

President Issues A Challenge To American Youth

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — President Ford, citing the Communist youth of China as an example of what young people can do, today called on American students to join the battle against inflation — "our urgent domestic threat."

In an address to the Ohio State University graduating class in which he asked labor and educators to join in "a great new partnership" to increase the nation's productivity and to combat inflation, Ford said America's youth is "its greatest untapped source."

He told the 2,500 graduates that "with the Vietnam War over and the draft ended, your duty now to your country is to enlist in the campaigns being waged against our urgent domestic threat — especially inflation which is public enemy No. 1."

In an unusual comment for an American president, Ford hit hard on the theme of Communist Chinese productivity, stressing its growth and increasing technology.

"Chinese productivity is gaining momentum, and the majority of Chinese are young people, highly motivated and disciplined," Ford said. "As human beings, we celebrate the rising capacities of the Chinese nation, people with a firm belief in their own destiny."

"As Americans motivated by free competition, we see a distinct challenge and I believe all Americans accept that challenge."

Ford flew from Washington to deliver the commencement address and receive an honorary degree. He planned to return to the White House in the afternoon to meet with leaders of national student organizations and to hold more conferences on the federal budget. He and his family will spend the weekend at Camp David, Md.

He received a warm airport greeting and when he walked on stage of St. John arena, the university's basketball arena, he was accorded a prolonged standing ovation.

Ford attended the University of Michigan as an undergraduate and competed against

Ohio State in football. He mentioned that he played center 40 years ago on a Michigan team that lost to Ohio State 34-0.

"Instead of dwelling on how my team lost here in 1934," Ford said, "I would prefer to advance the clock to 1974 and talk about winning against the odds that confront today's graduates and all America."

"I propose a great new partnership of labor and educators. Why can't the universities of America open their doors to working men and women, not only as students but also as teachers. Practical problem solvers can contribute much to education, whether or not they hold degrees. The fact of the matter is that education is being strangled — by degrees."

Ford said he had asked the secretaries of labor and health, education and welfare to report to him new ways "to bring the world of work and institutions of education closer together."

Ford drew loud laughter when he said at the outset that he had gone from Republican leader in the House to President in only eight months, calling himself "the first instant President."

"The United States Marine corps band is so confused, they don't know whether to play 'Hail to the Chief' or 'You've come a long way baby,'" Ford said.

But in a serious vein, Ford said the United States would compete internationally not only to maintain the balance of trade and standard of living but to offer to the world's impoverished examples in opportunities for better life.

Speaking of the Communist challenge, he said, "Let this peaceful competition dominate the last quarter of 20th century. American youth will make the difference. You are our greatest untapped source of energy but energy unused is energy wasted."

"We must make extraordinary efforts to apply our knowhow, our capital, our technology and our human resources to increase productivity at a faster pace."

Inflation is creating a national state of anxiety. Productivity must improve if we are to have a less inflationary economy.

"In the long run, it is the only way we can raise wages without inflationary price increases. It is essential in creating new jobs and increasing real wages. In a growing economy, everyone — labor, management and the consumer — wins when productivity expands."

Ford stood on the stage wearing a black academic gown and waved when the crowd applauded.

The doctoral citation said that Ford was a "plain-spoken man from Michigan, effective leader of his party in Congress, skilled conciliator of conflict" who had accepted the "responsibilities and opportunities, the joys and the burdens of the presidency."

Ford was warmly received all around. At his arrival at the airport, people shouted words of encouragement to him.

"Courage is the greatest of all the virtues, because if you haven't courage, you may not have an opportunity to use any of the others."

Gunmen Shoot Cyprus Leader

United Press International
Vassos Lyssarides, a leftist politician and adviser-physician to exiled President Makarios, was shot and slightly wounded today in Nicosia by gunmen who killed his bodyguard, driver and wounded the driver's American wife and two bystanders.

Lyssarides blamed the shooting on EOKA guerrillas fighting to unite Cyprus with Greece and on the American Central Intelligence Agency.

Twenty-six bullets riddled his blue Japanese-made sedan in downtown Nicosia, killing Doros Loizou, the driver, and wounding the driver's wife, who acted as Lyssarides' secretary.

A police spokesman said Lyssarides dropped to the floor of the car when the gunmen opened up with submachine guns. He was cut on the head by glass splinters.

Lyssarides told newsmen after he left the hospital where he was treated that Loizou, the dead driver, had studied at Boston University and his wife is an American now living in Cyprus.

Lyssarides' own wife is American journalist Barbara Cornwall.

Lyssarides, who is the head of the Cyprus Social Democratic party and an outspoken opponent of EOKA — the Greek underground organization that wants to unite Cyprus with Greece — blamed the attack on EOKA and the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

"EOKA is responsible for the attempt on my life," he told newsmen. "Those led by the CIA had something to do with it. The whole conspiracy against Cyprus has been hatched by the CIA, and by this I mean the coup against Makarios and the Turkish invasion that followed."

Lyssarides said four gunmen in a French-built car were waiting for him at an intersection as he was driving to his clinic. He said he thought only one of them fired.

"I heard a burst of automatic gunfire," he said. "The windows were smashed. I felt I had been hit. After the second burst, which apparently killed my friend (the driver) the automobile came to a stop."

Cyprus president Glafkos Clerides visited Lyssarides at Nicosia General Hospital before he was released and Makarios telephoned him from London.

As Lyssarides walked out of the hospital, a crowd shouted "Down with the Fascists. The (Greek military) junta will pay for this."

In Nicosia rumors spread that Turkish forces that invaded the island July 20 were taking up positions for a new thrust.

Turkey's troops on the island meanwhile staged a victory celebration in a soccer stadium five miles from the capital, parading before a crowd of about 1,500 enthusiastic Turkish Cypriots.

"The day has now come when we hold a celebration in Cyprus," said Turkish Maj. Sadat Metin.

Lyssarides, leader of a leftist Cyprus political party, EDEK, received treatment at Nicosia General Hospital and afterwards went to visit President Glafkos Clerides, a government spokesman said.

The assassination attempt marked the second political shooting in Cyprus in less than two weeks.

Gunmen firing into the covered windows of the U.S. embassy killed Ambassador Roger B. Davies during an anti-American demonstration Aug. 19.

Police said the car was ambushed on a traffic circle near Lyssarides' clinic in the central part of the capital's Greek Cypriot quarter.

Police sources said they thought the gunmen were members of the EOKA-B Greek Cypriot guerrilla organization, which fought Makarios for two years in a bid to achieve "enosis," or union of Cyprus and Greece.

Lyssarides' party was the main opposition to EOKA-B.

Makarios was ousted in a Greek-led coup July 15, touching off a Turkish invasion of the island five days later.

The physician bitterly opposed the Greek Cypriot junta headed by Nicos Sampson that took control after the coup.

Nixon Gets 2 Subpoenas, Faces Financial Trouble

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — A U.S. marshal has served subpoenas on Richard Nixon, demanding two court appearances to explain his conduct as President, and a financial adviser says Nixon is strapped for money.

The report of the financial problems of the still secluded former president came as President Ford asked Congress to appropriate $850,000 for Nixon's pension and expenses.

An aide who came west with Nixon said his seclusion did not mean Nixon planned to become a recluse, and denied that he has had emotional problems since being forced to resign from office Aug. 9.

"He's not sitting back there humming 'Hail to the Chief,' but he's not down in the mouth either," said Stephen Bull, former White House appointments secretary.

An unidentified U.S. marshal strode onto the grounds of the former Western White House Wednesday and handed Nixon two subpoenas, including a demand by John Ehrlichman, one of his two most trusted aides when he was in power, requiring Nixon to appear as a defense witness in the Watergate cover-up trial in Washington next month.

The other demands a deposition for use in a Charlotte, N.C., civil suit brought by antiwar protesters, who were kept out of a Nixon speaking appearance in 1971, purportedly in connection with Watergate "dirty tricks" maneuvers.

The subpoenas were served after more than a week of negotiations between Gaylor Campbell, chief U.S. marshal for the central district of California, and former press secretary Ron Ziegler, now Nixon's top lieutenant.

Campbell, who was appointed to his job by Nixon, said he wanted to handle the matter in a "professional and discreet" way — privately, with no notice to newsmen. The Justice Department would say only that the subpoenas were handed to Nixon "in person" at 6:10 p.m. Wednesday.

In Washington, Ford asked Congress Thursday to appropriate $850,000 to cover Nixon's expenses for the next 11 months.

The request included the $5,000-a-month pension to which former presidents are entitled, $96,000 for staff expenses, $40,000 for travel, $65,000 for office furnishings and $100,000 in miscellaneous expenditures, plus a "one-time" special appropriation of $450,000 in "transitional" expenses to cover Nixon's outlays in becoming a private citizen.

In Los Angeles, Dean Butler, the lawyer hired to handle Nixon's financial affairs, told the Los Angeles Times the former president's cash flow problems were so serious that "it isn't too much of an exaggeration" to say that Nixon is broke.

"We won't say he's broke in the sense of you or I being broke," Butler said. "But all you have to do is look at his most recent financial statement and the payments he has had to make since then" to know he has money problems.

Butler said he expected to meet with Nixon in the next week or so and that it may take until the end of the year to straighten out Nixon's financial affairs.

Ford Names Diplomat As Council Head

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has named businessman-diplomat Kenneth Rush to head his new anti-inflation team and to no one's surprise, has ruled out a tax increase this year.

Having asked for and received authority from Congress to set up a relatively powerless Council on Wage and Price Stability to monitor inflation, Ford Thursday installed Rush as chairman and filled the remaining seven seats with Cabinet secretaries and top White House aides.

The new council has authority to seek out and publicize inflationary wage and price increases, but it only can urge voluntary restraint on the part of business and labor. It cannot order rollbacks as its defunct predecessor, the Cost of Living Council.

Rush, former chairman of Union Carbide Corp., U.S. ambassador to West Germany, and a top State and Defense Department official, joined the White House staff in the final months of the Nixon administration as coordinator of economic policy. He continues to hold that assignment for Ford.

On another economic topic, White House Press Secretary J. F. terHorst told reporters Thursday that talk of a tax increase this year was "very unrealistic."

With less than six weeks left in the current congressional term, Chairman Wilbur Mills of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee opposed to the idea and the administration already following a tight fiscal policy, there are "pragmatic reasons" why Ford would not move in this direction now, terHorst said.

Echeverria Rejects Any Negotiations

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI) — President Luis Echeverria refused today to negotiate with the kidnapers of his sick and aged father-in-law, sticking to his year-old policy of "no deals" with terrorists.

"By joint decision, the family has decided to leave the matter entirely in the hands of authorities," Eduardo Garcia Jaen, a spokesman for the family, said.

Garcia said the president adamantly ruled out any possibility of negotiating with the guerrilla gunmen who abducted his 83-year-old father-in-law Wednesday.

Jose Guadalupe Zuno Hernandez, a political power in Mexico for more than 50 years, was kidnaped by four armed guerrillas as he rode in his chauffeured limousine through a Guadaluajara slum.

A Mexico City radio station said the commandos were demanding a $1.6 million ransom and the release of 100 political prisoners in exchange for Zuno's life.

Government officials, however, repeatedly have denied receiving any communication from the kidnapers.

Zuno suffers from diabetes and a weakened heart. His family feared he would not be able to withstand the ordeal.

Police admitted they had few clues to the abduction by the Revolutionary Armed Front of the People, the same leftist guerrilla group that claimed credit for the May, 1973, kidnaping of U.S. Consul General Terrence Leahardy in Guadaluajara last year.

A Mexico City television station, however, said Thursday night authorities have identified three of the gunmen as guerrillas freed from prison in exchange for Leahardy's life.

The station said the men, among 30 prisoners sent to Cuba in a swap for Leahardy, returned secretly to Mexico and plotted the Zuno kidnaping.

Echeverria instituted his policy of "no deals" with terrorists soon after Leahardy's release.

The Zuno abduction came four days before Echeverria's annual state of the nation address to Congress and appeared timed to embarrass the president at a time when he customarily expounds his government's achievements.

NO ACTION TAKEN Budget Studied By Commission

The fiscal 1974-75 city operations budget of Pampa was under study during a two and half hour session of Pampa city commissioners Thursday night.

No action was taken by the solons, who called the work session a study measure.

The proposed formation of a Board of City Development, funded by city taxes was the main objective of scrutiny by the group. A vote confirming or rejecting the formation of a BCD which has been included in the budget proposal, will probably not be executed before Sept. 10, meeting, according to city officials.

The commission also spent considerable time studying the proposed rate adjustments in the water utility, sanitation and sewer departments.

A proposal in the budget would adjust present rates to add approximately $192,000 in revenue from the utility departments. The City of Pampa provides utility services to approximately 8,000 customers.

The adjustments would bring in operational funds in the amounts of $48,000; garbage collection; $100,000 water service; $48,000 sewer provision. The proposal would adjust present garbage collection rates from $2.50 to $3; minimum water rate from $3.30 to $4.30; and sewer rates from $1.50 to $2.

The proposed changes affect residential users at this point; however, the commission said it is not ruling out commercial user modifications.

City Manager Mack Wofford, commenting on last night's meeting today, said the present commission was spending a great deal of study on the proposed budget; adding that when approval came, the commission would like to pass the measure with solid support from all commissioners.

In order to do this, Wofford commented: the mechanics of the budget as a whole had to be considered from every view point.

No solid date for the first reading of the proposed budget has been set.

Grand Jury In Session

District Attorney Guy Hardin said this morning the Gray County grand jury had been called into session at 10 a.m. today for consideration of a shooting incident which occurred here last Friday night.

Hardin said he had asked that the grand jury be empaneled today to investigate the shooting at the Catalina Club, 600 S. Cuyler, shortly after 11 p.m. Aug. 23.

The District Attorney declined to speculate on how long the grand jury might be in session.

Two Pampa men, Ronnie Melton, 27, and Wiley (Butch) Reynolds, Jr., 37, were hospitalized following the shooting.

A spokesman at St. Anthony's Hospital, Amarillo, said this morning Melton was in "good condition and improving every day."

Reynolds, who first was treated and released at Highland General Hospital the night of the shooting, was admitted the following day to Worley Hospital and was dismissed Aug. 27.

Melton reportedly suffered a gunshot wound in the chest, Reynolds, according to police, was struck on the head by a handgun wielded by one of two officers of the Texas Alcohol Beverage Commission.

Both officers, Elvis E. Davis and Eugene L. McNeely, are from Amarillo.

Heavy Rains Drench Hill Country

United Press International - Up to eight inches of rain in the Texas Hill Country raised the north and south forks of the Llano River to dangerous heights today and sheriff's deputies moved about 100 persons in low areas around Junction to higher ground.

Kimble County Sheriff John Lockett said outlying areas in the range country of his county had reported up to eight inches. In Junction itself, the official rain gauge showed 4.13 inches.

Rains and thunderstorms that started at the beginning of the week continued over about half of the state, roughly along and 150 miles east of a line from Del Rio to Fort Worth, 30 miles east of Paris and north to Red River.

There were some signs the rain might be moving east. But National Weather Service hurricane experts were closely watching a tropical depression that produced winds of 35 miles an hour, gales, squalls and torrential rain overnight in Puerto Rico.

"Leniency in my case?" wrote Agnew. "That is to laugh." The whole story will be told later, meanwhile, please bear in mind that the bribery and extortion charges against me are unproved, that I denied them on national television and that I continue to deny them.

Judge Tells FBI To Destroy Files

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) - A federal judge has ordered the FBI to destroy its files on a New Jersey teen-ager investigated because she wrote a letter to a left-wing group for a civics class project.

Lori Paton, 17, who hopes for a career in the Foreign Service with the State Department, wrote the letter seeking general philosophical information for an assignment in her high school civics class - called "From Left to Right" - which was studying the political ideologies of several groups. She subsequently received an "A" in the course.

The letter - intended for the Socialist Labor party - mistakenly was sent to the Socialist Workers party in New York, which had been listed by the government as a subversive organization. At the time, federal agents maintained a mail surveillance of the group.

In response to her letter, the organization sent her a copy of its newspaper and other printed material.

After intercepting the letter, agents began a field investigation, asking questions of Miss Paton's friends, school administrators, a credit bureau and police.

Cain To Meet President Ford - Randy Cain, son of Gray County Judge and Mrs. Don Cain is due to arrive in Washington, D.C., today where he will participate in a meeting between President Gerald Ford and leaders of youth groups from throughout the United States.

He is expected to fly back to Austin tonight following the White House conference.

Musicians are expected from Lefors, Pampa and other area cities and towns. People are asked to bring salads, desserts, etc. to supplement the barbecued meet.

The Daughters of the Mobeetie Pioneers will have a booth for miscellaneous items and will appreciate any item donated. Cookbooks prepared by the group will be available for $2.50 each.

Miss Paton filed suit asking that the file be destroyed and that she be awarded $65,000 in damages. U.S. District Court Judge James A. Coolahan, in a nine page opinion ordered the FBI to destroy the file, but dismissed her claims for damages.

"There is no legal justification for the continued possession by the FBI of the Paton file," Coolahan said.

Bomb Explosion Kills 10 In Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — A thunderous explosion following a telephoned bomb threat rocked an office building in downtown Tokyo today, showering the streets with a hail of broken glass and causing heavy casualties.

Police reported seven persons killed and about 90 injured, mostly from lacerations caused by flying glass. The Kyodo news agency placed the death toll at 10.

The explosion occurred at the nine-story Mitsubishi Heavy Industries building a quarter-mile from the downtown Tokyo palace of Emperor Hirohito.

TO MARS

More Information Needed On Flight

HOUSTON (UPI)—The director for life sciences at NASA said Thursday NASA's medical knowledge of man's problems in weightlessness is not sufficient to commit to a Mars mission without intermediate steps.

Dr. David L. Winters from NASA headquarters in Washington said even the 84-day Skylab 3 data is not sufficient to predict man's response to the 18-month to three-year flight to Mars.

"I do not feel at this point of time that we're able to commit to what we know now—to a Mars or beyond mission," Winters said after the close of the Skylab Life Sciences Symposium at the Johnson Space Center.

"I'd be most uncomfortable to extrapolate more than twice the time that we have data for now."

Winters said the greatest problem confronting the space physicians in readying for the inevitable interplanetary flights is calcium and bone mineral loss. He said further long-term flights are necessary to find the solution to the mineral loss which could cripple a man upon return to earth.

"In order to commit man to very long flights such as Mars, some intermediate duration flights of at least a year are needed," Winters said.

Richard S. Johnston, director of life sciences at JSC, said motion sickness problems which incapacitated several of the Skylab astronauts during the first few days of the missions were critical to the short-duration space shuttle flights of the next decade.

"We're getting the best people in the country we can to help us work on this problem," Johnston said. "We obviously need work in this area."

Winter and Johnston discontinued the need for artificial gravity for

Wife Rejects Sailing Voyage

LONDON (UPI) — Patrick Halliday's plan to sail around the world with his family hit a few snags, his wife told a London court.

A trial voyage in their second-hand catamaran covered 160 miles in three weeks. The boat was such a mess at the end of the trial that Halliday docked it on England's south coast and took off for Spain, alone.

His wife sued him for divorce.

Wednesday she went to court to prevent him selling the catamaran.

Mrs. Halliday, 30, said her husband planned to sail the family to New Zealand and settle there.

"I'm not against that, but I just had no confidence we would ever get there," she said. "I'm no sailor, and my husband knows nothing about navigation."

operators told police a young man telephoned a warning about five minutes before the explosion, saying a bomb had been planted in the building.

Police said, however, authorities were also investigating the possibility that the blast was an industrial accident.

Every window in front of the building was shattered. Shards of glass covered the street making the sidewalk look as if it were coated with snow.

The blast also shattered windows in the Mitsubishi Electric Machinery building across the street and several other office structures in the area.

Women, their faces and arms covered with blood from glass cuts, were being led from the Yokohama Bank Building a half-block away.

Firemen who entered the foyer of the Mitsubishi Building, dodging the still falling glass, found the area shattered. The floor and foyer were covered with the blood of dead and injured.

Most of the damage was confined to the foyer, where the blast shattered the ceiling, ripped out electrical wires and twisted air conditioning vents.

On the second floor, the corridors were splattered with the blood of office workers who had made their way to safety after being slashed by flying glass.

Witnesses said there was no panic. Uninjured workers helped injured employees, bandaging the victims with first aid kits and leading them to safety.

In the corridor outside the second floor office, a girl with her face and legs bandaged stood in shock and cried.

"I can't move. I can't move," she sobbed, resisting efforts of other women to lead her out of the building.

"I thought there were two or three sounds of explosions," said Toshiko Machida, 20, a waitress in a nearby restaurant. "Then pieces of glass fell like rain. We could see smoke belching from inside the Mitsubishi building."

Police and firemen carried a steady stream of injured from the building and other structures in the area for more than a half-hour after the explosion.

A hastily mobilized force of 280 police arrived to cordon off the area. Glass kept falling at intervals from office windows.

Telephone operators who listened to the bomb threat told police the warning sounded as if it were played on a tape recorder.

Police said most of those killed were pedestrians hit by falling glass while walking in front of the building.

'LOUD-MOUTHED, ABRASIVE'

Jerry Lewis Plans MD Telethon

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Loudmouthed, abrasive Jerry Lewis makes his only national television appearance this Labor Day in his annual effort to be humble.

And well he should. It is his 25th Annual Muscular Dystrophy Telethon, a 24-hour grind for one of the most worthy causes extant—the pressing race against time to save the lives of 135,000 children.

Lewis is the moving spirit. Last year viewers of 153 stations on a special network pledged $12,395,983 to the fight against MD. When the donations were totaled seven weeks later, $13,750,000 had been sent in.

Each year the amount has topped the previous total. But with inflation and tightened belts everywhere, Lewis is frightened that his telethon may lose momentum.

"We can't afford that," he said, making last minute preparations for the telethon which will emanate from Las Vegas' Sahara Hotel.

"I'm very concerned about peoples' ability to give this year, but I'm more concerned about the lives of those kids. My kids. I've spent eight months this year lining up 174 stations for the network. I visited 48 states and made 63 local television appearances."

Lewis has almost given up his career as a performer in what amounts to a personal vendetta against muscular dystrophy, a disease which is fatal to all its victims under the age of 20.

"Last year's donations helped build seven research centers in less than six months," Lewis said with pride. "The new centers are at New York University, Columbia, the University of Pennsylvania, the Mayo Clinic, Vanderbilt, Hammersmith in London and the UCLA Jerry Lewis Neuro-muscular Research Center."

"I went to the California Legislature and told them

I'd put up $1 1/2 million of my own money if the state would grant a million dollars to the UCLA project. They did, and I did."

Lewis says he will have 200 stars on his telethon over the weekend, including Jack Benny, Doris Day, Mary Tyler Moore, Jack Lemmon, and The Fifth Dimension. Don't be surprised if Elvis Presley and Frank Sinatra show up too.

Airlines will transport Hollywood stars to Las Vegas at no charge, their donation to Jerry's telethon, the most ambitious and successful of its genre.

Lewis is a fanatic, a zealot when it comes to his crusade. He sees hundreds of sticken children every year. Each death is a personal, heartbreaking loss to him.

Earlier this year Eddie Moon, 8, of Atlanta, was given a couple of days to live by his doctor. But he told the physician he wouldn't die until he saw his friend Jerry Lewis, whom he had met on a previous visit by the comedian.

"I was in London at the time," Jerry recalled softly. "But little Eddie hung on for five weeks until I flew to Atlanta. I got to his hospital room and gave him a kiss while his parents looked on."

"Then Eddie said, 'now I can die.' And the little boy smiled, closed his eyes and died. A man can never forget a thing like that. And every minute I work to fight MD. I think about kids like Eddie."

"When I'm on that tube asking for money, I want everyone to know we need every penny of it desperately because we're making progress and may come up with the answer faster than we think."

The redwoods of Northern California were discovered in 1796 by a Spanish expedition headed by Don Gaspar de Portola, according to the National Forest Products Association.

Question Box

Question No. 2103: When a person is opposed to what the government is doing with tax money, yet it forces him to pay taxes, under threat of imprisonment or fines, is there such a thing as freedom? It appears to be slavery to me when I am required to pay taxes to support food for communists, arms for fighting wars around the world, and subsidies for wealthy farmers.

Answer: We do not see how those in political government can defend their actions as promoting freedom when they promote expenditures such as are mentioned by the questioner.

We have pointed out a number of times that it is slavery for a politician to claim power over the lives of individuals, who may be required to fight wars all over the world.

Thy nakedness shall be uncovered, yea, thy shame shall be seen; I will take vengeance..."

INSIDE WASHINGTON Big Change In Panama Policy Now In Offing

By ROBERTS ALLEN WASHINGTON — There may be a far-reaching change in policy on the highly volatile Panama Canal issue.

Instead of tampering with U.S. sovereignty over the strategic waterway, as projected in the controversial "agreement in principle" signed last February by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Foreign Minister Juan Tack, there would be substituted a three-point plan to extensively modernize the Canal and expand the trade facilities of Panama.

Legislation on this major program is already pending in both branches of Congress — where it has powerful bipartisan support. President Ford has this alternate concept under study, and may soon confer with its principal sponsors — Reps. Daniel Flood, D.-Pa., Philip Crane, R.-Ill., and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R.-S.C.

Flood has suggested such a discussion in a letter to the President. They are long-time personal friends and House colleagues. Flood, influential Appropriations subcommittee chairman and leading congressional authority on the Panama question, talked to the President about it a number of times when he was Republican leader of the chamber.

ASKING FOR TROUBLE In Flood's letter to the President, he says nothing about the Nixon-Kissinger "agreement in principle." But although making no strictures against that "commitment," Flood leaves no doubt of his vigorous disapproval of it. That is forcefully spelled out in a double-barreled warning: (1) It has long been Soviet policy to obtain control of the Panama Canal; (2) The openly anti-American regime of strongman General Omar Torrijos and his pro-Communist clique is not to be trusted.

Hearty endorsing the Flood-Crane-Thurmond plan, Sen. Harry Byrd, Ind.-V., sent word to the White House: "I shall make every effort to defeat Secretary Kissinger's 'commitment' to give away our country's interest in the Panama Canal."

Since the change in administration, Kissinger has been notably silent about Panama. He has avoided all comment on the matter. So has Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker who negotiated the "agreement in principle" with Foreign Minister Juan Tack (who has made few bones about Communist leanings): In July, Bunker was saying a draft treaty would be "ready by the end of this year" — presumably drastically changing U.S. sovereignty over the Canal, as sought by the Torrijos regime.

Bunker isn't talking that way now. Like Kissinger, he is clearly under wraps. Addendum: Since the establishment of the Republic of Panama in 1904, it has had 59 presidents. Dictator Torrijos forcibly seized control in 1968, a week after a freely-elected president was installed.

Ford Statement Challenges France, Others To Cooperate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford strongly has reaffirmed the U.S. commitment to its European allies. But in a toughly worded statement he suggested that France, and possibly others, could be more cooperative.

The President looks forward to a productive and cooperative relationship with France and our other friends in Europe as well as with the existing and emerging institutions of the European Community, deputy press secretary Jack Hushen said Thursday.

But this requires reciprocity on the part of our partners, the White House spokesman added, apparently with France in mind. The White House statement was issued in response to a speech by French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in Paris Aug. 27 in which he charged that both former President Richard Nixon and Ford have been neglecting Europe. Ford made no mention of Europe in his first news conference in the White House Wednesday, although White House officials said he was prepared to comment if he had been asked a question. The sharp transatlantic exchange by the U.S. and French presidents appeared to get U.S. French relations off to a rocky start at the beginning of Ford's new administration.

While Nixon was an avowed admirer of the late French President Charles de Gaulle, relations between Washington and Paris frequently have been strained in recent years over U.S. intervention in Vietnam and U.S. attitudes towards the European Common Market.

The White House said Ford hopes to meet with European leaders personally as soon as convenient, starting with a first encounter with Italian President Giovanni Leone here on Sept. 25.

Ford also was scheduled to meet with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin about Sept. 11 and with Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka on Sept. 21.

At 1 p.m. July 24, Carrasco and confederates Rudolfo Dominguez and Ignacio Cuevas grabbed 15 hostages and held 12 of them in the prison library until the night of Aug. 3. When they tried to leave the prison that Saturday night, Carrasco, Dominguez and two women hostages were killed. A justice of the peace ruled Carrasco and dominguez killed the hostages and then committed suicide. Briscoe acknowledged Thursday he had been under public pressure to investigate the breakout attempt.

"Several weeks ago I stated my faith in the grand jury system of justice in our society," he said. "I said that I felt — as I still feel — that the grand jury is the proper vehicle for investigating the circumstances surrounding the Huntsville breakout."

"In my own mind, however, I never ruled out a public inquiry into this matter at the proper time." Briscoe said he decided to ask for the court inquiry "in view of very recent developments relating to the breakout."

One of the developments was a letter written by a prison inmate to a state senator in which the inmate said he saw prison guards execute Carrasco and Dominguez. Earlier Thursday, an inmate paroled 18 days after the shootout said he saw the same thing.

WILMETTE BAHAI HOUSE OF WORSHIP

Church Plans Long-Range Program For Expansion And Consolidation

WILMETTE, Ill. — Between eight and ten thousand Baha'is are expected to gather in St. Louis, Missouri, between now and Sept. 1 to commit themselves to participation in a worldwide five-year program for the expansion and consolidation of their faith.

Among the participants will be representatives from many of the 6,000 Baha'i communities in the United States as well as visitors from as far away as Australia, Iceland, Iran, and Brazil.

The conference will be the largest gathering of Baha'is ever to assemble on the American continent.

In the United States, the Baha'is five-year plan contemplates a significant increase in the religion's national membership. The number of communities where Baha'is reside is to grow at least 40 percent from the current level of roughly 6,000.

The number of local Baha'i administrative institutions — Local Spiritual Assemblies — is to expand at least 50 percent. There are now more than 900 Local Spiritual Assemblies in the United States.

The upcoming conference in St. Louis will be conducted by the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States, the religion's principal administrative agency in this country, and one of 115 such institutions in the world.

It is a nine-member body elected annually by representatives of Baha'i communities in every state.

This distinctive pattern of organization also holds true at the local level, where Baha'i communities annually elect Local Spiritual Assemblies to guide their Baha'i activities. The election for each nine-member Local Assembly is by secret ballot, and no electioneering or any kind of nominations are permitted.

These Local Assemblies in every region will coordinate much of the activity called for the Baha'is five-year plan.

Since there is no clergy in the Baha'i Faith, the elected lay institutions administer the affairs and regulate the conduct of Baha'i communities. They arrive at decisions through prayerful consultation. The view of the majority prevails.

At the apex of the Baha'i administrative order is the Universal House of Justice, elected every five years by the members of all National Spiritual Assemblies.

This international Baha'i administrative institution developed the five-year plan that is now being implemented worldwide.

As in the United States, Baha'is in the more than 300 independent countries and territories where the Baha'i Faith has been established will participate in the intense period of development ahead.

Sixteen new National Spiritual Assemblies are to be elected, in such countries as Sierra Leone, Cyprus, Somalia, and the Bahama Islands.

Two new Baha'i Houses of Worship are to be constructed, bringing the number of completed Houses of Worship to seven.

The new structures will be built in India and Western Samoa. One of the existing Houses of Worship is in Wilmette, Illinois, where the National Center of the Baha'i Faith in this country is located.

The Baha'i Faith, an independent religion, has been established in the United States since 1893. The first American Baha'i was Thornton Chase, a Midwestern insurance executive.

Christian Leaders Emphasize Importance Of Food In Religion

By DR. CARLYLE ADAMS
"Food" has become the most practical and critical word in the area of applied religion — especially Christian, Jewish and Moslem.

Some Christian leaders are urging that congregations repeat three times the words, "Give us this day our daily bread" when they offer the Lord's Prayer.

Hunger and starvation are unusually widespread in a day when most of us in the Americas have abundant food.

Question: Does the African Methodist Episcopal Church have any relationship either to the United Methodist Church or to the Episcopal Church? How can a church be both Methodist and Episcopal at the same time? — Syracuse, N.Y.

Answer: To your first question, the answer is no. There are two large church bodies which bear the name African Methodist Episcopal Church. The other one adds the word "Zion" after the word Episcopal.

"Episcopal" means a church governed by bishops. African Methodist Episcopal Churches are Methodist in that they follow the doctrinal standards of John Wesley and they are Episcopal because they have bishops.

As for history, the African Methodist Episcopal Church had its beginning in Philadelphia in 1787. At that time some people withdrew from St. George's Methodist Church of that city because of a policy of color segregation.

Later the national denomination was established in 1816 under the

CAPT. AND MRS. BART DEGGS

Salvation Army Will Greet Deggs

The new commanding officer of the Pampa Salvation Army will be officially welcomed here Sunday, Sept. 8.

He is Capt. Bart Deggs who, along with his wife Margie, will be present during the 11 a.m. service at the Citadel.

They come here from Paris, Texas and both have been active in church, community and civic affairs in many Texas locations.

They were members and leaders in the Lubbock Corps prior to their call to officership in the Salvation Army.

At one time they were associate officers in Beaumont, then placed in charge of the Vidor Outpost.

A later assignment was in Amarillo, then they entered the Salvation Army School for Officers in 1964.

During the two years of training Capt. Deggs was Brigade Sergeant and attained the third highest in academic grades in his class.

There followed commissioning as officers in May of 1966 and assignment to the Austin Youth Center. From there they went to Big Spring, where they served until the assignment to Paris in January, 1969.

During their five and a half years in Paris, they were involved in acquisition of Corps property, opening of a thrift store, and improvements in budgets and public awareness of the Army's varied programs.

The Deggs have four children. They are Denise, 13, Mike 8, Gayle, 5, and Sandra, 18 months.

HIS UNANSWERED PRAYER WAS ANSWERED

A Christian father, converted when his boys were in their teens, prayed long and earnestly that they would be saved. He lived a consistent, godly life before them, regularly attended church, and was honest in business. He also was a "pal" to his boys - yet they grew up and married without getting right with God.

Years went by and the father continued to pray - still his sons remained unsaved. When he took sick, the operation failed to help him - and, knowing he was going to die, he prayed: "O Father in heaven, I have prayed for my sons to be saved. I have lived before them as a Christian. But for some reason I have been unable to win them to thee by my life. O Lord, if it please thee, let me die a death so easy and victorious that I may win them to Thee by my death." But he died in excruciating pain with intense suffering.

After the funeral the three sons came back to the old home and sat around the open fireplace, as the shades of night began to fall. The oldest said, "If a man can live the kind of Christian life Dad lived, and then die as hard a death as he died, what in God's name can happen to us! I believe I want to make my peace with the Lord." So, acting according to his word, he knelt down to call on God to save him from his sins. His two brothers did likewise.

Thus, while the embers died in the fireplace, three hearts were set ablaze for God - because a father had fervently and faithfully prayed for his boys.

His prayer was answered, not as he had prayed, but as he had desired. The literal request was refused that the desire of the heart might be granted.

Likewise, when Paul prayed to go to Rome to witness for his Lord, the answer came in a very different way from what he expected. He did go to Rome, but as a prisoner, shipwrecked and almost killed.

Paul also came to God three times asking for deliverance from his "thorn in the flesh." But the harsh, hindering harassing infirmity was allowed to remain. However, his prayer was answered. God gave him added grace and strength. Paul found that God's strength was made perfect in his weakness. God answered his prayer, not as he asked, but by giving him that which was more needful for his soul. He gave him this infirmity lest he "should be exalted above measure." God said, "No," to his petition, yet answered his prayer.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

She Has Pain In Hip And Leg

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Since the fourth month of my last pregnancy I have had a pain in my right hip and leg. At first it wasn't bad but in the last few weeks it has become extreme.

I have been to at least 12 different doctors and most of them have different opinions or none at all. One said it was because I gained so much weight during my pregnancy but I have lost 40 pounds.

About the first or second month of my pregnancy I fell on the ice and seemed to land on my right side. Is it possible I injured my hip then? I do not think I can take this pain much longer. — Mrs. H.S.S.

Whether it was the fall or the weight or something else entirely doesn't really matter. The question is what is wrong — what was damaged? And what needs to be done about it?

You may, for example, have suffered some displacement that puts pressure on a nerve. If your weight gain caused some shift in bone structure, losing the weight afterward wouldn't necessarily repair also from moisture, also from poor nutrition and poor circulation which occur naturally in the bedridden patient.

The sores can be prevented by the simple expedient of moving the patient onto his side from time to time and by keeping the weight-bearing areas, such as the spine, clean and dry. Leakage of urine and stool should be avoided.

If a red spot begins to show, infrared light treatment can help prevent its spreading. That is, infrared for short periods — not ultra-violet. Heat from a goose-neck lamp placed about two feet above the skin helps also.

For actual ulcerations, there are other treatments, but these should be prescribed by the physician.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I heard about the lady who washes her hands with soap and water after doing the dishes, to prevent getting a detergent rash.

Yes, I have been doing this for some time now and it works for me. My hands had never given me any trouble until the last few years. When it did start, I tried washing my hands after doing the dishes and it does work. — Mrs. V.J.

And I've heard from some others who said it didn't work for them, and they have to wear gloves. Best I can say is, try it. If it works for you, that's fine.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard recently that drinking a lot of tea can be harmful to the kidneys because it contains tannic acid. Is this true? I Mrs. I.B.

I've heard that rumor more than once lately but do not believe there is any foundation for it whatsoever.

To learn of the many factors involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia (which concerns the esophagus), write to Dr. Thosteson in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120 for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It."

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

No Chill Between Angela, Ethel

By EARL WILSON NEW YORK — I've known Elizabeth Taylor as Elizabeth Taylor since she was 15... and I don't think I can ever get used to people exclaiming, "Oh, look, isn't that Elizabeth Wynberg?"

The rumorologists would like to build up a chill between Ethel Merman and Angela Lansbury but they can't. There's a half block-long red "ANGELA LANSBURY IN GYPSY" sign on the Winter Garden Marquee. And smaller signs, "Here She is, Boys... Here She is, World... Here's Angela" The Monday Sept. 23 opening launches the new B'way season.

"During Angela's run I'll be there," says Ethel who made the role famous in 1959. "I wish her luck and I know she'll be great. I'll be at the London Palladium and then in San Francisco doing a concert when she opens.

"I've no hard feelings. Why should I? I could have done the role if I wanted to. I'm just so glad I created the role so others can copy it. I'll send her an opening night wire and come in to see her when I can."

"Debonair David" Merrick's concocting some flamboyant stunts for his anticipated blockbuster "Mack and Mabel" opening Sunday Oct. 6 at the Majestic bringing Robert Preston back, with Bernadette Peters, now a brunet, and Lisa Kirk.

"Keystone Cops" and Mack Sennett bathing girls in swim suits that now seem like overcoats are expected with Merrick climbing down from a pink vintage Packard (driven by chauffeur Robert Evans, vice prez of Paramount Pictures).

Hans Conreid was strolling along B'way after his "Yrene" matinee headed for the Rincon Argentina restaurant. "Are you going on the road with the show?" I asked. "I'm on the road now," he said. "New York is the road to me. When we get to Los Angeles in a few weeks, then I'll be home. It's very seldom that I get to work at home."

Correction: Harvey G. Wallbanger phoned that I made a terrible mistake referring to a new tequila drink, favored by the youth, as a "Freddy Fudlucker." It's a "Freddy FudPucker," he said: 1 oz. tequila, 6 oz. orange juice, with 1 oz.

Galliano on top. (Sorry about that Mr. Wallbreaker.)

A Los Angeles going-out-of-business store put up signs: "Nixon Sale! We've Resigned, Too."

Helping Hand: Will all parents trying to get their kids into TV commercials send the pictures directly to Peggy Bramson, 250 W. 57th St., NYC, 10019, and not to me? I'm too swamped to handle them.

The Miss Universe Pageant's tall, beautiful president Harold Glasser could hardly believe his eyes when he read that a muscle show here Sept. 7 was featuring Kellie Everts.

"Miss Nude Universe" She has been enjoined from using that name and could be muscled into jail if she doesn't desist. Game show man Chuck Barris extracted $100,000 advance and $50,000 promotion expense from Simon and Schuster for his next book, "The Game Show Man" Jack Egan asks.

"Hear about the little nudist who posed for a centerfold in Reader's Digest?"

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Everywhere George Jessel went, the musicians strummed into "My Mother's Eyes" — and made him cry. He got it first at "Let My People Come" and then at Luchow's Celebrity Night with Janet Leigh shouting hello.

Then we proceeded to the surprise birthday party of the year for my Sassy Secretary Julie Allen, hosted by Tommy De Maio of the Americana Boutique and Mrs. Bobbie Samuels.

Janice Harper the blonde emerged from the evening's festivities as a brunet. The party in salute to Sassy's birthday contributed little to her age. Jessel said, "Whatever it is, Julie, I've got underwear that's older."

Timmy Tim glumly concedes that wife Vickey wanted to live alone and that they have been separated for several months. He begins a comeback in a couple of months at Jimmy's.

Show Biz Quiz: Who played "The Whistler" in the film series? Ans. to yesterday's: Mickey Rooney and Donald Crisp were billed about Elizabeth Taylor in "National Velvet."

Secret Stuff: A film company boss has his office rigged like the White House Oval Office: to tape visitors' conversations... Sexton Edy Williams writes exuberantly from Rome: "I just met Federico Fellini and he says he has something for me. I hope he meant a role in a movie!"

It was kept quiet, but Jim Dale, British star of the B'way comedy hit "Scapino," took a bad fall, broke a rib. He returned to the show three days later and rearranged the state action to accommodate his injuries.

Kung Fu king David Carradine, swears he'll quit TV to concentrate on movie acting and directing.

One of the major film companies NY - slipped most of its NY publicity office.

I'D RATHER BELIGHT TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Don Sherman complains that some small towns are traffic ticket traps: "In one town I skidded into a ditch — and they gave me a ticket for illegal parking."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A visitor to one of the plush, expensive new resort hotels says you can spend a week there on a budget — the federal budget.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Too many speeches are like the horns of a steer — a point here, a point there, and a lot of bull in between."

EARL'S PEARLS: Former N.Y. Democratic bigwig Carmine DeSapio dined at a restaurant with a group and told the mgr., "If you mention this, say I was with friends. Everybody else has friends — somehow, politicians always have 'cronies.'"

Alan King claims some women who are dieting sneak a few candies while watching TV. "They figure that if it's dark, and nobody is watching them, they won't gain weight."

That's earl, brother. AllRights Reserved

Under Twenty

By TOM WILLIAMS

Dear Mr. Williams: In regard to your column in the newspaper on college versus a trade, you advised that if the student couldn't make up his mind a qualified counselor might help.

Would you please advise where a competent counselor might be contacted? My daughter, 19 and out of high school a year, cannot make up her mind about continuing in what field in college. Your advice would be appreciated.

Mrs. J. P.

The above letter is typical, in terms of the situation, of many received from both parents and students. Insofar as finding a counselor is concerned, most colleges today provide good counseling service. If the student is not in college and has graduated high school, the high school counselor is usually able to recommend one or more professional counselors. Most parents and students fail to take full advantage of the counseling available within the public and college school system. Most are highly professional and competent and have the advantage of some knowledge of the student's performance record, experience and favored directions.

Many, many students in their late teens and early twenties are not sure of their career goals. One popular, and often successful, solution is to take a year off from school and work. This will often help to solidify a career decision.

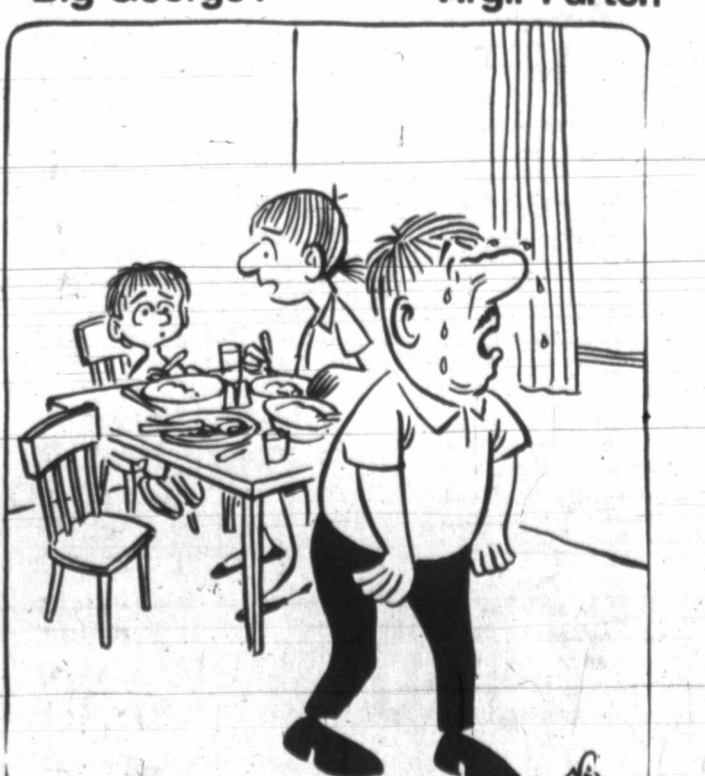

Another valuable approach is to find the direction that is of the greatest interest or which most closely lines up with the aptitude of the student. The development of basic skills the student already possesses is perhaps the most successful route to a rewarding career.

If one fails to find a specific career goal, one of the most successful approaches is a good, basic, well-rounded education which can be converted into a number of possible careers later on. What should, of course, be avoided is a series of snap courses aimed simply at graduating and earning a diploma.

The fundamental key is the combination of interest and aptitude possessed by the student. When these keys are found and recognized, they can be converted into motivation where further education will become a meaningful experience rather than a symbol.
