Cold Front Adds More Rain Total

Rains formed by a cold front which swept across the Pampa area the past two days added 1.38 inches of moisture Thursday to bring the two-day total to 1.78 inches.

The front began to leave the Panhandle today, though considerable cloudiness and more possible showers were still in the forecast through tonight.

The sun had broke through the cloud cover several times before noon, with only a few light sprinkles occurring.

Rainfall total for August is at 4.18 inches, bringing much relief to the previously drought-stricken region.

The system covered most of the Panhandle area, with rainfall totals varying from a trace to 4.31 inches in Claude.

Several tornadoes were produced by the system, but no damages were reported as the funnels went back up into the clouds. Funnels were sighted at Dumas, near Levelland and in the Hereford area.

Thundershowers hovered over north, west and coastal regions of Texas keeping temperatures in the 60s and 70s early today.

Heavy rains soaked North Central and West Texas and the Panhandle Thursday, kicking up strong winds and hail and stalling cars on Interstate 40.

High winds severely damaged several homes in Dallas, most of them suffering roof damage.

Lightning struck a home in the Dallas suburb of Duncanville which lost its entire roof and some of the furniture and interior, totalling $60,000 in estimated damages.

Temperatures this morning ranged from 61 degrees at Dalhart and El Paso to 74 degrees at Victoria.

Moist, unstable air remained over Texas. A weak frontal system along a Midland-Wichita Falls line helped develop thundershower in North and West Texas.

The system dumped 2.27 inches at Lubbock before midnight Thursday. Parts of the Big Bend National Park flooded.

Heavy rains, accompanied by high winds and hail, soaked the upper Plains today.

Storms mounted over the plains Thursday night.

Hailstones more than an inch in diameter pelted Rapid City, S.D., and more than four inches of rain fell in Oelrichs, S.D.

Wind gusts of up to 70 miles per hour swept Chadron, Neb., and hail covered the ground.

Briscoe County Farmers Get Disaster Loans

Farmers in Briscoe county were declared eligible today for emergency natural disaster loans through the Farmers Home Administration of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Congressman Bob Price of Pampa announced today.

Price, who is also supporting requests from the Texas Governor for disaster aid for Gray and other counties in the 13th Congressional District, said the action is the second county in his district to be declared eligible for FHA aid. Swisher county was declared eligible July 25.

Farmers in Briscoe County have been suffering severe drought conditions; but also suffered wind and hail damage last May 21, and brief excessive rain in June.

FHA 5 percent interest emergency loans are made to farmers to cover losses resulting from designated disasters. Farmers may apply for the emergency loan assistance through the FHA office in the Agriculture Building, 219 N.W. 2nd St. in Tulsa.

Price noted he is currently supporting recent proposals from Gov. Dolph Briscoe for similar aid for farmers in Gray, Hartley, Dallam and Armstrong counties. Under the law USDA may not declare areas eligible unless recommended by the governor of the state.

Reports are being prepared for 10 other counties; Price said; but the governor has not yet submitted recommendations on these, which include Ochiltree; King; Donley; Dickens; Hutchinson; Cottle; Hansford; Hall; Collingsworth and Oldham.

Judiciary Committee Releases Its Final Impeachment Reports

FLUID REFLECTIONS — Water careened through Red Deer Creek in Highland Park behind Sam Houston Middle School during the rains which fell Wednesday and Thursday, with a two-day total of 1.78 inches. WASHINGTON (UPI) — The case of Richard M. Nixon is closed as far as the House Judiciary Committee is concerned, with every member concluding that he should have been impeached if he had not become the first president in history to resign.

The committee's final report was released Thursday. The 525-page document with a dingy tan cover is historic. It is the result of the first presidential impeachment inquiry held in 107 years. It accuses Nixon of lying, violating laws and subverting the Constitution.

About half of it was written by the chairman, Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., and the staff counsel, John M. Doar. Even stronger language is in the "supplemental views" of individual members and groups.

"The evidence is overwhelming that Richard Nixon has used the office of President to gain political advantage, to retaliate against those who disagreed with him and to acquire personal wealth," concluded 11 liberal Democrats.

The ranking Republican, Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, weakly offered a defense.

"History," he said, "will deal more kindly with Richard Nixon than did his contemporaries. As the Watergate affair moves into the past it may be seen for what a little thing a President was forced to resign from office when compared with the accomplishments of his administration."

But even Hutchinson said Nixon had been involved in the Watergate cover-up. A legal case for obstruction of justice was made against Nixon, Hutchinson said, and he joined his colleagues to make the committee support for an article of impeachment on that count unanimous.

Hutchinson, as did nine other Republicans on the committee, joined in support of Article 1 only after Aug. 5, the day Nixon released three transcripts of Oval Office tape recordings made six days after the June 17, 1972, Watergate break-in. That day he admitted they showed his complicity in the cover-up and that he had lied about it.

Reps. David Dennis, R-Ind., and Delbert R. Latta, R-Ohio, each in separate views, explained their refusal to vote for Article 1 in committee and their change of mind on Aug. 5.

Latta said: "At the time the vote was taken in the Judiciary Committee in this matter, this evidence of direct presidential involvement had not been revealed and was not before us."

Other views stated that the authors agreed with the conclusion in favor of impeachment but not every piece of evidence that supported it, stated reasons for agreeing with one article but not another, gave reasons why additional articles should have been recommended and stated for historical purposes the value of the impeachment, proceeding cut off Aug. 9 by Nixon's resignation.

Others argued against granting Nixon immunity from prosecution and against allowing "national security" to be used as an excuse for future acts of government. Rep. Wayne

Owens, D-Utah, took space in the report to insert the committee roll call vote on each article of impeachment.

Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, one of those whom Hutchinson had christened the "10 stalwarts" who opposed every article in the committee debate, said in his separate view that the Aug. 5 release led him also to support Article 2, charging abuse of power.

Sam Garrison, chief GOP counsel, writing for the "stalwarts," used 133 pages to refute the evidence which Rodino and Doar said justified impeachment.

Congress Okays Pension Reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has passed the first comprehensive retirement legislation since the Social Security Act of 1934, a pension reform bill designed to assure more than 30 million Americans they actually will receive the pensions they earn.

President Ford will sign the landmark legislation in a ceremony that may come, symbolically, on Labor Day. Strict new standards are imposed on how long a worker can be employed before being included in a company pension plan, how the pension must be funded and managed, and how soon an employee must become vested—that is, entitled to a pension at retirement age regardless of tenure.

Generally, an over-25 employee would have to be included in a plan after one year of work, and would be guaranteed at least a partial pension after five to 10 years, depending on which vesting standard the company uses.

Any worker would be guaranteed a full pension after 15 years in one pension plan and could not be denied a pension even if job tenure is broken by layoffs, sickness or rehiring by the same company after a resignation.

The bill, which could open a new era of worker rights, also establishes a new federal insurance corporation similar to the federal agencies that now protect bank and savings deposits. It would pay a worker's pension up to $750 a month if the company defaults on its pension obligations.

The bill falls short of many of the goals originally envisioned for it. It does not require any company to start a pension, it does not set a minimum dollar level of pension payments and does almost nothing for the worker who changes jobs frequently or the worker under 25 years old.

But for the average worker who spends five to 10 years or longer with one company or under one pension plan, the legislation guarantees at least a partial pension.

About 30 to 35 million workers are now covered by private pension plans with assets in excess of $160 billion, but it was estimated that without the new protection only one-fifth to one-third of them would ever collect a pension.

Thousands have lost a lifetime of pension rights when they were laid off just before retirement age, or when a plant moved to another section of the country, or when they discover that the company put too little money into the pension fund or used it for personal purposes.

Man Indicted, Arrested For Sexual Abuse

A Pampa man is in custody in Gray County Jail charged with alleged "aggravated sexual abuse - threats" following his arrest last night.

He is Gary D. Sikes, 28, Pampa Mobile Home Park, who is held in lieu of $100,000 bond set by District Judge Grainger McIlhenny.

His arrest followed investigation of what Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan described as "a lewd sexual case" which occurred in Lefors Aug. 14.

Sikes was indicted by the Gray County grand jury after the sheriff's office had requested and Judge McIlhenny had granted a special session.

Grand jurors had deliberated all day Thursday, handing down a "true bill" or indictment at about 6 p.m.

Also indicted by the same grand jury were two other persons, whose bonds were set at $2,500 each.

Their names are being withheld since arrests have not been made. Their cases have no connection with the other indictment, officials said.

Sikes was arrested by sheriff's deputies Ken Kieth and R.B. Nichols at the home of a relative and was booked into the county jail at 7:40 p.m.

Sheriff Jordan said this morning: "I want to commend Pampa Chief of Police Jim Conner and his personnel; the deputies from this (sheriff's) office, as well as Constable R.B. White of Lefors, and Texas Ranger Bill Baten, for their diligent, hard work in investigations going back as far as seven or eight months."

Jordan said these investigations are continuing. Serving as prosecutor for the grand jury was County Attorney John Warner, substituting for District Attorney Guy Hardin, who is on vacation.

As of late this morning Sikes had not been arraigned.

Turkish, Greek Leaders Considering Peace Talks

United Press International President Glafkos Clerides of Cyprus flew to Athens today for talks with the Greek government in advance of this weekend's preliminary peace talks with Turkish Cypriot leaders.

Clerides, leader of the Greek Cypriot community, said he would discuss in Athens the economic and refugee problems caused by six weeks of warfare on Cyprus. In Ankara, Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit said Turkey is not considering the partition of Cyprus between Turkey and Greece, nor does it have any intention of annexing part of the island.

"We are willing to continue the negotiations over Cyprus within the framework of the Geneva conference," Ecevit told newsmen. "We are not thinking of partitioning Cyprus. Neither are we thinking of annexing part of the island to Turkey."

Radio Bayrak, voice of the Turkish Cypriot community, began Thursday to call the Turkish-controlled areas of Cyprus "The Autonomous Turkish Cypriot Administration," radio monitors in Ankara reported.

Rauf Denkash, leader of the Turkish Cypriot community, warned Wednesday that he will proclaim a provisional independent Turkish Cypriot state on the island unless the Greek Cypriots agree to negotiations for a permanent peace settlement with a view to setting up self-governing Greek and Turkish enclaves within a single federated government.

Greece has refused to talk until Turkey gives back the territory it seized in its three-day blitz last week.

A freak summer storm drenched parts of the central plains and the Troodos mountains Friday and soaked thousands of refugees to the skin. It almost never rains in Cyprus during the summer and many of the estimated 200,000 refugees have been living in the open. Thousands of others are inadequately sheltered in makeshift tents and huts.

Later today, a U.N. spokesman in Nicosia said the Turks had agreed to allow the U.N. to resupply its observation posts in the Famagusta district. "This is a positive sign," he said. There was no word on whether the Turks had also dropped their demand that U.N. troops get out of Famagusta.

The spokesman said U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim would arrive in Cyprus Sunday for talks with Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders on resolving the crisis.

Both Clerides and Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denkash agreed Thursday to hold negotiations, but Denkash insisted they would discuss only humanitarian issues. He said Turkey must take part in any full-scale peace talks.

The Soviet Union, which has watched on the sidelines since Turkey invaded the island July 20, called for a major international conference to solve the Cyprus crisis and arrange for removal of all foreign troops.

UPI Correspondent John Lawton reported from Nicosia today that the cease-fire on the island was holding.

Ford Keeping A Busy Schedule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the spirit of renewed diplomatic relations with Syria, President Ford today welcomed the country's foreign minister to the White House to discuss the possibilities for peace in the Middle East.

Ford kept up his busy schedule today, meeting with his top aides and with Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield. The White House said Ford Saturday was expected to sign the bill re-establishing the cost of living council and probably would sign the pension bill on Labor Day.

The United States and Syria restored diplomatic relations only two months ago during former President Nixon's Mideast trip. Relations had been broken off after the June, 1967, Mideast war and this was Syrian Foreign Minister Abd elHalim Khaddam's first visit to Washington.

One of the topics Ford and Khaddam discussed was an extension of the mandate of the United Nations force deployed along the Golan Heights to observe the disengagement agreement between Syria and Israel. The mandate runs out in October.

A spokesman for Ford said Thursday the President would be unable to personally campaign for Republican candidates this fall.

Before Congress began an extended Labor Day recess

Thursday, Ford took time to pose for separate photographs with 135 GOP congressmen who will be on the campaign trail during the next few weeks. Two days ago, Ford posed with several senators who are up for re-election.

Ford seems to think the way to get help from his friends in Congress next year is to help them win elections in the fall. Before he became President, Ford barnstormed across the country—visiting 40 states—helping GOP candidates and trying to prevent a veto-proof Congress with two-thirds Democrats.

Although Ford's press secretary, Jerald F. terHorst, did not rule out campaign appearances close to election day, he told reporters "the President is not running for anything right now and he feels the best politics is right here in the White House running the affairs of government."

Ford, according to terHorst, expects his vice president designate, Nelson A. Rockefeller, to campaign widely, especially if he is confirmed before the November elections.

terHorst has said Ford would like to run for a full term this time and Democrats, like Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield, think he will be a difficult man to beat. "He is, by far, the best man they have," Mansfield said Thursday.

SB Inspector Killed While Eating Lunch

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A man carrying a submachine gun burst into a crowded tavern in the town of Omagh today and fatally shot a senior British police intelligence officer who was having lunch, security forces said.

The policeman, an inspector in the Special Branch, Britain's police intelligence unit, died after the gunman coolly reloaded his weapon and then fired a second burst into the officer's body as it lay on the floor, a security force spokesman said.

The inspector was sitting with friends in a tavern in Omagh, 59 miles west of Belfast, when the gunman rushed in.

It was the second shooting death in the province in less than 24 hours and the 1,064th fatality in more than five years of sectarian violence in the province, which is united with Great Britain.

Late Thursday gunmen shot and killed a young man who was taking a traffic census for the government's environment department, police said. Special Branch, the intelligence unit of police in Britain.

A second man was injured in the incident, which took place near Dungannon, 35 miles west of Belfast.

A police spokesman said William Hutchinson, 30, and a companion were sitting in an unmarked truck Thursday night when gunmen opened fire on them from woods across the road.

Hutchinson was hit in the chest and neck and died in a hospital early today, the spokesman said. The second man, who was not identified, suffered minor injuries from a bullet that grazed his chest.

No motive for the shooting could be established. The pair, both employees of the department of environment, were part of a team carrying out a traffic census throughout Northern Ireland.

Appeals Court Overturns Ruling On Desegregation

United Press International
A federal appeals court has overturned a lower court ruling that schools in predominantly white suburbs of Indianapolis must accept black students as part of a metropolitan desegregation plan.

The decision by the Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago was based in part on a recent Supreme Court ruling in a Detroit case that suburban areas could not be forced to help a city desegregate if the suburbs themselves were not guilty of segregation.

Economist Sees More Recession

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A respected economist says the United States is in for at least another year and a half of recession, inflation and unemployment — no matter what the government tries to do about it.

Testifying before the new Senate Budget Committee Thursday, F. Gerald Adams of the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and Commerce foresaw a no-growth U.S. economy whether or not Congress took President Ford's advice and cut federal spending by $10 billion.

The spending cut might reduce the projected 1975 inflation rate from 8.2 per cent to 7.7 per cent, Adams said. But it also would produce an unemployment rate of 6.7 per cent instead of 6.3 per cent.

Currently unemployment is running at about 5.3 per cent of the civilian work force. And Adams foresaw a 1974 inflation rate averaging out at about 10 per cent.

His gloomy forecast came against a gloomy background of economic developments:

— The Commerce Department reported the gross national product dropped during the second quarter of this year by 0.8 per cent. This was far less severe than the 7 per cent drop of the first quarter, caused partially by the energy shortage. Two straight quarterly GNP declines is the classical definition of a recession.

— The Dow Jones Industrial Average continued its descent, closing Thursday at 704.79, down 6.80 points. It fell below the 700 level for the first time in more than four years.

— The White House said the Ford administration had under study "along with many, many other things" a 10-cent-a-gallon increase in federal gasoline taxes with the revenue — perhaps $10 billion — used to offset a cut in personal income taxes for the poor. "It's just one of many proposals in the mill," said Jerald terHorst, Ford's press secretary.

— Kuwait and Venezuela announced they were cutting back oil production because they said oversupply was pushing prices down. Kuwait, and the Agriculture Department said the worldwide drought was relieved by August rains, particularly in hard-hit mid-America and also in wide areas of China and India.

— Congress completed action and sent to Ford a bill designed to make sure that pensions will be waiting for workers whose employers have pension plans. But the bill does nothing to increase pension payments or to require employers to pay pensions.

— Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter, after meeting with a Japanese government team, predicted Japan voluntarily would cut its purchases of livestock feed grains from the United States by nearly 10 per cent. He said this would make legal export controls unnecessary despite the sharp drop in the U.S. crop brought on by drought.

— The Agriculture Department said the worldwide drought was relieved by August rains, particularly in hard-hit mid-America and also in wide areas of China and India.

Nationwide Strikes Bringing Progress

United Press International
Miners rallied in Kentucky to demand better working conditions and to honor fellow miners who died in mining accidents.

In other parts of the country negotiators for auto workers, steelworkers and transit workers hammered out contract differences.

United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller Thursday told the 3,000 cheering miners at Harlan, Ky., that his "tolerance is gone for poor conditions in mines" and demanded that the mining industry "change for the better."

The miners' rally came on the fourth day of their nationwide week-long memorial walkout to commemorate those who died or were injured on the job.

Elsewhere, negotiators for the United Auto Workers and General Motors reported progress "in some areas" during contract talks to end a strike that has idled GM's Lordstown, Ohio, plant.

However, some 41,000 auto workers remained off the job due to nonindustry strikes.

The International Longshoremen's Association and New York shippers reached final contract agreement Thursday, marking the first time since the end of World War II a pact has been ratified without a strike.

Communist Forces Attack Air Base, Seize Outpost

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces fired a barrage of rockets at the sprawling Bien Hoa air base today and overran an outpost guarding strategic Tay Ninh in twin attacks north of Saigon.

The Saigon command said 10 Soviet-made rockets ripped into the Bien Hoa region early today, hitting the air base and a nearby mental hospital. Eight persons were reported killed and 17 wounded.

Communist gunners have stepped up attacks during the past two weeks against Bien Hoa, 14 miles northeast of Saigon, in a drive to hamper operations of the major government air base defending the capital.

Field reports said Communist infantrymen stormed the Lam Buu Lam outpost eight miles west of Tay Ninh Thursday, capturing the 100-man base in 10 minutes of fierce fighting.

The reports said more than half the garrison's defenders were missing after the battle, which weakened the defenses of Tay Ninh, a key province capital 50 miles northwest of Saigon.

South Vietnamese military commanders, the reports said, ordered infantrymen and tanks into the Tay Ninh area in an attempt to head off the Communist drive against the city of 67,000.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces have surrounded Tay Ninh, but the Communists have left open the vital highway linking the city and Saigon, the reports said.

Communist gunners fired a pair of rockets Thursday into a large government base on the edge of Tay Ninh, but the rounds landed without causing any casualties, military sources said.

The Communists also made gains along the Central Coast Thursday, overrunning a militia outpost near Highway 1 in coastal Phu Yen Province, 260 miles north of Saigon.

In the Central Highlands, North Vietnamese troops Thursday captured the village of Plei Dolim, 240 miles north of Saigon, the sources said.

The first train to run between Boston and Providence, R.I., made its trip on June 2, 1832.

IN CHARLOTTE

Haldeman Smiles Despite Hecklers

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI) — A well-tanned H. R. Haldeman smiled a lot despite hecklers but said very little during his brief visit Thursday in connection with a $1.3 million civil suit filed by protesters barred from a speech by former President Richard M. Nixon.

"On advice of counsel I've been told not to make any comment," said Haldeman just before he spent about two hours giving a deposition to George S. Daly Jr., attorney for 21 plaintiffs in the lawsuit.

Haldeman, Nixon's ex-chief of staff, was added along with two other Nixon aides as defendants in the suit after the Senate Watergate committee's investigation revealed Haldeman apparently approved security measures for Nixon's 1971 visit to Charlotte.

The plaintiffs contend they illegally were barred from the Charlotte Coliseum where Nixon spoke at a Billy Graham Day observance.

Some of the plaintiffs, members of a self-styled revolutionary group known as "Red Hornets," taunted Haldeman as he walked from his attorney's car to Daly's office.

"Bob, I want you to tell the truth in there today and don't lie," shouted one of the protesters.

"I've never lied in my life," retorted Haldeman, one of six Nixon associates scheduled to go on trial in Washington Sept. 30 on charges of conspiracy in the Watergate cover-up.

The "Red Hornets," formed to protest the Vietnam war, demonstrated outside the Charlotte Coliseum during the Nixon visit and many were prevented from joining the 12,000 persons, mostly Nixon supporters, inside.

U. S. District Court Judge James B. McMillan filed last month that Haldeman, White House aide William Henkel Jr., and former White House aide Ronald Walker would be required to come to Charlotte to give depositions in the case.

McMillan also ruled that the depositions could be kept secret, at least for the time being, so as not to prejudice the Watergate trials.

No trial date in the suit has been set.

Scouts Seeking New Members

Members of the Adobe Walls Council of Boy Scouts of America are joining the South Central Region in coordinating a recruiting program called the All American Round-Up.

The program will be under the direction of Bud Wilkinson, who served as head football coach at the University of Oklahoma for 17 years. He was special consultant in physical fitness to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson from 1961 to 1964.

He served recently with the staff of President Richard Nixon and is currently chairman of the Citizens' Action Program of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

Coach Jim Carlen, Texas Tech University, and Coach Bill Mondt, University of New Mexico, have been appointed as Area Four chairmen.

The purpose of the round-up is to give everybody of Cub and Scout age the opportunity to join the scouting program through the recruiting efforts of those already in scouting.

The Council is offering a patch showing "All American, 1974" to scouts for the first boy they recruit. For each additional recruit, they will receive a star.

The leader will be able to earn a mug and the unit can receive a pennant by turning in a commitment sheet prior to Sept. 1, 1974.

4-H To Have Council Meet

The Gray County 4-H Council will meet Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Courthouse Annex meeting room.

Rockefeller Aides See Some Problems Ahead

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nelson A. Rockefeller met almost no opposition in his first day of campaigning in Congress for confirmation as vice president, but his aides say there may be problems ahead.

Rockefeller met with more than a score of senators and representatives Thursday and was told their probe, which may take as long as two months, would investigate his background thoroughly, particularly his finances.

After his tour he went to a White House dinner and then flew to his Seal Harbor, Maine, compound where he plans to stay until after Labor Day.

A Rockefeller aide said that for the most part the congressmen were friendly and indicated the confirmation should go through with little problem.

He said, however, the former New York governor expected some opposition from conservative lawmakers and added that Rockefeller would be questioned on his handling of the bloody Attica prison riot.

Rockefeller is "not at all worried" about scrutiny of his personal finances, the aide said.

The governor said he was "keeping his fingers crossed" on the confirmation question. He said his staff shortly would turn over a complete record of his finances, including income tax returns, to the two congressional committees handling confirmation.

Rockefeller said he assured President Ford before he was nominated that there were no skeletons in his closet.

"Don't you think that's the kind of thing that should be settled before a man is named?" Rockefeller asked.

He predicted that some people would be "disappointed" when the true extent of his wealth is revealed, adding: "You've seen some pretty exciting stories and I don't know if I'll be able to live up to them."

Friends and business associates have said Rockefeller's personal fortune might be as much as $500 million, but conceded the figure was merely an estimate.

Rockefeller received a warm reception at every office he entered, and in most cases he posed with his arm around a member of Congress as a herd of news photographers took pictures.

The one exception was when Rockefeller met with Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., an old political foe, who suggested the former governor should not seek a full term with Ford in 1976, but step aside for a younger Republican.

Photographers were not allowed in to record the brief meeting and Rockefeller said with a shrug of the shoulders: "I never force anyone to have his picture taken."

"We went over the situation as it now exists," Rockefeller said after the 15-minute session. "I got some very helpful advice."

The "grass-is-greener" syndrome is very popular among rock folks. Witness Eric Clapton.

The role of World's Greatest Lead Guitarist (bestowed upon him by sincere, if somewhat overzealous, fans) always seemed to chafe a bit on Clapton, particularly after the euphoric Cream years in the late 60's. He wanted to be known as a singer, but others always seemed to outshine him on the vocals. Not that he has a bad voice; it's quite pleasant, really. But then it's not all that awe-inspiring, either.

It's been nearly four years since Clapton released a new studio album (the last was "Derek and the Dominoes"), and as usual we find him pursuing that elusive butterfly of song.

The album is "461 Ocean Boulevard" (RSO SO-4801), named after the house Eric and the gang occupied while cutting the album in Miami. It's a nice, easy going album, though hardly the kind of thing you'd want to wait four years for.

Sandwiched between two strong rockers, most of "461" is delicate and laid back—no Cream, and very little Derek, here.

Throughout, the arrangements put most of the burden on the vocals—and Eric does all the lead vocals. There's very little of Clapton's legitimately legendary guitar work. Instrumental artistry is present, to be sure, but decidedly in the background.

Best tunes on the album are consistently the oldies—the traditional "Motherless Children," Johnny Otis' "Willie and the Hand Jive," a great Elmore James song, "I Can't Hold Out," and Robert Johnson's "Steady Rollin' Man." Clapton's best work on this album (with a bit of help from the ubiquitous Carl Radle) is the arrangement on these tunes.

As for Clapton's singing—well, it's fine. But not likely to set the world on its proverbial ear as his guitar once did. His is not a particularly strong voice, and it comes across best on the quieter tracks, notably his own "Let It Grow," a beautiful tune that could make a fine single.

For what it's worth dept.: UPI's man in Hong Kong, Charles Smith, has come up with a list of the Chinese Top 10 songs.

"At the top of the list this week (and every week for the past 500 or so)," says Smith, "would be an all-time favorite: 'Long Live Chairman Mao.'"

"And nobody in China can forget that other oldie still knocking them dead, 'Sailing the Seas Depends on the Helmsman.' So, it gets the no. 2 slot."

No. 3 is the best, though. Pointing out that there are more than 500 million peasants working in 26,000 communes in rural China, Smith assigns that spot to a "country and western tune" called "Oh, How I Love to Carry Manure up the Mountainside for the commune."

Love to see David Bowie's production of that one.

IN POTTER COUNTY Officials Studying Attempted Escape

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI)—An assistant district attorney says investigators are talking to 100 prisoners confined in the Potter County jail to determine exactly how many participated in an abortive escape attempt during which one inmate was killed.

John Wheir, the assistant in the Potter County district attorney's office, also said Thursday his investigation will try to determine if any inmates were assaulted during the 36-hour takeover of the top two floors of the eight-story marble county courthouse.

"Our investigation is still going on," Wheir said. "But it does not appear there was any widespread sexual abuse of the female prisoners. There may have been one isolated incident."

Sheriff's Capt. Art Fields said Thursday more than five inmates probably participated in the escape attempt, but the others returned to their cells before officers recaptured the building and killed the leader of the insurrection.

"We're just trying to unravel the whole thing," Fields said. "We want to know exactly who was involved in the original break. We know there were more but some got cold feet and went back into their cells."

Four of the five inmates known to have taken part in the escape attempt have been charged with aggravated kidnaping. The fifth, Darwin Ray Meharg, 39, was killed Wednesday by officers who recaptured the jail area of the courthouse and rescued a deputy who had been held hostage for 36 hours.

A Department of Public Safety officer, a deputy sheriff and an inmate trusty were wounded in the recapture of the jail.

Fields said the officers who rushed the courthouse were armed with pistols and shotguns but did not carry explosives.

"The only thing anyone could have heard was gunfire or pistol rounds," he said.

tips for consumers
from your BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

The wording in the ad is enticing: "Our courses are geared to your special talents." "Where are you going? We will get you there." "Our vocational training can guarantee you the job of a lifetime."

Maybe it's true—but maybe it isn't. Many good vocational schools can offer you sound and solid training in your chosen field and prepare you for a satisfying career. But before you sign on the dotted line, the Better Business Bureau suggests that you ask some questions and get some answers.

Unless you ask more than how much it costs and what qualifications you need, you could be in for trouble. It could turn out that few people complete the course (because content, facilities or instruction is inadequate), that you can't get a refund, that the school won't help you find a job, or that employers think the training is worthless.

Questions to Ask
So when the school sales representative talks to you, ask these questions:

— How many people complete the course in comparison to those who drop out?

— Ask for names and addresses of students who have graduated from the school in the past six months. Get in touch with them and find out what THEY say.

— Does the school allow you to cancel the contract within a specified time period if you change your mind? The Federal Trade Commission has a three-day cooling off rule which gives you three business days in which to cancel any contract you sign in your home, with no obligation (if the school is involved in interstate commerce—most are). Also check your state's cooling off law.

— Is there a refund policy if you can't complete the course?

— Who will hold your installment contract for collection?

Sometimes your contract is sold to a bank or finance company, and if you have questions about the money later, you can't deal directly with the school.

— Is the school licensed to do business by the state?

— Is the school accredited by an agency recognized by the U.S. Office of Education? (Remember, though, that this is no guarantee that the school is good.)

Take Your Time
Don't give in if the salesperson says you must sign a contract immediately while they still have openings. A reputable school will give you time to check around. If the salesperson says you are guaranteed a job when you complete the course, be skeptical. No school can promise that. If they tell you that you scored amazingly high on the aptitude or entrance exam, don't fall for it. And be suspicious if a salesperson implies that the school is somehow connected with a major industry or governmental organization.

After you get straight answers from the school you're considering, contact prospective employers. Since these are the people who might be hiring you, find out what they think. Ask: Would the employer hire graduates of the school? How many graduates has the employer actually hired in the past year? Were they hired because of school training? Did the training make any difference in starting salary?

You can contact high school, military or V.A. counselors for free career counseling. And you can get in touch with unions and trade and professional associations to see how the job situation is in the field you want to enter. Ask—all these people if they think the training you have in mind would be valuable. And contact a Better Business Bureau to see if any complaints against the school have been filed.

Read Contract Carefully
If you have settled all these issues in your mind, there's still one more hurdle to clear: the contract. The contract may look like an application form and might be called "Application for Enrollment" or "Enrollment Agreement" but if you sign it, it's a legally binding contract. Read the entire document, even the fine print. If the salesperson has made any oral promises that aren't covered in the contract, then the promises aren't part of the agreement—it's that simple. Make sure the contract is completely filled in—no blanks.

If you pay the tuition in installments, federal law requires that the contract must disclose the finance charge and the annual percentage rate you will be charged. Consider this as part of the total cost.

Be sure to get a copy of the contract.

If you have taken all these precautions and still feel you've been short-changed, there are people you can complain to. Contact a Better Business Bureau, your state's consumer protection office or the state attorney general's office, the state department of education, the Federal Trade Commission or your local newspaper.

MDA To Have Talent Program

Pampa's Muscular Dystrophy Association, part of the Greater Plains Chapter, will sponsor a local talent show during the nation-wide Jerry Lewis Telethon, a benefit for MDA. It will be telecast over Pampa Cable TV, Channel 9 from 10:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 1, until 5:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 2. These are the same hours as the national telethon to be shown over KFDD-TV, Channel 10.

Pampa and area young people will perform and Pampans may donate to the MDA for their favorite performer, either at the performance or by calling the local MDA number, 665-3763.

Donations made in Pampa or phoned to the Pampa telephone center will be credited to the Greater Plains Chapter. The money will be used for research projects.

The chapter provides aid for patients in a 14-county area, two of whom are Pampans. Services include providing wheel chairs, respirators, lifts, oxygen at home, therapy, three days of hospitalization for diagnosis, braces, clinics, walkers, orthopedic shoes and a week at summer camp.

Muscular Dystrophy Association of America is one of only 13 national health organizations for inclusion in the federal government's 1974-75 Combined Federal Campaign, which solicits voluntary contributions from government employees and members of the armed forces.

For each of the 17 years the Federal Service Campaign has been in existence, MDA has met the high standards set by the government for participating national health agencies.

Benefits of MDA's involvement in the government's campaign will be felt here through a strengthening of services to local patients, officials said.

The association's patient services program is one of the most extensive offered by any health agency in the country. It includes a wide range of free medical, recreational, vocational and educational services administered through MDA's over 300 chapters, located in every state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and Guam, as well as through the association's nationwide network of over 100 clinics.

Funds raised in the federal establishment will help support more than 130 MDA research projects throughout the world, seeking to unravel the mysteries of muscular dystrophy and related muscle-wasting diseases.

Local chairman for the telethon is Mrs. Robert Yost Talent chairman is Mrs. Fern Berry. Anyone interested in performing may contact Mrs. Berry at 669-3303.

The site selected for Pampa's telethon center will be at 102 S. Cuyler

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wright Investors' Service says it has "no doubt" that purchases of high-grade common stocks at today's prices will be "more rewarding" than investments in short-term debt securities or certificates of deposit. Still, the investment service adds, there is no assurance that market prices may not go even lower before they rebound.

Comparative Market Indicators says a "wholesale liquidation" of margin accounts is a prerequisite to the beginning of a new bull market. The company notes that many stocks which have reached new 1974 lows were bought heavily on margin earlier this year or supplied as collateral for bank loans to finance other stock purchases.

The Almanac

United Press International Today is Friday, Aug. 23, the 235th day of 1974 with 130 to follow.

The evening star is Mars. Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo.

American Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, hero of Bataan in the Pacific Theater of World War II, was born Aug. 23, 1883. This also is the date of birth of American bandleader Bob Crosby (1913) and dancer-actor Gene Kelly (1912).

In 1971, the Western powers and Russia reached agreement on the future of West Berlin. Russia pledged "unhindered" passage of traffic between West Berlin and West Germany across East German territory.

Burlesque Aided By Women's Lib

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—There is some irony in the fact that the women's liberation movement has given females the freedom to attend a burlesque show without any of the embarrassment of the 1920s and 1930s.

Because in the show, "This Was Burlesque," which played to packed houses at the staid Casa Manana playhouse, the liberalized women watched other women take their clothes off, and listen to the off-color jokes of the baggy-pants "top banana" comedian as their fathers did decades ago.

And Ann Corio, called by many the "queen of burlesque" and a performer on the runway since the 1930s, said her show represents the opposite view from the lib movement.

To me, being female simply means very, very feminine," she said. "Women seem to have forgotten how to treat men right—maybe they've had too much freedom.

"Being feminine means making him happy. One thing we've known in burlesque a long time is that a man's imagination is woman's biggest asset. I have 19 gowns in this show and many are old-fashioned. It's the illusion of nudity that is appealing—not nudity—and more how the body is draped than undraped."

Regardless, Miss Corio said her 12 years experience touring "This Was Burlesque" taught her that the front row would be crowded with women, and it would be women fighting for the tassels the exotic dancers toss to the crowd from the stage.

"I don't look down on as many bald-headed men in the front row as I used to," she said. "Women beat them to the best seats. They make up 65 per cent of the audience. I'm always getting letters from them wanting to know where they can buy tassels and wanting to know how to practice."

Women are all frustrated strip-teasers. When we throw our tassels into the audience, it isn't men who fight over them. It's women."

DPS Director Predicting 34 Deaths For Weekend

AUSTIN—Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, today estimated that traffic accidents in Texas over the Labor Day Weekend will claim 34 lives.

Speir noted that traffic deaths in Texas, which earlier were running up to 30 percent under the 1973 toll, have been rising throughout the summer months. He said the upward trend is related to heavier traffic and an alarming disregard for the 55-mile speed limit.

The DPS director said every effort would be made to prevent accidents and deaths by placing all available DPS troopers on duty during the holiday period which extends from 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 30, through midnight Monday, Sept. 2.

Speir noted that many local law enforcement agencies will be cooperating in the all-out effort to make the streets and highways safe.

In addition, he said the DPS would be working with the news media in a special public education program called "Operation Motorcade." A concerted effort will be made to focus public attention on where and why fatal accidents are occurring during the holiday.

Driving Course Established In Spanish Tongue

AUSTIN (UPI)—Spanish-speaking Texans can now enroll in a special defensive driving course that can save them up to 10 per cent a year on auto insurance premiums.

Joe Christie, state insurance board chairman, and Edwin B. Locke of Dallas, president of the Texas Safety Association, said Thursday graduates of the course have 31.6 per cent fewer accidents.

"I am hopeful that the expansion of defensive driving courses in Texas through the use of Spanish will remove any language barriers for a large segment of our population who want to save money on their insurance and improve their driving skills," Christie said.

"With the language barriers definitely down, thousands more Texas motorists will have the opportunity to improve their driving skills through defensive driving courses," Locke said. "And every new defensive driver helps to make Texas a little safer."

Nearly 300,000 Texans have taken the eight-hour course that give special instructions in crash avoidance.

The show was a decided departure from past offerings in Casa Manana's summer musical season. After "Burlesque" it returns to more routine fare, such as "Godspell," "No, No, Nanette," and "Gypsy."

"It was just something new we decided to try this year," said Pat Record, spokesman for the theater in the round in a telephone interview.

"This show started in 1962 in New York and had a three and a half year run there. Then it started touring, and last five years across the country. In 1970 it went back to New York for a 12 week run, and reviewers called it the 'cleanest show in town' and a 'welcome relief after all the blue smut on Broadway.'"

The show was based on Miss Corio's recollections of burlesque during its heyday in the 1930s, and was composed of a series of sketches using vaudeville comedians, exotic dancers and a chorus line called "burlesque cuties."

Comedian Jerry Lester, the first late night talk show host on television in the 1950s, was the "top banana" comedian.

The word "quilt" comes from the Latin "culcita," a stuffed sack.

Helpful Hints For Correct Operation For Most Septic Tanks

By HERMAN BAUM
Dear House Doctor:
Please give me some information about septic tanks and how often they should be cleaned. We have a man that cleans the grease trap every three months. He charges us $20 each time. We have been in this house less than two years, yet this man says the tank needs cleaning at a cost of $100. There are only three of us and we are not home much of the time. — Mrs. D.D.

ANSWER — Jesse James used a gun. This man gets the same results without one. Just so that you will know what a septic tank system looks like, we have illustrated one. There are many variations of this design, depending upon the terrain and soil condition, but all work on the same principal.

Waste from the house flows into a large tank, usually made of concrete, and buried in the yard outside the house. In the tank, waste matter is attacked by anaerobic bacteria, which is found in all human waste. This decomposes the solid matter, some of which sinks to the bottom of the tank while lighter material floats on top as a scum. The liquid flows off into the drain field and is absorbed into the earth. This is almost pure water.

The only way to determine whether a tank needs cleaning is to open it and measure the depth of the sludge beneath the outlet pipe, and the thickness of the scum. While inspection every year or two may be desirable, a tank seldom needs cleaning more often than every five years if it is properly sized for the house that it serves. If a garbage disposal discharges into the septic tank, the tank must be twice the normal recommended size. It is best that you do not use this appliance with a septic tank. Grease traps are not recommended for use with septic tanks. Waste kitchen fat should be placed in a container for disposal. The small amount that will then go into the tank will do no harm.

A septic tank's operation will not be impaired by the amount of household cleansers and disinfectants normally used. A large amount of sick room disinfectant may temporarily stop the bacterial action.

The addition of yeast to a septic tank serves no purpose. According to studies made by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the operation of a septic tank is not improved by the addition of disinfectants and other chemicals. Some products, which are claimed to "clean" a septic tank, contain sodium hydroxide or potassium hydroxide. Such compounds may cause sludge bulking and a large increase in alkalinity, which may stop the bacterial action. The water discharge will damage the soil structure and cause accelerated clogging, even though some temporary relief may be experienced.

Some 1,200 products, many containing enzymes, have been placed on the market for use in septic tanks, and extravagant claims have been made for some of them. Controlled tests, made by government agencies, have shown that these claims are exaggerated.

OUTPATIENTS' CLINIC
Mrs. S.B. — Sorry to disagree, but this service has never recommended the use of muriatic acid for cleaning the soot from fireplace bricks. Thanks for the information that you get excellent results by using spray can oven cleaner.

R.J.U. — Whitewash is for chicken coops — not for the exterior of your home. Use the paint recommended for the type surface to be painted.

R.R. — The leakage problem in your cellar is so involved that you should have it examined by a waterproofing contractor and consider his recommendation. We can be of no assistance on such a problem.

CONCRETE DAMAGE
When we built our new home five years ago, we had a concrete slab poured outside the sliding glass doors. I now see three very fine hairline cracks in the concrete. What can I do to prevent these cracks from becoming worse? — S.C.

ANSWER — Such cracks on the surface of concrete do not necessarily indicate damage. They frequently appear, and usually become no worse. Any corrective action at this time is not warranted.

SMOKE ODOR
Dear House Doctor:
We use our fireplace frequently in winter. In summer, we get a very strong smell of smoke in the living room. This starts around noon every day and lasts most of the afternoon. We can get no satisfaction from the builder. Do you have any suggestions? — Mrs. L.D.

ANSWER — Since your home is new, there should be a damper in the flue just above the fireplace opening. When this damper is closed, it is supposed to prevent a downdraft blowing the odor into the room. Check to see that this damper is closing tightly. As an extra precaution, you may tape a piece of cardboard in place below the damper. If these ideas do not help, and the top of the chimney is not too difficult to reach, a sheet metal cap can be temporarily installed over the top of the flue to prevent the downdraft.

MAGNETIZED TOOLS
Dear House Doctor:
A friend in another state has a device that he made and used to magnetize screw drivers and other tools. Can you tell me how it is made? — F.L.B.

ANSWER — Cut a section about 3 - inches long from a cardboard mailing tube. Wrap this with about 50 feet of small insulated wire, such as bell wire. Connect the two ends of the wire to two dry cell batteries connected in series. The tool is magnetized by passing it up and down several times through the tube.

Many fence designs are given in Herman Baum's booklet "Wood Fences You Can Build." To obtain your copy send 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to The House Doctor, (in care of this newspaper), Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Dear Abby

He treats his folks like tramps

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last year, our eldest son moved out of state and got married. Eventually he called and invited us to visit him in his new, three-bedroom, air-conditioned home. After traveling over 500 miles, we arrived hot and weary, and were shown to our "room"—a windowless garage, with a cast-off mattress on the floor! No pillows, no apologies and no explanations.

His father and I felt like two vagrants who had come for a handout.

We estimated that in over 20 years, we have provided more than 7,000 clean beds and 20,000 nutritious meals to this ingrate, not to mention the scores of friends he brought home, who always got the best welcome we could offer.

After two mornings of eating breakfast out (while he and his wife slept late), and after buying everyone's lunch and dinner and providing baby-sitting services, we made an excuse to leave rather than to stay, or tell them how hurt we were.

Are we too thin-skinned? Or is this part of the new, casual lifestyle of the young?

DISENCHANTED

DEAR DIS: Please don't blame the new, casual lifestyle of the young for your son and his wife's laziness, rudeness and inconsiderate treatment. (P.S. Alas! Not all twigs grow the way they are bent, Mother.)

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when your wife always corrects you in public?

PUT DOWN

DEAR PUT: Tell her (in private) that you'd appreciate it if she'd cut it out. And if she doesn't—then tell her in public.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl who is pre-engaged to an 18-year-old guy. He wants to get married and so do I, but my parents refuse to sign for me. We have even considered eloping because we are very much in love and can't wait.

We can't get married for at least three years, but we are so much in love that we can't control our emotions, if you know what I mean. We only want all the way a few times, but I know it will keep on happening because our love is so strong.

My mother never told me anything. Everything I know, I picked up on the street, and I'm really not even sure of my facts. How can I be sure I know everything I should? Can you recommend a booklet? I can't sign my name, but I'll be looking for your answer in the paper. Thank you.

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: I don't know what responsibilities go with being "pre-engaged"—but you are sure to wind up "post-pregnant" if you don't stop the intimacies and/or learn the facts.

The Planned Parenthood people have some excellent literature for mothers who can't talk to their daughters. Ask your mother to contact them, and good luck.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CONNIE: Being "Number 2" is no better than being "Number 99" as long as "Number One" is still in the picture.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90211.

Land Promotion Advertisements

COLLEGE STATION — "Free Set of Cookware," "Free Trip to Anywhere." The ads sound alluring, but the deals behind them often involve land promotions, according to one home management specialist.

She's Lillian Cochran, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Such lures are commonly used to interest people in visiting new land development sites or housing projects," she said.

resistance to refuse to buy. Many people feel obligated to buy after they have accepted trips or prizes.

"Before agreeing to be entertained by land promoters, find out what the obligations will be. Sometimes earnest money is required to assure the developers that you are seriously interested in buying a home or property," Miss Cochran explained.

Free dinners, cookware or trips may be enticing, but the objective is always to persuade people to buy.

Another consideration is that the cost for these attractive offers is usually absorbed into the price of the land or house, she noted.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

One of the most difficult urges for the nonexpert to repress is the desire to win a trick whenever the opportunity presents itself. In today's deal, a defender played unthinkingly when he elected to win a trick. In so doing, he actually left declarer with no choice but to come up with the winning line of play. Had our defender not played mechanically, declarer might well have failed to have diagnosed the true situation.

North - South vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♣.

On West's opening spade lead, dummy's king was put up and East took the trick with his ace. The queen of hearts was returned, South's ace winning.

In the hope that West had the club queen, or that the five outstanding clubs were divided 3-2 (in which case a long-suit winner could be established in clubs) declarer next cashed his ace of clubs, after which he led a low club. West discarded a diamond as dummy's king won the trick. It was now obvious that declarer had just made all the club tricks he was ever going to make.

He returned to his own hand via the diamond queen and led a low spade. When West followed suit with the eight, declarer inserted the board's ten. When it won, declarer had his ninth trick.

On the face of it, the result may appear to be perfectly normal—but it was not. East made a mistake when he won the opening lead with his spade ace. He should have allowed dummy's king to have captured the trick.

When declarer would subsequently be forced to rely on bringing home two spade tricks to fulfill his contract, he would have led (as he did) a low spade out of his hand. With West following suit with a low spade, South would be faced with a pure 50-50 guess whether to play the queen (hoping West had the ace) or the ten (hoping West had the jack). If he guessed wrong, he would go down.

But East's premature winning of his spade ace at trick one left South with no alternative but to finesse against West for the spade jack.

What It Costs To Keep Cool

COLLEGE STATION — If you're shopping for an air conditioner, the Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) on the label will indicate which model will cool most efficiently, one expert said.

She's Lynn Bourland, home management specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"The higher the EER number, the better the air conditioner will cool your area. The unit with a higher EER may cost more but will operate for less."

"You can work out the comparison yourself using figures from the utility company and from the air conditioner label," she said.

Ask the local utility company for the cost of electricity per kilowatt hour in your community and the annual hours of air conditioning required for your climate. The third figure — kilowatts per hour required by each air conditioner — is on the air conditioner label, or the salesperson will tell you.

To figure the cost of keeping cool: Multiply the cost of electricity times the hours of cooling needed, times the watts required by the air conditioner.

Divide the answer by 1,000 and the final figure will be the cost in dollars.

For example: model A (EER 9.0) uses 1,000 kw and costs $40 more than model B (EER 5.9), using 1,500 kw. You need 600 hours of cooling and the utility rate is four cents per kilowatt hour.

For model A, multiply all three figures — $04 x 600 x 1,000 equals 24,000 or $24 average for the year.

For model B, multiply all three figures — $04 x 600 x 1,500 equals 36,000 or $36 average for the year. So model A is cheaper, as the difference of $40 initial cost will be made up in about three years.

"This formula give you an estimate of what it will cost to keep cool. Your home's insulation, layout, and tightness of doors and windows will affect the operating costs," the specialist said.

PORK LIVER

Pork liver — the economy buy — is stronger in flavor and richer in iron than calves' liver. Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, noted. The outside membrane, blood vessels and connective tissues can be easily removed with a sharp knife before cooking.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, AUGUST 24: Your birthday today.

Finds you in the process of converting latent talent into earning power, assembling a stronger base for vocational progress. Intuition heightens where you require special guidance. Resolve early to balance daily living, gather essentials. Today's natives are staunch in their convictions, emphasize fine details in plans.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: The more help you accept, the greater the risk of misunderstanding and confusion. Extra responsibility is natural today. Get on with whatever you must do.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Stick with what you know how to do. Correction of long-neglected conditions becomes urgent, deserves priority.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: You have more to study than you think and little time in which to make judgments. Don't really rely on anybody but yourself, unless someone important keeps a promise to help.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: You find somebody ready to complicate matters if there's a way to do so. Keep your part simple and separate. Home life is better late tonight.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Accept advice, particularly from famous people, with reservation. Declare yourself out of current games and mass entertainment. Stay with quiet routine.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Your intense concern causes you to push harder and faster than existing teamwork permits. Ask for what you want in smaller doses and one at a time. Patience!

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: This weekend is favorable for improving things you have secured. Study your immediate environment to see what can be changed. Time analyzing the situation is well spent.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You're apt to make deals intuitively. Be sure it's strictly your own, and stay within practical bounds. There's much to do and think about without creating difficulties.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: The moderate course is preferable. You tend to plunge into commitments with little thought of depth or duration. Attention to health is indicated.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Observation allows you to see current circumstances somewhat differently. Others conflict and differ on already established facts. Tact!

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Distant friends, people with highly technical skills are more helpful than casual acquaintances nearby. Take a rest from sentimental and romantic ventures.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Strong family ties tip the balance in today's enterprises. Keeping your affairs in order means knowing the outlay of actual cash and hidden expenses.

JOAN McCRARY

"I'm coming back to one of favorite galleries hoping to see some of the same folks," says Joan McCrary. This visit Joan brings with her paintings "hot off the press" from Sapin done in the popular heavy palette knit style in which she captures much of the aura of the Spanish country side.

"They have really true castles and ancient walled villages, gorgeous grape vineyards and olive groves, fishing villages, sandy beaches, and rugged coastlines. The people are as warm and friendly as they are in Texas and Oklahoma except they speak with a little different accent."

Plan now to attend the "Oklahoma Potpourri of Art" at the Las Pampas Galleries Saturday night from 7 until 10.

PENNIES BY THE POUND were featured in a contest during the recent Vacation Bible School at Pampa Baptist Temple. Boys and girls brought 121 pounds of the scarce copper coins. Shown with a wagon load of pennies are from left, Tina Music, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Music; Earl Mayer, treasurer; Larry Taylor, music and youth director; and Sherrie Raines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Raines. Contestants Bring Pennies

The Pampa Baptist Temple, 500 E. Kingsmill, pastored by the Rev. Olen Russell, recently completed their vacation Bible School, with final enrollment of 288 for the five-day session.

There were 23 two and three years olds; 51 four, five, and six year olds; 97 first to third graders; 88 fourth through sixth graders; and 29 seventh and eighth graders.

Church buses were used in transporting the students. The classes consisted of singing, crafts, Bible stories, and a "penny contest."

The boys and girls brought a total of 121 pounds of pennies, the boys leading the girls by one pound until the final night, when the girls won with 63 pounds to the boys' 58 pounds.

Graduation ceremonies were held last Sunday, the children bringing their parents to see the crafts and to meet the teachers.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Then the angel who was talking to me went over to meet another angel coming toward him. "Go tell this young man," said the other angel, "that Jerusalem will some day be so full of people that she won't have room enough for all! Many will live outside the city walls, with all their many cattle — and yet they will be safe. For the Lord himself will be a wall of fire protecting them and all Jerusalem; he will be the glory of the city."

Zechariah 2:3-5
Religious Heritage of America

The Lord is gracious, and full of compassion; slow to anger, and of great mercy. — Psalm 145:8
"Oh to be like him" says a poet, and so says the Psalmist.

Mission Theme Is "We Care"

LEFORS — The United Methodist Church of Lefors will be the scene of a special "We Care" mission to be conducted Aug. 26 through Aug. 28, according to the pastor, Rev. Charles Graff.

In all, six pastors will participate in the 7 p.m. services.

In addition, they will conduct home visitations and will lead discussion groups in sharing with people their experiences with Christ. Those participating are the Rev. Bob Metzger, pastor San Jacinto Methodist Church, Amarillo; the Rev. Carlton Thompson, district superintendent of Plainview District; the Rev. John Dorn, pastor of the United Methodist Church, Fritch; the Rev. Hugh Daniel, pastor of United Methodist Church, Locking; the Rev. Katherine Pigg, pastor of Headley Methodist Church; and the Rev. Steve Campbell, pastor of United Methodist Church at Groom.

Our Religions

By DR. C. ADAMS
In a move similar to that taken in Canada nearly 50 years ago, the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches of Australia have agreed to merge into what will be called the "Uniting Church of Australia" to be formally established on June 2, 1976.

QUESTION: How many different church denominations make up the membership of the National Council of Churches in the U.S.A.? Has the number of member churches increased or decreased in the past 25 years? — Webster Groves, Mo.
ANSWER: There are 31 constituent church bodies in the National Council of Churches. Since the Council was formed in 1948 there have been several mergers of major Protestant denominations. Therefore, the membership of the Council has actually increased by the addition of new churches although the mergers have kept the total number fairly stable.

Member churches of the National Council represent a wide variety of ecclesiastical and theological backgrounds. The one theological doctrine which they hold in common is belief in the divinity of Jesus Christ as Lord of the Church.

QUESTION: Is it true that the chief officer of the World Council of Churches has been invited to address the Synod of Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in Rome in October? — Harrisburg, Pa.
ANSWER: Yes. The Rev. Dr. Philip Potter, Secretary General of World Council of Churches, has accepted an invitation from Cardinal Jan Willebrands, president of the Vatican Secretariat for the Promotion of Christian Unity, to address the bishops at their synod. He will be in Rome Oct. 10-12 and other members of his secretariat staff will accompany him.

The general theme of the Synod this year will be "Evangelization of the Modern World."

Central Has Guest

Harold Fite, of Lubbock is the featured speaker at Central Church of Christ, 500 N. Somerville, through Aug. 25. The special services also feature Joe Stevens as song director. Services begin at 7:30 p.m. daily.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

The First Presbyterian Church

DR. BOBBY STALCUP

"BUT..."
The little conjunction "but" is a most important word in our vocabulary and our experience of life. Secretary of State Conversations, writings and life are filled with the implications of that little word. It tells us that there are exceptions to the rule or experience.

"And" is also a well used conjunction. To say "and" is to add something else, to give more information whether trivial or tremendous. "But" not only gives further information, BUT it changes the impression and impact of what has preceded it. It qualifies, alters and often negates what has already been said.

"John is a good friend, but..." means that John is certainly not the best of friends. "Bill is a good businessman, but..." suggests one might better forget it. (2 plus 2 equals 4, BUT not on a base 2 computer, where the answer is 6. Life is good, BUT it has its problems.) One instructed his interpreter to give only a summarized translation of what was being spoken. BUT "I want you to give me every word after the speaker says BUT." What follows "but" is of utmost significance!

V. Raymond Edman has shown in his delightful little book BUT GOD! how the Bible is replete with instances of God negating certain circumstances of life for the person whose trust is in Him. Life has its failures, its sufferings, its turmoil, its anguish; BUT GOD is able to help us work through them. The tragedies of Life are often transformed by the power of God in the person of faith.

The Psalmist realized his frail condition: "I was envious... ignorant... as a beast... My flesh and my heart faileth." However, his condition was negated: "BUT GOD is the strength of my heart." (Psalm 73)
Joseph's brothers sold him into slavery and broke their father's heart by their action. Joseph was blackmailed by Potiphar's wife and cast into prison. Life had tumbled in on him. "BUT THE LORD was with Joseph." (Gen. 39) Out of the crush of life, God was able to transform a situation of despair to one of ultimate victory!

On his first missionary journey the Apostle Paul proclaimed the truth of Christ's death on the cross. "They took him down from the tree, and laid him in a tomb." (Acts 29) That is quite a foreboding end to such a life. The very next verse says, "BUT GOD raised him from the dead." What a difference that conjunction made in the course of history!

The human condition was most aptly described by Paul in Ephesians 2: "dead through trespasses and sins," "following the course of this world," "sons of disobedience," "lived in the passions of our flesh," "children of wrath." Quite a pitiful condition! Then comes the word of hope! "BUT GOD, who is rich in mercy, out of the great love with which he loved us, made us alive together with Christ... and raised us up with him."

Perhaps you'd like to read that little book for further help. BUT better than that, perhaps you'd like to know and have the experience of the writers when they said, "BUT GOD!"

MISSIONARY CITED
LONDON (UPI) — Elizabeth Baker, 72, a British Methodist missionary in Sri Lanka, formerly Ceylon, has been honored by Queen Elizabeth and named a Member of the Order of the British Empire.

WINE OPPOSED
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Temperance and Prohibition Council has called on Christian churches to end the use of wine in communion celebrations.
The Council, at its annual meeting, said the use of fermented wine "forces reformed alcoholics and other abstainers either to expose themselves to alcohol or to deny themselves the sacrament of communion."
The Council suggested "new wine" — grape juice — as an alternative.

MANILA ACCUSED
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Two American missionaries who were briefly arrested by the Philippines government say their detention was part of an attempt to silence criticism by the church.
Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Wilson, missionaries for the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) told reporters "the Philippines government is attempting to repress the church... as the last institution free to be critical of the government."

NEW ADMISSIONS
NORTHFIELD, Minn. (UPI) — The Lutheran World Federation has admitted three new Lutheran bodies to its fellowship, bringing the membership of the federation to 91 churches representing 55 million people in 50 countries.
The LWF's executive committee approved the membership of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Central African Republic, the Chinese Rehnish Church of Hong Kong and the Tsung Tsen Mission, also of Hong Kong.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH
Is Angina Pectoris Dangerous?

BY G.C. THOSTESON
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is angina pectoris dangerous? In a conversation with a friend I was left with the impression that it was not regarded as seriously as other heart conditions. I am on medication for angina and of course use nitroglycerin for chest pains which I have quite frequently. I am in my 70s. - Mrs. W.D.

I don't think I can give you a flat yes or no, but look at it this way. Actually angina pectoris is not dangerous in itself - but it is a symptom, a warning.

In general, it indicates the heart is not getting enough oxygen for its needs. The pain comes when the heart is working beyond the limits of its oxygen supply.

An electrocardiogram (EKG) very often shows "normal" when the patient is at rest, but abnormalities may appear - indicating something is wrong with the heart - after a certain amount of exercise.

Then again, there can be angina patients in whom there has been substantial and easily recognized heart damage.

Therefore, in any specific case, the doctor who has been caring for you can give a more accurate evaluation of just how serious your particular case is.

One thing has to be kept in mind: if the patient has high blood pressure as well as angina, there is much greater danger that a coronary heart attack may occur.

But angina patients who take care of themselves live for many years. And the ones who don't, don't as a rule.

I think you probably would be interested (and helped) by reading my booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris." If so, send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed and stamped return envelope to me in care of Pampa Daily News.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Several months ago I recall a doctor mentioning that many models and actresses digest worms as a method of staying slim. It sounds like a very simple method. I would like to do this myself but do not know how or where I could find the worms. - Mrs. P.F.

Once in a while I suspect a reader is trying to kid me and I suspect you are. I have never heard of this repulsive scheme, would have no idea where you could find the worms, and if you really had any such intentions you'd have asked the doctor who told about it - if any doctor actually did.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know if there are any symptoms or signs of cancer of the rectum or intestines that might warn one. - Mrs. G.B.S.

The insidious thing about cancer is that it often gives no symptoms when it is starting, but there are several suspicious signs that warrant investigation if they occur. (They may or may not be from cancer.) Red blood in the stool, difficult bowel movements or ribbon-shaped stool are the most frequent signs involving the rectum.

A black stool can indicate bleeding farther up in the intestinal tract; chronic constipation or diarrhea may be indicative. Indeed, the old rule of "any change in bowel pattern," meaning a change in frequency or consistency, bears investigation.

I repeat, any of these things can occur from causes other than cancer, but each of them should be studied until the cause is ascertained.

Note to the girl, 16, who signed herself as "I will not see a doctor": You may very well have picked up an infection, from your recent sexual activities, but if you won't see a doctor there is nothing I can do for you except advise you to keep on worrying.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how - naturally and without gimmicks - to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Pack Away Your Girdles, Boys

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — There was a man on the stage in a white gown and a Carol Channing blond wig and he said to the audience, sounding exactly like Carol, "We want to thank all you six people who showed up tonight to support this turkey."

"Manhattan Follies," the splashiest of the three female impersonator shows that started a new trend in New York night life, was closing rather bravely and merrily at the Plaza Persian Room after 8 weeks.

"French Dressing" at Sheppard's had closed earlier and moved to San Francisco. The first of the boy - boy shows, "Zou," which opened Dec. 7, is still a hit.

With two of three closed, there's no danger of the "glorifying the American boy" extravaganzas taking over the nation.

Craig Russell ("Carol Channing") wasn't quite right calling it a turkey. There were about 150 customers, and they especially loved him and "Judy Garland," portrayed by Caleb Stone, who immediately joins "French Dressing."

The Robert Stigwood organization in London had "too big an overhead" to keep the show going and it would be "a nice tax write-off," Craig Russell said.

What jobs do female impersonators get when shows close?

"Go back to driving a truck," one of them said. "But it's more fun," he said, "dressing up."

The new Burt Reynolds movie "The Longest Yard" features a prison football game between the guards and the prisoners. And at the previews the audience roots for the cops.

Striptease queen Sherry Britton broke her shoulder and her husband Bob Gross dresses (and undresses) her since she can't do her own strip. He says, "I have my own little Barbie doll."

Marguerite Paiza (Mrs. Harry Berens) had her third cancer operation in 6 years and is "doing fine"...

Cooper and Jimmy Lyon. Basketball star Walt Frazier, leaving Nipenthe discotheque, had to roust two young female fans who'd been in hiding the back of his Rolls... The Friars will salute Lionel Hampton... "Godfather" director Francis Ford Coppola made 'em offer they couldn't refuse, and bought a piece of the Cinema 5 film company... British actor Stanley Baker's son Marty will marry film producer Marilyn Nash.

Actor Michael Smith, now starring on the London stage, told an interviewer his real name: Michael Dumbell-Smith.

I'D RATHER BELIGHT Today's Best Laugh: Mickey Freeman bought tickets to a B'way musical and complained about the price: "For this much money, a couple of years ago, I could have been a backer!"

Wish I'd Said That: Most people who quit smoking give up cigarettes in two stages - first theirs, then yours.

Earl's Pearls: A friend told Bobby Vinton he suspects his marriage is getting shaky: "My wife doesn't nag me to fasten my auto seat belt any more."

Remembered Quote: "The world is composed of givers and takers. The takers eat better, but the givers sleep better." - Kirk Kirkpatrick.

A traffic expert predicts that by 1980 there'll be 175 million cars on the road. "Which means," notes Marty Allen, "that if you want to cross the street - do it now!"

It's the "dog days" again but if anyone is singing about the heat wave usually brings to most places, we haven't noticed. What we have noticed is that the Top Ten seems to be less stable this time of the year, with tunes coming and going at a fast pace. Maybe all will settle down a bit after Labor Day? - Stevie Wonder will continue his string of hit albums with his latest, "Fulfillingness: First Final." His soul-pop style is focused on this package of original tunes. James Brown, another hit veteran, shows off his soul approach in "Hell."
- Also worth the spinning are Eric Clapton's "461 Ocean Boulevard." The Voices of East Harlem with "Can You Feel It?" and Focus' "Hamburger Concerto," a fine offering by the Dutch rock group.

Crop Failures Threaten To Season Dust Storms

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Crop failures in West Texas this summer may cause record breaking dust storms this winter and next spring, the Texas head of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service warned today.

"Unless farmers in West Texas can grow winter cover crops, we are in for a bad blow season," warned Edward E. Thomas, top state conservationist with the federal agency.

Thomas said much of the windblown soils of the southern high plains region did not produce a crop or grow even enough cover to prevent wind erosion during 1974.

"Where rains fell during August, we are urging farmers to plant sorghum, millet or small grain to hold the soil in place," Thomas said.

Many areas lack even enough moisture, however, to grow such cover crops.

Lamesa, for example, has had only 7.5 inches since last September - 10 inches below normal. Some Dawson County farmers report receiving only 3 inches since May 1973.

Thomas estimated one-third of Dawson's County's 450,000 acres of cropland is bare, posing a massive wind erosion threat.

The Seminole-Brownfield area is also extremely dry, although scattered rain fell over the area in early August.

Thomas said dust storms affect an area much bigger than the state of Texas.

In 1965 a three-day dust storm from West Texas dumped 9 tons of soil per square mile on Cincinnati, Ohio.

In 1972, researchers at Big Spring determined that a 12-hour wind storm covering an area the size of the state of New Mexico contained 6 million tons of top soil.

Thomas said it is blinding, choking dust is the state's largest single source of air pollution.

HARD-EARNED MONEY CHICAGO (UPI) — An average American worker spends two hours and 39 minutes dry, 8-hour work day earning money to pay federal, state and local taxes, says the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Earning enough to buy a day's supply of food and beverage requires only 58 minutes of work, while earning your clothing takes 25 minutes; recreation, 18 minutes; and housing, one hour. The remaining one hour and 37 minutes pays for all other categories.

4 Deadlocked In Westchester

Tommy Aaron waited a long time to win his first major golf championship — and then he found out things weren't the way he thought they would be. Aaron's trip has been all downhill since that Monday in April a year ago when he walked off the 18th green at Augusta as winner of the Masters.

He hasn't won another tournament since then. In fact, Aaron finished 1973 in one of his worst slumps — and he's doing even more poorly in 1974.

"I had a real, bad letdown after I won the Masters," Aaron said Thursday after a five-under-par 67 put him in a four-way tie for the first round lead of the Westchester Classic.

"It was something I had always dreamed about doing and then when I did it, I thought about relaxing and enjoying it. I figured I had worked at it pretty hard all these years and now I could relax."

But competition being what it is, that was dangerous thinking. As a result, I began to play badly."

Aaron finished last year in 44th place on the pro golf tour's moneywinning list, his worst showing in more than 10 years. And this year he has had only one finish in the top 10 in 25 starts — a sixth-place tie at Milwaukee — and stands 80th with only $23,305.

Three other journeymen were tied with Aaron at 67 — Miller Barber, struggling since winning the World Open's $100,000 jackpot last autumn; Dale Douglass,

Unknown Czech Has Victory Over 12th Seed At Lockwood

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — For the second day in a row, an unheralded foreigner has emerged from the pack to strike down a top-seeded player in the $100,000 U.S. Professional Tennis Championships at the Longwood Cricket Club.

The story Wednesday was the upset of first-seeded Stan Smith by Jun Kamiwazumi of Japan, a 5-foot-6 former baseball player, and Thursday a towering self-exiled Czechoslovakian, Milan Holecsek, knocked off 12th-seeded Harold Solomon of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., a highly regarded clay court performer, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, in a second round match.

The other seeded players scheduled Thursday — Dutchman Tom Okker,

(2) Swede Bjorn Borg (4), Marty Riessen of Amelia Island, Fla. (8), Czech Jan Kodes (9), and Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla. (10) — had little trouble advancing into the third round.

Holecsek, 31, took everything that Solomon could throw at him Thursday, pressured the fiery Washington, D.C., native into a double fault at deuce in the final game, then literally jumped for joy when Solomon's desperation cross-court forehand missed the sideline.

Solomon, the 13th leading money winner on the pro tour, beat Holecsek, 6-4, in the first set, but Holecsek rallied in the second set, charging the net and zooming ground strokes past the lunging Solomon to even the match, 6-3.

The two traded four service breaks early in the deciding set and when Solomon finally won his serve, the set was even at 3-3. Both players held service until Holecsek led 6-5 and then the big Czech thought he saw the match roll away from him.

Having already lost one match point, Holecsek had Solomon at another and was at the baseline hammering away with groundstrokes when Solomon hit a return that slapped into the tape then, due to topspin, climbed to the top of the net, rolled along for a foot or so — and fell over to bring the game back to deuce.

The crowd of Solomon breathed a sigh of relief.

Stowe Gets Suspension

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys Thursday suspended wide receiver Otto Stowe, who missed half of the season last year because of an ankle injury, for failing to follow instructions of the coaching staff.

Cowboys president Tex Schramm, making the announcement at the team's training camp, said "I am unable to speculate on future action at this time."

Stowe signed with the Cowboys from Miami in 1973 and caught 23 passes for 389 yards and six touchdowns before injuring his ankle against Philadelphia. He set a pass receiving record while at Iowa State with 132 career catches.

"The basic problem was he failed to follow what the team was doing no matter what — weights, running, conditioning," head coach Tom Landry said.

"He said he was hurt," Landry said, "but he wasn't on the injury report. We have a dozen guys out there working who are hurting as much or more than Otto."

Landry said he had talked to Stowe about the situation and told him to show up at practice Thursday morning ready to work out or he would be suspended.

"He didn't show up for the regular morning practice a couple of hours later," Landry said.

The Cowboys play at New Orleans Saturday night against the Saints. Center John Fitzgerald, wide receivers Bob Hayes and Drew Pearson, tight end Jean Fugett and tackle Rayfield Wright are expected to see limited or no action because of injuries.

Lack Of Pass Attack May Again Hurt Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Webster's defines "pass" as to "move, proceed, go by."

The word could be the key to the Buffalo Bills in 1974 if the young club plans to "move, proceed or go by" the Miami Dolphins in the Eastern Division of the American Football Conference.

What the Bills did on the ground last season is common knowledge to most. O.J. Simpson rushed for a single-season record 2,003 yards and the Bills set a season team-rushing mark with 3,088 yards with a 220 yard per game rushing average.

The passing figures, however, left much to be desired. Buffalo totaled only 997 net yards passing, an average of 71 yards per game.

Coach Lou Saban knows Simpson, although sometimes seeming to appear superhuman, is made of flesh and blood like anyone else. Saban also knows the pass must be employed in order for his club to make a run for the playoff money.

"We featured him (O.J.) a great deal last year," Saban said, "and I would like to believe we can feature our passing game to take the heat off of him. This is what we've got to do."

The passing duties will probably rest on the shoulders of Joe Ferguson, the second-year quarterback who did a lot of handling off last season. Veteran Scott Hunter, acquired from Green Bay, is reputed to have leadership qualities but a weak arm.

Rookie Gary Marangi of Boston College has impressed during the pre-season and should learn enough this year to be an asset to the Bills in the future.

The Bills are stocked with a talented group of receivers who would also like to see more footballs thrown at them.

Speedsters J.D. Hill, Bob Chandler, Ahmad Rashad (Bobby Moore), Ray Jarvis and rookie Gary Hayman could be an exciting corps if thrown to. The Bills hope No. 1 draft pick Reuben Gant comes through so Paul Seymour, moved to tight end last year, can return to his more-familiar tackle position and add depth to the offensive line.

The offensive line remains intact, with Reggie McKenzie, Joe DeLamielleure, Dave Foley, Mike Montler and Donnie Green. The defensive front, anchored by veterans Earl Edwards and Walt Patulski, is also another strong point.

Simpson is complemented in the backfield by fullbacks Jim Braxton and Larry Watkins. Rookie running back Carlester Crumpler should see action when O.J. takes a breather.

Linebacking could be a problem. Veteran Jim Cheynski will be in the middle with the outside spots up for grabs. Candidates include John Skorupan, Bo Cornell, Richard Lewis and Dave Washington.

The place kicking will be handled by veteran John Leypold while incumbent Spike Jones battles with rookie Brian Doherty for the punting duties.

But the success of the Bills will hinge on the yet-to-be-proven passing game. Saban, however, is optimistic.

Safer, Easier, More Fun

The reason America is so rich is that the people in it stole the wealth of other countries — true or false?

That is the basic argument of Marxist-Leninists. And that is why so many of them sincerely strive, even sacrificially, for the destruction of this country.

Hear it from the Weathermen, as told in their booklet "The Three Faces of Revolution":

"We are within the heartland of a world-wide monster, a country so rich from its world-wide plunder that even the crumbs doled out to the enslaved masses within its borders provide for material existence very much above the conditions of the masses of people of the world. The U.S. empire, a world-wide system, channels wealth, based upon the labor and resources of the rest of the world, into the United States. The relative affluence existing in the United States is directly dependent upon the labor and natural resources of the Vietnamese, the Angolans, the Bolivians and the rest of the peoples of the Third World. All of the United Airlines Astrojets, all of the Holiday Inns, all of the Hertz's automobiles, your television set, car and wardrobe already belong, to a large degree to the people of the rest of the world."

We would like to submit a question or two at this point.

When you last bought an airline ticket, did you work for the money or did you steal it?

When you took a vacation with your family and stopped at a motel overnight, did you pay the bill from your earnings or from loot?

When you bought your car, did you make the payments out of your paycheck or did you drop down to Mexico and rob a bank?

In other words, is it not true that this country contains great wealth because the people in it first create the goods and services and then trade them to one another in the marketplace?

If Americans steal the things they have, then why do any of us have to go to work day after day?

Why do we have a deficit balance of payments? Do Americans steal things from South America, Africa, Asia and Europe, and then turn around and ship the stuff back to the people we stole it from?

Why are Marxist-Leninist countries like China and the USSR so eager to borrow American dollars in order to buy American wheat? If this commodity really is grown in abundance elsewhere, why don't the Reds deal directly with the source of supply?

We believe the answers are obvious.

American productivity is the source of American wealth. Sure we trade with the people of other lands. Every time we get something from them, we give something for it. We don't ask them to lend us money so we can buy their wares — as the Soviets and Red China do with us.

Remember the U.S. government is not relatively rich. Rather the American people are relatively rich. Every dollar that government spends comes first from productive individuals. We make our own money. We make our own wealth. Besides being moral, to work is safer, surer, easier and more fun. Why steal?

Tell you why, President Ford will have strong labor support unless he insists on beating George Meany on the golf links. Or declares open war on the movement.

He'll do neither.

Powerful labor backing in '76 will be the balance of ballots. Ford will have that because he always has had close labor ties despite the sometimes scatological opposition of the United Auto Workers and despite his conserving voting record. In fact, it was the influential Seafarers leader Paul Hall, who back in 1973, when I interviewed him, called for Ford for President. These men long have worked together. This virtually automatically gives Ford backing of the powerful, politically sophisticated multimillion-member Maritime Trades Dept. (AFL-CIO).

President Ford has George Meany's respect. This has been evident from the very first moment when FBI agents interviewed the growly labor chief in the Hotel Americana lobby (Bal Harbour, Fla.) on late '73. Meany had not a single derogatory word to say of Ford.

The building trades like him. Ford made certain to drop in on Labor Secretary Peter Brennan and breakfast with him shortly after moving in as Vice President. The gesture was understood. Pete is former head of the New York Building and Construction Trades Council. As for the Teamsters, most of the brotherhood is a "safe house" for Ford, who met with Teamsters' chief Frank Fitzsimmons last Friday.

Even before Ford's earlier meeting with Meany Ford's emissaries had been making contact. At least one White House staffer, a former aide of Mel Laird's who broke in Ford as Vice President, has been talking to intimates of Meany's. All goes well for both sides.

In practical political terms, the realism of the "posture" is that the lineup of 1972 swiftly will form for Ford in 1976. For, as it appears now to the highest political-labor sources with whom I have been talking transatlantic, Ted Kennedy will be the Democratic presidential nominee in '76. And if it's Ford against Kennedy — barring Ford's adopting the National Chamber of Commerce's

Will Ford Be Elected In '76?

By VICTOR RIESEL
LONDON — Softspoken Prime Ministers, hardened members of Communist party politburos whom I had come to challenge behind the Iron Curtain, old-fashioned, tough Stalinist-type Communist labor bosses and gentle Socialist union chiefs who now are lords and knights, all have asked me the same question:

Will Jerry Ford be reelected in 1976? If not, who will succeed him?

I have been answering that while it is too early for such discussion, I do believe the President will run and win.

Further, if Sen. McGovern has real influence in the Democratic party after the December mini-convention, I believe Meany will lash at it just as he did in August 1970 when he said it was in the hands of left-wing extremists.

Further, the distaste for Sen. Jackson in these circles is as earthy as it's universal. First, the center and right-wing forces inside the AFL-CIO don't think his ponderous style can get him off the ground. They see him as the nation's front-waddling political kiwi bird.

And by 1976, a huge coalition of American labor will be with Ford. The traditionally Democratic labor policy — the same hard-hats, the same waterfront unions, the same blue-collar workers who backed Dick Nixon in '72 now will swing to Ford.

Most of them backed Nixon openly or covertly against Jack Kennedy in 1960. Most of them despised Bobby Kennedy. Some of them had sent word, by courier, letter and telegram to Nixon until recently, supporting his position and urging him not to resign.

Further, if Sen. McGovern has real influence in the Democratic party after the December mini-convention, I believe Meany will lash at it just as he did in August 1970 when he said it was in the hands of left-wing extremists.

And by 1976, a huge coalition of American labor will be with Ford. The traditionally Democratic unions, such as the needle trades and auto workers, will of course stay on that course.

So I tell my friends and enemies alike, in high places and low, there's a Jerry Ford in their future. (All Rights Reserved.)

TWO FACES OF LAW Environmental Groups Force Issue In Courts

By C.R. BATTEN

It doesn't take any deep analysis of news reports or social trends to recognize that environmental groups throughout the nation are going to court to force their ideas of environmental "protection" onto others. A major purpose is to create social change that will lead in turn to the acceptance of new laws — that restrict our desires — in other words, limit the freedom of the individual to own and use property.

This platform is made clear in the article "The Law and Environmental Trade-offs" in American Forests, August, 1974. It was written by Raymond A. Haik, who is an environmental lawyer, chairman of the executive board of the Izaak Walton League, and a member of the special American Bar Association Committee on Environmental Law.

"It is my observation that the laws needed to reduce demands on the environment cannot be obtained unless they are preceded by a more drastic change in the attitudes of individuals toward population and resource use controls," wrote Haik. "Our main goal of environmental quality is threatened by the fact that the present legal rules governing resource use are founded on the traditional doctrines of free enterprise and private property where each person is free to use his property as he desires."

The author fails to recognize that the areas of greatest environmental problems are the commons — areas "owned all the people," or by none.

But Haik brought out another point on which I wish to concentrate today. He wrote, "The major benefit of a lawsuit is the opportunity it provides to focus public attention upon environmental problems and to identify the trade-offs which must be made to accommodate a specific plan of use."

Later, he said, "The lawsuit focuses public attention on the specific environmental problem, the conflicting congressional policies, and it provides a means of demonstrating that present legal and administrative procedures, whereby we rely on certain public agencies to assert broad public concerns, are inadequate. This public awareness is the most important foundation needed for changing our resource laws."

Haik has emphasized that the environmentalists view environmental lawsuits as opportunities to "focus public attention" on environmental problems. One of the major reasons for initiating lawsuits is for publicity to bring about the social change they want.

It appears to me that lawyers play under two sets of rules. — Environmental lawyers who bring suit against industry or government to "save" some aspect of the environment seem to work by one set of rules, and the attorneys representing the industries under attack work under another. The plaintiffs publicize their action, but the defendants refuse to release information for publication.

On several occasions over the last few years, I have been asked by attorneys (and others on the advice of their attorneys) to refrain from public comment because "the matter is in court." I have been refused basic information which is on public record, in the hands of those attacking the industry, and fully available to one who has the time and resources to travel to the proper courthouse to look at it.

Because of this double standard, only one side of any issue is told to the public. Those who do not agree with the direction in which we are being taken by environmental lawyers are not being heard. They almost never inform the public through the media of the problems as they see them. Therefore, all the forces of public information favor the environmental attorneys who want to convince the people of these United States that we should give up our rights to own and control private property in the name of the environment.

Until the law profession determines a single standard of conduct that applies to both sides of a lawsuit, the story of industry will never reach the people and it will continue to lose the battle of public opinion.

HIGHEST TRADITION

After 46 years Dr. Eugene R. Balthazar, an Illinois physician in general practice, has retired in a most unique fashion. He has established a free medical dispensary in his community and pays about $1,000 a month out of his own pocket to keep it running. The motto of this public-spirited doctor's clinic is, "If you can afford to pay, please see your family physician."

The free services are available mostly to acutely ill children, and on an average day 80 to 100 patients receive treatment. But the 71-year-old retired doctor, who decided years ago that he wanted to end his "... professional career in this way," observes, "This community has been good to my family and me for decades, and I owe the people something." Dr. Balthazar's clinic is located in a former furniture store which he leases for $1 a year. Seven registered nurses, a licensed practical nurse and 19 community workers who do interpreting and clerical work serve the clinic on a voluntary basis. Pharmaceutical houses contribute supplies; and, in addition to volunteer aid from the medical and nursing professions, area dentists also have agreed to take patient referrals on a free basis.

The Illinois State Medical Society has presented its first "Humanitarian of the Year" award to this retired medical man who lived his life in the highest tradition of the medical profession—a tradition of professional dedication to the well-being of patients and fellowmen that has few equals in the annals of human endeavor.

H. L. Hunt Writes

CRIME MUST BE CURBED

It is rare when the law enforcement agencies report a reduction in crime in these troubled times. It is good that the agencies, for the most part, make honest reports to the public even though the facts they disclose are not encouraging. There must be more efforts applied in the fight against crime, and the responsibility for this fight rests with all of us, not with just them men who wear the badge and the prosecutors. Just as patriots have engaged in the war on communism, they should enlist in the crusade against crime.

Conscientious jury service is one way the citizen can join in the endeavor. Far too many persons use the technicalities in state laws to evade service. Another civic duty is cooperation with local police. Officers investigating crimes need information on automobiles and suspicious persons to apprehend criminals and make cases. Citizens who mark personal property and write down serial numbers of household appliances have a much better chance of recovering stolen property when it is found in the possession of thieves. Identification of the property is necessary for the filing of criminal cases.

The fight against crime must be carried on in smaller communities just as it is in large cities. Recent FBI reports indicate that crime is on the increase in rural areas, probably as a result of increasing pressure applied by police in the big cities.

If your police department or sheriff's office provides literature of group discussions on the crime problem, it would be a good thing to avail yourself of these services.

THE CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Immunity For Mr. Nixon?

By WILLIAM RUSHER
The question whether Richard Nixon should be prosecuted for his misdeeds in connection with the Watergate cover-ups thornier than many people imagine.

According to the Gallup Poll 55 percent of the American people oppose prosecution, and only 37 percent favor it — an impressively solid majority for compassion, and one that anti-Nixon zealots will ignore at their peril. On the other hand, the let-him-alone advocates don't seem to understand that Mr. Nixon, once he stepped down as President, became legally subject to prosecution for any crimes he committed while in office, and that there is no very convenient technical excuse for failing to prosecute him for this one. Nor does Congress have the legal power to confer immunity on him.

That, incidentally, is why it was dangerously naive for various good-hearted people to complain that Mr. Nixon, in his resignation speech, didn't "make a clean breast of it" and frankly acknowledge his guilt. If he had done so, he would not only have been making things far easier for a potential prosecutor in his own case, but would gravely have compromised the trial of his co-conspirators Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, et al., which is scheduled to begin on September 9th. However heinous we consider the Watergate cover-up, there is surely a great deal to be said in mitigation of the offense, and Mr. Nixon would only have made saying it infinitely more difficult if he had chosen to twang our heartstrings with a dramatic "mea culpa" in his resignation speech.

The inclination of most Americans to go easy on Mr. Nixon is rooted in a sound perception that his own role in the conspiracy to cover up Watergate wasn't all that awful anyway, and that his forced resignation from the presidency is an entirely adequate punishment for it. After all, there is no solid evidence that Mr. Nixon — however much he was responsible for the general atmosphere of derring-do around the White House — was privy to the Watergate burglary in advance. When he learned of it, and discovered that practically all his top aides had been involved in it, he concerted with them a scheme to limit the FBI investigation to save their skins. Inexcusable — indeed, technically felonious; but once Mr. Nixon has been driven from the presidency in consequence, how many years must he also serve in a penitentiary before Senator Weicker — that chalice of sanctimony — prepared to concede that justice has been done?

It would be quite different, at least in my view, if there were proof of any of those gaudy charges of tax fraud, sales of ambassadorships, etc. with which the anti-Nixon forces regaled us last winter. I would have no compunction, then, about calling for Nixon's prosecution myself. But there is no such proof, and one or two of Mr. Nixon's Congressional enemies have not admitted that these accusations were sloshed around chiefly to create a general atmosphere of criminality within which the hot-house charge of "cover-up" could grow and flourish.

But flourish it did, and Special Prosecutor Jaworski and his 23 grand jurors (a "cross-section" of the District of Columbia — which gave 78 percent of its votes to McGovern) must now decide whether to indict the ex-President, as the facts and the law indisputably permit — though do not require — them to do.

They have not shown any inclination to spare Mr. Nixon in the past. On the contrary, the grand jury was eager to indict him for conspiracy to obstruct justice back in February, on far thinner evidence than the tapes of June 23, 1972 (which we only released by Mr. Nixon this month). At that time Mr. Jaworski, who knew very well that an incumbent president cannot be indicted, persuaded his hungry panel to settle for naming Mr. Nixon as an "undicted co-conspirator" with Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, and the others. Will he be able to deter them now? Will he even want to?

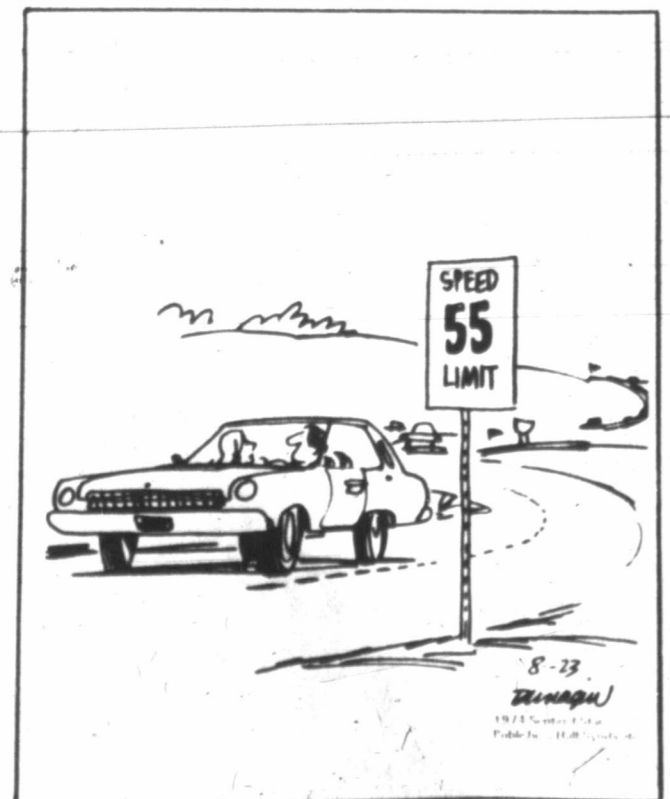

Perhaps not. But surely Mr. Nixon's foes should be the first to understand that it does not pay, in the long run, to defy the settled good judgment of the American people.

OK. Get ready to smile. Prepare to have your spirits lifted. It's time for George and Betty Cummings to tell you how an average U.S. family — one with children to think about and parents who are "too old to take a chance" — can still grab life and shake it until it gives them exactly what they want.

"For us, life truly did begin at 70," says Betty Cummings. "For more than 20 years, George and I had wanted to move out onto the land, build our own home, raise the food our family ate and otherwise be self-sufficient. It wasn't until a year ago, however, that we began to make that dream come true."

"We had found our 20 acres in northeastern Washington State by then, but we were still in the clutches of the 8- to 51 life in a Colorado mountain town. Both of us were working to buy beans for our ample family and build up a modest stake so we could realize our dream ... eventually."

"And that was the rub! When is 'eventually'?" For us it was the summer of '73 ... when George quit his job, went on to Washington and threw together an 8 foot by 10 foot log cabin while our five children and I stayed on in Colorado.

"Well, that was a nice beginning but — by fall, when the rest of us had planned to join my husband — we still had no prospects of moving into anything better than that tiny log building. And seven of us trying to spend the winter in an 8 by 10-foot space, we felt, would have been just a little too much togetherness."

What would you have done in that situation? Quit? Put off making the move to the new place for a year? Settled for less than you had planned?

It is to the Cummings' credit that they didn't let the first setback they encountered change their plans a whit. While the rest of the family continued to prepare for the Big Move, George racked his brain for some way to build a house large enough to hold seven people ... for less than $1,000 ... and in a matter of days. Impossible? For most people, yes. For the Cummings family, not impossible at all.

In the Pacific Northwest, you see, there are many sawmills that sell seasoned 2 by 4's, 2 by 6's and 2 by 8's of standard lengths. And how do they make one of those timbers measure exactly 12, 16 or 20 feet long? By sawing off a 21-inch chunk here, an 18-inch piece there and 15 inches over there.

Each sawmill, in other words, has its one big heap of random-length scrap ... usually available to any picker who's willing to gather up what he wants and haul it away.

"Humm ... mused George. 'I wonder what would happen if I collected whole truckloads of that scrap ... and then nailed all the little pieces together to make a house with solid-wood walls six inches thick?'"

To make a long story short, that's exactly what the Cummings family did. Betty and the kids sold the house in Colorado and packed up and moved to Washington while George stocked up on mill-end scrap timbers.

By November 1st the whole family was reunited in Washington, roughing it in a 8 by 10-foot cabin and 9 by 12-foot tent ... and admiring the mountain of lumber George had collected.

And then the hammers began to fly! And, believe it or not, the Cummings family was ready to move into a brand-new 550-square-foot, naturally insulated house with solid-wood walls six inches thick they had built themselves ... by December 17th! It was a shell house, to be sure ... but George and Betty and the children didn't seem to mind. Especially since the whole shebang had cost them only $200!

And that's where they spent the winter. With a wood burning stove, Aladdin lamps and a 12-volt electrical system that powered a ham rig which allowed them to talk with the "outside world."

This summer the Cummings tribe is raising an absolutely monstrous garden — and tripling the size of their new home. They're also adding bookshelves, a porch and other "extras" to the original 550-square-foot wing and otherwise turning their shell house into a really custom-built and comfortable residence.

And the moral of this story? Very simple. Despite the turmoil, confusion, scandals and crime in the streets and despite what "they" say about the inevitability of the "rat race" ... it is still a pretty good world to live in after all. If you're willing to dream big dreams and then work to make them come true, you can still do it.

As a matter of fact, it doesn't even matter if you and your wife are both 40 or over. It doesn't matter if you have five children to raise. It doesn't matter if the only way you can make your dream come true is by figuring out some impossible scheme for building a 550-square-foot house for $200 in roughly a month and a half.

Believe it or not, it just doesn't matter if you have to buck odds like that. Ask George and Betty Cummings.

If you'd like more details about the Cummings' move "back to the land" and the house they built, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to The Mother Earth News, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Reprint No. 197. "The Cummings' Mill-End House."

The Chilean Communist party was founded Jan. 1, 1922. It was outlawed after the Sept. 11, 1973 military coup.

STUDY CHILDREN
NEW YORK (UPI) — What happens to children when one of the parents becomes sick with a catastrophic illness? And can ways be found to help such children through the crisis?

A grant of $20,000 from the Ittleson Family Foundation to Cancer Care Inc. and the National Cancer Foundation will finance a study probing the questions. The study will focus on the emotional and behavioral problems of children living at home during the terminal stages and death of a parent suffering from advanced cancer.

SURVEY SHOWS
NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite the new morality, the sex revolution and the influence of women's lib, America's teenagers still cast an almost unanimous vote in favor of marriage. They also veto premarital sex for itself, and feel the husband should serve as breadwinner in the family.

The findings about young persons circa 1974 were among many in a new study conducted by Seventeen magazine among nearly 3,000 members of the Future Homemakers of America. The organization functions as part of the home economic curriculum in middle, junior and senior high schools. Only 10.3 per cent of the survey participants were male.

Doctor Researches Gonorrhea Vaccine

LUBBOCK — A vaccine to immunize persons against gonorrhea, and simpler methods of diagnosing and tracing epidemics of the disease are possible outcomes of research being conducted by an assistant professor of microbiology at Texas Tech University School of Medicine.

Randall T. Jones, Ph.D., has received $41,000 from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases to study Neisseria gonorrhoeae, the bacteria that causes gonorrhea.

Dr. Jones said, he currently is searching for bacteriophages which would be active against the gonorrhea bacterium. Bacteriophages (also called phages) are certain types of viruses that destroy bacteria.

Dr. Jones said, although the disease has been traced back to ancient times, "not a great deal is known about the antigenic or chemical structure."

He explained that a problem working with the gonorrhea bacterium is that it is very fragile and can be maintained only under special conditions. Because of the fragility of the organism, it has been very difficult to isolate for purposes of study. "One of our goals is to develop media in which we can grow the organism in amounts which would allow us to study it."

Bacteriophages can be used in epidemic conditions as a means of tracing the origin and transmission of bacteria and also can be helpful in studying the chemical and antigenic structure of a bacterial cell wall, Dr. Jones explained.

Phage use in epidemics depends on the fact that different types of phage operate on bacteria in different ways.

If bacteria are collected and isolated from several infected persons who have had contact with one another and all bacterial cultures respond to certain phages in the same manner, it is strong evidence that the bacteria was the causative agent in the infection.

Dr. Jones said that by finding and studying the phages that affect gonorrhea bacteria, he may be able to use the information from his research to develop methods for diagnosis and case-tracking of the disease, and a vaccine for preventing its spread.

FURRY HITCHHIKER
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Rufus, a bobcat kitten, spent a few days in the children's zoo here before his owner discovered his whereabouts. Rufus crawled out of his owner's car at a grocery about 40 miles from here, climbed into another car and hid. When the second car was driven here, Rufus decided to move on and some children found him.
