PAMPA, TEXAS

JANUARY 23, 1995

50c DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Good Evening!

LOCAL

PAMPA — City commissioners are set to meet in work session at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the third floor conference room with the regular meeting to start at 6 p.m. in city commission chambers.

The panel will consider:

- Opposition to listing the Arkansas River Shiner on the federal endangered list.
- An agreement with Parker and Parsley Gas Processing Plant to sell raw water.
- An agreement with David M. Griffith and Associates for solid waste consulting services, and
- Sale of delinquent tax properties at 318 W. Thut and 638 S. Somerville.

An executive session is scheduled to discuss items regarding the Wilkinson and Fortner vs. City of Pampa lawsuit settlement.

In the work session, commissioners will hear a report on the Texas Municipal League's legislative agenda, which includes items the group will introduce, support and oppose.

STATE

By The Associated Press

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $10 million.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 4, 6, 18, 41, 43 and 50.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $18 million.

HOUSTON (AP) — A 14-year-old boy was in custody of juvenile authorities today following the shooting death of his aunt.

Police said the aunt, Mary Johnson Mills, 36, was shot in the back of the head for no apparent reason Saturday night while she fixed him a sandwich at her home.

Ms. Mills had been living with and caring for an elderly couple for several months. The nephew had lived with her until recently when he was kicked out of the house for taking the couple's car without permission.

WORLD

BERLIN (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl, paying tribute to 10 members of the anti-Nazi resistance on the 50th anniversary of their executions, called on Germans today to reject ideological fanaticism in all forms.

"They wanted to restore the rule of law," Kohl said in remarks at the Ploetzensee memorial, where he and other leaders of his Christian Democratic Union Party laid a wreath.

The 10 Nazi opponents executed at Ploetzensee came from various political backgrounds. Some were involved in the failed attempt on July 20, 1944, to assassinate Hitler.

By remembering those who resisted Hitler, Kohl said, "we are reminded also to renew the anti-totalitarian consensus on which the German Federal Republic was founded after the war."

LONDON (AP) — Cadbury Schweppes PLC is holding detailed talks on buying Dr Pepper, the British candy and soft drinks conglomerate said today.

The purchase of the Dallas-based Dr Pepper-Seven-Up Cos. Inc. would move Cadbury into third place from fourth in the $49 billion a year American soft drinks market, behind giants Coca-Cola and Pepsi. It would strengthen Cadbury's No. 3 spot in the global soft drinks business, and put Dr Pepper in a better position to grow internationally.

Pampa cleaning up from snow storm

Bright sunshine and warmer temperatures today began melting the snow that blanketed Pampa late Saturday and early Sunday, but forecasters warn that more moisture in the form of rain that could possibly turn to snow is heading toward the Top O' Texas area and should be here by late Wednesday.

Pampa recorded an official 7 inches of snow and 0.80 inches of moisture during the weekend storm.

"It was a good, wet snow," said Darrell Sehorn, meteorologist for KGRO/KOMX radio.

Sunday, a good number of Pampans were out in the snow, some working to clear it off business parking lots and streets, others to enjoy it by building snowmen, throwing snowballs and sledding down embankments in Central Park.

Not long after daylight Sunday, tractors began scooping snow off the parking lot in the Cornado Shopping Center on North Hobart Street. When they were done, several mounds of snow, at least one almost seven feet high, were piled around the lot.

City street crews scraped snow from main thoroughfares, leaving ridges of snow piled alongside the curbs.

Despite the fact that streets were icy and slippery, police reported no rash of accidents caused by the weather.

As the sun shined today, the snow began to melt, creating puddles of water throughout the city.

The sun is expected to be out again Tuesday, with the temperature reaching 60 degrees. That will further melt the snow, but Sehorn said clouds will return Wednesday.

"There's another system coming our way from the west," he said. "All indications are that there will be moisture, mainly in the form of rain, late Wednesday. It could possibly change to light snow early Thursday, but we aren't expecting any accumulation."

In the region, Sharon Keener in Canadian said about four inches of snow fell in Hemphill County over the weekend but that by this morning it had all melted off the streets.

"We've still got it on my front yard," she said.

Rhonda Brannen reported 17 degrees at 9 a.m. today in Canadian.

Sam Pakan near the Pakan Community in Wheeler County said today that the snow that fell there had already begun to melt.

"I'm going guess we got about three inches," he said. "It began to melt yesterday."

Pakan reported clear skies and 22 degrees at sunup today.

Roberts County officials reported seven to eight inches of snow over the weekend.

"We had quite a bit," said Ann Bryant in Miami.

She said the sun was shining this morning although roads where snow had accumulated were still slick and icy in sub-freezing early morning temperatures.

"Some people say we got eight and a half inches," said Royce Bailey in Miami, "but they're getting pretty danged technical."

Carson County officials estimated snow accumulations between three and five inches.

"I don't know how much we got," said Brenda Turpin in Panhandle today, "but there was a whole bunch on my car yesterday morning."

Paulette Paul said White Deer got about three inches of snow.

"All the roads are clear, but it's cold," she said.

Ann Brown reported sunshine and 34 degrees south of McLean at 9 a.m. today.

"We got two to three inches of snow," said Patti Brass, south of McLean. "It's a pretty January morning."

Fish and Wildlife plans hearing in Amarillo on Arkansas River Shiner

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will hold a public hearing in Amarillo Wednesday in connection with its proposed listing of the Arkansas River Shiner as an endangered species.

Scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesday at the Texas A&M Regional Research and Extension Center Auditorium, 6500 Amarillo Boulevard West, in Amarillo, the hearing will be for public input concerning the minnow. The USFWS is holding a meeting tonight in Meade, Kan., and will have another one in Woodward, Okla., Tuesday night, in connection with the proposed listing of the shiner.

The federal agency has proposed to list the Arkansas River Basin population of the shiner as an endangered species even though the fish is abundant in the South Canadian River in the Texas Panhandle and the Pecos River of New Mexico.

"Listing the Arkansas River Shiner as an endangered species could have a tremendous impact upon the use of surface and ground water in the region," said C.E. Williams of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District, headquartered in White Deer.

"The USFWS claims that reservoirs constructed within the Arkansas River Basin (including Lake Meredith) have dewatered or otherwise altered considerable sections of the river habitat once inhabited by Arkansas River Shiners," Williams said.

"Listing the minnow as an endangered species could have profound effects upon the towns and cities in the Texas Panhandle which rely on Lake Meredith for their drinking water supply."

Eleven communities, including Pampa, Borger and Amarillo, rely on Lake Meredith for drinking water.

Williams said that operation of Lake Meredith would be affected if the USFWS requires releases of water from the reservoir to enhance the downstream habitat in the Canadian River for the Arkansas River Shiner, reducing the amount of water available for cities served by the Canadian River Municipal River Authority.

Williams warns that a desalinization project on the Canadian River above Lake Meredith, approved by Congress last year, could be stopped if the fish is listed as an endangered species, although federal officials said it was not clear what effect the project would have on the shiners' habitat.

In its proposed listing, published last fall in the Federal Register for comments, the USFWS said that when ground water is pumped faster than it is restored, water tables drop, channel seepage ceases and streams stop flowing, making suitable habitat for the fish non-existent.

"As an example, reduced pumpage on area irrigated crops could cost farmers million of dollars in lost production," Williams said, "to improve the habitat of a two-inch minnow and would devastate the region's agribusiness economy."

In addition to the meeting Wednesday in Amarillo, officials said the USFWS would accept written comments addressed to them at State Supervisor, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 222 South Houston, Suite A, Tulsa, Oklahoma, 74127.

Thousands join to protest abortion ruling anniversary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of people waving signs, white crosses and red roses gathered in the shadow of the White House today to protest the 22nd anniversary of the Supreme Court decision allowing abortion.

"What we see here is the denial over and over again of the humanity of the 'preborn' child," said Nellie Gray, president of March For Life, the group that organized the rally.

"The babies need us and the mothers need us," she said later when asked if she had considered calling off today's events because of violence at clinics. "Now you know, I wasn't going to cancel this," she said to cheers.

Several anti-abortion members of Congress spoke at the rally, with Rep. Bob Barr, R-Ga., proclaiming that the new Congress is "the most pro-life in modern memory."

Sen. Bob Smith, R-N.H., delivered an anti-abortion version of the Gettysburg Address. "Now we are engaged in a great and epic war — the war on abortion," he said.

Activists on both sides of the issue were holding rallies, prayer vigils and demonstrations to mark the 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling that legalized abortion. The actual anniversary was Sunday.

"And the Cock Crowed" was the theme of the rally and march kicking off from the Ellipse, behind the White House. The reference is to Jesus' warning that before the cock crowed, St. Peter would deny knowing him three times.

Today's rally kicked off with a musical group singing "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "Dixie." Demonstrators planned to march later today to the Supreme Court.

Earlier, the National Right to Life Committee held a news conference to condemn violence at abortion clinics.

"The pro-life movement opposes violence," said Wanda Franz, the group's president.

This military snowman says it all about the snowfall which came late Saturday night and Sunday. Like most other youngsters in Pampa and the surrounding area, Ty Heard, 10, and Brandon Smith, 11, took advantage of the second snowfall in Pampa this year and on Sunday built a snowman in Ty's front yard. Complete with an Army helmet, gloves, sunglasses and cigar, this snowman is ready to fight the warm weather coming. The forecast calls for a high of 60 tomorrow with possible moisture on Wednesday.

Nursing facilities join to celebrate "Helping Hands, Loving Hearts"

Staff members and residents of nursing facilities nationwide will join this week to recognize the contributions of activity professionals to the long-term care industry.

The theme of this year's observance, from Jan. 22-28, is "Helping Hands, Loving Hearts." Friday, Jan. 27, has been specifically designated by the Activity Professionals' Council of the Texas Health Care Association as Activity Professionals' Day in Texas.

For residents in long-term facilities, the activity director plays a vital role in ensuring that a program is offered which consists of both mentally and physically stimulating activities for residents experiencing all levels of alertness and physical mobility.

In observance of the week, Coronado Healthcare Center will be honoring Sue Anderson, activity director, for her commitment in providing opportunities for residents.

According to Coronado Healthcare Center officials, Anderson has implemented seasonal parties, such as a Hawaiian luau, and Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner parties.

In addition, Anderson has instituted a pet therapy program on a regular basis. Pet therapy is recognized worldwide as being one of the most effective programs with long-term residents, due to the pets giving "unconditional love" whether the resident is able to speak, hear, see well, walk or feed themselves.

To show their appreciation, the staff at Coronado Healthcare Center treated Anderson to lunch. The residents are having a tea in her honor at the facility on Friday.

Billy Ray Johnston, Coronado Healthcare Center administrator, said of Anderson, "I have really enjoyed working with Sue the past six months. She is bright and creative and has made a successful effort through the activity program to increase the involvement of families and volunteers from the community."

Coronado Healthcare Center, 1504 W. Kentucky, has served the community and its long-term care needs for more than 20 years and invites anyone interested in serving as a volunteer in the activity program to call Anderson at 665-5746.

Museum salutes the Sunday Funnies

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — A cast of comic characters including Little Orphan Annie, Charlie Brown and Beetle Bailey are the stars of an exhibition at the Barnum Museum that celebrates the centennial of American newspaper comics.

The Yellow Kid, the first commercially successful newspaper comic character, appeared in 1895 in the New York World. He's featured in the exhibition, "The Sunday Funnies: 100 Years of Comics in American Life," along with Dagwood eating his sandwich, Linus with his security blanket and PJ scribbling with crayons on the wall.

The museum says the exhibition's purpose is to demonstrate the influence this uniquely American art form has had on the way we perceive the world around us. To this end, a collection of around 600 artifacts, rare original comic strip artwork, collectibles and memorabilia, has been assembled from sources that include the private collections of 12 American cartoonists.

Visitors can create their own cartoon art at a workshop space, and related videos are shown in a screening area, adjacent to the exhibition gallery.

A catalog with color illustrations has been published (American Color of Buffalo, N.Y., $7.50).

* Catalog available by mail order from the museum, (914) 376-2271, for an extra charge of $3.50.

Risks and benefits of estrogen replacement

By DR. SANDRA KAMMERMAN
For AP Special Features

Individually weighing the health risks and benefits can help women — and their doctors — decide if estrogen replacement therapy after menopause is appropriate for them.

Estrogen, a hormone produced primarily in the ovaries, controls the development of female secondary sexual features such as breasts and body shape.

It also regulates menstruation and pregnancy by stimulating thickening of the uterus or endometrium lining, in preparation to receive and nourish a fertilized egg that could become a baby.

Estrogen production by the ovaries declines rapidly when women reach their late 40s and early 50s. This decline often causes irregular menstrual cycles and the onset of menopause.

During and after the onset of menopause, women may experience side effects, such as hot flashes, irritability and thinning of urethral and vaginal tissues that can lead to urinary tract infections and painful intercourse.

There are varied forms of therapy but most involve taking low doses of estrogen and possibly another hormone, progesterin, taken cyclically, or continuously along with estrogen.

Progesterin is prescribed by doctors because it is known to help protect against endometrial cancer, a condition associated with estrogen replacement therapy.

Health risks and benefits must be medically evaluated before the decision to begin estrogen replacement. Factors that influence the decision include the woman's history, family history and risks for a variety of diseases.

For example, it is unclear if estrogen replacement therapy is associated with a smaller increased risk of breast cancer. Women with a personal history of breast cancer or those whose close relatives, such as a mother or sister, have histories of the disease, are generally advised against therapy.

On the other hand, estrogen replacement therapy may be recommended for women who are considered to be at risk for osteoporosis or cardiovascular disease.

These conditions are termed silent diseases since their effects are generally not apparent until a woman has a fracture or heart attack.

Estrogen produced during childbearing years generally protects women against bone mass loss during that time of life. But after menopause, when estrogen production drops, that protection is lost and the bone mass loss accelerates.

Estrogen replacement therapy also is known to protect against cardiovascular disease. It is capable of lowering total cholesterol and LDL or "bad" cholesterol, while raising HDL, or "good" cholesterol.

Since cardiovascular disease is the most important overall cause of death and disability in women, the presence of risk factors for cardiovascular disease is often the most important factor in decisions to prescribe estrogen replacement therapy.

But more long-term research information is needed to adequately assess the risks and benefits of ERT. Several research studies are currently in progress.

Until all the information is in, estimates of the best course for an individual woman requires very careful consideration.

Teeth are "TEXAS" searches for talent getting s'molar

It's been going on for 100,000 years. People's teeth are shrinking!

There's no need to panic. It's happening very, very slowly.

Teeth are shrinking only 1 percent every 1,000 years. But today, people's teeth are only half as big as the teeth of the prehistoric Neanderthal man.

Why?

Dr. C. Loring Brace, a scientist at the University of Michigan, has compared ancient teeth with modern teeth. He thinks that teeth started getting smaller when people started cooking their food instead of chewing everything raw. That meant they didn't have to chew so hard.

And people born with small teeth, who would not have been able to survive before cooked food, could now survive.

The internationally acclaimed outdoor musical drama "TEXAS" is headed to Lubbock in search of talented singers, dancers, and technicians. This career launching opportunity happens from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 29, in the University Center Ballroom on the Texas Tech campus.

About 140 paid positions are available for the production which plays nightly except Sundays from June 7 through Aug. 19, in the Palo Duro Canyon State Park near Amarillo and Canyon. This opportunity is open to anyone 18 years or older. In addition to performers and technicians, positions are also available on the "TEXAS" hospitality staff. Individuals interested in auditioning for "TEXAS" must bring a photo and references.

A job with "TEXAS" has enhanced many a career. The show is directed by Neil Hess, who is widely recognized for his own talent and offers expert instruction and valuable exposure to cast members who come from all across the United States. Many company members also use the opportunity to advance academically by earning college credits on the nearby campus of West Texas A & M University.

Pulitzer Prize winning author Paul Green wrote "TEXAS." The action takes place on stage in the Pioneer Amphitheater beneath the awesome 600 foot cliffs of the Palo Duro Canyon State Park. The production is known for its full houses. The Institute of Outdoor Drama in Chapel Hill, N.C., recognizes "TEXAS" as the best attended outdoor drama in the nation.

Six auditions will be held across the Southwestern United States. Lubbock is the first. The second audition will be held in Norman, Okla., on Sunday, Feb. 5, in Room 305 of the Fine Arts Center on the campus of the University of Oklahoma.

Hess and members of the "TEXAS" staff will conduct auditions in Austin, on Saturday, Feb. 11, on the third floor of the Quadrangle-Texas Union Building.

Dallas will be the site of auditions on Sunday, Feb. 12 in Room 1180 (The Choral Hall) in the Owens Fine Arts Center on the Southern Methodist University Campus from 11-4 p.m.

West Texas A & M University in Canyon, Texas, near the headquarters for "TEXAS," will host auditions on Saturday, Feb. 18.

The last audition for the 1995 season will be held in Tucson, Ariz., on Sunday, March 5, from 10 a.m.-2:00 p.m. in the Instrumental Rehearsal Room, Room 170 of the Music Building on The University of Arizona campus.

"TEXAS" is produced by the non-profit Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, Inc. For additional information about auditions or for show reservations, call (806) 655-2181, or write to P.O. Box 268 Canyon, Texas, 79015.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Disappointed in Cincinnati" re: gifts for grandchildren, the writer asks for "the gift of yourself." The suggestion: to "drive over once in a while, or call to say hello." We tried "driving over" twice, and were greeted with icy coldness — not even invited inside. We phoned and asked (whichever grandchild answered): "How are you?"

Answer: "Fine."

DEAR ABBY: "Elderly but Able," the man who claims that he has been driving for 70 years and never had an accident, is to be commended. But it doesn't necessarily mean that he is a good driver. It may mean that other drivers have quick reflexes. I see drivers tootling along, totally oblivious to the havoc they leave behind them. They think they are doing just fine.

Abby, the "55-Alive Mature Driving Course" is great, and it does teach one to compensate for changes in eyesight and slowing reflexes, but it has its limits. Why should the gentleman write asking for a "neutral panel" to decide whether he should give up driving? Aren't his children neutral enough — or does he suspect they want him to quit driving so they can have his car?

I am 72, and when my daughters ask me to stop driving, I hope I will be able to accept the fact that they do it because they care about me and the other people on the road.

'Forrest Gump' brings home three Golden Globe awards

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Forrest Gump can add three Golden Globes to its box of chocolates.

The feel-good blockbuster was named best dramatic picture, Tom Hanks was chosen best dramatic actor and Robert Zemeckis took the best director prize at the 52nd Golden Globe Awards Saturday.

As the first major awards show of the season, the Golden Globes are traditionally seen as a preview of the Academy Awards.

While Gump is considered a hot Oscar contender, so is Quentin Tarantino's bloody Pulp Fiction, which took just one Golden Globe — best screenplay. Last year, Hanks won a Globe for best dramatic actor, in Philadelphia, then went on to win the Oscar. This year, he declined to draw any conclusions from his second win for Forrest Gump.

"I think we just have an awful lot of awards and we're all going to have to slug through," he said backstage. "I think we're all going to split them up, all the way down the line."

A surprise winner was Jessica Lange as best dramatic actress for angry Army wife in Blue Sky, which even the star called "a strange and peculiar little film."

The Lion King won for best comedy or musical picture, while Hugh Grant and Jamie Lee Curtis picked up Globes for best comedy performances.

"It's tragic how much I'm enjoying getting this. Virtually uncool," joked Grant, the elusive bachelor of Four Weddings and a Funeral. "You're supposed to think awards are invidious, but this is heaven."

Curtis, the would-be spy of True Lies, thanked director James Cameron for "letting me hang from a helicopter on my 35th birthday."

On the other coast and one day later, Tarantino received the best director award from the New York Film Critics Circle. Robert Redford's Quiz Show, ignored by the Golden Globes, won the best picture prize Sunday.

The critics' best actor award went to Paul Newman for Nobody's Fool. Linda Fiorentino took the best actress prize for The Last Seduction, and Hoop Dreams was named best documentary.

Both best supporting awards did jibe with the Golden Globes: Martin Landau for his Bela Lugosi in Ed Wood and Dianne Wiest for her flamboyant stage star in Woody Allen's Bullets Over Broadway.

The Golden Globes are awarded by about 100 members of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association. Fifteen years ago, the Globes fell into disrepute over allegations that awards were exchanged for favors. A Federal Communications Commission investigation led to the awards being thrown off television. The association tightened its voting rules and gradually won back respectability.

Farinelli, a Belgian-made movie about a castrated soprano, won the Globe for best foreign-language film.

Sophia Loren won a standing ovation when she was honored with the Cecil B. DeMille Award for service to filmmaking. It was presented by Charlton Heston, her co-star in El Cid, and Robert Altman, her director in Ready to Wear.

In TV awards, the Fox sci-fi series The X-Files, Dennis Franz of ABC's N.Y.P.D. Blue and Claire Danes of ABC's My So-Called Life all took top dramatic honors.

The comedy series award was a tie between NBC's Frasier and Mad About You. Tim Allen of ABC's Home Improvement and Helen Hunt of Mad About You took best comedy acting Globes.

Matriarch Rose Kennedy dies at age 104

By ROBIN ESTRIN
Associated Press Writer

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy, whose life spanned more than a century of American politics and tragedies, died surrounded by the clan she led.

In her 104 years, Mrs. Kennedy saw her family rise to the pinnacle of political power, a position that sometimes cost the family dearly. She buried two sons felled by assassins' bullets.

After each tragedy, the family regrouped at its compound on Cape Cod.

Sunday was no different.

At her bedside were her son Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and his wife, Victoria; daughters Patricia Kennedy Lawford, Ambassador Jean Kennedy Smith, and Eunice Kennedy Shriver and Sargent Shriver; Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's widow, Ethel; and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

"Mother passed away peacefully today," Sen. Kennedy said in a statement. "She had a long and extraordinary life, and we loved her deeply. To all of us in the Kennedy and Fitzgerald families, she was the most beautiful rose of all."

Mrs. Kennedy died from complications of pneumonia.

Last Monday, she had trouble breathing but was not hospitalized. The family gathered Friday when her health worsened. She had been confined to a wheelchair since a stroke in 1984.

"She was a great lady and the mother of a century," said Dave Powers, a longtime aide to John F. Kennedy who ran the Boston library in his honor for 30 years.

President Clinton and Hillary Rodham Clinton extended their sympathies.

"Very few Americans have endured as much personal sacrifice for their country as Rose Kennedy," the president said. "She played an extraordinary role in the life of an extraordinary family."

Mrs. Kennedy had lived her life in the public eye, always in a supporting role: daughter of a Boston mayor, wife of an ambassador, mother of a president and U.S. senators. For her, family was all.

She had 30 grandchildren and 41 great-grandchildren.

The exhilaration of political success and the horror of violent death ran like twin threads through her long life.

Four of her nine children were killed in their prime — two in plane crashes and two in assassinations. One daughter is retarded and a grandson died of a drug overdose.

She was a devout Roman Catholic, and her church helped her bear her sorrows. After President Kennedy's assassination in 1963, she said, "I've learned to be brave and put my faith in the will of God."

She rarely spoke of her suffering, said the Rev. James Fitzpatrick, assistant pastor of St. Francis Xavier Church, where Mrs. Kennedy had attended Mass daily before her stroke.

At the regular 7 a.m. Mass today, Fitzpatrick told the congregation, "Many of you remember her as a faithful communicant. Certainly in her own life, Rose Kennedy saw a sense of redemptive suffering."

"No matter what, God wants us to be happy," Mrs. Kennedy said in a 1983 interview. "He doesn't want us to be sad. Birds sing after a storm. Why shouldn't we?"

Mrs. Kennedy knew kings, queens, presidents and popes. She was a tireless worker for her sons' campaigns and appeared at charity functions until late in life — maintaining her erect bearing and careful grooming.

Sen. Kennedy, her only surviving son, said at her 100th birthday celebration that "In the chaos of our household, she was the quiet at the center of the storm, the anchor of our family, the safe harbor to which we always came."

In her 1974 autobiography, Times to Remember, she said: "What greater aspiration and challenge are there for a mother than the hope of raising a great son or daughter?"

A private wake will be held tonight on the Cape, the family said, and funeral services will be held Tuesday at St. Stephen's Church in Boston.

Mrs. Kennedy was born in Boston on July 22, 1890, the daughter of congressman and later Boston mayor John F. "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald.

She married Joseph P. Kennedy in 1914. Kennedy amassed a fortune in banking, real estate, liquor, films and Wall Street — holdings that grew to an estimated $500 million by the 1980s. He held several federal jobs, including U.S. ambassador to Britain, but prompted controversy because of his wealth and isolationist views.

Years later, books alleged that Joseph had been unfaithful, notably with actress Gloria Swanson, and that the couple's relationships with their children were distant or worse. Edward Kennedy and three of his sisters, in a 1992 opinion piece in The New York Times, called criticism of his parents "outrageous falsehoods."

Mrs. Kennedy never wanted anyone's pity, said Doris Kearns Goodwin, historian and author of The Fitzgeralds and the Kennedys.

"She didn't want didn't want anybody to feel sorry for her, because she felt she had more privilege and joy and adventure than sadness," Goodwin said. "And when you look at the entire 104 years, that's probably true."

Her first-born, Joseph Jr., died when his plane exploded on a mission in World War II; her daughter Kathleen died in a plane crash in France in 1948.

Mrs. Kennedy's husband was left an invalid after a stroke in 1961. Two years later, John was assassinated and in 1968, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was gunned down after winning the Democratic presidential primary in California.

In 1969, a car driven by Edward ran off a bridge, and aide Mary Jo Kopechne died. Later that year, Joe Sr. died.

Her surviving daughters — Eunice, Patricia, Jean and Rosemary — largely stayed out of public life, although Rosemary's retardation directed some of their charity work. On Mrs. Kennedy's 93rd birthday, the family gave $1 million to the home for the retarded in Wisconsin where Rosemary has lived for 40 years.

Eunice is married to Sargent Shriver, former director of the Peace Corps and 1972 Democratic vice presidential nominee; Jean was appointed ambassador to Ireland by Clinton; and Patricia was divorced from the actor Peter Lawford, who died in 1984.

Mrs. Kennedy's former daughter-in-law, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, died of cancer May 19, and was buried next to President Kennedy in Arlington National Cemetery.
