Linger's Rodeo Animals To Hilite Rodeo Action

By PAUL SIMS
Gib, a three-year-old bull who has been ridden successfully only twice in two seasons; Bugler, who looks more like a rhinoceros than a bull, and Black Bird, a National Finals bareback bronc for the past eight years, are all in town this week to attempt to prove Animal's superiority over Man in the annual Top O' Texas Rodeo, which began at 2 p.m. today with the Kid Pony Show at Recreation Park.

City Approves Church Request By Vote Of 3-2

A request from the First Baptist Church for a 5-foot easement on W. Kingsmill St. city property received only 3 to 2 approval of the Pampa City Commission today.

An ordinance granting the request was passed by the 3-2 vote on first reading. Second and final reading of the legislation is scheduled for the next regular commission meeting Tuesday, Aug. 13.

The church had requested the easement on recommendation of the architect who drew the plans for the structure that will replace the First Baptist Church destroyed by fire last December.

The building plans as presently drawn would extend approximately five feet into W. Kingsmill street right-of-way.

Ward 2 commissioner Joe Curtis and Ward 3 commissioner Leo Braswell cast the dissenting votes. Mayor R.D. Wilkerson, Ward 1 commissioner Ray Thompson and Ward 4 commissioner Linden Shepherd voted to grant the easement.

Commissioners Curtis and Braswell said their action was based on possibility the easement might interfere with the city's thoroughfare plans on W. Kingsmill in future years.

"I would think," Commissioner Curtis said, "that it would be no problem for an architect to prepare building plans that would confine the structure to church property."

handling riders and ropers, are owned by Sonny Linger and Linger Rodeo Company of Miles City, Mont., supplier for the Top O' Texas Rodeo for the second year in a row.

"I brought my roughest stock," said Linger. "I think they're just as good as anybody else's. Every place we've been this year, they've bucked real good."

Gib is Linger's best bull. "He's a character. He's been bucking since a year ago last spring. This year, he's been out 18 times and been ridden once."

Gib is three, which is young for a bull with his talent. The average age of a good bucking bull, according to Linger, is 10 and they'll go until they're at least 14 or 15. Then they're turned into hamburger meat.

Bugler, 15 and in his last season, resembles a rhino because of his lone extended horn. "He bucks fair, but he's a good barrel bull, a good rodeo bull. He's real big and he has that one awful-looking horn - he looks mean," said Linger.

Black Bird, a black mare, and Delta Dawn, an always consistent horse, are Linger's best bareback horses. Deputy Dawg and Whispering Hope are his top saddle broncs.

"Whispering Hope is very unpredictable. When he does buck, he's really sensational. He's not a lazy horse. Just very temperamental."

Then there's Linger's newest addition - Huey, a semi-wild bareback bronc. "He threw a boy last week on his second jump; he's a little wild. One time he jumped out of the arena and their ump'd back in. You don't know what he's going to do. He may jump 30 feet sideways."

Linger also prides himself on his steers and calves. "It takes a pretty good horse to catch them."

The Montana stock producer envies his animals because of the life they lead, which is not exactly the life the ASPCA claims a rodeo animal suffers. "The animals like it," said Linger.

"Bulls like it. People don't stop to think what an easy life a bucking bull or bronc has. He's bucked maybe 15 times a year. 15 times at eight seconds a go-round means he'll work about two minutes a year. The rest of the time they get all the grass and hay they can eat. "They like it or they wouldn't do it."

The Pampa rodeo, which ranks 16th pursewise out of 74 RCA-sanctioned rodeos in the state, officially begins at 8 p.m. Wednesday and concludes Saturday night.

Opening ceremonies each night prior to rodeo competition will include the presentation of the American flag and the grand entry of Miss Rodeo Texas, Paula Davis, who is a student at Tuleton State College in Stephenville.

A spectacular portion of opening ceremonies will be the appearance of a remount team from Ft. Sill, Okla.

Six horses will pull a French '75' field gun into the arena, set up the artillery piece and fire a round just prior to playing of the National Anthem.

Pete Logan, announcer at the National Finals Rodeo eight times, will describe the events during pre-rodeo ceremonies and the rodeo itself.

Providing entertainment at each performance will be D.C. Cogburn, whose comedy acts feature sheepdogs, monkeys, Minnie the Mule and Brahma bull act. Cogburn and Buck LeGrande will also have the most dangerous jobs at the performances, that of rodeo clowns. Both are experienced at protecting cowboys from bucking animals and providing the audience with an entertaining time.

The brunt of the rodeo is the actual competition, which will involve several of the richest and top cowboys in the country.

Larry Mahan of Dallas has said he will return if the affair can be fit into his schedule, which includes a different rodeo nearly every day. Mahan was last year's All-Around Cowboy in the national standings and ranks third this year.

James Robinson of Brandon, Neb., perennially in the top five nationwide in bull riding, and Bobby Berger of Norman, Okla., an outstanding bronc and bull rider, are expected to enter sometime today, along with Rex Bland of McCamey, Tex., Lee Cockrell of Panhandle, Butch Kirby of Greenville, Tex., and Bobby Brown of Adrian. The latter four were all in last year's National Finals, which was held in Oklahoma City.

Don Gay of Mesquite, Tex., and John Davis of Hometown, Ida., who rank first and second respectively in the national bull riding standings, will not be here, said Gay from his home in Mesquite.

"We're getting ready to go to Hill City, Montana, and then to Great Falls and Helena, Montana. Then we've got to go to Casper, Wyoming, and Deadwood, South Dakota," said Gay.

NO ACTION ON RCD PLAN City Okays Engineering Firm For Plant Project

By TEX DEWESSE
Following an hour-long executive session this morning, Pampa city commissioners went into open meeting and voted to employ the Lubbock consultant engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper to prepare plans and specifications for the completion of the city's proposed $1.1 million sewage treatment plant project.

Step 1 of the project, involving preliminary planning, recently was completed by the Merriman and Barber engineering consultants of Pampa. It has received approval of the Texas Water Quality Board and now awaits an okay from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Improvement of the Pampa sewage treatment plant was ordered by the TWQB and EPA when the two agencies decided the local plant did not meet state and federal standards.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson said following today's employment of the Lubbock engineering firm that Parker, Smith and Cooper would be notified and contract arrangements would begin soon.

Commissioners decided to take no action on requested endorsement of an application for state and federal aid in preparing a plan for a Resource Conservation Development project in the area comprising Gray, Collingsworth, Donley, Hall, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Wheeler and that portion of Briscoe County below the "caprock."

The project plan, developed by the Soil Conservation Service, would not entail any financial obligation or sponsorship by the city, City Manager Mack Wofford said.

Commissioners said they felt they did not have sufficient information on the project to warrant immediate endorsement.

In other business today, Fred Thompson, a Pampa representative on the board of directors of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, was reappointed to the post for another two-year term. Thompson has been on the board ever since the organization of the CRMWA. Pampa's other member of the board is Jerald D. Sims.

Lee Fraser, Pernel Scoggins, Mrs. George Scott and Mrs. Jimmy Massa were reappointed members of the City Traffic Commission.

Abandoned buildings at 317 Perry, 324 N. Davis, 313 W. Tuke and 526 Elm were ordered removed and a continuance was granted on the public hearing for proposed removal of a structure at 623 N. Cutler.

Approval was given for the investment of $1.9 million in idle city funds. The funds will be deposited for six months in the Citizens Bank & Trust Co. bank at 7 percent interest. City Manager Mack Wofford told commissioners, the funds include social security, federal revenue sharing money, inactive bond funds and interest and sinking fund money for future bond payments.

The commission also approved transfer of $100,000 from the Water & Sewer Fund to the General Fund for operating expenses.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The second-ranking Republican on the House Judiciary Committee today urged that President Nixon be impeached on a third article - willfully ignoring committee subpoenas for 147 Watergate tapes.

The article was necessary, said its sponsor, Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., because the committee's inquiry had been critically hampered by Nixon's refusal to yield the tapes.

"If you ever saw an example of stonewalling, the prime example of stonewalling is right there," McClory said.

The committee already had recommended that Nixon be impeached for obstruction of justice in the Watergate cover-up and a general abuse of powers allegation. McClory voted against the former and in favor of the latter, which was approved 28 to 10 late Monday night.

He introduced Article III as the committee began its sixth day of televised debate over whether Nixon should be impeached and removed from office.

The proposed article charges that Nixon acted "in derogation of the power of impeachment" vested in the House by the Constitution.

McClory said that refusal had impinged on the constitutional authority of the committee to conduct its impeachment investigation.

The subpoenas - dated April 11, May 15, May 30 and June 24 - were issued on overwhelming bipartisan votes, McClory said, after Nixon failed to answer written requests. He said Nixon pledged in his state of the Union address last year to cooperate with the committee's investigation.

As reported in last Friday's edition of the News, the board has chosen, subject to final contract agreements, Dr. Daniel Frank Long to fill the vacancy created by the June 30 resignation of Dr. James F. Malone.

Dr. Long, currently assistant superintendent in the Austin school system, has said he would meet with the Pampa board on Wednesday to sign the three-year contract.

Local board president Paul Simmons reported last week that the contract signing will be conducted during a short executive session prior to opening of the board meeting.

The new superintendent, unanimous choice of the board following exhaustive investigation of several of the candidates for the post, is to assume duties here Aug. 15.

The 1974-75 school year will get underway with opening of the fall semester on Aug. 19.

Dr. Long, 45, is a native Texan born in Hewitt. He graduated from Baylor University with a major in education and has taught in elementary, junior high and senior high schools.

His contract calls for an annual salary of $31,000 plus car allowance of $200 per month.

Under provision of the State Minimum Foundation, the state will pay $20,000 of the yearly salary.

Dr. Long expects to be joined here in the near future by his wife Pat, and their 11-year old daughter Dana.

with the committee consistent with his presidential responsibilities.

"Where is that full cooperation with the House Judiciary Committee?" McClory asked.

Instead, the committee got edited White House transcripts made public before they were given to the committee. Of the tapes the committee got, he said, none came from the White House but from the Watergate grand jury and the special prosecutor.

McClory said that "if we refuse to recognize that the President should be impeached" for failure to provide subpoenaed materials, future presidents could decide for themselves what they would or would not provide for similar future inquiries.

"So it not only affects this president, but future presidents," McClory said.

While the committee was debating the subpoena matter, there was some talk among Nixon's supporters that the Republicans in the House quickly vote en masse for impeachment and let the Senate decide Nixon's innocence or guilt.

Convention Moves Into Final Hours

AUSTIN (UPI) - Texas' first Constitutional Convention in 98 years, initiated seven months ago to update a charter that still provides for defense against Indian raids, moved into its final hours today in an apparent stalemate over the labor-management issue of right to work.

Convention leaders planned one final vote on a proposed new constitution during the day, and said other votes might be possible if 121 of the 181 delegates could agree on a compromise. But most conceded that chances for approving a document by the necessary two-thirds majority before the automatic midnight adjournment were slim.

"Folks in this state are going to be madder than hell when it finally dawns on them that they're not going to get the opportunity to vote for or against a new constitution," said Rep. Hilary Doran, D-Del Rio.

The Substitution and Transition Committee met until midnight Monday to compromise the right to work issue, then finally surrendered and sent out for another convention vote the same proposed constitution rejected twice earlier in the day.

Both sides refused to yield in the tug of war over right to work, and each accused the other of trying to kill the new constitution after seven months of debate and expenditure of $4 million in tax funds.

"I know it's not negotiable with labor, and I know it's not negotiable with the Texas Manufacturer's Association, but dammit, it's gotta be negotiable with somebody," said Rep. Lyndon Olson, D-Waco, in disgust after the committee turned down his compromise on right to work.

"I think the odds are heavy now that we're not going to get a new constitution out of here," Convention President Price Daniel Jr. said before today's final session began. He blamed organized labor, strongest opponents of the anti-union right to work proposal, for repeated failure of proposed charters.

"If labor is dead set and hell bent on killing this constitution, that's the way it is," Daniel said.

Carrasco Seeks New Hostages

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) - In the seventh day of his siege at the Texas State Penitentiary, Fred Gomez Carrasco today offered to release his 13 captives in return for five prison officials, who he said "are playing a poker game with the lives of these hostages."

Kathy Ann Pollard, 24, daughter of one of the hostages, had a telephone talk with the renegade convict and she said he discarded demands for additional weapons.

'Mama' Cass Elliott Dies In Bed

LONDON (UPI) - An autopsy showed today that American singer Mama Cass Elliott did not die of a heart attack but probably choked to death on a ham sandwich she was eating while propped up in bed watching television.

Further laboratory tests were ordered to make sure. An inquest into the death will open at Westminster Coroner's Court Wednesday for the formal purpose of identifying the 31-year-old star who became internationally famous with the Mamas and Papas rock group.

The inquest will then be adjourned to await the result of the laboratory tests. British officials said the autopsy established that the 5-foot, 5-inch 238-pound former flower child did not die of a heart attack and an official source said, "We think she choked. The laboratory tests will make the cause of death certain."

Dr. Anthony Greenburg, who was called to Miss Elliott's luxurious Mayfair apartment, had not ruled out the possibility of a heart attack but he also expressed belief she choked to death.

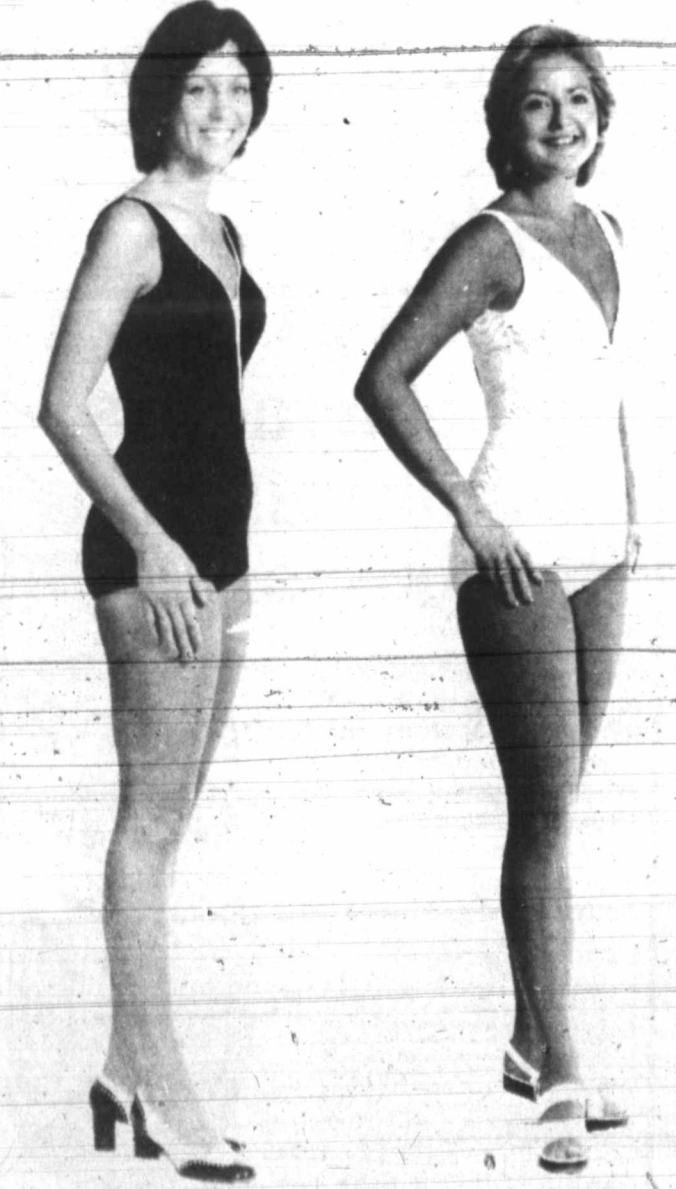

"I think the post mortem will probably show that she died as a result of choking on a sandwich while lying in bed and inhaling her own vomit," he said.

Miss Elliott, who gained recognition in the 1960s as the biggest "mama" of the Mamas and the Papas, died Monday when she took a bedtime sandwich break from one of her frequent crash diets.

Dot MacLeod, her English secretary, went to the apartment during the evening when Miss Cass failed to answer a telephone call. She reported finding the body slumped on a divan bed.

The secretary said the bedroom television set was on. She said a bottle of soda pop and a ham sandwich were on a bedside table.

Greenburg said the twice-divorced singer had been dead "for a considerable time before her body was found." He said she had seemed in good health.

BEAUTY REPRESENTATIVES - Gale Stout, left, will represent Montgomery Ward in the upcoming Miss Top O' Texas Beauty Pageant. Sponsored by Pantis West, Lea Johnson, right, will be another entrant for the Aug. 9 event at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Charges Hurting Connally

United Press International Harris County Republican Chairwoman Nancy Palm said Monday the indictments handed down against former Texas Gov. John B. Connally Jr. for accepting bribes and lying to a grand jury about it takes him out of the running for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination.

But Mrs. Palm joined other Republicans and Democrats in rallying around the silver-haired popular, former Democrat who joined the Republican Party last year.

"It absolutely eliminates him from any consideration as a presidential candidate," Mrs. Palm said moments after she learned the second Watergate grand jury had indicted Connally.

"Even if he is exonerated. Unfortunately an indictment in the public eye is tantamount to conviction."

"I'm very sorry for Mr. Connally and for his family. But this seemed to be inevitable. I have expected it for some time on the basis of reports in the news media."

Connally, 57, was charged with two counts of accepting $10,000 in bribes to influence a 1971 increase in milk price supports, one count of conspiracy to commit perjury and obstruct justice, and two counts of making false declarations before the grand jury. The charges carry a maximum penalty of 19 years in prison and $50,000 in fines.

An indictment is only an accusation and under our legal system we operate under the presumption of innocence until a jury has decided otherwise. Gov. Dolph Briscoe said. "These will not be easy times for Mr. Connally and his family and I would not want to make any statements to add to their burdens."

"I've always known John Connally to be an honorable man," said Connally's wife, Mrs. Nancy Connally. "John Connally has been a friend of mine for a long time."

Connally engineered Bentsen's election for the Senate in which he defeated incumbent Sen. Ralph W. Yarborough in the 1972 Democratic primary. Yarborough and Connally are political enemies.

He had already lost his bid for the Republican nomination because they found out what he was doing, but I think the Democratic party is now re-assessing its leadership. Connally was the driving force which put Robert Strauss in charge of the Democratic National Committee. He raised the $5.5 million used to buy a seat in the U. S. Senate for Lloyd Bentsen.

Episcopal Bishops Ignore Threats, Ordain Women

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ignoring threats of disciplinary action and vocal protests from a group of priests in the audience, four Episcopal bishops Monday ordained 11 women as the first female priests in the history of the church.

A standing-room-only crowd packed into a sweltering church in North Philadelphia to watch the ceremony, which had been condemned by the Episcopal Church on grounds it violated church law.

In a statement issued during the ceremony, Bishop Lyman C. Ogilby of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, who refused to sanction the services, said those participating were "subjecting themselves to such appropriate action as may later be determined by the church."

AHC May Lift Quarantine Rule

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Animal Health Commission expects to lift the blanket anthrax quarantine this week and only restrict movement to and from ranches with confirmed cases of anthrax.

Commissioners reduced the boundaries of the quarantine Monday and rescinded regulations limiting distribution of vaccine for the livestock disease.

The boundaries for the blanket quarantine were reduced to include only the portions of Falls County east of the Brazos River and south of Farm Road 712 and Highway 7.

Officials recommended vaccine supplies on hand be used only in the Falls County area and localities where the anthrax organisms are constantly present such as Gulf Coast regions.

On July 17, the commission limited the sale and distribution of anthrax vaccine to Falls, Milam, Robertson, Leon, Freestone, McLennon, Limestone and Bell counties. But that order was rescinded Monday.

OF PRESIDENT NIXON Committee Denies Security Claim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee in effect decided Monday that President Nixon's condoning of wiretaps and establishing of the White House "plumbers" unit could not be justified in terms of national security.

During some of the most substantive debate during the impeachment proceedings, Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., said: "We cannot here today make this record too replete with documentation that says once and for all that the bugaboo of national security will no longer suffice to intimidate the Congress or scare the American people into condoning activities of the kind we have heard here in Article II of these proceedings."

Two subpoints of Article II recommend impeachment of Nixon on grounds he condoned electronic surveillance of citizens and established the plumbers to carry out a covert operation against Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg — in violation of their constitutional rights.

A motion to strike the subpoints was shouted down. Nixon's defenders said that in 1969, 1970 and 1971 while these things were done, the United States was in war in Vietnam and carrying on strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) — and secret reports were being leaked to newspapers.

"There certainly is no ground for impeaching a President who acts to save the lives of our troops," said Rep. Carlos J. Moorhead, R-Calif.

GOP Reps. Charles E. Wiggins of California and Joseph J. Maraziti of New Jersey said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, then Nixon's national security affairs adviser, was very concerned about the leaks.

The taps were placed on phones of about 21 National Security Agency and White House employees and reporters, as well as the President's brother, Donald Nixon.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., chairman of the committee's Constitutional and Civil Rights subcommittee, said in many cases the conversations were those of citizens, their wives and children, chatting on the telephone, exchanging their joys, sorrows and anxieties.

Rep. William E. Cohen, R-Maine, said: "A man cannot set dogs loose with general instructions to stop and destroy leaks at any cost, and then say that he is not responsible when the constitutional rights of citizens are shredded in the process."

Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., said: "We've learned that in Russia you must never have a serious conversation without turning on the water or radio so the conversation cannot be heard by the secret listening devices."

Bentsen Picked To Reply To Nixon's Speech

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., a Texas Democrat who openly admits his presidential aspirations, has been picked by his colleagues to appear on national television Wednesday to answer President Nixon's speech on the economy.

And although he would not divulge what he will say, Bentsen said Monday Nixon is to blame for the country's inflation and only Congress can keep the United States from tumbling into a recession.

"The President is trying to blame the Congress (charging) budget busting," Bentsen said. "If you take all of the budgets submitted by this President since he's been in office the Congress has cut his budgets."

Bentsen said Nixon proposed the country's first $200 billion budget and its first $300 billion budget. "He's proposed more deficit spending than any President since World War II."

Bentsen said high interest rates could lead to a recession, but added he does not believe in imposing a ceiling on prime rates.

"If they continue with these high interest rates, they'll build inflation into the system. (Then) you'll have a very serious recession."

The problem with a ceiling on interest rates is just that the money just goes to other places. You end up with money just not available. I would much rather see things done to bring down interest rates."

Fire Damages Car Firemen were called at 2:25 a.m. today to a car fire on Price Road. A carburetor fire caused heavy damage to the motor of a 1961 Chevrolet.

Donations Given As Aid For House Fire Victims More than $120 in cash, plus many other contributions had been received as of this morning in a campaign to assist a local family which lost their home and possessions in a fire a week ago Monday.

The Harilee Whitehead family, whose home at 212 S. Nelson was demolished by fire, are living temporarily at 1213 1/2 S. Faulkner and reportedly have acquired a furnished mobile home.

For that reason, a family spokesman said, there is no longer a need for furniture, although clothing and other items are needed.

The family consists of Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead and two teenage sons living at home. They are Phillip Lave Whitehead, 16, a high school senior; and Russell Lance Whitehead, 14, a junior high student. Two married children also live in Pampa.

Cash donations are being accepted at the First National Bank by Glenda Duddy.

A friend of the family, Mrs. D.W. Swain, is also assisting in the drive to help the family, who spent seven years improving the home, only to lose everything in the fire which was caused by a blow-torch being used for bathroom repairs.

The Pampa Jaycee-Ettes have volunteered their help in the drive.

Clothing sizes for Phillip are: pants, 29 waist, 32 length; shirts, boys size 18 or small.

Russell: Pants, boys size 14 (slim); shirts, boys size 16.

Mrs. Whitehead's size is 9 or 10, with 34 blouse. Mr. Whitehead wears 34 waist, 30 length, and medium shirt.

Youth Center Report

GAME ROOM

If you have not been out to the Center lately, there has been some changes you might be interested in. Part of the recreation room that was used for pool tables and ping pong and other quiet games has been turned into a new game room.

There are several games such as foosball, air hockey, pin ball machines and an auto race machine. These have provided hours of entertainment for the young people and you are invited to come out and participate.

We have also installed a new cover on our trampoline and new springs which makes a very lively bounce now. A new low diving board has also been installed in the swimming pool.

ACTIVITY HOURS

The Youth Center is open almost all the time during the summer months so that the young people may have a place to have leisure time activities. All swim lessons are taught during the morning hours from 8-12 p.m. thus freeing the evening and nighttime for full activities.

The Center is open from 8-12, 1-5 and 7-10 each weekday and 1-5 on Saturday. The swimming pool is open from 1-4:30 and 7-9:30 on weekdays and 1-4:30 on Saturday.

During the evening and nighttime hours you may participate in swimming, pool, ping pong, basketball, trampoline, tumbling, wrestling, checkers, chess, dominoes, volleyball and use the new game room.

CALICO CAPERS SQ.

If you are an adult who is interested in square dancing, the Center has just the thing for you. The Calico Capers Square Dance Club uses the facilities of the Center for their square dancing each Saturday night. The club has approximately 30 couples who are members and enjoy the fun and fellowship of this square dance club.

The current club president is Charles Eckhart and he would invite all adults who are not currently a member of any other square dance club to come and join the Capers. The club meets each Saturday night at 8-11 except fifth Saturday nights. President Eckhart and the other members will be happy to give you all the information about their club and how you may join. Drop by on any Saturday night or give Charles a call. You will thoroughly enjoy this activity.

YOUTH CENTER MEMBERSHIPS

Participation in the activities of the Center are through a membership plan or a daily fee. The most economical plan is to purchase a membership for the whole family. The cost is really fantastic with all the benefits you receive. The limited membership plan sold to individuals or families entitles you to use of the gym, recreation hall, swimming pool and dressing rooms as well as free swim lessons. The cost of this plan for an individual is $8 for six months or $10 a year. For a family the cost is only $15 for six months or $25 a year.

The unlimited membership plan adds to the above plan the use of the new health facility. This facility houses all the exercise machines, handball and racquetball courts and sauna.

If you are interested in lost weight and inches, the health club membership is your best plan. We have all types of machines including the bicycles, barrel rollers, vibrator belts, rowing machines, jungle pulley universal machine, hips away, sit-up boards and all types of weight lifting equipment.

The unlimited plan costs only $10.50 per month for an individual or for a husband and wife the cost is only $13.87 per month after your initial sign-up. For further details, come by the health club and get the full story.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Bruce's tragic experience should shock millions of parents. The world may thus have lost a great scientist just for lack of a YMCA in his city. So be liberal with your gifts to the "Y" for it saves both bodies and souls!

CASE B - 608: Bruce Lockridge, aged 16, graduated with me from Ft. Wayne (Indiana) Central High School.

Bruce was a brilliant boy and came from a very cultured family, which included his younger brother Ross, later the author of the famous novel "Raintree County."

As I recall, it wasn't more than a week after our graduation that Bruce went on a Boy Scout hike.

Being an energetic, venturesome personality, Bruce led the way as they were wading in the river.

Alas, he stepped off into a deep hole and went under.

And Bruce was only a newcomer to Scouting, so he hadn't yet learned how to swim!

So he drowned, much to the shock of his fine family and to us classmates.

He also was an active member of the Young People's Society of our church.

Since I was then president of that church group (as well as a close personal friend and classmate) his parents asked me to recruit a few other members of our church organization to sit up with Bruce.

For in those days (1919) the dead were usually kept in their own homes till the funeral.

Meanwhile, friends sat up all night in an adjacent room to maintain the "wake" so that the departed would not seem to be forgotten quickly.

My future wife was then a vice-president of the same church society, so she and half a dozen others joined me in our all-night vigil.

But my main purpose in recounting this tragic episode, is to show the value of teaching your children how to swim.

When Bruce and I graduated from high school in the thriving city of Ft. Wayne, the YMCA had only recently been organized, but had no building and no swimming pool.

Even today (1974) about 8,000 die of drowning each year.

So your support of the "Y" helps insure thousands of talented youth a chance to live to a ripe old age and thus repay society by their various talents.

For Bruce combined a brilliant, inquisitive mind, with a dynamic, probing type of personality.

So who knows what great impact he might have made on the advancement of civilization!

Parents, please don't delay in making sure your kiddies, even of kindergarten age, know how to "dog paddle" at least a few feet!

For if Bruce had known even that rudimentary stroke called dog paddling he could easily have swum back to shallow water.

For at the moment he stepped off into a deep hole, he probably was less than 10 feet from safety!

Don't fret unduly about fancy swimming strokes, such as the Australian crawl, or the butterfly, the backstroke, etc.

Just start with the simple dog paddling and see that your youngsters can swim at least 100 feet this summer!

For that will usually get them back to an upset boat or canoe or to the shallower water from which they step into a deep hole.

But never toss a scared child into deep water as you would employ the "sink or swim" strategy.

Send for my 200-page "Tests for Parents," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and use them this summer!

SUSPICIOUS BAG

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Secret Service agents collared Charles Vicker, 51, Saturday about a brown paper bag he was holding — later discovered to contain chocolate cookies and ice cream — during a speech by Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

Agents stood by Vicker during Ford's speech here at the professional football Hall of Fame Vicker put down the bag only to applaud Ford. Then, when he began to open it, the agents moved in.

Vicker's pockets contained a watch, and he said he had a small pocket knife to sharpen pencils.

Vicker said he did not think he would be asked about the bag.

"There are plenty of other people in the crowd with bags," he said.

Last Week In Wall Street

By BOB HILL

Lentz, Newton & Co., Amarillo. Now it's the governments' turn to be cited for air pollution.

How did it happen? By trying to dispose of all those worn out dollar bills and other denominations of paper currency.

The San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank has been charged with violation of local air pollution rules 13 times in the past 24 months and faces a $500 fine for each infraction. (Each regional Federal Reserve Bank must dispose of worn and unusable paper currency.)

The problem is complicated by the fact that our paper money is a combination of 75 percent cotton and 25 percent linen. The ink contains iron oxide and lead. This compound gives our paper money an average life of just 18 months. But the process for destroying paper and other trash doesn't work very well on our paper currency.

Several of the Federal Reserve Banks burn the worn out currency just as they have for many years. The Dallas Fed uses a hammill to chew up the currency. This causes problems due to the large amount of space required for the equipment which makes a tremendous racket heard throughout the building when the machinery cranks up. It also creates a fluff several times the volume of the currency being destroyed. Dallas bales this fluff and ships it to a drilling mud company in Kansas. The San Antonio Fed converts its fluff into roofing felt and the Philadelphia Fed converts its fluff into wall plates for electric switches.

Destroying currency by the use of wet chemicals would be a neat solution except for the water pollution and handling problems which it creates.

Meanwhile the New York Fed burns over 400-million pieces of money and the Los Angeles-branch burns over 150-million bills a year in clean-burning incinerators which are loaded with scrubbers, after-burners and mixing chambers designed to reduce air pollution.

Although federal agencies are not subject to local air pollution control ordinance, the government is striving to comply.

The U.S. Treasury was recently scolded by the District of Columbia Health Dept. for "smoking up" the air during periodic burns. The city has given the Treasury a one-year grace period to cut down on the amount of smoke.

Self praise is half scandal. It was once said, but God is to be praised and true praise of God is a worthy sacrifice, for all who are self centered.

Skepticism, A Good Detergent

Within limits, skepticism has a cleansing effect. The reader has been a witness to the purifying consequence in the last several years. It proceeded by stages. Here they are as we review them:

First, Rep. Richard Nixon ran afoul of the liberal media by exposing Alger Hiss. That was in 1948.

Second, the liberal media struck back at Senator Nixon by exposing the private fund that was set up for him by political backers. This was in 1952, during General Eisenhower's campaign for the Presidency. Nixon turned the exposure to his own benefit by the famous Checkers broadcast.

Third, the liberal media struck again in 1960, by assisting John Kennedy's presidential victory, and again in 1962 by contributing to Nixon's gubernatorial defeat.

Fourth, in 1968, the liberal media took a dim view of the Vietnam war. Press and television applied a label to President Johnson's gift for expedience. This was the "credibility gap." This was the grand entry of skepticism onto the political state.

Following his victory in 1968, Nixon with the help of Spiro Agnew hammered at biased reporting, especially on television. The media staggered for a few months, but took up the battle. The Vice-President was exposed for converting donations to personal use and not reporting them as income. The President was implicated in an alleged conspiracy to obstruct justice by allegedly authorizing payment to prevent testimony. The heat on the administration reached a degree that the major networks and Washington press corps sensed a bad reaction; namely, that members of the public were beginning to believe that the news media were behaving as a prosecutor.

At this point, the Washington news corps corrected it behavior. After reporting that Mrs. Nixon had received jewels as a gift from a foreign potentate, the news men found that they could hardly withhold the fact the Hubert Humphrey's wife, Senator William Fulbright's wife, and the wife of former Secretary of State William Rogers had done the same. So far no evidence has been produced to indicate that any of the gifts influenced the conduct of foreign policy. However none was necessary. By this time press and public alike were sensitive enough to understand that receipt of gifts, if retained, imply reciprocity.

The grand result is that newsmen are more skeptical of politicians (even those of their own party), that politicians are more wary of newsmen (even those of their own ideology), and that observant members of the public are more skeptical of both. Such mutual vigilance should have a deterrent effect on gross impropriety. Maybe the purification doesn't change the heart, but it certainly inhibits indefensible conduct.

Carried too far, skepticism could grow into a breakdown of confidence. That probably would be tragic. The best preventative we can think of is not to venture confidence out to the point where it can be broken.

Confidence is like a turtle's head; it belongs close to the shell. Thanks to the revealing scrap between the several political elements, Americans do not have their necks out as far as they used to.

OUTRIDER The Last Few Survivors

By GARRY WILLS.

Several people have wondered, recently, why the President of the United States confers non-stop with a dim young fellow whose only gift seems to be for not answering questions. Wonder no more. The President is just short on undicted friends. He is down to the last flunky or two, and Mr. Ziegler has always been the major flunky — one whose thimble of a mind was from the outset filled with Mr. Nixon's raindrops on personality.

Even the last few flunkies cannot keep their stories straight. In a continuation of the Nixon policy on investigators — if you can't convince 'em, fire 'em — Albert Jenner was recently dismissed as minority counsel in favor of Sam Garrison, over at the House Judiciary Committee. Upon which Mr. Garrison's first arguments were repudiated by James St. Clair. Mr. Nixon's apologist of record.

It is fascinating the way Nixon expects us to believe that he is the victim of a plot carried out by the Democrats. His own appointees, direct or indirect, have accused him — Messrs. Richardson, Cox, Ruckelshaus, Jaworski, and Jenner. And each time, after appointing the man and praising his integrity, he has fired or rebuked him or had him fired, when the honest men went after dishonesty. After arguing that the case should go to the courts, he has called all the judges partisan — Gesell as well as Sirica, and no doubt, "the Nixon court" will be accused in the same way when its verdict comes down.

By now the message should be getting through to Nixon that only the Zieglers of this world will continue to parrot his claims of innocence. But of course Mr. Ziegler is hired to prevent that message from being heard. It is something that cannot even hear himself. He cannot answer questions because he is incapable of understanding them — an indispensable talent in this White House.

Mr. Garrison says Nixon withheld information to prevent a self-incrimination. Mr. St. Clair hastily responds that there is nothing incriminating in the unreleased evidence — though he has not himself listened to the unreleased evidence, and even the sanitized evidence so far released is incriminating.

Mr. Garrison argues that even if the evidence incriminates, we should keep the President on for the public good. This used to be known as "coddling criminals." It is now the higher patriotism.

Mr. Nixon tells his tame rabbi, a kind of comic Ron Ziegler for the old ladies' trade, that people would understand his actions if they had been in his office "getting one story from one person, and another story from another person." But Nixon has it in his power to let us join him in that office and hear their conflicting stories — by release of the subpoenaed tapes. He chooses not to do that. That is because even the partial tapes scrubbed up for release show us one person — the President — telling us one story, and then another story, and then denying that Story One contradicts Story Two.

Poor St. Clair brings in a snippet of tape with an accidental prediction by the President, and expects to be believed. But we know how partial quotes from the tapes are used by the White House. Remember "It would be wrong" — the only words Nixon would at first publish from his talk with John Dean on hush money? Once the tape was released, even after White House screening, that phrase lost its magic. It clearly meant in context, "It would not work." Yet St. Clair expects people to believe in the selective leaks he pumps out for his client.

Even die-hard Nixonians like James Jackson Kilpatrick are giving up. There is no way to defend this President any more and retain a shred of dignity. The camp shrinks down to Nixon and Ron against the world. Walt Disney and his only Mickey Mouse. They deserve not only their opponents, but each other.

INSIDE LABOR Europe Labor Goes Socialist

By VICTOR RIESEL

LONDON — While visiting with Prime Minister Harold Wilson at Downing Street not too long ago I asked him what he had in common with President Nixon. Urbanely Wilson lit a cigar, chuckled and retorted, "Well, we were both elected."

In effect, Mr. Wilson said, they have in common the protection of the freedoms which have sprung from generations of Anglo-American cooperation despite the uncertainties of the London-Washington love-hate syndrome.

But that's where it ends. Prime Minister Wilson sees a socialist Europe — meaning Western Europe. A nationalized coalition of nations outside the Communist bloc. A Europe in which everything of consequence, from the press and television to auto-making, is run by national and international government boards.

This is a view of Europe the casual tourists and speeding businessmen and even the traditional hard-working foreign correspondent doesn't often see. This is a side of the sophisticated, cultured, mostly soft-spoken heads of state such as Harold Wilson, or ex-Chancellor Willy Brandt, or Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, or Prime Minister Joop den Uyl of the Netherlands, which isn't often discussed in America.

They are socialists. They are members of the executive Bureau of the Socialist International headquartered at 88A St. John's Wood High St. It's a small "suite" of offices. But it has a commanding sweep of the politics of most of the non-Communist world.

Just this past June 30 there was a "Party Leaders' Conference" of the Socialist International. This wasn't held in any old-fashioned labor "hall" in some proletarian workers' district. It was hosted by Harold Wilson. It was held at the Prime Minister's sumptuous state-provided country home, Chequers, in Buckinghamshire where have sat the great from Disraeli to Churchill.

It was easily arranged. Harold Wilson not only is Prime Minister and thus leader of the Parliamentary Labor Party, which is the kind of majority Dick Nixon could use, but it is vice-chairman of the Socialist International's declarations reveals that it gives world private industry and capitalism, especially international capitalism, not to mention bankers, just about 24 hours to get out.

At the Party Leaders' Conference, just to show how politically influential the little-known Socialist International is, were leaders of 26 Social Democratic and Labor parties, including 10 prime ministers, one president, one who was almost president of France, five cabinet ministers and one former prime minister.

There are all sorts of Socialist International activities keeping the high command always on the move. There will be an extraordinary meeting of the International's bureau to review the world situation her Oct. 26.

They're particularly uptight on multinational corporations in general and American companies in particular. Never mind the urbanity of a Wilson or the brotherly warmth of a Willy Brandt. They're Socialists — and the nations their Labor and Social Democratic parties govern slowly, but with downright certainty, are closing in on the rights of management to manage — and even to own.

It's on the record. Recently the International's bureau dispatched a committee to cooperate with the "working group" of a multinational labor organization called the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions.

The Socialists met at a closed conference sponsored by this ICFTU (allegedly with some 60 million union members affiliated through their organizations) in Geneva June 13 and 14.

The conference decided to establish permanent collaboration between the ICFTU, the international trade secretariats, the Socialist International and the Socialist and Social Democratic political parties in the fight against multinational firms.

This is a vital corner of the world which rarely gets news coverage in America. Yet it has an increasing impact on the U.S. By political osmosis their social policies constantly seep into our economic front. For example, one international trade secretariat is the International Metalworkers Federation, a powerful Geneva-based coalition of free world unions whose members handle metal — autos, for example. Its new leader is United Auto Workers' international affairs director (successor to Victor Reuther) Herman Rebhan.

He cooperates very closely with the German and Japanese metal workers. They've had considerable political influence.

At the June meeting the ICFTU-Socialist coalition decided to fight for "effective control of the activities of multinational companies" by creating a "truly international organization... to exercise real control" over international industry.

This is the big political labor story of the future — our future.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON Hardin Still Not Clear On That Milk Affidavit

By C. MOLLENHOFF
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Former Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin isn't in the clear yet on the highly questionable affidavit he signed concerning his reason for reversing himself and boosting dairy price supports to 85 percent of parity on March 25, 1971.

That affidavit, signed by Hardin on March 7, 1972, is at odds with hundreds of pages of testimony and documents compiled by the Senate Select Watergate Committee showing the strong currents of political campaign cash flowing from the dairy industry to the Nixon re-election committee.

Reliable sources also report the White House tapes of two of Mr. Hardin's meetings with President Nixon on March 23, 1971, are at variance with his affidavit swearing under oath there were no other considerations than "the statutory criteria" involved in his unusual decision to boost milk supports from $4.66 to $4.93 per hundredweight.

At the heart of Hardin's problem are these factors:

1. On March 12, 1971, after several months of compiling economic reports and dairy forecasts in the normal departmental manner, Hardin announced dairy support levels would be $4.66 per hundredweight, or 80 percent of parity.
2. On March 23, 1971, Hardin met at 10:30 a.m. at the White House with the President, dairy industry officials and lawyers in the Cabinet room to discuss political and economic arguments for higher dairy supports.
3. On March 23, at 4:45 p.m., Hardin again met with the President, then Treasury Secretary John Connally, then Special Assistant John Ehrlichman and others from the administration. The President made the decision to increase milk price supports and there was a discussion of having special counsel Charles Colson alert the milk producers to the decision.
4. At 11 p.m. that night, Herbert Kalmbach, the President's personal lawyer and fund raiser, met with Murray Chotiner, a lawyer for dairy interests, and Harold Nelson, general manager for the Associated Milk Producers, Inc. The meeting was to "reaffirm" a dairy industry pledge to contribute $2 million to President Nixon's re-election campaign.
5. On March 25, 1971, Hardin announced a boost in support levels to $4.93 per hundredweight — or 85 percent of parity — with no consultation with any of the top economic advisors in his Department of Agriculture and with no new economic reports for backup.

In his affidavit a year later, Hardin stated erroneously the March 25 decision to boost supports "was based entirely on reconsideration of the evidence on the basis of statutory criteria and that it was his personal decision" after normal advice from three named assistants. All three assistants have told the special prosecutor and the Senate Watergate Committee they weren't consulted.

The decision of Senator Sam Ervin's Watergate Committee not to have public hearings on the dairy deals saved Hardin considerable political embarrassment. But his affidavit is in the hands of Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who also has access to the White House tapes of Mr. Nixon's two meetings with Hardin on March 23 — two days before Hardin suddenly announced the new higher support level.

Hardin, Mr. Nixon's first Secretary of Agriculture, resigned on November 17, 1971, to become a vice-chairman and member of the board of Ralston Purina Company, St. Louis, Mo.

In March, 1972, when President Nixon was still riding high and seemed invulnerable, Hardin had no problem in remembering that he and he alone made the decision to boost dairy supports. He said, "The decision to set the price support level at $4.93 per hundredweight was based entirely on a reconsideration of the evidence on the basis of the statutory criteria."

After sticking his neck out a mile to assert that the White House had no part of the decision, Secretary Hardin was faced last January with President Nixon's admissions that he had been involved in the dairy decision and that it was based upon "political realities."

President Nixon's explanation, while admitting "political factors," stopped short of admitting the quid pro quo for campaign funds that would have amounted to a criminal law violation.

Hardin, when questioned by Senate Watergate staff members on the March 23 afternoon meeting with the President during which the milk boost decision was made, had no recollection on many crucial points. Later at the request of the White House, Hardin claimed "executive privilege" on what transpired at the meeting.

The Senate Watergate Committee didn't have presidential tapes of that meeting when it wrote its report. But the special prosecutor does have those White House tapes as they prepare for further grand jury exploration of the dairy deals.

Since Hardin was the statutory decision maker as Secretary of Agriculture, any grand jury investigation of the legality or motivation behind that decision will make the former chancellor of the University of Nebraska a key witness.

At that point, Cliff Hardin will have to make a tough choice.

He can stand by his March, 1972, affidavit in which he put his name on the line to absolve Mr. Nixon and the White House associates from responsibility for the controversial dairy price support boost.

This would be at odds with the admissions of the White House, the testimony of dozens of others and the common sense that economic conditions had not changed so much between March 12 and March 25, 1971, to warrant an upward adjustment of 27 cents a hundredweight.

Or, Hardin can decide, as others have done, that it is time to look out for his own hide and not argue with the White House tapes which he did not know existed when he made his initial affidavit.

H. L. Hunt Writes

THE LEGACY OF PRICE CONTROLS

The legacy left by price controls is ample proof that never again resort to controls as means of "helping" the economy.

In August, 1971, when price controls were imposed, the Consumer Price Index was rising at a rate of about 3 percent per year. By 1973, after a year and a half of controls, the official cost of living increased was 8 percent per year. In the early months of 1974 the inflation rate was over 10 percent.

During 1971, the Wholesale Price Index rose by less than 3 percent. During the next two years, the index rose over 20 percent.

Stock prices have fallen an average of 50 Dow Jones points below their level in August, 1971. From 1967 to 1972, consumer prices rose 23.4 percent, but the dividends on the Standard and Poor's list of 500 stocks rose only 5 percent, and the Dow Jones Industrials declined 4.5 percent.

These facts clearly indicate the futility of price controls. Yet controls do serve one purpose: they distract the public's attention from the primary cause of inflation, government deficit spending. Under the Nixon Administration, the federal debt has increased from less than $370 billion to over $480 billion. Until that debt is reduced, inflation will continue.

Old Romeo still gives thrills

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune. N. V. Stern, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: That wife who griped because her husband came back home in an amorous mood after driving the kids to school ought to have her head examined. (She said that was no time for love-making.)

What better time? No kids to worry about, make all the noise you want, and have a ball!

The other morning, my husband kissed me goodbye at the door before going to work. I responded with an affectionate bear hug. Two minutes later, as I was pouring myself another cup of coffee, here comes old Romeo back again, grinning.

He was a little late for the office that morning, but so what? I'm thrilled that he can still get that excited about me after 29 years. He's 69, and I'm 53. LUCKY ME

DEAR ABBY: A wife complains that her husband comes home after he takes the kids to school, expecting her to make the bedroom scene with him. And the dummy is annoyed yet, because she has housework to do!

Your advice: "The housework will keep. Shoot the ducks while they're flying," was right on target.

The season never closes on ducks here. And no non-resident permits allowed.

J.E.J., MANHATTAN BEACH, CAL.

DEAR ABBY: Recently we invited some friends to dinner. I'll call them "Mr. and Mrs. X." Our TV was on when they arrived because we had been watching it before they drove up.

Mr. X told us on a previous occasion that he didn't care to have the TV on while he was trying to converse, but we forgot to turn it off. We had one cocktail, and the TV was still on, but we were also visiting.

Mr. X then said he had come to see us, and he thought it was rude to keep the TV on. A few minutes later he got up and went outside. Mrs. X said he probably wanted to walk around the yard. Then she went out to check on him and she returned saying their car was gone and so was he!

Mr. X didn't return, so we ate without him. Later when we took Mrs. X home, she thanked us for the lovely evening. My husband says if Mr. X calls to apologize, he won't even speak to him. PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Why? Mr. X told you quite candidly that he was irritated by your TV, but you ignored him. Finally he reached the end of his patience and took his leave, which was rude and childish. But you were rude and insensitive.

Better x the "X's" off your list, because they probably have x'd you off theirs.

CONFIDENTIAL TO K.O.: If you're serious about organizing a girls' boxing team in high school this fall, you'd better plan on providing them with some sort of artificial padding to protect their natural padding. Girls need to be protected in certain anatomical areas the same as men, albeit different areas.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclosed stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 31

Your birthday today:

You're still on the frontiers of a big future, what's past is merely the preparation. This year opens with basic decisions, is filled with follow-up activity. High moments of triumph are shared, as teamwork offers best results. Relations require your candid but tactful opinions. Today's natives are versatile, often interested in the occult.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: This is a day of serious consideration on wide range of subjects. Concentrate on what touches your welfare and happiness. Get your own house in order.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Midweek finds you crossing over from one side to another, and having to watch your step. What is dropped or refused today is gone for good. Offer thanks!

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Concerns about money run to extremes of thrift or extravagance, no middle ground. Your theories are easily shot down by talk, remain to be tested in real life.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Associates balk at practically anything you propose. Pursue what's been settled, leave the suggesting to others. Special care in travel, errands is indicated.

Leo [July 23-Aug 22]: Conserve your energy; don't rush, start early with a check list. Do no more than necessary on anything beyond routine—this avoids retracing of steps.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Overly extended enterprises meet resistance. Public images suffer. Sit tight, prepared to help once you're asked. There'll be plenty of time then.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: You can't have all you'd like today; personal goals aren't included in most business schemes. Much thought is needed to cope with today's affairs.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Postpone travels until you are more certain of what you can accomplish. Expect people who know you well to be moody, unlikely to agree readily on anything.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Financial moves are especially sensitive, worth your close attention. You're apt to be rash, and say things a little too strongly. Self-discipline!

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Most important are your own connections, your responses to them. Limitations can now be faced directly, lines drawn, sound plans laid for future achievement.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Focus on yourself and your appearance, how you present yourself to the world. You can get through the day without friction by using your head and charm.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: It's a day of crosscurrents, local opposition or gaps of communications. Take nothing for granted, do your full share without complaint.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Speaking generally, when a side suit is led against a declarer's trump contract, and he cannot win the trick except by trumping, he naturally trumps the trick. But, on occasion, paradoxical though it may appear, declarer can sometimes gain a trick by not trumping, and, instead, conceding the trick to the defenders.

The latter situation developed in today's deal, which was played in the World Olympiad of 1972. The hand came up in the match between Poland and the United States.

North - South vulnerable. East deals.

NORTH

EAST

The bidding:
East - South
Pass 1♠
Pass 1♦

West - North
Pass 2♠

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

The above was the bidding sequence when Poland held the North-South cards. The American West defender got off to a low heart lead, and the trick was captured by East's ace. East returned a heart - but South did not ruff the trick. Instead he tossed away a club, making the play known as "discarding a loser on a loser."

At the moment that West won this trick with his king, dummy's jack of hearts became promoted into a winner. To trick three West returned a heart (no other return could have altered the outcome), dummy's jack capturing the trick. On this third heart lead, South discarded another club.

A diamond was next played off the board, South putting up his king when East played low. The three of diamonds was then led, and taken by East's jack. South's now - singleton ace winning. South now ruffed his remaining low diamond as East's ace fell. Trumps were then drawn, and South claimed his contract.

When the deal was replayed with the United States holding the North-South cards, the Polish West defender also got off to a low heart - opening lead against South's four - spade contract. But, upon winning the trick with his ace, East did not return a heart. Instead, he made the very effective lead of a trump.

Declarer now found himself in a hopeless position; and when play had ended, he had gone down a trick, losing a heart, a diamond, and two clubs. And so Poland scored a game in spades at one table, while defeating the same game at the other table.

Keep kiddies happy and avoid fights at parties by giving everyone identical party favors.

New Process Saves Energy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A small California research company has patented a new process for making aluminum and other metals without the vast quantities of electricity now consumed.

Robert A. Gilmore, president of the Parlee-Anderson Corporation, said the new process saves "up to 50 per cent" of the overall energy cost of producing aluminum and other reactive metals.

Aluminum production now takes 5 per cent of all the electrical energy produced in the United States. This is equivalent to the total output of all the nuclear power plants in operation.

The Parlee-Anderson process involves dissolving the ore in a liquefied metal such as copper or tin under intensive heat. This prevents the formation of useless carbides and thus is much more efficient than currently used metallurgical processes.

The new technique costs about $1 per pound of metal produced and therefore is not yet economical for aluminum. But, in the production of more expensive metals like zirconium, it can drastically reduce energy consumption as well as cut the price of the metal in half.

Zirconium, highly resistant to corrosion, is used in fine surgical instruments, nuclear power plants and flashbulbs. It costs $7 to $14 per pound. The U.S. uses about five million pounds of it a year, and large deposits of the ore are available.

"Since the method costs about $1 per pound, we are looking first at metals that cost more than that, like zirconium, titanium and uranium," said Robert N. Anderson. "But as the cost of electricity goes up it could become feasible for aluminum."

Anderson and co-inventor Norman A. Parlee are metallurgy professors at Stanford University. They formed their research company in Menlo Park in 1971 and have now obtained a patent on the process for producing zirconium.

The metals industry as a whole takes about 20 per cent of all the electrical power produced in the United States," said Anderson. "The essential change we envision is separating these metals without going through the electrical power."

The new technique requires significant use of other forms of energy to heat the "solvent" metals, but the total energy cost of production will still be down 40 to 50 per cent, according to the company.

Gilmore is optimistic about the Parlee-Anderson process for several business reasons besides the saving of electricity.

He says the problem of "scaling up" the system to mass production would require no new breakthrough in engineering or technology. No new pollution problems are involved.

In addition, he says, the dependence of the U.S. metals industry on foreign suppliers of bauxite and other ingredients essential to present production of these metals would be eliminated.

Gilmore notes that if titanium, zirconium, uranium and about 50 other "reactive" metals become cheaper, they could be used in many more ways than they are now.

For example, he says, zirconium, in combination with other metals, is "superconductive." This means it does not heat up from electrical current and thus could be used in electrical generating plants—an added energy bonus because these plants now waste a great deal of energy through heat.

Zales Managers Attend Meeting

The largest cut pear shaped diamond in the United States was one of the glittering attractions when Tony Vess, manager of the downtown Zales Jewelers Store, and Tim Lease, manager of the Coronado Center Zales, and their wives joined more than 1,000 other Zales store managers and executives as the company celebrated its 50th Anniversary at the annual merchandising and sales meeting in Miami Beach.

The 130.27-carat, pear-shaped diamond, called the Zale Light of Peace, is valued at more than $5 million. The only larger pear shaped stone is the 530.27-carat Cullinan I in the British Crown Jewel Collection.

Selwyn Leeds, president of Zales Jewelers, said the weeklong meetings previewed fall and holiday jewelry fashions and included sessions ranging from merchandising and advertising to preventive security.

The meetings are held to help Zales managers evaluate developments in the jewelry industry, review our prospects as a company and help increase our total ability to serve our customers' needs, Leeds said.

By the time our managers have completed five full days of seminars and business meetings, and have viewed the thousands of items of jewelry and other products set up in department store fashion, they are totally up-to-date on what's happening in the industry. We hold these meetings annually so that our managers are always one step ahead in the jewelry business.

The week began June 30 with a special dinner and show in honor of Zales' 50th Anniversary. The company began as a single jewelry store in Wichita Falls in 1924. Today, Zales has more than 1,600 retail outlets in the U.S. and in England. It has become the world's largest specialty retailer of diamonds and jewelry and has grown rapidly in the past few years in such other important retail fields as sporting goods, home furnishings, budget fashions, footwear, drugs and sundries.

The 50th annual shareholders meeting closed out the week and included in interview with Zale Corporation President Donald Zale on the future of the company.

GASOLINE USELESS? NEW YORK (UPI) — Gasoline, the precious fuel that has become so essential to Americans, was once considered a useless by-product of the oil industry.

Until the automobile came along, kerosene was the major product of oil refineries, according to World Book Encyclopedia. Because it burned slowly, kerosene was used to light lamps, heat homes and cook food. Gasoline, which exploded when ignited, was often dumped into rivers and creeks for disposal.

RAH! RAH! ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — A 94-year-old tradition will end this fall—the University of Michigan will have a coed cheerleading group for the first time. Pom-pom girls will join the previously all-male contingent, mostly gymnasts and divers.

BENNY HORTON, owner of Warner-Horton Janitor Supply, 112 N. Somerville, takes a telephone order from one of his many customers, who include people ranging from housewives to business owners. Many people are under the misconception that Warner-Horton carries only products sold in bulk. But Horton says he also has separate items for use in the home.

(Staff Photo)

Warner-Horton Supply Has All Cleaning Needs

Benny Horton says: "Many people are not aware of the cleaning products that are available today to make their cleaning chores easier."

It is surprising to learn how many housewives still clean their kitchen floor by getting down on their hands and knees with ammonia and steel wool to get the old wax finish off.

There are several products available designed specifically to remove old wax and acrylic floor finishes. One very good wax stripper is "Stripper No. 4." It is a concentrated liquid usually diluted six ounces to one gallon of water for normal buildings.

The stripper can be applied with a sponge mop, wet rags or electric scrubber. After the floor has been covered and allowed to soak for a few minutes, a scrub brush or floor machine is used to loosen the tough buildup. When the floor has been thoroughly cleaned of old wax, a wet sponge mop is used to remove the residue. After the old wax is removed, the floor is rinsed with clean water and allowed to dry. It is now ready for a new coat of wax or finish.

One of the best floor finishes available is "Spectra." It is a hard, self-polishing, durable floor finish that gives superior service in heavy traffic areas where a good shine is desirable with little maintenance.

For all your cleaning and janitorial needs, go to Warner-Horton Janitor Supply located at 112 N.

Somerville, where you will be offered the most effective brands of cleaners and supplies.

Horton, the owner, offers you numerous essential cleaning supplies and equipment.

One special feature about Warner-Horton is that it offers household supplies as well as janitorial supplies. Paper products range from paper-towels to paper cups. Light bulbs, trash cans, fatigue mats for hard surface floors, and other floor mats are necessities in every household. Doormats and carpets are also available in different kinds of materials for both porch and inside the house.

Spray-can fire extinguishers for boat or car, chalk board cleaners, and mark removers are available to the thrifty home-maker who shops at Warner-Horton Industrial floor cleaning machines are handy as are polishers and buffers.

For effective shopping, go to Warner-Horton, then tell all your friends about the friendly attitude and excellent service you received.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Three of the 30 sportswriters polled in Texas Football Magazine picked Texas A&M to win the Southwest Conference this season. One was Lou Maysel, who, ironically, writes for the Austin American-Statesman.

He says, "The Texas domination has to end sometime and this could be the year. And the Aggies are loaded." Blackie Sherrod of the Dallas Times Herald picks Arkansas to win the conference. Here's how his paragraph looks:

1. Arkansas. 2. Texas. 3. Texas A&M. 4. Texas Tech. "Arkansas has been down a while and Broyles doesn't stay down too long." Best offensive player: Wayne Morris, SMU. Best defensive player: Simonini, Texas A&M. Best newcomer: Campbell, Texas. This year's national champion: Oklahoma.

Nobody interviewed the sports writer at the Pampa News. If they had, here's how I would have summed up the conference:

1. Texas. 2. Texas A&M. 3. Arkansas. 4. Texas Tech. "The Aggies are coming and Leaks is injured. But A&M doesn't have quite enough guns this year to stop 'Roosevelt' Campbell." Best offensive player: Mike Luttrell, TCU. Best defensive player: Ed Simonini, Texas A&M. Best newcomer: Earl Campbell, Texas. This year's national champion: Ohio State.

Here's how I rate the top five teams in the nation: 1. Ohio State. 2. Oklahoma. 3. Notre Dame. 4. Alabama. 5. Houston.

In 1972, Texas Aggie coach Emory Bellard said, "Mark Green could become one of Texas A&M's all-time great backs." Green then said, concerning 6-6, 240-pound A&M tackle James Dubcak, "He'll be as good as any tackle A&M ever had."

Both Green and Dubcak quit the Aggie football team.

John Tullos of Raleigh, Miss., won the annual World's Championship Tobacco Spitting Contest last Saturday at Raleigh with a winning spit of 27 feet, six inches. He beat defending champion Don Snyder, whose spit landed eight inches further than Tullos', but the spit fell eight inches outside the four-foot wide boundary, disqualifying Snyder in the competition.

More than 6,000 people attended the event, which included a mule high-jump contest and other activities. Ruth Thompson of Laurel, Miss., was crowned 'Miss Spit' after she beat two other spitters in the women's competition.

New York Takes 4th Straight Game

United Press-International The best kept secret in the National League may be that the New York Mets are plotting another miracle.

Baseball "miracles" always begin in last place where the Mets have been for most of the season. Pitching stars Tom Seaver and Tug McGraw have a total of eight victories for the season and every other team in the NL East seems to have a better reason to think they can win the title.

In the midst of it all, Manager Yogi Berra has taken the stand that "we aren't out of it until we're out of it."

Yogi's no mathematician but he's right about that. The Mets can still make it and they're beginning to think that they can do it again — come from behind just as they did in 1969 and 1973.

The Mets won their fourth straight game Monday when they beat the Montreal Expos 4-3. They are still 7 1/2 games out of first place but they are picking up momentum that makes people like John Milner say, "It looks like things are beginning to turn around," or Bob Miller comment, "I want to get into another World Series" — or Jack Aker say, "I'm getting excited about it... we can win it."

Milner hit a two-run game-winning homer in the eighth inning and Miller and Aker pitched 6-1-3 innings of scoreless relief as the Mets swept a three-game series from the Expos. Milner's 15th homer came after Jerry Grote led off the eight win a single. The Mets had fallen behind, 3-0, the third inning but eventually tagged Steve Rogers with his 13th loss against 10 wins.

Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 10-2. San Diego beat Cincinnati 3-2. St. Louis topped Chicago 11-4. Philadelphia routed Pittsburgh 13-1 and San Francisco downed Houston 7-2 in other NL games.

American League results were Boston 2 New York 1, Baltimore 6 Milwaukee 2, Detroit 8 Cleveland 2, Texas 10 Kansas City 1, and Oakland 11 Chicago 9.

Dodgers 10, Braves 2

Jim Wynn drove in four runs with a homer, a single and a sacrifice fly as Don Sutton went the distance to square his record at 8-8 for the Dodgers. Dave Lopes also homered for the Dodgers, who tagged Atlanta's Ron Reed with his sixth defeat. Lopes, Bill Buckner, Steve Garvey and Willie Crawford each had three hits in the Dodgers' 17-hit attack.

Cardinals 11, Cubs 4 Ted Sizemore, Ted Simmons, Joe Torre and Ken Reitz each drove in two runs in an 18-hit St. Louis attack which tagged the Cubs' Burt Hooton with his 10th loss. John Curtis went 8-1-3 innings to win his fifth game for the Cardinals.

Phillies 13, Pirates 1 Mike Schmidt drove in four runs with a pair of homers and Willie Montanez and Ollie Brown had three hits each in a 17-hit Philadelphia attack which brought Steve Carlton his 13th win on a two-hitter.

Giants Sock Astros

HOUSTON (UPI) — What would Ed Halicki's old buddies think? A die-hard New York Met fan actually winning a ballgame.

As hard as that is to believe, especially to the raw-boned San Francisco Giant right-hander from Kearney, N.J., it's true. Yes, Halicki, after five starts with the Giants, broke the Mets' 1960's spirit Monday night by scattering 10 Houston Astros hits for a 7-2 victory.

"Yeah, I really am a Met fan — or I was until I became a Giant three years ago," the soft-spoken, 23-year-old Halicki said while savoring his first major league win with a complete game. "I used to drive with a bunch of guys to Shea Stadium all the time."

With more performances like Monday they may turn out in the City by the Bay to see the 6-foot-7, 220-pounder tease hitters with his slider and then blow the fast one by them.

Giant Manager Wes Westrum, looking for help 19 1/2 games out of first and heading for Atlanta, hopes so.

"He could just as easily be 31 with us," Westrum said as he compared him to Atlanta's Ron Reed.

"He's got a good fastball, a good slider, a fair curve and good competitiveness. He doesn't let up when he gets behind the hitter," Westrum said.

It took a little faith, Westrum admitted, to go with the youngster when he got in deep trouble in the fifth. Leading 6-1 and giving up four straight singles, and one run, Halicki got a visit at the mound.

"I walked out there and told him, 'Son, you're gonna stay in here so keep going.'"

Besides the rocky fifth, Halicki had little trouble with his teammates collecting 14 hits and putting together two big innings to break out of a four-game losing slump since the All-Star break.

Tigers Set New Record With 4 Straight Homers

United Press International The Detroit Tigers stretched their batting practice a little longer than usual Monday night.

The Tigers held their regular batting practice prior to the game with the Cleveland Indians then continued it against starter Fritz Peterson and reliever Steve Kline in the first inning as they set a major league record with four home runs en route to an 8-2 triumph.

Consecutive homers by Al Kaline, Bill Freehan and Mickey Stanley chased Peterson after only one-third of an inning and Ed Brinkman capped the six-run inning with a two-run shot off Kline, who was making his first appearance since June 22.

The Tigers, who became the eighth American League club to hit four home runs in an inning, are the first club ever to accomplish the feat in the first inning.

Brinkman's homer, which put the Tigers in the record book, was his 10th, a surprising amount for a guy who has averaged less than four homers per year in 12 seasons.

In other AL action, Baltimore beat Milwaukee 6-2, Boston edged New York 2-1 in 11 innings, Oakland outlasted Chicago 11-9 and Texas routed Kansas City 10-1.

New York defeated Montreal 4-3, Philadelphia routed Pittsburgh 13-1, St. Louis downed Chicago 11-4, San Francisco beat Houston 7-2, San Diego edged Cincinnati 3-2 and Los Angeles whipped Atlanta 10-2 in National League games.

Teasers Strip Streakers, 12-5, For Girls Title

The Teasers of the National League defeated the American League Streakers, 12-5, and captured the Pampa girls' softball championship Monday night at the National League park.

The winning battery (pitcher and catcher) was Bobbie Morrow and Michelle Morrow and the losing battery was Kim Gooch and Paulette Albus.

The National League All-Stars take on the American League All-Stars at 7:30 p.m. today. There will be a watermelon party for all girls' teams following the contest, which winds up the Opti-Mrs. girls' softball program for this year.

Grimsley worked eight innings and gained his 12th victory while the Orioles tagged Clyde Wright with his 14th loss. Johnny Briggs had his 17th homer for Milwaukee.

Red Sox 2, Yankees 1 Boston continued its

Fenway Park jinx against New York when Terry Hughes scored Bob Montgomery with a sacrifice fly in the 11th inning. The Red Sox, despite getting only three hits off Sam McDowell and loser Sparky Lyle, beat the Yankees for the 11th straight time and 20th game in 21 tries at Boston over the last three seasons. Bill Sudakis homered for New York while Dwight Evans homered for Boston.

Forzano Named Lion Successor

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (UPI) — Rick Forzano is the new "acting" head coach of the Detroit Lions and it didn't take him long to start acting like one. "This is still difficult to believe," the former Navy head coach said Monday after he was promoted by the National Football League team to succeed his close friend and long-time associate, Don McCafferty, who died Sunday.

To name Forzano, General Manager Russ Thomas and owner William Clay Ford of Detroit both agreed to pass over two other assistants on the staff McCafferty assembled — Ed Khayat and Bob Holloway. Both had previous head coaching experience in the NFL.

Medical Bills And Complaints

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A specialist sent me a bill which seems to me to be grossly excessive. Kindly advise me where I could have it checked as to its appropriateness. — W.T.

Human greed being what it is, I can't deny that some medical bills are excessive.

But I am convinced that the majority of physicians want to give honest value for fees they receive, and want to build up a firm and honest relationship with patients.

I think most physicians — and include me, please — believe that every case of overcharging hurts the whole profession.

For that reason, most county medical societies have a grievance committee (the exact name may vary). The committee exists to listen to patients' complaints, and not limited just to fees.

Where it is a question of fee, the committee listens to both sides. It is sometimes true that special procedures, tests or study of the literature may mount up to more work than the patient realizes. But the patient is entitled to know that.

It is important to you the patient as well as to us — the physicians — to reach a fair understanding. Sometimes adjustments in the fee are made after such hearings; sometimes not. But that is the place to go for adjustment if it is warranted, and if not, an explanation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Enclosed are 20 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "How to Control Emphysema." My husband has emphysema and I need to learn everything I can about it. — C.V.

I can't say that a booklet can tell you "everything" about emphysema, but I do think it will give you a basic understanding so you can do the best job possible for your husband, in conjunction with whatever his doctor can do for him.

In spite of the known prevalence of emphysema, and its dangerous nature, too few people really understand it — and too few start doing something about it early enough.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How does a thyroid gland affect a person's weight? I am very much underweight and cannot gain, no matter what I eat. I would like to know if an overactive or underactive thyroid could be causing my trouble.

I am a man, 68, and have a slight case of diabetes and am on a diet of 2,000 calories a day, but I have lost 15 pounds in the past few months. — H.K.

The thyroid isn't normally a major factor in weight gain or loss, and we usually have to look elsewhere for the cause. In your case it may be that your diet is not sufficient alone to handle your diabetic condition.

If an overactive thyroid was responsible, you would have other symptoms such as nervousness, tremor, ease of perspiration and a fast heart rate. An underactive thyroid causes sluggishness, fatigue, dry skin and a slow pulse.

When is the last time you had a check-up to see how well the diet is keeping your diabetes under control? It could be that you need something else to help you. You could be ready for insulin or some of the oral agents used.

You should report your weight loss immediately and get a new reading on your condition.

Note to J.D.M.: No, the artery operation on your aorta has absolutely nothing to do with vasectomy.

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — The Modern Way to Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Matinee Idols Have Disappeared

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — The once glorious profession of matinee idol has disappeared.

The office will remain vacant unless Bob Preston brings it back when "Mack and Mabel" comes to town. George C. Scott, Jason Robards, Art Carney and Joel Grey have been winners in their Broadway shows but only Scott seems to have some of that sex lure of the last great matinee idol, handsome, hard-drinking, John Barrymore.

A reader innocently sent me researching on this by asking: "Who were the leading male and female box office stage stars of the last 10 years?"

"I nominate Henry Fonda," I said. But his big "Two for the Seesaw" was 16 years ago, in '58, and Sexy Rexy Harrison's romantic "My Fair Lady" was in '56. Bob Preston was in "The Music Man" in '57 and with Mary Martin in "Do, I Do" in '66 but floundered in "Ben Franklin in Paris."

Zero Mostel a matinee idol? He was in "Forum," "Fiddler on the Roof," and "Rhinoceros" before that, and he sold out "Ulysses in Nighttown" in previews — but then it closed.

Whereas little Joel Grey had "George M" and "Cabaret" — Art Carney was in "The Odd Couple" in '65 and "Lovers" in '69, and George C. Scott was a smash in "Plaza Suite," "Little Foxes" and "Uncle Vanya."

But one man had bigger box office appeal than any of them — the playwright, Neil (Doc) Simon, said one expert. "He wrote 12 shows, qualifying them by the Broadway measuring stick as hits."

Now about the leading ladies. Mary Martin and Ethel Merman ruled themselves out in the last decade by their inactivity... Barbra Streisand left us for the movies... Angela Lansbury was a sensation in "Mame" and is supposed to have another one in

"Gypsy" but had a couple of disappointments too... so who's left?

Lauren Bacall in "Cactus Flower" (starting in 1966, she turned in 900 performances without missing one) and then starred in "Applause" (1972, taking it to London).

And Carol Channing, who did two years' sold-out performances of "Hello, Dolly!" before going around the country with "Lorelei" which is now at the Palace with Carol performing incredible feats of stamina promoting the show.

Who's going to choose between them? I'm sorry I brought it up.

Buyer's Billboard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Correspondence schools have swollen to a $1.7 billion-a-year industry. Some are valuable and important. Others are outright frauds.

Every year more than 2.1 million students sign up for home study courses, some paying up to $2,000 or $3,000 for the experience.

Afterwards some find out the job the course was supposed to prepare them for either doesn't exist or requires qualifications not met by their new training.

The Federal Trade Commission is considering a new set of trade rules, which would have the force of law, to crack down on vocational schools. Until those are put forth, that agency suggests anyone considering a correspondence school course do the following:

1. Check the telephone book for the names of companies you think might hire you with the kind of training the course is supposed to give you.

2. Check the personnel offices of those firms, by telephone, in writing or in person, and ask them if they would hire graduates of the course; if they actually have hired some recently, and how many; if they were hired because they took the course; and whether they were offered more money because they had completed the course.

3. If you're still in doubt ask the same questions of employment agencies, labor unions and so on. If there are complaints on record against an individual school, your local Better Business Bureau might have them.

The biggest single problem, obviously, is advertising which promises, or hints at, job availability. Even if a school doesn't promise to land a job for the student, it can still engage in questionable advertising tactics by saying that such and such an industry (computers for instance) can't find enough people to hire.

FTC officials also warn that promised salary levels are sometimes misrepresented and that salespersons frequently masquerade as trained vocational counselors, when in reality they are peddlers.

The fact that a school bills itself as "accredited" is also no guarantee. The accreditation can be from a phony organization.

If you want to read more the FTC has a lengthy consumer education bulletin on the topic, available at FTC regional offices or the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Ask for FTC consumer bulletin No. 13. The price is 40 cents.

If you own a McCulloch "Mini-Mac" chain saw, this item may be of interest.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission and the McCulloch Corp. of Los Angeles are recalling an estimated 300,000 of the saws because the fuel hose may shrink causing gasoline to leak — and posing the danger of fire or explosion.

No injuries have been reported in connection with the problem but owners of the saws are being advised to return them to their dealer where a new hose will be installed free. Involved are "Mini Mac" 1, 1A, 6 and 6A chain saws manufactured prior to April of 1973.

The problem involves new gasoline additives which the firm says have an adverse reaction on the material in the hose, causing it to shrink.

Affected are "Mini Mac" 1 saws with serial numbers lower than 12-55028; "Mini Mac" 1A saws with serial numbers lower than 13-26690; "Mini Mac" 6 saws with serial numbers lower than 12-26201; and "Mini Mac" 6A saws, Model 600080U, with serial numbers lower than 13-61383 and Model 600080H with serial numbers lower than 1333311.

Handyman Doesn't Worry And Doesn't Hurry

YAUPON BEACH, N.C. (UPI) — In this coastal resort area lives a man who lends money to friends, doesn't worry, doesn't get in a hurry and doesn't work on Sunday.

He's Buddy Brown, 66, and he's satisfied with his life as a part-time handyman and fisherman.

Brown has not moved more than a mile in more than 35 years. For a while he lived beneath the bridge crossing the intracoastal waterway, warmed at night by a pet billy goat and dog sleeping at his sides.

Then he was "chief cook and bottle washer" on a fishing barge that traveled the waterway from Carolina to Florida.

Now Brown lives in the first house on the right across the bridge with his wife, Miss Emma.

He repairs lawnmowers, outboard motors and bicycles, mends fishing nets and does a little shrimping. To get around, he rides a bicycle or gets "rides from friends."

The last car he owned he finally "parked it for two or three years and then sold the motor."

"It was too much trouble to mess with and I didn't need no car," he said.

Brown's monthly bill for electricity runs between $6 and $7.

"I hardly ever burn a light over 30 minutes," he said. "It keeps the bills small."

His day begins as early as 3 a.m. and ends before 8 p.m.

"Anyone come to see me after eight, there's no one here," he said, packing tobacco in his pipe. "I just work 'til I can't see and I quit. We don't burn lights at night."

Mending fishing nets and shrimping was once his sole business. But things have begun to change. Fishing nets are no longer made of cotton but of nylon, which is harder to break and harder to fix, Brown said.

When shrimping season opens in late June, Brown once again will head into the waters he has shrimped and fished all his life, but his catch will be more expensive this year.

"I've been selling shrimp for 50 cents a pound all these years," he said. "But I just heard that they're selling for $3 a pound. I don't believe I'll be selling any more for 50 cents."

The Browns keep a goat, a dog and a duck, and tend a small vegetable garden behind their house. Miss Emma freezes or cans the garden products for the winter.

Brown now deposits his money in a nearby bank, but at one time he kept his money in tin cans buried around the house.

Beach residents said he always had money to lend to his friends. One grocer said he could identify the money by its rust marks.

"But, you know, only one person ever paid me back," Brown said.
