

PAMPA NEWS MODEL HOME OPEN TO VISITORS TODAY

Public Is Invited to See New Building Last Time Before Formal Opening

Interior Work To Be Completed This Week—Furniture, etc., Will be Put In

Chas. A. Symonds, designer and builder of the Daily News Model Home, announced yesterday that the Home will be open today from 10 to 12 a. m. and from 2 to 5 this afternoon. This will be the last opportunity for visitors to see the inside of the Home until the formal opening which will probably begin next Sunday.

The doors will be locked Monday morning to give the Gee Brothers, interior decorators, time to give the inside the finishing touches. The carpenter work, including floors, mill work and closet lining will be done next week preparing the Home for the formal opening. G. C. Malone, who has selected the special furniture for the different rooms, will place it in the new Home this week to be ready for inspection at the opening.

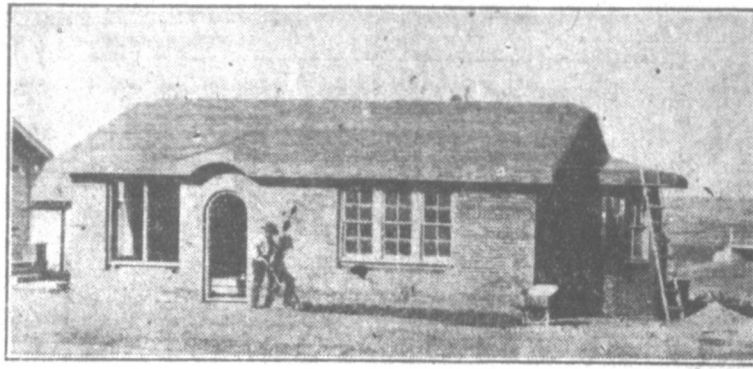

The automobile, selected for the home, will be a Studebaker Dictator Coupe, furnished by the Thut-Saunders Motor company. It will be on display at the Home or at the show room next week. It may be seen at the Home today and during of the company on North Somerville.

The landscaping, including shrubbery, grass, etc., will be completed within the next few days. Sketches have been drawn and the shrubbery will be brought to Pampa Monday. All doors and windows, except the specially made front arch door, have been put in. It will be hung Monday to be able to lock the doors to the building.

Visitors have been seeing the Home at the rate of 100 per day and W. A. Gray, contractor, estimates that more than a thousand people have already gone through the building. Preparations are being made to entertain many more today and at the formal opening.

Mr. Symonds began work last week on a six-room home with basement on the lot south of the Home which will be ready for delivery to the purchasers within a few weeks.

Pampa at End Of Longest Press Wire of World

The Pampa Daily News is at the end of the longest press wire in the world. It is a wire operated from Dallas by the Associated Press and serves 18 daily papers including Texarkana on the northeast, Pampa on the northwest, El Paso in the far west, and Brownsville in the south. Many other cities are on this wire. It is 2,714 miles long, longer than the distance from Chicago to San Francisco. Recent changes have added to its length.

These facts indicate a little known service of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, says the Texas Public Information Bureau. The wires making up this long press communication, over which Texas cities receive news of the world, are leased from the telephone company. The press service is a by-product of the telephone business, since the same wires are used for long distance telephone messages at the same instant that the news of the press association is going over them.

One of the recent great services the telephone rendered the newspapers was in making possible rapid reports on Col. Charles Lindbergh's flight to Mexico City. Much of the news of his arrival in Mexico was brought to Dallas from Mexico City by telephone. The Associated Press, and the United Press each held the long distance wires to Mexico City for several hours in order to receive instantaneous reports. The Associated Press held a wire three hours and 12 minutes, the longest telephone call ever recorded in the Southwest. The cost for this period was about $400.

The Associated Press now operates 154,000 miles of wire throughout the country and spends about $2,000,000 a year in wire costs. It operates 24 hours a day every day in the year except between 4 a. m. and 4 p. m. Sunday and its wires deliver upwards of 100,000 words a day to the largest papers.

STUDENT 38 YEARS

AUSTIN, April 15.—After being a student of the University of Texas on various occasions for thirty years, Dr. W. A. Evans, head of the department of education and psychology of the Texas Technological College at Lubbock, has achieved his goal and will receive his doctor of philosophy degree from the University in June. During those thirty years Dr. Evans has had two sons and a daughter receive degrees from the institution he attended. Dr. Evans registered in the University in 1898, enrolling for courses in political science. He continued to attend the University at all available times, chiefly during the summer, as he taught school during the long seasons. In 1924 he received his master of arts degree.

Cal Opens Baseball Season

President Coolidge stood in his box, was handed a ball by Manager Bucky Harris of the Washington Senators, and tossed it in the general direction of home plate at Washington Tuesday—and the 1928 baseball season was on! The Red Sox won the opening game from the Senators, thereby resting atop the American League for one day at least this season.

Fort Worth Man Says Local Growth Nearly Unbelievable

A visitor here yesterday was E. W. Clark of Fort Worth, one of the directors of the Burk Burnett ranch and the 6963 ranch in Carson county. He arrived at the ranch Friday to superintend the loading of a shipment of cattle to Fort Worth from the 6963 ranch.

He visited with an old friend, T. D. Hobart, while here. He told a News reporter that he had an idea that he was in the wrong place when he arrived in Pampa after an absence of three years.

"It is almost unbelievable that a place could grow so fast and be so progressive in the short time it has taken Pampa to spring from a village to the coming greatest city in the Panhandle," Mr. Clark stated.

Mrs. H. A. Peebles underwent a serious operation at the Pampa hospital Saturday morning. Latest reports stated that she was doing nicely.

Mrs. Ella Hansen is seriously ill in the hospital.

Will Prather, who suffered a broken leg last December, when run into by an automobile is able to be around the hospital on crutches.

Queen Is Ill

Queen Victoria of Sweden, who has been ill for some time at her residence in Rome, is understood to have taken a turn for the worse and King Gustav and Prince William were summoned the other day to her bedside. Queen Victoria is 65.

Bremen---

By the Associated Press: The North Atlantic are marooned on a tiny ice-bound northern island, far from the millions waiting to welcome them.

After more than a day and a half in the air, and four hours spent in blindly wandering through an impenetrable fog, the Junkers monoplane Bremen landed Friday at Greenly Island in the straits of Belle Isle between Newfoundland and Labrador, and it seemed unlikely that the journey could be continued for several days.

Messages relayed to the outer world by dog sled, radio and telegraph bore assurance that though the plane was damaged, the three fliers, Baron Ehrenfried von Huenefeld, Capt. Hermann Kehl and Capt. James Fitzmaurice, were uninjured and being well cared for by the little island's 14 inhabitants.

Propeller Is Broken

Three factors combined to prevent immediate continuation of the Bremen's flight from Ireland to New York, for one thing the fuel tanks were empty when the Bremen landed on a little lake on the outer square island and the nearest supply is across the ice pack on the mainland. Then messages from the aviators reported that the propeller was broken. And lastly it was believed that the plane might have great difficulty in effecting a takeoff from the frozen surface of the island even after repairs were made and the tanks filled, until a runway had been smoothed off for it.

The Bremen started out with its German-Irish crew from Baldonnel air-drome near Dublin early Thursday morning, hoping to make a non-stop flight to New York. They planned to follow the great circle course, but for some reason they drifted northward and ran into fog off Labrador which prevented their continued progress and kept them groping blindly about Aviators believed that the Bremen strayed from its course because poor visibility rendered the drift indicator useless and because, for some reason the fliers apparently did not alter their direction in accordance with compass variation due to the magnetic north pole.

It is believed in many quarters that in the Bremen's appearance off Labrador lay the possible answer to what had happened to other planes which tried the westward ocean crossing and were never heard from. Eleven months ago Nungesser and Gull took off from Paris from New York and disappeared. Later the Princess Lucretia—Wertheim left Europe for America with two pilots and none of them was ever found. The first attempt this year was made from England by Capt. Walter Hinchliffe and Miss Elsie Mackay, a Viscount's daughter, and they never arrived.

In the face of these facilities the two Germans and the laughing Irishman who heads the air force of the Free State took off for their distant goal and though they missed their destination they crossed the ocean from east to west and escaped with their lives. The indications were that when the journey to Mitchell Field is completed probably early next week, the foreign fliers will be given a public welcome comparable to nothing the city has ever seen except its greeting to Col Charles A. Lindbergh after he flew to France last year.

GIRL ALONE
 BY ANNE AUSTIN
 AUTHOR OF "SAINT AND SINNER"

Sally Ford is "fanned out" to Clem Carson, prosperous farmer, the summer she is 16, and leaves the state orphanage, the only home she has known since she was four. At the farm she finds a friend in David Nash, student and an athlete. Carson is angered because David prefers the little orphan to his daughter, Pearl. When he makes insulting remarks about Sally, David hits him a terrific blow.

David and Sally run away and join a carnival. David as cook's helper and Sally as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer.

The midge, "Pitty Sing," takes a fancy to Sally and warns her to beware of Nita. Mrs. Bybee, wife of the carnival owner, promises Sally she will go to Stanton and see if she can find any news about Sally's mother. Sally has told her about her years in the orphanage and that the only information she has about her mother is that she lived in Stanton at one time. Later in the morning when Mrs. Bybee stands for her, she goes with anxious heart.

Sally is paralyzed to learn the carnival is next going to the capital city, where she spent so many years in the orphan's home. Knowing that the police are after them and believing they will be recognized, she hurries to tell David they must run away again. He comforts her and tells her he will meet her that night after the train is loaded and they can talk their plight over their. She waits excitedly that night for his promised whistle beneath her car window. When it comes, she hurries happily toward the door, but she notices that Nita's berth is vacant.

CHAPTER XXIII

The night was eerie with voices from unseen bodies, or bodies half-revealed in the flare of gasoline torches as the business of loading the carnival proceeded. Soft, rich voices from black men's throats blended with the velvety softness of the late-June night. "Oh if Ah had wings like an angel, Over these prison walls Ah would fly! Ah would fly to the arms of my poah dahlin'.

An' theah Ah'd be willin' to die!"

A lonesome, heart-breaking plaint Sally shivered. Except for David and Pop Bybee and Dan, the barker, she and David might have been behind prison bars tonight, learning the shame and misery that had created that song.

A white roustabout said something gasping sigh of joy.

In the silvery sheen with which the moon joyously and approvingly bathed them their eyes, wide, dark, luminous, clung for an aeon of time, reckoned in the history of love. Then David knowing that his unasked question had been gloriously answered, bent his head until his lips touched hers.

He must have felt the slight stiffening of her body, the arden in her small hands as they clung more fiercely to his shoulders. For he flung up his head, then turned it sharply away off a moment, as if ashamed for her to see a drunken, uncertain step away from him, and his arms fell laxly from her body.

"What is it, David?" she asked in a small, quavering voice, scarcely more than a whisper.

"I shouldn't have done that!" David reproached himself with boyish bitterness.

"But David," Sally pleaded, in that small quaver, "don't you—don't you love me—at all? I thought—I—" Her hands fluttered toward him, then dropped hopelessly as he still stood sharply turned away from her.

"Yes, I love you. That's the devil of it," David groaned from the shelter of his arm. "I love you so much I can't think of anything else, not even of our danger."

She crept closer to him, stroked timidly the clenched fist which hung at his side. "Then—why, David?—I—I love you, too. You—must—have—known. I love you with all my heart." She stooped swiftly and laid her lips against his knuckles in the moonlight.

"Don't!" he cried sharply. He lowered the arm that had sheltered his shamed, passionate eyes and looked at her humbly, his whole body drooping. "Don't you see, darling—no, I musn't call you that!—don't you see, Sally, that your—caring—only makes it worse? I wish I were the only one that has to suffer. But you're so young—oh, God!" cried in sudden anguish.

"You're so pitifully young! Sixteen! I ought to be horsewhipped!"

She laughed shakily. "I'm getting older every day, David. Is it such a crime to be young? You're young, too, David—darling!" The word was dropped shyly, on a tremulous whisper.

"That's it!" David cried wildly, fiercely under his breath. "We're both young! I'm just half through college and I haven't a cent to my name except what I earned those two weeks on Carson's farm. And I won't have any money except barely enough to live on—

"I work my way through college—until I've finished school. And then it will be a long, hard struggle to get a start, unless my grandfather dies by then and leaves me his farm. He's a miserly old man, darling. He thinks I'm a fool to study scientific farming, won't give me a cent. I haven't wanted it—

"I can't marry you or—anyone, David. My mother was not Mrs. Nora Ford. I don't know who she was! I don't even know what my name really is—

"No," she shook her head drearily. "I can't marry you or—anyone, David. My mother was not Mrs. Nora Ford. I don't know who she was! I don't even know what my name really is—

"I want to marry you, of course!" David flung the confession at her sternly. "I love you so much it's torture to think of your going on to New York with the carnival. Oh, it's all so hopeless! We're in such a nasty jam, Sally, darling!" He groaned, snatched up more hands, kissed them hungrily, passionately, then dropped them as if the soft, sweet flesh stung his lips. "Don't let me kiss you, Sally! For God's sake! I can't stand it! And it's not fair to you to learn what love means, when we can't go through with it."

"But why can't we, David?" she persisted, her love giving her amazing boldness. "I'll wait for you, for years and years. Until I'm 18 and you're—You're almost 21, aren't you, David?"

"Yes," he acknowledged. "But I'm just a kid. Why, I'm a minor yet!" he reminded her with youth's bitter shame. "And so are you. We couldn't even get married legally. And we're both—wanted—by the police. I can't even figure out how I'm going to get back into A. & M. and finish my course. I couldn't let you marry a man wanted for attempted murder, even if I could support you. Oh, I guess I could make a bare living for us, but I don't want that! Not for you! I want you to have everything lovely in the world. You've had so little, so little! I want you to have silk and velvet to make you forget blue-and-white-checked gingham. I want—"

he was going on passionately when Sally interrupted with her soft, delicious little laugh. "I want David," she said simply.

"All right!" he cried, flinging his arms wide in a gesture of utter abandonment. "We'll keep going until we get out of the state. We'll be about our ages. We'll find someone somewhere to marry us, and we'll—have each other"

If we have nothing else in the world Sally!"

"His exultant young voice and his arms demanded her, but she held back strangely, while her face went ghastly white and old in the moonlight."

"I forgot to tell you my news," she said dully, tonelessly, her hand flattened against her breast. "Mrs. Bybee found out something about—about my mother, about me."

 Ecstasy was wiped from David's face leaving it hurt and bewildered. "So you're going to find her? Go back to her?—I—suppose I'm glad."
 "No," she shook her head drearily. "I can't marry you or—anyone, David. My mother was not Mrs. Nora Ford. I don't know who she was! I don't even know what my name really is—paid Mrs. Ford to take me away when I was an infant, away from New York, so—so I wouldn't disgrace her. I'm the ugly name Nita called me today. I'm—"

 "You're my Sally," David said gently, his arms gathering her up, holding her comfortingly against his breast, in passionless embrace or utter tenderness. "Do you think I would let that make any difference at all? If anything could, I would let it make any difference at all!" (See GIRL ALONE, pg. 5, this sec.)

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing, or reputation of any individual, firm, concern, or corporation that may appear in the columns of the Pampa Daily News will be gladly corrected when called to the attention of the editor.

TWO FIXED IDEAS in the minds of members of the state highway commission are not well suited to conditions which obtain in West Texas, and it is to be hoped that the road body may revise them somewhat with respect to this section.

First, there is the idea that a highway should skirt the edge of a town, rather than lead more directly toward its business section. From the standpoint of the tourist who is in a hurry, there is some advantage in avoiding stop signs and heavy traffic.

In thickly populated sections, tourist travel may be something of an annoyance if it feeds through arterial streets, yet tourists dislike congestion as much as anyone else, and will take alternative streets if directed or given the opportunity.

In the Panhandle tourist travel is something to be desired from a commercial standpoint, as Panhandle has well learned since the route of her main highway was changed to circle the business district.

Another highway commission policy should, it seems to The News, be modulated. This is the policy that state and federal funds for good roads are to be used exclusively from the standpoint of tourists traffic.

The commissioners are reasonable men, but having the whole state as their highway domain, they must depend much upon the reports and recommendations of their engineers. "It is an engineering question," they said when Pampa asked about the route from here to Mobeetie.

This being the case, settlement of the matter rests largely with Division Engineer French, and his findings are going to be awaited with much interest in this precinct.

THE NEWS FAMILY

This is what might be called a personnel number of the Pampa Daily News. A new building houses the best newspaper plant in the upper Panhandle, and the "force", including the headquarters staff of the Nunn-Warren Publishing company, has brought to Pampa one of its largest payrolls.

This issue introduces most of the staff members in pictures. One year as a daily built The News to its present size, and it will be interesting to repeat a similar edition next year and note the increase. The Daily News is one of the most rapidly developing newspapers in West Texas, and its future expansion rests with its patrons, who make its growth possible.

Some people are gluttons for punishment, like the man who stole 700 nickel cigars. He wasn't so dumb, however, for it was on the night before an election, and he probably passed the ropes out in the name of the opposition.

Some very live towns are having Latin tournaments.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — "If we really want to show these Latin Americans what a fine, well-intentioned country we are," says Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina, "let's not frighten them by the way we govern the Canal Zone."

The Canal Zone, as everyone knows, is the little strip of American soil which lines the Panama Canal and lies between Central America and South America.

Senator Smith has introduced a resolution to investigate the Zone judiciary and a bill to place it under the Department of Justice instead of under the War Department where it is now.

If the charges which led to the Smith resolution and bill are true, the form of military dictatorship which has spread like measles through the Caribbean and Latin America is now being established on American soil.

These charges, alleging malfeasance, nonfeasance and misfeasance in office by Judge Guy H. Martin, were first taken to Congress by Felix Porter, a veteran Canal Zone lawyer who was disbarred after he had made charges of corruption against Martin to President Coolidge and the attorney general. Porter is now trying to have Martin impeached and the case is before the House Judiciary Committee.

More recently, two other men came here with fire in their eyes and added their charges to Porter's. One, a wiry, determined-looking little fellow named F. Edward Mitchell, was ousted recently as U. S. district attorney for the Canal Zone after he, too, had brought charges against Martin. The other, who also accuses Martin, was former Deputy Marshal Frank T. Hamlin of Anderson, S. C., who lost his post as Zone deputy marshal when, after many years of service, he refused to obey Martin's orders because they were against those of his superior, Marshal Irvin M. Lieser of Des Moines, Ia. Marshal Lieser was also removed. He had suffered a paralytic stroke in the fight between Martin and the Zone's military governor, Gen. M. L. Walker, on the one side, and Mitchell, Lieser and Hamlin on the other.

The charges against Martin are, principally, that he allowed and helped General Walker to assume control of the Canal Zone judiciary system. Walker has been able to obtain help from the War Department in this project under an executive order last year placing the Zone courts under the secretary of war—an order which members of Congress are now learning about for the first time.

Judge C. P. Fairman, a prominent Canal Zone attorney, also charges that Walker has attempted to abolish the jury system and otherwise disregarded the law. Mitchell charges that he was removed because he refused to give Walker and Martin the interpretations of law they desired. When he told them it was unlawful for Walker to dismiss Hamlin, they hired a special assistant who prosecuted Hamlin while Mitchell defended him.

TWINKLES

A famous novelist has married a type of woman he has never written about. Wonder if out of curiosity, desire for knowledge, or was he reserving one type that he didn't wish to appear to understand too well? ### Girl Alone---

It would make me love you more. But I love you now with every bit of me. And we'll be married, Sally. What do I care about being a scientific farmer? But there was a note of bravado, of regret in his voice that did not escape her love-attuned ears.

"No, David," she whispered, her hands straying over his face as if memorizing every dear line of it. "We'll wait. I can wait. I've waited 12 years to find my mother, and I didn't give up hope until today. I would wait twice twelve years for you. I'll stick with the carnival if Pop Bybee will let me, and if the police don't find us. Then when you're through college--"

"But I'm damned if I can see how I'm to get back!" David burst out. "We are both trapped in this second-rate carnival--and a first-rate one would be bad enough!"

"We won't have to stay after we get to New York," Sally interrupted reasonably. "We can start life again. This trouble will blow over. You might even learn some other profession in the east--"

"I don't want to learn anything else live anywhere else but in the middle west. It's my land. I love it. I want to serve it. But, oh, Sally, let's not torture ourselves any more. I know I mustn't marry you now, under this cloud, but let's be happy for a few minutes before we go back to the show train! No, don't darling!" she lifted her arms. "Just sit there on my coat and let me look at you. You're the most beautiful thing in the world. Lovely, Sally!"

They sat side by side, hands not touching but hearts reaching toward each other, and the minutes slipped silently away as David drank in her moon-silvered young beauty, and she fed her stare upon his Viking-like hands and eyes and strength. They were silently agreeing to go when a sharp, metallic voice materialized suddenly out of the hush of the darkness.

"No monkey business now, Steve! I'm warning you. If you double-cross me I'll cut your heart out! Fifty-fifty!"

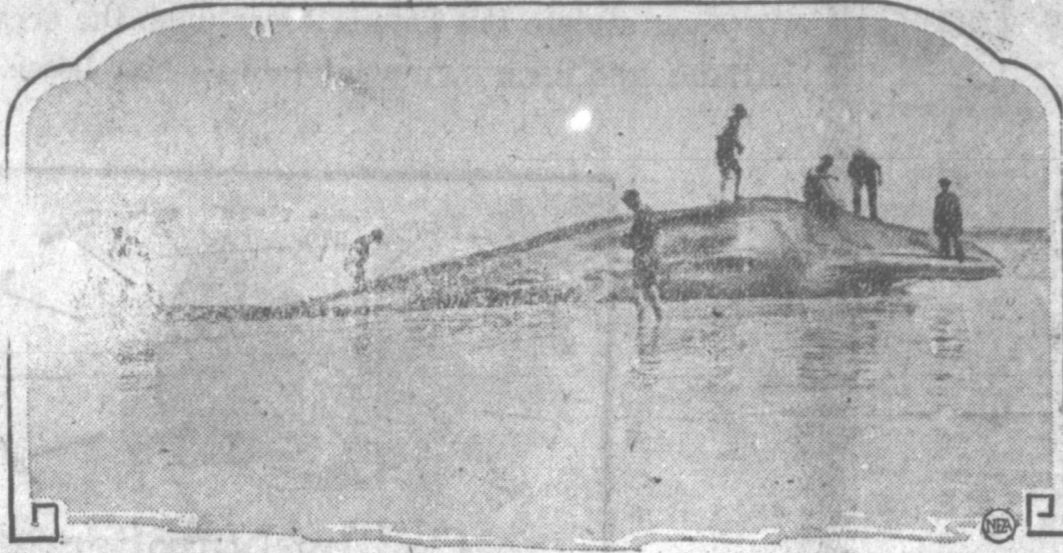

The rest was lost as the couple passed walking swiftly, two shadows that seemed like one. The voice was Nita's. (To Be Continued)

At a slighter step upon the scene in the next chapter--someone who is interested in Sally.

Storm Proves a Jonah to This Whale

Hundreds of curious folks went down to the sea in fliers when word came that a giant whale had been washed ashore during a storm off Wrightsville Beach, near Wilmington, N. C., the other day. Fishermen pronounced it a sperm whale and as soon as this picture had been taken they lost no time in dividing up the prize. It measured 54 feet in length and weighed nearly 60 tons.

Paris Surprised by Chaperonage of Visiting College Students

PARIS (AP)--The strict chaperonage of the 43 Smith college juniors who are studying here at the Sorbonne has attracted more attention than have the girls themselves.

One of the principal newspapers asked "if we must revise our judgment on the proverbial freedom accorded the modern American girl." The American girls, most of whom are in Paris for the first time, have to sign a card every time they go out in the evening. They must, unless special permission is given, to be at home at 10 o'clock, and they must always be accompanied by a suitable chaperone.

But according to Madame Guilloton, Smith college professor, who with her husband is chaperoning the Smith girls, a "suitable chaperone" is anyone known to her, whom the girls choose from among their French or American acquaintances.

Montmartre is forbidden the girl students, except during holiday periods when they may do as they wish and are out from under school rules as completely as they would be at home. Cafes are also forbidden territory for them.

The rules are not oppressive, the girls say, and bear down on them far less rigorously than the campus laws written and unwritten, observed by their sister-students at Northampton

TO PLUG TWO WELLS

Two wells in the Gray county oil field will be plugged. Application has been made to plug the Viola company's No. 1 Saunders in section 13, block A-E three miles northeast of LeFors in wildcat territory. The well was at 3,132 feet when abandoned as a dry hole.

The Phillips Petroleum company has also made application to plug its No. 1 Davidson, in the northwest corner of the northwest quarter of section 87 block B-2, in the McGee pool. The well was abandoned as a dry hole at 3,157 feet.

George W. Billow is plugging his well in Armstrong county near Claude and plans to move the derrick and drill a well on his lease in Gray county.

INVITE DADS AND MOTHERS

AUSTIN, April 15--"Write to Dad and Mother Day" has been set on the University of Texas campus as an occasion for each student of the school to invite his parents to the sixth annual meeting of the Dad and Mothers' Association in Austin April 16. Besides the student letters, more than 4,000 invitations have been sent out by President H. Y. Benedict, urging that the mothers and fathers of students make a visit on the campus on that date.

Correspondence For Federal Jobs Declared Worthless

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15.—The United States Civil Service Commission has sent a circular letter to advertising managers of newspapers and periodicals throughout the country citing figures which indicate the practical worthlessness of widely advertised correspondence courses in preparation for forest ranger examinations.

The Commission says in the letter that it has made a survey of the examination papers of 1081 competitors in the forest ranger examination held last October, disclosing the following results:

Of 675 competitors who had no correspondence training, 189 passed the examination.

Of 337 competitors who had taken a correspondence course in preparation for the examination, exactly 11 passed.

Sixty-nine were noncommittal as to training in advance. All of these failed.

The Commission quoted the following statement from a circular recently issued by the United States Forest Service regarding advertising of correspondence schools which give training for forest ranger examinations:

"Many of the statements in these advertisements are misleading and in some cases absolutely false. These advertisements frequently convey the impression that the forest ranger's job is largely a play-time job, or a convenient means for an outing in the woods while, as a matter of fact, the position of forest ranger is a permanent one of considerable responsibility, requiring arduous work often under difficult conditions, and with definite requirements as to experience and ability. Forest Service officials doubt the value of correspondence schools under ordinary circumstances in furnishing proper preparation for forest ranger positions."

BAY STATE GETS HOME OF THOMAS B. ALDRICH

CANTON, Mass. (AP)—The Ponkapog home of Thomas Bailey Aldrich, author, editor and poet, where nearly half his collected work in prose was written, has passed to the state of Massachusetts.

With its 155 acres of land to be incorporated into the metropolitan park system, the century-old house awaits final disposition at the hands of the Metropolitan district commission.

The old tavern that became a poet's home has seen many changes since it was built in 1813 on the Providence-Boston turnpike by Captain John Tucker. It was after it had become a wealthy gentleman's farm and estate that Aldrich came here from Boston to live. And during his time such characters as Mark Twain, William Dean Howells, John Jefferson, Phillips Brooks and Edwin Booth were guests at its fireside.

Aldrich came to Ponkapog in 1874. It was in this year that, wishing to add the picture of Mark Twain to his library, he wrote his request. Clemens hereupon began sending him a photograph every day. When, after two years, Aldrich protested mildly against this stream of pictures, Clemens sent him 20 of his pictures in 20 separate covers.

After Aldrich's death, the house remained a home of Mrs. Aldrich until her death a few months ago.

Sociologist Sees Future Farm Run as Giant Mill or Factory

GRAND FORKS, N. D.—(AP)—A picturesque reversal of the American agricultural system under which everyone would live in town, and farms would be populated only as mammoth industrial plants are populated—by workmen returning to their toil—is predicted by J. M. Gillette, professor of sociology at the University of North Dakota.

In this new mode of farming, he suggests, relationships between cities and farming communities would no longer exist as they do today, and country neighborhoods and communities would be entirely dissolved. Farming would be a purely commercial proposition rather than a family affair, and crops would be produced as factories are operated—by means of managers, foremen and hired men. Operators, living in the cities, would go to their farms only when they were needed.

Author of several text books on rural sociology, Professor Gillette declares that the farmer's dissatisfaction with isolated independence is one of the agencies causing migration of the rural resident to the city.

"Economic conditions," he says, such as improvements in agricultural production, great expansion of urban domination and the post-war crisis in farming, have unsettled farm life and exerted a disturbing influence upon the relation of the farmer to other groups of society. Migration to the cities, at the rate of more than half a million a year, has continued until now 79 per cent of the population is non-agricultural.

Even inventions designed to help the farmer are driving him from his land, the professor says, and "making possible the centralizing of farm residents." He believes that the combine, making it possible to harvest and thresh a crop at one operation, and equally effective seeding machines may prove to be entering wedges for establishment of "capitalistic" farming.

BAKER SCHOOL PROGRAM PLEASURES LARGE AUDIENCE

Last Monday evening the Baker school put on a program of twenty-six numbers before a large audience, much of which consisted of proud parents. But they had a right to be proud. The program was given almost without a hitch, and all of the participants did well. This program showed long and arduous practice.

The program started with "Hell Everybody," a song by the fourth grade. "A School Teacher's Dream," first grade, and "Rose Drill and Song" second grade, were enjoyed by all. "The Swallow (Cantata)," was given by the fifth grades, coached by Mrs. Irwin. Some of the other numbers were: "A Stock of Black-Cat (Drill)," third grade; "The Quarrel (Duet)," by fourth grade; a one act play by the fifth grade; "Keeping Still," a song by the fourth and fifth grade boys. Then the audience listened reluctantly to "Now It's Time to Go, For We've Said All We Know," sung by the fourth grade.

The program truly indicated that some of the best talent in Pampa, among both students and faculty members, can be found in our Baker school.

Call by Number

To Obtain the Fastest Long Distance Service

To Complete Any Long Distance Call It Is Necessary for the Operator to Obtain in Some Manner the Telephone Number of the Firm or Individual You are Calling

If You Know the Number
When you give the operator the number of the party you are calling, she has all the information necessary, so she asks you to hold the line and proceeds to establish the connection. An attempt is made to complete the call immediately unless it should happen that all of the circuits to the point called are in use. When you give the operator the number of the party you are calling you are assured the fastest possible service.

If You Don't Know the Number
When you can not give the number of the party you are calling, the operator must ask you to hang up while she has called the number looked up in a directory, and it is usually necessary to call the dispatch city to secure the telephone number. This interferes with the operator in giving you the fastest possible service.

Like a Local Call
To obtain the quickest Long Distance service you should be able to furnish the operator the number of the party you are calling on every class of Long Distance call. If you are willing to talk to anyone who answers for the number you are calling you will get a lower rate. This is called Station-to-Station service, but for speed on any type of call give the operator the number of the party you are calling.

Ask Us for the Telephone Numbers You Frequently Use
To assist you in building up a directory of your own for the telephone numbers of people you call in distant towns, call your local Telephone Manager and he will see that all such numbers are furnished you. Or send him your list by mail and he will gladly furnish you with the necessary information.

Veteran Oil Men Expected to Form Auxiliary Soon

GUTHRIE, Okla., April 15.—(P)—Veteran oil scouts, now in other branches of the industry, are expected to form an auxiliary organization "The Pioneers of the Mid-Continent Oil Scout Association," when the Mid-Continent Oil Scouts Association convention is held here April 27 and 28.

The Scouts' association is the only organization of its kind and is national in scope. More than 500 oil scouts and petroleum officials are expected to attend the meeting here says S. M. Blevins, chairman of the convention committee.

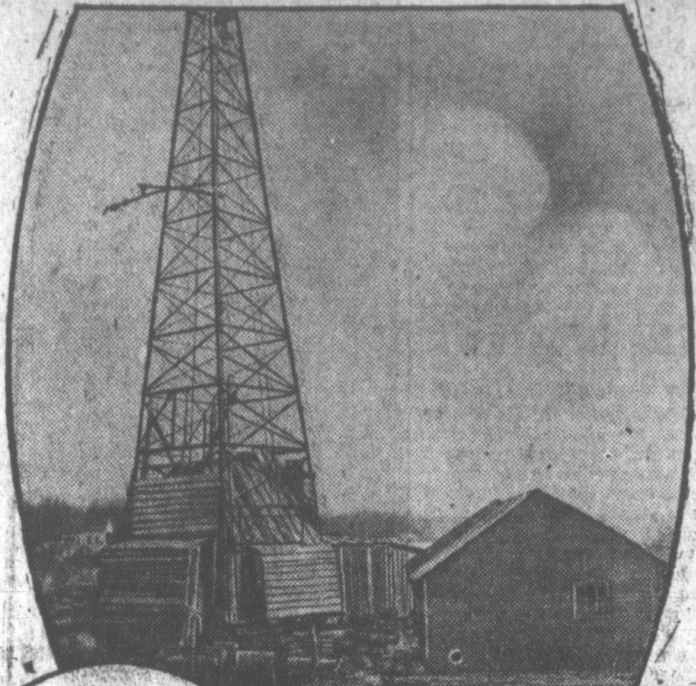

Judge James A. Veasey of Tulsa chief counsel for the Carter Oil company and an authority on the petroleum industry, will be a speaker on the program which starts with registration of delegates on the afternoon of April 27 and includes on that day entertainment for visiting women and an evening banquet.

On Saturday, April 28, the business session of the Scouts association will be held with a golf and fishing tournament scheduled for the afternoon. There will be an afternoon bridge contest for the women. The session will close Saturday night with a ball.

Oil companies operating in the Senoia field, have agreed that their scouts can attend check meeting on Friday, April 27, at 8 a. m., and leave for the Guthrie convention immediately thereafter. The companies are urging scouts, geologists, landmen and other oil workers to attend.

The official body of the Mid-continent Scouts is presiding the biggest convention in the history of the association. The officers are: O. E. Savage of the Carter Oil Company, president; Charles Hewitt of Okmulgee, Mid-Continent Oil Corporation, vice-president; Dick Mills, Shawnee, Sinclair, Sinclair Oil company, vice-president; Simon Critch, Bristow, Phillips Petroleum company, secretary-treasurer; Rexall Dawson, Tulsa, Carter Oil co, chairman of the board of directors.

Oil Rewards Tailor Who Examined Stains In Muskegon Puddle

Stanley Danihof (left) of Muskegon, Mich., saw oil on a puddle and was so sure petroleum lay beneath the land that he sold his tailor shop and turned promoter. Today his company owns two producing wells, one shown above, and Muskegon is experiencing an oil boom. Charles Reeths (right) is another beneficiary; he owns a farm on which oil was found.

MUSKEGON, Mich. (P)—Almost overnight, Muskegon has become an oil boom town.

Two wells are spouting the black fluid, one at the rate of 300 barrels a day. A third is roaring gas into the air, and a score of rigs are tapping the sand-blown land around there, some of which could have been bought a year ago for $1 an acre.

The story behind the boom, which has brought riches to a few toil-weary farmers who had despaired of often the forefathers would strike oil. This angered them, because it was said, not oil, that they were after, and they would abandon efforts or plug up the hole.

Danihof decided to take a crack at the thing. He gave up his tailor shop, and some of his neighbors paying proposition.

The company Danihof organized today owns the two producing wells. If he desired, the former tailor might now distribute pressing shops as gifts to his friends.

Charles Reeths, who for years struggled with the recalcitrant soil and finally gave up and got a job in an automobile factory, owns the land on which the two wells are located. He gets an eighth of the revenue, and now he rides in his own automobile, on the road lanely to work.

The Figge well is the gasser, and it from home over which he once walked is spouting natural gas into the air at the rate of 4,553,000 cubic feet a day.

The producing wells started to flow in December and shortly Muskegon hotels were filled with the ebb and flow of the usual crowd that follows oil.

R. A. Smith, state geologist, is hopeful that the boom will develop greater proportions. Two dusters have been struck, but the drills are biting daily into new locations.

Business Failures

Less in March

AUSTIN, April 15.—There were but fifty-two commercial failures having liabilities of $909,000 during March, according to facts filed by Bervard Nichols of the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas.

This number was the same as that of the month previously. Mr. Nichols said; however, the insolvencies involved liabilities of $1,776,000 in liabilities for February. This decline, Mr. Nichols said is sensational.

For the whole quarter of this year Mr. Nichols has found commercial failures to be 42 per cent below those of the same period of 1927.

Plant Made--

This machine is a type foundry of itself, turning out any kind of face of type up to 38-point in size. The type therefore, can be remelted and cast anew as often as desired.

Lavatories and toilets for both men and women are other conveniences for employees. Individual, paper drinking cups are provided in the interest of health.

are being given an opportunity to purchase a limited amount of stock. This is the plan that has been followed by the Dallas News since its organization.

The owners are proud of the good will which the newspapers enjoy in the respective communities. On account of being under no obligation to anyone, except that of rendering the best community service possible, the paper have thus won the friendship of the communities in which they are published.

Today more than 75 persons devote full time to the work of the Nunn-Warren company, while on March 1, 1927 it required only seven persons to handle the business.

The heavy demands of the Pampa office for supplies made it desirable to move the headquarters to that city and part of the new building is used for storage and a house for the headquarters staff.

Childress Index Bought
The latest addition to Nunn-Warren papers is the Childress Daily Index, owned for many years by L. E. Haskett. The Index has been merged with the Childress Post, owned by Fred Story, who has become manager of the merged publications.

Other Panhandle newspapers may be added to the Nunn-Warren group. Operating methods, which stress home control by men who own stock in the papers and work for the best interest of the individual communities, have made Nunn-Warren publications highly valued, and economies effected by such a system have made better papers possible.

Big Payroll--

Nathan Jones of Terre Haute learned the rudiments of the business with the Dutrick Publishing company of New York City. Later he was with

"Nose for News"

Don't try to hide the facts from Harry E. Hoare, city editor of the Pampa Daily News. "Harry" will find it out anyway, but he likes to get the news at its source.

At Memphis, Tenn., Press, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, and the News-Schmitt, a Paul Block paper. He also was in the circulation department of the Press-Schmitt, which grew out of the consolidation of these two papers.

Mr. Jones is married, and Nathan, Jr., first and lately arrived son, is his newest interest.

Ben Reno, genial advertising man, is the oldest Daily News employe in point of service, having arrived in 1926 to become editor, etc., of the weekly News.

Mr. Reno is a Columbia, Mo., man who intended to become an engineer, but in the environment of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri he couldn't resist the call of the advertising game. He was graduated in the 1926 class with Mr. Fond.

One of the oldest Nunn-Warren employes in point of service is C. N. Melton, whose varied duties include the records, collections, retail trade, and many others. He joined the firm at Panhandle, then, after three months with the Herald, he came to Pampa December 29, 1926.

Mr. Melton was born in Shawnee Okla. He joined the navy and served from 1915 to 1917. In 1917 he went to the naval academy at Annapolis and was with the Class of '21 from 1917 to 1919.

He is married and has two husky boys who are already showing an interest in things about the office and shop.

Out of the North came Harry E. Hoare of Guilph, Ontario, Canada, at an opportune moment to help establish the first daily newspaper on the North Panhandle plains. He had been in Pampa about three months and had a wide acquaintance which enabled him to produce a large volume of local news from the start.

He attended Toronto University, but through the influence of a brother in journalism became interested in newspaper work. His travels have taken him over much of this country, but he has liked Pampa well enough to hang his hat here and help build the New Pampa. He probably knows as many people as anyone in this vicinity and has made a specialty of oil news.

Aside from crating on the wonders of Canada, "Harry" is a constant Pampa booster, energetic news hound, and a demon on skates.

A husky young printer is Willard Sage of the Daily News force. Willard seldomly never tires, and he never fails to see the paper "put to bed" each publication date.

Another newcomer to the staff of the Pampa Daily News since its enlargement is Joe Robinson, pressman, whose duty it is to see that the large press is in working order when it is time to go to press. He must know his "rolls" and work fast, as the new press clips off more than 5,000 papers an hour.

He is a long way from home, which is Salem, West Virginia, a quaint little town among the blue grass. He came to Texas in 1927 and was with the Borger Herald before coming to Pampa last week to look after the new press.

E. M. "Slim" Pinkston, the envy of the ladies but married and devoted to home life, is the boy who makes all the pretty ad displays in the Pampa Daily News and pleases the business men of Pampa with his artistic work. He is another Texas Longhorn, born in Apploby, and came here last October from Temple, where he was ad man with the Temple Daily Telegram.

He started ad work with Cuero Daily Record and to watch him with a set of makeup instruments one would think he played with newspaper letters when a baby instead of blocks.

The "Daddy" of the back shop is the veteran newspaper man, A. A. Tetz, born in Gililand, La., and except for his service during the war has been a job foreman for many years. Artistic should be his middle name, as Pampa residents know from the cards seen in the windows advertising the dances, boxing and wrestling matches.

For several years he was manager of the job work department at Hargrave, in Dallas, going to Ranger from there and thence to join the Nunn-Warren Publishing company. When any of the boys want advice they go to "A. A."

E. M. Pirtle, very single, a product of Oklahoma City is one of the News' linotype operators. He knows his keyboard and machine and takes good care of it. He learned his machine in Denton six years ago and since that time has never been away from a linotype except for short vacations.

Denton was his home before he came Pampa with the Daily News last October. Since that time he has been as dependable as a clock in the service of the paper, often working overtime to get the paper ready for press.

A newcomer to the Pampa Daily News staff and one who likes Pampa and the News is Miss Francis McKenzie. She does not appear before the eyes of the public to do her work, but is a linotype operator of ability. She is a native born Texan. Miss McKenzie was in the Memphis Herald six years ago, but tired of office work and in her spare time studied linotyping at the Herald office. Soon she became efficient not only on the keyboard but in knowing the intricate machine as well.

She states that she likes her work and is delighted that she was transferred from Panhandle here last month.

Willard Sage, most recent "married man" in the organization, is one of the oldtimers with the Pampa Daily News. He was born in Parsons, Kas., and commenced his work in an office in his home town, where rigid training soon fitted him for a position with a large Back shop and a product of Fort Worth. When it comes to knowing a job boss he is the boy who gets the work out in a hurry.

He is at the present time in Childress, but in the near future will return to Pampa.

Charles Compton is always the first man on the job and usually the last to leave at night. He is "Johnnie on the job" every afternoon as soon as school is out to assist Mr. Jones in the circulation department. In fact Charlie handles the circulation when the manager is absent. He also gets down early in the morning to have the office clean for the staff and to have the metal hot in the linotype machines by 8 o'clock.

Charlie has an enthusiastic understudy in young James Pearson.
