Guardsmen In Kent Riot Begin Trials By Jury

CLEVELAND (UPI) — One of eight former Ohio National Guardsmen charged in connection with the 1970 Kent State shootings today described as "hell" the last four years and five months since four students died and nine were wounded in a 13-second barrage of gunfire.

"I feel the public is going to finally find out what really happened," said defendant James E. Pierce, 29, Amelia Island, Fla., as he entered federal court here for trial. "It should have been done five years ago or four and a half years ago."

Pierce said he had never been through an experience such as this.

"I lost my job last weekend because of this," said Pierce. "I've got to be away so much, I'm not going to be of much use to them."

More than 100 persons were called for possible selection to serve on the 12-member jury. The trial was expected to take about two months.

Of the eight defendants, five face a maximum sentence of life imprisonment if found guilty.

They are: Pierce, Lawrence A. Shafer, 29, Ravenna, Ohio; Ralph W. Zoller, 27, Mantua, Ohio; James D. McGee, 27, Ravenna; and William E. Perkins, 28, Canton, Ohio.

The five are accused of willfully assaulting and intimidating students. The life sentences could be imposed because four of the students died.

The other three defendants, Barry W. Morris, 29, Kent; Mathew J. McManus, 28, West Salem; and Leon H. Smith, 27, Beach City, are charged with assault and intimidation not resulting in a death, a misdemeanor which carries a maximum sentence of one year in prison plus a $1,000 fine.

The eight were charged in an indictment returned March 29 by a federal grand jury after testimony from 173 witnesses, including the Guardsmen themselves and the nine wounded students.

In addition, the federal grand jury studied 250 exhibits, an 8,000-page FBI report and a National Guard report before reaching its decision.

The jury never has been dismissed, leaving open the possibility of further investigation and charges.

U.S. District Court Chief Justice Frank J. Battisti, who is presiding in the case, ruled last week that statements made by the Guardsmen to the FBI, the Ohio Highway Patrol and a special state grand jury which exonerated the Guardsmen of any blame for the shooting incident, can be used as evidence in the trial.

Jury Selection

Jury selection for cases to be heard by trial was underway shortly before noon today in 31st District Court.

President Ford Willing To Make Tapes Public

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford finally answering a skeptical congresswoman, says he is willing to make public tapes of any conversations between himself and former President Nixon.

When Ford appeared before a congressional subcommittee Oct. 17, Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., said there were suspicions of a deal struck when Nixon was pardoned. Ford immediately denied it, saying "no deal, period."

But Ms. Holtzman persevered.

"To alleviate this suspicion once and for all, would you be willing to turn over to this subcommittee all tape recordings of conversations between yourself and Richard Nixon?"

Ford replied at that time that the tapes "belong to President Nixon."

He was asked the same question Saturday night in a relaxed meeting with reporters aboard Air Force One. The ground rules of the interview prevented release until Sunday.

"I'd be delighted to, assuming there is no problem with the special prosecutor," he said.

There has been no indication so far whether any Ford-Nixon tapes exist. Nixon aides had said the automatic taping system was disassembled shortly after its existence was revealed at the Senate Watergate hearings in the summer of 1973.

But the question whether Ford would release any that were found, which arose initially in connection with an investigation of whether Ford agreed to pardon Nixon before the former President left office, had never before gotten such an unqualified affirmative answer.

Ford said he hoped his historic testimony last Thursday before a House Judiciary subcommittee had satisfied any remaining questions over his unconditional pardon of Nixon from any Watergate crimes.

"Congress had its opportunity, and I really believe that I answered any questions they asked," he said.

'NO AGREEMENT' Nixon's Attorney Discusses Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon's attorney said in court today there is no way under an existing agreement with the government that the former President's White House tapes can be destroyed within five years.

Opposing lawyers, seeking a restraining order to prevent Nixon from taking the tapes and documents of his administration to the West Coast, argued there might be loopholes in a controversial ownership agreement between Nixon and the General Services Administration that would allow the tapes to be destroyed sooner.

Herbert J. Miller, Nixon attorney, said he had heard talk that the agreement allows the tapes to be destroyed in the event of Nixon's death.

"I would like to lay this at rest right now," he added. "This is absolutely false."

Miller said that under the agreement, the tapes and some documents would be destroyed on Sept. 1, 1984, or earlier if Nixon dies. But he said the "death provision" would not come into play until after five years had passed.

The Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, representing newsmen, historians and columnist Jack Anderson, intervened in a suit Nixon filed to have the tapes and documents removed to the West Coast under the agreement.

Attorney William Dobrovir said the ownership agreement did not appear to be legally airtight. He said there was room for an interpretation that the tapes should be destroyed within the next five years if the former President dies.

Robert E. Herzstein, attorney for the reporters committee, said the agreement gave Nixon a form of ownership and control over documents "that could exceed in value all the salary he received as president."

"He also has exclusive access to information which gives him the right to scoop all of our clients—historians and reporters."

In the suit which Nixon filed last week, he also asks the right to review any of the tapes and documents which might be subpoenaed in the future. He said this would not apply to materials already under subpoena or items needed in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Ford Heads To Mexico

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — President Ford, making his first foreign trip since taking office, headed for the Mexican border today to talk to President Luis Echeverria about possible agreements on trade, oil and migrant farm workers.

Ford, traveling with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, left Washington a little after dawn and stopped at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base outside Tucson to transfer to a helicopter waiting to carry him to the U.S.-Mexican border.

Arizona's two Republican senators, Barry M. Goldwater and Paul J. Fannin, and Gov. Jack Williams were invited to welcome Ford before he took off again to meet Echeverria for a long day of ceremonies and negotiations in each country.

The two leaders agreed to exchange their first greetings at the international boundary dividing Nogales, Ariz., from the town with the same name in the Mexican state of Sonora.

From there, Ford and Echeverria planned to fly south by helicopter to the town of Magdalena for their initial talks and to cross over to U.S. soil for a luncheon and second business meeting in Tubac, Ariz.

Their discussions were expected to touch on inter-American relations generally, and Cuba in particular, but to center on three other areas:

Trade — important to both countries, since Mexico is the best client the United States has in Latin America and sends over 70 per cent of its exports to U.S. markets.

Migrant Mexican farm workers — Millions of Mexicans have been entering the United States illegally annually for years. Mexico has been pressing Washington to permit a certain number of migrant workers to cross the border legitimately with guarantees of the same treatment given U.S. farm workers. "We are ready to sign an agreement to set an annual quota of workers," a Mexican government spokesman said in advance of today's talks.

Oil — With the United States looking for new resources to meet domestic energy demands, it was reported last week that rich new oil supplies had been discovered in Tabasco and Chiapas, two southeastern states of Mexico, and the recoverable reserves of high-grade crude were estimated at between 1 billion and 20 billion barrels.

Ford relaxed Sunday at the White House and got in a round of afternoon golf after returning late Saturday night from a campaign swing through North and South Carolina and Kentucky.

As the President prepared to leave Washington, administration sources said Kissinger was expected later this month to nail down final arrangements for a meeting between Ford and Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev toward the end of November.

Ford plans to visit Japan and South Korea from Nov. 18-22 and the sources said the President might hold a summit session with Brezhnev in the Russian Pacific Coast city of Vladivostok afterward.

ABOUT COVER-UP

Dean To Face Rugged Trial Cross-Examination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rugged cross-examination by the defense trial is expected this week for John W. Dean III, the government's star witness in the Watergate cover-up who resumes the stand today for his fourth straight day of testimony.

Prosecution questioning of Dean, the first witness in the case, is expected to end today or, Tuesday, and attorneys for the five defendants have made it clear they intend to attack Dean's credibility.

One lawyer said the cross-examination could last the rest of the week. The trial is entering its fourth week before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

Dean, once White House counsel under former President Richard M. Nixon, is considered Nixon's chief accuser. Dean has pleaded guilty to conspiracy in the cover-up and is currently serving a prison term.

Charged with conspiracy in the trial are former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, former White House aides H.R. "Bob" Haldean and John D. Ehrlichman, and former Presidential re-election officials Robert C. Marland and Kenneth W. Parkinson.

The prosecutors are also expected to play the tapes of Dean's March 21-22, 1973, talks with Nixon — talks the youthful former White House counsel once described as "a tremendous disappointment" because he realized the cover-up would continue.

Transcripts of both were released earlier by Nixon and the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry.

The tapes of meetings of March 17 and the morning of March 21, 1973, were played last week.

During the March 17 meeting, with the Senate Watergate committee soon to become active, Nixon suggested that Dean prepare some "self-serving goddamn statements" that would clear the President of Watergate blame.

At the meeting four days later, however, Dean warned of "a cancer growing on the presidency," and laid out for Nixon the full Watergate story before and after the June 17, 1972, break-in at the Democratic National Committee.

According to the tape, that afternoon Nixon again proposed a written report "which is a very general, understand, understand, (laughs) I don't want to get all that goddamned specific."

Supreme Court To Decide On Mental Hospitals Care

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether a person who has committed no crime but is involuntarily committed to a state mental hospital is constitutionally entitled to regular treatment.

The nine justices will hear oral arguments later this term in an appeal brought by Florida of a decision which, if upheld, might force states to upgrade their mental hospitals substantially to provide better care.

Judge John Minor Wisdom of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals held that "where a nondangerous patient is involuntarily committed to a state mental hospital, the only constitutionally permissible purpose of confinement is to provide treatment, and such a patient has a constitutional right to such treatment as will help him to be cured or to improve his mental condition."

Wisdom said there was a difference in rights due someone committed for mental treatment after committing a crime because he had greater due process rights at trial.

But he said commitment when no crime is involved entails a massive curtailment of liberty in the constitutional sense. The destruction of an individual's personal freedoms effected by civil commitment is scarcely less total than that effected by confinement in a penitentiary.

Wisdom added that

Artificial Sugar Damages Cells

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has approved sale of a new sugar substitute despite evidence that it may cause brain damage in children, according to Sen. William Proxmire.

Proxmire, D-Wis., accused FDA Commissioner Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt of "misfeasance in office" for permitting the manufacture and sale of Aspartame, an artificial sweetener 180 times sweeter than sugar.

"In view of the present skyrocketing price of sugar, the economic pressures on the FDA to approve it and the potential profits from its use are tremendous," Proxmire said in a statement.

"I charge Commissioner Schmidt with 'misfeasance in office, for while he has technically not broken the law, what he has done is wrongful and potentially injurious to millions of children."

Schmidt called Proxmire's charges "needless scare tactics."

Proxmire said there was scientific evidence that Aspartame becomes toxic when combined with monosodium glutamate, a chemical used widely to preserve and enhance the flavor of processed foods.

He quoted Dr. John W. Olney, associate professor of psychiatry at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, who told the FDA: "If packages of Aspartame are available for free-flowing use in the home, infants and children will have at their fingertips an instant brain damaging powder which tastes like candy."

Wisdom added that because involuntary commitment is usually for an indefinite period, a person may spend more time in a mental institution than he would in a prison if he had committed a crime.

Therefore the state, because it takes away a hospital patient's rights, has a "quid pro quo" obligation to provide good treatment, the court ruled.

The case came to court when Kenneth Donaldson, who was committed to a Florida state mental hospital in 1957 and not released until 1971, filed a damage suit against five hospital doctors charging they had violated his civil rights by denying him due process of law.

Donaldson claimed he had almost no treatment during his nearly 15 years in a mental hospital and that the state had failed in its constitutional duty to help him if it wanted to commit him.

A jury awarded Donaldson $38,500 in damages against two doctors and dismissed charges against the other three.

HEW's Wasteful Budget

In private enterprise, when a department executive tells the head of the company that certain savings can be realized by eliminating this or that, he usually gets the attention of the boss. If a department head tells the boss he could save the company three to four billion dollars, he will definitely get the man's attention.

Boston Remains Calm

BOSTON (UPI) — Gov. Francis W. Sargent says there is relative calm in Boston but a group of National Guardsmen will stay on alert as the city starts the sixth week of classes under a court-ordered school desegregation plan.

"I think that just the very fact that the National Guard is there, that people know it's there even though they are not on the street, has had an important effect on this city," Sargent said Sunday.

"I think the guard should remain on alert for some period of time," the governor said. "I can't say whether it would be a matter of days or weeks. Or even more than that."

"I think it's important to have a reserve force there because the Boston Police Department is stretched very thin and they're tired," Sargent called up 450 members of three military police units of the Massachusetts National Guard last Tuesday after fighting broke out among students at Hyde Park High School.

The rest of the school week was relatively calm throughout the city.

Riot-trained state and Metropolitan District Commission police remained on guard at schools in South Boston, scene of most of the early violence directed by whites, against the federal court order.

Last Friday, Army officials announced the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C., which had been alerted by President Ford Wednesday in case the situation deteriorated in Boston, had returned to normal status.

A spokesman for the governor said the National Guard units originally activated would be relieved by other units and weekly rotations of duty would continue.

Opponents and proponents of U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity's busing order staged demonstrations Saturday, both of them peaceful.

Some 500 white pro-busing demonstrators staged a march through the city's downtown section, ending it with a rally on Boston Common.

Speakers denounced antibusing leaders as "racist politicians" and urged an end to racial violence.

FOR GOP ELECTIONS Ford Sees Less Dismal Prospects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says his talks with hard-nosed Republican professionals have convinced him that his party's chances in next month's elections are less dismal than the polls indicate.

In an interview Sunday, Ford defended his decision to devote much of his time to campaigning for Republicans.

"I think I spend enough time in the Oval Office to get the work done," he said. "I have enough time to decide what's right and what's wrong."

He also shrugged off the suggestion that his own influence and political prestige will wane if the GOP takes a beating Nov. 5.

"If I don't do anything and we lose," he mused, "Republicans in the House would say, 'He didn't even try.'"

A relaxed, shirt-sleeved President, drink in hand, cruising home at 25,000 feet and 600 miles an hour aboard Air Force One, talked with reporters Saturday night, but ground rules for the interview prohibited publication until Sunday.

He was on his way home from a 16-hour day of campaigning for Republicans facing uphill odds in South and North Carolina and in Kentucky.

At Louisville, where Republicans paid $15 to eat cold chicken and roast beef sandwiches from cardboard boxes, Ford acknowledged the possibility existed that the GOP could lose another 40 or 50 seats in the House and seven or eight Senate seats.

In that event, the President said, big spenders will be in control of government. "The key to the Treasury will be thrown away and the money will be pouring out."

Democrats expect to make gains, but not by such large margins as Ford mentioned. Some see a pickup of 20 or 30 House seats and perhaps two or three in the Senate.

Ford told reporters his conversations with reliable Republican leaders he considers realists convinced him that things are "not as pessimistic as some of the polls would lead you to believe."

What sort of net gains or losses does he anticipate?

AT OKLAHOMA PRISON Maximum Security Unit May Not Need Repairs

MCLESTER, Okla. (UPI) — Corrections Director Russell Lash says the maximum security unit at the Oklahoma State Prison, destroyed by a fire started by inmates over the weekend, may not need to be rebuilt.

Lash said Sunday the unit, known as the "Rock," may be useless if a "good time" plan is established or a new maximum security prison is built.

wrong and ran to a guard tower shouting for an emergency unit to take over.

The armed guards brought the inmates under control in less than 30 minutes.

The 43 inmates were placed in a section of the east cellhouse under tight security, he said.

No inmates or guards were injured in the Tuesday and Saturday incidents.

The Saturday morning fire gutted the 48-cell building. Two guards were taken hostage, but were released minutes later as inmates surrendered to guards in a yard outside the burning building.

"McAlester is not a maximum security prison," Lash said. "Times have changed. Inmates have changed. It's a whole new ballgame."

He said the prison was "sort of stabilized" Sunday and said Saturday's disturbance involved only the 43 inmates in the maximum security unit.

Lash said while he was Indiana State Prison warden the number of inmates at the maximum security unit went from 120 to 21 after the "good time law" went into effect.

"If we keep the inmates busy working we may not need a 'Rock,'" he said.

In an incident last Tuesday, 25 to 30 inmates returning from a recreation period dashed from a cellhouse to a tunnel. They were chased out by guards and ran to another cellhouse where guards brought them under control.

Lash happened to be at the prison Saturday and walked up to the "Rock" unaware that inmates had just taken over. He said when he asked at the door for the officer in charge, he saw a hand reaching through the entrance door and unlocking it.

Famous Persons Eat Differently

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, doesn't really like the idea of eating sheep's eyes, but he's willing to try anything once.

Singer Carol Channing is so fussy about eating she carries her own food wherever she goes around the world. So does actor Peter Sellers.

Lord Mountbatten waxes eloquent about his own method of cooking "vermicelli egg" and actor David Nivell goes "headfirst into a haddock."

But actor Douglas Fairbanks Jr. doesn't care what he eats. "My wife maintains that I would eat stewed knitting if it were put in front of me," he says.

These tidbits come from "Nobs and Nosh," a book published today about the eating habits of some of the world's most famous persons. "Nobs" is British slang for prominent persons. "Nosh" is Yiddish for snack.

TV In Review

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW
NEW YORK (UPI) — Today's criminal justice system seems more and more like a giant supermarket. The rich and crafty select filet mignon while the poor and ill-educated get chopped meat.

On Tuesday night, NBC presents "The Law," a TV movie that is so good you almost forget you are watching television. But there are some minor flaws.

Nevertheless, this film, better than any documentary, depicts the failings of today's big-city criminal court system. It is a filmed injustice system filled with superlawyers, shysters, ambitious prosecutors and vindictive judges.

Despite the system, this show ends on a note of optimism. There are still many attorneys who want to see that everyone gets a fair shake before the lady justice. One of them is Murray Stone, a harassed, rumpled public defender played by Judd Hirsch.

In this semi-documentary, which may be spun off into a mini-series by NBC, Stone fights for the freedom of a drug-crazed hippie accused of participating in the torture-murder of a professional football player.

At a distance, this two-and-a-half-hour film is the story of Stone's attempt to defend his client against all odds. Up close, it hands down an indictment against the squalor and decadence of American jurisprudence.

Although "The Law" was shot in Los Angeles, the film is supposed to portray big city justice anywhere in the United States. Screenwriter Joel Oliansky gets his indictment against the system by weaving Stone's defense against the backdrop of superlawyers who prepare book deals faster than their cases; shysters who operate out of car trunks; and prosecutors old photographer, spent three years snapping pictures of celebrities and collecting their comments on food. His 104 subjects run the gamut from actress Mae West to Prince Philip, Queen Elizabeth's husband.

Comedienne Phyllis Diller gave her recipe for "garbage soup"—a stock in which you throw any leftovers remotely edible.

Prince Charles said he has been forced to eat "very strange food," such as raw squid and octopus, on his royal travels.

"I wouldn't like the idea of sheep's eyes," he said. "Maybe if I could swallow them in one go. It is probably the thought of having to chew them that puts me off. But I am quite prepared to try anything once."

Actor Cary Grant says friends refer to him as "the Scavenger" because "after finishing every morsel of my own meal I look around who swap lesser charges for a higher conviction rate.

What pushes this show past the run of the mill TV movie is that "The Law" tells a good story that takes many turns before reaching a climax. Most TV films have one idea, which is beaten to death in 90 minutes.

Then too, the show is aided by some notable performances by a mostly no-name cast. Hirsch, a New York actor, is quite believable as he plays the harassed Stone. His low-keyed style, complete with vinyl attache case, is an excellent contrast to Sam Wanamaker's flamboyant portrayal of a headline grabbing superlawyer. Hirsch is a softer version of "Petrocelli's" Barry Newman.

Gary Busey also turns in a handsome performance as a drug-scarred hippie, and Barbara Baxley is delicious as a vindictive judge. You almost want run up to the bench and hit her with a gavel.

Giscard d'Estaing Welcomes Trudeau

PARIS (UPI) — French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing laid out a warm welcome for Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau today at the start of a visit aimed at ending seven years of friction between their two countries.

French officials said the two leaders hoped to close out a troubled era begun with the late French President Charles de Gaulle's controversial 1967 visit to Canada.

Trudeau and his wife, Margaret, were scheduled to fly to Paris this morning after spending a quiet weekend resting at a Canadian military base in Lahr, West Germany.

The Canadian leader was expected to confer with Giscard d'Estaing this afternoon at the Elysee presidential palace at the start of a three-day visit to France.

French officials said Giscard d'Estaing will offer Trudeau plans for a broad increase in bilateral cooperation in an attempt to launch an era of close partnership between the two nations.

President Giscard d'Estaing views M. Trudeau's visit as a symbol of French-Canadian reconciliation, a high government official said.

He said both leaders hope the trip will wipe out memories of a 1967 Canadian visit in which de Gaulle punctuated a speech with the call, "Long Live Free Quebec," a rallying cry for the province's separatist movement.

Premier Jacques Chirac went to Paris Orly Airport to welcome the Trudeau's, who were scheduled to go sightseeing during their first hours in the French capital.

French officials said Giscard d'Estaing and Trudeau feel their two nations can maintain close relations while France maintains warm ties with French-language Quebec.

Robert Bourassa, premier of Canada's Quebec province, was scheduled to visit France next month, pointing up the close ties between the province's residents and their ancestral homeland.

French officials said Giscard d'Estaing will also tell Trudeau about his views of the world situation and seek support for efforts to tighten cooperation between Western and developing nations.

Canada, French officials said, is certain to play an increasingly important role on the world economic and political scene.

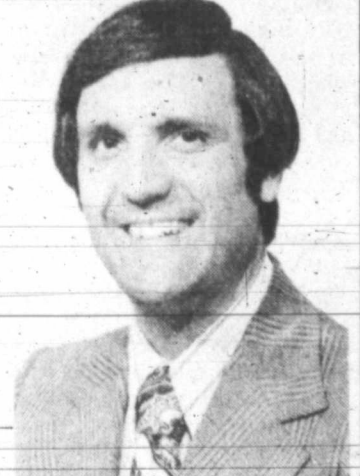

Trudeau, who delayed his trip to France because of the Quebec issue, was scheduled to fly to Brussels Wednesday to discuss the possibility of closer Canadian ties with the European Common Market.

Counselors Needed At Elementary Level

HOUSTON (UPI) — Detecting deviant behavior in elementary school students can prevent the child from growing into a frustrated, lonely adult who commits murder as the only way to cope with life, according to a Harvard University psychiatrist.

Dr. Shervert Frazier said male teachers and counselors are desperately needed in the elementary schools to help detect the children, with problems that could eventually lead to violent behavior.

"I've examined well over 200 first-degree murderers and so many were victims of loneliness, lack of socializing ability and unable to learn how to win or lose — in other words, they never found out how to cope with life," Frazier said.

Frazier told a symposium on research and the psychiatric patient a majority of the murderers he has studied "were abused — and often very badly and frequently — by their parents while they were children."

"Many youngsters go to overcrowded urban schools where they are merely a number. No one really cares about them as individuals."

"Add the roving lifestyle of so many families, broken homes, working mothers and social isolation, and you have all the ingredients for real trouble," he said.

Frazier said antiquated thinking that elementary teachers must be women must be changed, because male teachers have a better chance of detecting the problem child.

"Unfortunately they often are not able to intervene effectively," Frazier said. "We have to develop a way to give such youngsters advice effectively, to talk it over with parents without blaming them, if violence is to be curbed."

Frazier also said a key as to whether or not a person will commit murder depends on the advice he gets from friends.

"The murderer often does not view what he does as a violent act. Instead, he feels cornered with no way out except to remove the person or group pursuing him," he said.

He said a large number of potential killers discuss their ideas with others, usually close friends.

"Whether or not they ultimately kill depends on advice they receive as well as the severity of their emotional disturbance," Frazier said.

WITCHES AND CATS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Black cats were linked with Halloween during the Middle Ages — a time when superstition rode high.

In ancient France and Britain, Druid priests worshipped Samhain, the God of Death, on Halloween night. The Druids believed black cats were sacred beasts and embodied the souls of persons whom Samhain had punished.

ABOUT UNICEF

NEW YORK (UPI) — Over 400 million persons suffer from trachoma. For five cents you drop into a UNICEF trick n treat box, the United Nations Children's Fund can provide antibiotic ointment to save one of them from blindness.

HELPING

NEW YORK (UPI) — Out of every 10 children born in the developing world, seven get no help from trained midwife or doctor. UNICEF is remedying this situation in Thailand with aid to six midwifery schools. About 560 midwives are graduated yearly.

Special Prosecutor Eyes Brief Tenure

LONDON (UPI) — Prof. Archibald Cox looked back on his brief tenure as special Watergate prosecutor Saturday — a year after his dismissal by President Nixon — and said even Europeans now realized the American people were not obsessed with the scandal but were pursuing the ideal of equality under the law.

Cox, who is teaching at Sidney Sussex College in Cambridge, was fired on Nixon's orders in what became known as "The Saturday Night Massacre" when he insisted on pressing subpoenas calling for the White House to produce its tapes.

Attorney General Elliot Richardson resigned rather than carry out Nixon's orders to fire Cox, and deputy attorney general William B. Ruckelshaus was fired for also refusing.

Cox chuckled when the massacre term was used in a telephone interview in which he was asked whether he was aware that many Europeans were worried Americans were neglecting serious international problems during the Watergate investigations and did he see their point now that he was some distance from the scene.

"I think it was unfortunate the attention of senior officials was diverted from some of those problems," he said, "but Watergate is every bit as important as Americans considered it to be. The country's reaction was enormously encouraging and showed that we are still an idealistic people."

"I think their question of the abuse of power and the danger of excessive power in the highest places."

"But my impression from talking to friends over here is that they have now come to see that Americans were right in their perception. They have not exaggerated the importance of Watergate. Someone remarked to me only yesterday that as soon as we perceived the real thing was the cover-up by top officials then we stopped thinking that you were excessively concerned."

Cox was asked if he suspected at any time from his appointment in May, 1973, to his dismissal five months later that the trail would lead to the President.

"It was suspected that it might lead to the President," he said, but there was no affirmative evidence that it did so lead. One simply had to approach it not knowing whether it would lead to him or not in an effort to discover the facts whichever way they cut.

"Was there anything, with hindsight, he might have done differently?"

"No, I don't think so," he said. "I think perhaps I might have been a little more vigorous in objecting to the White House refusal to cooperate in supplying evidence. I was under the impression from Attorney General Richardson that they were going to supply it colorfully."

"If I had felt this was not so I suppose I would have subpoenaed quicker."

Cox said he has not in favor of President Ford's pardon for Nixon and had said as much at the time.

HALLOWEEN CARS

NEW YORK (UPI) — In many neighborhoods at Halloween-time car pools take the candy-seekers around.

Traffic experts say to park such a car on the right side of the road and kill your headlights.

Doing this makes sure oncoming drivers will not be distracted from viewing children who may be crossing the roadway.

Non Prescription Hearing Aids Blasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hearing aids sold over the counter often do not help the buyer and should be available only by prescription, according to a government study obtained Saturday.

The 50-page report on hearing aid health care supported recent charges by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., himself a hearing aid user, that the industry suffers from some fast-talking salesmen peddling inferior and overly-expensive goods.

The report concluded that dealers frequently misjudge the need for a hearing aid and sell devices "which may be ineffective and possibly unsafe for intended use."

UPI obtained the report from non-government sources. It was prepared under the overall direction of the Food and Drug Administration.

About 70 per cent of the people who buy hearing aids go to a dealer first rather than a physician or hearing professional, the report said, citing industry statistics. Yet of the estimated 15,000 hearing aid dealers, only 2,200 have received certification through 20-week home study courses offered by their trade association.

"Studies conducted in Minneapolis, New York City, Baltimore, and Detroit indicate that hearing aids can be sold to patients who actually need medical treatment, surgery or special rehabilitative services," the report said.

In 40 per cent of the cases in New York City and Baltimore, dealers recommended the purchase of a hearing aid when audiological centers had determined the patient could not be helped by such a device.

The panel also was critical of "unreasonably high" costs of hearing aids, which it said were often marked up 200-300 per cent by the dealer and averaged $300 to $450 a unit.

"The task force believes that the misvaluation and misfitting problems associated with hearing aids can be eliminated by making hearing aids prescription devices," said the report prepared for Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Casper Weinberger.

"Changing the status of hearing aids from an over-the-counter device to a prescription device would require that a medical evaluation is necessary to determine the need prior to the purchase."

Loose Ends Plauge 93rd Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The final lame duck session of the 93rd Congress promises to be remembered more for what it left undone than for what it achieved.

In the scramble to get home and campaign for the Nov. 5 elections, senators and representatives left behind a long list of important — but unfinished — business. They return Nov. 18, but many issues will go unresolved even if the session drags on until the first of the year.

Chief among those issues are the approval or rejection of Nelson A. Rockefeller's vice presidential nomination and the legislative action on tax reform, health insurance, trade reform and the resolution of differences on abortion and school busing.

Only the trade reform measure appears assured of final action.

Filling the vice presidential vacancy is an urgent matter, but Rockefeller's chances of confirmation have been placed in increased jeopardy by growing unhappiness in the House and Senate over his nomination.

The Senate Rules Committee resumes its confirmation hearings Nov. 13, five days before the official return of Congress, with Rockefeller himself as the first witness. The House Judiciary Committee has not yet set a time table for its hearings.

Some sources predict action on Rockefeller's nomination might not be finished before the 94th Congress convenes in January, raising the question of whether President Ford would have to resubmit the nomination.

The long-stalled Trade Reform Bill, which would give the President authority to change import quotas to protect domestic industries, appeared certain of quick passage in the wake of Friday's announcement that the Soviet Union had agreed to relax its Jewish emigration policies.

Two other bills appeared dead for the year because of stubborn congressional opposition. One involves proposals to get the federal government in the health insurance business. The other, tax reform, ran into trouble over its proposed end to the oil depletion allowance, its expected new taxes on oil production and Ford's suggestion that it contain a 5 per cent income tax surcharge.

Efforts by a House-Senate conference committee to reach a compromise on a $33 billion measure funding the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare have bogged down because of differing provisions on abortion and school busing.

Congress is expected to finish work on a stop-gap appropriation including transition funds for former President Richard M. Nixon. The $850,000 total requested by Ford was cut to $200,000 by the House and a Senate committee. A vote on the reduced total is pending in the Senate.

Also up for final action is a compromise $11.8 billion, six-year program of aid to ailing mass transit systems which has been blocked by opposition from rural law makers and fiscal conservatives.

The few weeks left for action on these matters will be punctuated by Thanksgiving and Christmas recesses of four or five days each.

In addition, Congress is confronted in December with the three-day Democratic miniconvention and with inauguration in the House of a new procedure bringing newly-elected but not yet sworn in members together with reelected incumbents to organize committees and elect majority and minority members.

BOLTON ABBEY, England (UPI) — The Rev. Frederick Griffiths says he and his family share their home in the rectory on the Duke of Devonshire's Bolton Abbey estate with a ghost — an Augustinian monk who wanders through the living room in black cassock and cap.

"We have seen him many times and happily accept the fact that he is here," the 61-year-old Church of England rector said Sunday. "Sometimes we have the smell of incense floating through the house and recently we have had the smell of fermenting mead."

FIRST BOX NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Bankers Association says the first safe deposit box as it is known today appeared in 1865. At that time, the Safe Deposit Co. of New York offered its customers the latest in security, and guaranteed individual privacy and exclusive control of his own property.

Celanese Releases Quarterly Report

NEW YORK — Celanese Corporation reports income before extraordinary items of $1.87 per common share, or $27 million, and sales of $519 million for the quarter ended September 30, 1974.

The third-quarter income per share was 43 percent higher and sales were 32 percent higher than in the same 1973 quarter, when the Corporation reported income of $1.31 per share, or $319 million, and sales of $329 million.

For the first nine months of 1974, income before extraordinary items was $5.27 per share, or $76 million, and sales were $1.5 billion. This nine-month income per share was 42 percent higher and sales were 24 percent higher than in the same period of 1973, when the Corporation reported income of $3.71 per share, or $54 million, and sales of $1.2 billion.

John W. Brooks, chairman and chief executive officer, reported that this year's third-quarter and nine-month sales and income before extraordinary items were at all-time highs, although there has been a slowdown in demand for some products. While demand continued strong for chemicals, resins and specialties products, the fibers business began to soften in the third quarter.

Brooks noted also that raw material shortages continued to restrict output of certain products, including cellulose fibers, plastic pipe and some resins and specialties chemicals, and that energy and raw material costs continued to escalate, only partially offset by price increase.

The Celanese index of major raw material costs rose to 156 (1967 = 100) for the third quarter of 1974 from an average of 123 for all of 1973, and the Celanese energy index was 287 for the third quarter, up from the 1973 average of 287 for the third quarter, up from the 1973 average of 251, he said. At the same time, our selling price index was only 102 compared with an average of 80 for all of last year. We have been able to meet these rapidly escalating costs largely because of research and development advances backed by large capital investment programs.

Brooks said that further changes have been made in accounting practices in accordance with the Corporation's policy of maintaining and improving the fundamental quality of its earnings.

Beginning in the third quarter, a change was made from straight-line to accelerated depreciation for U.S. machinery and equipment acquired subsequent to Dec. 31, 1973, and in addition the maximum estimated useful life assumption was shortened to 10 years from 11 for all U.S. machinery and equipment. These changes, which increased depreciation by $4 million or 12 cents per share for the first nine months of 1974, have been charged to third-quarter income (the effect in the first six months was insignificant). The effect for the year is estimated at 25 cents per share. The use of accelerated depreciation and a shorter estimated life will charge the cost of machinery and equipment additions against the income statement much more quickly and therefore will tend to reflect more accurately the current high rate of inflation.

Changes also have been made in the calculation of U.S. pension costs. The wage increase assumption was raised five percentage points and the investment income assumption was increased to 5.5 percent. In addition, although not required because vested benefits are fully funded, the unfunded actuarial liability of the plan is being amortized over 30 years. "The increase in pension costs resulting from these changes plus increases attributable to benefit and other changes will amount to approximately $7 million or 25 cents per share in 1973," Brooks said. An appropriate portion of these costs was reserved in each of the first two quarters of 1974 on an estimated basis.

In addition, Brooks reported that the Corporation recently renegotiated its bank credit agreement to $220 million from the previous $160 million and extended the final maturity by one year to Dec. 31, 1982. He said that the additional $60 million will be available to fund an expanded capital expenditure program. No current borrowings are outstanding under the bank credit agreement, he said.

Celanese is a diversified producer of fibers, petrochemicals, plastics, paints and coatings. The Corporation, its subsidiaries and affiliates operate 69 plants in the U.S. and 15 other countries.

Straight Guy Image Is Mill's Number One Hope

By ROBERT CAREY LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — It would seem from all outward appearances that Wilbur Daigh Mills, the grandfatherly chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, is in serious political trouble for the first time in his 35-year Congressional career.

The juicy scandal of Tidal Basin Monday, which found Mills intoxicated, according to park police, and in the company of a bosomy former strip tease dancer, crashed among Bible-belt Arkansians like a nuclear blast. The fallout, it was whispered, could cost Mills his seat in Congress.

Because the idea that the venerated chairman, whose name has been given to high schools and freeways in his native state, could be out honky-tonking in some smoke dive at all hours with a careful of questionable characters, defied belief.

Without the backup of the Federal Park Police, such a concoction would have been dismissed at once by most all who knew Mills at his level as an outrageous lie. Some of them, yes, they might say, but never Wilbur.

Because Wilbur had been such a straight 8-to-5 guy all of his life, a nose to grindstone, get-the-job-done and not-muchtime-for-play sort. Quiet. Reliable. Dull even, if you want to put it that way. So the whole business came as a mind-searing shock.

"It will depend on how he handles the campaign from here on in," said a top state Democrat a few days later. "If he is contrite, and plays the repentant sinner, then he may be O.K."

The axiom working here is that in the end Arkansians will love nothing so much as to forgive the wayward son and welcome him back into the family.

Mills seems to sense this too.

of the Little Rock Junior Chamber of Commerce Thursday night in his first public speech since the Tidal Basin incident Oct. 7. "I drank some champagne and it went right to my head. I've been embarrassed beyond words, as I have said. I apologize for my embarrassment. I've brought you. Because it is nothing to the embarrassment I've brought to myself and my family."

The crowd of 150 Jaycees loved it. They had given him a standing ovation when he arrived and after he opened with his apology, they broke into cheers again. There were cries of "Right on, Wilbur" and "Good for you, Wilbur."

He was not without humor. He offered some advice: "Don't go out with foreigners who drink champagne." Hearty laughter.

There are several things about Tidal Basin that do not add up. Several stories that do not jive and are for instances in open conflict. Washington newspapers say there is some evidence that Mills was more than an infrequent visitor to capitol nightspots.

But Mills aims to try and ride it out, and it appears it will be with the approach tested on the Jaycees — contrite, but enough of a sport to be able to joke about it. Mills, wife of 40 years was by his side, pale, passive for the most part, but nonetheless there for the Jaycees and everyone else to see.

Another indicator that Mills may get by is his opposition, Mrs. Judy Petty, 31, who although attractive and proving to be an effective campaigner, is almost everything a politician shouldn't be in Arkansas — Republican, young, a woman, and a divorcee.

Even at that, at this point, she is running Mills a close race.

If this were the Democratic primary and Mills had an attractive male candidate opposing him, he might well be decisively defeated.

For there was sentiment against Mills before Tidal Basin. Unhappiness over inflation, the Watergate scandal that appears to be hurting all incumbents, failure by some standards to get through a meaningful tax reform bill in his position as chairman of the Ways and Means, to name a few.

Also Mills has been unable to explain convincingly the illegal donations to his 1972 presidential campaign — which in itself embarrassed some Arkansians because he fared so badly.

There is also the question of Mills' health. A back operation last year put him on the sidelines for six months and apparently eroded some of his power in Ways and Means.

Judy Petty is at work early and stays with it late. "I start shaking hands at a factory about 6:20 a.m. and usually we close by hitting the midnight shift at another factory," she says.

She also steadfastly refuses to discuss the Tidal Basin incident.

"It is a personal misfortune," Mrs. Petty says. Asked if it will become an issue, she replies: "I will not make it one. The issues, as I see them, will be what I have been talking about for the past six months: inflation, taxation, the lack of direction in Congress. I am not changing my campaign. I (the Tidal Basin incident) only comes up when someone asks about it."

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

A WW II WOOD-BURNING CAR

Although gasoline was more or less plentiful this past summer (if you were willing to pay the price), there is a good possibility that spot shortages of the fuel will once again develop during the coming winter months.

And there is a strong probability that these expected seasonal spot shortages will become year-round and chronic as we approach 1980. And after 1980? No matter what the Arabs do (or we do to the Arabs), gasoline rationing of some kind seems inevitable throughout the last two decades of this century. Worse yet, the year 2001 may well find the world with little easily tapped petroleum left to ration.

The fossil fuel binge we've been enjoying, in other words, almost surely cannot last much longer. Even if the Arabs give us their oil, the end is in sight. It's high time we instituted a maximum-priority, crash program in the development of alternative fuels for today's automobiles, alternative transportation systems that can replace the proliferating personal car... and fresh new concepts in community design that will largely do away with even the replacement transportation systems.

In the meantime, we'd all do well to cut our driving to absolutely essential trips, set up car pools, trade down to more efficient cars and otherwise limit our consumption of motor fuel. Such action will [1] help stretch the world's petroleum reserves as far as possible in the long run and [2] cut the cost of living for us all right now!

As strange as it may seem, the family car can—in a real pinch—be operated on gases extracted from wood, sawdust or coke. To get illustrated instructions for making such a conversion, send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. # Ford Lay-Off Called Cost Cut

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. has laid off 545 tool and die workers as one of the first steps in a major cost-cutting program.

The layoffs, effective immediately, were announced by Donald K. Bastian, in charge of the manufacturing group at the No. 2 automaker.

The company Friday confirmed they were launching a belt-tightening program because of its dwindling profit margins, although they refused to confirm or deny news reports that as many as 3,000 white-collar workers could be laid off.

Party Lauds Security Man

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Frank Wills, the young security guard who discovered the June, 1972 burglary at Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate building, has been officially thanked by the party.

Committee Chairman Robert Strauss presented Wills with a plaque Friday for his "unique role in the affairs of the nation."

Wills, 26, thanked the committee for the award and for its efforts in attempting to find him employment.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harris, Upham & Co. predicts sustained market strength into December. Although the firm says "evidence is not fully at hand that the overall bear market has in fact terminated, most of our technical analysis indicates that an effective bottom of near-to-intermediate-term significance has been reached." But it adds "one of the most formidable rallies" of the prolonged bear markets apparently has begun.

The Dines Letter says it is "still firmly convinced that the bottom of this bear market has yet to be seen." The current rally will be short-lived, the letter continues, and just another bull trap like all previous boulevards in this bear market.

"As its top, we envision a new and splendid short selling opportunity," the letter adds.

Virulent, unrestrained inflation has debased the markets, says Manufacturers Hanover Trust, but "some feeble signs that the worst financial dislocations might be over are starting to appear." The bank cited an easing in credit demand, some restoration of order in financial flows, and a tapering-off of loan demand congestion. It predicts a rate of inflation in the 9 to 10 per cent range, however, through the remainder of 1974 and the first half of 1975. Resulting credit demands will keep upward pressure on interest rates, the bank predicts.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22
Your birthday today: You undergo three distinct phases of personal growth, each of which encounters competition and, at times, proves limiting. Late in the year, your accumulated experience and skill yields successful situation, at which time you leave behind most problems. Today's natives seek truth and favor aesthetic over practical benefits.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Business ups and downs continue, while partners and competitors try to clear themselves. Protect your future by leading your temper.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Yesterday's influences have further repercussions. Work conditions run into difficulties, require precautions in normally trouble-free areas.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Fasten before putting into heated discussions. The argument is emotional, so don't look for logic.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Whether you're right or wrong you won't find a sympathetic ear to your complaints. Correct or avoid hazards, and count your blessings twice today!

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Extreme changes require the slightest stimulant. Relatives are ornery; equipment is misplaced, faulty or awkward to use. Keep a composed appearance.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Money poses problems that hopefully can be headed off before they become serious. Old losses in general should have been written off already. No teasing or unorthodox behavior now!

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: You stimulate a surge of energy, and what you began yesterday is put into action. Ride out problems, avoid needless conflicts. Prayer helps.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Let trivial details pass. Concentrate on important matters that appear to be off-base. Handle mechanical things and inanimate objects with extreme care.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Friends and finances are temporarily subject to curious influences. Try to keep the show as directly on the road as planned.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Concentrate on personal matters that are at hand and desperately require your attention. There are too many upheavals going on to provoke any more.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Leave theories for the time being and effect practical solutions. News includes odd stories, none of which are complete or accurate.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Friendly advice doesn't always work out. There are factors even those closest to you don't know or consider. Don't expect anything from important people today.

NATURAL ENERGY Gas Heating

Fresh, warm air gently circulating from floor to ceiling — so nice to take for granted. Comfort is clean gas heat.

And that dependable comfort is such a bargain here in West Texas. Though gas energy costs a little more than it use to, gas furnaces still cost less than one-third as much to operate as similar electric furnaces.

And at the same time you're saving money with gas heating, you can also have a warm feeling knowing that you're helping conserve energy. Gas heating uses only half as much energy as an electric system doing the same job.

Comfort, efficiency, and economy... you get it all with natural energy gas heating.
