Cyprus Port City Surrenders To Attacking Turkish Forces

United Press International
The Turkish-Cypriot Bayrak radio announced tonight that the eastern Cyprus port of Famagusta had surrendered to attacking Turkish forces, a victory report that would mean Turkey had divided the island into two parts along a 65-mile "Atilla Line."

A high government official said today that Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros had rejected an invitation to fly to Washington to confer with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and that Greece has decided to expel U.S. troops from the country. There are about 4,000 U.S. servicemen and 6,500 dependents in Greece, according to the Pentagon. While the Pentagon will not discuss where it has nuclear weapons, it is an open secret that some are located in Greece. The government official said Kissinger telephoned from Washington to urge Mavros to confer with him on the Turkish army seep through war-torn Cyprus. Mr. Mavros cannot accept the invitation in view of continued Turkish aggression, the official said. "American interest in Greece's predicament has come a little too late." Greece pulled its armed forces out of NATO Wednesday in a move that threatened to collapse the Atlantic alliance's southern flank, and anti-American demonstrations broke out in Athens.

All civilians abandoned Famagusta and refugees said the few Greek Cypriot troops still in the island's third largest city seemed likely to leave before the Turks arrived. Greek and Turkish Cypriots agreed to a ceasefire Wednesday night in the island's walled capital of Nicosia, but fighting flared across northern Cyprus.

Two Die In Assassination Try On Life Of Chung-hee

SEoul (UPI) — A gunman today and shot and killed the wife of South Korean President Park Chung-hee and a teenage schoolgirl in an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Park as he delivered a nationally televised speech in a crowded theater.

National Theater in eastern Seoul. The assailant was shot by security agents and taken to the nearby Medical Center, police said. Police did not give his name but said he carried a Japanese passport.

to discontinue aggressive designs and "make sincere efforts for normalization of the south-north dialogue." Witnesses said the assailant, dressed in a dark suit, fired the first shot from a seat only a few yards from the speakers' platform. Park appeared startled and fell back as if hit.

The government official said today that Greece intends to complete the withdrawal of its forces from the NATO military and take over military facilities in Greece now operated by U.S. forces. "We are now studying the legal aspects of the problem," he said. "We mean business. This is no temporary measure."

The number of dead and injured in Nicosia, Famagusta and other strategic cities hit in Wednesday's massive all-day Turkish air strikes was yet to be assessed. Western diplomats in Greece now operating by U.S. forces.

Ford's Living Cost Task Force Okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Banking Committee quickly approved today President Ford's request for a new cost of living task force to spotlight economic excesses and scheduled it for floor action Monday.

improve collective bargaining, review federal programs and hold public hearings to spotlight excessive price or wage increases. The task force would not have the powers—such as forcing rollbacks in wages and prices it thought inflationary—that former President Nixon's Cost of Living Council had.

The reaction of most lawmakers ranged from enthusiastic to lukewarm and labor was frankly skeptical. In testimony Thursday to the Senate Banking Committee, Andrew J. Biemiller, chief lobbyist for the AFL-CIO, said the union federation "looks upon any proposal for another cost of living council with a cold and jaundiced eye."

Turning back all attempts to go beyond the President's wishes, the committee approved 27 to 7 a bill almost identical to the one Ford asked for. Four liberal Democrats and three conservative Republicans voted against the bill. Many members expressed skepticism that Ford's new task force, which would amount to a "jawboning agency," could do anything to slow inflation. Several Democrats urged that the bill not be changed because it could do neither harm nor good but Ford should be given his wish without congressional interference.

The bill differs only slightly from Ford's original request. The committee added the secretary of commerce to the task force, required quarterly reports to Congress and terminated the task force as of June 30, 1976.

Under the Nixon administration's 2 1/2 year economic stabilization program, wages went up slower than prices so that the buying power of union members actually shrunk.

Mrs. Park, 49, underwent surgery at Seoul National University hospital, according to presidential spokesman Kim Sang-jin. Park later reappeared in the National Theater and announced calmly, "Now I will continue my speech."

The audience cheered loudly when he concluded his talk urging North Korea to discontinue aggressive designs and "make sincere efforts for normalization of the south-north dialogue."

The television screen blurred at the onset of the shooting and the program was taken off the air until the 57-year-old president returned to finish the speech.

U.S. troops are currently stationed at air force and naval bases in Greece. Greece's reported decision to refuse to confer with the United States and to force U.S. armed forces out of the country came as waves of bitter humiliation over Turkey's victories on Cyprus and of anti-American feeling washed over the nation.

Turkey's move to partition Cyprus by force endangered the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's vital southern flank and frustrated the indecisive U.N. peacekeeping efforts.

WT GRAD HIRED Crockett Replaces Moore As Mentor

By PAUL SIMS
Dickie Crockett has been promoted to head coach at Pampa Junior High School and Jim Hogan, a West Texas State graduate, has been hired to fill Crockett's old position as assistant coach, following the resignation of Harold Moore, which was accepted Monday night in an executive session of the Pampa School Board.

Moore gave his reason for resigning as being "the will of the Lord." "We'd been praying about it all summer," said Moore, a lay preacher at the Nazarene Church every Sunday in Wheeler. "The main thing my wife and I want is to do the will of the Lord. He promised us peace, and now we feel peace."

Moore, Pampa Junior High coach for 16 years, is unsure of what's next for him. Today, he left for Wellington to help his parents, who farm there.

Crockett, 27, has taken over Moore's old position, and, according to athletic director Ed Lehnick, is already on the job. Hogan, a spring graduate, ran cross country and track at West Texas State and is in his first job as a coach.

"He's a quality person," said Lehnick. "He'll be a football and track assistant at the junior high. Crockett was head ninth-grade coach. You bet he's good; he'll do a good job."

"I would like to express my appreciation to Coach Lehnick and Coach Welborn and my coaching staff—they're a great group of men. And I appreciate all the kids I've had down through the 16 years."

The new task force would be composed of nine top Ford counselors and cabinet members plus a director to be appointed by the President. It would review all areas of the economy, work with labor and management to

Moore shares Lehnick's feelings about Crockett, who has been in the Pampa system for two years. "Dickie's a great guy; I think he'll put all he's got into it."

Lehnick said, "I deeply regret that he chose to leave teaching and coaching here. He's the kind of man you like to have your children under."

There was no date indicating when the subpoena would be served on Nixon but it ordered him to appear in U.S. District Court Sept. 9, the day the trial of six of his former aides and associates is scheduled to begin.

The subpoena came as special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski was reported to be studying the possibility of taking legal action against the former President. A spokesman for Jaworski's office had no comment on Ehrlichman's move and declined to say whether Nixon would be called as a prosecution witness. The subpoena, addressed to Nixon at the "Presidential Compound, San Clemente, Calif.," read: "You are hereby commanded to appear in United States District Court for the District of Columbia, to testify on behalf of defendant John D. Ehrlichman."

Hundreds of Greek Cypriot students rallied in front of the University of Athens, chanting rhythmically, "Kissinger—murderer!" and "NATO-CIA-betrayer!" Turkish tanks, infantry and artillery struck across northern Cyprus today, smashing through Greek-led defenders in an overpowering, two-front drive to split the war-torn island in defiance of the United Nations.

Before the eye of the 2,500 persons in the audience and untold thousands watching on television, the gunman opened fire at the podium. Park ducked behind the lectern and moments later his wife slumped to the floor, mortally wounded.

Nixon was named as an unindicted coconspirator in the cover-up case but was not indicted by the grand jury because Jaworski said he did not believe such action could be taken against a President in office.

Committee Says Nixon Lied, Violated Laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In its final act on impeachment, the House Judiciary Committee concludes that Richard M. Nixon left the presidency for good reasons — he lied, violated laws and subverted the Constitution.

The charges are spelled out in a report the panel will submit to the full House next week, explaining the actions it took on impeachment the past 10 months, laying out the evidence supporting the three articles of impeachment it adopted and offering conclusions on guilt. Nixon, faced with the certainty that he would be impeached and removed from office, resigned last week.

"For more than two years, the President engaged in a course of conduct which involved deliberate, repeated and continued deception of the American people," the report said.

The committee members have until the end of today to submit any additional or differing views to the report, which exists only in draft form. The 193-page draft was circulated to the 38 committee members late Wednesday and UPI obtained a copy.

The report, handiwork of special counsel John M. Doar, will be submitted to the House next week as if Nixon had not resigned and impeachment were still going on. The House had planned to take up the articles next Monday, but now there are no plans for either approval or disapproval of the report.

Chairman Pete W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., has emphasized repeatedly that the report establish for history that the articles of impeachment were justified. "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow people will look back on how we handled this," he said.

On Aug. 5, Nixon released partial, edited transcripts of three taped conversations he held on June 23, 1972, just six days after the Watergate break-in. The release of those tapes, which the committee had subpoenaed last spring, and Nixon's admission that they were incriminating led to the firestorm of criticism that forced his decision to resign.

Nixon violated federal laws, the report said, "by engaging in a course of conduct or plan designed to delay, impede, and obstruct the investigation of unlawful entry, on June 17, 1972, into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee; and to conceal the existence and scope of other unlawful covert activities."

That course, the report said, in a conclusion justifying the 27-11 committee on July 27 vote for Article One charging obstruction of justice, "caused illegal surveillance for political purposes, and the concealment of responsibility for that surveillance, obstruction of justice, perjury, destruction of evidence"—all of which are crimes.

Such conduct, the report said, was "to the great prejudice of the cause of law and justice and subversive of our Constitution."

The draft outlined the evidence supporting the abuse of powers article adopted by a 28-10 committee vote and said, "The pattern of conduct charged in Article Two constitutes a repeated and continuing misuse of the powers of the presidency."

It added: "The abuse of a President's power poses a serious threat to the lawful and proper functioning of the government and the people's confidence in it. It was for just such presidential misconduct that the impeachment power was included in the Constitution."

So that future Congresses would have the power to carry through with the impeachment process, the report stated its case for adopting Article Three by a 21-17 vote, charging Nixon with failing to comply with committee subpoenas.

Unless the defiance of the committee's subpoenas under these circumstances is considered grounds for impeachment," the report said, "it is difficult to conceive of any President acknowledging that he is obligated to supply the relevant evidence necessary for Congress to exercise its constitutional responsibility in an impeachment proceeding."

"If this were to occur, the impeachment power would be drained of its vitality. Article Three, therefore, seeks to preserve the integrity of the impeachment process itself and the ability of Congress to act as the ultimate safeguard against improper presidential conduct."

FIVE CHILDREN DIE Illinois, Texas Fires Claim Eleven Victims

United Press International
Fires killed seven persons in a farmhouse in rural Illinois today and four persons in a frame boarding house at Fort Worth, Tex.

Five of the victims at a two-story wooden farmhouse near Flanagan, Ill., were children, sheriff's officers said.

Coroner Keith Von Qualen identified the dead as Michael Kovacovich, 26, his wife Gloria, son David, 2, daughter Kimberly, 7, weeks, three cousins of the Kovacovich family, Michael Koepke, 14, his brother Mark, 11, both of New Lenox, Ill., and Timothy Gotch, 11, of Rome, Ill.

The victims in Texas, all middle-aged or elderly men, were not immediately identified. A fifth victim was badly burned and a fireman treated for smoke inhalation.

A fire that started with a lighted cigarette destroyed a frame boarding house near downtown early today and killed four men. A fifth man was critically burned.

Arson investigator Capt. T. L. Matthews said identities on the men had been tentatively determined. He said the dead included brothers Gilberto and Rudolfo Botello and Jess Cox and a man named Tanner whose first name was not known. The men were believed elderly or middle-aged.

Another man, David Castro, in his late 30s' jumped from a second floor window during the fire and was taken to Parkland Hospital in Dallas in critical condition with severe burns.

Matthews said two investigators were studying the remains of the building in hopes of confirming the identities and finding where the men were from.

He put total damages caused by the fire at $13,000. "It was a two-story flop house kind of," he said. "The fire started downstairs in one room occupied by a man named McCarthy."

"He had been out drinking wine and came in and went to sleep. A couch caught fire from his cigarette and he woke up and fought it a little bit by himself but it got away."

Man Charged With JFK Plot Dies
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Clay Shaw, 60, who was charged in a highly publicized case in 1969 with plotting to assassinate President John F. Kennedy, died early today at his home of cancer.

Shaw, who was acquitted of the charges and had filed a $5 million damage suit against District Attorney Jim Garrison, had been ill since February.

Shaw was a retired trade executive who Garrison ordered his arrest in March of 1967 on a charge he helped plot the Kennedy assassination with alleged accomplices in New Orleans.

Shaw, the only suspect ever tried in the Kennedy assassination, was acquitted by a jury two years to the day after his arrest.

Garrison then tried to prosecute Shaw on a charge of perjury but the federal courts ruled against the district attorney.

Garrison was defeated for reelection last year and is now a candidate for the Louisiana Supreme Court.

Shaw's $5 million lawsuit, naming Garrison and several wealthy businessmen who helped finance the Kennedy investigation in the 1960s, was due for hearings in federal court next month.

Shaw retired as director of the International Trade Mart at New Orleans two years before Garrison brought charges against him. He never returned to private business, although until recently he headed a city French Market improvement project. He resigned in May, citing ill health.

Bus Schedules To Be Confirmed
According to the office of the transportation superintendent for Pampa School District, bus students with questions concerning transportation eligibility or routing may obtain information by calling 665-2376.

Bus students will be informed of time schedules and routing at individual schools.

Kissinger Rabbi's Target

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, former leader of the militant Jewish Defense League, Wednesday said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would be the target of a series of demonstrations because of Kissinger's handling of the Mideast crisis and his alleged failure to aid Soviet Jews.

"It's about time the myths of Kissinger as savior of Israel and the free world are punctured," Kahane declared as 100 chanting, singing and sign carrying supporters pressed around him upon his arrival at Kennedy Airport from Tel Aviv.

"Henry Kissinger is our target now," said Kahane, who said he expected "protests loud, angry and legal" would be held against Kissinger at the U.S. mission to the U.N., Kissinger's offices at the State Department and "possibly at his home."

"There will be more demonstrations in the next few weeks than he has ever seen before," said Kahane. "He's going to find out what demonstrations are."

Kahane, who faces arms smuggling charges in Israel, did not say when the demonstration would be held.

Kahane charged that Kissinger is "leading Israel to concessions (to the Arabs) which it knows are suicide" and, in a reference to Soviet Jews, asserted that he is "sacrificing people behind the Iron Curtain" in his efforts for detente.

Kahane left New York for Israel in June, 1972, to take up residence and was an unsuccessful candidate last year for the Israeli parliament.

Kahane said Israeli authorities allowed him to leave on condition he return for his Nov. 17 trial on the gun smuggling charge.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — A grand jury inspected the Texas State Prison Wednesday in its investigation of convict Fred Gomez Carrasco's 10-day seige and unsuccessful escape attempt in which he and three other persons died.

Carrasco and inmate Rudolpho Dominguez murdered hostages Julia Standley and Elizabeth Beseda before killing themselves in the Aug. 3 escape attempt broken up by prison guards and state law officers. One hostage was wounded and nine escaped in injury.

"The fact of the Huntsville incident will come out—in a manner prescribed by our laws," Briscoe said earlier in announcing the videotape decision.

"I'm disappointed in a way that he didn't at least follow our suggestion of an objective review of that tape," Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said. "It doesn't have to be done publicly at this time so that it might hinder prosecution."

"But there should be an impartial review to stop rumors inside and outside the Department of Corrections about improper behavior and acts in that incident."

VA Official To Be Named
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Indiana congressman Richard L. Roubidoux, a veteran of Foreign Wars, will be named head of the Veterans Administration, White House officials said.

President Ford will probably announce the appointment when he addresses the 75th annual convention of the VFW Monday in Chicago.

Who's Who Selects Senior Girl
Sharon Mathis, senior at Pampa High School, was recently notified that she is to be featured in the Eighth Annual Edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1973-74, the largest student award publication in the nation.

Students from over 20,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the books. Less than three percent of the junior and senior class students nationwide are awarded this recognition.

Miss Mathis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mathis, 533 Harlem. She is active in Vocational Office Education and has also won a merit in verbal communications in district VOE contests.

In addition to having her biography published in the book, Miss Mathis will also compete for one of 10 scholarship awards of $500 to $1,000 funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual "Survey of High Achievers."

Miss Mathis plans to attend San Angelo State University to major in law upon graduation.

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Hang In There, Fellows!

Libertarians, vastly outnumbered by proponents of socialistic schemes and expanded governmental activity, sometimes get discouraged. "Aw, what's the use?" We have heard them say on occasion. "Nobody wants to hear the truth. We are only talking to ourselves. Why bother?"

Although we know the feeling ourselves, we don't believe that is justified. "Man, the individual, is a perverse creature. He may act irrationally, illogically, at variance with reality. Yet, deep down, by his very nature, he wants to know what is true and what is untrue."

Just why this is so, we do not know with any great degree of certainty. It may be an "instinct" reminding man that the untrue is a threat to his existence and that only by acquiring the facts, can he improve his condition. But, whatever the cause, everywhere we look we see individuals striving to increase their store of knowledge in a thousand different and often unique ways.

So, our advice to the discouraged Libertarian who, down in the dumps, concludes that we "are only talking to ourselves," is, don't you believe it! If what you have to say is true, if it is logically explained, if it is clearly stated, it will find, not only listeners, but ultimately believers as well.

Why? For a very simple reason. Events inevitably prove the truth out. And, when the event and the prior explanation of it finally come together and jibe, the one attesting to the other, you no longer have just a listener. You now have a believer.

We see evidence of this every day and, by way of explaining just what we mean, a comment made by Leonard E. Read on this head will serve very well. Read, president of FEE (Foundation for Economic Education), was talking about the foundation's monthly journal, "The Freeman," and the ideas on liberty and the free market place expounded therein.

We don't concern ourselves too much that the freedom philosophy doesn't gain immediate acceptance. Read said. We know that "The Freeman" is being read and that the individuals doing the reading are also thinking. If we continue our search for truth and continue to improve our explanation of it as we learn, we know that eventually the number of people who believe in the free way of life will grow.

Why it is not at all unusual, Read mused, for someone to call or write us with a favorable comment about an article published in "The Freeman" ten or fifteen years ago. "Something will happen, an event making the news headlines, and all of a sudden we begin getting calls from individuals calling our attention to the fact that the event bears out something we had said on the subject, perhaps in an editorial years ago."

Take the subject of inflation, for instance. For two decades or more, this newspaper has been pointing out editorially that inflation is a creation of government, and that it is nothing more nor less than an increase of the money supply. During all that time, almost needless to say, it often appeared that we were "only talking to ourselves." Nobody seemed to be listening. The great public out there appeared to have accepted the governmental version of inflation, as caused by "greedy businessmen pushing up prices," hook, line and sinker.

But all the while, it now develops, people WERE reading and thinking about what proponents of the free market had to say out inflation. And now, according to a recent Gallup Poll on the subject ("Government Being Blamed for Inflation," Aug. 5) FORTY-EIGHT PERCENT OF AMERICANS QUESTIONED BELIEVE THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT, RATHER THAN BUSINESS OR LABOR, IS CHIEFLY RESPONSIBLE FOR INFLATION.

Quite a change, to say the least. And an encouraging one, at that.

Moreover, who would have thought a few years ago that Harry Browne, one of the most outspoken and effective proponents of the free market philosophy our society has produced, would ever be given exposure on national television? Yet, there he was on the Tom Snyder show, "Tomorrow," big as life.

So, hang in there, fellow free market proponents. You are not "just talking to yourselves." And it may be even "later than you think."

INSIDE LABOR

Big Push For Minorities

By VICTOR RIESEL
Is there more than tokenism in the executive suites of American industry? Leaders of our major corporations not only are attempting to smash that image but have developed affirmative action, unprecedented in any land, in their effort to discover and train black and other minority men and women for the "pipe line" into management of this nation's private enterprise. Since Reginald Jones is chairman of the National Advisory Council on Minorities in Engineering, I asked him for the still very much untold story on this front. Here is his report written exclusively for this column:

By REGINALD JONES
NEW YORK — Several years ago we invited the late Whitney Young, a black leader and then president of the National Urban League, to address General Electric's annual conference of top officers and managers on the subject of equal opportunity.

Whitney arrived at the conference and, staring across a sea of white faces, spotted John Blanton, a black manager of one of our departments producing jet engines. He strode through the crowd, grabbed Blanton by the hand (they had been raised in the same neighborhood) and said, "Dr. Livingstone, I presume!"

The crowd laughed, but Whitney Young's irony was not lost on them. His chances of finding a black manager among the ranks of industry's top management were about as great as Stanley's chances, a century ago, of coming across a white man in darkest Africa.

American industry has made great strides in bringing Afro-Americans and other minorities onto the payroll in recent years. At General Electric, for example, while our overall employment has not changed more than 1 percent over the past five years, the proportion of minorities on our payroll has increased 55 percent.

But most of these minority men and women hold jobs in the lower and middle ranks of industry, jobs with relatively modest and non-technical educational requirements. Though blacks, Chicanos, Puerto Ricans, Orientals, and American Indians comprise about 18 percent of our national population, their numbers in the upper managerial and professional ranks of industry are almost infinitesimally small.

The situation has to be changed. But the plain fact is that the number of minority men and women with the necessary technical or financial education is very limited, and the competition for the few available black engineers, for example, is extremely fierce.

Not many people realize that in today's highly technical industries, at least 50 percent of the people in the best jobs — jobs earning $25,000 and up — have college degrees in engineering and science.

Some people are skeptical about this problem of qualification, but no matter how talented a person may be, no matter how hard he or she may be willing to work — there is no way to do engineering work without an engineering education. And that work, designing the products and processes of industry, is the basic stepping stone to success for most of industry's top management.

So the leaders of industry, government, education, and the minority communities are trying to get more minority people to study engineering and science. Latest surveys show that, of the estimated 805,000 engineering graduates in this country, only 44,000 are from the minorities: about 16,300 are Orientals, 15,000 are Chicano and Puerto Rican, 5,500 are American Indians, and 8,100 are blacks. No wonder so few minority people have made it to the top in industry.

In 1973, of the 43,429 engineers who graduated from colleges and universities, only 1,899 (4.4 percent) were from the minorities including 574 (1.3 percent) blacks. On the average it takes about 15 to 20 years to compete your way to the top jobs, so the chances for much better minority representation in the upper ranks of technical industries are therefore limited even as late as the 1990s.

These odds have to be changed so that more minority people can qualify themselves for the good jobs in industry. Hence the National Academy of Engineering, with the solid backing of industry, government, and the universities, is working with the minority organizations and the engineering societies to increase the number of minority engineering graduates. We're aiming for about 4,000 to 6,000 minority engineering graduates a year by the mid 1980s.

One of the basic problems is that there's no tradition of engineering among minorities. They become teachers, preachers, doctors, lawyers — but not engineers. So our first task is to go into the junior high schools and persuade minority youngsters to study science and math. General Electric, for example, has a 40-foot van called Expo-Tech which is loaded with exciting exhibits to show how interesting these subjects can be. It goes to predominantly minority schools.

INSIDE WASHINGTON Why Send Peace Corps To Wealthy Countries?

by ROBERTS ALLEN
WASHINGTON — The glorified Peace Corps is costing U.S. taxpayers $77 million this fiscal year, and foremost among its beneficiaries are countries collecting billions in oil profits — a lot from the U.S. Striking examples of this incongruity:

Iran — with an estimated oil income this year of $16 to $20 billion, yet where U.S. taxpayers are footing a $1,322 million bill to maintain scores of Peace Corps technicians and other specialists. Early this year, the Shah of Iran bought 30 of this country's new F-14 Tomcat fighters with parts and other equipment for an overall cost of around $900 million.

Venezuela — where the Peace Corps is spending $1.285 million to provide a small army of experts and advisers, and which exports 31 percent of its oil to this country at a cost of billions.

Brazil — with a booming economy and flourishing export trade, and where the Peace Corps has earmarked $3,232 million for its operations. Why these and other well-heeled countries are Peace Corps beneficiaries is a moot question.

Congress, which talks interminably about economy and budget balancing, didn't ask it when considering the Peace Corps' budget. That is somewhat less than last year's, which was $81 million.

When the House was deliberating this budget, Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, long-time economy advocate, led a vigorous drive to reject it entirely or slash it. But it got nowhere — amid a lot of bombast about the wondrous good the Peace Corps is doing around the world and the alleged good — will it is bringing the U.S.

In the Senate, where approval of this budget was virtually perfunctory, there was no dissent of any kind. If anyone thought of saying anything about the Peace Corps' billionaire beneficiaries, no one mentioned it.

Apparently this giveaway program, launched in 1961 during the Kennedy administration, and now functioning in 58 countries, has attained "tenure" — so to speak. It has become a strongly entrenched part of the federal bureaucracy, and like Old Man River rolls on and on.

Chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, wanted to know why and how some $400,000 had mysteriously vanished. Associate Director Bruce Wilburn vigorously denied the funds had been misplaced, inappropriately spent or otherwise squandered. He emphatically insisted such charges were "unwarranted and incorrect."

Under questioning by Inouye, Wilburn did admit there was no likelihood this sizable sum would be recovered. Pressed on just what is being done about it, Wilburn in effect said nothing.

In other words, for all practical purposes it would be just as well to forget about the lost $400,000. When Inouye indignantly demanded to know why, Wilburn observed it would cost around a half million dollars to explore the matter.

However, he did give assurances he would conduct an "independent, general review" at a cost of only $50,000.

Subsequently, in a report on the Peace Corps budget, the subcommittee commented as follows: "The committee is concerned over slipshod Peace Corps accounting practices as evidenced by sizable shortages in deposits to volunteer readjustment allowance accounts, and some $75,000 worth of unused passenger tickets ranging in age from a few weeks to two years that have not been returned to the carriers for appropriate credit."

The Peace Corps advises that steps have been taken to correct these situations, but the fact they occurred at all indicates an undesirable lack of good administrative practices. Any further evidence showing a continued shortfall in this area cannot help but militate against the record and reputation of this agency."

Also sharply reproved is the salary schedule for overseas directors — or rather the lack of a coherent scale. Salaries vary as much as $22,000 for no apparent reason. Examples:

The director in Malaysia, in charge of 334 corpsmen, is paid $27,946, while the director in India, supervising only 50 corpsmen, gets $42,000. Similarly, the director in Iran, overseeing 210 corpsmen, is paid $44,000 while the director in Ethiopia, with 176 corpsmen, gets $46,265.

Remarkably inouye wryly. "That's more than members of Congress are paid."

The Peace Corps now has 7,090 on its payroll, of whom around 6,300 are foreign countries. The other 700 are in the Washington headquarters, occupying three offices with a total space of 120,760 square feet.

Sen. Inouye made it clear he considers that excessive, observing: "The Peace Corps should either rent less office space or hire less staff personnel. You're spending too much money on your home office."

Wilburn was noncommittal. It's an old bureaucratic practice in Washington to listen to congressional admonitions and say nothing.

Addendum: Peace Corps director Nicholas Crow, 37, quit last week after holding the job less than a year. Independently wealthy, he emphatically denies Watergate had anything to do with his leaving. Says Crow: "I've worked hard and I'm tired, so I decided to take time off and figure out what I want to do next."

Before entering the federal service, Crow was an executive with Project Hope. His father, Col. Demas Crow, was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously.

Telling Her Off
The House was debating legislation curbing the granting of nuclear material and equipment to foreign countries. Rep. Bella Abzug, radical New York Democrat and vehement dove, delivered one of her characteristically strident harangues — in opposition.

Acidly, Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., member of the Joint Atomic Committee, retorted, "This is just one more example of ignorance in action."

Irately, Mrs. Abzug belted, "I rise to make a point of personal privilege." "I don't yield," snapped McCormack. "I haven't impugned the lady. Ignorance in this instance means that a person doesn't know what he or she is talking about."

Persisting, Mrs. Abzug demanded, "Will the gentleman yield?"

McCormack curtly refused to be bothered saying, "No, I will not yield."

And that ended that, as House members grinned appreciatively. (All Rights Reserved.)

CHRISTIAN LOVE

A man bought a farm and soon he met his nearest neighbor.

"Have you bought this place?" asked the neighbor.

"Yes."

"Well, you've bought a law suit."

"How is that?"

"Well, sir, I claim your fence down there is ten feet on my side of the line, and I am going to take the matter to court and prove it."

But the newcomer said, "Oh, no, don't do that. If the fence is on your side of the line, we will just take it up and move it."

"Do you mean that?"

"Of course I do," was the answer.

"Then," said the man, "that fence stays where it is."

Christian brotherly love had made a friend.

We're Supposed To Forget

By GARRY WILLS
When he was a student at Whittier College, Richard Nixon was approached by a fellow student who was troubled by nervousness when he had to engage in public speaking. Nixon told him, "You've got to find an issue and concentrate on it, not on yourself."

Richard Nixon was the issue in Watergate, but you would never know that from his fare well speech. Something inexplicable had happened which made him no longer possessed of strong enough political base, even though "I have always tried to do what was best for the nation." So he spent his quarter-hour on the issue of peace.

We were meant to forget. Forget all the speeches in which he protested his innocence, insulted his accusers, and played on the gullibility of his supporters. Forget the words with which he ended his speech at the release of doctored transcripts, calling them the whole story. He compared himself, then, to Abraham Lincoln when he was being subjected to unmerciful attack.

He concluded that speech with these words from Lincoln: "If the end bears me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference." The moral obtuseness shown in that speech of April 30 reappeared in Nixon's fare well to his staff, in which he had the nerve to tell them, "Never be petty" — the man whose words we read when he was plotting to ruin a private citizen for opposing him. He even said this: "Others may hate you, but those who hate you don't win, unless you hate them. And then you destroy yourself." He was obviously unaware that this was the best description of his own downfall.

Here he is, talking about the lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams: "I think we are going to fix that son-of-a-bitch." And Haldeman adds that Williams "is a guy we've got to ruin." This was in the context of the enemies list the President told Dean to keep for a future reckoning: "The game has to be played awfully rough." This is the man who preached, on his exit, against hate.

Was he just a devout liar? I doubt it. He is incapable of seeing ironies. An ex-aide from the White House, writing in the current "National Review" gets the real point: "Nixon has lost all moral sense." The anonymous aide says that Nixon's only advice to Agnew was that he stand tall and proud when he left, not letting "them" see him cringe. It was the theme of Nixon's own little homily on "P.R." as a real man in his fare well to his staff.

There is no more awareness in Nixon than there was in Agnew of the violence they did to the nation's trust, of the way they used a betrayed friend, both men simply feel they lost their political base. As the "National Review" writer said of Mr. Nixon:

"He lacks the ethical circuits to respond constructively to any appeal for altruism." The writer does not furnish his name — though he may well be John K. Andrews, Jr., who left the White House to enter religious service. It is from the Andrews' viewpoint that the article describes Nixon's "ethical myopia," which shows that he "is just not equipped to feel responsible to the shambles around him." Nixon's is "a morally stunted mind." As one himself "numbly moral," he was "thus vulnerable to near-fatal underestimates of the moral sensibilities of the American people."

Those words appeared to me prophetic when I watched a man so out of touch with reality that he gave his double-V for victory wave as he ran towards his last-minted free ride on Air Force One, expecting the very people he had swindled to cheer him on his way.

Follow up on offers to the widow

By Abigail Van Buren
 © 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 44-year-old widow with three children—two teen-aged boys and a daughter, 12. My husband died last year after a lingering illness that nearly put us in the poorhouse. I am not destitute, but I have to be a very good manager to make ends meet.

My problem: At his funeral, friends and family hovered around me, expressing their sincere sympathy, and the last thing I heard from ALL of them was: "If you need anything, please call me."

Abby, I need EVERYTHING! I need someone to take an interest in two teen-aged boys who have no father. I need someone to cheer me up when I'm feeling low. I need someone to dress up for. I need someone to get me out of the house and invite me to a movie, a bridge game, a play, a concert, or an evening of conversation so I will know I'm alive. A widow needs everything any other normal woman needs, but she can't call up her friends and ask them for anything.

Please print this, Abby. Maybe someone who has made this offer to some widow somewhere will see it and pick up the phone and ask her what she needs. Thanks for listening.
 YOUR FRIEND THE WIDOW

DEAR FRIEND: Consider it done. If this awakens some of your sleeping friends, let me know.

DEAR ABBY: I hate showers! I am 27 years old, and didn't use to feel this way, but enough is enough. Lately I have been invited to showers for girls I hardly know, some of whom I haven't seen since I got out of high school.

Opening presents in front of everyone to publicize how "generous" (or "cheap") the donors are rubs me the wrong way.

I was married (two years ago) and refused when my friends offered to have a shower for me. I had a planned elopement and didn't soak one person for a present.

I have been told that if you're invited to a shower, you must send a gift whether you come or not. How does one courteously reply to a nervous shower invitation for someone she hasn't seen in nine years?

Please answer in your column, Abby. I'm sure I'm not the only one with this problem.
 SICK OF SHOWERS

DEAR SICK: There is no "law" which compels you to send a gift if you decline a shower invitation. Simply decline, and don't feel obligated to give a present to someone you "hardly know" or haven't seen in nine years.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, single and fairly attractive. I don't have to elaborate on how difficult it is for a young lady to find a respectable, intelligent, employed, single man these days.

The problem is, I seem to have found one, but he is seeing another girl.

He has dated me a few times, but I feel so guilty about the other girl. Abby, I don't want to be the cause of their breaking up.

Should I continue to see him? Or should I drop the whole thing before it gets started?
 LOST

DEAR LOST: If he wants to break off with the other girl, theirs couldn't be much of a love match. Since you didn't deliberately set out to lure him away, there is no reason to feel guilty. If you wait for a man who is not seeing anyone, you could wait a long time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SICK OF ALL THAT SEX IN YOUR COLUMN": Sorry, but lately, every other letter that lands on my desk has to do with sex. I invite people to write to me about their problems, and these are their problems.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, AUGUST 16
Your birthday today: You now wind up several cycles of growth at about the same time. It's a great year for enjoying what you've accumulated and what you've become. Ongoing enterprises should continue as is, new projects kept to reasonable dimensions. Friendships remain strong. Today's natives are hard-working, have uneven vocational success, should save in periods of prosperity.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Everything looks better than it is, but can be used to encourage stronger efforts. Creative work thrives by applying old ideas to fresh contexts. Settle home concerns for a happy weekend.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Let this be an easy day and a successful week through normal routine. Life on the home front spontaneously improves, but retire early.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Second thoughts surface. Do what you can to readjust discrepancies. Ask for co-operation among your regular associates. It's a sentimental evening.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]:

Minor changes yield many benefits. Avoid major speculative moves, particularly where you haven't thoroughly researched. Gather your belongings; collect what is coming to you.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Take action rather than talk about it. More exertion is required on all activities with pleasing results. Personal plans are favored over career issues.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Use your own judgment and save money on home improvement or decoration. Keep out of the general public view if you can. "Tidy up" is today's maxim.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Go along blithely with the natural swing of the day. Enjoy your friendships. Social diversions are featured, but don't neglect preparations for tomorrow.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Round up your resources for a full weekend. Clear up all pending business so you don't have to backtrack later. No great pressures are likely if you don't ask for trouble.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Remote and seemingly unrelated factors must be considered in getting perspective on your progress. Imagination plots your course; intuition shows you how to navigate.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Consulting people who seldom speak up offers rewards. Creative approaches to old problems save money and energy. You have talents you rarely use. Try for fuller expression today.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Do all you can where you are to promote healthy conditions and growth. Beyond this, there's little you can do for the world outside your locality.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Wind up your work week neatly, keep teamwork active and thriving. Bring in supplies, prepare resources for a big weekend, then get some extra rest.

The first industrial nurse on record was Philippa Flowerday, Norwich, Eng. She was hired in 1878 by Mrs. Jeremiah Colemah to work in the Col-emans' mustard plant.

Double-Ring Ceremony Unites Barbara Brown, Stephen Sybert

Nuptial vows were solemnized Sunday, Aug. 4 at 4 p.m. in First Christian Church by Miss Barbara Alice Brown and Stephen Michael Sybert.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. John M. Brown, 1229 Charles. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Smith Boyce Sybert, 1816 Dogwood.

THE CEREMONY
 The Rev. Claude W. Cone, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

Large rainbow candelabra and two, seven-branched candelabra entwined with salal foliage, holding tall white tapers filled the background. Two massive arrangements of mixed white summer flowers in tall pedestals flanked the wedding party and pews of honor were marked with white satin bows and green salal foliage.

Mrs. Peggy Stevens, organist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Miss Shelly Cogdell as she sang, "Wedding Prayer," and "Wedding Song." Mark Turner was guitarist.

THE BRIDE
 Given in marriage by her father with the "her mother and I" avowal, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight organza over bridal taffeta and Venice lace. The gown was designed with a Victorian neckline, bib front, and long lace sleeves caught at the wrists by lace ruffles that

MRS. STEPHEN MICHAEL SPERT
 ...nee Miss Barbara Alice Brown

flaired over her hands. The bodice and sleeves of the gown were enhanced by seed pearls and the A-line skirt of the gown fell to a deep flounce of Belgium lace, which swept to back fullness cascading into a full cathedral train. The attire was enhanced by floral lace appliques and seed pearls.

Her elbow length veil of bridal illusion fell from a matching Camelot cap covered with lace, tiny seed pearls, and entwined with satin-ribbon. She carried a cascade bouquet fashioned with white roses and stephanotis, centered with a white orchid and candlelight ribbon streamers.

For something old, the bride wore diamond earrings; her gown was something new; and she carried a heirloom wedding handkerchief, for something borrowed. She wore the traditional blue garter and sixpense in her shoe, a gift of Mrs. Otto Specht.

The bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother were presented yellow roses during the ceremony.

ATTENDANTS
 Maid of honor was Miss Joanne Burger of Lubbock. Bridesmaids were Miss Cecile Enchelmeyer, Lubbock, Miss Karen Burger, Norman, Okla., and Mrs. Jerry Bowerman, a cousin of the bride. Lubbock. Bridesmatrons were Mrs. Martha Brown, sister-in-law of the bride, Alexandria, Va., and Mrs. David Bray of Houston. They wore identical floor-length dresses of yellow eyelet sprigged with orange and blue rose buds, designed with scooped necklines and puffed sleeves. All carried nosegays of pale yellow carnations, orange sweetheart roses and baby's breath. They wore matching flowers in their hair.

Rick Sybert of Pampa served his brother as best man. Groomsman were Michael Brown, Landstuhl, Germany, and Stephen Brown, Pampa, both brothers of the bride, and Douglas Carmichael of Dallas, David Bray of Houston, and Eddy Hopkins, Shidler, Okla. Bob Marx of Pampa, Don Barnhill, Dallas, and William Brown, Alexandria, Va., brother of the bride, served as ushers.

MOTHERS
 The bride's mother wore a floor-length gown of pale turquoise designed with short matching jacket and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor-length gown of pink with matching long jacket and both wore cattail orchid corsages.

The grandmothers wore white gemellia corsages.

RECEPTION
 Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at Pampa Country Club.

The bridal table, covered with a white satin cloth, was centered with a tall silver candelabra with an arrangement of pale yellow carnations, orange sweetheart roses and baby's breath. Tall yellow tapers completed the setting.

The four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with pale yellow rose buds and white miniature doves and yellow garlands, topped with two-feathered doves.

Mrs. Bob Orrick, McLean, cousin of the bride, served cake, and Miss Suzy Palmer, and Mrs. Don Case, both of Pampa, assisted at the coffee service and punch bowl. Mrs. Richard Kiker of Allison attended the champagne punch.

Miss Carole Campaigne of Lubbock, served the bridegroom's German chocolate cake from a table setting of silver appointments. Miss Katie Cree of Dallas registered wedding guests.

For the wedding trip to Santa Fe and Red River, N.M., the bride wore a brown and white polka dotted jersey pant suit and lifted the orchid from the bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside at 2002 5th St., Apt. 8, Lubbock.

AFFILIATIONS
 The bride is a 1971 graduate of Pampa High School and is senior education major at Texas Tech University.

The bridegroom is a 1969 graduate of PHS, and a 1973 graduate of TTU. He is presently associated with Equitable Life of New York.

PRE-NUPITAL EVENTS
 A recent bridal shower was hosted by Mrs. Betty Arney, 1620 Grape. Co-hostesses were Mmes. Leon Nachinger, Rickard Kiker, Harold Weidler, Allan Wise, H.L. Gunter, Richard Bray, Jim Thompson, Otto Specht, and N. Dudley Steele.

A rice bag party was hosted by Johnnie Sybert, 1916 Dogwood, followed by a couples cocktail and buffet supper.

Mrs. Bob Carmichael, 1716 Holly Lane, hosted the bridesmaid's luncheon, co-hosted by Mmes. Jack Reeve, Paul Howard, J.C. Hopkins and Joe Cree.

Mrs. Smith B. Sybert, mother of the bridegroom, hosted the rehearsal dinner at Pampa Country Club.

"AT WIT'S END"

By ERMA BOMBECK
 The other day I pulled up to a traffic light and observed the car in front of me.

There must have been eight stickers in the window proclaiming stands on controversial issues, plus four bumper stickers that provided ultimatums from "LOVE IT OR LEAVE IT!" to "SAVE PRECIOUS AIR. STOP BREATHING."

"What kind of car is that?" asked my son. "It's a 1974 opinion," I said.

The bumpers of American cars have not only become billboards for every social ill you can think of, some of them are getting downright ugly.

It all started off as a happy showcase for a sticker that said simply, "SMILE" or "HAVE A GOOD DAY." You could tear the fender off a car with a "SMILE" or "HAVE A GOOD DAY" and really feel feel rotten about the accident.

But a strange hostility swept over me the other day in the church parking lot. I actually raced a car to a parking space with a bumper sticker that read, "VOTE NO FOR THE SCHOOL LEVY."

Wearing your emotions on the rear end of your car can create some problems. A friend of mine found herself recently behind a car that had sat through two traffic lights. Finally, on the third green she honked her horn. The driver came back and said, "So you think he's guilty, do you?" "Who's guilty?" she asked.

He pointed toward his bumper sticker. "Your president. I purposely put 'HONK IF YOU THINK HE'S GUILTY' on my bumper just to see you people face to face."

My friend was so angry she rushed out and bought a bumper sticker. "DON'T BLAME ME. I VOTED FOR McGOVERN," and another one beside it that read, "HONK IF YOU WANT A PUNCH IN THE MOUTH."

Frankly, I think the whole thing is getting out of hand. I saw a man with a bumper sticker that read, "THIS IS A MAFIA STAFF CAR" cut right in front of another car with a sticker that read, "STICK IT IN YOUR EAR, FELLA." I even found my husband the other night in the dark garage putting a bumper sticker on our son's car that read, "THIS CAR SHOULD BE CONDEMNED."

I don't know where it is all going to end. Maybe letting it all hang out on the bumper of our car is the answer to all our frustrations. But until tempers settle down, I think I'll stick with my bumper that reads, "DRIVE DEFENSIVELY. BUY A TANK."

Bone Up On Legal Ways To Get Out Of Debt, Lawyer Says

NEW YORK (UPI)—You need not head for bankruptcy court or hide behind bushes (to avoid collectors) when monthly payments for debts exceed income — be it from paycheck or pension fund.

A lawyer who makes his living helping debtors survive said in an interview there are stratagems for survival before bankruptcy court — and after you've stopped hiding from collectors.

Sidney Sherwin, the lawyer, said: "Don't panic."

His RX: fill yourself with advice and information and then select the wisest, most economical, most painless legal way to get out of debt.

You won't survive, unless the experience teaches you to stay out of the debt trap, says Sherwin.

It sounds as though Sherwin, who once advised creditors how to get deadbeats to pay up, is peddling some kind of tricky solution.

"I'm not," he said, "for it is possible for people in debt over their heads to survive without bankruptcy. The trip to bankruptcy court, when necessary, has no substitute. But I say bankruptcy isn't always the avenue of best resort."

Sherwin, of New York City, is out with a new book, "What To Do When Your Bills Exceed Your Paycheck" (Prentice Hall).

As a lawyer who advises persons in debt head over heels, he is dismayed over the rise in bankruptcies and the extent to which young marrieds and young single workers are running into debt beyond control.

"Most debtors don't realize," he said, "that immediate mental relief can be obtained if one will bear in mind that one can never be put in jail for merely being in ordinary debt."

"I say 'ordinary' because the exceptions to this rule are being delinquent in the payment of alimony or in support payments for members of the family."

If the creditor uses unreasonable harassing tactics or unreasonably frightens you with deliberately prepared documents that look like court processes, you can do something about it.

Sherwin says he advises his clients to send a telegram when so threatened or exposed to such tactics. In the telegram clients are advised: tell the creditor to bug off or he will be sued.

Under the law unreasonable harassment or threats are no-nos.

"In trying to collect his debt, a creditor may commit extortion by threatening the debtor enough to induce fear of him of extreme consequences," Sherwin said.

In many states, the lawyer indicated, this is extortion.

Now suppose you realize you can't pay and the creditor is threatening to sue. Quick, before that point, contact the creditor.

Find out the basis of his action. You may have some defense—an out—in that. In his book, Sherwin explains the various defenses that may justify not paying a debt.

Excerpts from the list: —USURY. Defined as charging excess interest. More than the legal rate. If you signed a contract rate that is higher, you may have an out.

—INFANCY. This applies to anyone under 21—considered an infant.

Various states have changed the ages to under 20 or under 18. It is worth checking.

A case study: an infancy may be entitled to any money he has paid on a contract he declares void, but he must return the goods. To wit: An 18-year-old buys a car under a conditional sales contract.

He makes one payment and does not make any more. He is sued. The "infant" can and should advise the dealer by certified mail he is giving up the contract and then return the car to the dealer.

Another legal defense: incompetency. Say you were drunk, insane or incompetent when you signed an agreement. You plead that as a legal defense.

Another legal defense comes under the category of obligations of other members of the family. Suppose your wife goes out and buys a mink coat. It is delivered and you are billed.

You can't even afford a new cloth coat for her. Are you responsible? Sherwin says in such a case and similar ones involving children you do not have a legal responsibility to make payment. She'll have to return the coat to get herself out of the hook.

Sunflowers Are Supplement Income For West Texas Farmers

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Potato and corn chips, fried in sunflower oil, may soon be the improved taste sought by everyone.

Don Banks of Dallas, a representative of Frito-Lay, Inc., says sunflower oil has the desirable qualities for frying and the company is interested in continuing its sunflower oil testing program.

Because of the oil produced, and the short-season crop, many West Texas farmers are being urged to consider sunflowers between their wheat and cotton crops.

"Sunflower production could be an excellent source of supplemental income to Texas High Plains farmers," said Dr. George McBee, director of research at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock.

Wants To Be Objective
McBee said he wanted to be objective and not promote one crop over another, but at the same time he wanted to make sure the farmers did not overlook sunflowers as a supplement to their main crop.

"We at Frito-Lay became very interested in sunflower oil during our first year of testing in 1973," said Banks. "But the most important point right now is a steady source of supply. If this is provided, sunflowers have a very good potential in our industry."

Noble Koeppe, director of research for Growers Seed Association in Lubbock, said sunflower farming was feasible for farmers with adequate or limited water supplies.

"With one-third of a 300-acre farm planted in sunflowers in mid-March and given one irrigation, water requirements are more evenly distributed," he said.

"The crop is about over when water requirements must be met for cotton," Koeppe said. "And, compared with sorghum, sunflowers need about half the water."

Early Planting, Like Corn
Best stands are achieved on sunflowers planted uniformly at a depth of approximately one and a half inches, Koeppe said. Like corn, sunflowers can be planted in the early planting season whenever soil temperatures reach a 10-day average of 52 degrees or more.

"It is recommended that this early planting be made as soon as soil temperatures reach this level," Koeppe said.

Due to the short season maturity nature of sunflowers, the crop may be considered for late plantings — after wheat or in areas where hail damage has destroyed other crops. The crop can be planted as late as 100 days prior to the first normal killing frost — generally considered about Nov. 1 — and still be capable of maturing physiologically.

"The value of sunflowers is in the oil they produce," Koeppe said. "Currently, sunflower oil ranks second only to soybean oil in world vegetable oil production."

Estimates for 1974 show a production of 9 million metric tons of soybean oil and 4 million metric tons of sunflower oil. Combined, the two could represent more than half the total 25-million metric tons of vegetable oil produced at the world level.

U.S. Lags Far Behind
The United States lags far behind in world production of sunflower oil, with North Dakota and Minnesota accounting for 99 per cent of the nation's production.

"But there is no reason that the Texas High Plains area cannot have 30,000 acres of sunflowers next year," Koeppe said. "I think there is a lot of country here where sunflowers can be grown."

Sunflower acreage on the High Plains this year is expected at 7,000 acres. And, there is a large market for those farmers who do have sunflowers this year.

"Plains Cooperative Oil Mill, in conjunction with Growers Seed Association, has an agreement with producers on early planted sunflowers for 15 cents per pound," said a mill official.

"However, Plains Coop will provide a market for late sunflower plantings with the price based on the price of oil at the time of delivery."

According to Growers Seed Association, today's oil, variety sunflowers yield, approximately 2,000 pounds of seed per acre.

Prepare Children For School Days

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a four-part series prepared by the Office of Early Childhood Development.)

Five-year-old Lucy seemed very well-prepared for kindergarten.

Lucy was enthusiastic after her mother's explanations of what school would be like. Weeks before school started, Lucy's mother had taken her by the school several times, and shown her around the building. One week before school, Lucy had had a very good conversation with her future teacher. "She's a nice lady, Mommie," Lucy concluded.

But on beginning day, Lucy dissolved into tears like several other children.

Lucy is an exception. Nothing went wrong. Lucy's mother did the right thing and most five-year-olds, after a preliminary visit or two to school and a talk with the teacher, will make the transition from home to school easily.

Crying the first day of school isn't unusual, though, and perhaps parents should see it as always a possibility. Beginning school is a big step.

Much will depend on your child's individual personality as to how he adjusts and how soon he adjusts, say Doctors Chess, Thomas and Birch, authors of "Your Child Is a Person."

There are really two factors to consider. (1) whether your child first tends to approach or withdraw from new situations, or plays a game of "wait and see"; and (2) whether your child adapts quickly or slowly to change. Parents, say the doctor-authors, need to learn to accommodate themselves to their individual children's needs and personalities as each child encounters novelty.

If the child drives right in, mother (or father) can feel more confident about leaving almost immediately. Let your child set the pace and give him gentle encouragement when it seems appropriate, advise many child development specialists.

However, it would be a bad idea to tease or attempt to shame children under the circumstances. Demanding that Lucy or Joey act like a big girl or boy probably would hurt rather than help.

Some children will even tell the parent when it is time to go, saying something like, "You don't have to stay with me today."

When the parent stays and then senses it is time to leave, James L. Hymes, Jr., California early childhood consultant says to leave honestly.

"Don't shoot away from him before he is ready," says Hymes. "This gives him a deserted feeling. It can make him cling to you longer the next time."

"Don't go when his back is turned. Don't go when you think he isn't looking. Don't go when someone else is holding him and he can't do anything about your leaving."

Be sure to tell him goodbye, wish him well and tell him you when you will pick him up.

Being sensitive to your child's personality and responding appropriately is one of the best ways to help your child make a good adjustment to school.

Adjustment will depend also on the feelings and responses of the parent who realizes there is going to be a new kind of separation involved when the child is in school.

PART THREE: A parent's response to the child's first day of school.

IN VIETNAM
SAIGON (UPI) — There are about 6,500 Americans still in Vietnam. Most of them work for, or are paid by, the U.S. government.

The Almanac

United Press International Today is Thursday, Aug. 15, the 227th day of 1974 with 138 to follow.

The moon is between the last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Mars.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo.

American novelist Edna Ferber was born Aug. 15, 1887.

On this day in history:

In 1914, an American ship passed from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, officially opening the Panama Canal.

In 1935, a American humorist Will Rogers and Pilot Wiley Post were killed when their plane crashed in Alaska.

In 1966, The New York Herald Tribune went out of business after 131 years of publication.

In 1871, President Nixon ordered a 90-day wage-price-rent freeze and announced imposition of a 10 per cent surcharge on foreign imports.

Pipeline Cost Boosted Again

LOS ANGELES, Atlantic Richfield Company has announced that a continuing company review of the cost estimate for the trans Alaska pipeline system indicates that the pipeline system cost will be in excess of the $4.5 billion announced last October.

To complete the system at a 2 million barrel per day capacity, a spokesman said, the amount could exceed $5 billion, but definitive estimates will not be available until later from Alyeska Pipeline Service Company, the firm responsible for design, construction and operation of the pipeline.

Kiwanis Club Hears Report

Local Kiwanis delegates to the Tri-State Kiwanis Convention conducted last week in Oklahoma City reported to members of the Top O' Texas Kiwanis Tuesday night.

Delegates, officers in the local segment, reporting convention actions to the group included Ab Conway, Sam Motley, Corky Parks and Wayne Stedum.

Lawrence C. Kilbrith, teacher in the local coordinated vocational academic education field of the Pampa School System, was accepted as a new member during the business session of the meeting.

Kiwanis set Aug. 20 as the Family Night Picnic date. The event will begin at 7 p.m. in Central Park.

Adult Classes Increase

According to the United States Office of Education, more than six million adults between the ages of twenty-five and thirty-five enroll in some type of formal educational program each year.

Many attend privately owned and operated trade and technical schools. They do so for a variety of reasons. Some want to develop a satisfying secure career in a job they enjoy.

Some want to change careers. Some want to learn skills to obtain promotions and better jobs in the fields that they are currently employed.

Many wives want to learn skills or take part-time jobs to help supplement the family income.

These private vocational schools offer training in such diverse areas as computer technology, hotel management, TV repair, photography, fashion design, auto mechanics, and in many other areas.

VOICE OF BUSINESS

Anti-Business Faction Discontented

By ARCH BOOTH
U.S. C-C President

WASHINGTON — Many industries have been racking up strong profits gains recently — a situation that looks good to the stockholders and bad to the anti-business crowd.

But the stockholders actually have little reason to rejoice: Experts are concluding that many of the so-called profits aren't what they appear to be.

How's that again?

Let's say that you are a manufacturer of widgets. Because of inflation, the cost of making a widget increases from $1 per widget to $1.10 per widget. Since you had been selling them for $1.05 apiece, you must increase the selling price to reflect the new cost. So you raise the selling price to $1.15.

At the moment you raised your selling price, you had 100,000 widgets in the warehouse, virtually all of them made at the older $1-per-widget cost. But now they are worth $1.15 in the marketplace, rather than $1.05. That is, they are worth 10 cents apiece more.

The Windfall
By the stroke of a pen, your inventory has increased in value some $10,000 (100,000 x 10 cents). This is your "inventory profit."

Sounds like a great way to make money, doesn't it? But wait a minute. Has your company really become more profitable? Can you expect to make such a profit next year? No. It's a one-shot deal.

Still, it's better to have the money than not to have it. But can you treat it as you would "real" profit? Can you use it to expand your business? Can you distribute it to the stockholders?

Again, the answer to both these questions is no — unless you plan to go out of business.

That $10,000 windfall you seem to have earned is in fact already committed. You must keep restocking your inventory as it is used up. And you know that new additions to that inventory are going to cost you more.

So if you want to stay in business, the $10,000 is going to be put back into inventory. What's left of it anyway — because under some circumstances, it's still "profit" to the IRS, and subject to the 48 per cent corporate income tax. Albatross in Disguise

Such is the process by which a paper profit turns from an apparent asset into an actual liability. By the time IRS gets through, a business may discover that it has paid out for taxes what really amounts to essential working capital.

And if the managers aren't sharp enough to recognize the difference between real profit and inventory profit — if they try to use the paper profits the same way they would use real profit — then the business will be even more strapped for cash, perhaps seriously so.

What's "real" profit? Real profit is the return on investment derived from the real value created by the manufacturing or service process, not the "increase" that results from inflation.

The subject is enormously complicated in actual practice. Differing accounting methods can change the way inventory profits are valued, and the nature of the business itself will determine whether the paper profits have a big or a relatively small impact.

But however they're measured, these phantom profits are there, creating a false impression in the minds of managers and the public alike. It's one more illustration of the fact that inflation is taking its toll of business as well as the consumer.

It's one more illustration of the need to elect an "inflation-proof Congress" next fall.

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

When the heat and humidity compete for your attention this summer, you may begin daydreaming about relaxing in a backyard swimming pool all your own.

You won't be alone: thousands of Americans are making their dreams a reality by becoming pool owners. If you're thinking of joining them in the sun, don't imagine yourself just getting the pool — you'll be getting into a major investment.

The price of swimming pools has declined in recent years, and now many more people can afford to have one. Before you decide that you can afford it, however, realize that a pool is a continuing investment.

Besides your initial expenditure, you may want extra accessories. Upkeep is another thing to consider. And you may encounter other costs such as higher taxes and utility bills.

Bear in mind, cautions the Better Business Bureau, today's inflationary prices include swimming pools as well as the necessities of life. Over the long haul a pool can become a burden rather than a pleasure, so get the facts.

An in-ground pool, besides adding considerable value to your property, will last a lifetime. However, both the initial outlay and upkeep are likely to be expensive.

The main advantage to an above-ground pool is its relatively low cost. Another is that in most areas these pools are not taxed. Low maintenance costs also contribute to dollar savings. And should you move, you may be able to take your investment with you.

Above-ground pools, however, last only an average of seven to ten years. Another disadvantage is that the variety of sizes and shapes are not as diverse as with in-ground pools.

Choose A Reputable Dealer

When you look for a pool, look around first for a reputable dealer. Watch out for fast-buck operators. These are the schemes you should be aware of.

Bait and switch. Be suspicious when a pool is advertised at a ridiculously low price. This is the bait. Once you contact the firm, the salesperson discourages you from buying the advertised pool, saying it really isn't any good. Then he or she encourages you to buy a much more expensive pool.

This is the switch. If you fall for it, you'll end up spending a lot more money than you'd planned, and for what may turn out to be an inferior product.

Demonstration. Sometimes a salesperson will try to sell you a pool, offering you a special price because your pool will be used for display purposes to show potential customers. Usually, the pool is never shown to anyone, and your special price isn't special at all — it's the price regularly charged to all customers.

Referral. Sometimes a salesperson offers you the opportunity to get refunds on the purchase price of a pool in return for the names of others who also buy a pool. In most instances, you won't receive any refunds, and if you do, they will be insignificant.

Don't Get Soaked

If you run into anyone using these schemes, contact a Better Business Bureau or other nearby consumer protection office. If you want to protect yourself from getting soaked when buying a pool remember:

—Get estimates from at least three different companies before you sign a contract.

—Ask the firm for names of former customers you may check with.

—Figure out ahead of time what you'll have to spend for maintenance and upkeep.

—Find out from local building and health departments what the local regulations are concerning building, fencing and health standards.

—Don't commit yourself to anything until you have time to think it over. Check your state's cooling-off law.

And the Federal Trade Commission also has a cooling off regulation which gives you added protection if you change your mind. These laws, under certain conditions, give you three business days during which you may cancel without penalty any contract signed by you off the seller's premises.

—Make sure your contract fully sets forth the work to be done with the materials specified, together with a starting and completion date and the total price.

COUNTRYMUSIC

By J.R. YOUNG
Copyright 1974 Country Music Magazine

Three years ago, someone at Epic records said the company would pay a million bucks to anyone who could write a hit song for Charlie Rich, something to put his name out front, something everyone would hear.

After all, he had everything: the voice, the looks, the past, a cultish and a doring following. Everything, that is, except the singular hit that would put him over the hump of 10 years of relative piano lounge obscurity.

"All he needs is a foot in the door," the executive moaned. "After that he'll carry it along."

Well, more than a year ago, Kenny O'Dell finally supplied that song, "Behind Closed Doors," and, indeed, Charlie has carried it ever since.

Last week, in fact, a check of the top country albums revealed Charlie Rich had four out of five of the top sellers, including both current Epic albums, along with two collections of past Rich renditions.

He had won every country award in sight. Successive singles have jumped to the top of the charts and he has crossed over into Elton John's Carpenters' Grand Funk territory. He's simply been that kind of a year for Charlie Rich.

Last week he capped it all. He opened on the big floor at the Las Vegas Hilton, complete with horns, strings, spangled show girls and a trio of black soul sisters behind him.

By all indications he's a smash. Not only is he selling out each show (the hottest show in town, so the cabbies say), but he's also drawing in the heavy gamblers... "Just like Roy Clark and Frank Sinatra."

Not more than six months ago, Charlie was still playing state fairs and local nightclubs, and with the same laid-back reserve that resembled a minor league Memphis cocktail pianist.

Now the Silver Fox was in Las Vegas. On stage, Charlie sauntered to the front and said, "I know there are country folk out there, right?" and the audience of maroon double knit highrollers flipping 50 dollar bills out of their thin leather wallets cheered mightily.

He daydreamed his way through all his hits for the first half of the show, and then did a lively medley which was musical presentation of the Charlie Rich story for the second Half (ranging from classical piano to blues to jazz to rock and roll to, of course, country), along with some painfully spoken, ill-written adlibs as he wandered back and forth across the football field-size stage. Oly at the piano did Charlie look really comfortable... "at home," as they say.

As one public relations man said in a whispered aside, three songs into Charlie's set, "Charlie's not really country. He's a crooner. Peopple will just have to learn that. Country music may just be his foot in the Big Door."

By all indications, Las Vegas may very well bear out that point. The show finally all came down to the heady fruition with the encore... with Charlie front and center doing an upbeat ditty featuring 8000 prancing and dancing Las Vegas lassies. Charlie was right in there with them, snapping his fingers, twisting, stomping and waving his arms.

It reminded me of a great Lenny Bruce line: "The best thing you can do when you get off the plane in Lost Vegas is walk into the propeller."

Fuel Economy Test Set For 1975 Model Autos

PALATINE, Ill. — Union Oil Company of California will sponsor a fuel economy test for 1975 model automobiles to be held in mid-November of this year, it has been announced.

More than 60 domestic and foreign automobiles will be tested for fuel economy over a five day period starting November 11 at Daytona Beach, Fla. The tests will be conducted by the Automotive Research Bureau, Inc., one of the largest automotive certification bodies in the world.

"The 1975 Union 76 Fuel Economy Tests will be conducted as a service for the driving public," the announcement said. "Most people planning to purchase a new car are more concerned about fuel economy today than at any other time in the history of the automobile. The tests are designed to give a true description of each automobile's gasoline mileage potential under actual driving conditions."

Testing of the 1975 model cars will follow the fuel economy measurement road test procedures as outlined by the Society of Automotive Engineers' test J1082, and will provide fuel consumption figures for both city and suburban driving as well as interstate type driving.

Boating

NEW YORK (UPI) — From the ditty bag:

—Jim Hardy, 41, newly named to skipper the Australian 12-Meter Southern Cross in her America's Cup bid, is a veteran of three Cup campaigns. In 1967, he crewed aboard Gretel I in her unsuccessful attempt to defeat Dame Pattie for the challenger's role, and in 1970 he skippered Gretel II against the U.S. defender Intrepid, losing 41 in the best of seven series. Southern Cross will meet the French 12-Meter, France, in a best of seven series beginning Aug. 22 off Newport, R.I. to determine which will challenge the U.S. defender starting Sept. 10.

—A recent survey shows that estimated expenditures by states and territories on boating programs reached $39 million in 1973, $3 million less than the revenues generated by boating. The survey notes, however, that boating would probably generate revenues at least equal to its public costs if adequate records were kept on the marine components of fuel taxes, and if such taxes were actually used for boating purposes.

—Youngest driver in the ranks of the nation's offshore power boat racers is 17-year-old Bobby Garr of Coral Gables, Fla., who recently drove his 28-foot Cigarette El Diablo to victory in the sports division of the Hennessy Grand Prix at Atlantic City N.J. Previously, he had taken sports division honors in the Sam Griffith Memorial and the Bahamas 500. The high school senior's sole crew member is his father, Julian "Bud" Garr, a Coral Gables real estate developer.

—Of 32 species of record fish caught in the Gulf of Mexico, off Louisiana, in the past 10 years, more than half have been taken from boats moored to oil platforms. The remainder were taken from boats operating adjacent to the platforms. The species are described in a new motion picture, "Rig Fishing the Gulf: The New Louisiana Story," produced by Evinrude Motors in cooperation with Exxon Co., USA.

—Most of the nation's top outboard drivers are expected to take part in the St. Louis World's Championship Grand Prix on the Meramec River in suburban Fenton, Mo., Aug. 17-18. Interest will center on the unlimited OZ class, with qualifying heats being run on Aug. 17 to select 20 finalists for the championship run the following day.

ROCK MUSIC

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International

Television has done a fair-to-middlin' job of catching up with rock music of late. With two network concert shows and a major syndicated series, rock is finally getting the TV exposure it deserves as the nation's most popular form of entertainment.

Despite improvement in the rock field, however, the tube systematically ignores the importance of the blues as one of America's two prime musical traditions (country being the other).

Enter Public Television and a producer named Ken Ehrlich.

Ehrlich works at WTTW, a Public TV Network affiliate in Chicago, and sound mind, he put together a locally made rock show that attracted national attention. He eventually got money from the network to do a similar national show.

Chicago being the home of the modern blues, Ehrlich decided to use local talent for a blues show. So he contacted and signed the great Muddy Waters and Willie Dixon—and passed the word around that it was to be a tribute to Muddy.

The idea snowballed—and a lot of Muddy's many friends in the business decided they'd like a piece of the action. One after another they said sure—they'd work for free—for Muddy.

In the end the line-up for the show was beyond a producer's wildest dreams. Johnny Winter, Dr. John, Junior Wells.

What's more, it worked. That is, this turned out to be one of the rare super-sessions that produced music worthy of the names of the participants.

Johnny proved he can belt 'em out even when his frail body is ailing. Dr. John proved he can boogie on the piano with the best of them, and that he is one of the world's legitimately weird people. Buddy proved he is a hell of a drummer, when he's not too busy being a star. Mike proved he is one of the best blues guitarists anywhere. Junior proved he is the very best harp player, period. And they all proved that Muddy Waters is the finest bluesman there is.

It was a great evening, concluding with a long jam on "Keep My Mojo Working" that got more spontaneous audience participation than an entire season of the Midnight Special.

Books

John Marshall: A Life in Law, by Leonard Baker. (Macmillan, $17.95)

At the first inaugural of Thomas Jefferson in 1801, the capital of Washington was a city of few buildings and "a great deal of rough country," as one Congressman wrote, adding, "We have the name of a city but nothing else." The same was true of the fledgling republic. The United States seemed a nation in name only. It had gone through a grueling, emotionally charged election that resulted in a tie between Aaron Burr and Jefferson. The House of Representatives chose Jefferson, and at the inaugural, the question lingered: could this nation of states remain united?

John Marshall, at 45 newly appointed chief justice, swore in the new president, a man he distrusted. Marshall had been a brilliant attorney and a secretary of state. He was to remain head of the Supreme Court for 34 years.

In that role, he was to become one of the half dozen figures responsible for shaping the constitutional structure of the nation he loved.

The peaceful passing of the Presidency into Jefferson's hands refuted those concerned that the rule of law would not prevail. As the author of this fine biography commented: "What really worried them (Americans) was that the American experiment might perhaps have failed, that men had not been sincere when they talked about a cause greater than themselves. But in the end they remembered they had pledged themselves to the rule of a universal and just law, and it succeeded in its first test."

John Marshall was an extraordinary man whose career was replete with incidental turning points in the evolution of the American system. Marbury vs. Madison was primary in establishing the High Court as the third, strong arm of the government. In McCulloch vs. Maryland, he justified the supremacy of the federal government over the states.

The author, a journalist who has covered the Supreme Court for 14 years, elucidates and dramatizes these legal conflicts with great knowledge and skill. His book is an endlessly intriguing biography that is extremely timely in these days of constitutional crisis.

The Radziwills, by

Tadeusz Nowakowski. (Delacorte, $12.50) The exotic didos of the princely Radziwills, an ambitious East European clan which intermarried with royalty, make occasionally amusing reading but interest is not sustained. The reader will be correct in suspecting that the widely publicized marriage of Stanislaus Radziwill to Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis' sister was the commercial inspiration for this book.

Satan's Back Yard, by Sam J. Slate. (Doubleday, $6.95) A little known chapter in American history—an independent American attempt to liberate Florida from Spain during the Madison administration. Slate, a former CBS vice president, has a sure touch for fast-moving narrative, romance and adventure based on solidly researched historical fact.

Egyptian vultures can break ostrich eggs by pounding on the eggs with rocks held in their beaks.

Coal Replaces Natural Gas

HOUSTON (UPI) — A new method of changing coal to gas to replace natural gas is providing fuel to several thousand families in Westfield, Scotland. Continental Oil company officials said Tuesday.

The process, called methanation, is one step beyond coal gasification, a spokesman said, and the gas can be used in place of natural gas with no alterations needed in home equipment.

The homes in Fife County near Edinburgh will be supplied with 2.5 million cubic feet of the gas for the next few weeks, the spokesman said. The cost of producing the gas is somewhat higher than natural gas, but could be used in areas where natural gas is scarce and there is a good supply of coal. It burns with about the same heat as natural gas, he said.

Only a few coal gasification plants are operating in the world now, but several are planned for the United States in a few years.

Conoco managed the Scottish project for a number of American oil and coal companies.

TV In Review

By MARIANNA OHE
TOKYO (UPI) — Now that summer vacations have started, Japanese parents face the problem of how to get the children to bed before the racy late-night television programs are aired.

Television here is somewhat schizophrenic, with innocent family fare during prime time and anything goes attitude after midnight.

Three channels usually feature adults only late night fare.

Bare-breasted women dressed as Indians and cowgirls prance around the stage doing square dances. On a typical night recently, one channel featured a kind of erotic ballet performed by a man and woman dressed in brief-gstrings.

Earlier in the evening, an innocent young songstress dressed in white knee socks and short dress with little white collar sang about first love.

On one of the most popular late night shows, guests drink whisky, tell off-color stories and watch excerpts from pornographic films which they later discuss. The talk is interspersed with strip tease performances and gambling games.

Another channel showed a film of a man caressing a model attired in a black slip, followed by a discussion about the sexiness of black slips.

On a third channel, a man interviewed a woman in a topless bathing suit (held up by suspenders) and when the interview was completed everyone called out "show time" and a stripper dressed in silver danced slowly out of her clothes.

The risque shows usually include one or two well-endowed women used as set decorations and who sit around giggling at the off-color stories, much like the hostesses in Tokyo's bars and night clubs.

These shows are a far cry from dinner-time TV fare.

Early evening viewers prefer Agnes Chan, an 18-year-old student and pop music idol from Hong Kong who dresses to look about 12 and sings in a quavering, childish voice while brushing tears from her cheek without a finger.

Also popular are "Finger Five," four brothers and a sister ranging in age from eight to mid-teens who dress alike and sing Japanese rock tunes.

The child cult reaches absurd proportions in the family song contest shows. Here, celebrities bring their entire broods to "compete" with the families of other celebrities. More often than not, the cutest three-year-old with the highest voice carries his family to victory.

Tapes Are For Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Nixon's taped conversations that are not relevant to the Watergate inquiry are his personal property, a White House spokesman said.

President Ford's press secretary, Jerry terHorst, said the White House legal counsel's office, in consultation with the special prosecutor and the Justice Department, made the judgment.

Ford played no role in the decision but concurs with the ruling, terHorst said.

Specifically, terHorst said "the tapes not subpoenaed and not relevant to the Watergate inquiry belong to the President" meaning Nixon. The statement left unclear the status of tapes that have been subpoenaed and deemed relevant.

At the same time, terHorst said Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, James D. St. Clair, had left the White House legal counsel's office as of today and had returned to Boston.

St. Clair has been taken off the White House payroll, terHorst said. St. Clair went on the payroll last January to help Nixon in his battle against impeachment at an annual salary of $42,500.

TerHorst said St. Clair left on his own initiative and he expects other members of Nixon's Watergate defense team will be leaving in a week or two after they wind up their affairs.

The subpoenaed tapes are in the hands of U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who is reviewing them for relevancy in the Sept. 9 Watergate cover-up trial, or, in the case of those Sirica thinks relevant, with special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Buyer's Billboard

By MICHAEL J. CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — College students flying to school this year or planning to wing it back during the holidays will find the trip costs a lot more than it used to.

Youth fares, once a real boon to travelers between the ages of 12 and 21, are gone. They disappeared June 1 as the result of a legal challenge which claimed the fares discriminated against the over 21 set.

The airline industry hated to see them go. Among other things it says traffic across the Atlantic has declined because students who once could make the trip for half price standby or two-thirds price reserved are not now so willing to go.

But there is no move afoot to bring back the fares, for continental U.S. travel anyway. Some carriers have asked that youth fares be restored for transatlantic flights, however, to compete with foreign airlines which are still offering discounts, or to curb the growing practice among students and others of flying to Canada and then departing for Europe. Even with the added trip north of the border Canadian flights across the Atlantic are still cheaper than those originating in the United States for those under 21.

The following comes from a reader in Harrisburg, Ill.: "I read in a paper where a company was advertising sewing machines, where you send them $10 a month till you get it paid for, then they were supposed to send you the machine. I sent $10 to them and then I read not to deal with this company as they weren't on the up-and-up. I wrote and asked for my $10 refunded and they never did answer my letter.

"Is there any way I can get my money back?" She identified the company as Market Development Corp., Contest Award Division, Cincinnati, Ohio.

It appears you may be out of luck, along with a lot of other people. According to the Ohio Attorney General's office, the company filed for bankruptcy after being hit by suits from several states as well as actions by the Federal Trade Commission and the U.S. Postal Service.

Its bankruptcy petition claims that it owes a lot more than it has—by a margin as high as six to one. Even if there is a settlement, Ohio officials say, the consumer is usually at the bottom of the list and the least likely to collect.

There are two things, however, you or anyone else involved with this firm can do to perhaps get some money back, or at least assure your name is on the list of creditors should a settlement come.

The first is to contact your state attorney general's office to determine if your state is one of the several which has filed suit against the firm. If so your name can be added to the list of complainants.

Secondly, go to an office supply store, stationary shop or similar outlet and buy a "proof of claim" form. This form simply lists what you bought, what you spent and other particulars. Send this form to: Court of Bankruptcy, 719 U.S. Post Office & Courthouse Building, 5th and Walnut Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202, attention of Ed Schulzinger, receiver in bankruptcy.

Again, neither action will guarantee a refund; but you will have standing should a settlement be made.

Ohio officials say the firm was involved in several operations, including letters to individuals telling them they had won a "free vacation" if they sent in a small sum of money for handling charges. The winner got back a certificate but found out he had to pay his own way to Florida, Nevada or wherever the vacation was.

One sewing machine deal, Ohio officials add, involved notification that you had "won" $100 off a $169 machine—which, it turned out, was only worth $69 to begin with.

Pass on your questions, complaints or suggestions. We can't promise an answer for each one but will reply as time and space permit. Direct inquiries to Buyer's Billboard, UPI, 315 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20045.

REDIT SQUEEZE
SYDNEY (UPI) — Building society loans are down by a record $630 million in the wake of a crippling credit squeeze, says the Australian Association of Permanent Building Societies.

Popular Records

By WILLIAM LAFFLER
NEW YORK (UPI) — Hamburger is 100 per cent American, but when it is served up by Focus it is a real Dutch treat.

"Hamburger Concerto" is the name of the latest album by Focus (Atco SD 36 100) and as far as quality goes it is prime filet mignon.

Focus — which consists of Jan Akkerman, Thijs Van Leer, Bert Ruiter and Colin Allen — so far has been the outstanding Dutch contemporary group. It has won numerous awards in a field dominated by British rock musicians and it has built up a large following in the United States.

At the time that Focus entered the international competition about four years ago it attempted to avoid the rock label but its audiences consists mostly of late teenagers, although it is looked upon favorably, too, by those past thirty.

Akkerman is considered one of the best, if not the best, of the modern guitarists. Van Leer is a superb flute player, good enough to play in a symphony orchestra or a chamber music group. Ruiter and Allen offer excellent support on the percussion instruments.

"Hamburger Concerto" occupies the entire second side of the record, with such movement titles as starter, rare, medium and well done. The concerto has a fluid forward motion which never stalls. It is very good music, good enough to earn a permanent place in record collections.

The first side begins with "Delitiae Musicae" which has a strong classic flavor. The second number, "Harem Scarem," an exposition in riffs and variations, is doing well as a single and is the highlight of the first side.

Another strong group among the current bands is Refugee, composed of Lee Jackson and Brian Davison—who played with the Nice—and Patrick Moraz, an outstanding man on the keyboards who has written 25 film scores.

Their album is called "Refugee" (The Famous Charisma Label FC 6066) and it holds attention from beginning to end.

Refugee would have been wiser, however, if it had saved the opening number, "Papillon," for the end of the album because it is the outstanding number. Even so, there is no let down.

Most of the numbers are composed by Moraz. Gene Ammons, a veteran modern jazz tenor sax man, is the lead musician on "Brasswind" (Prestige P-10080).

Ford, Warren Good Friends

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The new First Lady's first husband says he still is a good friend of both President and Mrs. Gerald Ford, but not too close.

Asked Tuesday by San Francisco Chronicle columnist Herb Caen whether he had sent congratulations when the new President was sworn in, William C. Warren replied: "Well, we're not THAT good friends."

Warren married the former Betty Bloomer in Grand Rapids, Mich., back in the late 30s, or maybe it was the early 40s. You know how time flies. I was fresh out of U of Michigan."

"We were married, oh, about seven years," he was quoted as saying by Caen.

Frozen Seafood Prices Drop

NEW YORK (UPI) — Consumer resistance in the United States and Japan is helping cut the price of frozen fish and shrimp. Wholesale prices already have dropped sharply on a wide variety of products. The savings are expected to show up at the retail level within the next month or two, say industry spokesmen. We've never had such a big backlog before, says Henry R. McEvoy, marketing specialist for the National Marine Fisheries Service, Gloucester, Mass. The 424 million pounds of frozen fish and seafood now in cold storage is 57 per cent greater than the 270 million pounds on hand a year ago, McEvoy added in an interview here. Even king and snow crabmeat are in good supply, he said. Per capita consumption of fish had shot up to twelve and a half pounds during the beef boycott last summer, after hovering around 11 pounds for many years. This led to increased imports. But when the meat boycott succeeded and prices dropped, U. S. consumers went back to their old shopping habits and supplies began to pile up in warehouses. McEvoy said only 36 million pounds move out to stores, restaurants and institutions during the first six months this year, compared with 145 million pounds during the same period in 1973. McEvoy also said retail prices have remained high partly because of the cost of doing business. Prices are up on everything from boat construction to fishing gear and insurance for fishermen and their vessels. He emphasized that the decreases will apply only to frozen products. And they do not apply to such frozen items as lobsters, clams and the largest size shrimp, which are used primarily by restaurants and institutions. He said all fresh fish and seafood remain scarce, and prices correspondingly high. But frozen fillets of flounder, Greenland turbot, whiting, ocean perch, cod and pollock are in good supply and breaded fish sticks are in very good supply. All should be comparatively better buys than they have been for quite a while, he added.

Crisp Cool Cranberry Summer Salads

CRANBERRY GREEK SALAD
(Serves 6)
1 large head iceberg lettuce, cubed
1 cucumber, peeled and sliced
2 tomatoes, cut into wedges
1/2 cup (8 ounces) pitted ripe olives, drained
1 small red onion, sliced thinly
1 cup diced mozzarella cheese
6 anchovy filets, chopped
1/2 cup Ocean Spray cranberry-orange relish (from 14-oz. jar)
1 tablespoon capers
1/2 cup oil
1/4 cup red wine vinegar
1/2 teaspoon crumbled marjoram
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt

chicken, relish, water chestnuts, bean sprouts and green pepper. Blend together sour cream, ginger, salt, soy sauce and pepper. Top salad with sour cream mixture and sliced almonds. Chill. When ready to serve, toss salad to blend all ingredients. Line a bowl with salad greens, and place chicken mixture in the center.
CRANBERRY PINEAPPLE FROZEN SALAD
(Makes 12 1/2 cup molds or 1 quart mold and 5 1/2 cup molds)
2 packages (8 ounces each)

softened cream cheese
1 can (16 ounces) frozen concentrated orange juice
1 cup coarsely broken pecans
1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) crushed pineapple, drained
1 can (1 pound) Ocean Spray whole berry cranberry sauce, mashed

Place softened cream cheese in a mixing bowl and gradually blend in orange juice. Beat until mixture is soft and fluffy. Fold in pecans, pineapple, and cranberry sauce. Spoon mixture into individual molds or into a large mold and several individual molds. Freeze until hard. When ready to serve dip mold into lukewarm water, tap to loosen and invert on a platter filled with crushed ice. Serve immediately with or without mayonnaise.

LOW-COST DIPS
In dips calling for a sour cream base, a low-cost substitution is sieved cottage cheese. Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

Educator Says Size Of Class Does Make A Difference

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The size of school classes DOES make a difference.

Take it from Dr. Martin Olson. Summarizing his extensive research study spanning seven years he declared that "any way one tries to slice it" smaller classes produce significantly higher quality education than large ones.

And take it from thousands of teachers who need no convincing that children benefit in a great many ways when classes are kept small.

The National Education Association, which sounds out the nation's teachers periodically, has found that "working with too many students each day" is one of their major problems.

Closely related headaches are: too many students with too much variance in their intellectual abilities, too many noninstructional chores for teachers, and too many students who don't really care whether school continues or not.

Despite some recently publicized claims that kids fare as well in large classes as small ones, teachers all over the country are ready to rebut the argument. They point out that class size may be the difference between teaching in depth and baby-sitting.

When a class is large, the vast range of human differences and needs must virtually be ignored and the group treated as though homogenized — each person a carbon copy of all the rest.

School executives as well as the teachers may basically favor small classes but they often bump into a barrier: tight educational financing. Too frequently in recent years the response has been to lop off some school programs and services and trim down the instructional staff — with class size creeping up instead of going down.

What are the major evils of large classes? Well, for starters there is teacher fatigue. The teacher may begin the school year with zip and zest but after days of constant wear from jam-packed classes, his enthusiasm is dulled, his energy sapped, his morale depressed.

Bad behavior by students often is a characteristic of large classes, educators report. For example, "bumping and shoving" by children tends to increase as class size increases, some teachers have observed.

The gravest situation, the one that stands out starkly in large classes, is the teacher's inability to give adequate individual attention to students. If raised hands must go unanswered, the time will come when they won't be raised anymore.

Putting the matter more positively, teachers who are not overburdened with wall-to-wall pupils can do a better job of meeting the needs of each child and leading him toward his full potential.

Some of the gain may be in traditional areas of learning. The teacher with a modest-sized class can, for instance, pinpoint individuals' weaknesses in particular school subjects and help them shore up in those areas.

The greatest rewards from smaller classes, though, probably come in those hard-to-measure areas of personality and character. The teacher fortunate to have smaller classes can emphasize human values: for example, foster self-acceptance by the child, helping him improve his self-image and build confidence; nourish creative traits in the child; and aid social development.

This teacher can also try out innovations that may make his teaching more effective. (Research has shown that teachers tend to take on innovations in small classes, only to drop them if the classes become large.) And — certainly not least — he can make the classroom a pleasant place where a life-long love of learning can take root.

Some encouraging steps are being taken to lower average class size. Particularly significant is the California program, under the direction of state school superintendent Wilson Riles, which is scheduled to reduce the pupil-teacher ration in the critical kindergarten through grade 3 level to 10:1 over a period of years.

In other states, progress is district-by-district, usually at behest of organized — and concerned — teachers.

Most negotiation agreements or contracts between education associations and school boards now include specific provisions regarding class size.

Teachers feel that this matter is so important to their students as well as themselves that it has been a major — or even the major — consideration in some teachers strikes in recent years. Strikes in Indianapolis; Yorkers, N.Y.; Hawaii; and Kansas City, Mo., have been among those where class size was a central issue.

While the general proposition holds that teachers can do a better job with fewer students, the profession often does not advocate an across-the-board classroom pupil-teacher ration, such as 20:1. Rather, educators stress flexibility, with the class size varying according to subject matter, grade level, individual teacher methods, and the particular needs of students. A class of six students, for example, might engage in learning a foreign language; 60 students, on the other hand, might attend a lecture on history, then break into seminar groups of perhaps 10 to 12 persons each to delve more deeply into certain areas. Where ratios are needed, experts today advocate 60 or 70 professionals (exclusive of teacher aides) per 1,000 students in a school district instead of a classroom-by-classroom breakdown.

Impeachment Book Printed

NEW YORK (UPI) — A paperback book on the House Judiciary Committee proceedings that recommended the impeachment of President Nixon was being distributed across the country Thursday 36 hours after the committee's adjournment.

Entitled "The Impeachment Report," the book is a joint project of United Press International, The World Almanac and the New American Library Publishing Co.

The 320-page indexed book, which has an initial printing of 750,000 copies, began coming off the presses of the W.F. Hall Printing Co. in Chicago early Thursday. Shortly thereafter, airfreight shipments of bound copies were under way to major cities in the United States for distribution and newsstand sale. It is a Signet Special and has a cover price of $1.95.

The book includes the articles of impeachment as recommended by the committee, balanced highlights of committee debate and votes, historical background and a special introduction by Helen Thomas, UPI White House Reporter.

UPI and Newspaper Enterprise Association, publishers of The World

Almanac, also are making the book available simultaneously to their respective subscribers who wish to offer it as a public service.

The final vote and adjournment of the Rodino Committee's inquiry late Tuesday night signaled a unique blending of news service spot-news expertise and book publishing talents by selected staffs from the three organizations. It also was a combination of computer typesetting, jet transportation, and high-speed printing and binding. UPI computers were used to transmit copy on the committee's deliberations at 1,050 words a minute from Washington to editors in New York and then to Memphis, Tenn., for typesetting, pasteup and mechanical work.

The plates for the book were made in the early hours Wednesday and flown by charter plane from Memphis to Chicago for the printing and binding operations.

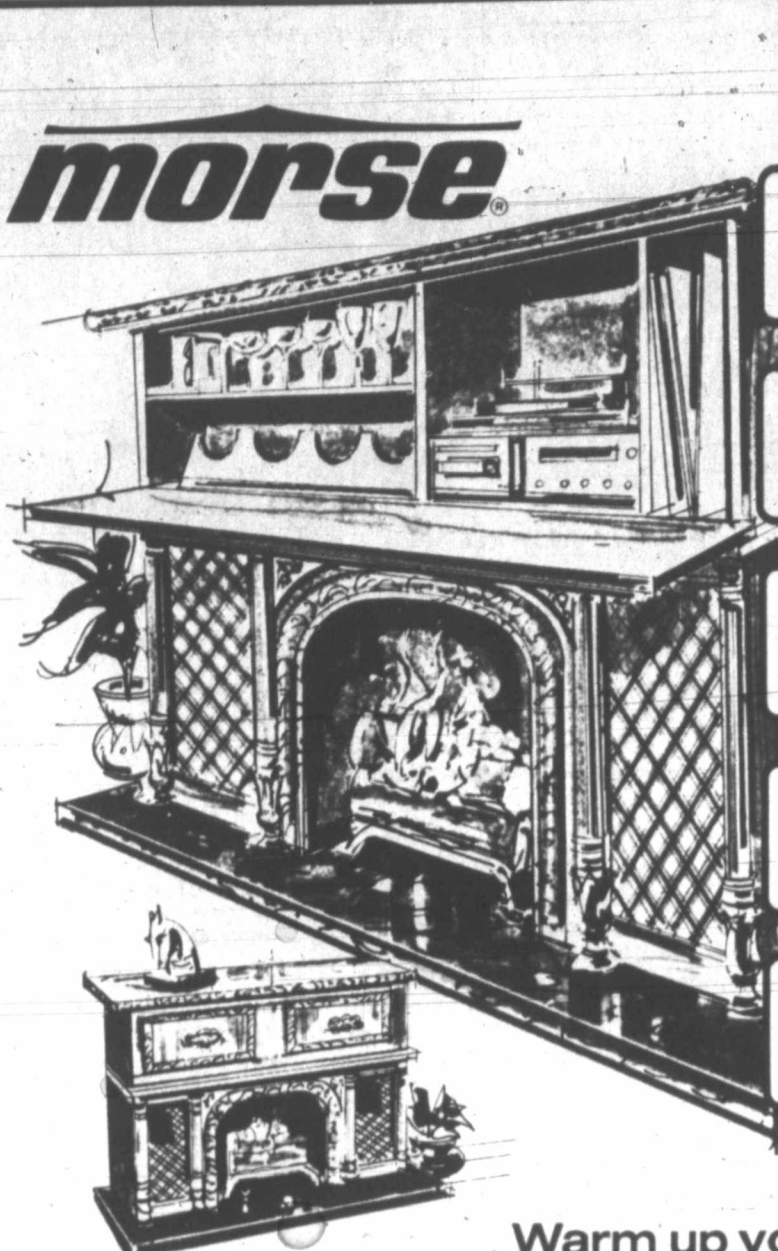

Five presses began printing the book and late Wednesday night a sixth press was added. More than 30,000 copies per hour were printed as the high-speed presses rolled non-stop throughout Wednesday night and into Thursday morning.

Americans Think They Got Bum Rap

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — James Ridley Douglas, a Dallas man, a Kingsville resident, wander informally from cell to cell under the distant and bored gaze of several guards. Those men, and 41 American women held at Los Reyes women's prison, are all either accused or convicted of smuggling drugs through Mexico.

Some admit to their guilt, but complain they were beaten and tortured immediately after arrest. Some claim they are innocent, but tortured, into signing confessions, and then given no opportunity to prove themselves in court.

All claim their harsh treatment, including lengthy sentences following trial, are the result of a bargain struck by the Mexican with the U.S. State Department.

Heyward Brian McLaine, 24, of Austin, Tex., was arrested Aug. 22, 1972, as he arrived from Lima, Peru, with 12 grams of cocaine. He was sentenced to six years last April.

"I explained I was carrying the stuff because I was a drug addict for the previous three years," he said. "I had negotiated an agreement with the court."

"They were going to let me go. I had been here a year and a half. Then the law was changed. They said: 'It's your government who's doing this. There was too much pressure to let you go. If we let you go, we might get killed.'"

Richard de Moss, 27, a Houston clothes buyer, was arrested March 4, 1972, at the home of a friend in Mexico City in possession of 20 grams of cocaine.

"I had bought it from a German girl," he said. "I told the police it was all mine. My business partner, a girl, was arrested with me, but she was later released. On Dec. 7, 1973, I was sentenced to eight and a half years. U.S. 'narcs' were in the court to make sure I got a stiff sentence. In the States, I probably would have gotten two years on probation."

William "Billy Joe" Smith Jr., 28, of Honolulu, a theatrical booking agent, was arrested March 28 at the airport with a friend in the jewelry business in Dallas. The friend asked not to be identified.

Smith was wearing a girdle containing 28 ounces of cocaine from Colombia which he said he was to deliver to Monterey, Calif. Both men are Vietnam veterans. Smith's friend, 32, who denied any connection with drug smuggling, served two stints in Vietnam and spent three months in a prisoner of war camp.

Smith: "I was roughed up, slapped around, had a cattle prod in the groin, but I refused to sign my name to any statement. I only printed it which is not legal. I've given a lawyer $8,000 and have seen him only twice, with no results. I've lost my mortgaged house. My wife has had a miscarriage. I have no money. I have no idea when I'll go to trial. I just don't know what to do."

His friend: "They put me in a shower, doused me with water, then started working on me with a cattle prod. I've been a prisoner of war, but I decided these guys were going to kill me, so I signed a confession but later disavowed it. We've been here four months and don't know what's going to happen."

The friend's wife, interviewed by UPI in Dallas, claimed her husband "was only in the wrong place at the wrong time."

"My only interest... the only thing I care about... is getting my husband back, and I really don't know how I'm going to do it," she said.

"Now I can see that if a person is smuggling dope, they deserve to be punished," the wife said. "But they don't deserve to be starved. They don't deserve to be beaten. They don't deserve to live with rats. The women don't deserve to be raped."

She said her husband can prove his innocence, but has not been given a trial date, and might be held without trial for months. She has sent her husband $5 and $10 money orders every few days since April 1 to pay for such things as cell rent, toilet paper, light bulbs, playing cards and to buy his way out of dirty work details.

"I can pay," she said. "I am willing to pay, but I can't pay forever and nothing be done. I've sold my car, changed apartments. It's cost us several thousand dollars and nothing, absolutely nothing, has been done."

"If nothing else comes out of this, I want to tell people what's happening down there. I mean, who could have known about it? But if you're traveling in Mexico, you take your freedom and your sanity in your hands."

The anxious inmates of Lecumberri's American wing wander from cell to cell in daily "jailhouse lawyer" conferences, seeking new legal approaches. For most, the chances are dim.

The men and women last week ended a 13-day hunger strike aimed at what they called the U.S. involvement in their harsh treatment and stiff sentences, and against what they say was brutal treatment by Mexican authorities. Mexican and American officials deny the charges.

In its only positive move, the U.S. embassy released a pamphlet warning U.S. citizens of the dangers of possessing or using narcotics in Mexico. It carries the signature of U.S. Ambassador Joseph J. Jova.

"Many Americans mistakenly believe the Mexican laws and enforcement practices are less severe than in the United States," the pamphlet says. "This is not true. As of April 1, 1974, the U.S. citizens imprisoned in Mexico on various charges represented more than one-third of the total Americans in jail abroad."

The pamphlet warned that persons arrested may wait up to a year for trial, and then if convicted receive a five-year term for possession and up to a 13-year term for smuggling. There is no bail or parole in Mexico.

At Lecumberri the prisoners live in comparative freedom, only subject to a head-count morning and evening.

"You can get anything you want in Lecumberri as long as you can pay for it," one prisoner explained. Most of them receive money from family or friends.

Their cells, housing an average of four men, are comfortable, with desk-like tables and bookcases filled with a wide variety of reading matter. They buy their own food, claiming the prison staple of rice and boiled meat is inedible.

This idle freedom soon turns into anxious boredom, however, compounded by legal battles in which they charge unscrupulous Mexican lawyers with balking them of thousands of dollars while doing nothing.

Most of the Americans don't deny trafficking in drugs. Here is one of their stories of arrest and imprisonment.

Michael Heinichen, 30, a photographer from Kingsville, Texas, was arrested at the airport with his girl friend, Laura Katzman, coming from Bogota, Colombia. "We had a kilo of cocaine between us. We were sentenced June 15, 1974 to seven and a half years each. She's at Santa Marta."

"We both were coerced into making statements. We weren't allowed to contact the U.S. embassy. We don't speak Spanish. There is no judicial system here. First, when you're arrested, there is no law; then later it's all law. There is no logic. Laura and I are trying to get married. I took three blood tests. On the first two they insisted I had syphilis. Then they said the last one came out okay. But the required X-rays and photos have still not come out. This is pretty typical of the way things are."

Bob Price Announces School Plan

Congressman Bob Price is providing each high school principal in the 13th Congressional District with information to enable students to participate in the 1975 "Presidential Classroom for Young Americans," according to a release from his office.

"Presidential Classroom" is a non-partisan, non-profit program seeking to provide a first-hand look at the governmental process at the federal level for a cross-section of American youth from varied backgrounds.

The Classroom will operate six one-week sessions in February and March of 1975. The selection of participating students will be done by local officials of those high schools choosing to participate in the program. Price is sending the principals an admission request card which, if submitted, would reserve space in the program for the school.

Participation in the Presidential Classroom program should prove to be an extremely rewarding experience," Price commented. "I hope that many of the high schools in our area will choose to participate."

CATHEDRALART ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Cathedral of St. Louis is considered the finest example of Byzantine architecture in North America. It contains more mosaic art work than any church in the world and lays claim to the world's largest mosaic dome.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The quark now has color and charm, and there are some encouraging signs of basic unity among the four forces known to control the particles of matter.

Put another way, recent experimental work at nuclear research centers in the United States and Europe has produced information that may bring us closer to comprehending the fundamental nature of the matter that makes up our universe, our world, and ourselves.

This is the specific goal of high energy physics, and one of the central motivations of science.

And put still another way, the recent research may answer the riddle of whether matter, like a Russian toy box, is infinitely divisible, or whether there are some truly elementary particles that cannot be further subdivided.

Quarks — their name was borrowed from James Joyce's "Finnegan's Wake" — are supposedly one of these elementary particles. Theoretically, various combinations of them make up the protons and other particles within the nucleus of the atom. A quark has never been seen.

One way to see what protons are truly made of is to hit them with other particles. Generally, the harder the collisions — i.e. the more energy applied — the more information comes out.

Recently, higher energies have been used and the information that came out has not supported the simplest quark structure

HIGHEST CABLE CAR CARACAS (UPI) — The world's highest cable car, which carries passengers to the 15,380-foot Pico Bolivar in the Andes mountains, and which was closed for repairs in 1972, will be reopened within several weeks.

The cable car line, which is eight miles long, is located in the mountain city of Merida.

Quark Now Has Color, Charm

A major goal of high energy physics is to find fundamental links, or unities, among these four apparently different forces, each of which is involved in the behavior of certain elementary particles, but not of others.

For example, the electromagnetic force governs the electron, the strong force the proton and similar particles called hadrons, and the weak force governs neutrinos.

Now experimental results indicate that there may indeed be some unity among these forces. For example, experiments done in four laboratories seem to show that the electron, under the rule of the electromagnetic force, is also susceptible to the strong force — or can at least behave like a hadron. A quite different series of experiments, giving evidence for the existence of neutral currents (because the particles involved have no charge) suggests links between electromagnetic and weak forces.

If these and other early hints stand up to scrutiny, the ultimate reward may be a coherent and pleasing portrait of the nature of matter.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH Chemical Diabetes Different

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can you tell about 'chemical diabetes'?

I've touched on this before but maybe on those occasions the item got left out of the column in your paper.

Fundamentally 'chemical diabetes' is pretty much the same as diabetes mellitus ('sugar diabetes') except in degree.

There's this difference. The classical symptoms of diabetes, such as thirst, urinary frequency and weight loss, are not present.

It most likely will be found in overweight people or during pregnancy in some women.

precautions are taken to try to prevent it, weight loss being the main thing that can, and ought to be, done.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has a very serious skin problem. It seems that way to me, anyway.

Two doctors said it was eczema and one said it was something he was born with, it's in his system and he has to live with it.

Could you tell us about eczema, the cure, how does it start, is there some way we can treat it?

'Eczema' is what we call a 'wastebasket term' — a general term that means an itchy rash.

In babies 'eczema' can result from allergy to foods at times; also allergy to various substances that touch them.

'something you are born with,' but I vigorously dispute the idea that you 'just have to live with it.'

The location of your husband's itching could be an important clue. It could, for example, have something to do with his underwear — his shorts.

Another possibility is soap or detergent. People do develop sensitivity to detergents.

Changing from a detergent to a mild soap might help.

Try those things; if they fail, don't give up. Go to a skin specialist or to an allergist and get some specialized help in tracking down the source of the trouble.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband is a diabetic and his eyesight is becoming worse all the time.

do any good? Where could he go for information? — Mrs. E.S.

Failing vision in a diabetic is usually due to changes deep in the eye — the retina, and not in the cornea.

It may be that some other eye condition (cataract, glaucoma, even need for new glasses) is causing his trouble.

Note to Mrs. M.N.: Without seeing those 'small crusty spots' I have no way of knowing what they are.

Never take a chance on diabetes! For a better understanding of this disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, for a copy of his booklet, 'Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease.'

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT Nixon And Dixon Dance Team?

NEW YORK—"I want to make one thing perfectly clear," declared the Nixon look-alike man who became a show business phenomenon calling himself "President Richard M. Dixon."

"I didn't resign. He did. I'm glad I got that monkey off my back. I don't have to go to work in a blue serge suit any more. It was pretty dull. I can do my real thing, acting. I'm a good actor if I do say so myself."

Rodney Dangerfield gave Jim Leroe, ad man, promoter, salesman and actor, his first Nixon look-alike exposure 3 1/2 years ago. His appearance fee went from $500 to $1,500.

But the Nixon look-alike business fell apart a year ago when Watergate got hot.

Nixon thought he had a bad year: Dixon's was worse.

"The public was fed up with Watergate. My work declined dramatically." He developed an act called "Dixon's Diary," about a guy who looked like a President, and he figured out a one-man show.

But in case you should want somebody who doesn't look like Nixon, tricky Dicky Dixon can do that, too.

"I had to walk a tight rope because I had to be dignified. I could never cut him up like David Frye."

He went to Europe where in some places they thought he was Nixon.

"I had exposure before 500 million people. I was representing the U.S."

"President Dixon" contemplating it all, especially his own accidental fame, said a hundred agents told him, "This guy gets out of office, you'll get so much work!"

He says, "I'm calling every one of those guys TODAY!"

No suggested his fate and Nixon's, when Nixon left office.

A dance team with a cute name: "Nixon and Dixon."

Popular singer Maria Manville was handcuffed and roughed up by a stickup man who put a gun in her ear and stripped her of her jewelry at Bob Frederick's Supper Club.

They used Japanese-type handcuffs such as are sold in novelty shops. One holdup man had cased the place earlier with a girl buying drinks at the bar.

Dina Merrill found a seat in the 21 Club lounge to watch the Nixon speech but several sat on the floor staring into their laps.

Richard Nixon's foreign policy knowledge questioned later, said, "So now the new President finds himself guest of honor at a turkey shoot, with him being the turkey."

Liza Minnelli & Jack Haley Jr. reportedly set the date: Sept. 15.

Richard Burton's successful abstinence lately is said to be due to taking Antabuse.

To be Fields, Jack Benny and George Burns will team up in Vegas for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy telethon Sept. 1-2.

Bob Fosse claims Dustin Hoffman'll get Oscar-nominated for "Lenny."

Desi Arnaz went to Chicago to applaud dtr. Luci Arnaz opening there to good reviews in "Seesaw."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL. Myron Colhen's ailing, at Mt. Sinai Hospital. The star of a B'way show blew a four-figure bet that Nixon wouldn't resign.

Bernadette Peters finally got a standby in "Mack & Mabel." — Susan Watson.

Show Biz Quiz: What film bio was played by both Carroll Baker and Carol Lynley? Answer: "Yesterday's Lily Chauchoin is Claudette Colbert; Zella Henick is Kathryn Grayson."

Bernard Cornfeld brought five young beauties in a hansom cab to a showing of Playboy magazine illustrations.

Corbett Monica, boss of the Nanuet Theater, thinks Corbett Monica is a hell of a funny comic and signed himself to play there.

Ray Stark'll produce a film called "A Tough One to Lose" — about a huge 747 that disappears.

Trude Heller says that ever since Mick Jagger ordered a tequila drink at her cafe, everybody else has been ordering it.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Herb Shriner said it and it's still true: "They don't fix potholes in New York — they just move 'em around so motorists can't memorize 'em."

REMEMBERED quote: "A smart doctor is one who can tell you what's wrong with you even if you don't drink, smoke or have any teeth."

EARL'S PEARLS: Slappy White mentioned at the Las Vegas Flamingo he'd made a movie with Moms Mabley: "Moms has two expressions — joy and indigestion."

I was so depressed I thought of killing myself," says Rodney Dangerfield. "But I wasn't sure — so I threw myself in front of a parked car." That's ear, brother.

By TOM WILLIAMS Within a short time students will begin making their way back to school. For those in high school and many in junior high school it is an ideal time to seek out the school guidance counselor to discuss the future.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The resignation of President Nixon and Gerald Ford's accession to the presidency has not changed basic market conditions, according to E. F. Hutton & Co.

"All sudden news developments do result in a shorter period of time what it was probably going to do anyway over a longer span," the firm says.

"Of the so-called 3 I's which have recently afflicted the securities market, the impeachment issue has now been resolved in a relatively favorable manner," says Hartford National Bank and Trust Co.

"But it cautions the other '2 I's' — inflation and interest rates — also must be dealt with. "The national mood is an important ingredient in the economic environment and, if the new administration moves effectively to restore public confidence, a favorable investment climate will certainly develop," it adds.

Former President Nixon's resignation has accelerated the downward trend of the market, says the Dines Letter. "Now the market is ready to collapse, fulfilling our oft-stated ideas that nonfinancial news merely precipitates activities, it does not create them," the letter notes.

It says in years to come President Ford may be blamed for the Crash and the people will regret Nixon's demise on the grounds that his resignation led to the Crash.

Freshmen in high school particularly should arrange a session with the counselor. It is the beginning of a new school career and plotting an academic course early can help you avoid errors in the selection of your courses.

With guidance assistance your curriculum can be evenly and properly planned for your four-year high school career.

In many schools the guidance counselor also assists students who have personal problems, particularly those that affect their ability to study successfully. If you do have a problem try to get help with it early in the school year with the counselor.

NFL Backups Do Well In WFL Starting Roles

United Press International
It was the kind of night those unhappy quarterbacks dreamed of when they decided to cast their fate with the new World Football League.

George Mira, Virgil Carter, Tom Sherman, John Huarte, Bob Davis—all were either unhappy with their backup roles in the National Football League and decided to make the jump. And Wednesday night they came up big winners.

The unbeaten Americans blasted the Hawaiians 39-0 before 43,297 in Birmingham, the Fired edged the Philadelphia Bell 32-29 before 27,607 in Chicago, the Memphis Southern crushed the winless Detroit Wheels 37-7 before 14,424 at Ypsilanti, Mich. The Stars whipped the Portland Storm 38-16 before 16,222 in New York and the Florida Blazers downed the Jacksonville Sharks 33-26 before 23,890 in Orlando. The Southern California Sun is at Houston against the Texans tonight in a nationally televised game.

Americans 39, Hawaiians 0
Mira, who knocked around in San Francisco, Philadelphia and Canada for a while without making it big, came off the bench and threw two touchdown passes—one a 95-yarder to Alfred Jenkins—as Birmingham blasted the Hawaiians. Mira, making his first appearance since injuring his ankle three weeks ago, relieved Matthew Reed with the Americans ahead 8-0 and directed Birmingham to four TDs. He also passed 26 yards to Dennis Homan for a score. Willie Smith had an 81-yard punt return for a TD. Jimmy Edwards ran seven yards for another and Art Cantrelle plunged a yard for still another as the Americans, the only undefeated team in the WFL, ran their record to 6-0.

Fire 32, Bell 29

Carter, who played at Cincinnati and Chicago before falling out of favor, threw an 11-yard TD pass to Jack Dolbin with 1:34 left to play to lift the Fire over Philadelphia. Carter hit five straight passes as he moved Chicago 80 yards in the last two minutes for the winning score. Carter earlier passed six yards to Cyril Pinder for a score and Pinder and Mark Kellar each ran a yard for TDs.

The Bell's King Corcoran, the WFL passing leader, had TD passes of two yards to Alan Thompson and 45 yards to Claude Watts and ran a yard for another score.

Southmen 37, Wheels 7
Huarte, a former Heisman Trophy winner at Notre Dame, banged around the NFL for 10 years. He has a starting job at Memphis and he's making the most of it as he helped the Southmen to their fourth win in six games Wednesday night. Huarte threw a 12-yard TD pass to Ed Marshall and set up a pair of one-yard TD bursts by Willie Spencer as Memphis manhandled Detroit. Davis Thomas also had a 39-yard interception return for a TD and sub quarterback Danny White passed 31 yards to Gary Powell for another score.

Detroit, now 0-6, got its only TD on a one-yard plunge by Bubba Wyche.

Stars 33, Storm 6
Sherman, who never really got much opportunity in brief trials with New England and Buffalo, had his best game of the young season as he threw two TD passes to veteran George Sauer and ran five yards for another score to lead New York to its fourth straight win. Sherman, who was playing in the minors in recent years, hit Sauer on TD passes of 20 and three yards and helped set up Andy Huff's four-yard scoring burst.

Casper Pessimistic As Hartford Starts

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Billy Casper says he still is playing poorly and thinks his chances are "no good" to win for an unprecedented fifth time here as the Sammy Davis Jr. Greater Hartford Open opened today.

Casper, 43, said he had a "hot" 72 Wednesday in the pro-am warm-up played with Sammy Davis Jr. on the 6,583 yard Wethersfield Country Club course.

"I'm having trouble breaking 75. I'm having trouble with every swing, every hole," said the San Diego, Calif., native whose last tour win was here in 1973.

Casper won here in 1963 and 1965 when the tournament was known as the Insurance City Open and his win last year was preceded by a 1968 victory. The par 71 course is referred to as a "putter's course" but Casper, acknowledged as one of the best putters the game has ever had, said that has gone bad.

When asked how his chances were for a fifth win, Casper said, "no good." He said he four-putted the par 4, 11th hole in the practice round from about 15 feet and that included a backhand attempt.

Referring to his poor showing in the PGA last week where he shot a total 297, Casper jokingly said he was "in the rough so much that I'm sending four bales of hay I cut to feed my cattle on the West Coast."

Lee Trevino, whose win in the PGA boosted him to third at $166,886 on the money list, said after a pro-am round 68 that he will take it easy after this event, "passing up Westchester to go home and rest."

Asked about his remarks that he disliked playing in the Masters, Trevino jokingly quizzed newsmen, "How come I get cut up for not going to the Masters? I don't like the course. I'm not the only golfer who refuses to play at certain courses."

Reds Pull Out Squeaker Over Pittsburgh Pirates

United Press International
The Cincinnati Reds are giving their own manager the shakes so you can imagine what they're doing to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Look, I can hardly hold it," said Manager Sparky Anderson Wednesday night as he juggled a roast beef sandwich after the Reds pulled out a "cliffhanger" 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. "The Dodgers aren't out of the woods yet because they have six games left with the Pirates."

The Reds' victory moved them to within 4 1/2 games of the first-place Dodgers in the National League East. The Reds were four games behind the Dodgers as late as Aug. 30 last season and still won the division crown.

"When you win one out of three and still pick up a game in the standings, it makes you feel good," added Anderson, referring to the fact that the Reds won only one game of their series with the Pirates but gained ground because the Dodgers lost their three-game series with the New York Mets. The Mets completed the sweep Wednesday with a 3-2 triumph.

Cesar Geronimo drove in the winning run when he doubled home Dave Concepcion with one out in the bottom of the 10th inning but Anderson's "herg" was 22-year-old left-handed relief pitcher Will McEneaney, who entered the game with Pirates on first and third and none out in the ninth and retired the side without allowing a run.

Don Gullett carried a 2-0 lead into the seventh but the Pirates tied the score on singles by Richie Zisk and Frank Tavaras, a double by Manny Sanguillen and two walks.

Rusty Staub's single climaxed a two-run ninth inning rally which gave the Mets their sweep of the Dodgers and tagged Iron Man reliever Mike Marshall with his eighth loss. Ken Boswell's walk, a sacrifice and an error by centerfielder Tom Paciorek enabled the Mets to tie the score at 2-2 before hits by Felix Millan and Staub brought the winning run around. Tug McGraw won his third game against six losses.

St. Louis defeated San Diego 5-1. Atlanta beat Montreal 6-1. San Francisco topped Philadelphia 6-4 and Chicago shaded Houston 6-5 in other NL games.

American League results were Chicago 5 Baltimore 4, Minnesota 1 Cleveland 0, Kansas City 9 Detroit 1, Milwaukee 6 Texas 5, New York 4 Oakland 1, and California 5 Boston 0.

Cardinals 5 Padres 1
Reggie Smith's three-run homer climaxed a five-run fifth inning rally which enabled the Cardinals' Alan Foster to win his seventh game with a six-hitter. The Cards were held to two hits by Randy Jones until Luis Melendez led off the fifth with a double. Ken Reitz singled, Mike Tyson doubled and Ted Izemore singled before Smith delivered the decisive blow. Nate Colbert homered for the Padres.

Braves 6 Expos 1
Hank Aaron hit his 16th homer and the 729th of his career and Dusty Baker also homered to lead the Braves' 6-1 attack. Baker's homer was a three-run shot in a four-run first which sent Carl Morton off to a fast start toward his 12th win against seven losses. Dennis Blair suffered his fifth setback.

Yanks 4, A's 1
Elliott Maddox snapped a tie with a two-run double in the ninth inning and Rudy May pitched a four-hitter to give New York the victory over Oakland. Maddox's double followed base hits by Gene Michael and Sandy Alomar and snapped the five-game winning streak of Vida Blue, now 14-10.

In the National League, New York nipped Los Angeles 3-2. Chicago beat Houston 6-5. San Francisco edged Philadelphia 6-4. Atlanta drubbed Montreal 6-1. Cincinnati edged Pittsburgh 3-2 in 10 innings and St. Louis beat San Diego 5-1.

Twins 1, Indians 0
Joe Decker and Bill Campbell combined on a four-hitter to give Minnesota the victory over Cleveland. Glenn Borgmann's sacrifice fly in the seventh accounted for the only run off loser Fritz Peterson.

White Sox 5, Orioles 4
Ken Henderson drove in three runs with a homer and a single but the White Sox also needed a run-scoring single from Brian Downing in the eighth inning to edge Baltimore. Dick Allen had two hits to stretch his hitting streak to 15 games for the Sox.

CITY GOLF SATURDAY Femme Linksters Holding 4th Place

BORGER — Pampa, despite a 67 net round by Fran Wilson, dropped from third to fourth place, 21 shots behind Tascosa Country Club of Amarillo, in the fourth round of the Panhandle Women's Golf Association tournament Wednesday at Huber Country Club here.

The standings after Wednesday's play are Tascosa, 1125; Phillips Country Club, 1140; Ross Rogers Golf Course, 1145; Pampa Country Club, 1146; Huber, 1148, and Clarendon Country Club, 1210. There are two rounds left in the tourney.

Pampa's four best scores, which were the ones used in the day's total, were Mrs.

Wilson, 67; Pat Peoples, 70; Marge Gipson, 71, and Jan Elston, 72.

The next round will be played Sept. 10 at Pampa Country Club. That round will also be a qualifying round for the Panhandle Women's Golf Association Sept. 11-13 in Pampa.

The Pampa Women's Golf Association will play next in the Pampa Women's City Tournament this weekend.

Interested women need to contact either Mrs. Jim Simpson at 1909 Mary Ellen or Hart Warren at the Country Club pro shop by 7 p.m. today. There is an entry fee of $4. Only women in the association are eligible to enter.

Sid Blowing Oiler Popularity Contest

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Head coach Sid Gillman, whom many striking Houston Oilers blame for dividing the team, says he is not running for most popular man in camp.

"This is not an easy game we're in," he said Wednesday. "It is not calculated to win popularity contests. You try to win."

"(Vince) Lombardi didn't lead any popularity contest. They say they hate (Tom) Landry, but all Landry does is win. They say they hate (Don) Shula, but all Shula does is win. I don't know what is the answer?"

Bad timing Monday infuriated the 27 striking veterans who returned to Huntsville for the two-week cooling off period. Houston cut seven of them.

"Well, we tried to find those seven guys, but we didn't know where they were," he said. "We didn't know where anybody was... we didn't know who was going to come in. Everything was unusual. Would it have been better if we had let them in camp for a day, then cut them?"

Defensive tackle Elvin Bethea, thought to be the best Oiler player, answered "yes" to that question.

"The way things have been put to us," he said Wednesday before his first practice, "it's a dictatorship. He's (Gillman) gonna be the dictator, and I've never played under a dictatorship yet."

Bethea, an outspoken player in support of the strike by NFL Players Association members, thought he was on the trading block. He said his clothes will remain in his suitcase.

"I wouldn't trade Bethea," Gillman said. "I want Bethea to play for us. Bethea is a great player. I won't trade him. I won't trade any of our top players who can help us win."

Gillman two days ago opposed the two-week reprieve and said no Oiler would report to camp and then leave without forfeiting his job. Softening his tone Wednesday, Gillman approached conciliation.

"Let me just tell you, I just don't believe they will walk out," he said. "I just can't believe that they would leave. In fact several of them have indicated — not to me you understand — that they wouldn't walk out."

Gillman will try to avoid friction between arriving veterans and those who have practiced for weeks. Against the Dallas Cowboys Saturday night, only those who previous to Tuesday worked out will play because it would be "totally unfair to those who have worked out," Gillman said.

8 Veterans, 6 Starters Go To Cowboys Camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Eight veterans, six of them starters, reported to the Dallas Cowboy training camp Wednesday and No. 1 running back Calvin Hill was expected this weekend.

Hill, the team's player representative, told the Cowboys he would report Sunday. The Cowboys' 1,000 yard rusher, who will play for the Hawaiians of the World Football League next year, said he was recovering from an illness.

The Cowboys said rookie wide receiver Donnie Joe Morris of North Texas State fractured his right foot in practice Wednesday. Morris will be in a cast for six weeks.

Wednesday's arrivals brought the number of veterans in camp to 42. The starters were linemen Rayfield Wright, Jethro Pugh and Blaine Nye, wide receivers Bob Hayes and Otto Stowe and linebacker D.D. Lewis.

Our most satisfied radial customers are driving on the one thing money can't buy. EXPERIENCE

If you're thinking of buying radial tires, doesn't it make sense to buy the most experienced radial on the road? That's Michelin 'X', the original steel-belted radial. It's the radial tire that paved the way for the others. Michelin 'X' is the only radial tire you can buy that has over 25 years of proven road performance built in, plus millions of miles of world-wide satisfied customer driving behind it. The smooth ride, fast starts, short stops, easy-handling and firm road-holding are the radial tire characteristics that Michelin pioneered and perfected. So if you're thinking of buying radial tires start at the top, with the original, most experienced radial — Michelin.

STATIC TEST firing of Evel Knievel's Skycycle X-2 at Twin Falls, Idaho, kicks up a shower of dust and rocks. Steam powered, the rocket fired on the third try at the site from which Knievel plans to jump the 1,500-foot wide Snake River Canyon Sept. 8. Engineers said valve, buckled steam lines caused misfires. Knievel was not on board for the test.

American Industry Competition Eyed

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The nation's energy crisis has brought into focus the sharp competition among various segments of American industry for petroleum-based raw materials.

And this competition is a complicating factor in assessing many proposals for solving the energy problem. Take as an example a proposal made recently by a University of Tennessee professor of chemistry.

With financial backing from the Tennessee Valley Authority, Dr. John W. Larsen worked out a process for converting used automobile tires into fuel oil and volatile gases which could be used in home heating.

Using a small scale conversion process, with molten salt compounds as catalytic agents in the operation, Larsen reported that old tires could be broken down into No. 2 grade fuel oil, methane and other volatile gases and a solid residue made up mainly of carbon black, a key ingredient in the manufacture of new automobile tires. He estimated that the 200 million used automobile tires discarded each year have the potential of producing enough fuel to heat more than 350,000 homes in the Southeast for a year during a typical winter.

But don't count on it. "I would expect that competition from the nation's chemical industries for such materials would rule out using the substances as fuels," Larsen says.

Aside from the nation's chemical industries, there is other competition for these used tires as a possible raw material—the road building industry.

TVA also has an interest in this use of the old tires. Out in the Kentucky Lake area, TVA has put down a short stretch of highway using the shredded rubber as part of the filler material.

Initial studies indicate two things. It costs more per mile to put rubber into highway construction, but the oil of such road surface lasts longer and has fewer maintenance problems than more traditional asphalt mixtures. Larsen says that what is needed, with this process, is a demonstration plant to prove out the economic feasibility of converting tires to their petroleum-based ingredients.

So far he has only proved the chemistry of the thing. In a small pot, using small fragments of old tire bodies, with a salt compound at a round 400 degrees centigrade, he can make his conversion work.

"I don't know exactly how it works," says Larsen, "but the tire simply breaks down into its component parts." The salt solution appears unaffected by the process, so that it could be used over and over with little or no loss.

But going from a small pot of boiling oil to a commercial conversion plant involves many problems of logistics. For instance, how do you get all those tires to the processing plant in the first place?

They are out there, scattered all over the country and creating disposal problems. But picking them up, hauling them to a plant and processing them into useful materials is a considerable undertaking.

Larsen says only high density population areas likely would make this transportation factor feasible. That's just one of the problems involved.

So don't count on converting all those used tires around the back lot to fuel oil any time soon.

Funds Available To Homeowners

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you can't buy the house you want, improve the one you have.

That seems to be the solution for many homeowners who need or want to upgrade their living quarters but just can't swing it with today's soaring housing costs and tight mortgage market.

The American Bankers Association (ABA), noting a remodeling boom is underway as it becomes more difficult to finance the purchase of a new home, says funds for home improvement still are available.

"Since your home is your collateral, you may borrow up to 90 per cent of your equity in the house," Rex J. Morthland, ABA president, said.

"Interest varies from bank to bank—from about 2 to 15 per cent—so it pays to shop for the lowest rate. Repayment periods extend from 5 to 10 years." Generally bank financing is less expensive than working with a home improvement firm, Morthland said. A passbook loan, a loan guaranteed by other collateral, borrowing on insurance all are possibilities.

Morthland suggested several ways to undertake a remodeling project. You can go to a home improvement firm that will handle the job from beginning to end, including the planning, financing, construction and finishing. You can arrange your own financing, work out your own plans or have a professional do it for you, and let contracts for as much or as little of the work as you choose.

While few families will want to handle a major remodeling project on a do-it-yourself basis, many will find they can cut costs by doing some of the work themselves. Just be sure, Morthland warns, that you consider carefully your abilities and the time you are willing to invest in do-it-yourself. And make certain all improvements conform to local building codes, especially electrical and plumbing work. Non-critical jobs such as preparation and clean-up, finishing chores such as painting and papering, installing moldings and paneling, laying floor tile are more time consuming than challenging, he said, but still represent a substantial reduction in labor costs when done by the homeowner.

Morthland stressed the need for care in choosing an established contractor whose ability and reputation are well known. "The home improvement field," he said, "attracts its share of fast-buck operators who pressure customers into agreeing to more than they need and who fail to live up to their promises. Recourse through the courts is a headache, expensive and not always successful."

In choosing a contractor, look around, inquire of friends who have had work done. Check local banks, chamber of commerce, better business bureau. "You may," Morthland said, "without feeling unduly suspicious, ask a contractor for references and check on work he has done."

It pays to get at least two and preferably three (some banks require three) written estimates, with each based on the same written specifications. Morthland said, "There may be a considerable difference even among reputable contractors depending upon their overhead, size of their sales force and how much their suppliers charge them for materials. Bear in mind the lowest bid may not always be the best choice, especially if it is far below
