is expected to begin another eradication program in the Lower Rio Grande Valley later this month. More than 66 percent of farmers in an area targeted for the program must vote for it before it is implemented.

The program could begin in a 25-county area surrounding Lubbock in 1998 if area farmers approve it in April.

Under the provisions of the new bill, the foundation would not be required to develop rules protecting organic farmers.

Exemption OK'd for propazine use

AUSTIN - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has approved a specific exemption request by the Texas Department of Agriculture which allows farmers to use propazine to control weeds in fields planted with grain sorghum, Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said.

Propazine is found in Milo-Pro 4L Herbicide. The specific exemption became effective Friday, March 3, and expires Aug. 1.

The treatment is approved for use statewide; however, additional application restrictions apply in Mitchell and Runnels counties. Before applying the herbicide, farmers should contact their local county Extension agents or dealers for information on proper application methods and restrictions.

Without the use of propazine, the state's sorghum crop could face a loss of $50 million, according to TDA estimates.

Interstate 35 is getting crowded with more cars and trucks clogging along route

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Interstate 35 is getting crowded.

Night and day, north and south, cars and trucks: The mechanical river not only never stops flowing, it's getting bigger.

Hit I-35 in Dallas or Austin or San Antonio at rush hour and forget it. Nothing rushes in that slow-moving traffic but motorists' blood pressures.

Add the expected increase in international truck traffic brought by the North American Free Trade Agreement, and you may be talking a flood.

"Commerce is transportation, and Interstate 35 is one of the most critical links through which Texas participates in today's world economy," said Robert Cuellar, the Texas Department of Transportation's deputy executive director for planning and development.

In testimony to a legislative committee last fall, Cuellar said, "Today, most of I-35 is functioning at or beyond its traffic-carrying capacity."

The transportation department says traffic on the highway has increased "dramatically" since 1960, and the numbers show it.

The highest volume is a daily average of 233,000 vehicles on the section of I-35 East that runs through Dallas, said Alan King, DOT spokesman. Another 111,000 vehicles a day take the western leg through Fort Worth, he said.

According to the transportation agency, the greatest increase in non-urban traffic since 1960 has been on the section of I-35 between San Antonio and Austin. It's up 754 percent to 49,000 vehicles a day.

Between Waco and Hillsboro, 7,000 vehicles per day in 1960 soared to about 35,000 per day by 1993.

South of San Antonio, traffic has increased 575 percent, from about 2,000 vehicles per day in 1960 to 11,500 daily in 1993.

Interstate 35 stretches for 503 miles from the Oklahoma border in the north to the Mexican border at Laredo.

It's the sole, central land route linking the three North American Free Trade Agreement partners — Canada, the United States and Mexico — and it provides access to all major interstate routes running east to west across the United States.

The highway links four of the state's six largest metropolitan areas. It runs through Oklahoma City, Kansas City and Minneapolis, and at Laredo connects with the highway to Monterrey, Mexico.

The Texas DOT says NAFTA is not only bringing new trade, but new challenges — protecting highways from accelerated deterioration due to additional use and overweight vehicles.

An indication of NAFTA's potential impact may already have been recorded. The DOT says that more than 32 percent of the I-35 traffic increase since 1960 has occurred since 1990.

From 1992 through the summer of 1994, costs for construction, reconstruction and preventive maintenance on I-35 ran about $148 million.

Lawmakers have been told that in the next seven years, the DOT plans to spend more than $342 million to expand and improve I-35.

Officials say most of that money will go for expansion of the segment from San Antonio to Hillsboro, south of Dallas-Fort Worth, to a minimum of six lanes.

About $16 million is to be spent on improvements between San Antonio and Laredo. Relief routes around Austin and the Dallas central business district also are planned.

Al Lueddecke, of the transportation department's planning division, says that even without NAFTA, I-35 would have gotten busier.

"We try to predict these things as best we can," he said. "Twenty years ahead, you never really know for sure."

"The trade between the major urban centers that have grown up along I-35, even if we weren't on the border with Mexico, would be increasing because of the economy along that corridor. Twenty years ago, Austin was a sleepy little capital city out here in the middle of nowhere. Look at it today."

Interstate 35 runs past the San Marcos Factory Shops in San Marcos, which had more than 4 million visitors last year.

From phones to Dick Tracy's wrist radio, everybody's arguing over telecommunications

PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writers

AUSTIN (AP) — It's the big-business, big-money, big-lobbying, big-name bill of the 1995 Legislature.

It's had lawmakers shaking their heads, lobbyists shaking their fists and corporate executives shaking all over about their companies' futures.

It's a debate punctuated by jargon that sounds like gibberish anywhere but Capitol hallways — BOC, CAPS, LATA, POTS and RBOC.

It's telecommunications deregulation — and it's here now, like it or not.

"We're not talking about Dick Tracy's wrist radio yet, but we could be one of these days," said one phone company lobbyist.

In a nutshell, the fight is over whether local telephone services should continue being delivered to Texans by monopoly companies regulated by the state. If not, how should new competitors be allowed into the market? And what role is left for state regulators?

In the long run, it's going to involve everything from calling your neighbor to calling your congressman in Washington; from dialing up a computerized newspaper to banking or shopping via computer; from watching TV to ordering movies at home.

"What it really means is when you're watching your TV or using your telephone, there are going to be additional services coming through — from banking to having 10,000 movies on-line," said Bill Miller, a spokesman for the Alliance for Communications Choices.

"You're going to have this menu of choices that you never imagined possible. It's going to explode. It's sort of like shopping at the five-and-dime and then going to New York City for the first time," Miller said.

What's at stake? Billions of dollars in business to those who eventually provide all the new and old services conducted over telephone wires.

Who's fighting? There are lots of players. On one side are local phone companies, such as Southwestern Bell and GTE, with wires going into most Texans' homes. They want to offer more services, including long distance, and have profits deregulated in competitive areas.

A second group includes long-distance phone companies, such as AT&T, that are interested in providing some local service, and cable TV systems that have wired up many Texas households.

Newspaper publishers, who expect to sell increasing amounts of information via phone lines, also have been heavily involved. They say competition among local phone companies would help keep rates down, and regulation should continue until competition exists.

Consumer advocates are trying to ensure that people who use the services get a fair shake.

"The fact is, it's the consumers of this state who will be paying the bills, no matter which business wins. More important, we've got to maintain regulation to protect those consumers who do not have access to competitive choices," said Jance Briesemeister of Consumers Union.

Scores of lobbyists are trying to persuade lawmakers how to vote. Public relations specialists are working to frame the debate. Television ads are urging citizens to call legislators.

How heated is the battle? At a legislative hearing last December, Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria, looked over a roomful of combatants and said, "There are some people who actually hate each other out there."

WHAT'S AT STAKE?

AUSTIN (AP) — Some questions and answers about the telecommunications reform issue pending before the Texas Legislature:

Q: What is telecommunications?

A: Basically, telephone service — local and long-distance — and services delivered over phone lines, such as computerized information. The debate also includes cable television systems, which have wires to many Texas homes.

Q: Who regulates it now?

A: The state Public Utility Commission was created by the Legislature in 1975 to regulate telephone and electric utility monopolies. Regulation is seen as a replacement when there's no competition to ensure quality and efficient service.

Q: Why deregulate?

A: Advances in technology could make the "local" phone company a thing of the past. Cable TV systems are in place; wireless communication such as satellite technology is being developed; other companies would like to provide local services.

Southwestern Bell, which provides about two-thirds of local phone service in Texas, says outmoded regulations are costing the state hundreds of millions of dollars in lost productivity, lost educational opportunities and lost jobs.

Q: How is the Legislature involved?

A: In 1993, the Legislature considered a bill to reauthorize the PUC. The dispute over deregulating telecommunications stalled those efforts, and the PUC was reauthorized for two years pending a study of the issues. This year, lawmakers are considering legislation to deregulate and reauthorize the PUC.

Q: What would proposed legislation do?

A: No bill has passed either the House or Senate yet.

Generally, lawmakers are considering freezing local phone rates, allowing for a transition period in which new competitors could surface, deregulating many services and requiring companies seeking the right to earn more profits to provide advanced fiber-optic links to public facilities such as schools and hospitals.

Phone services would be sorted into three regulatory "baskets" with different rules for each level. The first basket would include basic phone service; the second basket would include such options as Call Waiting, Call Forwarding, operator services and others; the third basket would include competitive services such as toll-free lines and paging systems.

Q: What kinds of services would be available?

A: Only the future will tell. Besides phones and cable TV, those involved are talking about "electronic newspapers" delivered via phone lines to computers; computerized banking and shopping; on-demand movies; interactive video hookups giving remote schools access to expert teachers; similar hookups for doctors to practice "telemedicine" and other services.

Q: What kind of money are we talking about for the average consumer?

A: That's difficult to estimate. A new study by the Washington-based Citizens for a Sound Economy Foundation estimated that American consumers spend $50 billion a year — about $525 per household — for telephone services now.

Q: What has been promised?

A: Southwestern Bell has offered investment of $1.1 billion over six years in new technology infrastructure. The company says it would set up a statewide, fiber-optic network for schools, hospitals, libraries and other public facilities.
