Government Opens Case Against Nixon Associates

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government began its case against five associates of Richard M. Nixon today, telling the jury it would prove the Watergate cover-up conspiracy included the highest levels of government—even the President of the United States himself.

Prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste was delayed two hours by a secret meeting of lawyers in chambers by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

The reason for the meeting was not disclosed, but when Sirica came into court he denied a defense motion for a mistrial and excused one of the jurors chosen just last Friday.

Ben-Veniste briefly recalled the arrests of five Nixon reelection campaign agents inside Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate in the early morning hours of June 17, 1972.

Nixon, named an unindicted co-conspirator in the cover-up, will never be prosecuted because of the full pardon granted him Sept. 8 by President Ford.

Kissinger Finds Tension Prevails In Middle East

DAMASCUS (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has found enormous tension in the Middle East but does not believe an outbreak of hostilities is imminent, a high American official said today.

The official spoke to newsmen on the flight from Cairo to Damascus, where Kissinger arrived at 1:00 p.m. (7 a.m. EDT) for a final round of talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

With Egyptian President Sadat standing at his side Kissinger told newsmen in Cairo: "I reported to the president my impressions of the area and about the conversations that I have had with various leaders of the countries I have visited."

Rain, Cloudy Skies Dampen Midsection

Damp weather and cloudy skies were the rule today from the Great Lakes and the upper Mississippi Valley to the southern Plains.

The passing system was responsible for 44 of an inch of rain in the Pampa area on Saturday, with another .37 of an inch falling on Sunday.

City Manager At Conference

City Manager Mack Wofford was in Dallas today attending the 60th annual conference of the International City Managers Association which runs through Thursday.

Quincy, Ill., and Chicago reported nearly an inch of rain during the same period. A cold front pushed over the northern and central Plains, packing wind gusts of more than 40 miles per hour.

Rockefeller's Gifts Creating Problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nelson A. Rockefeller's prolific gift-giving and his acceptance of responsibility for a derogatory campaign book have damaged his chances for smooth confirmation as vice president, according to congressmen who are investigating him.

The book for which Rockefeller accepted "full responsibility" was a derogatory biography of former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg published in 1970, when Goldberg was opposing Rockefeller for the New York governorship.

Power Industry Calls EPA Recommendations Unreliable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency says there has been a technological breakthrough with which the nation's power plants could:

They say the EPA is trying to force them to spend billions of dollars on "monstrous contraptions" of questionable value which will fan inflation and be "energy paralyzing."

if industry can be convinced, will be immense: Cheap, plentiful, high sulfur coal could be burned without polluting the air.

Tragically Funny

Were it not so tragically costly (in both money and freedom), the way statistics call on the government to do everything from teaching Junior how to read to taking care of them in their old age would be hilariously funny.

But, when the costs are counted, few are inclined to laugh at the continuing trend to "let government do it" in the face of overwhelming evidence that everything government touches turns into a monumental problem beset with delay, ineptitude, and oceans of red ink.

Take anything you care to mention which government has taken over for tried to regulate — the postal system, the money supply, control and operation of the schools, urban renewal, suppression of crime, operation of transit systems, control of the airways, regulation of the energy producing industry, foreign aid, you name it — anything and everything in which the government becomes involved turns into a colossal mess of red tape and bureaucrats stumbling over each other.

Why anyone would turn to the government to do anything after viewing the "Mess in Washington" see Shirley Scheibla's article of that title in the September 30 issue of Barron's is indeed a mystery. Why? The Federal Government can't even run ten square miles of Washington, D.C., author Scheibla points out and documents.

Those who believe that federal funds and superior wisdom will solve the problems of the nation's cities should take a closer look at this federally-run city, the article suggests.

Take, for example, the highly touted new Washington, D.C. subway system.

Started in 1969 with the expectation of being completed by 1973 and estimated to cost $2.1

Goldwater's Navy

Air-minded Barry Goldwater suggested the use of dirigibles as platforms from which to launch intercontinental missiles.

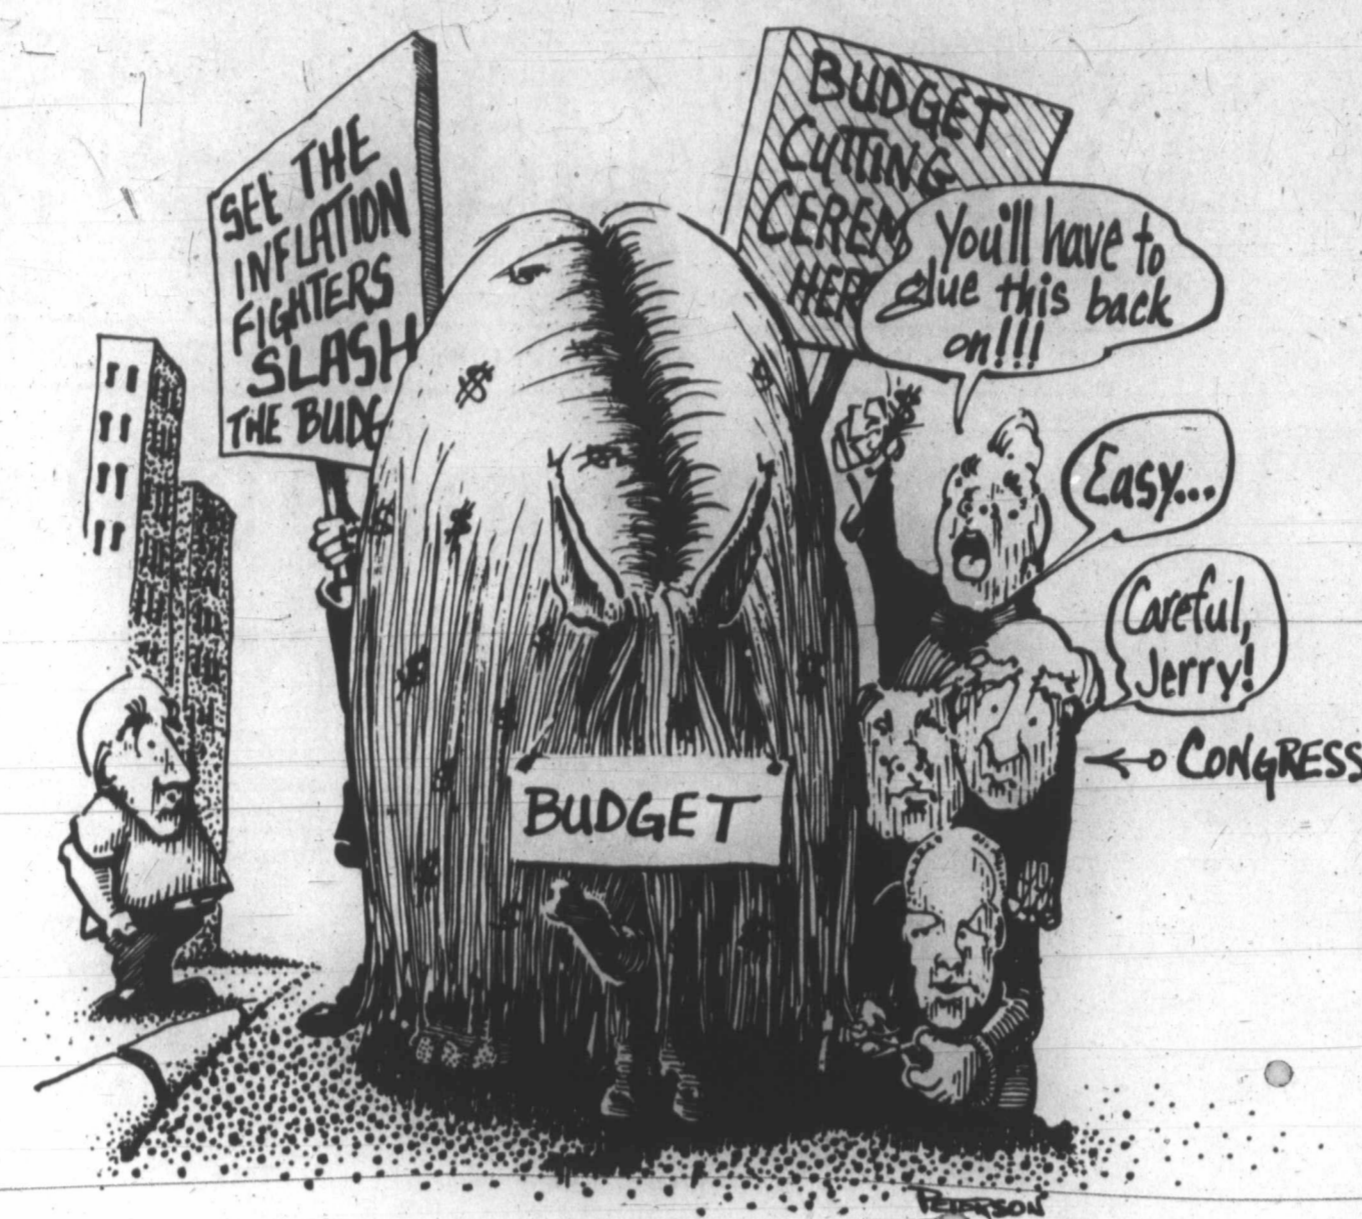

His proposal probably will never get off the ground. Think what the cartoonists could do with that idea. The Senator has a knack for suggesting simple solutions to difficult problems.

Well, what is the problem?

The missile problem is to have some that the enemy knows you will be able to shoot after violence breaks. In other words, if a potential foe knows that you will be able to deal out a lethal counterattack even after he delivers his own Sunday punch, then he will not be inclined to bust you in the first place.

That was the thinking behind the hardened missile — an indestructible missile site that would be operative even in event we took the first blow. That was the

DUNAGIN'S PEOPLE

A Lesson From Chile CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE West Caught In Real Bind

The overthrow of the Marxist government of President Allende in Chile should serve as a valuable lesson to all Americans. It stands as a monument to what a few short years of Communism can do to a nation.

Once one of the most prosperous and peaceful of the nations of South America, Chile is today bankrupt after less than four years of the "Utopia" about which the Communists love to boast. Its food supply is critically short, its economy is in ruins and, most tragic of all, its long tradition of democratic government has been shattered, perhaps for years to come.

The lesson for the citizens of the United States is that the siren song of the ultra leftists who are so quick to damn the great traditions of our nation are that those wild-eyed, rampant social reformers whose shrill theme song is the betrayal of the downtrodden masses by their capitalistic "masters" are, in fact, bent only on placing their own iron yoke upon the self-same masses; pounding them down into a submissive, unthinking mob over which they have total control.

Although a fragmented and somewhat chaotic political situation permitted Allende and his Communist thugs to gain power in the first place, enough Chileans voted for him to place him in a position where he could—and did—wreak unprecedented havoc on the nation, all in the name of the people, of course.

Inflation became so bad as to be almost unbelievable; private property, a great deal of it American-owned, was simply stolen. Food became scarce, then scarcer until long, almost motionless lines in front of stores became the daily scene in the cities. Highway transportation came to a halt because the nation was so broke it could not import spare parts for cars and trucks.

The military revolt that toppled Allende merely replaces one form of dictatorship with another. The best that can be said of it, perhaps, is that it is no worse than the disease it replaced.

But freedom is gone in Chile—if only temporarily—and the people of the United States will do well to ponder seriously those recent events and what led to them.

By Wm. A. RUSHER

In their frantic thirst for oil, the principal nations of the Western world, led by the United States, find themselves caught in a fearful bind.

The Arab position is the soul of simplicity: The Arab nations want Israel out of the occupied Arab lands. Since Israel's ability to stay in those lands depends entirely on military aid from the United States, the Arabs are putting pressure on us by hiking the price of the oil that we, and more especially Japan and our allies in Europe, need desperately for our sophisticated economies. They have also demonstrated that they are willing, if necessary, to reduce the supply.

From the standpoint of the average American politician (or even statesman), this raises a fascinating question: How much inconvenience is this country prepared to endure, and to see its allies endure, in order to maintain its traditional posture of support for Israel? The excitement is provided, not by any complexity of the problem, but simply by the immensity of the juxtaposed pressures. However willing PAID WITH INTEREST — NEW YORK (UPI) — J. Elmer Witmer of Altamont, Tenn., honeymooned in New York City 25 years ago and got a $10 parking ticket when he visited the Statue of Liberty.

He paid $25.60 for the violation — 25 years later.

Police said they recently received a check from Witmer and a note which said:

"As a citizen of this country, it is my responsibility to pay whatever fines that have been imposed upon me." The check represented the original fine plus 25 years in interest at 6 per cent, not compounded.

BATTIN' AROUND Mercantilism Resurgence Seen In U.S. Senate Bill

By C.R. BATTEN

The U.S. Senate has approved a bill that would require that 30 percent of our oil be transported in U.S. tankers — thus perpetuating the old mercantilistic policies against which the American revolutionaries fought 200 years ago.

Mercantilism has continued to be with us since the Revolution. It is the root of protectionist trade policies. This latest act by the Senate (and a similar one approved earlier by the House) is expected to improve our balance of trade, and provide thousands of jobs for American seamen and shipyard workers.

The same arguments were used when the Jones Act was passed many years ago, requiring that all shipment between U.S. ports be in U.S. ships. That law practically guarantees that lumber produced in Alaska will be exported to Japan, restricting lumber supplies in the lower 48 states, and pushing prices higher than they would otherwise be.

Mercantilism is based on the assumption that a nation's wealth is in the gold and silver billion it possesses. This leads to another assumption: that one nation's gain is another nation's loss. Mercantilistic countries adopted policies and laws that promoted the import of gold and silver. If a higher value of gold and silver entered the country then the value of goods that went out to other nations, then the country had a favorable balance of trade.

In colonial times, Parliament passed the various Navigation Acts that were supposed to assure that England would have a favorable balance of trade. They required that any goods imported or exported into or out of Britain or the colonies must be transported only in English-built or owned ships (including colonial ships).

These policies were intended to give England a monopoly of trade with her colonies. The effect of mercantilism was to siphon resources from the colonies and other countries to England, and to restrict manufacturing and the development of local markets and intercolonial trade, as well as colonial trade with other nations.

Clarence B. Carson wrote in The Rebirth of Liberty, Arlington House, 1973, "The thrust of mercantilism is to make trade into a contest among the governments of nations." "The most dire result of mercantilism was war," he continued.

Mercantilism ranges government power behind the commercial activities of a nation, uses government power to support the merchants of a nation against those of other nations, prohibits trade activities of foreigners in order to give advantages to native tradesmen. In order to support or protect their tradesmen, other nations retaliated with similar restrictions and sought colonies which would be protected trade areas for their people. If trade is free, competition is peaceful, but mercantilism shifts the contest into the realm of governmental power. When governments contest for advantage in this way they are moving in the direction of the ultimate recourse — war.

Largely because of the effects of mercantilism, a people stood up 200 years ago, announced that all men have the right of life, liberty and Property, declared their government to be a tyranny, shook off that government, and created another.

Our own government has forgotten that one purpose of the War of Independence 200 years ago was to shake off the bonds of mercantilism. It has lost sight of the purposes of the founding of our nation.

Dear Abby Better stay away from that daughter-in-law

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A man signed "Borrowed Time" asked in which state he could marry his former daughter-in-law. You replied that since they were not related by blood, he could marry her in ANY state.

Not in Massachusetts! I quote from Section 1, Chapter 207 of the Mass. General Laws:

"No man shall marry his mother, grandmother, daughter, granddaughter, sister, stepmother, grandfather's wife, son's wife, grandson's wife, wife's mother, wife's grandmother, wife's daughter, wife's granddaughter, brother's daughter, sister's daughter, father's sister or mother's sister."

RESPECTFULLY YOURS,
PAUL W. CORRIGAN
ATTORNEY AT LAW, LYNN, MASS.

DEAR MR. C: Yours was the first of umpteen hundred letters I received to signal my error. I admit that I shot from the hip on that one, using only common sense and simple logic. (It was understandable to me why people related by blood ties should not marry, but why extend that law to those related by marriage?)

The second letter pointing out my erroneous advice came from Angela Haven-Born (also of Lynn, Mass.), and the third was from Alan I. Alford, of Alford, Tuck and Pozzi in Sudbury, Mass. (I quit counting when they got up into the hundreds.)

From Judge Blair C. Wood of Waterloo, Iowa came this word: "If a man should marry his son's former wife, the marriage would be void in Iowa. And if they lived together after the marriage, he would be subject to a penalty of 25 years in the penitentiary for incest." (Why only HIM, Judge? How about HER?)

Then, Rabbi Samuel Friedman, my honorary consultant on Jewish law, wrote from Asheville, North Carolina: "On all other affairs, I yield to brains, beauty and a blessed writer, but please bear in mind that a Jewish man is forbidden by law to marry his daughter-in-law."

Henry N. Berry III, Cumberland County Attorney, made the following contribution: "Your column has been read and enjoyed by us in Maine for many years, but please be advised, Abby, that if 'Borrowed Time' plans to marry in Maine, he may become involved in an illegal relationship. I quote from Title 19, Section 31, of the Maine Revised Statutes: 'No man shall marry his son's wife and no woman shall marry her husband's father.'"

Worse yet was the news from Samuel G. Kerall, of Johnston and Shores, attorneys in Birmingham, Alabama: "I would suggest that you retract the advice you gave 'Borrowed Time' immediately. Otherwise you may find yourself charged as an accessory before the fact to the crime of incest. Here in Alabama that might result in your becoming a guest of our lovely state for one to seven years." (Thanks, Sam. Please regard this as an official retraction. I love Alabama, but I wouldn't want to live there under the above-mentioned circumstances.)

And as if I didn't have enough trouble, Dan Bartley, of Bartley & Harrington, Attorneys in Louisville, Kentucky, wrote: "If you insist on practicing law, please do it correctly! 'Borrowed Time' said that he wanted to marry his daughter-in-law in order to make her the sole heir to his estate. You completely ignored that fact. You should have informed him that he could make those provisions in a will. He didn't have to marry the girl."

Well, dear readers, I earned the roasting I received from hundreds of lawyers, legal secretaries, law students, and readers who just happened to know more about it than I did.

In the future when it comes to legal problems, I promise to consult one of my very able legal consultants. And would you believe that both my son and son-in-law are attorneys?

What's The Windiest Area In These United States

AMARILLO, Tex., (UPI) — Five months of research has concluded what any native of the Texas Panhandle could tell scientists — it is the windiest area in the United States.

Dr. Vaughn Nelson of West Texas State University in Canyon, and Dr. Earl Gilmore of Amarillo College have completed work on wind data of the National Weather Service covering the past 12 years as part of a project to determine if the wind can provide an energy supplement.

"The potential electrical output from the wind in Texas is estimated to average 250,000 megawatts, or about 8 per cent of the nation's anticipated demand for electrical power," said Nelson. The two physicists said it could be used to alleviate the energy crisis.

"This is important because fossil fuels are finite and polluting, and we will have to find alternate energy sources to meet the growing needs of the future," said Gilmore.

Nelson is the head of the department of physics at West Texas State while Gilmore is chairman of the department of physical sciences at the Amarillo junior college. The two used government data from 15 Texas weather stations and seven surrounding ones to find that the Texas Panhandle has the highest wind energy potential in the United States.

Both men feel 1985 will be the year that a series of wind energy conversion systems, or electrical windmills, would be constructed. "This should provide an output of 500 megawatts," said Gilmore, "and that should be enough to provide the energy needs of more than 100,000 persons." He said the feat is "technologically feasible at this time."

They have requested a $4,000 grant for a test which would supply most or all of the heating and cooling requirements for a one-family dwelling at the West Texas State Nance Ranch west of Canyon. The unit would be a 40 foot tower with a horizontal axis rotor. Only $4,000 would be spent on actual equipment. The Nelson-Gilmore wind energy study, made under a $14,000 grant from the Governor's Advisory Council on Energy in Texas, will join other reports from the state in a look at the total energy picture. A $450,000 grant from the National Science Foundation has funded the project. The report will include production, supply and demand and viable energy alternative sources such as solar, chemical waste, wind and geothermal.

The wind supplies the unique combination of being free, with availability unaffected by human-created problems such as international politics, labor strikes and distribution. "There is a large region where a unit would be operating at a rated windspeed of 20 miles per hour for 40 per cent of the time," said Gilmore, "and even an area where it would be operating at capacity of 50 per cent of the time." This means the unit would compare favorably with the nuclear generating plant which operates at capacity only about 55 per cent of the time.

The wind units are reminiscent of the windchargers used in rural areas during the 1930s and '40s, except they are on a grander scale. Most of the data in the report was taken at 23 feet above ground level and the energy was estimated at heights of 100 and 300 feet since the velocity increases with height. The researchers plan to instrument a 1,626 foot television tower to obtain long term data on wind energy as it relates to height.

Nelson said an important factor remaining to be solved is the storage of energy. "If this problem is solved, wind energy will be able to supply a significant part of the nation's energy requirements," he said.

CROSS-COUNTRY
SKIING

If you live in Canada or the northern third of the U.S.—or plan to visit that part of the continent this winter—it's time you were introduced to cross-country skiing.

Ski-touring—as the sport is also called—has long been popular in the Scandinavian countries and is now catching on fast in North America. Little wonder. A complete "X-C" outfit of runners, boots, bindings and poles can cost less than the boots alone for downhill skiing. And—unlike the flashier version of the sport, which is practiced only on expensively maintained slopes—cross-country skiing can be enjoyed anywhere and at any time there's snow on the ground.

Want an entirely different view of urban golf courses, parks and boulevards? Try silently gliding (with permission, of course!) through such city areas alone when a heavy layer of snow has everyone else trapped indoors. Even small towns and suburbs take on a different and much more exciting character when explored on a set of skis.

"For the real magic of cross-country skiing, though, you have to go out into the country," says Tom O'Neal (a real devotee of the sport). "The crisp contrast of white snow and pale-blue sky, the intense clarity of a woodpecker tapping through the quiet of a frozen forest, the way the cold makes air seem so much cleaner and purer in your lungs and the simple, silent spell cast by falling snow... can work a magic on you that snowmobilers will never know."

And besides—as Tom also points out—strapping on a set of skis and pushing off across a countryside of white just plain feels good! Try it this winter, and you'll see.

Parents Urged To Protect Children By Immunization

NEW YORK (UPI)—The nation's health detectives are calling all parents.

They want mothers and fathers to respond to a nationwide alarm on immunizations against childhood diseases—and the threat of epidemics.

These include polio—which can cripple and kill. Also: measles, mumps, rubella, diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus. These, too, can kill.

The last survey conducted by the Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta showed around 5.8 million of the nearly 14 million boys and girls in the most susceptible age group were unprotected against polio, measles, rubella and other bad diseases.

Between nine and 10 million youngsters in the same age bracket currently are not protected against mumps.

The specter of preventable epidemics among such children is the reason the health detectives all during October will be beating drums to call attention to the unprotected children—urging parents to get them immunized.

The National Awareness Program on Immunizations is being run with help from the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Medical Association, the Center for Disease Control and many concerned public and private organizations also on the health team.

The disease fighters cautioned: Dangerously low national childhood immunization levels open the doors to the threat of epidemics and have spurred the designation of October as Immunization Action Month.

The large group of unprotected pre-school children means very clearly that there is a possibility of epidemics in childhood diseases.

How did this happen? Immunization became a widespread and accepted practice when safe, effective vaccines became available for disease control. Threats of epidemics, as a result, have almost disappeared from the public mind.

Many parents of young children are less conscious of the continued need for immunization. Unwittingly, they have created the base for the recurrence of the diseases.

Dr. John J. Witte, director of the CDC Immunization Division, said if an epidemic occurs it is most likely to spread quickly among children in the one-to-four age group. The playpen and sandbox set.

He said the accompanying complications of childhood diseases such as polio, measles and mumps, disabling their victims for life and frequently causing death, cannot be overstated.

Rubella, transmitted to young women of child-bearing age, is the greatest cause of infant birth defects.

"The statistics are really pretty frightening," Dr. Witte said. "In 1963, some 84 per cent of children between the ages of one and four were vaccinated against polio."

Last year the figure was down to 60.4 per cent. That simply isn't enough to prevent epidemics. Anyone who remembers the polio epidemics, when thousands of children were permanently disabled knows what that means.

Some other points about the diseases:

—Only 61.2 per cent of young children were immunized against measles last year. Dr. Witte commented that "some people still regard measles as a harmless disease and aren't too concerned about having their children immunized. But before vaccines became available 11 years ago, hundreds of children died each year from the disease. Encephalitis with permanent brain damage is a common measles complication.

—The real horror is that not enough children are being immunized now to assure that epidemics will not occur on a broad scale.

—A further danger created by lowered immunization levels among very young children involves exposure to such diseases contracted by them by older unimmunized children and adults. In the older children and adults, for example, what would be a "mild" childhood disease for preschool children can create serious complications.

Antifreeze Industry Says Shortage Not Necessary

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The antifreeze industry is telling consumers there will be no shortage of its product this winter—if everyone avoids panic buying and hoarding.

There already is some evidence that at least a few car owners are not heeding that advice and have rushed out to buy antifreeze in a panic reminiscent of the one that helped keep long lines outside gasoline stations during the darkest days of the energy crisis last winter. The price has gone up—better than double what it was last year in some cases. But both retailers and the major manufacturers contend there is enough for everyone if buyers behave themselves.

Union Carbide, which makes the widely sold "Prestone" brand, says the industry can make enough to meet demands but can't markedly increase production because of a shortage of ethylene glycol, the basic ingredient which is derived from crude oil or natural gas—both in short supply.

Other factors in the problem, it says, are a growing demand caused by more people and more cars; a growth in the demand for polyester fibre, which has the same chemical base; and the withdrawal of DuPont, which made the "Zerex" brand, from the field.

DuPont got out because it found polyester fibre, used for clothing and a wide variety of other products, a more profitable and continuing market to devote its raw materials to. It will cease production in 1975 and until then has cut back output to a small percentage of what it sold the previous two years.

But Union Carbide, Dow Chemical Co., Northern Petrochemical Co., BASF-Wyandotte Inc. and the Houston Chemical Co., all major producers, say they can "meet the demands of the U.S. consumer so long as there is no hoarding or panic."

Sears, the nation's largest single retailer, says it has experienced some isolated cases where antifreeze was sold out; but it says supplies keep coming in and it does not foresee any problem.

No one wants to make any predictions about prices, however.

Sears reports its brand is selling for about $4 a gallon compared with about $1.59 one year ago. Other brands are reported selling for $5 a gallon. The manufacturers say the rising price of oil is to blame.

Bankers Recognize Junior's Knowledge Of Money Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—If a little kid at your house charges interest when you borrow two bits from him, you know he's not ignorant about money.

The same for a youngster who wants her allowance adjusted to reflect increases in the cost of living.

Such boys and girls are typical rather than being exceptions when it comes to being wise about money.

Today's youngsters understand a lot more about the subject than their parents did at comparable ages, says Rex J. Morthland, president of the American Bankers Association (ABA).

The head of the Peoples Bank and Trust Co. in Selma, Ala., said children have a good grasp of the fundamentals.

Take the case of an eighth-grader who was asked for a definition of money. He answered: "Nice to have. You get a warm feeling if you have a lot."

Morthland also told of classroom banks.

It is not uncommon these days for children to be running a bank or handling checks in a classroom project.

Laura Cohen, an art teacher at Stella Junior High in Phoenix, Ariz., developed a unique program to promote good behavior while teaching students basics of banking.

With help from Mary Olson, customer relations representative of the United Bank of Arizona, she set up a bank in each of a dozen classes.

Miss Olson also trained one student as a teller. The pupils created their own unit of currency, an estrella. Miss Olson arranged to have her bank print counter checks bearing the school's insignia. The Rocky Mountain Bank Note Co. contributed checkbook covers and registers.

Boys and girls are rewarded; with estrellas, whose value corresponds with rules of conduct set up by Miss Cohen. Estrellas are paid out by the tellers and deposited by the children into their own accounts.

They use the money to buy candies and trinkets at classroom auctions but also are encouraged to save the estrellas.

There was an incentive to save. United Bank of Arizona agreed to award a $5 savings account to the student in each class who saved the most estrellas in one semester.

Here's a complaint from a consumer in Lake Placid, Fla., which seems worthy of airing. She writes:

"Meats packaged in trays that one cannot see the bottom of many times have huge chunks of fat either loose or attached and tucked under in such a way that it cannot be seen until one opens it. I have several

The Navy's new Spruance class multimission destroyers, being built by Litton Industries at Pascagoula, Miss., are 563 feet in length and 7,800 tons in displacement, or almost twice as large as the latest destroyers now in service.

Old School Musicians Giving Rock A Look

NEW YORK (UPI)—There was a time when older musicians would not touch rock music with a ten foot pole.

But over the years the better rock groups convinced their elders they had something to say.

Such respected conductors as Arthur Fiedler and Enoch Light played their own orchestral arrangements of compositions by the Beatles and Simon and Garfunkel. Other leaders also picked up the baton on rock scores.

Now we have the jazz bands moving into the scene, notably Stan Kenton and Gil Evans.

Stan Kenton Plays Chicago (Creative World Records ST 1072) includes music created by Chicago and Blood, Sweat and Tears as well as original compositions by Bob Kurnow, who produced the album and once was a trombonist in Stan's band.

Chicago and Blood, Sweat and Tears spiced their rock with some jazzy strains, so Kenton did not have to work with purely alien music.

Kenton's music has changed since the "Eager Beaver" days but his revolutionary ideas about jazz still prevail and those who rejected his offerings during those World War II days may find his present output too abrasive.

The Gil Evans Orchestra Plays the Music of Jimi Hendrix (RCA CPL 0667) is a posthumous tribute to the rock guitarist. The band on this recording is the same group of jazz and rock musicians who played at Carnegie Hall.

Like Kenton, Evans is an innovator whose career has spread over about 40 years. Most innovators refuse to reject the changing times so it is only logical to find a synthesizer in the array of Evans' instruments.

Evans leads off with "Angel" and follows with "Crosstown Traffic" and "Little Miss Lover" before finishing the first side with "Castles Made of Sand" and "Foxy Lady." The second side begins with an imaginative arrangement by Evans of "Up From the Skies" and then moves into "1983—A Merman I Should Turn to Be." The concluding numbers are "Voodoo Chile" and "Gypsy Eyes."

Erroll Garner, who recently concluded a tour of Europe, will delight his large following with "Magician" (London APS 640).

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is a move underway in certain circles to advance the "unisex" trend in this country to a point where males and females will be sharing the same pronouns.

Sexually segregated pronouns are, of course, as much a part of American culture as separate bicycles — one type for girls and one for boys.

We have "he-him-his" pronouns for males and "she-her-hers" pronouns for females. The thought of both sexes using the same pronoun would have shocked our grandparents and I must say I find it a bit scandalizing myself.

Yet conditions in our society today are such that such a proposal appears in such a respectable publication as the National Education Association's journal. If you can imagine such a thing.

In the current issue, Fred Wilhelms, former executive secretary of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, advocates adoption of three new unisex pronouns — "ne-ner-nis" — for use in double gender situations.

This proposal, as you might have suspected, is an outgrowth of the women's liberation movement. Lib leaders contend that pronoun-sharing already is widespread in such sentences as "Everybody is losing his head."

Since women as well as men are losing their heads, they argue, that sentence is bisexual. But women are denied equal pronominal representation. Instead, they are shoved into the masculine pronoun.

The only alternative — construction of separate but equal pronouns ("Everybody is losing his or her head.") — is cumbersome. So, under Wilhelms' integration plan, the pronoun would become unisex ("Everybody is losing ner head.")

Although blood clotting helps most persons survive cuts or other wounds, a Carnegie Mellon University professor says it imperils victims of heart disease or other circulatory ailments.

Wire Price Cut Target Of New Bill

WASHINGTON — Cotton farmers may pay less for baling wire if Congress enacts legislation U.S. Rep. Bob Price introduced Tuesday.

The Price bill would amend tariff regulations so that baling wire for cotton will be considered "bale ties" whether they are in cut strips or in coils. Currently, wire imported in coil form is considered strip steel and is thus subject to an 8.5 percent import tax, while bale ties cut in strips are taxed only .02 cents per pound.

Price said he realized he was offering the bill late in the session but he expressed hope the House Ways & Means Committee would act quickly on the measure as it often does on tariff matters.

"Due to the current baling wire shortage, the industry is now changing from American standard cotton ties in cut lengths of 11 feet 6 inches, to using coiled baling wire as well," Price said. "Machinery has been set up at a number of mills to cut the coiled baling wire into ties of standard lengths, but the law was written prior to this practice," the veteran legislator reported.

"When the 8.5 percent import tax is applied to coiled baling wire the difference between the two cent-per-pound tax for cut ties is massive," Price said. "For example, on 5,000 coils of cotton ties the duty at two cents per pound would be under $100, while a duty of 8.5 percent would exceed $3,000."

Jersey City, N.J., is America's most densely populated metropolitan area. It has more than 12,960 persons per square mile.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15

Your birthday today: Falls in with an early morning new moon. Life acquires an exciting, experimental quality; you meet old limitations and questions with fresh creative energy. Personal progress is made through practical adaptation. Relationships are subject to changes, require real commitment. Today's natives often adopt impartial, theoretical for philosophic roles

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Emotions are stirring and on the surface, so it's an achievement to get through today. Special care with all gadgets! Late news includes surprises.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: If you balked when you could have made a long-needed change, don't be shocked if change makes itself. Any circumstance at all will do for a context.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: The rash move seems natural now, is costly later. Momentary upsets or pleasures lose significance if you look at the future in perspective. Do no more than the necessary minimum.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Your approach to life is tested abruptly. Realize you are not a target, take nothing personally during this strenuous day. There's enough change without seeking it.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: The unforeseen is the order of the day. Shortcuts have a way of landing opportunists far out in left field. Discount any maneuver based on pride.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Change is probable where you least expect it. Your impatience for details only creates frustration. Give everybody room to turn around in.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: It's not your turn to take initiative in argument or debate. Learn by watching anyone who brings up a new issue, and what it is. Think before you respond.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Accept possible restrictions temporarily. Sudden change for the better is likely — special rewards for those who have "done their homework," know what they're talking about.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Extra care is needed. Friends misunderstand, can't take teasing, practical jokes. Whatever is divided now stays separate. A moment's thought saves something precious.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Keep business situations and associates on an even keel — somehow. Nothing comes quietly or easily. Don't push your luck with anything mechanical.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Your main effort should be for trouble-shooting, maintenance, assuring you're still on the right track. Communications, travel are difficult at best.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Yesterday's details are suddenly seen in a fresh and disturbing light. Drastic action is apt to be misdirected. Pray for guidance, think about what you're doing!

McLean Youth Enters Steer In State Fair

McLEAN — Dave Jefferson will be competing at the state level this week when he travels to Dallas to enter his 1200 lb. Charolaise Angus cross steer in the State Fair.

Jefferson was to weigh in the steer after arriving Sunday and show it on Tuesday. The calf won second in McLean competition and ranked eighth in Top o' Texas judging.

Jefferson, who owns five acres north of town, is also raising a Hereford calf to show in this year's Top o' Texas competition. He has bought 2 feeder calves for an additional agriculture project.

The 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer G. Jefferson attends McLean High School and is classified as a sophomore.

Patricia's Mother Claims She Is Innocent

CHICAGO (UPI) — The mother of kidnaped newspaper heiress Patty Hearst says her daughter is innocent of any criminal activity because she was coerced into cooperating with her Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers, according to the Chicago Tribune.

Patty Hearst was kidnaped from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment Feb. 4, and last seen May 17 in Los Angeles, where several members of the SLA were killed in a shootout with police.

Mrs. Hearst said she fears that Patricia "will not be allowed to tell her story," but still believes her daughter was the victim of the SLA.

School Board Delays Meeting

The scheduled meeting of the board of trustees of the Pampa Independent School District will not be conducted today due to the absence of a member, Curt Beck. The meeting has been rescheduled for Friday at 9 a.m. in Carver Center.

The board has considered the need to review some possible changes in the policy manual. Tentative plans include commencing this consideration in October. Possible changes will be reviewed in open meeting, with no action executed until the following month in order to afford the public opportunity to attend discussion sessions.

"We are not interested in making changes just for the sake of change, but we feel compelled to make changes where we feel it would be beneficial to our students and the overall systems," stated Paul Simmons, board president, in a statement released to The News.

"What Patty has heard on the radio and read in the newspapers is that she is a wanted and dangerous fugitive with more than $1 million bail hanging over her head," Mrs. Hearst said.

Price Sponsors Bill On Savings

Legislation which would provide a tax incentive to encourage individual savings by excluding from gross income of individual taxpayers the first $500 of interest on passbook savings accounts is being co-sponsored in Congress by Rep. Bob Price of Pampa.

Price said the bill would "provide a tax break for the nation's taxpayers who are hard hit by inflation and it would have a significant effect on inflation by increasing the desire to save."

The Pampa congressman said the measure also "would restore the flow of funds to financial institutions, helping to ease the credit crunch for the housing industry and local business, thus creating more jobs and job opportunities."

It is estimated the legislation, if passed, could result in an annual increase of $40 billion in savings accounts. Price said.

"I am sure she visualizes and believes that if she is found, she will either be killed by police or, if captured, will spend the rest of her life in prison."

Ed Sullivan Dead Of Throat Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ed Sullivan, host of a long-time CBS-TV Sunday night show running the gamut of entertainment from opera stars to animal acts, died Sunday night at the age of 73.

A family spokesman said Sullivan died of cancer of the esophagus at Lenox Hill Hospital. He had been hospitalized more than five weeks ago.

It was Sullivan who gave American television audiences their first look at Elvis Presley in the 1950s and the Beatles in the 1960s.

Comic impersonators got laughs by mocking Sullivan himself, especially his "really big show" line, which he used in introducing his show.

Sullivan got into show business as a newspaper reporter covering celebrities. He wrote a newspaper column for the New York Daily News until his death.

After a series of short-lived radio shows, he was spotted by CBS while hosting the New York Daily News' annual Harvest Moon Ball.

In 1947, CBS gave Sullivan a one-hour variety series, originally called "The Toast of the Town," which ran for 20 years.

A fellow journalist, Jim Bishop, once said "By all the rules of the theater, he's a cipher. He cannot act. He cannot sing. He cannot dance. He cannot tell a joke."

Although his role was seen as that of the person who changed the signs between vaudeville acts, Sullivan was not entirely uncontroversial. In 1961, he had a feud with Jack Paar, then star of NBC-TV's late night show, over performers' fees.

Sullivan started the dispute by saying he would not pay performers as much as $7,500 for appearances on his prime time show if they appeared on Paar's show for only $320.

Schools Note Lunch Week

National School Lunch Week, an annual celebration recognizing the National School Lunch Program, is set for Oct. 13-19.

The week, as proclaimed by President Ford, is to recognize the program that provides nutritious and well-balanced meals to more than 26 million children across the nation.

This U.S. Department of Agriculture program is in its 28th year of operation. In Texas last year about 1,387,000 students in more than 5,000 schools ate the school lunch daily.

Recent national goals of the National School Lunch Program include extending the programs benefits to schools that do not have lunch or other food programs for their students. And there is a stepped up effort to increase student participation at schools that already have a lunch program.

As the President said in his proclamation, "Only healthy, well-nourished students can realize their fullest mental and physical potential and transform an ideal into a reality."

The National School Lunch Program is administered in Texas by the Texas Education Agency in cooperation with USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

At Wit's End

An avid television viewer from Sarasota, Fla. named Doris has noted some rather interesting observations regarding the daytime "suds" circuit.

"Clara Shea died on 'As The World Turns,'" she writes, "but a few weeks later turned up with a new hairdo on 'Guiding Light.' At one time Robert Hughes was looking for his wife, Sandra, who had left him. If he had hung around for the soap opera following his, he would have found her there. Despite the fact that I've seen Tom Hughes played by three different men, the wives never appear to notice when they run in a new one."

"Sometimes I think soap operas are worth watching just to see where the characters will pop up next."

Well, Doris, that should tell you something about the stamina of everyday people. My husband and I have been the key figures in our own personal soap opera for 25 years, seven days a week (with options to renew yearly) and not once has either of us been written out of the script. (A substitute, I'd notice!)

I think one of the reasons for our obvious long run is that my husband works steady. As I have often said, "I married him for better or for worse, but not for lunch." Soap opera husbands never seem to "keep hours." And this business of pussyfooting around the house all day drinking coffee and discussing abortions, incest, divorce, runaways, murder, embezzlement, identity crisis, amnesia, custody of the kids, and what car to drive to the funeral is enough to drive anyone off to another series.

I can't help but compare one of the old radio serials to the present day. Remember Vic and Sade and their son, Rush? And Uncle Fletcher? Why, sometimes they'd sit around for a week and listen to the screen door squeak. The high spot in their day was when Rush would rock on his own foot. No social ills, no earth-shattering decisions, no pressures of living... only the sometimes boring, sometimes reassuring slice of life.

Yes, Doris, life on TV is not only demanding and confusing, it's downright exhausting. I saw one girl on a commercial who made rotten coffee, appeared three days later with irregularities, a week later had a metal drain in her face showing her sinuses were congested, and last night she was thanking her momma for putting her on pills so she could sleep in the city at night.

I hope she finds a nice soap opera and settles down to a nice illicit relationship-custody suit-major surgery-etc.

HOISTS WARNING

NEW YORK (UPI) — Research is "desperately needed" to determine whether arsenic from agricultural, industrial and domestic uses is being magnified to precarious levels in the food chain or accumulating in soil, according to a report at the 168th annual meeting of the American Chemical Society.

Arsenic compounds are used as pesticides, herbicides and defoliants, wood preservatives in poles and fiber building boards, and, at least in the past, as pigments in wallpaper, according to Dr. Donald P. Cox of Union Carbide, Charleston, W. Va. As a research associate at Cornell University Dr. Cox found several bacteria that could convert arsenicals to a gaseous form under certain conditions.

READING PROGRAM — Students of the School of Development are learning to read and write under the supervision of Mrs. Quentin Williams, (in photo) who is a volunteer worker at the school each Wednesday and Thursday. Another daily volunteer is Mrs. Amy New, a retired teacher, who also assists with the reading and writing program. Pre-school children meet mornings Monday-Friday and post-school students meet afternoons at First Presbyterian Church, with instructor, Mrs. Ruth Harmon. (Photo by Jim Williams)

Bobbie Skaggs Places At District Better Bake Show

By GERTIE SHAW

Howdy! I'm with all the Seniors again. All seemed to have a wonderful time Thursday. All members and guests were presented with a glass of cherry jelly, from Mrs. Johnnie Donaldson. A great big thanks from all to you Johnnie.

Clark LaPrade is in Highland General Hospital, improving from a heart attack, but still in intensive care.

Alice Frazier and Katie Benedict are still in the hospital and Johnnie Gandy is improving at home. Real anxious for you to be back with us.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Southards were visitors. They were old members of the cwnter.

We also had Mr. and Mrs. Homer Gibson and Alice Posey as guests. Hope they enjoyed our party and will be regular members.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Laurence have had his daughter Mrs. J.C. Shaw, visiting this past week.

Mrs. Edith Laurence returned after three weeks vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cramer at Lake Texhoma and Oklahoma City.

While at the lake, they caught 50 croppies in two afternoons.

Twentyieth Century Culture Club members serving pie, and coffee were Johnnie Donaldson, Dorothy Buzzard, Jessie Craddock and Milo Carlson.

Altursans present were Louise Sewell, chairman, and Lora Dunn, Olive Hill, and Lillian Snow.

Mrs. Mattie Dixon has gone to California to be with her sister while having eye surgery.

The District I Better Bake Show was held the last Saturday of the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo on the Tri-State Fairgrounds. Bobbie Skaggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Skaggs, represented Gray County at the show. Bobbie was named second alternate at the show winning a ribbon and ten dollar gift certificate.

The Better Bake Show is held in the Panhandle to promote wheat products as this is a major product for this area. Girls compete on the County level with the winner entering the District show in Amarillo. The 4-H Better Bake Show is the only such show held in Texas to promote wheat products.

This year 4-H members made Banana Nut Bread and Whole Wheat rolls.

Bobbie's Banana Luncheon Bread is a combination of recipes. The whole wheat roll recipe comes from the District Extension office.

BANANA LUNCHEON BREAD

2 cups flour
 1 teaspoon baking powder
 1/4 cup margarine
 1 cup mashed bananas
 1/2 cup pecans
 1 cup sugar
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon soda
 1/4 cup shortening
 2 eggs
 2 tablespoons water

In a large mixing bowl, cream sugar, butter and shortening until light. Add eggs and beat again.

Sift flour and leavening agents and salt together, then mash bananas. Add banana and flour mixture. Add 1 tablespoon of water at a time. Beat after each addition with spoon.

Add nuts and stir. Grease bottom of loaf pan only.

Bake at 350 degrees for 50-65 minutes, until toothpick comes out clean. Remove from pan and cool thoroughly.

Best eaten after 24 hours.

WHOLE WHEAT ROLLS

1 cup milk
 3T. molasses
 2T. sugar
 2 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine
 1/2 cup warm water (105-115 degrees F.)
 2 packages or cakes yeast, active dry or compressed
 2 1/4 cup unsifted whole

wheat flour (about)
 2 1/4 cup unsifted white flour (about)

Scald milk, stir in molasses, sugar, salt and margarine. Cool to lukewarm. Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir until dissolved. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture. Add 1 cup of whole wheat flour and 1 cup of white flour. Beat until smooth. Add enough of each kind of remaining flour to make soft dough. Turn on lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 8-10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 40 minutes.

Punch down and shape into desired rolls. Brush lightly with melted margarine. Cover, let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 30 minutes.

Bake in hot oven, (400 degrees.) about 15 minutes. Serve warm.

Character Actor Begins TV Role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Claude Akins, a character actor for years and a perennial guest star on television shows, has finally achieved his dream with a series of his own, "Movin' On."

Akins' rugged features and rock quarry voice make him the perfect stereotype villain.

But he's almost heroic as the tough truck driver in the new NBC show.

Ferocious as he may appear externally, Akins is essentially a softie who is family oriented. He and his wife Therese (whom he calls Pie) have been married 23 years.

Their children are Claude Jr., 17, Wendy, 15, and Michelle, 13.

Each youngster excels in a different field. Claude Jr. is a top flight amateur golfer who hopes to turn professional one day. A high school senior, he has won several tournaments.

Wendy is a budding young artist whose oil canvases decorate the family home. And little Michelle is a ribbon winning swimmer.

Pie is an excellent tennis player while Akins tries to match his son on the golf course.

It is only natural then that the Akin home in the San Fernando Valley is filled with trophies, ribbons and plaques. Until this year the lion's share of golf trophies in the family den belonged to Akins, but they have been surpassed by Claude Jr.'s prizes.

The ranch style house is comfortably furnished in contemporary style. The swimming pool is outsized and used every day when Akins is in town. He starts each morning with a brisk series of laps.

Pie collects cook books but wins her husband's most enthusiastic praise for her tacos and hot sauce. Each time they have a dinner party Pie tries a new recipe.

Claude likes to barbecue and fancies himself a chef with roast pork on a spit, basted regularly with a mixture of orange juice, butter and honey. The juice is provided by oranges grown on his own property.

The Akins family pet is Skipper, a mixture of collie and golden retriever who body surfs when he is taken to the beach. Claude and Pie have survived their daughters' collection of tropical fish, rabbits, mice and parakeets in the past.

The entire clan attends the circus, ice shows, ball games and other attractions as a unit.

Papa Akins' delight at having his own show is tempered by the fact that he works entirely on location a thousand miles or more from home. Most of "Movin' On" is being shot in the Pacific Northwest.

He left home July 15 and won't return until December. Akins eats all his meals in restaurants during production and has learned to call a variety of motels home during shooting of the peripatetic show.

He works 12 hours a day, from sunup to sundown, six days a week.

With the children in school and a large house to run Pie has been unable to visit her husband on the endless locations.

For the fifth year Claude has been unable to accompany his family on summer vacations. Just when school lets out Claude inevitably finds himself reporting to work in a movie or television show.

The actor is comfortable in denims and boots, but he most often can be found wearing golf togs, returning to or heading for the links. He is a member of the Hollywood Duffers who hold several tournaments a year for charity.

If any actor leads a typical Southern California existence — featured by indoor-outdoor living with plenty of sports thrown in — it is Claude Akins and family, and they wouldn't have it any other way.

Wind Instruments Can Be Harmful To Dental Health

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Before your child starts playing a musical instrument, particularly a wind instrument such as a clarinet or saxophone, a New York orthodontist recommends you check first with your dentist.

Dr. Ernest Herman said some instruments with some individuals could cause a variety of dental problems, ranging from faulty alignment of teeth to gum difficulties.

Journal of the American Dental Association that millions of children are playing instruments they selected themselves or are studying music in schools with instruments that may have been assigned to them on a haphazard basis.

"As a result, thousands of children are not dentally or temporally suited to their instruments," he said. "Many a would-be musician is handicapped from the start and will never be any more than mediocre in his field."

"Every dentist delivering proper service to his patients should advise would-be musicians, teachers and parents about various factors related to dentistry that are involved in the playing of wind instruments. A dental consultation should be held before a great amount of time, effort and money is spent in this pursuit."

New Hampshire adopted its own declaration of independence two weeks before the Continental Congress in Philadelphia agreed on Jefferson's Declaration.

Did You Know This About OUR RELIGIONS?

By Dr. Carlyle Adams

The Rev. Jeannette L. Bassinger, a newly ordained Methodist minister on Long Island, says the most serious problem she has encountered yet in the ministry is her inability to find a "clerical collar that fits."

This columnist, after 40 years in the ministry, has discovered that there are problems in the church even more serious than that one!

QUESTION: Is the "Black Mass" something which has grown out of the leadership of black priests in the Catholic Church? — Columbus, Ohio

ANSWER: Definitely not. It has nothing whatever to do with any race of mankind.

In the 16th century some priests who left the Catholic Church began celebrating Black Masses in France. Their strange ritual was related to witchcraft and devil worship.

In more modern times something like the Black Mass was celebrated in England by the eccentric Aleister Crowley who was a poet, painter and also known as a heroin addict.

He lived from 1875 to 1947. He founded various sects, among them the Gnostic

Christian Catholic Church, for which he wrote a mass which has been known as a "Black Mass."

He attracted few followers but much publicity in his lifetime.

QUESTION: How long has the English Bible been available to Roman Catholics in North America in a form which is approved by that church? — Washington, Pa.

ANSWER: The first American edition of the Douay Version of the Bible in English was printed in Philadelphia by the firm of Carey Stewart and Co., in 1790.

It was the same Bible, with some minor editorial changes, as the Rheims-Douay Version which was published in England in 1635.

The American edition had the approval of the Rt. Rev. John Carroll of Baltimore, the first Roman Catholic Bishop in the United States.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — United Artists wrapped up "The Man with the Golden Gun," the ninth of the James Bond thrillers which was filmed in Hong Kong, Macao, Bangkok and the Gulf of Siam.

FRANK FORD: CLEAN LIVING AND HARD WORK STILL PAY OFF

By J. O. H. N. SHUTLEWORTH

This — as we all know — is an age of scandal, decadence, terrifying inflation, deteriorating standards and real and imagined catastrophes of every magnitude.

Which makes it even more inspiring to hear about a man who — against impossible odds — has bet every fiber of his being on what he considers to be good and honest and worthwhile — and who has won the gamble!

Such a man is Frank Ford.

Fourteen years ago — when the chemical "agribiz" method of farming seemed destined to inherit the world — Frank began growing wheat on the high plains of Deaf Smith County in the northern panhandle of Texas.

Deaf Smith (as you may know) had long been famous for its fertile soil, abundant trace minerals and the general good health of its people. Ford, however, soon found that he could improve even Deaf Smith County grains if he grew them using "organic" methods.

Frank also had his own ideas about how his grain should be processed. So he and a friend bought a mill and began stone-grinding the wheat he raised and selling the resulting flour whole — with all the bran and wheat germ left in.

Well, as Ford soon found out, taking a stand for naturally grown and processed food was easy. Making that stand economically viable — in the face of the multi-billion-dollar petrochemical-agribiz — supermarket society — was something else.

The life that Frank had marked out for himself was rough going for the first six or seven years. He farmed in the summer from four in the morning until 10 at night, had to take construction jobs during the winter just to pay the bills and keep his tiny operation from going under.

During that formative period — in addition to his "fund raising" — Ford personally did most of the growing, grinding, sacking, trucking, warehousing, shipping, bookkeeping and other work at the struggling company he had named Arrowhead Mills.

Frank was also the only salesman the firm had. He'd stone-grind a batch of flour, lead it into his old pickup and then haul it to every grocery store from Wichita Falls to Dallas.

"I drove tens of thousands of miles," he says, "and competed head-on with General Mills and Pillsbury for regular flour accounts. It was my stone-ground whole wheat against their refined white flour, dollar for dollar — and, at the time, most people thought flour should be white. If the stores didn't want to buy mine, I'd try to get it on the shelf anyway by leaving it on consignment."

Ford lost money every year during the first five years that he tried to breathe life into Arrowhead Mills.

But I never was discouraged," he now says. "because I just knew that — sooner or later — people would start demanding better food."

Sure enough, the tide did begin to turn in Frank's favor during 1966 and 1967 and, by 1968, Arrowhead Mills was actually making a little money. As fast as the dollars come in (and that still wasn't very fast), Ford plowed them right back into the business — and into promoting the whole field of natural foods.

"We may be a little dumb and a little slow," says Frank. "But we've never tried to keep this market to ourselves. I encourage our distributors to develop lines of their own and we're always happy to buy those products from them. We're their customers just as they're ours."

I even welcome competition, and I help it to develop. I've had some of the largest mills send us representatives so that we could teach them how to compete with us in stone-grinding grain. I'm happy to do that, too. Why should we be defensive about showing someone else how to produce the sell better food?"

Now, interestingly enough and contrary to what you may have heard about doing business in this day and age, Frank Ford's live-and-let-live attitude has paid rich dividends. Arrowhead Mills did a $100,000 volume four years ago and the company has quadrupled sales every year for the past three years.

Which means that its annual cash flow is now well over six million dollars — and still growing. Being a good guy can pay off in cold, hard cash — even today.

I can pay off in other ways too — ways that Frank Ford finds even more satisfying. For the first time in years he now has the opportunity to personally visit his 32 distributors on a regular basis.

He says, "I like to see my distributors on a regular and listen to them tell me about all the things that Arrowhead Mills needs to do better. Then I go home and try to do 'em."

Ford now also has the time to coordinate an interdenominational social and spiritual service organization in his home town, draw up plans for major sewage recycling projects that he hopes will be used in several cities and speak out for the small farmer from his position on an agricultural advisory committee in Washington, D.C.

In short, Frank Ford has proven that a decent man can still gamble everything he has on an honest, straightforward idea and — without cutting any corners or taking advantage of anyone — reap a rich harvest. That's good to know.

If you'd like to read a lengthy interview with Frank Ford in which he tells more about his philosophy and the growth of Arrowhead Mills, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to the Mother Earth News, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Reprint No. 206. "Frank Ford." (Released by the Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1974).

THE PLACE TO LOOK

SOMETHING TO CHEW ON:
235 FEET OF BUBBLE GUM
 THIBODAUX, La. (UPI) — Student radio announcer Bob Borne said Thursday he stretched a wad of bubble gum 235 feet, 3 inches after accidentally sticking his elbow in it.

"It appears to be the longest thing I've ever stuck to in my life," Borne said. "I walked around the station and it followed me."

He said he was unaware of the gum trailing behind him until he walked into a nearby office of the station at Nicholls State University.

"We then realized it was amazing and so we walked out of our studios, down the hallway of the building, down two flights of stairs and halfway back up with one continuous piece of bubble gum trailing from the piece stuck on his elbow," said fellow staffer Jerry Lousteau.

More than 50 per cent of the medical teaching institutions in the United States are now teaching the use of stapling as a surgical technique, according to the United States Surgical Corporation.
